OAKLAND RAIDERS (4-7) vs. DALLAS COWBOYS (6-5)

GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders head back out on the road for the third time in three weeks to play the Dallas Cowboys in their annual Thanksgiving Day game on Thursday, Nov. 28. This game will mark Oakland's third road game in a stretch of four road games in five weeks. The contest will also mark the Silver and Black's final match-up of the season vs. an NFC opponent. The Raiders are 0-3 vs. the NFC East this year, falling at home to Washington and Philadelphia, while losing to the NY Giants on the road. Thursday's game will mark the seventh time Oakland has played on Thanksgiving Day and first time since 2009, when they also played in Dallas. The Cowboys beat the Raiders that Thanksgiving, 24-7. The Silver and Black are 3-3 all-time in Thanksgiving Day games.

Last week, the Raiders suffered a defeat on home turf at the hands of the Tennessee Titans, 19-23. Following a QB Matt McGloin-to-FB Marcel Reece TD pass to give the Raiders the lead with 6:10 to play, the Titans drove the length of the field for a TD of their own with just 10 seconds to play, sealing a defeat for Oakland. McGloin threw for 260 yards on 19-of-32 passing and one TD in just his second-career start and WR Rod Streater totaled 93 receiving yards. RB Rashad Jennings paced the offense with 122 total yards (73 rushing, 49 receiving), his fourth-straight game with at least 100 total yards.

Dallas enters the contest coming off a huge road victory over the divisionrival NY Giants by a score of 24-21. QB Tony Romo led a game-winning drive late in the fourth quarter, setting up a field goal that K Dan Bailey converted as time expired to secure the Cowboy victory. WR Dez Bryant added 102 receiving yards.

Following Sunday's contest, the Raiders will go back on the road, as they travel to New York for the second time in five weeks to play the Jets, and the Cowboys will go to Chicago to play the Bears on Monday Night Football.

- There are two other Raiders from Texas: Assistant special teams coach Keith Burns (Hurst) and WR Denarius Moore (Tatum).

EXECUTE AND REPORT OF SECURITION

Raiders on Thanksgiving

Thursday's Thanksgiving Day game vs. Dallas will mark the Raiders' seventh game in their history on Turkey Day. Despite having played six times already, they have only faced the Cowboys - who have traditionally played on Thanksgiving every year since 1966 - just once. Oakland is 3-3 on the holiday and 0-1 vs. Dallas, with the last time they played on Thanksgiving in 2009. Prior to the 2009 game, the Silver and Black had not been featured on Turkey Day since 1970. Here is a look at the Raiders' Thanksgiving Day games:

THE HEAD COACHES

Raiders Head Coach Dennis Allen

When Dennis Allen became the 18th head coach in Raiders history on Jan. 30, 2012, he promised to field a tough, smart, disciplined and committed football team, noting that organizations win games in the National Football League by more than talent alone.

Allen, 41, is the NFL's youngest head coach, more than six months younger than the league's previously youngest coach, Pittsburgh's Mike Tomlin.

In 2012, his first year as a head coach at any level, Allen guided an Oakland team in transition, posting a 4-12 mark. The 2012 Raiders were defined by offensive, defensive and special teams units that improved throughout the season, laying a foundation for future success.

With 17 years of combined coaching experience at the college and professional levels, Allen enters his 12th NFL season. On six occasions during his 10 years as an NFL assistant, his team earned a playoff berth: 2002, 2004, 2006, 2009, 2010 and 2011. And four of those trips came after division championships: The NFC South with Atlanta in 2004 and New Orleans in both 2006 and 2009, and the AFC West with Denver in 2011.

His résumé also includes football's ultimate prize, a Super Bowl XLIV ring he earned by helping the Saints beat season MVP Peyton Manning, who threw for more than 4,500 yards with 33 touchdowns, and the Indianapolis Colts to conclude the 2009 campaign.

The NFL's second-youngest defensive coordinator when the Broncos hired him in 2011, he coordinated a defense that helped Denver parlay an AFC West crown into a Wild Card win and a date in the Divisional round. During his only year in Denver, despite starting three rookies most of the season, the Broncos improved 12 spots over 2010 in overall defensive ranking (from 32nd to 20th) and bettered their points allowed by eight spots (from 32nd to 24th).

Prior to joining the Broncos, Allen was an assistant coach for five seasons with New Orleans, first as assistant defensive line coach (2006-07), then as defensive backs coach (2008-10). Under Allen's direction in 2010, the Saints' secondary allowed an NFL-low 13 touchdown passes while ranking fourth in the NFL in net passing yards per game (193.9).

In 2009, Allen tutored a secondary that played a key role in helping the Saints to their first Super Bowl victory. His unit accounted for an NFL-high six interception returns for touchdowns and totaled 22 picks en route to their championship.

In 2008, his first year as secondary coach, Allen helped the Saints overcome season-ending injuries to both starting cornerbacks and contributed to a defense that held five opponents under 200 yards passing.

Allen assisted in tutoring the Saints' defensive line from 2006-07, helping defensive end Will Smith become a Pro Bowler in 2006 after posting 10½ sacks and forcing three fumbles.

He originally entered the NFL coaching ranks with Atlanta in 2002, spending four seasons with the Falcons as a defensive assistant. During his stint in Atlanta, the Falcons qualified for the playoffs twice—as a wild card in 2002 and as NFC South champs in 2004—and played in the NFC Championship in 2004.

Allen kicked off his football coaching career in 1996 as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Texas A&M, where he was a four-year letterman as a safety. He worked with Aggies defensive backs for four seasons before coaching the secondary at the University of Tulsa from 2000-01.

Cowboys Head Coach Jason Garrett

Jason Garrett was named the eighth head coach in Dallas Cowboys history on January 5, 2011. Garrett, who played for or worked alongside five of his predecessors, became the first former Dallas Cowboys player to become the team's head coach. Garrett was elevated to the Cowboys top job after taking over as the team's interim head coach at the midpoint of the 2010 season. He went on to guide a Dallas team that had started the season with a 1-7 record to a 5-3 mark down the stretch. In the season's second half, three of the Cowboys five victories were against teams that posted 10 regular season wins, while the three Dallas defeats were decided by a combined total of seven points.

Having literally grown up around successful head coaches in the NFL and in the Dallas Cowboys family, Garrett was a member of three Super Bowl-winning teams in the 1990s during his seven seasons as a Cowboys quarterback. His father, Jim, was a personnel scout for the team for 21 years and served under every Super Bowl winning head coach and ownership regime in franchise history.

He entered the coaching profession in February of 2005 as the quarterbacks coach for Nick Saban's first Miami Dolphins club. While in Miami, Garrett capably handled the challenge of having to work with five different starting quarterbacks over the course of 32 regular season games. In 2005, Miami quarterbacks threw 22 touchdowns with just 16 interceptions. Their plus-six differential was the teams best since the 1998 season when they were a plus- seven (23-16). In 2006, Garrett managed three starting quarterbacks for an offensive unit that produced four pass receivers who each had at least 55 receptions. It marked the first time in club history that four different receivers had at least 55 catches.

In his first full year as head coach, Garrett guided the 2011 team to an 8-8 finish as the offense amassed 6,008 yards for the second-highest yardage output in franchise history.

Garrett has served as the chief play caller on offense since joining the staff as the offensive coordinator for Wade Phillips in 2007. In 2008 he was assigned the additional duties of being the club's assistant head coach.

Under Garrett, the Dallas offense has reached high levels of productivity in several categories, and the unit has finished among the NFL's top-10 in total offense in three of his five years at the helm: 2010 (10th), 2009 (2nd) and 2007 (2nd). From the start of the 2007 season, the club has averaged 24.3 points- pergame and 369.9 total yards-per-outing. The team set single-season records in a handful of categories, and from 2007 to 2009 the cumulative numbers for total net yards (17,753), gross passing yards (12,761) and net passing yards (12,181) represented the best totals over a three-year span in the history of the organization. The club only bettered those figures over the next three-year span (2009-11), totaling 18,226 yards, 12,530 net passing and 13,144 gross passing yards. Under Garrett's tutelage, eight offensive players have earned trips to the Pro Bowl.

RAIDERS VS. COWBOYS

COWBOYS SNAPSHOT

Overview: The Dallas Cowboys come into their traditional Thanksgiving Day game on a high note. The Cowboys defeated the red-hot New York Giants with a thrilling 24-21 victory in the Meadowlands. The Cowboys now have a 6-5 record and sit tied atop the NFC East with the Philadelphia Eagles. The Cowboys enter Thursday's showdown with three wins in their last five games.

Offense: The Cowboys offense sits at fifth in the league in total points per game (27.4). The offense is lead by QB Tony Romo, who is having another productive season and remains one of the most dangerous quarterbacks in the entire NFL. Romo has thrown for over 2,600 yards and has an incredible 21 touchdown passes to only six interceptions. Catching a majority of those passes is explosive WR Dez Bryant, who leads the team with 52 receptions, 749 yards receiving and eight touchdowns.

Defense: Dallas currently ranks 25th in the league in points per game allowed (25.8) and last in yards per game allowed (439.8). The defense is lead by S Barry Church, who has recorded 80 tackles and three forced fumbles. DT Jason Hatcher leads the team with seven sacks and has one forced fumble.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 53rd year of professional football competition, including the last 43 as a member of the National Football League.

In five memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the 2000s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these Decades of Dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL Championship, four American Football Conference Championships, three World Championships of Professional Football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 Championship Games, won or tied for 17 Division Championships, had 21 playoff seasons, finished 34 seasons at .500 or better and played in 40 postseason games.

Pro Football's Dynamic Organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s and have won the most games of any original AFL franchise.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only two original AFL teams to have captured three World Championships of Professional Football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four different head coaches and started four different quarterbacks.

The Raiders are the last AFC Western Division team to go to the Super Bowl.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have totally dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During those memorable 50 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 421 league games, tied 11 and lost only 330.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raider organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

Nineteen of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Professional Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced five Pro Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 62 Pro Bowl players have made 180 Pro Bowl appearances representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-69-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders total domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 37-26-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 15-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the 2000s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

TEAM NOTES

Following the 575 rushing yards the Raiders have totaled over the last three weeks, they now rank fifth in the NFL in rushing yards per game.

RUNNING HARD

Through 12 weeks this year, Oakland's defense is holding up well against the run.
After finishing 18th a season ago in rushing yards allowed per game, the Raiders currently rank eighth in the NFL this season, allowing just 99.1 yards per game.
Here is where the defense stacks up against the rest of the league:

Rank Page 1	Team	Rushing Yds./Game	Rushing Yards	Attempts
1.	NY Jets	72.6	799	280
2.	Arizona	81.3	894	255

The Raiders have allowed just one first-half rushing touchdown this season. In 11 games, the Raiders have allowed just 47.0 first-half rushing yards per game, including a low of 8 vs. Pittsburgh Week 8. Oakland now ranks sixth in the NFL, allowing just 47.0 rushing yards per game in the first half.

Since the Raiders returned to Oakland in 1995, the team has limited the opposition to less than two yards per carry in a game only 12 times, including three this year. The 1.8 yards per carry allowed vs. Jacksonville, the 1.9 allowed vs. San Diego and the 1.8 allowed vs. Pittsburgh were the third, fourth and fifth time in the last two seasons the Silver and Black have allowed an average of less than two yards per carry.

Through just 11 games this year, the Raiders have already surpassed the number of total sacks they had all of last season (25). The 29 sacks have also been spread around at a remarkable rate, with 14 different players registering a sack. Oakland's 14 different players with a sack are tied for the second-most different players to have a sack in the NFL. Here is a look at who has recorded a QB sack so far this year for Oakland:

RAIDER RUSHING

The 2013 Oakland Raiders have committed themselves to the running game. This season, the Raiders are on pace to rush for the third-most yards in franchise history since the team returned to Oakland in 1995. One of the seasons the 2013 team is chasing is 2000, when they reached the AFC Championship game.

FORCING TURNOVERS

In Week 11's win at Houston, the Raiders forced two turnovers - a CB Phillip Adams fumble recovery and a LB Nick Roach interception. The game marked the fifth time this season that the Silver and Black have forced two-or-more turnovers, with their recored now at 3-2 in those games. Here is a look at the games:

ROAD WINNING

Week 11's win at Houston marked the first time in the last nine road games that the Raiders have won on the road. The victory was also Oakland's second win in Houston in the last three years. Following last week's game at home vs. Tennessee, the Silver and Black will play three of their final five contests away from O.co Coliseum.

SCORING EARLY

The Raiders are tied for the most points scored on their opening offensive possession this season with 38 after scoring a field goal on the opening drive last Sunday vs Tennessee. This week's opponent, Dallas, is fourth. Here is where they stack up:

HIORAL PRESENCE

On Oct. 24, the NFL announced that the Raiders would be playing the Miami Dolphins as part of the league's International Series in 2014. In addition to the Raiders-Dolphins game, the Jacksonville Jaguars will take on the Dallas Cowbys and the Atlanta Falcons will host the Detroit Lions next year at London's Wembley Stadium. Next season will mark the first time the NFL has played three regular season games in Europe, as the series started in 2007.

The Raiders have a number of individuals with an international background. 2013 second-round draft pick T Menelik Watson and third-round pick LB Sio Moore are the latest additions to an already global lineup.

woodson returns home

One of the most beloved players to ever put on the Silver and Black signed with the Raiders on May 22, 2013, returning him home to the team that drafted him with their first-round selection in the 1998 NFL Draft. After seven years with the Green Bay Packers, Woodson brings his Hall of Fame credentials back to the Raiders, solidifying a revamped secondary.

Woodson grew to fame at the University of Michigan, where he helped the Wolverines capture the 1997 Associated Press National Championship. His individual performance during the 1997 season earned him the Heisman Trophy, becoming the first predominantly defensive player ever to win the illustrious award. He was also honored with the Walter Camp Player of the Year, Jim Thorpe Award, Bronko Nagurski Award and Sporting News Player of the Year.

The fourth-overall selection by Al Davis in the 1998 NFL Draft made an immediate impact in the league, earning the Defensive Rookie of the Year and being selected to the Pro Bowl in each of his first four seasons (1998-2001). During his first stint with the Raiders, Woodson also earned first-team All-Pro accolades on three occasions (Associated Press in 1999, Sports Illustrated in 2000 and Sporting News and College & Pro Football Newsweekly in 2001).

After signing with the Packers prior to the 2006 season, Woodson continued to collect the hardware and add to his legacy. From 2006-12 with Green Bay, he was selected to four Pro Bowls (2008-11), two more first-team All-Pro selections (2009 and 2011) and the 2009 NFL Defensive Player of the Year. In addition to earning the highest honor a defensive player can achieve in a single season, Woodson followed up the 2009 campaign by helping the Packers win the Super Bowl in 2010.

All in all, the resume Woodson brings back to Oakland is impressive: The 1997 Heisman Trophy Award and National Championship in college, eight Pro Bowl selections, three first-team All-Pro selections, the NFL's 2009 Defensive Player of the Year award, four conference championship game appearances, two Super Bowl appearances and one Super Bowl championship. Charles Woodson has returned to the Silver and Black to write the next chapter.

