GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders will make their first road trip of the 2018 regular season when they travel to Denver to face the division-rival Broncos at Broncos Stadium at Mile High. The Week 2 contest will mark the earliest matchup between the two clubs since 2012 and will take place on Sept. 16 at 1:25 p.m. The two AFC West teams will meet once again later in the season for a Monday Night Football matchup on Christmas Eve in Oakland, Calif. Last season, the two clubs split a two-game season series, with each team winning on their home turf.

Last week, the Raiders fell to the Los Angeles Rams at home on Monday Night Football by a final score of 13-33. TE Jared Cook paced the offense with nine receptions and a league-high 180 yards. Seven of his nine receptions went for first downs, also tying for the most in the NFL in Week 1, while he also registered a 45-yard reception, his longest since Week 11 of the 2016 season. On defense, DE Bruce Irvin recorded the team's first sack of the year and notched a forced fumble while doing so. Irvin's 11 forced fumbles since joining the team in 2016 are an NFL best, as he is also one of just two players to record at least 15.0 sacks and 10 forced fumbles during that span.

The Broncos took on the Seattle Seahawks at home and defeated the club by a final score of 27-24 last week, putting them in a tie for first place within the division with the Kansas City Chiefs, who beat the Los Angeles Chargers in Week 1, 38-28. Next week, the Silver and Black will make their way to South Beach to face the Miami Dolphins. It will mark the second consecutive season the team travels to Miami, while also looking to claim their second victory in a row over the Dolphins following a 27-24 win on Sunday Night Football in 2017. The Broncos will break from their two-game homestand and head to the East Coast to face the Baltimore Ravens.

JARED COOK

With nine receptions on Monday Night Football, TE Jared Cook compiled 180 yards receiving en route to tying for the sixth-most single-game receiving yardage by a tight end in NFL history. In doing so, Cook set the franchise's single-game record by a tight end, surpassing Todd Christensen's previous record of 173 yards, set in 1986. Cook amassed 113 yards in the first half alone, his second time achieving the century mark in a half, while notching his eighth career 100-yard game. Additionally, Cook now owns two of the NFL's top-16 receiving performances by a tight end in NFL history.

SNAPSHOT

Overview: Head Coach Vance Joseph enters his second year with Denver after a first year that saw the Broncos' defense become just one of two teams to finish in the Top-5 in both pass defense (4th - 200.6 avg.) and run defense (5th - 89.4 avg.). Under Joseph, the defense went from the 28th ranked run defense in 2016 to the fifth-best run defense in 2017. The Broncos hired offensive coordinator Bill Musgrave in 2017 to coach the quarterbacks and was promoted to offensive coordinator later that season. The Broncos enter Sunday's contest 1-0 after defeating the Seahawks, 27-24, in Week 1. The Broncos trail the Raiders, 62-51-2, in the all-time regular season series.

Offense: Entering his first season with the Broncos after signing as a free agent from Minnesota, QB Case Keenum helped the Vikings advance to the NFC Championship game in 2017 with a 12-4 record as a starter. Keenum finished the season 325-of-481 with 3,547 yards, 22 TDs to just seven INTs and a passer rating of 98.3. Keenum threw for 329 yards and three TDs in his Broncos debut last week. Last season's leading WRs Demaryius Thomas and Emmanuel Sanders delivered solid performances in Week 1. Thomas had 6 catches for 63 yards and one TDs, while Sanders hauled in 10 passes for 135 yards and one TD. The Broncos running game looks to improve in 2018 with rookie RBs Royce Freeman and Phillip Lindsay taking the majority of snaps. Each player rushed for 71 yards in the season-opening win.

Defense: Now in his second season as defensive coordinator, Joe Woods returns a defense that ranked third in the NFL in yards per game allowed (290.0 avg.) in 2017. OLB Von Miller earned Pro Bowl honors in 2017 after producing his sixth double-digit sack season, finishing the year with 57 tackles (51 solo), 10 sacks, three passes defended, two forced fumbles and one fumble recovery. Miller started the 2018 season by recording six tackles and three sacks against the Seattle Seahawks, while CB Adam Jones and S Justin Simmons each added an INT.

