ANTONIO PIERCE

Antonio Pierce was named Head Coach of the Las Vegas Raiders by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 19, 2024. He was named to the post following a nine-game stint as the team's Interim Head Coach during the 2023 season. Pierce, a nine-year NFL veteran player and a former Super Bowl Champion, team captain and Pro Bowl selection, enters his third season with the Silver and Black after originally joining the Raiders as linebackers coach in 2022.

Pierce assumed Interim Head Coach duties prior to Week 9 of the 2023 season and posted a 5-4 record in nine games, highlighted by a 3-1 mark against AFC West opponents. Pierce's leadership rejuvenated the franchise midseason and inspired several outstanding performances, including a franchise-record 63 points in a Week 15 win over the Chargers, and an emphatic road victory over the Kansas City Chiefs on Christmas Day that featured two defensive scores for the Silver and Black.

Under his guidance, the Raiders finished the season with the fewest penalties in the NFL (75) and twice completed games without a single penalty flag. After Pierce took the helm on Oct. 31, the Raiders were tied for 10th in the NFL in takeaways (14), tied for fifth in turnover margin (+6), and tied for third in sacks (30). The defense also allowed a league-low 16.0 points per game.

His presence was felt in all three phases last season, as rookie Aidan O'Connell was named the starting quarterback prior to Week 9 and promptly led the Raiders to victories in the first two games of Pierce's tenure. The Raiders later became just one of three NFL teams to score 20-or-more points in each of the last four games of the regular season. The opportunistic defense finished the season with five touchdowns, the second-highest total in the NFL and the second most in a season in franchise history. On special teams, Pro Bowl selection AJ Cole continued to emerge as one of the NFL's elite punters and two players finished ranked among the league's top-20 in special teams tackles.

Pierce's linebacker corps was a key catalyst for the defense, as free agent acquisition Robert Spillane paced the team with 148 tackles and rarely missed a snap, starting all 17 games and earning AFC Defensive Player of the Week honors following a two-interception performance in a win over Green Bay. Divine Deablo also eclipsed the century mark for tackles, totaling 105 stops to give the Raiders two 100-tackle performers at linebacker for the first time since 2013.

In his first season with the Silver and Black in 2022, Pierce tutored a linebacker group that included two undrafted rookie free agents in Luke Masterson and Darien Butler. Masterson played in all 17 games with seven starts, and his 50 tackles ranked third-most in the NFL among undrafted rookies and second-most in a single season in Raiders history by a UDFA. Pierce also guided Deablo's progression, as he averaged 9.25 tackles per game, the 11th best average in the league, while veteran Denzel Perryman established a career high with two interceptions on the year.

Before entering the NFL coaching ranks, Pierce spent four seasons at Arizona State, serving as linebackers coach and recruiting coordinator before adding the titles of associate head coach and defensive coordinator.

Pierce played nine years in the NFL, entering the league as an undrafted free agent with Washington, and playing in 55 games with 25 starts over four seasons before signing with the New York Giants as an unrestricted free agent in 2005. He was named to the Pro Bowl in 2006 after posting a career-high 139 tackles, including 10 tackles for loss. A team captain with the Giants, Pierce helped lead New York to victory in Super Bowl XLIII. Over his nine-year career, Pierce played in 115 games with 85 starts, totaling 732 tackles (462 solo), eight sacks, seven interceptions, eight forced fumbles and 11 fumble recoveries.

JIM HARBAUGH

Harbaugh brings with him a winning culture, posting a 144-52 record as a collegiate head coach and a 49-22-1 record as an NFL head coach. In four years, he led the San Francisco 49ers to three-straight NFC Championship Games, including an appearance in Super Bowl XLVII.

With a keen eye for talent and an ability to develop players, Harbaugh coached nine eventual first-round selections over his nine-season tenure at Michigan (2015-23). Over the course of his four seasons (2011-14) with San Francisco, Harbaugh coached 17 players to a combined 30 Pro Bowl selections — the second-most Pro Bowlers in the NFL in that time. Eight of those players were also recognized as first-team All-Pro selections from The Associated Press, including linebackers Patrick Willis (twice) and NaVorro Bowman (three times).

One of the most accomplished coaches in football, Harbaugh led Michigan to an 86-25 record in his nine seasons as head coach. His teams topped 10 wins six times and made three consecutive CFP appearances from 2021-23, winning the national title this past season and setting a school record with 15 wins. Since taking over as head coach for the Wolverines in 2015, Harbaugh coached the top defense in the nation, allowing just 291.0 yards per game in that span. Michigan had a top-five defense in the country five times over those nine seasons, including twice as the top-ranked defense in the nation.

Harbaugh was named 2011 NFL Coach of the Year by The Associated Press after his first season with San Francisco when he led the 49ers to an NFC West division crown with a 13-3 record. That season, the defense led the NFL with 38 takeaways and ranked No. 1 in rushing defense, allowing just 77.3 yards per game on the ground. The team made a deep playoff run to its first of three-straight NFC Championship Game appearances, including an appearance in Super Bowl XLVII in 2012. In Harbaugh's four years with San Francisco, the 49ers led the NFL in rushing defense (92.0 yards per game), while ranking No. 2 in scoring defense (17.4 points per game), third in total defense (310.2) and fourth with 122 takeaways.

Prior to being a head coach in the NFL, Harbaugh spent four years at the helm at Stanford University (2007-10) and three at the University of San Diego (2004-06). He turned around a Stanford program that went 1-11 in 2006 and led the Cardinal to 29 wins over his four seasons in Palo Alto, Calif., including a 12-win season that culminated in an Orange Bowl victory in 2010. Harbaugh broke into the head coaching ranks at San Diego, leading the Toreros to a 29-6 record in three years.

Harbaugh began his coaching career as the quarterbacks coach for the Oakland Raiders from 2002-03. In his first season with Oakland, the Raiders went to Super Bowl XXXVII, while quarterback Rich Gannon earned MVP honors and was named a Pro Bowler and an AP first-team All-Pro.

In 15 years as an NFL quarterback (1987-2001), Harbaugh played for five organizations, including with the Chargers from 1999-2000. He got his start in coaching while he was still playing in the NFL, working as an unpaid assistant at Western Kentucky from 1994-2001, where his father, Jack, was the head coach. Harbaugh was selected with the 25th overall pick in the 1987 NFL Draft by Chicago and went on to start 140-of-177 career games played, throwing for 26,288 yards and 129 touchdowns. He led the NFL in passer rating in 1995, earning Comeback Player of the Year recognition and a Pro Bowl selection after leading the Colts to an AFC Championship Game appearance. Harbaugh eventually went to the Chargers for two seasons and is one of four Bolts quarterbacks to throw for 400 yards in a single game.

Harbaugh played quarterback at the University of Michigan, finishing his career as one of the most efficient passers in college football history. He posted a 21-3-1 record as a starter for the Wolverines, earning first-team All-American honors and finishing third in voting for the Heisman Trophy in 1986. Harbaugh paced the nation in 1985 in passing efficiency rating, while his career passing efficiency rating ranked as the best in NCAA history for more than 12 years following his time at Michigan.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders - who began play in the American Football League in 1960 - are in their 65th year of professional football competition, including the last 52 as a member of the National Football League. In seven memorable decades - the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s, 2010s and 2020s - the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three World Championships of Professional Football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 23 playoff seasons, finished 38 seasons at .500 or better and played in 45 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s. The Silver and Black are the only AFC team - and one of just two NFL teams - to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three World Championships of Professional Football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980. In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During the memorable 62 years in Oakland, Los Angeles and now Las Vegas, the Raiders won 491 league games, tied 11 and lost 447. "Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization as shown by their domination of pro football.

