BY THE NUMBERS

WR DeAndre Carter holds a career punt return average of 9.8 yards per punt return (113 returns, 1,106 yards) since 2018, the third-best mark in the NFL over that span among players with at least 75 returns.

10

WR Davante Adams has 10 TD catches of 30+ yards in his first 20 games as a member of the Raiders. It is the most by a player in his first 20 games with a team since Randy Moss had 13 with the Vikings in 1998-99.

97

DE Maxx Crosby has hit the quarterback 97 times since entering the league in 2019, tied for the fifth most in the NFL over that span.

491

Since entering the league in 2014, WR Davante Adams has moved the chains 491 times on receptions, the fifth most in the NFL over that span. He leads the league in receiving first downs since 2020 (240).

WHAT TO WATCH FOR

17

With six receptions, Adams would become one of 13 players in NFL history to reach 800 receptions in his first 10 NFL seasons. He would also become the sixth player in NFL history to reach 800 receptions through 137 career games. With 41 receiving yards, Adams would reach 10,000 career receiving yards, becoming one of just 15 players in NFL history to reach 10,000 receiving yards in his first 137 career games.

16

With 76 receiving yards, Meyers would become just the 11th undrafted player in NFL history to record 3,000+ receiving yards in his first 63 career games. With nine receptions, Meyers would surpass Danny Amendola (259) for the fourth most receptions by an undrafted player in his first 63 career games.

98

With three tackles for loss Sunday, Crosby would become the ninth player in the NFL since 1999 to reach 70 tackles for loss in 70 career games. 69 tackles for loss would also be the most by a Raiders defender through 70 career games.

APPROACHING 500

The Raiders are approaching 500 regular season wins as a franchise. With two more wins, the Raiders would become the 10th team since 1960 to reach 500 total wins in the regular season

- With 41 receiving yards, Adams would reach 10,000 career receiving yards, becoming one of just 15 players in NFL history to reach 10,000 receiving yards in his first 137 career games. He would also become one of 27 players in NFL history to reach 10,000 receiving yards in his first 10 NFL seasons.
- With 100+ receiving yards, Adams will own 41 career 100-yard games, the second most in the NFL since he entered the league in 2014. His 41 games would tie Lance Alworth (41) and Don Maynard (10) for the 11th most 100-yard games for a player in their first 10 seasons in NFL history.
- With 100+ receiving yards, 41 of his first 137 career games would be 100-yard games, the 10th most of such games in NFL history for a player in his first 137 career games.
- With 10+ receptions Sunday, Adams would own 23 career games with 10+ receptions, tying Antonio Brown (23) for the most games with 10+ receptions in NFL history.
- With 2+ touchdowns, Adams will have 23 career games with multiple receiving touchdowns, the most of such games since 2014. It would also surpass Art Powell (22) for the seventh most multi-touchdown games in NFL history.
- With six receptions, Adams would become one of 13 players in NFL history to reach 800 receptions in his first 10 NFL seasons. He would also become the sixth player in NFL history to reach 800 receptions through 137 career games.

- With 10 points on Sunday - Carlson's 82nd career game - he would notch his 27th career game with 10+ points, tied for the third most of such games in NFL history by a kicker in their first 82 career games, only behind Wil Lutz (30) and Justin Tucker (29). His 27 10-point games would be the the third most in the NFL since 2018.
- With four made field goals, Carlson would reach 150 career field goals, becoming one of just four kickers in NFL history to make 150 field goals in 82 games or less.
- With one made field goal of 50+ yards, Carlson will have 25 career field goals of 50 yards or more, one of two players in the NFL since 2000 to make 25 50-yarders or more within their first 82 career games.

CROSBY

- With 0.5 sack, Crosby will reach 40.0 career sacks in just 69 career games, just the fifth player to accomplish the feat with the Raiders - the first since Khalil Mack (2014-17).
- With 1.0 sack, Crosby will tie Khalil Mack (40.5) for the fifth most sacks in Raiders history.
- With 2.0 sacks or more, Crosby will notch his ninth career game with 2.0 sacks, tied for the fifth most two-sack games in the NFL since 2019 and tied for the fifth most two-sack games in franchise history (Khalil Mack, 9).
- With three tackles for loss Sunday, Crosby will become the ninth player in the NFL since 1999 to reach 70 tackles for loss in 70 career games. 69 tackles for loss would also be the most by a Raiders defender through 70 career games.
- With 10 tackles, Crosby would become one of just 10 defensive linemen in the NFL since 1987 to record three career games with 10+ tackles.
- With two tackles for loss, Crosby would have 18 games with multiple tackles for loss, the second most in the NFL since 2019, only behind T.J. Watt (20).
- With two tackles for loss, Crosby would become one of just nine players in the NFL since 1999 to record 18 or more games of 2+ tackles for loss within their first 70 career games.

- With a passer rating of 100.0 or better, Garoppolo would notch his 35th career game with a 100.0+ passer rating, the seventh most of such games in history among quarterbacks in their first 79 career games.
- With a win on Sunday, Garoppolo would have 42 QB wins in games he has started since entering the league in 2014. Among players in their first 61 career starts since 2014, his 42 wins would be the third most in the NFL over that span only behind Lamar Jackson (45) and Patrick Mahomes (49).
- With a win on Sunday, Garoppolo will have 42 wins in his first 61 starts, tied for the 13th most in NFL history by a player in his first 61 starts.
- With a completion percentage of 65.0 or better on Sunday (min. 20 att.), Garoppolo will notch his 40th career game with a 65.0+ completion percentage, tied for the fourth most in NFL history among QBs in their first 79 career games (min. 20 attempts).

WHAT TO WATCH FOR VS. CHARGERS

JOSH McDANIELS

Josh McDaniels enters his second season as head coach of the Las Vegas Raiders and his 23rd overall campaign in the NFL. McDaniels was named Raiders head coach by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 31, 2022, following 19 seasons with the New England Patriots, including 13 as offensive coordinator. He also served as the Denver Broncos' head coach from 2009-10 and the St. Louis Rams' offensive coordinator in 2011.

In his first season at the helm in Las Vegas, McDaniels laid a solid foundation for the organization both on and off the field. McDaniels orchestrated an offense that was among the best in the NFL, as the Raiders scored on 42.4 percent (73-for-172) of the team's offensive possessions, a mark that ranked fifth in the league and was the second highest for a Raiders offense since 2001.

Individual standouts highlighted the offensive attack, as running back Josh Jacobs totaled 1,653 yards on the ground to become the first Raider to lead the NFL in rushing since 1985. Wide receiver Davante Adams was equally outstanding in the passing game, setting a franchise record with 1,516 receiving yards and leading the NFL with 14 touchdowns through the air. The Raiders became just the fifth team in history, and the first since 1999, to have both a rusher and receiver eclipse the 1,500-yard mark in the same season.

In his 13 seasons as the Patriots offensive coordinator, McDaniels guided an offense to top-10 finishes eight times, including the NFL's No. 1 ranked offense in 2007, 2012 and 2017. He has also coached the team to 12 seasons with 10-or-more wins, while the offense has scored 400-plus points in 11 seasons. Overall, McDaniels was a part of six Super Bowl championships, 14 division titles and eight conference crowns with New England.

Regarded as one of the league's top quarterback coaches, McDaniels tutored quarterback Tom Brady to 10 Pro Bowl selections, two NFL Most Valuable Player awards and nine 4,000-yard passing seasons. Brady also led the league in touchdown passes two times (2007 and 2015) and passing yards three times (2005, 2007 and 2015) with McDaniels serving as his position coach.

In 2019, McDaniels helped lead the Patriots to a 12-4 record and claim their 11th consecutive division title.

In 2017, McDaniels helped the Patriots reach their second consecutive Super Bowl by leading a unit that finished No. 1 in the NFL in total offense (394.2 yards per game). McDaniels helped guide the No. 2 passing offense (276.1 yards per game) and the No. 2 scoring offense (28.6 points per game).

In 2014, McDaniels helped the Patriots earn the fourth Super Bowl championship in franchise history. New England finished with the top-ranked red-zone offense, leading the league with 338 points scored (39 TDs, 22 FG) in 67 trips to the red zone.

In 2011, McDaniels served as offensive coordinator of the St. Louis Rams. Under his guidance, Rams running back Steven Jackson eclipsed the 1,000-yard mark for the seventh consecutive season.

McDaniels served as head coach of the Denver Broncos from 2009-10, becoming the fifth-youngest head coach in NFL history at the time (32 years, 8 months).

McDaniels began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Michigan State University in 1999, working under head coach Nick Saban and helping the Spartans to a 10-2 record and a Citrus Bowl victory.

A native of Canton, Ohio, McDaniels attended John Carroll University, where he played quarterback and wide receiver from 1995-98. McDaniels was a college teammate of Raiders General Manager Dave Ziegler. Josh and his wife, Laura, have four children.

BRANDON STALEY

The Los Angeles Chargers hired Brandon Staley as the 17th head coach in franchise history, becoming the first Bolts head coach with a defensive background in over a decade.

Staley led the Bolts in 2022 to a 10-7 regular-season record and a postseason appearance, the team's first since 2018. He coached a pair of Chargers defenders to a Pro Bowl selection — safety Derwin James Jr., and outside linebacker Khalil Mack, both of who earned their second all-star nods under Staley.

The offense rank third in passing offense (269.6 net passing yards per game) and No.9 in total offense (359.3 total net yards per game) in the NFL in 2022. The unit set a single-season NFL record by featuring six players with at least 500 receiving yards and three touchdown grabs. Quarterback Justin Herbert continued to set records, as no player has more completions (1,316), passing yards (14,089) or total touchdowns (102) over the first three seasons of a career. Herbert is also the only quarterback in NFL history to begin a career with three consecutive seasons of 4,000-plus passing yards and the second player ever to throw 25 touchdowns in each of their first three years, joining Hall of Fame quarterback Peyton Manning. Meanwhile, the offense also featured running back Austin Ekeler, who led the NFL for the second-straight season with 18 scrimmage touchdowns and set single-season career highs with 1,637 yards from scrimmage, 13 rushing touchdowns, 915 rushing yards and 107 receptions. His 107 catches led all running backs ranked tied for No.5 in the NFL in 2022, and were tied for the second-most by a running back in a single season in NFL history.

One of the most progressive minds in football, Staley brought an aggressive approach to the Chargers in his first season. In his first season at the helm, Los Angeles offense set single-season team records for first downs (401), passing touchdowns (38) and fewest fumbles (10). The offensive unit also scored 181 fourth-quarter points, good for the second-most in a season in NFL history. Staley called a defense that led the NFL with 11 stripsacks and paced the AFC with 19 forced fumbles. Six Chargers were selected to the Pro Bowl, including five that were tabbed as starters. The first-year head coach helped develop quarterback Justin Herbert to his first all-star game as the second-year passer set numerous single-season franchise records, including completions (443), passing yards (5,014), passing touchdowns (38) and games with 300-plus passing yards (nine).

Staley brought innovation on defense from college to the NFL, serving as outside linebackers coach in Chicago (2017-18) and Denver (2019). He served on Vic Fangio's staff in Denver after following the former defensive coordinator from Chicago. The 2019 Broncos defense led the NFL in red zone scoring, allowing a touchdown on just 39.1 percent of red zone drives — the second lowest allowed by any NFL defense in the last five seasons. In his two years with Chicago, the Bears led the NFL in takeaways (58) while tying for No. 2 with 92 sacks. Staley was part of a staff in 2018 that coached the top-ranked scoring defense in football (17.7 points per game).

Prior to coaching in the NFL, Staley spent three seasons (2013, '15-16) at John Carroll as defensive coordinator/secondary coach and the 2014 season as defensive coordinator/linebackers at James Madison. In his final season as a collegiate coach, Staley earned National Coordinator of the Year honors for Division III by leading the John Carroll unit to rank third in the nation in total defense (218.0 yards per game) and fourth in scoring defense (12.6 points per game). Before his stints at John Carroll and James Madison, Staley was a graduate assistant in 2012 at Tennessee. Staley held his first coordinator job as associate head coach/defensive coordinator at Hutchinson (Kan.) Community College from 2010-11. Staley began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Northern Illinois (2006-08) before coaching the defensive line and special teams in 2009 at the University of St. Thomas. He played quarterback at the University of Dayton, serving as a team captain and was a two-year starter from 2003-04, helping the Flyers post a 16-5 record as the starter. He ended his playing career at Mercyhurst College, playing there in 2005 with his twin brother, Jason. A native of Perry, Ohio, Staley and his wife, Amy, have three sons — Colin, Will and Grant.

Dave Ziegler was named General Manager of the Raiders on Jan. 30, 2022, becoming just the fourth general manager in Raiders franchise history. Ziegler brings 12 years of NFL experience to the post, having spent the past nine seasons with the New England Patriots and most recently serving as their director of player personnel.

