CHARGERS vs. CARDINALS

The Los Angeles Chargers (7-3) will host the Arizona Cardinals (2-8) on Sunday, Nov. 25. Kickoff is set for 1:05 p.m. from ROKiT Field at StubHub Center. Chris Myers, Daryl Johnston and Laura Okmin have the call on FOX while Matt "Money" Smith, Daniel Jeremiah and Shannon Farren will bring the action on KFI-AM 640. Mario Solis and Jorge Villanueva will present the game in Spanish on KFWB-AM 980.

The Bolts saw their six-game winning streak come to an end after a 23-22 setback against the Denver Broncos. Philip Rivers recorded his 11th career 400-yard passing game and added two more touchdowns. Rivers has recorded 11-straight games with multiple touchdown passes, good for the longest streak in team history. He became just the sixth quarterback in NFL history to open a season with 10-straight multi-touchdown games. The signal-caller sports a 112.1 rating, his best through the first 10 games of a season in his career.

The Chargers will face an NFC West foe for the fourth time this season when the Cardinals come to Carson. The Bolts are 2-1 against the division in 2018 and have won the last two. Sunday's meeting will be the 14th between the two teams as the Chargers hold a 9-4 all-time advantage and a 6-1 mark at home. The Cardinals won the last matchup, 18-17, in Arizona on Sept. 8, 2014. In the last home game for the Bolts in the series, the Chargers ran away with a 41-10 victory. Antonio Gates hauled in two touchdown passes on 144 yards receiving in the winning effort.

Cardinals rookie quarterback Josh Rosen returns to the Los Angeles area as he leads the team with 1,416 passing yards with nine touchdowns and 10 interceptions. David Johnson has returned from missing nearly all of 2017 to pace the squad with 629 rushing yards and six touchdowns. He has added 309 yards receiving and two scores. Rookie Christian Kirk leads the team with 495 yards receiving. Defensively, Antoine Bethea has tallied a team-high 80 tackles while Chandler Jones has recorded 10.5 sacks.

The Chargers will once again put in the mileage on the road as they travel to Pittsburgh for a Sunday night matchup against the Steelers on Sunday, Dec. 2. Kickoff is set for 5:20 P.M. PT and will air on NBC.

BY THE NUMBERS

10.7 Melvin Gordon is the only running back in the NFL that has over 40 receptions and 100 rushing attempts to average over 10.5 (10.7) yards per reception. Gordon is tied for second in the league with four catches of 25 or more yards.

16.6 Over the last seven games, the Chargers defense leads the NFL in points per game allowed with just 16.6. That average is two points per game better than the next in the league as the Baltimore Ravens sports an 18.6 average over that span.

112.1 Philip Rivers has posted a 112.1 rating over the first 10 games of the season. His previous career high came in 2010 with a rating of 105.0. Rivers has also thrown 23 touchdowns through the first 10 games, equaling 2010 for the best start of his career.

7.31 The Chargers lead the NFL with a 7.31 average on first down. The RB duo of Austin Ekeler and Melvin Gordon have been explosive on first down. Ekeler leads the NFL with 8.7 scrimmage yards per touch on first down while Gordon closely follows in fifth with a 6.2 average. Gordon has accumulated 659 yards from scrimmage on first down.

BREAKING DOWN THE 2018 SCHEDULE

The Chargers opponents in 2018 posted a 102-106 (.490) regular season record in 2017. Five of the teams on the schedule made the postseason and eight of the teams had a .500 or better record. The Chargers finished second in the AFC West and were 3-3 against divisional foes. The Bolts finished strong, winning nine of their last 12 contests.

	SERIES BREAKDOWN	2017 RECORD	NOTES
	ALL-TIME: 55-61-1 HOME: 32-26-1 AWAY: 23-35-0 LAST: L, 38-28 - 2018 at Chargers	OVERALL: 10-6-0 HOME: 6-2-0 AWAY: 4-4-0 POSTSEASON: Wild Card Round	The Chiefs have been a thorn in the side of the Chargers for the past few seasons. Kansas City once again swept the season series, moving their winning streak to eight games against the Bolts. This will be the fourth time the Chargers host the Chiefs in the season-opener and the first since 1992.
	ALL-TIME: 25-12-2 HOME: 14-6-1 AWAY: 11-6-1 LAST: W, 31-20 - 2018 at Bills	OVERALL: 9-7-0 HOME: 6-2-0 AWAY: 3-5-0 POSTSEASON: Wild Card Round	The Chargers put up 54 points and recorded six takeaways to run away to a 54-24 victory at home in 2017. The Bolts hold an all-time regular-season record of 23-10-2 against the Bills, which is the franchise's best regular-season winning percentage against any team.
	ALL-TIME: 5-7-0 HOME: 3-1-0 AWAY: 2-6-0 LAST: L, 35-23 - 2018 at Rams	OVERALL: 11-5-0 HOME: 4-4-0 AWAY: 7-1-0 POSTSEASON: Wild Card Round	The Chargers won't have to travel far as they take on the Rams. This meeting marks a clash of two of the league's most explosive offenses as the Chargers ranked fourth and the Rams 10th in 2017. The two teams last met in 2014, a 27-24 victory for the Bolts.
	ALL-TIME: 8-7-0 HOME: 5-3-0 AWAY: 3-4-0 LAST: W 29-27 - 2018 at Chargers	OVERALL: 6-10-0 HOME: 3-5-0 AWAY: 3-5-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	The 49ers head down the coast to face L.A. The last time the teams squared off in the regular season marked the Chargers' greatest comeback as they tied a franchise record by storming back from a 21-point second half deficit to pull out a thrilling 38-35 OT victory.
	ALL-TIME: 54-63-2 HOME: 27-32-1 AWAY: 27-31-1 LAST: W 20-6 - 2018 at Raiders	OVERALL: 6-10-0 HOME: 4-4-0 AWAY: 2-6-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	The Chargers swept their division rival for the first time since the 2014 season. The Chargers used a last-second game-winning field from Nick Novak to earn a 17-16 victory at Oakland. Philip Rivers then threw for 387 yards and three scores to lead the Bolts to a convincing, 30-10 win in the season finale.
	ALL-TIME: 17-9-1 HOME: 8-4-0 AWAY: 9-5-1 LAST: W, 38-14 - 2018 at Browns	OVERALL: 0-16-0 HOME: 0-8-0 AWAY: 0-8-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	The Chargers did not suffer a let down against the Browns in 2017 as the Bolts held on for a 19-10 home victory. Philip Rivers completed 31 passes for 344 yards while Keenan Allen became the first player in NFL history to have 10+ catches, 100+ receiving yards and 1+ TD catch in three straight games.
	ALL-TIME: 28-17-1 HOME: 18-5-1 AWAY: 10-16-0 LAST: W, 20-19 - 2017 at London	OVERALL: 9-7-0 HOME: 6-2-0 AWAY: 3-5-0 POSTSEASON: Wild Card Round	While this is considered a home game for the Bolts, it will take place in London at Wembley Stadium. The Chargers have won nine of the past 10 games overall, including six straight at home. Los Angeles' 1,068 points scored against Tennessee are the most among non-current division opponents.
	ALL-TIME: 25-26-0 HOME: 14-10-0 AWAY: 11-16-0 LAST: W, 25-17 - 2018 at Seahawks	OVERALL: 9-7-0 HOME: 4-4-0 AWAY: 5-3-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	Following a Week 8 bye, the Chargers head north to play their former AFC West foe. L.A. has posted five-straight games with 20-plus points against Seattle, and no team has won a game in the series by double digits since 1998. The Bolts only have four wins in the last 15 meetings against the Seahawks.
	ALL-TIME: 51-66-1 HOME: 34-25-0 AWAY: 17-41-1 LAST: L, 23-22 - 2017 vs. Broncos	OVERALL: 5-11-0 HOME: 4-4 AWAY: 1-7 POSTSEASON: N/A	The Chargers again split the season series against the Broncos. In the season opener on Monday Night Football, the Chargers saw their comeback bid fall short, 24-21. The Chargers got payback at home by blanking the division rival, 21-0. The shutout ended the second-longest scoring streak in NFL history.
	ALL-TIME: 9-4-0 HOME: 6-1-0 AWAY: 3-3-0 LAST: L, 18-17 - 2014 at Cardinals	OVERALL: 8-8-0 HOME: 5-3-0 AWAY: 3-5-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	The Chargers host Arizona for the first time since 2010, which was a 41-10 victory. Los Angeles holds a 9-4 all-time advantage, including a 6-1 record as the home team. The Chargers have also won three of the last four against the Cardinals, scoring 20-plus points in all of those victories.
	ALL-TIME: 9-23-0 HOME: 6-8-0 AWAY: 3-15-0 LAST: L, 24-20- 2015 at Chargers	OVERALL: 13-3-0 HOME: 6-2-0 AWAY: 7-1-0 POSTSEASON: Divisional Round	This is the Chargers' first trip to the Steel City since 2012, when Philip Rivers and Danario Alexander helped power a 34-24 upset over the Steelers. The Bolts have tallied 20-plus points in three of their past four games in Pittsburgh while no team in the series has won by more than 10 points since 2003.
	ALL-TIME: 20-15-0 HOME: 10-7-0 AWAY: 10-8-0 LAST: L, 24-19 - 2015 at Bengals	OVERALL: 7-9-0 HOME: 4-4-0 AWAY: 3-5-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	The Bengals head to Southern California for the first time since 2013. Cincinnati has won the last four regular season contests, however, the Chargers did beat them when it mattered most over the eight-year span, defeating the Bengals 27-10 on the road in the Wild Card round of the 2013 playoffs.
	ALL-TIME: 5-6-0 HOME: 4-3-0 AWAY: 1-3-0 LAST: L, 29-26 - 2015 at Ravens	OVERALL: 9-7-0 HOME: 5-3-0 AWAY: 4-4-0 POSTSEASON: N/A	It won't be decided until after Week 8 whether the game will be held on Saturday, December 22 or Sunday, December 23. No matter when Baltimore heads west, it marks their first trip to the Chargers since 2012. The last three contests have been separated by a combined seven points.

THE HEAD COACHES

Anthony Lynn is in his second season as a head coach in the National Football League after serving as Buffalo's interim in Week 17 of the 2016 season. Lynn comes in with 83 games of playing experience under his belt, as well as two world championships on his résumé as a running back for the back-to-back Super Bowl champion Denver Broncos (XXXII and XXXIII). Lynn has always had a passion for teaching the game. Immediately following his last season in 1999, Lynn assumed the role of offensive assistant and assistant to special teams in Denver in 2000. Lynn spent 12 years as a running backs coach for the Jaguars, Cowboys, Browns, Jets and Bills. He then landed his first assistant head coaching position in New York with the Jets, while also coaching the running backs, and assumed the same position the following two seasons in Buffalo. The two seasons Lynn spent in Buffalo, the Bills led the NFL in both rushing yards (2,630 in 2016, and 2,432 in 2015) and rushing touchdowns (29 in 2016, and 19, tie in 2015). During his last two coaching stops (New York and Buffalo), Lynn's offenses combined for a total 18,218 rushing yards during that span (2009-2016), the most combined yards in the NFL over that period. In his first season at the helm in Los Angeles Lynn rallied the team after an 0-4 start to win nine of the final 12 games, including six of the last seven contests. The Chargers finished 9-7 and just missed out on a playoff berth due to a tiebreaker. The nine wins over the 12-game span was the best mark since the team won the last 11 games of the 2009 season. The five-straight home wins were also the best run on home turf since that 2009 season.

Hired as the head coach in Arizona on January 22, 2018, Steve Wilks is in his first season at the helm for the Cardinals. Wilks came to Arizona after spending the previous six seasons (2012-17) with the Carolina Panthers, including last year as the team's defensive coordinator. The Charlotte, NC native is a 23-year coaching veteran and spent the last 12 years as an assistant in the NFL. Wilks also coached in the NFL with the Chicago Bears (2006-08) and San Diego Chargers (2009-11) prior to working in Carolina. The Panthers finished in the top-10 in total defense in five of Wilks' six seasons with the team. Last year in Wilks' first season as defensive coordinator, the Panthers went from 21st overall in 2016 to seventh in 2017. In Wilks' first year as defensive coordinator in 2017, the Panthers finished seventh in the NFL in total defense (317.1 ypg), third in sacks (50), and third in run defense (88.1 ypg). He coached for 11 years at the collegiate level, including one season (1999) as the head coach at Savannah State. He also worked as an assistant at Johnson C. Smith (1995-96), Savannah State (1997-98), Illinois State (2000), Appalachian State (2001), East Tennessee State (2002), Bowling Green (2003), Notre Dame (2004), and Washington (2005). Wilks attended West Charlotte (NC) High School and went on to play defensive back at Appalachian State (1987-91), finishing his career with 103 tackles, four interceptions and four blocked kicks. He attended training camp with the Seattle Seahawks in 1992 and played defensive back and wide receiver for the Charlotte Rage in the AFL.

POSTGAME NOTES (WEEK 11)

TEAM NOTES

Team captains for the Chargers were No. 17 QB Philip Rivers, No. 54 DE Melvin Ingram, No. 75 G Michael Schofield III, No. 76 LT Russell Okung, No. 85 TE Antonio Gates and No. 92 NT Brandon Mebane.

The Chargers held the ball for 37:49. That is the most time of possession in a single game for the Bolts since Week 15 of 2015 when they held possession for 38:53 against the Dolphins.

PLAYER NOTES

By starting at QB, Philip Rivers started for the 202nd conescutive regular-season game, tying G Randall McDaniel for the ninth-longest starting streak since at least 1970.

Rivers eclipsed 300 passing yards for the 61st time in his career and third time when facing Denver, finishing with 401 yards. The 401 yards were his most in a game against Denver. Rivers has now eclipsed 400 yards passing in 11 career games.

With two touchwons passes on the day, Rivers has recorded 11-straight games with multiple touchdown passes, good for the longest streak in team history. He became just the sixth quarterback in NFL history to open a season with 10-straight multi-touchdown games. It also extended Rivers' streak of games with a passing touchdown to 23, tying himself (Oct. 4, 2009 - Nov. 22, 2010) for the second-longest streak in team history.

Rivers finished the first half with 231 yards, good for a career-high against Denver in the opening half. His 231 yards were the sixth-most in a first half in his career.

On the offense's opening drive, WR Keenan Allen had three receptions for 38 yards (12.7 avg.), moving past RB Ronnie Harmon for the seventh-most receptions in team history. Allen's nine catches and 89 yards were each the highest of his career in games against Denver.

Allen moved into ninth on the Chargers all-time receiving yards list, passing WR Vincent Jackson (4,754) in the third quarter.

TE Antonio Gates hauled in a 14-yard pass on third down on the team's opening drive to move the sticks, breaking a tie with Hall of Fame WR Art Monk (940) for sole possession of No. 19 on the all-time receptions list. Later in the game, Gates passed Derrick Mason (943) for 18th all-time on a six-yard reception that marked his 89th career touchdown reception from Rivers.

With two made field goals in the first quarter, K Michael Badgley reached 30 career points, marking the most points by a Chargers kicker in his first four career games without a missed field goal.

Badgley's made field goal in the fourth quarter set team marks among Chargers kickers through four career games in points (35) and made field goals (eight).

NOTABLE PERFORMANCES

- Antonio Gates has faced the Arizona Cardinals three times in his career, catching 17 passes for 281 yards and three touchdowns. He is 2-1 in games played against the Cardinals.
- In the 2010, 41-10 victory, Gates hauled in seven passes for 144 yards and two scores. The 144 yards was the third-best effort of his career and his second multi-touchdown showing of the 2010 season.
- In the regular season finale against the Cardinals in 2006, Gates caught four passes for 56 yards and a touchdown.
- While in Seattle, Brandon Mebane has faced the Arizona Cardinals 15 times over the course of his career. The nose tackle has registered 35 tackles and two sacks.
- Mebane recorded his second career sack in the December meeting in 2007. In the November, 2008 meeting, Mebane recorded a sack and forced a fumble.
- In his only meeting against the Cardinals, Corey Liuget totaled five tackles and a sack in the 2014 matchup.
- Philip Rivers has faced the Arizona Cardinals three times and is 2-1 against the NFC West opponent. Rivers is 55-for-80 and has passed for 710 yards with five touchdowns. He holds a 106.8 rating against the Cardinals.
- Rivers posted what is now his fourth-best single game rating of his career when he put together a 148.1 ledger in the 41-10 victory in 2010. Rivers was 15-of-20 for 241 yards and two scores in the blowout win.

- Since 1990, posted a 14-15 record in the week following the team's bye.
- Allowed only 64 points in the second quarter last year, the fewest allowed by an NFL team in the second quarter in 2017.
- Allowed 272 points last year, the second-fewest points in the AFC in 2017 (trailing Jacksonville – 268).
- Posted a 16-18 record in Sunday Night Football games and a 22-23 record in Monday Night Football games.
- Appeared in the team's second-ever regular-season international game, the last at Wembley Stadium in 2008 against New Orleans.
- Last season, appeared in the team's first Thanksgiving game since 1969 (a 21-17 road win against the Houston Oilers).
- The Thanksgiving contest was the 17th-rated television broadcast in the United States in 2017, reaching a viewing audience of 26.3 million.

CHARGERS IN THE NFL TOP 100

This past offseason, the Chargers saw five players from 2017 make the NFL's Top 100 list as voted on by players. The five players are the most Chargers in a single rankings since they were introduced in 2011.

Below are the five L.A. Chargers recognized with their rankings:

Rank	Pos.	Player
37	DE	Joey Bosa
41	WR	Keenan Allen
56	QB	Philip Rivers
59	CB	Casey Hayward Jr.
76	DE	Melvin Ingram III

Since the introduction of the player's rankings in 2011, eight Chargers have been recognized. Below are the eight Chargers in order of the most selections to the least and their highest-ever ranking:

No.	Pos.	Player	Highest Rank (Year)
Seven times	QB	Philip Rivers	26th (2011)
Three times	TE	Antonio Gates	22nd (2011)
Two times	DE	Joey Bosa	37th (2018)
Two times	CB	Casey Hayward Jr.	59th (2018)
Two times	S	Eric Weddle	86th (2015)
One time	WR	Keenan Allen	41st (2018)
One time	DE	Melvin Ingram III	76th (2018)
One time	OLB	Shaun Phillips	97th (2011)

PLAYER NOTES

WR Keenan Allen

- Posted seven 100-yard receiving games last year, good for No. 2 in the NFL in 2017, trailing Antonio Brown (eight).
- With 102 catches last season, ranked No. 4 in the NFL and second in the AFC in 2017.
- Posted 11 catches at Dallas on Thanksgiving last year, tying for the third-most receptions ever in a Thanksgiving game.
- Named Comeback Player of the Year by The Associated Press, the third-ever Charger to win the award.

WR Travis Benjamin

- Ranks No. 3 among active returners w/ 40-plus career punt returns with a career punt return average of 11.2 yards (trails Hill – 13.5; Edelman – 11.7).

DE Joey Bosa

- Ranked No. 7 in the NFL and second in the AFC last year with 12.5 sacks.
- With 23.0 sacks over his first two pro seasons, ranks fourth in the NFL in sacks over that span.

RB Melvin Gordon

- With at least 1,200 scrimmage yards and 10 total touchdowns this year, can become the third player in team annals to do so in three-consecutive seasons, joining HOF RB LaDainian Tomlinson (eight-straight seasons) and HOF WR Lance Alworth (four-consecutive seasons).
- Posted two 100-yard rushing games last year, tied for ninth in the NFL in 2017.
- With 72 points scored in 2017, ranked No. 4 in the NFL and No. 2 in the AFC last year among non-kickers.
- Posted 1,105 rushing yards last year, good for No. 7 in the NFL and No. 4 in the AFC in 2017.
- Has posted over 100 scrimmage yards in 11 of his last 14 contests and over 150 yards from scrimmage in six of those games. Since Week 13 (11/26/17), Gordon has totaled 1,799 yards (1,148 yds. rushing/651 yds. receiving).
- His three rushing touchdowns against the Browns were a career high. Enters Week 12 ranked fourth in the NFL since the start of 2017 with 23 touchdowns.
- Was named the NFLPA Community MVP for Week 1 of the season for his work packing meals for 9/11 Day in Los Angeles.

CB Casey Hayward

- Ranks tied for No. 19 among active players with 20 career interceptions.
- Ranks tied for third over the past two-plus seasons with 11 interceptions.
- Is one of two NFL players with 10+ INTs (11) and 46+ PD (46) since 2016.

DE Melvin Ingram III

- Ranked No. 6 in the AFC last year with 10.5 sacks.

QB Philip Rivers

- Ranks No. 5 among active passers w/ 1,000-plus career pass attempts with a career passer rating of 95.6 (trails Rodgers – 103.7; Wilson – 99.8; Brees – 97.8; Brady – 97.5).
- Passed HOF QB John Elway (51,475) for eighth in career passing yards in NFL history against San Francisco in Week 4 (09/30/18).
- In the season-opener, Rivers broke a tie with HOF QB Fran Tarkenton (342) for sole possession of No. 6 on the all-time touchdown list.
- With at least 4,000 passing yards this year, Rivers would join Peyton Manning (14) and Drew Brees (12) as the only players in NFL history with 10-plus seasons with at least 4,000 passing yards.
- Had two of the 10 best passing performances in the league last season: 27-of-33 passing (81.8 pct.) for 434 yards and three TDs at Dallas…28-of-37 passing (75.7 pct.) for 387 yards and three TDs vs. Oakland.
- Posted six 300-yard passing games last year, tied for the most in the NFL in 2017 with Brady and Winston.
- Over the past 11 seasons (2008-18), ranks second in passing yards (46,520), third in completions (3,804) and touchdowns (321) and fourth in attempts (5,857).
- Since the start of 2015, ranks sixth in completions (1,357), third in passing yards (16,553) and tied for second in touchdown passes (113) in the NFL.
- Second in the NFL over the past two-plus seasons with 84 touchdown passes.
- Has totaled the second-most passing yards since Week 11 of 2017 (5,112). Has thrown 36 TDs and only 9 INTs and sports a 109.6 rating over that span.
- Has thrown 23 TDs in the first 10 games of the 2018 season. The 23 TDs are tied for his best start to a season of his career.

WHAT THE CHARGERS RETURN

The Chargers bring back a roster that made a combined 256 starts for the Bolts last year. Eight of those players (S Jahleel Addae, DE Joey Bosa, RB Melvin Gordon III, CB Casey Hayward Jr., DE Melvin Ingram III, NT Brandon Mebane and QB Philip Rivers) started all 16 contests for the Chargers last season. Rivers' 16 starts last year increased his mark to 192-straight starts in the regular season, the NFL's longest active streak.

The Bolts return 1,492 yards and 10 touchdowns in production from the ground game from 2017, including 1,105 yards and eight scores from Gordon. The 1,492 yards represents 93.5 percent of the team's 2017 production.

Through the air, the Chargers return 85.5 percent of the team's 2017 production, bringing back 3,889 receiving yards. 1,393 of those yards rested in the hands of consensus Comeback Player of the Year Keenan Allen. Of 28 total touchdown catches from last year, the Bolts bring back 24 of those scores with six coming courtesy of No. 13.

The Chargers return 36 sacks of the squad's 43 from last year. Even more impressively, the Bolts return 12 of the team's 18 interceptions, including one returned by CB Desmond King for a 90-yard pick-six at Dallas on Thanksgiving.

CHARGERS IN THE LAST 12 GAMES OF 2017

The Chargers finished the 2017 season in impressive fashion, winning nine of their last 12 games. The offense flourished over that span from Week 5 on. The Bolts ranked fourth in total offense, passing and first downs in the NFL. The Chargers outscored their opponents 283-179 over that span, threw for 3,444 yards and 22 TDs to only seven INTs and rushed for 1,325 yards and seven scores. Defensively, Los Angeles ranked third in points per game allowed with 14.9 over those weeks and paced the NFL with 17 interceptions.

DIAMONDS IN THE ROUGH

In 14 of the past 16 seasons, at least one undrafted rookie has made the initial 53-man roster after final roster reductions. Eight of those players appeared in all 16 regular-season contests, 12 made at least one start and nine started multiple times as a rookie. Week 1 of 2018 featured, WR JJ Jones, RB Detrez Newsome and CB Brandon Facyson on the roster.

THE ROOKIE IMPACT IN 2018

The Chargers drafted defensive players with their first four selections of the 2018 draft. Those picks are paying dividends already in just 11 weeks of the season. First-round selection Derwin James has been used all over the field and his versatility has shown. The Florida State standout is first on the team with 71 combined tackles, 3.5 sacks, one interception and seven passes defensed. Uchenna Nwosu has posted 1.5 sacks while Kyzir White has totaled 16 tackles, an interception and as two passes defensed before going on IR. Justin Jones has worked his way onto the field to register 12 total tackles and half a sack. (Press box totals were used)

2018 OFFENSIVE PLAYER NOTES

MULTI-CATCH MILESTONE

Keenan Allen has caught at least two catches for a team-record 62-straight games, passing Hall of Fame TE Kellen Winslow in the 2018 season opener for the most in Chargers history. His streak is the fourth-longest active streak in football. For his career, Allen only has one game without multiple receptions, the second game of his career when he had one catch.

SHIFTING GEARS

Austin Ekeler has been effective from the very first run of his NFL career, taking the handoff 35 yards for a TD against Philadelphia last season. Since then, he has shown his ability to provide a spark on the ground for the Bolts, carrying the ball 106 times. Ekeler is second among NFL running backs in rushing average since the start of 2017 (min. 100 carries).

HANDS TEAM

In the Week 4 victory over San Francisco, Austin Ekeler hauled in the fifth TD pass of his career. The five receiving scores over his first two years made him the first undrafted RB to do so in his first two seasons since 1966. Ekeler added a sixth TD reception in Week 5. Ekeler is also tied for the third-most TD catches by an undrafted RB in Chargers history.

Ekeler reached 565 career receiving yards in the team's Week 9 win over Seattle, the most by a Chargers undrafted running back in the first two seasons of his career. Ekeler's 565 receiving yards are also the most by an undrafted running back through his first two seasons since Houston RB Arian Foster registered 697 from 2009-10.

2018 OFFENSIVE PLAYER NOTES

DUAL THREAT

Already one of the best runners in team history, Melvin Gordon III has emerged as a dual-threat running back for the Bolts. Especially in the past two seasons, he has proven to be a reliable target for QB Philip Rivers, solidifying himself as one of the 10 best all-around running backs in Chargers history.

In Week 11 vs. Denver, Gordon eclipsed 5,000 yards from scrimmage for his career in just his 52nd career game to become the third-fastest player and second-fastest running back in team history to reach that mark.

A GAME OF RUNS

Gordon has put together stellar performances in each of the past two years, totaling over 1,400 scrimmage yards and 12 total TDs in each of them. He has continued that success, posting 1,189 scrimmage yards and 11 total TDs this year.

From Weeks 5-10, Gordon posted five-straight games with at least 120 yards from scrimmage and a srimmage TD, marking the first such streak since Jamaal Charles in 2007. That streak ranks tied for the fifth-longest in a single season in history and trails only Hall of Fame RB LaDainian Tomlinson's six-game streak in team annals.

A LEAGUE OF THEIR OWN

In back-to-back seasons, a Chargers rookie defensive back has made history by getting to the quarterback. In 2017, CB Desmond King II tied an NFL record for the most single-season sacks by a rookie DB. This season, S Derwin James already has 3.5 sacks and is knocking on the door of King's single-season record.

Last season, King became the sixth-ever NFL DB to post 4.0 sacks in his first 16 career games. With 0.5 more sacks, James can become just the seventh DB in NFL history and second-ever Chargers DB to achieve that feat.

2018 DEFENSIVE PLAYER NOTES

ROOKIE SENSATION

Derwin James has re-written NFL record books through 10 games. With two sacks and a pick through his first three career games, he became just the second DB in NFL history to do so in a non-strike season.

James ended up posting three sacks through the first four games of his career, becoming the second player in NFL history to do so. He ended up setting an NFL record among DBs with 3.5 sacks in his first six career games. Just nine games into the season, James' 3.5 sacks are already good enough for the most by a DB through the first 11 games of his career.

KING'S RANSOM

In the Week 9 win over Seattle, CB Desmond King II returned an INT 42 yards for a score, his second career pick-six (90-yard INT return at Dallas in 2017). Coupled with his four sacks as a rookie, for former fifth-round selection became just the sixth player in NFL history and second DB ever to post at least four sacks and multiple pick-sixes in the first two seasons of his career.

King is just one pick-six shy of reaching three for his career to tie for the second-most in NFL history through a player's first two career seasons. His two INTs returned for TDs is tied for the most in the NFL since he entered the league in 2017. King is also tied for sixth in career pick-sixes in Chargers history.

BADGE OF HONOR

In Michael Badgley's NFL debut in Week 6 at Cleveland, he successfully kicked five extra points and a 44-yard field goal for eight points. His five made PATs tied for the most in a player's first career game in Chargers history.

Badgley continued his success in the second game of his career during Week 7 vs. Tennessee at Wembley Stadium in London, scoring another eight points without missing a kick. His 16 points scored was the most in Chargers history by a kicker in the first two games of his career without a miss.

In his third career game in a Week 10 win at Oakland, Badgley naled all four kicks on the day to total eight points for the third time. His 24 points scored through three career games were the second-most by a kicker in team annals the the most without a missed kick.

With a single-game career-high 10 points in Week 11 vs. Denver, Badgley set team marks for the most made field goals (eight) and most points scored (34) by a Chargers kicker through four career games.

OFFENSE

WR Keenan Allen

Needs just two receptions to extend his team-record multi-catch streak to 63 games (Allen has had multiple catches in all but one game in his career, his second career game played). It is the fourth-longest active multi-catch streak.

Needs 100-plus receiving yards to post the 21st 100-yard game of his career to tie TE Antonio Gates for the fifth-most in team annals.

Needs two touchdown catches to reach 27 and tie WR Don Norton for 12th in Chargers history.

RB Austin Ekeler

Needs a touchdown run to become the first undrafted Charger with a rushing and a receiving touchdown in each of his first two seasons.

Needs two more total touchdowns to reach 10 for his career to tie Hank Bauer for the second-most by an undrafted running back through his first two seasons in team history.

TE Antonio Gates

Needs seven receptions to reach 952 for his careeer and pass Hall of Fame WR Andre Reed (951) for 17th in NFL history.

Needs 106 receiving yards to reach 11,835 for his career and pass Hall of Fame WR Don Maynard (11,834) for 28th on the all-time list.

Needs one touchdown catch from QB Philip Rivers to reach 90 touchdown catches from Rivers, becoming the second tandem to reach that mark (Peyton Manning and Marvin Harrison, 112).

RB Melvin Gordon III

Next start will mark No. 50 for his career.

Needs a touchdown catch to tie Darren Sproles (11) for No. 6 in receiving touchdowns by a running back in Chargers history.

Needs two touchdown catches to tie Gary Anderson and Ronnie Harmon (12) for No. 4 in receiving touchdowns by a running back in team history.

Needs three touchdown catches to tie Danny Woodhead (13) for No. 3 in receiving touchdowns by a running back in team history.

Needs 11 scrimmage yards to reach 1,200 for the season, extending his streak of seasons with at least 10 scrimmage touchdowns and 1,200 yards from scrimmage to three straight for the longest active streak.

Needs 120 scrimmage yards to extend his streak of games with at least 120 yards from scrimmage to seven contests, setting a mark for the longest such streak in team history (Hall of Fame RB LaDainian Tomlinson, six-straight in 2006). It is the longest active streak in the NFL.

Needs 156 scrimmage yards to pass Ryan Mathews (5,171) for fourth in career scrimmage yards by a running back in team history.

Needs a scrimmage touchdown to break a tie with Natrone Means (35) for the fourth-most in team history by a running back.

QB Philip Rivers

Next start will mark his 203rd straight, passing G Randall McDaniel (202) for the ninth-longest starting streak since at least 1970.

Needs a touchdown pass to extend his streak of games with a touchdown pass to 24, which would become the second-longest streak in team history (Philip Rivers, 23-straight from Oct. 4, 2009 — Nov. 22, 2010).

Needs two touchdown passes to extend his team-record multi-touchdown pass streak to 12 games, tying for the sixth-longest streak in NFL history. It would also make him the fourth-ever quarterback to throw multiple touchdown passes in each of the first 11 games to start a season.

Needs one touchdown pass to TE Antonio Gates to reach 90 touchdown passes to Gates, becoming the second tandem to reach that mark (Peyton Manning and Marvin Harrison, 112).

OFFENSE/SPECIALISTS/DEFENSE

WR Tyrell Williams

Next game played will be the 50th of his career.

Needs a touchdown catch of 50-plus yards for the seventh of his career, maintaining his position with the second-most since Week 17 of the 2015 season and trailing only Kansas City WR Tyreek Hill (eight).

Los Angeles Chargers

With a victory, the Chargers would reach 8-3 for the sixth time in history, and the first since 2009.

K Michael Badgley

Needs just five points to set a team record for points scored by a kicker through the first five games of his career without a missed field goal (Nate Kaeding, 38 points).

Needs eight points to pass George Blair (41) for the most points by a kicker in Chargers history through the first five games of his career.

Needs two made field goals to reach 10 for his career, which would be the most by a kicker in team history through five career games.

DE Joey Bosa

Next game played will be the 30th of his career.

Needs 1.5 more sacks to post the seventh multi-sack game of his career to tie for the fourth-most multi-sack games in the NFL since 2016.

CB Casey Hayward Jr.

Needs one interception to tie Arizona CB Patrick Peterson, Detroit S Glover Quin, L.A. Rams CB Marcus Peters and Seattle S Earl Thomas III for the third-most interceptions (21) since Hayward Jr., entered the league in 2012. It would also tie him with Detroit CB Darius Slay for the second-most in the NFL since joining the Chargers in 2016.

DE Melvin Ingram III

Needs 3.5 sacks to reach 44.0 for his career to pass LB Shawne Merriman for No. 6 in team history.

Needs 1.5 more sacks to post his sixth multi-sack game since 2016, which would tie for the ninth-most multi-sack games over that span.

S Derwin James

Needs an interception to become the first defensive rookie with at least 3.5 sacks and two interceptions since Washington OLB Zach Brown did so in 2012 while with Tennessee.

Needs 0.5 sacks to reach four for the year to tie CB Desmond King II (2017) for the most single-season sacks by a rookie defensive back in team history. The four sacks would tie King (L.A. Chargers, 2017) and DB Bill Bates (Dallas, 1983) for the most single-season sacks by a rookie defensive back in NFL history*. Four sacks would tie the NFL record for most sacks by a defensive back in the first 16 games of his career.

Needs 1.0 more sacks to reach 4.5 for the season for the most single-season sacks by a rookie defensive back in NFL history*. It would also set a record for the most sacks by a defensive back in the first 16 games of his career in history.

CB Desmond King II

Needs an interception returned for a touchdown mark his third career pick-six, tying for the second-most by a player in NFL history through his first two seasons.

Needs a sack to reach 5.0 for his career to tie S Mike Dumas for the fourth-most in team history by a defensive back.

HEAD COACH ANTHONY LYNN

On Jan. 13, 2017, the Los Angeles Chargers named Anthony Lynn the 16th head coach in franchise history and the first African-American head coach in team annals. Lynn joined the Chargers after spending the 2015-16 seasons as the assistant head coach and running backs coach for the Buffalo Bills.

In his first season at the helm in Los Angeles Lynn rallied the team after an 0-4 start to win nine of the final 12 games, including six of the last seven contests. The Chargers finished 9-7 and just missed out on a playoff berth due to a tiebreaker. The nine wins over the 12-game span was the best mark since the team won the last 11 games of the 2009 season. The five-straight home wins were also the best run on home turf since that 2009 season.

Lynn put his imprint on the team in year one. The Bolts turned the ball over just 15 times in 2017 to rank tied for fourth in the NFL after a season in which they were dead last with 35 turnovers. The offensive line led the league in the least amount of sacks allowed with 18. The Chargers haven't led the league in the least amount of sacks allowed since in the AFL in 1968.