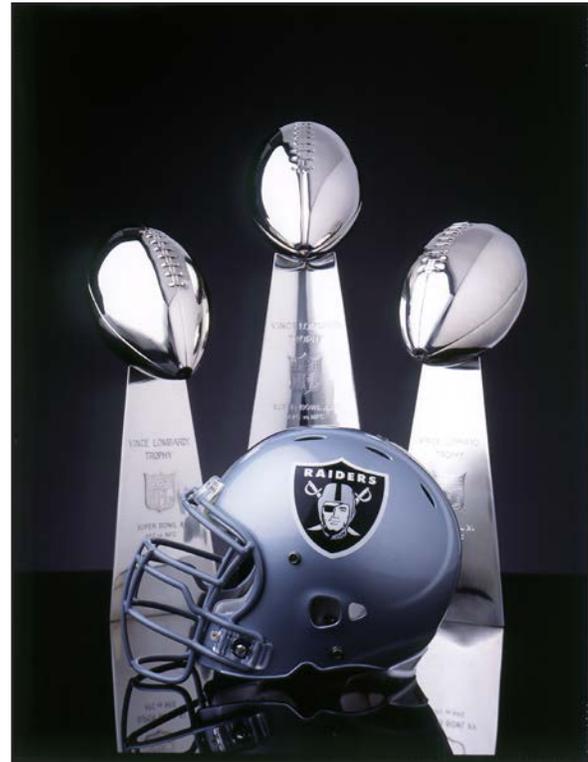

Twenty-eight of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced six Coaches of the Year. In addition, 79 Pro Bowl players have earned 211 Pro Bowl selections representing the Silver and Black.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 - Monday Night Football. The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build a 42-31-1 record in Monday night play. The Raiders won 12 games at home to begin this series and are 19-9-0 at home in the 52 years of Monday Night Football.

Through the seven decades of pro football competition, the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports. Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

In addition, the Raiders are proud to contribute to community engagement, youth initiatives, multicultural awareness, and global outreach. The Raiders played in Oakland from their inception through 1982, relocated to Los Angeles in 1983, moved back to Oakland in 1995, and made Las Vegas home in 2020.

The Raiders base training and business operations in Henderson, Nevada at Intermountain Health Performance Center and play home games at Allegiant Stadium, a fully enclosed, state-of-the-art facility located adjacent to the world-famous Las Vegas Strip. The Raiders maintain an international presence and communicate with the worldwide Raider Nation through the team's official website and social media channels.

Raiders report: Rookie linebacker states his case in preseason finale

By Adam Hill

August 23, 2024

Amari Gainer had one final chance to prove he belongs at the NFL level when the Raiders took the field for their final preseason test against the 49ers on Friday night at Allegiant Stadium.

The undrafted rookie free-agent linebacker passed with flying colors.

Gainer made 12 tackles, including 10 solo, in a 24-24 tie that came down to the final play.

While it was a solid impression to leave on the coaching staff before final roster decisions are made, Gainer didn't want to make too much of one good game.

"Every moment is important," he said. "Every time I step in the building, it's just about being my best self and being great whether that's for a game or practice or a meeting. I just have to be my best self and be the best I can be."

He was mostly exceptional throughout training camp, often drawing the unprompted praise of coach Antonio Pierce and assistants. Pierce again sung Gainer's praises Friday.

"Amari did a really good job," he said. "You got an opportunity, you make the most of it. If I was a player, I wouldn't want to get pulled right now when cuts are coming up. He stuck in there to the very end and called the defense tonight — first time he's done that as well. Just some bright spots and things he can learn from as well."

Gainer acknowledged he has heard the praise, but has tried not to make too much of it.

"We always keep the inside inside and focus on what's in front of us," he said. "Be a team. You can't let the negative or positive noise get to your head. You have to stay positive and grounded and stay in the moment. I feel like that's what helped me."

Gainer, who spent four seasons at Florida State before finishing with one season at North Carolina, believes he has proven he belongs in the NFL and is proud of his accomplishments through the process.

"I feel like I'm a great guy on and off the field," he said. "Your character takes you a long way, so I think it's just the beginning."

Just kicking it

Kicker Daniel Carlson couldn't come up with a tackle on a long kickoff return by the 49ers in the first half.

Fortunately for the Raiders, he showed he's still pretty good at kicking the ball through the uprights.

Carlson connected on a 43-yard field goal in the final minute to force the tie.

"That's exactly what you want out of a third preseason game," he said. "You want to get some reps under those kind of circumstances, and obviously you want to make that. Got that heart rate up a little and got an exciting one at the end."

What you don't want as a kicker is to be the last defender standing between a returner and the goal line on a kickoff.

Carlson experienced that when Isaac Guerendo broke loose on what ended up as a 93-yard kick return, the longest of the preseason under the NFL's new rules.

Even though he didn't bring Guerendo down and the form wasn't ideal, Carlson got his hands on the speedy back and might have slowed him just enough for Sam Webb to chase him down at the 4-yard line.

"I made him cut back, and Sam Webb made a hero play and chased him down," Carlson said. "It's preseason. (Tackling) needs some work."

Punter AJ Cole, whose locker is next to Carlson's, chimed in that the play will need a closer look in the film room.

"We'll definitely take a look at that," said Cole, laughing.

Red flag

Pierce decided to throw a challenge flag on the first possession of the game when he thought 49ers running back Jordan Mason did not have both feet inbounds on what was ruled a catch on the field.

The Raiders coach was deemed to be correct by replay officials, who overturned the call.

It was a good test of the Raiders' process for deciding when to challenge ahead of the games that count in the standings.

"A lot of things were done in the first game and second game that we're tweaking and evaluating, myself and Matt Sheldon, who handles game management and the timeouts you saw there," Pierce said. "We're trying to get that right and constantly working. Really, it's prep for everybody, for myself, everybody getting ready for the regular season."

New guy

Linebacker DeShaun White made two tackles in limited action after signing with the team this week.

White had originally signed with the Bills last season after four years at Oklahoma and played in the United Football League this season with the Michigan Panthers.

He took over the roster spot created when the team placed receiver Jeff Foreman, who was carted off the field with a major leg injury during a practice in Costa Mesa, California, on season-ending injured reserve.

3 takeaways: Starters watch as Raiders finish preseason with tie

By Vincent Bonsignore

August 23, 2024

The Raiders, as expected, sat their starters and the majority of key backups in a 24-24 tie against the 49ers in their preseason finale Friday night at Allegiant Stadium.

Daniel Carlson kicked a 43-yard field goal with 21 seconds left for the tie for the Raiders, who finished the preseason 0-2-1.

Only a handful of players who dressed have firm hands on roster spots. The vast majority are fighting for a limited amount of open spots or hoping to catch the eye of other teams by putting a good performance on film.

Of their rookie class, running back Dylan Laube, offensive tackle DJ Glaze and cornerback MJ Devonshire played. Linebacker Tommy Eichenberg and tight end Brock Bowers were injured and didn't dress. Cornerback Decamerion Richardson, in line to play a key reserve role, did not play.

The 49ers played several starters in the first half, setting up an opportunity for the Raiders' bubble players and younger ones to get quality reps.

Here are three observations from the game:

1. Big night for potential big-play prospect

Tyreik McAllister, fighting for a roster spot at wide receiver, clearly helped his cause with an 81-yard punt return for a touchdown and a 35-yard TD reception.

McAllister, who played at the University of Charleston from 2017 to 2021, is an intriguing prospect. He's too small to hold up at running back at 180 pounds, but could be an option at wide receiver.

His path to a roster spot is on special teams, where he excelled last season in the Canadian Football League by leading the CFL in kick return average as a member of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

McAllister has flashed throughout camp with his athletic ability, and it finally showed up in a game.

"It felt good to go out there and make plays," McAllister said. "Everyone knew this was going to be a big game for the guys playing, so you wanted to leave your best impression in the last game. You don't want to put too much pressure on one game, but everyone knows it was a big game for guys trying to make the roster or trying to get on the practice squad."