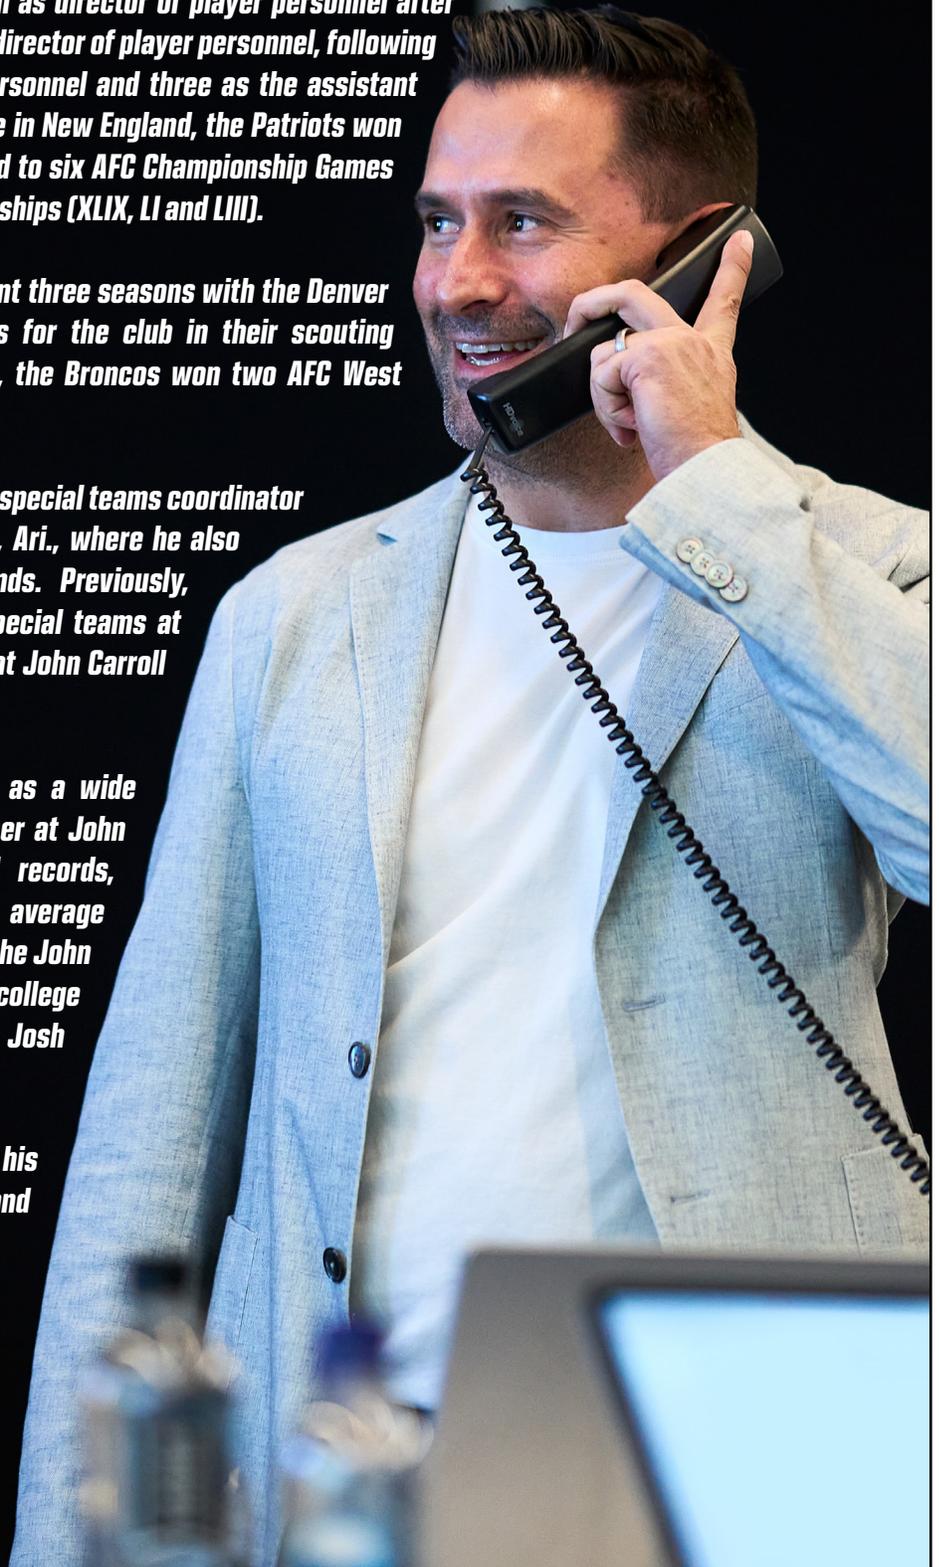

In 2021, Ziegler entered his first season as director of player personnel after spending the 2020 season as assistant director of player personnel, following four seasons as the director of pro personnel and three as the assistant director of pro scouting. During his time in New England, the Patriots won seven AFC East Division titles, advanced to six AFC Championship Games and claimed three Super Bowl championships (XLIX, LI and LIII).

Prior to joining the Patriots, Ziegler spent three seasons with the Denver Broncos, serving in a variety of roles for the club in their scouting department. During his time in Denver, the Broncos won two AFC West Division titles.

Before entering the NFL, Ziegler was the special teams coordinator at Chaparral High School in Scottsdale, Ari., where he also coached running backs and tight ends. Previously, Ziegler coached wide receivers and special teams at Iona College in New Rochelle, N.Y., and at John Carroll University in University Heights, Ohio.

A three-time, all-conference honoree as a wide receiver, punt returner and kick returner at John Carroll, Ziegler holds several school records, including career return yards, return average and touchdowns. He was inducted into the John Carroll Hall of Fame in 2010. Ziegler was college teammates with Raiders Head Coach Josh McDaniels.

A native of Tallmadge, Ohio, Ziegler and his wife Carissa have two sons, Asher and Camden and a daughter, Georgina.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders - who began play in the American Football League in 1960 - are in their 64th year of professional football competition, including the last 52 as a member of the National Football League. In seven memorable decades - the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s, 2010s and 2020s - the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three World Championships of Professional Football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 23 playoff seasons, finished 38 seasons at .500 or better and played in 45 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s. The Silver and Black are the only AFC team - and one of just two NFL teams - to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three World Championships of Professional Football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980. In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During the memorable 62 years in Oakland, Los Angeles and now Las Vegas, the Raiders won 491 league games, tied 11 and lost 447. "Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization as shown by their domination of pro football.

Twenty-eight of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced six Coaches of the Year. In addition, 79 Pro Bowl players have earned 211 Pro Bowl selections representing the Silver and Black.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 - Monday Night Football. The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build a 42-31-1 record in Monday night play. The Raiders won 12 games at home to begin this series and are 19-9-0 at home in the 52 years of Monday Night Football.

Through the seven decades of pro football competition, the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports. Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

In addition, the Raiders are proud to contribute to community engagement, youth initiatives, multicultural awareness, and global outreach. The Raiders played in Oakland from their inception through 1982, relocated to Los Angeles in 1983, moved back to Oakland in 1995, and made Las Vegas home in 2020.

The Raiders base training and business operations in Henderson, Nevada at Intermountain Health Performance Center and play home games at Allegiant Stadium, a fully enclosed, state-of-the-art facility located adjacent to the world-famous Las Vegas Strip. The Raiders maintain an international presence and communicate with the worldwide Raider Nation through the team's official website and social media channels.

MILESTONE WATCH

DAVANTE ADAMS

- With 15 receiving touchdowns in 2023, Adams would become only the fifth player in NFL history with multiple seasons of 15+ receiving touchdowns. He would join Jerry Rice (five seasons), Randy Moss (four seasons), Marvin Harrison (two seasons) and Terrell Owens (two seasons).
- With 100 receptions in 2023, Adams will become one of just three players in NFL history to record 100+ receptions in four-consecutive seasons, joining Antonio Brown (6) and Marvin Harrison (4).
- With 363 receiving yards in the first seven games of 2023, Adams will become just the 53rd player in NFL history to reach 10,000 career receiving yards. He would also be the 20th player to reach 10,000 receiving yards in 140 games or less.
- With 31 receptions in the first seven games of 2023, Adams will become just the seventh player in NFL history to reach 800 career receptions in 140 games or less.
- With 10 receiving touchdowns in 2023, Adams would notch his seventh season with double-digit touchdowns, becoming just the fifth player in NFL history to record 10+ receiving touchdowns in seven or more seasons, joining Randy Moss (9), Jerry Rice (9), Marvin Harrison (8) and Terrell Owens (8).
- With 1,500 receiving yards in 2023, Adams would become the only player in NFL history to record 1,500+ receiving yards in three consecutive seasons. He would also be the sixth player in NFL history with 3+ total seasons of 1,500+ yards, joining Jerry Rice (4), Antonio Brown (3), Julio Jones (3), Andre Johnson (3), Marvin Harrison (3).
- With 13 receiving touchdowns in 2023, Adams will become just the 11th player in NFL history to reach 100 receiving touchdowns. He would also be the only player in NFL history to accomplish the feat in 150 games or less.
- With 110 receptions and 1,300+ receiving yards in 2023, Adams would become the first player in NFL history with 110 receptions and 1,300 receiving yards in four seasons.
- With three games of 10+ receptions in 2023, Adams would have 24 games with double-digit receptions, the most in NFL history.
- With 100+ receptions, 1,000+ receiving yards and 10+ receiving touchdowns, Adams would join Hall of Fame receiver Marvin Harrison as the only two players in NFL history to post four consecutive seasons with that stat line.
- With 1,363 receiving yards and 13 touchdowns, Adams will join three Hall of Fame receivers (Jerry Rice, Marvin Harrison and Randy Moss) as the only four players in NFL history to record 11,000+ receiving yards and 100+ receiving touchdowns in their first 10 NFL seasons.

DANIEL CARLSON

- With 30 made field goals in 2023, Carlson would become the third kicker in NFL history to make 30+ field goals in four straight seasons, joining Justin Tucker (2015-18) and David Akers (2008-11).
- With 103 points in 2023, Carlson would become the 10th kicker in NFL history to reach 700 points scored in their first six NFL seasons.
- With 135 points in 2023, Carlson would become the fourth kicker in NFL history to record 135+ points in four consecutive seasons.
- With 32 made field goals in 2023, Carlson would reach 175 made field goals in his career, becoming the second player in NFL history to reach 175 made field goals in their first six NFL seasons, behind only Justin Tucker (202).
- With a .900 field goal percentage or better, Carlson would become just the seventh kicker in NFL history to record four seasons with a .900 field goal percentage. He would be just the third player to have four of his first six seasons above .900, joining Chris Boswell and Justin Tucker.
- With nine field goals of 50+ yards in 2023, Carlson will pass Justin Tucker (36) for the most 50-yard field goals made in a player's first six seasons in the NFL.

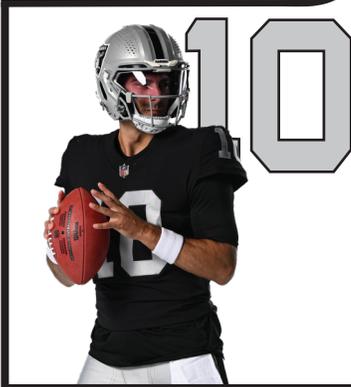

MAXX CROSBY

- Needs 11.5 sacks in 2023 to reach 49.0 sacks through his first five seasons in the NFL, the most by a Raiders defender through their first five seasons.

MILESTONE WATCH

JIMMY GAROPPOLO

- With a passer rating of 90.0 or better in 2023, Garoppolo would notch his fifth straight season with a 90.0+ passer rating. His five-season streak would be tied for the 10th longest streak in NFL history (min. six starts).
- With at least 13 passing touchdowns and fewer than eight interceptions in 2023, Garoppolo would become one of just 16 quarterbacks in NFL history to record 100+ touchdowns with a 2.0 TD/INT ratio in their first 75 career starts.
- With fewer than eight interceptions and at least 274 pass attempts in 2023, Garoppolo would become just the sixth quarterback in NFL history to throw fewer than 50 interceptions in his first 75 career starts (min. 2,000 attempts).
- With 10 games of a passer taking of 100.0 or better in 2023, Garoppolo would have 40 total games with a 100.0+ passer rating in 74 starts, one of only four quarterbacks in NFL history to have 40+ of such games in their first 75 starts, joining Aaron Rodgers (43), Patrick Mahomes (43) and Tony Romo (41).

JOSH JACOBS

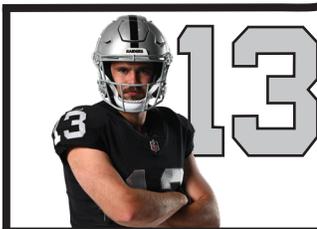

- With 1,000 rushing yards in 2023, Jacobs would become the only back in Raiders history to rush for 1,000+ yards in four of his first five NFL seasons. He would also become one of only 31 backs in NFL history to accomplish the feat.
- With 12 rushing touchdowns in 2023, Jacobs would become one of just 13 backs in NFL history to record 12+ rushing touchdowns in at least three of their first five NFL seasons. He would be the only Raider to accomplish the feat.
- With 658 rushing yards in 2023, Jacobs will surpass Marcus Allen (5,397) for the most rushing yards by a Raiders back in their first five NFL seasons.
- With 1,260 rushing yards in 2023, Jacobs would become one of just 24 players to record 6,000+ rushing yards in their first five NFL seasons.
- With 10 rushing touchdowns, Jacobs would become just one of 18 players in NFL history to record 50+ rushing touchdowns in their first five seasons.
- With 14 rushing touchdowns in 2023, Jacobs would surpass Marcus Allen (13) for second most in a single season in Raiders history behind only Pete Banaszak's 16 rushing touchdowns in 1975.
- With 10 rushing touchdowns and 760 rushing yards, Jacobs would become one of only 13 players in NFL history to record 5,500 rushing yards and 50 rushing touchdowns in their first five NFL seasons - thr first since 2016 (Derrick Henry).

JAKOBI MEYERS

- With 700 receiving yards in 2023, Meyers will have his fourth-straight season of 700+ yards, becoming one of only 14 undrafted players in NFL history to record four-straight seasons with 700+ receiving yards.
- With 700 receiving yards in 2023, Meyers will become one of only eight undrafted players in NFL history to record 700+ receiving yards in four of their first five seasons in the NFL.
- With 65 receptions in 2023, Meyers will become just the eighth undrafted player in NFL history to record 300+ receptions in his first five seasons in the NFL.

HUNTER RENFROW

- With 976 receiving yards in 14 games or less in 2023, Renfrow will surpass Mervyn Fernandez (3,604) for the most receiving yards by a Raiders receiver in their first 70 games.
- With 1,015 receiving yards in 2023, Renfrow will surpass Mervyn Fernandez (3,643) for the most receiving yards by a Raiders receiver in their first five seasons.

TAKING DOWN THE TEXANS

In Week 7 against the Texans, RB Josh Jacobs finished with 143 rushing yards and three rushing touchdowns on 20 carries (7.2 avg.). He joins Marcus Allen and Darren McFadden as the only three running backs in franchise history to rush for 140+ yards and 3+ touchdowns in a single game - the first since 2010 (Darren McFadden). No other running back in the NFL has accomplished the feat so far in 2022.

Josh Jacobs	10/23/22	143	3
Darren McFadden	10/24/10	165	3
Marcus Allen	12/02/84	155	3

Among players with at least 20 carries, his 7.2 yards per carry are the most by a Raiders' back in a single game since 2007 (Justin Fargas, 8.1).

His 7.2 average is also the best mark in a single game in the NFL since 1991 (min 20 att) for player without a run of 20+ yards.

LB Luke Masterson enters his second season in the NFL after signing with the Raiders as an undrafted free agent in 2022...He was one of only nine undrafted free agents in the NFL in 2022 to play in all 17 games and one of only 25 Raiders to play in every game of their rookie season (since the NFL moved to 16 games in 1978).

UNDRAFTED GEM

Masterson finished his rookie season with 50 total tackles (26 solo), the third most in the NFL among undrafted rookies.

DOUBLE DIGITS

In Week 16 against the Steelers last season, Masterson led the team with a season-high 10 tackles (six solo). He is the first undrafted rookie in Raiders history to post double-digit tackles in a single game.