A I FADER IN PICKS

S Charles Woodson, who posted nine interceptions when he won the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year award in 2009, is among the NFL's active leaders with 56 interceptions. Woodson trails only Texans S Ed Reed on the list of active leaders

 Since 1995, only three players have won both the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Year and Defensive Player of the Year awards in their career - Raiders S Charles Woodson (1998 & 2009), Ravens OLB Terrell Suggs(2003 & 2011) and former Bears LB Brian Urlacher (2000 & 2005).

LONG-TERM THREAT

Remarkably, S Charles Woodson has intercepted at least one pass in each of his first 15 NFL seaons. With a pick in 2013, Woodson has joined an elite list of players to intercept a pass in at least 16-consecutive seasons.

WOODSON: OUICK HITS

- Woodson posted an interception touchdown in six-straight seasons (2006-11), becoming the first player in NFL history to do so. No other NFL player has accomplished the feat in more than four-consecutive seasons.
- In 2009, Woodson became the fourth player in NFL history (since sacks became an official statistic) to record at least nine interceptions and two sacks in a single season.
- Is the only player in NFL history to post at least seven interceptions and two sacks in back-to-back seasons.
- Became the first NFL player (since sacks became an official statistic) to record two interceptions, an interception touchdown, a sack and a fumble recovery in the same game when he posted all of those statistics on 11/26/09 at Det.

BRANCH ON THE STO

franchise's all-time leaders in sacks by defensive backs. Branch and Woodson

S Tyvon Branch has been one the most consistent Raiders over the last four seasons. Branch enjoyed a breakout year in 2009, posting 124 tackles in his first season as a starter, leading all DBs in that category. Branch followed it up by leading Oakland in tackles for 2010 and 2011. Additionally, Branch set a career high in 2012 with 146 tackles, good for second on the team.

CLUTCH PORTER

touchdowns with less than 3:30 remaining in the game and his team leading by one score or less in his career, is in his first season in Oakland.

Porter made NFL history on 11/10/13 when he recorded a pick-six against Eli Manning, making him the only player to record a pick-six against both Manning brothers, Peyton and Eli. Porter intercepted Eli in the second guarter and returned it 43 yards for the score, giving the Raiders the lead.

Since he entered the league in 2010, DE Lamarr Houston has terrorized quarterbacks. He has 15 sacks in his career and is currently moving his way up the Raiders' all-time sack list and now has four this season. Here is a look at the Silver and Black's all-time list:

played a major role in Oakland's defensive makeover. On the season. Havden has now recorded 29 tackles and two PD. In the Week 5 win vs. San Diego, Hayden hauled in his first NFL interception, picking off Philip Rivers in the end zone to stop a potential Chargers

The Raiders signed LB Nick Roach as an unrestricted free agent on March 13, 2013 after spending his first six seasons with the Chicago Bears. Roach has been the catalyst for a makeover on the defensive side of the ball for the Silver and Black, helping lead the team to the sixth-overall ranking in the league when it comes to stopping the run. Bringing that experience to Oakland, here is what Roach has done over the last four years, and a look at how he has already set a career high in tackles through just 11 games:

LB Sio Moore, the Raiders third-round selection in the 2013 NFL Draft has emerged onto the scene in his rookie season. Moore, who has played in nine games and started seven, was named the NFL Pepsi Next Rookie of the Week for eight-tackle, 1.5-sack performance on 10/27 vs. Pit. In Week 11's win over the Houston Texans, Roach intercepted a pass for the first time in his seven-year career. Oakland made good on Roach's takeaway, as QB Matt McGloin found WR Rod Streater on the very next play for a 16-yard touchdown

BACKERS RKOMER

LB Kevin Burnett

Kevin and Kaelin Burnett became the first brothers to play in a regular season game in the history of the Raiders franchise in Week 1 at Indianapolis. The Burnett brothers are also the only active siblings in the NFL on the same team. Kevin, who is eight years older than Kaelin, joined Oakland on March 18, 2013, following two seasons with the Miami Dolphins. Kevin was originally drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 2005 and has appeared in 131 games over his nine seasons. Kaelin originally signed with the Raiders as an undrafted free agent prior to the 2012 season. Kaelin spent the first 10 games of the 2012 season on the practice squad before being elevated to the 53-man roster for the final six games.

In Week 4 vs. Washington, RB Rashad Jennings had one of the best all-around days in recent memory. In the first quarter, Jennings broke through the left side of the offensive line to block a punt that was recovered in the end zone for a touchdown. Later in the game, filling in for an injured RB Darren McFadden, Jennings produced 116 total yards of offense (45 rushing, 71 receiving). Jennings is the only person this season to amass over 100 yards of total offense and block a punt in the same game.

Over the last four weeks, RB Rashad Jennings has been the NFL's most productive offense player. Jennings leads the league when it comes to total yards, posting 553 (413 rushing, 140 receiving). ### RSTING ONTO THE SCEN

On 11/17/13 at Houston, undrafted rookie QB Matt McGloin burst onto the NFL scene. In his first-career start - and just second game played overall - McGloin had a record setting day, completing 18-of-32 passes for 197 yards, three TDs and a QB rating of 105.9. With his performance, McGloin became the first undrafted rookie with three or more touchdown passes in his first NFL start since 1987. Additionally, since the 1970

AFL-NFL Merger, the only other rookie quarterback to throw at least three touchdowns without throwing an interception in his first NFL start was Todd Marinovich in 1991, who also played for the Raiders. Here is a look at those McGloin and Marinovich's performance from those two games:

Player	Game	Passing	Yards	TDs	INTs

Todd Marinovich	12/22/91 vs. KC	23-of-40	243	3	0

As one of the team's most dynamic players, CB Taiwan Jones has had a large impact. Playing a key role on one of the best special teams units in the NFL, Jones plays as a gunner on the punting unit and features as the team's primary kickoff returner. Jones leads the team in special teams tackles and is constantly around the returner if he doesn't. Here is a look at a few of Jones' statistics from this season, many of which cannot be measured solely through numbers.

Oakland Raiders lose in final seconds

By Jerry McDonald Nov. 24, 2013

OAKLAND -- Progress eluded the Raiders again Sunday.

There were just enough mistakes in all three phases to add up to a 23-19 loss to the Tennessee Titans before 46,001 fans at 0.co Coliseum, with the Raiders unable to shake the reputation of taking two steps back for every step forward.

The Raiders fell to 4-7 despite taking a 19-16 lead on a 27-yard touchdown pass from Matt McGloin to Marcel Reece with 6:10 to play and sending their trusted defense on the field to close out the game.

Instead, Titans quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick capped an 80-yard, 14-play drive with a 10-yard touchdown pass to Kendall Wright on third-and-goal with 10 seconds left to win the game.

"We didn't make enough plays to win the game," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "You could look at a lot of things."

Foremost among them were missed field goals by Sebastian Janikowski from 32 and 48 yards, the ability of Tennessee to convert 10 of 18 third-down opportunities (7 of 9 in the second half) and a blown coverage that enabled Justin Hunter to juke two tacklers and turn a medium depth pass into a 54-yard touchdown play.

While the Titans were making a living on third down, the Raiders were only 3 for 10, and two of those came on their opening drive.

Besides his missed field goal attempts, Janikowski kicked field goals of 52, 48, 24 and 42 yards. Counterpart Rob Bironas had field goals of 33, 22 and 23 yards. The last touchdown to Wright was the lone conversion in the red zone for a touchdown by either team.

Tennessee improved to 5-6 on a day that saw the Jets and Dolphins both lose to fall to 5-6, with San Diego, Pittsburgh and Baltimore all winning to improve to 5-6.

The 5-6 teams are fighting for what looks to be the sixth and final AFC playoff spot, with the Raiders playing Thanksgiving Day in Dallas, then visiting the Jets and still having to face Denver and Kansas City in Oakland.

It also prevented the Raiders from winning back-to-back games, something they've accomplished exactly once under Allen -- beating eventual 2-14 teams Jacksonville and Kansas City on Oct. 21 and 28 of last season.

The Raiders were coming off a 28-23 win in Houston where they got off the field defensively in the red zone without giving up a touchdowns three times in the fourth quarter alone.

"We tried to emphasize getting two in a row," safety Charles Woodson said. "We haven't been able to do it. We certainly want to win at home. We have the opportunity to play here in front of our own fans, and we didn't get it done.

Fitzpatrick, who engineered a come-from-behind victory for the Buffalo Bills against the Raiders in 2011, was 30 of 42 for 320 yards, two touchdowns and no interceptions. He also rushed five times for 26 yards.

Fitzpatrick was sacked twice but repeatedly extended plays by evading pass rushers with a reverse pivot and break to his left. He completed 10 of 14 passes for 168 yards on third down.

The game-winning drive included an 8-yard strike to Hunter on third-and-7 to the Oakland 33 and a 9-yard pass to Hunter on third-and-6 to the 10-yard line. The touchdown also came on third down, with Tennessee a play away from bringing out Bironas to kick a field goal and force overtime.

McGloin was 19 of 32 for 260 yards, one touchdown and a second-quarter interception that led to a chip-shot Bironas field goal. His late touchdown pass put a charge into the sideline.

"We were thinking at least overtime, you know?" center Stefen Wisniewski said. "But the Titans made some plays there, and we didn't stop them. The defense made the plays last week and got a win for us. We came up just that short today."

Titans' TD with 10 seconds left beats Raiders

By Vic Tafur Nov. 24, 2013

Some of the Raiders admitted to thinking about the playoff possibilities before Sunday's game against the Titans, which is not a healthy thing for a 4-6 team to do.

Teams with a record like that make costly mistakes and have experience at losing winnable games - that's what they're good at doing. Plus, they don't have the talent to stop teams from imposing their will. That's why Oakland's players and fans are staring at a gut-wrenching 4-7 record.

Tennessee's Ryan Fitzpatrick hit Kendall Wright for a 10-yard touchdown pass with 10 seconds left to beat Oakland 23-19 Sunday at the Coliseum. Cornerback Tracy Porter, in the slot, seemed to let Wright go free on an outside move for the easy touchdown catch.

"Zone coverage," Porter said. "I was playing my assignment, and they made a good throw between me and the cornerback into a short window."

Perhaps the Raiders should have played man-to-man and rushed more than three players the way Fitzpatrick was picking them apart. And shouldn't Porter have known better than to let a receiver run free?

"Tracy was fine," Raiders head coach Dennis Allen said. "It's a tough route versus the coverage that we were in. I thought they did a good job of executing.

"But if I had it to do over again, I would have been more aggressive right there and come after them. So put that one on me."

Fitzpatrick put it on the Raiders all day on third down. The game-winner came on 3rd-and-10 and capped a 14-play, 80-yard drive. Fitzpatrick completed two other third-down passes on the march. He was 10-for-14 for 168 yards with two touchdowns on third down on the day.

Overall, the Titans (5-6) converted on 10 of 18 third downs, including 7-for-9 in the second half.

"They just out-executed us, plain and simple," Porter said. "Game plans, whether guys were out of position on certain things, coverages ... we were just out-executed."

An Oakland defense that has been tough - and some might say overachieving - all season knew what was coming, too. The crossing patterns that receivers Justin Hunter (109 yards) and Kendall Wright (103 yards) ran all day were right there on the game video.

"It's frustrating," linebacker Nick Roach said. "You've got to give them credit for being able to execute ... when you know it's coming."

Fitzpatrick also threw a 54-yard touchdown pass to Hunter, and Rob Bironas added three field goals to give Tennessee control of the second AFC wild-card playoff spot.

Matt McGloin, making his second career start, had thrown a 27-yard touchdown pass to Marcel Reece with 6:10 left to give the Raiders a 19-16 lead - but they couldn't overcome two Sebastian Janikowski missed field-goal tries. Both misses, from 32 and 48 yards, were wide left.

Janikowski, who did hit four field goals Sunday, wasn't around for comment after the game. He did tell 95.7 FM sideline reporter Lincoln Kennedy that the 48-yard miss in the third quarter was holder Marquette King's fault.

After Bironas put Tennessee up 16-12 with his third field goal, McGloin led the Raiders on a 75-yard scoring drive.

He was 4-for-4 for 74 yards on the drive and stood tall in the pocket and threw the touchdown to Reece just before getting nailed. McGloin lofted the pass over linebacker Zach Brown, who could not stay with Reece down the left sideline.

McGloin, an undrafted rookie out of Penn State, completed 19 of 32 passes for 260 yards, but also threw an interception that set up Tennessee's second field goal.

Besides McGloin's bad pass, the ugly first half had five field goals, a blocked punt, a lot of dropped passes and 12 penalties for 135 yards.

The Raiders led 9-6 at halftime, but could have had an even bigger advantage after Jeremy Stewart blocked Brett Kern's punt with 11 seconds left.

McGloin threw a 23-yard pass to Rod Streater on the next play, but Janikowski missed a 32-yard kick. That was his second miss from inside 40 yards this season after making 85 of 86 the previous five seasons.

On the opening drive of the third quarter, Fitzpatrick capitalized on a blown assignment for the game's first touchdown. Hunter was wide open and caught a pass 17 yards downfield before juking Phillip Adams and Brandian Ross and racing the remaining 37 yards to the end zone for the score that put Tennessee up 13-9.

"It was one of those days," Raiders safety Charles Woodson said. "It's disappointing ... to let a team drive down late in the game and get a touchdown to get the go-ahead score.

"We didn't expect to have that happen. We felt like we've played much better than that."

Instant Replay: Titans snatch game away from Raiders, win 23-19

By Scott Bair Nov. 24, 2013

OAKLAND - The Raiders could've finished their Sunday in line for a playoff spot.

The Miami Dolphins and New York Jets lost earlier in the day, leaving the No. 6 seed for the victor to claim.

After a 23-19 victory over the Raiders on Sunday at Oakland Coliseum, the Titans have it. The Raiders fall to 4-7, way back in a crowded race, needing a whole lot of luck to get back in it.

The Titans earned their standing with a 10-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick to receiver Kendall Wright with 10 seconds remaining in the game.

It was of no surprise that the Titans converted on a third down. They did so all game long, – the Titans were 10-for-18 on third down -- including a pair of crucial conversions that kept the Titans comeback attempt alive.

Rookie quarterback Matt McGloin's first NFL start was near perfect. His second start wasn't. The offense seemed disjointed early on, and he threw for 260 yards and had an interception that resulted in a Titans field goal.

McGloin turned it on late and gave the Raiders a fourth quarter lead. He connected with fullback Marcel Reece, who got open down the left sideline, on a 27-yard touchdown that gave the Raiders a 19-16 lead.

Jennings over 100 (again): Raiders running back Rashad Jennings had more than 100 yards of total offense for the fourth straight game.

Jennings had 73 yards on 16 carries and three catches for 49 yards. He steadily churned out yards in chunks and was the offense's only consistent weapon.

Batted down: Rookie quarterback Matt McGloin's height was a disadvantage on Sunday against the Titans, who batted down four passes at the line of scrimmage.

McGloin is listed as 6-foot-1, but it's doubtful he's that tall. He throws lasers that didn't clear the line of scrimmage and sold multiple drives. The worst offense came in the second quarter on 3rd-and-3 on the Titans' 6, which forced the Raiders to take a field goal without a realistic shot to make a play.

Seabass struggles (again): The Raiders struggled to reach the end zone, leaving them in desperate need of a reliable kicker. Sebastian Janikowski wasn't one.

The veteran missed a pair of field goals for the fourth time in his career, and that set the Raiders back in this game. He missed from 32 yards out at the end of the first half and from 48 in the third quarter. He made three other tries to keep the Raiders in it, because drives consistently stalled out before the goal line.