RAIDERS VS. BRONCOS

WHAT TO WATCH FOR IN 2018

• The Oakland Raiders need eight regular season victories to reach 470 club wins. The Raiders' all-time record is 462-412-11.

• QB Derek Carr needs 36 touchdown passes to pass Peyton Manning for the second-most passing scores in NFL history through a player's first five seasons.

• Carr needs 30 touchdown passes to become the sixth NFL player in NFL history with at least 30 touchdown passes in two of their first five seasons, joining Brett Favre, Jeff Garcia, Andrew Luck, Dan Marino and Kurt Warner.

• Carr needs 27 touchdown passes to become the fourth player in NFL history to throw for at least 130 scores through his first five seasons, joining Dan Marino (168), Peyton Manning (138) and Andrew Luck (132).

• Carr needs 20 touchdown passes to become the fourth player in NFL history, joining Peyton Manning, Dan Marino and Russell Wilson, to throw for at least 20 scores in each of their first five seasons.

• Carr needs 4,007 passing yards to become the fourth quarterback in NFL history to toss for 19,000 passing yards through a player's first five years, joining Peyton Manning, Dan Marino and Andrew Luck.

• Carr needs 2,697 passing yards to become the fifth player in NFL history to start their career with five straight 3,000-yard seasons, joining Andy Dalton, Peyton Manning, Cam Newton and Russell Wilson.

• Carr needs 343 completions to pass Peyton Manning for the most completions in NFL history through a player's first five seasons.

• Carr needs 321 completions to join Matthew Stafford and Ryan Tannehill as the only quarterbacks in NFL history to throw for 350 completions in three of their first five seasons.

• Carr needs 271 completions to become the second quarterback in NFL history to begin their career with five consecutive seasons with at least 300 completions, joining Peyton Manning (1998-2002).

• WR Amari Cooper, Oakland, need 991 yards to become the 18th player in NFL history to record three 1,000-yard seasons through his first four years.

• Cooper needs 70 receptions to become the 18th player in NFL history to record three 70-reception seasons through his first four years.

• Cooper needs 69 receptions and 991 receiving yards to become the eighth player in NFL history to begin their career with 70 receptions and 1,000 yards receiving in three of their first four campaigns.

• Cooper needs 1,088 yards receiving to become the sixth player in NFL history to record 4,000 career yards receiving before the age of 25, joining Randy Moss, Mike Evans, Larry Fitzgerald, DeAndre Hopkins and Odell Beckham Jr.

• RB Marshawn Lynch, Oakland, needs eight touchdowns to become the 15th rusher in NFL history with 90 career scores.

• Lynch needs nine rushing touchdowns to become the 15th player in NFL history to record double-digit rushing scores in five different seasons (he would become only the second active player to do so, joining Adrian Peterson (eight)).

• Lynch needs 956 yards rushing to become the 22nd player in NFL history with at least 11,000 career rushing yards.

• Lynch needs 959 yards rushing to become just the 22nd player in NFL history with at least seven 1,000-yard seasons.

• WR Jordy Nelson needs 977 yards to become the eighth active player to register four career 1,000-yard seasons.

• Nelson needs 129 yards to become the 11th active player to register 8,000 career receiving yards.

• Nelson needs 10 receiving touchdowns to become the sixth active player to register double-digit receiving scores in four different seasons.

• Nelson needs one receiving touchdown to become the sixth active player (and 44th all time) to haul in 70 career receiving scores.

• Nelson needs 47 receptions to become the ninth active player to record 600 career receptions.

A WIN WOULD...

...give the Raiders a 1-1 record on the season and a 1-0 start in the division. Last year Oakland went 2-4 against the AFC West, finishing in third place.

...mark a 12-game advantage over Denver in the all-time regular season series with the Raiders currently leading the rivalry, 62-51-2.