ED BLOCK COURAGE AWARD

RB Josh Jacobs was selected as the Silver and Black's 2022 Ed Block Courage Award recipient. The Ed Block Courage Award is presented to the player who exemplifies a commitment to the principles of sportsmanship and courage. Additionally, the award recognizes a player's efforts on and off the field, as well as their ability to overcome great adversity. The recipient is selected by a vote of his teammates.

The Ed Block Courage Award annually honors one player from each NFL team. The award has become one of the most esteemed honors bestowed upon a player in the NFL, primarily because his selection is based upon a vote of his peers. The Ed Block Courage Award is named in honor of Ed Block, the longtime head athletic trainer of the Baltimore Colts who was a pioneer in his profession and a respected humanitarian. In 1989, the Ed Block Courage Award Foundation formulated the Courage House National Support Network for Kids.

LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNALDavante Adams calls out Raiders after loss to Steelers

By Vincent Bonsignore

September 24, 2023

The time for talk is over as far as Raiders wide receiver Davante Adams is concerned.

The final straw was a 23-18 loss to the Steelers on “Sunday Night Football” at Allegiant Stadium in which the Raiders again were their own worst enemy in their mishandling of the ball, inability to consistently run the ball and failure to get the Steelers off the field when it mattered most.

The lack of complementary football was blatant for the umpteenth time and pushed the Raiders to 1-2 with a trip to Los Angeles against their division rival Chargers up next.

And, frankly, Adams is sick and tired of it. Or better yet, talking about it and analyzing it and everyone promising to do better the next time.

The process will begin Monday morning when the Raiders scour over the tape and relive the handful of mistakes they made to bury themselves into a 23-7 second-half hole and ignite a decidedly pro-Steelers crowd.

Adams has been there, done that. It makes his stomach turn. And it’s high time, he said, that the Raiders actually do something about it.

“It’s not just talking and doing all that, but it’s putting it into action and figuring out what’s wrong and doing something about it so that when we go out there the next time it looks different,” Adams said.

Three weeks into the season, Adams, who was unguardable in catching 13 passes for 172 yards and two touchdowns, is already feeling a sense of urgency to get things right.

“It’s not my mentality to sit here and try to take all season and figure it out,” Adams said. “You use these early games like this to establish an identity. We’re not doing things the right way to establish a winning culture.”

He didn’t have to add an “or else” to make his point.

“It’s not supposed to just be a week of talking about s —,” Adams said. “We’ve got to go out there and do it. That’s the theme of this year — doing it. Not just talking about it and figuring out what we need to do. We did all that last year. This year we gotta be about it.”

The issues are everywhere, though some blatant ones top the list.

Jimmy Garoppolo, for all his understanding of the Josh McDaniels’ offense he began his NFL career in, has been inconsistent, turnover prone and unsure how to tap into his various weapons. He threw for 324 yards and two touchdowns, but by the time he got rolling, the Raiders were in a deep hole.

Yet another game came and went without receiver Hunter Renfrow playing a discernable role. And outside of the Garoppolo-Adams connection, the Raiders’ new quarterback struggled to consistently incorporate anyone else. That, combined with the NFL-high six interceptions he’s thrown, has led to a decidedly shaky start with the team.

Garoppolo was being evaluated for a concussion after the game and was not made available to the media.

It didn't help that the Raiders could not run the ball consistently, a constant theme the first three weeks. Josh Jacobs, the reigning NFL rushing leader, finished with 62 yards on 17 carries, but a good chunk of them came after the Raiders found life in the fourth quarter and made it a one-score game.

The late-game rally, which featured a questionable call by McDaniels to kick a field goal while trailing 23-15 rather than go for it on fourth-and-4 from the Steelers' 8, is something the Raiders hope to build on. But, as edge rusher Maxx Crosby pointed out, they never should have been in that position to begin with.

That's exactly Adams' point and one Crosby, a fellow captain, endorses.

"Davante is 100 percent right," Crosby said. "He has a right to be frustrated.

"We gotta stop beating ourselves."

3 takeaways from Raiders' loss to Steelers on 'Sunday Night Football'

By Adam Hill

September 24, 2023

Three takeaways from the Raiders' 23-18 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday at Allegiant Stadium:

1. One that got away

The Raiders tried to make things interesting late, but mistakes at key moments put them in too deep a hole and led to a disappointing result in what looked like a winnable game on the schedule.

Sunday marked the only time in the first month of the season in which the Raiders were favored to win. They couldn't take advantage of the opportunity.

They did give it a valiant effort down the stretch. After falling behind 23-7, the Raiders scored the final 11 points and had the ball with a chance at a desperation drive for the win.

It just wasn't meant to be in a home opener played in front of a largely partisan Steelers crowd.

Raiders coach Josh McDaniels elected to kick a field goal on a fourth-and-4 play with 2:25 left to cut the deficit to five points instead of trying for a potentially game-tying touchdown.

By the time his team got the ball back, there were 12 seconds remaining and Jimmy Garoppolo's pass was intercepted.

The Raiders (1-2) are four-point underdogs next Sunday when they travel to Los Angeles to face the Chargers.

2. Too many mistakes

Garoppolo threw three interceptions and leads the NFL with six in three games.

That simply isn't a winning formula for any team, but it's especially crippling for an offense struggling to move the ball consistently even without the turnovers.

The first interception came in a tie game early in the second quarter when Garoppolo threw behind rookie tight end Michael Mayer and into the arms of trailing cornerback Levi Wallace.

It set up a Steelers field goal that gave them the lead for good.

Garoppolo's second interception might have been worse. He had all kinds of time in the pocket until pressure finally started to get close. He faded away from the defender and put the ball up for grabs. It's unclear if he was trying to throw it away and didn't get enough on it or was hoping someone could make a play, but Patrick Peterson came up with it for Pittsburgh.

The Steelers scored six plays later to increase their lead to 23-7 late in the third quarter.

Those interceptions were more costly than just the 10 points scored off them by the Steelers. Both also happened on second-down plays near midfield, ending drives that could have resulted in points for the Raiders.

That has to get corrected fast.

Garoppolo's third interception came on a desperation play on the final meaningful snap. It was more excusable than the others, but prevented any hope of a miracle finish.

3. Run game still grounded

This was supposed to be the week the Raiders finally rediscovered a ground game that had been downright awful the first two weeks.

It didn't happen

Pittsburgh was allowing a league-worst 193 rushing yards per game. But the Steelers limited the Raiders to 69 yards, including 62 on 17 carries for Josh Jacobs.

That continues a trend for the Raiders.

Last week, Jacobs became the first defending rushing champion to finish a game with negative yards on the ground.

The Raiders were averaging just 58 yards on the ground and eclipsed that only because of a couple of nice runs by Jacobs against light boxes with the Raiders in catch-up mode in the fourth quarter.

Raiders report card: Jimmy Garoppolo, offense show up too late

By Ed Graney

September 24, 2023

How the Raiders performed in a 23-18 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers on "Sunday Night Football" at Allegiant Stadium:

Offense: C-

Too little, too late. This team can't run the ball. Period. I'm not sure they have a tight end. Jimmy Garoppolo finished 28 of 44 for 324 yards and two scores but also threw three interceptions. They finally got some things going late in the second half ... against a prevent defense from the Steelers. They didn't do much in the first half beyond a 32-yard scoring pass from Garoppolo to Davante Adams on fourth-and-inches. Garoppolo was sacked twice by T.J. Watt in the first 30 minutes, the second time seeing the quarterback getting bent backward and having to hobble off the field. He continued, but it made little difference in the end result. The Steelers totaled four sacks. Josh Jacobs broke out a bit late for the first time this season, finishing with 62 yards on 17 carries. But there is zero consistency with the offensive line blocking for him. They can't win the line of scrimmage.

Defense: C

For much of the game, the Raiders made one of the NFL's top struggling offenses look decent. On the game's biggest play, with 2:12 left and the Steelers facing third-and-2 from their 33, the Raiders had a complete breakdown and allowed a 6-yard reception that essentially ended the game. They didn't help themselves in trailing 13-7 at halftime, an unnecessary roughness call on Maxx Crosby leading to a Pittsburgh field goal and a pass interference by rookie cornerback Jakorian Bennett to another. Twice on the latter drive, the Raiders lost contain on Steelers quarterback Kenny Pickett on consecutive plays.

Special teams: B

Nothing to write home about. AJ Cole punted five times for an average of 52.4 yards with a long of 60, dropping one inside the 20-yard line. Daniel Carlson was good from 26 yards on his lone field-goal attempt.

Coaching: F

This was a poorly coached game. The call to kick a field goal down eight and staring at fourth-and-4 from the Pittsburgh 8 with 2:25 left was miserable. Running the ball is critical at any level, and McDaniels and company can't get anything going. There is no complementary football. It's either the offense or defense making plays but never consistently together. McDaniels has lost 22 of the past 32 games he has coached.

Raiders report: Jimmy Garoppolo being evaluated for concussion

By Adam Hill

September 24, 2023

Raiders quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo might have left the field Sunday with more than just another loss.

The team announced after the game that Garoppolo would be unavailable to speak to the media because he was being evaluated for a concussion after a 23-18 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers on "Sunday Night Football."

There was no word on the results of the evaluation as of late Sunday.

Garoppolo, who did not exit the game, was seen in the Allegiant Stadium locker room chatting with teammates afterward.

He took several big hits, including one that was flagged for a personal foul with 6:58 remaining. On the play, Minkah Fitzpatrick's helmet connected with Garoppolo's, and his head then appeared to bounce off the ground. He threw a touchdown pass to Davante Adams three plays later.

Garoppolo also limped off the field after being bent backward in a pile on a sack on the final offensive snap of the first half.

He threw three interceptions and leads the NFL with six in three games in his first season with the Raiders.

Garoppolo finished 28 of 44 for 324 yards and two touchdowns, nearly engineering a comeback victory after the Raiders fell behind 23-7. They got the ball back with 12 seconds remaining on their 15-yard line, but Garoppolo's first-down pass was intercepted.

Almost doesn't count

One of the biggest rallying cries for the Raiders leading up to this season was a renewed emphasis on forcing turnovers.

All of that focus has yet to yield any results.

The Raiders were not able to generate any takeaways Sunday and have still not forced a single turnover this season.

They are minus-7 in turnover differential through three games, tied with the Vikings for worst in the league.

"It's definitely frustrating," cornerback Nate Hobbs said of the defense's inability to generate big plays. "And I feel like a lot of that is my fault. Because there are plays I'm almost making when I look back on film. It's frustrating, but the football gods are going to repay you if you keep going hard and keep pushing."

There have been several close calls, including on Sunday. Cornerback Marcus Peters dropped what looked like an almost certain pick-six in the first half.

"We're right there, but close doesn't count," Hobbs said, talking about the season overall. "You have to execute. Just trying to do something is never enough. When you execute properly is when you win games."

Hobbs said the defense and team are still confident despite back-to-back losses.

"It's definitely disappointing, but it's a 17-week season," he said. "In Week 15 or 16, we're not going to be talking about this game whether we won or lost. It's my third year, and I understand the third game doesn't make or break you. Of course you want that win every time, but it really matters in late October and November what type of ball you're playing."

Tough matchup

Raiders right tackle Jermaine Eluemunor drew the difficult assignment of having to block star Steelers pass rusher T.J. Watt for much of the night.

It didn't always go well.

Eluemunor entered the game having allowed just one pressure in the first two games of the season and hadn't allowed a sack since last season. He was leading all right tackles in the NFL by allowing pressure on just 2.1 percent of his pass-blocking assignments.

That changed Sunday, as Watt recorded six pressures on 29 pass-rush snaps when matched up with Eluemunor, according to Next Gen Stats. Watt had two sacks on those 29 opportunities.

Graney: Josh McDaniels whiffs on critical coaching decision

By Ed Graney

September 24, 2023

Even had they come all the way back, had they rallied for an improbable victory at Acrisure Stadium in Pittsburgh — um, I mean Allegiant Stadium — the truth wouldn't have changed Sunday night.

The Raiders are a bad football team.

They proved it again before what might as well have been a home game for the Steelers, a 23-18 win for Pittsburgh as thousands upon thousands cheered the victory while waving yellow towels.

Or maybe they were celebrating what was one of the worst coaching decisions Josh McDaniels has made in his 20 games with the team.

One reporter used the word unconscionable. That might be kind.

The Raiders somehow managed to pull within eight points with 2:25 remaining and facing a fourth-and-4 from the Steelers' 8-yard line.

And instead of going for it — to try to convert or perhaps even score a touchdown on the play — McDaniels trotted out kicker Daniel Carlson for a 26-yard field goal. He made it, and the lead was cut to 23-18.

It was a decision that said a lot about McDaniels, who has lost 22 of his past 32 games as an NFL coach.

Hand-picked guy

His explanation: "You have two choices there, you know? Try to make it a five-point game where you can win it with a touchdown if you get the ball back, or you go for it and if you happen to convert, you have to make a two-point conversion. Those are decisions you have to make. We were going to need another possession anyway, so it's not a lack of confidence in (the offense)."

Really? Jimmy Garoppolo was his hand-picked quarterback. This is the guy they chose over Derek Carr. The one they put their trust in to get the job done and win games. This is the guy who was supposedly signed to run such plays. To be successful at them.

By kicking the field goal, you're hoping the defense can get a stop. Even then, you would have to burn timeouts to do so and then drive the length of the field in search of a touchdown.

It was an analytical disaster.

According to ESPN Stats & Info, the decision to kick a field goal dropped the Raiders' win probability from 15.8 percent to 10.2 percent.

There was a similar swing in the live betting market.

The Steelers were a -500 favorite to win the game with the Raiders facing fourth-and-4. After they kicked a field goal instead of attempting to pick up a first down, Pittsburgh shot up to -1,100 on the live line.

It wasn't a good decision. Not at all.

“Ultimately, those are my (calls),” McDaniels said. “We confer with some other people and discuss the options, but it doesn’t matter if we don’t execute. If you choose to kick it, you have to play defense. I have confidence in our defense.”

The one that whiffed on the game’s next biggest play when it allowed Pittsburgh to convert a third-and-2 from its 33 with 2:12 remaining. When the Raiders completely misplayed things on a 6-yard reception that saw Nate Hobbs blitz off the corner and rookie Jakorian Bennett fail to come up and cover Allen Robinson.

He made the catch. Game over.

So they didn’t get the stop. They failed to do the one thing that had to occur for McDaniels’ call to kick the field goal make any sense. And it still wouldn’t have.

There are some stark realities with this team. It can’t run the ball. It can’t win the line of scrimmage. It can’t block anybody. Garoppolo also isn’t doing his team any favors. He now leads the NFL with six interceptions in three games.

Even had they come all the way back, it wouldn’t have changed the narrative.