Rivera takes heavy hit: Rookie tight end Mychal Rivera got speared by Titans strong safety Michael Griffin in the first half that took him out of the game. Griffin was penalized for hitting a defenseless receiver. He torpedoed Rivera and knocked his helmet clean off.

He left the field under his own power but did not return.

Sitting it out: Rookie offensive linemen Menelik Watson and Lamar Mady were healthy scratches on Sunday against the Titans, a sign that the Raiders' front is finally getting healthy.

Receiver Denarius Moore, running back Darren McFadden and defensive end were ruled out with injury. The Raiders really missed Moore, who left the Raiders without many receiving options.

Safety Tyvon Branch and rookie quarterback Tyler Wilson were also rendered inactive.

What's next: The Raiders have a short week ahead. They play the Dallas Cowboys on Thanksgiving at AT&T Stadium to begin a set of back-to-back road games. The Cowboys played the New York Giants on Sunday and remain in contention to win the NFC East.

The Raiders have struggled on the road, although they beat the moribund Houston Texans at Reliant Stadium on Nov. 17.

Kawakami: Revamped Raiders a better fit for Dennis Allen's style

By Tim Kawakami August 14, 2013

NAPA -- This is Dennis Allen's kind of Raiders team, which I know mostly because Allen keeps pointing it out.

He's not saying this is a tremendously talented team, because he's too smart to oversell his current squad of mostly unknown, unproven players.

And he's not critiquing last season's more recognizable bunch, though we can all make plausible conclusions from what he won't say about the 2012 Raiders' 4-12 swoon.

But Allen, starting his second season in the Raiders' massive reboot alongside general manager Reggie McKenzie, is much more in his element in this year's training camp surrounded by players who actually want to be here.

"I think your first year you're really trying to figure it out, OK?" Allen said in an interview after Tuesday afternoon's practice.

"There's a lot of things you deal with as a head coach that you never dealt with as a coordinator, you never dealt with as a position coach ...

"There's no question I feel a lot more comfortable in my role. And I think having the guys on this team that we have, I think, helps me in that."

That's a twofold leap: Allen, the first-time head coach, now clearly understands the totality of his job (and there's no totality greater than inheriting the recent Raiders' mess); and that leads to the importance of gathering like-minded players.

Yes, it probably took longer than he and McKenzie thought it would take to get here, and this is just the start of the start.

In many ways -- new quarterback, new offensive coordinator, mostly an entirely new defense from 2012 -- this feels more like Year 1 in a startup than Year 2.

Still, Allen sees progress -- with his own coaching abilities, with his roster, and with the organization as a whole.

"What I'll say is, I like the players we have on this team," Allen said. "I like the way they come to work every day. I like their unselfishness.

"I like the fact that they want to come out to work every day and they want to try to get better.

"That's what I like about the 2013 Raiders."

For a lot of different reasons, he probably didn't feel much of that last season.

Instead, because of salary-cap constraints and the desire to keep the Raiders as competitive as possible (oops!), Allen had to slalom around the egos and declining production of veterans such as Rolando McClain, Richard Seymour, Tommy Kelly and Carson Palmer.

Now those players are gone. I would assume the woes of 2012 still linger in owner Mark Davis' memory, though.

So McKenzie and especially Allen are under the microscope this season, and Allen seems entirely fine with that.

"As I've moved forward, I've done a better job of trying to pick out who those guys are going to be that can help this team and lead this team and preach the same message that I'm preaching," Allen said.

What's left is a squad with expansion-level elements, especially after the rash of camp injuries that included Wednesday's devastating announcement that left tackle Jared Veldheer has a torn triceps and will be out for a while.

The Week 1 quarterback almost certainly will be journeyman Matt Flynn; other than tailback Darren McFadden and maybe safety Tyvon Branch, there isn't a prime-age star on this roster. "Me personally, I like our roster," Flynn said. "There's a lot of guys that have a lot of talent and probably some names that people have never heard of.

"But I truly believe that they will very soon."

Fact: This is not a quality roster. But a good coaching staff can do more and better things with a roster full of hungry, unproven players than the sludgy group the Raiders tried last year.

"Any time you come into a new situation, it's never exactly how you want it," Allen said. "So it's a process. And sometimes those processes take a little bit of time.

"It takes time to get everybody in place that kind of sees the same vision that you do."

At this year's training camp, Allen has turned toward a more collegiate atmosphere -- most notably, one practice determines whether the offense or defense gets to wear silver jerseys in the next.

The holdovers from last year have embraced it; Allen is quick to name defensive lineman Lamarr Houston and fullback Marcel Reece as returnees who have taken leadership roles this season. Allen also hired offensive coordinator Greg Olson to replace Greg Knapp and dump the zone-blocking scheme, and there were other key staff changes.

Again, this is much closer to Allen's kind of team, at least in attitude and philosophy. It's Allen's stamp on this franchise.

The Raiders probably won't win a lot of games, but they will have his stamp. They need his stamp.

If Allen's going to be on the hot seat in Year 2, he might as well do it his way. And I think Allen is the best shot the Raiders have right now.

Raiders' older Burnett pushes the younger

Vic Tafur September 4, 2013

Kaelin Burnett was an undrafted rookie at the Raiders' training camp last year, talking to his brother on the phone. Kevin, then 29 and almost seven years older, was a starting linebacker for the Miami Dolphins.

"We were talking about how great it would be if we could ever be on the same team," Kaelin said. "Kev said you never know what will happen, and the next year, voila, we're on the same team. ... Dreams do come true."

Kaelin, also a linebacker, has wanted to be like his brother his whole life, and in Sunday's opener, they both will run out of the tunnel in Indianapolis wearing silver and black. Kevin, signed as a free agent, will start; Kaelin is a backup.

They are the 73rd set of brothers to play for the same team in the same season, according to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, and the first to do so for the Raiders.

They will have to buy a lot of tickets for family members this season, but Kaelin said the sticker shock will be well worth it.

"He's the reason I played ball when I was younger," said Kaelin, who grew up in the Los Angeles area. " 'My big brother plays football. I am going to play football, too. My big brother plays linebacker. I am going to play linebacker, too.' "

Kaelin didn't make the cut initially last season, but was placed on the Raiders' practice squad before being called up for the last six games. This year, he wasn't really sweating cut-down day Saturday. He was pretty confident based on how he played this preseason, and so was his family.

"My family felt I did way better this preseason than last preseason," Kaelin said. "They felt I looked the part."

They should know. Older brother Kevin has been an NFL linebacker for eight seasons, and a pretty good, underrated one. Playing for the Cowboys, Chargers and Dolphins, Burnett has made 49 straight starts, and his 311 tackles since 2010 rank 17th in the NFL.

"Kevin's done a nice job," head coach Dennis Allen said. "I think he's an athletic linebacker. I think he fills a leadership role for us on defense, and we expect big things out of Kevin."

And, as you can expect, big brother expects big things out of his little brother. Kevin is often yelling at Kaelin during plays.

"I love it," Kaelin said. "He's helping me with everything, picking up on little keys. ... It's just great having your big brother here looking after you."

Kevin's pretty tough on him, right?

"Yeah, ever since I was young," Kaelin said, "so I am used to it by now." Well ...

"It's hard for him to take," Kevin said, "and hard for him to accept at times. I'm yelling at him while a play is going on, and then after the play, and it bothers him to some extent."

Kaelin has gotten a lot better, improving his hand-placement and pad-level techniques and getting off blocks. But not too quickly.

"Sometimes, I get too hyped up," Kaelin said. "I need to extend them first, use my eyes and see where the play is going and then get to the ball. Body control."

Allen said that Kaelin's "a guy that can run. He's still got a lot of developing that he needs to do, but he has a chance to develop."

Kaelin thinks he got better this preseason, and Kevin agrees.

"He's coming along," Kevin said. "I can't ask anything more of him. He is eager to learn and he wants to be good. He wants to be 100 percent on his assignments. Now it's just doing it over and over again."

When they leave the team facility at night, Kevin lists the things that Kaelin did wrong that day, so Kaelin can come in the next day and address them.

"I don't want to be a repeat-mistake offender," Kaelin said.

But, yes, there are times Kaelin doesn't want to hear what Kevin is saying. Because Kaelin not only grew up wanting to be like his brother, but he wanted to be better.

"It's very competitive, I must say," Kaelin said after a big sigh. "I love competing. We try to keep the smack-talking level down, but I feel like I am going to be a better player than him.

"He always tells me, 'Know your role. I am the big brother.' But I feel like in a few years, teams are going to have to look out for me."

Let you in on a little secret: Kevin wants Kaelin to be better than he is, too.

"I want him to be the best Burnett linebacker," Kevin Burnett. "It's not about who's better than who, it's about reaching your potential. "If his potential is better than (mine), I am going to help him reach that."

THE MONDAY MORNING OUARTERBACK

DJ Hayden's Heart is in the Game

Robert Klemko September 10, 2013

INDIANAPOLIS—Tori Hayden had a son, and she raised him as a single parent. She dropped out of college to do it. He chose football, and she didn't worry about the potential for broken bones or a bruised brain; she was just happy he wasn't selling drugs or buying them. Football helped raise him, drove him to college, and then it nearly killed him. He's got an 18-inch scar running down the center of his chest to prove it. But he refused to quit on football, and 10 months after his heart nearly gave out on him, Tori's son is playing against the biggest, fastest men she has ever seen in person.

Sitting in Section 137, Row 4, Seat 8 at Lucas Oil Stadium on Sunday afternoon, D.J. Hayden's mom squirmed as the rookie cornerback chosen in the first round of April's NFL draft made his regular-season pro debut. He entered the game on Oakland's first defensive drive. She could tell it was him by the way he walked across the field, the way he stood, the way he crouched in position.

"Oh Lord," she whispered, covering her mouth with her hands. "They're gonna throw at him because he just got out there."

Maybe you know the story: Hayden was polishing off a stellar senior season at the University of Houston when one day at a November practice a teammate's knee struck his chest, tearing the inferior vena cava—the major vein that cycles blood from the lower body to the heart. Most commonly the result of high-speed vehicle collisions, the injury proves fatal for 95% of those afflicted, according to the university's team doctor.

But Hayden lived—it helps that football teams have medical staff immediately at hand; Houston's medical trainer acted quickly to get Hayden into an ambulance and to a hospital—and after recovering he was cleared to play football. He was drafted by the Raiders, who many believe gambled with the 12th overall pick. Hayden had an impressive resume on tape, and glowing character endorsements—he was voted a near-unanimous team caption as a senior after only one year in the program, and he finished his degree in sociology while rehabbing the injury in the spring —but several teams took him off their draft boards for medical reasons alone. Plus, even if he was physically OK, could he ever be the player he once was? The Raiders had their concerns too, holding Hayden out of full contact until two weeks ago in the third preseason game, against the Bears. That day, Tori was so nervous for her son's first play that she reached down and dug her fingernails into the leg of the understanding stranger sitting next to her. On Sunday she was still nervous, but less so. Wearing an autographed, black No. 25 jersey, Tori predicted the play when the Raiders trotted out their nickel package on the first drive.

"That's what the Bears did," she said. "Go right at the rookie."

And Colts quarterback Andrew Luck did just that, hitting Darrius Heyward-Bey on a crossing route just before Hayden got hands on him to drag the receiver down after a 16-yard gain. "I knew it," she said.

Tori was once what you might call a helicopter mom. Born in Kentucky, she dropped out of Prairie View A&M in Texas upon having D.J. She moved to Houston with him and was working for a an energy company in town when D.J. went to college, and when word got to her from a coach that her son was slipping academically and showing up late to one of his classes as a junior-college transfer, she came to the lecture hall at UH to confront him. Yet when Hayden was faced with a life-altering decision—whether to continue playing football after emergency heart surgery and six days in critical condition—she stepped back and let him decide.

"I wasn't completely fine with him coming back, but I told myself he's a grown man and he can make decisions for himself," she says. "He knows his body, he knows his limitations and he's always made good decisions, so I just felt like he could make it on his own without me."

But she kept watching, and worrying. She's cautious about asking him about his health; after seeing how confident he's become, she doesn't want to project her fears and concerns onto him.

But they were evident as Tori watched each snap from her stadium seat, eyes fixed upon D.J., hoping only that he doesn't get hurt.

After Heyward-Bey's first down, the rest of the game was more encouraging for Tori, her uncle and Hayden's agent, Graylan Crain, sitting side by side. With eight more defensive opportunities in the first half, Hayden shut down his opposite numbers—T.Y. Hilton and Heyward-Bey—and Luck didn't look his way. On two punt returns he was the jammer across from the punt team's gunner, but the 23-year-old forgot he was allowed to jam the hopeful tackler.

"At first I just let him run, and ran with him," he said later. "I realized that I could put my hands on him. I put my hands on him and I think I did good."

By halftime Tori was alarmed by the speed and ferocity of play, shrieking as Colts linebacker Erik Walden clawed for a forced fumble. "They're too rough out there!"

But she grew more confident in D.J.—his play and his personal safety—as the game wore on. By the third quarter she watched the Raiders as a whole, with an eye on her son. "Now I just want him to get an interception," she said. "That's a drastic change, isn't it?"

The Raiders led as late as the fourth quarter behind an inspired performance by the defensive line and quarterback Terrelle Pryor. With less than 10 minutes to play, the Colts faced 3rd-and-2 at their own 42 as Hayden lined up across from six-time Pro Bowl receiver Reggie Wayne.

Hayden says he knew what was coming: Luck zipped a slant to Wayne, and Hayden closed fast, making contact with Wayne as the ball arrived and nearly swatting it away. He jumped to his feet in celebration, only to realize a moment later that Wayne had caught the ball for a first down.

That, he says, was his 'Welcome to the NFL' moment.

"I thought I broke it up, but he caught it," he says. "I thought it was good coverage. I've got to work on finishing the play."

The Colts went on to score the game-winning touchdown on the drive, Luck scrambling 19 yards past Hayden (who was in man coverage on Heyward-Bey, with his back turned to the QB—he's No. 25 in the video below) and the rest of the Raiders for a 21-17 lead. Pryor threw an interception in the final seconds at the goal line, ensuring a Colts victory. Hayden went without a breakup or a big hit on a par with his tackle of Matt Forte in his preseason debut—a torquing, slamming takedown that he says was the most contact he'd endured since the injury. This time around he played more than 25 snaps, the majority on defense as an outside corner in nickel. He was targeted three times, giving up up three catches for 37 yards and making the tackle each time.

"I wasn't really nervous at all," he said afterward. "I feel normal. I was just happy to be back out there doing my thing."

After the game Hayden dressed in the black slacks and shirt he bought at Men's Wearhouse before the preseason and the black and white blazer he picked up at Express, and shared a hug with his mother, who waited on the other side of a hip-high metal barrier separating family and friends from players as they made way to the team bus. She asked him how it felt: "Like a football game," he replied, bluntly. Head coach Dennis Allen stopped by, hugged Tori, shook hands with her uncle and agent, and offered his congratulations and encouragement to Hayden. Fellow Raiders rookie Sio Moore stopped by too, reminding DJ of his third-down gaffe.

"Next time, see the play before you celebrate," he said, grinning.