He first exploded through a seam en route to the first-half punt return for a touchdown.

Then, in the third quarter, he made a catch in traffic on a throw by Carter Bradley, deftly turned to lose his defender and sprinted to the end zone to put the Raiders ahead 21-17.

"I just made a play, honestly," McAllister said. "Carter put the ball up there for me, and I just made a play on the ball."

McAllister also showed ability in coverage, getting ahead of the return unit and drawing an illegal block in the back on a punt that forced the 49ers to start a second-quarter drive at their 5-yard line.

"We've been seeing it in practice," Raiders coach Antonio Pierce said. "But today, he took it to another level. Took one to the crib, a hell of a catch and an adjustment there on the reception. And then even just covering kicks. He moved the needle."

Was it enough to earn a roster spot? Maybe not the 53-man roster, but he has a chance to stick on the practice squad.

2. Mixed bag from young defensive line

In a mild surprise, the Raiders did not dress defensive end Tyree Wilson, who has struggled to find his footing after being drafted seventh overall last year.

Wilson isn't in danger of being cut, but after his rookie season was derailed by the foot injury he suffered in his last year at Texas Tech, any reps he gets seem useful. That was especially true with the 49ers playing their starters.

Instead, the Raiders rolled with several young players who needed good nights to solidify roster spots or rotational roles.

Among the highlights were first-half sacks from Matthew Butler, Byron Young and Charles Snowden, and Janarius Robinson dropping running back Jordan Mason for a 5-yard loss.

Given the Raiders' need for dependable pass-rush pressure and impact plays from their backups, it was a positive development.

On the other hand, the entire defensive line had trouble getting off blocks, which led to 77 first-half rushing yards for the 49ers. Run defense has been a constant issue throughout the preseason.

"I don't think it's good enough," Pierce said of the run defense. "That's not our standard. We don't want anybody just creasing us down the middle of the field."

3. Solid night turns sour for Laube

Just when Laube was getting untracked, disaster struck for the rookie from New Hampshire.

Laube opened eyes with his speed and athletic ability early in training camp, but waned a bit in the past few weeks. Given an opportunity to get back on track Friday, he looked good while running for 11 yards with back-to-back carries to pick up a first down.

Two plays later, he caught a pass from Nathan Peterman and raced up the sideline on what looked to be a big play — only to lose the ball on a fumble after taking a big hit.

The Raiders put him on the bench after the fumble, and his only other action in the first half was on special teams.

Laube seemed like a lock to make the roster in Costa Mesa, California. Is that still the case? We'll know Tuesday when cuts are made.

Raiders running back scores often by giving back to community

By Ed Graney

The smiles. They still get to Alexander Mattison. Still define all the good he is doing.

"It's something that keeps me going and makes everything worth it," he said. "To have the opportunity and platform to continue to do things like putting smiles on faces is not something I take lightly."

The Raiders running back was speaking Thursday at an event for his I Am Gifted foundation, a day when five local teenagers from the Agassi Boys & Girls Club were given a shopping spree at Culture Kings inside the Forum Shops at Caesars.

The afternoon emphasized the importance of strong mental health and to afford the students needed tools to manage things like stress at the beginning of a new school year.

To help them build confidence.

“The main message is that everyone is born with a gift, and they just have to find theirs and embrace it and use it to shed light into this world,” Mattison said. “I just want these kids to understand — whether it’s in sports or arts or whatever — about being passionate with their gift and to go after it 110 percent.

“Everything I do with my brand is to spread love and positivity in this world. If we can all do that, we can make this world a better place.”

Mattison signed with the Raiders in March after starting 13 games with the Vikings last season. He is a former third-round draft pick in 2019 out of Boise State. He is also an ambassador for suicide prevention.

Thursday debuted Mattison’s 2024 Rush 2 Give Tour, which he will host with various events from August through December.

Examples are gifting tickets to families for Raiders games in September and cancer awareness in October and a Salute to Service in November and The Gift of Giving in December.

“I’m proud we’re doing a lot to impact the kids and being a positive reinforcement and affirmation to let them know they’re our future,” Pearl Mattison, Alexander’s mother, said. “They are not alone. They need to know to always talk to someone they trust, to not hold things inside.

Alexander often talks openly about his own challenges with mental health while in college.

“Everything I do, everything I stand for, ties back into positive mental health with my foundation,” he said.

Tiana was one of those students selected to take part in Thursday’s event.

Mattison “is showing us what we can do to inspire others and have an awakening about the world we live in,” she said. “It’s amazing to be here and to learn from him and to see him as an example for us. It’s inspiring.”

Receiver makes big impression in Raiders' final preseason game

By Case Keefer

August 23, 2024

Antonio Pierce told the Raiders’ backups who suited up for the team’s final preseason game Friday that they should use the opportunity to show they belonged in the NFL.

Tyreik McAllister took the coach's message to heart. The 26-year-old receiver showed out against the San Francisco 49ers, keying a resilient effort that saw the Raiders eke out a 24-24 tie by virtue of a 43-yard field goal by kicker Daniel Carlson with 16 seconds to play.

McAllister scored Las Vegas' first points with a 81-yard punt return in the second quarter where he used his speed to go untouched, and hauled in 56 receiving yards off of two catches.

"It felt good just going out there and making plays," McAllister said afterward in the locker room. "Everyone knew this was going to be a big game for us, the younger guys that were playing in the game. We wanted to leave our best impression in the last game."

McAllister led the team in receiving yards until the late game-tying drive where undrafted rookie free agent receiver Ramel Keyton had a pair of long receptions to finish with four receptions for 76 yards.

McAllister and Keyton were the first two names Pierce mentioned in his post-game news conference when asked whom stood out to him.

"We've been seeing it in practice but today he took it to another level," Pierce said of McAllister, "(He) took one to the crib and (had) a hell of a catch and adjustment there on the reception...He moved the needle tonight."

McAllister's first reception was a 35-yard touchdown grab from undrafted rookie quarterback Carter Bradley in the third quarter. McAllister adjusted midair to snag the ball before cornerback Samuel Womack could get to it, and then blazed past the defender for the score to give the Raiders their first lead at 17-14.

San Francisco regained control of the game with a 10-yard touchdown pass from Josh Dobbs to Jacob Cowing on its next possession, but McAllister wasn't done. He got the Raiders into a first-and-goal situation early in the fourth quarter by securing a 21-yard deep ball from Bradley.

Las Vegas stalled at the eight-yard line from there with Bradley throwing a fourth-down interception to San Francisco cornerback Darrell Luter on a fade route to put a damper in its comeback chances.

That was one of four turnovers on the night with each team committing a pair.

Las Vegas got a takeaway from San Francisco's starting offense when third-year cornerback Sam Webb deflected a Brock Purdy pass picked off by a diving second-year safety Chris Smith, who then returned it for 31 yards.

McAllister's second catch down to the 8-yard line came right after undrafted rookie free agent safety Phalen Sanford recovered a fumble. Sanford jumped on a loose ball caused by undrafted rookie free agent cornerback Ja'Quan Sheppard ripping a pass out of 49ers running back Patrick Taylor's hands.

Those weren't the only depth defenders who had big moments against San Francisco as three defensive linemen — third-year tackle Matthew Butler, second-year tackle Byron Young and second-year edge rusher Charles Snowden — had a sack. Snowden added two more quarterback hits, and might have been the disruptive player on the field except for undrafted rookie free agent linebacker Amari Gainer who led the team with 11 tackles including one for a loss near the goal line.

Gainer, a University of North Carolina product, might be in the running for one of the Raiders' final defensive roster spots.

"It was good film," Pierce said of the game. "It was good to see those guys compete until the very end."

McAllister might be a long shot to contribute offensively this season, but he could make the team based on his special-teams prowess.

