WEEKLY NEWS RELEASE

SEPT. 8, 2020

LOS ANGELES CHARGERS (0-0) AT CINCINNATI BENGALS (0-0)

SEASON OPENER
SUNDAY, SEPT. 13
AT PAUL BROWN STADIUM

NEXT WEEK: WEEK 2, GAME 2
THURSDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL, SEPT. 17 AT CLEVELAND

GAME NOTES

Kickoff: 4:05 p.m. Eastern.

Television: The game will air on CBS-TV. In the Bengals' home region, it will be carried by WKRC-TV (Ch. 12) in Cincinnati, WHIO-TV (Ch. 7) in Dayton and on WKYT-TV (Ch. 27) in Lexington. Broadcasters are Kevin Harlan (play-by-play), Trent Green (analyst) and Melanie Collins (sideline reporter).

Radio: The game will air on the Bengals Radio Network, led by Cincinnati flagship stations WCKY-AM (ESPN 1530; all sports) and WEBN-FM (102.7). Broadcasters are Dan Hoard (play-by-play) and Dave Lapham (analyst). WLW-AM (700) will join the flagship stations in broadcasting the Bengals game once its broadcast of the Cincinnati Reds game concludes (the Reds game begins at 2:15 p.m. Eastern).

The game also will air nationally on Sports USA Radio, with broadcasters Larry Kahn (play-by-play) and Hank Bauer (analyst).

Setting the scene: After making it through perhaps the most unique offseason in NFL history, the Bengals return to the field this weekend to open their season against the L.A. Chargers at Paul Brown Stadium. The game, however, will be played without fans present, due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"We just have to make sure that we bring our own energy on Sunday, and be fired up and ready to play," said Bengals head coach Zac Taylor, noting the unique circumstances of this year's opener. "We've had the crowd noise on (the speakers) at practice that they're going to be playing in the stadium (during the game). But this isn't something we're going to make any excuse for. We just have to make the most of it, and control what we can control."

While 2020 will be remembered by most as the year COVID-19 changed the way the NFL operated, Bengals fans will be quick to point out that it's also when their team gained a new quarterback and potential face of the franchise. That would be No. 1 overall draft pick Joe Burrow, an Ohio native, college national champion, NCAA-FBS record-holder and Heisman trophy winner.

Sunday marks Burrow's much-anticipated debut as a Bengal, and he is expected to be the only rookie QB across the NFL to start in Week 1. Not only is Burrow being thrown into the mix right away, but his first opponent poses a formidable challenge.

The Chargers come to town on Sunday boasting a defense which last year ranked fifth against the pass and sixth overall. Headlining that unit is a pass rush that features NFL All-Pro DE Joey Bosa, a former teammate of Burrow's at Ohio State, and his Pro Bowl sidekick DE Melvin Ingram III. That figures to provide a stiff test for a Bengals offensive line being led by LOT Jonah Williams, Cincinnati's first-round pick a year ago who is making his own NFL debut on Sunday after missing his entire rookie season due to a shoulder injury.

"It's exciting," Williams said of the matchup. "It's what you want in the NFL, and it's what we've been practicing for all camp. There are no easy games in the NFL. We play great competition every week, and this team and this player are no exception to that."

The Bengals on Sunday will also welcome back star WR A.J. Green, who has missed 23 of the last 24 games due to injuries (last played Dec. 2, 2018). Green, a 10th-year pro and the only NFL WR ever to earn a Pro Bowl nod in each of his first seven seasons, has six 1000-yard seasons to his credit and stands second in team history in career receptions (602) and receiving yards (8907), and tied for second in receiving TDs (63).

Burrow, Williams and Green will be joined by a host of other talent on offense this season. HB Joe Mixon, who on Sept. 2 signed a contract extension that keeps him in Cincinnati through 2024, is coming off of back-to-back 1000-yard rushing seasons. Mixon's running mate in the backfield is HB Giovani Bernard, an eighth-year pro who with two more catches will tie Bengals legend James Brooks (297 catches) for the most receptions ever by a Cincinnati running back (more info in "Gio closes in on J.B." on page 6.). Joining Green at WR is fifth-year pro Tyler Boyd, who is coming off of back-to-back 1000-yard receiving seasons, along with speedster John Ross, jump-ball specialist Auden Tate and rookie second-round pick Tee Higgins.

While most of the public's anticipation surrounds the now-healthy offense, the defensive side of the ball has also drawn its fair share of headlines. Cincinnati dedicated most of its offseason to re-tooling its defense, which last year ranked 29th in the NFL and 32nd against the rush. According to the defensive depth chart (page 19 of this release), the Bengals are expected to start four players on defense this year who were not with the team in 2019 — DT D.J. Reader, LB Josh Bynes, nickel CB Mackensie Alexander and S Vonn Bell.

Joining the newcomers on defense is a group of veteran playmakers that are led by DE Carlos Dunlap and DT Geno Atkins, who rank second and third, respectively, on Cincinnati's all-time sack list. Dunlap currently stands at 81.5 career sacks, just two shy of Bengals sack king Eddie Edwards (83.5). Atkins, whose 75.5 sacks are the most ever by a Bengals interior defensive lineman, is close behind.

With a new quarterback, revamped defense and returning star player, anticipation for the 2020 Bengals season has been palpable in Cincinnati. Asked about that excitement being coupled with the unique COVID-19 circumstances and lack of game reps, due to the cancellation of preseason games, Taylor maintained that his team's approach hasn't changed.

"There's just a different energy this week," he said. "No more Sundays are going by without football — this Sunday, we're playing. We've got to be on top of the details, and that's what we've been challenging our guys with all training camp. This week is really no different in that regard."

The series: The Chargers lead 21-15, including 10-7 as the road team. The Bengals have won four of the last five regular-season meetings, including the last two in Cincinnati. The most recent meeting was a 26-21 Chargers win in Los Angeles in 2018.

The series includes two postseason games. Most recently, the Chargers won a 2013 season Wild Card Playoff 27-10 at Paul Brown Stadium. After the 1981 season, the Bengals beat the Chargers 27-7 in the "Freezer Bowl," the AFC Championship game played in an NFL-record minus-59 degree wind chill at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium (see "Remembering 'The Freezer Bowl' item below on page 2).

The Bengals played the franchise's inaugural regular-season game in San Diego, on Friday night, Sept. 6, 1968. The Chargers won, 29-13.

Team bests from the series:

Bengals — MOST POINTS: 47, in a 47-17 victory at Riverfront Stadium in 1975. The win completed an 11-3 season for Cincinnati, the best season winning percentage (.786) in franchise history. LARGEST VICTORY MARGIN: 31, in a 31-0 victory at Riverfront in 1971. FEWEST POINTS ALLOWED: 0, in the 31-0 victory in '71.

Chargers — MOST POINTS: 50, in a 50-34 victory at San Diego in 1982. LARGEST VICTORY MARGIN: 28, in a 34-6 win at Cincinnati in 2002. FEWEST POINTS ALLOWED: 3, in a 24-3 victory at San Diego in 1977.

The last meetings: Summaries of the last two Bengals-Chargers meetings — in 2015 at Cincinnati, and in '18 at Los Angeles — are on page 13 of this news release.

No fans at season opener: Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, this Sunday's season-opener between the Bengals and Chargers will take place without fans present at Paul Brown Stadium. The decision, which was announced on Aug. 25, was made in accordance with orders from the State of Ohio.

On Sept. 5, the State of Ohio announced that it had granted a variance to the Bengals to host 6000 fans at the Oct. 4 home game against the Jacksonville Jaguars and the Oct. 25 home game against the Cleveland Browns. No further variances have been issued for other games.

For openers: The Bengals franchise has posted a 24-28 mark in season openers, including 13-12 at home. Cincinnati this Sunday will also open its season at home for just the second time in the last 11 seasons, with the other instance being the 2017 opener vs. Baltimore.

The Bengals are 0-2 in their previous two opening-week meetings against the Chargers franchise, with the last instance coming at Paul Brown Stadium in 2002. The only other matchup between the two in a season opener was the first-ever regular-season game in Bengals history, a 29-13 loss at San Diego on Sept. 6, 1968.

Sunday will mark the eighth time in the last 10 seasons that Cincinnati will open its season against a fellow AFC foe. The Bengals are 5-2 in the previous seven instances.

Home opener history: Sunday also marks Cincinnati's home opener. The Bengals are 30-22 in past home openers, including 13-13 in years in which the team opens its regular season at home. The Bengals are 6-4 in their last 10 home openers.

Historically, it doesn't hurt: No one will be calling a season opener a "must-win" game. But in 10 of their 14 seasons of qualifying for postseason play (71.4 percent), the Bengals won the opener.

Here are the season opener results from Bengals playoff years:

YEAR	OPPONENT	RESULT	BENGALS' FINISH
1970	OAKLAND	W, 31-21	Won AFC Central at 8-6
1973	@Denver	L, 10-28	Won AFC Central at 10-4

2014	@Baltimore	W, 23-16	Earned Wild Card berth at 10-5-1
2015	@Oakland	W, 33-13	Won AFC North at 12-4

Remembering "The Freezer Bowl:" The early weather forecast for this week's Bengals-Chargers game in Cincinnati calls for a pleasant high temperature of 75 degrees. But 38 years ago, the Chargers and Bengals met in Cincinnati for the 1981 season AFC Championship game, a 27-7 Bengals win that stands as one of the coldest game days in NFL history.

The mercury reading for the "Freezer Bowl" was minus-nine degrees, second-coldest in NFL history behind minus-13 for the 1967 NFL Championship game of Dallas at Green Bay (that game became known as "The Ice Bowl"). But the Freezer Bowl was played in winds gusting from 20-35 miles per hour, and the wind chill of minus-59 was the coldest in NFL history, topping (or was it bottoming?) minus-48 for the Ice Bowl.

Better acclimated than their California visitors to the brutal conditions, the Bengals struck an early psychological blow when every Cincinnati offensive and defensive lineman, along with FB Pete Johnson, elected to openly defy the elements by playing in short sleeves. The teams wound up close to even in net yards gained — 318 to 301 in favor of Cincinnati — but the Bengals posted a massive plus-four edge in turnover differential, with four takeaways (two INT, two FR) and no giveaways. Bengals QB Ken Anderson outdueled future Hall of Famer Dan Fouts of the Chargers, posting a 115.9 passer rating on 14-of-22 for 161 yards, two TDs and no INTs. Anderson's TD passes went to TE M.L. Harris and WR Don Bass, and FB Johnson scored a rushing TD.

Only one player was reported to have suffered a weather-related injury — Bengals DE Eddie Edwards with a frostbitten right ear. Official attendance at Riverfront Stadium was 46,302, with more than 13,000 ticket holders staying home, but fans who braved the cold have been joined over the years by legions of impostors.

