Jaguars look to snap skid against the Arizona Cardinals

By: J.P. Shadrick

Kam Nedd/©2021

JACKSONVILLE – After a second consecutive loss to begin the 2021 season, Jaguars Head Coach Urban Meyer looked to reassure a Jaguars fan base that came to TIAA Bank Field for the home opener and continues to hope for positive results.

“I just want to thank our Jaguar fans – it’s been a long haul in Jacksonville,” Meyer said after last week’s game. “But we appreciate them being here, and we have a saying around here, we’re going to own it, and we are going to own it.”

Quarterback Trevor Lawrence gave the mindset of the locker room after the Week 2 defeat.

“You’ve just got to realize we’re getting better, and each week we’ve got to keep getting better, and it’s a long season,” Lawrence said. “We’ve still got 15 more games, kind of like I said last week. That’s the mindset in the locker room, too. Everyone is frustrated. Everybody is disappointed. Obviously, we worked our tails off to win this game, and we felt like we were prepared.

“Just got to keep getting better, though. We’ve got to make the play when our number is called and didn’t do that well enough today.”

Veteran cornerback Shaquill Griffin echoed those sentiments.

“We’ve got to stick with it, we’ve got to continue to believe, have faith,” Griffin said. “The main thing is we can’t point any fingers. We’ve got to make sure we all stick with each other because we’ve still got a long season left. The main thing I don't want guys to do is start giving up now."

Meyer asked for the fans to hang in for the long haul of the 2021 season and beyond.

"Don't give up on us – hang in there with us," Meyer said. "We're going to get better. The one thing about Jacksonville and the 904, go to sleep knowing there's not going to be any group working harder to get this thing flipped."

The work continued this week after a 23-13 loss to the Denver Broncos in Week 2, building to today's Week 3 matchup: the Jacksonville Jaguars (0-2) and the Arizona Cardinals (2-0).

Jaguars offense

Last week, the Jaguars offense came out of the gate firing on all cylinders with an opening drive everyone was looking for: 11 plays, 83 yards in five minutes, 39 seconds, ending with a 25-yard touchdown pass from Trevor Lawrence to Marvin Jones Jr. who made a diving catch in the back-right corner of the end zone.

Beautiful. What a celebration. The play restored the roar from the home crowd at TIAA Bank Field.

Unfortunately, the rest of the day took a wrong turn.

After the Jaguars' 83-yard opening touchdown drive, the Broncos defense tightened as the Jaguars offense gained only 106 yards the rest of the day on eight offensive possessions.

"I think we had a couple dropped passes on some key situations that would have kept the chains moving," Meyer said. "Also, we'd like to have a little more balance. It seems like we're dropping back a little bit too much, especially when you're facing (Broncos outside linebackers) Von Miller and (Bradley) Chubb and those guys.

"The easy answer is make more plays and get guys in position to make more plays. That's an easy answer. It's hard to execute, obviously."

Jaguars quarterback Trevor Lawrence finished the day 14 of 33 passing for 118 yards with a touchdown and two second-half interceptions.

"I missed a few throws; we didn't have really many drops today, so I think they (Jaguars receivers) did a good job," Lawrence said after the game. "Denver did a good job contesting a lot of the throws. They mixed up their coverages well. I thought I saw it pretty well, too, and I think we just got behind the sticks a little bit as the game went on."

Kicker Josh Lambo missed a pair of first-half field goals, one from 52 yards and another from 48, and the Jaguars offense was held off the board following the opening-drive touchdown. Meyer reaffirmed his support for Lambo after the game.

"I'm not giving up on Josh Lambo," Meyer said. "If he didn't work hard, wasn't a professional about everything he does, yeah, I'd have a problem with him, but he's missing some kicks, and as a professional he's got to make those kicks. I have confidence he will."

Meyer added there's a different style to this Jaguars offense that Lawrence must continue to adjust to in his rookie season.

"I think it's him learning how to play the style of offense that we're playing, and I know for his career that's going to be the best thing to do," Meyer said. "When I made that decision to hire Bevell and Brian Schottenheimer, a lot went into that decision. To run a spread offense? I don't know. I think he needs to become a professional quarterback.

"That also includes some spread elements in it, which we do. So, it's going to be a combination of both (spread and pro-style), and I know that's the right thing for him and his career and his future."

Jaguars defense

After some communication issues in the Week 1 loss in Houston, the operation of the Jaguars defense felt better in Week 2.

"I feel like for defense-wise, I felt like we made a huge step from game 1 to game 2 when it comes to communication, getting the call out on time, being able to play fast," Griffin said. "(Defensive coordinator Joe) Cullen did an amazing job making sure the calls -- I feel like his play call was amazing this game. I made sure I told him that right after the game, that was perfect, every situation was great.