The University of Charleston (W.Va.), a Division II program, graduate was a successful kick returner in the Canadian Football League with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats last season. McAllister had originally signed with the Denver Broncos as an undrafted free agent in 2022 and served on the practice squad.

"I put the hard work in, had a lot of hard times coming from the Denver practice squad and having to go to the CFL but I believe I have the skills capable to play at this level," he said

Kristian Wilkerson and/or Jalen Guyton were expected to be the final receivers on the Raiders' initial 53-man regular-season roster, which must be submitted to the NFL by 1 p.m. Tuesday. Wilkerson played well against the 49ers with three catches for 35 yards and a touchdown while Guyton had three catches for 19 yards.

But they might both now be threatened by McAllister. Pierce and the Raiders' coaching staff utilized the shifty 5-foot-11, 180-pound receiver who played running back in college and the CFL relatively frequently throughout training camp and increased his work load in the preseason finale.

McAllister made the most of the opportunity, just as Pierce requested.

"When I first got here, they told me they wanted me to play full-time receiver and I hadn't done that since I was in college my freshman or sophomore year so it was a little difficult," he said. "You could tell...but I just continued to put my head down and grind and just get to where I'm at."

Despite his efforts, the Raiders finished the preseason winless at 0-2-1. They kick off the regular season at 1:05 p.m. on Sept. 8 at the Los Angeles Chargers.

It's still probably a long-shot, but McAllister just might be the player back deep tasked with returning the opening kickoff.

"He's got some juice," Pierce said. "He came from the CFL and played running back, never really played wide receiver. You can see that transition in the offseason program, and I thought he did a hell of a job in training camp quietly."

Raiders 53-man roster projection: Is Tyreik McAllister's big game enough to earn a spot?

By Vic Tafur, Tashan Reed

August 23, 2024

LAS VEGAS — The Las Vegas Raiders have some real star power, and their defensive line has the potential to be one of the best in the league.

That said, the lower depth of the roster is not very good. It was a struggle to get to 53 players, rather than cut down to 53 players. General manager Tom Telesco will likely pick up a few players off waivers next week. Some players, like Tyreik McAllister, Amari Gainer, Matthew Butler and Charles Butler, tried to get our attention in the preseason finale, a 24-24 tie with the San Francisco 49ers on Friday night.

The Raiders — and every other team in the league — have to cut their roster to 53 players by 1 p.m. PT on Tuesday. Here's The Athletic's final roster projection:

Quarterbacks (2)

Gardner Minshew II, Aidan O'Connell

Cuts: Nathan Peterman, Carter Bradley

Analysis: The NFL passed a rule this offseason that allows teams to designate one emergency third quarterback on their practice squad the day before games. The emergency third quarterback would only be allowed to enter the game if the first two quarterbacks are ruled out due to injury or disqualification. The player would count toward one of the two slots teams can use to elevate a practice squad player to the active roster, but there's no limit on the number of times a practice squad quarterback can be elevated. For that reason, it only makes sense for the Raiders to keep Minshew and O'Connell on their initial 53-man roster. They shouldn't have to worry about Peterman or Bradley getting claimed by another team unless some GM had a Joe Montana flashback on Peterman's touchdown to Kristian Wilkerson.

Running backs (4)

Cuts: Brittain Brown, Sincere McCormick

Analysis: This is a pretty solid running back room, with White showing well for himself when he filled in for the injured Josh Jacobs last season. Jacobs is gone, and the Raiders added Mattison to help share the load, especially on third down. Offensive coordinator Luke Getsy has praised White's receiving skills, so fantasy owners will be happy to know he won't only be a two-down back. Abdullah is a trusted vet who also plays special teams, and rookie Laube is a nice project (shame on those who made Christian McCaffrey and Austin Ekeler comps at training camp).

Wide receivers (6)

Davante Adams, Jakobi Meyers, Tre Tucker, DJ Turner, Jalen Guyton, Tyreik McAllister

Cuts: Kristian Wilkerson, Ramel Keyton, Terrell Bynum, Tulu Griffin, Alex Bachman, Dax Milne

Analysis: The Raiders' depth behind Adams and Myers might be better than we thought. Tucker had a lot of drops at training camp, but maybe it took time for his Lasik surgery to kick in, as he has been money in the preseason games and practices since. Turner is a roster lock; he was already a great special teams player but has also been making plays on offense lined up all over the field. Guyton is Telesco's guy from the Los Angeles Chargers and seems like a reliable option with some speed. We initially had Wilkerson making the roster, but then McAllister broke a punt return for a touchdown and caught another one Friday night. His performance could make the Raiders hesitant to expose him to getting poached by another team. It's more likely they'll sign Wilkerson back to the practice squad. And if McAllister's on the team, he was their most productive return man on kickoffs and punts in the preseason and should be able to handle both duties.

Tight ends (4)

Brock Bowers, Michael Mayer, Harrison Bryant, Zach Gentry

Cuts: Cole Fotheringham, John Samuel Shenker

Analysis: Bryant is the best blocking tight end on the roster and will log significant snaps on offense when the Raiders go to 13 personnel. There isn't much room for Gentry on offense, but he provides some depth and can contribute on special teams.

Offensive line (9)

Kolton Miller, Cody Whitehair, Andre James, Dylan Parham, Thayer Munford Jr., Jackson Powers-Johnson, DJ Glaze, Andrus Peat, Will Putnam

Cuts: Jordan Meredith, Ben Brown, Dalton Wagner, Jalen McKenzie, Corey Luciano, Clark Barrington, Andrew Coker

Analysis: Miller returned to the field this week after shoulder surgery and expects to be ready for the opener. Powers-Johnson has also returned to the practice field from a concussion but will sit behind Whitehair — the former Chicago Bears Pro Bowler who knows Getsy's offense well — until he catches up on everything he missed. Did

Munford hold off rookie Glaze for the starting job? It's a little surprising that it came down to the wire after the coaches talked up Munford all offseason, but he has been dealing with a couple of hand injuries.

Defensive ends (4)

Maxx Crosby, Malcolm Koonce, Tyree Wilson, Janarius Robinson

Cuts: Elerson Smith, Ron Stone Jr., Charles Snowden, TJ Franklin, David Agoha

Analysis: It's only the preseason, but the Raiders' depth here is not as good as you think. Wilson is healthy after a lingering foot injury derailed his rookie season, but he hasn't looked much different in Year 2. It's possible he'll get better with more experience, but he still lacks the get-off and moves to be effective as a pass rusher in the NFL. Robinson boasts impressive physical traits just like Wilson, but the fourth-year pro also hasn't been able to put it all together yet. Snowden had a tipped pass and a sack against the 49ers, but it might have been too little too late.

Defensive tackles (5)

Christian Wilkins, John Jenkins, Adam Butler, Byron Young, Nesta Jade Silvera

Cuts: Marquan McCall, Matthew Butler, Noah Shannon

Analysis: Wilkins, Jenkins and Adam Butler will eat up most of the snaps here, but the Raiders still need some depth. Though Young had an up-and-down training camp, they think he has some upside at three-technique. Silvera provides some insurance at nose tackle behind Jenkins and edges out Matthew Butler, who had a sack Friday night.

Linebackers (5)

Robert Spillane, Divine Deablo, Luke Masterson, Tommy Eichenberg, Amari Gainer

Cuts: Amari Burney, Kana'i Mauga, Jackson Mitchell, DaShaun White

Analysis: The starters have experience, confidence and the ability to make plays behind a defensive line that will keep blockers busy. Coach Antonio Pierce sees a little of himself in rookie Eichenberg, who's nursing a lower leg injury. Undrafted rookie Gainer was a highly touted pass rusher out of high school who couldn't find his niche at two college stops, but he has made some plays this camp in pass coverage and chasing down running backs.