Moore and DJ have become close, rooming together on the road and in training camp and now sharing an apartment. While DJ sends mostly one-word answers to regular texters such as his agents and his mom, he has opened up to Moore recently. The linebacker is convinced DJ has mentally overcome nearly dying less than a year ago. Like a shark-bite victim who returns to surfing, Hayden felt he had no choice but to dive back in.

"People assume he's nervous," Moore says, "but he just goes out there with a mentality to play ball. Had he been like that, nervous, that would hold you back. We've had conversations; he's good. He just wants to stop talking about it."

In the media, sure, Hayden answers obligatory questions about the injury with curt-yet-polite one-liners. In postgame locker rooms he prefers to put on a shirt before facing the media, so as not to draw attention to the scar running down the middle of his chest. But at home with Moore he walks around shirtless, and on fishing trips too; not showing off, but not hiding either.

"He wears it with pride," Moore says of the scar. "It's not something he's ashamed of or doesn't like. It's a badge. Whenever he wakes, and especially when we go out on the field, he remembers what it took for him to get here."

LAMARR HOUSTON

ESPN AFC WEST BLOG

Raiders' Houston no longer 'little brother' Paul Gutierrez September 6, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. – How different will the Oakland Raiders' defense look Sunday?

Consider: Besides there being nine new starters, Lamarr Houston, who is making the switch from left defensive end to the right side, will be the only Raiders defensive player who had a sack last season with Oakland.

Yes, the Raiders had 25 sacks as a team last year, which ranked 31st in the NFL, and Houston tied for the team lead with four. Linebacker Miles Burris, who is on the reserve/physically unable to perform list, added 1.5 sacks. And that's it.

It's no surprise, then, that much is expected this season of Houston, who was voted a team captain along with fullback Marcel Reece and long-snapper Jon Condo.

"Lamarr was a guy that, going into this season, we kind of pegged as a guy that we wanted to be a leader for this team," said Raiders coach Dennis Allen. "He began to take a little bit of that role at the end of last year, and I think he's continued to improve in that regard as we've gone through the offseason and training camp.

"I think he'll continue to develop as a leader for this football team as we go forward."

Selected in the second round of the 2010 draft, Houston immediately made a mark with numerous training camp scraps. But he seemed soft-spoken off the field.

"When I was younger, I had (Richard) Seymour and Tommy (Kelly) here, so I thought I was going to be 'little brother' forever," Houston said with a roaring laugh. "Nah, but as the years have gone by, I could see myself being a captain now. A lot of my teammates respect me and it means a lot to me -- and I'm going to do the best I can to fulfill this role for this team."

So what, exactly, does being tabbed a captain mean to Houston?

"It means it's a lot of responsibility, a lot of respect," he said. "It's a big role to play. It means you're a leader. You basically represent the team when you're a captain, so it's a great honor. But it's more about the team."

And still, there are questions about Houston's skill set, and how it translates to the more pass-rush-emphasized right side.

At 6-feet-3, 300 pounds, Houston is not your stereotypical edge rusher, nor is he a bull-rusher.

"To be honest, I think my skill set fits perfect," he said. "Pass-rushing is about technique; it's not about who's the fastest or who's the strongest. I've been working on that a lot this offseason and it's been showing up in this preseason a little bit and in training camp, so I'm just going to try and build on that and do whatever I can to get better at playing on that right end."

Oakland Raiders' Jason Hunter likes living on the edgeBy Jerry McDonald
Aug 1, 2013

NAPA -- Living life on the edge as a defensive end isn't the most glamorous job in the NFL, but it suits Jason Hunter just fine.

The Raiders' starting left defensive end loves "setting the edge," a part of the game that doesn't carry with it the kind of fame and glory that comes from rushing the passer.

"Basically setting an edge is getting an extension on that tackle and knocking him back, that way it stops the line of scrimmage so the (running) back can't just get to the edge, and it forces him back inside to where the help is," Hunter said.

Setting edges has been an issue for a Raiders defense that has been run-challenged for the better part of the past decade. Right tackle Khalif Barnes, who has worked against Hunter throughout the offseason and training camp, thinks Hunter is more stout than his 6-foot-4, 270-pound build would suggest.

Offensive tackles blocking Hunter typically outweigh him by at least 30 pounds.

"He's thick, powerful, and he may look smaller, but he's very strong and has good hands," Barnes said.

In most cases, if Hunter has done his job, he hasn't made the tackle himself. Rather, he's set up an interior lineman or linebacker to make the hit.

"He's a guy who just tries to do his part," Barnes said. "If you try and do your part and then half of somebody else's, that takes away what you do by half. Do your part. It's a great mindset and the whole team needs to be like that."

Hunter's willingness to set the edge, as well as his work ethic and demeanor, are what led him back to general manager Reggie McKenzie and coach Dennis Allen.

McKenzie was a personnel executive in Green Bay when Hunter played with the Packers as an undrafted free agent out of Appalachian State from 2006 through 2008. When Allen was defensive coordinator in Denver in 2011, Hunter was a reserve defensive end, having played the season before in a 3-4 defense as an outside linebacker.

On a Raiders defensive line that too often has failed in terms of maintaining gaps and position despite having well-regarded talent, Hunter brings a reputation of carrying out his assignments with enthusiasm.

"Jason loves football, and he enjoys competing," Allen said. "He likes the physical aspect of the game where you're not begging Jason to come out here and want to play. You're not begging Jason to get the pads on."

Hunter was particularly excited to get the pads on this season after spending the 2012 season on injured reserve because of a torn triceps. It happened at a time when Hunter had ascended to a starting position under Jack Del Rio, who replaced Allen as defensive coordinator.

The timing could not have been worse.

"It really hurt me, man," Hunter said. "I thought I was having a real good training camp. It was hard, sitting at home, watching on TV and seeing all my peers from around the league playing games. It made me more focused to take care of my body, do the right things."

RASHAD JENNINGS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Newcomer Jennings takes sleep seriously

By Josh Dubow August 14, 2013

NAPA – Rashad Jennings takes every precaution he can to keep his body in top shape necessary for an NFL running back.

He eats a gluten-free diet and sticks to organic foods. He stretches every night and has a regular routine of pilates, acupuncture, yoga and massage.

And when the long days at Oakland's training camp are over, instead of settling into a soft bed, the first-year Raider climbs into a hyperbaric oxygen chamber to sleep.

Jennings bought the oxygen chamber as a rookie instead of splurging for a car, thinking it would help keep him fresh and prolong his career.

He admits it "freaks" out some people at first, and the loud noise forced him into a single room in what he calls the "dungeon" of the team hotel at camp.

But Jennings is working on getting some converts, saying at least six teammates are waiting to try out the chamber next week.

"It's not an end-all be-all," Jennings said. "It's not like this is the biggest healer in the world type of thing, but it does heal you on a certain level. It speeds up the process. I love to practice, and I love to stay on the field. It keeps you healthy. Playing this game is important to me. The way I eat and take care of my body is pretty important."

The Raiders are counting on a healthy Jennings as the backup to Darren McFadden, who has never made it through any of his five NFL seasons without an injury.

Playing the role of a backup to a big-play back is something Jennings has plenty of experience doing. He served in that role behind Maurice Jones-Drew in Jacksonville to start his career.

"I tell people all the time there aren't any backups in this league," Jennings said. "The backups are at home. You got to prepare as the starter.

"It's too late to prepare when the opportunity presents itself. I'm a piece of a puzzle. When I'm called upon, I have to make sure I'm making my statement."

Jennings did a good job of that in the preseason opener Friday against Dallas, carrying nine times for 39 yards.

He broke loose for a 16-yard run on a read-option play with quarterback Terrelle Pryor and showed the ability to grind for tough yards, something the Raiders are looking for in McFadden's backup.

Jennings is working his way back from two disappointing seasons in Jacksonville. After averaging more than five yards a carry in each of his first two seasons, Jennings missed the 2011 season because of a knee injury.

He then struggled mightily last season, averaging 2.8 yards per carry and becoming the 10th back with at least 100 carries to average fewer than three yards since 2000.

"It was a lot of things," Jennings said. "Looking at film, I could've done better, but it's all in the past whatever happened. It's a fresh start as a Raider, and that's what I'm out here to capitalize on."

Jennings entered camp in a competition with sixth-round pick Latavius Murray to be McFadden's backup and seems in position to get that job because of his experience and reliability.

Murray also showed some good signs in the preseason opener, carrying eight times for 29 yards. But he has missed time throughout camp with injuries, to coach Dennis Allen's dismay.

"Being available and being accountable are two things that we have to make sure we're able to be," Allen said.

Oakland Raiders' Rashad Jennings has a healthy attitude

By Steve Corkran Aug 3, 2013

NAPA -- When Rashad Jennings entered the league, he did what most rookies do when they get their first chunk of money. He indulged in a big-ticket purchase.

Instead of a house for his mother or a fancy car for himself, though, Jennings bought a hyperbaric chamber as a means of helping his body recover quicker and better from the rigors of football.

"I bought one in my rookie year instead of buying a car because I knew this was going to prolong my career," Jennings said.

Sure enough, the day Jennings arrived here for his first training camp with the Raiders, Jennings unloaded the hyperbaric chamber from his car and hauled it up to his hotel room.

The device allows Jennings to sleep in an oxygen-rich environment, which promotes healing of his body. He also is on a gluten-free diet, eats organic foods, stretches every night and delves in yoga, Pilates, acupuncture, whatever has the ability to give him an edge.

The 4-foot-by-9-foot sleeping chamber also tends to make a ton of noise. Hence, Jennings is going solo this year, whereas his teammates share a room with one other player.

In Jennings, the Raiders are confident that they found a back that can make some noise as a replacement for departed veteran Mike Goodson, who served as Darren McFadden's primary backup last season.

The jury is out, for Jennings averaged only 2.8 yards per carry for the Jacksonville Jaguars last season in becoming one of 10 backs since 2000 to average fewer than 3 yards per carry with at least 100 rushes.

Goodson averaged 6.3 last season, though on only 35 carries. He bolted for the New York Jets in free agency. Soon thereafter, the Raiders pounced on Jennings.

Jennings, 6-foot-1 and 231 pounds, views himself as a lead back, though he has spent his entire NFL career backing up Maurice Jones-Drew. He is competing for the backup spot in Oakland against the likes of Jeremy Stewart and rookie Latavius Murray.

"I see myself just as a complete back, day-in, day-out, getting better," Jennings said. "Never making the same mistakes twice. I'll let the geniuses figure out where to put me on the field."

In a recent practice, Jennings was on the field as a short-yardage back. He showed little difficulty in converting third-and-1 plays during the drill.

"He's done some good things for us," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "One of the challenges you have for Rashad is ... Rashad's a big back, we want Rashad to play like a big back. That will be something we're going to look at as we go into the preseason is him being that big physical presence that we expect him to be."

So far, Jennings is looking more like the back that averaged 5.2 yards and 5.5 his first two seasons, respectively.

In a strange way, Jennings and the Raiders are alike in that they can't wait to put last year behind them and recapture past glory.

"These fans don't deserve that," Jennings said of the team's negative perception. "This organization doesn't deserve it. The city doesn't deserve it. Nobody on this team thinks that's going to happen this year, and we're going out every single day, erasing what happened from yesterday and preparing and focusing on turning things around."

Taiwan Jones carving niche at 'gunner'

By Paul Gutierrez Oct. 16, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- Taiwan Jones, drafted to be a speedy change-of-pace back for Darren McFadden in 2011 before being converted to cornerback this offseason, has found a home on special teams.

And he's made being a gunner on the Raiders' punt-coverage teams somewhat fashionable.

"I think Taiwan Jones, if he's not the best special-teams player in the league, he's one of the best in the league," said Raiders coach Dennis Allen. "He's a difference-maker in all of our coverage units.

"The type of speed that he's got, his willingness to go down and create contact and make tackles ... those are the things that you have to have and I think he's done an outstanding job."

Besides disrupting punt returners, often while being double-teamed, Jones has also flashed his world-class speed. On a trick play against Washington, he took the direct snap from Jon Condo after the Raiders shifted into a formation out of a punt with Jacoby Ford just off center. Jones then sped off for a 19-yard gain and a first down.

And, yes, while there was satisfaction in bursting down the left sideline on that play, his main job description is to blow up punt returns. And the way he's been playing the position of late -- he has five tackles on the season, including two at Kansas City last weekend -- he is getting satisfaction out of it.

"I have a lot of pleasure," he said. "I'm having fun out there. Being a gunner, it's one of those positions where it's not too much scheming; it's just man on man, mano y mano out there, and whoever has the most effort out there is going to win. That's one thing I enjoy."

Sunday, he limited Dexter McCluster to a 1-yard punt return off a Marquette King 50-yard punt in the third quarter before stopping McCluster for a 7-yard gain on a 51-yard King punt in the fourth.

"You've got to watch film," Jones said. "You've got to learn other team's tendencies, key into some of the clues they give you and use them to your advantage."

Jones said his goal is to make the Pro Bowl as a special-teamer.

"I'm shooting to be the best at what I'm doing right now," he said.

Allen obviously believes Jones is coming through on that promise.

"It means a lot because when you're putting it out on the field every day," Jones said, "it's good to see your head coach notice that."

Jones is making it easy for Allen, and opponents, to notice.

Motivated McFadden 'owes Raiders fantastic season'

Scott Bair September 5, 2013

Darren McFadden hears you talking.

The Raiders feature running back knows you call him injury prone. He knows you think his best football is behind him.

That's okay. Everyone's entitled to an opinion. It won't change the way he plays football.

He takes the negativity, bottles it up and turns it into fuel.

"I feel I've shown glimpses of what I can do," McFadden said, "but I still think my best football is ahead of me."

McFadden has reason to believe a career year is upon him. He's in the best shape of his life. He's working in a downhill, gap-control running scheme that suits his rushing style.

It's tailor-made for McFadden, a fact not lost on the former first-round pick.

"The organization has shown tremendous faith in me, and I'm very grateful for that," McFadden said. "I feel like it shows real faith in me and in this offense as a whole. They clearly have confidence in my ability and what I can do in a downhill running scheme.

I'm so excited to be able to run in this type of offense again. I feel like I owe the Raiders a fantastic season."

McFadden can only do that by staying healthy. He's been hurt in each professional season, making durability the biggest knock on this undeniable talent.

McFadden doesn't like being called injury prone. Hates it in fact. But he doesn't let it psyche him out.

"I just let it roll off my back," McFadden said. "But, at the same time, you can't help but think about it. I don't want to be known or thought of as injury prone, but I have gotten hurt. It's not going to change how I play the game. If I get hurt, then I get hurt. Those things happen. I'm going to play hard."

McFadden is also going to play fast. He has the speed of a less weathered back, the strength of a short-yardage back and the agility of a big-play maker.

Fans haven't seen that because McFadden has been extremely limited during a preseason where health is the only concern. Coaches have.

"I see the speed, I see that from Darren McFadden," Raiders offensive coordinator Greg Olson said. "We haven't gotten into any real live performance where he's going to go in an carry it 20 times a game but I don't see wear and tear on this running back, I don't see a decline in speed.

"We'll get a chance to see when the regular season gets going but we still believe that we have a real fine running back."

McFadden didn't live up to that billing last season. He averaged a career-worst 3.3 yards per carry and scored just three touchdowns. Then-coordinator Greg Kanpp's zone-blocking became the scapegoat for such a performance, especially after McFadden averaged 5.3 yards per carry in the two previous seasons.