...mark the most wins the Raiders have against any other club in the NFL. Oakland enters Sundays contest with 62 wins in the all-time series against both the Broncos and the Chargers.

...give the Silver and Black a 1-0 start on the road. The Raiders currently rank fourth in the NFL since 1963 with a .485 winning percentage in games away from home.

...give the Raiders their third consecutive opening road victory, after defeating Tennessee in 2017 and New Orleans in 2017.

HEAD COACHING MATCHUP

JON GRUDEN

Jon Gruden returns as head coach of the Oakland Raiders, welcoming back one of the most respected and successful coaches in the storied history of the Silver and Black. Gruden, who was first introduced as head coach of the Raiders 20 years ago, served four seasons with the Raiders from 1998-2001.

Gruden has compiled a 95-82 (.540) regular season mark as a head coach with the Raiders and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (2002-08), and a 5-4 record (.556) in postseason contests, which includes a victory in Super Bowl XXXVII.

The youngest head coach in the NFL at age 34 upon his initial hire by Raiders Owner Al Davis in 1998, Gruden posted a 38-26 record (.594) and led the Silver and Black to back-to-back AFC West titles in 2000 and 2001. He guided the Raiders to an AFC Championship Game appearance in 2000, a campaign in which the Raiders set a franchise record with 479 points and led the NFL in rushing (154.4 avg.).

In all, Gruden-led teams have claimed five division championships and have recorded six seasons with nine-or-more wins. As a head coach, he has seen 21 different players combine for 39 Pro Bowl selections. In addition, Rich Gannon was tabbed for the Maxwell Club's Bert Bell Award as the league's Most Valuable Player in 2000 and four players who Gruden tutored as a head coach have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame: Jerry Rice (2010), Warren Sapp (2013), Derrick Brooks (2014) and Tim Brown (2015).

Gruden spent seven seasons as head coach of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, finishing his time there as the winningest coach in franchise history by compiling a 57-55 (.509) regular-season record, while leading the Buccaneers to three division titles and a 3-2 mark in the postseason, including a Super Bowl XXXVII victory, becoming the youngest head coach in NFL history to win a Super Bowl.

Prior to beginning his initial tenure in Oakland, Gruden was a seven-year NFL assistant, helping his teams qualify for the playoffs five times. Gruden spent three seasons (1995-97) as offensive coordinator for the Philadelphia Eagles. He was the NFL's youngest offensive coordinator at age 31.

Before joining Philadelphia, Gruden worked for three years at Green Bay from 1992-94. He served as an offensive assistant to head coach Mike Holmgren in 1992 and spent the 1993 and 1994 seasons as Green Bay's wide receivers coach. Gruden worked as offensive assistant to head coach George Seifert with the San Francisco 49ers in 1990.

Born August 17, 1963 in Sandusky, Ohio, Gruden attended South Bend (Ind.) Clay High School and was a three-year letterman at quarterback at the University of Dayton, graduating in 1985 with a degree in communications. Gruden and his wife, Cindy, a former University of Tennessee cheerleader, have three sons, Deuce, who is in his first season as an assistant strength and conditioning coach for the Silver and Black, Michael and Jayson.

VANCE JOSEPH

Vance Joseph enters his second season with the Denver Broncos in 2018 after being named the 16th head coach in franchise history on Jan. 11, 2017.

Joseph oversaw a transitional year for the Broncos in 2017 as the team featured a trio of new coordinators, started three different quarterbacks and suited up 66 different players—the most in franchise history during a non-strike season. Despite missing the post-season, Denver started and finished strong with a 3-1 record to begin the year and a 2-2 mark in its final four games.

During his NFL career, Joseph has coached defensively for Miami (2016), Cincinnati (2014-15), Houston (2011-13) and San Francisco (2005-10). His teams have advanced to the postseason in five of the last six years while capturing three division titles during that span.

As defensive coordinator for Miami in 2016, Joseph oversaw a defense that played a key role in the Dolphins returning to the playoffs for the first time in eight seasons. Despite having to use 13 different starting lineups due to injury, Joseph's defense ranked fourth in the NFL on third down (36.2%) while forcing the sixth-most negative plays (107) in the league.

