SUNDAY, NOV. 22
AT FEDEXFIELD

NEXT WEEK: WEEK 12, GAME 11

GAME NOTES

Kickoff: 1 p.m. Eastern.

Television: The game will air on CBS-TV. In the Bengals' home region, it will be carried by WKRC-TV (Ch. 12) in Cincinnati, WHIO-TV (Ch. 7) in Dayton and on WKYT-TV (Ch. 27) in Lexington. Broadcasters are Spero Dedes (play-by-play) and Adam Archuleta (analyst).

Radio: The game will air on the Bengals Radio Network, led by Cincinnati flagship stations WLW-AM (700), WCKY-AM (ESPN 1530; all sports) and WEBN-FM (102.7). Broadcasters are Dan Hoard (play-by-play) and Dave Lapham (analyst).

Setting the scene: The Bengals this week hit the road to take on the Washington Football Team on Sunday at FedExField. Cincinnati will be looking to rebound from a 36-10 loss at Pittsburgh last week.

"We were not good enough in any area," said Bengals head coach Zac Taylor. "That's offense, defense, and special teams. And we really weren't good enough coaching, and that's on me 100 percent. I feel like I let these guys down, so it all starts with me."

The loss at Pittsburgh came under some of the most unique circumstances in team history. After dealing with its first COVID-19 cases during the Week 9 bye, Cincinnati was without four eligible players (including practice squad) and four assistant coaches against Pittsburgh for reasons related to the virus. Additionally, five listed starters were held out of the contest due to unrelated injuries, and a sixth — CB Mackensie Alexander — left in the first quarter due to a concussion.

"It's just part of the adversity you've got to handle in this league," Taylor said. "Next man up. Those guys don't make excuses, they go out and play. (The backups) wanted an opportunity, and they got an opportunity."

Cincinnati kept the game close early behind 189 passing yards and a TD from rookie QB Joe Burrow in the first half. But untimely penalties and turnovers thwarted several Bengals drives early, and Cincinnati failed to convert a third-down attempt all afternoon.

"Those were killers in the first half," Taylor said. "And then to go 0-for-13 on third downs on offense, you're not going to win. You've got no chance."

Burrow struggled in the second half, completing just five of his 15 attempts for 24 yards. Meanwhile, Steelers QB Ben Roethlisberger passed for 333 yards and four TDs on the day, including two scores in the second half to extend Pittsburgh's margin.

"I missed throws," Burrow said. "That's all it came down to. You're not going to be able to win football games against a team like the Steelers, as good as they are, when your quarterback plays like I did in the second half."

"I just missed throws — throws I always make. I'm excited to get back to practice and get that fixed."

This week, Burrow and the Bengals square off against a Washington team that boasts the NFL's top-ranked pass defense.

"It's never good to lose like this, but it's always a good learning experience," Burrow said. "I was talking on the sideline, and I think we're in that (Steelers) game if I don't suck in the second half. And I'm not going to suck a lot."

"We're going to come back to work every day, and I'm excited to go back to practice on Wednesday and start getting these kinks worked out and move on to Washington."

Washington enters Sunday's game 2-7, after losing 30-27 at Detroit last week.

The series: The Bengals lead 5-4-1, including a run of four straight matchups without a loss. The last meeting was a 27-27 tie at Wembley Stadium in London in 2016, which was preceded by three consecutive Bengals victories in '04, '08 and '12. Washington's last series win was a 34-27 decision at Cincinnati in 1991.

The Bengals have played fewer games against Washington (10) than against any other long-established NFL team except the N.Y. Giants (also 10), who the Bengals face next weekend. The only team with fewer than 10 meetings against Cincinnati is Carolina (six games), which did not begin play until 1995.

Though the Bengals-Washington series history isn't comprised of a lengthy list of matchups historically, it does include a pair of noteworthy and significant results for the Bengals, both occurring in the 1980s:

- In the 1988 season finale, at Riverfront Stadium, the Bengals won 20-17 in overtime, finishing 12-4 and clinching the AFC home field advantage for the playoffs. But it took a stroke of good fortune to reach Jim Breech's 20-yard winning field goal 7:01 into the overtime. On the final play of regulation, Washington K Chip Lohmiller had a 29-yard FG try glance off an upright for a miss. The Bengals went on to win their two home playoff games and advance to Super Bowl XXIII.

- In Game 15 of 1985, the Bengals traveled to RFK Stadium, fresh off a 50-24 shelling of Dallas that had Cincinnati tied at 7-7 for the AFC Central lead. The playoffs seemed to beckon when the Bengals took a 24-7 lead, but Washington scored 20 unanswered points to win, 27-24. Washington WR Art Monk caught 13 passes for 230 yards, both figures setting Bengals opponent records at the time. The Bengals' playoff hopes were extinguished prior to their season finale the next week. Their only title hope was in a three-way tie with Pittsburgh and Cleveland, and prior to Cincinnati's finale at New England, a Pittsburgh loss to the N.Y. Giants in a Saturday game clinched the title for Cleveland.

• Bengals S Brandon Wilson has one career kickoff return for a TD, one shy of Mack (two) for the Bengals' all-time lead.

*—The NFL has counted sacks as official statistics since 1982. However, the Bengals have sacks compiled since 1976 and recognize those sacks recorded from '76-81 in their records. Thus, please note that, because the NFL has sacks for all teams only since 1982, the Bengals' sack statistics for players whose careers included seasons prior to '82 will not be included in league information.

Records vs. Washington: Here is a brief look at the Bengals records set in the Cincinnati-Washington series:

• Lemar Parrish set a Bengals record on Oct. 6, 1974 with a 90-yard punt return against Washington, but that mark is now second in Bengals history, behind a 95-yarder by Carl Pickens at Green Bay in 1992.

• On Dec. 17, 1988, Washington RB Jamie Morris set an NFL record for rushing attempts in a game that still stands today when he rushed 45 times against the Bengals. He gained 152 yards, but the Bengals won 20-17 in overtime.

• In their most recent meeting with Washington at Wembley Stadium in London in 2016, the Bengals tied the team record for most first downs in a game with 35, matching the mark set on Dec. 17, 1989 vs. the Houston Oilers.

Individually vs. Washington: Here is a look at the stats for current Bengals offensive players against Washington (ordered by total games played):

• WR A.J. Green: Two games; 18 receptions for 304 yards (16.9-yard average) and one TD; One rush for 11 yards.

• HB Giovani Bernard: One game; 11 rushes for 52 yards (4.7) and one TD; One reception for 14 yards.

• WR Tyler Boyd: One game; Five receptions for 38 yards (7.6); One rush for three yards.

Uniform watch: The Bengals are scheduled to wear white jerseys and white pants this week at Washington.

Since 2004, the year of the Bengals' last significant uniform redesign, a number of color options for jerseys and pants have been available. Below are the records (regular season plus postseason) for the different combinations:

JERSEY	PANTS	W-L-T	PCT.
Orange*	Black .....	6-1-0	.857

* — NFL rules allow teams to wear designated alternate jerseys, color rush (CR) uniforms and/or throwback uniforms for a combined total of three regular-season games. As in years past, orange will serve as the Bengals' designated alternate jersey, and for the fifth straight year, the team will use its color rush uniforms (white jersey, white pants), which debuted in 2016. Cincinnati does not have a throwback uniform.

THE HEAD COACHES

Zac Taylor was named the 10th head coach in Cincinnati Bengals history on Feb. 4, 2019.

Taylor's first season as head coach ended with a 2-14 record, however the team showed promise late in the year. On offense, Taylor helped key an improved rushing attack that saw its yards-per-game rushing average jump 70.6 yards from the first half of the season (59.5) to the second (130.1). The team's average yards per rushing attempt also jumped 1.26 yards (3.17 to 4.43) the final eight games, and the offense allowed 10 fewer sacks (29 to 19).

On defense, the team notched 11 more sacks in the second half of 2019 compared to the first eight games, and allowed 84.1 fewer yards per game (57.5 fewer rushing yards, 26.6 fewer passing yards).

Taylor came to Cincinnati after two seasons (2017-18) with the L.A. Rams, where he served as assistant wide receivers coach in 2017 and quarterbacks coach in '18. In 2018, he helped guide Rams QB Jared Goff to career highs in every major passing category — completions (364), attempts (561), passing yards (4688), passing TDs (32), completion percentage (64.9), yards per attempt (8.36) and passer rating (101.1). Los Angeles won the NFC West with a 13-3 regular-season record and advanced to Super Bowl LIII against the New England Patriots.

In 2017, Taylor directed the Rams' young receiving corps and helped oversee an emerging passing offense that ranked 10th in the NFL in pass yards per game (239.4).

Prior to his time with the Rams, Taylor had a one-year stint in the college ranks, serving as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at the University of Cincinnati in 2016.

Taylor broke into NFL coaching in 2012 with the Miami Dolphins as assistant quarterbacks coach. He was elevated to quarterbacks coach from 2013-15, and spent the final five games of '15 as the Dolphins' interim offensive coordinator and primary play-caller, after the team made coaching staff changes.

During his time in Miami, Taylor was instrumental in the development of QB Ryan Tannehill, the team's first-round draft pick in 2012.

Taylor's coaching career began at Texas A&M University, where he served as offensive graduate assistant and tight ends coach under head coach Mike Sherman from 2008-11.

As a player, Taylor began his collegiate career at Wake Forest (2002-03), before transferring to Butler County Community College in Kansas ('04) and then playing his final two seasons ('05-06) at the University of Nebraska. Taylor had a decorated career with the Cornhuskers, setting numerous school records and passing for a combined 5850 yards and 45 touchdowns. In his senior season of 2006, Taylor was named Big 12 Offensive Player of the Year after passing for 3197 total yards and leading the Cornhuskers to a 9-3 record, an appearance in the Big 12 Championship Game and a berth in the Cotton Bowl. He was inducted into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame in 2017.

Taylor joined the Tampa Bay Buccaneers as a college free agent in 2007, but he was waived prior to the start of training camp and never saw NFL action. Later that year, he joined the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League, where he spent one season (did not play).

His father, Sherwood, was a defensive back and captain at the University of Oklahoma, playing under Sooners head coach Barry Switzer from 1976-79. Sherwood Taylor later served as an assistant coach at Oklahoma and Kansas State University. Taylor's brother, Press, played quarterback at Marshall University and is currently passing game coordinator/quarterbacks coach for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Taylor was born May 10, 1983, in Norman, Okla., where he was raised and attended Norman High School. He earned a bachelor's degree in communication studies from the University of Nebraska in 2006. He and his wife, Sarah, have four children — Brooks, Luke, Emma Claire and Milly. Sarah is the daughter of former Green Bay Packers and Texas A&M head coach Mike Sherman.

Ron Rivera became the 30th coach in Washington history on Jan. 1, 2020. His career record is 81-74-1.

In eight-plus seasons as head coach of Carolina from 2011-19, Rivera guided the Panthers to a Super Bowl appearance, an NFC Championship and three NFC South titles. With Carolina, he was a two-time Associated Press NFL Coach of the Year award winner (2013 and '15).

Rivera inherited a 2-14 Carolina team as a rookie head coach in 2011 and guided it back to relevance with four playoff appearances in a five-year span (2013-17).

In 2014, the Panthers became the first team since 1970 to overcome a six-game losing streak and win their division. In 2013, Rivera directed Carolina to 12 wins, the NFC South title and its first playoff appearance since '08.

In 2015, Rivera led the Panthers to the second Super Bowl appearance in team history following a franchise-best 15-1 record and their third consecutive NFC South championship. In the process, Carolina became the fourth team in the Super Bowl era to start a season 14-0, joining the 1972 Miami Dolphins, the 2007 New England Patriots and the '09 Indianapolis Colts. The Panthers' 18-game regular-season winning streak over 2014 and '15 was the longest in NFC history.

Prior to coaching Carolina, Rivera coached on the NFL staffs of the San Diego Chargers (2007-10), the Chicago Bears (2004-06, 1997-98) and the Philadelphia Eagles (1999-2003). In 2006, the Bears defense led the NFL with 44 takeaways, helping propel Chicago to an appearance in Super Bowl XLI.

Rivera is just the third Latino head coach in NFL history, joining Tom Flores with the Oakland Raiders (1979-87) and Seattle Seahawks ('92-94) and Tom Fears with the New Orleans Saints ('67-70).

Rivera played LB at the University of California (1980-83), where he finished as the school's all-time leader in sacks (22) and tackles (336). He was drafted by Chicago in the second round of the 1984 NFL Draft and played with the Bears from 1984-92, primarily as an outside linebacker. He was a member of the Bears' 1985 Super Bowl XX Championship team.

Rivera was born on Jan. 7, 1962 in Fort Ord, Calif.. He and his wife, Stephanie, have two children, Christopher and Courtney.