A native of Celina, Texas, some 40 miles north of Dallas, Lynn was an All-Southwest Conference running back as a collegian at Texas Tech, where he rushed for 1,911 yards and 17 touchdowns on 481 carries. That helped him earn a ticket to the NFL where he signed with the New York Giants as an undrafted free agent in 1992. After being released by the Giants, Lynn signed with Denver in 1993 and appeared in 13 games for the Broncos. In 1994, he suffered a broken leg and spent the year on injured reserve. Lynn moved on to the Bay Area in 1995, spending two seasons with the San Francisco 49ers (1995-96) before concluding his career in Denver (1997-99) where he won back-to-back Super Bowl championships (XXXII and XXXIII) with the Broncos. Lynn hung up his cleats after the '99 season, having played in 83 career games.

Lynn jumped right into the coaching ranks in 2000, spending three seasons (2000-02) with the Broncos as an offensive assistant and assistant to special teams. In 2003, he landed his first full-time position gig as the running backs coach for the Jacksonville Jaguars (2003-04). That was followed by similar positions with the Dallas Cowboys (2005-06), Cleveland Browns (2007-08), New York Jets (2009-14) and Bills (2015-16). Lynn carried the additional title of assistant head coach in New York in 2014 and with the Bills for his two seasons there.

Lynn spent the last two seasons (2015-16) with the Bills, including the final 14 games of the 2016 season as their offensive coordinator and the final game of the year as their interim head coach. The Bills led the NFL in both of Lynn's seasons in both rushing yards (2,630 in 2016 and 2,432 in 2015) and rushing touchdowns (29 in 2016 and 19, tie in 2015). The Bills also led the League in average yards per carry (5.3 in 2016 and 4.8, tie in 2015) in each of his two seasons in Upstate New York. More impressively, at his last two coaching stops (New York and Buffalo), his teams combined to rush for 18,218 yards during that span (2009-16), the most combined yards in the NFL over that time period. In Week 16 of the 2016 season, as Offensive Coordinator for the Bills, Lynn led the offense to a franchise-record 589 total yards.

The fact that Lynn is coaching today is a miracle in and of itself. Back in 2005, early in Lynn's first season with the Cowboys, he was hit by a drunk driver while crossing a street. The impact was so violent that it's a miracle he survived. The accident happened as Lynn was leaving a restaurant following dinner with several Cowboys coaches. The impact threw him an estimated 40-50 feet and he landed on top of a parked Volkswagen. The force of the impact totaled the car. Pittsburgh Steelers Offensive Coordinator Todd Haley was with Lynn at the time. He narrowly avoided being hit himself and was the first to render aid to Lynn. The damage tally was extensive – two collapsed lungs, three broken ribs, major facial and shoulder damage that required four surgeries and temporary paralysis – yet despite it all, Lynn walked out of the hospital in less than two weeks.

Lynn was raised in Texas by a single mom, Betty Jackson, a former all-state basketball player who had coaching aspirations herself. Lynn's maternal grandfather, Tommy Lynn, a farmer and former baseball catcher, helped raise Anthony. Mother and grandfather helped instill a tireless work ethic in Lynn at an early age. By 13, he was working 40-60 hour weeks doing construction in the summertime. He worked his way up the construction ladder and had become a foreman by the time he was in high school. One of his responsibilities was driving his crew to job sites for a company that built shopping malls and custom homes. It spurned an interest in interior design and Lynn initially studied interior fashion design in college.

Lynn has since reconnected with his father, Donald Wilson, a Los Angeles native who once tried out for the Dodgers as a left-handed pitcher. Wilson now resides in Corona.

Lynn is married to Stacey Bell Lynn. He has two children, son, D'Anton, and daughter, Danielle. Stacey is a news anchor at WNBC in New York City. D'Anton played football collegiately at Penn State and professionally with the New York Jets and the Canadian Football League's Hamilton Tiger-Cats and currently is the assistant defensive backs coach for the Houston Texans. Danielle studied at the University of Oklahoma and is currently in graduate school at the University of North Texas.

In the spring of 2018, Lynn completed his college degree after leaving school for the NFL 26 years ago. Despite being in his first year as a head coach, Lynn received his degree in interdisciplinary studies from UNLV.

GENERAL MANAGER TOM TELESCO

With a keen eye for acquiring talented players, Tom Telesco serves his sixth season as General Manager of the Chargers in 2018.

Telesco was hired by the Chargers in January 2013. Forty years old at the time of his hiring, he became the youngest general manager in team history. Telesco immediately helped the Chargers return to the playoffs in 2013 with a roster that featured 25 players who joined the team prior to or during the season.

His first draft featured 2013 Pepsi Next NFL Rookie of the Year Keenan Allen. In 2017, Allen went on to break the Chargers' single-season receptions record and posted the second most receiving yards in team history en route to being named the NFL Comeback Player of the Year and earning his first Pro Bowl nod.

Over his five years with the organization, Telesco has drafted three pro bowlers in the first round in Jason Verrett, Melvin Gordon and Joey Bosa.

Telesco also has a proven track record with undrafted free agents. His finds have been highlighted by deep-threat and 1,000-yard receiver Tyrell Williams out of Western Oregon, special teams stalwart Nick Dzubnar from Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, running back Austin Ekeler out of Western State and Central Michigan safety Jahleel Addae.

On top of his draft choices, Telesco has brought in some of the top free agent talents in the NFL. Casey Hayward has blossomed into one of the top corners in the league, making back-to-back Pro Bowls in 2016-17 while offensive tackle Russell Okung made the Pro Bowl in his first season with the team in 2017. His signings also include defensive tackle Brandon Mebane, wide receiver/punt returner Travis Benjamin and his latest being three-time Pro Bowl center Mike Pouncey in 2018.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Telesco prepped at St. Francis High School in Athol Springs, N.Y. Days prior to Super Bowl XLVIII in January 2014, which was co-hosted by New York and New Jersey, Telesco was recognized for his accomplishments on the floor of the New York State Senate by Senator Timothy Kennedy.

After graduating from St. Francis, Telesco played wide receiver at John Carroll University in Ohio. He was a starter on the Blue Streaks' 1994 Ohio Athletic Conference Championship team, and two of his teammates at John Carroll were Chris and Brian Polian, sons of Bill Polian, a 2015 inductee into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

While attending John Carroll, Telesco spent four summers (1991-94) as a training camp intern with the Buffalo Bills. At that time, the elder Polian was the Bills' general manager. Polian left Buffalo for Carolina in 1994 and after Telesco graduated from John Carroll with a degree in business management in 1995, Polian hired him to work in the Panthers' scouting department. In 1998, Telesco and Polian moved on to Indianapolis, where Telesco would spend his next 15 NFL seasons as a college scout, pro scout, director of pro scouting, director of player personnel and vice president of football operations. He worked in Indianapolis during Peyton Manning's entire career with the Colts and later part of the team that brought Andrew Luck to the Colts with the first pick of the 2012 NFL Draft. Telesco also was involved in Colts drafts that featured four-time Pro Bowl running back Edgerrin James, five-time Pro Bowl wide receiver Reggie Wayne, Dwight Freeney, a seven-time Pro Bowler as a Colt and two-time Pro Bowl selection and Defensive Player of the Year Bob Sanders.

Telesco's tenure in Indianapolis was one of the most successful eras in Colts history. They played in two Super Bowls, including a victory over Chicago in Super Bowl XLI. From 1998-2012, the Colts won 154 regular-season games, eight division titles and they appeared in the playoffs 12 times. Indianapolis set an NFL record with 12 or more wins in seven consecutive seasons and they won an NFL-record 23 straight regular-season games during the 2008-09 seasons. Their 115 regular-season wins from 2000-09 set an NFL record for wins in a decade.

In 2015 and this year in 2018, Telesco was invited to be a speaker at the NFL's Career Development Symposium in Arizona. The program, attended by nearly 70 coaches and front office executives, was designed to engage aspiring head coach and general manager candidates. Telesco was one of only two active general managers invited to address participants at the symposium. He is also the co-chairman of the NFL General Manager Advisory Committee.

Telesco and his wife, Larah, have a daughter, Elena, and two sons, Thomas and Nicholas.

Tom Telesco's Experience

1995-96 – Scouting Assistant, Carolina Panthers
1997 – Area Scout, Carolina Panthers
1998-00 – Area Scout, Indianapolis Colts
2001-03 – Pro Scout, Indianapolis Colts

Tom Telesco's Experience

2004-05 – Director of Pro Scouting, Indianapolis Colts

WEEK 1 RECAP - CHIEFS 38, CHARGERS 28

The Los Angeles Chargers dropped their season opener to the Kansas City Chiefs 38-28 Sunday from ROKiT Field at StubHub Center.

Running backs Melvin Gordon and Austin Ekeler combined for 292 total yards and a touchdown, but it wasn't enough to make up for the explosiveness of wide receiver Tyreek Hill and the rest of the Chiefs' high-powered offense. Kansas City has now won its last nine games over the Chargers.

After a three-and-out by the Chargers offense to begin the game, Hill returned a punt 91 yards for a touchdown to make the score 7-0 after a Harrison Butker extra point.

Los Angeles responded with an eight-play, 48-yard drive that ended with Caleb Sturgis converting a 45-yard field goal – his first with the Chargers. Kansas City led 7-3, but Hill wasn't done adding to the visitors' lead.

On the fifth play of the Chiefs' next possession, quarterback Patrick Mahomes found Hill over the middle for a 58-yard touchdown – 46 of those yards came after the catch. Hill touched the ball three times in the first quarter, scored two touchdowns and gained 179 all-purpose yards. Kansas City led 14-6 after the first quarter.

The Chargers found their rhythm on offense early in the second quarter. Gordon and Ekeler combined for 75 total yards on a 12-play, 96-yard drive that was capped off by a 13-yard Ekeler touchdown reception from Philip Rivers. A failed two-point conversion cut Kansas City's lead to 14-12.

The Chiefs added a 46-yard Butker field goal to extend their advantage to 17-12 at halftime.

Kansas City opened the second half with an 11-play, 75-yard touchdown drive. A one-yard reception from Mahomes to wide receiver De'Anthony Thomas made the score 24-12 after another Butker extra point. Mahomes would later hit fullback Anthony Sherman for a 36-yard touchdown, giving the Chiefs a 31-12 advantage after three quarters.

Rivers found wide receiver Keenan Allen for a 20-yard touchdown reception to open the fourth quarter, cutting Kansas City's lead to 31-20 after Antonio Gates caught the two-point conversion.

Rivers finished the game 34-of-51 for 424 yards, three touchdowns and an interception. Allen caught eight balls for 108 yards and a touchdown. Gordon finished with 166 total yards and added a two-point conversion. Ekeler had 126 total yards and a receiving touchdown.

WEEK 2 RECAP - CHARGERS 31, BILLS 20

The Los Angeles Chargers beat the Buffalo Bills 31-20 on Sunday at New Era Field for their first win of the 2018 season.

Running back Melvin Gordon scored three touchdowns – all in the first half – while Philip Rivers spread the ball to six different receivers and finished an efficient 23-of-27 for 256 yards and three touchdowns. The Chargers' defense was credited with five sacks. They hit rookie quarterback Josh Allen eight times and picked him off twice.

A pair of Chargers defensive rookies set the early tone for a dominant first half. On Buffalo's first possession, Allen – while trying to avoid a blitzing Derwin James – was sacked by linebacker Uchenna Nwosu. James added a tackle for loss later in the first quarter.

Both defensive plays were key in setting up the Chargers' first two scores of the day. Wide receiver Mike Williams caught his first career touchdown – a 10-yard pass from Rivers – to give L.A. a 7-0 lead. It capped a three-play, 38-yard drive which also included a 25-yard reception by tight end Virgil Green.

On the Bolts' next offensive possession, Gordon finished a six-play, 61-yard drive with a 20-yard touchdown run. Los Angeles led 14-0 after the first quarter – and Gordon wasn't done.

After a Buffalo field goal, the Chargers marched down the field again courtesy of two Austin Ekeler rushes (22 and 16 yards) and a 23-yard reception by Green. This time, Gordon scored on a nine-yard reception from Rivers.

The hat trick for No. 28 came on a two-yard touchdown reception from Rivers with two minutes remaining in the second quarter. Los Angeles led 28-6 at halftime. Gordon finished the game with 66 total yards.

Ekeler rushed for a career-high 77 yards on 11 carries. Defensive end Melvin Ingram notched 1.5 sacks and three quarterback hits. James had six total tackles – two for loss – and a sack. Safety Adrian Phillips and rookie linebacker Kyzir White added two second-half interceptions of Allen.

Dating back to last season, Los Angeles has outscored Buffalo 85-44 in two meetings.

WEEK 3 RECAP - RAMS 35, CHARGERS 23

The Rams defeated the Chargers 35-23 Sunday at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Wide receiver Mike Williams caught two touchdown passes from Philip Rivers and running back Melvin Gordon added a score, but it wasn't enough to overcome 33 first downs and 521 yards of total offense by the Rams.

The Chargers defense prevented Rams points on the opening possession of the game when cornerback Desmond King recovered a Todd Gurley fumble -- forced by defensive tackle Brandon Mebane -- at the Bolts' 24-yard line. The Chargers offense went three-and-out, though, and the Rams didn't make the same mistake on their next possession.

Gurley capped off an 11-play, 80-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown run. The Rams led 7-0, but only for 92 seconds.

Gordon opened the Chargers' next possession with a 20-yard rush that included an acrobatic leap over Rams safety Lamarcus Joyner. Two plays later, Rivers found Williams, who beat cornerback Marcus Peters for a 42-yard touchdown reception. Caleb Sturgis missed the extra point, which made the score 7-6.

The Rams closed the first quarter with a three-yard touchdown pass from Jared Goff to Robert Woods. It was all part of a seven-play, 75-yard drive that put the Rams up 14-6.

With the Rams threatening to score again, rookie safety Derwin James picked off Goff in the end zone for his first career interception. The Chargers offense took over at their own one-yard line, but quickly went three-and-out. On fourth down, Drew Kaser's punt was blocked by linebacker Cory Littleton and recovered by Blake Countess in the end zone for a Rams touchdown. A Sam Ficken extra point increased the lead to 21-6.

Down two scores, the Chargers then drove down the field in ten plays. Gordon's 11-yard touchdown rush – aided by a key block by fullback Derek Watt -- cut the Rams' lead to 21-13. That score would stay true after Ficken missed a 46-yard field goal to close the first half.

A Keenan Allen fumble on the opening drive of the second half set the Rams offense up at their own 45-yard line. Three plays later, Goff found wide receiver Cooper Kupp for a 53-yard touchdown reception.

Williams' big day continued on the Bolts' next possession. On a crucial 4th-and-2, Rivers found the second-year receiver for a 20-yard touchdown strike. The Chargers shaved the lead to 28-20, but stopping the Rams explosive offense proved to be too much.

Woods caught 10 of his 11 targets for 92 yards. His second touchdown -- a six-yard reception in the third quarter -- put the Rams up two scores.

Rivers finished the game 18-of-30 for 226 yards and two touchdowns. Gordon rushed for 80 yards on 15 carries.

WEEK 4 RECAP - CHARGERS 29, 49ERS 27

The Los Angeles Chargers rallied from 14 points down in the first quarter to beat the San Francisco 49ers 29-27 Sunday from ROKiT Field at StubHub Center.

Philip Rivers threw for 250 yards and three touchdowns on a day when he also passed John Elway for the eighth-most passing yards in league history. Running back Melvin Gordon racked up 159 total yards, caught seven passes and scored his fifth touchdown of the season. The game was put on ice in the fourth quarter after rookie safety Derwin James hit 49ers quarterback C.J. Beathard, causing him to make an errant throw that was intercepted by defensive end Isaac Rochell.

Los Angeles improved to 2-2 on the season and secured their first home win of 2018 despite an inauspicious start.

Less than one minute into the game, Rivers was intercepted by 49ers cornerback Antone Exum Jr., who returned the ball 32 yards for a touchdown. A Robbie Gould extra point gave San Francisco an early 7-0 lead.

The Chargers went three-and-out on their second offensive possession, and the third resulted in a 54-yard missed field goal by Caleb Sturgis. San Francisco capitalized on its field position with a six-play, 56-yard drive that ended with a two-yard touchdown pass from Beathard to wide receiver Kendrick Bourne.

Down two scores early, the Chargers offense marched 75 yards in seven plays. Rivers found tight end Antonio Gates for a five-yard touchdown, but Sturgis missed the extra point. It was 14-6 San Francisco after the first quarter. The Rivers-to-Gates touchdown was the 88th of their career.

After a 49ers field goal, Rivers threw his second touchdown in as many drives – this time connecting with running back Austin Ekeler for a 22-yard strike. Rivers then hit Gordon for the two-point conversion to tighten San Francisco's lead to 17-14.

With 30 seconds remaining in the second quarter, cornerback Desmond King returned a Bradley Pinion punt 56 yards to San Francisco's 33-yard line. Two plays later, Sturgis' 48-yard field goal tied the game 17-17 at halftime.

James' third sack of the season set the tone for the second half. San Francisco was again forced to punt to King, whose 21-yard return put the Chargers at their own 49-yard line. Six plays later, Gordon caught a six-yard touchdown pass from Rivers to put Los Angeles up 23-17 after Sturgis' second missed extra point of the day.

The 49ers – aided by a pair of roughing-the-passer penalties – were threatening to score at Los Angeles' eight-yard line until a Beathard pass bounced off the chest of Garrett Celek and into the arms of cornerback Trevor Williams. Williams returned the ball 86 yards to San Francisco's 12-yard line.

A Sturgis 25-yard field goal would increase Los Angeles' lead to 26-17 but it didn't hold for long. Later in the quarter, Beathard hooked up with tight end George Kittle for an 82-yard touchdown. It was 26-24 Chargers after the third quarter.

Both teams traded field goals in the fourth quarter before Rochell's interception sealed the win.

WEEK 5 RECAP - CHARGERS 26, RAIDERS 10

The Los Angeles Chargers beat the Oakland Raiders 26-10 on Sunday from ROKiT Field at StubHub Center for their first division win of 2018.

Running backs Melvin Gordon and Austin Ekeler combined for 179 total yards and two touchdowns. It was the tenth straight game that Gordon has had either 100 yards from scrimmage or a touchdown – or both.

Defensive end Melvin Ingram spearheaded a complete defensive performance with seven tackles (two for loss), a sack and an interception of quarterback Derek Carr with the Raiders threatening to score late in the third quarter.

Quarterback Philip Rivers finished 22-of-27 for 339 yards and two touchdowns. Keenan Allen led the team in receiving with 90 yards on eight catches. The win moved Los Angeles (3-2) to over .500 for the first time this season.

Los Angeles opened the game with a seven-play, 37-yard drive highlighted by a 16-yard Gordon rush. Kicker Caleb Sturgis was good from 49 yards out to give the Chargers an early 3-0 lead.

The Raiders tied the game at 3-3 in the second quarter with a 24-yard field goal by Matt McCrane, but that was as close as the visitors would get.

With 4:14 remaining in the second quarter, Ekeler took a short pass from Philip Rivers and raced 44 yards for Los Angeles' first touchdown on the day. Sturgis' extra point made it 10-3.

On the first play of Oakland's next possession, Chargers linebacker Jatavis Brown forced wide receiver Martavis Bryant to fumble after a 21-yard gain. Safety Jahleel Addae recovered the ball, putting Los Angeles back in business at the Raiders' 48-yard line.

Six plays later -- on a drive that included a 34-yard reception by Gordon -- No. 28 punched in a one-yard touchdown run. Los Angeles led 17-3 at halftime.

In the second half, the Chargers added a field goal and a 13-yard touchdown from Rivers to tight end Virgil Green to put the game out of reach.

WEEK 6 RECAP - CHARGERS 38, BROWNS 14

The Los Angeles Chargers beat the Cleveland Browns 38-14 Sunday at FirstEnergy Stadium for their third straight win.

Los Angeles' high-powered offense was paced by running back Melvin Gordon, who scored three touchdowns on 150 total yards, 132 of which came on the ground (7.3 yards per carry). Gordon now has nine total touchdowns on the season. As a team, the Chargers rushed for 246 yards.

Wide receiver Tyrell Williams caught three passes for 118 yards and two touchdowns from Philip Rivers in the span of less than seven minutes in the second quarter. The Chargers manufactured 449 yards of total offense.

Cleveland was overmatched on both sides of the ball. Browns quarterback Baker Mayfield went 22-of-46 for 238 yards, one touchdown and two interceptions -- both by cornerback Desmond King. Mayfield was also sacked five times.

The Browns offense stalled on the game's first series after safety Rayshawn Jenkins and defensive tackle Corey Liuget split a sack on Mayfield. Cornerback Desmond King's 32-yard punt return put Los Angeles' offense at its own 43-yard line.

In five plays, the Chargers went 57 yards for their first opening drive touchdown in 22 games. Gordon's four-yard score put Los Angeles up 7-0 after new kicker Michael Badgley made the extra point.

Mayfield was sacked three times in the first quarter – 1.5 of them by defensive tackle Damion Square on back-to-back plays. The Browns got on the board at the start of the second quarter with a 33-yard field goal by Greg Joseph to make the score 7-3.

Williams' explosive second quarter started with a 44-yard reception from Rivers. On the next play, Williams – surrounded by three defenders – hauled in a 45-yard touchdown. The two-play, 89-yard drive extended Los Angeles' lead to 14-3.

With 57 seconds remaining in the half, Rivers found Williams again – this time for a 29-yard touchdown on 3rd-and-6. Los Angeles led 21-6 at halftime.

The first of King's two interceptions came with 12:05 remaining in the third quarter. His 33-yard return put Los Angeles at the Browns' 10-yard line. On the next play, Gordon punched it in from 10 yards out to increase the lead to 28-6.

Rivers finished the game 11-of-20 for 207 yards, two touchdowns and an interception before giving way to Geno Smith. Badgley made all five of his extra points and added a 44-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

WEEK 7 RECAP - CHARGERS 20, TITANS 19

The Chargers improved to 5-2 Sunday after beating the Tennessee Titans 20-19 at Wembley Stadium in London.

The game was decided when safety Adrian Phillips tipped Titans quarterback Marcus Mariota's pass on a two-point conversion attempt after tight end Luke Stocker scored a touchdown with 35 seconds remaining.

Quarterback Philip Rivers went 19-of-26 for 306 yards and two long touchdown passes to a pair of Williams. Tyrell Williams had 118 receiving yards for the second straight game, while Mike Williams added 55 receiving yards on his fourth touchdown of the season.

Running back Austin Ekeler had 68 total yards on 17 touches in place of Melvin Gordon, who was inactive with a hamstring injury.

Tennessee struck first on an 11-play, 55-yard drive to open the game. Ryan Succop's 28-yard field goal gave the Titans an early 3-0 lead.

It didn't take long for Los Angeles to respond, though. On the offense's first play from scrimmage, Rivers hooked up with wide receiver Tyrell Williams for a 75-yard touchdown. Michael Badgley's extra point made it 7-3 Chargers.

After a three-and-out which included a sack by defensive tackle Darius Philon, the Chargers' offense put together a 10-play drive ending in a 29-yard Badgley field goal. Los Angeles led 10-3 after the first quarter.

The Titans added another field goal and were threatening to score again before the half. With 39 seconds remaining, linebacker Denzel Perryman picked off a Melvin Ingram-deflected Mariota pass at Los Angeles' four-yard line and returned it 16 yards. The Chargers entered halftime with a 10-6 lead.

Los Angeles' quick-strike offense opened the second half with a three-play, 75-yard drive. This time, Rivers went deep to wide receiver Mike Williams for a 55-yard touchdown to make the score 17-6.

A 37-yard kick return by Darius Jennings coupled with an unnecessary roughness penalty by safety Rayshawn Jenkins set Tennessee up at the Chargers' 42-yard line on its next possession. Seven plays later, running back Derrick Henry scored from one-yard out to close the gap to 17-13.

The Chargers added another Badgley field goal -- this one from 28 yards out -- to increase their lead to 20-13. In two games, Badgley has been perfect on field goals (3-of-3) and extra points (7-of-7).

WEEK 9 RECAP - CHARGERS 25, SEAHAWKS 17

The Los Angeles Chargers beat the Seattle Seahawks 25-17 Sunday at CenturyLink Field for their fifth straight win.

In perhaps the most difficult place in the NFL to play as the opponent, the Chargers improved to 6-2 – their best start since 2006. Quarterback Philip Rivers went 13-of-26 for 228 yards and two touchdowns in his 200th consecutive start.

Running back Melvin Gordon rushed for 113 yards and a touchdown on 16 carries after missing Los Angeles' last game with a hamstring injury. Wide receiver Keenan Allen had a season-high 124 receiving yards on six receptions.

Down eight in the fourth quarter, the Seahawks had the ball at the Chargers' one-yard line with one untimed down remaining before Seattle was called for a false start. On the final play, a Russell Wilson pass to wide receiver David Moore was incomplete in the end zone.

Seattle opened the game with a 13-play, 75-yard touchdown drive that took up over eight minutes of the clock. After nine rushes in 12 plays, Wilson's 10-yard strike to wide receiver Jaron Brown gave the Seahawks an early 7-0 lead.

Los Angeles responded with a 10-play, 94-yard touchdown drive that began with a 28-yard rush by Allen. On the last play of the first quarter, Rivers found wide receiver Tyrell Williams for a 12-yard score, but kicker Caleb Sturgis missed the extra point.

Seattle led 7-6 entering the second quarter. For Williams, it was his fourth touchdown in the last three games. For the Chargers, it was their third straight game with an opening drive touchdown.

After forcing a three-and-out, Los Angeles needed just four plays to get back in the end zone. Gordon's 34-yard rushing touchdown – set up by a 54-yard Allen reception from Rivers – put the Chargers up 12-7. Their two-point conversion attempt was no good.

Later in the quarter, Rivers orchestrated the Bolts' third touchdown drive of the half. This time, he found wide receiver Mike Williams, who tightroped the sideline 30 yards for his fifth touchdown of the season.

The Chargers led 19-10 at halftime. Their final two touchdown drives of the first half took up just 1:59 of the clock combined.

In the fourth quarter, cornerback Desmond King intercepted Wilson and returned it 42 yards for a touchdown to put the Chargers up 25-10.

WEEK 10 RECAP - CHARGERS 20, RAIDERS 6

The Los Angeles Chargers improved to 7-2 Sunday after beating the Raiders 20-6 at Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum.

It was Los Angeles' sixth-straight win and capped off a 4-0 record since Week 5, which was the team's last game from ROKiT Field at StubHub Center. Running back Melvin Gordon had 165 total yards, including a 66-yard touchdown reception on the opening possession of the second half. Gordon has at least 120 total yards and a touchdown in his last five games -- all Chargers wins.

Philip Rivers finished 18-of-26 for 223 yards, two touchdowns and an interception. The defense held Oakland out of the end zone and sacked quarterback Derek Carr four times.

The Raiders executed a successful fake punt on the game's opening possession when punter Johnny Townsend raced 42 yards to Los Angeles' 21-yard line. Faced with a fourth-and-goal at the one-yard line, safety Derwin James stopped wide receiver Dwayne Harris on a jet sweep and the Chargers' took over on downs.

Los Angeles went three-and out on its only two possessions of the first quarter. A 46-yard field goal by Raiders kicker Daniel Carlson put Oakland up 3-0 after one.

With the Raiders threatening to increase their lead at the Chargers' 21-yard line, defensive end Melvin Ingram sacked Derek Carr, who fumbled. The ball was scooped up by defensive tackle Corey Liuget and he returned it 24 yards to Oakland's 40-yard line. The turnover resulted in a 27-yard Michael Badgley field goal, which tied the game 3-3.

After forcing a three-and-out on Oakland's next possession, the Chargers continued their domination in the second quarter. A nine-play, 81-yard drive ending in an 11-yard touchdown reception by wide receiver Keenan Allen put Los Angeles up 10-3 at halftime. The Chargers have outscored their opponents 89-34 in the second quarter this season.

Gordon's touchdown was the only score in the third quarter. Los Angeles went up 20-6 in the fourth quarter on a 41-yard field goal by Badgley, who set a team record for most points (24) without a missed kick through three games.

Defensive end Isaac Rochell notched 1.5 sacks. He now has 4.5 sacks in his last five games. Allen caught six balls for 57 yards and scored his first touchdown since Week 1.

WEEK 11 RECAP - BRONCOS 23, CHARGERS 22

In the first game from ROKiT Field at StubHub Center since Week 5, the Chargers fell 23-22 Sunday to the Denver Broncos.

Broncos kicker Brandon McManus made a 34-yard field goal as time expired to end the Chargers' six-game winning streak.

Running back Melvin Gordon totaled 156 yards – his sixth-straight game with at least 120 yards from scrimmage. Quarterback Philip Rivers finished 28-of-43 for 401 yards, two touchdowns and two interceptions. Rivers has thrown at least two touchdowns in every game this season. It wasn't enough, though, to overcome two turnovers and 14 penalties.

Defensive end Joey Bosa added a quarterback hit and a tackle in his 2018 debut.

After forcing a three-and-out to start the game, the Chargers' offense put together a 13-play, 49-yard drive that included a pair of third-down catches by wide receiver Keenan Allen. Michael Badgley's 46-yard field goal gave Los Angeles an early 3-0 lead.

The Bolts' defense forced another fourth down when Bosa chased down quarterback Case Keenum, causing him to throw an incomplete pass while running out of bounds. Denver held the ball for just 4:09 of the opening quarter.

Rivers connected with five different receivers for 121 yards in the first quarter, but the Chargers committed seven penalties for 50 yards. They led 6-0 after Badgley's second field goal of the day – this one from 45-yards out.

The Broncos took the lead when undrafted rookie running back Phillip Lindsay raced 41 yards for the team's first score of the day. The touchdown was aided by a fake punt that kept Denver's drive alive.

The Broncos responded with 13 unanswered points. Their first score was set up by a Von Miller interception and a 42-yard return to the Chargers' 18-yard line. A three-yard Royce Freeman touchdown cut Los Angeles' lead to 19-14.

Denver's second score of the half was set up by a 39-yard catch-and-run by rookie wide receiver Courtland Sutton. A two-yard touchdown rush by Lindsay gave the Broncos a 20-19 lead after their two-point conversion failed.

On its next possession, Los Angeles regained the lead 22-20 with an eight-play, 60-yard drive ending in a 30-yard Badgley field goal. The next score of the game would be McManus' game winner.

EXPERIENCE: 6TH NFL SEASON

2018: Started all 10 games at WR, posting 62 catches for 776 yards (12.5 avg.) and three TDs…Extended his team-record streak of multi-catch games to 62 contests, the fourth-longest active streak… Registered two 100-yard contests to reach 20 for his career, moving into a tie with WR Wes Chandler for the sixth-most in Chargers history… Brought his career receiving yardage total to 4,786, moving past WR Vincent Jackson (4,754) and WR Tony Martin (4,184) for No. 9 in career receiving yards in team history…Moved to seventh in Chargers history in career receptions with 385, passing RB Ronnie Harmon (377), WR Anthony Miller (374) and Wes Chandler (373)…Added eight carries for 75 yards (9.4 avg.)…vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Started at WR and played 72 offensive snaps, finishing with 108 receiving yards and a TD on eight catches (13.5 avg.)…It marked the 19th 100-yard game of his career, moving into a tie with Anthony Miller for the seventh-most 100-yard performances in team annals…The performance was his second 100-yard game in Week 1 (166 yards on Sept. 13, 2015 vs. Detroit)…The eight catches gave him 53-straight games with multiple catches, breaking a tie with Hall of Fame TE Kellen Winslow for the longest multi-catch streak in team history…Motioned from right-to-left on third-and-two in the fourth quarter before shaking off CB Orlando Scandrick with a double-move at the line of scrimmage before catching the arching pass from QB Philip Rivers in the front, right corner of the end zone for a 20-yard TD…In the first quarter, provided downfield blocking with TE Virgil Green to spring WR Travis Benjamin free for a 19-yard rush…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Appeared on 51 plays on offense and one on special teams after opening the game at WR…Registered 67 receiving yards on six catches (11.2 avg.), increasing his career total to 4,185 to pass Tony Martin (4,184) for No. 10 in team history… Recovered an onside kick attempt at the end of the game and returned it 25 yards…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Posted three catches for 44 yards (14.7 avg.), totaling 40 offensive plays after starting at WR…Hauled in a pass for 25 yards on third-and-17 in the first quarter down the left sideline with CB Sam Shields and S Lamarcus Joyner in coverage…Made a block on a first quarter run by RB Melvin Gordon III that went for 20 yards…Provided downfield blocking in the fourth quarter for WR Tyrell Williams to run for 14 yards on the first carry of his career…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Hauled in seven passes for 63 yards (9.0 avg.), appearing on 57 offensive plays after starting at WR… In the first quarter, ran a deep out-route with CB Ahkello Witherspoon in coverage, hauling in the pass from Philip Rivers for an 18-yard gain… Provided a key block in the fourth quarter for Melvin Gordon to run off tackle to the left for a 34-yard gain to the San Francisco four-yard line… vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Started at WR, appearing on 49 offensive snaps and one on special teams…Tied a season high with eight receptions for 90 yards (11.3 avg.)…Blocked S Marcus Gilchrist downfield on RB Austin Ekeler's 44-yard TD catch-and-run…Recovered an onside kick by the Raiders in the fourth quarter…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Appeared in the 60th game of his career, opening the game at WR and playing 39 snaps on offense and four on special teams…Recorded four catches for 62 yards (15.5 avg.)…Set single-game career highs in carries (four) and rushing yards (41) for a 10.3 yards-per-carry average…Provided a key block on Melvin Gordon's third rushing TD of the game…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Hauled in five catches for 72 yards (14.4 avg.) after starting at WR and appearing on 40 offensive snaps…Over a three-play span in the first quarter, corralled a pair of passes for 41 yards to sustain the team's second scoring drive…In the fourth quarter, moved the chains on third-and-four with a diving seven-yard catch despite tight coverage of CB Logan Ryan that was upheld after a Tennessee challenge…Recovered an onside kick on his lone special teams play…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Started as the lone WR for the Bolts, appearing on 43 plays on offense and one on special teams… Finished with 124 receiving yards on six catches (20.7 avg.), including a career-long 54-yard grab…Ran a deep route on the play, pulling a double-move to get separation from CB Shaquil Griffin before juking past S Tedric Thompson after hauling it in…The 124 yards were good for his 20th career 100-yard receiving game to tie with Wes Chandler for the sixth-most in Chargers history…Added two carries for 28 yards (14.0 avg.)…On the team's first offensive play, took a jet-sweep to the right for a career-long gain of 28 yards behind a key block from TE Sean Culkin on the edge…Provided a block on CB Tre Flowers on a 16-yard rush by Austin Ekeler…at Oakland (Nov. 11): Opened the game as the team's lone starting WR, seeing action on 50 offensive plays… Hauled in his second TD catch of the season and 57 receiving yards on six receptions (9.5 avg.)…His six catches brought him to eighth in team history with 376 to pass Anthony Miller (374) and Wes Chandler (373)…On the TD catch, ran a corner-route and dragged his feet in the front right corner of the end zone with CB Daryl Worley in coverage for an 11-yard score…Provided a downfield block on DE Jacquies Smith to help Melvin Gordon score on his career-long 66-yard TD catch-and-run…vs. Denver (Nov. 18): Registered nine receptions for 89 yards (9.9 avg.) and a TD, pushing him up the Chargers record books to seventh in career receptions (passing Ronnie Harmon) and receiving yards (passing Vincent Jackson)…On the team's opening drive, beat CB Chris Harris Jr., on a post-route for a 27-yard gain on third-and-six… Beat Harris again on a shallow crossing route before sneaking to the back of the end zone on a four-yard TD from Philip Rivers late in the first half…Provided a downfield block on Harris to help Austin Ekeler gain 17 yards on a reverse run…Started at WR and appeared on 69 plays on offense.