The scheme was a source of aggravation for McFadden and the offense. He admits the season wore on his psyche.

McFadden enters this season with renewed optimism about this team.

"I think we're being underestimated," McFadden said. "We're better than most people think. I think we'll win some games and prove some of our doubters wrong."

McFadden is speaking for the Raiders and himself. He considers this the most important season of his career. A second straight bomb will kill his street cred and his earning power.

He enters a contract year looking for one more big payday. He prefers his checks signed by a Davis. If he doesn't perform, that won't happen. If he doesn't perform well, a long-term contract is out of the cards, maybe forever.

"It's going to enhance your motivation. How could it not?" McFadden said. "It's in the back of your head, but I'm still focused on football. I know that, if I take care of business on the field, everything else will fall in line."

This training camp hasn't lined up perfectly. His best blocker, left tackle Jared Veldheer, is lost until midseason. The interior line is in flux and Menelik Watson is playing out of position. Despite a radical change in scheme, the stars haven't aligned.

Having quarterback Terrelle Pryor should take some pressure off McFadden and the run game, but the world still knows No. 20 is gettin' the rock. While Pryor steals headlines, McFadden's the real marquee player. Without him, the offense can't survive.

McFadden is ready, willing and able to shoulder such responsibility.

"I feel as good as I ever have," McFadden said. "I'm 26 years old, but I still feel young. I feel like it shows when I'm on the field. I can still go out and fly around and make big plays. I'm always going to give my team maximum effort. I go all out on every play."

Oakland Raiders' McFadden happy to be running downhill again

By Jerry McDonald July 26, 2013

NAPA -- Darren McFadden took a handoff from Matt Flynn on Friday and with no hesitation hit a sliver of air between guard Lucas Nix and center Stefen Wisniewski at nearly full speed.

No defender laid a hand on McFadden until he was at least three yards downfield -- which is roughly what he averaged per carry in 2012 in a zone scheme ill-suited to his nature as a runner.

It was a simple running play in a non-padded practice on the first day of training camp, but illustrated nicely what McFadden does best. The zone scheme, which called on McFadden to move laterally before cutting back against the grain, helped drop his yards per carry to a careerlow 3.3 yards.

"I love a downhill scheme, so I'm very confident about it," McFadden said. " I'll just be able to get out there and go downhill. That's one of my strong points.

For all the changes on the Oakland roster, the one constant was McFadden. Both coach Dennis Allen and general manager Reggie McKenzie went out of their way to talk him up in the offseason.

Allen's hiring of line coach Tony Sparano and offensive coordinator Greg Olson came in part because both had the right answer in terms of getting McFadden back to the form he displayed in 2010 and 2011 when Hue Jackson designed the offense and called the plays.

It was Jackson who put in McFadden's favorite gap and power runs at the expense of the zone scheme preferred by Tom Cable. McFadden averaged 5.2 and 5.4 yards per carry in 20 games over those two seasons with 11 rushing touchdowns.

Asked what it feels like to have coaches who will cater to his talents, McFadden said, "It feels great. I feel like I'm a downhill runner and that's something the coaches see also. By getting us in a gap scheme offense, they feel that suits me a lot more."

Allen liked what he saw of the re-tooled running game on the first day of practice.

"We ran the football well, the offensive line did a nice job, the backs did an excellent job of being able to run the football," Allen said. "That's something we're going to have to be able to do. Darren's one of our most explosive players and we've got to put him in position so that he can have success."

McKenzie has "no doubts" Raiders will be better this season

By Vic Tafur July 26, 2013

You can tell by the smile on Raiders general manager Reggie McKenzie's face that he's heard all the preseason predictions and power rankings.

He was asked his thoughts on his team being picked at, or near, the bottom of the NFL. "I like being an underdog," McKenzie said after the first training camp practice on Friday. "We have expectations here, and I know the thoughts outside of the Raiders wall. I am looking forward to September."

McKenzie won't make any predictions but "I do know we'll play better than last season. I know we'll be better. I have no doubts about that."

The Raiders were 4-12 last season in his and coach Dennis Allen's first year. What bar will McKenzie use to evaluate progress this year if not wins and losses?

"You know it when you see a good football team," McKenzie said.

How close is Oakland to that?

"We'll see." he said. "We're not too far."

McKenzie was asked if he was curious to see how the new talent he's put together — 57 of the 87 guys on the roster today weren't in camp last year — gels in camp and the preseason.

"I'm not curious, I am eager, very eager," McKenzie said. "I am excited to see how the new guys we added mesh and develop. And I want to see how the four new (assistant) coaches do. So far, it's been good. ... I'm excited."

McKenzie was happy to see first-round pick D.J. Hayden on the field Friday, after the cornerback missed the offseason workouts due to abdomen surgery.

"In the NFL, it's all about having guys available," McKenzie said. "You need your better players on the field to have a chance to win."

McKenzie: 'I like being the underdog'

By Scott Bair July 26, 2013

NAPA - Reggie McKenzie hears all.

The general manager knows his Raiders are ranked among the NFL's worst. He's heard grumblings about a lack of talent and that he's restructuring this franchise at a snail's pace. He's aware this season is supposed to go so poorly that McKenzie might have the first pick in next year's draft.

McKenzie knows what is being said, and respectfully disagrees with all of it.

His message during Friday's meeting with the media was a simple one: Go ahead. Count us down and out.

"I like being the underdog," McKenzie said. "We have our own expectations here, and I believe we'll reach them."

McKenzie didn't set a bar for wins or guaranteed success, yet he believes his Raiders are better in Phase Two of his master plan.

The first step was hiring a new coach in Dennis Allen last year. Since then he's tried to stock this roster with a hand tied behind his back, waiting for the team to escape salary-cap hell. In such a position, slow and steady is the only way to win a race.

McKenize overhauled the roster with low-profile acquisitions, especially on a defense that should have nine new starters, but believes this team is much better than last year's group.

"Without a doubt," McKenzie said. "That's what comes in time. When you get things going the way you want, good things happen. When you get your coach and you start adding the right players, things start to mesh together."

He believes this group will bond together during camp and emerge a more competitive team despite so many new faces.

"I'm not curious about this group, I'm eager," McKenzie said. "I'm eager and excited to see how they play during the regular season."

McKenzie thinks fans will see the improvement he sees, and believes his Raiders are on the verge of being a good football team.

"We'll see," he said. "It's not too far (away).

SIO MOORE

SILVER AND BLACK PRIDE (SB NATION.COM)

Life lessons have only strengthened Sio Moore By Marcus Allen Krause

July 31, 2013

Sio Moore was given a second chance at life. Not everyone does, just look at yesterdays tragedy for an example of two athletes that weren't granted that luxery. Texas A&M redshirt freshman Polo Manukainiu and Utah incoming freshman recruit Gaius "Keio" Vaenuku lost their lives in a car crash yesterday. Sadly all we can do at moments like this is let them truly remind us of how lucky we are to be alive.

Sio doesn't need the reminder even if some of us do forget how lucky we are from time to time. No, Sio Moore already lives his life knowing how close it was to being taken away. He has used his near death experience as motivation, always remembering how just a shake of his head could have taken his life.

Moore's family is originally from Liberia, a country torn by a Civil War that got so bad that his parents migrated to the US in 1990. Ironically they took him from a true war zone in Liberia, to one that he put himself squarely in the middle of by associating with the wrong crowd.

Sio knows now that the people he was with were not who he belonged around. He was risking himself by being in the wrong places at the wrong times and it took a near death experience to awaken his inner warrior. He was just 14 and at a party that had just been shutdown. It was here where he had his moment of change. It came from a gunman firing at the back of his head as he fled for his life.

"I wasn't hanging around the right people," Moore told New Haven Register columnist Chip Malafronte "I was getting myself into situations I shouldn't have been in. It took a near-death event for me to realize the path I was going down was the wrong one."

"A bullet went right by my right ear and hit a car next to me," Moore said. "That haunted me for a good while. I kept thinking about it. What if I turned around at the wrong time? That bullet would have hit me in the head."

After that day Sio stopped hanging out with that crowd, he realized he must live better, and he uprooted himself on his own to make his desire for a better life a reality. He picked up the phone and he called his sister Tiplah Broadnax who is 19 years his senior and her husband Grady. He asked them if he could live with them, and then Sio promptly moved many miles away from where that speeding bullet almost took his life.

Our own Levi Damien recently interviewed Sio and he asked about that moment. Its easy to see what we all like so much about Moore when you read his response.

"Yeah, man. 100 percent. My life could have been changed multiple times. That was only once. I had Civil War broken out in 1990, I would have never came to the U.S. There are so many things that I'm thankful for, blessings and things around me."

Though the attempt at his life was plenty enough of a life changing event to change Sio deep within his soul, it would still not be all that he would face. Even after he made his way out of the life he was living and onto Connecticut University's football roster the fates would still test him more.

The new test would come at the expense of another young man who was cut down mercilessly and unjustly, though this was no accident like what took the lives of Polo and Keio. The test would come at the expense of a teammate, a leader of the Husky defense, and a friend who was succeeding at life in a way few are lucky enough to experience. The test would come at the expense of UConn DB Jasper Howard, who was stabbed to death in a senseless crime that happened on campus in 2009.

Now Sio Moore lives life to the absolute fullest. He carries a reminder of his friend Jasper with him everywhere, he has a tattoo in memory of him across his mid-section in the same area that Howard was stabbed in. Its another reminder of the pain he has gone through that has strengthened his resolve, the same as another tattoo that depicts his life without his father has.

Though those tattoos remind him of the pain he felt, there is also hope and love deeply involved in them. The hope in the tattoo of Jasper is the hope of honoring his lost friend, the hope of living his life in a way that would make Jasper proud. Its a reminder to never again take his life for granted, which is a hope that we could all use instilled in us.

The tattoo about his father has a man and a boy standing next to each other with a space between their reached out hands, which Sio says is to symbolize his non-relationship with his own dad. The hope is there though still because he plans on uniting the hands the day he has a child. The tattoo is there to remind himself to be a better father than the one he had, which is a hope that many people understand more than words can express.

Seeing the strength of Sio's commitment to life is what so many of us are drawn to. We don't know yet if he will be able to play in the NFL, but he gives every reason there is to believe he can. He is the change we need in this franchise and the hope we all have for the Raiders future. Its a lot of pressure but it feels right to put it on Moore's shoulders. After all, his life has shown that he is already a man that refuses to break.

TERRELLE PRYOR

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED

For Pryor, challenge of being first-time starter extends beyond field

By Jim Trotter Nov. 14, 2013

It's midday of an October Friday, and with the Raiders in their bye week after losing four of their first six games, many players have left town to recharge and regroup. Quarterback Terrelle Pryor isn't among them. He's spent this morning at the team's training facility in Alameda, Calif., devouring digital cut-ups for things to work on, most notably not drifting in the pocket when taking snaps from shotgun formations.

Despite showing promise over the first half of the season -- his 58.9 completion percentage tops that of Andrew Luck, Tom Brady and Eli Manning, for instance, and his 63 rushing yards per game lead all quarterbacks -- he has been sloppy as times, especially in the previous Sunday's 24-7 loss at Kansas City. So he grabs a football and corrals quarterbacks coach John DeFillipo and prepares to head out back to an empty practice field, only to receive word from GM Reggie McKenzie that the impromptu session was impermissible because it would violate the collective bargaining agreement, which requires players to have four consecutive off days during the bye week.

Undeterred, Pryor tucks the ball and relocates to an off-site field where he practices his drops until his quads burn and sweat beads roll down his face. Then he slides into his sleek black Mercedes coupe and heads to his townhouse at the end of a cul-de-sac in the Oakland Hills. The view is spectacular. From the living room he can see the Bay Bridge to the right, and past it, San Francisco, partially hidden by a low marine layer. In the valley below sits antiquated O.co Coliseum, where he plays home games and two weeks prior led a stunning late-night upset of the Chargers, in which he completed 18-of- 23 passes for 221 yards, two scores and a 135.7 passer rating.

But football is the last thing on this 24-year-old's mind right now; his body is tired, his head sleepy. He has put in more practice hours and taken more game snaps in the first six weeks of 2013 than he did in his first two years combined, when he was a backup. He wants to nap as he unfolds his 6-foot-4, 233-pound frame over a white leather chair, but he's unable to do so because punter Marquette King, a close friend, and marketing manager Tyler Acevedos are visiting. A national media outlet also is calling repeatedly in hopes of setting up a photo shoot the next day, and two other journalists from another national magazine are waiting to conduct a previously scheduled interview.

Such are the blessings and curses of being a starting quarterback in the NFL. For Pryor, who entered the league as a third-round supplemental draft choice in 2011, his time was basically his own his first two seasons. He was third on the depth chart, which meant he was basically invisible to coaches, whose time was spent preparing the starter and, to a lesser extent, the backup each week. But that changed before the season opener, when Pryor beat out Matt Flynn for the starting job. After doing only a handful of interviews each of his first two seasons, he received 50-75 requests in the first week he was formally named the starter. His life has not been the same since.

Over the first eight weeks of the season Pryor provided SI with a behind-the-scenes glimpse of what young quarterbacks face when becoming a full-time starter for the first time. Talents such as Andrew Luck, Robert Griffin III and Russell Wilson made it look easy last year, when they led their clubs to the playoffs as rookies. But the challenges are significant. The most notable for Pryor were learning to manage his time and outsiders' expectations; establishing himself as a leader; and dealing with adversity.

If Pryor didn't realize the responsibility that comes with being the face of a franchise beforehand, he did early in the season when a fan approached him. Like most who run into the former Ohio State star around town, the fan just wanted to say hello and offer a few words of encouragement. But this time was different because the fan became overly emotional. Tears ran down his face as he thanked Pryor for bringing hope to a franchise that has not had a winning season since 2002. Pryor didn't know how to respond. This was deeper than football. He knew the pain of losing a game, but seeing someone who had lost hope -- and now rediscovered it -- was a sobering lesson that he was accountable not only to his teammates and coaches, but also a fan base starved for success.

Pryor smiled and hugged the fan. Football players often are erroneously viewed as brutes who lack compassion, but the exchange clearly resonated with Pryor. Since leaving Ohio State a year early after being suspended for receiving improper benefits, he has become more spiritual and appreciative of friends and supporters. It's common for him to tell friends to text him when they get home so he knows that they've arrived safely. He is similarly concerned when it comes to his team, which he's learned leads to physical and mental fatigue.

That wasn't an issue his first two seasons, when he was the forgotten man as the No. 3 QB. He knew there was virtually no chance of playing on Sundays, so he would arrive at the Raiders' headquarters shortly before the first meeting and head home almost immediately after the last one. He worked hard in between, but when the work day was over he often was home by 3:30 or 4 p.m., stretched out on the couch, watching a movie or fiddling with a Madden controller. "I figured, 'Hey, if they don't want me to play ...'" said Pryor, who now can be found at the facility from 5:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The "office" has become a sanctuary for Pryor, who has become a target since moving into the starting lineup. People want to greet him, take a picture, get an autograph. Now, if he's in the mood for relative privacy, for a dinner without interruption, as he was three nights before a Week 4 game against Washington, he'll drive 20 miles east, through the Caldecott Tunnel, to the less intrusive suburb of Walnut Creek. But even there he's not entirely safe. His waiter at an upscale steak house gets tongue-tied discussing the specials because, he says, he's a huge Raiders fan; his mom even worked at a popular sports bar frequented by Raiders fans.