Taylor vs. Washington: No previous meetings.

Taylor vs. Rivera: No previous meetings.

Rivera vs. Bengals: Rivera leads, 1-0-1 (both games as head coach of the Carolina Panthers). He was with Carolina when the Panthers won their most recent meeting with the Bengals in 2018 at Charlotte. He also was the Panthers' head coach when the two teams tied in 2014 at Cincinnati.

Burrow already making history: Not only has Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow turned heads with his playmaking ability so far this season, his stats rank among the best ever by a first-time starting QB. His 242 completions and 370 pass attempts both are the most in NFL history by any QB through the first nine games of their career. His 2485 passing yards are fourth in that same category.

Burrow ranks second in the NFL in pass attempts, third in completions and ninth in passing yards. Additionally, he has just five INTs, meaning just 1.4 percent of his attempts have been intercepted (seventh-best in the NFL).

Burrow in Offensive ROTY conversation: Bengals QB Joe Burrow is widely considered to be among the frontrunners for this season's NFL's Offensive Rookie of the Year award. The award has been won by a quarterback nine times, including eight times since 2004. But when examining both the production and league rankings of each of those QBs during their rookie seasons, Burrow compares quite favorably.

Here's a look at Burrow's statistics this season (through nine games), as well as the final passing totals for each of the last eight QBs to win NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year (league rankings are in parentheses):

YEAR/PLAYER/GAMES	ATT	COMP	PCT	YDS	TD	RAT
2020/Joe Burrow/9	370(2)	242(3)	65.4 (24)	2485 (9)	12 (21t)	89.8(25)
2019/Kyler Murray/16	542(9)	349(10)	64.39(15)	3722(15)	20(21t)	87.4(21)
2016/Dak Prescott/16	459(23)	311(20)	67.76(4)	3667(19)	23(15t)	104.9(3)
2012/Robert Griffin III/15	393(25t)	258(23)	65.65(4)	3200(22)	20(19t)	102.4(3)
2011/Cam Newton/16	517(13)	310(14)	59.96(18)	4051(10)	21(11t)	84.5(15)

2008/Matt Ryan/16	434(18)	265(17)	61.06(17)	3440(13)	16(16)	87.7(11)
2006/Vince Young/15	357(24)	184(25)	51.54(32)	2199(26)	12(21t)	66.7(30)
2004/Ben Roethlisberger/14	295(28)	196(26)	66.44(4)	2621(22)	17(19t)	98.1(5)

Burrow's 300-yard games make history: Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow has five 300-yard passing games so far this season, tied for second-most ever among NFL rookies, and just one shy of the rookie record (six, by Colts QB Andrew Luck in 2012). Burrow started the season by passing for 300 yards in five of his first seven games, a feat only 14 other QBs in league history have pulled off at any point of their career. He's also the only rookie ever to do it.

Burrow's five 300-yard passing games have already tied the Bengals single-season record, set by Boomer Esiason (strike-shortened 1987 season), Carson Palmer (2007) and Andy Dalton (2013). Dalton also holds the team record for most consecutive 300-yard passing games, with four (Games 6-9 in 2013).

Earlier this season, Burrow became the first rookie QB in NFL history to ever throw for 300 yards in three consecutive games, when he hit the mark in Game 2 at Cleveland (316), Game 3 at Philadelphia (312) and Game 4 vs. Jacksonville (300).

Burrow's 400-yard day: In Game 7 vs. Cleveland, Bengals QB Joe Burrow completed 35 of 47 passes (74.5 percent), for 406 yards, three TDs and one INT (112.5 rating). He also added a rushing TD. With that performance, he became the first QB in NFL history to record 400 passing yards, three passing TDs and one rushing TD in a game. Burrow was also effective at spreading the ball around, as the game was the first in team history in which six different players recorded at least 50 receiving yards. Additionally, Burrow led seven drives into the red zone, the most by the Bengals since Sept. 30, 2012 at Jacksonville (seven).

Burrow's performance marked just the 11th 400-yard passing game in Bengals history, and the sixth such game ever by an NFL rookie. And it should be noted that Bengals head coach Zac Taylor had a hand in one of the previous five instances. Taylor was assistant QBs coach for the Miami Dolphins in 2012, when Ryan Tannehill threw for 431 yards in an overtime loss at Arizona.

Here's a look at the only 400-yard passing games by rookies in NFL history:

ROOKIE QB	DATE/OPPONENT	PASSING YARDS
Andrew Luck	11-4-12 vs. Miami	433
Cam Newton	9-18-11 vs. Green Bay	432
Ryan Tannehill	9-30-12 at Arizona	431 (OT)
Matthew Stafford	11-22-09 vs. Cleveland	422
Cam Newton	9-11-11 at Arizona	422
Joe Burrow	10-25-20 vs. Cleveland	406

Burrow chasing NFL rookie records: Through nine games this season, Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow has 242 completions, 370 pass attempts, a 65.4 completion percentage, 2485 passing yards, 12 TDs, five INTs and an 89.8 passer rating.

Over a full 16-game season, those totals project out to 430 completions, 657 attempts, a 65.4 completion percentage, 4417 passing yards, 21 passing TDs and eight INTs (89.8 rating). That puts him on pace to top many of the Bengals' single-season passing records, let alone the team's rookie passing records.

Andy Dalton, who was a rookie in 2011, holds nearly every Bengals rookie passing record, including completions (300), attempts (516), completion percentage (58.1), passing yards (3398) and passing TDs (20). Greg Cook set the rookie passer rating record (88.3) in 1969.

The Bengals' single-season passing records are 373 completions (Palmer in '07), 586 passing attempts (Carson Palmer in 2010), a 70.55 completion percentage (Ken Anderson in 1982), 4293 passing yards (Andy Dalton in '13), 33 TD passes (Dalton in '13), and a 106.3 passer rating (Dalton in '15).

Burrow's pace, though, has him on track to challenge many of the NFL's rookie passing records. Here's a look at those rookie records, along with where the Bengals' signal-caller projects out to over a full 16-game season.

CATEGORY	CURRENT RECORD	BURROW CURRENT/PROJECTED
Attempts	Andrew Luck / 627	370 / 657
Completions	Carson Wentz / 379	242 / 430
Yards	Andrew Luck / 4374	2485 / 4417
Pass TDs	Baker Mayfield / 27	12 / 21
Fewest INTs*	Derek Carr, Kyler Murray / 12	5 / 8
Completion %	Dak Prescott / 67.8	65.4 / 65.4
Rating	Dak Prescott / 104.9	89.8 / 89.8

*NOTE: Minimum 500 passing attempts.

Getting to know Joe Burrow: The Bengals in April made QB Joe Burrow of Louisiana State the first overall pick in the draft, and presumably the franchise's quarterback of the future. Here's a closer look at how the much-heralded rookie arrived in Cincinnati:

Burrow grew up in Athens, Ohio, in the southeast part of the state. His father, Jimmy, played football at Nebraska and was a longtime college assistant who most recently served as defensive coordinator at Ohio University (2005-18). His brothers, Jamie and Dan, also played collegiately at Nebraska.

Burrow had a decorated high school career at Athens High School that was highlighted by Ohio's 2014 Mr. Football award and his team's state runner-up finish as a senior. He signed with Ohio State, where he was teammates with four current Bengals — S Vonn Bell, DE Sam Hubbard, G Michael Jordan and G/C Billy Price. As a freshman in 2015, he redshirted in a crowded QB room that returned three players off the Buckeyes' national title team in '14. Burrow served as OSU's No. 2 QB in 2016 and saw limited action, but in preseason camp in '17 he broke his throwing hand and returned mid-season as the No. 3 QB.

Burrow graduated from OSU in spring 2018 and transferred to LSU, where he was eligible to play immediately. Despite not officially practicing with the team until July, he won the starting job and led LSU to a 10-3 record that included five wins over top-10 teams.

After a relatively modest statistical season in 2018, Burrow in '19 put together perhaps the greatest season ever by a college QB. He set numerous NCAA-FBS, SEC and LSU records, led the Tigers to a perfect 15-0 record and national championship, won the Heisman Trophy by the largest margin in its 85-year history, and racked up nearly every other individual accolade imaginable.

Now in Cincinnati, Burrow ironically — just as in 2018 at LSU — was not able to begin practicing with his new team until late-summer (this time due to the NFL cancelling its offseason program because of COVID-19). And just as at LSU, he has at his disposal a talented supporting cast, including WRs A.J. Green, Tyler Boyd, Tee Higgins and Auden Tate, along with HBs Joe Mixon and Giovanni Bernard.

Burrow the fourth Bengals No. 1 overall pick: On April 23, the Bengals selected QB Joe Burrow of Louisiana State with the No. 1 overall pick in the first-ever virtual NFL Draft. With prospects required to stay at home throughout the draft due to the Coronavirus pandemic, Burrow was unable to celebrate under the bright lights of the Las Vegas strip, where the event had originally been planned to take place. Instead, he spent the evening celebrating with his parents in their living room in his hometown of Athens, Ohio.

Leading up to the draft, Bengals president Mike Brown sent letters to Burrow and his parents, welcoming the 23-year-old and his family to the organization.

"It meant a lot," Burrow said of the gesture. "He also wrote one to my mom and dad as well. That kind of shows the person that he is, and I'm excited to be his quarterback for hopefully a long time."

Burrow is the fourth player selected No. 1 overall by the Bengals. In 1994, Cincinnati selected Ohio State DT Dan Wilkinson with the top pick, and then the following year they executed a draft-day trade with Carolina to move to the top spot and select Penn State RB Ki-Jana Carter. Then, in 2003, the team selected USC QB Carson Palmer with the first pick.

In 1984, the Bengals had rights to the No. 1 selection as a result of their 1983 trade of QB Jack Thompson to Tampa Bay. But Cincinnati traded the top pick to New England in exchange for the Nos. 16 and 28 selections.

Burrow's supporting cast unmatched: Bengals QB Joe Burrow this season has one of the most statistically accomplished supporting casts of any rookie QB ever. Burrow is only the fifth rookie QB in NFL history, and just the second first-rounder, to start a single game and have with him on the roster at least one player with multiple 1000-yard rushing seasons and two players with multiple 1000-yard receiving seasons. Burrow this season has suiting up alongside HB Joe Mixon (two career 1000-yard rushing seasons), WR A.J. Green (six 1000-yard receiving seasons) and WR Tyler Boyd (two 1000-yard receiving seasons).

The only other rookie first-round QB was the Steelers' Ben Roethlisberger (11th overall pick in 2004), who had RBs Duce Staley and Jerome Bettis, along with WRs Hines Ward and Plaxico Burress.

There were three instances of it happening with rookie QBs selected outside the first round. In 2001, Dallas' Quincy Carter (second-round pick) had RB Emmitt Smith, and WRs Joey Galloway and Raghieb Ismail. In 2005, St. Louis' Ryan Fitzpatrick (seventh rounder) had RB Marshall Faulk, and WRs Isaac Bruce and Torry Holt. And in 2016, Dallas' Dak Prescott (fourth rounder) had RBs Darren McFadden and Alfred Morris, along with TE Jason Witten and WR Dez Bryant.

Burrow looks to buck first-pick trends: Prior to this season, 23 of the 24 QBs selected No. 1 overall in the Super Bowl era went on to start at least one game as a rookie. The only exception, ironically, was Cincinnati's No. 1 overall pick in 2003, QB Carson Palmer.

Those 24 QBs finished their rookie seasons a combined 83-171-1 as starters, good for a .327 win percentage, or about a 5-11 rate for a full season.

Burrow has started every Bengals game so far this season, and is 2-6-1.

The record for most wins by a rookie QB selected No. 1 overall is 11, by Indianapolis' Andrew Luck in 2012.

Last year's No. 1 overall pick, Arizona QB Kyler Murray, went 5-10-1 as a rookie starter. The year before, Cleveland's Baker Mayfield went 6-7.

Bengals rookie QBs as starters: Joe Burrow this season has become just the 14th rookie QB to start a game for the Bengals. Only two of the previous 13, though, have started more than four games — Greg Cook in 1969 (4-6-1 record) and Andy Dalton in 2011 (9-7 record). Dalton in 2011 earned a Pro Bowl nomination and famously led the Bengals to a Wild Card Playoff berth, despite the team being widely predicted before that season to be among the worst in the NFL.

Other Bengal QBs of note to start as rookies include Ken Anderson in 1971 (0-4) and Boomer Esiason in '84 (3-1). Burrow's fellow No. 1 overall pick, Carson Palmer, did not take over the starting role until his second season.

Burrow has started every game so far this season, and is 2-6-1.