Bengals career records watch: Here is a look at potential upcoming movement in the Bengals' career records book (regular season):

- DE Carlos Dunlap has 81.5 career sacks, two shy of DE Eddie Edwards* (83.5) for the Bengals' all-time lead.
- Bengals DT Geno Atkins has 75.5 career sacks, six shy of Dunlap (81.5) for second place all-time. Edwards* (83.5) is the Bengals' all-time leader.
- WR A.J. Green has 63 career receiving TDs, three behind WR Chad Johnson (66) for the Bengals' all-time lead.
- Green has 63 total TDs, one short of WR Carl Pickens and RB James Brooks (both with 64) for third place all-time. FB Pete Johnson (70) is the Bengals' all-time leader.
- Bengals WR Alex Erickson has 112 career punt returns, 18 shy of CB Lemar Parrish (130) for third place all-time. WR Brandon Tate (153) is the Bengals' all-time leader.
- Erickson has 842 career punt return yards, 273 shy of Jones (1115) for fourth place all time. Tate (1411) is the Bengals' all-time leader.
- Erickson has 105 career kickoff returns, 10 shy of FB Eric Ball (115) for fifth place all-time. S/CB Tremain Mack (146) is the Bengals' all-time leader.
- Erickson has 2601 career kickoff return yards, 151 behind RB Stanford Jennings (2752) for fourth place all-time. Mack (3583) is the all-time leader.
- Bengals S Brandon Wilson has one career kickoff return for a TD, one shy of Mack (two) for the Bengals' all-time lead.

*—The NFL has counted sacks as official statistics since 1982. However, the Bengals have sacks compiled since 1976 and recognize those sacks recorded from '76-81 in their records. Thus, please note that, because the NFL has sacks for all teams only since 1982, the Bengals' sack statistics for players whose careers included seasons prior to '82 will not be included in league information.

Records vs. Chargers: On Dec. 20, 1982 at San Diego, the Chargers defeated the Bengals 50-34, piling up 661 yards of net offense. That still stands as the most ever allowed by the Bengals, and Chargers WR Wes Chandler set a Cincinnati opponents' record with 260 receiving yards. Bengals QB Ken Anderson set a team record for completions (40) that still stands.

On Nov. 28, 1971, Cincinnati's defense recorded a team-record six INTs (since tied) vs. San Diego.

On Nov. 12, 2006 at Paul Brown Stadium, WR Chad Johnson established a Bengals record with 260 receiving yards against the Chargers.

The Bengals had their first 100-yard play on Nov. 8, 1981 at San Diego, when CB Louis Breeden made a 102-yard INT return. It was the longest play of any kind in Bengals history at the time, and it still is tied for the longest play. HB Eric Bieniemy had a 102-yard kickoff return for the Bengals in 1997 at the N.Y. Giants, and CB Artrell Hawkins had a 102-yard INT return at Houston in 2002.

On Nov. 2, 1997 at Cinergy Field, P Lee Johnson set the Bengals records for most punts (11; since tied three times) and most inside-20 punts in a game (six; since tied once).

And on Dec. 1, 2013 at San Diego, P Kevin Huber set the Bengals record for net yards per punt in a game (55.5). Huber in that game also tied Johnson for most punts (11), and also tied the team mark for the longest punt (75; set by Kyle Larson in 2005 at Jacksonville).

Individually vs. Chargers: Here is a look at offensive statistics for current Bengals against the Chargers in regular-season games (ordered by total games played):

- WR A.J. Green: Three games; 17 receptions for 213 yards (12.5-yard average) and two TDs.
- HB Giovani Bernard: Three games; 37 rushes for 187 yards (5.1); Six receptions for 38 yards (6.3).
- HB Joe Mixon: One game; 26 rushes for 111 yards (4.3) and a TD; Five catches for 27 yards (5.4).
- WR Tyler Boyd: One game; three catches for 52 yards (17.3).
- WR Alex Erickson: One game; One catch for 14 yards; Two punt returns for 23 yards (11.5); Six kickoff returns for 121 yards (20.2).
- TE C.J. Uzomah: One game; Three catches for 37 yards (12.3).

Bengals-Chargers connections: Chargers LB Nick Vigil entered the NFL as a 2016 third-round draft pick of the Bengals, and was with Cincinnati through the '19 season ... Chargers DE Joey Bosa and WR K.J. Hill both played at Ohio State University; Hill and Bosa were teammates at OSU with Bengals S Vonn Bell, QB Joe Burrow, DE Sam Hubbard and G/C Billy Price ... Chargers DT Cortez Broughton played at the University of Cincinnati ... Chargers T Storm Norton is from Toledo, Ohio (Whitmer High School), and played at the University of Toledo ... Chargers WR Jason Moore played at the University of Findlay ... Bengals WR John Ross is from Long Beach, Calif. (Jordan High School) ... Bengals G Xavier Su'a-Filo played at UCLA ... Bengals CB Torry McTyer is from Los Angeles (Cathedral High School) ... Bengals WR Trenton Irvin (practice squad) is from Valencia, Calif. (Hart High School) ... Bengals offensive coordinator Brian Callahan played (2002-05) and coached ('06-07) at UCLA ... Bengals strength and conditioning coach Joey Boese coached at Fresno State University from 2012-15 ... Bengals assistant strength and conditioning coach Todd Hunt attended Mater Dei High School in Santa Ana, Calif., and also played (2012-15) and coached ('16-17) at Fresno State University ... Bengals assistant strength and conditioning coach Garrett Swanson is from Riverside, Calif. (Martin Luther King High School) and played at Fresno State University from 2012-15 ... Chargers offensive coordinator Shane Steichen coached at Louisville in 2010.

Uniform watch: The Bengals are scheduled to wear black jerseys and black pants this week vs. the L.A. Chargers.

Since 2004, the year of the Bengals' last significant uniform redesign, a number of color options for jerseys and pants have been available. Below are the records (regular season plus postseason) for the different combinations:

JERSEY	PANTS	W-L-T	PCT.
Orange*	Black	6-1-0	.857
Orange*	White	16-7-1	.688
Black	Black	18-17-1	.514
Black	White	36-37-1	.493
White	Black	28-39-0	.418
White (CR)*	White (CR)*	2-3-0	.400
White	White	19-30-0	.388

* — NFL rules allow teams to wear designated alternate jerseys, color rush (CR) uniforms and/or throwback uniforms for a combined total of three regular-season games. As in years past, orange will serve as the Bengals' designated alternate jersey, and for the fifth straight year, the team will use its color rush uniforms (white jersey, white pants), which debuted in 2016. Cincinnati does not have a throwback uniform.

THE HEAD COACHES

Zac Taylor was named the 10th head coach in Cincinnati Bengals history on Feb. 4, 2019.

Taylor's first season as head coach ended with a 2-14 record, however the team showed promise late in the year. On offense, Taylor helped key an improved rushing attack that saw its yards-per-game rushing average jump 70.6 yards from the first half of the season (59.5) to the second (130.1). The team's average yards per rushing attempt also jumped 1.26 yards (3.17 to 4.43) the final eight games, and the offense allowed 10 fewer sacks (29 to 19).

On defense, the team notched 11 more sacks in the second half of 2019 compared to the first eight games, and allowed 84.1 fewer yards per game (57.5 fewer rushing yards, 26.6 fewer passing yards).

Taylor came to Cincinnati after two seasons (2017-18) with the L.A. Rams, where he served as assistant wide receivers coach in 2017 and quarterbacks coach in '18. In 2018, he helped guide Rams QB Jared Goff to career highs in every major passing category — completions (364), attempts (561), passing yards (4688), passing TDs (32), completion percentage (64.9), yards per attempt (8.36) and passer rating (101.1). Los Angeles won the NFC West with a 13-3 regular-season record and advanced to Super Bowl LIII against the New England Patriots.

In 2017, Taylor directed the Rams' young receiving corps and helped oversee an emerging passing offense that ranked 10th in the NFL in pass yards per game (239.4).

Prior to his time with the Rams, Taylor had a one-year stint in the college ranks, serving as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at the University of Cincinnati in 2016.

Taylor broke into NFL coaching in 2012 with the Miami Dolphins as assistant quarterbacks coach. He was elevated to quarterbacks coach from 2013-15, and spent the final five games of '15 as the Dolphins' interim offensive coordinator and primary play-caller, after the team made coaching staff changes.

During his time in Miami, Taylor was instrumental in the development of QB Ryan Tannehill, the team's first-round draft pick in 2012.

Taylor's coaching career began at Texas A&M University, where he served as offensive graduate assistant and tight ends coach under head coach Mike Sherman from 2008-11.

As a player, Taylor began his collegiate career at Wake Forest (2002-03), before transferring to Butler County Community College in Kansas ('04) and then playing his final two seasons ('05-06) at the University of Nebraska. Taylor had a decorated career with the Cornhuskers, setting numerous school records and passing for a combined 5850 yards and 45 touchdowns. In his senior season of 2006, Taylor was named Big 12 Offensive Player of the Year after passing for 3197 total yards and leading the Cornhuskers to a 9-3 record, an appearance in the Big 12 Championship Game and a berth in the Cotton Bowl. He was inducted into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame in 2017.

Taylor joined the Tampa Bay Buccaneers as a college free agent in 2007, but he was waived prior to the start of training camp and never saw NFL action. Later that year, he joined the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League, where he spent one season (did not play).

His father, Sherwood, was a defensive back and captain at the University of Oklahoma, playing under Sooners head coach Barry Switzer from 1976-79. Sherwood Taylor later served as an assistant coach at Oklahoma and Kansas State University. Taylor's brother, Press, played quarterback at Marshall University and is currently passing game coordinator/quarterbacks coach for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Taylor was born May 10, 1983, in Norman, Okla., where he was raised and attended Norman High School. He earned a bachelor's degree in communication studies from the University of Nebraska in 2006. He and his wife, Sarah, have four children — Brooks, Luke, Emma Claire and Milly. Sarah is the daughter of former Green Bay Packers and Texas A&M head coach Mike Sherman.

On Jan. 13, 2017, the Los Angeles Chargers made their first official transaction, naming Anthony Lynn the 16th head coach in franchise history. He's also the first African-American head coach in team annals.

In 2018, Lynn guided the Chargers to the postseason for the first time in five seasons. In 2018, his first season, he led the Chargers to a 9-7 record, a four-game improvement from 2016.

Lynn joined the Chargers after spending the last two seasons (2015-16) as the assistant head coach and running backs coach for the Buffalo Bills. Lynn jumped into the coaching ranks in 2000, spending three seasons (2000-02) with the Broncos as an offensive assistant and assistant to special teams. In 2003, he landed his first full-time position gig as the running backs coach for the Jacksonville Jaguars (2003-04). That was followed by similar positions with the Dallas Cowboys (2005-06), Cleveland Browns (2007-08), New York Jets (2009-2014) and Bills (2015-16). Lynn carried the additional title of assistant head coach in New York in 2014, and with the Bills for his two seasons there.