The smart thing

“I agree with what Coach did,” said running back Josh Jacobs, who managed 62 yards on 17 carries. “We had faith in our defense. They had started to play well, and we believed we could get the ball back with enough time to score.”

But they didn’t. They didn’t make the defensive play. They whiffed on it.

Doesn’t matter.

You don’t kick the field goal. You don’t assume so many things are going to fall your way. You let your guy at quarterback run a play. You do the smart thing.

LAS VEGAS SUN

Analysis: Raiders’ coaching miscues hit new low in home-opening loss to Steelers

By Case Keefer

September 24, 2023

Kick the field goal to pull within five points or aim for the end zone to tie the game.

Raiders coach Josh McDaniels claimed he considered both those options ahead of a crucial fourth-and-4 play with 2:25 remaining in his team’s 23-18 "Sunday Night Football" loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday night before sending in the kicking team. He said in his postgame news conference he didn’t know how close he was to choosing the opposite, more aggressive route but also expressed no regrets.

“It doesn’t matter what the decision is there if we don’t execute well,” McDaniels said. “If you choose to kick it there, you’ve got to play defense, and I had confidence in our defense. They had been playing well and I thought we had an opportunity to get the ball back there with a couple minutes to go and go back down there and win it with a touchdown. That was the thought process.”

It didn't work out, as the Steelers gained a first down to help the drain the clock all the way to 12 seconds remaining before the Raiders received a punt to get the ball back at their own 15-yard line. Any shot of a miracle was extinguished when Las Vegas quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo then threw his third interception of the game on the first play to clinch a second consecutive loss and drop the team's record to 1-2.

McDaniels mentioned on a couple occasions that he was "just trying to do the right thing," throughout the game with his coaching decisions, but in at least this one key case, he failed spectacularly.

The Raiders needed a touchdown and a two-point conversion to extend the game, and they instead kicked a field goal. They of course then still needed a touchdown, but never got a real opportunity to make it happen.

The betting odds on Pittsburgh to win the game spiked from -500 (i.e. risking $500 to win $100) to -1000 once Daniel Carlson knocked through the 26-yard field goal, implying nearly an 8% decrease in the Raiders' win probability.

Those are the types of negative dings a team can't take in decisive situations, and a hint as to why Las Vegas' close-game fortune isn't necessarily going to flip this season. The Raiders went a season-crushing 4-9 in one-score games last year, including losing each of the first six, and there were hopes the bounces or luck would swing the other way in 2023.

It happened in Week 1 when the Raiders edged the Broncos 17-16, but that can't be counted on to continue — especially not when McDaniels is inadvertently sabotaging his teams' chances.

"We're going to need another possession anyway so it's not a lack of confidence (in the offense,)" McDaniels said of the decision.

That type of reasoning was more prevalent in the NFL as recently as decade ago, but with a revolution in information and analytics, coaching calls in critical spots have gradually improved. Several teams have an assistant whose role it is to advise the head coach on what years of data indicates is the optimal choice.

The Raiders are apparently not among that group. McDaniels said he "confers with some other people," but the decision is ultimately his alone. He could find some solace in that his players evidently didn't disagree with the decision as those who spoke to the media in the locker room afterward defended McDaniels.

"I agree with what coach did," running back Josh Jacobs said. "I think we had faith in our defense. They were starting to play good at the end of the game, and we believed that we can get the ball back with time to score."

Jacobs had his best game of the year but was still relatively ineffective as a rusher, gaining 60 rushing yards on 17 attempts for an average of less than four yards per carry. His fellow offensive superstar, receiver Davante Adams, was the game's biggest standout with 13 catches for 172 receiving yards and two touchdowns.

Garoppolo targeted Adams on second-down before the field goal at the end of the game, but the pass fell incomplete. He then looked towards Jakobi Meyers, who had seven catches for 85 yards, on third down but Steelers linebacker Kwon Alexander stood strong in coverage.

Adams and Meyers found holes so frequently in Pittsburgh's zone defense, however, that it might have been nice to give them one more chance with the game on the line.

"It's tough because this is a really good team — we have a lot of potential," Adams said. "You're not a good team until you prove it, but this team has some potential. We've got the players."

Adams scored the game's first points when McDaniels made a shrewd play call on fourth-and-1 from the 32-yard-line on the Raiders' second possession. Garoppolo ran play action, faking a handoff to Jacobs that Pittsburgh bit on to help ensure an over-the-top completion that the receiver took into the end zone.

But for the second consecutive week, the Raiders would fall into a midgame lull to make the early touchdown a distant memory. The Steelers scored the game's next 23 points after Adams' touchdown, as the Raiders allowed second-year quarterback Kenny Pickett to have arguably the best game of his career.

Pittsburgh came into Las Vegas' home opener with the worst-rated offense in the league, but Pickett ignited starting with a 72-yard touchdown pass to Calvin Austin less than a minute after Adams' first score. Then Garoppolo started making mistakes.

He didn't handle consistent pressure from former Defensive Player of the Year T.J. Watt and his complements well, taking four sacks in addition to his trio of interceptions. Watt, who finished with two sacks and four quarterback hits, was closing in on Garoppolo during his first interception — thrown right to cornerback Levi Wallace on a pass intended for rookie tight end Michael Mayer.

The second pick was even worse, as Garoppolo held the ball for a prolonged time in the pocket before just throwing it up for grabs and allowing veteran cornerback Patrick Peterson to snag his 35th career interception. The Raiders' own veteran ballhawk, Marcus Peters, had a shot at the 33rd pick of his career but dropped what would have been a sure touchdown on the possession after Austin burned him for a touchdown.

The defense started to look lifeless after the near-miss, especially following Garoppolo's second interception when Pickett then led the Steelers 81 yards down the field on six plays in just more than three minutes. Pittsburgh tight end Pat Freiermuth capped the drive with a 14-yard touchdown pass from Pickett.

"I don't have any issue with the effort or intentions of the defense," McDaniels said. "They gave us an opportunity to win the game."

The Raiders' defense recovered after Freiermuth's score late in the third quarter, forcing two consecutive three-and-outs. The improvement influenced McDaniels' eventual choice to kick the field goal, and the defense went out to the field right before the two-minute warning determined to validate his trust in them.

"We were talking the whole time — 'Everybody stay calm,'" edge rusher Maxx Crosby said. "Nobody blinked. It was just, 'We're going to get a stop and get our offense a chance. That's what we're paid to do.'"

Steelers running back Najee Harris, who had 19 carries for 65 yards on the night, had a five- and three-yard run on first and second down, respectively, to bring up third-and-2 with 2:12 to play. That's when Pickett rolled out and found Allen Robinson for a six-yard completion to all but seal the game.

"We fell short but we didn't need to be in that position in the first place," Crosby said.

Crosby meant that as a commentary on missed opportunities throughout the game and not a criticism of his coach, but it could just as easily be applied to the latter. The Raiders' defense ideally should have been tasked with trying to at least guarantee overtime; not needing a stop just to give its offense the chance at a win.

But that's not how McDaniels saw it. There was a lot of debate on who or what was to blame for the Raiders' close-game failings a year ago.

Former quarterback Derek Carr took the fall, getting benched ironically after a loss to the Steelers and then unceremoniously released. But the latest defeat to the Steelers shows the problem may be far from fixed.

Las Vegas will continue to perform below expectation in close games if its coach continues to make costly choices at inopportune times.

"Obviously, it's disappointing," Crosby said of the loss. "Home opener, we could have played better, and that's upsetting. But it's the NFL. You've got to find ways to improve and that's what I do every day and try to show my teammates. You've just got to keep going forward."

Raiders offense mired by imbalance, turnovers in loss to Steelers

By Danny Webster

September 24, 2023

The Jimmy Garoppolo era in Las Vegas is off to a shaky start.

The Raiders have yet to crack 20 points through three games and their prized free-agent quarterback leads the league in interceptions.

More importantly, the Raiders are 1-2 after dropping their home opener 23-18 to the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday at Allegiant Stadium.

The 31-year-old quarterback crossed the 300-yard mark for the 12th time in his career, throwing for 324 yards and two touchdowns on 28 of 44 passing, but Garoppolo threw three interceptions to increase his league lead to six.

Garoppolo did not speak to the media postgame due to being evaluated for a concussion.

"I think Jimmy makes a lot of good plays but obviously when the quarterback holds the ball, he holds the fortune of our team also in our hands when he does those sort of things," coach Josh McDaniels said. "He knows. He understands the situation and had a couple plays where we had to make a smarter choice and just go ahead, go to the next play whether it's second-and-long or whatever it may be."

This was an uncharacteristic game for Garoppolo. The 44 attempts are the fourth most he's ever had in a game and only the eighth time he's thrown that often.

Meanwhile, star running back Josh Jacobs rushed the ball just 17 times for 62 yards.

There's credit to be given to the Steelers for slowing down last year's NFL rushing leader, but Garoppolo was put in situations that aren't suited toward him. Garoppolo threw a combined 50 times in the Raiders' first two games.

While McDaniels trusted Garoppolo to throw that many times Sunday, he didn't trust him with the game on the line.

The Raiders got to the Steelers' 8-yard line with 2:25 remaining, down 23-15. They got deep into the red zone via a personal foul call on the Steelers that negated a 48-yard field goal by Daniel Carlson.

Instead of going for the touchdown and game-tying 2-point conversion, McDaniels trotted out Carlson to kick the field goal inside the 10-yard line and cut the Steelers' lead to five.

It was the second time in seconds that McDaniels took the ball out of his quarterback's hands to settle for a field goal.

Garoppolo's last chance came with 12 seconds left at his own 15-yard line. His first pass of the drive became Levi Wallace's second interception to end the game.

"It's a matter of the small details," Jacobs said. "At the end of the day, all the little things — three or four bad plays, four or five penalties, it comes down to in the end. That's why you see the score, you end up seeing the difference in the game."

Garoppolo's six picks this season lead the league are one more than Washington's Sam Howell. He's now faced two of the best defenses the past two weeks in Buffalo and Pittsburgh, which doesn't help matters.

The night started well for Garoppolo. The Raiders scored first for the third consecutive game when Garoppolo found Davante Adams for a 32-yard touchdown with seven minutes left in the first quarter.

After that, crickets. The Raiders had six first downs in the first half and 161 total yards. They didn't score again until Adams' 1-yard touchdown grab in the fourth quarter.

"You look at analytics and all these things and teams that have won with the turnover battle and all these things, it doesn't mean (anything) until you go out there and play ball," Adams said. "We're having a tough time consistently doing it right now. I don't want to act like it's all crazy. It's Week 3, but I don't have time to wait around."

Garoppolo's health becomes the biggest question. Sunday marked just his 38th start since 2017 and he's only played one full season in that span.

He's never been the quarterback to consistently throw 40 times a game and win. There's no offensive balance with the Raiders right now, and until it changes, Garoppolo is in the crosshairs, for better or worse.

"Turning it over, this is a team historically that wins when they get turnovers and they have a harder time when they don't," McDaniels said. "A big key for us was to take care of the ball, and we didn't do a good job of that tonight."

THE ATHLETIC

Raiders' flawed offense needs Jimmy Garoppolo to stop forcing the ball

By Tashan Reed

September 24, 2023

LAS VEGAS — Jimmy Garoppolo had nowhere to go with the football. Receivers Davante Adams and Jakobi Meyers were the only Las Vegas Raiders who released into routes downfield, and the Pittsburgh Steelers had them both draped in double coverage.

But Garoppolo had a clean pocket to operate with, so he tried to create something out of nothing. He had enough time to run a play fake to running back Josh Jacobs, look left to Adams, pump fake, look right to Meyers, look back left to Adams and then point for him to turn upfield.

Unbeknownst to Garoppolo, Steelers edge rusher T.J. Watt had managed to free himself from tight end Michael Mayer and was making a beeline toward him from the quarterback's right side. When he looked back to the right toward Meyers, he realized Watt, who'd already sacked him twice on the night, was in his face.

The Raiders trailed 16-7, but it was only second-and-10 with 22 minutes left to play, so throwing the ball away or even taking another sack weren't disastrous options. Instead, Garoppolo attempted a fadeaway throw to Meyers off his back foot, and the pass sailed straight into the waiting arms of Steelers cornerback Patrick Peterson for an interception.

Garoppolo's second pick of the game — he finished with three — was a crucial mistake in the Raiders' 23-18 loss to the Steelers on Sunday. It was a decision of a quarterback who's forcing it just a bit too much.

"Those are plays, obviously, we don't want to make," coach Josh McDaniels said. "I think Jimmy makes a lot of good plays but, obviously, when the quarterback holds the ball, he holds the fortune of our team also in his hands when he's doing those things. He knows. He understands the situation."

Garoppolo didn't address the media after the game because he was being evaluated for a concussion. He finished the game against the Steelers, so the evaluation wasn't conducted until the game was already over. Garoppolo also was evaluated for a concussion against the Broncos in Week 1 before ultimately being cleared and returning to the game. Whether or not he was concussed this time, suffering two head injuries — even minor ones — in three games is concerning. We should learn more about the quarterback's status Monday.

Garoppolo's first interception against the Steelers — a misplaced ball thrown behind Mayer — was another unnecessarily risky second-down throw. His third and final pick came in a desperation situation with the Raiders needing to drive 85 yards in 12 seconds at the end of the game, but it may not have been necessary if he had avoided his earlier miscues. The first two interceptions led to two short fields and 10 points for a Steelers offense that had struggled to move the ball in its first two games, and both came on plays Garoppolo didn't need to make.

"He had a couple of plays where we've got to make a smarter choice and just go ahead to the next play," McDaniels said.

On the night, Garoppolo completed 28 of 44 passes for 324 yards, two touchdowns and the three interceptions. Turnovers aside, Garoppolo's accuracy was erratic, and he missed a number of open targets. He just didn't look comfortable.

In three games this season, Garoppolo now has a league-high six interceptions. The quarterback giving the ball away wasn't the only reason the Raiders fell short in a home opener filled with "Let's Go Steelers!" chants, a sea of Terrible Towels and cheers from thousands of Steelers fans who made the trip to Vegas, but it remains a trend that has significantly contributed to the offense's struggles early this season.

The Raiders (1-2) are averaging just 15 points per game, close to the bottom of the league. Considering they're 10th in offensive spending (according to Over the Cap), that's well short of expectations.

McDaniels and general manager Dave Ziegler handpicked Garoppolo — a familiar face from their days with the Patriots — to replace Derek Carr at quarterback this offseason because they believed he could take the offense to another level. So far, the unit has gotten markedly worse.