What Burrow's teammates are saying: Joe Burrow's reputation preceded him when he was drafted by the Bengals in April, and he's been the hottest topic in Cincinnati since. Here's a sampling of what Bengals players have told the media about their new signal caller.

• HB Giovanni Bernard: "Honestly, I felt like in Week 1 that he had a complete grasp of this offense. That's saying a lot, because we know how detailed this offense is. That confidence level has been the exact same since he walked into this building. He's a heck of a player that can lead this team the right way, and he's been able to do that since he walked in. Everyone knows the type of player we have in this locker room and what he can do for this franchise, and I'm just happy to be a part of it and witness it."

• DT Mike Daniels: "He does a lot of things that remind me of Aaron (Packers QB Aaron Rodgers), in terms of his poise, how he conducts himself and the way he commands the offense. He's definitely not a rookie. When you go against him in practice, you're not going against a rookie. He's a rookie strictly because of the amount of time he's been in the NFL, but mentality, swagger and the way he conducts business — he's a true leader. No doubt in my mind he'll be Rookie of the Year. He's going to have a very, very great career, and I'm proud to be in the beginning phases of it."

• WR Tyler Boyd: "The connection that Joe and I are starting to form is elite. He knows where I'm going to be, I know where he's going to throw it. Each week he gets better and better, even in games where he feels he doesn't feel like he plays well, he has a heck of a game. I believe in him, every else does and he's going to continue to ball. He's just one of a kind in my eyes."

• DE Sam Hubbard, a close friend of Burrow's since they played together at Ohio State from 2015-17: "One of the most impressive things about him is that he hasn't changed at all. He's got the same mentality he had as a third-string backup at Ohio State as a freshman, when he was still fighting every day to get on the field and make his name known. He takes that mentality and level-headedness of where he's been to where he's at now."

• WR A.J. Green: "He's going to be great for the next 15 years. With him, it's just getting that rhythm. We're always talking, even before I got hurt (in training camp), about 'I need to put the ball there,' or, 'How do you like this ball?'"

How do you like this route?' So it's always constant communication. Joe is going to be a great one."

Bengals historically efficient on fourth down: The Bengals' offense this season has successfully converted 14 of its 16 fourth-down attempts, good for an 87.5 percentage that ranks second in the NFL. Only Buffalo ranks higher, at 100 percent, but Bills have attempted only three fourth-down conversions all season.

Cincinnati's current success rate on fourth downs ranks among the best in league history. With 14 successful conversions so far this year, the offense needs just six more over the final seven games to tie the NFL record of 20, set in 1996 by the Chicago Bears.

Here's a look at the teams with the most successful fourth-down conversions in a single season (since 1977).

SEASON	TEAM	ATTEMPTED	MADE
1996	Chicago Bears	28	20
1996	New England Patriots	34	19
2007	Jacksonville Jaguars	33	19
1994	New England Patriots	35	18
2002	Jacksonville Jaguars	26	18

And if it holds, Cincinnati's 87.5 percent fourth-down conversion rate would count as the best in NFL history among teams with at least 15 attempts. The current record is 86.7 percent, set by the New Orleans Saints in 2016.

Here's a look at the best fourth-down conversion rates in a single season since 1977 (minimum 15 attempts).

PLAYER	TEAM	ATTEMPTED	MADE	PCT
2016	New Orleans Saints	15	13	86.7
2018	New Orleans Saints	16	13	81.3
2018	Kansas City Chiefs	15	12	80.0
2017	New Orleans Saints	15	12	80.0
1986	Minnesota Vikings	15	12	80.0
2006	New England Patriots	20	16	80.0

Mixon picking up steam: Bengals HB Joe Mixon this season has played in six games, and has 119 rushes for 428 yards and three TDs, along with 21 catches for 138 yards and another TD. The Bengals' star running back suffered a foot injury in the first half of Game 6 at Indianapolis, and then played sparingly in the second half of that contest before being held out of Games 7-9. His status for Sunday's game at Washington is unknown.

The fourth-year pro had his break-out performance on in Game 4 vs. Jacksonville, when he recorded season-highs in rushing yards (151) and yards from scrimmage (181); his yards from scrimmage vs. Jacksonville also stands through Week 9 as the most by any AFC player this season. Mixon also scored a career-high three TDs against the Jaguars — on a nine-yard catch, and runs of 34 and 23 yards. That made him the first Bengal since Giovanni Bernard in 2013 to record a rushing and receiving TD in the same game (9-16-13 vs. Pittsburgh).

According to NFL's Next Gen Stats, the 220-pound Mixon reached 21.19 MPH on his 34-yard TD run against the Jaguars. That counts as the fastest speed by a Cincinnati ball-carrier this season, and the fifth-fastest by a Bengal since NGS began tracking speeds in 2016.

T.B. chasing T.J.: Although there's still a long way to go in the 2020 season, WR Tyler Boyd has positioned himself to make a run at former Bengals WR T.J. Houshmandzadeh's team record for receptions in a season. Houshmandzadeh's 112 catches in 2007 stand as the top mark in team history, with WR Carl Pickens' 100 in 1996 counting as the only other instance of a Bengal reaching the 100-catch plateau.

Boyd so far this season has a team-high 60 catches, good for a 6.7-catch per game pace which projects out to 106 catches for a full 16 game slate.

Houshmandzadeh had 68 catches through nine games in 2007, and Pickens had 50. Boyd needs to maintain a pace of 5.7 catches over the remaining seven games in order to reach 100 for the season, and 7.4 to equal Houshmandzadeh's 112.

Boyd's 54 catches this year currently stand third in the AFC and eighth league wide.

Boyd, Mixon, Tee move the chains: Bengals WR Tyler Boyd this season has converted 38 first downs (37 receiving, one rushing), which ranks eighth in the AFC and tied for eighth in the NFL.

Not far behind Boyd is WR Tee Higgins, who is tied for 14th in the NFL with 33 first downs (32 receiving, one rushing). HB Joe Mixon, who has 25 first downs (20 rushing five receiving) remains within shouting distance despite missing Games 7-9 with a foot injury.

Boyd, Mixon, and Higgins have moved the chains a combined 96 times this season, which is 45.9 percent of the team's 209 total first downs.

Boyd looking for his third thousand: Bengals WR Tyler Boyd this season looks to become just the fourth Cincinnati pass-catcher to record three consecutive 1000-yard seasons. He would join WRs Chad Johnson (six consecutive; 2002-07), A.J. Green (five; '11-15) and Carl Pickens (three; 1994-96).

Through nine games, Boyd has a team-high 625 yards (on 60 catches), a pace that projects out to 1111.1 yards over a full 16-game slate.

Boyd topped the 1000-yard mark in both 2018 and '19, despite his running mate, Green, playing just nine of 32 possible games over that stretch. Last season, he finished with a career-high and team-best 1046 receiving yards (on 90 catches), which slightly bested his '18 total of 1028 yards (on 76 catches)

Boyd stands as one of nine Bengals ever to reach 1000 receiving yards in a season, and one of six to hit the mark more than once. Johnson's seven 1000-yard seasons stand as the most in team history, followed by Green (six), Pickens (four), WR Cris Collinsworth (four) and WR T.J. Houshmandzadeh (two). WRs Eddie Brown, Tim McGee and Darnay Scott each had one 1000-yard season.

Mixon also seeking this third thousand: Bengals HB Joe Mixon this season is looking to become just the fourth player in team history to record three consecutive 1000-yard rushing seasons. He would join Corey Dillon (six consecutive; 1997-2002), Rudi Johnson (three; '04-06) and Cedric Benson (three; '09-11).

So far this season, Mixon has 428 yards (on 119 carries), however it should be noted that those totals come despite him missing Games 7-9 due to a foot injury.

Mixon, who owns two of the 22 1000-yard rushing seasons in team history, hit the mark in both 2018 and '19. It was the 12th instance, and the first since Benson in 2010-11, of a Bengal rushing for 1000 yards in back-to-back seasons.

Last year, he notched 1137 yards despite a slow start to the season. His 817 yards over the final eight games were second-most in the NFL over that span, and he ended the season with at least 130 rushing yards in three of his final four games. In 2018, he became the first Bengal ever to lead the AFC in rushing yards (1168), and did so despite missing two games due to a knee injury.

Mixon currently stands as one of just five Bengals ever to rush for 1000 yards in multiple seasons — Dillon (six times), Johnson (three), Benson (three) and James Brooks (three).

On Sept. 2, Mixon signed a contract extension that will keep in him Cincinnati through 2024.

Mixon and Boyd chasing Chad and Rudi: Bengals HB Joe Mixon and WR Tyler Boyd this season are looking to become just the second duo in team history to record 1000 rushing yards and 1000 receiving yards together in three consecutive seasons. They would join WR Chad Johnson and HB Rudi Johnson, who achieved the feat from 2004-06.

Chad and Rudi Johnson also are the only other duo to hit their respective 1000-yard marks in back-to-back seasons, a feat Mixon and Boyd achieved last year.

The Bengals have had a 1000-yard rusher and receiver in the same season 15 times, meaning Boyd and Mixon currently own two of those instances.

Bengals tough when Mixon hits 20 carries: The Bengals hold an 8-6 record when HB Joe Mixon reaches the 20-carry mark. And in those 13 games, Mixon has topped 100 rushing yards nine times. Eight of his last 10 games with 20 carries have resulted in 100-yard rushing performances.

Mixon has hit the 20-carry mark twice this season, and the Bengals are 1-1 in those contests. He had 25 carries (for 151 yards) in a win over Jacksonville in Game 4, and 24 carries (for 59 yards) in a loss at Baltimore in Game 5.

Mixon has not played since Oct. 18 at Indianapolis, due to a foot injury.

Higgins eyeing Bengals rookie records: WR Tee Higgins' impressive start has put him on a trajectory that by season's end could land him among the top rookie pass-catchers in team history.

Higgins' 40 catches through nine games project out to 71 for a full 16-game slate. That total would be the most ever by a Bengals rookie, ahead of WR Cris Collinsworth (67), WR A.J. Green (65), HB Giovani Bernard (56), WR Tyler Boyd (54) and WR Eddie Brown (53).

Higgins' 603 receiving yards so far project out to 1072 over 16 games. That total would also be a team rookie record, ahead of Green (1057), Collinsworth (1009), Brown (942), and WRs Darnay Scott (866) and Isaac Curtis (843).

Higgins (four TDs) could also conceivably approach the 47-year old rookie record of nine receiving TDs, set in 1973 by WR Isaac Curtis. Collinsworth and Brown (both had eight) are tied for second in that category, followed by Green (seven) and WR Chris Henry (six).

Higgins, though, has some catching up to do to land in the top five in yards per reception by a rookie. He currently is averaging 15.1 yards per catch, well behind the top five — Scott (18.83), Curtis (18.73), Brown (17.77), TE Bob Trumpy (17.27) and TE Don Bass (16.56).

That didn't take long: Bengals rookie WR Tee Higgins, the team's second round pick in April's draft, turned heads in just his second career start by notching his first career multi-TD game. Higgins' two TDs grabs on Sept. 27 at Philadelphia made him the first NFL rookie this year with a multi-TD game, and the first Bengal rookie to reach pay dirt twice since HB Jeremy Hill in 2014.

Higgins also now stands as one of only five Bengal rookies ever to catch at least two TDs in a game, and the first to do it as early as September. The others are WRs Mohamed Sanu (Nov. 25, 2012 vs. Oakland), Darnay Scott (Oct. 30, 1994 vs. Dallas), Cris Collinsworth (Nov. 29, 1981 at Cleveland), and Isaac Curtis (Dec. 9, 1973 vs. Cleveland, and Dec. 16, 1973 at Houston).

Through nine games, Higgins has 40 catches for 603 yards and four TDs.

Tee tops 125: Bengals rookie WR Tee Higgins had 125 receiving yards (on six receptions) in Game 6 at Indianapolis, marking only the ninth time a Bengal rookie has posted as many receiving yards. It was the first such instance since WR Jordan Shipley posted 131 yards at Atlanta on Oct. 24, 2010.

Making Higgins' feat all the more impressive is the fact that it came against a Colts defense that entered the contest leading the NFL in both fewest yards allowed per game (266.0) and fewest passing yards allowed per game (179.6).

Higgins also had a 67-yard reception against the Colts, who entering the game had not allowed a catch longer than 33 yards all season. The Colts also entered the contest having allowed just one 100-yard receiving game this season (Bears WR Allen Robinson, 101).

Here's a look at the nine instances of a Bengals rookie posting 125 or more receiving yards:

ROOKIE	DATE	OPPONENT	REC. YARDS
Speedy Thomas	Oct. 19, 1969	vs Denver .....	155

Welcome back, A.J.: The Bengals this season have welcomed the return of WR A.J. Green, who is back in Cincinnati's lineup after missing 20 games between late 2018 and the end of '19. Green has played in all nine Bengals games so far this season, and has 31 catches for 316 yards.