Cornerbacks (6)

Cuts: Sam Webb, Cornell Armstrong, Woo Governor, Rayshad Williams, Ja'Quan Sheppard

Analysis: The depth here is concerning. Facyson missed most of 2023 due to injury and was sidelined for the majority of training camp for the same reason. Richardson has a lot of intriguing physical traits, but he's raw. Devonshire had a bumpy camp. It could make sense to add some outside veteran help on the waiver wire. Webb made a nice play Friday to tip a Brock Purdy pass attempt to Deebo Samuel Sr. that led to a Chris Smith II interception, but that might not be enough.

Safeties (5)

Cuts: Jaydon Grant, Phalen Sanford

Analysis: Epps and Moehrig have picked up where they left off last season, with their great chemistry, smarts, aggressiveness and ability to flip-flop roles. Pola-Mao had a great camp and was even getting snaps as a backup nickel corner. After those first three ... we had to use our imaginations a little. Taylor won the Jim Thorpe Award last year in college but fell to the seventh round because of measurables and has been banged up this preseason. The same goes for Smith, though he did have the interception Friday.

Specialists (3)

49ers 24-24 Raiders (Aug 23, 2024) Game Recap

By AP

August 23, 2024

LAS VEGAS -- — Brock Purdy was efficient in completing 9 of 12 passes for 96 yards, but also threw a red-zone interception in which he then put a scare into his coach by making a touchdown-saving tackle.

“When it happened, I was hoping he wouldn't tackle him,” San Francisco 49ers coach Kyle Shanahan said after a 24-24 preseason tie with the Las Vegas Raiders on Friday night. “Because it's preseason, let him score. But the fact he tackled him and got him down and didn't get hurt, I'm glad he didn't.”

Daniel Carlson's 43-yard field goal with 16 seconds left pulled the Raiders (0-2-1) even with the 49ers (1-1-1). Joshua Dobbs' 10-yard touchdown pass to Jacob Cowing late in the third quarter put the 49ers ahead 24-21.

Each team took an opposite approach to the game with the regular season two weeks away. The 49ers played most of their starters in the first quarter and the Raiders went with backups auditioning for roster spots in Las Vegas or another NFL team.

Clubs must reduce their rosters to 53 players by Tuesday, and Raiders coach Antonio Pierce said he would discuss with general manager Tom Telesco what moves to make.

“It's not easy cutting 37 men and telling them they got to find somewhere else to play,” Pierce said.

One player fighting for a slot was quarterback Nathan Peterman, who received the surprise start after Pierce said Wednesday that Carter Bradley would open the game.

Peterman played the first half and completed 12 of 19 passes for 108 yards a touchdown. Bradley led the tying drive for the field goal and finished 9 of 21 for 169 yards with a TD and interception in the end zone.

Tyreik McAllister, another Raiders player competing for a spot, returned a punt 81 yards for a touchdown and caught a 35-yard TD pass.

On the other end, the 49ers wanted to get a close look at most of their starters, which included the preseason debuts of wide receiver Deebo Samuel and tight end George Kittle. Kittle made a highlight 19-yard grab between two defenders and finished with three catches for 34 yards. His previous preseason career total: four receptions for 47 yards.

Not all the 49ers starters played, however, in the team's first appearance at Allegiant Stadium since losing in the Super Bowl six months earlier to the Kansas City Chiefs.

"Actually really like the stadium," Shanahan said. "Cool atmosphere. It's one of the newer stadiums that feels truly like a football stadium when you're inside there. I like having games here. But, yeah, wasn't the best feeling going into the locker room remembering the last time you were in there, but you get over it pretty fast."

Among the missing were All-Pro running back Christian McCaffrey because of a calf injury. Also, All-Pro left tackle Trent Williams and second-team All-Pro receiver Brandon Aiyuk have been in contract disputes that remain to be unresolved even with the season just two weeks away.

Aiyuk, however, was at Allegiant Stadium on Friday night and even chatted with Pierce before the game. Pierce was the linebackers coach at Arizona State when Aiyuk played there in 2018-19.

Aiyuk didn't travel with the team two weeks earlier when the Niners played at Nashville and watched last week's home game against New Orleans from a private box.

Purdy played just into the second quarter against the Raiders' reserves, taking a 10-0 lead and nearly going up three scores.

"It felt good to get out there with the guys and move the ball," Purdy said. "We were all in rhythm."

The first possession resulted in a 49-yard field goal by Jake Moody, and then Purdy guided the 49ers on a 12-play, 85-yard touchdown drive. San Francisco was at the Raiders' 16-yard line early in the second period when Purdy's pass to Samuel was broken up by cornerback Sam Webb and picked off by safety Chris Smith II.

That's when Purdy stepped in to make his third career tackle if preseason, regular season and the playoffs are all counted.

"I'm trying to get him out of bounds and have our defense get good field position," Purdy said. "I felt like I had leverage to get him out of bounds and that's what I tried to do. Obviously, I don't want to be tackling in the preseason, but it happened so quick."

Then it was up to the reserves on both sides.

INJURIES

49ers: Left defensive ends Yetur Gross-Matos and Leonard Floyd left with sprained knees late in the first quarter and entered the blue injury tent. Shanahan said both will undergo MRIs on Saturday.

UP NEXT

49ers: Host the New York Jets on Sept. 9 to open the season.

Raiders: Visit the Los Angeles Chargers on Sept. 8 in the season opener.

How several Raiders made a case for themselves in preseason finale

By Levi Edwards

August 23, 2024

As the Las Vegas Raiders wrap up their preseason, there will be some long upcoming nights for the coaching staff.

The Silver and Black tied with the 49ers at 24 with the team receiving productive showings from several players pushing for spots on the 53-man roster. While there's some tough decisions to be made, that's not necessarily a bad thing for Pierce and his staff.

"Me and Tom are going to sit there and pound some tape away and brainstorm and put some names up there and just look at it," Pierce said following the preseason finale. "It's tough. It's not easy cutting 37 men and tell them they got to find somewhere else to play or whatever it may be. Nature of the beast, and we'll evaluate over the next 48 hours."

A top player Friday night – and throughout the whole preseason – was rookie linebacker Amari Gainer. The undrafted player from North Carolina finished with 12 total tackles and two tackles for loss. Pierce additionally placed green dot duties upon Gainer to see how he could command the huddle.

"I thought Amari did a really good job," said Pierce. "Listen, you've got an opportunity, you make the most of it. ... He stuck in there to the very end and called the defense tonight. First time he's done that as well. Just some bright spots and things he can learn from as well. That was good to see."

For Gainer, it's been extremely beneficially to be placed in a situation where his first NFL head coach, who also came into the league as a UDFA, played the same position as him.

"Top linebacker in his time – big, long, flies around, he made plays," Gainer said. "That's the kind of linebacker I want to be. He's been a great leader to all of us to make sure we're our best selves everyday and to strive for greatness."

Tyreik McAllister was another player with a great showing against the 49ers. McAllister was formerly on the Denver Broncos practice squad and played in the Canadian Football League for a season. With his increased snap count this game, he showed out with a 35-yard touchdown grab and an 81-yard punt return to the end zone.

"I thought he did a hell of a job just in training camp, just quietly," Pierce said of McAllister. "If you really think about that Minnesota game, he popped one there. We've been seeing it in practice, but today he took it to another level, took one to the crib, and hell of a catch and adjustment there on a reception. Then even just covering kicks. He moved the needle tonight."

McAllister's play in training camp and this preseason is more impressive considering he was switched from running back to wide receiver, playing the position exclusively for the first time since he was an underclassman in college. As Pierce alluded, special teams has been McAllister's calling card.

"I put a lot of pride into [special teams], because I know coming from the CFL that's what got me back here," the receiver said postgame. "I put a lot of pride into it, going out there and doing my best."

Along with Gainer and McAllister, Charles Snowden, Matthew Butler and UDFA Ramel Keyton had statement games for why they should be considered to make the team.

