OAKLAND RAIDERS (1-1) vs. DENVER BRONCOS (2-0)

GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders hit the road for their first prime-time game of the season, as they face the Denver Broncos on Monday Night Football on Monday, September 23. Monday's contest is the first of the year between the two squads, who will meet again in the season finale in Oakland. The Raiders will try to build on the momentum they gained last week, as they picked up their first win of the season at home over Jacksonville, 19-9. The Broncos return home after winning decisively at the New York Giants, 41-23.

The Raiders enter Monday's contest coming off a win in their home opener over the Jaguars. Oakland's offensive attack was paced by a strong run game, as it got 226 rushing yards on the afternoon. RB Darren McFadden led the way with 129 rushing yards, including three runs of 20-or-more yards. McFadden also added 28 yards receiving. QB Terrelle Pryor added 50 rushing yards, in addition to finishing 15-of-24 for 126 yards through the air. The defense, which has recorded nine sacks through the first two games, allowed just 34 rushing yards. S Charles Woodson led the way with six tackles.

Denver returns home after flying to the Eastern time zone and beating the Giants, 41-23. QB Peyton Manning followed up his seven-TD-pass performance in Week 1 by going 30-of-43 for 307 yards and 2 TDs in the victory. The offense totaled 416 yards, and Denver got a special teams score when WR Trindon Holliday returned a punt 81 yards for a score. The Broncos' defense also forced four interceptions.

Following Sunday's contest, the Raiders and Broncos will both host NFC East opponents, as the Raiders take on the Redskins in Oakland and the Broncos play the Eagles in Week 4.

Raiders From Colorado

- There are two Raiders players from Colorado: DE Lamarr Houston (Colorado Springs), TE Nick Kasa (Thornton).

KEY NOTES & NUMBERS

Sacking from the Secondary

Through two games, the Raiders are tied atop the NFL with nine sacks. Of those nine sacks, a league-high five are from defensive backs. CB Tracy Porter and S Usama Young lead the way with 1.5 each, while S Tyvon Branch and S Brandian Ross have each recorded one. No other team has more than two.

Team	DB Sacks	Total Sacks
Oakland	5	9
Carolina	2	3
Washington	2	7
Kansas City	1.5	9

The Raiders scored a TD on their opening drive Sunday as FB Marcel Reece scored on an 11-yard run. It was the first time Oakland had scored a TD on their opening possession since 2011, when they reached the end zone on 1/1/12 via a three-yard TD pass from former QB Carson Palmer to WR Darrius Heyward-Bey.

RAIDERS VS. BRONCOS

THE HEAD COACHES

Raiders Head Coach Dennis Allen

When Dennis Allen became the 18th head coach in Raiders history on Jan. 30, 2012, he promised to field a tough, smart, disciplined and committed football team, noting that organizations win games in the National Football League by more than talent alone.

Allen, 40, is the NFL's youngest head coach, more than six months younger than the league's previously youngest coach, Pittsburgh's Mike Tomlin.

In 2012, his first year as a head coach at any level, Allen guided an Oakland team in transition, posting a 4-12 mark. The 2012 Raiders were defined by offensive, defensive and special teams units that improved throughout the season, laying a foundation for future success.

With 17 years of combined coaching experience at the college and professional levels, Allen enters his 12th NFL season. On six occasions during his 10 years as an NFL assistant, his team earned a playoff berth: 2002, 2004, 2006, 2009, 2010 and 2011. And four of those trips came after division championships: The NFC South with Atlanta in 2004 and New Orleans in both 2006 and 2009, and the AFC West with Denver in 2011.

His résumé also includes football's ultimate prize, a Super Bowl XLIV ring he earned by helping the Saints beat season MVP Peyton Manning, who threw for more than 4,500 yards with 33 touchdowns, and the Indianapolis Colts to conclude the 2009 campaign.

The NFL's second-youngest defensive coordinator when the Broncos hired him in 2011, he coordinated a defense that helped Denver parlay an AFC West crown into a Wild Card win and a date in the Divisional round. During his only year in Denver, despite starting three rookies most of the season, the Broncos improved 12 spots over 2010 in overall defensive ranking (from 32nd to 20th) and bettered their points allowed by eight spots (from 32nd to 24th).

Prior to joining the Broncos, Allen was an assistant coach for five seasons with New Orleans, first as assistant defensive line coach (2006-07), then as defensive backs coach (2008-10). Under Allen's direction in 2010, the Saints' secondary allowed an NFL-low 13 touchdown passes while ranking fourth in the NFL in net passing yards per game (193.9).

In 2009, Allen tutored a secondary that played a key role in helping the Saints to their first Super Bowl victory. His unit accounted for an NFL-high six interception returns for touchdowns and totaled 22 picks en route to their championship.

In 2008, his first year as secondary coach, Allen helped the Saints overcome season-ending injuries to both starting cornerbacks and contributed to a defense that held five opponents under 200 yards passing.

Allen assisted in tutoring the Saints' defensive line from 2006-07, helping defensive end Will Smith become a Pro Bowler in 2006 after posting 10½ sacks and forcing three fumbles.

He originally entered the NFL coaching ranks with Atlanta in 2002, spending four seasons with the Falcons as a defensive assistant. During his stint in Atlanta, the Falcons qualified for the playoffs twice—as a wild card in 2002 and as NFC South champs in 2004—and played in the NFC Championship in 2004.

Allen kicked off his football coaching career in 1996 as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Texas A&M, where he was a four-year letterman as a safety. He worked with Aggies defensive backs for four seasons before coaching the secondary at the University of Tulsa from 2000-01.

Broncos Head Coach John Fox

John Fox enters his third season with the Broncos in 2013 after being named the 14th head coach in franchise history on Jan. 13, 2011. Fox, who has experience on multiple Super Bowl teams and is one of six active head coaches with 100 overall wins, joined the Broncos after spending the previous nine seasons (2002-10) as the head coach of the Carolina Panthers.

In his second year with the Broncos in 2012, Fox led the club to a 13-3 record and the AFC's No. 1 seed while earning his 100th career victory in the Broncos' regular-season finale. He became just the 10th coach in NFL history to deliver a division title in each of his first two years, posting the fifth divisional crown of his NFL head-coaching career.

In addition, Fox became only the third head coach in NFL history to win back-to-back division titles after inheriting a team that finished with a losing record the previous season.

The Broncos ended the 2012 regular season in dominant fashion under Fox, recording 11 consecutive wins by at least seven points to becoming the third team in NFL history to accomplish that feat. Posting an undefeated record in AFC West play for just the second time in club history, the Broncos were the only NFL team to finish in the Top 5 in both total offense (4th) and total defense (2nd).

Before joining the Broncos, Fox compiled a 73-71 (.507) regular-season record with the Panthers during his nine years as head coach. He led Carolina to three 11-win campaigns, two NFC South Division titles and three playoff appearances.

Carolina went 5-3 in the postseason under Fox, appearing in two NFC Championship Games and one Super Bowl (XXXVIII during the 2003 season). His teams won four playoff road games, a total that ranks third in NFL history behind Pro Football Hall of Fame coaches Tom Landry (7, Dallas) and Joe Gibbs (5, Washington).

Before his head coaching tenure with the Panthers, Fox spent five seasons as the defensive coordinator for the New York Giants from 1997-2001 and led a defense that consistently ranked among the league's most productive units. New York allowed the seventh-fewest points per game (18.7) in the NFL during that span while also finishing fourth in the league with a +25 turnover differential.

The Giants ranked third in the NFL with 230 sacks under Fox during that five-year period, including Strahan's NFL-record 22.5 sacks in 2001.

He began his NFL career in 1989 in Pittsburgh, where he coached the secondary during Pro Football Hall of Fame Head Coach Chuck Noll's final three seasons with the Steelers from 1989-91. In that capacity, he instructed Woodson, who in 1991 earned the first of his 10 Pro Bowl selections as a defensive back en route to earning induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

RAIDERS VS. BRONCOS

BRONCOS SNAPSHOT

Overview: The Denver Broncos have started the 2013 season in impressive fashion. In John Fox's third season as head coach of the team, Denver opened the 2013 NFL season with a prime-time victory over the reigning Super Bowl Champion Baltimore Ravens, 49-27. Denver followed up their impressive home opener by traveling to the East Coast to defeat the New York Giants, 41-23.

Offense: Twelve-time Pro Bowl QB Peyton Manning has picked up right where he left off in 2012. Through just two games, Manning has already amassed over 760 yards and nine TDs. During the season opener against the Ravens, Manning threw for 462 yards and seven touchdowns. Last week against the Giants, he tacked on another 307. The Broncos are currently ranked 20th in overall rush yards and are led by RB Knowshon Moreno with 121 total yards and two TDs.

Defense: Through the first two weeks of the NFL season, the Broncos are ranked number 21 in overall defense, allowing 384.5 yards per game. While they are ranked towards the middle of the pack, the Denver rush defense has been stellar and is the top-ranked run defense in the league, allowing only 81 yards on the ground thus far. S Duke Ihenacho currently leads the defensive unit in tackles with 18 total.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

S Tyvon Branch

- Needs one sack to tie No. 3 Albert Lewis (8.0, 1994-98) on the franchise's career list among defensive backs. He enters the game with seven after recording one last week against Indianapolis.

LS Jon Condo

- With three more consecutive games played, Condo will reach 100-consecutive games played. Condo has not missed a game since the streak began, in Week 1 of the 2007 season.

WR Jacoby Ford

- Needs 181 kickoff return yards to pass Doug Gabriel for 8th place and 224 yards to pass George Atkinson for seventh on the Raiders' all-time KOR yards list.

K Sebastian Janikowski

- Has now converted on 131 consecutive PAT attempts.
- Needs just 93 points to reach 1,500 for his career.

RB Rashad Jennings

- Needs 22 rushing yards to reach 1,000 for his career. He currently stands at 978.

RB Darren McFadden

- Needs 129 rushing yards to move into eighth place on the Raiders' all-time rushing list.
- Needs two rushing TDs to tie No. 10 Michael Bush (21, 2008-11) on the franchise's career list, four to tie No. 9 Marv Hubbard (22, 1969-75) and six to tie No. 8 Charlie Smith (24, 1968-74). McFadden enters the game with 19.
- Needs 5 receiving yards to eclipse 1,500 yards for his career.

WR Denarius Moore

- Needs 98 receiving yards to reach 1,500 for his career.

QB Terrelle Pryor

- Currently leads all quarterbacks with 162 rushing yards. Pryor could eclipse the Raiders' single-season mark of rushing yards by a quarterback with just 368 more yards. Rich Gannon set the mark in 2000 with 529.

DB Charles Woodson

- Needs six interceptions to tie Ed Reed for first on the interceptions list among all active players with 61.
- Needs one INT-TD to tie Rod Woodson for first on the all-time list with 12.
- Needs one defensive touchdown to tie Rod Woodson and Darren Sharper for the most defensive touchdowns in NFL history with 13.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 53rd year of professional football competition, including the last 43 as a member of the National Football League.

In five memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the 2000s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these Decades of Dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL Championship, four American Football Conference Championships, three World Championships of Professional Football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 Championship Games, won or tied for 17 Division Championships, had 21 playoff seasons, finished 34 seasons at .500 or better and played in 40 postseason games.

Pro Football's Dynamic Organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s and have won the most games of any original AFL franchise.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only two original AFL teams to have captured three World Championships of Professional Football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four different head coaches and started four different quarterbacks.

The Raiders are the last AFC Western Division team to go to the Super Bowl.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have totally dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During those memorable 50 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 421 league games, tied 11 and lost only 330.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raider organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

Nineteen of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Professional Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced five Pro Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 62 Pro Bowl players have made 180 Pro Bowl appearances representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-69-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders total domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 37-26-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 15-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the 2000s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

TEAM NOTES

RUNNING WILD

In Sunday's contest vs. Jacksonville, the Raiders rushed for 226 yards, and RB Darren McFadden accounted for 129 of them. Oakland had not rushed for that many yards in a game since 2011, when the Silver and Black rushed for 234 yards on 9/25/11 vs. NYJ. The 226 rushing yards on Sunday marked the 10th time that the Raiders have rushed for at least 200 yards in a game since 2008. Oakland also posted five runs of 20-or-more yards in the contest - three by McFadden, one by QB Terrelle Pryor and one by RB Rashad Jennings.

With the 171 rushing yards posted in Week 1 at Indianapolis, Oakland has now totaled 397 in their first two games. Since 2000, only once has the team rushed for a higher total in the first two games of the season than they have this year (2008; 450 rushing yards). Below is a look at where the first two games of 2013 stack up against other years since 2000.

Rank	Year	Week 1	Week 2	Total (first two weeks)
1.	2008	150	300	450

5.	2010	136	173	309

SACK LEADERS

The Raiders have gotten after the quarterback in the early going of the 2013 season, and are tied for the league lead with nine sacks. Additionally, the Raiders have gotten five sacks from their secondary, more than any other team.

Rank	Team	Total Sacks	DB Sacks

STUFFING THE RUN

Since the Raiders returned to Oakland in 1995, the team has limited the opposition to less than two yards per carry in a game only ten times, and last Sunday vs. Jacksonville was one of them. The 1.8 yards per carry allowed on Sunday was also the third time in the last two seasons the Silver and Black have allowed an average of less than two yards per carry in a game. Here is a look at the three games.

Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards	Attempts	Avg.
12/16/12	Kansas City	10	10	1.0
9/10/12	San Diego	32	20	1.6
9/15/13	Jacksonville	34	19	1.8

COMING OUT FIRING

In the season opener at Indianapolis, Oakland got out of the gates in a big way, outgaining the Colts by almost 100 yards, 372 to 274. Additionally, the Raiders rushed for 171 yards to the Colts' 127, and leading the way was QB Terrelle Pryor and his 112 rushing yards. Oakland's 372 total yards of offense was the second-best offensive output in a season opener since 2004. Here is where the Raiders' 372 yards ranks in the last 10 years.

WINNING WAYS

The Raiders are among the elite teams in the NFL, ranking among the top four from 1963-2012 in winning percentage. The Raiders rank fourth with a .560 percentage since Al Davis was named head coach and general manager in 1963, trailing only the Dallas Cowboys, Pittsburgh Steelers and the Miami Dolphins.

ROAD WARRIORS

The Raiders are among the top-performing road teams in NFL history. The Silver and Black rank fifth since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with a .482 winning percentage in games away from home. Oakland is 0-1 this season.

TIMELY SCORING

In the NFL, games can be won or lost by scoring or giving up points at the end of halves. In 2012, Oakland was one of the best teams in the league when it came to scoring late in a half. The Raiders posted 82 points in the final two minutes, good for second in the league; only Detroit had more.

* The Raiders also scored in the final two minutes of the first half in all four 2013 preseason games.

GETTING TO THE QB

The Raiders sacked Colts QB Andrew Luck four times in Week 1, pressuring him from all angles. Four different players recorded a sack in the games - including two defensive backs (S Tyvon Branch and CB Tracy Porter) - marking the second most sacks that Oakland has had in a season opener since 2004. Only in 2011, when the Raiders posted five sacks, has the team recorded more sacks in a season opener. The Raiders have also not had more than four players post sacks in a season opener in that time frame. Here is a look at the top three team sack performances in the last 10 season openers.

ROSTER TURNOVER

Since General Manager Reggie McKenzie took over the job on Jan. 10, 2012, Oakland's roster has undergone a major makeover. Of the 53 players currently on the active roster, only 14 players were on the team during the 2011 season. Additionally, only K Sebastian Janikowski, the longest tenured Raider, has been with the Silver and Black for more than six seasons.

SUCCESSFUL CHALLENGES

Head Coach Dennis Allen successfully challenged a completion ruling vs. New Orleans on Nov. 18, 2012, the fourth successful challenge by the Raiders in 2012. Including the preseason, the Raiders successfully challenged seven rulings last season, recording the best challenge-success rate in the league. The last Oakland opponent to challenge a play was Denver on Sept. 30. Allen's career challenges:

Sept. 23 vs. Pit.	Second-quarter completion (forced punt)
Sept. 30 at Den.	Second-quarter completion (third down)
Oct. 14 at Atl.	Fourth-quarter completion (forced punt)

INDIVIDUAL NOTES

WOODSON RETURNS HOME

One of the most beloved players to ever put on the Silver and Black signed with the Raiders on May 22, 2013, returning him home to the team that drafted him with their first-round selection in the 1998 NFL Draft. After seven years with the Green Bay Packers, Woodson brings his Hall of Fame credentials back to the Raiders, solidifying a revamped secondary.

Woodson grew to fame at the University of Michigan, where he helped the Wolverines capture the 1997 Associated Press National Championship. His individual performance during the 1997 season earned him the Heisman Trophy, becoming the first predominantly defensive player ever to win the illustrious award. He was also honored with the Walter Camp Player of the Year, Jim Thorpe Award, Bronko Nagurski Award and Sporting News Player of the Year.

The fourth-overall selection by Al Davis in the 1998 NFL Draft made an immediate impact in the league, earning the Defensive Rookie of the Year and being selected to the Pro Bowl in each of his first four seasons (1998-2001). During his first stint with the Raiders, Woodson also earned first-team All-Pro accolades on three occasions (Associated Press in 1999, Sports Illustrated in 2000 and Sporting News and College & Pro Football Newsweekly in 2001).

After signing with the Packers prior to the 2006 season, Woodson continued to collect the hardware and add to his legacy. From 2006-12 with Green Bay, he was selected to four Pro Bowls (2008-11), two more first-team All-Pro selections (2009 and 2011) and the 2009 NFL Defensive Player of the Year. In addition to earning the highest honor a defensive player can achieve in a single season, Woodson followed up the 2009 campaign by helping the Packers win the Super Bowl in 2010.

All in all, the resume Woodson brings back to Oakland is impressive: The 1997 Heisman Trophy Award and National Championship in college, eight Pro Bowl selections, three first-team All-Pro selections, the NFL's 2009 Defensive Player of the Year award, four conference championship game appearances, two Super Bowl appearances and one Super Bowl championship. Charles Woodson has returned to the Silver and Black to write the next chapter.

A LEADER IN PICKS

DB Charles Woodson, who posted nine interceptions when he won the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year award in 2009, is among the NFL's active leaders with 55 interceptions. Woodson trails only Texans S Ed Reed on the list of active leaders.

SELECT COMPANY

• Only two players in football history have ever won a Heisman Trophy, Associated Press Rookie of the Year, Associated Press Player of the Year and a Super Bowl in their career. Charles Woodson is one of them. The other? Former Raiders RB Marcus Allen.

• Since 1995, only three players have won both the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Year and Defensive Player of the Year awards in their career - Raiders DB Charles Woodson (1998 & 2009), Ravens OLB Terrell Suggs (2003 & 2011) and former Bears LB Brian Urlacher (2000 & 2005).

LONG-TERM THREAT

Remarkably, DB Charles Woodson has intercepted at least one pass in each of his first 15 NFL seasons. With a pick in 2013, Woodson will join an elite list of players to intercept a pass in at least 16-consecutive seasons.

TAKING IT TO THE HOUSE

The only thing better than forcing a turnover is turning it into a touchdown, and DB Charles Woodson has done that just as well as anybody in the history of the NFL. Woodson is one interception touchdown and defensive touchdown from tying for the all-time lead in both categories.

WOODSON: QUICK HITS

• Woodson posted an interception touchdown in six-straight seasons (2006-11), becoming the first player in NFL history to do so. No other NFL player has accomplished the feat in more than four-consecutive seasons.