The Dolphins won nine of their final 11 regular-season games in 2016 with Joseph's defense accounting for the fourth-most takeaways (21) in the NFL during that stretch. The Dolphins' two Pro Bowl selections came on the defensive side with defensive linemen Ndamukong Suh and Cameron Wake.

Joseph spent 2014-15 as Cincinnati's defensive backs coach under Head Coach Marvin Lewis, guiding a unit that contributed to a league-best 41 interceptions during that span. The Bengals were the only team to post more interceptions than touchdowns allowed (36) during that two-year stretch and held opposing quarterbacks to the lowest combined passer rating (77.4) in the NFL.

During Houston's 2013 campaign, the third-ranked pass defense that yielded less than 200 yards per game (195.2) for the second time in team history. Joseph also assumed defensive play-calling duties for the last three games of the season when Defensive Coordinator Wade Phillips was named interim head coach. In 2012, Houston led the NFL with 118 passes defended and set a team record with three interception returns for touchdowns en route to a franchise-record 12 regular-season wins and a second consecutive division title. The Texans earned the first division title and postseason berth in franchise history in 2011.

Joseph's first NFL coaching experience came with San Francisco, where he was hired as assistant defensive backs coach in 2005 before serving as defensive backs coach from 2006-10.

He began his coaching career at CU under Head Coach Gary Barnett in December 1999 as a graduate assistant. He served in that capacity through the 2001 season that culminated with the Buffs' Big 12 Championship and Fiesta Bowl appearance.

The Marrero, La., native was born on Sept. 20, 1972, Joseph and his wife, Holly, have a daughter, Nataly, and a son, Stone.

Raider Debuts

- CB Leon Hall
 - o On third-and-8 with 9:11 left in the third quarter, Hall broke up a pass from Jared Goff in the Raiders endzone. Hall's pass defended force the Rams to settle for a field goal that tied the game at 13-13.
 - o Hall finished the contest tied for second on the team with six stops (four solo).
- S Marcus Gilchrist
 - o In his Raiders debut, Gilchrist tied for second on the team with six tackles (four solo) and added a pass defense.
- K Mike Nugent
 - o Nugent split the uprights for the first time as a Raider early in the second quarter, culminating a 12-play, 69-yard drive lasting 7:22 with a 24-yard field goal.
 - o Nugent's second field goal of the night came with 10 seconds remaining in the second quarter, a 48-yarder that capped off an 11-play, 45-yard drive, to give the Raiders a 13-10 lead at the half.
 - o Nugent finished the night perfect with two field goals and one PAT.

Individual Highlights

- QB Derek Carr
 - o Carr led the offense down the field on the opening drive of the game, orchestrating a 7-play, 75-yard drive that was capped by Marshawn Lynch's 10-yard touchdown run.
 - o Carr connected with Jared Cook nine times for 180 yards, including a game-long 45-yard reception to set up the Raiders only touchdown of the night.
 - o Carr finished the game completing 29-of-40 passes for 303 yards, marking his 15th game recording 300-or-more passing yards.
- TE Jared Cook
 - o Cook provided a spark on the Raiders opening offensive drive, recording a game-long 45-yard reception. Cook's catch, which marked his longest since Week 11 of the 2016 season, put the Raiders on the Ram's 20-yard line to help set up the first touchdown of the game.
 - o Cook finished the first half with 113 receiving yards, tied for the second most in the first half in his career.
 - o Cook set the franchise record for most receiving yards in a game by a Raiders tight end, finishing the night with 180 yards on nine catches (20.0 avg.). Cook's 180 receiving yards also marks a single game career best.
 - o Tonight's contest marked Cook's seventh career 100-yard game and his third with the Raiders, the most such contests with any team.
- DE Bruce Irvin
 - o On third-and-8, Irvin recorded a strip-sack of Jared Goff for a loss of eight yards. The sack forced the Rams to attempt a 46-yard field goal, which missed right.
 - o Irvin now leads the league with 11 forced fumbles since 2016, breaking his previous tie with Jacksonville's Yannick Ngakoue.
- RB Marshawn Lynch
 - o Lynch opened the Raiders scoring in 2018, pushing the pile on a 10-yard run on the opening drive of the game. Lynch carried the ball four times for 19 yards and his touchdown was the culmination of a 7-play, 75-yard drive lasting 4:37.
 - o Lynch continues to lead the league with 59 rushing touchdowns since the beginning of the 2011 season.
 - o Lynch finished the night 11 carries for 41 yards (3.7 avg.) with one touchdown.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 58th year of professional football competition, including the last 47 as a member of the National Football League.