Green, a 10th-year veteran who prior to Game 1 this season had last played on Dec. 2, 2018, missed all of last season due to a left ankle injury he suffered in the first practice of training camp. He returned to practice mid-way through the season, but re-aggravated the injury and never returned to game action. In 2018, Green was limited by a toe injury (right foot) to just nine games. He suffered the injury on the final drive in Game 8 vs. Tampa Bay, missed the next three games, and then re-aggravated it in the first half of Game 12 vs. Denver. He ended the season on Reserve/Injured, but returned healthy for the start of 2019 training camp. Then came the ankle injury.

Green stands as the Bengals' all-time leader in 100-yard receiving games (33), and is second in career receptions (633) and receiving yards (9223). His 63 career receiving TDs rank tied for second in team history with WR Carl Pickens, and are just three shy of all-time leader Chad Johnson (66).

Green is also only the ninth player ever, and the only WR, to begin his career with at least seven consecutive Pro Bowl nominations. That list includes Steelers RB Franco Harris, Giants LB Lawrence Taylor, Chiefs LB Derrick Thomas, Lions RB Barry Sanders, Dolphins OT Richmond Webb, 49ers LB Patrick Willis, Browns OT Joe Thomas and Cardinals CB Patrick Peterson. Green's streak of Pro Bowl nominations ended in 2018, though, after his missed time due to the toe injury.

Bengals tough when A.J. suits up: Bengals WR A.J. Green of course gets plenty of attention for his statistical accomplishments, which place him among the top receivers in Bengals history. But let the record show that Green isn't just a stat-sheet stuffer. When No. 18 is in the lineup, the Bengals are tough to beat.

Here's a look at his impact on Cincinnati's win column when he's on the field:

WHEN GREEN ...	BENGALS' RECORD	PCT.
Plays .....	68-50-2	.575
Has 100 or more receiving yards.....	22-10-1	.682
Scores a TD .....	38-17	.691
Has at least 76 receiving yards (topping his career average).....	35-22-1	.612
Has at least six catches (topping his career average).....	31-22-1	.583
Plays alongside WR Tyler Boyd and HB Joe Mixon.....	11-10-1	.523

Green and some gold jackets: Bengals 10th-year WR A.J. Green has 10 career games of at least 150 receiving yards and one TD, making him one of only 10 receivers to ever reach as many games through their first 10 NFL seasons. It should also be noted that Green is currently playing his 10th season, and his numbers come despite missing 33 regular-season games to injury throughout his career, including 23 between mid-2018 and the end of '19.

Here's a look at the list of players with 10 or more games with 150-plus receiving yards and a TD through their first 10 NFL seasons:

PLAYER	TEAM	NO. OF GAMES
Jerry Rice*	San Francisco .....	19
Lance Alworth*	San Diego / Dallas .....	16

Isaac Bruce*	St. Louis .....	10
Antonio Brown	Pittsburgh / New England .....	10
Terrell Owens*	San Francisco / Dallas .....	10

*NOTE: An asterisk denotes a Pro Football Hall of Famer.

A.J. among best ever in per-game production: Despite his impressive resume, Bengals WR A.J. Green has perhaps fallen off the radar of some observers, after playing in just nine of 32 possible games between 2018-19. But make no mistake, Green has proven to be among the most productive receivers in NFL history when he suits up.

Here's a look at the top players in NFL history, in terms of average receiving yardage per game played (minimum 100 games):

NAME	GAMES PLAYED	YDS.	AVG.
Julio Jones.....	133	12,763	95.96
Calvin Johnson .....	135	11,619	86.07
Antonio Brown .....	133	11,363	85.44
DeAndre Hopkins.....	119	9,463	79.52
Mike Evans .....	100	7,774	77.74
Torry Holt.....	173	13,382	77.35
A.J. Green.....	119	9,223	76.86

A.J. finds paydirt: Bengals WR A.J. Green has 63 career receiving TDs, which since his rookie year of 2011 ranks as the sixth-most of any NFL player, and fifth among active players. Green and former Bengals WR Carl Pickens are tied for second in team history in TD catches, behind WR Chad Johnson (66).

It should be noted that Green has posted those lofty totals despite missing 33 career regular-season games due to injury, including 23 between mid-2018 and the end of '19.

Here's a look at the NFL's leaders in receiving TDs since 2011:

PLAYER	TEAM	RECEIVING TDs
Antonio Brown	Pittsburgh / New England .....	75
Jimmy Graham	New Orleans / Seattle / Green Bay / Chicago .....	74
Rob Gronkowski	New England / Tampa Bay .....	73
Dez Bryant	Dallas / New Orleans .....	67
Jordy Nelson	Green Bay / Oakland .....	66
A.J. Green	Cincinnati .....	63

Gio secures the rock: Bengals HBs Giovani Bernard is known mostly for his versatility out of the backfield for Cincinnati, but as the numbers show, he's also among the NFL's best at securing the football. Bernard has carried 800 consecutive times without fumbling, the longest streak in the NFL by a margin of more than 200 carries.

Bengals HB Joe Mixon entered 2020 with the second-longest streak behind Bernard, but a fumble on a carry in the opener ended his streak of 541. It was his first fumble since the 2017 season finale. Still, Bernard and Mixon have combined for just three fumbles on 1657 career rushing attempts.

Here's a look at the NFL's longest active streaks of rushing attempts without a fumble:

NAME	TEAM	RUSH ATT. WITHOUT A FUMBLE
Giovani Bernard	Cincinnati .....	800
Latavius Murray	New Orleans .....	591
Saquon Barkley	N.Y. Giants .....	497
Phillip Lindsay	Denver .....	473
Jamaal Williams	Green Bay.....	457
Leonard Fournette	Tampa Bay .....	457

Bernard's streak dates back to Game 5 of his rookie season in 2013 (Oct. 6 vs. New England). That marked the only fumble of his career on a rushing play, with his other five all coming on passing plays.

That, along with Mixon's aforementioned streak, also rank among the longest in Bengals history. The Elias Sports Bureau reports that over the last 30 years, both streaks easily outpace any other fumble-free streak by a Cincinnati rusher. (Elias' records do not go back far enough to confirm this throughout the team's full history.)

Here's a look at the longest streaks of rushing attempts by a Bengal without a fumble since 1990:

PLAYER	RUSH ATT. WITHOUT A FUMBLE	SEASONS SPANNED
Giovani Bernard .....	800	2013-present
Joe Mixon.....	541	2017-20
Harold Green .....	298	1991-93
Jeremy Hill .....	282	2015-17
Cedric Benson .....	260	2010-11

Gio passes J.B. for receptions lead: Already considered one of the top receiving running backs in team history, HB Giovani Bernard has further secured that status this season by surpassing a Bengals legend. With 323 career receptions, Bernard now stands as the Bengals' all-time leader in receptions by a running back. He passed former Bengal RB James Brooks (297) for first place in Game 1 vs. the L.A. Chargers. Brooks, however, still holds the Bengals' record for receiving yards by a running back at 3012, which is 293 ahead of Bernard's 2719.

Brooks played eight seasons (1984-91) with the Bengals, and this season is Bernard's eighth with the team.

15 carries for Gio does the trick: Over his now seven seasons in Cincinnati, Giovani Bernard has carved out a spot among the top dual-threat running backs in team history.

But when examining Bernard's workload specifically as a rusher throughout his career, a significant trend becomes apparent — the Bengals are 11-1-1 in games in which Bernard has at least 15 rushing attempts. Bernard has topped 15 carries once this season — a win in Game 8 vs. Tennessee.

In the 13 games in which Bernard has reached 15 carries, he has averaged 77.2 yards, scored eight rushing TDs and topped 100 yards three times.

Bengals overhaul defense: After the 2019 season ended, one of the primary focal points of Cincinnati's offseason ahead figured to be improving upon the team's 29th-ranked defense. The Bengals did just that, welcoming a parade of newcomers in free agency in March, and then following that with a draft that invested four of the team's seven picks on defenders.

The result is a defense that looks markedly different from 2019. Gone are six of last year's opening-day starters, along with one additional spot that also has changed hands. New additions to the starting lineup include Carl Lawson at DE, Mike Daniels at DT, Josh Byner and Germaine Pratt at LB, Mackensie Alexander and LeShaun Sims at two of the CB spots, and Vonn Bell at S. Lawson and Pratt were with the Bengals last year, while the rest joined the team over the offseason in free agency. Rookie LBs Logan Wilson and Akeem Davis-Gaither have also seen extended time, as have DT Christian Covington (acquired in a trade with Denver on Sept. 4) and DE Amani Bledsoe (free agent signee in August).

DT D.J. Reader and CB Trae Waynes, two of the headliners of Cincinnati's free agency haul in March, are currently on Reserve/Injured. Waynes suffered a pectoral injury Aug. 9, and then went Reserve/Injured on Sept. 9 (after final cuts), but he could return later in the season. Reader suffered a left quad injury on Oct. 11 at Baltimore and was placed on Reserve/Injured on Oct. 12. Bengals head coach Zac Taylor said that Reader will not return this season.

Hubbard a Day 2 draft steal: DE Sam Hubbard, a third-round pick (77th overall) of the Bengals in 2018, ranks third in sacks (15.5) among all players from the '18 rookie class (draft picks and college free agents).

Players' listed positions vary from media outlet to media outlet (e.g. whether a player is classified as a LB or DE), but according to NFL.com's draft record, Hubbard was the 13th defensive lineman selected in 2018 — five DEs and seven DTs came off the board before him. According to NFL.com, there were a total of 40 defensive linemen (20 DEs, 20 DTs) selected in the 2018 draft, along with 32 linebackers on one player classified as "EDGE." There were also, of course, numerous undrafted rookies in 2018.

Here's a look at the career sack leaders from the rookie class of 2018.

PLAYER/POSITION	TEAM	PICK (ROUND)	SACKS
Bradley Chubb/DE	Denver	No. 5 (1st)	18.5
Harold Landry/EDGE	Tennessee	No. 41 (2nd)	16.0
Sam Hubbard/DE	Cincinnati	No. 77 (3rd)	15.5
Darius Leonard/OLB	Indianapolis	No. 36 (2nd)	13.0
Marcus Davenport/DE	New Orleans	No. 14 (1st)	12.0

Geno has Edwards in his sights: With 75.5 career sacks, Bengals DT Geno Atkins stands in third place on the team's all-time sack list, behind DEs Eddie Edwards (83.5 sacks) and Carlos Dunlap (82.5).

Atkins, who has missed five games this season (four to a shoulder injury, one for personal reasons), has more than double the number of sacks of the next-closest interior defensive lineman in Bengals history (Tim Krumrie, 34.5). Atkins also missed nearly half of the 2013 season with a torn ACL. He has finished with at least a share of the NFL lead for sacks by an interior lineman five times in his 10 NFL seasons.

NOTE: The NFL has counted sacks as official statistics since 1982. However, the Bengals have sack statistics compiled since 1976 and recognize those sacks recorded from '76-81 in its records. Thus, please note that, because the NFL has sacks statistics for all teams only since 1982, the Bengals' sack statistics for players whose careers included seasons prior to '82 will not be included in league information.

Geno on HOF pace: Bengals DT Geno Atkins, an 11th-year pro, currently stands at 75.5 career sacks. That total stands third in team history and the most ever by a Bengals interior defensive lineman.

But a closer look reveals that Atkins is on a Hall-of-Fame pace. When compared to defensive tackles already in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Atkins compares quite favorably at this point in his career.

Here's a look at the sack totals of notable Hall-of-Fame DTs through their 11th seasons, as well as where they stood at the end of their careers. It should be noted that Atkins missed nearly half of the 2013 season, due to a torn ACL. He has also missed five games this season (four due to a shoulder injury, one for personal reasons).

(NOTE: This list includes only DTs whose careers started after 1982, when the NFL began counting sacks as official statistics.)

NAME	YEARS ACTIVE	THRU 11 SEASONS	CAREER SACKS
John Randle	1990-2003	114.0	137.5
Warren Sapp	1995-2007	84.5	96.5
Geno Atkins	2010-present	*75.5	75.5
Cortez Kennedy	1990-2000	58.0	58.0

*NOTE: Atkins is currently playing his 11th season.

Balanced Bengals O claws the Jags: In Game 4 vs. Jacksonville, the Bengals recorded 505 net yards of offense — 300 through the air, and 205 on the ground. It marked the first time in the NFL this season that a team recorded at least 300 passing yards and 200 rushing yards in a game. It also marked only the fourth time in team history, and the first since 1988, that the Bengals achieved the 300/200 feat.