• In 2009, Woodson became the fourth player in NFL history (since sacks became an official statistic) to record at least nine interceptions and two sacks in a single season.

• Is the only player in NFL history to post at least seven interceptions and two sacks in back-to-back seasons.

• Became the first NFL player (since sacks became an official statistic) to record two interceptions, an interception touchdown, a sack and a fumble recovery in the same game when he posted all of those statistics on 11/26/09 at Det.

INDIVIDUAL NOTES

BRANCH ON THE STOP

S Tyvon Branch has been one the most consistent Raiders over the last four seasons. Branch enjoyed a breakout year in 2009, posting 124 tackles in his first season as a starter, leading all DBs in that category. Branch followed it up by leading Oakland in tackles for 2010 and 2011. Additionally, Branch set a career high in 2012 with 146 tackles, good for second on the team.

TACKLING MACHINE

Drafted in the fourth round of the 2012 NFL Draft, LB Miles Burris made an immediate impact on the field. Not only did he finish third on the team in tackles, Burris became the first Raider rookie to crack the century mark in tackles since Thomas Howard in 2006 (110), and his tackle total ranks first among Raider rookies since at least 1994.

HOUSTON EARNS HONORS

DE Lamarr Houston earned the AFC Defensive Player of the Week award for his performance against Jacksonville on Oct. 21, 2012. Houston totaled seven tackles (six solo), one sack and a critical forced fumble in the Raiders' 26-23 overtime win. In overtime, Houston forced a fumble that was recovered by teammate CB Joselio Hanson, setting up K Sebastian Janikowski's game-winning field goal.

CLUTCH PORTER

With Peyton Manning and the Indianapolis Colts trailing by a touchdown and driving late in Super Bowl XLIV, CB Tracy Porter, then a member of the New Orleans Saints, made one of the clutch plays in NFL history. Porter stepped in front of Manning pass intended for Reggie Wayne, then raced 74 yards for the championship-sealing score. Porter, who has three interception touchdowns with less than 3:30 remaining in the game and his team leading by one score or less in his career, is in his first season with Oakland.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

The Raiders signed LB Nick Roach as an unrestricted free agent on March 13, 2013 after spending his first six seasons with the Chicago Bears. With the Bears, Roach learned the linebacker position under All-Pro LBs Brian Urlacher and Lance Briggs. Bringing that experience to Oakland, here is what Roach has done over the last four years.

BROTHER 'BACKERS

LB Kevin Burnett

Kevin and Kaelin Burnett became the first brothers to play in a regular season game in the history of the Raiders franchise in Week 1 at Indianapolis. The Burnett brothers are also the only active siblings in the NFL on the same team. Kevin, who is eight years older than Kaelin, joined Oakland on March 18, 2013, following two seasons with the Miami Dolphins. Kevin was originally drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 2005 and has appeared in 121 games over his nine seasons. Kaelin originally signed with the Raiders as an undrafted free agent prior to the 2012 season. Kaelin spent the first 10 games of the 2012 season on the practice squad before being elevated to the 53-man roster for the final six games.

INDIVIDUAL NOTES

DYNAMIC PRYOR

Making just his second career start, QB Terrelle Pryor electrified in the 2013 season opener at Indianapolis. Pryor combined for 329 total yards of offense (217 passing, 112 rushing) and led the Raiders to one of the best offensive outputs the team has had in the last 10 years. Pryor's 112 rushing yards were a franchise record for rushing yards by a quarterback in a single game. Pryor broke the previous record of 85 set by Rich Gannon on 10/8/00. His 217 passing yards were also the most by an Oakland quarterback since Carson Palmer threw for 273 on 12/6/12. Below is a look at where Pryor's day on the ground stacks up against other QB rushing totals from the last three-plus seasons.

Raiders vs. Jaguars

Oakland Raiders beat Jacksonville Jaguars

Jerry McDonald

September 15, 2013

OAKLAND -- For starters, Raiders coach Dennis Allen would be hard-pressed to come up with a better three-point plan for success.

With all three phases contributing to the first game-opening touchdown by the offense in more than a year, the Raiders made an immediate statement Sunday and spent the rest of the day keeping the game under control in a 19-9 win over the Jacksonville Jaguars before a crowd of 49,400 at O.co Coliseum.

In a national sense, the game was being viewed as a potential battle for the No. 1 overall draft pick, given the fortunes of the two franchises in recent years.

When it was over, only one team on the field looked as if it would be called to the podium for the first pick, and it wasn't the Raiders, who outgained Jacksonville 340-248 in their home opener. Free safety Charles Woodson, who had the game's most spectacular play when he hurdled a Jacksonville blocker to prevent a potential touchdown by Maurice Jones-Drew, already was looking forward to an AFC West showdown with the Denver Broncos on "Monday Night Football" in Week 3.

"It's one win. There's bigger fish out there," Woodson said. "It looks like Denver put up a lot of points again, so we've got to get over this one."

Running back Darren McFadden keyed a 226-yard rushing effort with 129 yards on 19 carries, Marcel Reece scored on an 11-yard run, and Sebastian Janikowski kicked field goals from 46, 30, 29 and 29 yards as the Raiders evened their record at 1-1.

Jacksonville, its quick-tempo offense shut down by a sharp-tackling Oakland defense, managed only a 27-yard field goal by Josh Scobee in the second quarter and a cosmetic 13-yard touchdown pass from Chad Henne to Chad Harbor with 2:53 remaining.

The Raiders got the crowd into the game from the outset, winning the toss and electing to defer to Jacksonville.

Jacksonville was immediately forced to punt after a three-and-out, and Phillip Adams returned it 30 yards down the left sideline to the Jaguars' 38-yard line. Set up with a short field, the Raiders turned it into points on Reece's 11-yard run. It was the first time the Raiders had scored on their opening offensive possession since the 2011 regular-season finale.

"I thought that was huge," Allen said. "I think our defense stepping up, getting a three-and-out, getting the big punt return, then scoring was a big momentum builder, a big confidence-builder."

The offense never made it back into the end zone, with Janikowski getting five field goal attempts -- he missed from 35 yards -- and making four of them.

McFadden's big day was supported by 50 yards on nine carries from quarterback Terrelle Pryor and 32 yards on four carries by Rashad Jennings. The Raiders gained 163 yards rushing on six explosive runs ranging from 24 to 30 yards -- four by McFadden and one each from Pryor and Jennings.

Having watched Pryor run for 112 yards on 13 carries in Week 1, the Jaguars defense might have overcompensated and paid for it.

"Guys were over-shifting big-time on me," Pryor said.

Pryor completed 15 of 24 passes for 126 yards, seldom looking downfield with the Raiders content to take field goals with their defense in control.

"I feel like I did my job with the plays that were called in," Pryor said. "I did my job and we got a W. We got out healthy, and we have a big opponent coming up, so our mind is on that now."

Henne completed 25 of 38 passes for 241 yards and the one touchdown, but Jacksonville averaged only 1.8 yards per carry against the Oakland defense. Former De La Salle High star Maurice Jones-Drew had just 27 yards on 10 carries before leaving with an ankle injury.

Coach Gus Bradley said Jones-Drew sustained a sprain and X-rays were negative. He will be evaluated Monday.

Raiders dump powerless Jaguars

Early in the fourth quarter Sunday, Raiders head coach Dennis Allen decided not to go for it on 4th-and-1 and instead chose to kick a short field goal to go up by 13. There was a smattering of boos from the home fans.

Allen should have gone on the P.A. system and explained to them that when you're playing a bad team, and maybe a historically bad one in the Jaguars, you take the points. Jacksonville had scored all of five points in its first seven quarters of the season.

And with that explanation, the fans could get back to enjoying the first win of the season.

The Raiders' defense held the Jaguars without a first down for more than two quarters, and Sebastian Janikowski kicked four field goals as Oakland beat Jacksonville 19-9 in its home opener at the Coliseum. The Raiders are 1-1 going into a Monday night game in Denver.

"We stepped on their throat early," said defensive tackle Christo Bilukidi, who had his first career sack. "Offense, defense and special teams contributed. All we want is wins, and we got our first one."

The Raiders held the Jaguars to 34 yards rushing and sacked Chad Henne five times, more than they had in any game last season. Oakland held Jacksonville to 121 yards of offense - and no first downs for most of the second quarter, all of the third and most of the fourth - until two garbage-time drives.

Darren McFadden looked like his old self, to the delight of the sellout crowd of 49,400, running for 129 yards on 19 carries. He had runs of 30, 28, 26 and 24 yards in his second game back with the straight-ahead power-gap scheme after having a terrible season last year with a zone-blocking offense.

The Raiders are 11-2 when McFadden runs for more than 100 yards.

"That's the way the running game operates," Allen said. "You're going to get a lot of 2-, 3-, 4-yard runs and then you're going to be able to pop one."

Quarterback Terrelle Pryor got his first win in three career starts, running for 50 yards and completing 15 of 24 passes for 126 yards. Marcel Reece scored Oakland's lone touchdown with a hard, tackle-breaking 11-yard run in the first quarter to celebrate his three-year contract extension.

Pryor, who ran for 112 yards in Week 1, said the Jaguars "absolutely" were focused on stopping him, and that opened up things for McFadden.

"That's why D-Mac got 120-something yards," Pryor said. "Our other running back busted a big run, and that's why I believe (McFadden) had a great day. Guys were over-shifting big-time on me. But, hey, we got a win."

Meanwhile, Jacksonville running back Maurice Jones-Drew, from De La Salle High in Concord, had 27 yards on 10 carries before leaving the game with an ankle injury. X-rays were negative, and he will have an MRI exam Monday.

His season ended in Oakland last year when he hurt his foot Oct. 21.

The Jaguars (0-2) were already without starting quarterback Blaine Gabbert (hand), receiver Justin Blackmon (suspension) and tight end Marcedes Lewis (calf). Jacksonville came within three minutes of becoming the first team since the 2006 Raiders and Buccaneers to fail to score a touchdown in its first two games.

Allen was in no mood to hear about how his team beat an undermanned foe.

"We won a football game ... and that's all we can go out and try to do," he said.

The Raiders set the tone early with a defensive three-and-out followed by a 30-yard punt return by Phillip Adams. Oakland drove the other 38 yards, scoring on Reece's run for its first opening-drive touchdown since the final game of the 2011 season.

Pryor didn't try to force anything, and he didn't have a turnover after throwing two interceptions in Week 1.

Janikowski missed a 35-yard field-goal attempt in the second quarter, ending a streak of 55 makes from 40 yards or closer. He then made a 46-yarder from the infield dirt in the final seconds of the half to put Oakland up 10-3.

Janikowski also nailed three second-half field goals from 30, 29 and 29 yards for the rest of the Raiders' points.

Although Allen was "happy and excited" about the win, scoring only one touchdown in five trips to the Jaguars' red zone stuck in his craw. As well as letting Jacksonville gain 124 yards and scoring a touchdown in the final six minutes.

"Overall, I thought it was sloppy," Allen said. "I don't think it was up to the standard that we want, and there's a lot of things we have to continue to work on and improve."

The joy of sacks

The Raiders are 21-29 since the start of the 2010 season. There is a common theme among the wins: When the defense records three or more sacks, Oakland is 17-4.

Instant Replay: Raiders down Jaguars for first win of season

OAKLAND – Terrelle Pryor was the focal point of these Raiders following a stellar regular-season opener. The attention was well deserved.

The quarterback's creativity was lauded. His improvisational skills excited a frustrated fan base.

The young quarterback played a part in 19-9 victory over the Jacksonville Jaguars on Sunday at the Oakland Coliseum, but defense won this day.

The Raiders shut Jacksonville down, giving up a field goal and a garbage-time touchdown in their home opener. They allowed just 242 yards, a lot of which came with the game in hand. They corralled running backs with solid interior line play and excellent open-field tackling. They tormented quarterback Chad Henne and sacked him 5 times. They covered well downfield.

While the Jaguars offense is pretty bad and struggles to do much of anything, this game shows that a defense with nine new starters is starting to come together. They play well as a unit, and generated pressure to slow the Indianapolis Colts.

While the defense caged Jacksonville's attack, the Raiders' power running game kept churning out yards and points. All told, the Raiders had 226 yards rushing. While the Raiders struggled to convert in the red zone, the field goals kept on coming.

The Raiders opened the game with a touchdown. They took an early lead on an 11-yard TD run from fullback Marcel Reece. The Raiders drove 38 yards on five plays, taking advantage of quality field position set up by Phillips Adams' 30-yard punt return.

McFadden over 100: Raiders running back Darren McFadden broke out with a few big runs against the Jaguars. He had a 24-yard scamper in the second quarter and runs of 30 and 28 yards in the third and 26 in the fourth.

He finished with 129 yards and a touchdown on 19 carries. He also had 4 receptions for 28 yards.

Janikowski missed another one: Janikowski rarely misses field goals inside 50 yards. On Sunday, he missed his second in as many games. He sent an attempt wide left from 35 yards out.

Janikowski converted field goals from 46 and 30 and twice from 29 yards out.

Janikowski has dealt with a right calf injury and seems uncomfortable with new holder Marquette King.

Tricks up Olson's sleeve: Raiders offensive coordinator ran a few surprising plays against the Jaguars. McFadden earned a nine-yard run from a direct snap in the wildcat formation. They also had McFadden throw a long lateral to Pryor, who chucked it downfield to receiver Rod Streater. The play was called back due to an illegal formation penalty.

Fast(er) start: The Raiders went down by double digits in all four preseason games and last week's opener, but the Raiders were able to get going early against the Jaguars. They forced a three-and-out, got a 30-yards punt return from Phillip Adams and scored a touchdown on the next drive.

Injury update: Strong safety Tyvon Branch suffered a leg injury in the first half and did not return. He was injured trying to make a tackle and couldn't leave the field under his own power. He was replaced by Brandian Ross.

Left guard Lucas Nix suffered an ankle injury in the second half and did not return.

Jaguars running back Maurice Jones-Drew suffered an ankle sprain that cut his game short. The Oakland native also injured himself last year while playing his homecoming game.

Sitting it out: The Raiders rendered seven players inactive against the Jaguars, including Quarterback Matt McGloin, cornerback Chimdi Chekwa, offensive tackle Menelik Watson, guard

Antoine McClain, receiver Juron Criner, tight end David Ausberry and defensive end Jack Crawford. Watson and Ausberry were ruled out with injury. The rest were healthy scratches.

What's next: The Raiders travel to face quarterback Peyton Manning and the Denver Broncos Sept. 23 on Monday Night Football.

Raiders' Dennis Allen learned from Saints' Sean Payton

By Jerry McDonald

August 15, 2013

NEW ORLEANS -- Dennis Allen remembers sitting at a table at his first staff meeting as an assistant coach with the New Orleans Saints, listening to a voice that would define his future.

"One of the things Sean Payton says is, when you take this staff picture, I want to be able to look back on it 10, 15, 20 years from now and see where guys have gone on to have success, to be head coaches and coordinators," Allen said. "He's always been great about trying to promote his guys. It's something he takes great pride in."

While general manager Reggie McKenzie has restructured the Raiders' front office and personnel department using what he learned working for the Green Bay Packers, the on-field operation as structured by Allen in many ways mirrors New Orleans.

Allen returns to New Orleans, with Payton on the opposite sideline, when the Raiders visit the Saints at the Mercedes-Benz Superdome at 5 p.m. Friday.

Payton hired Allen off the staff of the Atlanta Falcons in 2006 as an assistant defensive line coach. Allen became defensive backs coach in 2008 and stayed there until he became defensive coordinator for the Denver Broncos with Payton's blessing in 2011.

Raiders safety Usama Young, who played for the Saints from 2008-10, can see the similarities between teams run by Payton and Allen.

"The tempo of the practices, the meetings, the way you prepared for things you never would have even considered, they're very much the same," Young said.

Allen said he indeed borrowed heavily from New Orleans, where he won a championship ring after the 2009 season with a 31-17 win over the Indianapolis Colts in Super Bowl XLIV.

"The way we practice, the way we meet, the schedule that we have, a lot of that comes from the time I had in New Orleans," Allen said. "We had a lot of success doing it that way. It's no different than growing up as a child. You develop a lot of your personality, your character, from the environment that you're in."

In much the way that Payton repeated some of the things he learned under Bill Parcells as a Dallas assistant, Allen is passing along things he learned from Payton.

"I catch myself a lot of times with the same demeanor, the same message, even the same delivery," Allen said. "You've got to be your own guy as the head coach, and coach to your own personality. But there are a lot of things I've seen him do as far as managing a team that I've tried to incorporate."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

With Payton being an offensive coach and Allen being a defensive coach, Young has been around Allen much more than he was ever around Payton.

"Sean would come in, draw a couple of things on the board, then he'd be off with the offense," Young said. "D.A., he's in the room with us scheming, adding things, drawing up things."

Allen said he stays in touch with Payton although not so much during training camp. When Payton was suspended last season for his role in the Saints' bounty scandal, he was prohibited from talking with anyone associated from an NFL team.

"He couldn't do anything with anybody, and that was tough, because he's obviously one of my mentors," Allen said.

New Orleans went 7-9 last season with Payton under suspension after winning 37 games the previous three seasons. Allen expects a return to form.

"I think you'll see a different New Orleans team this year with him back," Allen said.

Kawakami: Revamped Raiders a better fit for Dennis Allen's style

By Tim Kawakami
August 14, 2013

NAPA -- This is Dennis Allen's kind of Raiders team, which I know mostly because Allen keeps pointing it out.

He's not saying this is a tremendously talented team, because he's too smart to oversell his current squad of mostly unknown, unproven players.

And he's not critiquing last season's more recognizable bunch, though we can all make plausible conclusions from what he won't say about the 2012 Raiders' 4-12 swoon.

But Allen, starting his second season in the Raiders' massive reboot alongside general manager Reggie McKenzie, is much more in his element in this year's training camp surrounded by players who actually want to be here.

"I think your first year you're really trying to figure it out, OK?" Allen said in an interview after Tuesday afternoon's practice.

"There's a lot of things you deal with as a head coach that you never dealt with as a coordinator, you never dealt with as a position coach ...

"There's no question I feel a lot more comfortable in my role. And I think having the guys on this team that we have, I think, helps me in that."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That's a twofold leap: Allen, the first-time head coach, now clearly understands the totality of his job (and there's no totality greater than inheriting the recent Raiders' mess); and that leads to the importance of gathering like-minded players.

Yes, it probably took longer than he and McKenzie thought it would take to get here, and this is just the start of the start.

In many ways -- new quarterback, new offensive coordinator, mostly an entirely new defense from 2012 -- this feels more like Year 1 in a startup than Year 2.

Still, Allen sees progress -- with his own coaching abilities, with his roster, and with the organization as a whole.

"What I'll say is, I like the players we have on this team," Allen said. "I like the way they come to work every day. I like their unselfishness.

"I like the fact that they want to come out to work every day and they want to try to get better.

"That's what I like about the 2013 Raiders."

For a lot of different reasons, he probably didn't feel much of that last season.

Instead, because of salary-cap constraints and the desire to keep the Raiders as competitive as possible (oops!), Allen had to slalom around the egos and declining production of veterans such as Rolando McClain, Richard Seymour, Tommy Kelly and Carson Palmer.

Now those players are gone. I would assume the woes of 2012 still linger in owner Mark Davis' memory, though.

So McKenzie and especially Allen are under the microscope this season, and Allen seems entirely fine with that.

"As I've moved forward, I've done a better job of trying to pick out who those guys are going to be that can help this team and lead this team and preach the same message that I'm preaching," Allen said.