In six memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s and 2010s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three world championships of professional football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 22 playoff seasons, finished 35 seasons at .500 or better and played in 41 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three world championships of professional football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

With four postseason victories, the Raiders were the first of the AFC West teams to win multiple postseason contests in the new millennium by six years.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During the memorable 57 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 462 league games, tied 11 and lost 412.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

More than 20 of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced six Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 70 Pro Bowl players have earned 195 Pro Bowl selections representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-77-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 38-27-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 16-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s and now the 2010s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

REGGIE MCKENZIE

THE GENERAL MANAGER

Reggie McKenzie, a former draft pick by Raiders Owner Al Davis as a player, enters his 32nd season in the National Football League and his seventh as General Manager of the Silver and Black. McKenzie was named to the position by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 10, 2012, becoming the first General Manager of the franchise since Al Davis was hired as Head Coach and General Manager in 1963. Owner Mark Davis rewarded McKenzie with a four-year contract extension in July 2016, and McKenzie went on to be named the Executive of the Year by the Pro Football Writers of America and Sporting News in 2016.

McKenzie has overseen significant changes in the organization's scouting, player personnel and football operations departments, while bringing refined football acumen to the Silver and Black. Adhering to a strategy of building a competitive roster through the draft while making strategic acquisitions via free agency and trades, McKenzie finished his sixth season at the helm having already earned plaudits from some of the most respected voices in football.

UNDRAFTED GEMS

Every preseason, hundreds of undrafted free agents vie for a spot on their team's 53-man roster. Reggie McKenzie has brought in numerous players that were not drafted, developing them into significant contributors for the Silver and Black.

- On RB Jalen Richard's first NFL carry, he rushed 75 yards for a touchdown. With his 75-yard touchdown, Richard became just the fourth player ever to record a 75-or-more-yard rushing touchdown in his NFL debut, joining Oran Pape (1930), Alan Ameche (1955) and Ottis Anderson (1979). He has totaled five scores and combined for 1,295 scrimmage yards in 33 career games.

- WR Seth Roberts has totaled four game-winning touchdowns in his career (Week 2 of 2015 vs. Baltimore, Week 12 of 2015 at Tennessee and Week 1 of 2016 at New Orleans). The Raiders are 10-0 in games when he records a touchdown reception.

Notable Raiders who entered the NFL as undrafted FAs:

Player	School	Year	Team
LB Nicholas Morrow	Greenville	2017	Oakland
T Donald Penn	Utah State	2006	Minnesota
RB Jalen Richard	Southern Mississippi	2016	Oakland
WR Seth Roberts	West Alabama	2014	Oakland

Since McKenzie took over as GM in 2012, the Raiders have had 11 UDFAs on the initial 53-man roster. Here is the yearly breakdown:

Year	UDFAs on Initial 53
2012	2
2013	2
2015	2
2016	4
2017	1

LATE-ROUND STEALS

"It definitely helps. When you play on Sunday and a guy goes down and that player that you have running on special teams now can play a position and you're not afraid to put him in, it gives you depth. They may not be the starter. These young guys, you really have to give them a couple of years to figure out what they really are. Some of them, you have to throw them in because of where you are as a team. Let's all hope that not only the guys at the top of the draft but the guys at the bottom, if we can get a couple of those guys to give us some production within the first three years, that would be great." - Raiders GM Reggie McKenzie on getting production from lower-level draft picks