Here's a look at the four games in which the Bengals topped 300 passing yards and 200 rushing yards. All four were home games, and all four were

Bengals wins:

DATE	OPPONENT	PASS YDS	RUSH YDS	TOTAL
12-1-85	Houston Oilers	324	231	555
12-21-86	N.Y. Jets	416	205	621
11-6-88	Pittsburgh Steelers	338	221	559
10-4-20	Jacksonville Jaguars	300	205	505

Logan Wilson impresses early: Bengals rookie LB Logan Wilson, the team's third-round draft pick out of Wyoming earlier this year, has 17 tackles so far this season, along with a sack and two INTs (tied for team lead). His INT total also stands is tied for the NFL lead among rookies, tied for second among linebackers, and tied for 14th overall.

Wilson recorded his first career INT off of Eagles QB Carson Wentz in Game 3 at Philadelphia, and then notched his second against Ravens QB Lamar Jackson in Game 5 at Baltimore. His sack was a 10-yard takedown of Ryan Tannehill on a third down in Game 8 vs. Tennessee.

Wilson this season has played in eight games, with two starts (Games 7 and 9). He missed Game 4 vs. Jacksonville due to a concussion.

Rookie class producing early: Despite the lack of an offseason program to ease the college-to-pro adjustment, the Bengals this year have leaned heavily upon their draft class. The seven players drafted by Cincinnati in April have combined to play in 56 games this season, with 22 starts, good for a pace of 99 games and 39 starts over a full 16 game slate.

The most combined games played by a Bengals draft class since 1994 (the year the draft went to seven rounds) is 99, achieved by the 11-player draft class of 2017. The most combined starts over the same period is 50, by the nine-player draft class of 1998.

Here's an overview of how each of the seven members of the 2020 draft class have fared so far this season:

- QB Joe Burrow (Round 1, Pick 1): The highest-profile player in the draft class has started all nine games, and completed 242 of 370 passes (65.4 percent), for 2485 yards, 12 TDs and five INTs (89.8 rating). He already has five 300-yard passing games this season, tied for the Bengals record and just one shy of the NFL rookie record. He's on pace to top several of the team's passing records, in addition to multiple NFL rookie passing records (see "Burrow chasing NFL rookie records" on Page 4).

- WR Tee Higgins (Round 2, Pick 33): Higgins got a late start to training camp, due to an injury, and then had modest stats early while being eased into the rotation. Then came a breakout two-TD performance in Game 3 at Philadelphia, followed by 100-yard receiving performances in Game 6 at Indianapolis (125 yards) and Game 9 at Pittsburgh (115). He has played in all nine games, with seven starts, and has 40 catches for 603 yards and four TDs. He's on pace to challenge several Bengals rookie receiving records (see "Higgins eyeing Bengals rookie records").

- LB Logan Wilson (Round 3, Pick 65): Wilson broke into the regular LB rotation almost immediately, and has been praised by coaches and teammates for his speed, instincts and playmaking ability. He has played in eight games this season, with two starts (missed Game 4 vs. Jacksonville with a concussion), and has 17 tackles and a sack. His two INTs so far are tied for the league lead among rookies, and tied for 15th overall.

- LB Akeem Davis-Gaither (Round 4, Pick 107): Davis-Gaither also worked his way into the LB rotation, and has played in all nine games (one start) so far this season, with 12 tackles, a half sack and a PD. Known for his speed and athleticism, he has been used on passing downs in both coverage and as a blitz.

- DE Khalid Kareem (Round 5, Pick 147): Kareem has played in all nine games, and has 12 tackles. Coaches have praised his progression and grasp of the system, and his role has grown steadily. His playing time has risen in recent weeks, after the Oct. 28 trade of DE Carlos Dunlap.

- G Hakeem Adeniji (Round 6, Pick 180): Adeniji has played seven games this season, with three starts (two at LOT, one as a second TE). He has filled in as Cincinnati's starting LOT in the last two contests (Games 8-9), in place of injured starter Jonah Williams, and coaches have praised his play. In Game 8 vs. Tennessee, he was a key part of a blocking performance that did not surrender a sack. With the status of Williams, ROT Bobby Hart and OT/G Fred Johnson (Reserve/COVID-19) still uncertain heading into Sunday's game at Washington, Adeniji could again be in a starting role.

- LB Markus Bailey (Round 7, Pick 215): After his losing most of his final college season to a torn ACL, Bailey was cleared to practice early in training camp. He has played in four games this season, and has seen action mostly on special teams (one ST tackle).

Bengals draft picks stick in NFL: A familiar trend has emerged this season regarding which teams have the most keen eye for talent in the draft, and the Bengals again are toward the top of the list. As of Monday, Nov. 16, there were 47 players on NFL rosters who entered the NFL as draft picks of the Bengals, second-most of any team behind Baltimore (49).

Cincinnati has been among the top five teams in this category every week since 2018, and has spent long stretches in the top spot. At times, the Bengals have even held a double-digit lead over the second-place team.

Of the 51 players on Cincinnati's active roster, 34 entered the NFL with the Bengals — 39 as draft picks, and five as college free agents.

Of those 30 draft picks, five were first-round picks, six were second-rounders, four were third-rounders, five were fourth-rounders, two were fifth-rounders, four were sixth-rounders and three were seventh-rounders.

Here's a look at the teams with the most draft picks on an active NFL roster, as of Monday, Nov. 16:

TEAM	DRAFT PICKS ON NFL ROSTERS
Baltimore Ravens .....	49
Cincinnati Bengals .....	47
Detroit Lions .....	45
Green Bay Packers .....	45
New England Patriots .....	45

Bengals' picks stay in stripes: A useful measurement of talent evaluation in the draft is the ability of a team's draft picks to make their own active roster. The Bengals have proven to be among the best in the NFL in that category.

As of Monday, Nov. 16, there were 29 players on Cincinnati's roster who entered the NFL as Bengals draft picks, tied for third-most in the NFL.

Here's a look at the NFL teams with the most of their own draft picks on their active roster, as of Monday, Nov. 16:

TEAM	OWN PICKS ON ROSTER
Pittsburgh Steelers .....	31
Green Bay Packers .....	30
Cincinnati Bengals .....	29
Baltimore Ravens .....	29
Minnesota Vikings .....	29

Special teams soar under Simmons: Over the now 18-year tenure of Darrin Simmons, the Bengals have consistently boasted one of the top special teams units in the NFL. Simmons this year has added the title of assistant head coach to his usual role as special teams coordinator, a nod to a successful run that has seen 17 different players from his tenure appear in the team's record book.

Here's an overview of Simmons' players' dominance over the Bengals' record book. For more detailed record information, see the Bengals' records section on page 168 in the 2020 media guide.

The three most accurate FG kickers (by career percentage) in team history — Shayne Graham, Randy Bullock, and Mike Nugent — were all coached by Simmons for their entire Bengals careers. Simmons has also been at the helm for each of the six most accurate single seasons by Bengals kickers.

The five longest consecutive FG streaks in team history have all come under Simmons' watch, as have three of the five longest PAT streaks.

Simmons, who punted at the University of Kansas, has had particular success coaching his former position. Current P Kevin Huber holds the top spot in every Bengals career punting category, along with the top five single seasons for both net average and inside-20s, and the top four seasons for gross average. Former P Kyle Larson, who spent his entire Bengals term (2004-08) under Simmons, ranks within the top four in every career punting category, and shares with Huber the record for longest punt in team history (75 yards).

Simmons has coached three of the Bengals' top four leaders in career punt return average — Adam Jones, Quan Cosby and Peter Warrick.

He's coached four of the team's top six leaders in career kickoff return average — Jones, Alex Erickson, Bernard Scott, Glenn Holt. Five of the six best single seasons by a kickoff returner (based on yards per kickoff return) have come under Simmons. That includes Brandon Wilson's NFL-best 31.9-yard kickoff return average (second in team history) in 2019.

And although the category is not kept as an official team record, it should be noted that LS Clark Harris has executed more than 1600 deep snaps without a single unplayable delivery since joining the Bengals in mid-2009.

Simmons has also coached four players who have made the Pro Bowl as special teamers — Huber, Jones, Harris and RB Cedric Peerman

Bullock most accurate in team history: Bengals K Randy Bullock has again moved ahead of former Bengals K Shayne Graham as the most accurate kicker in Bengals history. Bullock, who has bounced between first and second place this season, has made 87.13 percent (88 of 101) of his FGs as a Bengal. That stands just .37 ahead of Graham's 86.76 (177 of 204).

Bullock is in his fifth Bengals season, after joining Cincinnati on waivers from Pittsburgh mid-way through 2016. Graham played seven Bengals seasons (2003-09).

Bullock this season has made 19 FGs on 21 attempts, good for a 90.48 percentage that ranks tied for eighth in the NFL (minimum 10 attempts). His 78 points rank 10th in the NFL among kickers, and his 37 touchbacks are tied for sixth.

The Huber roundup: Bengals P Kevin Huber, a 2009 Bengals fifth-round pick who this year is playing his 12th season in stripes, has long been considered the top punter in team history. He has cemented that legacy within the last year by taking over the top spot in the few remaining career punting categories he did not already own.

Huber now stands first in team history in the following categories:

- Punts (881)
- Punting yards (39,791)
- Gross average (45.17)
- Net average (40.03)
- Inside-20 punts (306)

Huber has also taken over many of the Bengals' single-season and single-game records. Among them are:

- He holds the top four Bengals season averages in gross yardage and the top five Bengals season averages in net. His gross record is 46.84 (set in 2014), and his net record is 42.11 (set in '19).
- He shares the team record for longest punt (75 yards) with Kyle Larson.
- His 33 inside-20 punts in 2012 is a single-season franchise record.
- His six inside-20 punts on Sept. 14, 2017 vs. Houston are tied with Lee Johnson (Nov. 2, 1997) for the most in a game in Bengals history.

Huber among NFL's best at pinning 'em: As the evidence shows, no Bengals punter has ever been nearly as successful as Kevin Huber at pinning opponents inside the 20-yard line. The 2009 fifth-round draft choice currently has 306 career inside-20 punts, a margin of more than 100 over the next-best in team history (Lee Johnson, 186).

But the numbers also show that Huber is among the best active punters in the NFL at pinning opponents deep.

Here's a look at the active NFL punters with the most career inside-20 punts:

PUNTER	2020 TEAM	NFL EXP.	CAREER INSIDE-20s
Andy Lee	Arizona .....	17	433
Sam Koch	Baltimore .....	15	421
Brett Kern	Tennessee .....	13	366
Kevin Huber	Cincinnati .....	12	306
Johnny Hekker	L.A. Rams .....	9	260

25 points does the trick: Since 2011, the Bengals own a 49-5-2 record when scoring 25 or more points. That's good for the fourth-best winning percentage (.893) in the NFL when topping the 25-point mark over that span.

The Bengals, though, are 3-4 under head coach Zac Taylor (2-3 this season) when reaching the 25-point plateau.

Here are the top five teams in the NFL since 2011, in terms of winning percentage, when hitting the 25-point plateau:

TEAM	WINS	LOSSES	TIES	WINNING PCT.
Miami Dolphins .....	41	2	0	.953
New England Patriots .....	89	9	0	.908
Cincinnati Bengals .....	49	5	2	.893
Denver Broncos .....	55	7	0	.887
Philadelphia Eagles .....	55	9	0	.859

Two Bengals hail from Queen City: The Bengals this year have two players — DE Sam Hubbard and P Kevin Huber — who grew up in Greater Cincinnati.

Hubbard, a Moeller High School alum and former Ohio State standout, is in his third Bengals season, after joining the team as a third-round draft pick (77th overall) in 2018. He is in his second season as a full-time starting DE, and has one sack so far this season.

"It's insane," Hubbard said after being drafted. "Seeing that 513 area code pop up on my phone on draft day was just incredible. To get an opportunity to represent Cincinnati for the pro team in this city is a dream come true. I watched every game the Bengals played. I've just always been a big fan."

Huber, an Anderson Township native and alum of McNicholas High School and the University of Cincinnati, was a fifth-round draft choice of the Bengals in 2009. He is the longest-tenured player on the roster and has played in all but two games throughout his career in Cincinnati. He currently stands as the Bengals' career leader in both gross (45.17) and net (40.03) punting average.

Huber and his wife, Mindi, have been active in the local community throughout his Bengals career. The couple started their own charity, The Foundation for Underserved Rescues, which "provides resources and support to underserved Cincinnati-area animal rescues."

It should also be noted that Bengals G Michael Jordan was born in Fairfield, Ohio, just outside of Cincinnati, but his family moved and he attended high school in Michigan.

These cats can fly: Since 2016, the NFL's Next Gen Stats service has tracked a variety of in-game measurements using GPS trackers and other technology. One of those measurements is the speed — in miles per hour — that ball carriers reach during a given play.