Lynn was an All-Southwest Conference running back as a collegian at Texas Tech, where he rushed for 1,911 yards and 17 touchdowns on 481 carries. That helped him earn a ticket to the NFL where he signed with the New York Giants as an undrafted free agent in 1992. After being released by the Giants, Lynn signed with Denver in 1993 and appeared in 13 games for the Broncos. Lynn moved on to the Bay Area in 1995, spending two seasons with the San Francisco 49ers (1995-96) before concluding his career in Denver (1997-99) where he won back-to-back Super Bowl championships (XXXII and XXXIII) with the Broncos. He retired after the 1999 season with 83 career games.

Lynn was born Dec. 21, 1968 in McKinney, Texas. He and his wife Stacey Bell, have two children — son, D'Anton, and daughter, Danielle.

Taylor vs. Chargers: No previous meetings.

Taylor vs. Lynn: No previous meetings.

Lynn vs. Bengals: Lynn leads the series, 1-0.

BENGALS NOTES

At the top of the list: Here's a look at where the Bengals ranked — both individually and in team categories — among the top 10 in the NFL in 2019.

BRANDON WILSON

- First in yards per kickoff return (31.3).
- Sixth in kickoff return yards (625).
- Tied for first in kickoff returns of at least 40 yards (four).
- Tied for sixth in kickoff returns of at least 20 yards (16).

KEVIN HUBER

- Tenth in net punting average (42.1).
- Tied for seventh in inside-20 punts (30).

BENGALS TEAM:

- Second in yards gained per kickoff return (26.0).
- Tenth in yards allowed per kickoff return (21.1).
- Third in average starting field position (26.4).
- Fourth in opponents' average starting field position (23.9).
- Tied for fifth in yards allowed per punt return (5.7).
- Fifth in fewest penalties (93).
- Third in fewest penalty yards (761).
- Fifth in defensive red-zone TD percentage (49.0)

Introducing, Joe Burrow: The Bengals in April made QB Joe Burrow of Louisiana State the first overall pick in the draft, and presumably the franchise's quarterback of the future. Here's a closer look at how the much-heralded rookie arrived in Cincinnati:

Burrow grew up in Athens, Ohio, in the southeast part of the state. His father, Jimmy, played football at Nebraska and was a longtime college assistant who most recently served as defensive coordinator at Ohio University (2005-18). His brothers, Jamie and Dan, also played collegiately at Nebraska.

Burrow had a decorated high school career at Athens High School that was highlighted by Ohio's 2014 Mr. Football award and his team's state runner-up finish as a senior. He signed with Ohio State, where he was teammates with four current Bengals — S Vonn Bell, DE Sam Hubbard, G Michael Jordan and G/C Billy Price. As a freshman in 2015, he redshirted in a crowded QB room that returned three players off the Buckeyes' national title team in '14. Burrow served as OSU's No. 2 QB in 2016 and saw limited action, but in preseason camp in '17 he broke his throwing hand and returned mid-season as the No. 3 QB.

Burrow graduated from OSU in spring 2018 and transferred to LSU, where he was eligible to play immediately. Despite not officially practicing with the team until July, he won the starting job and led LSU to a 10-3 record that included five wins over top-10 teams.

After a relatively modest statistical season in 2018, Burrow in '19 put together perhaps the greatest season ever by a college QB. He set numerous NCAA-FBS, SEC and LSU records, led the Tigers to a perfect 15-0 record and national championship, won the Heisman Trophy by the largest margin in its 85-year history, and racked up just about every other individual accolade imaginable.

Now in Cincinnati, Burrow ironically — just as in 2018 at LSU — was not able to begin practicing with his new team until late-summer (this time due to the NFL cancelling its offseason program because of COVID-19). And just as at LSU, he will have at his disposal a talented supporting cast, including WRs A.J. Green, Tyler Boyd, John Ross, Auden Tate and Tee Higgins, along with HBs Joe Mixon and Giovani Bernard.

Burrow the fourth Bengals No. 1 overall pick: On April 23, the Bengals selected QB Joe Burrow of Louisiana State with the No. 1 overall pick in the first-ever virtual NFL Draft. With prospects required to stay at home throughout the draft due to the Coronavirus pandemic, Burrow was unable to celebrate under the bright lights of the Las Vegas strip, where the event had originally been planned to take place. Instead, he spent the evening celebrating with his parents in their living room in his hometown of Athens, Ohio.

In the days leading up to the draft, Bengals president Mike Brown sent letters to Burrow and his parents, welcoming the 23-year-old and his family to the organization.

"It meant a lot," Burrow said of the gesture. "He also wrote one to my mom and dad as well. That kind of shows the person that he is, and I'm excited to be his quarterback for hopefully a long time."

Burrow is the fourth player selected No. 1 overall by the Bengals. In 1994, Cincinnati selected Ohio State DT Dan Wilkinson with the top pick, and then the following year they executed a draft-day trade with Carolina to move to the top spot and select Penn State RB Ki-Jana Carter. Then, in 2003, the team selected USC QB Carson Palmer with the first pick.

In 1984, the Bengals had rights to the No. 1 selection as a result of their 1983 trade of QB Jack Thompson to Tampa Bay. But Cincinnati traded the top pick to New England in exchange for the Nos. 16 and 28 selections.

Burrow's supporting cast unmatched: Bengals QB Joe Burrow enters his first NFL season with one of the most accomplished supporting casts of any rookie QB ever selected in first round of the draft. Burrow on Sunday figures to become only the second first-round QB ever to start a single game as a rookie and have with him on the roster at least one player with multiple 1000-yard rushing seasons and two players with multiple 1000-yard receiving seasons. Burrow will have HB Joe Mixon (two career 1000-yard rushing seasons), WR A.J. Green (six 1000-yard receiving seasons) and WR Tyler Boyd (two 1000-yard receiving seasons).

The only other instance happened in 2004, when Steelers rookie and 11th overall pick Ben Roethlisberger had Duce Staley and Jerome Bettis (both had multiple 1000-yard rushing seasons), along with Hines Ward and Plaxico Burress (both had multiple 1000-yard receiving seasons).

Burrow looks to buck first-pick trends: Prior to this season, 23 of the 24 QBs selected No. 1 overall in the Super Bowl era went on to start at least one game as a rookie. The only exception, ironically, was Cincinnati's No. 1 overall pick in 2003, QB Carson Palmer.

As rookies, those 24 QBs went a combined 4-18-1 in their first starts. They then went on to finish their rookie seasons a combined 83-171-1, good for a .327 win percentage, or about a 5-11 rate for a full 16 game slate.

The record for most wins by a rookie QB selected No. 1 overall is 11, by Indianapolis' Andrew Luck in 2012.

Last year's No. 1 overall pick, Arizona QB Kyler Murray, went 5-10-1 as a rookie starter. The year before, Cleveland's Baker Mayfield went 6-7.

Bengals rookie QBs as starters: Joe Burrow on Sunday will become just the 14th rookie QB to start a game for the Bengals. Only two of the previous 13, though, have started more than four games — Greg Cook in 1969 (4-6-1 record) and Andy Dalton in 2011 (9-7 record). Dalton in 2011 earned a Pro Bowl nomination and famously led the Bengals to a Wild Card Playoff berth, despite the team being widely predicted before that season to be among the worst in the NFL.

Other Bengal QBs of note to start as rookies include Ken Anderson in 1971 (0-4) and Boomer Esiason (3-1). Burrow's fellow No. 1 overall pick, Carson Palmer, did not take over the starting role until his second season.

Welcome back, A.J.: The Bengals this weekend welcome the return of 10th-year WR A.J. Green, who missed 23 of the last 24 games due to injuries.

Green, who last played on Dec. 2, 2018, missed all of last season due to a left ankle injury he suffered in the first practice of training camp. He returned to practice mid-way through the season, but re-aggravated the injury and never returned to game action. In 2018, Green was limited by a toe injury (right foot) to just nine games. He suffered the injury on the final drive in Game 8 vs. Tampa Bay, missed the next three games, and then re-aggravated it in the first half of Game 12 vs. Denver. He ended the season on Reserve/Injured, but returned healthy for the start of 2019 training camp. Then came the ankle injury.

Green stands as the Bengals' all-time leader in 100-yard receiving games (33), and is second in career receptions (602) and receiving yards (8907). His 63 career receiving TDs rank tied for second in team history with WR Carl Pickens, and are just three shy of all-time leader Chad Johnson (66).

Green is also only the ninth player ever, and the only WR, to begin his career with at least seven consecutive Pro Bowl nominations. That list includes Steelers RB Franco Harris, Giants LB Lawrence Taylor, Chiefs LB Derrick Thomas, Lions RB Barry Sanders, Dolphins OT Richmond Webb, 49ers LB Patrick Willis, Browns OT Joe Thomas and Cardinals CB Patrick Peterson. Green's streak of Pro Bowl nominations ended in 2018, though, after his missed time due to the toe injury.

A.J. gives Burrow a lift: Joe Burrow's public admiration for WR A.J. Green dates all the way back to the NFL Combine in late February, when he expressed his strong desire to play alongside Cincinnati's seven-time Pro Bowl pass-catcher.

"With any rookie quarterback, the more help you can get the better," the then-presumptive No. 1 overall pick told a swarm of media. "A.J. has been one of the best players at his position for a very long time. If I am lucky enough to get drafted No. 1 overall, I would like to have him on the roster."

With both of those wishes now a reality, Burrow takes the field this season with a luxury few of the previous 24 quarterbacks selected No.1 overall had at their disposal. If Burrow and Green indeed line up as starters in Game 1, it will mark:

- The third time in NFL history a rookie QB who was selected No. 1 overall will make his first career start alongside a player with as many career receptions (602) as Green (QB Cam Newton and WR Steve Smith [620 catches] in 2011, and QB Kyler Murray and WR Larry Fitzgerald [1303 catches] in '19).
- The second time in NFL history a rookie QB who was selected No. 1 overall will make his first career start alongside a player with as many career receiving yards (8907) as Green (Murray and Fitzgerald [16,279 receiving yards] in 2019).
- The second time in NFL history a rookie QB who was selected No. 1 overall will make his first career start alongside a player with as many career TD catches (63) as Green (Murray and Fitzgerald [116 receiving TDs] in 2019).

Burrow + Green + Ross = another first: Assuming A.J. Green and John Ross both play in Joe Burrow's debut as a starter on Sunday, it will mark the first time in the common draft era (since 1967) that two WRs who were top-10 draft picks appear (as a starter or reserve) in the starting debut of a rookie QB who was selected No. 1 overall. Burrow, of course, was the No. 1 overall pick in the 2020 draft, while Green was the fourth pick in '11 and Ross went ninth in '17.

It should be noted that in QB Kyler Murray's debut in 2019, Arizona had two former top-10 picks on it's roster in WRs Larry Fitzgerald and Michael Crabtree, however Crabtree was inactive for the game.