To be fair to Garoppolo, it's not all his fault. The offensive line has regressed dramatically when it comes to run blocking. As a result, Jacobs, who led the league in rushing last season, has managed just 108 rushing yards and 2.4 yards per carry through three games. The offense has been one-dimensional. And without the threat of a run game, the Steelers pass rush was free to tee off on Garoppolo to the tune of four sacks and eight QB hits. Since Garoppolo didn't have much time to throw, the Pittsburgh secondary was able to play aggressive coverage without fearing the deep ball. To top it all off, the Raiders defense had several costly breakdowns that forced the team to play from behind, which exacerbated the offensive woes. It's easy to see how Garoppolo could struggle in that situation.

Still, Garoppolo must be accountable for his carelessness with the football. He's on pace to throw 34 interceptions this season, which would break Ken Stabler's single-season record for a Raiders quarterback of 30 in 1978.

Garoppolo's status ahead of the Raiders' Week 4 contest against the Chargers (1-2) in Los Angeles is obviously something to monitor. Whenever he suits up next, he'll have to do a much better job of protecting the ball for his offense to have a chance of becoming what it hoped to be this season.

“We have a lot of potential. We have the players,” Adams said. “We just have to figure out how to play together on both sides of the ball and stop putting ourselves in such tough-to-overcome positions. We’re having a tough time consistently doing that right now. I don’t want to act like it’s all crazy — it’s Week 3 — but I don’t have time to wait around ... (We’re) not doing things the right way to establish a winning culture early in the season. So, we’ve got to do something to turn that around.”

Tafur: Josh McDaniels ran out of faith in Raiders’ offense in loss to Steelers

By Vic Tafur

September 24, 2023

LAS VEGAS — With 3:15 left in Sunday night’s game and his team down eight points, Las Vegas Raiders coach Josh McDaniels made the terrible decision to kick a field goal rather than go for it on fourth-and-5 from the Pittsburgh Steelers’ 29-yard line.

Luckily, the Steelers’ DeMarvin Leal was called for a leverage penalty and the Raiders took the three points off the board and got the ball back. Three plays later, it was fourth-and-4 at the 8-yard line with 2:25 left and ...

McDaniels made an even worse decision.

He decided to kick the field goal again. Daniel Carlson nailed it, as he is wont to do, and the Raiders went on to lose their home opener, 23-18, to the Steelers.

McDaniels has Davante Adams, the best receiver in football, Josh Jacobs, the league’s leading rusher a year ago, and Jimmy Garoppolo, his handpicked quarterback. And he has quite a resume as a six-time Super Bowl-winning assistant with the New England Patriots. But he didn’t have one play he liked there.

McDaniels didn’t have any confidence in his offense.

Instead, he hoped that his defense could get a stop and that he would use his three timeouts to get the ball back. But on, third-and-2 on the Steelers’ ensuing possession, Raiders safeties Nate Hobbs and Marcus Epps were confused as to who was covering Allen Robinson II and he grabbed a 6-yard pass from Kenny Pickett for a first down.

The Raiders did get the ball back with 12 seconds left at their own 15-yard line, but desperate times call for desperate passes and Garoppolo sailed his third interception of the night. Half of the fans at Allegiant Stadium were thrilled.

After the game, McDaniels did not agree that he lacked confidence in his offense.

“No,” McDaniels said. “You’re going to need another possession anyway, you know what I mean. It’s not a lack of confidence. We went for it multiple times.”

You’re going to need two possessions to win the game, but only one to keep the game from being over. Worst-case scenario, the Raiders don’t convert the fourth down and the Steelers have the ball backed up at the 8-yard line with three timeout calls coming.

Best-case scenario, Adams makes his 14th catch of the game and then maybe his 15th, and the game is tied up.

Instead of putting the game in his or Jacobs’ hands (dump-off pass?), McDaniels put it in the hands of Hobbs and Epps. And I like Hobbs and Epps more than a lot of the defensive players on this team, but that’s not a wise trade-off.

And to hear McDaniels talk about it, it didn't seem like a tough decision.

"You have two choices there," McDaniels said. "You try to make it a five-point game where you have a chance to win it with a touchdown if you get the ball back, or you go for it there and if you happen to convert then you have to make the two-point conversion."

It would have taken a lot, no doubt, and maybe McDaniels didn't like the odds of an all-or-nothing play with the game on the line. After all, Garoppolo was taking a beating as the offensive line added pass-blocking to its run-blocking woes. And Garoppolo was making some really bad throws even when he had time. On his second interception, he just threw it up for Jakobi Meyers, who had two defenders on him, and Patrick Peterson caught it in a jog like he and Garoppolo were playing catch in the park.

Maybe McDaniels was afraid of the crowd noise. Twice, the visiting Steelers fans were so loud that the offense was called for pre-snap penalties. It was so bad that when Garoppolo took a helmet-to-helmet shot on a blitz and the Steelers were called for a penalty, the boos were among the loudest of the night at Mark Davis' $2 billion Allegiant Stadium.

The Raiders did go for it on fourth down twice earlier in the game, McDaniels was right, but I don't know what that has to do with kicking a field goal to pull within five points. When the best players on your team (with the exception of Maxx Crosby) control their own destinies.

Adams was asked about kicking the field goal that late in the game and he is no dummy. He didn't touch it. Shouldn't touch it. His job is not to question play calling.

But he talked about the loss. And how the team is still trying to find ways to win after they took all those lumps last season. The Steelers came into the game with the worst offense in football and led 23-7 in the third quarter. In a game where McDaniels had promised "electricity." That gets lost in all the talk about going for a field goal down eight.

"We have to stop putting ourselves in all these tough-to-overcome situations," Adams said. "We have to take care of the ball. ... All these analytics and these things about teams winning the turnover battle and they don't mean s— until you go out there and play ball. We're having a tough time consistently doing that right now."

Adams is 30 and he wants to win a Super Bowl ring. He thought that window was closing in Green Bay and that's why he came to Las Vegas. But that window has been hard to open, with all the close losses last season, the falling out between Derek Carr and the Raiders brass, and now a lot of new players in what was a ho-hum offseason.

"I don't want to act like it's all crazy ... it's Week 3 ... but I don't got time to be waiting around," Adams said. "It's not a personal thing — well, it is a personal thing. It ain't just about me but it's not my mentality to sit here and take all season to try to figure it out.

"We're not doing things the right way to establish a winning culture early in the season and we have to do something to turn it around."

Garoppolo didn't talk to reporters because he was being evaluated for a possible concussion. Jacobs said he agreed with McDaniels' decision and that he had "faith" in the defense.

Having faith is a beautiful thing. But when you look at the worst-case scenarios for going for it and settling for the field goal, it is clear that McDaniels didn't have faith in his offensive line, Garoppolo, Jacobs and the best receiver in the game to gain 4 yards with his favorite play in his playbook. And that might be more concerning than the lack of impact from this year's free-agent signings or draft picks, the lack of a running game or a pass rush or a defensive turnover, or the team's 1-2 start.

ESPN.COMJosh McDaniels: Field goal doesn't signal lack of confidence in Raiders offense

By Paul Gutierrez

September 24, 2023

LAS VEGAS -- Trailing by eight points and facing fourth-and-4 at the Pittsburgh Steelers' 8-yard line with 2:25 to play, Las Vegas Raiders coach Josh McDaniels sent out his field goal team.

Less than a minute earlier, Las Vegas kicker Daniel Carlson had converted a 48-yarder only for it to be negated by a Steelers penalty, putting the Raiders closer to the end zone.

"You have two choices there," McDaniels said after the Raiders fell to the Steelers, 23-18, on Sunday night. "You try to make it a five-point game [with the field goal], where you have an opportunity to win it with the touchdown if you get the ball back. Or you try to go for it there. And then if you happen to convert then you've got to make the two-point conversion."

According to ESPN analytics, going for it would have given the Raiders a 15.8% win probability, compared to 10.2% by kicking the field goal.

With three timeouts remaining, plus the 2-minute warning, McDaniels had faith that his defense could get the ball back with enough time to drive for a winning score.

Instead, the Steelers started at their own 25-yard line, got a first down and, by the time Las Vegas got the ball back, there were just 12 seconds on the clock, all of the Raiders' timeouts were burned and they were on their own 15-yard line.

A Jimmy Garoppolo interception -- his third of the game -- on a deep out pass to Davante Adams on the left sideline ended the game.

Asked if not going for it was a sign of a lack of confidence in the offense, McDaniels shook his head.

"You're going to need another possession anyway, you know what I mean?" he said. "So, it is not a lack of confidence."

Then how close was McDaniels to going for it on fourth-and-4?

"I don't know, I mean, we kicked one earlier in that sequence ... and then we're fortunate enough to get a penalty on that field goal and then got down there," McDaniels said. "I mean, it is what it is. Like I said, you can go either way with those, and I did have confidence that we were playing well enough defensively and would have an opportunity to maybe get the ball back with two minutes to go and have an opportunity to go down there and take the lead."

Garoppolo did not comment on the decision as he was not made available to the media after the game. A team spokesperson said the quarterback was being evaluated for a concussion. It was not clear when Garoppolo was injured, as he was not evaluated for a concussion during the game and played throughout, though he did take several hard hits and was sacked four times. He finished the game 28-of-44 passing for 324 yards with two touchdowns and the three interceptions.

And while running back Josh Jacobs said he supported the decision to kick the field goal, Adams would only say he did not want to be seen as second-guessing anyone.

"I agree with what Coach did," said Jacobs, who rushed for a season-high 62 yards on 17 carries. "The defense was starting to play good at the end of the game. We could have got the ball back with time to score."

Said Adams, who had 13 catches for 172 yards and two TDs: "I don't like getting into that. That's not a good look for me. I'm a receiver."

McDaniels says he has confidence in offense, despite opting for FG late in game

By W.G Ramirez

September 24, 2023

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Las Vegas Raiders coach Josh McDaniels insists the confidence he has in his offense is intact.

He just didn't necessarily show it Sunday on a crucial fourth down with 2:25 left in the game and the Raiders trailing 23-15 against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

McDaniels sent kicker Daniel Carlson onto the field for a 26-yard field goal to make it a five-point game.

Though they got the ball back on their own 15-yard line with 12 seconds left, it wouldn't matter as Pittsburgh cornerback Levi Wallace intercepted Raiders quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo to help the Steelers secure a 23-18 win.

"No! No!" McDaniels answered emphatically when asked if going for the field goal showed a lack of confidence in his offense. "You're going to need another possession anyway. It's not a lack of confidence. We went for it multiple times."

Twice, the Raiders went for it on fourth down earlier in the game, converting once.

Once, the Raiders went for it on fourth down in their first two games.

Fact is, with an underwhelming rushing game that ranks second-to-last behind the Steelers with 116 yards, and a passing game that has the third-fewest passing yards (385). Making matters worse for Las Vegas' rushing game was the fact the Steelers came into the game having allowed 386 yards on the ground through two games - worst in the NFL. After Sunday, they're second-worst in allowing 455 yards.

McDaniels tried to rationalize his decision.

"You have two choices there," he said. "You try to make it a five-point game where you have an opportunity to win it with a touchdown if you get the ball back, or, you try to go for it there and if you happen to convert then you got to make the two-point conversion and all the rest of it."

"Those are the decisions you got to make."

So why the decision to attempt the field goal?

Perhaps because the NFL reigning rushing king Josh Jacobs has struggled to find his footing through three games, rushing for just 108 yards on 45 attempts, an average of 2.4 yards per carry. It's his fewest amount of yards through Week 3 when he's played in every game.

In 2019 he ran for 228 yards and in 2020 he topped that with 252. After playing in only one game through the first three weeks of the 2021 season, he rushed for 192 yards by Week 3 last season.

“I think the running game is a function of a lot of people doing their job well,” McDaniels said “It was last year when he was the rushing champion, a lot of people did their job well, including him. And I don’t feel like we’re quite there yet, obviously. We haven’t done a very good job of running the football for three games.”

Then there’s Garoppolo, who has thrown a league-worst six interceptions, including three on Sunday.

“Those are plays obviously we don’t want to make,” McDaniels said. “Jimmy makes a lot of good plays, but obviously when the quarterback holds the ball, he holds the fortune of our team also in his hands when he’s doing those things. He understands the situation and ... had a couple plays where we got to make a smarter choice and just go ahead and go to the next play, whether it’s second and long or whatever it may be. But turning it over, this team is a team historically, they win when they get turnovers and they have a harder time when they don’t. A big key obviously was for us to take care of the ball. We didn’t do a good enough job of that tonight.”

Garoppolo didn’t speak to the media after the game because he was being evaluated for a concussion.

Not a good sign for a struggling offense and a date with the AFC West-rival Los Angeles Chargers in Inglewood next Sunday.

Kenny Pickett passes for 2 touchdowns as Pittsburgh Steelers top Las Vegas Raiders 23-18

By Mark Anderson

September 24, 2023

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Even picking up first downs was a challenge for Pittsburgh’s offense in the first two games, so much so that fans loudly chanted for a change in the offensive coordinator.

All is not settled after the Steelers’ 23-18 victory over the Las Vegas Raiders on Sunday night, but Kenny Pickett said it was something to build upon after he passed for 235 yards and two touchdowns.

The Steelers had 333 yards and 17 first downs, fairly pedestrian by modern NFL standards, but Pittsburgh totaled just 494 yards and 24 first downs through its first two games.

“I think we’re on track to getting (the offensive mojo) back,” Pickett said. “There’s never a perfect game. There are things we wished we had back, and that’s always going to be the case, but I think we’re definitely heading towards that stuff we need to have back.”

In a span of 6 plays, the Steelers’ offense got its mojo back. Now comes the hard part: keeping it

In the first meeting between the franchises in Las Vegas, the Steelers earned their first road win against the Raiders since 1995, though it didn’t feel much like an away game with about half the crowd waving Terrible Towels.

“To have a team on the silent count in their own stadium is pretty demoralizing,” said Steelers outside linebacker T.J. Watt, who had two sacks. “It also helps the pass rush so much more. I’m very appreciative of everybody that came out tonight.”

Las Vegas trailed 23-7 going into the fourth quarter. It had a chance to tie the game in the final minutes, but coach Josh McDaniels settled for a short field goal instead of trying to convert a fourth-and-4 at the 8.

Pittsburgh (2-1) struggled offensively in its first two games, but it looked much better against Las Vegas (1-2). Pickett completed 16 of 28 passes, and George Pickens finished with four receptions for 75 yards.

“(Pickett) made the necessary plays,” Steelers coach Mike Tomlin said. “I thought he was good in the environment. I thought he was a good communicator. He did the job tonight.”

Watt had another sensational game, recording half of Pittsburgh's four sacks less than a week after returning a fumble for the winning touchdown on Monday night against the Cleveland Browns. The Raiders were the only team that hadn't allowed a sack through the first two weeks.