2018: Appeared in all 10 games with one start at RB, carrying the ball 65 times for 374 yards (5.8 avg.)…Posted 22 receptions for 286 yards (13.0 avg.) and three TDs, including a single-game career-long 44-yard TD catch…The receiving scores brought his career total to six, making him the sixth-ever undrafted RB to have at least six TD catches in his first two seasons…Became the first undrafted RB to record five-plus TD catches in his first two seasons since 1966 (Dallas RB Dan Reeves had nine TD catches from 1965-66)…The six receiving TDs tied RB Mike Tolbert for the third-most in team history by an undrafted RB… Recorded nine tackles on special teams, giving him 26 for his career… vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Saw action on 22 plays on offense and 20 on special teams…Finished with five carries for 39 yards (7.8 avg.) and five receptions for a career-high 87 yards (17.4 avg.) and a TD…The 126 scrimmage yards was a single-game career high, beating his mark of 119 in Week 10 of 2017 at Jacksonville…Midway through the second quarter, hauled in the 13-yard TD pass from QB Philip Rivers, marking Rivers' 343rd career TD passes for sole possession of sixth in NFL history…On the play, got behind LB Anthony Hitchens in the front left corner of the end zone as Rivers stood tall in the face of pressure…Earlier in the game, corralled a pass down the left sideline that was tipped by WR Keenan Allen for a 30-yard gain, maintaining possession after an illegal hit by DB Ron Parker…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Posted a career best with a game-high 77 rushing yards on 11 carries (7.0 avg.), surpassing his previous high of 49 yards (Dec. 10, 2017 vs. Washington) with 10 minutes remaining in the second quarter…Added three receptions for 21 yards (7.0 avg.)…Took a sweep handoff from left-to-right for 16 yards in the first quarter, getting downfield blocks from TE Virgil Green and WR Tyrell Williams…Posted two carries of 15-plus yards in a three-play stretch in the second quarter…Took the first handoff off tackle to the left with a block from Green pulling to the left before breaking a tackle attempt of S Micah Hyde for a 22-yard gain…Two plays later, received another pulling block from Green to spring him free on an end-around to the left for 16 yards…Played 24 snaps on offense and 13 on special teams…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Carried the ball four times for 47 yards (11.8 avg.)…Caught three passes for 24 yards (8.0 avg.)…Posted a game-long 32-yard run in the third quarter, juking past S Lamarcus Joyner in the open field after receiving sealing blocks from G Michael Schofield III, Virgil Green, FB Derek Watt and C Mike Pouncey…Added a tackle on special teams, appearing on 18 offensive plays and 15 on special teams…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Hauled in two catches for 31 yards (15.5 avg.), including a 22-yard score…The receiving TD marked his second of the year and fifth of his career, making him the first undrafted RB to catch five-plus TD passes in the first two seasons of his professional career since 1966 (Dan Reeves had nine from 1965-66)…On the score, lined up split wide to the right and ran a go-route down the sideline, getting behind the single-man coverage of LB Fred Warner to catch the pass from Philip Rivers in the end zone…Added 25 rushing yards on eight attempts (3.1 avg.)… Saw action on 23 offensive plays and 21 on special teams, registering a special teams tackle…vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Hauled in the sixth TD pass of his career on a career-long 44-yard catch-and-run to become the sixth-ever undrafted RB to have six-plus TD receptions in his first two seasons…On the play, caught the ball in the left flat, juking by LB Tahir Whitehead and CB Daryl Worley and running down the sideline for the score while getting a block from Keenan Allen…Posted six carries for 15 yards (2.5 avg.)…Appeared on 23 offensive snaps and 16 on special teams, recording two special teams tackles…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Appeared on 21 snaps each on offense and special teams… Carried the ball seven times for 60 yards (8.6 avg.)…Part of a rushing attack that registered 246 yards on the ground, the most by a Chargers offense since 2008…Recorded two carries for 10-plus yards within a three-play span in the third quarter, including a 13-yard gain where he broke three tackles…In the fourth quarter, took a shotgun handoff to the left for 20 yards, getting key blocks from G Dan Feeney, T Russell Okung, C/G Scott Quessenberry and Virgil Green…Posted a tackle on special teams…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Made the first start at RB of his career in place of an injured Melvin Gordon… Played 42 snaps on offense and one on special teams…Carried the ball a career-high 12 times for 42 yards (3.5 avg.) and tied a single-game career high with five receptions for 26 yards (5.2 avg.)…Took a handoff in the third quarter for an 11-yard gain, weaving through blocks from Mike Pouncey, Dan Feeney and Virgil Green…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Appeared on 20 plays on special teams and nine on offense…Carried the ball three times for 21 yards (7.0 avg.) and registered a 13-yard reception…Took a jet-sweep to the left in the first quarter for a 16-yard gain behind blocks from Virgil Green and TE Sean Culkin…at Oakland (Nov. 11): Carried the football three times for 19 yards (6.3 avg.) while playing 20 offensive snaps…Registered five tackles on special teams while participating on 16 special teams snaps…vs. Denver (Nov. 18): Contributed with 18 snaps each on offense and special teams…Posted 29 rushing yards on six attempts (4.8 avg.) while registering two receptions for 40 yards (20.0 avg.)…Took his longest run of the day 17 yards on a reverse behind blocks from Philip Rivers and Keenan Allen…In the fourth quarter, hauled in a pass on a drag-route that went for a 23-yard gain after breaking a tackle attempt by ILB Josey Jewell.

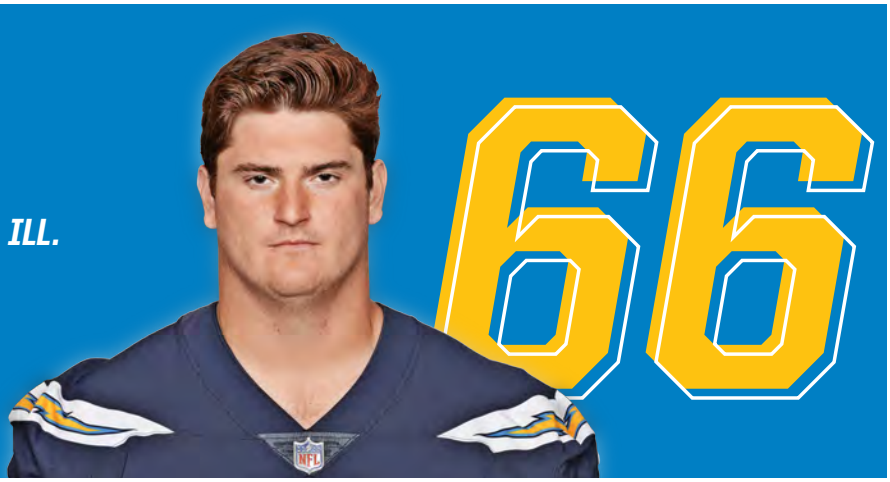
EXPERIENCE: 2ND NFL SEASON

2ND YEAR WITH CHARGERS



2018: Started all 10 games at LG…Part of a line that protected QB Philip Rivers to pass Hall of Fame QB Fran Tarkenton for the sixth-most career TD passes in NFL history, Hall of Fame QB John Elway for the eighth-most passing yards in league annals and Hall of Fame QB Terry Bradshaw for the 12th-most regular-season victories by a QB…Gave Rivers time to post two games with 400-plus yards, four with 300-plus yards and a trio of three-TD contests…Blocked to help Rivers set a team mark with multiple TD passes in every game this season and 11-straight dating back to 2017…Protected Rivers to post a passer rating of 100 or higher in eight games, marking the most through the first nine games of a season in his career…Kept Rivers upright to throw 13 TD passes in the first five games, 15 in the first six contests and 17 in the team's first seven games, tying for the most in his career through five, six and seven games, respectively, to start a season…Blocked for the NFL's No. 7 offense, posting 400.8 yards-per-game…Contributed on a line that blocked for a rushing attack that posted over 100 yards in five of the first six games, including each of the first four…Blocked for RB Melvin Gordon III to become the sixth Charger to reach 3,000 career rushing yards and post three 100-yard games…Paved the way for Gordon to record the first five-game streak with at least one scrimmage TD and 120-plus yards from scrimmage in a decade (RB Jamaal Charles, 2007)…Is the one Charger to appear on all 611 offensive snaps this season…Appeared on 47 special teams plays…vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Started at LG and played all 82 snaps on offense…Blocked for the offense to total a Week 1-high 541 net yards, including 123 on the ground…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 424 yards and three TDs for a 103.7 passer rating…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Opened the game at LG, playing all 57 offensive snaps…Kept Philip Rivers upright to complete 85.2 percent of his passes for 256 yards and three TDs (143.2 passer rating)…It marked Rivers' 54th three-TD performance (second of the season) and the fifth-best single-game passer rating of his career (min. 20 attempts)…Paved the way for an offense that rushed for 100-plus yards for the second time in as many weeks…Blocked for RB Austin Ekeler to record a single-game career-high 77 rushing yards and for Melvin Gordon to match a career best with three total TDs (one rushing, two receiving)…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 226 yards and two TDs, registering a 105.7 passer rating…Blocked for an offense that posted a season-high 141 rushing yards on 20 carries (7.1 avg.)…Provided a key block for Melvin Gordon for a 20-yard gain in the first quarter…Appeared on all 52 offensive plays after starting at LG…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Opened the game at LG and played all 68 offensive snaps…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to record his first 100-yard rushing game of the season, finishing with 104 yards…It marked the fourth-straight contest where the offense posted at least 100 rushing yards…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for three TDs…vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Appeared in the 20th game of his career, starting at LG and playing all 64 snaps on offense…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 339 yards and register a 143.4 passer rating, the best rating of his career against Oakland…Provided downfield blocking in the fourth quarter for TE Virgil Green to score a 13-yard TD on a screen pass…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Started at LG and played all 60 offensive snaps…Paved the way for the offense to register 449 yards of offense, including 246 on the ground, which was the most by a Chargers offense since 2008…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post a single-game career high three rushing TDs…Protected Philip Rivers to reach 15 TDs on the year, tying for the most of his career through the first six games of a season…Provided key blocks on Gordon's second TD run of the day and on a 20-yard carry by Austin Ekeler in the fourth quarter…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw two TDs and 306 yards, registering a 137.7 passer rating, his sixth rating of 100-plus for the year…The two TDs put Rivers at 17 for the season, tying for the most through the first seven games of a season in his career…Blocked CB Logan Ryan to spring Austin Ekeler free for an 11-yard gain in the third quarter…Started at LG, playing all 44 snaps on offense…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Played all 51 offensive snaps after opening the game at LG…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post his third 100-yard rushing output of the season, registering a TD and 113 yards on 16 attempts (7.1 avg.)…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for two TDs, 228 yards and a 105.9 passer rating…Provided time for Rivers to record his seventh game of the season with a passer rating over 100, the most through the first eight games of a season in his career…at Oakland (Nov. 11): Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post 165 yards from scrimmage and a TD for the fifth-straight game, the longest streak since 2007 (Jamaal Charles)…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for two TDs and 223 yards (105.1 passer rating) for his eighth game of 2018 with a passer rating of 100-plus, the most of his career through nine games in a season…Provided a block on Gordon's 15-yard run in the fourth quarter…Played all 56 snaps on offense, starting at LG…vs. Denver (Nov. 18): Started at LG and played all 77 offensive snaps…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 401 yards, his 11th career 400-yard output, and two TDs, his team-record 11th-straight game with multiple TD passes (dating back to 2017)…Paved the way for Melvin Gordon to post his sixth-straight game with at least 120 yards from scrimmage.

BEYOND THE BOLT

Boxing is in Gates' blood. In his hometown of Detroit, Gates has promoted boxing and regularly staged fight cards in the Detroit Metro Area. His paternal grandfather, Henry Hank, was a professional boxer in the 1950s and '60s, totaling a 62-31-4 record with 40 wins by knockout in the middleweight and light heavyweight divisions. Hank's 1962 fight against Joey Giardello was voted Fight of the Year by Ring Magazine. Gates' cousin, Tony Harrison, started his career with a 27-2-0 record and 21 wins by knockout.

Gates had not played football since his senior season at Detroit's Central High before signing with the Chargers as an undrafted rookie in 2003. He attended Michigan State with the intention to play football and basketball for the Spartans, but when then-head football coach Nick Saban wanted Gates to focus on football, the future All-Pro TE chose to play basketball at the collegiate level. After spending time at Eastern Michigan University and the College of the Sequoias, a junior college in Visalia, Calif., Gates found a home at Kent State. In his two seasons for the Golden Flashes, he led the team to a 52-15 record and back-to-back Mid-American Conference Titles before helping the team to the Elite Eight of the NCAA Tournament in his senior season. Gates finished his career as the sixth-leading scorer in program history, had his No. 44 jersey retired in 2010 and was inducted into the MAC Hall of Fame in May 2017.

During the 2014 offseason, Gates missed the team's voluntary offseason program to be with his younger sister, Pamela, and the rest of his family in Detroit while she was in a coma from lupus. Pamela died in July 2014 after a three-year battle with disease. Gates was incredibly close with his sister and continued to honor her memory by wearing custom purple cleats with Pam's name and the Lupus Foundation of America's logo for the league's My Cause, My Cleats initiative against Cleveland this past season. Gates said, "This is a cause that is close to my heart, and I feel it really deserves more attention. It's a special week for all players, and I'm proud to support the Lupus Foundation of America to help increase lupus awareness and raise funds for lupus research. I've been looking forward to this game so I can pay tribute to my sister and her life."

Gates' wife, Sasha, is an R&B musician. A dedicated mother to their two children, Ayla and Aven, Sasha helps run the Dolling Foundation, which inspires women to maintain a strong sense of self by enhancing their natural beauty that was compromised by hair loss due to catastrophic illness or tragedy. She has had a successful modeling career and previously starred on the E! reality show 'WAGS'.

BEYOND THE BOLT

Gordon's parents played an instrumental role in his upbringing. His mother, Carmen, has never missed one of his games. Before enrolling at Wisconsin, she would shuttle him to and from football camps and combines as far away as Tennessee and Alabama. Carmen also stayed after him to maintain good grades as he was named to a host of all-academic teams during his college career at Wisconsin. Melvin wore No. 25 for the Badgers because it was his mother's age when he was born.

Gordon's father, Melvin Jr., also known as "Big Bo," taught his son the importance of strength and conditioning. The family had a weight room in the basement of their Kenosha home and Melvin Sr., was a regular fixture in the weight room at Bradford High School. Gordon continued his intense training regimen at Wisconsin where he once ran every step in Camp Randall Stadium while wearing a weighted vest. A former semi-pro football player, the elder Gordon used to show his son tapes of great running backs like Barry Sanders and Walter Payton.

On his off day leading up to Week 2, Gordon and some of his teammates volunteered in the Los Angeles Meal Pack on 9/11 Day, which helps feed food-insecure children, elderly and veterans. He founded his charity, Melvin Gordon's Beyond the Flash Foundation, earlier this year to combat childhood hunger. For his efforts on Sept. 11, Gordon was awarded Week 1 NFLPA Community MVP. As part of the recognition, the NFLPA donated $10,000 to his foundation.

1ST YEAR WITH CHARGERS

2018: Started all 10 games at C…Part of a line that protected QB Philip Rivers to pass Hall of Fame QB Fran Tarkenton for the sixth-most career TD passes in NFL history, Hall of Fame QB John Elway for the eighth-most passing yards in league annals and Hall of Fame QB Terry Bradshaw for the 12th-most regular-season victories by a QB…Gave Rivers time to post two games with 400-plus yards, four with 300-plus yards and a trio of three-TD contests…Blocked to help Rivers set a team mark with multiple TD passes in every game this season and 11-straight dating back to 2017…Protected Rivers to post a passer rating of 100 or higher in eight games, marking the most through the first nine games of a season in his career…Kept Rivers upright to throw 13 TD passes in the first five games, 15 in the first six contests and 17 in the team's first seven games, tying for the most in his career through five, six and seven games, respectively, to start a season…Blocked for the NFL's No. 7 offense, posting 400.8 yards-per-game…Contributed on a line that blocked for a rushing attack that posted over 100 yards in five of the first six games, including each of the first four…Blocked for RB Melvin Gordon III to become the sixth Charger to reach 3,000 career rushing yards and post three 100-yard games…Paved the way for Gordon to record the first five-game streak with at least one scrimmage TD and 120-plus yards from scrimmage in a decade (RB Jamaal Charles, 2007)…vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Started at C and played all 82 snaps on offense…Blocked for the offense to total a Week 1-high 541 net yards, including 123 on the ground…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 424 yards and three TDs for a 103.7 passer rating…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Opened the game at C, playing all 57 offensive snaps…Kept Philip Rivers upright to complete 85.2 percent of his passes for 256 yards and three TDs (143.2 passer rating)…It marked Rivers' 54th three-TD performance (second of the season) and the fifth-best single-game passer rating of his career (min. 20 attempts)…Paved the way for an offense that rushed for 100-plus yards for the second time in as many weeks…Blocked for RB Austin Ekeler to record a single-game career-high 77 rushing yards and for Melvin Gordon to match a career best with three total TDs (one rushing, two receiving)…Blocked S Jordan Poyer at the line of scrimmage to help spring Gordon free on his 20-yard TD run…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 226 yards and two TDs, registering a 105.7 passer rating…Blocked for an offense that posted a season-high 141 rushing yards on 20 carries (7.1 avg.)…Provided a sealing block for Austin Ekeler to post a game-long 32-yard carry in the third quarter…Appeared on all 52 offensive plays after starting at C…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Opened the game at C and played all 68 offensive snaps…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to record his first 100-yard rushing game of the season, finishing with 104 yards…It marked the fourth-straight contest where the offense posted at least 100 rushing yards…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for three TDs…vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Started at C and played all 64 snaps on offense…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 339 yards and register a 143.4 passer rating, the best rating of his career against Oakland…Pulled to the left in front of Melvin Gordon to block CB Gareon Conley, helping spring Gordon for a game-long 16-yard gain…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Started at C and played 42 offensive snaps, marking career game played and career start No. 100…Paved the way for the offense to register 449 yards of offense, including 246 on the ground, which was the most by a Chargers offense since 2008…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post a single-game career high three rushing TDs, including a key block on Gordon's second TD of the day…Protected Philip Rivers to reach 15 TDs on the year, tying for the most of his career through the first six games of a season…Combined with T Sam Tevi to block DB Jabrill Peppers on a 16-yard screen pass to WR Keenan Allen in the second quarter…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw two TDs and 306 yards, registering a 137.7 passer rating, his sixth rating of 100-plus for the year…The two TDs put Rivers at 17 for the season, tying for the most through the first seven games of a season in his career…Blocked OLB Sharif Finch to spring Austin Ekeler free for an 11-yard gain in the third quarter…Started at C, playing all 44 snaps on offense…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Played all 51 offensive snaps after opening the game at C…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post his third 100-yard rushing output of the season, registering a TD and 113 yards on 16 attempts (7.1 avg.)…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for two TDs, 228 yards and a 105.9 passer rating…Provided time for Rivers to record his seventh game of the season with a passer rating over 100, the most through the first eight games of a season in his career…at Oakland (Nov. 11): Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post 165 yards from scrimmage and a TD for the fifth-straight game, the longest streak since 2007 (Jamaal Charles)…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for two TDs and 223 yards (105.1 passer rating) for his eighth game of 2018 with a passer rating of 100-plus for the most of his career through nine games in a season…Played all 56 snaps on offense, starting at C…vs. Denver (Nov. 18): Started at C, playing all 77 offensive snaps…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 401 yards, his 11th career 400-yard output, and two TDs, his team-record 11th-straight game with multiple TD passes (dating back to 2017)…Paved the way for Melvin Gordon to post his sixth-straight game with at least 120 yards from scrimmage.

TRADE (N.Y. GIANTS) - 2004

EXPERIENCE: 15TH NFL SEASON

15TH YEAR WITH CHARGERS

2018: Opened all 10 games at QB to extend his team-record streak of consecutive regular-season starts to 202, the longest active streak in the NFL, becoming the 10th player since at least 1970 and fourth QB in history to reach that mark…Completed 211 passes on 315 attempts (67.0 pct.) for 2,860 yards and 23 TDs with six INTs (112.1 passer rating)…Led the team to seven wins, bringing his career regular-season total to 113 victories to pass Hall of Fame QB Terry Bradshaw and tie New York Giants QB Eli Manning for 11th all-time…Orchestrated the 25th fourth quarter comeback of his career…Broke a tie with Hall of Fame QB Fran Tarkenton (342) for sole possession of sixth on the all-time TD passes list, increasing his career total to 365 TDs…Surpassed Hall of Fame QB John Elway (51,475) for No. 8 on the NFL's career passing yards list…Topped for 400 yards twice to bring his career total to 11 performances of 400-plus passing yards…Eclipsed 300-plus yards in four games, giving him 61 career 300-yard games…Posted three games with three passing TDs, bringing his career total to 55 games with three-plus TD passes…Threw multiple TD passes in each game of the season, the only QB to do so in 2018, setting a team mark with 11-straight multi-TD contests dating back to 2017…Extended his streak of games with a TD pass to 23 straight…Registered a passer rating above 100.0 in eight games, the most through the first nine games of a season in his career…Became just the third QB in NFL history to throw multiple TD passes and register a passer rating of at least 95.0 in each of the first nine games of a season (New England QB Tom Brady in 2007 and Green Bay QB Aaron Rodgers in 2011)…Tied a career best with 17 TD passes through the first seven games of a season (2014)…With 15 TD passes through six games, tied his 2013 season for the most TD passes through six games in a season for his career…His 13 TD passes through five games tied for the most in the first five games of a season for his career (2013)…Became the sixth-ever QB to register 400 career completions of 25-plus yards…With two TD passes of 50-plus yards against the Titans, became the third QB of the season (Tampa Bay QB Ryan Fitzpatrick and Kansas City QB Patrick Mahomes) to post multiple TD passes of 50-plus yards in a single game…vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Started at QB in the season opener for the 13th-straight season, extending his regular-season game starts streak to 193 games…Completed 34 passes on 51 attempts (66.7 pct.) for 424 yards and three TDs with an INT (103.7 passer rating)…Found RB Austin Ekeler in the second quarter for a 13-yard TD for career TD pass No. 343 to break a tie with Fran Tarkenton (342) for sole possession of sixth all-time…The 424 yards were his most in a Week 1 game and his sixth-best single-game output of his career…His performance brought him to 10 400-yard games, 58 300-yard contests and 53 three-TD games…On the first score, stood tall in the pocket despite pressure to launch a pass over LB Anthony Hitchens to Ekeler in the front, left corner of the end zone…In the fourth quarter, extended a scoring drive on third-and-five by perfectly placing a ball to WR Mike Williams on a seam-route for a 25-yard gain…Five plays later, floated a ball to WR Keenan Allen in the front, right corner of the end zone for his second TD pass of the day after Allen pulled a double-move to get by CB Orlando Scandrick…After buying time by rolling to his right, fired his third TD pass of the day on a four-yard strike to WR Tyrell Williams in the back, right corner of the end zone…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Led the Bolts to a win, giving him 107 career regular-season victories to tie Terry Bradshaw for 12th all-time…Completed 23 passes on 27 attempts (85.2 pct.) for 256 yards and three TDs for a 143.2 passer rating, marking the fifth-best single-game passer rating of his career (min. 20 attempts)…The three TDs came in the first half, his seventh time of his career…The scores marked his second three-TD game of the season and the 54th of his career…Threw for 178 yards and the three scores in the first half on 15-of-16 passing (93.8 pct.) for a 152.6 passer rating, including posting completions on his first seven attempts of the game for 96 yards and two TDs (perfect 158.3 passer rating)…Found WR Mike Williams for the first TD catch of his career on a seam-route in the first quarter, stepping up in the pocket and standing tall despite pressure…Perfectly placed a ball to Mike Williams later in the first quarter in the soft spot of the zone defense to move the chains on third-and-12…On his second TD pass, ran a play-action pass with RB Melvin Gordon III before finding Gordon open in space in the right flat for a nine-yard score…Found Gordon later in the second quarter for his third TD pass of the day, hitting the RB on a swing pass on third-and-goal despite tight coverage by LB Matt Milano…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Threw for 226 yards and two TDs on 18-of-30 passing (60.0 pct.) for a 105.7 passer rating, marking his third-straight game with a rating above 100 to open the season…The two scores brought him to 350 career TD passes…Held on a PAT…Threw his first TD to Mike Williams over the top of CBs Marcus Peters and Aqib Talib for 42 yards after running play-action with Melvin Gordon…Found Mike Williams again in the third quarter on a flag-route for a 20-yard score on fourth-and-two…In the second quarter, side-stepped the pass rush to find TE Antonio Gates for a 27-yard gain on third-and-four…Three plays later, stood tall in the pocket and floated a pass to Keenan Allen down the left sideline on third-and-17 for 25 yards with CB Sam Shields and S Lamarcus Joyner in tight coverage…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Appeared in career game No. 200, starting at QB to extend his team-record streak to 196-consecutive games…Completed 25 passes on 39 attempts (64.1 pct.) for 250 yards and three TDs with an INT (97.2 passer rating), marking his third three-TD performance of the season…Bounced back from an early INT to lead the Bolts to a come-from-behind victory in the fourth quarter, marking his 25th career fourth quarter comeback win and the 108th regular-season win of his career for sole possession of No. 12 in NFL history, breaking a tie with Terry Bradshaw…Passed John Elway (51,475) for No. 8 on the all-time passing yardage list…Found Gates wide open in the back, right corner of the end zone in the first quarter after LB Reuben Foster and CB Ahkello Witherspoon bit on an underneath route by Melvin Gordon…The score marked the 88th TD between them and, at 38 years, 104 days, made Gates the oldest TE in NFL history to catch a TD pass… Threw his second TD on a 22-yard pass to Austin Ekeler in the second quarter, floating the ball down the right sideline to Ekeler, who was defended in single-man coverage by LB Fred Warner…That TD made Ekeler the first undrafted RB with five-plus TD catches in his first two seasons since 1966…Registered the third score in the third quarter, finding Gordon open in the right flat for a six-yard score…vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Completed 81.5 percent of his passes (22-of-27) for 339 yards and two TDs (143.4 passer rating) to record his second 300-yard performance of the season (59th of his career)…The 143.4 rating was the highest of his career against the Raiders and ranked fourth in his career (min. 25 attempts)…Recorded the best completion percentage (81.5) of his career against the Raiders…Increased his season total to 13 TDs, tying for the most in his career through a season's first five games (2013)…Threw his first TD of the day in the second quarter after bobbling a snap and recovering to find Austin Ekeler in the left flat, who turned upfield for a 44-yard catch-and-run…Hit TE Virgil Green on a screen pass in the fourth quarter by floating the ball over the arms of DE Arden Key for a 13-yard TD…Made a play in the third quarter to move the chains, buying time by rolling to his right on third-and-11 before finding Antonio Gates for a 16-yard gain down the sideline…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Threw for 207 yards and two TDs with an INT on 11-of-20 passing (55.0 pct.) for a 103.5 passer rating…Became the 12th QB in NFL history to reach 110 career regular-season victories… Eclipsed 400 career completions to go for 25-plus yards to become the sixth-ever QB to do so…The two scores brought him to 76 since the start of 2016, the most in the NFL…They also marked 15 TD passes this season, tying 2013 as the most through the first six games in a season for his career…Hit Tyrell Williams on back-to-back plays of 44 and 45 yards for a two-play scoring drive in the second quarter for his first TD… Threw his second TD to Tyrell Williams later in the second quarter, putting the ball in a spot for Williams to high-point the football with DB Denzel Ward tight in coverage…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Started career game No. 199, throwing for 306 yards and two TDs on 19-of-26 passing (73.1 pct.) for a 137.7 passer rating…Led the team to the 111th regular-season victory of his career, improving to 27-0 in games where he has a passer rating of 137.0 or better… Recorded the 60th 300-yard performance of his career…Hit Tyrell Williams on a go-route down the left sideline for a 75-yard score on the first offensive play from scrimmage, marking the first TD on the team's first offensive play of the day following a kickoff since Nov. 18, 2001 (WR Curtis Conway's 67-yard TD run on a reverse)…Opened the scoring in the second half with a 55-yard strike to Mike Williams on a deep corner-route…In the fourth quarter, perfectly placed a seven-yard pass to a diving Keenan Allen to convert a third-and-four with CB Logan Ryan in tight coverage…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Reached career start No. 200, becoming the 10th player since 1970, and fourth QB ever, to reach that mark…Led the team to his 112th regular-season victory, tying Eli Manning for 11th all-time…Completed 13 passes on 26 attempts (50.0 pct.) for 228 yards and two TDs (105.9 passer rating)…The 105.9 rating marked his seventh of the season of at least 100, marking the most games with a rating of 100-plus through the first eight games of a season in his career…On his first score, hit Tyrell Williams in the front left corner of the end zone on a back-shoulder fade despite tight coverage from CB Tre Flowers for a 12-yard TD…Found Mike Williams on a perfectly timed hitch-route along the left sideline in the second quarter that Williams took for a 30-yard score…at Oakland (Nov. 11): Completed 18 passes on 26 attempts (69.2 pct.) for 223 yards and two TDs with an INT (105.9 passer rating), marking his eighth game of the season with a passer rating of 100-plus…Became just the third QB in NFL history (Tom Brady in 2007 and Aaron Rodgers in 2011) to throw multiple TD passes and register a passer rating of at least 95.0 in each of the first nine games of a season…Extended his streak of games with a TD pass to 22, the third-longest in team history…Found Keenan Allen for his first TD pass on an 11-yard score in the front right corner of the end zone at the end of the first half…Opened the second half by floating a pass over a blitzing defense to Melvin Gordon, who took the pass for a career-long 66-yard catch-and-run for a TD…Extended his starting streak to 201 games, playing all 56 snaps on offense and leading the team to his 113th regular-season victory…vs. Denver (Nov. 18): Tied G Randall McDaniel with his 202nd-straight start for the ninth-longest streak since at least 1970…Posted 401 passing yards and two TDs with two INTs while completing 65.1 percent of his passes (28-of-43) for a 91.3 passer rating…Set a single-game career high when playing Denver with the 401 passing yards…Became the only QB this season to throw multiple TDs in every game…Dating back to 2017, extended his team-record streak of multi-TD games to 11 contests…On the team's opening drive, stood tall in the face of pressure on third-and-six to hit Keenan Allen on a post-route for 27 yards…Threw a jump ball down the right sideline to Mike Williams in the second quarter on third-and-four that went to the Denver four-yard line for a 29-yard gain… Plays later, found Allen wide open in the back of the end zone for his first TD pass of the day…Threw his second TD of the game in the third quarter to Antonio Gates on a flag-route on the left side of the end zone for six yards…Kept that scoring drive alive earlier with a block on S Darian Stewart on a 17-yard reverse run by Austin Ekeler.

2018: Started all 10 games at RG…Part of a line that protected QB Philip Rivers to pass Hall of Fame QB Fran Tarkenton for the sixth-most career TD passes in NFL history, Hall of Fame QB John Elway for the eighth-most passing yards in league annals and Hall of Fame QB Terry Bradshaw for the 12th-most regular-season victories by a QB…Gave Rivers time to post two games with 400-plus yards, four with 300-plus yards and a trio of three-TD contests…Blocked to help Rivers set a team mark with multiple TD passes in every game this season and 11-straight dating back to 2017…Protected Rivers to post a passer rating of 100 or higher in eight games, marking the most through the first nine games of a season in his career…Kept Rivers upright to throw 13 TD passes in the first five games, 15 in the first six contests and 17 in the team's first seven games, tying for the most in his career through five, six and seven games, respectively, to start a season…Blocked for the NFL's No. 7 offense, posting 400.8 yards-per-game…Contributed on a line that blocked for a rushing attack that posted over 100 yards in five of the first six games, including each of the first four…Blocked for RB Melvin Gordon III to become the sixth Charger to reach 3,000 career rushing yards and post three 100-yard games…Paved the way for Gordon to record the first five-game streak with at least one scrimmage TD and 120-plus yards from scrimmage in a decade (RB Jamaal Charles, 2007)…Appeared on 48 special teams plays…vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Started at RG and played all 82 snaps on offense…Blocked for the offense to total a Week 1-high 541 net yards, including 123 on the ground…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 424 yards and three TDs for a 103.7 passer rating…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Opened the game at RG, playing all 57 offensive snaps…Kept Philip Rivers upright to complete 85.2 percent of his passes for 256 yards and three TDs (143.2 passer rating)…It marked Rivers' 54th three-TD performance (second of the season) and the fifth-best single-game passer rating of his career (min. 20 attempts)…Paved the way for an offense that rushed for 100-plus yards for the second time in as many weeks…Blocked for RB Austin Ekeler to record a single-game career-high 77 rushing yards and for Melvin Gordon to match a career best with three total TDs (one rushing, two receiving)…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 226 yards and two TDs, registering a 105.7 passer rating…Blocked for an offense that posted a season-high 141 rushing yards on 20 carries (7.1 avg.)…Provided a sealing block for Austin Ekeler to post a game-long 32-yard carry in the third quarter…Appeared on all 52 offensive plays after starting at RG…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Opened the game at RG and played all 68 offensive snaps…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to record his first 100-yard rushing game of the season, finishing with 104 yards…It marked the fourth-straight contest where the offense posted at least 100 rushing yards…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for three TDs…vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Started at RG and played all 64 snaps on offense…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 339 yards and register a 143.4 passer rating, the best rating of his career against Oakland…Got outside to block CB Leon Hall on a 34-yard screen-pass to Melvin Gordon…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Started at RG and played 53 offensive snaps, marking his 50th game played and 40th start of his career…Paved the way for the offense to register 449 yards of offense, including 246 on the ground, which was the most by a Chargers offense since 2008…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post a single-game career high three rushing TDs, including a key block on Gordon's second TD of the day…Protected Philip Rivers to reach 15 TDs on the year, tying for the most of his career through the first six games of a season…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw two TDs and 306 yards, registering a 137.7 passer rating, his sixth rating of 100-plus for the year…The two TDs put Rivers at 17 for the season, tying for the most through the first seven games of a season in his career…Started at RG, playing all 44 snaps on offense…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Played all 51 offensive snaps after opening the game at RG…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to DRAFT 6 - 2017

EXPERIENCE: 2ND NFL SEASON

2018: Started nine games at RT after playing in relief of T Joe Barksdale in the season opener due to injury…Part of a line that protected QB Philip Rivers to pass Hall of Fame QB Fran Tarkenton for the sixth-most career TD passes in NFL history, Hall of Fame QB John Elway for the eighth-most passing yards in league annals and Hall of Fame QB Terry Bradshaw for the 12th-most regular-season victories by a QB…Gave Rivers time to post two games with 400-plus yards, four with 300-plus yards and a trio of three-TD contests…Blocked to help Rivers set a team mark with multiple TD passes in every game this season and 11-straight dating back to 2017…Protected Rivers to post a passer rating of 100 or higher in eight games, marking the most through the first nine games of a season in his career…Kept Rivers upright to throw 13 TD passes in the first five games, 15 in the first six contests and 17 in the team's first seven games, tying for the most in his career through five, six and seven games, respectively, to start a season…Blocked for the NFL's No. 7 offense, posting 400.8 yards-per-game…Contributed on a line that blocked for a rushing attack that posted over 100 yards in five of the first six games, including each of the first four…Blocked for RB Melvin Gordon III to become the sixth Charger to reach 3,000 career rushing yards and post three 100-yard games…Paved the way for Gordon to record the first five-game streak with at least one scrimmage TD and 120-plus yards from scrimmage in a decade (RB Jamaal Charles, 2007)…Appeared on 48 special teams plays…vs. Kansas City (Sept. 9): Saw action at RT on 67 snaps after Joe Barksdale departed with a knee injury…Blocked for the offense to total a Week 1-high 541 net yards, including 123 on the ground…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 424 yards and three TDs for a 103.7 passer rating…at Buffalo (Sept. 16): Opened the game at RT, playing all 57 offensive snaps…Kept Philip Rivers upright to complete 85.2 percent of his passes for 256 yards and three TDs (143.2 passer rating)…It marked Rivers' 54th three-TD performance (second of the season) and the fifth-best single-game passer rating of his career (min. 20 attempts)…Paved the way for an offense that rushed for 100-plus yards for the second time in as many weeks…Blocked for RB Austin Ekeler to record a single-game career-high 77 rushing yards and for Melvin Gordon to match a career best with three total TDs (one rushing, two receiving)…at Los Angeles Rams (Sept. 23): Protected Philip Rivers to throw for 226 yards and two TDs, registering a 105.7 passer rating…Blocked for an offense that posted a season-high 141 rushing yards on 20 carries (7.1 avg.)…Appeared on all 52 offensive plays after starting at RT…Also saw action at LT…vs. San Francisco (Sept. 30): Opened the game at RT and also saw time at LT, playing all 68 offensive snaps…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to record his first 100-yard rushing game of the season, finishing with 104 yards…It marked the fourth-straight contest where the offense posted at least 100 rushing yards…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for three TDs…Provided a key block in the fourth quarter for Gordon to run off tackle to the left for a 34-yard gain to the San Francisco four-yard line…vs. Oakland (Oct. 7): Started at LT and played all 64 snaps on offense…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 339 yards and register a 143.4 passer rating, the best rating of his career against Oakland…Provided downfield blocking in the fourth quarter for TE Virgil Green to score a 13-yard TD on a screen pass…at Cleveland (Oct. 14): Started at RT and played all 60 offensive snaps, seeing action in the 20th game of his career…Paved the way for the offense to register 449 yards of offense, including 246 on the ground, which was the most by a Chargers offense since 2008…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post a single-game career high three rushing TDs, including key blocks on Gordon's first and second TDs of the day…Protected Philip Rivers to reach 15 TDs on the year, tying for the most of his career through the first six games of a season…Combined with C Mike Pouncey to block DB Jabrill Peppers on a 16-yard screen pass to WR Keenan Allen in the second quarter…vs. Tennessee (Oct. 21, Wembley Stadium): Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw two TDs and 306 yards, registering a 137.7 passer rating, his sixth rating of 100-plus for the year…The two TDs put Rivers at 17 for the season, tying for the most through the first seven games of a season in his career…Started at RT, playing 34 snaps on offense…at Seattle (Nov. 4): Played 40 offensive snaps after opening the game at RT…Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post his third 100-yard rushing output of the season, registering a TD and 113 yards on 16 attempts (7.1 avg.)…Threw a lead block on S Bradley McDougald to help Gordon get into the end zone on his 34-yard carry in the second quarter…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for two TDs, 228 yards and a 105.9 passer rating…Provided time for Rivers to record his seventh game of the season with a passer rating over 100, the most through the first eight games of a season in his career…at Oakland (Nov. 11): Blocked for Melvin Gordon to post 165 yards from scrimmage and a TD for the fifth-straight game, the longest streak since 2007 (Jamaal Charles)…Protected Philip Rivers to throw for two TDs and 223 yards (105.1 passer rating) for his eighth game of 2018 with a passer rating of 100-plus for the most of his career through nine games in a season…Played all 37 snaps on offense, starting at RT…vs. Denver (Nov. 18): Started at RT and played 42 offensive snaps, platooning with Joe Barksdale…Provided time for Philip Rivers to throw for 401 yards, his 11th career 400-yard output, and two TDs, his team-record 11th-straight game with multiple TD passes (dating back to 2017)…Paved the way for Melvin Gordon to post his sixth-straight game with at least 120 yards from scrimmage.