What's left is a squad with expansion-level elements, especially after the rash of camp injuries that included Wednesday's devastating announcement that left tackle Jared Veldheer has a torn triceps and will be out for a while.

The Week 1 quarterback almost certainly will be journeyman Matt Flynn; other than tailback Darren McFadden and maybe safety Tyvon Branch, there isn't a prime-age star on this roster. "Me personally, I like our roster," Flynn said. "There's a lot of guys that have a lot of talent and probably some names that people have never heard of.

"But I truly believe that they will very soon."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Fact: This is not a quality roster. But a good coaching staff can do more and better things with a roster full of hungry, unproven players than the sludgy group the Raiders tried last year.

"Any time you come into a new situation, it's never exactly how you want it," Allen said. "So it's a process. And sometimes those processes take a little bit of time.

"It takes time to get everybody in place that kind of sees the same vision that you do."

At this year's training camp, Allen has turned toward a more collegiate atmosphere -- most notably, one practice determines whether the offense or defense gets to wear silver jerseys in the next.

The holdovers from last year have embraced it; Allen is quick to name defensive lineman Lamarr Houston and fullback Marcel Reece as returnees who have taken leadership roles this season. Allen also hired offensive coordinator Greg Olson to replace Greg Knapp and dump the zone-blocking scheme, and there were other key staff changes.

Again, this is much closer to Allen's kind of team, at least in attitude and philosophy. It's Allen's stamp on this franchise.

The Raiders probably won't win a lot of games, but they will have his stamp. They need his stamp.

If Allen's going to be on the hot seat in Year 2, he might as well do it his way. And I think Allen is the best shot the Raiders have right now.

DAVID AUSBERRY

David Ausberry ready to take over as Raiders top tight end

By Levi Damien

Aug 1, 2013

David Ausberry is establishing himself as the starting tight end for the Raiders. He showed himself to be on the verge of breaking out last off-season before disappearing last season. Aside from one very memorable play (sorry, Kevin Burnett), he barely saw the field.

Ausberry took a backseat to fourth year tight end, Brandon Myers. But as a second tight end in an offense which focused on tight ends as much as the Raiders did, one would expect more than his 7 catches for 92 yards.

According to Dennis Allen, Ausberry's issues stem from the mental side of things.

"The concern with David Ausberry has nothing to do with physical ability," said Dennis Allen. "It's really a lot more about the mental aspect of the game, understanding how to play the tight end position. He's worked extremely hard. We always knew that he had receiving talent. Where he's improved the most is No. 1, assignments, he's been a lot better on his assignments. And No. 2 is his ability to block both in the running game and pass protection."

Ausberry has all the abilities necessary to be a very good tight end in this league. He shows it consistently in camp practices. Raiders fans have seen it in small doses in games as well. Now the job is his to lose and his transition from wide receiver, which he played in college, looks to be complete.

"It's much better than when I started playing tight end," said Ausberry. "There's still room for improvement, but the transition was a big one. It's a whole different world in the trenches. My blocking is better, but that's come with experience and a whole lot of reps."

The time is now for Ausberry. The team drafted two tight ends in the sixth round to provide some insurance but they didn't go out and sign a big name free agent to play tight end with the idea that he would be ready to step up and be the man.

KEVIN BURNETT

SF CHRONICLE

Raiders' older Burnett pushes the younger

Vic Tafur

September 4, 2013

Kaelin Burnett was an undrafted rookie at the Raiders' training camp last year, talking to his brother on the phone. Kevin, then 29 and almost seven years older, was a starting linebacker for the Miami Dolphins.

"We were talking about how great it would be if we could ever be on the same team," Kaelin said. "Kev said you never know what will happen, and the next year, voila, we're on the same team. ... Dreams do come true."

Kaelin, also a linebacker, has wanted to be like his brother his whole life, and in Sunday's opener, they both will run out of the tunnel in Indianapolis wearing silver and black. Kevin, signed as a free agent, will start; Kaelin is a backup.

They are the 73rd set of brothers to play for the same team in the same season, according to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, and the first to do so for the Raiders.

They will have to buy a lot of tickets for family members this season, but Kaelin said the sticker shock will be well worth it.

"He's the reason I played ball when I was younger," said Kaelin, who grew up in the Los Angeles area. "My big brother plays football. I am going to play football, too. My big brother plays linebacker. I am going to play linebacker, too."

Kaelin didn't make the cut initially last season, but was placed on the Raiders' practice squad before being called up for the last six games. This year, he wasn't really sweating cut-down day Saturday. He was pretty confident based on how he played this preseason, and so was his family.

"My family felt I did way better this preseason than last preseason," Kaelin said. "They felt I looked the part."

They should know. Older brother Kevin has been an NFL linebacker for eight seasons, and a pretty good, underrated one. Playing for the Cowboys, Chargers and Dolphins, Burnett has made 49 straight starts, and his 311 tackles since 2010 rank 17th in the NFL.

"Kevin's done a nice job," head coach Dennis Allen said. "I think he's an athletic linebacker. I think he fills a leadership role for us on defense, and we expect big things out of Kevin."

And, as you can expect, big brother expects big things out of his little brother. Kevin is often yelling at Kaelin during plays.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I love it," Kaelin said. "He's helping me with everything, picking up on little keys. ... It's just great having your big brother here looking after you."

Kevin's pretty tough on him, right?

"Yeah, ever since I was young," Kaelin said, "so I am used to it by now."
Well ...

"It's hard for him to take," Kevin said, "and hard for him to accept at times. I'm yelling at him while a play is going on, and then after the play, and it bothers him to some extent."

Kaelin has gotten a lot better, improving his hand-placement and pad-level techniques and getting off blocks. But not too quickly.

"Sometimes, I get too hyped up," Kaelin said. "I need to extend them first, use my eyes and see where the play is going and then get to the ball. Body control."

Allen said that Kaelin's "a guy that can run. He's still got a lot of developing that he needs to do, but he has a chance to develop."

Kaelin thinks he got better this preseason, and Kevin agrees.

"He's coming along," Kevin said. "I can't ask anything more of him. He is eager to learn and he wants to be good. He wants to be 100 percent on his assignments. Now it's just doing it over and over again."

When they leave the team facility at night, Kevin lists the things that Kaelin did wrong that day, so Kaelin can come in the next day and address them.

"I don't want to be a repeat-mistake offender," Kaelin said.

But, yes, there are times Kaelin doesn't want to hear what Kevin is saying. Because Kaelin not only grew up wanting to be like his brother, but he wanted to be better.

"It's very competitive, I must say," Kaelin said after a big sigh. "I love competing. We try to keep the smack-talking level down, but I feel like I am going to be a better player than him."

"He always tells me, 'Know your role. I am the big brother.' But I feel like in a few years, teams are going to have to look out for me."

Let you in on a little secret: Kevin wants Kaelin to be better than he is, too.

"I want him to be the best Burnett linebacker," Kevin Burnett. "It's not about who's better than who, it's about reaching your potential. If his potential is better than (mine), I am going to help him reach that."

SILVER AND BLACK PRIDE

Kevin Burnett has an enormous chip on his shoulder

By Levi Damien

Aug 4, 2013

There are a total of 60 new players on this Raiders team. That's two thirds of the roster. By now we have figured out that there is a common thread among those 60 players Reggie McKenzie and Dennis Allen have added - they are all have something to prove - but I can say without a doubt none of them have a bigger chip on their shoulder than Kevin Burnett.

The former second round pick is entering his ninth season in the NFL and his fourth team. In the first four of those seasons - all in Dallas -- he started a total of 4 games. When he left the Cowboys and joined the Chargers, he saw the most starts he had in his career. He started 7 games in his first season there and all 16 games the following season.

So, by his sixth season in the league, he had finally shown enough to earn his place as the fulltime starter. Then he was not brought back.

He went to the Dolphins and started every game the past two seasons, raising his tackle numbers each the past three seasons including having over 100 tackles each of the past two. Then he was released. The team felt like they had found an upgrade with Raiders former linebacker, Philip Wheeler and Burnett was not in the plans.

So, it seems though he finally had become a fulltime starter, he still wasn't quite good enough. He was still a stopgap until something better came along. All throughout his career, he has struggled. Four years of toiling in obscurity, then four years of not 'he'll do for now' and now at age 30, he must deal with the age question.

These facts have come together to create one enormous chip on his shoulder.

"People say, 'Oh, he got this, he did this, he's sorry, he's this, he's that.'" Said Burnett. "My numbers have gone up every season, so...what's that a product of? You know, I've been on good football teams, had other people around me so it's not just that I'm on a sorry football team. The guy can play."

"The fact that I can do it all and the ability to play smart," Burnett said of his skill set. "Not a lot of football players play smart. Not a lot of players help themselves before the snap of the play and that's what I love about myself. Given the fact that everybody wants to say, 'He's getting older,' or 'He's this he's that. He sucks.' Whatever. I've had 200-tackle seasons back to back. So, it's all in the eye of the beholder."

Another common thread seems to be versatility. Jason Tarver does a lot of different things with this team's linebacking corps and Burnett can be found lining up at each outside linebacker position as well as inside linebacker at times. The changing alignments aside, the Raiders are severely depleted in camp due to injury. He is considered somewhat of a 'jack of all trades' even if his critics might add 'master of none'.

"In this league, you've got to be able to play every position. You've got to be able to play sam, mike, will, strong safety, free safety, defensive end because on any given play they can say, 'Flip it.' And then, when that happens, you gotta be able to run the defense. So, it helps to know where everybody's going, know what everybody's doing.

"Football is a game of versatility. It's built around how much you can do for your football team to help them win. So, it's not about what position you play because all that is, is a label. . . Football players put themselves in the best position to succeed. So do coaches. Now, it's about: what role am I going to fulfill on this particular play? What role am I going to ask this player to play at this particular point in time."

The unique position this NFL veteran is in compared to some of the other new Raiders is he has been a starter for three plus seasons. Most guys who feel like they have a lot to prove are unknowns or have toiled as a backup throughout their careers.

Burnett clearly needs no added incentive for him to play with a sense of urgency. But he can't speak for any of the other newly signed players on this team. Most of those players are on one-year deals (Burnett is on a two-year deal) and according to him, those deals were made with motivation in mind.

"If you look at the construction of this team, it's not by happenstance a lot of people are here on short-term deals," said Burnett. "See, what you do by doing that is you create a hungry football team. By creating a hungry football team, you're creating a team that plays with a sense of urgency, guys that are not complacent."

I would assume he doesn't include himself among that group which would need a short term deal to keep from being complacent. Disproving those who would slight or disrespect his abilities is clearly all the motivation he needs.

Rookie WR Brice Butler impresses Raiders

By Josh Dubow

August 12, 2013

NAPA, Calif. -- Two long catches and a touchdown in his NFL exhibition debut earned Oakland Raiders receiver Brice Butler plenty of congratulatory messages from friends and family.

His response: Ignore it.

Because as a seventh-round pick with little college pedigree, Butler knows that he is just one bad practice or game from transforming from summertime revelation to struggling to make the 53-man roster.

"I don't try to let it get to me," Butler said. "It's just one game. I just have to keep working. If I play terrible nobody will remember last week. I just have to keep working."

That's just the reaction coach Dennis Allen wants Butler to have, saying that he hoped Butler wouldn't read all the glowing reviews from a game where he had an impressive 40-yard catch and run followed by a diving 30-yard touchdown catch on one attention-getting drive.

That kind of performance has vaulted Butler into the mix for a roster spot on a team still searching for dependable receiving options.

"Make no mistake about it; he's been a nice surprise," Allen said. "When you get a seventh-round draft pick like that who's really developed, that's a good thing to have. But at the same time, I don't want him reading too much of his press clippings and start feeling too good about himself.

He's still a rookie. He still has a long way to go, but he's off to a nice start."

Butler knows firsthand how quickly a player's position can change. A Super Prep All-American in high school in Georgia, Butler went to Southern California and had 20 catches his first year and was named to the Pac-10 all-freshman team.

But his playing time dwindled the next two years when he combined for just 21 catches and he ended up transferring to San Diego State for his senior year. He caught 24 passes for the Aztecs on a team that ranked 111th in the nation in pass attempts.

That journey is one reason why Butler is more focused on his mistakes from Friday night than his successes.

"I honestly don't think I played that good," he said. "Until those couple of plays on that one drive I didn't feel good about my play at all. I definitely have to work on it. Watching tape there was a lot of stuff I can work on. ... I definitely just have to build on it."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Butler has the advantage of getting some outside help from his father, Bobby, who played 12 years in the NFL as a cornerback for the Atlanta Falcons.

Bobby Butler can help his son on the intricacies of the NFL game from the perspective of someone who made a career stopping wide receivers.

"Defensively, he tells me what he sees when he watches me run routes or he watches me in the run game," Brice Butler said. "Offensively, he tells me what I should do to trigger different things from the corner and stuff like that. He's always been like that with me. When he realized I didn't want to play corner he has always been there on the side helping."

Butler is on a similar path to the one teammate Rod Streater followed last summer. Streater arrived as an undrafted free agent from Temple who had just 19 catches as a senior.

But he quickly caught the eyes of his coaches with his good hands and route-running and had 39 catches for 584 yards and three touchdowns as a rookie. Streater now has a starting role a year after making the team out of nowhere and is dispensing advice to younger players like Butler.

"We talk about it all the time," Streater said. "He was a blocking guy and had almost similar stats. We instantly connected. I told him, 'You just got to work and when you're on the field, college is done now. This is the NFL. You get a new chance.'"

Brice Butler looks to build on fast start with Oakland Raiders

By Steve Corkran

August 11, 2013

NAPA -- If wide receiver Brice Butler doesn't know about Ken-Yon Rambo, it's worth his time and effort to find out soon so that he can avoid a similar outcome to Rambo's once-promising Raiders career.

Like Butler, Rambo joined the Raiders as a seventh-round draft pick on a team with plenty of receiver depth. Butler also followed the trail blazed by Rambo by turning a late-game catch into a pivotal touchdown in his Raiders debut Friday night.

The key now is for Butler to build upon his fast start and not flame out the way Rambo did in 2001. The Raiders released Rambo at the end of training camp after his lone TD catch was his exhibition highlight. Butler still has plenty of time to bolster his stock.

"He's been a nice surprise," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said of Butler. Yet, what he has done so far is little more than a nice start in the overall scheme of things. It's imperative Butler not get complacent and make too much of his showing against the Dallas Cowboys, when Butler led all receivers with 70 yards on his two receptions.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"We'll make sure we keep our thumb on him, make sure he doesn't read too much of the good stuff (reporters are) going to write about him," Allen said.

Butler arrived from San Diego State via USC, the ninth of 10 players selected by the Raiders in the NFL draft in April.

He joined a crowded field of hopefuls that included undrafted rookies Greg Jenkins, Conner Vernon and Sam McGuffie and inexperienced players such as Travionte Session, Isaiah Williams and Juron Criner.

Making the leap from prospect to the opening-game, 53-man roster entails standing out during practice and games.

Denarius Moore did just that in 2011 and went from fifth-round draft pick to starting receiver. Rod Streater followed suit in 2012 in going from undrafted rookie to opening-day starter.

Now it's Butler who is surging to the head of the class and making a push for not only a roster spot but also meaningful playing time.

Streater said he and Butler bonded instantly because of their similar backgrounds, as well as their college stats.

Players in their situation have to be almost "perfect" to overcome the long odds, Streater added. They also have to put behind them stellar plays, solid practices and good games.

"You got to move on," Streater said. "The coaches want to see improvement every game, and the next game is the most important. You can't live off the past."

That already seems ingrained in Butler, who tired of all the praise from friends and family after the Cowboys game.

"I honestly don't think I played that good," Butler said. "Until those couple of plays on that one drive, I didn't feel good about my play at all. I definitely have to work on it. Watching tape, there was a lot of stuff I can work on."

Butler transferred to San Diego State after his junior season at USC when playing time dwindled. That experience prepared him for the tenuous existence of an NFL player.

"I can't focus on what the coaches are thinking or what the other players are doing," Butler said. "I've done that in the past, and it didn't really go well for me. So, I'm really just focusing on what ... I can do best for the team."

Having a father that played in the NFL for 12 seasons gives Butler an edge in that he has someone to speak with about the process.

Bobby Butler played cornerback for the Atlanta Falcons from 1981-92. Brice said his father passes along tips on what to look for from cornerbacks and how to gain an advantage.

Matt Flynn relishes rare second chance

By Scott Bair

August 9, 2013

Matt Flynn understands that opportunities lost are rarely regained. Especially in the NFL. Especially following a failure so public.

The quarterback was a prized free agent in 2012, resting largely on the laurels of two outstanding starts in Green Bay. The game tape was good enough to woo several suitors, whom Flynn considered equally before choosing Seattle and the three-year, $26 million contract offered.

We know how this story goes. Flynn was the presumptive starter heading into camp, and lost out to an unheralded rookie.

That's the Cliffs Notes version. Additional, pertinent info: Turns out Russell Wilson is pretty darn good. Turns out Flynn had elbow troubles in training camp that hindered his effectiveness, which the team kept quiet. And, it turns out Flynn and Seahawks coach Pete Carroll won't be best friends forever.

All that is prelude to this. The Raiders gave Flynn another chance to start, albeit at a reduced rate with no future risk. There is no guaranteed money in next season's pay structure, so this is Flynn's best, and probably last chance to be a franchise quarterback.

"I came in here excited, feeling blessed to have this opportunity, a second opportunity really, to get a starting job in the NFL," Flynn said. "I came in here with the mentality that I am going to be that guy. You have to walk in with confidence and have a presence about yourself. You have to go in there and act like you're the guy."

There is less confidence he can be. Somehow, after throwing just nine regular-season passes in 2012, Flynn was downgraded from hot commodity to penny stock. Without a polished resume, his ability to be a full-time starter is in doubt. His arm strength has been questioned – and rightfully so – but Flynn throws short and intermediate passes of quality.

That's what he'll be asked to do in coordinator Greg Olson's offense, which is built around running back Darren McFadden. Flynn must be a game manager and team leader in this structure, which he's done well since becoming a Raider this offseason.

"He always seems to make the right play," McFadden said. "He's a great leader out there. He puts us in the right situations, and he hasn't turned the ball over many times in this camp. I'm looking forward to seeing him in a live game situation."

Raiders' Matt Flynn honed thick skin under Aaron Rodgers

By Jerry McDonald

Aug 7, 2013

NAPA -- Matt Flynn knows about doubters. When he makes his debut as the Raiders' starting quarterback Friday night, the skeptics will be out in force, both in the press box and the stands.

But before he ever got a chance to feel his own NFL scrutiny, Flynn got to witness a teammate deal with it on a much larger scale in Green Bay. When the rookie seventh-round pick arrived in 2008, Brett Favre was waffling on his decision to retire. That left prospective starter Aaron Rodgers in the middle of a maelstrom.

Favre was a three-time MVP and a franchise icon, and the team's decision to move ahead with Rodgers was unpopular. General manager Ted Thompson had drafted two quarterbacks, Brian Brohm out of Louisville in the second round, and Flynn out LSU in the seventh, to fight for the backup job.

"What Aaron went through was a circus," Flynn recalled. "There were all the questions from the media, people heckling him in the crowd. I don't think anybody else could have handled it any better than he did.

"I spent eight or nine hours a day with him, and you'd never have known what he was going through. There was never any sign of frustration."

Rodgers, who went on to win Super Bowl XLV and win a Most Valuable Player award, is a central figure to Flynn's story. When Flynn gracefully handled losing the starting job to rookie Russell Wilson last season in Seattle, where Flynn had signed as a free agent, it was a maturity learned from watching his close friend and mentor.