Chris Boswell made three field goals for the Steelers, including one from 57 yards. His longest is a 59-yarder against the Dallas Cowboys three years ago.

Las Vegas was hurt by three more interceptions for Jimmy Garoppolo, running his total to an NFL-high six on the season. Garoppolo was evaluated for a concussion after the game.

“Those are plays obviously we don't want to make,” McDaniels said. “Jimmy makes a lot of good plays, but obviously when the quarterback holds the ball, he holds the fortune of our team also in his hands when he's doing those things. ... A big key obviously was for us to take care of the ball. We didn't do a good enough job of that tonight.”

Garoppolo was 28 for 44 for 324 yards and two touchdowns, both to Davante Adams in another impressive performance for the receiver. Adams finished with 13 receptions for 172 yards.

The NFL's reigning rushing champion, Josh Jacobs, had nowhere to run once again. He finished with 62 yards on 17 carries for the Raiders, giving him just 106 yards through three games.

Not that the Steelers' rushing attack has been much better, but Najee Harris did gain 65 yards on 19 rushes. He entered the game with just 74 yards.

Both teams came out with long touchdown passes. Garoppolo converted a fourth-and-1 with a 32-yard pass to Adams, and Pickett launched a 72-yarder to Calvin Austin.

The Steelers grabbed control late in the third quarter. Trailing 16-7, the Raiders drove to Pittsburgh's 48-yard line. Garoppolo dropped back and had plenty of time, but couldn't find an open receiver. He lobbed a pass into double coverage that was intercepted by Patrick Peterson.

The Steelers then drove 81 yards on six plays, with Pickett completing a 13-yard pass to tight end Pat Freiermuth for a 23-7 lead with 3:56 left in the third.

But Las Vegas closed to 23-15 with 5:41 left in the game. Garoppolo completed a 1-yard TD pass to Adams, and then found tight end Michael Mayer for the 2-point conversion.

Daniel Carlson made a 26-yard field goal with 2:22 remaining to make it 23-18, giving him more than 600 career points.

RAIDERS.COM'We've got to stop beating ourselves': Turnovers and penalties hinder Raiders in home opener

By Levi Edwards

September 24, 2023

The common emotion in the Raiders locker room at the moment is frustration.

They have every right to be frustrated after losing a tightly contested battle to the Pittsburgh Steelers, 23-18, in the home opener. Despite several outstanding performances, the team as a whole couldn't make enough plays to come away victorious.

Down 23-7 in the fourth quarter, the Silver and Black stormed back with 11 unanswered points with a chance to take the lead. However, the clock began to work against them – with a red zone stall and a third Jimmy Garoppolo interception ending any hopes of a comeback. Seven committed penalties didn't help their cause either.

"Those are plays obviously we don't want to make," Josh McDaniels said following the game. "I think Jimmy makes a lot of good plays, but obviously when the quarterback holds the ball, he holds the fortune of our team also in his hands when he's doing those things. He knows. He understands the situation. Had a couple plays where we've got to make a smarter choice and just go ahead and go to the next play whether its second-and-long or whatever it may be.

"But turning it over, this team is a team historically that, they win when they get turnovers," McDaniels on the Steelers defense. "They have a harder time when they don't. Big key obviously for us was to take care of the ball and we didn't do a good enough job."

The loss came hard for team captains Davante Adams and Maxx Crosby. The veteran receiver caught a touchdown pass in his 13th straight Sunday Night Football game, connecting with Garoppolo for 172 yards, 13 catches and two touchdowns.

Crosby finished with three total tackles, a sack and was able to garner enough attention from the Steelers offensive line for his teammates to make plays alongside him.

Needless to say, their stat lines didn't do anything to help satisfy them following the loss.

"We've got to be real with ourselves," Adams said following the game. "We get these opportunities to watch tape together and do these constructive things, we've got to get something out of it. That's not just talking, but it's about putting it to action and figuring out what's wrong and doing something about it so that way when we go out there the next time it looks different."

"Davante is 100 percent right and he has a right to be frustrated because that dude shows up every day and he gets better," Crosby said. "Me and him are tight as ever because that's how we are since day one. That's why he's elite and he has a right to feel that way, and I feel the exact same way. We've got to stop beating ourselves. It's something we've got to look at and find out how we can avoid doing that."

Following the close loss at home, the Raiders get back on the road Week 4. They must quickly prepare to face the Los Angeles Chargers at SoFi Stadium, who hold the same 1-2 record.

Quick Snap: Raiders comeback bid falters against Steelers

By Levi Edwards

September 24, 2023

There was no love lost between the Raiders and Steelers, which was expected coming into the game. Unfortunately for the Raiders, Pittsburgh made a few more plays down to stretch to secure a 23-18 win.

The game was a defensive chess match. With an impressive pass rush on Kenny Pickett and good pass coverage by Nate Hobbs, the Silver and Black got on the board first.

Head Coach Josh McDaniels cooked up a courageous play call on 4th-and-1, with Jimmy Garoppolo sending a 32-yard touchdown pass to Davante Adams on a play-action pass.

From there, things began to go south for the Raiders, as the Steelers scored 23 unanswered points after Adams' touchdown grab. Kenny Pickett rallied back after early offensive woes to finish the day 16-of-28 for 235 yards and two touchdowns. The Steelers also got complimentary play from their defense, as cornerbacks Levi Wallace and Patrick Peterson both intercepted Garoppolo.

In the fourth quarter, the Raiders woke up out their slump to make things interesting. Garoppolo led the offense 80 yards down the field, capping off the 11-play drive with another touchdown throw to Adams. A two-point conversion to rookie tight end Michael Mayer made it a one-possession game.

After a defensive stop with another clutch pass deflection from Hobbs, the Raiders capitalized off good field position for Daniel Carlson to kick a 26-yard field goal – which brought him to a career 600 points with the Raiders.

The Silver and Black got the ball back with 12 seconds left in regulation, however a third Garoppolo interception ended their comeback bid.

Davante Adams: We're not doing the right things to build a winning culture

By Josh Alper

September 24, 2023

Raiders wide receiver Davante Adams had a big Sunday night on the field and he made sure he had a big voice about the team's direction after the game.

Adams' 13 catches for 172 yards and two touchdowns weren't enough to keep the Raiders from losing 23-18 to the Steelers. The loss dropped them to 1-2 on the season and 7-13 since Adams joined the team in a 2022 trade.

The wideout made it clear that he wants to see those results change as soon as possible and said that the time for the team stops talking about what they need to do differently. Adams said it is time to start "putting it into action" and that he wants to see that happen immediately.

"It's not my mentality to sit here and try to take all season and figure it out," Adams said, via Vincent Bonsignore of the Las Vegas Review-Journal. "You use these early games like this to establish an identity. We're not doing things the right way to establish a winning culture. . . . We've got to go out there and do it. That's the theme of this year — doing it. Not just talking about it and figuring out what we need to do. We did all that last year. This year we gotta be about it."

The Raiders talked a lot about the process of building a consistent winner after hiring head coach Josh McDaniels and General Manager Dave Ziegler last season, but they also traded for Adams and signed edge rusher Chandler Jones in moves that signaled an intent to try to win right away. They haven't done that and Adams' comments suggest that not everyone in the locker room is sold on the path that the Raiders are following this year either.

Josh McDaniels: Late field goal wasn't a lack of confidence in offense

By Josh Alper

September 25, 2023

Raiders head coach Josh McDaniels was faced with a decision on fourth-and-4 from the Steelers' 8-yard-line with just over two minutes left in Sunday night's game.

The Steelers led 23-15 and the Raiders had all three timeouts, so the Raiders had the option to kick a field goal or go for a touchdown. McDaniels opted to kick and cut the Pittsburgh lead to five points with the hope that their defense would get them the ball back quickly.

That did not happen as the Steelers converted a first down and then punted the ball to the Raiders after three more plays. The Raiders took over with 12 seconds to go from their own 15-yard-line and Jimmy Garoppolo threw an interception on the next play. After the game, McDaniels was asked if the field goal attempt was a sign he lacked confidence in the offense.

"You're going to need another possession anyway, you know what I mean?" McDaniels said, via Paul Gutierrez of ESPN.com. "So, it is not a lack of confidence. . . . I don't know, I mean, we kicked one earlier in that sequence . . . and then we're fortunate enough to get a penalty on that field goal and then got down there. I mean, it is what it is. Like I said, you can go either way with those, and I did have confidence that we were playing well enough defensively and would have an opportunity to maybe get the ball back with two minutes to go and have an opportunity to go down there and take the lead."

McDaniels' reference to the penalty on a field goal came on a kick with 3:15 left in the game that the Raiders took off the board after a leverage penalty on the Steelers. ESPN analytics considered it a toss up to kick or go for the first down at that point and various models said the Raiders had a better chance of winning if they had gone for it instead of kicking the second time around.

The Raiders went the other way and they're 1-2 this morning.

Raiders head coach Josh McDaniels explains field goal down eight with 2:22 to go: 'You're going to need another possession anyway'

By Grant Gordon

September 24, 2023

Down eight with 2:22 seconds to go, Las Vegas Raiders head coach Josh McDaniels went for three on Sunday night.

Not long after, the Raiders lost to the Pittsburgh Steelers by five, 23-18, and the math added up to a 1-2 start to the Silver and Black's season.

It was a confounding decision -- even more so considering McDaniels made the choice to go for a field goal twice on his team's penultimate possession. He stood by his call, however.

"You have two choices there," McDaniels said after the game. "You try to make it a five-point game where you have an opportunity to win it with a touchdown if you get the ball back. Or you try to go for it there, and if you happen to convert you have to make the two-point conversion, all the rest of it. So, those are the decisions you've got to make. I thought we did a decent job putting ourselves in third down there the next series with the defense to try to have a play to get off the field, and we just didn't handle that play very well."

As it played out, Daniel Carlson's 26-yard field goal trimmed the Raiders' deficit to the final score with 2:22 to play. However, while McDaniels' decision cut the deficit, it also cut the Raiders' win probability by 5.4%, per Next Gen Stats. Had Las Vegas rolled the dice on fourth down, its win probability was 13.9% in comparison to 8.5% kicking a field goal. Odds are big in Vegas, but McDaniels didn't see it that way.

Asked if bringing on Carlson was an indictment of his confidence in the office, McDaniels replied, "No. No."

Asked to explain, things got a bit more muddled.

"You're going to need another possession anyway; you know what I mean?" McDaniels said. "So, it's not a lack of confidence. We went for it multiple times."

McDaniels went for it twice on fourth down and the Raiders were 1 of 2 in the game. This time out, he didn't go for it, because, per his explanation, he needed two possessions to win the game.

Had the Raiders scored a touchdown and a two-point conversion, yes, they would've needed another possession to win it. But overtime obviously would've sufficed. Had they scored six and failed on a two-point attempt, they would've needed to get the ball back for a chance to score a game-winner -- just as was a given to happen with a field goal. And had they failed going for it on fourth, they would've been in a similar situation of needing to get the ball back in an attempt to tie it with the same eight-point deficiency.

The odds weren't great for the Raiders, but a field goal attempt was puzzling in the category of conventional wisdom. All the more so when adding the offense's turnaround after sputtering through the first three quarters.

Trailing, 23-7, in the fourth quarter with 11:32 remaining, the Raiders made a game out of it when Jimmy Garoppolo connected with Davante Adams for a 1-yard touchdown and then hit Michael Mayer on the ensuing two-point conversion.

Las Vegas' defense subsequently forced a second straight three-and-out and the Raiders offense was back at it. Stalled at the Pittsburgh 29-yard line, McDaniels elected to go for a 48-yard Carlson field goal with 3:11 to go. The choice seemed stunning at the time, but it made no matter as the Raiders received renewed hope when Pittsburgh was flagged for leverage on the FG attempt.

With a fresh new set of downs, Garoppolo and Co. gained just six yards to set up fourth-and-4 from the Pittsburgh 8.

Carlson trotted back out, did his job and left the Raider Nation scratching its collective spiked helmet.

The Raiders' last gasp came with possession from their 15-yard line with 12 seconds to go after the Steelers were able to get a first down before a marvelous Pressley Harvin III punt.

Las Vegas' faintest of final hopes were officially dashed when Garoppolo threw an interception.

Carlson's field goal stood as the game's final score, the Raiders having brought three points to an eight-point fight.

Raiders Star Maxx Crosby Is Looking for New Ways to Tap Into That Final 1%

By Anna Katherine Clemmons

August 3, 2023

Some pro athletes will say they don't take a break in the offseason. Maxx Crosby lives that truth. He is up at 5AM every off-season day—weekdays and weekends—and at the Raiders facility by 6AM. Often, he arrives to find he has the strength coaching staff to himself, since no one else has arrived that early. Crosby has an entire team of strength, recovery, training and nutrition coaches who meet and collaborate on how to help him reach his max(x) potential. Every meal, every workout, every day's focus is meticulously planned. One could argue that this dedication has made Crosby—who is entering his 5th NFL season—one of the best defenders in the league.

"I am so locked in and obsessive about who I am as a person," Crosby says. "Rachel [his wife], at times, she's like, 'you are crazy.' It's almost like a superpower for me. I know how hard it is to do it at my level. No one wants to get up at 5AM every day in the offseason, but I'm doing it. I go into that building and it's empty as hell. But I don't look at it as, 'Damn I have to be here.' I'm like, 'I am lucky to be here.'"

That mentality is working.

After being drafted in the fourth round out of Eastern Michigan in the 2019 Draft, Crosby has proven himself a defensive force in the league. His 81 pressures in 2022 was a career-best, as were his 12.5 sacks and 36 QB hits, and he led the league in tackles for loss; no player has more pressures (100) over the last two seasons. He was also the league's only defensive lineman to play more than 1,000 defensive snaps in 2022. Steelers tight end Pat Freiermuth told Pardon My Take in June that Crosby is the hardest guy to block in the league.

In February, playing in his second Pro Bowl, Crosby played on his home turf in Vegas and took home the AFC Defensive MVP award after an impressive stat line: five total tackles, three pass deflections, three tackles for loss and a game-high two sacks.

In October, the 25-year-old and his longtime girlfriend, Rachel, welcomed a baby girl, Ella Rose. Five months later, he and Rachel were married, and he celebrated his three-year sobriety anniversary.