Alex Spanos, a Greek American self-made billionaire and a philanthropist passed away on Tuesday, at 95. He was the founder of A.G. Spanos Companies and owner of the Chargers NFL Franchise. According to the family's statement, Alex Spanos passed away peacefully surrounded by his loved ones on Tuesday morning.

Earlier this year he lost his wife of 70 years, Faye Spanos, who died in August at the age of 92. Faye and Alex Spanos leave behind 15 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Statements were issued by former President George Bush, cabinet members and prominent political personalities of the United States, as well as the NFL teams.

According to the Spanos Family announcement, "from humble beginnings to becoming the top apartment builder across the nation and the owner of an NFL franchise, Alex proved that dreams do come true.

Alex was the embodiment of the American dream and leaves behind a legacy of passion and hard work. Born the son of Greek immigrants in 1923, Alex's tireless work ethic and fearlessness was instilled in him when at only eight years old, he began working in his father's bakery before and after school. A tough upbringing coupled with the unshakeable belief that he could accomplish anything he set his mind to drove him to succeed and overcome countless obstacles.

In 1984, Alex fulfilled one of his lifelong goals by purchasing the San Diego Chargers. His intensely competitive nature and passion for sport made him the perfect fit to be a part of the NFL family. One of his most memorable moments was watching the Chargers beat the Pittsburgh Steelers to play in Super Bowl XXIX. He was equally passionate about the franchise's impact off the field, implementing many Chargers' community outreach programs that exist to this day. The Chargers Community Foundation – which he created and funded – still supports numerous critical causes, individuals in need and organizations supporting the community.

Aside from being a celebrated businessman and generous philanthropist, Alex's greatest joy and source of pride was his family. His beloved wife Faye, his four children, his 15 grandchildren and his 12 great-grandchildren always came first. Throughout Alex's life, Faye, his wife of nearly 70 years, was his rock and inspiration. It was Faye's unconditional love and support that gave him the strength and peace of mind to take risks and pursue his goals unfettered. Together they contributed generously to worthy causes and charities. Hospitals, universities, scholarship funds, youth programs, sports programs, churches, schools – all were recipients of their incredible generosity.

Through it all, Alex never forgot his roots and took immense pride in both his Hellenic heritage and Greek Orthodox faith. It was through that faith he learned compassion and empathy. Whenever he was called upon to help, he always delivered. Passionate about education, helping the underprivileged and enabling those with a dream to better their lives, he took pride in setting an example for others to follow.

Fiercely loyal, competitive, passionate and loving – that was Alex Spanos.

We have no words that can adequately express our sadness with his passing. We will continue to honor his legacy by dedicating ourselves to making a difference in the community and throughout our country.

As Alex would say, "Believe in yourself. There is nothing you can't do if you set your mind to it."

Funeral arrangements will be announced in the next few days."

Embodied the American Dream

Alex Spanos was born on Sept. 28, 1923, in Stockton, California. One of six children, Spanos built a billion-dollar fortune in real estate and construction. Alex G. Spanos and Fay Papafaklis were married on August 22, 1948 at the St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church in Tarpon Springs, Florida. They were blessed to have four children, fifteen grandchildren. Fifty-five years later, Alex and Faye Spanos continue to place each other and their family at the center of their lives.

In 1951, with his young wife Faye and their infant child, Alex took a risk and left his father's bakery business, borrowed $800 and purchased a truck in order to sell sandwiches to migrant farm workers in the San Quaquin Valley. With Faye's assistance, Alex transformed his first business enterprise into a highly successful catering business. By 1956, the catering business had become so successful that Mr. Spanos began investing in real estate. In 1960, Alex began A.G. Spanos Construction which he turned into the top-ranked housing construction company in the United States.

Yet with all of this business and economic success, Spanos had never forgotten his roots or the integral role his family has played in his life. As a reflection of his belief in his family, A.G. Spanos Companies continues to be a family owned and operated business.

An Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate, former president of the Archdiocesan Council, and member of Leadership 100, Mr. Spanos had been a leading churchman for several decades. He was a founding member of the "Leadership 100" and the Faith Endowment, to which he sas donated 10,000,000 dollars.

Faye and Alex Spanos have also been generous supporters of their home parish in Stockton, St. Basil Church, as well as being instrumental in establishing the Patriarch Athenagoras Orthodox Institute at the Graduate Theological Union (GTU) in Berkeley, CA, especially with the creation of the Alexander G. Spanos Chair in Orthodox Christian Studies at the GTU.

The Spanos couple's philanthropy has touched the lives of many individuals and communities. In particular Alex and Faye have had given back to those communities which have been important parts of their lives.

Alex Spanos was a graduate of the University of the Pacific, and the generous contributions of Alex and Faye have led to the building of the Faye Spanos Concert Hall and the 6,000-seat Alex G. Spanos Center on the campus of the University.

As owner of the San Diego Chargers, Mr. Spanos has created and funded numerous charitable activities and organizations for the city and citizens of San Diego. The city of Stockton, which has been their home and place of business for over fifty years has been a significant recipient of the Spanos' Christian philanthropy.

In his published autobiography, Sharing the Wealth (2002), Mr. Spanos states, "I believe I have a sacred duty to share my good fortune with my church, my community, my fellow Greek Americans and my family."

Alex Spanos, in particular, has been recognized for his commitment to community and humanity. He was the recipient of numerous honors and awards, including the Horatio Alger Award, The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Medal of Honor, the Gloria Swanson Humanitarian Award, and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith's National Distinguished Community Service Award for devotion to community and concern for others.

Throughout all their professional, civic, and entrepreneurial success, Faye and Alex have treasured their family above all else.

A proud Greek American

In 1972, he was elevated to be Archon Depoutatos of the Ecumenical Patriarchate for his extraordinary support of the Greek Orthodox Church and in October 2004 he was honored with the "Athenagoras Award" of the Archons.

"I cannot tell you how proud I am for being Greek American and let the World know about it. There are not many of us, but when there is enough of us we can make sure they know who we are", said Alex Spanos at the "Athenagoras Award" ceremony.

In his highly emotional speech, Alex Spanos thanked repeatedly his wife Faye and his mother for giving him the right values.

"My mother was always telling me "kane kalo na deis kalo" (Do good so good comes your way) and that was what I was always trying to do", he said.

His initial involvement with Greece was in September 1986, when he travelled to Greece following the catastrophic earthquake in Kalamata, the birthplace of his parents. He was received with high honors from Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou and despite their deep ideological differences they built a strong friendship. As he states in his autobiography, Spanos tried unsuccessfully to convince his close friend and President of the United States Ronald Reagan to lift the travel warning against Greece.

His closed relationship with U.S. presidents extended to President George H.W. Bush and George W. Bush. In his message to the Athenagoras Award Ceremony, George W. Bush called Spanos "his friend" and "a person that makes the world a better place."

During a fundraising event of the Greek American Community on April 1, 2004, , in the presence of George Bush, Spanos stated:

"This is without a question one of the most exciting things that is ever happened for George W. Bush, our President, to have the GreekAmericans representing from all over the United States tonight. I am so proud, so proud and I know they feel the same way as they are supporting George W."

In 2007 Alex Spanos has donated one million dollars for the victims of the Ilia fires and the following year he received an award by the President of the Hellenic Republic Karolos Papoulias.

When making his contribution to the Greek Fire Relief Fund, Alex Spanos stated, "We watched with heavy hearts the catastrophic fires and the destruction they left behind which affected thousands of people, their property and the beautiful countryside of Greece. I was greatly moved by the tragedy unfolding before my eyes and I know that every Greek American and every person was equally moved".

In 2004 Alex Spanos was the Co-Chairman of the Greek American Republicans and helped to raise over 3.5 million dollars for the re-election of George W. Bush, who appointed him member of the U.S. official delegation to the Athens Olympics, headed by former President George H.W. Bush.

This was the year of Spanos' biggest involvement with the Cyprus issue, on the eve of the referendum for the Anan Plan and the days that followed its rejection by the Greek Cypriots. Alex Spanos was working hard behind the scenes on the Cyprus cause. In June 2004, the President Cyprus Tassos Papadopoulos awarded Alex Spanos the Cross of Archbishop Makarios the 3rd, the highest honor of the Republic of Cyprus.

From humble beginnings in his father's bakery to successes in business and the NFL, Alex Spanos always remained a Stocktonian

Billionaire developer Alex Spanos, who rose from humble beginnings to build a national real-estate empire, died early Tuesday morning at his Stockton home.

The death of Spanos, 95, came two months after the passing of 92-year-old Faye Spanos, his wife of 69 years. Alex Spanos suffered from dementia the past decade and recently had been in failing health, family spokeswoman Natalia Orfanos said.

Spanos, whose family owns builder A.G. Spanos Cos. and the Los Angeles Chargers football team, developed thousands of apartment units across the United States. His family, worth an estimated $2.4 billion, is the 344th richest in the United States, Forbes magazine reported this year.

Orfanos said memorial and funeral services will take place Oct. 23-24 at St. Basil Greek Orthodox Church. A celebration of Spanos' life will be held following the Oct. 24 funeral at the Spanos Center on the University of the Pacific campus, Orfanos added. Times have not yet been set for any of the events.

Alexander Gus Spanos — "Big Alex" or "The Godfather" to his beneficiaries — was born in Stockton on Sept. 23, 1923, the son of immigrants.

"When Alex was born the doctor slapped him and Alex said, 'Would you like to rent an apartment?' " the late comedian Bob Hope once joked about his friend.

In fact, when Spanos was born the likelihood that he would someday be a real-estate magnate would have seemed farfetched. Spanos's first job came as a child working for his father, a baker. He was 8 years old.

"I think it's so important for people not to forget where they came from," Spanos said in 1984. "I love to talk about my past because it wasn't easy."

Spanos worked his way all the way to University of the Pacific, from which he graduated in 1948. Diploma in hand, Spanos returned after college to work again at his father's bakery — 15 hours a day, seven days a week, and a $40 salary.

"I was safe, secure — and slowly dying," Spanos recalled in "Sharing the Wealth," his 2002 autobiography.

He finally split with his father in 1951, borrowing $800 to purchase a truck. Spanos's wife, Faye, started spending 16 hours a day making sandwiches that her husband would then peddle to field hands in the Delta.

He later provided housing to the workers before entering the construction business full time. His start began with rental properties, a development business that spread nationwide. It was the beginning of an empire.

"I am a competitor," Spanos told The Record in 1987. "I am a very strong competitor at anything I do. That's part of any success — knowing that you're good, knowing that you're the best and proving so."

Spanos's focus on rentals grew in his later years to embrace the development of housing subdivisions.

"He certainly in the beginning was not a master plan community developer," said Stockton developer Fritz Grupe, whose firm built Lincoln Village West, Quail Lakes and Brookside.

"He called me and said, 'I'd like to come and see what you're doing,' so we went over to Brookside Country Club and had lunch and I was showing him around what we're doing."

In his later years, Spanos's company turned to developing eponymous subdivisions, Spanos Park and Spanos Park West, that pushed Stockton's boundaries northward.

Beyond his life's work as a housing developer, Spanos became known for his philanthropy and for his conservative politics.

Conservative radio talk-show host Rush Limbaugh wrote the foreword to Spanos's autobiography, and Spanos himself contributed millions of dollars to state and national candidates. He was a friend of former Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger, and President George W. Bush used his jet in the 2004 presidential campaign. Spanos told The Record in 2005 that he was a friend of every Republican president since Gerald Ford. He also was a significant player in local politics, giving thousands of dollars to mayoral, City Council and San Joaquin County Board of Supervisors candidates.

Faye Spanos is credited with steering her husband toward the philanthropy that benefited the arts, education and medical care in Stockton.

His name is stamped across the city, from the Spanos Jet Center and Spanos Sports Center to his corporate offices in Spanos Park West.

Spanos was a major contributor to University of the Pacific and a wing of Dameron Hospital's outpatient center was named for him.

Additionally, Spanos Elementary School in south Stockton bears the family name, and the Spanos family donated millions of dollars toward the Lincoln High School stadium and press box and baseball field house. The Spanos family also opened their home for an initial fundraiser for what is now the Lincoln Performing Arts Center.

Spanos Elementary Principal Danielle Valtierra said Tuesday, "He's a wonderful namesake for our school — his upbringing, work ethic and dedication to our community. His family has been extremely generous and supportive of us."

Spanos Elementary is closed this week for autumn break. Valtierra said her school will honor its late namesake once it is back in session.

At Lincoln Unified, Superintendent Kelly Dextraze said, "I am saddened to hear of Alex Spanos' passing. The Spanos family has provided generous support to our programs for decades. ... We are proud to have their children and grandchildren among the alumni of Lincoln High School and appreciate their many philanthropic efforts throughout our community."

Spanos also directed his generosity toward the Stockton Symphony, Conductor Peter Jaffe said Tuesday.

"They were very instrumental in the arts community," Jaffe said. "And we just really appreciated them. He had an enormous impact on the community."

Spanos became close friends over the years with comedian Bob Hope, who would perform with Spanos at benefit events.

"He started to teach me how to sing," Spanos told The Record after Hope's death in 2003. "I wasn't a hoofer or a singer. But he made a real hoofer and singer out of me."

Douglass Wilhoit Jr., CEO and executive director of the Greater Stockton Chamber of Commerce, recalled Tuesday, "The thing that stands out the most is watching (Spanos) and Bob Hope do the soft shoes. Yes, he was a businessman and a tough businessman. But there was a softer-kid side of him that I saw with that soft-shoe performance with Bob Hope."

Dancing with Hope was light years from Spanos' humble beginnings. In 1984, Spanos told a reporter the key to his success was simple.

"The only thing that distinguished me from a million other dead-broke bakers," Spanos said, "was desire."

Chargers owner Alex Spanos lived life with passion, energy

Shaken for the second time in two months, the Los Angeles Chargers family is mourning the death of patriarch Alex Spanos, who died from undisclosed causes Tuesday morning. He was 95.

His passing comes almost two months to the day after the death of his wife, Faye, who was 92.

"Fiercely loyal, competitive, passionate and loving -- that was Alex Spanos," a statement reads on the club website. "As Alex would say, 'Believe in yourself. There is nothing you can't do if you set your mind to it.' "

His life's story embodied that belief. Spanos, who suffered from dementia late in life, was born in Stockton, California, to immigrant Greek parents. He began working in the family bakery at age 8, often rising at 4 a.m. to help prepare the day's goods before going to school. As an adult, he started a catering business which served sandwiches to agricultural workers and parlayed that into a thriving construction and real-estate company.

He purchased the Chargers on Aug. 1, 1984 from majority owner Eugene Klein and publicly stated his vision of winning the Super Bowl. But the club managed just one winning season in a non-strike year over his first 10 seasons. He turned over day-to-day control of the club to his eldest son, Dean, in 1994 -- the same year the Chargers advanced to their only Super Bowl, thanks in large part to Alex's hiring of general manager Bobby Beathard in 1990. Beathard was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame this past summer.

Spanos was known for his energy and passion. I experienced it first-hand while covering the Chargers for the San Diego Union-Tribune. Nick Canepa, one of our columnists, had written something critical of Spanos regarding the need for a new stadium, and the emotional owner did not hold back when he saw Canepa that morning in the lobby of the training facility, where media members and then coach Mike Riley were hanging out before the start of the draft.

"Asshole," he called down from the landing.

That was Alex Spanos: direct, transparent, forceful. After reporting the comment, I was summoned to the owner's office early the next morning before anyone else arrived. Spanos forcefully relayed how disappointed he was in me, largely because he was from Stockton and I had attended high school in the city. Not just any high school, but Lincoln High, which was directly across the street from his house. That regional tie meant something to him. It connected us, in his mind. It made me part of the extended family, so to speak.

I explained to him that it was my job to report his public actions, but he genuinely seemed hurt. Loyalty meant everything to him. So did family. His passion for his football team -- which was off the charts -- paled in comparison to his love for his family. Faye was his heart and the light in his eyes; the two were married for nearly 70 years after first meeting in Florida, where he was enlisted in the Air Force. She personified grace in the way he personified energy and passion.

"It was Faye's unconditional love and support that gave him the strength and peace of mind to take risks and pursue his goals unfettered," said the team statement.

Family was so important to them that they purchased the land around their home so their children could live nearby. The couple had four children (Dean, Dea Spanos Berberian, Alexis Spanos Ruhl and Michael Spanos), 15 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. Grandsons John and A.G. are presidents of football operations and business operations, respectively, for the Chargers.

Funeral services will be announced later this week. In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent in the name of Alex Spanos to the following charities: American Legion -- Karl Ross Post #16, 2020 Plymouth Road, Stockton, CA 95204; The Stockton Scholars Endowment Fund at UOP, University of the Pacific, Attn: University Development/Stockton Scholars, Endowed Fund, 3601 Pacific Avenue, Stockton, CA 95211; The Discovery ChalleNGe Academy, 2922 Transworld Drive, Stockton, CA 95206; or YMCA of San Joaquin County, 2105 West March Lane, Suite 1, Stockton, CA 95207.

Chargers Are Ready to Claim Their Piece of the Los Angeles Sports Market

By Andy Benoit

COSTA MESA, Calif. — The Los Angeles Chargers headquarters is located in a nondescript leased office building amidst a white-collar industrial sprawl in Costa Mesa, Calif., about 45 minutes from downtown L.A. The building is located to the left of a circular courtyard. To the right of the courtyard is a vacant building, and straight behind the courtyard is a coffeehouse.

Inside the office building, Chargers owner Dean Spanos is seated at the head of the table in a second-floor conference room. Over his shoulder is a giant rendering of the team's new stadium, which will be located in Inglewood, just shy of an hour's drive from the current office. Under construction until 2020, it's the mecca toward which this franchise is marching.

"It's incredible—look at that," Spanos says, turning to face the photo. "I mean, that's massive. It doesn't look like a football stadium, does it?"

No, and that's because, in many ways, it isn't. The nearly $5-billion venue, formally called Los Angeles Sports and Entertainment District (LASED), will include business parks and condominiums, a 6,000-seat theatre, luxury hotels and restaurants, an open-air shopping center and NFL Media's nerve center. Rams owner Stan Kroenke is spearheading the project, with the stadium itself a joint venture between the two teams—the Rams and Chargers will operate under equivalent leases, and the Chargers will receive 18.75% of the LASED non-football event revenue.

But underneath all of the hype of the new stadium and the glamour of the Los Angeles area, a hard truth remains: the Chargers are the newest team in a very crowded sports market—11 teams, to be exact. And even if the product on the field is up to snub—and it should be, as this team is a favorite to win the AFC West this year—is that enough for the Chargers to truly carve out its niche in Los Angeles? It will be a challenge, but the Chargers are up for it.

Moving to a new city before your stadium's completion is innately trying. After leaving Houston in 1997, the Oilers, waiting on their downtown Nashville venue, played home games at Liberty Bowl Stadium in Memphis. Attendance was abysmal, and when it wasn't, opposing fans were extraordinarily prevalent. The next year owner Bud Adams moved games to Vanderbilt—a site he had initially rejected. The Oilers went 8–8 both years.

The Chargers faced similar attendance struggles last season. Playing at the 27,000-seat StubHub Center in Carson, Calif., the team often found that the fans enjoying the intimate atmosphere were actually cheering for L.A.'s opponent. In Week 2 of the 2017 season, Younghoe Koo, the Chargers kicker at the time, missed a field goal at the end of regulation to lose to the visiting Dolphins, and QB Philip Rivers said that missed kick produced the loudest roar of the crowd all day. The following week, the red of the visiting Chiefs' fans glaringly contrasted with L.A.'s fans' blue.

There are different thoughts in the Chargers office as to what was behind this enemy infiltration.

"Really, when you look at it on a percentage-base, it's no different than any of the other teams," Spanos says. "This is not something that is just unique to us. I think the Rams experienced it a bunch last year. Miami experiences it with all the New England fans there. It's nothing new."

GM Tom Telesco says it's always going to be like that for teams in a destination city. "If you live in Buffalo and you're going to go to one road game this year, [the fan typically thinks] 'Hey let's go to L.A. or Miami!' At Qualcomm Stadium [in San Diego] let's say we got 10,000 visiting fans. [In a stadium that holds 70,000 people] you notice those fans, but not that much. You get those same 10,000 at StubHub, it looks a lot different."

Rivers issued similar sentiments following that early loss to Miami last season, saying, "It's always been a little bit of something you battle. We battled it down in San Diego… the weather, the climate, lends to that."
But traveling fans aren't the Chargers' only problem—finding and growing the team's own fan base remains an issue. There are around 24 million people in Southern California, including many transplants who may have brought fandom with them, and with no team in town from 1995–2015, many Angelenos have adopted one of the NFL's 30 non-LA teams as their own.

It didn't help when, before the season, Los Angeles mayor Eric Garcetti said on the Dan Patrick Show, "We're certainly happy to have the Chargers in L.A., but I think we could have been happy with just the [Rams] too." Some in the Chargers' building believe Garcetti was just trying to appease San Diego and the state's other non-L.A. markets (rumor has it that he wants to run for governor or even president one day). Spanos believes Garcetti's comments were misrepresented in the media, and he professes no ill-will.

But after those comments, mixed with opposing fan optics and the team's heartbreaking 0–4 start to the season, it's easy to see why the Chargers struggled with a loser narrative last season.

That shouldn't be the case in 2018; this team is favored to win the AFC West. Head coach Anthony Lynn even recently lamented to The MMQB's Albert Breer that someone had told him the Chargers had the second-most talented roster in the league. While maybe a tad hyperbolistic, the notion is not ridiculous. Rivers is a bona fide field general, and his receiving corps is loaded, even with tight end Hunter Henry out with a torn ACL. The backfield and offensive line are improving, and the defense has what every team covets: perimeter cover corners (Casey Hayward and, if healthy, Jason Verrett) and dominant edge rushers (Joey Bosa and Melvin Ingram). The interior of the D was addressed in the draft, with safety Derwin James in Round 1, linebacker Uchenna Nwosu in Round 2 and defensive tackle Justin Jones in Round 3.

Lynn was praised for leading the Chargers to nine wins after entering October under the most difficult of circumstances. Now, nine wins would be disappointing. The rough start last year "just made us a tougher football team," Lynn says. "We became more resilient. And now last year's not even in the back of our heads anymore, we're focused on this season."

The fascinating question is, Just how much success will it take for the Chargers to move the meter locally?

"Everybody loves a winner up here and we have to put that product on the field," says Spanos. "It's a challenging market. We knew it when we came here. There are 11 other teams we're competing against."

A quick look at the 11 other teams to which Spanos is referring: The MLB's Dodgers and Angels, which are both a little above .500, as of publish; the NBA's Clippers, which just missed the playoffs and the Lakers, which are rebuilding; the NHL's Ducks and Kings, which reached the Stanley Cup playoffs but were both swept in the first round; MLS's LAFC, currently third in the Western Conference, and the Galaxy, sitting eighth; USC and UCLA, which both lost their quarterbacks to the first round of the NFL draft; and of course, the Rams—the team with which the Chargers will be sharing a stadium, and their most direct competition. Also, the WNBA's Sparks currently lead the Western Conference.

Surprise winners of the NFC West in 2017, the Rams have had one of the most unique, aggressive offseasons in recent memory and are now among the early favorites to win Super Bowl 53. They're slated for five nationally televised games in 2018. And yet they too are still trying to gain a foothold in the L.A. market.

After a record-setting year-over-year decline in attendance last September, the Rams averaged 63,392 in home attendance on the season, which ranked 26th int he league, and filled a league-low two-thirds of their venue (the L.A. Coliseum). Their local TV ratings were 8.0, meaning just eight percent of L.A. televisions were tuned into their games. The Chargers got a 6.0, though it should be noted that a ratings point in Los Angeles represents 5.2 times as many people as a ratings point in San Diego.

Legitimate concerns were raised about the Rams having had the opportunity to secure much of the available L.A. fans simply by arriving to town a year earlier. Spanos says his staff spends little time thinking about the Rams, but he's rooting for their success.

"If I could line the stars up, it would be great if we—the Rams and Chargers—could play each other in the Super Bowl this year in Atlanta," he says. "For this market, for sales, it would be exciting. You know, timing could be impeccably perfect. But if we can't win the Super Bowl, I'd probably say I'd want the Rams to win because it just helps the [stadium] project. We are part of this, we have equity in this, we're an equal partner in this thing. And I think [Kroenke], if he was sitting here, would say the same thing. We wish each other good luck except when we play each other. The better I do is going to help him and vice versa."

Though it'd be unimaginable in most markets, with Los Angeles, where fans have so many options for sports, as well as for pop culture entertainment and outdoor activities, one also must wonder what the team does in the event that it makes a deep playoff run but sees little rise in local popularity. Spanos doesn't like looking away from the big picture. "Our goal every year is to win the Super Bowl … even if we make a deep playoff run this year, it's about sustained success."

Success on the field always comes first, but Spanos is a businessman who recognized the opportunities that Los Angeles could bring to his franchise.

"No. 1 is obviously the product on the field—and I can't control that," he says. "I can try to hire the best coach, the best GM to bring in the best players but there's no guarantee on anything. But that's one part of it. The other part is really how we as an organization, our family, integrate ourselves into this community."

Spanos meets with small groups three or four times a week, building relationships piece by piece. And from July through December last year the Chargers participated in 150 community events and charitable programs, with an emphasis on causes promoting social justice. They partnered with the city's most established media outlets and hired the area's top afternoon drive sports talk radio host, Matt "Money" Smith, as their lead announcer. This year, their "Fight for L.A." slogan will incorporate a "Fight for Each Other" slogan.

On brand growth, Spanos and his staff proceed as if it comes down to 50% winning and 50% business strategy. And the most obvious move that illustrates that? Hiring Lynn as head coach. Instead of splurging for a big-name head coach to galvanize the fan base, the Chargers' brass hired one who was well-regarded within the NFL but largely unknown to fans outside the AFC East. Contrast that with the Raiders, who spent $100 million on Super Bowl winning celebrity coach Jon Gruden, perhaps partly with the hope of sustaining the Oakland fan base and, soon, igniting the Las Vegas one.

As John Spanos, President of Football Operations, explains, "At the end of the day, the driving force [behind hiring Lynn] was who will help us win games over who will help initially sell tickets." When it's pointed out that Bill Belichick was almost antithetical to a flashy hire in New England, Spanos says, "How 'bout that. He was the head coach of the Browns, got let go and was an assistant again. I don't remember him at that point being a necessarily flashy guy, so it's a good point."

John's dad has not prioritized a head coach's marketability, either.

"I think that's short-lived to go out and hire somebody flashy," Dean says. "In either 2001 or '02, I really wanted to hire Jimmy Johnson. We're pretty good friends and I tried, but he was retired and he didn't want to come back. That was the only time I really wanted to go after somebody. I believed in him and he was sort of a mentor to me so even that was more than, 'Oh there's a name out there, let me go chase him.' I knew him. But he wanted to fish down in Miami."

What hangs in the air when talking with anyone from the Chargers is the city of San Diego. Spanos, his family and employees are quick to emphasize how much the city still matters to them. The Chargers have maintained all of their existing community programs in San Diego, and they realize that many fans there are still loyal. But they also realize that many are still hurt. As one staffer put it, emotions remain "too raw" to consider marketing the team to those citizens. Quick as Chargers employees are to laud San Diego, the conversation always quickly shifts back slightly north.

The obstacles may seem insurmountable for this Los Angeles team, but it's nothing the team isn't ready to face head-first. This team's home is now Los Angeles.

"To go where we want to go it might take ten years," Spanos says. "We are the new kids on the block so, you know, we are fighting our way in one fan at a time. But whatever it is, we'll get there."

Anthony Lynn will tell you he doesn't know much about the 2018 Chargers yet. And so long as you understand that, he'll concede that he did like what he saw when he looked out his office window during the first week of the team's offseason program in mid-April.

Last year the players had to acclimate to an '80s-style series of 200-, 300- and 400-yard gassers that strength coaches John Lott and Jonathan Brooks put them through, at Lynn's direction. It was unconventional for this era, as well as raw and taxing. This year? Those same players just did them.

"The neat thing is it was so much smoother, watching the first week of offseason training, Phase I," Lynn said from that office on Wednesday. "When guys came back, they knew exactly what to expect, and exactly what to do. Last year there was a lot of explaining why. You're dealing with millennials now—they want to know why, they ask questions, they have Google; this year there was none of that. These guys, they fell in line. They knew what to expect."

Accordingly, a lot is being expected of these Chargers in 2018. The longstanding franchise quarterback is still in place, with a raft of young talent around him—and that's even after accounting for tight end Hunter Henry's torn ACL. L.A.'s second team won six of its last seven to finish the 2017 season. Two of its divisional rivals are going through transition at quarterback, and the other has a new head coach. And, as Lynn indicated, continuity is a benefit.

It's pretty different from last year, to be sure, when Lynn was new and the team was moving and the season started 0-4. So yes, the Chargers are one of those teams in '18—the kind that was pretty impressive the year before, and won't sneak up on anyone.

And they're dealing with high expectations for the first time in a while. Lots of people think the Chargers are going to be pretty good, even if Lynn doesn't quite get why. And he knows all his players must be hearing it.

"That's scary," he said, laughing. "I don't know why everybody wants to crown us all of the sudden. I had someone in here say we have the second most talented roster in the league. I mean, really? Why would you think that? I know he was being nice, but that's not even realistic, to say we have the second most talented roster when you look around the league. … We like our team, we really do. But right now, who in the hell doesn't like their team? Everyone likes their team right now."

In this week's Game Plan, we'll explain how the players are building a war chest for a potential 2021 work stoppage, tell you why Dak Prescott is better off without Dez Bryant, detail the difficulty in doing a Le'Veon Bell deal, show you the good thing Von Miller is doing, point you to a patron saint of the scouting community and much more.

But after all the controversy of the last week, I figured we'd have some fun here and start with some football, and the Chargers, and other teams or individuals like them—living in a new world of expectations in 2018. The crosstown Rams are in that same boat, and as you might remember we talked to Sean McVay about it a couple months back. And there are others, too, dealing with a new reality.

For Lynn, handling expectations is a balancing act. On one hand, he loves what the team did at the end of the year, coming together around the program they'd worked all year to build and against the natural adversity facing a relocating team. Obviously he'd be ecstatic if that unity carried over through 2018. On the other hand, he wants his players to start from zero—which is what those gassers represented.

"I don't know if you recreate what you had last year—I think once you get that buy-in, and you can keep a nucleus of guys together, that becomes their standard, their expectation," Lynn said. "And anybody new we bring on to this team, they get them caught up quickly—this is how we do things, this is what we're about. And you just keep reemphasizing it."

So in certain ways the Chargers are building just like they did last year, when Lynn was new and all the players were learning. In other ways Lynn will tell you they're ahead of where they were. "I've been really impressed with the detail and the focus, guys doing their job. The attendance has been outstanding, so you can see that. You can't see the results right now, but you can see the intent."

And then there are the expectations from the outside. No matter how incredulous the coach might be about offseason perceptions of the Chargers, they exist and they're not unjustified. The offense brings back an improved line, No. 1 receiver Keenan Allen and 1,000-yard rusher Melvin Gordon; and the defense has a chance to be really good behind edge rushers Joey Bosa and Melvin Ingram, with corner Jason Verrett coming back from injury to join true No. 1 Casey Hayward in the secondary, and rookie safety Derwin James added to the mix.

The Chargers finished last year with a flourish that was indicative of their potential. So while Lynn will tout the Chiefs' addition of Sammy Watkins ("an Olympic sprinter to go with the Olympic sprinter they already have"), the Broncos' addition of Bradley Chubb ("they already have one of the best defensive players in the league") and the Raiders' hiring of Jon Gruden ("he's gonna do a hell of a job"), he also isn't blind to what the rest of us are looking at.

But he also knows that feeding into those perceptions does no good. He recalled when he was coaching in Dallas, and the Cowboys ripped off a few wins in a row, and his old boss, Bill Parcells, responded by putting mousetraps in all the players' lockers. The idea here's the same.

"That's kind of the same message we've been giving our team: Don't take the cheese," Lynn said. "Thing is, we shouldn't even be having this conversation. These expectations, I understand we finished the season pretty strong, but we were still 9-7. We're not content or happy about being 9-7. We don't want to be that team. We want to be a lot better than that team."

And so, as Lynn continues, "The biggest expectations they're gonna hear are the ones they get right here in this building, from their coaches, from myself, from people in this organization. It's nice to get a pat on the back from your friends, your relatives, all that. But their expectations won't be any higher than ours in this building."

I only have three rules as a head coach, No. 1: Protect the team. No. 2: No excuses. No. 3: Be on time.

Well, for more than 20 years, I made excuses for why I couldn't go back and finish my college degree. You're not going to make the roster if you go back. You've got a kid. You're going to be a head coach. There was always something. Finally, I got fed up and just said, "I'm going to do it."

I have always wanted to finish. I was the first in my family to go to college. My mom was proud. She was expecting me to get a degree. I watched both of my children get their college degrees, and it was a little uncomfortable knowing that I hadn't finished. I felt as if I needed to be a better example.

When I got to Denver as an undrafted running back out of Texas Tech in 1993, I was six hours short of finishing my degree in exercise and sports sciences. I went to one of my Broncos coaches. He looked me in the eye and said, "Young man, if you are not here for offseason workouts, you are not going to make this team." He was coming from a good place. First-round draft picks have the leverage to go back to school and miss time, but an undrafted free agent trying out? I'd get cut. So I stayed and made the team.

After several years in the league, I figured I had enough clout to go back to school, and it was one of my peers who inspired me to finally do it. When I was an assistant coach with the Jets, our director of player development, former NFL offensive lineman Dave Szott, told me he'd completed his degree from Penn State 11 years later.

I remember sitting in his office in 2014, and his wife, Andrea, looked at me and said, "Coach, you've gotta get this done. There are no excuses."