GM Reggie McKenzie's philosophy of building his roster through the draft includes standout players from the top of the board like QB Derek Carr and WR Amari Cooper. But a good drafting team will make all of their picks count, and McKenzie has done that of late. Here is a look at some players currently on the roster that McKenzie has drafted in the fourth round or later and have provided solid production:

McKenzie's Picks
Player	Year	Round
DT Justin Ellis^	2014	4
G/C Jon Feliciano^	2015	4
RB DeAndre Washington^	2016	5
LB Marquel Lee^	2017	5

^ - has started multiple games over career

THAT'S WHAT THEY SAID

"My approach is old school. I'm a roll up the sleeves type of guy that wakes up early in the morning like iron workers, and comes prepared to get the job done." - Reggie McKenzie, introductory press conference, Jan. 10, 2012

"He has the courage of his convictions about players that Ron Wolf had, including blunt assessments of their talent. But Reggie also has the patience of Ted Thompson; he adheres to the draft-and-develop model of team-building. The latter means trusting scouts to constantly fill a pipeline of young talent, empowering coaches to play and develop young players, and identifying core players to secure contractually for the future." - Andrew Brandt, Monday Morning Quarterback (MMQB), March 12, 2014

"He is an exceptional evaluator of talent. Just has a great skill for it, especially for guys already in the NFL who might be flying under the radar. He was my right-hand man for all those years, a big reason why the Packers were good all those years." - Ron Wolf, April 24, 2012

"You can see this foundation starting to build there with the things Reggie [McKenzie] has done. He goes and hires Jack Del Rio, and I think that's a pretty good situation. They have a ton of cap space and an opportunity to build. All of a sudden you look at the AFC West, and they're kind of on the rise and you're very familiar with the AFC West so you know. It's very competitive." - Andy Reid, March 24, 2015

GRUDEN QUICK HITS

San Francisco	12/20/70	12/7/14	7-6
Seattle	11/6/77	11/2/14	28-24

- The Raiders have faced the Chargers 116 times, the most of any opponent. They have faced the Broncos and Chiefs each 115 times, as they only played each team once during the strike-shortened 1982 season.

OAKLAND Vs. NFC WEST

Oakland will face off against the NFC West this season, marking the first time since 2014 that they have played the division. Last season, the NFC West saw three teams finish the season at .500 or better in the Los Angeles Rams (11-5), Seattle Seahawks (9-7) and Arizona Cardinals (8-8). The Raiders hold a 48-39 combined all-time record against Arizona, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

SILVER AND BLACK IN PRIME TIME

- The Raiders will play four primetime games in 2018: the season opener on Monday Night Football against the Los Angeles Rams on Sept. 10 - a game the Rams won by a score of 33-13, a Thursday Night Football contest against the Bay Area-rival San Francisco 49ers on Nov. 1, a Sunday Night Football matchup with the Pittsburgh Steelers on Dec. 9 and a second Monday Night Football game on Christmas Eve against the Denver Broncos on Dec. 24. The Thursday Night Football contest against the 49ers will be televised on FOX with a simulcast on NFL Network.
- The Raiders will appear on Sunday Night Football one time in 2018, marking the second consecutive season that Oakland has been scheduled for a Sunday night. Last year, the Raiders appeared on Sunday Night Football three times, facing the Washington Redskins in Week 3, the Miami Dolphins in Week 9 and the Dallas Cowboys in Week 15. The Raiders went 1-2 in 2017 on Sunday Night Football, defeating the Dolphins, 27-24, in Miami. In 2013, the Raiders participated in the latest NFL game ever played when they hosted the San Diego Chargers on Oct. 6. Due to an Oakland Athletics' postseason game at Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, the Raiders moved their game to an 8:35 p.m. PT start, marking the latest start time in NFL history.
- The Raiders, 19-20 all-time in Sunday night contests since 1978, are 1-0 against the Steelers on Sunday night, who they will play on Dec. 9 in Oakland.
- This will mark the Raiders' 69th and 70th contest on Monday Night Football and third consecutive year after playing their first-ever Monday Night Football game on Christmas Day last season and their first Monday Night Football contest outside of the United States in 2016 in Mexico City, Mexico. The Raiders have split their last two Monday Night Football appearances, defeating the Texans, 27-20, in 2016 and falling to the Eagles, 10-19, last year. It will mark the first MNF matchup against the Broncos since 2013 and first MNF game against the Rams since 1985.
- Oakland holds a 38-29-1 all-time record in Monday Night Football contests. The Silver and Black last played on Monday Night Football on Sept. 10 at home against the Los Angeles Rams.
- On Thursdays, the Raiders are 10-10 all-time, including a 3-4 record on Thanksgiving Days. The contest against the 49ers will mark just the second overall primetime matchup between the two teams and first since 1994, when they met on Monday Night Football.