What Burrow's teammates are saying: Joe Burrow's reputation preceded him when he was drafted by the Bengals in April, and he's been the hottest topic in Cincinnati since. Here's a sampling of what Bengals players have told the media about their new signal caller.

DE Sam Hubbard, a close friend of Burrow's since they played together at Ohio State from 2015-17: "One of the most impressive things about him is that he hasn't changed at all. He's got the same mentality he had as a third-string backup at Ohio State as a freshman, when he was still fighting every day to get on the field and make his name known. He takes that mentality and level-headedness of where he's been to where he's at now."

S Jessie Bates: "You can just feel his presence in the room. He's got that swagger about him. He's a young kid still, and he has a lot to prove ... And he's been moving me around in the middle of the field (in practice) a little bit more than a lot of quarterbacks that are experienced in this league."

WR Auden Tate: "Just his natural swagger. How he walks around, how he approaches the huddle. He doesn't come in to the huddle like a rookie, he comes in almost like a vet who's he's been there before. It's just that calmness that he has — everybody can feel it, so it makes everybody else calmer."

LB Josh Byner, who intercepted a pass from Burrow early in training camp, prompting Burrow to approach Byner after practice to ask about the coverage on the play: "Maybe I've had a few vets do that here and there, but definitely not a rookie quarterback. You can tell he's hungry and wants to get better, and that's what I like about him. Everybody knows that, especially on offense. They're gravitating toward him."

WR A.J. Green: "He's going to be great for the next 15 years. With him, it's just getting that rhythm. We're always talking, even before I got hurt (in training camp), about 'I need to put the ball there,' or, 'How do you like this ball? How do you like this route?' So it's always constant communication. Joe is going to be a great one."

Bengals tough when A.J. suits up: Bengals WR A.J. Green of course gets plenty of attention for his statistical accomplishments, which place him among the top receivers in Bengals history. But let the record show that Green isn't just a stat-sheet stuffer. When No. 18 is in the lineup, the Bengals are tough to beat.

Here's a closer look at Green's impact on Cincinnati's win column when he's on the field.

WHEN GREEN ...	BENGALS' RECORD	PCT.

Plays alongside WR Tyler Boyd and HB Joe Mixon.....	10-6-0	.625

A.J. among best ever in per-game production: Despite his impressive resume, Bengals WR A.J. Green has perhaps fallen off the radar of some observers, after missing 20 consecutive games due to injury between late-2018 and the end of '19. But Green's return to the field during training camp has helped jog the collective memory, and served as a reminder that his per-game receiving production has been among the best in NFL history.

Here's a look at the top players in NFL history, in terms of average receiving yardage per game played (minimum 100 games).

NAME	GAMES PLAYED	YDS.	AVG.
Julio Jones.....	126	12,125	96.2
Calvin Johnson	135	11,619	86.1

A.J. finds paydirt: Bengals WR A.J. Green has 63 career receiving TDs, which since his rookie year of 2011 ranks as the sixth-most of any NFL player, and the third-most among active players. Green and former Bengals WR Carl Pickens are tied for second in team history in TD catches, behind WR Chad Johnson (66). It should be noted that Green has posted those lofty totals despite missing 33 career regular-season games due to injury, including 23 between mid-2018 and the end of '19.

Here's a look at the NFL's leaders in receiving TDs since 2011.

Green and some gold jackets: Bengals 10th-year WR A.J. Green has 10 career games of at least 150 receiving yards and one TD, making him one of only 10 receivers to ever reach as many games through their first 10 NFL seasons. It should also be noted that Green has not yet started his 10th season, and his numbers come despite missing 33 regular-season games to injury throughout his career, including 23 between mid-2018 and the end of '19.

Here's a look at the list of players with 10 or more games with 150-plus receiving yards and a TD through their first 10 NFL seasons.

Boyd looking for his third thousand: Bengals WR Tyler Boyd this season looks to become just the fourth Cincinnati pass-catcher to record three consecutive 1000-yard seasons. He would join WRs Chad Johnson (six consecutive; 2002-07), A.J. Green (five; '11-15) and Carl Pickens (three; 1994-96).

Boyd topped the 1000-yard mark in both 2018 and '19, despite his running mate, Green, playing just nine of 32 possible games over that stretch. Last season, he finished with a career-high and team-best 1046 receiving yards (on 90 catches), which slightly bested his '18 total of 1028 yards (on 76 catches)

Boyd currently stands as one of nine Bengals ever to reach 1000 receiving yards in a season, and one of six to hit the mark more than once. Johnson's seven 1000-yard seasons stand as the most in team history, followed by Green (six), Pickens (four), WR Cris Collinsworth (four) and WR T.J. Houshmandzadeh (two). WRs Eddie Brown, Tim McGee and Darnay Scott each had one 1000-yard season.

Mixon also seeking this third thousand: Bengals HB Joe Mixon this season looks to become just the fourth player in team history to record three consecutive 1000-yard rushing seasons. He would join Corey Dillon (six consecutive; 1997-2002), Rudi Johnson (three; '04-06) and Cedric Benson (three; '09-11).

Mixon, who owns two of the 22 1000-yard rushing seasons in team history, hit the mark in both 2018 and '19. It was the 12th instance, and the first since Benson in 2010-11, of a Bengal rushing for 1000 yards in back-to-back seasons.

Last year, he notched 1137 yards despite a slow start to the season. His 817 yards over the final eight games were second-most in the NFL over that span, and he ended the season with at least 130 rushing yards in three of his final four games. In 2018, he became the first Bengal ever to lead the AFC in rushing yards (1168), and did so despite missing two games due to a knee injury.

Mixon currently stands as one of just five Bengals ever to rush for 1000 yards in multiple seasons — Dillon (six times), Johnson (three), Benson (three) and James Brooks.

On Sept. 2, Mixon signed a contract extension that will keep in him Cincinnati through 2024.

Mixon and Boyd chasing Chad and Rudi: Bengals HB Joe Mixon and WR Tyler Boyd this season look to become just the second duo in team history to record 1000 rushing yards and 1000 receiving yards together in three consecutive seasons. They would join WR Chad Johnson and HB Rudi Johnson, who achieved the feat from 2004-06.

Chad and Rudi Johnson also are the only other duo to hit their respective 1000-yard marks in back-to-back seasons, a feat Mixon and Boyd did last year.

The Bengals have had a 1000-yard rusher and receiver in the same season 15 times in team history, meaning Boyd and Mixon currently own two of those instances.

Gio, Mixon secure the rock: Bengals HBs Giovani Bernard and Joe Mixon are known mostly for their versatility as Cincinnati's one-two punch out of the backfield. But as the numbers show, they're also among the NFL's best at securing the football. Bernard and Mixon have combined for just two fumbles on 1490 career rushing attempts, and they also own the two longest active streaks in the NFL for rushing attempts without a fumble.

Here's a look at the NFL's longest active streaks of rushing attempts without a fumble.

NAME	TEAM	RUSH ATT. WITHOUT A FUMBLE
Giovani Bernard	Cincinnati	752
Joe Mixon	Cincinnati	524
Lataavius Murray	Minnesota/New Orleans	501
Saquon Barkley	N.Y. Giants	478
Phillip Lindsay	Denver	416

Bernard's streak dates back to Game 5 of his rookie season in 2013 (Oct. 6 vs. New England). That marked the only fumble of his career on a rushing play, with his other five all coming on passing plays.

Mixon's streak dates back to his own rookie year, with his last fumble on a rushing play coming in the 2017 season finale at Baltimore. That also marked the only fumble of his career on a rushing attempt, with the other two (both in 2017) coming on passing plays.

Those streaks also rank among the best in Bengals history. The Elias Sports Bureau reports that over the last 30 years, Bernard's and Mixon's active streaks easily outpace any other fumble-free streak by a Cincinnati rusher. (Elias' records do not go back far enough to confirm this throughout the team's full history.)

Here's a look at the longest streaks of rushing attempts by a Bengal without a fumble since 1990.

PLAYER	RUSH ATT. WITHOUT A FUMBLE	SEASONS SPANNED
Giovani Bernard	752	2013-present
Joe Mixon	524	2017-present
Harold Green	298	1991-93
Jeremy Hill	282	2015-17
Cedric Benson	260	2010-11

Gio closes in on J.B.: Already considered one of the top receiving running backs in team history, HB Giovani Bernard is poised to further secure that status this season by surpassing a Bengals legend. With 295 career receptions, Bernard stands just two shy of former Bengal RB James Brooks (297) for most catches by a Bengals running back. Brooks also holds the Bengals' record for receiving yards by a running back (3012), however Bernard's 2512 currently stands 500 shy of that mark.

Brooks also played eight seasons (1984-91) with the Bengals, and this season is also Bernard's eighth with the team.

15 carries for Gio does the trick: Over his now seven seasons in Cincinnati, Giovani Bernard has carved out a spot among the top dual-threat running backs in team history.

But when examining Bernard's workload specifically as a rusher throughout his career, a significant trend becomes apparent — the Bengals are 10-1-1 in games in which Bernard has at least 15 rushing attempts. Bernard, though, has topped 15 carries in just one game since the start of 2018.

In the 12 games in which Bernard has reached 15 carries, he has averaged 78.4 yards, scored seven rushing TDs and topped 100 yards three times.

Bengals overhaul defense: After the 2019 season ended, one of the primary focal points of Cincinnati's offseason ahead figured to be improving upon the team's 29th-ranked defense. The Bengals did just that, welcoming a parade of newcomers in free agency in March, and then following that with a draft that invested four of the team's seven picks on defenders.

The result is a defense that looks markedly different from 2019. Gone are five of last year's opening day starters, along with one additional spot that also figures to change hands. New additions to the starting lineup are expected to include D.J. Reader at NT, Josh Bynes and Germaine Pratt at LB, Mackensie Alexander and CB Darius Phillips at two of the CB spots, and Vonn Bell at S. Pratt and Phillips were with the Bengals last year, while the rest joined the team in March as unrestricted free agents.

Also figuring into the defensive rotation this season will be rookie LBs Logan Wilson, Akeem Davis-Gaither and Markus Bailey, along with unrestricted free agent CB LeShaun Sims.

One of the headliners of Cincinnati's free agency haul was CB Trae Waynes, who was expected to be a starter before suffering a pectoral injury on Aug. 9. Waynes was placed on Reserve/Injured on Sept. 9, and is eligible to return later in the season.

Dunlap, Geno have Edwards in their sights: With 81.5 career sacks, Bengals DE Carlos Dunlap currently stands just two sacks shy of Cincinnati's all-time leader, DE Eddie Edwards (83.5 sacks). In third place and not far behind is DT Geno Atkins, who currently stands at 75.5 career sacks.

Dunlap, a two-time Pro Bowler (2015 and '16) who turned 31 in January, has averaged 8.2 sacks over his first 10 NFL seasons, while Edwards averaged just under seven over 12 seasons.