The Silver and Black will finalize their initial 53-man roster Tuesday.

"Today, I thought the game at times was up and down, emotional. ... I thought they did a great job of just celebrating with one another, coaching each other up on the sideline, cheering for one another, and competing," Pierce said. "When we put our 53-man roster together, we know what it's like, we know what it's about."

"It's business, but what we wanted to accomplish over training camp and the offseason program, I think we have done that."

Quick Snap: Raiders finish preseason with a tie vs. 49ers

By Levi Edwards
August 23, 2024

The Las Vegas Raiders and San Francisco 49ers end their preseason with a tie at 24 a piece.

Things got off to a rough start for the Silver and Black, as the 49ers scoring 10 unanswered points out the gate. 49ers starting quarterback Brock Purdy threw for 96 yards and completed 75 percent of his throws in the first half. Chris Smith II did come away a highlight reel interception off a tipped pass from Sam Webb, but it didn't lead to any points.

The tide began the shift with elite special teams play, starting with wide receiver Tyreik McAllister. Early in the second quarter the former CFL player used blazing speed to split the return coverage, high-stepping into the end zone off an 81-yard return.

The McAllister touchdown helped to get things in motion. Nathan Peterman led a 10 play, 79-yard drive during a two-minute drill to end the first half. Peterman rolled out of the pocket to hit Kristian Wilkerson in the midst of three defenders for a three-yard touchdown. No. 10 went 12-of-19 for 108 yards and a touchdown on the day.

Carter Bradley came in to start the second half and was firing on all cylinders. He went 4-of-4 on his first drive with a big 22-yard gain to Ramel Keyton. McAllister added another explosive touchdown on the day, making a contested catch and spinning out the grasps of the defender for a 32-yard score. The running back finished the day with 144 all-purpose yards.

Down 24-21 in the fourth quarter, linebacker Jackson Mitchell forced a fumble on San Francisco's Tay Martin, with safety Phalen Sanford recovering the ball to put the Raiders in scoring position. However, the drive stalled on the goal line as Bradley threw an interception on fourth down.

The Raiders defense kept the 49ers scoreless with less than two minutes left in the game following a stop on fourth down in their own territory. Bradley responded with three completions for 54 yards to Ramel Keyton which put Daniel Carlson in position to knock in the game-tying 43-yard field goal.

The Silver and Black finish the preseason 0-2-1, with Week 1 of the regular season two weeks away against the Los Angeles Chargers.

THE ATHLETIC

Can NFL journeyman Gardner Minshew be the Raiders' answer at QB?

By Vic Tafur

August 16, 2024

LAS VEGAS — Gardner Minshew II packed up the van in March and headed out West, looking for another opportunity in a colorful NFL career that has already spanned four teams in six years.

He became a college star on his fourth try — after trying to break his hand with a hammer to get an extra redshirt year at his third stop. The quarterback's cool mustache, laidback swagger, better-than-you-think arm and flair for the dramatic created a "Minshew Mania" that followed him from Washington State to his first NFL stop in Jacksonville.

Or was it the other way around?

As Minshew says, it seemed like the mustache "was calling the shots for a bit."

Minshew is 28 now, and the Las Vegas Raiders made him a really good offer to sign and compete with Aidan O'Connell for the starting quarterback job. It felt like a natural fit for Minshew, who had met Raiders Hall of Famers Kenny Stabler, Ray Guy and Fred Biletnikoff over the years — guys who valued having fun and enjoying people almost as much as winning.

"I couldn't be prouder to be part of the Raiders tradition," Minshew said Wednesday night. "It's real, you feel it when you step in the building. We're here to win, but personalities are welcome. It's important to have balance in life, and you can do your best at football but not let it take over. I am excited to be part of a new era of Raiders football."

Coach Antonio Pierce said he hopes to pick a starting quarterback after Saturday night's preseason game against the Dallas Cowboys.

Minshew feels no sense of urgency.

"No, man," Minshew said. "If I knew a better way of doing things, I would have been doing it, you know? So you just keep going, trust the process, continue learning and get better. And, you know, support whatever decision he makes."

Minshew feels the Raiders will need both quarterbacks and is confident he will play this season no matter what decision Pierce makes. A year ago, Minshew came off the bench in Indianapolis for an injured Anthony Richardson and had the Colts one dropped pass away from the playoffs. He made the Pro Bowl as an alternate.

"He is just a gamer," said Raiders safety Marcus Epps, who played with Minshew for two seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles. "(He's a) very smart player who cares a lot and works really hard, and he is going to give you everything he's got every play. Definitely a guy you want in your corner."

Former teammates and coaches mention Minshew's IQ before they talk about anything else. Colts offensive coordinator Jim Bob Cooter said that talking to him is like talking to another coach.

Which begs the question — did Minshew really try to break his own hand? And why?

Minshew had transferred from Troy University to be closer to home at Northwest Mississippi Community College — where he won a national championship — and then transferred to East Carolina. There were two seniors ahead of Minshew on the depth chart, and he was planning on redshirting and starting the next three seasons there.

But it turned out the backup quarterback was the Pirates' best running back. Minshew was now No. 2, and just like that, he was on the field in a game when the starter got knocked out with a concussion. He played a half, but Philip Nelson, it turned out, was a fast healer and was set to return as the starter the following week. So Minshew had a week to figure out a plan to save his year of eligibility, and a medical redshirt was the only way.

Now all he needed was an injury.

"There were two or three days of thought that went into it," Minshew said. "Enough time to do the research and figure out that I was effed. I didn't have any options other than that."

Minshew's best friend growing up, Houston Smith, realized he couldn't talk Minshew out of hurting himself.

"We talked a lot about slamming the car door on his hand," Smith said over the phone. "But he went with Plan B."

Minshew grabbed a bottle of Jack Daniels and a hammer and sat down at his table. He took a swig, and then a swing, and then two more.

His hand hurt, but it didn't feel broken. So Minshew took another drink and three more hits. Nope. Not broken.

Rinse and repeat.

After nine swings at his hand, Minshew was shaking in pain and quit.

"It's not as easy as you might think to break your hand," he said. "It was really swollen for a couple of weeks, and when the coaches asked what the hell happened, I told them I slammed it in a door by mistake."

Minshew, who went on to play in seven games that season and 10 more the following year for East Carolina, never told the story until just before his senior year at Washington State. Coach Mike Leach had all the seniors come up each night at training camp and talk to the team.

"I told them what I did," Minshew said. "And I was like, 'That is what I would do for more football. What would you do? How much does this mean to you? Because it means everything to me.'"

Jack Wright, Minshew's coach at Northwest Mississippi, was not surprised when he heard the story.

"He would do anything to play and to win," said Wright, now the coach at Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College. "We lost one game in 2015, and I will never forget how he came in the next morning to my office, looking at me and saying, 'What can I do to make sure that never happens again?'"

One thing that might surprise you, however, is that Minshew was a pocket passer back in junior college. He was not getting away from pass rushers and completing passes on the move like he is primarily known for now.

"That was seen as a negative for him back then, and that's why I say the thing that sets him apart is his determination to be good," Wright said.

Minshew takes pride in the work he's put in on his flexibility, lower-body strength and speed.

"My junior year of high school, I went up to Ole Miss and they told me, 'If you can run under a 5-flat 40, we'll offer you (a scholarship),'"
Minshew said. "I go up there and run a 5.1, and that just crushed me. So ever since, that's been a consistent commitment and to have made scrambling a positive to my game now is really cool to me."

"He is just extremely determined to be really, really good," Wright said. "He does have a really quick release, but Gardner is where he is because he's extremely smart and he is extremely motivated. He is probably smarter than most coaches."

It's one reason then-Alabama coach Nick Saban wanted Minshew to transfer from East Carolina and be Tua Tagovailoa's backup for a year before becoming a graduate assistant coach. Minshew got cold feet when Jalen Hurts decided not to transfer and return to Alabama in 2018.