TEAM NOTES

MILES AND MILES

Factoring in three trips to the Eastern Time Zone and two more to the Central Time Zone, the Raiders will travel more miles in the NFL this upcoming season than any other club. Oakland is scheduled to log 31,732 miles in 2018, nearly 1,000 more than their 30,889 miles traveled in 2017. As a division, the AFC West will also lead the NFL in terms of most miles traveled (94,857). In all, the Raiders have four round-trips that will exceed 4,000 miles, with their trip to London surpassing 10,000 miles alone. Below is a look at the five teams who travel the most in 2018, with the Silver and Black being the only team to cross the 30,000-mile barrier.

2018 TRAVELING BREAKDOWN
Team	2018 Traveling Miles
Oakland Raiders	31,732
Seattle Seahawks	29,068
Los Angeles Chargers	29,055
Jacksonville Jaguars	20,278
Philadelphia Eagles	20,262

Fun Fact: Three teams (L.A. Chargers, Oakland Raiders and Seattle Seahawks) will "travel around the world" at least once in 2018 (approximately 25,000 miles).

WINNING WAYS

The Raiders are among the elite teams in NFL history, ranking among the top teams from 1963-2017 in winning percentage of teams playing at least 500 games. The Raiders are tied seventh with a .544 percentage since Al Davis was named head coach and general manager in 1963.

RAIDERS

BIG PLAYS

Since 2016, the offense has had a knack for the ability to create chunk-yard plays against their opponents. The Raiders are tied for eighth across the NFL since the start of 2016's campaign in explosive plays, or plays that are of 20-plus yards, and lead the NFL with 31 touchdowns going for at least 20 yards during that same time frame. The Raiders also tied for first in 2017 with 17 touchdowns of at least 20 yards. Take a look at the chart below for more:

JUST COOK'N

With 107 yards on six receptions in the team's 2017 Week 7 thriller against the Kansas City Chiefs, TE Jared Cook became the first tight end in NFL history to record at least one 100-yard receiving game with four different teams. Cook surpassed 30 receptions in Week 8 for the seventh consecutive season, and set a career high when he finished with 54 in 2017, 11th-most among all tight ends. His 688 receiving yards ranked seventh among tight ends and led the team. In Week 1 of 2018, Cook led all receivers with 180 yards, marking a new franchise record by a tight end.

PLAYING THE FIELD

In 2017, the Raiders have routinely put themselves in a position to score points, as they ranked fifth in the NFL in average starting field position following kickoffs. On the flip side, the Raiders were also extremely efficient in limiting their opponents' starting position, as they finished the year ranking third in the league in average opponents' field position. All three phases are counted on to establish good field position, and the Raiders' special teams played its part for the entirety of the 2017 campaign.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

On May 7, LB Derrick Johnson signed to the Raiders and made the trip to the dark side in Silver and Black. Johnson, an All-Pro in 2011 and four-time Pro Bowler (2011-13, 15) left the Kansas City Chiefs as the club's all-time leader in tackles (1,262), and stands as the NFL's active leader in the respective category.