I interviewed for seven head coaching jobs between 2015 and '17. I kept thinking, I can't go back to school this year because I'm going to be a head coach. Didn't happen. Can't go this year because I am going to be a head coach. Didn't happen. Well, I couldn't keep waiting so I just went all in during the offseason the Chargers brought me on. I was able to get really aggressive with my academics thanks to the flexibility of the program at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

I had wanted to finish at Texas Tech, but since I was on the West Coast, the convenient option was UNLV. I'd work all day for the Chargers, then around 8 p.m., I'd grab a sub—turkey and ham, with mayo— and go home and start studying. My wife, Stacey, was in New York City, working as a news anchor, and my kids are grown up, so I made use of the time alone. The professors and staff at UNLV bent over backward to help me. I told them, when the season starts, I need to put a lot of this on hold. They said, Do your job, and we'll work with you on deadlines.

When people say, "I really admire you for going back and getting your degree" a part of me is like, What's so admirable about a 49-year-old getting a degree? I should have been a 22-year-old getting this degree. I told my players, on the first day of our offseason program, if you need to get your school done, get it done in the offseason. I don't want you guys to be like me, 49 and going back to school.

UNLV's graduation was on May 12, the same weekend as our rookie minicamp. I wanted to move camp up a week so I wouldn't miss anything, but owner Dean Spanos and general manager Tom Telesco suggested we leave it as it was. More important than being at minicamp, they said, is explaining to the players why you are missing those days. So that's what I told our rookies: At age 49, I was going to walk across the stage at the Thomas & Mack Center in a cap and gown, and my mom would be there to see it.

Former Ohio State quarterback Cardale Jones now deputy sheriff in Ottawa County

ELLISTON - Add deputy sheriff to the many feathers in the cap of former Ohio State quarterback Cardale Jones.

Jones is perhaps most well-known for his elite three-game stretch as a third-string quarterback thrust into the starting role at a crucial stage of the 2014 season, going on to lead the Buckeyes to the National Championship.

Far less known is that Jones also happens to be an honorary deputy of the Ottawa County Sheriff's Office.

"(Cardale) has already made an impact in Ottawa County," Sheriff Steve Levorchick said. "We've become very good friends. I love him like a brother."
Levorchick swore in Jones as a deputy sheriff of Ottawa County last summer.

"Cardale will be helping us to make sure we have the bond with our young people," Levorchick said. "They don't want to hear from a 55-year-old sheriff, but they'll listen to Cardale."

Jones, who spoke Friday night at a banquet at Trinity United Church of Christ in Elliston, is going to be fitted for an official Ottawa County Sheriff's Office uniform.

"When he shows up in a sheriff's office uniform instead of a football uniform, they're going to realize cops aren't necessarily all bad," Levorchick said. "What a great ambassador to have for the Ottawa County Sheriff's Office."

While Jones will not be chasing down or plowing over bad guys like he did would-be tacklers in the college football playoffs, his duties as deputy entail functions like this year's Trinity United Church of Christ Men's Father-Son Banquet in Elliston, where Jones spoke as an honored special guest on Friday.

Jones, who committed to the Buckeyes as a senior at Cleveland Glenville High School in 2011, entered Ohio State as a freshman in 2012 at the same time Urban Meyer was beginning his first season as head coach in Columbus.

"It was a whole new group of coaches who didn't know how I was," Jones said. "I took a backseat role at Ohio State, going into a different situation."

Following a redshirt season, Jones was set to compete with J. T. Barrett for the backup role to then incoming starter Braxton Miller. Jones said Barrett was excelling both on and off the field and it was looking like his own chances at playing were dwindling at the time.

"I had to look in the mirror and say, 'This might not be the best thing for me,'" he said.

Jones discussed it with his family and said it was his mother, whom he cites as his biggest inspiration, who reminded him of how when he was a young boy going to Ohio State meant more to him than life itself.

Jones was 10 years old when he watched the Buckeyes win the 2002 National Championship, upsetting the then perennial power Miami Hurricanes. As his mother tells it, he decided then and there he would play for Ohio State.

Now that he was there and having doubts about his playing time, Jones' mother encouraged him to stick it out and told him all the things he did not want to hear, he said, but probably needed to hear.

Heading into the 2014 season, Miller was out for the year due to a shoulder injury in practice. Barrett moved into the starting role at QB and led the Buckeyes to an 11-1 record before falling to an injury himself in the final game of the regular season against Michigan.

As a third-string at the start of the year, Jones was now center stage heading into what was considered Ohio State's biggest, toughest game yet — the Big Ten Championship against Wisconsin.

"I finally got my opportunity and I wanted to take advantage of it," he said.

Jones is often asked how he had so much confidence taking on Wisconsin's top-ranked defense and leading his team to drop 59 points on them.

"I say, 'What are they going to do, bench me?' I was the last quarterback on the roster," he said with a laugh.

Ohio State's postseason success snowballed from there. Jones said that game not only built his own confidence, but the whole team's as well.

As the No. 4 seed in the first-ever College Football Playoff, Ohio State pulled off a thrilling upset victory over No. 1 Alabama and went on to crush No. 2 Oregon to earn the National Championship.

It was the Buckeyes' first national title since 2002 — the one that sealed Jones' commitment.

"If I had to use one word to describe my career at Ohio State, I would definitely say rollercoaster," Jones said.

Chargers' Joe Barksdale uses guitar as therapy in battle with depression

COSTA MESA, Calif. -- Joe Barksdale considered taking his life midway through last season.

But when his mind meanders to a dark place, playing the guitar pulls him back into the light.

Barksdale, 30, said playing guitar serves as a form of therapy to help him deal with bouts of depression that have haunted him since childhood. Now in his eighth NFL season, Barksdale takes medication and is in therapy for depression.

"It helps from a mental health standpoint," said Barksdale, the Los Angeles Chargers right tackle. "I'm an introverted person, and it keeps me social because I'm always playing with new people.

"I would say playing guitar is like practicing for a game that you know you're going to win."

The Detroit native said he was physically, emotionally and sexually abused as a child. Since acknowledging his condition, Barksdale said he has received a flood of emails and letters from fans also dealing with depression and asking for help.

"I don't have the easiest time explaining myself to people, communicating how I feel and that kind of thing," Barksdale said. "And I feel like the guitar helps me communicate with people, first and foremost. But it also helps me process emotions -- getting out things that maybe there aren't words for that you feel."

Dr. Daniel Levitin, a cognitive neuroscientist, said what Barksdale is going through -- and how he's helping to cope with it -- makes sense. For the past three decades, Levitin has studied connections between music and the brain.

Levitin and Barksdale participated in a study commissioned by Fender on the state of today's guitar players that partly focused on the health and wellness benefits of playing the guitar.

Levitin said playing a musical instrument is a great thing for football players to pick up because it gives them a sense of mastery of a different activity -- stepping into the shoes of Buddy Guy, Muddy Waters or Prince -- and helping to get them out of the doldrums of daily life while doing something that's physically demanding.

"Music is one of the reliable ways that anybody can get into this daydreaming mode, either by listening or playing," Levitin said. "It's a therapeutic mode for the brain that effectively pushes a reset button, and it resets tension and stress -- a kind of cycle of negative thoughts."

Levitin said he interacts regularly with former NFL player Bart Oates, a three-time Super Bowl winner with the New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers, on the connections between music and the brain. With the recent revelations of the long-term effects of brain injuries stemming from playing football, more former NFL players are reaching out to Levitin to understand how music therapy can help them deal with those issues.

"The idea is music effects a number of chemical systems in the body, including the immune system," Levitin said. "The potential for it is still being uncovered, but certainly there's a lot of evidence that music can help combat depression, and it can help combat feelings of sadness."

Levitin said the best way out of depression is distraction as an alternative to rumination, offering a limitless opportunity for players to explore another side of themselves.

"The distraction has to be meaningful and engaging enough that you don't fall back into the rumination," Levitin said. "And music is one of those things -- like football or computer programming or a number of other things humans partake in, chess playing -- there are a lot of layers and levels to it. You can start out as an amateur and enjoy playing, but you can go deeper and deeper and spend your whole life doing it."

Barksdale said he took up the guitar at the end of the 2012 NFL season at the suggestion of Jeff Fisher, his former head coach with the St. Louis Rams. Fisher suggested Barksdale find something to do to help him deal with the loss of a close friend during the offseason.

Barksdale took to the guitar quickly, and now plays at least an hour a day. His favorite guitar players include Jimi Hendrix and Duane Allman.

Barksdale released his first album, "Butterflies, Rainbows & Moonbeams" in January of this year, and he has another mini-album due to release early next year. While both recordings are solo projects, Barksdale does sit in with bands on occasion.

"It just kept coming and coming," Barksdale said about learning the guitar. "Looking back on it, I kind of learned football the same way. Some things just click with you, and I think that's what it is. It's one of the reasons, for sure."

Barksdale fostered a relationship with Fender guitar after touring its facility following his first season with the Chargers, and he has been with the guitar company for four years.

Other athletes who represent Fender include former NBA player Chris Bosh and skateboarders Ray Barbee, Tony Alva and Don Nguyen.

"He's always struck me as someone who is committed to improving his technique and skills," said Andy Mooney, CEO of Fender, who added that it's rare for someone to pick up the guitar so quickly. "When he's on stage, he's not playing it behind his head, jumping up and down and being a showman.

"He's very much kind of concentrating on getting it right on stage, and kind of really applying what he's learned to contribute to the band that he's in."

Chargers' Joe Barksdale breaks silence on his daily battles that have nothing to do with football

By Dan Woike
LA Times
February 2, 2018 at 1:05 pm

The thoughts Joe Barksdale had wrestled with for as long as he could remember started to get louder.

"Just kill yourself. Just do it. What's the point of living if you're going to be this miserable the rest of your life? Just kill yourself."

It was early November 2017 and Barksdale, the Chargers' starting right tackle, sat in the team's training room. He'd just found out he wouldn't be playing in an upcoming game against Jacksonville after injuring his foot during a fight with a teammate.

He'd missed the previous two games with a toe injury that had been bothering him for more than a month. Now, he was going to be out again.

He cried.

His severe depression — something Barksdale calls the "monkey" always on his back — had gotten the best of him. Truth didn't matter anymore. Only sadness did.

He got home and sharpened a knife, his mind racing. His wife, Brionna, convinced him to put it down. They talked, he calmed, and the crisis was averted.

Barksdale, who is on medication and in therapy, is sharing his story in the hopes of becoming an advocate for people suffering from chronic depression.

"If I could save another person, maybe that's why the attempts [to harm himself] didn't work," he said.
During a wide-ranging interview with The Times, Barksdale, 29, said he was physically, emotionally and sexually abused as a child.

He hesitated to talk about the abuse at first before deciding to share his experience. "I was molested when I was younger," he said. "It happened."

It was the beginning of childhood filled with insecurities and anxieties.

He felt like a burden because of his size. He was expensive to clothe and feed. He was more interested in engineering than he was in sports. Older kids in inner-city Detroit picked on him.

"Everything that's happened to me going forward has just piled onto it," he said. "It's not going away. They're like tattoos."
As he continued to fight a sadness he knew would stay with him, Barksdale found one way to feel better.

Less than four years after learning how to play guitar — at former coach Jeff Fisher's suggestion — Barksdale just released his debut album, "Butterflies, Rainbows & Moonbeams."

"If he was stressed out, where some people might go and smoke a cigarette or something, he'd go and pick up his guitar," Brionna said.

"His guitar was his outlet, and once he started writing music it was even better because he could get those thoughts and feelings out in words and music."

Brionna wrote the lyrics to the most personal song on the album, "Journey to Nowhere," after a tough night for Barksdale due to his depression.

On the album's cover, Barksdale has a massive smile on his face — one he's not faking.

"Music is everything," Barksdale said. "I've always wanted to fly. I've always had this obsession with flight. Birds are the coolest, watching things move through the air and not be hindered by gravity as much as I am. When I play my guitar — not all the time but if I'm soloing or if I just let go and play — I feel like I'm flying. It's the coolest thing ever."

He loves Jimi Hendrix. Earlier this season, he played a game with customized cleats inspired by Hendrix's guitar from the famed Monterey Pop Festival.

And while playing in St. Louis for the Rams, Barksdale began to fall in love with the blues because of the way musicians were able to convey feelings without uttering a word.

"It's telling people how you feel without you having to talk to them," he said.

Getting players to talk is one of the biggest challenges faced by NFL mental health advocates.

"The challenge is when they're hurting emotionally, and you've been taught your whole life to stuff it, it becomes difficult to say anything," said Dwight Hollier, the NFL's vice president of wellness and clinical services.

Hollier, a former player, said the league has a number of programs to help players and their families deal with mental health issues. One of those programs, NFL Life Line, is a 24-hour crisis hotline available to current and former players and their families. Hollier said the number receives between 20 and 30 calls per month.

Barksdale has called that number before and it didn't work for him. But with mental health treatments, there are no fool-proof methods.

"No one had any answers for me," Barksdale said. "…They wanted to help. But they couldn't. At the end of the day, I still felt … fear, shame, guilt, denial and anxiety."

Barksdale had to fight all those feelings in sharing his depression with teammates. He's spoken to a small handful of players including Chargers quarterback Philip Rivers.

"They were really supportive. I think it answered a lot of questions to them," Barksdale said."There are the symptoms and all that, but without proper understanding of what's going on, you just look like you have bad days where you just show up and you're miserable for whatever reason or you're angry for whatever reason. It connected a lot of the dots for them.
They were super supportive.

"This goes to show you the stigma in the league. All three of them told me, 'Hey, don't worry. This is between us. I won't tell anybody.'
My thing was, I'm telling you so that you can tell other people."

Rivers said he was caught off guard by the disclosure. The Barksdale he knew owned a big, contagious laugh. He seemed happy.

"I would've never imagined that he was dealing with that," Rivers said.

Barksdale, out of necessity, had become an expert at hiding his depression.

"I've been doing it for 29 years. I know what the alternative is," Barksdale said. "If I let myself get sad, like really sad, it can go really bad places — like I could not be here tomorrow."

If it sounds serious, it's because it is. If it sounds heavy, it's because it is. If it sounds uncomfortably honest, that's the point too.

Barksdale is done staying quiet. And he hopes others will join him.

"Some days, you can talk yourself out of it.

Some days, you can't. Some days, it just feels impossible," he said. "This is who I am. I am as depressed as I am black."

Dear Mom

By Casey Hayward
The Players Tribune

Hi, Mom.

It's me, Casey.

I'm writing you because … well, I'm writing for a lot of reasons. Because I love you. I miss you. I just want to talk to you.

But also, I need something.

Actually, I need to know something….

I need to know how to cook cabbage. You know, the kind you made with the baked chicken and macaroni and cheese when I was a kid. Last time I made it I had the chicken down — all the little spices and everything — and the mac and cheese was … well, it was decent.

But I couldn't get the cabbage right.

At least not like you used to.

I've been thinking a lot lately about getting back in the kitchen, the way I did when I was out on my own for the first time up in Green Bay and you had me cooking all your old recipes. I know you remember how I would call you up asking what spices to use for this, or how long to cook that, or what temperature to set the oven at so I didn't burn the house down.

I loved talking to you about cooking.

And that's why I have to say … I'm sorry, Mom. Because since you've been gone, I haven't cooked at all. I mean, I'll microwave something for myself every now and then, or fry up some eggs for breakfast. But actually cook, like you used to? I haven't been able to. I imagine myself standing over the stove, grabbing different ingredients, trying to make it like yours, then having a question and reaching for my phone….

And having nobody to call.

I don't know … I guess I've been avoiding it because I know it would be another reminder that you're not here, and of how much I miss you. I already have so many of those moments.

The toughest is probably right before games. You used to always call me and give me a little pep talk and say a prayer for me and my teammates.

And I gotta say … that first game after you passed away in 2016, I didn't know how I was going to feel before the game without hearing your voice. So I decided that since you couldn't be there to talk to me, I'd talk to you. And every game since, I've recited the same prayer to you before each game:

Spread your wings and protect me

From my head to my toes

Get on my back

And let's fly

I still remember when you first told me you had breast cancer. It was my fourth year in Green Bay. You had been sick for a while but you hadn't told me or Jecavesia about it. I know you just didn't want us boys to worry about you. You never wanted anybody to worry about you. You were always the one worrying about everybody else — volunteering for events, letting somebody stay at our house if they needed to, letting people borrow five or 10 dollars whenever they needed it, even though we didn't have much money to go around.

You know, growing up in Perry, Georgia, Cavey and I didn't even know that you and Dad were struggling financially. Because you guys made sure we didn't know. You made sure we had everything we ever needed.

I remember you waking up at four o'clock in the morning to deliver newspapers. You and Dad would go out and restock the newsstands and be home in time to send us off to school. I never realized that you were doing that to earn extra money to support our family. I just thought you liked getting up early.

And between you working at the salon as a hairdresser and Dad being a manager at McDonald's, I thought we were straight. I mean, all my friends knew who Dad was because they all ate at McDonald's and they'd see him up there. Everybody knew him. He was like a little celebrity, in my eyes. And he would always bring food home for us, too. I don't know how many Happy Meals I ate in my life. Then I graduated to Quarter Pounders and Big Macs, and I would just go to town.

But it was the nights when we didn't have McDonald's that I remember most. The nights when you would cook, and we would sit around the table as a family and enjoy a meal together — you and Dad not worrying about the fact that we were struggling, and me and Cavey not even knowing … just being kids and loving the life you guys had given us.

I don't know if I ever thanked you for that.

We had a lot of love in our house, but you were tough, too. Even today, when I make a mistake in practice or something, I can still hear you yelling at me like you did when I was a kid. Like when I was seven years old and you were in the stands at one of my basketball games and I turned the ball over. You stood up and yelled something at me, and I looked up at you and was like, "Leave me alone!"

And mom … the look you gave me … I don't even know how to describe it.

I just remember seeing your face and thinking, Oh, Lord, I'mma get my butt WHOOPED when I get home.

And I did.

I think that was one of maybe two times when I talked back to you like that. Like, really talked back.

The other was when I was 12 and I got so mad at you that I told you I was gonna move out.

I know you're laughing just thinking about that one.

I don't even remember what we were butting heads about — probably me cleaning up my room or doing the dishes or something. And I threw the biggest fit. I got so mad at you that I was like, "Man, I'm leaving."

You said, "Excuse me … you're what?"

"I'm leaving! I'mma move out!"

You didn't even flinch. You were just like, "O.K. G'on, then. Leave."

You told me to pack my bag and go — but I was only allowed to take one pair of jeans, one shirt and a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. That's it.

So there I was, little 12-year-old Casey, packing my bag and walking out the front door, like I had someplace to go. Like I was gonna show you!

I was walking down the road with my backpack on, kicking dirt, still arguing with you in my head, and I didn't get but 20 minutes down the road before I realized that I didn't have no money. We lived real far from the city, too. I was never gonna make it. And even if I did, what was I gonna do when I got there?

So I turned my butt around and walked home.

And you were standing right there in the doorway.

"I knew you'd be back."

That's all you said.

Then I went inside and did whatever chore you were trying to get me to do.

Yeah, you were tough, Mom.

It was all tough love, though.

That's why it hurt me so much when I saw you wearing beanies all the time because you had lost your hair from the chemo. I'll never forget going to the barbershop one day up in Green Bay, sitting in the chair, thinking about you — because I always do — then looking at myself in the mirror and telling the barber, "Man, just cut it off."

"The whole thing?"

"Yeah, man. Straight to the scalp. Bald."

Now, Mom, you know I got a big ol' head. So afterwards, I was sitting in my car looking at myself in the mirror, and I didn't even recognize myself. I looked so weird.

Then I took some photos of my giant bald head and sent them to you. Remember? I was like, "Look, Mom! I got the bald head, too!"

The very next day, you posted a photo of yourself. No hat. No beanie. Just bald as hell, and beautiful. Owning every bit of it.

I was so proud.

You fought, Mom. You fought hard. Even in the two or three weeks before you passed, you were adamant that you were gonna beat it.

But the doctors were telling us there was nothing else they could do.

It was the summer before the 2016 season. I had recently signed my contract with the Chargers, and we were all excited about my new opportunity. I had been staying at my house in Atlanta, driving an hour and 15 minutes every day to the hospital down in Macon to be with you. And for those two or three weeks before you passed, every time my phone rang, my heart sank into my stomach because I was thinking that maybe this was the one — maybe this was gonna be the call where somebody tells me that my mom is gone forever.

On July 17, 2016, that call came. It was a Sunday morning. Dad called me up and told me that you had passed.

You had done all the fighting you could do.

I drove down to the hospital, and the whole family was there. I went into your room and sat down next to you. I don't think I even said anything. I just know that I held your hand and prayed that you would watch over me and the family. That you would spread your wings and protect us.

Then I made you a promise.

I promised that I was going to dedicate the rest of my NFL career to you. That every time I stepped on the football field, I would be a reflection of you.

And you know what?

I've made the Pro Bowl each year since.

It's been two years since you passed, Mom. And I'm telling you: In that time, I've been playing the best football of my life.

Because I've been playing for you.

And even though I'd trade it all in a heartbeat to have you back, I know that you're the reason behind all my success. Because you're there, spreading your wings over me, protecting me, soaring with me every Sunday.

It's been a tough couple of years. But after everything that happened with you, if there's one thing I'm thankful for, it's that we had time with you before you passed. That the whole family had the chance to let you know how much you mean to all of us and that we love you. I'm thankful that we had that time together, because I don't know what I would have done if things had happened differently and you were taken from us suddenly, without the chance for us to say goodbye.

That's what happened with Cavey, mom.

I was at a rookie dinner with a bunch of guys from the team and my cousin called me, panicking, asking if I had talked to Cavey. I tried to calm him down, but he just kept telling me to call Cavey.

A car had been involved in an accident on I-75 just outside of Macon. There were three people inside. Cavey was one of them. One person had been killed, but we didn't know who.

I left the dinner without telling anyone, and I cried the entire drive home. My phone was blowing up. When I got home, I talked to Dad.

He told me it was Cavey.

He was going to the hospital to identify the body.

I flew back to Perry the next day to help dad get things in order and to be with the family. I stayed for the funeral.

That was hard, Mom. It's still hard. I can't even begin to describe it. But the toughest part was how he was just taken from us. We didn't have that time with him like we did with you. It had been a little over a year since we had lost you, and now my brother — my man — was gone, just like that.

And same as with you, I think about him all the time.

Especially when I look at his little girl, September.

That's right, mom … you have a granddaughter.

Cavey named her September because that's the month you were born. It was his little way to pay tribute to you because he knew how much you wanted grandkids. You were always on me about it, like, "When I'mma get some grandkids, Casey?" But I wasn't ready for all that. I'm still not.

And you remember how Cavey never even wanted to have kids. He was adamant.

But I wish you could have seen how excited he was when he found out September was coming. I'm telling you, Mom, a switch just flipped in him, and it was really beautiful to see. He was so excited be a father. He couldn't wait to meet his little girl.

I just wish he would have gotten that chance.

See, when the accident happened, Cavey's girlfriend was still pregnant with September.

He never even got to meet his own daughter.

I know he's there with you, so just let him know that I'm helping take care of September. Let him know that she looks just like her daddy. I mean just like him.

Let him know that she's beautiful.

And let him know that I miss him. I miss him texting me before every game. We had this thing we used to always say to each other: "If you ain't gettin' money, why you livin'?" It was just our little saying that meant if you're not out here to make plays — if you're not living this life to do big things and ball out — then why you livin' at all?

Getting that text from him and talking to you were the biggest parts of my pregame ritual.

Now, I call Dad before every game. We talk about how you and Cavey are shining down upon us, and then I say my prayer.

I think that's all I got for now. I'll talk to you again soon. But until then, I guess … just let me know about the cabbage. I don't know if I'm ready to get back in the kitchen just yet, but when I do, it'd be nice to know that you're there with me. Just show me a sign. Smack me upside my head or something if you catch me using the wrong spices or cutting the cabbage wrong. I won't get mad. I just want to know you're there.

But I know you will be. You're always with me. Every time I take the field. Every time I hear your granddaughter laugh. Every time I pray. You're always here.

I am a reflection of you.

I love you, Mom. Thank you for everything. Keep watching over me and the rest of us. We still need you as much as we ever did. Maybe even more.

Spread your wings.

Protect me from my head to my toes.

Get on my back.

– Casey

Desmond King has awarded the Chargers with big plays as a defensive back and returner

By Jeff Miller
LA Times
October 31, 2018 at 5:50 pm

The winner receives a trophy, which makes sense seeing how the award is one of the highest honors in college football.

A watch is presented as well, Desmond King passing the Rolex to his mother, Yvette Powell, as a thank you.

But how many people are aware that the annual recipient of the Jim Thorpe Award also is given a cowboy hat and a pair of boots?

All the defensive players for the Chargers know that now … thanks to defensive coordinator Gus Bradley.

"I never thought that was going to catch up with me," King said Wednesday. "I was like, 'Oh, wow.' That's what the internet will do to you."

Bradley shattered the monotony of a recent team meeting by flashing a photo of King modeling the hat and boots while he was still at Iowa.

Among the Xs and O's, this was pure LOL. King, who won the award in 2015, swears that was the only time he tried on the items.

"The room busted up," safety Rayshawn Jenkins said. "Everybody was trying to get a picture of it real quick before they took it down."

This is the sort of fun a football team can have en route to 5-2, an encouraging start aided significantly by King, whose ability to make big plays has continued into his second NFL season.

The 5-foot-10, 200-pound defensive back is slightly undersized, except where it matters most.

King is coming off a game in which he had a season-high seven tackles. This followed a game in which he had two interceptions. This followed a few games in which he established himself as a kick-returning threat, too.

He generally plays nickel for the Chargers, but King's value suggests he is nothing but dollar signs.

“He’s just a very instinctual player,” Jenkins said. “And he can contribute all over the field. He’s a total package out there.”

Sunday, King and his teammates play at Seattle, the team the Chargers faced during King’s introduction to the NFL — the 2017 preseason opener.

A fifth-round pick out of Iowa, King admits that back then he “still didn’t know much.” He ran out of the locker room hoping to somehow leave a positive impression.

As he does before every game, King prayed for safety, guidance and the strength to make at least one play.

He then had the Chargers’ only interception and chased down Seahawks fullback Tre Madden from several yards back to punch loose the football and prevent a touchdown.

Standing on the Chargers sideline, coach Anthony Lynn was thoroughly impressed. And not the slightest bit surprised.

“He can do things sometimes that you just can’t coach,” Lynn said. “He doesn’t have the height, the weight, the speed and all that. But if you look at Desmond, the thing I liked about him, tracking him all the way back to high school, he’s always been a very productive player. That’s not going to change when you get to the NFL. It’s just a pattern of success.”

Despite his success — and his Thorpe Award, won after his junior year — King was not the high draft selection many experts had forecast.

He returned to Iowa for his senior season, his production sliding somewhat but not as dramatically as his NFL stock did.

The situation was awkward, the Hawkeyes athletic department — as a courtesy — providing King and his family the use of the presidential suite in the Kinnick Stadium press box to watch the draft.

He also was celebrated that weekend with the honor of throwing out the first pitch before an Iowa baseball game.

Then King wasn’t taken until the Chargers used the 151st overall pick to get him on the second day of the draft. The call was so tardy that King thought his phone might be broken since it was not ringing.

“I definitely thought he was going to be off the board in the first 45 or so picks,” said Jenkins, who was drafted by the Chargers a round earlier. “I thought he was that good. I was shocked.”

From that humble start, King has rebounded impressively, one highlight moment at a time. It was Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz who predicted before the draft that, no matter what King lacked physically, he would “find a good fit.”

That is exactly what’s happened with the Chargers, this fit so comfortable that a room full of teammates were left laughing at the image of the Detroit-raised King as a cowboy.

“Coach Gus was just playing around,” King said. “He does that stuff all the time. He got me good with that one.”

The Bosa Family—Brothers Joey and Nick, Father John—Share a Passion for Pass-Rushing

By Michael Rosenberg
Sports Illustrated
September 20, 2017

If you’re in the market for an NFL pass rusher, call the Bosa family in Fort Lauderdale. John Bosa was the Dolphins’ first-round pick in 1987, and his former brother-in-law, Eric Kumerow, was Miami’s first-round pick the next year. John’s son Joey was the Chargers’ first-round pick last year, and Joey’s brother, Nick, will be a first-round pick some day. For now, he’s a burgeoning star at Ohio State.

Joey missed the first four games of his rookie year with a hamstring injury, but he spent the next 12 inducing whiplash at D-end. He finished with 10½ sacks in 12 games and won the league’s Defensive Rookie of the Year award.
He’s the NFL’s Next Great Defensive Player, and we may be late with that declaration. Pro Football Focus determined that in the first three games of his career, he was the most productive pass rusher in the league, per snap, more so than even Khalil Mack or Von Miller. (By year’s end PFF had him as its fifth-ranked defensive end, but he generated pressure at a higher rate than any rookie in a decade of tracking players.) Joey, 22, entered this season feeling healthier, faster, more flexible and better prepared than he was last year, and yet he knows: He might not even be the best Bosa of his generation.

Nick Bosa is arguably the most promising defender on one of the nation’s most talented teams, and his older brother is already projecting him as a top five pick in the 2019 draft, following his junior year. “He could go this year,” Joey says, “except he’s not allowed.” In the matter-of-fact tone that is a family trademark, he adds, “If Nick sucked, I would tell you he sucked. But he doesn’t suck.”

Joey’s nickname is Big Bear, and Nick calls himself Smaller Bear. But at 6' 4" and 270 pounds, Smaller is basically the same size as Big (6' 5", 270). The brothers have similar athletic gifts, but Nick, 20, learned to apply them at a younger age because he was always copying his brother. Joey was not a starter at national powerhouse St. Thomas Aquinas High until he was a junior; Nick started as a freshman. Joey was a four-star recruit; Nick had five stars.

“Every time I think I’m better than him at something, he just flies right by me,” says Joey. “Ping-Pong. Lots of video games. We are obsessed with what we love, and what we love is football and our craft.”

Ohio State defensive line coach Larry Johnson, tellingly, is not hitting the brakes on the hype machine. Asked if Nick can be another Joey, as Joey suggests, he says, “That’s a true statement. He’s just young. But he’s got the tools to be really special.” NFL Network analyst Mike Mayock hasn’t yet watched much film on Nick—he’s a true sophomore, after all—but in the little he’s seen, “I just started laughing, because he looked like the same guy [as Joey].”

In addition to their more notable achievements, the Bosa boys have pulled off a rare sibling feat: They compete alongside each other more than against each other. They’re best friends and remain in daily contact. Nick “is one of very few people I can be my true self around,” says Joey. “Maybe the only person. I feel like he’s just another piece of me.”

The Matthews clan—Hall of Fame offensive lineman Bruce and three generations of Clays.
The quarterbacking Mannings and Carrs. The punting Colquitts. Ronde and Tiki Barber. J.J. and T.J. Watt ... Cheryl and John Bosa did not set out to join these football families. They had other ideas for their boys, like baseball, soccer, tennis, golf, skiing. “I tried to keep them away from football as long as I could,” John says, but they begged to play, so Mom and Dad let Joey give it a shot when he was eight. Nick, who is 27 months younger, threw a temper tantrum, telling his parents, “If you don’t let me play too, I’m going to die.” (That may, in fact, have been true. Back then, the boys were spending a lot of their time in the backyard playing Kill the Man with the Ball. In football, at least, the goal is merely to maim.)

Nick slept with a football every night and wanted to play every day, and so his parents finally relented. At the boy’s first practice he was plugged in on offense. He tugged on a coach’s shirt and asked to switch to defense, like his dad. Nick was seven. He has stayed on that side of the ball ever since.

Even then he had an instinctive understanding of how to use leverage and technique to get past an offensive lineman. Cheryl says Nick was “a savant” from the beginning. “People were like, What’s happening here?”

Nick says, “It was just simple for me.”

Football began to take over the Bosas’ lives only because that’s what the boys wanted.
Cheryl, a real estate agent, says she would have provided the same support “if it was piano lessons. It didn’t matter. It’s their passion.” When Joey and Nick were in high school, John would wake them at five for breakfast and their morning workout, and they never complained.

“I swear, not one time,” says John, who works in commercial real estate. “And football is the worst sport to practice. Baseball practice is a blast. Football practice is a grind. These guys have embraced it. You can’t teach that. Parents who push, push, push ... I’ve seen it—the kids go the other way. If it’s not in their heart, it’s just not going to work out.”

Even as Joey and Nick excelled, their parents stayed level, didn’t get caught up in the hype. When Joey started high school, John imagined his son might one day earn a college scholarship. An offer from Alabama came the next year. And if Joey could do it, there was no doubt Nick would too. (Cheryl and John divorced when Joey was in junior high school, but the boys have remained their priority; John posed on Cheryl’s patio for a photo accompanying this story, and they interviewed agents for Joey together.)

Joey and Nick fought plenty when they were younger. They didn’t truly become friends until they played together for one season, in the fall of 2012, at St. Thomas Aquinas—Joey as a dominating defensive end, Nick as an undersized but highly effective D-tackle. John would sit in the top row, “as far away from the other parents as I could get.” He didn’t want to hear anybody yelling at his kids.

The boys may have wanted to play football because their father had, John admits, but “ultimately, they’re just really good. When you have the genetic gifts they had ... they just loved it. It’s a lot of fun to knock the crap out of people.”

He pauses. “I miss it.”

John Bosa is an American oddity: He reached the highest level in his field, defying astronomical odds, only to be labeled a failure.
The Dolphins drafted him with the 16th pick out of Boston College, and he started just 21 games. If he is remembered at all, it’s as a bust.

He politely disputes that label. In his second NFL season a guard dived at his left knee—legal at the time—and John tore three L’s: ACL, MCL, PCL. “That really was the end of my career,” he says. “I didn’t know it, but I never came back from that.” Technically he did come back, but he wasn’t the same player; his first step was not as quick. In his fourth season his right knee went out, and that was the end of that.

“The transition from John Bosa the football player to just John Bosa was a very difficult one,” he says, but he avoided traps that snare so many former players in that position. He did not, for example, exaggerate his gifts into a giant what-might-have-been. He believes he would have had a nice, long career if he’d stayed healthy, but he also says, “I was an overachieving guy. No one outworked me. But I didn’t have the total package that [Nick and Joey] have. I didn’t have that type of athleticism. I was more of a grinder.”

That John did not try to recapture his greatness through the boys was just as well, because the game has changed since his playing days. In the 1980s defensive ends trained like weightlifters, more geared toward lifting a Porsche than running like one. And pass-rushing moves of that era were relatively simple: the bull rush, the club-and-rip, the spin. Quarterbacks took seven-step drops, which gave pass rushers more time to reach them.

Today’s quarterbacks pass more often and take shorter drops, and defensive ends line up wider. Johnson, Ohio State’s line coach, says “the hips and the hands are the most important things now. If you can flip your hips in a pass rush”—or point your hips toward the QB—“you have a great chance to be successful.” (If John Bosa ever heard the phrase flip your hips in his days, it would have been at a Miami nightclub.)
Today’s rushers, Johnson says, shed blockers with “violent” hands—they initiate the fight instead of avoiding it.

That tutelage, John says, is why “Joey and Nick were better football players as freshmen at Ohio State than I ever was.” He knows he couldn’t have taught his boys to play this way even if he’d wanted. It would be like Orville Wright trying to teach somebody to fly a 747.

Joey, for one, has become a hips-and-hands evangelist, convinced that Johnson’s techniques are revolutionizing the position. And he may be the one who proves it. In his rookie season he drew comparisons with J.J. Watt—another tall, white pass rusher from the Big Ten with a talented younger brother—but Joey points out that they are “pretty significantly different players.” Watt, after all, weighs 290 pounds and could be an All-Pro defensive tackle if he played there. Says Joey, “[Watt] is a freakin’ animal, moving guys out of the way. I like to think I combine finesse and power.” (Not that Joey’s lacking in moving-guys-out-of-the-way prowess. Says Mayock, “When he gets his hands on a player’s body, it looks like he’s got his hands on a steering wheel.”)

What Watt and Bosa have in common is relentlessness. As a rookie Bosa earned a reputation for playing hard on every snap, which was especially impressive considering that he’d battled tendinitis in one knee for three years and that his lower back hurt enough that he had to stand up in the middle of meals to stretch.
But he came to trust one of the Chargers’ strength coaches, Todd Rice, so much that when the team cleaned out its staff in January, Bosa put Rice on his personal payroll. He plans to follow Rice’s biomechanics-based workouts, emphasizing “joint integrity and elasticity,” until he retires.