"He's handled himself well in some tough situations," Rodgers said in a phone interview from Green Bay. "He was a backup who knew he could play, got better, improved his skill set, learned how to prepare and did really well when he got the opportunity to play in a couple of games.

"It was a tough situation in Seattle, but he's got an opportunity in Oakland to do something great, and I'm really proud of him."

It hasn't taken Flynn long to establish himself as the clear No. 1 in training camp. The current backup, Terrelle Pryor, is still a work in progress. Meanwhile, fourth-round pick Tyler Wilson has struggled mightily.

But the doubters aren't going anywhere soon.

The Raiders' run of 10 consecutive non-winning seasons and Flynn's two-game body of work as an NFL starter led ESPN analyst Ron Jaworski to list Flynn 32nd among NFL quarterbacks.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

In his first start, Flynn completed 24 of 37 passes for 251 yards, three touchdowns and an interception in a 31-27 Packers loss to New England in 2010. Then, in the 2011 regular-season finale, he set franchise records by hitting 31 of 44 passes for 480 yards, six touchdowns and one interception in a 45-41 win over Detroit.

Still, Jaworski said film study reveals limitations in arm strength, and noted, "When I think of Flynn, I'm reminded of Bill Walsh and his strong belief that a good coach manipulates the play of his quarterback and his pass concepts and his play calling. That will have to be the case with Flynn in Oakland."

Toward that end, offensive coordinator Greg Olson has Flynn in an offense featuring a power running game and plenty of safe, ball-control throws.

While lacking the big arm of predecessor Carson Palmer, Flynn has shown ability to escape pressure and throw to a secondary receiver or scramble for first-down yardage.

Flynn's job will be to command the huddle, make the correct reads and spread the ball around. He began working with some of his receivers at Laney College shortly after being traded.

"He's got incredible physical and mental toughness," Rodgers said. "He really understands the game and how to use his ability to get the ball to his teammates in good positions. He's a gamer-type, and you've seen that when he's gotten a chance to play."

Flynn has surpassed expectations before. He didn't start at LSU until his senior year, after JaMarcus Russell declared for the draft as a junior. Flynn led the Tigers to the BCS national championship over Ohio State.

In Green Bay, Flynn beat out Brohm to be the backup, with coach Mike McCarthy lauding his instinct, disposition and leadership skills.

Pryor, who is getting a look in some specialty packages to take advantage of his elusiveness, has supporters among the Raiders fan base.

Flynn promises only to be himself, applying what he learned from Rodgers to his own situation. And he won't spend time worrying about the doubters.

"I'm not going to try and be somebody I'm not, and when I get an opportunity, I'll make the most of it," Flynn said.

Raiders' Matt Flynn: 'I believe I can be a franchise quarterback'

By Clark Judge

July 31, 2013

NAPA, Calif. -- When I approached a scout at Oakland's practice, I asked him what he thought of the Raiders' new quarterback, Matt Flynn. He said he was smart and wouldn't take unnecessary risks, both of which he liked. But then he started to dissect Flynn's physical skills, and the conversation went south.

He said he plays it too safe, won't throw outside the numbers, checks down too much and has only adequate arm strength.

"Is he," I interrupted, "anything more than a bridge to the next quarterback?"

"No," he answered.

Uh-oh.

If the Raiders are going to succeed, sooner or later they must settle on a quarterback. They've had 15 starters the past 10 seasons, with none lasting more than two consecutive years.

Flynn is the latest to give it a whirl, taking over for Carson Palmer, and most observers -- including our scout -- minimize his chances for success. Part of that is because they're not high on Flynn, and part is that they're not high on the Raiders -- believing they could be one of the worst teams in the NFL.

That doesn't exactly come as news to Flynn. He's heard it before, and he couldn't care less.

"I don't like to look at what's happened in the past," he said, "especially anything negative. I'm a very positive thinker. I like to think positive. I like to speak positively. And I believe that I can be a franchise quarterback.

"That's just me. It's inner confidence, believing what you can do. Other people may not think that, but there's no one that's going to tell me otherwise."

The Raiders support him, though let's be honest: They have no choice. Flynn's backup is Terrelle Pryor, and he's more a threat as a runner than a passer. Then there's fourth-round pick Tyler Wilson, and while he's raw there's a feeling he could emerge as the long-term hope.

So that leaves Flynn ... at least for now. There is no quarterback competition. Matt Flynn is the starter. But he's the starter because the Raiders couldn't work out a contractual settlement with Palmer, forcing them to look elsewhere. What they found was Flynn, and they have their fingers crossed.

"Carson is one of those guys who could throw the ball around," said GM Reggie McKenzie, "but in this offense, I think Matt Flynn will function probably a little better with what we're trying to do - as far as moving.

"Carson is the prototype pocket passer who can see down the field. Flynn is a little more active with his feet, a guy who hasn't proven yet to be the thrower [Palmer is]. But we're going to see what he can do."

What the quarterbacks here have done isn't much. There are four in camp with three combined NFL starts -- two by Flynn. That's one reason the Raiders are picked for last again in the AFC West. Another is that when you look down the roster, there aren't a lot of familiar names ... or, let's say, names you can trust.

Safety Charles Woodson is the exception. He's a seven-time All-Pro and former Defensive Player of the Year who returned after seven seasons in Green Bay where, it just so happens, he once was teamed with Matt Flynn. He knows what Flynn can do because he was there when Flynn carved up New England (a loss) and Detroit (a win), so he won't undersell the guy.

But when I asked about Flynn as a "franchise quarterback," Woodson tiptoed around the subject.

"I'm not going to take anything away from his confidence," he said. "That's what he's supposed to have. But what I know about Matt Flynn is that he's a poised quarterback. He's not going to get too rattled. That's the main thing you have to have as a quarterback, and he does.

"When you're 'the guy,' there's a different pressure. You have to have someone with strong nerves, and I believe he has that. He'll have some ups and downs this season, but I believe he'll be a guy who will be able to pull through it. ... and it will only make him better."

The question, of course, is: Will Matt Flynn make the Raiders better? They're thin at wide receiver. Their best tight end is a converted wide receiver. Running back Darren McFadden is special, but he's an injury waiting to happen. Their offensive line is little more than OK. And they're working on their third offensive coordinator in three years.

I think you get the picture: It's not an ideal situation for a young quarterback trying to lock down a future.

"Your general manager, Reggie McKenzie, said he likes being the underdog," I said. "How about you?"

"Yeah, absolutely," Flynn said. "People have doubted me on the football field my entire life. So I have plenty of chips on my shoulder. I look around at this team, and my feeling is you don't want to put too many chips on this team's shoulders ... because we have a lot of talent."

I don't know about that. What I do know is that Flynn and the Raiders believe they can and will surprise skeptics, with coach Dennis Allen vowing to "get this thing turned around." But this is a franchise that hasn't had a winning season since 2002 and now stakes its hopes on a quarterback with two career starts.

It's a gamble. But it's the Raiders.

"We have confidence in Matt Flynn," Allen said. "He understands how to play the game. He won a championship when he was in college. He's been a part of a championship team with the Green Bay Packers. The guy's won everywhere he's been.

"He's always had to come up and meet the challenge, and nobody's ever given him a chance. The chips have always been stacked against him, but somehow, some way he continues to beat the odds."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Somehow, some way, he'll have to do it again. Only this time, the odds against him just went up.

"When I look around this team," Flynn said, "and see these guys work on the field, in the classroom, in the weight room, it gets me excited. Because there are a lot of guys on this team that probably most people have never heard of before. But they will.

"This is a great opportunity, and I have to make the most of it. I've got to keep playing better -- play better every day -- and be 'that guy.' Because if I'm not the best quarterback on this team I won't be 'that guy' anymore."

LOS ANGELES TIMES

Raiders ready to give Matt Flynn his 'rare' moment

By Sam Farmer

July 26, 2013

NAPA, Calif., — For Matt Flynn, last season was a false start.

Flynn, who had been backup to Green Bay quarterback Aaron Rodgers, signed with Seattle during the 2012 off-season and was on track to start for the Seahawks. But Seattle selected Wisconsin's Russell Wilson in the third round of last year's draft, and the rookie phenom wound up claiming the starting job, making Flynn expendable.

Fast-forward a year, and Flynn again has a chance to be an NFL starter, now with the rebuilding Oakland Raiders. They acquired him in April for a couple of late-round draft picks.

"I've been given a second opportunity to come in and earn a starting job," Flynn said Friday after the first practice of Raiders training camp. "It's pretty rare, and I know that. I'm going to do everything in my power to take advantage of this, to have no regrets. Make it happen and not take it for granted."

Flynn, 28, who has started two games in five seasons as a pro, sat on a bench next to the team's outdoor weight area, and talked about his circuitous path to this point — from backing up future Raiders bust JaMarcus Russell at Louisiana State, to learning at the elbow of Rodgers in Green Bay, to watching Wilson rocket to stardom in Seattle.

By all appearances, the Raiders' starting job is Flynn's to lose, and his $6.5-million salary is guaranteed. The other quarterbacks on the roster are Terrelle Pryor, fourth-round pick Tyler Wilson — a promising rookie from Arkansas — and rookie free agent Matt McGloin. Flynn is getting most of the reps with the first-string offense, as opposed to last summer when he was anything from first- to third-string depending on the day.

"I can look back to the seventh grade, and I don't think I've had one year where I've had anything given to me, or a time when someone's said, 'Hey, the job's yours. Take it,'" Flynn said. "I've had to fight every year. My goal is to solidify myself somehow so I can take ownership, take leadership of the team, make the offense my own."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Most people don't expect much from the Raiders this season. They were 4-12 in 2012, and a staggering $49 million of their salary-cap space is devoted to players no longer on the roster. Neither of their top two draft picks — cornerback D.J. Hayden or tackle Menelik Watson — is healthy enough to practice at full speed.

The Raiders were ranked eighth in passing last season (and 28th in rushing) but that was with Carson Palmer at quarterback, and he's now with the Arizona Cardinals.

Coach Dennis Allen said the Raiders need to develop some consistency in their passing game, but added that Flynn "did some nice things, made some nice reads, made a couple really good throws today."

When Flynn was in Seattle, there was a stark contrast between his laid-back style and the effusive energy of Wilson, whose personality is closer to that of Coach Pete Carroll.

"I had to find a medium ground last year because I knew that Pete was high energy, all over the place in practice, and I knew he probably wanted that out of his quarterbacks a little bit," Flynn said. "But I still didn't want to be someone I wasn't."

"I think Russell and I had two different personalities. But I don't think any of that played a part in the decision. The bottom line was, Russell took hold of his opportunity and made the most of it."

Flynn's easygoing attitude is sometimes mistaken for apathy, he said, and not everyone responds well to that. Fans at LSU said it looked as if he didn't care, even when he was, say, lining up to go for it on fourth down against Florida in the fourth quarter. He said he simply shows his competitiveness in a different way.

"I feel like if the guys can look at me in the huddle and see a calm and collected face, that they're going to relax a little bit," he said.

"The way I look at it, leadership and being that guy is, don't be someone you're not. Don't be a hoorah guy jumping around and clapping your hands if you're not that guy. Makes you look desperate. Makes you look silly. That's not me."

When he was in Green Bay, Flynn took full advantage of his two starts. In the first, a Sunday night game at New England in 2010, he filled in for an injured Rodgers and threw for 251 yards and three touchdowns in a 31-27 loss. That got some attention.

Flynn notched his second start the next season, when the Packers had already clinched the top seeding in the NFC and a first-round bye in the playoffs. Flynn started the finale against Detroit, on a freezing day at Lambeau Field, and threw a team-record six touchdowns in a 45-41 shootout victory.

Just a week earlier, Rodgers had the first five-touchdown game of his career in a 35-21 victory over Chicago. He didn't get to bask in that glory too long, because his backup — and good friend — was about to eclipse him, if only for a game.

"When I threw five," Flynn recalled, "I come over to the sideline and sit down, and Aaron looks at me through the corner of his eye and shakes his head like, 'You little turd.' I was just laughing.

"The Lions go down the field and score again, and Aaron comes up to me, puts his arm around me and said, 'If you get a chance for six, you've got to take it.' I was like, that's cool."

The locker-room environment in Green Bay was a good one, Flynn said, with everyone giving everyone else a hard time. That was the case during his six-touchdown game too.

"The first half Aaron was on the microphone calling plays," Flynn said. "He was ripping on me. I'm on the field and he's ripping on me out there. He's just like, 'You look stupid out there,' or, 'Your shoe's untied.' There wasn't enough time to be doing that, but that's Aaron."

As the clock continues to tick on Flynn's career, the stakes are higher and the joking is over.

So far, Flynn is no flop as starting QB

By Josh Dubow

July 31, 2013

NAPA – Matt Flynn is solidifying his role as starting quarterback for the Raiders one year after losing that same job in training camp with the Seattle Seahawks.

Flynn entered camp with the inside track over Terrelle Pryor and rookie Tyler Wilson to replace Carson Palmer in Oakland and has done nothing in the first week to change that equation.

It's a far cry to what happened to Flynn a year ago in Seattle, where he went from coveted offseason free-agent acquisition with a $26 million contract to backing up a third-round pick in a matter of weeks at training camp.

With Russell Wilson set as starter in Seattle, Flynn was traded to the Raiders in the offseason and has done his best to hold onto this opportunity to start in the NFL.

"I took away a lot of things from Seattle last year," Flynn said Tuesday. "But the thing that I took away the most was that I want this even more now, even more this year."

"I'm blessed to have another opportunity at this, and I'll try to take advantage of it and do as much as I can to not let it get away from me."

Flynn has been the most impressive of the three quarterbacks so far in training camp with the most accurate arm, a good grasp of the offense and strong leadership on the field.

"I'm going in there and trying to be the best quarterback out here, trying to be the best quarterback for this team and help this team win as best I can," Flynn said. "I'm coming in here every day with my hard hat on, trying to prepare."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Flynn, a backup in college at LSU to former Raiders quarterback JaMarcus Russell, has started just two games in five seasons as a pro. But it's those brief appearances that are so intriguing.

As Aaron Rodgers' understudy in Green Bay, he threw for 251 yards and three touchdowns in a loss at New England late in the 2010 season. He then started the regular-season finale the next season, going 31 for 44 for 480 yards and six touchdown passes in a 45-41 win over Detroit.

That led to the contract from the Seahawks. But Flynn struggled in the second exhibition game last summer and missed the third with an elbow injury. By that point, Wilson passed him on the depth chart and Flynn was relegated to another year as a backup.

"To play quarterback in the NFL, to me, you have to be two things: You have to be smart and you have to be accurate," Flynn said. "Things on the field are going to come and you have to be able to do that as well, and I feel very confident in my ability to do that, but overall you have to be smart and accurate."

Flynn got another chance to prove that when the Raiders dealt a 2014 fifth-round pick and a conditional pick in 2015 to Seattle.

While coach Dennis Allen has stressed an open competition with Pryor and another rookie named Wilson – Tyler – nothing that has been seen so far in the offseason or camp indicates that Flynn won't be the starter when the season opens in Indianapolis.

"It's kind of playing out about like I expected. Matt Flynn has been pretty consistent," Allen said. "Those guys are doing exactly what we want them to do, keep competing and keep playing," he said. "Don't worry about the depth chart, just keep getting better."

I'm blessed to have another opportunity at this and I'll try to take advantage of it and do as much as I can to not let it get away from me."

Flynn has been the most impressive of the three quarterbacks so far in training camp with the most accurate arm, a good grasp of the offense and strong leadership on the field.

"I'm going in there and trying to be the best quarterback out here, trying to be the best quarterback for this team and help this team win as best I can," Flynn said. "I'm coming in here every day with my hard hat on, trying to prepare."

Flynn, a backup in college at LSU to former Raiders quarterback JaMarcus Russell, has started just two games in five seasons as a pro. But it's those brief appearances that are so intriguing.

He threw for 251 yards and three touchdowns in a loss at New England in place of an injured Aaron Rodgers late in the 2010 season. He then started the regular-season finale the following season, going 31 for 44 for 480 yards and six touchdown passes in a 45-41 win over Detroit.

That led to the $26 million, three-year contract from the Seahawks. But Flynn struggled in the second exhibition game last summer and missed the third with an elbow injury. By that point Wilson passed him on the depth chart and Flynn was relegated to another year as a backup.

Despite winning a national championship at LSU and the impressive performances in his few chances in the NFL, Flynn still faces many doubters who question whether he has a strong enough arm to succeed in the pro game.

"To play quarterback in the NFL, to me, you have to be two things: You have to be smart and you have to be accurate," he said. "Things on the field are going to come and you have to be able to do that as well, and I feel very confident in my ability to do that, but overall you have to be smart and accurate."

Flynn got another chance to prove that when the Raiders dealt a 2014 fifth-round pick and a conditional pick in 2015 to Seattle.

While coach Dennis Allen has stressed an open competition at quarterback with Pryor and another rookie named Wilson -- Tyler -- nothing that has been seen so far in the offseason or camp indicates that Flynn won't be the starter when the season opens Sept. 8 in Indianapolis.

Flynn has gotten the vast majority of the time with the first-team offense so far and is earning the trust of his teammates.

"It's kind of playing out about like I expected. Matt Flynn has been pretty consistent," Allen said. "Those guys are doing exactly what we want them to do, keep competing and keep playing. Don't worry about the depth chart, just keep getting better."

Part of what has solidified Flynn's hold on the job is that neither Pryor nor Tyler Wilson has seized it the way Russell Wilson did a year ago.

Pryor, who provided a spark when he started the season finale last year, is still far too inconsistent throwing the ball but can be a dual threat as a scrambler or runner. Pryor has worked hard on improving his mechanics, spending the offseason working with former major league pitcher Tom House, who has also coached Tom Brady and Drew Brees.

"I found out that I was leaving my chest open a lot so it was making me late," Pryor said. "So when I was coming down to throw with my left arm, my right arm was saying it's time to go, the timing wasn't right. He kind of helped me with that. It's definitely helping shoot the ball a lot more and better. My thing looking in the mirror last year was I need to be more accurate."

Tyler Wilson is an intriguing prospect who was drafted in the fourth round out of Arkansas. But he is still adjusting to the NFL game as evidenced by one practice early in camp when he threw three interceptions in a stretch of four plays.

DJ HAYDEN

Hayden puts heart injury in past

By Paul Gutierrez

May 11, 2013

ALAMEDA -- The last time D.J. Hayden stepped on a football field? He almost died. A nondescript practice collision at Houston on Nov. 6 ruptured the inferior vena cava, a large vein that pumps blood from the lower part of the body into the heart and Hayden nearly bled out internally.

So forgive Hayden if he got a little reflective this weekend as he took part in his first NFL camp with the Raiders holding their three-day rookie camp at their facility.

"It felt like old times," Hayden said Saturday. "I did my usual routine. I came here, took a knee, said a little prayer then just went out there. It wasn't like it took me extra time to get ready. I just went out there and did what I did."

Drafted No. 12 overall by the Raiders, Hayden has been medically cleared to participate in everything the Raiders will do in camp. Including, it turns out, what Oakland drafted him to do -- break up passes.

Yes, it's early. It's a ridiculously small sample size after two non-contact practices to gauge what Hayden can and cannot do on an NFL field. But the fact that he is here at all is a small victory. To be the game-changing cover cornerback in the mold of such Raiders greats as Willie Brown, Lester Hayes, Mike Haynes, Charles Woodson and Nnamdi Asomugha is the eventual goal.

Big talk? Yes. But there's a reason general manager Reggie McKenzie and coach Dennis Allen would have taken him at No. 3 overall had they not found a suitable trade partner to move down.

