IF YOU HAVEN'T HERD

THE ROOKIE CARD

Over the past six months, Joe Andreessen has encountered a series of amazing moments on his unfathomable NFL journey. The suburban Buffalo kid navigated the fringes of college football, excelled in his lone season as a University at Buffalo transfer linebacker, got an undrafted rookie tryout with the Buffalo Bills, did enough to get signed as a training camp body and not only earned a spot on the 53-man roster, but also has played in real games for his favorite team.

The boyhood dream came into sharper focus and "Buffalo Joe" hardly could contain himself. At a desk in an upstairs bedroom of his parents' house in Depew, he rocked nervously in his chair and laughed at the thought of it all.

His first football card.

Might sound trivial to some, but not to Andreessen. He has a massive collection of those 3x5 pictures that urge a youngster to daydream, to study the game and to mark an innocent time. Andreessen reminisced how he and his dad would visit flea markets to look at all the memorabilia, and perhaps come home with a prize or two.

Andreessen insisted neither the little kid in him nor the special-teams overachiever will take it for granted.

"I'm just happy," Andreessen said, his smile still wide. "If you don't collect, I guess you don't know. Obviously, in the football collecting realm, the QBs hold the most value, and the offensive guys are below that – the specialty positions like wide receivers, running backs. So if you're not a first-round pick or notable draft pick, a lot of guys in the NFL don't get cards because their cards don't hold value ...

"That's why I even tweeted it out because I really wanted one, and kind of being in my position I wasn't sure if I was going to be able to get one. I'm just excited to be in this position." (The Athletic, Tim Graham, November 7, 2024)