The reality is that there's no place for Pryor to hide, not even in his own locker room. Quarterbacks face more scrutiny than any other player. He's the person who sets the tone for the team, and how he handles a difficult situation --a loss, an injury, a locker room issue -- could have a ripple effect. If he is lackadaisical in his approach, others might be as well. If he takes short cuts, they might too.

That lesson was driven home early this season after Pryor was late for an offensive meeting because, well, he needed a few extra minutes in the bathroom. Irritated by this, offensive coordinator Greg Olson let him have it. Olson, who is liked and respected by his players, demands accountability from them. In this instance he reminded Pryor that everything he does has consequences, good or bad. If the starting quarterback doesn't think it's important to be at a meeting on time, regardless of the reason, then why would someone else?

Now, Pryor says he's so aware of Olson's words that he hesitates to hit the head even when he has the urge.

In most organizational models, the quarterback sits at the top of the pyramid when it comes to players. He's the guy who sets the tone and holds others accountable. But if you're Pryor, and you've had only one start coming into this season, how do you lead when all you've done for two years is follow? How do you make your voice ring resoundingly when for two years your role was to be seen and not heard?

"There's a respect factor involved," Pryor said. "I like to challenge everyone on the team, not just the offense. But in the beginning I couldn't do that because -- imagine that you're [defensive end] Lamarr Houston and you're a solid player, been in the league four years, one of the team captains, you've got respect in the game, and I come up to you and say, 'Hey, pick up practice.' You would look at me sideways and smirk. But if you earn your way and you get a little respect and you go up to him and say that same thing, it's different. He'll respond."

But how best to do that? Working hard and making plays are definite requirements, but there's so much more to being someone who commands respect in and outside the locker room. Lamonte Winston, the Raiders' Director of Player Engagement, has been instrumental in helping to develop Pryor as a leader. He studies him during practice and games and meets with him weekly to discuss the necessary characteristics of being an effective leader. Their early talks dealt with being a professional and managing the media. Look reporters in the eyes, Winston said. Keep your head up. If you've got a baseball cap on, raise the bill so people can see your face, he said. He reminded Pryor that the media were there to see and hear him, so don't act like it's an imposition to be there. Engage them.

Later their conversations turned to things that happened in the game. Winston can recall an early-season matchup in which Pryor was upset about something that happened on the field and vented as he came to the sideline. The rant didn't stop there, however. Pryor kept venting for everyone to hear. The next week Winston informed him that the behavior would push away teammates instead of unifying them. Pryor took the words to heart and has since been much more conscious of his words and actions in the heat of the battle.

"Terrelle is a very conscientious young man," Winston said. "He wants to do well. He wants to be really, really good. The thing he had to learn was that when you sit in the captain's chair as a quarterback, all eyes are on you. There's a default look that we all have when you think nobody is looking at you, and he didn't know that he had that. I said, 'How you carry yourself is important.' It's an unwritten part of the job, but it's there. If you don't play well, you should have the same confidence and look and approach to folks as when you do play well. We have to assume our responsibility. People want to see the consistency in your personality. That's the development of a great leader. Once Terrelle understands something from a trusted source, he'll do whatever it takes to change."

Pryor now has earned the right to have his voice heard in practice and meetings. He has no reservations about speaking up or speaking out. In practice, when the tempo is lacking, or he sees an offensive lineman dragging and sucking air, he'll sprint downfield after a handoff even if the play doesn't call for him to do so. Then he'll hustle back to the huddle, showing his teammates that he's willing to do more than what's asked of him. That he's holding himself accountable.

"I try to pick guys up and make them play to a level of expectation," he said. "I feel like I have a connection with everyone on the team, that I can challenge them without them taking it wrong. I challenge them to be great."

After a Week 1 loss to Indianapolis, which concluded with him throwing an interception at the Colts' six-yard line in the final minute with the Raiders trailing by four, Pryor was more angry than disappointed. He felt he had lost the game not by throwing the pick, but by taking a 16-yard sack two plays earlier, on first-and-goal from the 8. When told afterward that Indy's coaches were effusive in their praise of him, he said: "Tell them they won't beat me again. ... They got lucky."

Cocky or confident, it was just the right tone for a team seeking a return to relevance. If he didn't believe it, why should his teammates?

Winston thinks it's working, and he points to the reception Pryor received two weeks later when, after sitting out Wednesday and Thursday practices while recovering from a concussion, he returned to the field on Friday. Offensive linemen stopped what they were doing and approached the QB. It was a sign that they not only cared about him, but they trusted him as the guy to lead Oakland back to respectability.

"It was so awesome that I brought it up to him later," Winston said. "I wanted him to understand what had happened. That was a huge moment. When nobody was looking, when it was just him and his offensive line, there was that bonding moment. How great was that?"

***

It's a harsh reality of the NFL: First-rounders and high-price free agents traditionally get more time to work through their struggles because their teams have made significant investments in them. But when you're someone like Pryor, a third- round supplemental pick who early on had the stigma of the Ohio State scandal attached to his back, your opportunities aren't usually as plentiful. A few bad performances, an injury and -- who knows?

Pryor was reminded of this on the evening of Oct. 5, while communicating with fans on Instagram. He had played reasonably well in the Raiders' first three games -- a close loss to Indy, a win over Jacksonville and a loss at high-powered Denver -- but now fans were asking him about the Raiders' reported interest in QB Josh Freeman, who had been released by Tampa Bay two days earlier. Pryor was blind-sided.

"When I heard about it, I'm like, 'Geez, I haven't played terribly,' " Pryor said the following night after an impressive showing in the win over San Diego. "The two losses -- Indianapolis and Denver, are two of the top teams in the league. I was thinking, Maybe they [the fans] don't like me."

Pryor smiled as he said it, but McKenzie, who was not with the team when Pryor was drafted, wasn't joking when he said after the San Diego victory that his job is to assemble the best 53-man roster possible, then let players compete for playing time. In the Raiders' eyes, Pryor remains raw, particularly as a passer. That's not surprising considering he averaged just 159 pass attempts over his three seasons at Ohio State. Pryor's strength always has been his dynamic running ability, and the hope in Oakland is that he will one day complement that with an improved passing game.

In the meantime, they remain non-committal on him longterm (he's in Year 3 of a four-year rookie deal). They need to see more plays like this one against the Chargers: Midway through the fourth quarter, San Diego had cut Oakland's 24-3 lead to a touchdown. The Chargers had momentum and the Raiders faced 3rd-and-14 at their own 41; a defensive stop would've given San Diego great field position for a potential tying score. Instead, Pryor eluded a would-be sack in the pocket, sprinted to his right and lasered a 19-yard completion to Brice Butler. Four plays later, Sebastian Janikowski kicked a 50-yard field goal for a comfortable two-score lead.

Still, it's games like the following week's loss at Kansas City that give Oakland pause. There, Pryor was sacked nine times and threw three interceptions, one more than he accumulated in his first four games combined. The QB easily could've pointed to his third-string center and left tackle or to his reserve right/left guard, but Pryor put the performance on his own shoulders. He missed protection calls at times and forced plays at others.

"We were down 14-7 and we were getting first downs, but every time we got near the 50 we had to punt," he said. "Their quarterback, Alex Smith, was managing the game better than me, checking down and moving the chains. So, I was like, I've got to make something happen. I've got guys who look up to me as a leader, and they're saying they need me to make a play. I got caught up in that trap and tried to do more than I should have."

Raiders coach Dennis Allen has said on multiple occasions that one of the things he likes about Pryor is his ability to learn from his mistakes, and the first-year starter's words suggest the coach is on to something. "I truly believe [we were] meant to run into Kansas City this early so I could learn and understand situations," Pryor said. "Managing the game is going to come up at important times. I don't know when or where, but I know it will be important."

The words proved prophetic following the bye, when the Raiders held off the Steelers after building a 21-3 lead. But the past two weeks have involved more learning and more growing pains, first a 49-20 loss to the Eagles and a 24-20 defeat against the Giants. Pryor struggled against Philadelphia and failed to finish the game because of a knee injury. It wasn't the first time he had dealt with adversity, and it won't be the last. (Pryor faces another challenge this week as the knee injury suffered against the Eagles continues to plague him.) The unanswered question is, how will he handle it? Before finally taking a nap during the bye week, he addressed the ups and downs of being a young starting quarterback as follows:

"I'm enjoying the process of getting better," he said. "I know I'm not the greatest, but I kind of amuse myself in my mind by acting like I am. That's how you've got to be. That's the first step to achieving your goal. There are so many things you have to deal with as a young quarterback that if you don't believe in yourself, who will?

THE MONDAY MORNING QUARTERBACK

No Pryor Restraint

By Jim Trotter August 30, 2013

SEATTLE — After concluding the preseason with a 22-6 loss to the Seahawks on Thursday night, Raiders coach Dennis Allen was asked if he knows who his Week 1 starting quarterback will be at Indianapolis.

"I'm not going to tell you, but yes," he said.

Football coaches are funny creatures. They treat secrecy as if it were currency and cling to the concept as if it were gold. Still, you would have to be deaf (to the players), dumb (to the realities of the Raiders' situation) and blind (to the playmaking abilities of the candidates) to believe Allen should go with anyone but Terrelle Pryor, the unpolished passer yet gifted runner who has provided the biggest spark to the offense.

It's true that Pryor's numbers were awful in his only preseason start on Thursday. He completed just 3 of 8 passes for 31 yards with no touchdowns, one interception and a 9.9 rating. By artwork standards, it was a finger-painting. But what the numbers do not say is that the Raiders' blueprint for winning has blown up. They entered training camp wanting to be stingy on defense and mistake-free on offense; that way they could get to the fourth quarter and have an opportunity to make a play and win. But in four exhibition games the defense allowed scores on 16 of 18 first-half series, excluding a kneel down. It gave up seven touchdowns and nine field goals, forced just one punt and had another series end with a blocked field goal.

There's little reason to believe the unit, which could have as many as nine new starters, can flip a switch at the beginning the regular season. Consequently the Raiders are going to have to be more dynamic on offense, which hurts Matt Flynn. His advantage over Pryor is his experience and efficiency. That, however, works against him if the offense is playing catch-up, particularly with a line that might be among the worst in the league (especially after left tackle Jared Veldheer was lost until at least the midseason with a torn left triceps).

It's little wonder that the word most often heard in the Raiders' locker room after the game—and in private conversations with players beforehand—was playmakers. As in, We need them. Pryor is just that, even if the numbers from Thursday don't reflect it. When he's on the field there's a feeling that something positive could happen. On any given play he could carry the ball 70 yards, and, unlike Flynn, he has the arm strength to stretch the field in the passing game.

That's critical because the Raiders sorely lack playmakers on offense. Running back Darren McFadden has the ability, but he has yet to play a full season since entering the league in 2008. Wideout Denarius Moore is another, but he tends to disappear for stretches. Running back Marcel Reece can pose a matchup problem for defenses in the passing game. There are no established threats beyond them.

Behind a stout line, with a stingy defense, the Raiders could make it work with Flynn. But that's connect-the-dots stuff, and Oakland lacks the necessary dots. Which is why they need someone like Pryor, a 6-4, 233-pound signal-caller who can improvise on a broken play to create something beautiful, as he did on Thursday night when he gained 25 yards on a scramble.

His rawness as a passer works against him, although he is improving. On Thursday he was hurt by a couple of drops, and his interception was the result of being late with the delivery on a deep pass down the sideline. Pryor attributed his tardiness to being inexperienced throwing to double-moves from the pistol formation, which is what was called on that play.

While he will never be confused with Tom Brady, the Patriots icon with whom he worked out part of the offseason, he also should not be viewed as the newborn colt who stumbled around the pocket at Ohio State. His abilities as a passer, and his understanding of the passing game, have increased exponentially since entering the league two years ago. Much of it stems from his work this offseason with Tom House, a mechanics/movement coach whose clients includes Brady, Saints QB Drew Brees and Chiefs QB Alex Smith.

His company, 3D QB, evaluates each athlete's throwing motion and functional arm strength, then develops programs to help build on strengths and correct weaknesses. It also develops a nutritional plan for participants and creates a mental/emotional profile. Pryor spent roughly three months working with House, sometimes two and three times a week.

"Pretty special kid," House says of Pryor. "The awesome thing about him is that he made adjustments almost immediately. He was hungry. He was willing to give what we offered a shot. The combination of his willingness to embrace the science and make it a little bit better for him physically and mechanically turned into some positive feedback real quick."

For instance, Pryor learned that he was leaving his chest open, which made him late with his delivery. "So when I was coming down to throw with my left arm, my right arm was saying it's time to go, the timing wasn't right," he said. "[House] kind of helped me with that."

"I tell all the great ones and those who strive to be great: Problem identification is half your solution," House says. "If we have a toolkit to help you with your solution, that's where the relationship builds. When we identified the few small problems that Terrelle had, and showed him the toolkit, it was unbelievable how quick he made adjustments. He's very authentic. He can actually look at his strengths and weaknesses and learn how to make the adjustments. That's what was cool working with him."

There will be growing pains if the Raiders go with Pryor. Their initial plan was to create a package of plays for him, many relying on his athleticism. But that has been adjusted in recent weeks. More is being put on his plate. Viewed as a role player coming into camp, he's now a potential leading man. So much so that Allen got upset with him Thursday night for taking an unnecessary hit on a bootleg. That never would have happened last year, or even a few weeks ago in the first preseason games. But times are changing.

Allen knows Pryor's value is now greater than a dozen or so plays. He didn't say as much Thursday night, but look for him to do so in the next few days. It'll be the right call.

Raiders' Terrelle Pryor rebuilds his image as a quarterback

Sam Farmer August 11, 2013

NAPA, Calif. — Terrelle Pryor, the last draft pick made by Oakland Raiders owner Al Davis, can now make a remarkable admission for an NFL quarterback.

Until this year, he didn't really know how to throw a football.

That may be a little extreme. He thought he knew how to throw, and he could pick up a ball and wing it. But his body mechanics were so inefficient and his tosses were so scattershot, he said, he had no future in the pros.

"I look back on last year, and I just knew I wasn't ready," said Pryor, 23, entering his third NFL season and now an intriguing figure in the Raiders' quarterback mix, probably as a change-of-speed option to presumed starter Matt Flynn.

Determined to rebuild his motion, Pryor worked extensively with throwing specialist Tom House at USC this off-season, developing new timing and "unlocking" his upper body to improve his accuracy. House works with an array of NFL players — along with college and Major League Baseball players — among them quarterbacks Tom Brady and Drew Brees.

"I truly believe that after spending a month and a half with Tom, I can now sit back in the pocket and throw the ball," he said.

Pryor played well Friday in a 19-17 exhibition victory against Dallas, completing six of 10 passes for 88 yards, and running three times for 31 yards.

The pass that got away was a cross-body fling into the end zone six yards away that was picked off by Dallas' J.J. Wilcox. There appeared to be room for Pryor to score with his feet, but instead he tried to force a pass.

"I looked at the pictures and I could have easily ran it in, but I got greedy," Pryor said.

He disagreed with the notion that he wanted to throw for the score rather than run for it because he's determined to prove he can win with his arm, that he's not simply a one-dimensional readoption threat.