So it was heartening, so to speak, to see Hayden flash across the field to break up a pass from Tyler Wilson to an unidentified tryout player on Saturday, Hayden seemingly beaten before stretching out to bat away the ball in stride.

It was as pretty as it was simple.

"It helps put me at ease," he said of the play. "As long as I keep making production, I feel like I can get better. Just make plays. When I made the little play I was happy. I should have caught it but there's always room for improvement.

"Corner's basically the same thing everywhere. The coverages aren't that hard. I think I'm picking it up pretty good. I'm just trying to soak in everything coach (Clayton) Lopez and coach (Johnnie) Lynn are trying to teach me. I'm just trying to soak it all in like a sponge."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Even as he is nursing a hamstring he strained during his Pro Day.

"So he's still not quite 100 percent from there but he's been out there, working through it," Allen said. "He made a nice play on the ball today. So I'm pleased with where D.J.'s at and, again, it's going to be a learning process.

"It's putting one foot in front of the other and I think when it comes time to play games this September, I think he'll be ready to roll."

Before then, though, will come tons of information to process. And intricacies to learn.

"I would just say getting used to not putting your hands on people down the field because in the NFL you have the 5-yard rule, so, just adjusting to that," Hayden said. "In college I used to kind of push people a little bit so I have to adjust to that."

He was not laughing.

He did smile, though, when I asked him if Brown, the Hall of Famer, had given him any pearls yet, though.

Hayden moved his hands in a quick-burst chopping, north-south motion.

"Yeah," Hayden said, "he told me to move my hands out of my break."

So, what kind corner does he profess himself to be -- off the ball or press?

"Probably a mixture of both," he said. "It all depends on the down and distance and the situation. Yeah, when I get up there I'm going to have to be more physical and re-route them, and then again when I'm at '7,' I've got to play off and I can't touch them. I've got to mirror them."

Talks of his injury, though, have been nonexistent thus far.

"I don't even think about it," he said. "The only time I think about is when somebody asks me. But when I'm on the field I don't think about that. I think about the play and I think about the coverage that I'm in. I put it past me."

If at least, for one weekend.

LAMARR HOUSTON

Raiders' Houston no longer 'little brother'

Paul Gutierrez

September 6, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. – How different will the Oakland Raiders' defense look Sunday?

Consider: Besides there being nine new starters, Lamarr Houston, who is making the switch from left defensive end to the right side, will be the only Raiders defensive player who had a sack last season with Oakland.

Yes, the Raiders had 25 sacks as a team last year, which ranked 31st in the NFL, and Houston tied for the team lead with four. Linebacker Miles Burris, who is on the reserve/physically unable to perform list, added 1.5 sacks. And that's it.

It's no surprise, then, that much is expected this season of Houston, who was voted a team captain along with fullback Marcel Reece and long-snapper Jon Condo.

"Lamarr was a guy that, going into this season, we kind of pegged as a guy that we wanted to be a leader for this team," said Raiders coach Dennis Allen. "He began to take a little bit of that role at the end of last year, and I think he's continued to improve in that regard as we've gone through the offseason and training camp.

"I think he'll continue to develop as a leader for this football team as we go forward."

Selected in the second round of the 2010 draft, Houston immediately made a mark with numerous training camp scraps. But he seemed soft-spoken off the field.

"When I was younger, I had (Richard) Seymour and Tommy (Kelly) here, so I thought I was going to be 'little brother' forever," Houston said with a roaring laugh. "Nah, but as the years have gone by, I could see myself being a captain now. A lot of my teammates respect me and it means a lot to me -- and I'm going to do the best I can to fulfill this role for this team."

So what, exactly, does being tabbed a captain mean to Houston?

"It means it's a lot of responsibility, a lot of respect," he said. "It's a big role to play. It means you're a leader. You basically represent the team when you're a captain, so it's a great honor. But it's more about the team."

And still, there are questions about Houston's skill set, and how it translates to the more pass-rush-emphasized right side.

At 6-feet-3, 300 pounds, Houston is not your stereotypical edge rusher, nor is he a bull-rusher.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"To be honest, I think my skill set fits perfect," he said. "Pass-rushing is about technique; it's not about who's the fastest or who's the strongest. I've been working on that a lot this offseason and it's been showing up in this preseason a little bit and in training camp, so I'm just going to try and build on that and do whatever I can to get better at playing on that right end."

Raiders seek leadership, sacks from Lamarr Houston

Josh Dubow

September 5, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- Lamarr Houston's time in the shadows of the Oakland Raiders defensive line is over.

After spending his first three seasons as the young guy on a veteran line dominated by Richard Seymour and Tommy Kelly, Houston is being counted on to lead Oakland's front.

He has moved from left defensive end to the right side, where he is being counted on as the primary pass rusher on a defense that has no proven player when it comes to getting to the quarterback.

He has also stepped into the leadership void on a defense that will have nine new starters from last season.

"Fortunately I was here with Seymour and Tommy and they taught me a lot," Houston said. "I've been learning and I'm still learning. But being one of the older guys on the line, I just feel it's my job to help the other guys to come along and get toward the vision we want as a team."

The Raiders overhauled their defense after it struggled a year ago in the first season under defensive-minded head coach Dennis Allen and coordinator Jason Tarver. Seymour, Kelly, Rolando McClain and Michael Huff were all cut. Philip Wheeler, Matt Shaughnessy and Desmond Bryant were among those who left in free agency.

In total, the players who won't be on the active roster for Sunday's opener against the Indianapolis Colts accounted for 79 percent of the defensive snaps a year ago.

"He's running that show there up front," Tarver said. "We're excited about what he's doing. He's the one that's running that group and he does a good job with it."

As much as the Raiders need leadership, they really need a pass rush from Houston. The entire defensive roster accounted for just 16 sacks in the NFL last year and lacks a proven pass rusher.

Houston rushed the passer from the left side more than 90 percent of the time last season, according to game-tracking by the Website Pro Football Focus.

"He's demonstrated that he's got the best ability as a rusher," Allen said. "He's a little bit more of a power rusher than he is a speed rusher. But I really think he's a guy that can help getting some pressure on the quarterback."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

He was rated the 15th best 4-3 defensive end at pressuring the passer with four sacks, 14 quarterback hits and 35 quarterback hurries. His production picked up as the season went along with 25 of his 53 pressures and three of his sacks coming in the final five games.

He will be counted on to be the team's primary pass rusher to disrupt the opposing quarterback from the blind side.

"Everybody takes pride in getting the quarterback down," he said. "That's one of Al Davis' most famous quotes. Take the quarterback down in the first couple of plays and take him down hard. As a D-lineman I pride myself on trying to get to the quarterback."

Houston has been at his best early in his career as an edge-setting defensive end in the run game. He has just 10 career sacks and is more of a power rusher than a typical speed guy who beats tackles around the edge to get to the quarterback.

After cutting veteran pass rusher Andre Carter to get down to the 53-man roster limit, the current Raiders defense has no proven pass rusher.

The Raiders need an upgrade from the pass rush after having a franchise-low 25 sacks a year ago if this defense is going to be able to slow down opposing offenses.

"I want to be a complete player," Houston said. "Some of the best guys who ever played on the D-line did a pretty good job of both stopping the run and sacking the quarterback. Guys like Deacon Jones, Reggie White, John Randle. I think it's important to be the total player."

Raiders' Lamarr Houston seeks to ignite pass rush

Jerry McDonald
August 26, 2013

ALAMEDA -- Lamarr Houston is aware the Raiders' first-team defense barely laid a hand on Drew Brees or Jay Cutler in the past two exhibition games.

He's not overly concerned.

"We want to get it out there that we can rush the passer, but at the same time, it's preseason, everything is very vanilla and offenses are very vanilla," Houston said. "Right now, you can't really tell how much better we've gotten as a defensive line, but soon, you'll be able to see."

Considering the Raiders open the season with Andrew Luck and the Indianapolis Colts and face Peyton Manning and the Denver Broncos in Week 3 -- both on the road -- the sooner, the better.

Houston and strong safety Tyvon Branch will be the only starters remaining from a defensive personnel purge after the 2012 season. A third, linebacker Miles Burris, has yet to practice after offseason knee surgery.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

The Raiders moved Houston from left end to right end, making him the blind side pass rusher, although he'll move inside on some downs with Andre Carter coming in as a nickel rusher.

A two-week absence with an undisclosed injury slowed Houston's progress. He played Friday against the Bears after minimal practice time, and it showed, and coach Dennis Allen is hoping for better things when the Raiders close out the preseason Thursday night in Seattle.

"I thought he was rusty," Allen said. "I don't think that was his best effort. That just goes to show you it's hard to play this game if you don't get a chance to practice, so I'm looking forward to seeing improvement Thursday night and as we go into the regular season."

Houston, 6-foot-3 and 300 pounds, is not the prototype right end, playing with high energy, a low center of gravity and without the jet-propelled outside rush so often associated with his position. He has 10 1/2 sacks in three seasons at left end and ideally would get that many this season at right end.

"He's a little bit more of a power rusher than he is a speed rusher, but I really think he's a guy that can help in getting some pressure on the quarterback," Allen said.

Houston was a record-breaking running back who also played linebacker in high school in Colorado Springs, Colo., before going to Texas and playing defensive end, then moving inside to tackle as a junior.

Being on the move so often has Houston resistant to being typecast by where he lines up.

"I really don't think of positions like that," Houston said. "I wouldn't put myself in a category as being a pass-rusher or a run-stopper. I just think I'm a pretty good athlete who loves to play football."

JASON HUNTER

SF CHRONICLE

Raiders' Jason Hunter makes most of opportunity

Vic Tafur

September 12, 2013

When Raiders defensive end Jason Hunter was 12, his dad brought home a couple of pet fish for him and his brother. They didn't name the fish, because there is nothing cute and nameable about piranhas.

His dad would put in 30 feeder fish and the brothers would watch the fireworks, but not from too close.

"It was cool to watch them attack them and eat them all in five or 10 minutes," Hunter said. "It was scary to feed them because they were so ready to attack, but it was fun."

Hunter and the rest of the Raiders' defense made like piranhas in the last 2 1/2 quarters against the Colts on Sunday, but were goldfish early in spotting Andrew Luck 14 points in the 21-17 loss.

Hunter, a 30-year-old free-agent acquisition, had a sack, a quarterback hit and two hurries, and Oakland had four sacks to tie a season high from last year, when the Raiders tied a franchise-low with 25.

There are nine new starters on defense, and Hunter is encouraged at how quickly they've come together.

"We fly around to the ball and we're mentally tough, and I love that about our group," Hunter said. "We play violent."

That's what "jumped out on tape" to Jacksonville head coach Gus Bradley, whose team travels to face Oakland on Sunday.

"They play hard," Bradley said. "It's quite a challenge to have the number of new guys they have on defense and to mesh them together and to perform at that level; high effort and you didn't see any bumps, you didn't see any miscommunication issues."

When Hunter is not chasing quarterbacks on third down, he is setting the edge on first and second down. He has to knock back the offensive tackle, help contain the play and not let the running back get outside of him.

"It's tough because your instincts are to try to make every play," said Hunter, who has 12 career sacks. "But when you peek inside, that's when the play may go outside. You just have to trust that the man next to you is going to make the play."

Though many of the Raiders missed time in training camp, Hunter was out there for every practice, flying under the radar. Just like the Appalachian State alum has done for his entire seven-year, four-team career.

"Being an undrafted guy from a small school, that kind of follows me," Hunter said. "I have to do things extra hard and outwork my competition so that I get some looks and people can notice me."

Raiders general manager Reggie McKenzie, then with the Packers' front office, noticed the 6-foot-4, 270-pound defensive lineman when Green Bay signed the undrafted free agent in 2006. And Oakland head coach Dennis Allen was impressed in 2011, when he was the Broncos' defensive coordinator and Hunter played all 16 games, including two starts.

"He likes the physical aspect of the game and he's one of those guys that you're not begging Jason to come out here and play," Allen said. "You're not begging Jason to get the pads on. He's a guy that has that sort of lunch-pail mentality, just goes to work every day and does his job."

When he was a kid, Hunter planned to be punching in and punching out every day as a major-league-baseball player, but a bus crash in junior high ended that dream. The driver fell asleep and Hunter's left hand was badly injured. It affected his ability to grip the bat, and then a growth spurt caught his Fayetteville, N.C., football coach's attention. The rest is history.

Pretty good history, like in college when Hunter returned a fumble 15 yards for a touchdown to give Appalachian State a 21-16 win over Northern Iowa in the 2005 NCAA Division I-AA championship game.

Undrafted, he played three years for the Packers, one for the Lions and the two for the Broncos when he seemed poised for a breakthrough season in Denver in 2012. New defensive coordinator Jack Del Rio called Hunter "a rugged defensive lineman" and said "every day he brings it with passion."

Hunter had cracked the starting line before he tore his triceps after the first preseason game and was ruled out for the season.

"That was the toughest thing, doing all that work to get where I wanted to be and then getting hurt," he said. "But that's the name of the game, overcoming adversity."

Unless, of course, you're a feeder fish.

Briefly: After Sunday's awkward touchdown celebration, Allen has told quarterback Terrelle Pryor "no more chest bumps ... good job though." ... Rookie Menelik Watson is still out with a knee injury, so it looks as if Khalif Barnes and Tony Pashos will start again at left and right tackle, respectively.

The joy of sacks

The Raiders are 20-29 since the start of the 2010 season. There is a common theme among the wins: When the defense sacks the quarterback three or more times, Oakland is 16-4.

Oakland Raiders' Jason Hunter likes living on the edge

By Jerry McDonald

Aug 1, 2013

NAPA -- Living life on the edge as a defensive end isn't the most glamorous job in the NFL, but it suits Jason Hunter just fine.

The Raiders' starting left defensive end loves "setting the edge," a part of the game that doesn't carry with it the kind of fame and glory that comes from rushing the passer.

"Basically setting an edge is getting an extension on that tackle and knocking him back, that way it stops the line of scrimmage so the (running) back can't just get to the edge, and it forces him back inside to where the help is," Hunter said.

Setting edges has been an issue for a Raiders defense that has been run-challenged for the better part of the past decade. Right tackle Khalif Barnes, who has worked against Hunter throughout the offseason and training camp, thinks Hunter is more stout than his 6-foot-4, 270-pound build would suggest.

Offensive tackles blocking Hunter typically outweigh him by at least 30 pounds.

"He's thick, powerful, and he may look smaller, but he's very strong and has good hands," Barnes said.

In most cases, if Hunter has done his job, he hasn't made the tackle himself. Rather, he's set up an interior lineman or linebacker to make the hit.

"He's a guy who just tries to do his part," Barnes said. "If you try and do your part and then half of somebody else's, that takes away what you do by half. Do your part. It's a great mindset and the whole team needs to be like that."

Hunter's willingness to set the edge, as well as his work ethic and demeanor, are what led him back to general manager Reggie McKenzie and coach Dennis Allen.

McKenzie was a personnel executive in Green Bay when Hunter played with the Packers as an undrafted free agent out of Appalachian State from 2006 through 2008. When Allen was defensive coordinator in Denver in 2011, Hunter was a reserve defensive end, having played the season before in a 3-4 defense as an outside linebacker.

On a Raiders defensive line that too often has failed in terms of maintaining gaps and position despite having well-regarded talent, Hunter brings a reputation of carrying out his assignments with enthusiasm.

"Jason loves football, and he enjoys competing," Allen said. "He likes the physical aspect of the game where you're not begging Jason to come out here and want to play. You're not begging Jason to get the pads on."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Hunter was particularly excited to get the pads on this season after spending the 2012 season on injured reserve because of a torn triceps. It happened at a time when Hunter had ascended to a starting position under Jack Del Rio, who replaced Allen as defensive coordinator.

The timing could not have been worse.

"It really hurt me, man," Hunter said. "I thought I was having a real good training camp. It was hard, sitting at home, watching on TV and seeing all my peers from around the league playing games. It made me more focused to take care of my body, do the right things."

RASHAD JENNINGS

SACRAMENTO BEE

Newcomer Jennings takes sleep seriously

By Josh Dubow

August 14, 2013

NAPA – Rashad Jennings takes every precaution he can to keep his body in top shape necessary for an NFL running back.

He eats a gluten-free diet and sticks to organic foods. He stretches every night and has a regular routine of pilates, acupuncture, yoga and massage.

And when the long days at Oakland's training camp are over, instead of settling into a soft bed, the first-year Raider climbs into a hyperbaric oxygen chamber to sleep.

Jennings bought the oxygen chamber as a rookie instead of splurging for a car, thinking it would help keep him fresh and prolong his career.

He admits it "freaks" out some people at first, and the loud noise forced him into a single room in what he calls the "dungeon" of the team hotel at camp.

But Jennings is working on getting some converts, saying at least six teammates are waiting to try out the chamber next week.

"It's not an end-all be-all," Jennings said. "It's not like this is the biggest healer in the world type of thing, but it does heal you on a certain level. It speeds up the process. I love to practice, and I love to stay on the field. It keeps you healthy. Playing this game is important to me. The way I eat and take care of my body is pretty important."

The Raiders are counting on a healthy Jennings as the backup to Darren McFadden, who has never made it through any of his five NFL seasons without an injury.

Playing the role of a backup to a big-play back is something Jennings has plenty of experience doing. He served in that role behind Maurice Jones-Drew in Jacksonville to start his career.

"I tell people all the time there aren't any backups in this league," Jennings said. "The backups are at home. You got to prepare as the starter."

"It's too late to prepare when the opportunity presents itself. I'm a piece of a puzzle. When I'm called upon, I have to make sure I'm making my statement."

Jennings did a good job of that in the preseason opener Friday against Dallas, carrying nine times for 39 yards.

He broke loose for a 16-yard run on a read-option play with quarterback Terrelle Pryor and showed the ability to grind for tough yards, something the Raiders are looking for in McFadden's backup.

Jennings is working his way back from two disappointing seasons in Jacksonville.

After averaging more than five yards a carry in each of his first two seasons, Jennings missed the 2011 season because of a knee injury.

He then struggled mightily last season, averaging 2.8 yards per carry and becoming the 10th back with at least 100 carries to average fewer than three yards since 2000.

"It was a lot of things," Jennings said. "Looking at film, I could've done better, but it's all in the past whatever happened. It's a fresh start as a Raider, and that's what I'm out here to capitalize on."

Jennings entered camp in a competition with sixth-round pick Latavius Murray to be McFadden's backup and seems in position to get that job because of his experience and reliability.

Murray also showed some good signs in the preseason opener, carrying eight times for 29 yards. But he has missed time throughout camp with injuries, to coach Dennis Allen's dismay.

"Being available and being accountable are two things that we have to make sure we're able to be," Allen said.

Oakland Raiders' Rashad Jennings has a healthy attitude

By Steve Corkran

Aug 3, 2013

NAPA -- When Rashad Jennings entered the league, he did what most rookies do when they get their first chunk of money. He indulged in a big-ticket purchase.

Instead of a house for his mother or a fancy car for himself, though, Jennings bought a hyperbaric chamber as a means of helping his body recover quicker and better from the rigors of football.

"I bought one in my rookie year instead of buying a car because I knew this was going to prolong my career," Jennings said.

Sure enough, the day Jennings arrived here for his first training camp with the Raiders, Jennings unloaded the hyperbaric chamber from his car and hauled it up to his hotel room.

The device allows Jennings to sleep in an oxygen-rich environment, which promotes healing of his body. He also is on a gluten-free diet, eats organic foods, stretches every night and delves in yoga, Pilates, acupuncture, whatever has the ability to give him an edge.