But even with all the positive direction in his life, that elusive title awaits. After a 6-11 season last year, the Raiders signed a new QB—Jimmy Garoppolo—this year and several other new talents. Crosby, twice voted captain by his teammates, is now seen as a one of the team's key veterans. And as he pointed out, the Raiders now play in a city of champions—and he wants to reach that pinnacle. “You see the Aces (WNBA) win a championship, you see the Knights (NHL) win a title. I take that shit personally. I want to be in that parade, I want to be standing there with a trophy in Las Vegas. I want to be a part of changing the whole narrative around the Las Vegas Raiders, and the Raiders in general. That’s why I work the way I work and lead the way I lead. I hold myself to the highest standard. And I want these guys to do it with me. I want to do it with the Raiders—they’re the team that took a chance on me.”

The Raiders are likely pretty happy about that choice. We caught up with Crosby ahead of training camp.

You literally have two ‘x’s on your name because of how big of a baby you were [11 lbs., 9 oz]. Was she also a giant baby?

[laughs] She was eight pounds, 4 oz. Pretty big, but nothing crazy. When it comes to arm and leg length, she’s above average to say the least. She’s growing really fast. She’s already crawling, standing up, she’ll be running around in the next couple weeks.

In the spring of 2021, you talked about your “no days off” mentality. That has certainly shown on the field. What has conditioning been like for you this off-season?

It’s been an incredible off-season. From a training aspect, I sat down with my nutrition guys, my strength staff, everyone I work with, to get ready for another off-season. We came up with a great plan. I got this from Kobe [Bryant]: I make agreements with myself. I’ll be in the building by this time, I will do all these different things: I will hit this speed on the field, work up to this, etc. These are the things I’m pushing for and working toward. I still have a few [offseason] weeks left, but I’ll just say this, it’s been an incredible off-season.

We started January 30th and I’ve been training ever since. I’ve had one week off. I finally got it, the week before last, where I could go home [to Texas] and decompress. It was weird. I’m so used to going, going, and focusing on improving. My coach was like, “Take the week, do your normal routine, eat what you are supposed to, do Normatec two hours a day, stretch before bed, etc.” But I wasn’t training. I really had to psych myself out, because I know just one speed. I am so obsessed with becoming the best version of myself and the best in the league, that I will do whatever it takes. And that also requires me to listen. So when coaches tell me to take the week off, it’s time to go home. Go relax. Then the last two weeks I’ve been back training on my regular schedule. I’m at [the Raiders] facility at 6AM, it’s empty, I’m getting after it.

Do you work with one particular trainer or a group of guys?

Rick Slate, he’s my guy, he’s an incredible strength coach, and he’s helped me in so many ways. Without that dude, I don’t know where I’d be as far as an athlete. He’s helping me maximize my potential in the weight room. We’ve created a super special bond and we are continuing to improve at a very fast rate. That dude is just dialed in, he’s so focused on the details.

Your off-season workouts also included an impromptu 10-mile run in Miami. Are you turning into a 6’5,” 250-lb distance runner?

[Laughs] I went to Miami [for a UFC event] and I'd already done my two full days of workouts and training. I had to do two more—a lift and a run. Thursday we did all this training inside with Dana's trainer. For Friday, I was supposed to run 100s. So Hunter Campbell, Dana [White]'s right hand man, says the day before that he's got a 10-mile run in the AM and asks, "Who's coming with me?" Everyone was like, "Hell no," and I looked at him, like, "What's up, I'll do it!" Everyone is looking at me, like, "You don't want to do that." We woke up early Friday and ran on South Beach—5 miles down, 5 miles back. It was humid, hot as hell. It was one of the hardest things I've ever done. I've never done anything like it. But I finished, even though the last few miles were difficult.

One of my off-season themes has been to be as uncomfortable as hell and put myself in uncharted territory. NFL Films wanted me to go and spar with someone at UFC, so I'm like, "Okay, I can find someone, but he's a top-five middleweight." I hit up Sean Strickland. NFL Films was recording us beating the hell out of each other. I'm bleeding out of my nose, these people are like, "What is going on right now?" I didn't get knocked down. I fought three rounds, we were legitimately going at it. That's what it's about for me—new ways to find that 1% of myself. Don't question, just do it, and we'll see what happens.

What is it about UFC that you love?

I've been watching it since I was a kid. My dad showed me UFC. WWE was spoiled out the gate—my dad said, "This isn't real, don't watch that shit." My brother and I would watch UFC and I fell in love with it from an early age. What I love about it: it's just one-on-one, you got nowhere to run, it's just you and another man. Who will be the better man at that moment?

It applies directly to football, which is why I put it into my training: hand speed, cardio, especially at my size. I'm 260, but I can move really well for my size. I wanted to take another step in my cardio and speed. Being a pass rusher I have to use my hands every play. I've been doing boxing training the last two years and putting myself in uncomfortable territory. You see me in the facility, I'm in there sparring the air 90% of the time. I bring the D-line in every Wednesday, we're getting after it every Wednesday.

My boxing training has been a direct translation to one of the things that has taken my game to the next level. It's not necessarily like you're doing moves that will apply directly to football, but when it comes to hand speed and timing and distance, you gotta train boxing to understand how that applies to football. Pass rush, having your counter, it's the same as throwing a right and left hook. Chop and spin, it's all gotta look the same, you gotta time it, you gotta identify what they're trying to give you and process it fast.

It seems like you love being around UFC, which makes Vegas an ideal home.

Absolutely. When I got drafted by the Raiders, I knew they were going to Vegas after my rookie year. And I told everyone in my circle, "I am going to every fight." That is my dream. I go to all the UFC events, and that's not even just in Vegas. I try to go everywhere. I love the environment and the sport so much. It helps that I'm good friends with Dana White and Hunter

Campbell. I love being around them—[they're] great mentors, and on top of it, I love the sport as well.

The past two years have definitely been your strongest to date. You finished last season with a league-leading 22 tackles for losses and a career best 12.5 sacks, 36 QB hits and 89 combined tackles. And you finished sixth in in AP Defensive Player of the Year Voting. Do you set specific number goals for yourself?

I don't set goals as far as "I'll get 10 sacks or this amount of TFLs." I learned that from Von Miller, one of my best mentors. He was at A&M, he had a big season and then he was like, "I want to go 20 sacks this year." Then he had four. My second year in college, I was like, "I want to get at least 7 sacks." I got one and a half. I was like, what the hell.

So I am really about theme goals. I set one every off-season. Two years ago, going into my third season, it was 100-plus. I put it on my phone case on the back. 100-plus on the field, in the weight room. Everything with 100-plus effort. I wanted a 100-plus million contract, and I got close ($98.98 million). I wanted 100-plus pressures. And I got 100-plus pressures, the first guy to do it in the last seven years. It all came together.

Last year, it was the number one. I put a #1 on the back of my phone screen. I want to be #1 in everything: the warm-up line, stats, the top dog in everything I do. In the warm-up, I'll finish before everyone. I led the league as a D-end in tackles, I set my all-time record, I was #1 in TFLs, I was 3rd in pressures, I was top 10 in sacks. This is how I will operate, this is how I will live every day. I have a new one this season, I'll share that with you after the season.

You're entering your fifth year in the league and everyone calls you a veteran. Do you feel like a veteran?

Yeah, for certain. I mean, I am young, which I think people forget. I'm 25. I've been through a lot in four years. I feel like I've lived three lives already. I have an old soul.

I have so much experience that now I'm in a role where this is my team. I take a lot of pride in that. I'm a two-time captain and I plan on being a third-time captain. I take a really big responsibility of being the best leader I can be. That was also one of my themes this off-season: I will tap into the next level of leadership. How can I be the best leader I can be? I am still growing.

I studied the Kobes, the Jordans, the Alis, and applying that to how I lead. I'm not just talking about it, I'm showing it. I take too much time to come out here and not be the best version of myself. It's not guaranteed that I'm going to be the best. But I would be doing myself and my daughter a disservice if I tell her, "Work your hardest" if I'm then not doing it.

I take a lot of pride in everything I do. If I love something, if I am passionate about it, I will go all-out. I will put my work behind my words. To be voted unanimous captain—every guy voted for me—that's something I take super seriously. I know they are looking at me. I want the world to know, you can do whatever you want in this world if you put the work in behind it. I had one

[football] offer coming out of high school. I was a two-star recruit. I was a fourth-round [draft] pick. I have always had to fight. Even after I got paid, people were like, “Will he take a step back?”

I love when people doubt me. I see everything and I keep everything in my vault. I will go above and beyond to make sure not only that I prove them wrong, but also, for the people who believe in me, that I prove them right. That’s how I live. Most people can’t understand what it is. And most can’t do it all the time.

People often ask you about staying sober, especially how you do so while living in Sin City. But I am more curious about how the actual experience of being sober, and sharing your story of addiction, changes for you over time.

It’s an everyday battle. One day at a time. Over time, you learn how to live, evolve and grow. My first year of sobriety was the hardest year of my life. I was going into training camp out of rehab, and I knew I wasn’t my best. I was banged up: my shoulder was torn, my hand was broken. I took a step back my second year. There were no fans in the crowd, I’m taking heat, they’re like, “Bench Maxx.” I’m like, “What?” I was just trying to live life sober and figure it out, and I also gotta be one of the guys. It was a lot, but I didn’t quit. I didn’t give in, even when at my lowest. I am proud of myself and those moments because I knew it was not easy. People have been through and gone through worse. I was going through it, but I was not going to quit.

Going into that next season, I watched The Last Dance, and it changed my whole mind. That was going into my second year of sobriety. I started getting more comfortable with myself as a person: living in the moment and putting all the work in.

That’s why I am so locked in and obsessive about who I am as a person. I know how hard it is to do it at my level. If I take one step back, it’s super hard to re-climb that mountain...many people don’t understand it. Even Rachel at times, she’s like, “You are crazy.” It’s almost like a super power for me. I’m putting my addiction into positive things. I’m obsessed with being the best football player and the best dad. I’m over three years sober and my mind is at a whole different place. I never thought I could be super confident and happy and waking up and looking forward to getting better. I’m at a place right now where I didn’t think I’d be, mentally and physically, a few years ago.

It’s not easy. But life isn’t easy. I am just living my life with ten toes down, I literally take one step, put one foot in front of the other. I know I’m just getting started; I haven’t peaked, I will just keep going.

You definitely seem to love fashion and jewelry. How would you describe your style?

It’s funny—I talk to my brother about this. He’s like Jason Kelce, I’m like Travis Kelce. We grew up in the same house, and we are totally different, but we totally understand each other. He’s more the preppy side; me, I like showing out.

I got this from my mom. She's Serbian/Albanian, she grew up on the eastside of Detroit. She has all the swag and energy and confidence in the world. That's something I love. I'm passionate about being the best dressed; I've always been into jewelry and music.

I can wear some crazy-ass outfits with wild designs and have nice watches, that's who I am and what I love. Since I was little, I've always wanted to stand out and be the freshest guy. My mom wasn't buying me new J's as a kid. But as I grew older, I have the resources now to fully express who I am. I love tattoos, I love Rolex, Patex, APs—I have a big collection of watches. I have a big pendant of my daughter. That's me expressing who I am. I love it. People ask me, where did you get this outfit? This bracelet? I'm like, 'hell yeah, 'that's my shit. That is who I am.

I brought up [Travis] Kelce—he's my rival. We go at it on the field. We're supposed to hate each other. When we're on the field, we do, but at the end of the day, we met each other and this dude is very similar to how I think. He likes stepping out of the box and being fresh... me and Travis clicked right out the gate. He's different, he likes to have fun. Every time we see each other, it's like I've known him for years. He's someone I got inspiration from as far as style. He changed the game, now he's doing big things. There's a lot of guys I could talk about as far as inspiration. Some guys go ultra crazy—Russell Westbrook wears things I'd never wear, but I respect him because he owns it. Anyone who will just be themselves and not care what anyone else thinks.

You were inducted into Eastern Michigan's Ring of Honor last week, the 53rd player in the school's history. What did that mean for you?

It was incredible. My coach, Coach Creighton, contacted me and asked if I'd want to talk to the team. I said absolutely; I went back for the first time in two years. I got to have a conversation with him and talk to the guys and share my story. He surprised me at the end, he was like, 'you came all the way out here, we're going to honor you tonight and do your Ring Of Honor ceremony.' They had all the guys there, I got my name up in the rafters. That was one of my big goals, being in that ring of honor. I have a lot of big goals in the long run that I'm working toward, and that was the first one.

It makes you put everything into perspective. I didn't have a Plan B, ever. Even when I was in my addiction, in college, I never lost sight of that. I had such a deep belief in myself that I'd figure it out one day. It's been a roller coaster of adversity, but I never gave up on myself. I never quit regardless of the circumstances. I had the honor to do what I've done. The odds of me doing this right now are very low, and I'm doing it.

That's why I work harder today than I ever have in my life. That's why I carry myself the way that I do. Everyone talks about the second contract in the league and that's the goal, but I say, no, my third, fourth contract. I want to be a first-team All-Pro, voted to 10 Pro Bowls. David Goggins said [something like], "I'm in a place where most people don't understand me." You can only understand it if you see it every day. I do it every day. If I have to travel, I am not breaking my routine. I made that agreement with myself. It's all about the details and the little things.

'I was always a Raider': Marcus Peters feels at home with Vegas, No. 24 jersey

By Paul Gutierrez

August 16, 2023

HENDERSON, Nev. -- What's in a number?

When it comes to the Las Vegas Raiders and 24, there is more than you know. Just ask Pro Football Hall of Fame defensive back Charles Woodson, who explains exactly what comes with wearing it and how excited he is to see it back in circulation with the Raiders' recent addition of veteran cornerback Marcus Peters.

"Well, I came here and I got indoctrinated to the 24," Woodson said. "And Willie Brown was really adamant, you know, about me wearing the 24. But it's not necessarily just about the 24; it's the lineage of defensive backs here. You take a lot of pride in representing and trying to go out there and be the best defensive back in the game because that's what those guys represented.

"You had Willie Brown, Mike Hayes, Lester Hayes. But Willie Brown was like the Godfather. So having that 24 on, it really meant a lot. And so, I know Marcus Peters, he feels the same way. He grew up a Raiders fan, so he knows all about the history of the Raiders. So I'm happy to have a guy that knows how to make plays in that number. I can't wait to see what he does this year."

Pressure, much?

If so, Peters isn't letting on. Not with his childhood fandom coming full circle. After all, Peters grew up in Oakland and considers himself a historian, so to speak, of everything Silver and Black.

"I was always a Raider, man," Peters said with a big smile. "It was something that was in me since I was a little kid. But it feels good to be a Raider now, to be able to play in the same uniform that I watched growing up."

Need more proof?

"The Tuck Rule killed us, man," said Peters, who had just turned 9 years old when Woodson's seeming playoff game-sealing strip sack of Tom Brady was overturned on a snowy New England night. "Oakland ain't been the same since."