He still might have gone, though, if not for a phone call from Leach, then the coach at Washington State.

Minshew ran a variation of Leach's Air Raid offense — run out of the shotgun, with four receivers and a running back, often with no huddle — in high school. Leach's friend and Air Raid co-creator Hal Mumme happened to be in Mississippi, coaching at Jackson State, and knew all about Minshew.

Leach called Minshew and asked if he would like to come to Washington State and lead the nation in passing. Minshew said yes and committed without visiting the campus.

Minshew finished second in the nation in passing with 4,779 yards (the late Dwayne Haskins had 4,831 for Ohio State), and the mania was on. He became a cult figure on national television. On campus and at the stadium, his friends often had to form a human circle to protect him from mobs.

Minshew had great pocket presence, the late Leach once said, and his spirit could lift the whole team.

"In varying degrees, everyone in this business and in this world has some phoniness to him, and Gardner's got far less than most," Leach, who died in 2022, told ESPN in 2019. "All the attention in the world is not more important to him than playing well, and I get the feeling that it has always been that way.”

Leach would yell at NFL scouts, but concerns over Minshew’s size (he is listed as 6-foot-1, 225 pounds) had him drop to the sixth round. The Jacksonville Jaguars took him because they were impressed with his smarts and confidence. Former New York Giants coach Tom Coughlin was with the Jaguars then as executive vice president of football operations and is now an adviser to Pierce with the Raiders.

He remembers Minshew winning over Jaguars owner Shad Khan in the team interview at the NFL Scouting Combine. Minshew told Khan, “I am too short, I don’t have arm strength and I am too slow, but I won 11 f—ing games at Washington State.”

Then he quickly won over the Jacksonville coaches.

“He was sharp,” Coughlin said. “You could show him something on film or even just tell him something, and he could suck it all up and walk right on the practice field and do it.”

Minshew hit the field in the Jaguars’ season opener after Nick Foles went down with an injury. He started 12 games his rookie year, winning six of them for a bad Jaguars team (they were 6-10 overall) and finishing with 3,271 passing yards, 21 touchdowns and six interceptions.

There were come-from-behind victories, including one in the Raiders’ last game at Oakland. Minshew led the Jaguars back from a 16-3 deficit in the third quarter, completing 13 of 17 passes for 128 yards and running for 24 yards on three late scoring drives. After the 20-16 win, he watched the home fans boo Raiders quarterback Derek Carr and throw nachos on the field.

“It was definitely an awesome experience to be here and play in the last game,” Minshew said afterward. “Probably saw more middle fingers today than I have in my whole life. They have a good time. It was fun to ruin that for them.”

Minshew Mania, though, lasted only a year in Jacksonville, as the next season he played with an injured thumb and went 1-7 as the starter. The Jaguars lost 15 straight games, and with that came the No. 1 draft pick and the rights to Clemson QB Trevor Lawrence.

The Jaguars traded Minshew to the Eagles for a sixth-round pick, and he appeared in nine games, starting four, in two years as a backup to Hurts. Offensive coordinator Shane Steichen was impressed and brought Minshew with him when he became the Colts’ head coach in 2023. Minshew wound up starting 13 games after rookie Anthony Richardson injured his shoulder. He was good enough to win seven of them and get the Colts on the verge of the playoffs, but trying to do too much led to nine interceptions (against 15 touchdown passes) and eight fumbles.

Minshew worked this offseason on his ball security, as well as his release points and making plays off-schedule, on his annual trip to Tampa, Fla., to work with former Raiders coach Jon Gruden.

“The best is just watching film with him — it’s a blast,” Minshew said.

The Colts wanted Minshew back this season but couldn’t match the $15 million guaranteed (over two years) that Raiders general manager Tom Telesco gave him. Minshew is a skilled play-action passer who thinks Luke Getsy's West Coast offense suits him, as he feels he processes quickly and goes through his reads and progressions to find the most open receiver.

"Not to mention all the weapons we have here," Minshew said. "Davante (Adams), Jakobi (Meyers), our two tight ends, Tre Tucker, Zamir (White) ... dude."

Minshew feels the Raiders offense suits him well. But will he be the starter or back up Aidan O'Connell?

And he's made himself at home. The converted prison bus he once had is gone, but his van — Minshew's baby — is a home on wheels. Some late nights at the Raiders facility, it can be seen in the parking lot with its owner still unwinding. It's a primo location, he said, with free snacks, a bathroom and a gym just footsteps away.

"His personality is so unique," Pierce said. "(He's) so free-spirited, but more importantly, a great teammate, he loves to compete, his attitude, his purpose, each and every rep that he takes — you can see that there's a driven player there that's always been an underdog.

"And that's a good thing for the Raiders because that carries over to the rest of our team, and guys feed off of it."

They will — whether or not Minshew is named the starter for Week 1. Minshew Mania is a different animal than it used to be, more of a quiet storm, but he always seems to find a way back on the field to try to help his team win.

WIDE RECEIVER TYREIK MCALLISTER

LAS VEGAS REVIEW JOURNAL

Receiver rises from CFL to make Raiders' roster: 'That dude can spin'

By Vincent Bonsignore

September 2, 2024

Maybe it's the writer in Raiders running back Ameer Abdullah, but the magic of throwing 90 different football players with 90 different backgrounds together for training camp gets him every single time.

"One thing I love about the NFL is, every year it's a story," Abdullah said.

One tale that caught his and the rest of the Raiders' attention this year is that of Tyreik McAllister, the under-the-radar signing from the Canadian Football League asked to transition from running back to wide receiver. McAllister overcame long odds to climb from the bottom of the depth chart to a spot on the team's 53-man roster.

He did so by making steady progress at wide receiver in camp. He flashed blazing speed and athletic ability. He then put together an incredible performance in the Raiders' preseason finale Aug. 23 against the 49ers to secure his spot.

McAllister returned a punt 81 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter, showing what he could do with the ball in his hands. He then showcased his improvement as a receiver by making a 35-yard touchdown grab in the third quarter.

Abdullah could only smile from the sideline.

"To see him answer the call and make some huge plays for us the other night, it's just one of those stories that you look back and say, 'Whoa,'" Abdullah said. "I love the game of football because of it."

Long journey

McAllister's path to this point is almost unimaginable.

He played wide receiver his first two seasons at the University of Charleston in West Virginia. He then moved to running back when a new coaching staff arrived, which led to him getting an opportunity with the Broncos after going undrafted in 2022.

McAllister spent the next 12 months fluctuating from injured reserve to the practice squad to the waiver wire. It was a rough welcome to the NFL.

His agent Ferrell Elliott then proposed a wild idea to get McAllister's career going. He could head north and join the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats, rather than wait around for his next opportunity for playing time.

"It was tough for teams to really evaluate me," McAllister said, knowing NFL clubs were judging him off his college tape.

McAllister was open to going to the CFL. But first, he did some research to see if there were examples of players going to Canada and still returning to the NFL at some point. He didn't want to disappear off the radar forever.

The long list of players he found — a group that included Warren Moon, Joe Theismann, Doug Flutie, Jeff Garcia and, more recently, Greg Van Roten and Alex Singleton — gave McAllister peace of mind.

"I watched those guys, and the success they had," McAllister said. "I kind of figured I could have the same success."

He did well his one season in Hamilton. The CFL's larger field — it's 110 yards long, 65 yards wide and has a 20-yard long end zone — was ideal for his skill set.

McAllister led the league in kickoff return average and all-purpose yards. It changed the trajectory of his career.

"Making that move, it was difficult, but I feel like it's the best decision I ever made in my life," McAllister said.

The NFL took notice.

McAllister worked out for seven teams and received contract offers from five. He signed a futures deal with the Raiders in January, in part because then interim-coach Antonio Pierce attended his workout despite being in the middle of the NFL season.