Atkins, who missed nearly half of the 2013 season with a torn ACL, has more than double the number of sacks of the next-closest interior defensive lineman in Bengals history (Tim Krumrie, 34.5). Atkins has finished with at least a share of the NFL lead for sacks by an interior lineman five times in his 10 NFL seasons (see "Geno aims for another sack crown").

NOTE: The NFL has counted sacks as official statistics since 1982. However, the Bengals have sack statistics compiled since 1976 and recognize those sacks recorded from '76-81 in its records. Thus, please note that, because the NFL has sacks statistics for all teams only since 1982, the Bengals' sack statistics for players whose careers included seasons prior to '82 will not be included in league information.

Dunlap, Atkins form NFL's top sack duo: The Bengals boast perhaps the league's most accomplished pass-rushing duo in DE Carlos Dunlap (81.5 career sacks) and DT Geno Atkins (75.5). Their combined 157 sacks are tied for the most league-wide of any current teammates.

Here's a look at current NFL teammates with the most sacks.

SACKS	PLAYERS	TEAM
157.0	Geno Atkins/Carlos Dunlap	Cincinnati
157.0	Jurrell Casey/Von Miller	Denver
146.0	Whitney Mercilus/JJ Watt	Houston
142.0	Khalil Mack/Robert Quinn	Chicago
138.0	Jason Pierre-Paul/Ndamukong Suh	Tampa Bay

Dunlap and Atkins by down: For more than a decade, Bengals DE Carlos Dunlap (81.5 career sacks) and DT Geno Atkins (75.5) have formed one of the NFL's top pass-rushing duos. But a closer look at their production shows that both are at their best when the Bengals need them most.

Dunlap has recorded at least a half sack on 91 different plays throughout his career, while Atkins has done the same on 85 plays. Here's a breakdown of when those plays have occurred:

DOWN	DUNLAP	ATKINS
First down	18	19
Second down	31	20
Third down	42	44
Fourth down	0	2
TOTAL	91	85

Geno on HOF pace: Bengals DT Geno Atkins, who is playing his 11th NFL season in 2020, currently stands at 75.5 career sacks, third in team history and the most ever by a Bengals interior defensive lineman.

But a closer look reveals that Atkins is on a Hall-of-Fame pace. When compared to defensive tackles in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Atkins compares quite favorably at this point in his career.

Here's a look at the sack totals of notable Hall-of-Fame DTs through their 11th seasons, as well as where they stood at the end of their careers. It should be noted that Atkins missed nearly half of the 2013 season, due to a torn ACL.

(NOTE: This list includes only DTs whose careers started after 1982, when the NFL began counting sacks as official statistics):

NAME	YEARS ACTIVE	THRU 11 SEASONS	CAREER SACKS
John Randle	1990-2003	114.0	137.5
Warren Sapp	1995-2007	84.5	96.5
Geno Atkins	2010-present	75.5*	75.5
Cortez Kennedy	1990-2000	58.0	58.0

*NOTE: Atkins has not yet started his 11th season

Geno aims for another sack crown: Bengals DT Geno Atkins in 2020 is looking to reclaim the top spot for most sacks by an NFL interior defensive lineman, a crown that for all intents and purposes had been his for much of his career. Atkins, though, has not claimed that title since 2017.

In his 10 NFL seasons (2010-19), Atkins has five times finished in at least a tie for most sacks by an NFL interior lineman. He claimed it outright in 2012 (12.5 sacks), '16 (nine) and '17 (nine), while sharing it in '11 (7.5) and '15 (11).

Atkins has been selected to the Pro Bowl eight times in his 10 Bengals seasons. Those eight selections are the most by a Bengals defensive player in team history, ahead of CB Lemar Parrish (six), and second-most overall behind Hall of Fame OT Anthony Munoz. Atkins currently stands at 75.5 career sacks, the most by a Bengals interior lineman and third overall.

Dunlap's PD frenzy: Over his now 11 NFL seasons, Bengals DE Carlos Dunlap has earned a reputation as one of the league's best defensive linemen at batting down passes at the line of scrimmage. Dunlap furthered that reputation in 2019, finishing the season with eight passes defended despite missing two games due to a knee injury.

In 2016, Dunlap had a team-high 15 PDs, which also led all other NFL defensive linemen. It marked the first time since Cincinnati began recording defensive stats in 1976 that a Bengals defensive lineman had ever led the team in PDs.

To paint a clearer picture of just how effective Dunlap has been at batting passes, here's a list of non-defensive backs in the NFL with the most passes defended since the start of the 2016 season.

PLAYER	POS	TEAM	PDs SINCE 2016
Carlos Dunlap	DE	Cincinnati	38
Alec Ogletree	LB	St. Louis/L.A. Rams/N.Y. Giants	35
Eric Kendricks	LB	Minnesota	34
Deion Jones	LB	Atlanta	32
Luke Kuechly	LB	Carolina	30

Dunlap's, Atkins' dominance = team success: Bengals DE Carlos Dunlap and DT Geno Atkins entered the NFL together in 2010 as draft picks of the Bengals, and in the now 11 seasons since they've established themselves among the top pass-rushing duos in the league. Most importantly though, the record shows that when Dunlap and Atkins are at their most dominant, it usually spells success for Cincinnati.

The Bengals are 12-6 (.667) when Dunlap records more than one sack, and 8-6 (.571) when Atkins records more than one sack. There have been two instances in which both have had more than one sack in the same game (Bengals are 1-1 in those contests), which means Cincinnati is a combined 19-11 (.633) when getting more than one sack from either player.

The Bengals are 9-1 since the beginning of the 2015 season when Dunlap records more than one sack, with the only outlier coming in a 20-17 overtime loss at Denver in 2015. Dunlap had a career-best three sacks in that Denver game and finished 2015 with a career-high 13.5, second-most in Bengals history. Dunlap had two multi-sack games in 2019, and they both came in wins — Game 12 vs. the N.Y. Jets, when he tied his career-high from the 2015 Denver game with three sacks, and Game 16 vs. Cleveland, when he had 2.5 sacks.

Since 2015, the Bengals are 6-4 when Atkins has more than one sack. The Bengals, though, were 0-2 in 2019 when Atkins had more than one sack — two sacks in Game 7 vs. Jacksonville, and 1.5 sacks in Game 10 at Oakland.

Dunlap and Atkins are under contract with the Bengals through the 2021 and '22 seasons, respectively. Dunlap (81.5 sacks) currently stands second on the Bengals' all-time sack list, and Atkins (75.5) is third. The Bengals' leader in career sacks is DE Eddie Edwards, with 83.5.

Hubbard leads 2018 rookies in sacks: DE Sam Hubbard, a third-round pick (77th overall) of the Bengals in 2018, has 14.5 career sacks, the most of anyone from the '18 rookie class (draft picks and college free agents).

Players' listed positions vary from media outlet to media outlet (e.g. whether a player is classified as a LB or DE), but according to NFL.com's draft record, Hubbard was the 13th defensive lineman selected in 2018 — five DEs and seven DTs came off the board before him. According to NFL.com, there were a total of 40 defensive linemen (20 DEs, 20 DTs) selected in the 2018 draft, along with 32 linebackers on one player classified as "EDGE." There were also, of course, numerous undrafted rookies in 2018.

Here's a look at the career sack leaders from the rookie class of 2018.

PLAYER	POSITION	TEAM	PICK (ROUND)	SACKS
Sam Hubbard	DE	Cin.	No. 77 (3rd)	14.5
Harold Landry	EDGE	Tenn.	No. 41 (2nd)	13.5
Bradley Chubb	DE	Den.	No. 5 (1st)	13
Darius Leonard	OLB	Ind.	No. 36 (2nd)	12
Marcus Davenport	DE	N.O.	No. 14 (1st)	10.5

The Huber roundup: Bengals P Kevin Huber, a 2009 Bengals fifth-round pick who this year is playing his 12th season in stripes, has long been considered the top punter in team history. Last year, he cemented that legacy by taking over the top spot in the few remaining career punting categories he did not already own.

Huber now stands first in team history in the following categories:

- Punts (843)
- Punting yards (38,012)
- Gross average (45.09)
- Net average (40.00)
- Inside-20 punts (296)

Huber has also taken over many of the Bengals' single-season and single-game records. Among them are:

- He holds the top four Bengals season averages in gross yardage and the top five Bengals season averages in net. His gross record is 46.84 (set in 2014), and his net record is 42.11 (set in '19).
- He shares the team record for longest punt (75 yards) with Kyle Larson.
- His 33 inside-20 punts in 2012 is a single-season franchise record.
- His six inside-20 punts on Sept. 14, 2017 vs. Houston are tied with Lee Johnson (Nov. 2, 1997) for the most in a game in Bengals history.

Huber among NFL's best at pinning 'em: As the evidence shows, no Bengals punter has ever been nearly as successful as Kevin Huber at pinning opponents inside the 20-yard line. The 2009 fifth-round draft choice enters '20 with 296 career inside-20 punts, a margin of more than 100 over the next-best in team history (Lee Johnson, 186).

But the numbers also show that Huber is among the best in the NFL at pinning opponents deep.

Here's a look at the active NFL punters with the most career inside-20 punts.

PUNTER	2020 TEAM	NFL EXP.	CAREER INSIDE-20s
Andy Lee	Arizona	17	425
Sam Koch	Baltimore	15	405
Brett Kern	Tennessee	13	355
Kevin Huber	Cincinnati.....	12	296

25 points does the trick: Since 2011, the Bengals own a 47-2-2 record (.941) when scoring 25 or more points. Only Miami has a better winning percentage, at .973 (36-1-0), when topping the 25-point mark over that span.

The Bengals are 1-1 under head coach Zac Taylor when reaching the 25-point plateau, with the lone loss coming in a 38-35 overtime loss to Miami last season.

Here are the top five teams in the NFL since 2011, in terms of winning percentage, when hitting the 25-point plateau.

TEAM	WINS	LOSSES	TIES	WINNING PCT.
Miami Dolphins	36	1	0	.973
Cincinnati Bengals	47	2	2	.941
New England Patriots	87	8	0	.916
Denver Broncos	53	6	0	.898
Philadelphia Eagles	54	7	0	.885
N.Y. Jets	35	5	0	.875

These cats can fly: Since 2016, the NFL's Next Gen Stats service has tracked a variety of in-game measurements using GPS trackers and other technology. One of those measurements is the speed — in miles per hour — that ball carriers reach during a given play.