The 4-foot-by-9-foot sleeping chamber also tends to make a ton of noise. Hence, Jennings is going solo this year, whereas his teammates share a room with one other player.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

In Jennings, the Raiders are confident that they found a back that can make some noise as a replacement for departed veteran Mike Goodson, who served as Darren McFadden's primary backup last season.

The jury is out, for Jennings averaged only 2.8 yards per carry for the Jacksonville Jaguars last season in becoming one of 10 backs since 2000 to average fewer than 3 yards per carry with at least 100 rushes.

Goodson averaged 6.3 last season, though on only 35 carries. He bolted for the New York Jets in free agency. Soon thereafter, the Raiders pounced on Jennings.

Jennings, 6-foot-1 and 231 pounds, views himself as a lead back, though he has spent his entire NFL career backing up Maurice Jones-Drew. He is competing for the backup spot in Oakland against the likes of Jeremy Stewart and rookie Latavius Murray.

"I see myself just as a complete back, day-in, day-out, getting better," Jennings said. "Never making the same mistakes twice. I'll let the geniuses figure out where to put me on the field."

In a recent practice, Jennings was on the field as a short-yardage back. He showed little difficulty in converting third-and-1 plays during the drill.

"He's done some good things for us," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "One of the challenges you have for Rashad is ... Rashad's a big back, we want Rashad to play like a big back. That will be something we're going to look at as we go into the preseason is him being that big physical presence that we expect him to be."

So far, Jennings is looking more like the back that averaged 5.2 yards and 5.5 his first two seasons, respectively.

In a strange way, Jennings and the Raiders are alike in that they can't wait to put last year behind them and recapture past glory.

"These fans don't deserve that," Jennings said of the team's negative perception. "This organization doesn't deserve it. The city doesn't deserve it. Nobody on this team thinks that's going to happen this year, and we're going out every single day, erasing what happened from yesterday and preparing and focusing on turning things around."

TAIWAN JONES

SACRAMENTO BEE

Oakland hopes fleet Jones is a fast learner

By Josh Dubow

August 19, 2013

NAPA – Taiwan Jones' NFL career got off to a slow start when a variety of injuries and the inability to hold onto the ball kept him off the field for much of his first two seasons with the Raiders.

Now the former running back with sprinter's speed is getting a second chance at establishing himself as an NFL player following a switch to cornerback.

While his coverage skills are still a bit raw after not playing cornerback since his freshman year at Eastern Washington, Jones still has the blazing speed that tantalized the Raiders those last two years.

Combined with his stellar coverage skills on special teams, Jones is making a strong bid to make the team at a second position.

"I'm still just happy to be on the roster," Jones said. "If I can help the team on defense, I'm willing to do it. I was kind of upset that I couldn't show everybody what kind of running back I could be, but I think it's a good thing as far as my career."

Jones was drafted by the Raiders in the fourth round in 2011 after rushing for 2,955 yards (7.7 average) and scoring 36 touchdowns in two seasons at Eastern Washington.

Those gaudy statistics, a 4.33-second 40-yard dash before the draft and the fact Jones is a Bay Area native made him a fan favorite, but it never translated to success on the field.

A variety of minor injuries and a propensity to fumble in the preseason made it hard for Jones to earn the trust of his coaches.

He had 22 rushes for 94 yards, four catches for 36 yards and 10 kick returns for 187 yards in 24 games but never made it into the end zone.

That led to the position switch in the offseason, and the Raiders hope Jones proves better at preventing touchdowns than he did at scoring them. He hasn't quite reached that point yet despite allowing just three catches on seven throws in his direction so far in the preseason, according to Pro Football Focus. But he also committed a long pass-interference penalty.

Jones was given a scholarship to play cornerback in college but switched to offense in his second season. His college coaches thought he'd be converted back to cornerback in the NFL, and Jones was prepared for the switch when it happened.

Now he has two more preseason games to show he should stick there when the season starts.

"He's as athletic as anybody you'll ever see on the football field, but it's different," teammate Charles Woodson said. "It's different from offense to defense and learning a new position and them expecting you to just be able to do it. That's hard for a young guy like him."

Taiwan Jones having fun, making plays at corner back

By Vic Tafur

August 11, 2013

Taiwan Jones is trying to pull off something as cool and rare as his name – switching from running back to cornerback, in the NFL.

Putting the ball on the ground will no longer be seen as a liability.

Jones has made some plays at the Raiders' training camp and in Friday's preseason opener, and is having fun making the coaches see him a whole new light.

"I was just excited to still be on the roster," said Jones, who had fumbling issues at practice last season and couldn't get on the field even when starter Darren McFadden and backup Mike Goodson were injured.

"I was kind of upset I couldn't show everybody what kind of running back I could be but I think it's a good thing as far as my career, said Jones, who finishes with four career carries for 36 yards. "It's going pretty good, and I am having fun."

The 2011 fourth-round pick has the size (6-foot, 194 pounds) and speed (4.33 40-yard dash) to pull this off.

"He's got that physical ability to play the game," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "There are still a lot of things that we have to get cleaned up. Just understating how to play the cornerback position from alignments, assignments and stuff like that.

"He's pretty solid on his assignments, but they're still just some details to the position that we have to continue to work with him on."

Allen said backup cornerback Chimdi Chekwa has also improved at what is a very crowded position. Veterans Tracy Porter and Mike Jenkins are penciled in as the starters, with first-round pick D.J. Hayden still not being cleared for contact after abdomen surgery. And Joselio Hanson and Phillip Adams are back from last season.

But Jones has a special gift that those guys don't have.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"Taiwan is exceptional on special teams," Allen said. "You watch the first kickoff of the game (Friday), and he goes down there and he's on the 10-yard line when the returner is just starting to return the ball, so that's something that you can't discount."

Jones, who missed Sunday's practice with a minor injury, showed his good pursuit skills on special teams last season, and it's not just natural instincts.

The Antioch native was given a scholarship to Eastern Washington to play cornerback, and didn't make the switch to running back until his sophomore season. Jones rushed for 1,742 yards to lead the Eagles to the NCAA FCS national championship his junior year, and then turned pro.

"A lot of my college coaches, they thought once I made it to the NFL that I would be converted to a corner," Jones said. "So, that's kind of my mindset and what I thought also. So, when I got drafted as running back, it came to me somewhat as a surprise."

He has had a handful of interceptions at camp, as he reacts well and has exceptional closing speed. The rest is getting used to what receivers are trying to do, and that comes from watching film and getting reps in practice.

"I am learning something new every day," Jones said. "I still have to work on my leverage and getting my eyes in the right places." Off the field, Jones has always looked at things from a positive perspective, even during a tough 2012 season.

"When you make your work fun, you can do a lot of great things," he said.

Besides Jones, linebackers Sio Moore and Keenan Clayton, running back Latavius Murray and WR Juron Criner also sat out Sunday with injuries from Friday's game.

"I don't expect those guys to miss a lot of time," Allen said.

Taiwan Jones working through tough position switch

By Scott Bair

August 5, 2013

NAPA – Taiwan Jones made an excellent play on a receiver he wasn't even covering. The Raiders cornerback saw Terrelle Pryor's pass directed away from his path, so he stopped in an instant, dove back and rendered the ball incomplete. It was a veteran move, a cagy breakup expected of a lifelong corner. Not bad for a novice.

Jones has been playing cornerback just a few months now, after the Raiders suggested he convert from running back. Jones was stuck down on the depth chart without hope of promotion, so head coach Dennis Allen asked him to man a position he hadn't played since high school.

Jones was a quality corner back in his youth, and never considered a switch at the professional level. In order to remain a Raider, Jones was willing to try anything.

"I'm still just happy to be on the roster," Jones said. "Whatever I can do to help the team and if I can help the team on defense then I'm willing to do it. I was kind of upset that I couldn't show everybody what kind of running back I could be, but I think it's a good thing as far as my career."

It's incredibly difficult to learn a position while fighting for a roster spot. He's typically working with the third team, with players likely cut by September. Jones is an excellent special teams player, which could help him carve a niche while he develops as a corner.

"I will say this. It's a tough transition," coach Dennis Allen said. "He's been playing running back, and then all of a sudden we put him on the other side of the ball and start working him at corner, but I think he's doing a nice job. He is still behind, though."

"But the other thing I think you have to understand about Taiwan is, [that] Taiwan is probably one of the better special teams players in the league. I think that's always going to come down and be a factor when we start looking at the roster. I think special teams will be a big factor in that for him."

Allen sees potential in this position switch.

While technical aspects are being learned each day, Jones has the quick reaction time required to be a quality defensive back. His acrobatic pass breakup is proof of that.

"Playing corner feels really natural," Jones said. "But there are things working through. I do have to work on using my leverage to my advantage and getting my eyes in the right places. I need to keep progressing, but I feel like I'm getting there."

Motivated McFadden 'owes Raiders fantastic season'

Scott Bair

September 5, 2013

Darren McFadden hears you talking.

The Raiders feature running back knows you call him injury prone. He knows you think his best football is behind him.

That's okay. Everyone's entitled to an opinion. It won't change the way he plays football.

He takes the negativity, bottles it up and turns it into fuel.

"I feel I've shown glimpses of what I can do," McFadden said, "but I still think my best football is ahead of me."

McFadden has reason to believe a career year is upon him. He's in the best shape of his life. He's working in a downhill, gap-control running scheme that suits his rushing style.

It's tailor-made for McFadden, a fact not lost on the former first-round pick.

"The organization has shown tremendous faith in me, and I'm very grateful for that," McFadden said. "I feel like it shows real faith in me and in this offense as a whole. They clearly have confidence in my ability and what I can do in a downhill running scheme."

I'm so excited to be able to run in this type of offense again. I feel like I owe the Raiders a fantastic season."

McFadden can only do that by staying healthy. He's been hurt in each professional season, making durability the biggest knock on this undeniable talent.

McFadden doesn't like being called injury prone. Hates it in fact. But he doesn't let it psyche him out.

"I just let it roll off my back," McFadden said. "But, at the same time, you can't help but think about it. I don't want to be known or thought of as injury prone, but I have gotten hurt. It's not going to change how I play the game. If I get hurt, then I get hurt. Those things happen. I'm going to play hard."

McFadden is also going to play fast. He has the speed of a less weathered back, the strength of a short-yardage back and the agility of a big-play maker.

Fans haven't seen that because McFadden has been extremely limited during a preseason where health is the only concern. Coaches have.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I see the speed, I see that from Darren McFadden," Raiders offensive coordinator Greg Olson said. "We haven't gotten into any real live performance where he's going to go in and carry it 20 times a game but I don't see wear and tear on this running back, I don't see a decline in speed.

"We'll get a chance to see when the regular season gets going but we still believe that we have a real fine running back."

McFadden didn't live up to that billing last season. He averaged a career-worst 3.3 yards per carry and scored just three touchdowns. Then-coordinator Greg Kanpp's zone-blocking became the scapegoat for such a performance, especially after McFadden averaged 5.3 yards per carry in the two previous seasons.

The scheme was a source of aggravation for McFadden and the offense. He admits the season wore on his psyche.

McFadden enters this season with renewed optimism about this team.

"I think we're being underestimated," McFadden said. "We're better than most people think. I think we'll win some games and prove some of our doubters wrong."

McFadden is speaking for the Raiders and himself. He considers this the most important season of his career. A second straight bomb will kill his street cred and his earning power.

He enters a contract year looking for one more big payday. He prefers his checks signed by a Davis. If he doesn't perform, that won't happen. If he doesn't perform well, a long-term contract is out of the cards, maybe forever.

"It's going to enhance your motivation. How could it not?" McFadden said. "It's in the back of your head, but I'm still focused on football. I know that, if I take care of business on the field, everything else will fall in line."

This training camp hasn't lined up perfectly. His best blocker, left tackle Jared Veldheer, is lost until midseason. The interior line is in flux and Menelik Watson is playing out of position. Despite a radical change in scheme, the stars haven't aligned.

Having quarterback Terrelle Pryor should take some pressure off McFadden and the run game, but the world still knows No. 20 is gettin' the rock. While Pryor steals headlines, McFadden's the real marquee player. Without him, the offense can't survive.

McFadden is ready, willing and able to shoulder such responsibility.

"I feel as good as I ever have," McFadden said. "I'm 26 years old, but I still feel young. I feel like it shows when I'm on the field. I can still go out and fly around and make big plays. I'm always going to give my team maximum effort. I go all out on every play."

Oakland Raiders' McFadden happy to be running downhill again

By Jerry McDonald

July 26, 2013

NAPA -- Darren McFadden took a handoff from Matt Flynn on Friday and with no hesitation hit a sliver of air between guard Lucas Nix and center Stefen Wisniewski at nearly full speed.

No defender laid a hand on McFadden until he was at least three yards downfield -- which is roughly what he averaged per carry in 2012 in a zone scheme ill-suited to his nature as a runner.

It was a simple running play in a non-padded practice on the first day of training camp, but illustrated nicely what McFadden does best. The zone scheme, which called on McFadden to move laterally before cutting back against the grain, helped drop his yards per carry to a career-low 3.3 yards.

"I love a downhill scheme, so I'm very confident about it," McFadden said. "I'll just be able to get out there and go downhill. That's one of my strong points.

For all the changes on the Oakland roster, the one constant was McFadden. Both coach Dennis Allen and general manager Reggie McKenzie went out of their way to talk him up in the offseason.

Allen's hiring of line coach Tony Sparano and offensive coordinator Greg Olson came in part because both had the right answer in terms of getting McFadden back to the form he displayed in 2010 and 2011 when Hue Jackson designed the offense and called the plays.

It was Jackson who put in McFadden's favorite gap and power runs at the expense of the zone scheme preferred by Tom Cable. McFadden averaged 5.2 and 5.4 yards per carry in 20 games over those two seasons with 11 rushing touchdowns.

Asked what it feels like to have coaches who will cater to his talents, McFadden said, "It feels great. I feel like I'm a downhill runner and that's something the coaches see also. By getting us in a gap scheme offense, they feel that suits me a lot more."

Allen liked what he saw of the re-tooled running game on the first day of practice.

"We ran the football well, the offensive line did a nice job, the backs did an excellent job of being able to run the football," Allen said. "That's something we're going to have to be able to do. Darren's one of our most explosive players and we've got to put him in position so that he can have success."

SIO MOORE

SILVER AND BLACK PRIDE

Life lessons have only strengthened Sio Moore

By Marcus Allen Krause

July 31, 2013

Sio Moore was given a second chance at life. Not everyone does, just look at yesterdays tragedy for an example of two athletes that weren't granted that luxury. Texas A&M redshirt freshman Polo Manukainiu and Utah incoming freshman recruit Gaius "Keio" Vaenuku lost their lives in a car crash yesterday. Sadly all we can do at moments like this is let them truly remind us of how lucky we are to be alive.

Sio doesn't need the reminder even if some of us do forget how lucky we are from time to time. No, Sio Moore already lives his life knowing how close it was to being taken away. He has used his near death experience as motivation, always remembering how just a shake of his head could have taken his life.

Moore's family is originally from Liberia, a country torn by a Civil War that got so bad that his parents migrated to the US in 1990. Ironically they took him from a true war zone in Liberia, to one that he put himself squarely in the middle of by associating with the wrong crowd.

Sio knows now that the people he was with were not who he belonged around. He was risking himself by being in the wrong places at the wrong times and it took a near death experience to awaken his inner warrior. He was just 14 and at a party that had just been shutdown. It was here where he had his moment of change. It came from a gunman firing at the back of his head as he fled for his life.

"I wasn't hanging around the right people," Moore told New Haven Register columnist Chip Malafronte "I was getting myself into situations I shouldn't have been in. It took a near-death event for me to realize the path I was going down was the wrong one."

"A bullet went right by my right ear and hit a car next to me," Moore said. "That haunted me for a good while. I kept thinking about it. What if I turned around at the wrong time? That bullet would have hit me in the head."

After that day Sio stopped hanging out with that crowd, he realized he must live better, and he uprooted himself on his own to make his desire for a better life a reality. He picked up the phone and he called his sister Tiplah Broadnax who is 19 years his senior and her husband Grady. He asked them if he could live with them, and then Sio promptly moved many miles away from where that speeding bullet almost took his life.

Our own Levi Damien recently interviewed Sio and he asked about that moment. Its easy to see what we all like so much about Moore when you read his response.

"Yeah, man. 100 percent. My life could have been changed multiple times. That was only once. I had Civil War broken out in 1990, I would have never came to the U.S. There are so many things that I'm thankful for, blessings and things around me."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Though the attempt at his life was plenty enough of a life changing event to change Sio deep within his soul, it would still not be all that he would face. Even after he made his way out of the life he was living and onto Connecticut University's football roster the fates would still test him more.

The new test would come at the expense of another young man who was cut down mercilessly and unjustly, though this was no accident like what took the lives of Polo and Keio. The test would come at the expense of a teammate, a leader of the Husky defense, and a friend who was succeeding at life in a way few are lucky enough to experience. The test would come at the expense of UConn DB Jasper Howard, who was stabbed to death in a senseless crime that happened on campus in 2009.

Now Sio Moore lives life to the absolute fullest. He carries a reminder of his friend Jasper with him everywhere, he has a tattoo in memory of him across his mid-section in the same area that Howard was stabbed in. Its another reminder of the pain he has gone through that has strengthened his resolve, the same as another tattoo that depicts his life without his father has.

Though those tattoos remind him of the pain he felt, there is also hope and love deeply involved in them. The hope in the tattoo of Jasper is the hope of honoring his lost friend, the hope of living his life in a way that would make Jasper proud. Its a reminder to never again take his life for granted, which is a hope that we could all use instilled in us.

The tattoo about his father has a man and a boy standing next to each other with a space between their reached out hands, which Sio says is to symbolize his non-relationship with his own dad. The hope is there though still because he plans on uniting the hands the day he has a child. The tattoo is there to remind himself to be a better father than the one he had, which is a hope that many people understand more than words can express.

Seeing the strength of Sio's commitment to life is what so many of us are drawn to. We don't know yet if he will be able to play in the NFL, but he gives every reason there is to believe he can. He is the change we need in this franchise and the hope we all have for the Raiders future. Its a lot of pressure but it feels right to put it on Moore's shoulders. After all, his life has shown that he is already a man that refuses to break.

Raiders' Pryor molds style after QBs such as Brady, Vick and Kaepernick

Jerry McDonald

September 11, 2013

ALAMEDA -- When the mother of a former teammate told Terrelle Pryor he should copy the qualities of the NFL's top quarterbacks and make them his own, he took the advice to heart.

The Raiders quarterback calls Julie Posey his "aunt," but she is actually the mother of DeVier Posey, who played at Ohio State with Pryor.

"She said you have a basket, and if you see something about Tom Brady you like, put it in the basket. You see Michael Vick, (Colin) Kaepernick, Robert Griffin III, keep putting things in the basket," Pryor said Wednesday. "Eventually you keep adding what they're great at, emulate it, and add it to your skill set, and you're only going to get better."

Pryor has borrowed from Brady's one-step drop in a quest for accuracy. He stole a ball-fake from Kaepernick just last week.

Now if the Raiders can prevent Pryor from taking on tacklers like Darren McFadden does, they might have found themselves a quarterback for the long term.

When the Raiders host the Jacksonville Jaguars on Sunday at O.co Coliseum in their home opener, defenders are acutely aware that Pryor loses all the protections afforded a quarterback once he becomes a runner.