"Now let's build on it, let's continue to build on that, let's continue to get this defense together. We've just got to start getting turnovers, continue to help the offense out.”

The Jaguars defense gave a valiant effort last week to keep the game within two scores in a second half that could have slipped away.

Following the two Lawrence interceptions, the Broncos offense drove seven plays and nine plays, respectively, but settled for field goals at the end of each possession. The second field goal opened a 23-7 Broncos lead with 5:42 remaining, giving the Jaguars a sliver of hope in a 16-point, two-possession game.

The Jaguars held the Broncos offense to 2 of 11 on third down, the third-lowest percentage (18.2) since November 5, 2017, against Cincinnati.

Josh Allen, Adam Gotsis and Andrew Wingard each recorded sacks, and the Jaguars hit Broncos quarterback Teddy Bridgewater eight times.

Defensive leaders from Week 2:

- S Andrew Wingard: 8 tackles, 1 sack
- S Rayshawn Jenkins: 6 tackles, 1 pass defended
- LB Myles Jack: 6 tackles
- CB Shaquill Griffin: 5 tackles, 1 pass defended
- DE/OLB Josh Allen: 3 tackles, 1 sack
- DE Adam Gotsis: 2 tackles, 1 sack, 2 quarterback hits

Jaguars special teams

With the Jaguars down by 16 late in the fourth quarter, and the offense struggling to stay on the field, the kickoff return team took matters into its own hands.

Jamal Agnew, signed as a free agent this offseason, returned a kickoff 102 yards for a touchdown.

“We haven’t been able to get him loose in punt return, and that’s really where he’s dynamic, too,” Meyer said. “I know this as a fact after coaching special teams my entire career is that if they know there’s a guy back that can do it, you block that much harder, and they know he can do it now. That’s going to be on tape.”

It was the Jaguars’ first kickoff return for a touchdown since December 18, 2016, when Marqise Lee returned a kick 100 yards against the Houston Texans.

Up next

Today the Jaguars host the 2-0 Arizona Cardinals. The Cardinals have wins over the Titans (38-13) and Vikings (34-33) and are led by a dynamic young signal caller.

Quarterback Kyler Murray has the second-most passing yards in the league (689) and has seven touchdown passes, the second-most in the NFL through two weeks (through Sunday games). His quarterback rating of 121.5 is fifth-best in the league.

He also has plenty of options to throw to, including a tandem of receivers: Rondale Moore and DeAndre Hopkins. Moore is tied for 10th in the league through two weeks with 182 receiving yards on 11 catches with one score. Hopkins has 137 yards on 10 catches and three scores.

A.J. Green – yes, that A.J. Green now in season No. 11 – is now in Arizona and has a touchdown reception.

Murray is also a running and scrambling threat: two rushing touchdowns through two weeks on 10 carries for 51 rushing yards.

On defense, the Cardinals shut down running back Derrick Henry and the Titans in Week 1, and defensive lineman Chandler Jones collected five sacks of Ryan Tannehill. Last week, the Vikings missed a 37-yard field goal at the final gun and the Cardinals survived after allowing over 400 yards of total offense to Kirk Cousins and the Vikings offense.

Closing thought

Head Coach Urban Meyer: “There’s 15 games left, and my goal, our goal is to have the strongest locker room that you can possibly have. I feel like it’s extremely strong right now. Players are pissed. Players want to win. Players are sticking together. That’s the best part of our team, the best part of our organization right now is what’s in that locker room.”

ROOKIE OF THE WEEK

Senior correspondent Brian Sexton recently caught up with Jaguars rookie OT Walker Little, discussing his transition to the NFL.

Walker Little looks like the answer to a question the Jaguars have been asking since 2001. Who can replace Tony Boselli at left tackle? There have been plenty of players who here highly regarded and highly drafted from some of America's best football programs. Mike Pearson from Florida, Khalif Barnes from Washington, Eugene Monroe from Virginia and Luke Joeckel from Texas A&M were all thought to be suitable successors to the legacy of one of the game's very best players. For a variety of reasons and circumstances none of them did and likely none of them could but there is a distinct possibility that the latest name on that list might finally be the guy they've been searching for. Those might seem to be expectations too lofty for a rookie offensive tackle, even one from Stanford, but Little has the look of an elite talent at one of the game's most critical positions and he's dealt with high expectations since his days at the Episcopal School outside Houston where he was a consensus All American, 5 Star prospect and judged by many to be the No. 1 prospect in his recruiting class. Walker's 6-7, 320-pound frame is physically up to the challenge as is his intellect, built and sharpened at one of America's finest academic institutions. He's ready to play, at least, he believes he will be when his number is called and that's saying a lot considering he hadn't been on a field in a competitive posture since an early season game against Northwestern in 2019.