Here are the fastest Bengal ball-carriers since 2016, according to NFL's Next Gen Stats:

PLAYER	SPEED (MPH)	DATE/OPPONENT	PLAY
S Brandon Wilson	22.03	10-13-19 at Balt.	92-yard KOR (TD)
WR Alex Erickson	21.52	12-16-18 vs. Oak.	77-yard KOR
CB William Jackson III	21.52	9-24-17 at G.B.	75-yard INT return (TD)
CB William Jackson III	21.33	9-15-19 vs. S.F.	19-yard INT return

Bengals draft picks stick in NFL: A familiar trend has emerged this season regarding which teams have the most keen eye for talent in the draft, and the Bengals again are toward the top of the list. As of Monday, Sept. 7, there were 51 players on NFL rosters who entered the NFL as draft picks of the Bengals, third-most in the NFL and just four behind Baltimore (55) for the top spot.

Cincinnati has been among the top five teams in this category every week since 2018, and has spent long stretches in the top spot. At times, the Bengals have even held a double-digit lead over the second-place team.

Of the 53 players on Cincinnati's active roster, 36 entered the NFL with the Bengals — 33 as draft picks, and three as college free agents.

Of those 33 draft picks, six were first-round picks, seven were second-rounders, four were third-rounders, five were fourth-rounders, five were fifth-rounders, four were sixth-rounders and two were seventh-rounders.

Here's a look at the teams with the most draft picks on an active NFL roster, as of Monday, Sept. 7.

Bengals' picks stay in stripes: A useful measurement of talent evaluation in the draft is the ability of a team's draft picks to make their own active roster. The Bengals have proven to be among the best in the NFL in that category.

As of Monday, Sept. 7, there were 33 players on Cincinnati's roster that entered the NFL as Bengals draft picks. Only one other team had more of its own draft picks on its active roster.

Here's a look at the NFL teams with the most of their own draft picks on their active roster, as of Monday, Sept. 7.

Bullock approaching Bengals accuracy record: K Randy Bullock this season is in position to move into the top spot for Bengals career FG percentage, and could conceivably take over the crown within the first few weeks.

Currently, Bullock's 86.25 percent (69 made, 80 attempted) stands just .51 shy of all-time leader Shayne Graham (86.76; 177 made, 204 attempted). That means Bullock, who enters 2020 with 11 straight made FGs, could move past Graham by making his next four FG attempts.

Special teams soar under Simmons: Over the now 18-year tenure of Darrin Simmons, the Bengals have consistently boasted one of the top special teams units in the NFL. Simmons this year has added the title of assistant head coach to his usual role as special teams coordinator, a nod to a successful run that has seen 17 different players from his tenure appear in the team's record book.

Here's an overview of Simmons' players' dominance over the Bengals' record book. For more detailed record information, see the Bengals records section on page 168 in the 2020 media guide.

The three most accurate FG kickers (by career percentage) in team history — Shayne Graham, Randy Bullock, and Mike Nugent — were all coached by Simmons for their entire Bengals careers. Simmons has also been at the helm for each of the six most accurate single seasons by Bengals kickers.

The five longest consecutive FG streaks in team history have all come under Simmons' watch, as have three of the five longest PAT streaks.

Simmons, who punted at the University of Kansas, has had particular success coaching his former position. Current P Kevin Huber holds the top spot in every Bengals career punting category, along with the top five single seasons for both net average and inside-20s, and the top four seasons for gross average. Former P Kyle Larson, who spent his entire Bengals term (2004-08) under Simmons, ranks within the top four in every career punting category, and shares with Huber the record for longest punt in team history (75 yards).

Simmons has coached three of the Bengals' top four leaders in career punt return average — Adam Jones, Quan Cosby and Peter Warrick.

He's coached four of the team's top six leaders in career kickoff return average — Jones, Alex Erickson, Bernard Scott, Glenn Holt. Five of the six best single seasons by a kickoff returner (based on yards per kickoff return) have come under Simmons. That includes Brandon Wilson's NFL-best 31.9-yard kickoff return average (second in team history) in 2019.

Although the category is not kept as an official team record, it should be noted that LS Clark Harris has executed more than 1500 deep snaps without a single unplayable delivery since joining the Bengals in mid-2009.

Simmons has coached four players who have made the Pro Bowl as special teamers — Huber, Jones, Harris and RB Cedric Peerman

Bengals address social change: On June 6, the Bengals announced that the organization would be pledging $250,000 to community initiatives that would be selected by players. The commitment came against the backdrop of NFL players and coaches speaking out during nationwide protests.

Then, on Aug. 29, Bengals players, coaches and ownership marched to the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center, located a just few blocks from Paul Brown Stadium, to tour the museum and deliver a public statement. That speech, which took place just outside the Freedom Center, was then shared on the team's website and social media platforms.

Bengals players chose fifth-year veteran C Trey Hopkins, who wrote the full statement, and rookie QB Joe Burrow to deliver the address. Here is the transcript:

Hopkins: As this country continues to see instances of racial discrimination and injustices, it is time for us to act. Together, as a unified front, we must identify, address and ultimately end those practices and policies that would deny liberty and justice to all, regardless of race, religion, or creed. It is time for us all to take a stand.

Burrow: It is each of our responsibility to effect change in our communities, not only for us but for those yet to come. We cannot turn a blind eye to the racism still experienced in this country. This is not an issue of politics, but a fight for equality and life. If this nation is to ever reach the goals that it has promised its citizens, we must be catalysts for change.

Two Bengals hail from Queen City: The Bengals this year have two players — DE Sam Hubbard and P Kevin Huber — who grew up in Greater Cincinnati.

Hubbard, a Moeller High School alum and former Ohio State standout, is in his third Bengals season, after joining the team as a third-round draft pick (77th overall) in 2018. He is in his second season as a full-time starting DE, and last year finished with 8.5 sacks (second on the team)..

"It's insane," Hubbard said after being drafted. "Seeing that 513 area code pop up on my phone on draft day was just incredible. To get an opportunity to represent Cincinnati for the pro team in this city is a dream come true. I watched every game the Bengals played. I've just always been a big fan."

Huber, an Anderson Township native and alum of McNicholas High School and the University of Cincinnati, was a fifth-round draft choice of the Bengals in 2009. He is the longest-tenured player on the roster and has played in all but two games throughout his career in Cincinnati. He currently stands as the Bengals' career leader in both gross (45.09) and net (40.00) punting average.

Huber and his wife, Mindi, have been active in the local community throughout his Bengals career. The couple started their own charity, The Foundation for Underserved Rescues, which "provides resources and support to underserved Cincinnati-area animal rescues."

It should also be noted that Bengals G Michael Jordan was born in Fairfield, Ohio, just outside of Cincinnati, but his family moved and he attended high school in Michigan.

Bengal bites: In 2019, the NFL's Next Gen Stats service, which tracks players' speed by using GPS, clocked S Brandon Wilson's kickoff return for a TD in Game 6 at Baltimore at 22.03 MPH, the third-fastest in the league in 2019, and fastest by a Bengal since NGS' launch in '16 ... The longest-tenured player on the roster is P Kevin Huber, a 12th-year pro who joined the Bengals as a fifth-round pick in 2009 ... The oldest Bengal on the roster is LS Clark Harris, who is 36 (born July 10, 1984) ... The youngest Bengal is WR Tee Higgins, who is 21 (born Jan. 18, 1999) ... The lightest Bengal on the roster is CB Torry McTyer, who is 188 pounds ... The heaviest Bengal is DT D.J. Reader, who is 347 pounds ... There is a four-way tie for the tallest Bengal — DE Carlos Dunlap, OT/G Fred Johnson, TE C.J. Uzomah and G Michael Jordan are all 6-6 ... The shortest Bengal is Trayveon Williams, who is 5-8.

POSITION BY POSITION

Quarterbacks: Taking the reins of the offense this season is rookie Joe Burrow, the No. 1 overall pick in April's draft and a native of Athens, Ohio (roughly 2.5 hours from Cincinnati). Last season at LSU, Burrow won the Heisman Trophy by the largest margin in the 85-year history of the award, and led his team to a perfect 15-0 record and National Championship. He also set single-season NCAA FBS records for TD passes (60) and TDs responsible for (65), and SEC records for completions (402), passing yards (5671) and completion percentage (76.3 [402-527]). Backing up Burrow will be second-year pro Ryan Finley, a fourth-round pick of the Bengals in 2019. As a rookie last season, Finley took over as starter for three games and completed 41 of 87 passes for 474 yards, with two TDs and two INTs.

Running backs: Fourth-year pro Joe Mixon again leads the Bengals running backs, and this season he looks to become just the fourth Bengal ever to record three consecutive 1000-yard rushing seasons. The 6-1, 220-pound Mixon, who on Sept. 2 signed a contract extension that keeps him in Cincinnati through 2024, has developed into one of the NFL's best backs, and currently has nine career 100-yard rushing performances and 16 games of at least 100 yards from scrimmage. Mixon finished last season on a tear, ranking second in the NFL in rushing yards (817) over the final eight games of the season, including 100-yard rushing performances in three of his final four games. In 2018, his first full season as Cincinnati's starting running back, Mixon became the first Bengal RB ever to lead the AFC in rushing yards (1168) in a season, despite missing two games. Listed as Mixon's backup is eighth-year pro Giovani Bernard, who has become one of the top receiving threats out of the backfield in Bengals history. With 295 career receptions, Bernard stands just two shy of Bengals legend James Brooks (297) for most catches by a Cincinnati running back. Bernard's 2512 receiving yards are also 500 shy of Brooks (3012) for most all-time. Bernard also holds the team record for receiving yards in a game by a RB (128, in 2015 at Arizona), and his 89-yard TD run vs. Carolina in '14 is the second-longest rush in team history. Also adding depth in the running back room is fourth-year pro Samaje Perine, a powerful 5-11, 240-pound runner who originally was a 2017 fourth-round pick of Washington. Perine last season was waived by the Redskins at final cuts, then claimed by Cincinnati, where he bounced between the active roster and practice squad. Perine had no offensive statistics in 2019, but did record four special teams tackles. Perine and Mixon were college teammates at Oklahoma. Trayveon Williams, a second-year pro and 2019 sixth-round pick of the Bengals, figures to again add depth to the running back room. The 5-8, 208-pound Williams had no statistics as a rookie, and was used primarily on special teams.