"He makes plays on his feet," Jaguars coach Gus Bradley said by conference call. "He's got the ability to run that's always a threat, not only in some of their read-option plays but also as a scrambler and with his bootlegs."

In a season-opening 21-17 loss to the Indianapolis Colts, one of Pryor's signature plays was a 26-yard bootleg where he delivered a stiff-arm to the face of safety LaRon Landry.

It wasn't a play normally associated with a quarterback. But then Pryor, even in the era of the runner-passer, isn't exactly a prototype.

"The way I think about it, I'm 6-foot-5, 238 pounds, I feel like I take that stuff on," Pryor said. "But I also believe you want to play smart, you want to last, and give your team the best chance to win."

Pryor had 13 rushes for 112 yards against Indianapolis, a franchise record for quarterback rushing yardage. Ideally, he'll run less and take fewer hits as the season goes on.

Rich Gannon, the former record holder with 85 yards rushing, was a master at measuring exactly what it took to get a first down and then either sliding or running out of bounds.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

It's a philosophy coach Dennis Allen wants to see from Pryor, whose first instinct is to make a move or break a tackle to gain yards.

"The thing you have to understand is when it's time to declare the play over," Allen said. "You don't want to take any of his athleticism away from him, because he has the ability to make some big plays. What you want to do is limit the amount of times he takes the hit."

Pryor understands all this and wants to oblige but makes no promises.

"I believe I'll probably do whatever I have to do to get the first down," Pryor said. "I need to get down, absolutely. I have to. I've got guys counting on me ... but I'm not going to sit here and lie to you because I'm so competitive I might forget."

Pryor gets another chance to repay Al Davis

Mike Florio

September 10, 2013

After a loss that in many ways felt like a victory on Sunday, Raiders quarterback Terrelle Pryor told Peter King of TheMMQB.com that he has immense gratitude for the late Al Davis.

"I owe Mr. Davis," Pryor told King. "This man believed I'd be a star quarterback. He said that to me multiple times. He took a chance on me when other teams wouldn't. And I think he was smiling down a little bit today, watching this. This may sound crazy, but every day I'm thankful for what he did for me."

Pryor will get another chance to prove Davis right on Sunday.

As expected, coach Dennis Allen announced that Pryor will start the home opener against the Jaguars, who won't be starting quarterback Blaine Gabbert. Pryor gets the start even though he declared he was "awful" in his debut. Allen obviously disagrees.

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that he was awful, but he also understands that there's some critical mistakes in the game that we got to get corrected because we can't have those," Allen said Monday, via Steve Corkran of the Bay Area News Group.

The next challenge for Pryor will be to correct his mistakes and, in time, expand his abilities. As Stephen Holder of the Indianapolis Star pointed out after Sunday's game at Indy, the sentiment in the Colts' locker room was that Pryor looked for one receiver and then, if the receiver wasn't open, Pryor ran.

Regardless, the Colts couldn't stop the man who is the NFL's second leading rusher through one full week of action. We'll see if the Jaguars can do any better on Sunday.

OAKLAND TRIBUNE

Poole: Terrelle Pryor gives Oakland Raiders new era of hope

By Monte Poole

September 8, 2013

INDIANAPOLIS -- Running superbly, throwing better than he ever has and giving the Raiders a fourth-quarter lead, Terrelle Pryor exasperated a strong opponent, quieted a raucous dome and gained national respect.

Yet Pryor's most significant accomplishment Sunday was delivering hope.

Even in defeat, his performance brought a sliver of hope to a demoralized fan base, to a head coach whose job is at stake and to a franchise that has spent the past decade mocking itself. Oakland's 21-17 loss to the Indianapolis Colts at Lucas Oil Stadium was unremarkable aside from the visual evidence of Pryor's growth as a quarterback. He was a desperate option last season, and uncertainty about his future prompted general manager Reggie McKenzie to draft one quarterback and sign another through free agency.

Now, suddenly, Pryor, in his third season, looks like the only quarterback on the roster with a chance to lift the Raiders from the Era of Embarrassment.

It's one game, so there is plenty of time for opponents to study Pryor, look for tendencies and seek ways to disrupt his game. The league is, always will be, about consistency, and few struggle with that more than young passers.

But in the pressurized predicament of making his second career start, in the season opener, on the road, in a dome, against a 2012 playoff team, Pryor exceeded reasonable expectations. His Raiders actually outgained Andrew Luck's Colts 372-274.

It was largely because of Pryor's arm and feet and, yes, decision-making, that the outcome was in doubt until the final seconds, to the shock of 65,412 in attendance. Pryor's 5-yard dart to Denarius Moore with 11:09 left gave Oakland a 17-14 lead that crumbled when Indy responded by marching 80 yards for the winning touchdown.

"We had a chance to win," veteran safety Charles Woodson said. "The defense, we dropped the ball."

Though Pryor's passing stats were decent -- 19 of 29, 217 yards, one touchdown, two interceptions -- his rushing stats (13 carries, a Raiders quarterback record 112 yards) were impressive and, above all, his surprisingly proficient presence was encouraging.

"He provides a spark and has some things he can do and create with his feet," coach Dennis Allen said. "That was outstanding. Overall, I was pleased with his performance."

"There's still a lot of things that we got to get cleaned up with him and ... anytime you have a young guy, you're going to have to make some corrections."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Pryor's glaring mistakes were one late sack and two interceptions, one in the first quarter when he threw late to Rod Streater in the end zone and the other when he heaved a third-and-24 pass inside the final minute that ended Oakland's final comeback attempt.

Pryor's self-evaluation was harsh, dismissing the way he twisted the Indy defense into knots with his scrambling, ignoring his 66 percent completion rate and -- as highly competitive folks tend to do -- zeroing in on his contributions to defeat.

"I did awful," he said. "Two interceptions ... could have won the game ... had them on the ropes down there. That's all that matters. That number on the win column is all that matters to me."

What has to matter to the Raiders, though, is the sight of progress from young players. They haven't had a winning season since 2002, and they're trying to follow a long-term progression after years of shortsighted "plans."

The Raiders have to be delighted with Pryor's improvement. The offseason work, including a tuneup of his throwing mechanics, has created the possibility of the kind of double-threat quarterback that brings defenders to tears.

"We knew we had a heck of a football player coming here, a talented guy, a great athlete, a guy who could do that," Colts coach Chuck Pagano said. "But ... he did a great job."

On a Raiders team with such a thin layer of offensive playmakers, a quarterback with Pryor's attributes represents the best possibility of success.

"Terrelle Pryor is a stud," Luck said. "He made some unbelievable plays."

The cliché is that no team welcomes a moral victory, most of all because the concept is associated with losing the game. The Raiders indeed lost but won something the franchise needs, something Allen needs, something the fan base needs.

In a season when they've been casually dismissed as short on talent and without an NFL-caliber quarterback, Pryor's showing gained them a measure of respect.

Respect in the NFL equals hope, and that was hardly visible before Sunday.

THE MONDAY MORNING QUARTERBACK

No Pryor Restraint

By Jim Trotter

August 30, 2013

SEATTLE — After concluding the preseason with a 22-6 loss to the Seahawks on Thursday night, Raiders coach Dennis Allen was asked if he knows who his Week 1 starting quarterback will be at

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Indianapolis.

"I'm not going to tell you, but yes," he said.

Football coaches are funny creatures. They treat secrecy as if it were currency and cling to the concept as if it were gold. Still, you would have to be deaf (to the players), dumb (to the realities of the Raiders' situation) and blind (to the playmaking abilities of the candidates) to believe Allen should go with anyone but Terrelle Pryor, the unpolished passer yet gifted runner who has provided the biggest spark to the offense.

It's true that Pryor's numbers were awful in his only preseason start on Thursday. He completed just 3 of 8 passes for 31 yards with no touchdowns, one interception and a 9.9 rating. By artwork standards, it was a finger-painting. But what the numbers do not say is that the Raiders' blueprint for winning has blown up. They entered training camp wanting to be stingy on defense and mistake-free on offense; that way they could get to the fourth quarter and have an opportunity to make a play and win. But in four exhibition games the defense allowed scores on 16 of 18 first-half series, excluding a kneel down. It gave up seven touchdowns and nine field goals, forced just one punt and had another series end with a blocked field goal.

There's little reason to believe the unit, which could have as many as nine new starters, can flip a switch at the beginning the regular season. Consequently the Raiders are going to have to be more dynamic on offense, which hurts Matt Flynn. His advantage over Pryor is his experience and efficiency. That, however, works against him if the offense is playing catch-up, particularly with a line that might be among the worst in the league (especially after left tackle Jared Veldheer was lost until at least the midseason with a torn left triceps).

It's little wonder that the word most often heard in the Raiders' locker room after the game—and in private conversations with players beforehand—was playmakers. As in, We need them. Pryor is just that, even if the numbers from Thursday don't reflect it. When he's on the field there's a feeling that something positive could happen. On any given play he could carry the ball 70 yards, and, unlike Flynn, he has the arm strength to stretch the field in the passing game.

That's critical because the Raiders sorely lack playmakers on offense. Running back Darren McFadden has the ability, but he has yet to play a full season since entering the league in 2008. Wideout Denarius Moore is another, but he tends to disappear for stretches. Running back Marcel Reece can pose a matchup problem for defenses in the passing game. There are no established threats beyond them.

Behind a stout line, with a stingy defense, the Raiders could make it work with Flynn. But that's connect-the-dots stuff, and Oakland lacks the necessary dots. Which is why they need someone like Pryor, a 6-4, 233-pound signal-caller who can improvise on a broken play to create something beautiful, as he did on Thursday night when he gained 25 yards on a scramble.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

His rawness as a passer works against him, although he is improving. On Thursday he was hurt by a couple of drops, and his interception was the result of being late with the delivery on a deep pass down the sideline. Pryor attributed his tardiness to being inexperienced throwing to double-moves from the pistol formation, which is what was called on that play.

While he will never be confused with Tom Brady, the Patriots icon with whom he worked out part of the offseason, he also should not be viewed as the newborn colt who stumbled around the pocket at Ohio State. His abilities as a passer, and his understanding of the passing game, have increased exponentially since entering the league two years ago. Much of it stems from his work this offseason with Tom House, a mechanics/movement coach whose clients includes Brady, Saints QB Drew Brees and Chiefs QB Alex Smith.

His company, 3D QB, evaluates each athlete's throwing motion and functional arm strength, then develops programs to help build on strengths and correct weaknesses. It also develops a nutritional plan for participants and creates a mental/emotional profile. Pryor spent roughly three months working with House, sometimes two and three times a week.

"Pretty special kid," House says of Pryor. "The awesome thing about him is that he made adjustments almost immediately. He was hungry. He was willing to give what we offered a shot. The combination of his willingness to embrace the science and make it a little bit better for him physically and mechanically turned into some positive feedback real quick."

For instance, Pryor learned that he was leaving his chest open, which made him late with his delivery. "So when I was coming down to throw with my left arm, my right arm was saying it's time to go, the timing wasn't right," he said. "[House] kind of helped me with that."

"I tell all the great ones and those who strive to be great: Problem identification is half your solution," House says. "If we have a toolkit to help you with your solution, that's where the relationship builds. When we identified the few small problems that Terrelle had, and showed him the toolkit, it was unbelievable how quick he made adjustments. He's very authentic. He can actually look at his strengths and weaknesses and learn how to make the adjustments. That's what was cool working with him."

There will be growing pains if the Raiders go with Pryor. Their initial plan was to create a package of plays for him, many relying on his athleticism. But that has been adjusted in recent weeks. More is being put on his plate. Viewed as a role player coming into camp, he's now a potential leading man. So much so that Allen got upset with him Thursday night for taking an unnecessary hit on a bootleg. That never would have happened last year, or even a few weeks ago in the first preseason games. But times are changing.

Allen knows Pryor's value is now greater than a dozen or so plays. He didn't say as much Thursday night, but look for him to do so in the next few days. It'll be the right call.

Raiders' Terrelle Pryor rebuilds his image as a quarterback

Sam Farmer

August 11, 2013

NAPA, Calif. — Terrelle Pryor, the last draft pick made by Oakland Raiders owner Al Davis, can now make a remarkable admission for an NFL quarterback.

Until this year, he didn't really know how to throw a football.

That may be a little extreme. He thought he knew how to throw, and he could pick up a ball and wing it. But his body mechanics were so inefficient and his tosses were so scattershot, he said, he had no future in the pros.

"I look back on last year, and I just knew I wasn't ready," said Pryor, 23, entering his third NFL season and now an intriguing figure in the Raiders' quarterback mix, probably as a change-of-speed option to presumed starter Matt Flynn.

Determined to rebuild his motion, Pryor worked extensively with throwing specialist Tom House at USC this off-season, developing new timing and "unlocking" his upper body to improve his accuracy. House works with an array of NFL players — along with college and Major League Baseball players — among them quarterbacks Tom Brady and Drew Brees.

"I truly believe that after spending a month and a half with Tom, I can now sit back in the pocket and throw the ball," he said.

Pryor played well Friday in a 19-17 exhibition victory against Dallas, completing six of 10 passes for 88 yards, and running three times for 31 yards.

The pass that got away was a cross-body fling into the end zone six yards away that was picked off by Dallas' J.J. Wilcox. There appeared to be room for Pryor to score with his feet, but instead he tried to force a pass.

"I looked at the pictures and I could have easily ran it in, but I got greedy," Pryor said.

He disagreed with the notion that he wanted to throw for the score rather than run for it because he's determined to prove he can win with his arm, that he's not simply a one-dimensional read-option threat.

But Raiders Coach Dennis Allen said the next step in Pryor's maturation process is learning that sometimes he needs to listen to his instincts and make the play that unfolds before him, rather than reaching for that higher degree of difficulty.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"That's been one thing we've consistently talked to Terrelle about is in those situations, don't be afraid to use your legs," Allen said. "Don't be afraid to use your skill set. ... Not every play has to be a great play, not every play has to be a spectacular play."

That Pryor is even a consideration now is a significant achievement for him and means he has made big strides. He was very raw coming out of Ohio State, and many people expected him to switch positions in the NFL, becoming a receiver or tight end.

Pryor was selected by the Raiders in the third round of the 2011 supplemental draft. He chose to skip his senior season at Ohio State in the aftermath of a tattoo-for-memorabilia scandal that cost coach Jim Tressel his job.

Pryor's NFL career began under a dark cloud, with the league taking the unusual step of carrying over the NCAA's penalty and imposing a corresponding five-game suspension of its own. He ran a 40 in under 4.4 seconds for scouts, freakish for a player who stands 6 feet 4 and weighs 233 pounds.

He made his starting debut at the end of last season, taking over for the injured Carson Palmer in a finale against San Diego. Pryor showed flashes of promise in that game, throwing two touchdown passes despite completing only 46% of his passes — 13 of 28 — and running for another score. He proved he could get in and out of the huddle quickly, often a problem for young quarterbacks, and showed elements of leadership, at one point breaking up a fight on the field.

But it was the work he did this off-season, he believes, that will make him a more accurate, more dangerous player this season.

"We're going to continue to give him opportunities to showcase his skills," Allen said. "But right now, he's not there yet."

Pryor, for one, is confident he will be.

"I'm very honest with myself," he said. "Last year, I look back and I just know I wasn't ready. I didn't have the mind-set. I knew I wasn't ready in terms of mechanics. I was so far off."

"This year, I'm very confident. I'm confident in the huddle, getting the calls to the guys, saying the protections. And I truly believe that any time a route or concept is called, I can put the ball where I want."

ROD STREATER

SACRAMENTO BEE

Raiders' route to aerial success might involve Streater

Matt Kawahara

September 12, 2013

ALAMEDA – If wide receiver Rod Streater spent much of 2012 under the radar, first as an undrafted free agent in camp, then as a rookie climbing up the Raiders' depth chart, it seems this season he's already registering a louder blip.

"It appears that he's a go-to guy for them, to where (quarterback Terrelle Pryor) will look for him," Jacksonville Jaguars coach Gus Bradley said Wednesday on a conference call about Sunday's game at O.co Coliseum. "We know (Pryor has) other receivers as well, but (Streater is) a guy that seems to be targeted quite a bit."

In Week 1 against Indianapolis, Streater was targeted a team-high eight times and led the Raiders with 70 yards on five catches. He had five catches only once in a game his rookie season, during which he caught 39 passes for 584 yards and three touchdowns.

The 39 catches were the fourth-most by a rookie in franchise history and tied for the third-most by an undrafted NFL player since 2002 – all part of an unexpected debut for a player who caught just 19 passes his senior year in a run-heavy offense at Temple.

Pryor, making his own debut Sunday as the Raiders' starting quarterback, threw to Streater on his first two attempts – as well as on his two interceptions – and found Streater multiple times when scrambling to avoid pressure.

Asked if he considers Streater a "go-to receiver," Pryor said Wednesday: "I wouldn't call him a go-to guy, I just thought he had a spectacular game. It almost comes to every time we get on the field, he reacts to wherever I'm going. So I can see what you're saying.

"I think he just has a knack for the ball and wanting the ball. Not that the other guys don't, but I think he's real good at just following and knowing to move with me instead of staying still or going up and down."

Quarterbacks and receivers practice the "scramble drill" – adjusting when a quarterback is flushed from the pocket – and a mobile quarterback like Pryor can take that to another level.

As Pryor showed Sunday with his 112 rushing yards – many on designed pass plays when he tucked the ball and ran – he's willing and able to extend plays with his feet. For his receivers, it means more time after the original play breaks down to observe where Pryor is going and angle that way while trying to find open space in the defense.

Pryor and Streater worked on their timing during the offseason at nearby Laney College and in Los Angeles, along with several other Raiders receivers, but Streater acknowledged that work only goes so far when the quarterback begins to improvise.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"We try to replicate it at practice, but you really can't. It's just a natural thing," Streater said. "You've just got to go out there and feel it kind of, just find an open spot and get open pretty much."

"We kind of understand each other. I kind of have a thing, understand kind of where to go and when he's going to scramble, things like that."

One of the pivotal plays for the Raiders in Indianapolis came on third and 10 from the Colts' 19-yard line early in the fourth quarter. Pryor took a shotgun snap, saw nothing open downfield, spun away from pressure to his left and then ran back across the hash marks to his right before delivering a jump-throw to Streater for a 17-yard gain.

The play, which took 11 seconds from Pryor taking the snap to making the throw, set up Pryor's 5-yard touchdown pass to Denarius Moore, which put the Raiders ahead 17-14 before the Colts retook the lead for good on Andrew Luck's touchdown run.

Raiders coach Dennis Allen agreed Wednesday that "there's a little bit of comfortableness" between Pryor and Streater. Asked where that comes from, Streater smiled and shrugged. "I don't know. It's just being around him, working out in the offseason, I think."

"When he runs that way, go with him and get open."

Raiders: Can Charles Woodson still get it done?

Jerry McDonald
September 3, 2013

ALAMEDA -- Charles Woodson thinks back to the way things used to be and laughs at the thought of having become the wise old man.

"It's really funny, having 15 years in and listening to a lot of comments from the young guys," Woodson said. "I just reflect when I came in and there's Tim Brown and Jerry Rice, guys who were older than a lot of us were. I always joked with them about how old they were. Now I find myself in the same position."

Returning to where he started after seven seasons with the Green Bay Packers, Woodson has been amused by how his potential contributions to the Raiders in 2013 have been characterized.

He is the wily veteran, a coach on the field. In contrast to his burn-the-candle-at-both-ends days during his first tenure as a Raider, Woodson gets enough sleep, is a contributor in meeting rooms and didn't miss a training camp practice until coach Dennis Allen ordered him to take a day off.