It’s easy to confuse Big Bear and Smaller Bear, especially with Nick’s wearing Joey’s old number 97 Buckeyes jersey. (John also wore 97 at B.C. and in Miami; Joey has switched to 99.) They each love their labor more than its fruits; as Cheryl says, “They like the results of it, but they don’t like the pomp and circumstances of it.” They train together in the offseason and play Rocket League on PlayStation 4 together and seem exactly alike. But, of course, no two people really are.

Joey: “You’re not his friend.”

Cheryl: “He was really kind to animals, the elderly—”

Joey: “Are you saying I’m violent with animals and the elderly?”

The differences are, in reality, subtle. Joey has longer arms, but Nick seems to have a quicker burst. Joey has a pigeon-toed walk. Nick likes to needle liberals on Twitter. (He is a huge fan of President Trump, more interested in politics than Joey.) Joey’s a bit more intense and introverted. When you meet one of Joey’s pals, his parents joke, “Congratulations! You’ve met all of Joey’s friends.”

When he was at Ohio State, Joey moved out of an apartment that he shared with running back Ezekiel Elliott because he wanted to focus on football. When the Chargers moved from San Diego to Los Angeles this year, the main difference for Joey was that he needed new takeout menus. “I didn’t go out [partying] once in San Diego,” he says. He can’t even enjoy a couple of beers without feeling guilty.

Nick goes out more, but that’s largely because he’s still in college. And that speaks to the biggest difference between the two, especially as it relates to football: their birth order. Nick followed Joey, so he just copied his older brother. But Joey followed John, and he felt some responsibility. “My dad came from nothing,” Joey says. “He made a name for himself in the NFL. That’s motivation for me. I had the talent; it’s important for me to do something with it. I just want to do something to make [my parents] proud.”

Joey opened this season with 1½ sacks in two games, and yet he admits that he still hears “that little voice in the back of my head that says You’re never going to be good enough.” If Nick (two sacks in three games) suffers from self-doubt, he doesn’t show it. There’s no way to know what they would be like if Nick had been born first, and it doesn’t matter. The Chargers are fortunate to have one Bosa brother. Ohio State is fortunate to have the other. And every other team in football ought to consider itself lucky that there isn’t a third.

How fatherhood made Chargers receiver Keenan Allen a better player

By Eric Williams

COSTA MESA, Calif. -- Toward the end of a training camp in August, applause from a corner of the field near the players' friends and family tent interrupted a lull at the end of practice.

Los Angeles Chargers receiver Keenan Allen and fiancé Ciandra Monique had just announced that they were expecting their third child, a boy. Allen did so by kicking a football filled with baby-blue dust that erupted into the air.

The couple already has two daughters, 3-year-old Kamari and 1-year-old Kaliyah. Allen, 26, joked that having the girls first has helped prepare him for his first boy, due in January.

"I'm definitely excited," Allen said about the new addition. "I think it's a little better to have the girls first, just having patience in dealing with the girls and how you discipline them.

"I wasn't in a house with girls growing up. It was all boys, so I know how to raise a boy, and I'm ready to raise a boy."

Entering his sixth NFL season, Allen points to fatherhood as something that has made him a more mature and accountable player and has led to more success on the field.

The Cal product had his best season as a pro in 2017, playing a full 16 games for the first time in his NFL career and finishing with 102 catches for 1,393 receiving yards and six touchdowns.

For his efforts, Allen earned his first trip to the Pro Bowl and won the Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year, returning to the field after suffering an ACL knee injury that cut short his 2016 campaign.

Since the start of the 2017 season, Allen ranks fifth in the league in receiving yards (1,765), sixth in receptions (134) and second in receptions of 10 or more yards (85). Through five games this season, he has 32 catches for 372 yards and a touchdown.

Allen said he leaned on older players such as Philip Rivers, a father of eight, and mentor Antonio Gates to help balance family and football.

"In different phases of their life, it's affected me in different ways," Rivers said when asked about the responsibility of raising a family. Rivers and wife Tiffany had their first child while still at NC State. "I think the ups and downs of the game allow for teachable moments, whereas they can see me actually deal with some adversity firsthand, like an interception for a touchdown to lose the game -- all of these moments over 15 years.

"Obviously, it helps you keep things in perspective. Whether it's a good game or a bad game, I pull into the driveway, and there's scooters and bikes everywhere, and I go, 'You know what? Things are going to be all right.'"

Gates knew early on that Allen had the talent to develop into a special player, but he needed to see the young receiver's commitment to being great through hard work and preparation. That has occurred over the past two years.

"I just remember when I first had my child, it forced me to grow up," Gates said. "Not to say that he wouldn't have -- who knows? But it almost forces your hand because you start understanding, as a man, you start doing the things that you need to do.

"I just remember we would do things in conditioning. And I would always jokingly tell him, 'Hey, I want to pass the torch, but you've got to work harder.' [laughs] It's just been amazing to see a guy who we all thought had the ability [to] grow say, 'I can be one of the best players on this team and in the league.'"

Allen said he has slowed down on going to the club and the casino as he has gotten older, taking up hobbies such as golf when he spends time away from home.

Allen's used to being around family and was surrounded by aunts, uncles and cousins in his hometown of Greensboro, North Carolina, where he grew up with older brothers Zach Maynard and Durel Lang.

"Family was big and has always been big," Allen said. "Cousins and aunts, we always lived in the same neighborhood. The whole family was probably five to 10 miles away from each other growing up, so I've kind of always been family-oriented and had a big supporting cast growing up."

Allen also is a self-taught musician who considered pursuing a music career. With his interest in music, it has become part of his daughters' daily life.

"They're big music fans and big Disney fans," Allen said of his daughters. "So they're singing, jumping and dancing all day."

GREENSBORO, N.C. -- He was not supposed to be on the football field in the first place. Keenan Allen was just 6 years old, and the minimum age requirement was 7. As if that weren't reason enough for concern, he was playing up two age divisions, against much bigger 9- and 10-year-olds.

Stepdad Scott Lang and his wife watched anxiously as the opening kickoff went up, and Allen, on the very first play of his very first game, disappeared beneath a wave of tacklers. When Allen emerged, tears filled his eyes. His equipment was too big, causing his chin strap to slide over his throat and momentarily choke him.

Lang felt a sense of trepidation. He was the one who had fudged the paperwork so Allen could play on the same team as his older brothers, and now, as the emotional youngster walked slowly toward the sideline, Lang was concerned not only about his son's health, but also his own.

"I thought, 'I'm going to need a place to live if he's hurt,' " Lang said over the summer. "I looked at him and said, 'You gonna cry? You want me to take you out?' He's shaking his head, and the helmet is just wobbling. I told him, 'Son, I'm gonna give you some advice: Grown men play this game, not little boys. It don't matter what the age is, you've got to be a gladiator to step inside this box. If your mindset ain't that, you're not gonna be successful.' "

The words struck harder than any defender ever could. Allen took them and carried the message around as if it were a backpack, toting it to every game and every workout, using it as fuel to become a recreation-league legend, high school All-American and, now, Pro Bowl wide receiver for the Los Angeles Chargers.

To watch the 6-foot-2, 211-pound wideout on the field is to witness someone who plays the game with both a carefree attitude and a fierce competitiveness. The former can be seen anytime music fills the air before a game or during timeouts. He dances as if no one is around, moving his body with the rubber-band elasticity of singer Chris Brown, one of his personal favorites. And when the music stops and the action begins, mild-mannered Keenan gives way to alpha-dog Slayer.

"I [adopted] that name my rookie year," he says, slowly stroking his long black beard. "I had some fans commenting on my social-media page, and one dude was like, 'You're a slayer.' I just took it and ran with it. I'm like, Yeahhhhhh, that's a good little name. It kind of goes with my game, 'cause I be killing dudes."

The resume reflects a highly productive player whose only opponent has been injuries. Allen earned All-Rookie and Rookie of the Year honors from various organizations in 2013 after breaking team rookie records with five 100-yard receiving games and 71 receptions. Two years later, he caught 67 passes through eight games -- third-most in league history at the midpoint of a season -- but missed the second half of the year because of a kidney injury. He returned healthy in 2016 and was having his way with former Chiefs Pro Bowl cornerback Marcus Peters in Week 1, drawing two penalties and catching six passes for 63 yards in the first half. But a torn ACL did to him again what no defender could: shut him down.

"I was just like, 'Whaaaaat? I just came off an injury. I can't play again?' " he recalled. "My total mindset after rehab was just to come back and play all 16 games. Just let my game take care of itself."

Last season, the man who loves to play Beethoven on the piano turned in a classical performance while playing the full year. He finished with a franchise-record 102 receptions, set a league record with at least 10 catches, 100 yards receiving and a touchdown catch in three consecutive games and earned his first trip to the Pro Bowl. He was in such a rhythm with quarterback Philip Rivers that he never realized he was making history. Everything was coming so easily, it felt like he and Rivers were alone, tossing the ball around the park.

There will come a day when he will fully appreciate the significance of his record-setting accomplishment last year, but that time is down the road, because so much work remains. While others celebrate the 1,393 receiving yards he recorded in 2017, he essentially shrugs, because that trailed the receiving totals of Antonio Brown and Julio Jones, contemporaries who often are mentioned as the best at the position. Allen won't be satisfied until people regard him as the best in the game.

"I'm very hungry to be the best ever and be recognized by everybody," he says. "It's very important to me. That's why I play the game -- that's why I've always played the game -- to be the best no matter where I was at, no matter what I was doing."

Allen pulls up to the Greensboro home of his uncle, Maurice Harris Sr., and parks his black SUV on the gravel driveway. It is a beautiful July afternoon, not too hot or humid, with rays of sunlight filtering through outstretched tree branches. He walks to the back of the house and stops to reminisce with family and friends. He and his cousin, Maurice Harris Jr., a third-year wide receiver with the Redskins, were nearly inseparable as children, and the backyard was their playground.

On one side of the driveway is a towering tree that still bears marks where a backboard was screwed into its trunk so the boys could play basketball. On the other side is the spot where a 4-foot-deep pool has been cemented over. Allen once tried a quasi-high dive into the water, only to catch the edge of the pool, leaving a scar on his knee that is visible today.

And yet, the real magic for the boys took place at the bottom of the driveway, around a line of trees and up a slight embankment. There, a field as big as any young boy's dream stretches 400 yards long and 100 yards wide. As a 5-year-old, Allen and Harris Jr. (who is a year younger) helped their parents and other siblings clear away rocks, tree roots and debris to create a wonderland that hosted family cookouts, classic-car shows and, most notably, spirited football games.

"This is where it all started," Allen says, a nostalgic smile creeping across his face.

He and Harris Jr. spent countless hours out back playing baseball and hide-and-seek. But mostly they played football, working daily to hone their skills. They perfected their spin moves by doing 360s around a tree; strengthened their legs and improved their balance by running routes in the snow; and sharpened their competitive edge by inviting over high school friends for pickup games. The most memorable featured 15 players to a side. There were no pads, no helmets, and no regard for personality safety. Participants walked away with bruised bodies and egos.

"We're competitive," Allen says, "Once somebody starts talking junk, we're trying to kill him the next play."

If Allen was devastating in the backyard, he was athletically lethal on high school fields, tallying an incredible 53 touchdowns as a senior. Before enrolling at Northern Guilford in Greensboro, which opened its doors prior to his junior year, he made one request of coach Johnny Roscoe: to stay on the field at all times. Roscoe assured him that would not be a problem. He knew he had a special talent in Allen, who could play quarterback, running back, receiver, linebacker, safety, returner, punter, place-holder and, when needed, kicker.

Asking the retired coach with the country drawl to choose his favorite Allen moment is like asking a parent to choose his or her favorite child. Roscoe chuckles and pauses, then mentions the game Northern won, 6-0, when a defensive back went high and appeared to intercept a pass, only to have Allen strip him of the ball before he landed and make his way into the end zone. He also mentions a game that took place several days after Allen's grandmother died. Allen was so emotional that Roscoe wondered how he would perform. Then he watched his star turn eight touches in the first half into five touchdowns, two on punt returns.

"Eventually their coach stopped punting to him," Roscoe says. "They would line up like for an extra point and just kick it out of bounds."

He also mentions a game in which quarterback Rocco Scarfone, one of Allen's best friends, threw a hitch pass near the goal line. When a defender came up and lowered his head for the tackle, Allen leapt over him and -- in mid-air -- struck a Heisman pose. "He was a showman," says Roscoe, who quickly points out that Allen was also a workaholic. He would study highlights of pro receivers and then stay long after practice to try to replicate the moves. When Roscoe would have the quarterbacks over to his home for film study early in the week, Allen would be sitting right there, as well, ensuring he was on the same page with them.

His dominance wasn't limited to offense. During a three-game stretch as a senior, he graded out above 60 at safety. The significance? In the nearly 25 years that Roscoe had utilized his grading scale, no player had ever scored that high in a single game. Rivals.com ranked Allen as the No. 1 safety in the country and the fifth-best prospect overall in the Class of 2010, and he was prepared to play defense in college -- until he participated in the U.S. Army All-American Bowl.

"I played all safety in the game, and it was just miserable watching the offense and not [being involved]," he says. "I was like, 'Nah, I can't do that.' I'd rather watch the defense get killed and me go off [on offense] than be on defense just waiting to make a play."

He initially committed to Alabama but switched to Cal after his older brother, Zach Maynard, a quarterback, transferred to Berkeley from Buffalo. The two are extremely close, along with middle brother Durel Lang. So tight that when Zach transferred to Cal, Keenan followed him, and cousin Maurice Harris Jr. came soon after.

The plan for Allen was to spend three years at Cal, then make the jump to the NFL as a first-round draft pick. Everything appeared to be on schedule after stellar freshman and sophomore seasons, but a knee injury caused him to miss the final three games of his junior year. He was not fully healed when pro scouts came around in the offseason, but he ran for them anyway, clocking a pedestrian 4.71-second 40-yard dash. Predictably, he fell out of the first round. Unpredictably, he lasted until the third round, where the then-San Diego Chargers selected him with the 76th overall pick.

It was humbling and embarrassing, as well as motivating. But would that translate into success on the next level?

Go to the Chargers' website and click on Allen's bio. Scroll down to his rookie season, and you will find highlights from every game that year, except the season opener against the Texans. There is no mention of it, because -- despite suiting up -- he did not play a single snap.

The guy who had always been the best player on his team -- if not the best player on the field -- the guy who requested to never come off the field in high school ... never saw it in his pro debut. Even worse, the Monday night game was in prime time on national television. The snub hurt and angered Allen. As he left Qualcomm Stadium in San Diego after the 31-28 loss to Houston, he was leaning toward quitting football to pursue a music career.

Singing has been a passion of his seemingly from the first time he heard a tune. He sang in the choir in high school and mastered the lyrics of Disney songs as efficiently as he mastered his playbook. He also loved instruments and taught himself to play the piano over a single weekend by watching YouTube tutorials.

"It was just like in football, where he would look at a route one or two times and then go out and run it," says Scarfone. "He would watch the tutorials a couple of times on a laptop upstairs, then run down to the living room in our house and copy it on our baby grand. He also loved to sing. I have hundreds of hours of him singing Chris Brown songs on my computer. He thinks he's a better singer than football player."

When Allen woke the morning after not playing, he was angrier than he had been when he went to bed. He got in his car and drove to the training facility but could not bring himself to go into the building. He picked up his phone and called his mom.

"I don't want to play no more," he told his mother. "They're not giving me my fair shot. I feel like I'm better than some of these guys, and [receivers coach Fred Graves is] not gonna play me. So, I'm done."

"No," she replied. "You've been working way too hard for this. This is where you want to be. This is what it is. You just gotta be patient and let God work."

He eventually decided to go inside the Chargers facility, and when Malcom Floyd went down with an injury on the Chargers' first play of the second half that week in Philadelphia, Allen finally had his chance, although he initially failed to realize just how significant the moment was. He thought Graves was going to put him in the slot, which meant he would only play in three-receiver sets. But Graves put him outside at the X, which meant he was assuming the role of No. 1 receiver for good.

"You're the guy," Graves said. "It's time to go."

"OK, bet," Allen said. "I'm ready to go."

Two plays later, with the Chargers facing a third-and-8 from their 22, Allen fought off tight coverage from veteran cornerback Cary Williams to make a diving catch for 18 yards. The play was noteworthy not only because of what happened during it, but also what took place after.

"I got up talking junk," Allen says.

The chatter is part of his game. "When I get out there, I'm confident, I'm comfortable, and I'm gonna let you know about it, too," he says.

Defensive backs might have a hard time believing this, but on a summer afternoon two months ago, Allen was at a loss for words. I asked him to pretend I was a cornerback lined up opposite him. What type of bold slander would he direct at me?

Allen leaned back on an oversized couch and, as he often does, silently stroked his beard. He seemed slightly embarrassed.

"That's the thing, we gotta be on the field for that," he said. "It just comes then, because that's Slayer talking. That's the alter ego I can just tap in to. But I'm not like that off the field."

Out of uniform, he is a man of limited words around those he doesn't know. He often will act like he's not paying attention, but he's taking in everything. Teammates did not know how to read him when he first joined the team. Ditto some coaches who mistook his persona for indifference or a lack of love for football.

"If you're just meeting him and have 30 minutes with him, the first 10 are going to be like talking to the wall," says former major league pitcher and baseball executive Dave Stewart, whose son and nephew are good friends with Allen. "After that, after he gets a feel for who you are, if he's comfortable with you, he's going to show you who he is. He will fill the room with laughter."

Says Scarfone: "He's a guy who'll do things for you even if it makes him uncomfortable. In high school, my little cousin went to school with us, and she was infatuated with Keenan. He was a senior; she was a freshman. He was the BMOC; and, again, she was a freshman. Well, my aunt had this idea about having him pop out of a cake and sing Happy Birthday to her because he loved to sing. I knew it would make him uncomfortable; he was pretty reserved at the time. But he agreed, got there early and hid in the cake. Then he popped out and started singing to her. It made her year."

Now 26, Allen spends most of his time away from the field with his two young daughters and fiancée, who is expecting their third child. Family is everything to him. He grew up surrounded by enough aunts, uncles and cousins to fill entire bleacher sections on Friday nights in the fall.

When he needs an escape, he finds it in music. He had not played the piano in a while this past summer when he took a seat behind the baby grand in Scarfone's home. He rubbed his hands together, stretched his fingers and then found his comfort zone by playing Beethoven's "Fur Elise."

"Music puts me in a happy place," he says. "I don't know why, but I could go to the bathroom, go take a shower, and just sing my life away; be in there for a whole 16 songs and be comfortable. The harmony in a choir is so beautiful."

In many ways, he is a young man with an old soul. He will listen to rap and hip hop, but his genre of choice is R&B. The mellower, the better. Check his playlist before games and you're likely to find Usher, Tank and Chris Brown, not necessarily something befitting someone who goes by Slayer.

"It's just the calm before the storm," he says. "I don't get juiced up by the rap. I just can't do it. It's too much yelling and too much screaming. I'd rather just have my cool little vibe."

But once the game starts, mellow gives way to mania. It's the competition that drives him, the opportunity to test his best against yours. His footwork is among the best in the game, allowing him to keep defensive backs guessing and to get in and out of cuts before an opponent can react. He is about quick bursts, not long speed.

"He can juke out somebody in a phone booth," Scarfone says.

Future Hall of Fame receiver Larry Fitzgerald was among the players that Allen used to study while in high school. Now it is Fitzgerald who takes note of his younger counterpart.

"I have watched him closely since coming out of Cal," the Cardinals star says. "I was always impressed by how well he moves for a man his size. He's virtually unstoppable versus press coverage, with his ability to change direction at the line of scrimmage. He gets in and out of his breaks with wonderful precision. He can high point the ball in 50/50 situations and can make plays with his feet once the ball is in his hands after the catch."

Allen contends we have seen only half of what he has to offer. This was the first offseason since the offseason following his rookie year that he did not have to rehab some sort of injury, and he took advantage by focusing on details, like using his footwork to beat press coverage off the line or making each of his routes look the same to cornerbacks. Trainer Steve Calhoun regularly put him through drills to simulate every movement he might need to make in a route, all the better to make it second nature once the game begins.

He does the mental work Monday through Saturday so he can let his body take over on Sunday. "Once I touch the football field, I don't feel like I can be touched, and it just comes from the repetition of me putting in the work," he says. "When I play, it's just instinct. I don't have to think too much, I'm just out there playing my game."

Allen entered the season as one of only six players to average at least six catches and 70 yards receiving (minimum 100 receptions) since 2013 -- averages he has almost identically maintained through the early portion of the current season, despite an off game on Sunday (three catches, 44 yards) against the hometown-rival Rams. The others were Brown, Jones, Odell Beckham Jr., Michael Thomas and Demaryius Thomas. On the one hand, it's a compliment, because he is in elite company; on the other, it is an affront, because he is surrounded by others. That never sits well with a man who wants to stand alone.

"Keenan is his own man," says Maynard. "Everybody has his own legacy, and his was destined to be football. It's been that way since an early age. He's just been gifted. He's special. From the moment our dad told him it's a man's sport, Keenan has been Keenan. The Slayer. That will be his legacy."

24 Hours ... With Melvin Gordon on Game Day

By Robert Klemko
Sports Illustrated

IRVINE, Calif. — The first thing you notice when Melvin Gordon III emerges from his hotel room at the Marriott here in Orange County, where the Chargers stay on the night before home games, is the fan. It's 8:10 a.m. Gordon's Chargers and the 49ers are kicking off in a little more than five hours, and the Pro Bowl running back is lugging a hefty black electric fan with his overnight bag. "I can't sleep without it," he says. That goes back to his college days at Wisconsin, where he was a Heisman runner-up in 2014, before becoming the 15th overall pick in the 2015 draft.

Over his first two seasons Gordon established himself as one of the premier backs in the NFL. Then the Chargers moved north, to Costa Mesa for practice, and to Carson, Calif., in the south Los Angeles suburbs, for games. Each of those game-day trips to Carson, 30-some miles up the 405, in somehow heavy traffic for a Sunday morning, is the beginning of what Gordon considers—potentially—his final day in the NFL. "You've gotta put your best foot forward because you never know if it's gonna be your last one," he says as he waits for a valet driver to return his Range Rover to the Marriott driveway. "Can't have no regrets."

Leave nothing to chance (or as little as possible). That means following roughly the same routine every Sunday and leaving ample time for thorough pregame preparation. Like a number of NFL players on a game weekend, Gordon is all about ritual. This is his.

Saturday, September 29
8 p.m. PT

Gordon spends the evening after dinner cramming for tomorrow's test. On film he reviews his blocking assignments, the rushing plays he'll carry out, and the facet of the game that sets him apart: the route-running. Only four running backs in the NFL have more catches this season than Gordon (28 in five games), and he leads the field in yards per catch (9.3). Saturday nights are for visualization: "The night before you kind of see yourself being in that moment, and then when you wake up you get into that zone," he says. "Everything from that point is really a buildup to that first play."

Sunday
8:15 a.m.

Gordon eats a quick and quiet breakfast with a handful of teammates at the hotel, then gets in his car to drive home, to a high-rise apartment where his father is waiting. Like his son, Melvin Gordon II has his hair twisted in tightly-coiled dreadlocks and wrapped in a bun high and to the right, and like his son he wears a gold chain around his neck. He's quick to remind Melvin III where the talent comes from. Big Bo, as he's nicknamed, is especially proud today.

"You know, when you play football that's not really you out there," says Big Bo.

"Who is it?" replies Lil Bo, knowing the answer before his father says it.

"That's me," Big Bo says. "You just borrowin' me real quick."

"You sound crazy right now," Lil Bo says.

Father and son exchange game tickets and hugs, and Gordon is on the road to Carson. Soon enough, traffic slows to a crawl, and Gordon begins to calculate just how much of his game day he spends in his Range Rover. It's a time for meditation, to get lost in the hip hop bellowing through the speakers—it's not a time for brake lights. "I don't really like this area too much, to be honest. I loved San Diego. It was my kind of energy, my kind of vibe. It was a perfect place for me. Everything was perfect."

His father and mother moved here, from Wisconsin to the maze of highways and commercial parks 40 minutes south of L.A. proper, to be closer to Melvin. They don't much like the area either. Still, having mom and dad nearby is something of an emotional anchor for the 25-year-old from Kenosha. Both had been integral in his day-to-day upbringing through high school, with dad playing a critical role in his son decommitting from Iowa and attending Wisconsin. (Melvin III says his father didn't talk to him for two weeks when he made his initial decision, though he spoke with the coaches at Wisconsin daily.)

A year and some change into Melvin's time at Wisconsin, in March 2012, his father was sentenced to 10 years in prison for cocaine trafficking. He wound up serving nearly five years, and was released in December 2016, finally able to see his son play football again, in the flesh. Gordon, when interviewed last year about his father's return, expressed no ill will; he was grateful for his father providing for the family. "When my dad got out of jail it felt good to have him there," Melvin says. "It was like old times. It's good to know that you've got both parents there supporting you, when that's how it was at the start."

Melvin's grandfather was responsible for fathering 28 children, the Gordons say, which meant Melvin was part of a small army of cousins, most of them outstanding youth athletes in Wisconsin and Illinois. Only Melvin, though, in the middle of the pack in terms of age, made it to Division I athletics. "Whether it was girls or partying or whatever, they got kind of sidetracked, so I separated myself, because I knew this was my way out," he says. "I tell my younger cousins, it's easy to get sidetracked. I tell my little cousins, you've got to be mentally tough. What you're going through now is nothing compared to what you're going to experience in the league. I just didn't want to struggle, man."

StubHub Center
Carson, Calif.

This is typically earlier than Gordon arrives for a 1:25 p.m. start, but a week earlier he showed up at this time for the Rams game and went for 80 yards and a touchdown on 15 carries. So he's rolling with the change of pace. A golf cart brings him from his car to a security checkpoint about 75 yards away, where they inspect his black leather satchel and wave a wand up and down his all-black slacks and form-fitting tucked-in tee combo. He'll pull a Wisconsin Badgers visor out of the satchel and wear it for pregame warmups, eliciting a promise of a fine from an NFL uniform inspector standing by. The visor is lucky for him, though, and Gordon keeps it on. Another ritual: Gordon goes through his receiving route tree alone, with Chargers assistant Mark Ridgley throwing him the ball. Ridgley moved from running backs to the offensive line this season, but the tradition begun last season remains.

After the fighter jet flyover and the national anthem, it's time for football. Bo, Carmen (Melvin's mom) and Kenzel Doe, a former Wisconsin teammate and one of Melvin's closest friends, settle into a small luxury box with their hosts, Melvin Ingram's mother, wife and son. Ingram, the Pro Bowl defensive end, was the first to take Gordon under his wing when he entered the league. While the others sit in the stadium seats outside the box, Big Bo sits inside, across from the catered stack of mini bacon cheeseburgers and hot dogs, and pulls out his phone. In videos that won't soon be deleted, 10-year-old Melvin weaves between would-be tacklers on his way to the end zone, ill-fitting shoulder and hip pads flapping all around him.

Bo isn't keen on talking about his time in prisons in Illinois and Minnesota and the consequences of his conviction; he'd like to leave those stories in the past, or otherwise save them for his nascent book idea.

"I did my time and came home to something beautiful," he says. "Everybody makes mistakes in life. Nobody's perfect, so I'm leaving the bad behind. It still seems like a dream, because it takes a lot of work to get here. It doesn't happen for everybody. My son is the only one who made it through, because me and my wife exposed him to the right things at the right time. It's not just about being good. Its about getting noticed and getting your kid out there for the world to see."

1:30 p.m.

The Niners get the scoring started with a pick-six by Antone Exum Jr., who jumps on an overthrown ball in the flat and takes Philip Rivers' pass 32 yards for the score. Late in the second quarter, down 17-12 after a missed extra point, Chargers coach Anthony Lynn chooses to go for two. Rivers in the huddle changes up the play call, amending a Gordon diagonal route to Rivers' right to a sprint to the left flat. Gordon makes the catch, makes a man miss with an inside cut at the 1 and is in standing for the conversion.

"Phil freestyled that," Gordon says later. "I was supposed to run a whole different route. Phil moved me to the left side and said, 'Just run a swing.' He does that every once in a while. That's why he's fire."

After being contained in the first half, Gordon lights up the second, dodging, bruising and spinning his way to one of the most impressive 13-yard runs you'll ever see, three plays into Los Angeles' first possession of the third quarter. Three plays later on 3rd-and-four from the Niners 6, Gordon splits out wide, and takes Rivers' pass in for a touchdown to put the Chargers up 23-17. On the next drive, with the Chargers at the San Francisco 10, Rivers finds Gordon again in the right flat, but this time Gordon spins into contact and fumbles, only his second since 2017. Though the Chargers retain possession, Gordon still owes $300 in cash to his position room for a fumble in the red zone. "I can't believe I fumbled," he says later. "I'm so pissed about that."

4:25 p.m.

Up 29-27 with 6:50 left and the ball at midfield, Rivers hands to Gordon on a perfectly blocked counter right that sends Gordon sprinting down the home sideline. At 11 yards, Niners linebacker Fred Warner meets him with a hard shoulder that delivers a shock through Gordon's left shoulder. Someone on the sideline notices Gordon grimacing in pain from the stinger and brings him to the medical tent on the sideline, out of the public view.

"They tested me for a concussion," Gordon says. "What game did you play? Who did you play? Did you win? I'm like man, if you don't undo this strap so I can loosen this shoulder up …

"It's just a little stinger. Get 'em every once in a while if you get hit in the right spot. Just shake it off, take a couple plays off. I was just hoping ain't nothing bad happened, because I didn't get to finish the drive. Those are the types of games where the team needs you to finish, so I was a little upset about that, but I have faith in Austin."

Austin Ekeler, Gordon's backup, doesn't get the first down three plays later on third and 2, but Gordon doesn't need to wait long to see if his absence might have changed the outcome; Niners QB C.J. Beathard throws an interception three plays into the would-be game winning drive. The Chargers win improves their record to 2-2 heading into Week 5.

In the locker room, Gordon is one of the players surrounded by a media scrum, with print and television reporters jockeying for position. With a season-high 104 yards on the ground and a receiving touchdown, Gordon's a hot commodity.

Talk about your whole game.

Talk about your play as a receiver this season.

Speak of the grit of this team.

Gordon talks about all of it: "We can't wait for something bad to happen to be special. We've got to come out the gate like that."

5:15 p.m.

It's time for Mom's debrief, and Carmen Gordon wants to know why her son keeps trying to hurdle opponents. "Why do you keep going up like that?! You scare me," she says. "How do you feel? Do your knees hurt?

"You had a good game, hear? I'm proud of you!"

He's fine, he assures her, but he doesn't plan on driving home. He reveals that he changed his shoes at halftime, from a newer model to the sort he wore at Wisconsin when he rushed for 29 touchdowns as a senior: "Had to put on the thunderbirds!" he exclaims to laughter from the group.

Doe takes the wheel while Melvin sits in the front seat and pulls up Twitter. Before long he's searched his own name and is scrolling through the top results. He says he only does this when he's played well. "Good games only," he says. "It's just funny what people say about fantasy."

"Zeke [Elliott] went crazy today."

"134 and three tuddies? Alvin Kamara going crazy. Makes my game look weak."

"Saints ain't jokin'! They're low-key nice."

"Christian McCaffrey went for 184," Gordon continues.

"184?" Doe asks.

"One-eighty-FOE," Gordon stresses. "Not playin' no games."

"Sony Michel had 112 and a touchdown. They said we're not finna' be 1-3, not with Tom Brady."

Khalil Mack, Gordon says, notched yet another strip sack for the Bears after being traded by the Raiders, out of the AFC West. "This man crazy, bro," Gordon says of Mack. "I'm so happy he's gone. Get him outta here, bruh."

6:45 p.m.

The NFL news consumption doesn't stop; now back at the apartment, Gordon turns on the television to see Adam Schefter discussing Le'Veon Bell's ongoing contract discord in Pittsburgh, and what it could cost for another team to fetch Bell in a trade. Over Chinese takeout picked up by mom and dad, Bo asks Melvin if he thinks Bell is coming back to play under his current deal. "No," Gordon says. Bo asks: "You think he's gonna stay out for a year?"

"Yes, sir," Melvin says. "And I would too. Come back and get hurt—why? Gave up everything he had for five, six years, and y'all can't pay the man?"

(Gordon's own rookie contract was four years and $10.67 million. Last spring the Chargers picked up his fifth-year option, and he's scheduled to make $5.6 million in 2019.)

The Chargers' digital staff uploads the all-22 film from the game, accessible on every player's tablet, about two days before NFL Game Pass subscribers have access. Gordon, who has been refreshing the upload feed while eating and watching Sunday night Ravens-Steelers game, takes a seat at the kitchen island and huddles with his father to watch the film. The viewing session is full of self-critiques, visions of yards left on the field and could-have-been big plays. "Oh my gosh, I wanted to take an inside move on him, and I thought, he's playing me to protect the inside!" Gordon yells. "I was too far outside of him."

He plops down on the coach, with Mom, Dad and Kenzel. There were visions of a late-night trip to meet teammates at a nightclub in Los Angeles, but those plans were scrapped when the leg soreness kicked in. They'll watch the Sunday night game, with doses of nuanced commentary from Carmen ("Flacco stay trippin'!"). Before Gordon puts compression sleeves on his legs to keep any swelling down, he remarks at how silly it must look, the whole family stuffed onto one

Chargers’ Melvin Gordon, Austin Ekeler flip the script on running back tandems

By Sam Fortier
The Athletic
September 21, 2018

The first play was a pass to running back Austin Ekeler, the second was a run for him. Melvin Gordon rushed once, then again and, after a quick throw to Mike Williams to convert a third down, the Chargers went back to Gordon, who rushed 20 yards for a touchdown. Between that drive and the next, Los Angeles went to its two-headed monster out of the backfield on nine of 11 plays.

Against the Buffalo Bills last Sunday, the Chargers put the smaller, speedier Ekeler in space with jet sweeps and end-arounds and passes in the flat. With the bigger, bulkier Gordon, they gave him more one-on-one opportunities, power runs between the tackles and delay routes out of the backfield.

A few days earlier, running backs coach Alfredo Roberts said the team favors Gordon in running situations and Ekeler in passing situations, but that they want to sometimes flip that philosophy to prevent defenses from reading plays with personnel tells. In Buffalo, the Chargers committed to the role reversal. Ekeler led the team in carries (11) and Gordon finished tied for the lead in catches (six).

That split speaks to the Chargers’ confidence in their two Swiss Army knives and their attitude toward how they’re used.

“We love that both guys are able to be productive,” Roberts said. “They strive to be complete [backs], but the [situational needs of the] game kind of forces them to [play differently every week]. The game picks them.”

By the end of the win over the Bills, Ekeler or Gordon had gotten the ball on 30 of 56 plays (54 percent), not too far off from their usage in the season opener against Kansas City (46 percent). Coach Anthony Lynn, a six-year NFL running back, was skeptical the deployment of running backs as all-around offensive threats was a league-wide trend — “It could be game-to-game,” he said — but he emphasized to the players that they shouldn’t view their workloads in carries or catches. Think touches, he said.

Now, Lynn and the Chargers (1-1) need to devise ways to utilize Gordon and Ekeler against the stout defense of the Rams (2-0) at the Coliseum on Sunday.

“Those two running backs they have, certainly both of them together, I think have over 200 yards per game,” Rams defensive coordinator Wade Phillips said. “… We’ve got a big challenge [ahead of us].”

Chargers quarterback Philip Rivers thinks the versatility of Gordon and Ekeler makes them especially difficult for defenses to prepare for them.

“I’m telling you,” he said after the Buffalo game. “The two of these guys, they can be [something else]. They’re dynamic guys. The way they catch it, run it, and the way that they’re different. They’re not the same. … There’s no telling how many plays we can run with those two on the field together.”

Lynn likes the running back tandem because of their diverse skill sets and his luxury to keep a fresh runner on the field and not “wear one guy out.” Offensive coordinator Ken Whisenhunt likes it because of the way defenses are challenged, which he saw the rewards of Sunday when an early play-action fake resulted in a long pass to tight end Virgil Green. From then on, play action often froze the Buffalo linebacking corps.

Roberts, the man coaching the tandem every day, started working with running backs last year for the first time since 1999, when he was on the first staff at Florida Atlantic. A five-year NFL tight end starting in the late 80s, Roberts coached the position he played for 15 years until he switched to running backs in a reunion with Lynn, whom he first worked with in Jacksonville and from whom he learned the intricacies of running back. Roberts’ position meeting vibe is lax — “I don’t want to scream at a guy unless I’m really trying to get your attention,” he said — but it’s also focused. He knows what he has in the pair of backs. Ekeler, a former undrafted free agent, entered this season intent on expanding and solidifying his role; Gordon, in a contract year, prioritized injury prevention in his training regiment this offseason.