Wide receivers: After playing only nine of 32 possible games from 2018-19, star wideout A.J. Green has returned to the field and provides a boost to Cincinnati's young offense. Green missed seven games in 2018 due to a toe injury (right foot), then returned healthy for '19 training camp before suffering a left ankle injury in the first practice of camp that ended up costing him the entire season. Green currently stands second in team history in career receptions (602) and receiving yards (8907), and is tied for second in receiving TDs (63); Chad Johnson, who played 10 Bengals seasons, is first in all three categories — 751 catches, 10,783 yards and 66 receiving TDs. Green's 33 career 100-yard receiving games are also the most in Bengals history, and his 10 career games with at least 150 yards and one TD are the most among active players entering 2020. Additionally, Green also stands as the only NFL WR since the 1970 merger to start his career with seven consecutive Pro Bowl nominations, although that streak ended in 2018 after his toe injury. Fifth-year pro Tyler Boyd has developed into one of Cincinnati's top offensive weapons, and this year he looks to become just the fourth Bengal ever to record three straight 1000-yard receiving seasons (more in "Boyd looking for his third thousand"). Boyd served a majority of 2018-19 as the Bengals' No. 1 WR, due to Green's missed time. Last season, Boyd notched career-highs in catches (90) and receiving yards (1046), while adding five TDs. Boyd has caught at least one pass in all 56 of his games played, and currently has seven career 100-yard receiving performances and three games with at least 10 catches. Joining Boyd and Green is speedster John Ross III, Cincinnati's first-round pick (ninth overall) in 2017. Ross battled injuries in each of his first three seasons, but when healthy he proved to be a big-play threat with a nose for the end zone. Last season, Ross led the NFL in receiving yards through three weeks, then suffered a sternoclavicular injury that landed him on Reserve/Injured; he returned for the final four games and ended the season with 28 catches, 506 yards and three TDs. In 2018, Ross tied for the team lead with seven TD catches, despite battling a groin injury much of the season that kept him out of three games. Widely considered one of the fastest players in the NFL, Ross ran an NFL Combine-record 4.22-second 40-yard dash in 2017. Cincinnati this year invested a second-round pick in Tee Higgins of Clemson, a big (6-4, 216) and physical pass-catcher with unique playmaking ability and a nose for the end zone. Higgins played three seasons (2017-19) at Clemson, and finished his career with 27 receiving TDs, tied with DeAndre Hopkins and Sammy Watkins for the most in school history. Higgins, the youngest player on Cincinnati's roster (will turn 22 in January 2021), is known for his outstanding athleticism and was an accomplished prep basketball player (runner-up for Tennessee's Mr. Basketball as a junior). At a 6-5, 228 pounds, third-year pro Auden Tate brings a massive physical presence, wide catch radius and knack for the acrobatic catch. Tate, a Bengals seventh-round pick in 2018, saw his first extended offensive action last season and recorded career highs in catches (40) and receiving yards (575), despite missing four games due to injury. Also adding depth in the receiver room is Alex Erickson, who has played in all 64 possible games since joining the Bengals in 2016 as a college free agent. Erickson has mostly been a rotational receiver throughout his career, but last year he stepped into more of a regular role and logged career highs in both catches (43) and receiving yards (529). Erickson has also been a key contributor on both punt returns and kickoff returns throughout his career. Also in the mix is fifth-year pro Mike Thomas, who joined Cincinnati as an unrestricted free agent in March. Thomas spent his first four seasons with the L.A. Rams, where he was coached by then-Rams assistant Zac Taylor.

Tight ends: Sixth-year pro C.J. Uzomah leads Cincinnati's tight ends group this season, and brings a reliable and productive veteran presence to the offense. A fifth-round pick of the Bengals in 2015, Uzomah has drawn praise from coaches for his leadership, as well as his development as both a receiver and blocker over the last few years. Sharing time with Uzomah will be 2019 second-round pick Drew Sample, who returned healthy this season after a right ankle injury ended his rookie campaign after nine games. Bengals coaches praised Sample as the "best blocking tight end in the draft" coming out of college, and last year noted his mid-year ascension right before his injury. Fourth-year pro Cethan Carter, a special teams ace who contributes mainly as a blocker on offense, is also in the mix this season. Carter has only two career catches (one for a TD), but is considered among the most important special teams players on the roster. Last season, he tied for the team lead with seven special teams tackles.

Offensive line: One of the most significant additions to the Bengals' roster this year is LOT Jonah Williams, Cincinnati's first-round pick in 2019 who missed his entire rookie season due to a left shoulder injury suffered in OTAs. Williams, who started every possible game in his three seasons in college at Alabama, had surgery in June 2019 and was around the Bengals' facility every day last season to attend regular meetings. Coaches praised Williams at the start of training camp this year for transforming his body over the offseason, despite having no formal team workouts in Cincinnati. Next to Williams will be LG Michael Jordan, a second-year pro who underwent his own body transformation this offseason. Jordan, a fourth-round pick in 2019, was named the starting LG out of training camp as a rookie last year but relinquished the job after early season struggles due in part to a knee injury. He regained the job late in the season and showed significant improvement, helping HB Joe Mixon to 100-yard rushing performances in three of the final four games. C Trey Hopkins, a fifth-year pro and the longest-tenured Bengal on the offensive line, returns for his second straight season as Cincinnati's starting center. Hopkins, who has starting experience at all three interior OL positions, won the No. 1 C job in 2019 training camp and played so well that he earned a contract extension in December (through '22 season). At RG will be veteran Xavier Su'a-Filo, who joined Cincinnati as an unrestricted free agent in March after previous stints with Houston and Dallas. Su'a-Filo spent 2018-19 with Dallas and served as a top reserve at G, but was thrust into regular action in both seasons due to injuries. For the third straight season, Bobby Hart will line up as the Bengals' starter at ROT. Hart has started every game at ROT since joining the team prior to the 2018 season, and was a significant part of the blocking effort for HB Joe Mixon's back-to-back 1000-yard seasons in '18 and '19. A key reserve along the interior of the offensive line is G/C Billy Price, who has starting experience at all three interior OL positions. The Bengals' first-round pick in 2018, Price served as Cincinnati's No. 1 C as a rookie, despite battling injuries that held him out of six games. He moved to a reserve role in 2019, but ended up starting eight games (seven at LG, one at RG) due to injuries along the line. Another key reserve this season is Fred Johnson, who can play both OT and G. At a massive 6-6, 325 pounds, the physically imposing Johnson is considered a raw prospect with natural power and athletic ability. Johnson originally was a college free agent signee of the Steelers in 2019, then joined the Bengals on waivers midway through his rookie year and went on to see extensive playing time (one start) at LOT down the stretch. Also adding depth along the line is rookie OT/G Hakeem Adeniji, a sixth-round pick out of the University of Kansas. The Bengals took notice of Adeniji at the Senior Bowl, where he showcased his versatility for the North team (Cincinnati coached the South). Adeniji started all 48 possible games during his college career, seeing time at both RT and LT, but Bengals coaches say he also has the ability to play G. Also in the mix at G is Shaq Calhoun, a Bengals waiver acquisition (from Miami) after final cuts. Calhoun, a second-year pro out of Mississippi State, was a college free agent signee of the Dolphins in 2019. He made the Dolphins' roster out of training camp as a rookie, then start seven games late in year.

Defensive line: With 81.5 career sacks, 11th-year DE Carlos Dunlap is closing in on the Bengals' all-time sack record, held by DE Eddie Edwards (83.5). Dunlap has led the Bengals in sacks five times in his 10 previous seasons, including in 2019, when eight of his nine total sacks came over the final seven weeks of the season. Dunlap has 18 career games with more than one sack, and the Bengals are 12-6 in those contests, including 9-1 since the beginning of 2015. The 6-6, 280-pound Dunlap is also known for batting down passes at the line of scrimmage, and his 38 PDs since the start of 2016 are the most in the NFL among non-defensive backs. On Dunlap's heels in all-time sacks standings is DT Geno Atkins, whose 75.5 career sacks put him in third place. Atkins has more than double the number of sacks as the next-closest interior defensive lineman in team history, and his eight career Pro Bowl nominations are the most ever by a Bengals defensive player ahead of Lemar Parrish (six). Atkins has led the Bengals in sacks five times in his 10 seasons, and also has finished in at least a share of the NFL lead for sacks by an interior defensive lineman five times — he claimed it outright three times (2012, '16, '17), and shared it twice ('11 and '15). Atkins has 14 career games with more than one sack, and the Bengals are 8-6 in those contests. Cincinnati made perhaps its most significant free agency splash ever in March with the addition of fifth-year DT D.J. Reader, a massive interior lineman who spent his first four seasons with the Houston Texans. Known for his size (6-3, 327), motor and run-stuffing ability, Reader is also considered an impressive all-around athlete and was a first baseman and pitcher for Clemson's nationally ranked baseball team in 2013. Lining up at RDE is Cincinnati native (Archbishop Moeller High School) Sam Hubbard, who is in his second season as a full-time starter. A 2018 third-round pick of the Bengals, Hubbard's 14.5 career sacks are the most of anyone from the rookie class of 2018. Hubbard played safety in high school before switching to DE at Ohio State, and with the Bengals has also seen brief action at DT in nickel packages. Perhaps the best pure pass-rusher on Cincinnati's roster is fourth-year DE Carl Lawson. The 2017 fourth-round pick of the Bengals has struggled at times with injuries throughout his career, but when healthy he's proven to be a disruptive force. He currently stands at 14.5 career sacks, but coaches are quick to point to the frequency with which he gets into the backfield. Last season, he recorded a team-high 22 QB hits despite missing four games. After battling injuries early in 2019, he ended the season on a tear, with three of his five sacks and 14 of his 22 QB hits coming in the final four games. In August, Cincinnati signed DT Mike Daniels to boost depth on the interior of the defensive line. A ninth-year player, Daniels spent his first seven seasons with Green Bay before joining Detroit last year. Daniels was a Pro Bowler with the Packers in 2017, and at 6-0, 310 pounds is known for his power, nasty streak and pass-rushing ability. Cincinnati spent a fifth-round pick this year on Notre Dame DE Khalid Kareem, who figures to add depth on the d-line this season. A team captain in college and the son of a high school coach, Kareem is known for his length (34 3/8-inch arms, 84-inch wingspan), intelligence and effort. He played as a 3-4 DE for the Irish and was a two-year starter, notching 26 career tackles for losses, including 13 sacks. Adding more depth and versatility to the d-line is second-year pro Andrew Brown, a 2018 fifth-round pick out of the Bengals. After spending his rookie year developing on Cincinnati's practice squad, Brown has put together strong offseasons each of the last two years and earned roster spots out of training camp in both. Last year, he played in 14 games and recorded 14 tackles, seeing time mostly as a rotational player. Brown is listed on the roster at DE, but was drafted as a DT and can be used as an interior pass rusher. A high-effort player with natural talent, Brown won the prestigious Gatorade National Player of the Year Award as a high school senior in 2013. Cincinnati acquired 6-2, 305-pound DE Christian Covington via a trade with Denver (gave up LB Austin Calitro) on Sept. 4. Covington, a sixth-year player out of Rice University, will add depth along the defensive line. Covington originally was a 2015 sixth round pick of the Houston Texans, where he played alongside Bengals teammate Reader.