But Raiders Coach Dennis Allen said the next step in Pryor's maturation process is learning that sometimes he needs to listen to his instincts and make the play that unfolds before him, rather than reaching for that higher degree of difficulty.

"That's been one thing we've consistently talked to Terrelle about is in those situations, don't be afraid to use your legs," Allen said. "Don't be afraid to use your skill set. ... Not every play has to be a great play, not every play has to be a spectacular play."

That Pryor is even a consideration now is a significant achievement for him and means he has made big strides. He was very raw coming out of Ohio State, and many people expected him to switch positions in the NFL, becoming a receiver or tight end.

Pryor was selected by the Raiders in the third round of the 2011 supplemental draft. He chose to skip his senior season at Ohio State in the aftermath of a tattoo-for-memorabilia scandal that cost coach Jim Tressel his job.

Pryor's NFL career began under a dark cloud, with the league taking the unusual step of carrying over the NCAA's penalty and imposing a corresponding five-game suspension of its own. He ran a 40 in under 4.4 seconds for scouts, freakish for a player who stands 6 feet 4 and weighs 233 pounds.

He made his starting debut at the end of last season, taking over for the injured Carson Palmer in a finale against San Diego. Pryor showed flashes of promise in that game, throwing two touchdown passes despite completing only 46% of his passes — 13 of 28 — and running for another score. He proved he could get in and out of the huddle quickly, often a problem for young quarterbacks, and showed elements of leadership, at one point breaking up a fight on the field.

But it was the work he did this off-season, he believes, that will make him a more accurate, more dangerous player this season.

"We're going to continue to give him opportunities to showcase his skills," Allen said. "But right now, he's not there yet."

Pryor, for one, is confident he will be.

"I'm very honest with myself," he said. "Last year, I look back and I just know I wasn't ready. I didn't have the mind-set. I knew I wasn't ready in terms of mechanics. I was so far off.

"This year, I'm very confident. I'm confident in the huddle, getting the calls to the guys, saying the protections. And I truly believe that any time a route or concept is called, I can put the ball where I want."

Roach at the middle of revival of Raiders' D

By Paul Gutierrez November 22, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. – The improvement of the Oakland Raiders' defense has been as stunning as it has been rebuilt.

With 10 new starters, the Raiders just a few weeks ago had the 10th-ranked defense in the NFL (the anomaly that was the blowout loss to Philadelphia has them at No. 17 overall now), and they currently have the No. 6 rushing defense. Last year, Oakland was 18th against the run.

At the center of this Raiders revival is their new middle linebacker, Nick Roach. A year after Oakland finally gave up on a failed first-round draft pick in Rolando McClain, Roach has been a model of consistency. And calm.

"Nick is amazing in how fast he can go to the next play," Raiders defensive coordinator Jason Tarver said. "He's just onto the next play. He will align guys and use his rules.

"The guys that can focus in the moment like that are special, and he's special that way. He can just flush whatever has happened [and] go onto the next play, which allows you to do those things. It really does."

Roach spent his first six seasons with the Chicago Bears, where he was primarily a strongside linebacker. He signed a free-agent deal with the Raiders in March and moved to the middle, and he now leads the team with 68 tackles (48 solo) and has two sacks.

Perhaps more impressive is the fact that he has yet to come off the field, having played all 688 snaps this season, per Pro Football Focus.

Roach shrugged.

"I feel like that's just part of the job description," he said. "I wouldn't like to come off the field at any point. I realize that it's a blessing to be able to play all the snaps because things happen that are out of your control all the time. So hopefully I've been able to take advantage of it to the fullest so far."

There have been no complaints.

"Beyond being a good player, Nick's a good person," said rookie linebacker Sio Moore. "I think that's what correlates to his field play and, really, how he prepares, how he goes about his business on the field. I sit next to him every day, so I try and take something from him every day.

"He doesn't say much. He just goes out there and is effective."

Indeed. In last week's win over the Houston Texans, Roach got his first career interception when he picked off Case Keenum with about four minutes to go in the first quarter. The takeaway set the Raiders up at the Texans' 16-yard line, and one play later, Matt McGloin hit Rod Streater for a touchdown and a 14-0 lead.

"Every dog has his day," Roach said. "I'll put it that way."

Especially if said dog plays every snap.

Raiders' Roach masters art of leading the defense

By Vic Tafur November 2, 2013

Nick Roach grew up drawing pictures and went on to earn a degree in art theory and practice at Northwestern. He's always working on a sketch in his mind, and the one of his budding football career is finally ready to hang on the wall. Seven years along, the last details and shadings are becoming clear as he leads a resurgent Raiders defense.

Oakland, which hosts Philadelphia (3-5) Sunday, is a surprising 3-4 largely on the back of its defense. Safety Charles Woodson is the one star, but the other pistons have been firing pretty well, too - and Roach, the once-undrafted middle linebacker, is the fuel and air.

Roach calls the plays, and he is adept at both run defense and pass coverage.

"He is the leader of the defense," defensive end Lamarr Houston said. "He runs the whole machine. He is the guy behind the curtains, and he never shies away from it."

The Raiders, sixth in the NFL in run defense, have held three opponents under 40 yards rushing after doing that just four times in the previous 10 seasons. Oakland also blitzes often and from everywhere, and already has 21 sacks after having 25 all of last season.

The biggest difference is Roach - and the guy he replaced. Rolando McClain, the Raiders' first-round pick in 2010, was supposed to be everything Roach is now, only in a bigger package. But McClain struggled on the field and was often in trouble off it. The Raiders have 10 new starters on defense now, and the one holdover, Houston, acknowledged the importance of the McClain-to-Roach transition.

"It is different, it is," Houston said. "That was the point of them going out and getting guys that will fit in and do what they're supposed to, understand what they're supposed to do and how they're supposed to do it.

"That's a testimony to (general manager) Reggie McKenzie and (coach) Dennis Allen as to how they put this team together."

Roach got a four-year contract on a defense largely consisting of one-year free agents. He wasn't daunted by the task of strangers coming together to play defense, taking a direct, humble, hardworking approach at training camp. Roach admitted his mistakes and implored teammates to grow together.

"Defense isn't about how many guys have been together before," Roach said. "It's just if guys have played good football before. Guys wanted to win, and that was the foundation."

Roach has spent seven years building his own foundation, going from an undrafted player out of Northwestern to the Chargers' practice squad in 2007 before getting picked up by the Bears.

He was a backup, an outside linebacker and a middle linebacker when Brian Urlacher was hurt. Then he packed up the RV and headed west when Oakland signed him this offseason.

McKenzie, Allen and defensive coordinator Jason Tarver loved Roach's understated approach, intelligence and underrated playmaking ability. The one question mark was if Roach was, at 6-foot-1, 234 pounds, a bit undersized for a middle linebacker, but Tarver shook his head.

"Undersized is one thing, and the ability to get off the block is another," Tarver said. "Nick knows how to use his hands and has long arms for his body.

"You can look at the guys I was around before, Patrick Willis and NaVorro Bowman - Nick is a little bit lighter than those guys, but they're similar in arm length so they can shed and get off blocks."

Roach was a running back in high school, and can still find the open space as a linebacker.

"He's been a pleasant surprise," former Eagles scout and radio analyst John Middlekauf said. "He was a demon on special teams when we used to play the Bears, and now he is a consistent, efficient tackler."

Roach has a team-high 39 tackles, according to Pro Football Focus, to go along with a sack, eight quarterback hurries and two forced fumbles.

"We put a lot on him," Allen said. "He's accepted that challenge, and I think he's been an outstanding player for us."

Jason Tarver uses passion to vault Raiders' no-name defense

By Scott Bair November 1, 2013

Jason Tarver has never been more popular, a product of being famous and infamous at the same time.

The Raiders defensive coordinator has received praise for vaulting a no-name defense (save Charles Woodson, of course) into the NFL's top 10. His inventive blitz schemes have helped exceed expectations as the Raiders push for a .500 record Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Oh, and he may have flipped off some game officials. And was caught on camera. He now has a commemorative hashtag on Twitter. There may or may not be T-shirts.

#Tarvering is just a fad. His defensive scheme is not. Neither is his passion for the game or his desire to win or his defense's faith in the Tarver way.

While a momentary lapse in judgment wasn't condoned, those who know him best didn't vilify it.

"The only thing I'll say is I think he's done an outstanding job with this defense," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said a day after the incident. "I think he's a fiery and emotional guy, and I think our players have really taken to that. I think they've embraced that type of attitude, and I think he's got the defense playing at a high level right now."

Allen said it best. Tarver coaches with passion. His defense plays with it.

The often-wacky, never-dull, always-engaging 39-year old Bay Area native drives his players to do so. The man many call the "mad scientist" – Tarver has a master's degree in molecular biology and biochemistry. True story. And he wouldn't have it any other way.

"I think that D.A. [Dennis Allen] gave me a great compliment Monday when he said that I coach with passion," Tarver said after Thursday's practice. "If you're going to do anything in life, you want to be the best. Why limit yourself?

"That's what we talk to the players about. We say, 'You guys can run and you're smart and you love this game, so if you love this game why limit yourself? Why say, 'I can't do that,' ever?"

Pundits said the Raiders wouldn't be able to keep up on defense. Not with nine (now 10) new starters. Not without young star power. Not with so much dead money spent on castaways.

The Raiders ignored all that. They kept their heads down and worked and grew and learned to play as one. Now they're showered with compliments. The Raiders are 10th in total defense and sixth against the run. They have 11 takeaways in five games. They have 21 sacks from 14 different defenders.

That's part personnel, part belief in the scheme.

"J.T. gives everybody confidence that they can make a play," linebacker Sio Moore said. "If you buy in and work hard, he'll you in position to make a game-changing moment."

That's the message given to his charges, with aforementioned numbers to support it.

"There are no perfect calls; there's only perfect execution," Tarver said. "That's how we approach it. We say, 'Hey look, do your job. Do your job, and do it with that kind of passion.' If you're not doing it with passion, you're going to hear about it, but there are very few of our guys who are that way.

"That's why we're thankful to (general manager Reggie McKenzie and Allen) for who they brought in and who they keep bringing in, because these guys want to be great. Greatness is not one thing. It sure as heck doesn't have to do with me. I don't cross that white line. I don't play. My job is just to put them in position to make plays."

Tarver gets excited when they do. Raw passion comes out in practice and occasionally on the sidelines, where he has to rein himself in. He failed to do so when cornerback Mike Jenkins was improperly flagged againstPittsburgh for striking a defenseless receiver. A middle finger came flying out, an act of frustration normally dealt with in other ways.

"Well, you better have just an outlet (for the emotion)," Tarver said. "I'll quickly take a deep breath or say something, and then you go to the next play. I mean, that's what happens, so that's it. You've got to let it go. You breathe; you go to the next play."

Tarver finds solace in the film room, where it's crystal clear he's doing something right.

That was evident after Jenkins sniffed out a screen pass in the first quarter of Sunday's game versus Pittsburgh and made a terrific open-field tackle that forced a punt. Before Jenkins could get up, the entire defense mobbed him in celebration.

Tarver watched that play again and loved everything about it. Great read, flawless execution and, most importantly, everybody reveled in a job well done.

"That moment is what it's all about," Tarver said. "When we put on our black jerseys, that's what we want to do. We want every guy to be on the screen at the end of every play and enjoy the heck out of playing football."

Raiders' mad scientist of defense: Tarver has Oakland on upswing Jerry McDonald

October 21, 2013

Jason Tarver recalls meeting with 49ers general manager Bill Walsh, coach Steve Mariucci and front office executive Bill McPherson in 2001, hoping to get a job as a low-level assistant coach.

His résumé included a master's degree in biochemistry and molecular biology and an award bestowed by the UCLA chemistry department for distinguished teaching in biochemistry.

All which of made Walsh wonder why Tarver was sitting at the table.

"The first thing he asked me was, 'Why don't you go out and invent something?' " Tarver said.

A dozen years later, Tarver, in his second season as defensive coordinator, has helped reinvent the way the Raiders play defense.

Quarterbacks Philip Rivers of San Diego and Alex Smith of Kansas City came out of games against the Raiders talking about the confusing array of blitzes and alignments thrown their way.

Long a four-man rush team with press coverage influenced by the late Al Davis, the Raiders under Tarver and coach Dennis Allen are mixing coverages, blitzing often and seldom showing the same thing twice.

There are 10 new starters, none of whom were big-ticket items in the offseason but have the shared trait of being enthusiastic workers who believe in team defense.

Of the 16 sacks generated by the Raiders, Lamarr Houston has the most at three, and the remaining 13 are divided among 11 players.

Opponents are averaging 22 points per game and 99.0 yards per game rushing, with only the Denver Broncos and Peyton Manning putting up the kind of points (37) and yardage (536) the Raiders have given up far too often in the last 10 years.

The Raiders are faster, are better tacklers and playing smarter than at any time in recent memory, and Allen credits Tarver with allowing his unit to play as fast as possible.

"He's really smart, and he's able to take something that might seem complicated and make it as simple as he can for the players," Allen said.

Free safety Charles Woodson, aware of Tarver's advanced education, has a mental picture of his coach in the role of a scientist.

"A lab coat, glasses, pens in his pocket," Woodson said. "I can see the whole thing."

Tarver, 39, who chose coaching over medical school, doesn't see his career path as unusual. Chemistry, like coaching, is about applying rules and logic to solve problems.

"You don't know how that weird-shaped brown ball and 22 pieces are going to move," Tarver said. "It's the ultimate puzzle -- a human puzzle."

In truth, for as good as Tarver was in his studies at Pleasanton's Foothill High, Santa Clara University and graduate school at UCLA, his passion was always football.

A safety at Foothill for coach Matt Sweeney, Tarver immediately took to scouting and preparation, which made up for what he lacked in pure athletic ability.

"He was just so off-the-charts smart," Sweeney said. "He was a 17-year-old that really could have been hanging out with 40-year-olds. Sometimes you win because of a certain number of guys who are behind the scenes acting like a coach with his classmates. That was Jason."

As a senior, Tarver blew out his anterior cruciate ligament, and according to Sweeney, "played his whole senior year without an ACL. He just put on a brace and lived with it."

Still living with it, as it turns out. Tarver had arthroscopic knee surgery last Thursday and was back in the office watching film by midafternoon.

Tarver's father is a research chemist at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, while his mother, sister and brother are all educators.

"We didn't talk about if we were going to college," Tarver said. "It was about where and when you would go to college."

Jon Evans, a Foothill teacher and assistant football coach who was a close friend of Tarver's brother James, spent much of his youth at the Tarver home. On the court where they lived, pickup football and basketball games were daily occurrences, with Jason doing most of the organizing.

Although Tarver was an "A" student, Evans can't remember a time when he saw him doing homework.

"He was always working on football and studying Coach Sweeney's game plans," Evans said. "I don't think he had to spend a lot of time to get straight A's. I don't think he was challenged academically until he got to college."

Tarver was a biochemistry major at Santa Clara but played football at West Valley College in Saratoga after Santa Clara dropped football. He worked for a year as an assistant coach at West Valley and caught the coaching bug, which he took with him to UCLA -- where Tarver worked as a graduate assistant coach and eventually as an instructor while getting his master's degree.

"I would finish with spring ball, throw a lab coat over my football coaching stuff and literally run across campus to teach a four-hour lab, and I loved it," Tarver said.