HB Joe Mixon has the fastest speed this season, after being clocked at 21.19 MPH on his 34-yard TD run vs. Jacksonville in Game 4.

PLAYER	SPEED (MPH)	DATE/OPPONENT	PLAY
S Brandon Wilson	22.03	10-13-19 at Balt.	92-yard KOR (TD)
WR Alex Erickson	21.52	12-16-18 vs. Oak.	77-yard KOR
CB William Jackson III	21.52	9-24-17 at G.B.	75-yard INT return (TD)
CB William Jackson III	21.33	9-15-19 vs. S.F.	19-yard INT return
HB Joe Mixon	21.19	10-4-20 vs. Jax.	34-yard rush (TD)

Bengal bites: The NFL's Next Gen Stats service, which tracks players' speed by using GPS, clocked HB Joe Mixon at 21.19 MPH on his 34-yard TD run in Game 4 vs. Jacksonville. It was the fastest by a Bengal this season. S Brandon Wilson's kickoff return for a TD at Baltimore last season (22.03 MPH) was the third-fastest in the league in 2019, and fastest by a Bengal since NGS' launch in '16 ... This season's Oct. 25 matchup between the Bengals and Browns was the first in NFL history with five combined go-ahead TD passes in the fourth quarter ... The Bengals converted all five of their fourth-down attempts on Sept. 17 at Cleveland this season, marking the first time since 1970 that Cincinnati has gone perfect on as many fourth-down attempts in a single game (Elias Sports Bureau's records do not go back further than 1970) ... The longest-tenured player on the roster is P Kevin Huber, a 12th-year pro who joined the Bengals as a fifth-round pick in 2009 ... The oldest Bengal on the roster is LS Clark Harris, who is 36 (born July 10, 1984) ... The youngest Bengal is WR Tee Higgins, who is 21 (born Jan. 18, 1999) ... The lightest Bengal on the roster is WR Mike Thomas, who is 189 pounds ... The heaviest Bengal is G/OT Fred Johnson, who is 325 pounds ... The tallest Bengal is DT Margus Hunt, who is 6-8 ... The shortest Bengal is Trayveon Williams, who is 5-8.

POSITION BY POSITION

Quarterbacks: Taking the reins of the offense this season is rookie Joe Burrow, the No. 1 overall pick in April's draft and a native of Athens, Ohio (roughly 2.5 hours from Cincinnati). Burrow ranks second in the NFL in attempts (370) and third in completions (242), and ninth in passing yards (2485). He also has 12 TDs and five INTs. Burrow has five 300-yard passing games this season, including in each of Games 2-4, making him the first rookie QB in NFL history to post 300-plus passing yards in three consecutive games. He stands one 300-yard game shy of the NFL rookie record of six, set by former Colts QB Andrew Luck in 2012. In Game 7 vs. Cleveland, Burrow passed for 406-yards with 35 completions on 47 attempts. It was just the sixth 400-yard passing game by a rookie in NFL history. In Game 3 at Philadelphia, Burrow found rookie WR Tee Higgins for two TDs and posted his first career 100-plus passer rating (105.5). Last season at LSU, Burrow won the Heisman Trophy by the largest margin in the award's 85-year history, and led his team to a 15-0 record and National Championship. He also set single-season NCAA FBS records for TD passes (60) and TDs responsible for (65), and SEC records for completions (402), passing yards (5671) and completion percentage (76.3 [402-527]). Backing up Burrow will be second-year pro Ryan Finley, a fourth-round pick of the Bengals in 2019. As a rookie last season, Finley started three games and completed 41 of 87 passes for 474 yards, with two TDs and two INTs.

Running backs: Fourth-year pro Joe Mixon again leads the Bengals running backs, and this season he looks to become just the fourth Bengal ever to record three consecutive 1000-yard rushing seasons. So far this season, Mixon has rushed 119 times for 428 yards and has 566 yards from scrimmage. Mixon, though, missed Games 7-9 with a right foot injury, and his status for Game 10 at Washington is undetermined. In Game 4 vs. Jacksonville, Mixon accounted for a career-high three TDs — two rushing on back-to-back drives in the third quarter, and one receiving. The 6-1, 220-pound Mixon, who on Sept. 2 signed a contract extension that keeps him in Cincinnati through 2024, has developed into one of the NFL's top backs, and currently has 10 career 100-yard rushing performances and 17 games of at least 100 yards from scrimmage. Listed as Mixon's backup is eighth-year pro Giovani Bernard, who has become one of the top receiving threats out of the backfield in Bengals history. So far this season, Bernard has 28 receptions for 207 yards and two TDs, along with 48 rushes for 173 yards and two TDs. Bernard has filled in as Cincinnati's No. 1 HB in Games 7-9, while Mixon has been out due to injury. With 323 career receptions, Bernard now stands as Cincinnati's all-time leader in receptions by a running back, after passing former Bengals RB James Brooks (297) in Game 1 vs. the L.A. Chargers. Bernard's 2719 receiving yards are 293 shy of Brooks (3012) for most all-time by a Bengals RB. Bernard also holds the team record for receiving yards in a game by a RB (128, in 2015 at Arizona), and his 89-yard TD run vs. Carolina in '14 is the second-longest rush in team history. Also adding depth in the running back room is fourth-year pro Samaje Perine, a powerful 5-11, 240-pound runner. Perine has played in all nine games this season, and has seen increased action in Games 7-9 during Mixon's absence. Perine this season has 19 carries for 83 yards and a TD. Perine has also been a solid contributor on special teams and has one ST tackle so far in 2020. Perine and Mixon were college teammates at Oklahoma. Trayveon Williams, a second-year pro and 2019 sixth-round pick of the Bengals, has played in three games this season. Williams recorded his first career NFL carries in Game 9 at Pittsburgh, and gained 22 yards on five attempts. The 5-8, 208-pound Williams has seen action mostly on special teams through his first two Bengals seasons (no statistics).

Wide receivers: After playing only nine of 32 possible games from 2018-19, star wideout A.J. Green has returned to the field and provides a boost to Cincinnati's young offense. So far this season, Green has 31 catches for 316 yards. Green recorded season-highs in catches (eight) and receiving yards (96) in Game 6 at Indianapolis. Green missed seven games in 2018 due to a toe injury (right foot), then returned healthy for '19 training camp before suffering a left ankle injury in the first practice of camp that ended up costing him the entire season. Green currently stands second in team history in career receptions (633) and receiving yards (9223), and is tied for second in receiving TDs (63); Chad Johnson, who played 10 Bengals seasons, is first in all three categories — 751 catches, 10,783 yards and 66 receiving TDs. Green's 33 career 100-yard receiving games are also the most in Bengals history, and his 10 career games with at least 150 yards and one TD are the most among active players. Additionally, Green also stands as the only NFL WR since the 1970 merger to start his career with seven consecutive Pro Bowl nominations, although that streak ended in 2018 after his toe injury. Fifth-year pro Tyler Boyd has developed into one of Cincinnati's top offensive weapons, and this year he looks to become just the fourth Bengal ever to record three straight 1000-yard receiving seasons. Boyd so far leads the team in both catches (60) and receiving yards (625); his receptions total currently ranks eighth in the NFL. The 6-2, 203 pound WR notched his first 100-yard receiving game of the season in Game 3 at Philadelphia, with 125 yards on 10 catches. In Game 7 vs. Cleveland, Boyd tied a career-high with 11 catches (for 101 yards). Boyd has caught at least one pass in all 65 of his career games played, and currently has nine career 100-yard receiving performances and five games with at least 10 catches. Cincinnati this year invested a second-round pick in Tee Higgins of Clemson, a big (6-4, 216) and physical pass-catcher with unique playmaking ability and a nose for the end zone. Higgins has played in all nine games this season, with seven starts, and has 40 catches for 603 yards and four TDs. He has two 100-yard receiving games. Higgins earned his first career NFL catch in Game 2 at Cleveland, and then caught his first two TDs in Game 3 at Philadelphia. He is now one of only five Bengal rookies with multiple receiving TDs in a game. In Game 5 at Indianapolis, Higgins recorded his first NFL 100-yard receiving game, and his 125 receiving yards were the most by a Bengals rookie since Jordan Shipley's 131 in 2010. Higgins played three seasons (2017-19) at Clemson, and finished his career with 27 receiving TDs, tied with DeAndre Hopkins and Sammy Watkins for the most in school history. Higgins, the youngest player on Cincinnati's roster (will turn 22 in January 2021), is known for his outstanding athleticism and was an accomplished prep basketball player (runner-up for Tennessee's Mr. Basketball as a junior). At a 6-5, 228 pounds, third-year pro Auden Tate brings a massive physical presence, wide catch radius and knack for the acrobatic catch. So far this season, Tate has 13 receptions for 145 yards. In Game 8 vs. Tennessee, Tate caught a career-high seven passes for 65 yards. Tate, a Bengals seventh-round pick in 2018, saw his first extended offensive action last season and recorded career highs in catches (40) and receiving yards (575), despite missing four games due to injury. Also adding depth in the receiver room is Alex Erickson, who has played in all 73 possible games since joining the Bengals in 2016 as a college free agent. Erickson has mostly been a rotational receiver throughout his career, and has one catch for nine yards this season. Last year, he stepped into more of a regular role due to injuries at WR and logged career highs in both catches (43) and receiving yards (529). Erickson has also been a key contributor on both punt returns and kickoff returns throughout his career. Also in the mix is fifth-year pro Mike Thomas, who joined Cincinnati as an unrestricted free agent in March. Thomas entered 2020 with just 10 catches for 144 yards, but he has nearly passed those totals so far this season with 13 catches for 132 yards. Thomas spent his first four seasons with the L.A. Rams, where he was coached by then-Rams assistant Zac Taylor.

Tight ends: Drew Sample, a 2019 second-round pick of the Bengals, returned healthy this season after a right ankle injury ended his rookie campaign after nine games. So far this season, Sample has 20 catches for 183 yards. In Game 2 at Cleveland, Sample notched career-highs in both catches (seven) and receiving yards (45). Bengals coaches praised Sample as the "best blocking tight end in the draft" coming out of college, and last year noted his mid-year ascension right before his injury. Fourth-year pro Cethan Carter, a special teams ace who contributes mainly as a blocker on offense, has seen extended action on offense this season as an extra blocker. Carter has only five career catches, three this season, (one for a TD), but is considered among the most important special teams players on the roster. He is currently tied for the team lead in special teams' tackles (four), after tying for the team lead with seven last season. Rounding out the Bengals' TE group is third-year pro Mason Schreck, who has played in Games 3-9 (no statistics), earned his first start of the season in Game 7 vs. Cleveland. Schreck, a seventh-round pick of the Bengals in 2017, found his way onto Cincinnati's active roster prior to Week 3, after TE C.J. Uzomah went on Reserve/Injured with a right Achilles injury. Schreck missed most of his first two seasons due to injuries, and then spent a majority of last season on Cincinnati's practice squad before being called up for the final five contests (no statistics).

Offensive line: One of the most significant additions to the Bengals' roster this year is LOT Jonah Williams, Cincinnati's first-round pick in 2019. Williams has started seven games at LOT in 2020 and has developed into a reliable contributor on the offensive line. Williams exited Game 7 vs. Cleveland early after suffering a stinger, which also kept him out in Games 8 (inactive) and 9 (active DNP). His status for Game 10 at Washington is unknown. After starting every possible game in his three seasons in college at Alabama, Williams missed his entire rookie season in 2019 due to a left shoulder injury he suffered in OTAs. After having surgery in June 2019, Williams was around the Bengals' facility every day last season to attend regular meetings. Next to Williams is LG Michael Jordan, a second-year pro who has started eight games at LG so far this season for Cincinnati. Jordan missed Game 8 vs. Tennessee due to an illness (not COVID-19 related). Jordan, a fourth-round pick in 2019, was named the starting LG out of training camp as a rookie last year but relinquished the job after early season struggles due in part to a knee injury. He regained the job late in the season and showed significant improvement, helping HB Joe Mixon to 100-yard rushing performances in three of the final four games. Veteran Trey Hopkins, a fifth-year pro and the longest-tenured Bengal on the offensive line, is in his second season as Cincinnati's No. 1 C, and has started eight games there so far this season. He missed Game 8 vs. Tennessee due to a concussion. Hopkins, who has starting experience at all three interior OL positions, won the No. 1 C job in 2019 training camp and played so well that he earned a contract extension in December (through '22 season). Prior to Game 4 against Jacksonville, Cincinnati signed Alex Redmond from the practice squad to the active roster, and he has gone on to start Games 4-9 at RG. A fourth-year pro and 2019 Bengals college free-agent signee from UCLA, Redmond has played in 29 career game with 23 starts. For the third straight season, Bobby Hart lines up as the Bengals' starter at ROT. Hart has missed Games 8-9 with a knee injury, which he suffered at the end of Game 7 vs. Cleveland. Hart was inactive for Game 9 at Pittsburgh and his status for Game 10 at Washington is unknown. Prior to his injury, Hart had started every game at ROT since joining the team prior to the 2018 season, and was a significant part of the blocking effort for HB Joe Mixon's back-to-back 1000-yard seasons in '18 and '19. A key reserve along the interior of the offensive line is G/C Billy Price, who has starting experience at all three interior OL positions. Price has played in all nine games so far this season, with one start — at C in Game 8 vs. Tennessee, in place of the injured Hopkins. A Bengals first-round pick in 2018, Price served as Cincinnati's No. 1 C as a rookie, despite battling injuries that held him out of six games. He moved to a reserve role in 2019, but ended up starting eight games (seven at LG, one at RG) due to injuries along the line. Also adding depth along the line is rookie OT/G Hakeem Adeniji, a sixth-round pick out of the University of Kansas. Adeniji has played in all nine games, with starts at LOT in Games 8-9 in place of the injured Williams. The Bengals took notice of Adeniji at the Senior Bowl, where he showcased his versatility for the North team (Cincinnati coached the South). Adeniji started all 48 possible games during his college career, seeing time at both RT and LT, but Bengals coaches say he also has the ability to play G. Second-year player Keaton Sutherland was signed to Cincinnati's active roster on Sept. 28, and has played in one game. Sutherland originally was a 2019 college free agent signee of the Bengals out of Texas A&M, and spent most of his rookie season on Cincinnati's practice squad before joining Miami late in the season (three games, two starts in Miami).