Peters notably wore an Oakland A's cap to his contract signing as well as to his media availability, sending a message against the backdrop of the Athletics' intentions to eventually join the Raiders in Las Vegas (the NBA's Warriors also recently abandoned Oakland, going to San Francisco).

"It's just something that's in me, you know what I'm saying?" Peters said. "Being a little kid riding the bus, riding the BART and being able to see [the Oakland Coliseum] right there and seeing just historical stuff going on. It's a blessing, man, for a little kid to come from West Oakland to be able to be putting on his jersey now. It's a blessing."

Sure, others wore the number between the late Brown and Woodson (Lance Harkey, Ron Brown, Patrick Bates and Larry Brown) and between Woodson and Peters (Michael Huff, Marshawn Lynch and, most recently, Johnathan Abram).

But the Raiders adding Peters, a three-time Pro Bowler and 2015 Defensive Rookie of the Year, on the eve of training camp is about more than fulfilling an Oakland kid's love affair with his favorite team. Las Vegas needed help in the secondary -- in both production and leadership.

Consider: Peters' 32 career interceptions are 26 more than the other corners on the roster. He also has six pick-sixes.

"I play offense on defense and defense on offense," he said. "They go hand in hand. I want to get the ball, and when the ball is in the air, you've got to have a will and want to go get it ... you've got to just make sure that infects the whole locker room and we all just do it as one unit -- you feel me? -- and it's going to pay off for us.

"I tell everybody, man, 'I'm an open book, and for you to get the information, you've got to go want to pull it out of the library and you've got to want to go read it.'"

The youngsters in the DB room are already gravitating toward the guy they affectionately call "OG." Peters turned 30 in January.

Fourth-round pick Jakorian Bennett, who could potentially start across from Peters, has his library card.

"He just comes over and ask questions, and every question he's got [that] I don't got the answer, we're going to figure it out together," Peters said. "And then we get in the meeting room, he sits right next to me and he's still asking questions. And that's how it goes, that's how game is passed down most of the time."

Said Bennett: "He's a ball hawk ... so smooth and just cerebral. But yeah, him just kind of being an open book ... if I can get some of the knowledge he has, going into Year 1, that can just kind of slow the game down for me, a lot."

To be fair, Peters' production has slowed the past few seasons, as he's bounced from the Kansas City Chiefs -- who drafted him in the first round out of Washington in 2015 -- to the Los Angeles Rams, with whom the Raiders are conducting joint practices this week before playing an exhibition Saturday at SoFi Stadium, to the Baltimore Ravens.

To be even more fair, Peters missed the entire 2021 season after suffering a torn ACL just before the opener. He had only one interception for the Ravens last season.

The Raiders, who inked Peters to a one-year, $3 million contract with $1.165 million guaranteed on July 24, are hoping he does more than lead by example. They're looking for a renaissance.

By the guy wearing the jersey number of his favorite cornerback growing up.

"I know some people might say Deion [Sanders], but me being able to be in the backyards of C-Wood, and watching him do what he was doing as a rookie and then keep going on, man, and then he used to be out in Oakland streets? And my pops and them just tell us stories about them chilling and hanging out? That's big," Peters said. "It's just a blessing to be able to rock a number that he wore. Yeah, it's a blessing. I don't know I got too many words for that, but a blessing."

Oh, and there's one other longtime Raiders fan who will be sporting a Raiders No. 24 jersey for the first time this season.

"My pops ain't never put on none of my jerseys because he's a Raiders fan," Peters laughed. "And now he gets to put on one and feel proud about it."

And that's what's in a number.

DE TYREE WILSON

How Raiders rookie Tyree Wilson developed into ‘the baddest man on the field’

By Tashan Reed

May 11, 2023

Tyree Wilson knew his season was over. Early in the third quarter against Kansas last November, he awkwardly planted his right foot while attempting to rush off the edge and crumpled to the field in pain. He had to be helped to the sideline and tried to walk it off, but ultimately had to be carted to the locker room.

“He was pretty emotional, and I really don’t think it was that he was worried about his draft status,” Texas Tech head coach Joey McGuire said in a phone interview last month. “It was almost him feeling like he was letting us down.”

Wilson was in the midst of a career year, but Texas Tech was 4-5 entering the game, and he desperately wanted to help his team become bowl-eligible. It wasn’t until he returned to the sideline that he began to worry about how the injury might affect him.

“My only question was, ‘Will I still go in the first round?’” Wilson told The Athletic in a phone interview Monday. “But then after that, I just sucked it up. I was like, ‘God’s got a plan.’ I couldn’t control what happened, but I could control stepping up as the leader of the team and continuing to work.”

Wilson underwent foot surgery nine days later, but maintained a presence in the Texas Tech facility, coached up his younger teammates and showed continuous support.

“I imagine in the back of his mind he was worried about how it was going to affect his future,” Texas Tech defensive coordinator Tim DeRuyter said. “But you would never, ever get that from him because he would always still have that same smile on his face and ask, ‘How can I help?’”

Texas Tech ended the season with four consecutive wins, including a bowl victory over Ole Miss. Wilson’s off-the-field contribution made a lasting impression on his coaching staff and teammates.

“When scouts were coming to talk to us and asking us about him, they’d say, ‘How would you describe him?’” Texas Tech outside linebackers coach C.J. Ah You said. “I’d say, ‘He’s a college pro. He’s in college, but he’s an NFL player in every aspect of everything he does in his life.’ ... There’s no doubt: He’s going to be an All-Pro. He’s going to be one of the great ones to play the game. And that’s just off of his mentality and how he goes about his business. He’s going to attain all of it.”

Wilson's rehab prevented him from doing any testing beyond physicals and medical checkups during the draft process, but he still went through the usual interviews and meetings. The Raiders and general manager Dave Ziegler first met with him at the Senior Bowl in late January and developed a strong first impression.

"Someone that's a willing learner, someone that talked about needing to get better, talked about wanting to get better and showed a passion for football," Ziegler said. "There were a lot of boxes that he checked, and then we went from there and it kept getting better."

The only major question for the 6-foot-6, 271-pound edge rusher was his health.

"I think he can be an elite player at that level as long as he stays healthy. I still think he has an upside to him," DeRuyter said. "He's extremely strong. I think there's no weaknesses in his game. He can set edges, rush passers and plays hard. I mean, to me, that's a formula — barring an unfortunate injury — for playing in the league for a long, long time."

The Raiders felt the pros outweighed the cons. And when Wilson was still on the board with the No. 7 pick last month, they didn't hesitate to take him.

"They're going to get somebody that loves football," McGuire said. "They'll get somebody that's going to be a great teammate. They'll get somebody that plays the game the way it's supposed to be played. I mean, he is a very physical presence. He's one of the biggest human beings you're going to see. He's always going to be smiling and he's going to love life. He's going to be a great Raider."

Wilson probably won't start as a rookie — Maxx Crosby and Chandler Jones are ahead of him on the depth chart — but he expects to be fully healthy by training camp and will likely fill a large role as a versatile defensive lineman who can play inside and outside and can be relied upon against the run and the pass. There were other potential landing spots that probably would've allotted him a bigger immediate role, but Wilson has no qualms about where he ended up.

"It's really just them seeing where they can use me," Wilson said. "I'm a versatile player; that's why they brought me in. I'm smart, so I can learn multiple positions. And with two great pass rushers in Maxx and Chandler, I'll be able to refine my technique in my pass rush game and take it to another level."

"I feel like there's no better room to be in."

Wilson was born in Anchorage, Alaska, but his family relocated to Texas when he was a toddler. He attended school in East London, a town of only about 1,000 people. It wasn't hard for Wilson to stand out as someone who sprouted to 6-foot-5, 220 pounds by the end of his sophomore year and played football, basketball and track. However, that notoriety didn't influence his personality.

The grandson of an Air Force veteran, Wilson was raised by a mother — Tiffany Helton — who maintained that military mindset. She and his stepfather, Charles Helton, both worked at West Rusk, the town's elementary, middle and high school, and kept a watchful eye over him.

As composed as Wilson was as a person, he was all over the place as an athlete. His coaches described him as a baby giraffe who didn't quite know what to do with his gangly limbs. He played as a tight end and edge rusher on a varsity football team that had fewer than 30 players and displayed flashes of potential, but he was merely just a solid player through his junior year. Everything changed his senior season. He exploded with 126 tackles, 38 tackles for loss and five sacks and became someone who the defense was built around.

"One thing that stood out to me was that the way you watch him during the game — and I think the way you guys are going to see him on Sundays — is exactly how you'll see him at practice, or you'll see him in the weight room, or you'll see him in conditioning drills," former West Rusk football coach John Frazier said. "When we got deeper in the playoffs, the temperatures would drop and, typically, kids want their warmups, and they'll wear their warmups out there and all that and Tyree's just the opposite; he was going to wear exactly what he had worn back in August when it was 97 degrees. He doesn't allow those factors on the outside to get to him or bother him. He actually embraces them."

After two years as a reserve at Texas A&M, Wilson transferred to Texas Tech in 2020 after being recruited by then-defensive line coach Paul Randolph.

"Wow!" Randolph said to no one in particular when Wilson stepped out of a truck to walk into Texas Tech's facility for the first time. "He's bigger than I thought."

In fact, Wilson was too big. Restrictions during the early stages of the COVID-19 pandemic, which also prolonged the transfer process, had taken Wilson away from football for about six months and left him overweight and out of shape.

"Anybody can condition as much as you want to," Wilson said. "But when you ain't playing football, it's a different kind of conditioning."

Texas Tech strength coach Dave Scholz had to teach him to be more disciplined with his diet. That meant way less Whataburger and more lean proteins, vegetables and fruit.

"And he struggled, naturally, the first day running and everything like that," Randolph said. "But what I remember is, he kept going back and getting back in it and doing it again and doing it again no matter how hard it was on him. To myself, I said, 'He's going to be OK.'"

Wilson also had to learn a new position. He was an edge rusher through high school and his first two years in college, but Randolph moved him to primarily a 4-technique lining up on the inside of offensive tackles. He also played 3-technique, lining up on top of guards, and even 0-technique, lining up across from centers.

“The meaner, the quicker, the more explosive, tougher, nastier side of him came out with being an interior defensive lineman,” Randolph said.

Wilson dropped weight, put in extra work after practice, pored over film study and bugged the coaching staff to spend more one-on-one time with him. By Week 6 of the 2020 season, he earned a starting role. He didn’t have much statistical production, but he went into the offseason with a stronger sense of what it would take to reach the level he desired.

“What I saw was an extremely driven young man who changed his body and mindset,” former Texas Tech coach Matt Wells said. “All those kinds of things that really help you become more like a pro while you’re in college, and Tyree had that. He didn’t take plays off, man. He would run sideline-to-sideline. He was a great effort, high-energy guy in practice. And so, all those things I think were the beginning of making him into something special.”

He worked to learn the ins and outs of the scheme, maintained his improved physique and refined his pass-rush moves. The result was a breakout 2021 season with 38 tackles, 13.5 TFL and seven sacks.

Wells was fired midway through that 2021 season and replaced by McGuire, who hired former Fresno State head coach Tim DeRuyter as his defensive coordinator. Wilson was still undecided on entering the draft or returning for his senior year. Still, DeRuyter began developing a plan for Wilson similar to how he had coached Von Miller at Texas A&M and Kayvon Thibodeaux at Oregon. In particular, DeRuyter was excited about how to use Wilson’s length.

“Have you ever walked into a college football facility and you see the Under Armour or the Nike gear model? It’s got shoulders that are four-feet wide and the waist is like 18 inches,” DeRuyter said. “That’s what he looks like.”

DeRuyter envisioned Wilson using his physical tools to thrive in a primary role as a stand-up edge rusher. Returning to school would mean Wilson would make a third position change and play for his third different staff. DeRuyter’s plan for him helped convince Wilson he could still do more to bolster his draft stock and he returned for his senior season.

“And, man, it was such a great move for him,” McGuire said. “But it was a huge move for Texas Tech.”

Wilson embraced the changes. He became more adept at exploding out of the different stance, dropping in coverage, getting low enough to bend off the edge, avoiding attacking blockers too upright and using angles and leverage to his advantage. That allowed Texas Tech to effectively move him up and down the defensive line in an effort to exploit matchup advantages. It all clicked for him when he came in Week 3 against N.C. State where he went off for 11 tackles, 3 1/2 TFLs and two sacks.

“That was like his coming-out party,” Ah You said. “And for us, we were like, ‘Yeah, this dude’s going to be a problem.’”

Around that stretch, Wilson also started to let his personality loose. He’d often burst into defensive staff meetings unprompted with a huge grin on his face just to ask what they were up to. He was a natural leader and someone his teammates gravitated toward. That more confident, outspoken and self-assured version of Wilson was a better player.

“I knew he’d played well at times, but I wanted to get him to play with even a little bit more fire because you don’t always see that in him,” DeRuyter said. “And I told him before the season started, ‘Tyree, you need to look at yourself in the mirror and tell yourself you’re the baddest man on the field 25 times until you absolutely believe it every day, because you can be.’ And, whether he believed it or not — he didn’t project it to me as I was coaching him — but as the year went on and he kept making more and more plays, then he started playing like I knew he could. And he became that baddest man on the field.”

The Raiders entered the draft with several needs for Year 1 starters, but edge rusher wasn’t one of them. They didn’t take Wilson because of what he is now, though, but rather what they believe he can become.

“He’s going to have to earn a role here,” Ziegler said. “There’s a lot of things that he’s going to need to continue to grow on the field and off the field. And we believe that he can do that — that’s why we took him — but he still has a long way to go.”

Wilson isn’t one for bold proclamations about himself. He’s fully aware of how challenging the road ahead of him will be, but he’s aiming high.

“The goal in college was to get to the NFL, and then it became to be a first-round draft pick,” Wilson said. “And I reached that goal, but now the goal is to stay in the NFL for a long time and get multiple contracts and be a potential Hall of Famer. My teammates, I want them to reach their goals and team goals, which is the Super Bowl every year. And then my family’s always going to be my why. I’m going to keep going until I can’t play the game anymore.”

Wilson has shown he’s capable of maximizing his abilities at every stage of his playing career. In high school, he was a middling two-way player, but kept grinding and became a commanding force by the time he graduated. In college, he persevered through a series of on-and-off-the-field changes and ascended every year. Looking ahead to the next level, those who know him best expect a similar arc to take form.

“He hasn’t reached his ceiling,” Frazier said. “I’ll put it this way: He’s played for two other Raider teams, and he hasn’t let either one of them down. He played for the West Rusk Raiders in high school and Texas Tech, of course, and he didn’t let them down. And there’s not a doubt in my mind that the Las Vegas Raiders, he’s not going to let them down.”