“We know Melvin’s the leader,” Roberts said. “And we understand Austin’s a young, up-and-coming player who is beginning to have a major role.”

To maximize their potential, Roberts established goals this season that, after ball security (which tops every list), emphasized improving their moves in space and extending their runs. To gets reps for the latter, Roberts had his players juke the bag, throw stiff-arms and lower their shoulders.

“We can get what’s blocked,” Roberts remembered telling them. “We can get the two or three [yards] after contact. But what happens when we’re in space, or what happens when we find ourselves in a 1-on-1 situation? Can we win that matchup?”

Ekeler said the entire unit practices evasion in space while using “whatever moves work,” and then the group reviews the tape afterward. The running backs bounce ideas off each other about how to break down different defenders approaching from different angles. The other day on tape, Ekeler watched as, on screen, he ran at two approaching defenders and made a note that he might try something different than trying to run them over next time.

In the Week 1 matchup with Kansas City, Gordon and Ekeler emerged as a one-two punch. Even though the Chargers lost, they moved the ball steadily when it was in either of their hands. When asked about the complementary nature after the game, Gordon grinned.

“We’ve been doing it all camp,” he said, “and that’s what we’re going to continue to do.”

“Our name?” Ekeler replied.

“Come up with one,” Gordon said laughing, and Ekeler shook his head. The two have been linked so closely because they’re different but similarly effective, and people were starting to catch on. Ekeler couldn’t think of one right away, but he seemed to buy Gordon’s thinking.

Chargers playmaker Mike Williams seeks (and flashes) greatness

COSTA MESA, Calif. -- It is midweek during training camp. The Los Angeles Chargers are nearing the end of a practice at which many veteran starters have been given the day off. That means extra reps for those on the field. The heat is not oppressive, but it's enough to get your attention. Bodies are tired. Legs are heavy. Concentration is waning. Then Mike Williams does something that makes you forget all of that.

The second-year wide receiver tracks a pass down the sideline, soars over a cornerback who is in tight coverage and snares the ball at its highest point, leaving the defender to look helpless as Williams strides for the end zone. It is not the first time teammates have seen this movie, but the ending never gets old. They know they are seeing something special, a 6-foot-4, 220-pound talent who can beat you with his physicality, speed or athleticism -- sometimes all on the same play. The only person not impressed is Williams, who says he won't be satisfied until he's doing it in games as well as practice.

Three days later, in the Chargers' preseason game against the Seahawks, a defender has tight coverage on Williams in the corner of the end zone when Geno Smith lofts a pass high in that direction. And just as he had done in the practice, Williams soars to high-point the ball for a touchdown. Los Angeles' sideline is so excited that even defenders run to the end zone to celebrate with Williams, who suddenly appears poised to make good on the promise that led the Bolts to select him with the seventh overall pick in last year's draft.

The desire to excel was there a year ago, but back and knee injuries contributed to Williams spending more time in the training room than in the huddle. At times, he felt like an outsider in his own home, like he was in detention while everyone else was at recess. It stunted his development and contributed to him catching only 11 passes total. It also caused some fans to wonder if the Chargers had made a mistake in drafting him.

Now healthy, Williams' stock is soaring like his leap in the end zone. He made a difficult catch appear so easy that minds immediately raced with thoughts of what could be, and how the Chargers could have one of the largest and most talented receiver groups in the NFL. Williams joins 6-foot-2 Pro Bowler Keenan Allen and 6-4 threat Tyrell Williams. While each is talented in his own right, Williams' ability to effectively run every route with his combination of size, athleticism and speed draws your attention.

"I was watching Mike walk out here the other day -- I was behind him -- and I would have thought it was a speed-rush defensive end," coach Anthony Lynn says. "He's a big man when you get those pads on, and he's going to be another viable option for us. We've got Keenan, but people can double him. They can go double-double on the outside, so you're going to need another big target. I think Mike can do that. We may be in more three-wide receiver sets if he keeps coming. Right now, we're putting him in situations to make plays and he keeps making them."

A lot of credit goes to Williams himself, but an ample share belongs to receivers coach Phil McGeoghan, who has the delicate job of breaking down a high-profile young star while simultaneously building him up. McGeoghan had to bring him through the emotional strains of a difficult rookie season. He had to be firm yet gentle, demanding yet understanding. He had to keep Williams up when he might be down. That required the two of them wanting and striving for the same thing.

"When you're young, you're very defensive and a little bit entitled when you come in," McGeoghan says. "You have to tear those defense mechanisms down while building their confidence up. It's a hard thing to do for a young football player to be a really good teammate, to drop his defenses, to allow you to coach him hard but understand it's coming from a place of love. Sometimes you have to do a lot of correction initially, and until they have the right mindset and accept the coaching and aren't defensive and don't think you're just trying to tear them down without a purpose, it can be tough."

One way McGeoghan builds trust is through long conversations in the cool of a meeting room rather than the heat of the practice field. He tries to learn about each player's background and goals. He wants to know the triggers that allow him to push them in times of adversity. With Williams, the trigger was greatness.

"He said to me he wants to be great. He said that, not me," McGeoghan says. "Well, if you say that to me -- I watched Jerry Rice from the practice squad, I watched Tim Brown on the practice field and Fred Biletnikoff as a position coach (all are in the Pro Football Hall of Fame as receivers), so if it ain't that standard, then it's not good enough. And if you don't want to meet that standard and be coached that way, then don't tell me that you want to be great. Just say, I want to make the team. Or I want to play 16 games. Or I want to be on the special teams. Just be honest with me, because I'm going to be honest with you. Mike absolutely has been honest with me and himself; that's why you've seen that skyrocket trajectory that everybody sees every day and that has everybody super excited."

Williams doesn't run from his expectations. The former Clemson star and Vance, South Carolina, native wants to be great. Actually, he needs to be great.

"I feel like I've got a lot of weight on my shoulders, the whole city where I'm from," he says. "I told everybody back home that I'm doing this for everybody, not just me. My mom, my family back home, my friends -- everybody is a part of this journey who helped me get to where I am today. So I've just got to continue to support those people and keep my word. I'm coming out and getting better each day, like I told them I would, and I'm just sticking to (my goal of) being great. The sky is the limit."

It's easy to talk the talk, but McGeoghan knows there are no shortcuts. That's why he got on Williams the first day of training camp when the 23-year-old failed to give full effort during a run drill. Later that day, the two discussed the "why" behind the coach's tough love. Williams acknowledged it was because of his stated desire to be great. McGeoghan then doubled down and challenged Williams to come back the next day and go full tilt during a run drill.

"He had an unbelievable session," McGeoghan says, "and then he made a number of downfield plays that subsequently happened after his mindset was correct. It's not a coincidence that that happens in football. When you become a good teammate, all of a sudden the world starts to fall into place. If you're good at home, oftentimes you come in here with a good mindset where you can learn and grow and develop. If you're all over the place in your social life and things, then you come here and you're not going to be great. It's a total comprehensive makeover or mindset flip for a young man to become a man."

Williams does not mind being pushed. He is healthy and hungry. He knows where he wants to go and has a purpose in his stride.

"I don't think people can understand what it was like last year," he says. "They would say, 'Oh, he was a top pick, he needs to be out there or he's going to be a bust.' I'm like, Whaaaaatt? I wasn't healthy. ... But I let those things motivate me. The Chargers know what type of guy they got. The coaches know. All those people who said [something negative] are the same people saying I'm going to have a great year. So I'm just going to continue to control what I can control, and that's me coming out here every day and getting better and just doing what I can do."

No kidding, Chargers quarterback Philip Rivers made his NFL dreams come true

By Sam Farmer

Philip Rivers didn't like mayonnaise or Brussels sprouts. He wanted a younger brother and good grades. And, like so many 10-year-olds across the country, he dreamed about suiting up for an NFL team.

All that is memorialized in a yellowed school project that's framed in the basement of his parents' modest home in Decatur, Ala. The handwritten poster is entitled "All About Me…" and it's a Canton-worthy artifact, featuring the cherubic face of young Philip superimposed onto a photo of striding Minnesota Vikings star Cris Carter on a Sports Illustrated magazine cover.

Now that is a vision board.

From basement dreams to stratospheric reality, Rivers has ascended to the top of the game, last Sunday joining Brett Favre and brothers Peyton and Eli Manning as the only quarterbacks to start 200 consecutive games. He's having a tremendous season for the 6-2 Chargers, undeniably playing his way into the NFL Most Valuable Player conversation.

Although they won't be in Oakland for Sunday's game, Joan and Steve Rivers travel to several Chargers games each year and are relishing their son's 16th season in the league.

"They know it's the homestretch in a sense," Rivers said. "Hopefully, there are a handful more [seasons]. They want to see as many as they can."

Rivers, 36, and wife Tiffany were junior high sweethearts in Alabama, and have eight children. They opted to stay in San Diego when the Chargers moved north, and Philip commutes 70 miles each way to practice, in a full-outfitted SUV that allows him to study video while he's driven.

Steve and Joan gave serious thought to moving to San Diego in 2004 when Philip was a rookie. They had younger children — Stephen, 11, and Anna, 6 — and were thinking that Steve would coach high school football, as he did in Alabama and North Carolina (when Philip was at North Carolina State). But the yearning for their hometown was too strong.

"We ended up staying about six weeks, but Joan and I finally said, 'We've got to go back home,'" Steve said. "I couldn't believe the traffic. I mean, it's beautiful, wonderful, awesome, nothing bad to say. It's just different for a small-town guy. When I say traffic, I mean all lanes. I couldn't get over it. At 10 o'clock at night there was traffic. At 10 o'clock at night in Decatur, Alabama, people are watching the nightly news and getting ready for bed."

Close your eyes and listen to Steve, and he sounds almost identical to Philip. Same soft drawl. Same homespun expressions and self-effacing wit. He was a quarterback and defensive back at Mississippi State, his college career mostly derailed early because of a knee injury.

"I was maybe an above-average athlete, but I had no business being in the SEC," he said. "But Mississippi State was really low. I was doing well the spring of my sophomore year, and I tore my knee up. Back then, 1968, '69, rehab was they put a hard cast on you from the top of your leg to your toes for six weeks.

"I was fast like Philip," he said with a chuckle. "Then I got the cast on, and I was really fast like Philip."

Philip wasn't quick, but he was a quick study. He was obsessed with the game, helping his dad as a ball boy for the high school team for years before he played there. When the chain gang would come onto the field for a measurement, young Philip would wriggle his way into the officials' huddle and hold his hands apart toward the sideline to signal exactly how much was required for a first down.

"I felt like I could contribute," he said. "I felt like they really needed me to tell them if it was a foot or two feet."

A penchant for leadership surfaced early in Rivers, who used to pop to his feet at high school basketball games when he was 4 or 5 and theatrically wave his arms as if conducting the pep band.

“It’s so funny, me looking back now,” he said. “I remember asking my mom, ‘Can you be the quarterback and the drum major at halftime?’ I mean it’s like, what in the world? I wanted to go play quarterback, and I wanted to lead the band. I don’t know how old I was but I vaguely remember asking them that.”

On the field, Rivers is a traffic cop before the snap, directing teammates this way and that. He has passed for 19 touchdowns in eight games, tied for the second-highest total of his career at the midway point. Seven times Rivers has posted a passer rating of 100 or more, a personal high in the first eight games of a season.

Dozens of quarterbacks have put a good season or two together, but precious few have shown the longevity, durability and sustained excellence of Rivers. Good fortune is a part of that, and so is toughness. Rivers famously gritted through a torn ACL to keep the Chargers in the hunt at New England in the 2007 AFC championship game. It was a two-point game through three quarters before the Patriots pulled away in the fourth for a 21-12 victory.

Rivers got significantly tougher during his sophomore year of high school when, because a senior was starting at quarterback, he was moved to weakside linebacker.

“I really grew as a football player that year, definitely in the toughness department,” he said. “Even when they threw me in there, early on I was a little shocked with the contact. Not so much scared, but you’re taking on a fullback running right at you. I learned a lot. I enjoyed that.”

Rivers got a lot of his competitiveness from his mom, who flashes it even when playing board games with her grandchildren. And he figures he developed his somewhat unorthodox throwing style — he delivers the ball from all sorts of arm angles — from all those years as a ball boy for his dad.

“When I wasn’t needed to spot the ball at practice, or whatever else I was needed to do, me and the other coaches’ sons were throwing the football,” he said. “It was a varsity regular-sized ball, and I was 8 years old. The only way you could throw it was kind of lay it in your hand and kind of push it. So I think that’s where it started.”

During his freshman year at North Carolina State, Rivers was coached by Norm Chow, who contemplated tinkering with his throwing motion. Chow sent a tape of the young quarterback to a fellow passing guru, Mike Holmgren, who weighed in with an opinion.

The same might be said of Rivers’ NFL career, the one he pined for so long ago. Perfect? No. But he’s gotten where he’s supposed to be going.

Inside Philip Rivers' game within the game: Stories of mental battles

By Mike Sando

COSTA MESA, Calif. -- The Chargers and Dolphins were tied 24-24 late in their 2016 game at San Diego when Philip Rivers, having brought his team to the brink of field goal range, worked the play clock from his senior command post in the shotgun formation.

The suspense built with every tick of the clock as the Chargers' career passing leader searched for whatever answers he could pry from the Dolphins' defense. Finally, with 10 seconds left before the Chargers needed to snap the ball, network TV microphones picked up Rivers calling out a familiar audible.

Thus began a tactical battle that would span two seasons, leaving Dolphins defensive coordinator Matt Burke with a story to tell -- and an appreciation for Rivers that so many in the game share.

This 36-year-old quarterback with a league-leading 195 consecutive starts recently passed Fran Tarkenton for sixth on the NFL's all-time list for touchdown passes. Only Peyton Manning, Brett Favre, Tom Brady, Drew Brees and Dan Marino have more. Rivers ranks in the NFL's all-time top four for passer rating, yards per attempt and adjusted yards per attempt among the 26 quarterbacks with at least 5,000 career pass attempts.

Yet there is no stat representing what Rivers enjoys most about the games themselves, and what makes him so fun for opponents to play against. The tactical battles with opposing players and coaches bring special pleasure to those competing at the highest level. Especially Rivers.

"No question," said Rivers, now in his 15th season. "Beyond the camaraderie and being with the guys, my favorite part is the game within the game."

So the next time you see an exultant Rivers running along the opponent's sideline after a big play -- a "flyby," as one opposing coach put it -- remember that there's probably a reason deeper than the play's result itself. Rivers probably won the game within the game as well.

Back to that 2016 Dolphins-Chargers game in San Diego. Fourth quarter, tie score, Chargers ball, first-and-10 from the Miami 42. Game clock at 1:21 and rolling, play clock at 14 seconds. One timeout left for the Chargers.

Rivers, leaning forward in a ready position from the shotgun formation, will soon be heard making a "Mickey" call that has been a staple of his pre-snap audible game.

"Easy, easy," the broadcast audio reveals Rivers enunciating.

Rivers' teammates now know to expect the snap soon, and to listen for last-second changes. The play clock is down to 12 seconds now.

"Easy, easy ... EASY, EASY," Rivers repeats with growing urgency.

"Mickey easy," Rivers says abruptly.

"Mickey Phil! Mickey Phil!" Rivers shouts, and now it's on.

Linebacker Jelani Jenkins reacts as though he has just caught Rivers exiting the Dolphins' team hotel with their defensive game plan in a briefcase. Jenkins jumps up and down, arm raised in a desperate attempt to alert his teammates before the snap.

"Hey, watch the screen!" Jenkins screams from his position outside the offensive right tackle, maybe 7 yards away from Rivers and well within the quarterback's line of sight.

"Watch the screen! Watch the screen!"

Chaos has replaced the calm before the snap. Rivers' voice has ceded to a cacophony. Two seconds remain on the play clock. The moment of truth is near.

Rivers burns the Chargers' final timeout. He walks to the sideline knowing this battle was lost. The Dolphins were wise to the audible. One of their linebackers at the time, Donald Butler, had spent the previous five seasons with the Chargers, so he had heard all the calls from Rivers: Tiger, Mickey, Massachusetts, Chocolate ...

Both teams changed their playcalls during the timeout. Things couldn't have worked out better for the Dolphins. On the very next play, linebacker Kiko Alonso dropped into coverage and gathered Rivers' pass for a pick-six interception. This Week 10 game was all but over, but the game within the game was only beginning.

'You won't get Philip Rivers twice'

Rivers would exact some revenge when the teams played again in Week 2 of the 2017 season. The score was 3-3 in the second quarter of the rematch when Rivers, drawing upon the screen call that Jenkins sniffed out in the previous season, convinced the Dolphins he was audibling to another screen, just like last time.

"We went through the same verbiage, signaled and everything," Rivers said.

Two Miami defenders swarmed to cover a potential receiver screen at the snap, blanketing Travis Benjamin just outside the yard-line numbers. Alonso raced toward Benjamin as well. The hook was set. By the time Alonso realized his mistake, reversed course and sprinted into coverage on Keenan Allen, the receiver was 4 yards behind him and pulling away. Rivers fired a strike to Allen up the seam for a 24-yard gain to the Miami 4-yard line.

"I will never forget," said Burke, the Dolphins' defensive coordinator. "We are like, 'Watch the screen!' He hits the screen-and-go on us and does the little flyby on the sideline and it was just like, honestly, I think he relished winning that mental battle, tricking us, as much as he enjoyed having a 30-yard completion on us or whatever it was."

The Chargers would get a touchdown out of the drive.

"You won't get Philip Rivers twice," Denver Broncos coach Vance Joseph said. "He is the son of a coach and he gets it. We got him one time years ago with this pressure off the slot. The next time we played him, we ran the same pressure and the only tell was how the front was aligned. Philip checked to a screen in the slot and got a touchdown. A lot of quarterbacks, when they win, they don't even know why they beat you. Philip knows why he beat you."

'Guys just relish those moments'

Burke has a bachelor's degree in psychology from Dartmouth and a master's in education from Boston College, so we might expect him to relish these mental battles as well. He said Rivers is particularly skilled at using every available second on the play clock, knowing that the defense will usually panic before Rivers ever does.

When Burke was linebackers coach with Cincinnati in 2015, the Bengals' Vincent Rey, a Duke graduate who also embraces the mental side of the game, spent all week reminding himself what coaches had been telling him: not to let Rivers goad him into declaring the defense's alignment too long before the snap. Like Peyton Manning, Rivers can be especially dramatic at the line of scrimmage. Is he changing the play or just messing?

A big test arrived on a third-and-6 in the fourth quarter. Rivers unleashed a triple cadence with an early leg lift. Was the snap imminent? Rey resisted the temptation to adjust the defensive front to the Bengals' preferred alignment. Who would blink first? As the play clock wound down, Rivers was the one who appeared out of sorts, clapping his hands feverishly to initiate the snap. The Bengals got a sack out of the play.

"Vinny was just so excited that he was able to outlast him and hold it down where Philip was clapping and trying to get the snap," Burke said. "We get the sack and Vinny goes crazy on the sideline, running over, 'I got him! I got him!' Guys just relish those moments."

'I'm about to die a slow death'

Recently retired 11-year NFL linebacker Paul Posluszny compared the feeling to a slow death -- that moment before the ball is snapped when the defender knows the veteran quarterback across the line of scrimmage has solved the puzzle and placed the most vulnerable defender in his crosshairs.

Posluszny experienced one of those moments during a 2016 game between his Jacksonville Jaguars and Rivers' Chargers.

"We are in a zone pressure and Philip sees it based off our alignment, how the safeties are down, very small details like that -- details that him and Brady can pick up, but so few others can," Posluszny said.

The tight shot of the quarterback's face moments before the snap can be the analytical TV viewer's enemy, hiding the shifts and motions that dictate the action when play begins. In this case, the camera captured Rivers' eyes locking in on his unshown prey -- Posluszny -- like a hawk spotting a bunny in a meadow. There was no secret what play Rivers was checking into.

The Chargers' Benjamin, 175 pounds and the owner of a 4.36-second time in the 40-yard dash, aligned as the No. 3 receiver -- directly across from a certain 232-pound former Butkus Award winner.

"He starts making his checks, looks at me and makes sure nothing changes on my side," Posluszny said. "I said, 'He's coming at me. I'm about to die a slow death.'"

Rivers' pass to Benjamin gained 43 yards.

"Even if you have a super-sharp Mike linebacker like Luke Kuechly and Philip is making his check, you need to be so instantaneous to counteract that," Posluszny said. "There is not enough time to communicate it across the board unless you go to something that is so, so simple -- your base defense, Day 1 install."

Even then, it can be difficult to communicate the changes to cornerbacks who are locked into their matchups on the perimeter.

"Against other quarterbacks, maybe younger ones that don't have the command of the offense or the ability to make that check, we're fine," Posluszny said. "We are bringing a zone pressure, pressure is going to get home, plenty of time for me. But Philip sees that right away, gets the ball off in time, knows where the pressure is coming from, knows where he needs to move in the pocket for that extra split second to give him time to get the throw off. It's uncanny."

'He got it word-for-word, actually'

The Chargers and Seattle Seahawks played an epic game in the September heat of San Diego back in 2014, when Seattle was the defending Super Bowl champion. With the on-field temperature reaching 120 degrees at kickoff, Rivers completed 28 of 37 passes for 284 yards and three touchdowns with no interceptions as the Chargers won 30-21 -- one of only three times a Seahawks opponent reached 30 points from 2012 to 2014, a span of 48 games.

This game surely must have featured some advanced gamesmanship, but when I asked Seattle's Bobby Wagner for his favorite Rivers story, the All-Pro middle linebacker reached back days, not years.

"This preseason, we were running a blitz against him, we walked to the line of scrimmage and he called out our blitz," Wagner said. "He couldn't check it, so he called timeout. And he walked up and he was like, 'Y'all running such-and-such, huh?' I was like, 'Nah,' but I was thinking, 'Dang, he got it word-for-word, actually.' You see a guy at that age still putting in the work, it is impressive and inspiring."

Lessons from 19 games vs. Rivers

Derrick Johnson faced Rivers 19 times when the linebacker played for the Kansas City Chiefs, and he'll add to the total this season after signing with the Oakland Raiders. The 14th-year veteran called Rivers a master of looking off defenders, especially when tight end Antonio Gates was involved.

"That used to kill me -- I hated it," Johnson said. "Most quarterbacks, you go through a progression. He is like, 'Nope, I am going to hold you here.' He holds in the middle for a couple seconds, then keeps his shoulders right at Gates in the middle, and then he throws it outside the hash to somebody else on a curl route or some in-breaking route or even a running back on the outside."

Johnson echoed the Dolphins' Burke when he said sometimes teams will make borderline random defensive calls just to make it impossible for Rivers to decipher them.

"His knowledge of the game is out the roof, his passion for the game is unbelievable -- just a very fun guy to play against," said Johnson, who has a 9-10 career record in those 19 matchups against Rivers. "He talks a little noise. He is jawing back at you -- not cussing, but talking trash. And after the play, he is laughing with you at times."

For example?

"Honestly, he has gotten me more times than I've gotten him, but one time he was in the shotgun, there was only one linebacker in the box [Johnson] and he was checking to a run," Johnson said.

It could have been one of those slow-death experiences Posluszny described, but Johnson adjusted his alignment just enough to get a piece of the running back. What became a forgettable 2-yard run for everyone else is a lasting memory for the linebacker involved. That's the game within the game.

"If you see the film, you are saying, 'My goodness, if I didn't move over, 40-yard touchdown right there,'" Johnson said. "Right after I hit the guy, Philip Rivers said, 'Oh my goodness, you should have seen that play. That was a touchdown!'"

'There is nothing like it'

In a time of relative tumult for the NFL off the field, Rivers is a weekly reminder that the game itself can be as fun and rewarding as ever. On the field, in the moment, the emotion that animates Rivers' competitive streak has endured through nearly 200 consecutive starts and even a franchise relocation to Los Angeles.

"Philip loves the game and he loves to compete and you can tell," retired Chargers center Nick Hardwick said, "but deep down, the essence of his enjoyment on game day comes through his preparation that ends up paying off, where it was almost an 'I got you' or 'I knew it' moment, where the film matches up with the playbook, with the practice study, with what he sees in the game. That fist bump that you do after it all comes together, there is nothing like it."

It's a feeling Rivers hopes to enjoy in Week 3 when he faces a highly ranked Rams defense featuring former AFC West adversaries Wade Phillips, Marcus Peters and Aqib Talib. There are danger signs. Peters picked off Rivers four times while with Kansas City, tied for the most interceptions off Rivers by a single player. Talib has one pick in eight matchups between the two.

We'll know that game's winner Sunday.

Philip Rivers Renewed: At 36, Chargers QB Sees a Prime Chance to Seal His Legacy

COSTA MESA, Calif. — Such an interesting ball cap.

Worn and weathered, it undoubtedly has been around the Chargers longer than most of their players and coaches. Once it was deep black; now it's faded and splotched with gray. If hats could talk, it could tell some stories.

Written across the front of it is a Latin phrase. It translates to, "Now I begin."

A few years back, this was the Chargers' motto. It was on the wall of their locker room and on the chests of their players.

A priest friend of Philip Rivers introduced the idea to him long ago, and he has carried it with him since, as a quarterback and as a man. "It's a never-ending beginning," says Rivers, who wears the hat throughout his days. "You are always beginning again and again and again."

If he has just thrown a touchdown pass, he begins again, working toward the next one on the sidelines. If he has just lost a heartbreaking game, he begins again, studying the next week's opponent.

He is in his 15th NFL season, with 51,028 passing yards behind him and nowhere near as many in front of him, but he begins again, to be his best, like he did when he was a rookie.

Most people would consider this stage of Rivers' career a closure. Not Rivers.

As he prepares to match passes with young Rams quarterback Jared Goff in a battle for Los Angeles on Sunday, the concept of beginning again has never resonated more with Rivers.

"Nunc coepi," Rivers says, mixing Alabama drawl with the classical language. "I must begin again."

Beginning again isn't always easy.

It wasn't easy in 2010. After a 13-3 regular-season record, the Chargers lost 17-14 to the Jets in the first round of the playoffs at home when Nate Kaeding missed three field-goal attempts.

It wasn't easy after losing in the divisional round of the playoffs in 2007 to the Patriots. The Chargers were the top seed in the AFC after finishing the regular season 14-2. They were loaded with 11 Pro Bowlers, including the NFL's Most Valuable Player, LaDainian Tomlinson. They led for most of the game until Tom Brady led a surge that gave the Patriots a three-point lead with 1:10 left. Rivers brought the Chargers to the 36-yard line, but Kaeding missed a 54-yard field-goal attempt. The Chargers lost 24-21.

It wasn't easy in 2008 after losing the AFC Championship Game. Rivers tore his ACL in the divisional playoff game and had a hush-hush arthroscopic surgery between games. He put a brace on his leg and went out and threw 37 passes, leading a team of wounded warriors in one of the most courageous performances in NFL history. The Chargers scored only four field goals in a 21-12 loss to Brady's Patriots.

"Who in their right mind would be able to do what he did in that game?" says former teammate Eric Weddle, one of his best friends in football. "It tells you how much he loves the game. I don't know that I've ever been around a teammate who loves the game as much as he does."

Ask Rivers what he is most proud of in his career, and he will tell you it is that he has not missed a single start since he replaced Drew Brees as the Chargers' starter in 2006, his third season. It has been a most difficult achievement. "Sometimes his ribs would pop out the day of the game or the day before, and he'd be in the most excruciating pain," Weddle says. "He couldn't move. But he'd get it shot up and play."

The NFL record Rivers most reveres belongs to Brett Favre: 297 straight starts. With 194 straight, Rivers is fourth all-time. If he keeps it going, he will move into second place on the list next September. But with much more sand in the bottom half of his hourglass than the top, Rivers concedes the crown will remain Favre's.

Favre is one of eight quarterbacks who have thrown for more yards than Rivers. Peyton Manning's record of 71,940 yards is more than 20,000 yards away. Rivers concedes that record is out of reach as well, especially with active quarterbacks Brees, Brady, Eli Manning and Ben Roethlisberger also ahead of him.

One thing that he does not concede is out of reach is a Super Bowl ring. All the most transcendent quarterbacks of Rivers' era—Brady, Brees, Favre, both Mannings, Aaron Rodgers, Roethlisberger, Kurt Warner and Russell Wilson—have at least one.

It is the only thing missing from Rivers' bio. And as the years pass, that blank space seems to get bigger and bigger.

"It's something we talk about," says Chargers tight end Antonio Gates.

Rivers and Gates have been teammates Rivers' entire career. Gates joined the Chargers one year before Rivers and refers to Rivers as "my baby."

"It would be the stamp on his career and the stamp on my career," Gates says. "When you think about all the greats who played for a long time, you think about the ones who won a Super Bowl ring. That's why you see the fire in him. That's why you see the competitive edge and the drive he has, because that's something he still needs to fulfill."

Rivers will tell you a career is about more than a Super Bowl, though. He points to the teammates he has touched and been touched by: Gates, Weddle, Tomlinson, Kellen Clemens, Malcom Floyd, Nick Hardwick, Jacob Hester and Danny Woodhead. He will tell you he knows he has given his all, so he has nothing to regret.

He does, however, wonder how many more real chances he will have.

"It doesn't eat at me," he says. "As a competitor, it drives you. It's hard to say this without someone saying, 'Golly, he doesn't care that much.' I want to win a championship for our team, for our organization. I want us to win one bad. But do I lose sleep over it? Or would I be miserable one day if I never did it? The answer is no."

Rivers has no scars from the 2006, 2007 and 2009 seasons. He doesn't curse his luck.

He just begins. Again.

"We've had some missed opportunities when we didn't get it done when we should have," Rivers says. "But each and every year, you start new on a climb to try to get to the mountaintop. You push forward and begin again."

Rivers has never attended a Super Bowl. He hopes his first will be as a participant—in Atlanta next February.

There are those who will tell you he has an excellent chance. Analysts Dan Patrick, James Jones and Tomlinson were among many who picked the Chargers to make it to Atlanta. As of Monday, the Chargers had the ninth-best chance of winning the Super Bowl at +2000, per OddsShark.

"Shoot, I think we have a heck of an opportunity," Rivers says. "We got a chance. I like where our team is at."

He likes where he is at, too. In his past nine games, going back to last season, Rivers has a 109.6 passer rating. He has averaged 325.8 passing yards and 13.1 yards per completion in those games. He didn't throw an interception in seven of the nine games.

He will be 37 in December—an age when many quarterbacks are in a state of deterioration. But if he is declining in any way, he's hiding it well. "It doesn't seem like he's aging," Chargers offensive coordinator Ken Whisenhunt says.

Rivers' age may be showing in his demeanor more than in his abilities. He still is one of the more fiery and demonstrative quarterbacks on any given Sunday, but he has more forbearance these days. "I definitely have calmed down," he says. "The emotions have been a little tempered."

More than ever, Rivers seems like he belongs to a previous generation of players. There really isn't anyone like him in his locker room, or even in the league. He uses the word "golly." He has been vocal about his Catholic faith and belief in natural family planning (he and wife Tiffany, his high school sweetheart, have eight children, and he says more are in the plans). His wardrobe would fit in better at a square dance than at a team party.

"He has the worst fashion ever," Weddle says, laughing. "His bolo tie and the old grandpa jacket that probably cost $75. He never buys anything new other than maybe some cowboy boots. That's him. He's not into pleasing people by the way he looks. I respect that."

He looks best when it matters. When he's wearing navy, gold and white, or powder blue, gold and white, depending on the Sunday.

In the autumn of his career, Rivers isn't fighting time. He's going along with it. And he seems to be his best version of himself. "The last half of last year and the beginning of this year, there has been a steadiness, a calmness," he says. "I feel like I'm seeing things good. I'm in a good place mentally with the offense and with what we're trying to get done."

Whisenhunt's offense flatters Rivers, as it once did Warner. And the players around Rivers are bringing out his best.

Rivers has had outstanding skill position players around him before. But he believes he has more useful weapons now than ever.

"When you talk about the skill guys, there's so many," he says. "We have the speed of Travis [Benjamin] and Tyrell [Williams]. Big Mike [Williams] is coming along, doing a nice job. Keenan [Allen], look at the player he has turned into, one of the top guys in the league. We have the tight ends with Gates back in the fold and Virgil Green. The backs Austin [Ekeler] and Melvin [Gordon] complement each other so well. They're both very good runners, but they're great at catching the ball out of the backfield.

"It's such a dynamic group and a versatile group. Who knows who it's going to be any week? They can't just key in on Keenan, or key in on Melvin. That's what makes us dangerous."

If Rivers is better than ever—and so far in 2018, he has career highs in yards per game (340.0), completion percentage (73.1) and rating (119.6), with six touchdowns and only one interception—those players will have something to do with it.

"We have guys who can do multiple things for him," Whisenhunt says. "That allows him to do a lot of different things, which is right in his wheelhouse because he can process and handle all of those things. So I don't think he has been pressing to feel he has to make the play. He knows if this guy is not here, he's got this guy, or he's got that guy."

That's why Rivers feels so good this September.

Gates had been thinking that 2017 would be his last NFL season. The Chargers told him they were moving on. But Rivers texted him throughout the offseason and camp when he was sitting it out, asking him when he was coming back. Finally, he showed up the week before the season began.

He and Rivers wanted to begin again, together. "We have a chance," Gates says. "Let's make the most of it. You never know when it's your last chance. That's how I feel. And that's how he feels."

Somewhere, there is a high school football field. Maybe it's in Alabama, near Rivers' high school. Maybe it's in Southern California.

It's waiting for Rivers. It's calling him.

He has not pinpointed when he will walk away from the NFL, but within five years, he plans on being on that field with a whistle around his neck.

Rivers' oldest son, 10-year-old Gunner, is in fourth grade. He throws the ball with the same motion as his father.

It is Rivers' intent to be Gunner's coach when Gunner gets to high school. "That will give you a range right there," he says in answer to the question about how much longer he will play.

Weddle believes his friend is as excited about coaching high school as he is about playing. Rivers just says: "Brady and those guys keep talking about playing until they are 45. You don't have to worry about me being there then. I can tell you that for sure. I don't want to shut it down too early. But I'm also not into trying to go until it's too late."

Other than Gates, all of his teammates who were contemporaries are gone, most having moved to the next phases of their lives. Even his team has moved, from San Diego to L.A.

When the Chargers headed north last year, Rivers chose to remain in San Diego and commute. He is driven more than an hour each way in a $200,000 SUV/mobile office equipped with a 40-inch screen, satellite television, Wi-Fi and a refrigerator. It's one of the many ways things have changed over time.

Rivers doesn't have to be reminded that the pages of his life are turning faster than ever. His oldest daughter, Halle, is 16. Some of the quarterbacks he's opposing are much closer to her age than his. This season he's already gone against Patrick Mahomes and Josh Allen, both 22, and admired their young arms.

Other next-gen QBs he is scheduled to oppose this year are Goff (23), Jimmy Garoppolo (26), Derek Carr (27), Marcus Mariota (24) and maybe Baker Mayfield (23) and Josh Rosen (21) if they get promotions.

"I don't know that I see it as a changing of the guard," he says. "There are still a lot of us older guys that have some time left. But [Goff] is one of a bunch of young guys that are gonna be around a long time, well after I'm gone."
They're just beginning their careers. Rivers is beginning again. But this beginning is special to him.

"I like to think I haven't taken any of it for granted," he says. "But when you are on this backstretch, I've tried to appreciate it more, be more aware. The practice days, the walkthroughs, the bus rides—all those things you can't come back to. When you are getting into Year 15, you think about it. This thing is going to come to an end at some point. I think I am more grateful daily."

There is more at stake for Rivers now than a Lombardi Trophy. There also is the matter of how he will be remembered.

If he wins a Super Bowl late in his career, will he ascend to the level of John Elway in our mind's eye?

If he peters out, will he be thought of as Ken Anderson, a player with flashy statistics who many think was a cut below some others from his generation?

Perhaps the player Rivers will forever be most compared to is Eli Manning, whom the Chargers traded to the Giants for Rivers and two draft picks. Rivers' career has been better than Manning's by many measures, but not by one important one: Manning has two Super Bowl rings.