It was one of the last moves interim general manager Champ Kelly made before Tom Telesco was hired as general manager. Kelly stayed on as assistant general manager.

"Hats off to Champ Kelly and his staff here that signed him before I got here," Telesco said. "They saw something in him in the CFL."

No guarantees

The Raiders didn't make McAllister any promises. They just said he would have a legitimate chance to make the team.

There was one catch: He needed to switch to wide receiver.

McAllister, with his confidence soaring after his season in the CFL, was more than willing to do it. Abdullah was impressed by his new teammate's speed as soon as he saw him returning punts.

"He was like a roadrunner," Abdullah said. "And I was like, 'That dude can spin.'"

McAllister has been a blur ever since.

He put together a great training camp and had 291 all-purpose yards in the preseason.

"During training camp, just continuing to work, I felt like I was getting better and better every day," McAllister said. "Going through this process, it was tough, but I felt like I did a pretty good job during camp, during the preseason. I was pretty confident going into this weekend, but you never know in this league."

McAllister should now be part of the Raiders' return and coverage units on punts and kickoffs. He and fellow speedster Tre Tucker could alternate on punt returns.

"Two's good," said Pierce, now the Raiders' full-time coach. "One is cool. Two's better."

The Raiders expect McAllister to be involved in the offense as well. They've seen him improve too much as a receiver to not use him somehow.

"McAllister's role on offense is still to be determined, but we know what he can do," Pierce said. "We've all seen that, and he did that even as a kickoff returner. So, I think he's going to do a really good job."

THE ATHLETIC

How the Raiders are setting the NFL's standard for post-playing career treatment

By Vic Tafur

August 30, 2024

LAS VEGAS — The black carpet was laid out, and Hall of Famer Marcus Allen smiled big for the photographers as the former Raiders star entered Allegiant Stadium last Friday night.

“I never get the feeling of being a former player, it’s like I am still on the team — that’s how much the Raiders care about you,” Allen, 64, said. “It’s unique how much (owner) Mark Davis cares about these guys.”

The Raiders last week welcomed 272 former players for their annual alumni weekend that featured a bowling night and the team’s preseason finale against the San Francisco 49ers. There’s no level of star power required to be invited.

“I see guys at these events that I didn’t know played for the Raiders,” Hall of Fame receiver James Lofton, 68, said, smiling. “I ask them about that, and they may say they played two strike games in 1987.”

Most of the players in town for this year’s event were still talking about the groundbreaking inaugural Wellness Weekend the team hosted in June in Henderson, Nev. Players and their wives or partners met with all of the league’s benefits providers and attended panel discussions on things ranging from physical and mental health to caregiver support to addiction. All were given health screenings, including for skin cancer and mammography.

“Every time they do something for us, it’s like a surprise birthday party,” former tight end Teyo Johnson, 42, said. “It’s so above and beyond what any other team in the NFL does. I was speechless at the Wellness Weekend ... and for everyone reading this, get your prostate checked.”

NFL executive vice president of football operations Troy Vincent had his notebook out as he and his wife attended. He said he has never heard or seen anything like it in sports and plans to tell other teams and the league to follow suit.

“To create a safe space for husbands and wives, and making everyone comfortable to talk about uncomfortable things, is extremely, extremely difficult to create,” Vincent said. “And they did it. The ability to bring in all the necessary partners, from brain health to transition to suicide awareness to heart health to cancer prevention to addiction ... and then after each session, the support was right there.

“All you had to do was walk 15 feet to ask a further question or have something addressed or looked into.”

Vincent said he saw “a community of care” and went back to the league office and told officials that the Raiders model needed to be copied.

“I have never seen anything like it, and I’ve studied this in my 30 years as a player, a labor leader in my current role,” Vincent said. “Mark Davis made a significant investment and spared no cost, and I told the commissioner that we need to take this page out of the Raiders playbook.”

Hall of Famer Eric Dickerson, 63, only played one season of his 11-year career for the Raiders, and he said other players around the league are envious.

“A lot of players who played in the NFL feel like once you’re done, they don’t want you to come around anymore,” Dickerson said. “I am shocked by all this. Just to get all these guys together is one thing — and they pay for the hotel and food — but the players were blown away by the Wellness Weekend.

Dickerson and several other players spoke at last week’s preseason game against the 49ers.

“The Wellness Weekend was another level,” former defensive end Greg Townsend, 62, said. “It was a little touchy feeling, because you don’t know what guys are willing to share or what kind of diagnosis they may come out of there with. But it gave everyone a chance to get on top of whatever things they need to get on top of.”

And there were a lot more hugs at the game last week.

“There were a couple of guys who came last year who aren’t with us anymore, like Carl Weathers,” Townsend said. “And he was looking good last year. Or Jim Otto ... . Anything can happen, so we need to love up on each other whenever we can.”

“And it’s not just teammates catching up,” Allen said. “The wives also got a lot out of the Wellness Weekend.”

Sherice Brown, wife of Hall of Fame receiver Tim Brown, said the gathering was sorely needed.

“I want to say the women’s session was my favorite part,” Brown said, “but it may have been hearing from the different speakers ... especially on the mental wellness of the former players. That was huge, because there are a lot of guys going through some difficulties. Having psychologists there to just talk to on the spot was great and very important.”

Sherice Brown, who is also the co-founder of the Off the Field Players Wives Association, said wives and partners often make sure the former players are eating well and resting enough and taking advantage of the programs out there. For example, Brown just found out the Hall of Fame has a new wellness program for its inducted players.

“We know that the wives are there as a support system,” Brown said. “We’re the ones that are making sure the guys are staying on top of their health and wellness, whether that be mental or physical.”

The wives’ involvement was always part of the plan when the event first started coming together four years ago.

“I thought it was important that everyone got together under one roof for a common goal,” Raiders vice president of alumni relations Shannon Jordan said. “There are so many benefits and resources that it can be overwhelming and daunting for each of the alums and their families.”

Jordan was the executive director of Gridiron Greats — which helps players with life after football — and got to know Davis and former president Marc Badain well when they attended events in Las Vegas. The Raiders made a push to hire her, and the initial plan was to have the first Wellness Weekend in 2020.

But then the pandemic hit.

“People were coming in for it, but COVID sent us home,” Jordan said. “In a way, it was a blessing — to make sure that we did it right and we had a lot of guys and a lot more partners that participated. And the other reason why we waited was that some of the screening programs weren’t fully up and running again for a while, and also the comfortability of being around other partners in a space from a screening and doctor perspective.”

There were a lot of panels because Jordan wanted players and their partners telling and sharing their stories rather than watching a slide show.

“We wanted to give them a high-level overview of everything that they’ve earned, and then follow up with detail,” Jordan said. “And we had a half day that just focused on the women. They’re the ones with the boots on the ground who are often filling out the paperwork. Caregivers also need care, too.”

There were even service dogs from Pet Partners that were provided for players for an hour after a tough topic. Former receiver Jacoby Ford, 37, learned about some programs he didn’t know existed such as economic assistance and future planning and said some of the older players were amazed at seemingly random things.

“Maybe they didn’t know how to turn off the location on their internet, and not having your home being shared, little things like that,” Ford said.

Raiders president Sandra Douglass Morgan said it’s all part of Davis’ vision to provide “an all-around support system beyond the field.”

“Events like Wellness Weekend and the alumni reunion not only give former players the opportunity to reconnect with one another but also to connect with the current team and employees throughout the organization,” Morgan said. “That provides an invaluable educational experience to everyone.”

Davis might have enjoyed the events more than anyone.

“As I have said time and time again, the most valuable asset the Raiders have is its alumni,” Davis said. “Everything that we’ve got today is built on their blood, sweat and tears. And we also haven’t forgotten the women who’ve helped build it.”