Linebacker: Cincinnati's young linebacker room is led by a veteran presence in ninth-year pro Josh Bynes, who signed with the Bengals in March as an unrestricted free agent. Bynes played last season with Baltimore, and previously spent time with Detroit and Arizona. Known for his leadership, intelligence and ability to stop the run, Bynes has been a part of four top-10 defenses and four top-10 rush defenses in his eight previous seasons. Listed as the other starter at LB is second-year pro Germaine Pratt, Cincinnati's third-round pick in 2019 who has shown rapid development. After having a limited defensive role the first half of his rookie season in 2019, Pratt earned a starting spot midway through the year and finished with 72 tackles (fifth on the team). Considered a green prospect coming out of N.C. State, Pratt spent his first two collegiate seasons at S before switching to LB, and in his only season as a starting LB led the Wolfpack in tackles and earned all-conference honors. Fourth-year pro Jordan Evans, a 2017 sixth-round pick out of Oklahoma, again adds depth and special teams value to the Bengals' linebacker room. Last year, Evans was used as a rotational player on defense (76 snaps, with six tackles and a PD), but was second on the team in special teams snaps and had six ST tackles. Cincinnati this season spent a third-round pick on Wyoming's Logan Wilson, a speedy (4.63-second 40-yard dash at the combine) and instinctive player known best for his outstanding college production. A high school WR and DB, Wilson switched to LB in college and went on to start all 52 possible games at LB over the next four years, racking up 17 double-digit tackle games, three 100-tackle seasons and 421 career tackles. Wilson, a three-time team captain (voted by teammates) in college, first caught the eye of Bengals coaches as a member of the North team at the 2020 Senior Bowl (though Cincinnati coached the South). Cincinnati's coaches did coach Appalachian State's Akeem Davis-Gaither on the South team at the Senior Bowl, and were impressed enough to spend a fourth-round pick on him three months later during the draft. Known for his speed, motor and instincts, Davis-Gaither topped 100 tackles in each of his final two college seasons and earned 2019 Sun Belt Defensive Player of the Year honors as a senior. Another rookie in the mix this season is seventh-round pick Markus Bailey. A Hilliard, Ohio (outside Columbus) native and Purdue grad, Bailey was considered one of the most productive defenders in the Big Ten when healthy, however serious knee injuries (left ACL as a freshman, right ACL as a senior) caused his draft stock to slide. Bailey fully recovered from last year's injury, and was a full participant from early in training camp this year. Considered strong against the run and pass, Bailey led the Boilermakers in tackles in two of his three healthy seasons, and also recorded 13.5 career sacks, 13 PDs and six INTs.

Defensive backs: Among the headliners of Cincinnati's free agency haul in March was S Vonn Bell, a fifth-year player out of Ohio State who spent his first four NFL seasons (2016-19) with the New Orleans Saints. Known for his tackling proficiency, Bell ranked within the top two on the team in both total tackles and solo tackles in each of his four seasons in New Orleans, and also helped the Saints to top-five run defenses in both 2018 and '19. Lining up next to Bell is S Jessie Bates, Cincinnati's second-round pick in 2018. Bates has topped 100 tackles in each of his first two seasons in Cincinnati, including his rookie season in 2018 when he became just the sixth Bengals rookie ever to lead the team in tackles. Bates has never missed a game (all starts) over his now three seasons, and in 2018 he was the team's first rookie defender in 20 years to start all 16 games (Takeo Spikes, 1998). Shifting to a new role this season is S Shawn Williams, a 2013 third-round pick and vocal veteran leader on the defense. Williams was the Bengals' No. 1 SS from 2016-19, but this year is expected to contribute in a variety of defensive roles. Williams led the team in tackles (112) in 2019, after leading the team in INTs (five) in 2018. Williams, who missed most of training camp this year due to a calf injury, has played in 35 consecutive games dating back to late 2017. Leading the Bengals' CBs is 2016 first-round pick William Jackson III, who is in his third season as a full-time starting corner. Jackson battled a shoulder injury throughout 2019, but he managed to play in 14 games and record 37 tackles, an INT and three PDs. He returned healthy in July and was a full participant in training camp from Day 1. Manning the other outside CB position this year is 2018 sixth-round pick Darius Phillips, who when healthy has turned heads with his playmaking ability and nose for the football. Last year, Phillips led the Bengals in INTs (four) and tied for third in PDs (seven), despite playing in just eight games (one start) and seeing action on 108 total defensive snaps all season. New addition Mackensie Alexander, an unrestricted free agent signee who spent his first four NFL seasons with the Minnesota Vikings, figures to play a significant role this year as Cincinnati's primary slot CB. Alexander helped the Vikings to top-five NFL ranks in both total defense and passing defense in three of his four seasons with the team. Considered a good blitzer, he also led all NFL CBs in sacks in 2018. Adding depth at CB this year is Tony Brown, a third-year pro out of the University of Alabama who spent his first two seasons with the Green Bay Packers. Brown played in 20 games (three starts) over his first two seasons, and also brings the speed of an All-American college track athlete, and a solid 6-0, 198-pound frame. Also adding depth at CB is unrestricted free agent signee LeShaun Sims, a fifth-year player who spent his first four NFL seasons with the Tennessee Titans. At 6-0, 203 pounds, Sims brings a tough, physical playing style, and is known as a willing tackler. In addition to providing depth on defense, Sims also figures to be a key figure on special teams. One of the fastest and most versatile players on Cincinnati's roster is S Brandon Wilson, a rotational DB on defense who is best known for his massive special teams impact. Last season, Wilson averaged an NFL-best 31.3 yards on kickoff returns, the second-best mark in Bengals history, while also recording six special teams tackles as a gunner on coverage units. Also in the mix at CB this season is Torry McTyer, a fourth-year pro out of UNLV. The Bengals signed McTyer off of Kansas City's practice squad in September 2019, and he went on to play in five games and record two tackles. McTyer was originally a 2017 college free agent signee of the Miami Dolphins, where his defensive backs coach was current Bengals defensive coordinator Lou Anarumo.

Special teams: The longest-tenured player on this year's roster is P Kevin Huber, a Cincinnati native (Archbishop McNicholas High School) and University of Cincinnati alum. Huber, a 2009 fifth-round pick of the Bengals, has played in all but two possible regular-season games over his now 12 seasons with the team. Huber stands as the Bengals' career leader in every significant punting category, including punts (843), punting yards (38,012), gross average (45.09), net average (40.0) and inside-20 punts (296). Huber also shares franchise record for longest punt (75 yards). Last season was among the most productive in Huber's career, with a career-high 42.11-yard net average and 30 inside-20s to just five touchbacks. Huber also has served as the holder on placekicks for his entire career. Randy Bullock has handled the Bengals' placekicking duties since midway through the 2016 season, when he joined Cincinnati on waivers from Pittsburgh. Bullock has converted 86.25 percent (69 made/80 attempts) of his FG attempts as a Bengal, good for the second-best mark in team history and narrowly behind Shayne Graham (86.76; 177 made/204 attempts). Bullock has also been reliable on PATs for Cincinnati, and last year converted 24 of his 25 attempts (96 percent). Handling the long-snapping duties again this season is Clark Harris, the oldest Bengal on the roster (turned 36 in July). Harris has been a paragon of reliability since joining the team in mid-2009, and over his Bengals career has handled 1559 deep snaps (840 punts, 719 placekicks) without a single unplayable delivery. Harris, a Pro Bowler in 2017, is the second-longest tenured player on the roster, behind Huber. S and KOR Brandon Wilson headlines Cincinnati's group of return specialists this season. Wilson, a 2017 sixth-round pick of the Bengals, led the NFL in '19 with a 31.3-yard average on kickoff returns (minimum 20 attempts), good for the second-best single season average in team history. Wilson played in just 12 games last season, and served as the No. 1 KOR for just eight contests. Considered one of the fastest players on Cincinnati's roster, he was clocked by NFL's Next Gen Stats at 22.03 MPH during his kickoff return for a TD in Game 6 vs. Baltimore last year, good for the third-fastest speed by an NFL ball carrier in 2019. Wilson has also been a key cog to Cincinnati's coverage units throughout his career, and last year ranked third on the team in special teams tackles (six). Listed as the No. 1 PR again this season is WR Alex Erickson, who has held that position since joining the Bengals as a college free agent in 2016. Last season, Erickson returned 25 punts for 157 yards. Erickson is also an accomplished kick returner, a position he held from 2016-18 prior to Wilson's breakout campaign in '19, and he owns two of Cincinnati's top five seasons ever for average yards per KOR — AFC-best 27.93 as a rookie in '16, and 26.2 in '18. Expected to play key roles in Cincinnati's special teams coverage units this season are Wilson, LB Jordan Evans, and TE Cethan Carter. Taking over this season as the person protector on punts will HB Giovani Bernard. Under the tenure of assistant head coach/special teams coordinator, the personal protector position has been a coveted role that is traditionally manned by one of the most trusted players on special teams.

THE LAST TWO BENGALS-CHARGERS MEETINGS

2015 SEASON

WEEK 2, GAME 2

Cincinnati Bengals 24, San Diego Chargers 19
Sunday, Sept. 20, 2015 at Paul Brown Stadium

The Bengals took advantage of an early special teams mistake by San Diego, with LB Emmanuel Lamur recovering a muffed punt return. Cincinnati went ahead 7-0 at the 12:51 mark of the first quarter on a 16-yard pass from QB Andy Dalton to WR A.J. Green. The Bengals led the rest of the way, but San Diego was within one score for the bulk of the game. The Chargers got a last opportunity for a winning score when they took over at their 20 with 1:09 remaining, but on their second play, Bengals LB Vincent Rey made a leaping INT of a pass from QB Philip Rivers to seal the outcome. Dalton threw three TD passes with no INTs, and HB Giovanni Bernard led the Bengals with 139 yards from scrimmage, including 20-for-123 rushing. Cincinnati defeated San Diego for the fourth straight time in regular season, but this game was the first Bengals-Chargers meeting since a San Diego playoff win at Paul Brown Stadium in the 2013 season. The Bengals moved to 2-0 for 2015 and maintained sole possession of first place in the AFC North Division. San Diego dropped to 1-1.

2018 SEASON

WEEK 14, GAME 13

L.A. Chargers 26, Cincinnati Bengals 21
Sunday, Dec. 9, 2018 at StubHub Center

Cincinnati entered the game as two-TD underdogs on the road against a team with the second-best record in the AFC, but turned in what was considered to be an encouraging performance. The end result still was a loss, but the Bengals, who faced deficits of 14-3 early and 23-15 late, fought back to a chance to tie the game with a two-point conversion just after the two-minute warning. HB Joe Mixon scored on a one-yard TD run with 1:50 left to pull the Bengals within two points, 23-21, but QB Jeff Driskel was sacked on the two-point attempt. The Chargers recovered the ensuing outside kick, then added a FG with just under a minute left for the game's final score. Mixon finished the game with 111 yards rushing on 26 carries (4.3-yard average) and another 27 yards receiving on five catches. In his second start of the season, Driskel completed 18 of 27 passes for 170 yards, one TD and no INTs (96.2 passer rating). The Bengals' defense allowed just 288 net yards — its fewest of the season — to a Chargers team which entered the game ranked fifth in the NFL in average net yards (399.4). The Bengals fell to 5-8, while the Chargers improved to 10-3.