Raiders running backs coach Kelly Skipper, then the offensive coordinator at UCLA, said Tarver was immediately identified as an "out of the box thinker" who absorbed everything he could on both sides of the ball. The coaching staff was both amazed and amused at Tarver's workload and surprised that he seemed like a fairly normal person.

"The thing about him is here's a guy with that kind of intellect, and he relates to people so well," Skipper said. "He's not off in his own little world. I think that's what makes him a pretty good coach, because he can talk to players. He can talk to anyone, at any level."

When Tarver interviewed with the 49ers to be a quality control assistant, he talked for  $3\frac{1}{2}$  hours with Walsh, Mariucci and McPherson, got the job, and remained on the 49ers staff through the tenures of Mariucci, Dennis Erickson, Mike Nolan and Mike Singletary, coaching both offense and defense.

Tarver was hired by David Shaw to be co-defensive coordinator at Stanford before moving on to the Raiders last season.

His coaching style is best described as relentlessly positive, and players appreciate the freedom to make their own adjustments within the system.

"He doesn't coach any robots," cornerback Tracy Porter said. "He calls the play, and if you see something different and make the play, he's all for it."

Said linebacker Sio Moore: "He allows you to just go, and gives everybody the confidence to make a play. Once you understand a piece of his brain, what he's trying to do, it makes things less complex. It makes it easy."

'Old man' Woodson drives Raiders defense

Scott Bair September 17, 2013

The Raiders were seven yards from wasting a near-perfect start, and Charles Woodson could sense disappointment wearing on the huddle. The Jaguars marched right downfield, with little sign of slowing before pay dirt.

This defense -- this team -- needed a pick-me-up. The veteran free safety knew words wouldn't work. Actions would speak louder.

Maurice Jones-Drew ran left toward the pylon, and Woodson was presented with an opportunity. He could pursue him toward the goal line and push him out of bounds just in time.

Woodson went with Option B. D.J. Hayden was getting manhandled by a blocker twice his size, creating a bubble for Jones-Drew that could only be popped from the top.

Woodson took flight, sailing over left tackle Eugene Monroe completely horizontal. He hit Jones-Drew unaware, knocking him out of bounds after a 3-yard gain.

The crowd went nuts. So did the Raiders defense. Woodson drew a wry smile with one thought in mind. Mission accomplished.

Woodson killed the Jaguars momentum -- they settled for a field goal -- energized a sulking defense and got the Raiders back on track in their 19-9 win over Jacksonville. In short, the 36-year old did his job.

"That was a critical play in the game and a big momentum builder for us," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "You could feel the enthusiasm of the whole stadium when he made that play on Maurice Jones-Drew.

"Charles has been a heck of a football player for us. He's been a great leader for us. He's been everything that we had hoped for and anticipated when we brought him here."

The Raiders needed a veteran to mentor a young team in transition in the locker room and on the field. The 36-year old's wisdom and his status as a Bay Area icon ensured the former. It was uncertain how much the old man had left.

The NFL wasn't so sure. A humbling free agent tour expressed that. The Green Bay Packers thanked him for seven excellent years and moved on. The Denver Broncos wouldn't offer a dime in guaranteed money. The San Francisco 49ers took a pass.

The Raiders made him feel welcome, wanted. They gave him a real chance, and Woodson has rewarded them with excellent play at retirement age.

"All I hear these days now is 'old man," Woodson said. "Like I told these guys when I first got here, man, I love playing football. Those kinds of plays, like the one from Sunday, are second nature. As long as I'm out there on the field, that's the kind of effort I'm going to give."

That's the effort Woodson expects from others. He hopes unspoken peer pressure brings out the best in these Raiders.

Woodson's leadership gives the Raiders faith they can survive without a talent like Tyvon Branch. His play within a strong secondary gives the team a puncher's chance on Monday night against quarterback Peyton Manning and the Broncos.

That's because Woodson has made more than one big play. He led the team with six tackles last week and had three the week before. He can rush the passer, but is generally the last line of defense on passing downs. By doing so well, it gives coordinator Jason Tarver the confidence to blitz defensive backs without feeling vulnerable in the passing game.

Woodson is happy in this place, and in awe of the fan response that prompted him to re-sign with the team that drafted him.

The defense was announced before Sunday's home opener and, cheers reached a crescendo at No. 24. A few quarters later, Woodson eclipsed himself with that awesome, flying strike.

"It was one of those sellout plays that you need during the course of a game that hopefully can turn the tide and give you some momentum," Woodson said. "That's what I love to do."

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED

Candid Charles Woodson out to prove the doubters wrong

Jim Trotter August 20, 2013

NAPA, Calif. -- Raiders safety Charles Woodson doesn't believe in taking the scenic route. He wants to get from Point A to Point B as quickly as possible, not only on the football field but also in conversation. Consider his response when asked whether he pays attention to reports that his game has slipped in recent years.

Many players would respond with verbal detours. They'd rather give out the password to their bank account than publicly acknowledge an outsider's criticism. Not Woodson, who is returning to his Oakland roots after seven seasons with the Packers. He goes straight at the subject as if it were an unprotected quarterback and he was coming on a blindside blitz.

"I read all of it," the 16-year veteran says, smiling. "Basically they say I can't do it. They say I haven't been getting it done for the last three years. I've read a lot of things like that -- that I've been declining every year, which is funny because I was just All-Pro two years ago.

"But it's all good because when I turn on the film or I look at me on the football field, no one plays faster than me. You can go ask coaches in Green Bay, as far as how I played before breaking my collarbone last year. Ask them who played faster than me, and I don't think they would say anybody. Maybe Clay Matthews -- Clay is a bad boy. But, nah. All the stuff they're saying just ain't true."

Woodson is not alone in his determination to prove himself a still-viable force. The Raiders, one year after allowing the third-most offensive points in the NFL, could end up fielding as many as nine new defensive starters, each of whom was given up on by his former club. The unit might look like the Land of Misfit Players to some outsiders, but within the locker room the focus is on opportunity.

"The organization brought in some hungry guys," says Woodson, who turns 37 in October. "They're guys who signed one-year or two-year deals who can come out here, show out, then next year be looking at something [more lucrative] here or elsewhere."

Even in a league where roster turnover is common, what the Raiders have done is eye-popping. According to Football Outsiders, it's only the second time in the modern era that a team has changed as many as nine primary defensive starters in one year. The only other time it was done was in 2002, by ... the Raiders, who also made nine changes.

That Oakland team advanced to the Super Bowl (where it was routed by the Bucs), but no one is expecting the past to be prologue. The Raiders haven't had a winning season in 10 years, and one Las Vegas sports book lists their over/under at 5.5 victories. To even have a shot at that figure, the defense must be better than it was a year ago, when it surrendered 18 touchdowns on the ground (which tied for third-most in the league), 28 scores through the air (more than all but seven other teams) and managed just 25 sacks (second-fewest in the league).

Enter tackles Pat Sims and Vance Walker, end Jason Hunter, linebackers Nick Roach, Kevin Burnett and Kaluka Maiava, cornerbacks Mike Jenkins and Tracy Porter and Woodson. The Raiders also used a first-round pick on cornerback D.J. Hayden and a third-rounder on linebacker Sio Moore, both of whom could challenge for starting jobs as rookies.

The issue is how best to turn nine new starters into a cohesive unit. "The challenge is these guys really understanding ways that guys are going to play the game and really get a feel for what everybody else is seeing on the football field," says coach Dennis Allen. "It's really about getting 11 guys to play together and understand what their role is within the scheme. The thing we've got is that we have some veteran players, who understand how to do the job. The bad thing with that sometimes is that guys can be set in their ways. The good thing is, this is a group of guys that is eager and willing to do it the Raider way. That's why I like this team."

What Allen also likes is the players' willingness to practice. It was a struggle at times last season to get some veterans to consider practice as important as he did in his first year as a head coach. In fact, there were times early in training camp when newcomers could be seen grimacing from aches and bruises, strains and sprains, yet they refused to leave the field.

Defensive coordinator Jason Tarver, meanwhile, is pleased to have a group of veterans who are capable of making adjustments on the fly. "You can talk to them about subtle things and you can talk to them about major things," he says. "It's not too big for them. The personalities are big, too. Roach is smart, a little bit funny, he wants to do it right, and he likes solving things in the moment. Communicating with those players is really what you love about coaching."

Coaches are also enamored of talented veterans who are motivated, such as Woodson. He commands your attention when he's on the field. There is a suddenness when he breaks on the ball that few players possess. Woodson makes the game look easy even when it's difficult, as the rookie Hayden has learned. As Hayden walked off the field after a recent practice, sweat pouring down his face, multiple sets of shoulder pads and helmets in his hands, he shook his head at what he had just witnessed from Woodson.

"I couldn't even believe it," Hayden said. "I don't even think he was sweating. He's just so smooth."

"I told him I'm a machine," says Woodson, who breaks into a deep laugh.

One thing Woodson won't laugh about is his desire to show he's still a defensive force. And once again he gets straight to the point. "I ain't going to lie, it's kind of hurtful to have people taking shots at you for whatever reason, or just because you're 35, 36 or going on 37," he says. "But it's all good. I read it and put in my mental bank."

Like his new teammates, he hopes to collect interest beginning in Week 1.

Poole: Charles Woodson is a new man

Monte Poole August 19, 2013

Charles Woodson sailed into Oakland in 1998, a fascinating bundle of talent and energy, playing fast and living faster. He was famous, newly wealthy in the land of temptation. He partied hard, sometimes without regard for professional obligation.

Young Charles lived to dance along the edge of the cliff. Why not? It was fun. What could be better than inventing new angles from which to burn the proverbial candle?

All the while, C-Wood was a premier cornerback and the best pure football player on the most accomplished Raiders teams since the 1980s.

The Woodson that rejoined the Raiders on May 22, after seven seasons in Green Bay, is 36 years old and has moved to free safety. He brings instincts and ball skills, as well as grown-man wisdom and focus as sharp as an arrow's tip. He plays smart, lives smarter. His is among the most dramatic maturation processes in recent sports history.

And, still, at an age when most have faded, he's the best pure player on the roster.

"His quickness is still there, and I still see his love of the game," says Willie Brown, the Raiders Hall of Famer who has known Woodson since '98 and speaks with him often. "I wouldn't be surprised if Charles makes All-Pro this year at free safety. All we have to do is put a pretty good defense in front of him and let him go."

The root of Woodson's maturation is Charles himself. He was bright enough to acknowledge the cracks in his personal mirror and cast his eyes within -- and strong enough to respond in a way that has set an example for the jock living on the edge.

Woodson always has accepted responsibility, no matter how it reflected upon him. He had won the Heisman Trophy at Michigan -- the first primarily defensive player to do so -- and was drafted fourth overall by Oakland. He was an instant celebrity and embraced the life that came with it.

He was arrested in 2000 for DUI in Michigan. He was arrested in 2004 for refusing to get out of a woman's car at 4:20 a.m. He missed at least one curfew, resulting in suspension, and he was infamous for daydreaming or snoozing during meetings. Teammates were left to wonder if he was hung over or just indifferent to commitment.

Meanwhile, the Raiders reached the playoffs in three consecutive seasons (2000-02), and C-Wood went to four consecutive Pro Bowls (1998-01).

Such success only contributed to Woodson's belief that his active night life did not and would not impede his play. When so many talented athletes were falling over the cliff -- including former Raiders teammates Barret Robbins, Andre Rison and Darrell Russell -- Charles was having it both ways.

"I was kind of wild," says Woodson, whose primary road dogs were Charlie Garner and Rison. "I enjoyed myself as a young man. I was moving 100 miles per hour -- on and off the field. I was young, had plenty of money. I was here with a great group of guys, and a lot of us ran fast. We had fun, but we put it down when we got on the field.

"That part of it has slowed down a great deal."

The turnaround began in 2006, when the Raiders allowed him to test free agency and Woodson was greeted with funereal silence. With a history of injuries and a poor work ethic, Woodson at age 29 was perceived as damaged goods.

Pause. Reflect for a minute and consider how great Woodson was despite himself. How fantastic might he be if he truly applied himself?

Staring into the abyss and vowing rededication, Woodson finally received an offer. It came from the Packers. The Packers! Why on earth would Charles Woodson take his talents to the league's smallest and most isolated outpost?

After initial reluctance, Woodson signed with Green Bay not because he wanted to be there but because it was May and, frankly, there was no other reasonable option.

"I would say Green Bay was great for Charles," says Nnamdi Asomugha, who spent three seasons as Woodson's teammate in Oakland and still is a close friend.

Feeling dismissed and perhaps sensing he had cheated himself, Woodson eventually immersed himself in football. He studied film, listened to his coaches, made a concerted effort to tap every drop of his vast potential.

Raising his bar and that of those around him, Charles became a true leader. He also improved as a player, earning four more Pro Bowl selections and being honored in 2009 as the Defensive Player of the Year. Woodson the following season was the driving force behind Green Bay's Super Bowl championship.

"It worked out," Woodson says now. "I talk about how I slowed down, well, I moved to an environment that was that way. Green Bay is a blue-collar community, and it's all about the Packers. I was able to go there, slow down and focus on the game."

Woodson not only dived into football but also became a more responsible citizen. He made a $2 million donation to a Children and Women's hospital at his alma mater in 2009. Friends credit his joy to familial bonds; Charles and his wife, April, have two young sons, Charles Jr. and Chase.

"When you have a lot of money and you're single, you can do a lot of wild and crazy things -which he did," Brown says of Woodson. "He had millions in his pocket, and he had a good time. Having two kids and a good wife will slow you down."

Hall of Famer Rod Woodson, who spent two years alongside Charles in Oakland, has seen the growth and offers his amateur analysis.

"He needed to kind of get through adolescence, so to speak, while was with the Raiders," Rod Woodson says. "After he got to Green Bay, he finally matured. He matured outside of football. Before players mature on the field, they have to mature outside the field and I think he did that first, and then his play level just increased and he even got better."

Charles had gone to the brink, almost as far as Ben Roethlisberger but not nearly as far as Michael Irvin or J.R. Rider or Mike Tyson. What's remarkable is that Charles stopped, spun and flourished in midcareer. He went to Wisconsin in '06 in danger of derailing his career and left in '13 with Hall of Fame credentials and attributes worthy of adulation.

"The beauty of who Charles has become as a person is that he's so positive and happy," Asomugha says. "I talk to him all the time, and he's so encouraging. That's what you want from a leader, from a guy you looked at as a mentor and a guy you have so much respect for a lot of things he has done."

Woodson's last few years in Oakland, with the team spiraling down after the Super Bowl loss in February 2003, were filled with frustration. His arrival this year is nothing less than refreshing. And very, very welcome.

"I just continue to fall in love with the game," Woodson says. "As a young player, I never looked this far ahead. I never thought about how long I was going to play."

Season No. 16 is on the horizon. Woodson has a $1.8 million one-year contract that, with incentives, could reach $4 million. He also has the respect and confidence of those around him, from general manager Reggie McKenzie (who was with the Packers when Woodson signed there) to coach Dennis Allen to his teammates.

"When he comes out here and practices, he gives his all," strong safety Tyvon Branch says. "For the young guys to see a guy like him, somebody who has played a trillion and eight years getting after it, it just rubs off on them."

Playmaking leadership is what the Raiders want and need -- and hope they get -- from Woodson. It's his specialty. He stood at the cliff and came back to tap himself and his teammates, to be there for those who need him and those who might themselves someday dance along the edge.