Question: What's it been like getting back on the football field after almost two years away from the game?

Answer: "It means a lot. I obviously haven't taken that much time off from any sport and definitely not football. I've been playing tackle football since the third grade so to have that amount of time off both because of injury and COVID was really weird. It was weird watching football all the time and not actually doing it myself and not being at practice and not being around a team is really what I missed most. Being drafted, especially getting drafted by a team like this an organization like this has been such a blessing and above all else it's a blessing to get back on the field and start practicing and playing and building relationships like you do on a team has been awesome."

Question: Was it like riding a bicycle? Did you just get on and start pedaling again?

Answer: "For me, yeah, it is. I kind of was a little nervous going into rookie minicamp and OTAs because I hadn't done it in a while but as soon as the ball was snapped it was just playing football again. I started walking off the field and I didn't feel like I missed a beat and so I felt like it was an easy transition, and I was glad to be able to make it."

Question: There are a lot of eyes on you, a lot of expectations for the player you're supposed to become for the Jaguars. How do you deal with that kind of attention? Especially considering

Getting to know:

WALKER LITTLE

you have been on the sidelines for most of the last two seasons?

Answer: "Ever since I was in high school I was billed as a big-time recruit and the expectation since I was 17 years old was that I was going to become an NFL left tackle or an NFL offensive lineman and so I've been told that my entire life. When you're a little kid and you're told that you're like 'what the heck?' It seemed so far away but then I got to Stanford and there were so many expectations and there always is and I think they're good. It's good to have that kind of pressure. It's good to have that pressure on yourself because it forces you to have big expectations for yourself and I'm always going to have higher expectations than anyone else has for me. I've always like it and been able to deal with it fine, it's never been too big of a deal for me."

Question: Do you feel better prepared to come in and play because you played at Stanford for David Shaw who has not only a strong Pac-12 program but a system that is as close to an NFL scheme as you see in college football?

Answer: "Coming from Stanford it wasn't too crazy of a transition because we ran a pro-style offense and they put a lot on us there. They tried to make it as close to playing in the NFL as they could but there is definitely a jump up in what we are doing and what we want to get done against certain fronts and it's only a few degrees off from what we did at Stanford. It's a blessing to come from a school like Stanford and have a jump start on things because of the way we played and called things were pretty similar to how we do things with the Jaguars."

Question: Offensive line coach George Warhop told the media last week that no matter how highly regarded a college offensive lineman is the move to the NFL requires time and patience. Have you seen this to be true in your short time with the Jaguars?

Answer: "As a player all that matters is what you do when you're out on the field and you're judged by games and the film and that's preseason and regular season games. I definitely think that's true and there is a lot of things that I saw that I can learn from and build upon and that's why you play those games. It was awesome to get as much playing time as I did as a rookie. My expectation, my plan, is to work hard and get in the playbook and be ready when they send me into the game. But it's definitely a big step up."

Question: You played for a great college coach at Stanford. You probably knew about Urban Meyer when he was at Florida and Ohio State winning championships. What has the transition from Shaw to Meyer from Stanford to the Jaguars been like for you thus far?

Answer: "It's been pretty awesome to come into this organization and to get to be around Coach Meyer who has been one of the most successful college football coaches in the game and has turned around a lot of programs really quickly and he's working on the same thing here. Everything that he preaches to us, some of that I've heard before at Stanford but plenty of it has been new and a lot of it is about mindset, the mindset we want to have each and every day at practice and on game days and just how he approaches each and every thing whether it's a lift or meetings or practice or recovery he talks about having a lot of intent about what you do and how you do it. Everything he does is about changing this culture and ultimately it's a great culture that's going to drive this organization so having a strong culture with some really good leaders is going to help every player and especially young players like me improve faster and help us get where we want to go faster which is to win a lot of games which is what we all want, and the city of Jacksonville deserves."

HR PLAY OF THE WEEK

Amy worked with one of her clients to completely automate employee onboarding so that new hires had all of their paperwork out of the way before they started work. After a few months, it seemed that new hires were not getting as much "in person" time to build relationships early on. She worked with the company's leadership to develop a high-touch, quarterly orientation program that gave new hires an opportunity to talk to all of the company leaders in an informative and casual setting. New hires love it and report an increased feeling of connection to one another and the company.