Defensive line: With 75.5 career sacks, 11th-year DT Geno Atkins, is in third place on the Bengals' all-time sack list, and stands just eight shy of leader DE Eddie Edwards (83.5). Atkins missed Games 1-4 with a shoulder injury and Game 9 due to personal reasons. Atkins has more than double the number of career sacks as the next-closest interior defensive lineman in team history, and his eight career Pro Bowl nominations are the most ever by a Bengals defensive player ahead of Lemar Parrish (six). Atkins has led the Bengals in sacks five times in his 10 seasons, and also has finished in at least a share of the NFL lead for sacks by an interior defensive lineman five times — he claimed it outright three times (2012, '16, '17), and shared it twice ('11 and '15). Atkins has 14 career games with more than one sack, and the Bengals are 8-6 in those contests. Perhaps the best pure pass-rusher on Cincinnati's roster is fourth-year DE Carl Lawson, who has 3.5 so far this season. Lawson has appeared in all nine games this season, and moved into a starting RDE role for Games 5-8. Lawson notched his fourth career multi-sack game in Game 3 at Philadelphia, when he took down Eagles QB Carson Wentz twice. The 2017 fourth-round pick of the Bengals has struggled with injuries at times throughout his career, but when healthy he's proven to be a disruptive force. He currently stands at 18 career sacks, but coaches are quick to point to the frequency with which he gets into the backfield. Lining up at RDE is Cincinnati native (Archbishop Moeller High School) Sam Hubbard, who is in his second season as a full-time starter. Hubbard suffered an elbow injury in Game 5 at Baltimore, which landed him on but returned to the starting line up in Game 9 at Pittsburgh. So far this season, Hubbard has 26 tackles, one sack and one PD. Hubbard played safety in high school before switching to DE at Ohio State, and with the Bengals has also seen brief action at DT in nickel packages. On Oct. 12, Cincinnati signed free agent DT Xavier Williams, a sixth-year player from the University of Northern Iowa. Williams has played in Games 6-8 and started Game 9 this season, and has eight tackles and a sack. Williams started in Game 6 at Indianapolis, just days after he was signed, and contributed four tackles, a sack, and a fumble recovery on the second play from scrimmage that led to a Bengals TD drive. Williams originally was a college free agent signee of the Arizona Cardinals in 2015, and later spent time with the Chiefs and Patriots. Cincinnati spent a fifth-round pick this year on Notre Dame DE Khalid Kareem, who has added depth on the D-line this season. Kareem has played in all nine games, and has 12 tackles. A team captain in college and the son of a high school coach, Kareem is known for his length (34 3/8-inch arms, 84-inch wingspan), intelligence and effort. He played as a 3-4 DE for the Irish and was a two-year starter, notching 26 career tackles for losses, including 13 sacks. Cincinnati acquired 6-2, 305-pound DE Christian Covington via a trade with Denver (gave up LB Austin Calitro) on Sept. 4. Covington, a sixth-year player out of Rice University, has played in all nine games so far this season, with seven starts (Games 2 and 4-9), and has 23 tackles. Covington originally was a 2015 sixth round pick of the Houston Texans. Prior to Game 2 at Cleveland, Cincinnati called up DE Amani Bledsoe from the practice squad. Bledsoe has played in all eight games (four starts) so far this season, and contributed 10 tackles and one PD. The 6-4, 280-pound Bledsoe joined the Bengals as a free agent on Aug. 15.

Linebacker: Cincinnati's young linebacker room is led by a veteran presence in ninth-year pro Josh Bynes, who signed with the Bengals in March as an unrestricted free agent. Bynes this season has started all nine games, and has 52 tackles and a sack. Bynes played last season with Baltimore, and previously spent time with Detroit and Arizona. Known for his leadership, intelligence and ability to stop the run, Bynes has been a part of four top-10 defenses and four top-10 rush defenses in his eight previous seasons. Listed as the other starter at LB is second-year pro Germaine Pratt, Cincinnati's third-round pick in 2019. So far this season, Pratt has started all nine games, tallying 50 tackles and one PD. Considered a green prospect coming out of N.C. State, Pratt spent his first two collegiate seasons at S before switching to LB, and in his only season as a starting LB led the Wolfpack in tackles and earned all-conference honors. Cincinnati this season spent a third-round pick on Wyoming's Logan Wilson, a speedy (4.63-second 40-yard dash at the combine) and instinctive player known best for his outstanding college production. Wilson, who has seen his playing time increase throughout the season, has 17 tackles, two interceptions and a sack, despite missing Game 4 against Jacksonville due to a concussion. In Game 5 at Baltimore, Wilson's first game back after a concussion, the rookie jumped in front of a Lamar Jackson pass in the second quarter to tally his second interception of the season. In Game 8 vs. Tennessee, the rookie took down Ryan Tannehill for his first career sack. A high school WR and DB, Wilson switched to LB in college and went on to start all 52 possible games at LB over the next four years. Wilson, a three-time team captain (voted by teammates) in college, first caught the eye of Bengals coaches as a member of the North team at the 2020 Senior Bowl (though Cincinnati coached the South). Cincinnati's coaches did coach Appalachian State's Akeem Davis-Gaither on the South team at the Senior Bowl, and were impressed enough to spend a fourth-round pick on him three months later during the draft. Davis-Gaither earned his first start in Game 5 at Baltimore, has also seen action early this season in Cincinnati's nickel packages with 13 tackles and a half sack. Known for his speed, motor and instincts, Davis-Gaither topped 100 tackles in each of his final two college seasons and earned 2019 Sun Belt Defensive Player of the Year honors as a senior. Fourth-year pro Jordan Evans, a 2017 sixth-round pick out of Oklahoma, again adds depth and special teams value to the Bengals' linebacker room. In Game 4 against Jacksonville, Evans snagged his first INT of the season on the first drive of the game. And in the fourth quarter against Jacksonville, Evans earned his first sack of the season, a third-down takedown of Gardner Minshew that held the Jaguars to a FG. Last year, Evans was used as a rotational player on defense (76 snaps, with six tackles and a PD), but was second on the team in special teams snaps and had six ST tackles. Also in the mix this season is rookie seventh-round pick Markus Bailey, a Hilliard, Ohio (outside Columbus) native and Purdue grad. Bailey has played in three games this season (inactive for the rest), and has seen action mostly on special teams. Bailey was considered one of the most productive defenders in the Big Ten when healthy, however serious knee injuries (left ACL as a freshman, right ACL as a senior) caused his draft stock to slide. Bailey fully recovered from last year's injury, and was a full participant from early in training camp this year. Considered strong against the run and pass, Bailey led the Boilermakers in tackles in two of his three healthy seasons, and also had 13.5 career sacks, 13 PDs and six INTs.

Defensive backs: Among the headliners of Cincinnati's free agency haul in March was S Vonn Bell, a fifth-year player out of Ohio State who spent his first four NFL seasons (2016-19) with the New Orleans Saints. Bell came to Cincinnati known for his tackling proficiency, and so far this season ranks second on the team in tackles with 61. Lining up next to Bell is S Jessie Bates III, Cincinnati's second-round pick in 2018. Bates currently has a team-high 64 tackles, and his team-best 12 PDs rank fourth in the NFL. In Game 6 at Indianapolis, Bates stepped in front of a Philip Rivers deep ball to make his first interception of the season. Bates topped 100 tackles in each of his first two seasons in Cincinnati, including his rookie season in 2018 when he became just the sixth Bengals rookie ever to lead the team in tackles. Bates has never missed a game (all starts) over his now three seasons, and in 2018 he was the team's first rookie defender in 20 years to start all 16 games (Takeo Spikes, 1998). Shifting to a new role this season is S Shawn Williams, a 2013 third-round pick and vocal veteran leader on the defense. Williams was the Bengals' No. 1 SS from 2016-19, but this year is contributing in a variety of defensive roles. Williams missed the first two games of this season with a calf injury, which he suffered early in training camp. That broke Williams' streak of 36 consecutive games played dating back to late 2017. Williams, though, returned to action in Game 3 and has been eased back into his role. So far this season, Williams has seven tackles on the defensive squad with one PD and has three special teams tackle. Williams led the team in tackles (112) in 2019, after leading the team in INTs (five) in 2018. Leading the Bengals' CBs is 2016 first-round pick William Jackson III, who is in his third season as a full-time starting corner. Now healthy after battling a shoulder injury throughout 2019, Jackson this season has 30 tackles, four PDs, and an INT. Jackson's pick came in Game 2 at Cleveland, when he jumped in front of a Baker Mayfield pass and returned it 30 yards to set up a Bengals TD drive. Manning the other outside CB position this year has been 2018 sixth-round pick Darius Phillips, who when healthy has turned heads with his playmaking ability and nose for the football. Phillips totals 17 tackles on the season with five PDs, though he was placed on the RI list ahead of Game 9 at Pittsburgh with a groin injury. Last year, Phillips led the Bengals in INTs (four) and tied for third in PDs (seven), despite playing in just eight games (one start) and seeing action on 108 total defensive snaps all season. New addition Mackensie Alexander, an unrestricted free agent signee who spent his first four NFL seasons with the Minnesota Vikings, is playing a significant role this year as Cincinnati's primary slot CB. So far this season, Alexander has 25 tackles, with eight coming in Game 3 at Philadelphia, and one PD. Alexander helped the Vikings to top-five NFL rankings in both total defense and passing defense in three of his four seasons with the team. Also adding depth at CB is unrestricted free agent signee LeShaun Sims, a fifth-year player who spent his first four NFL seasons with the Tennessee Titans. Sims notched his first INT as a Bengal in Game 3 at Philadelphia, picking off a pass from Carson Wentz. So far, Sims has 23 tackles on the season. Sims was inactive for Game 9 at Pittsburgh and his game status for Game 10 at Washington is undetermined. At 6-0, 203 pounds, Sims brings a tough, physical playing style, and is known as a willing tackler. Adding depth at CB this year is Tony Brown, a third-year pro out of the University of Alabama who spent his first two seasons with the Green Bay Packers. Brown played in 22 games (four starts) over his first two seasons. So far this season, Brown has nine tackles which all came in Game 9 at Pittsburgh. The CB brings the speed of an All-American college track athlete, with a solid 6-0, 198-pound frame. One of the fastest and most versatile players on Cincinnati's roster is S Brandon Wilson, a rotational DB on defense who is best known for his massive special teams impact. Wilson's kickoff return average is 24.1, which is tied for seventh in the league this season, after averaging an NFL-best 31.3 yards last year, the second-best mark in Bengals history.