Quarterbacks are judged by rings. Rivers understands. "It comes with the position," he says. "Head coach and quarterback have a record attached to them. And I have always felt a great responsibility to help lead our team to win games, the division and ultimately the Super Bowl. We haven't been able to accomplish the latter yet. Gonna keep pushing like crazy to get to the mountaintop."

With a Super Bowl ring, Rivers would be a cinch for the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Without one, whether he has done enough is debatable.
When Rivers was a boy, he had posters on his wall of Elway, Favre, Troy Aikman, Peyton Manning, Dan Marino and Joe Montana. It would mean something for him to stand on a stage with them, wearing matching jackets. But it would not mean everything.

"I've always watched the Hall of Fame speeches," he says. "Thought about what I would talk about if I ever was up there. But I don't wake up in the morning thinking about wanting to be in the Hall of Fame. I really don't."

He is unencumbered by the weight of what we will think. He has thoughts of his own.

This is how Rivers wants to be remembered: "A guy that played with great passion, could be depended on…was a good teammate…and that would compete 'til the end no matter what the situation," he says.

That's all.

And with that, he is off to replace his ball cap with a helmet, to begin again.

The Mind of Philip Rivers: Explaining the Game Within the Game

By Andy Benoit
Sports Illustrated
June 21, 2018

COSTA MESA, Calif. — Philip Rivers gets out of his chair and starts gesticulating wildly, like he's at the line of scrimmage with the play clock ticking down. We're watching film on my iPad in a lounge outside the Chargers' locker room, and this isn't the first time he's vacated his seat, enthusiasm taking over.

"It's the game within the game that makes it so awesome," he says. "To me, the most fun games are where we get in the no-huddle, we get in kind of a groove and the defense has a Mike linebacker who can go no-huddle with you.

"I remember going against Sean Lee, and it was that. It was that. I checked and he would check. And it was, 'Golly! Hey, reload that.' And he would try to get to something else. That was fun. There's that back and forth and, 'Gosh, you got me here, but now I got you.' I thought he was getting to this, but he got to that.' Those types of games, when there's a guy over there who's in the same mold preparation-wise, study-wise, that's the most fun"

Rivers is in arguably the best position of his career. He's shown no sign of physical decline entering Year 15, when he'll be leading a rising Chargers team that many are picking to win the AFC West. People inside the organization say his passion and football mind are the most impressive they've ever seen, and people outside say that's why he should be regarded as at least the second best QB from that vaunted 2004 class.

We bring up a play from that game against the Cowboys, Thanksgiving 2017. It was the day's fourth snap—well before the no-huddle cat-and-mouse game ensued.

"We're running scissors with [Keenan Allen and Travis Benjamin], which is pretty simple. Dallas played a 2-high coverage with both Quarters and Cover-2 principles. Safety [Jeff Heath's] width suggested we could get Travis over the top on this thing. It was Thanksgiving so we didn't have much time to prepare. But we did talk about whether we might get this coverage. We'd get Travis running right down the middle."

"So, when we lined up, we bring in [running back] Austin Ekeler, it's kinda starting to take shape. I'm going, 'Goodness, gracious, that safety and cornerback, they're communicating. Boy, maybe we're gonna have Travis over the top of this thing.'"

"Because of that, I didn't really hate [getting flushed from the pocket and] having to move right. Certain times you go, 'Gosh, I'm gonna have to sit in here if I wanna throw to Travis on, say, a corner route.' But in this instance it's like, 'Alright, I'm gonna move with it. I think I'm gonna get it.'"

Often with Rivers, a play like this is just a byproduct of presnap preparation.

"First thing, and it's really one of my favorite things, is the protection part. Who everybody is blocking and where the pressure is coming from. Because if we can't get the ball off, it doesn't matter what you're doing out here. There wasn't a lot to this particular one." With only three defensive linemen on the field, "we had to decide, 'How do we want to treat this? Do you treat this like four downlinemen or like four downlinemen? [That decision] totally changes your calling, changes where you're zoning and where your man-blocking side and all that stuff is. So here, I go 'Oh shoot", if [LB No. 57, Damien Wilson] had No. 92 on his jersey, we wouldn't be having to communicate so much, right? (He'd just look like one of four downlinemen—pretty simple.) "But instead we had to make the call, 'Hey, 57 is down.'"

Then Rivers called running back Austin Ekeler into the formation so he could chip-block stud defensive end DeMarcus Lawrence.

I ask Rivers if a chip-block must always be built into the play as an option, or if he can just call for it once he sees things at the line of scrimmage.

"Oh, sure, you can call it yourself. I can say 'Hey, chip him and run your sneak route.' Or I may tell the tight end, 'Hey, give that defensive end a little bit on your way out.'"

It works because that tight end or running back is usually the checkdown option. It's O.K. if a checkdown receiver waits an extra second before releasing into his route because those routes only travel a short distance and don't often occur on a strict timing-and-rhythm schedule.

This understanding is part of why Rivers, along with Tom Brady, is the best checkdown passer in the NFL. That might seem small, but it's not. Checkdowns turn incompletions into gains—and sometimes substantial games.

"[Former coaches of Rivers] Cam Cameron and Norv Turner coached the heck out of that," says Rivers. "Both of them liked deep shots and chunk plays, but they always said, 'Tailback! Don't forget your tailback. Tailback!' That was ingrained in me early. It's a short throw, long run a lot of times.

"We played Baltimore a few years ago. Elvis Dumervil was there. We got to a point in the game where [running back] Danny Woodhead just made sure he was on Dumervil's side wherever he was.

"It was funny. One time, Danny came over and Dumervil went to the other side. So Danny follows him back over to that side. Dumervil says to me, 'Can I just get one?' I said, 'No, all day you're gonna get chipped!'"

For the next play, we pull up another long completion against a two-deep safety look: Keenan Allen's 50-yard catch near the end of the Week 4 Eagles game.

"Keenan's so good at these in-cuts," Rivers says. "It's just a high-low. Hunter Henry's sitting here to [occupy linebacker Jordan Hicks], then we have the shallow route coming underneath Hicks. "My eyes go on 23 [safety Rodney McLeod]. Is he gonna slough off here and make me throw the shallow route to Tyrell Williams? Or is he just driving on the in-breaking route? If he drives, you think, 'All right, I got room to lay this around him.'"

McLeod leaves his zone and drives so hard on Henry's route that he practically busts the coverage. Rivers waits and hits Allen on the wide-open in-breaker. "I like to complete these in-routes out wider than this normally. Because you're not quite sure what you got back in the secondary."

It looked like Quarters coverage (aka Cover 4), with each defensive back taking a fourth of the field, but McLeod's aggression suggests it may have been something else.

"So it's funny you say that because this coverage has gotten more popular in the last four of five years," Rivers explains. "We would call this 9-Buzz. For us, 9 means Cover 3 to the weak side." In other words, it starts out looking like Cover 4, with both safeties deep. But when the safety on the side away from the tight end rotates down, it becomes Cover 9.
"This coverage is coming in, a lot of teams are playing it," Rivers says. "Kansas City plays it, our guys play it. And it does have a Cover 4 element to it, especially if you run three vertical routes, because then McLeod is gonna stay deep to defend that. By moving, he's kind of that buzz safety as we call him. He kind of becomes a robber in there."

For the last play, I ask Rivers to choose between a deep completion to Tyrell Williams from earlier in the Eagles game or his red zone interception to safety Darian Thompson in Week 5 against the Giants.

"Oh, yeah. I threw it right to him," Rivers says. "Let's do that one."

We pull it up.

"So this is Cover 4. Going into the game we knew that they do that and it was just a matter of executing."

"We have to be aware of the backside safety [Landon Collins]. As the X-receiver [Tyrell Williams] is running the shallow, that safety now has no threat vertically. So now this safety knows, 'Gosh, I gotta help on Antonio Gates down the middle.' Whereas let's say Tyrell's running a corner route, that would hold Collins a little more. [Which means] Thompson may have to be a little more occupied by the tight end who's caught 112 career touchdowns." Rivers points to Gates and smiles. "But Thompson feels his buddy Collins coming to get Gates, so Thompson can now fall off and take Keenan Allen."

I thought maybe the linebacker carrying Gates down the middle is what freed up Thompson. "Yes, he's carrying him, but he's dead to me," Rivers says. "This Mike linebacker's dead."

You would be comfortable throwing to Gates even with that linebacker smothering him?

"Oh, yeah. Oh, yeah. High and around in the back end zone. You like your chances on that."

We see Rivers throw for Allen and Thompson intercept it.

"This is just lack of execution on my part. Right now, I should be throwing to Williams. And this is the sort of thing we talk about; after the game, [offensive coordinator] Ken Whisenhunt and Shane Steichen, our quarterback coach, we said to each other, 'We should know when the backside safety is going to push over to help inside,' and we did know.'" To prevent Collins from helping over the middle, the Chargers could have kept Williams on some sort of vertical route on Collins's side of the field.

In Rivers's mind, Collins's tendency to help inside is as much about Collins as it is the Giants' scheme. "More than 'Oh, that's Cover 4 and that's 9-Buzz, or that's that,' it's about, 'How does this guy play it?

"It's attacking specific opponents and getting a feel for their body language and their movements. Because some people will tell you 'Well, that concept wouldn't be good versus that coverage.' But you go, 'Yeah, but it's going to be good versus this GUY.' Because we know what he's seen, and he knows how we do it. So, gosh, let's set him up. Let's invite him to think, 'Here this comes. They really think they're gonna be able to throw this in here?'" Rivers smiles again. "We want you to think that."

Rayshawn Jenkins is not angry, and that is some kind of wonderful

By Jeff Pearlman
The Athletic
August 14, 2018

COSTA MESA, Calif.—When Rayshawn Jenkins was 12, he liked to walk house to house near his family's home in St. Petersburg, Fla., knock and see if anyone answered. Then, if no one did, he would lift back his leg and—BAM!—kick the door in. Young Rayshawn wasn't seeking out food or money. He wasn't trying to take someone's DVDs or CDs. He just thought it was fun. So he'd smash a door, move on to the next house, knock, smash that door. On and on.

Rayshawn also enjoyed lighting cherry bombs and throwing them through the open windows of the homes of people he didn't know. The explosions were electrifying. The screams were reaffirming. He equally dug coming up behind a stranger and smashing him (or her) in the back of the skull with an egg. Because, hey, who doesn't relish smashing people in the skull with eggs?

Mostly, Rayshawn liked fighting. No, he loved fighting. In the James Park Apartments where he grew up on the city's crime-infested south side, throwing punches was akin to breathing and walking. He'd wake every morning wondering, literally, "Who will I hit today?" And a solid 60 percent of the time, thoughts became reality.

Rayshawn punched tall kids. Short kids. Older kids. Younger kids. Bullies. Once, he ran home from a nearby basketball court to tell his mother, Terry Byrd, that two of his siblings were involved in a fight. Without so much as flinching, Terry — enraged that her boy dashed fromviolence — slipped on her sneakers and marched.

Rayshawn back to the scene. She stepped into the middle of a circle of onlookers and said, calmly but with purpose, "This is my son. He'll fight anyone here."

Rayshawn was 12 and smallish. An older kid, 13 or 14, walked to the center, fists up.

"He was much bigger," says Rayshawn. "I destroyed him."

If all this seems unusual or abnormal to you, it doesn't to Rayshawn Jenkins. Even now, sitting on the Los Angeles Chargers' practice field on a recent sunny afternoon in Southern California, the second-year free safety — as gracious and accommodating as any professional athlete you might encounter — looks dumbfounded when I mention that neither my dad nor mom ever beat the living shit out of me.

"Not with a belt?" he asks.

No.

"A paddle?"

No.

"Damn," he says.

"Damn."

This is not the Rayshawn Jenkins story that's supposed to be written.

That Rayshawn Jenkins story — the one repeatedly spun during his five years at the University of Miami, and now as a professional — is the simple-yet-fun saga of a successful football player with 17 (yes, seventeen) brothers and sisters. And, in the name of writer-reader transparency, it's the reason I initially came to Chargers camp two weeks ago, to talk to Los Angeles' gregarious defensive back about being raised in some sort of Brady Bunch carnival mirror. So I sat down across from Rayshawn and opened with, "Can you name all of your siblings in age order?"

"Of course," he replied, still wearing a blue jersey with No. 25 in white letters. Then, after a slight pause and a sip of water from a black bottle — "There's Shomira, Charles, Ashanti, Chaniece, Arkeith, me, Charlisa, Elise, Keyon, Shay, Jontae, Alexus, Jaleyah, Kevary, Ronald, Soraya, Caira and … and …. um … eh … ah … Camora! Yes, Camora!"

The stuff was irresistible, and it would be easy for a scribe to smile, nod, follow with two or three more questions ("What's your wackiest memory?"), then transition to Philip Rivers or Joey Bosa or Jenkins' development as he approaches his sophomore season with the Chargers. That's pretty much what we do in 2018 — quick tales, neatly wrapped and ribboned into tweets. That's also how the NFL likes it. No mess. Just shiny helmets and smiling faces and big men signing autographs for their loyal, decked-out-in-$40-team-T-shirt fans.

Only Rayshawn Jenkins' rags-to-riches story is messy. It's not the cute and snuggly saga of a boy growing up with his siblings in bunk beds, dressing as Warrick

Dunn for Halloween and gathering around the Christmas tree to sing "Jingle Bells" as presents are passed from adult to child.

No.

Rayshawn Sharodd Jenkins was born on Jan. 25, 1994, at Bayfront Health St. Petersburg, a stone's throw from his parents' small home on Eighth Avenue. At the time, Charles Jenkins and Terry Byrd were living together — a young, unstable, sorta-kinda-not-really-in-love couple (he was 21, she was 20) who met a few years earlier at a nightclub. Charles arrived in the relationship with three children (son Charles, daughters Ashanti and Chaniece), and Terry already had a 2-year-old daughter, Shomira. Together, they produced a son, Arkeith, a year before Rayshawn arrived. "Look, I come from a big family," says Charles, who worked as a cook at a nearby Howard Johnson's. "My mom had three kids, my dad had nine kids. It's just how it went."

The product of an African-American father and Native American mother, Terry was known for walking here to there and there to here with a pronounced chip on her shoulder. At 5-foot-7 and 212 pounds, she was a stout woman with a murderous scowl, piercing brown eyes and a hair-trigger temper. She said little but emitted a warning that silently screamed Step off. One knew not to fuck with Terry Byrd. One knew not to think of fucking with Terry Byrd. "Never," says Rayshawn. "It wouldn't end well."

Nine months after Rayshawn's birth, Terry was arrested and charged with aggravated assault with a weapon. She did no jail time, had another child with Charles (daughter Charlisa), then was sentenced to three years at the Jefferson Correctional Institution following a 1996 arrest for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon.
Though Terry declined to speak with The Athletic, her family members confirm the arrest had to do with stabbing someone with a knife. "She's crazy," says Charles.

Terry delivered the couple's fourth child, a girl named Elise, as inmate No. 548169. During the incarceration, Rayshawn's parents ended their relationship, and the children split their time living with their father and an aunt and uncle.
Then, when Terry was released on March 3, 1999, they moved with her to a small unit within James Park, a Section 8 community of approximately 150 apartments that was overrun by drugs and violence. She found a job doing telemarketing, and her five children, well …

"We lived unusual lives," says Elise.

According to Rayshawn, he and his siblings slept on the floor and survived largely on a diet of hot dogs, instant ramen and macaroni and cheese. He insists that Terry wasn't a purposefully bad mother, rather a young and immature woman on her own trying to steer her children through a rough-and-tumble world. "Mom," he insists, "did what she knew." That's why, he says, she would regularly punch, kick and whip her offspring. Elise says her mother gave her "at least" six black eyes.

Charlisa says she still has blank patches on her scalp from the swaths of hair Terry ripped out in moments of rage. In certain circumstances, Terry would have her children lie down, then — in shoes — stand on top of them. To inflict pain. "I don't care what words people rely on," says Charlisa. "It wasn't tough love. It was child abuse." Rayshawn says his mother would use one of three items to batter him and his brother and sisters — a switch, a broom or an extension cord. (Charlisa adds that, on occasion, she would also utilize the plastic rod from the window blinds.) "It wasn't like we could make the choice," he says. "She decided."

If Terry found out Rayshawn misbehaved, she liked to — he recalls — wait it out. He might come home from school, tiptoeing through the front door in anticipation of viciousness. Instead, haunting silence. Inevitably, after a few hours passed, he would slip into the bathroom for an evening shower. "Midway through Mom comes in, holding the extension cord," he says. "She's in there with the cord. You're wet, completely naked, and she's swinging away. It hurts so much more. And your skin is breaking. And she's hitting you hard."

One might think these stories are told through tears or gritted teeth. They are not. As he speaks, Rayshawn is laughing, giggling. So is Elise, now 21 and an amateur boxer. It's sort of weird and sort of confusing, and neither seems to understand the optics. "If I was hit, I deserved to be hit," Rayshawn says. "I caused it. I wasn't listening." They are basking in the sun following another Chargers practice, two young, good-looking, inquisitive and intelligent siblings spinning yarns as if they were glorious sagas of long-ago trophies and chocolate cake. Perhaps this is the byproduct of time elapsed and life working out. Perhaps, as Charlisa suggests via phone from Hampton University, where she is a senior sociology major and member of the women's basketball team, it's more suppressed memories. Whatever the case, the juxtaposition of past nightmare and modern joy is a peculiar one. "You can't let things consume you," Elise says. "We all have our histories. The best you can do is try and learn, right?"

Between the ages of 6 and 12, Rayshawn attended six elementary schools. Twice, he was kicked out for throwing desks at his teachers. A third time, he was booted for fighting. He is asked why he was so angry, and he shrugs. Literally, the braids atop his head do a slight wiggle as Rayshawn Jenkins' shoulders shrug. "It's just all I knew," he says.

Oftentimes, in the corners of James Park, he and his siblings brawled side by side with their mother. "She would hit the other mom," Rayshawn says. "We'd take out the lady's kids." On three different occasions, he and his siblings were removed from Terry's watch and moved to foster care. On three different occasions, Rayshawn Jenkins was picked up by the police for fleeing.

“We had this fantasy,” Rayshawn recalls. “There was a small fan that you’d plug into the wall. We’d put it on the back of a shopping cart and we imagined the fan would blow the shopping cart and we’d be in it. The fan would somehow blow us away.”

He was 8 when he discovered football.

Rayshawn Jenkins had moved across town to live with his dad, who could either be found working as a cook at Eckerd College, volunteering as a local football coach or procreating. By now, Charles had fathered four additional offspring (he has 14 total children by nine women), but he saw something unique in Rayshawn.

“His mom kept him isolated in the apartment, so he hadn’t done sports,” he says. “But when you put Rayshawn on a field he would run and run and run. Fast.”

Gary Roland, Charles’ former classmate at Boca Ciega High, was the head coach of the Silver Raiders, a football program for 8- to 10-year-olds in the Pinellas Youth Football League. He remembers the initial sight of little Rayshawn, scraggly and long-limbed, standing atop the grass at Coquina Key Park. Roland had his operation down — at the start of the season, before even touching a football, the kids needed to learn discipline. So he’d have them line up into a straight line, then do it again. And again. “It takes forever,” he says, laughing.
Once the task was completed, Roland ordered the youngsters to bear crawl from line to fence. And that’s when it hit him. “Rayshawn bear crawled faster than people run,” he says. “I was shocked. Shocked! I’d never seen anything like it.” Roland pulled the boy aside and asked how he learned to move with such velocity. Sixteen years later, the reply sticks with him. “My mom,” he said, “doesn’t allow us to run in the house.”

In his two years with the Silver Raiders, Rayshawn went from sports ignoramus to a bolt of electricity. He could throw the ball like a bullet. He could dash like a small Billy Sims. His hands were cushions, and he hit with pulverizing brutality. Little did Roland know, he was coaching a Who’s Who of future standouts. Along with Rayshawn, the Silver Raider roster included Shaquem and Shaquill Griffin (both now with the Seattle Seahawks), David Jones (a defensive back recently cut by the Patriots), Michael Clark (the recently retired Packers wide receiver), Isaiah Wynn (a Patriots offensive lineman) and Marquez Valdes-Scantling (a Packers wide receiver). “The team was ridiculous,” Roland says. “We were stacked.”

Jenkins didn’t merely enjoy football. He craved it, dreamed of it, lived for it. Once, in the days leading up to a game, Rayshawn got in trouble at school, and Charles gave him a choice — miss kickoff or take a butt whupping. Without so much as a pause, Rayshawn took the butt whupping. “I had to play,” he says.

When Rayshawn aged out of the Silver Raiders, he transitioned to the Lakewood Junior Spartans, another youth team also coached by Roland. The field was a place where the forbidden violence of the real world could be substituted with the approved violence of a game. No one was jumping you on a football field or whipping you with an extension cord. There were no knives or switches. On the football field, Rayshawn wasn’t fighting for a bed (as he had done at his father’s house) or apprehensively turning the corner of a street, half expecting to be punched in the face. It was a place of positive reinforcement where people (gasp!) actually cheered you. “Many of these kids just heard how bad they were — over and over,” says Roland. “That’s toxic. They needed to know they were succeeding.”

Roland regularly picked Rayshawn up for practice, then drove him home afterward. On multiple occasions, Rayshawn reached his father’s house, opened the car door and began to cry. “I love my dad,” he says. “But it was just … everything. Football was my escape from life.”

In a perfect world, Jenkins’ embrace of football would coincide with a dropoff in day-to-day violence. He did not, however, reside in a perfect world. He lived with his father for a year, then returned to James Park apartment J1 to be with his mother from ages 9 through 14. He continued to find himself fighting at the bus stop, fighting in the hallways of Riviera Middle School. Looking back, he says his biggest problem was an unwillingness to let things roll off his shoulders. Jenkins hated being reprimanded or embarrassed. He viewed both as affronts to his still-in-development manhood and routinely snapped without pause. His mother had never been one to turn the other cheek and, Elise says, “Rayshawn is a lot of our mom. That intensity.”

Perhaps that’s why he roamed the neighborhood, busting in doors. (“I still don’t understand why,” he says. “Why would you break someone’s door? I was just bad.
It’s embarrassing.”). And perhaps that explains the cherry bombs (“One time a cop caught me about to throw one,” he recalls. “He came up from behind and said, ‘Stop or I’ll taze you.’ The officer put me in the back of his car, talked to me and let me go.”). Jenkins was lashing out at a society he didn’t understand; football was the lone refuge from an ever-mounting wave of hopelessness. Though his family is one of the largest in St. Petersburg (a local newspaper once did a feature on the sheer volume of Jenkinses walking the earth), no one had ever attended college. Most failed to graduate from high school. Everywhere he looked, Rayshawn saw people either turning toward crime or standing behind the counter at a local McDonald’s, listlessly flipping burgers and filling cups with Coca-Cola. “You have to understand, we never thought there was anything after high school,” says Elise. “Because in the hood there’s nowhere to go and nobody going there.”

Then, the military called.

Military school.

In 2006, Admiral Farragut Academy, a self-professed “military style school” in St. Petersburg, hired Roland to serve as an assistant to Chris Miller, the head football coach whose teams had failed to win a game in two years. Roland says he accepted the position on the condition that he could bring some of his players with him.

They would need financial assistance, of course, and Farragut was willing.

Roland will never forget the sheer fish-out-of-water preposterousness of Jenkins’ initial visit to the sprawling campus. The school maintains an enrolled population of approximately 450 students, nearly all white. Uniforms are required. Orders are given. When Rayshawn arrived, he sported multiple tattoos and braids that hung to his mid-chest. He didn’t want to be there; sure as hell didn’t want to cut his hair (as the school would require).

And yet …

Hair reduced to a buzz cut, Rayshawn moved back in with his dad at the start of ninth grade (although Charles has fathered 14 children, the majority lived with their mothers), and the 25-minute drive to Farragut was akin to ditching a Motel 6 for the Ritz-Carlton. Jenkins had never seen anything like Farragut. Kids pulling up in Porsches and Maseratis, talking about their summer trips to London and Paris, about their internships. “I hadn’t even left the state,” he says. “I barely knew you could leave the state.” At Farragut, nobody was waiting to beat you up. Bushes and trees were manicured. Pathways were sparkling clean. On one of his first days, however, a classmate referred to him as a “n——,” and — Rayshawn being Rayshawn — he proceeded to punch the offender in the nose and knock him out. What ensued was a lengthy meeting with Jenkins, Roland and a school administrator, who said that while he empathized with Rayshawn’s plight, he couldn’t expel every student who uttered the n-word.

Hmm.

“I had been ready to go to war,” Roland recalls. “But I thought he made a great point, and the word was abolished from the school for everyone.”

For the first time, Rayshawn found himself surrounded by serious people doing serious work. While he was an eighth-grader at Riviera Middle School, a student threw another student in front of a moving bus — and it was barely news. At Farragut, teachers were supportive and engaged. Classmates had big plans — college, grad school, careers. During his sophomore year, he went on a weeklong class ski trip to Squaw Valley in California’s Sierra Nevada mountains. It was his first time on an airplane, as well as his first time on skis. Both were loves at first sight. “I’ve skied four times since,” he says. “That’s how much I liked it.”

Always known to be smart and inquisitive, Rayshawn was an A and B student. He embraced the structure and discipline. It felt special. Righteous. Before long he wasn’t merely the best athlete on campus, but one of the more popular students. It’s amazing what can happen when a young man isn’t always on guard. “One thing I can tell you is no one ever questioned his intelligence,” says Roland. “That’s a legitimately intelligent person.”

A member of the Blue Jackets’ track and football teams, Jenkins emerged as one of the region’s elite athletes. As a senior in 2011, he won state titles in the 100- and 300-meter hurdles, then was named the Tampa Bay Times’ Offensive Player of the Year. Despite missing six games with a fractured rib, he ran for 994 yards, including 714 in four playoff games. In an opening-round contest against Fort Myers Evangelical Christian, Jenkins rushed for a school-record 356 yards. He played every imaginable position — quarterback, halfback, wide receiver, defensive back — and the team reached the Class 2A state championship game.

Yet despite the success, and despite the myriad scholarship offers, he still needed … something. The pull of the streets is strong and, often, unforgiving. Jenkins wanted to succeed. But coming from a world where that wasn't defined in the clichéd terms (white-collar job, grassy yard surrounding a house, nice automobile), what did it all mean?

Then, an answer. In the late months of 2011, Jenkins received a text message from his cousin, Carl Lee Martin. Just 15 at the time, Carl was a regular participant in a basketball-and-faith outreach program at the nearby Campbell Park Recreation Center. Yet, like many in the area, he couldn't fully avoid trouble, and he had recently been charged with robbery. While the case was dropped, Martin appeared shaken. He had watched his cousin's athletic successes with tremendous pride and told Rayshawn — via DM — that his glory inspired him to aim higher.

"I still have the message in my inbox," Jenkins says. "He said he wanted to be like me. That he wanted to go to college, get out of the hood and do better. I know he meant it."

On the night of Dec. 22, Martin and five friends stole a minivan and drove it toward St. Pete Beach. En route, Demontray Lovett, 18, accidentally fired a .40-caliber handgun from the back seat and hit Martin in the torso. Police were called, and when they arrived in an alley behind 626 23rd Ave., Martin's body lay lifeless, slumped over a back seat inside the vehicle.

Upon receiving the news of his cousin's passing, Jenkins broke down. Sure, young death was something you heard about in the hood. But it had never directly impacted Rayshawn. Certainly had never touched his family.

"It's different when it happens to someone you're close with," he says. "It opens your eyes. It awakens you."

You need to meet the girlfriend.

Everyone insists on this. Meet the girlfriend, and you'll understand who the man has become. Meet the girlfriend and you'll understand the sense of tranquility.

So I met the girlfriend.

And they're right.

Emily Lillard, at first glance, seems to be everything Rayshawn Jenkins is not. Beyond the physically obvious (she's white and blonde) are the geographically and socially obvious. Namely, Lillard hails from Overland Park, Kansas (motto: "Above and Beyond, by Design"), and was raised by parents who expected their daughter to attend college, just as they had. "If you don't graduate, it's weird to them," says Rayshawn. "It's what you do."

The two arrived at the University of Miami in 2012 — Rayshawn as a highly touted incoming freshman football player, Emily as a sophomore transfer from the University of Arkansas, where she starred as a goaltender on the women's soccer team. At first, it was a friendship. Then a close friendship. Then romance. Jenkins and Lillard bonded as athletes (Emily was one of America's top netminders in her three years as a Hurricane), as well as athletes with quick triggers. During his first two semesters at Miami, Rayshawn was assigned an anger management therapist by the coaching staff. They would meet three times per week for hour-long sessions — "Just to talk and work things out," he says. "I hated it." Like Rayshawn, Emily fought to control her temper. "I used to be a very angry person," she says.
"We needed to calm down."

They helped each other by, in large part, being there for each other. People tended to judge Rayshawn by his looks (the braids, the tattoos) and past reputation.

They saw him on the field — punishing tackler, endless trash talk — and presumed the worst. Emily, though, believed that beyond the scowl and hardened exterior was a gentle soul itching to express himself. That impression was reinforced during never-ending dialogues. For the first time, Jenkins was trusting another person with his feelings. He could talk to Emily and not feel judged. He wasn't embarrassed in front of her. He didn't worry about being ridiculed. "Rayshawn wants to be a good person in every situation," she says. "He's actually very quiet and caring. You just had to look for it."

As had been the case at Farragut, Jenkins had to adjust to Miami. And vice versa. The Hurricanes were coached by Al Golden, and at times the staff judged their young safety to be lazy and irrational. "He was always a good kid, a smart kid," says Paul Williams, the former Miami defensive backs coach who now holds the same position at Houston. "But you have to remember, kids from the hood aren't used to the environment. They're thrown into something so new and so different. To expect them to just adjust is crazy. They need time. Rayshawn needed time."

Jenkins started 12 games at safety as a sophomore, redshirted the next year with a back injury, then morphed as a junior and senior into one of America's elite defensive backs. He wore uniform No. 26 in honor of Sean Taylor, the former Hurricanes safety who had been shot and killed in 2007, and in many ways, he played like him. Yes, Jenkins was a pulverizing hitter. But he was also the quickest study in the room. When a coach explained something once, it never had to be said again.

If one moment exemplifies the man he became, it took place in the leadup to his final year with the Hurricanes. Golden had been fired and replaced by Mark Richt, and many within the program wondered how the perceived-to-be-volatile safety would respond to new voices, new directives.

During a defensive team meeting, Ephraim Banda, the first-year safeties coach, called Jenkins out in front of the entire room. He tore into Jenkins' technique, his body language, his approach. "You need to do better!" Banda said. "I don't like what I'm seeing!"

Afterward, the safety tapped the coach on the shoulder.

"Thank you," Jenkins said, smiling. "I needed to hear that."

We are sitting by a pool at the Marriott in Irvine — the Chargers' training camp hotel. It's a gorgeous evening. Soft breeze. Palm trees billowing in the wind. Every afternoon a maid comes to clean his room. The pillow is white and soft. The television is a flat screen.

Again — Rayshawn Jenkins is eating shrimp.

He thinks about this all the time; about the journey and the improbability. "Every morning I pray," he says. "For everything that's happened."

When the Chargers used a fourth-round pick on him in the 2017 draft, many friends and family members were overcome by emotion. His dad, who never cries, cried.

His siblings, who have too few reasons to beam, beamed. The outpouring of love wasn't specifically about NFL paychecks or televised glory. No, it was about a kid from the projects of St. Petersburg defying every possible odd to make it. It was about changing the path for his 12 younger siblings, who had tangible proof that hard work and doggedness could equal success.

"He was the first to go to college, and you better believe that inspired me to go to college, too," says Charlisa, one of seven siblings who followed Rayshawn to Farragut. "I don't know how many people can fully understand what we've gone through. It was ugly. But he's rearranged the future for us."

When practices end, Jenkins heads down Southern California to a home he shares with Emily, their 2-year-old son, Ace, and a pit bull, Nike. Rayshawn, Emily says, is the most playful father you will ever see — loving and engaged and uniquely positive. "If someone is the discipliner," she laughs, "it's me."

On the one hand, Rayshawn never forgets the lessons of his childhood. The sound of an extension cord tearing into moist flesh is not an echo that fades easily. And yet, he is not haunted by the past. He talks with both of his parents semi-regularly. He holds no grudges. Doesn't even see a reason to hold a grudge.

Rayshawn Jenkins is eating shrimp and playing professional football.

He is anything but angry.

Competing is a family trait for Miami Hurricanes' Rayshawn Jenkins

By Manny Navarro

With a father who is a Hurricanes legend and two older brothers who played college football, fifth-year senior safety A.J. Highsmith knows it's not easy to grab the spotlight among a family of talented athletes.

So he doesn't envy the position teammate Rayshawn Jenkins is in. The sophomore safety out of St. Petersburg comes from a family of 16 children — more than a few of whom are budding young sports stars themselves.

“I’m pretty sure that’s where he got that hunger to compete. Being one of 16 you’ve got no choice.”

Charles Jenkins, father to Rayshawn and 12 of his other siblings, has two sons playing high school football; a daughter, Charlisa, a 6-1 sophomore forward who was among the leading scorers in Pinellas County this past season; and a 10-year-old son Kevary, who scored 30 touchdowns last season in Pop Warner football.

But Rayshawn, who once shared a room with three brothers (he said they alternated daily who would sleep on the bed and who would sleep on the floor), is the biggest family star at the moment. And once you get Mr. Jenkins talking about his fourth child, he doesn’t stop until he talks about the talents of all his children.

“My daughter is a good one — she’s going down with her AAU team to Miami. Hopefully she gets to meet [UM women’s basketball coach] Katie Meier,” said Jenkins, who runs a tattoo shop and a T-shirt business that has contracts with many of the high schools in the Tampa-St. Pete area — just enough income, he says, to feed and care for all of his kids.

“[UM offensive line coach] Art Kehoe already gave my 10-year-old his business card and told him he’d be back for him soon. He’s just like Rayshawn was growing up — a do-it-all threat and a good student, too. For me, it’s all about raising these kids, keeping them out of trouble and giving them hope.”

Rayshawn, a state champion hurdler who played offense, defense and special teams at tiny Admiral Farragut Academy when he was in high school, is the one providing the example to his siblings that with hard work dreams can come true, his father said.

After coming on late in the season last year and finishing with 27 tackles and an interception (at USF in front of his family and friends).

Jenkins, 6-1, 215 pounds, has continued to run with the first team during the spring alongside Highsmith and fellow sophomore Deon Bush and impressed coaches with his continued growth.

Jenkins, who gave up a 99-yard touchdown pass in the season-ending win over Duke because he had a miscommunication with cornerback Brandon McGee, said his goal this spring has been making sure he’s in the right spot all the time.

“I got myself better conditioned so we won’t be that team that dies out in the fourth quarter,” Jenkins said. “I’m working on breaks, getting smarter at the game. I’m glad I played last year because I really know what to expect. As far as coming out and tackling and reading certain formations, I can do that.”

Jenkins wasn’t wearing a black jersey — designated for starters/team leaders during practice Tuesday. But he and Bush have worn them at times during camp according to defensive backs coach Paul Williams, who adds “Rayshawn has got the tools, the traits, but we got to clean his game up as far as running the show, being more consistent.”

In addition to packing on 15 pounds of muscle in the offseason, Jenkins has also increased his bench press “40 to 50 pounds” and is now lifting 325 pounds regularly. He said when he and his teammates were tested with the Combine weight of 225 pounds he produced 17 reps, a vast improvement from his freshman year and currently tops among the defensive backs. Jenkins’ squat numbers have also gone up 40 pounds to 390.

Last year Jenkins ran the 40-yard dash in 4.51 seconds. Jenkins said he expects to be faster — even with the added weight — when he’s tested again after the spring.

“Very gifted raw talent,” UM coach Al Golden said of Jenkins. “He’s an explosive player that can play big.”

Jenkins also changed another number this spring — his jersey — from 29 to 26, the number once worn by the late great Sean Taylor.

“He always admired Sean Taylor and the work he put in,” Charles Jenkins said. “Rayshawn told me when that number came open this season he wanted it because he wanted to make it great again.”

Highsmith said he believes Jenkins can be special once he puts it together.

“It’s a lot to live up to,” Highsmith said of wearing Taylor’s number. “But he knows what goes into it, and I think he can hold his own. Before, you had to wonder if Rayshawn was going to be in the right spot to make the plays. Now he understands where to be and where to fit to make the play. It’s just a matter of time with him.”