In a national conference call, ESPN analyst and former Indianapolis Colts general manager Bill Polian said Woodson was so respected, anything they get from him on the field "is a bonus when you're in that kind of rebuilding mode."

Yet Woodson, who is the most recognizable star on a team that hasn't had a winning record in a decade, is expected to be more than just a reasonable facsimile of the same player who has 55 career interceptions and 29 forced fumbles.

The social-media-fueled reception that helped coax him back to Oakland on May 22 was a nice bit of nostalgia, but Charles Woodson was signed to be Charles Woodson.

"Let's make no mistake about it, Charles is here to play football and make plays for us first," Allen said. "It's a bonus to have a guy that has that veteran leadership."

So what tells Woodson he can still produce?

"By the way I move," Woodson said. "I can still move with the best of 'em and I still love the game. If you have those things, you keep playing."

Raiders defensive coordinator Jason Tarver is convinced Woodson is more than a sounding board with a Hall of Fame résumé.

"His burst surprises me every day," Tarver said. "The guy just covers ground. That's why he's a big piece of getting this defense where we want it, and hopefully that cements his legacy."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Knowing when to retire is a tricky thing. Sometimes the athlete doesn't realize it, and occasionally the employer is too eager to force a veteran out the door.

"As you get older, they use that birth certificate against you," former Raiders safety and Hall of Famer Rod Woodson said. "When things don't go well, they blame your age."

Charles Woodson helped lead the Green Bay Packers to a Super Bowl championship following the 2010 season but was released after breaking the same collarbone two times in three seasons.

Green Bay quarterback Aaron Rodgers, in a phone interview during training camp, was sorry to see Woodson become a salary cap casualty and believes whatever he's lost in terms of skills had been made up for in terms of know-how.

"He understands the game more than anybody I've ever seen at his position and I think he has a lot of ability left," Rodgers said. "He's on the older side by NFL standards, but I think the savvy and wisdom he has can make up for anything, even if physically he might not be the same as when he was as a young player."

Former Raiders cornerback Willie Brown, who returned an interception 75 yards for a touchdown against the Minnesota Vikings at age 36 in Super Bowl XI en route to the Hall of Fame, believes Woodson's skills are still top shelf.

"What kind of feet does he have versus when he first came into the league?" Brown said. "Watch his quickness and ability to keep fighting. Does he give up easy or stay in there and fight for the ball? Can he turn around as fast as he used to? His quickness is still here."

Often, the athlete is the last to know when it is time to retire. Rice had two outstanding seasons with Oakland before dwindling opportunities in Seattle and Denver led to his retirement.

"I knew, and I kept pushing it," Rice said. "Your body doesn't react like it used to. It takes a lot more time to heal."

Rod Woodson, like Charles Woodson, was a converted cornerback playing free safety when he joined the Raiders in 2002 at age 36. He had eight interceptions, including a 97-yard touchdown return against Denver, one of the biggest plays in an AFC championship season.

Forced out by injury a year later, Rod Woodson often said the distaste for offseason training is a clue that it's time to hang it up.

"When you play 15, 16 years in the league, there's a lot of workouts that you have to do," Rod Woodson said. "That takes its toll. There are different reasons for every player. I don't think you can categorize why guys retire."

Charles Woodson insists he will know when it's time to quit.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I still keep myself on par to play a 16-game season," Woodson said. "When the time comes to retire, I think I'll know. I really do. I'll be working on the field and realize I can't get it done and I'll know."

"But that time hasn't come."

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED

Candid Charles Woodson out to prove the doubters wrong

Jim Trotter

August 20, 2013

NAPA, Calif. -- Raiders safety Charles Woodson doesn't believe in taking the scenic route. He wants to get from Point A to Point B as quickly as possible, not only on the football field but also in conversation. Consider his response when asked whether he pays attention to reports that his game has slipped in recent years.

Many players would respond with verbal detours. They'd rather give out the password to their bank account than publicly acknowledge an outsider's criticism. Not Woodson, who is returning to his Oakland roots after seven seasons with the Packers. He goes straight at the subject as if it were an unprotected quarterback and he was coming on a blindside blitz.

"I read all of it," the 16-year veteran says, smiling. "Basically they say I can't do it. They say I haven't been getting it done for the last three years. I've read a lot of things like that -- that I've been declining every year, which is funny because I was just All-Pro two years ago."

"But it's all good because when I turn on the film or I look at me on the football field, no one plays faster than me. You can go ask coaches in Green Bay, as far as how I played before breaking my collarbone last year. Ask them who played faster than me, and I don't think they would say anybody. Maybe Clay Matthews -- Clay is a bad boy. But, nah. All the stuff they're saying just ain't true."

Woodson is not alone in his determination to prove himself a still-viable force. The Raiders, one year after allowing the third-most offensive points in the NFL, could end up fielding as many as nine new defensive starters, each of whom was given up on by his former club. The unit might look like the Land of Misfit Players to some outsiders, but within the locker room the focus is on opportunity.

"The organization brought in some hungry guys," says Woodson, who turns 37 in October. "They're guys who signed one-year or two-year deals who can come out here, show out, then next year be looking at something [more lucrative] here or elsewhere."

Even in a league where roster turnover is common, what the Raiders have done is eye-popping. According to Football Outsiders, it's only the second time in the modern era that a team has changed as many as nine primary defensive starters in one year. The only other time it was done was in 2002, by ... the Raiders, who also made nine changes.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That Oakland team advanced to the Super Bowl (where it was routed by the Bucs), but no one is expecting the past to be prologue. The Raiders haven't had a winning season in 10 years, and one Las Vegas sports book lists their over/under at 5.5 victories. To even have a shot at that figure, the defense must be better than it was a year ago, when it surrendered 18 touchdowns on the ground (which tied for third-most in the league), 28 scores through the air (more than all but seven other teams) and managed just 25 sacks (second-fewest in the league).

Enter tackles Pat Sims and Vance Walker, end Jason Hunter, linebackers Nick Roach, Kevin Burnett and Kaluka Maiava, cornerbacks Mike Jenkins and Tracy Porter and Woodson. The Raiders also used a first-round pick on cornerback D.J. Hayden and a third-rounder on linebacker Sio Moore, both of whom could challenge for starting jobs as rookies.

The issue is how best to turn nine new starters into a cohesive unit. "The challenge is these guys really understanding ways that guys are going to play the game and really get a feel for what everybody else is seeing on the football field," says coach Dennis Allen. "It's really about getting 11 guys to play together and understand what their role is within the scheme. The thing we've got is that we have some veteran players, who understand how to do the job. The bad thing with that sometimes is that guys can be set in their ways. The good thing is, this is a group of guys that is eager and willing to do it the Raider way. That's why I like this team."

What Allen also likes is the players' willingness to practice. It was a struggle at times last season to get some veterans to consider practice as important as he did in his first year as a head coach. In fact, there were times early in training camp when newcomers could be seen grimacing from aches and bruises, strains and sprains, yet they refused to leave the field.

Defensive coordinator Jason Tarver, meanwhile, is pleased to have a group of veterans who are capable of making adjustments on the fly. "You can talk to them about subtle things and you can talk to them about major things," he says. "It's not too big for them. The personalities are big, too. Roach is smart, a little bit funny, he wants to do it right, and he likes solving things in the moment. Communicating with those players is really what you love about coaching."

Coaches are also enamored of talented veterans who are motivated, such as Woodson. He commands your attention when he's on the field. There is a suddenness when he breaks on the ball that few players possess. Woodson makes the game look easy even when it's difficult, as the rookie Hayden has learned. As Hayden walked off the field after a recent practice, sweat pouring down his face, multiple sets of shoulder pads and helmets in his hands, he shook his head at what he had just witnessed from Woodson.

"I couldn't even believe it," Hayden said. "I don't even think he was sweating. He's just so smooth."

"I told him I'm a machine," says Woodson, who breaks into a deep laugh.

One thing Woodson won't laugh about is his desire to show he's still a defensive force. And once again he gets straight to the point. "I ain't going to lie, it's kind of hurtful to have people taking shots at you for whatever reason, or just because you're 35, 36 or going on 37," he says. "But it's all good. I read it and put in my mental bank."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Like his new teammates, he hopes to collect interest beginning in Week 1.

Poole: Charles Woodson is a new man

Monte Poole

August 19, 2013

Charles Woodson sailed into Oakland in 1998, a fascinating bundle of talent and energy, playing fast and living faster. He was famous, newly wealthy in the land of temptation. He partied hard, sometimes without regard for professional obligation.

Young Charles lived to dance along the edge of the cliff. Why not? It was fun. What could be better than inventing new angles from which to burn the proverbial candle?

All the while, C-Wood was a premier cornerback and the best pure football player on the most accomplished Raiders teams since the 1980s.

The Woodson that rejoined the Raiders on May 22, after seven seasons in Green Bay, is 36 years old and has moved to free safety. He brings instincts and ball skills, as well as grown-man wisdom and focus as sharp as an arrow's tip. He plays smart, lives smarter. His is among the most dramatic maturation processes in recent sports history.

And, still, at an age when most have faded, he's the best pure player on the roster.

"His quickness is still there, and I still see his love of the game," says Willie Brown, the Raiders Hall of Famer who has known Woodson since '98 and speaks with him often. "I wouldn't be surprised if Charles makes All-Pro this year at free safety. All we have to do is put a pretty good defense in front of him and let him go."

The root of Woodson's maturation is Charles himself. He was bright enough to acknowledge the cracks in his personal mirror and cast his eyes within -- and strong enough to respond in a way that has set an example for the jock living on the edge.

Woodson always has accepted responsibility, no matter how it reflected upon him. He had won the Heisman Trophy at Michigan -- the first primarily defensive player to do so -- and was drafted fourth overall by Oakland. He was an instant celebrity and embraced the life that came with it.

He was arrested in 2000 for DUI in Michigan. He was arrested in 2004 for refusing to get out of a woman's car at 4:20 a.m. He missed at least one curfew, resulting in suspension, and he was infamous for daydreaming or snoozing during meetings. Teammates were left to wonder if he was hung over or just indifferent to commitment.

Meanwhile, the Raiders reached the playoffs in three consecutive seasons (2000-02), and C-

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Wood went to four consecutive Pro Bowls (1998-01).

Such success only contributed to Woodson's belief that his active night life did not and would not impede his play. When so many talented athletes were falling over the cliff -- including former Raiders teammates Barret Robbins, Andre Rison and Darrell Russell -- Charles was having it both ways.

"I was kind of wild," says Woodson, whose primary road dogs were Charlie Garner and Rison. "I enjoyed myself as a young man. I was moving 100 miles per hour -- on and off the field. I was young, had plenty of money. I was here with a great group of guys, and a lot of us ran fast. We had fun, but we put it down when we got on the field.

"That part of it has slowed down a great deal."

The turnaround began in 2006, when the Raiders allowed him to test free agency and Woodson was greeted with funereal silence. With a history of injuries and a poor work ethic, Woodson at age 29 was perceived as damaged goods.

Pause. Reflect for a minute and consider how great Woodson was despite himself. How fantastic might he be if he truly applied himself?

Staring into the abyss and vowing rededication, Woodson finally received an offer. It came from the Packers. The Packers! Why on earth would Charles Woodson take his talents to the league's smallest and most isolated outpost?

After initial reluctance, Woodson signed with Green Bay not because he wanted to be there but because it was May and, frankly, there was no other reasonable option.

"I would say Green Bay was great for Charles," says Nnamdi Asomugha, who spent three seasons as Woodson's teammate in Oakland and still is a close friend.

Feeling dismissed and perhaps sensing he had cheated himself, Woodson eventually immersed himself in football. He studied film, listened to his coaches, made a concerted effort to tap every drop of his vast potential.

Raising his bar and that of those around him, Charles became a true leader. He also improved as a player, earning four more Pro Bowl selections and being honored in 2009 as the Defensive Player of the Year. Woodson the following season was the driving force behind Green Bay's Super Bowl championship.

"It worked out," Woodson says now. "I talk about how I slowed down, well, I moved to an environment that was that way. Green Bay is a blue-collar community, and it's all about the Packers. I was able to go there, slow down and focus on the game."

Woodson not only dived into football but also became a more responsible citizen. He made a $2 million donation to a Children and Women's hospital at his alma mater in 2009. Friends credit his joy to familial bonds; Charles and his wife, April, have two young sons, Charles Jr. and Chase.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"When you have a lot of money and you're single, you can do a lot of wild and crazy things -- which he did," Brown says of Woodson. "He had millions in his pocket, and he had a good time. Having two kids and a good wife will slow you down."

Hall of Famer Rod Woodson, who spent two years alongside Charles in Oakland, has seen the growth and offers his amateur analysis.

"He needed to kind of get through adolescence, so to speak, while was with the Raiders," Rod Woodson says. "After he got to Green Bay, he finally matured. He matured outside of football. Before players mature on the field, they have to mature outside the field and I think he did that first, and then his play level just increased and he even got better."

Charles had gone to the brink, almost as far as Ben Roethlisberger but not nearly as far as Michael Irvin or J.R. Rider or Mike Tyson. What's remarkable is that Charles stopped, spun and flourished in midcareer. He went to Wisconsin in '06 in danger of derailing his career and left in '13 with Hall of Fame credentials and attributes worthy of adulation.

"The beauty of who Charles has become as a person is that he's so positive and happy," Asomugha says. "I talk to him all the time, and he's so encouraging. That's what you want from a leader, from a guy you looked at as a mentor and a guy you have so much respect for a lot of things he has done."

Woodson's last few years in Oakland, with the team spiraling down after the Super Bowl loss in February 2003, were filled with frustration. His arrival this year is nothing less than refreshing. And very, very welcome.

"I just continue to fall in love with the game," Woodson says. "As a young player, I never looked this far ahead. I never thought about how long I was going to play."

Season No. 16 is on the horizon. Woodson has a $1.8 million one-year contract that, with incentives, could reach $4 million. He also has the respect and confidence of those around him, from general manager Reggie McKenzie (who was with the Packers when Woodson signed there) to coach Dennis Allen to his teammates.

"When he comes out here and practices, he gives his all," strong safety Tyvon Branch says. "For the young guys to see a guy like him, somebody who has played a trillion and eight years getting after it, it just rubs off on them."

Playmaking leadership is what the Raiders want and need -- and hope they get -- from Woodson. It's his specialty. He stood at the cliff and came back to tap himself and his teammates, to be there for those who need him and those who might themselves someday dance along the edge.

Woodson likes changes in return to Oakland

By Paul Gutierrez

May 22, 2013

Charles Woodson caught wind of Raiders fans mobilizing via social media to greet him at the team's compound for his free-agent visit on Tuesday.

No doubt the turnout of about 200 helped sway his decision.

"I tell you, man, it was overwhelming," Woodson said on a conference call with Bay Area reporters Wednesday afternoon. "I think that if at any time I had ever forgotten what the love was like in Oakland, I was definitely reminded yesterday."

"I think it played a big part (in signing). I was actually scared of leaving the facility and not having a deal done," he added with a laugh. "I don't know if I would have made it out of there. But that was a big deal and seeing that kind of welcome, it definitely put me in the mindset it would be a good decision to make it happen."

Woodson, who turns 37 on Oct. 7, was the No. 4 overall draft pick of the Raiders in 1998 as the reigning Heisman Trophy winner. He spent his first eight years in the NFL playing cornerback for Oakland before leaving as a free agent in 2006 for Green Bay and winning a Super Bowl two years ago.

After the Packers released him in a cost-cutting move this offseason, he initially said he wanted to play for a contender, but instead came to choose the rebuilding Raiders over the likes of Denver, which offered him a contract. He also visited the 49ers.

Per reports, Woodson's deal with the Raiders is for one year with a max amount of $4.3 million and a base salary of $1.8 million.

"As the process rolled on, I knew I wanted to play football," he said. "If it was a team that wasn't quite there but still is a team that is looking on the up, then I was going to do it. And I feel like the Raiders are a team that's looking on the up."

Woodson said his familiarity with Raiders second-year general manager Reggie McKenzie from their time together in Green Bay and McKenzie's vision for Oakland sold him on the direction the team was heading.

Plus, the last time Woodson was in the Raiders' building, in 2005, was a lifetime ago in terms of regime change. The change in vibe, he said, was palpable.

"Having Reggie in there and having somebody that's really in that decision-making role other than Mr. Al Davis is definitely a different vibe," Woodson said. "It seems like there's more of a control, as far as what they're able to do and what they want to implement, as far as their team is concerned."

"I think it's a good vibe in there."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

So what does Woodson, at 36-going-on-37 with a Hall of Fame resume that includes eight Pro Bowl selections, three first-team All Pro nods, an NFL defensive rookie of the year award as well as an NFL defensive player of the year honor bring to the Raiders' table?

"I'm a football player, man, so I'm just going to bring a lot of intensity," he said. "Somebody that's passionate about the game, and a guy that knows how to make plays. That's what I'm going to bring. I mean, I think when guys watch me play...that raises the level of other guys, because of the way I play the game.

"I'm going to bring that mindset, that mentality of the game...and have fun doing it."

Woodson figures to make the move to free safety full-time now, to "roam around and make plays," he said, and if that sounds familiar to Raiders fans, it should. It's what Rod Woodson did when he came to Oakland in 2002 and solidified a secondary that helped the Raiders reach the Super Bowl. It was also the last time the Raiders experienced a winning season.

The elder Woodson had already made the switch from corner to free safety before getting to Oakland but it was in that 2002 season when Rod Woodson had a career-high eight interceptions and returned two for touchdowns, including the memorable 98-yarder to swing the season at Denver on Monday Night Football.

Does C-Wood anticipate having similar success?

"I plan on having it," he said. "I wouldn't be out there trying to continue to play if I didn't think it was going to happen. I would have just retired if I thought I couldn't go out there and be the best player on the field."

Woodson, though, has broken his collarbone twice in the past three years. He said it's healed now, though, after missing nine games last year, saying it's "great."

That could also potentially describe the booty cornerback Tracy Porter stands to collect as he currently owns No. 24, the digits work by Woodson in his halcyon Raiders days. It's a jersey that is still among the most popular rocked by fans on gamedays at the Coliseum.

"We definitely have to have that conversation, though," Woodson said of Porter. "We haven't had it yet. Raider Nation has me back, but I don't know if they'll have me (fully) back without the '24' on my back."

Perhaps some cash and some wine (Woodson is the proprietor of a wine made in Napa) could convince Porter to make the switch? But the proximity to his off-the-field business had little to do with his decision to return to Oakland.

"Zero," Woodson said. "This was all about football. This was all about continuing my football career, and having an opportunity to go out there and help a team win. That was bottom line for me."

And keep in mind, Woodson was not signed to simply retire a Raider or to mentor the younger guys. Though he believes that is part of his role. Owner Mark Davis reiterated as much to CSNCalifornia.com earlier in the day.

"I try not to step on any coaches' toes," he said. "Whatever input I can give those guys, that's definitely what I'm going to do. And if I can be a help to them, and it's going to help us win, ultimately, then I have to do it."

Beyond being greeted by the adoring mass of fans, Woodson saw familiar faces on his tour of his first NFL home. Even if kicker Sebastian Janikowski is the only player remaining from Woodson's first tour with the Raiders. There were also equipment and film staff and who many think is the greatest cornerback in franchise history.

"It had been a while since I had seen Willie Brown and he's one of my favorite people, man, ever," Woodson said. "We always joke about who the real '24' is. So it was good to have that back-and-forth with him and get the deal done and then call him and say, 'Willie Brown, I'm coming back. The real 2-4 is coming back.'"

"It felt good to be in that building. It felt good."