Special teams: The longest-tenured player on this year's roster is P Kevin Huber, a Cincinnati native (Archbishop McNicholas High School) and University of Cincinnati alum. Huber, a 2009 fifth-round pick of the Bengals, has played in all but two possible regular-season games over his now 12 seasons with the team. So far this season, Huber has averaged 46.8 yards on 38 punts, with a net of 40.7, and 10 inside-20s and six touchbacks. Huber stands as the Bengals' career leader in every significant punting category, including punts (881), punting yards (39791), gross average (45.17), net average (40.35) and inside-20 punts (306). Huber also shares franchise record for longest punt (75 yards). Last season was among the most productive in Huber's career, with a career-high 42.11-yard net average and 30 inside-20s to just five touchbacks. Huber also has served as the holder on placekicks for his entire career. Randy Bullock has handled the Bengals' placekicking duties since midway through the 2016 season, when he joined Cincinnati on waivers from Pittsburgh. Bullock has converted 87.1 percent (88 made/101 attempts) of his FG attempts as a Bengal, and now stands ahead of Shayne Graham (86.76; 177 made/204 attempts) for best percentage in Bengals history. Bullock is ranks tied for seventh in the NFL in field goals made (19), tied for eighth in field goal attempts (21) and 10th in points (78). Prior to Game 2 at Cleveland, Cincinnati signed second-year pro Austin Seibert to add depth behind Bullock. Seibert has not yet seen game action for the Bengals. Seibert, a fifth-round pick of the Browns in 2019, is 83.3 percent on FGs for his career, and has connected on 30 of 36 PATs. Handling the long-snapping duties again this season is Clark Harris, the oldest Bengal on the roster (turned 36 in July). Harris has been a paragon of reliability since joining the team in mid-2009, and over his Bengals career has handled 1640 deep snaps (878 punts, 761 placekicks) without a single unplayable delivery. Harris, a Pro Bowler in 2017, is the second-longest tenured player on the roster, behind Huber. S and KOR Brandon Wilson headlines Cincinnati's group of return specialists this season. Wilson this season has averaged 24.1 yards on his 18 kickoff returns. A sixth-round pick of the Bengals in 2017, Wilson led the NFL last season with a 31.3-yard average on kickoff returns (minimum 20 attempts), good for the second-best single season average in team history. Wilson played in just 12 games last season, and served as the No. 1 KOR for just eight contests. Considered one of the fastest players on Cincinnati's roster, he was clocked by NFL's Next Gen Stats at 22.03 MPH during his kickoff return for a TD in Game 6 vs. Baltimore last year, good for the third-fastest speed by an NFL ball carrier in 2019. Wilson has also been a key cog to Cincinnati's coverage units throughout his career, and this season leads the team with five special teams tackles. Listed as the No. 1 PR again this season is WR Alex Erickson, who has held that position since joining the Bengals as a college free agent in 2016. Erickson this season has averaged 8.8 yards per punt return, which is tied for sixth in the NFL. Erickson is also an accomplished kick returner, a position he held from 2016-18 prior to Wilson's breakout campaign in '19, and he owns two of Cincinnati's top five seasons ever for average yards per KOR — AFC-best 27.93 as a rookie in '16, and 26.2 in '18. Playing key roles in Cincinnati's special teams coverage units this season are Wilson, LB Jordan Evans, and TE Cethan Carter. Taking over this season as the personal protector on punts will be HB Giovani Bernard. Under the tenure of assistant head coach/special teams coordinator, the personal protector position has been a coveted role that is traditionally manned by one of the most trusted players on special teams.

THE LAST TWO BENGALS-WASHINGTON MEETINGS

2012 SEASON
WEEK 3, GAME 3

Cincinnati Bengals 38, Washington 31
Sunday, Sept. 23, 2012 at FedExField

Cincinnati scored its most points in 44 games and turned back a pair of rallies to log its third straight win over Washington. Washington erased a 24-7 Cincinnati lead to tie at 24-24 before the Bengals went up 38-24 with 7:08 left. Then Washington scored another TD and drove as far as the Bengals' 19 in the final minute, only to see their second comeback bid thwarted. Bengals QB Andy Dalton had a 132.9 passer rating, and WR A.J. Green had 183 receiving yards on nine catches. On the game's first scrimmage play, Bengals rookie WR Mohamed Sanu lined up at QB, took a direct snap and threw a 73-yard TD to Green. The Bengals improved to 2-1, while Washington fell to 1-2.

2016 SEASON
WEEK 8, GAME 8

Cincinnati Bengals 27, Washington 27 (OT)
Sunday, Oct. 30, 2016 at Wembley Stadium (London, England)

In their first appearance in the NFL's International Series, at London's famed Wembley Stadium, the Bengals played their third tie in their last nine seasons, with missed place kicks playing a significant role in the deadlocked result. Bengals K Mike Nugent missed a PAT in the third quarter, a factor in the game reaching OT, and Washington K Dustin Hopkins missed a 34-yard FG try late in the OT period. Hopkins had made an apparent game-winning kick just moments before, but officials ruled that the Bengals had called a timeout to "ice" Hopkins just an instant before the snap. The Bengals were bested in yards (546-415) and turnover differential (minus-one), but they cashed all four of their red-zone opportunities for TDs while holding Washington to one of four. Cincinnati had two 100-yard receivers — WR A.J. Green and TE Tyler Eifert — in the same game for the first time since September of 2011. Washington QB Kirk Cousins passed for 458 yards, most by any passer against the Bengals since 2006. Cincinnati exited the contest with a 3-4-1 record, while Washington went back to the states at 4-3-1. The game was not only the first tie among 17 contests in International Series London games, it was the first to go overtime.

2020 GAME SUMMARIES

WEEK 1, GAME 1

L.A. Chargers 16, Cincinnati Bengals 13 Sunday, Sept. 13, 2020 at Paul Brown Stadium

The Bengals took the field in the season opener inside a Paul Brown Stadium without fans, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The game also marked the much-anticipated debut of Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow, the No. 1 overall pick in the 2020 draft. After a first half in which Burrow was sacked three times and pressured numerous others, Cincinnati's offense found its footing late, but two fourth-quarter turnovers thwarted Cincinnati's chances. HB Joe Mixon fumbled for the first time in more than two years — a span of 541 rushing attempts — leading to a Chargers go-ahead FG. Then, Burrow led a drive to the Chargers' 23-yard line before throwing an INT to Chargers DE Melvin Ingram III. Down three points with 3:08 remaining, Burrow led one final drive that spanned 14 plays and 84 yards. With seven seconds left, he connected for an apparent go-ahead TD with WR A.J. Green, who played for the first time since Dec. 2018, but the play was nullified by an offensive pass interference penalty on Green. K Randy Bullock then pushed a potential game-tying 31-yard FG wide right with two seconds left, erasing the possibility for an overtime period.

WEEK 2, GAME 2

Cleveland Browns 35, Cincinnati Bengals 30 Thursday night, Sept. 17, 2020 at FirstEnergy Stadium

Cleveland's FirstEnergy Stadium had 6000 fans in attendance for a Thursday Night Football matchup in what was Ohio's first major sporting event with fans present in six months, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow, who was making his second career start, set an NFL rookie record for completions in a game with 37, but he did so on 61 passing attempts, the most ever by a Cincinnati QB in a non-overtime contest. Cincinnati ran 30 more plays than Cleveland (83-53), had a seven-minute edge in time of possession, and converted all five of its fourth-down attempts. But the Bengals struggled to stop Cleveland's rushing attack, as the Browns racked up 215 rushing yards and three TDs behind RBs Nick Chubb and Kareem Hunt. Cincinnati failed to record a sack, while Cleveland took down Burrow three times and pressured him numerous others. The Bengals dropped to 0-2, while the Browns improved to 1-1.

WEEK 3, GAME 3

Cincinnati Bengals 23, Philadelphia Eagles 23 Sunday, Sept. 27, 2020 at Lincoln Financial Field

The Bengals and Eagles battled to the second tie in series history, inside a Lincoln Financial Field without fans due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Bengals QB Joe Burrow, who was making his third career start, threw for 312 yards and two TDs — both to fellow rookie Tee Higgins — and posted his first career 100-plus passer rating. But Cincinnati struggled to block Philadelphia's defensive front, as the Eagles sacked Burrow eight times and allowed only 48 yards rushing. Still, Cincinnati led the entire fourth quarter, until Eagles QB Carson Wentz scored on a seven-yard scramble with 21 seconds left to force overtime. Cincinnati's offense slowed in OT, producing just two first downs. Philadelphia lined up for a potential game-winning 59-yard FG with 19 seconds left in the extra period, but after a false start, the Eagles reconsidered and punted. The Bengals and Eagles both fell to 0-2-1.

WEEK 4, GAME 4

Cincinnati Bengals 33, Jacksonville Jaguars 25 Sunday, Oct. 4, 2020 at Paul Brown Stadium

Cincinnati earned its first win of 2020. It was the also the first win in the career of Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow, who passed for an even 300 yards and became the first rookie in NFL history to throw for at least 300 yards in three consecutive games. But the day's biggest performance came from Bengals HB Joe Mixon, who revealed after the game that he was in the hospital the night before due to a chest injury. After getting the green light to play from the Bengals' medical staff on Sunday morning, Mixon scored three TDs (two rushing, one receiving) and recorded 181 yards from scrimmage, including 121 of his 151 rushing yards in the second half during a steady rain. Cincinnati's offense posted 500 total yards, and for the first time since 1988 recorded at least 200 rushing yards and 300 passing yards in a single game. Cincinnati moved to 1-2-1, and Jacksonville fell to 1-3.

Indianapolis Colts 31, Cincinnati Bengals 27 Sunday, Oct. 18, 2020 at Lucas Oil Stadium

The visiting Bengals jumped ahead 21-0 by the first play of the second quarter, against a Colts defense that entered the contest leading the NFL in both total defense and pass defense. But the story of the day was Indianapolis' offense, which shook off a slow start to quickly close the gap to three points at halftime.

WEEK 7, GAME 7

Cleveland Browns 37, Cincinnati Bengals 34
Sunday, Oct. 25, 2020 at Paul Brown Stadium

In just their second-ever meeting, QBs Joe Burrow and Baker Mayfield led an offensive shootout between the host Bengals and visiting Browns. Burrow posted 406 passing yards — the sixth-most ever by a rookie — to go with his three passing TDs and one rushing TD. Burrow's day was highlighted by a 10-play, 80-yard drive that ended with a fourth-down, go-ahead TD pass to HB Giovani Bernard with 1:06 to play. But the Browns' offense was equally as impressive. After starting the game with zero completions in his first five attempts with an INT, Mayfield did not throw another incompleting the rest of the contest (save for a spike to stop the clock late). It was the first game in NFL history with five combined go-ahead TD passes in the fourth quarter, and that scoring frenzy was capped by a 24-yard pass from Mayfield to WR Donovan Peoples-Jones with 11 seconds left to give the Browns the win. Cincinnati fell to 1-5-1, while Cleveland improved to 5-2.

WEEK 8, GAME 8

Cincinnati Bengals 31, Tennessee Titans 20
Sunday, Nov. 1, 2020 at Paul Brown Stadium

The 5-1 Titans visited Paul Brown Stadium as heavy favorites and faced a one-win Bengals team missing its leading rusher and four starting offensive linemen. The only other game in team history that featured at least four starters along the offensive line who did not start Cincinnati's previous contest was the first game with replacement players during the 1987 player strike. The Bengals' makeshift line, though, held the Titans without a sack and helped Cincinnati record a time-of-possession advantage of nearly 12 minutes. And, despite weather conditions which saw wind gusts up to 35 MPH throughout the afternoon, Bengals rookie QB Joe Burrow completed 70.3 percent of his passes, posted a 106.7 passer rating and had 249 passing yards with two TDs. The Titans, powered by a running game that averaged 7.5 yards per attempt, made a late push with two fourth-quarter TDs, but the Bengals' offense countered with two of their own and held on for a 31-20 win. Bengals HB Giovani Bernard, who filled in for injured starter Joe Mixon, recorded 78 yards from scrimmage and had two TDs — one on a 12-yard run and one on a six-yard pass. Cincinnati improved to 2-5-1, while Tennessee dropped to 5-2.

WEEK 10, GAME 9

Pittsburgh Steelers 36, Cincinnati Bengals 10
Sunday, Nov. 15, 2020 at Heinz Field

After dealing with its first COVID-19 cases over the bye the previous week, Cincinnati traveled to Pittsburgh to take on the undefeated Steelers under some of the most unique circumstances in team history. In all, four eligible players (including practice squad) and four assistant coaches were unavailable for the game for reasons related to COVID-19. And, in addition, five listed Bengals starters were held out of the contest due to unrelated injuries. Cincinnati kept the game close early behind a strong first half from QB Joe Burrow, but the rookie completed just five of his 15 pass attempts for 24 yards over the final two periods. Steelers QB Ben Roethlisberger, who was held out of his team's facility all week due to COVID-19 procedures, threw for 333 yards and four TDs against a depleted Bengals secondary. And after the Bengals lost yet another defensive starter — CB Mackensie Alexander — to injury in the first half, the Steelers used two second-half TD passes to WR Chase Claypool to widen the margin and cruise to a 36-10 win. Cincinnati dropped to 2-6-1, while Pittsburgh improved to 9-0.