Last season, Johnson was graded as the sixth ranked (grade of 86.0) off-ball linebacker in coverage last season, per Pro Football Focus. Johnson tallied five stops in his debut as a Raider.

MOVE THE CHAINS

In Week 7 of 2017 against the Kansas City Chiefs at home on Thursday Night Football, the Raiders recorded 32 first downs during the contest, the most since also recording 32 on Nov. 19, 1995 against the Dallas Cowboys.

TEAM NOTES

KEEP YOUR CARR CLEAN

The offensive line performed at an elite level for the second season in a row in 2017, after posting a league-best, and the fewest by the club since the 1970 AFL-NFL Merger, 18 sacks in the 2016 campaign. With 24 sacks surrendered in 2017, the unit tied for the third-fewest sacks given up league wide.

Since QB Derek Carr entered the league in 2014, the team's 103 sacks allowed are tied for the fewest in the NFL with the Baltimore Ravens. In addition, the Raiders' 75 sacks surrendered since 2015 are the uncontested fewest in the NFL.

2017 NFL SACKS ALLOWED

Rank	Team	Sacks

ONE OR NONE

With four clean sheets in 2017, the Raiders' offensive line ranked near the top. The Silver and Black posted nine games with one or zero sacks allowed, tying for the third-most games in the NFL.

2017 LEADERS IN GAMES WITH ZERO SACKS

Rank	Team	Games
1.	Minnesota Vikings	5
2t.	Oakland Raiders	4
2t.	Los Angeles Chargers	4

2t.	New York Giants	4

Weeks With Zero Sacks: Week 2 (New York Jets), Week 7 (Kansas City Chiefs), Week 8 (Buffalo Bills) and again in Week 15 (Dallas Cowboys).

After only surrendering just one sack against the Los Angeles Rams in Week 1, the club's 44 sacks given up since 2016 are the fewest in the NFL.

PAVING THE WAY

Although the team did not average higher than their sixth-ranked rushing offense (120.1 avg.) from 2016, the team rushed for more 100-yard games in 2017, totaling 10 such games, including a season-best 180 in Week 2 against the Jets.

The Raiders' stable of backs finished the season ranked 13th in yards per rush in 2017, averaging 4.20 yards. The team paved the way for RB Marshawn Lynch's seventh career season rushing for at least 800 yards on the ground, including two 100-yard performances in Week 13 (101 yards on 17 attempts - 5.9 avg.) and Week 17 (101 yards on 19 attempts - 5.3 avg.). Since returning to action in Week 9, Lynch averaged 78.1 yards rushing per game (625 total), a mark that tied for third in the NFL during that span. Additionally, Lynch became just the second active running back to record 80 scores on the ground, joining Adrian Peterson. The men up front also paved the way for his 13th multi-rushing touchdown contest (Week 9) of his career. Teams with Lynch are 13-0 when he scores twice on the ground.

Returning second-year RBs Jalen Richard and DeAndre Washington compiled a combined 428 yards on the ground and added 453 more through the air, while adding five total scores on the season.

CARR'S SHOP

In 2017, the Raiders' offensive line once again was dominant in pass protection, allowing QB Derek Carr and company an abundance of time to survey the field and make big plays. The line helped the offense tie for first in 20-plus-yard touchdowns (17) on the season. Shown below is where the Raiders rank in sacks surrendered per attempt in 2017.

2017 NFL SACKS SURRENDERED (SACKS/ATT.)

10.	Miami	5.5%

Anchoring the line in 2017 was C Rodney Hudson, who has surrendered just one sack since Week 1 of 2015 (1,706 pass snaps), per PFF.

DAMAGE CONTROL

Not only did the Raiders surrender the third-fewest sacks in 2017, Carr and company also managed to minimize yards lost on all sacks. The Raiders lost just 130 yards total on sacks in 2017, and have totaled 216 in the last two seasons combined, the only team to remain under 300 total lost yards during the same time frame.

DEREK CARR

CARR AT THE HELM

QB Derek Carr was named the Raiders' starting QB heading into the 2014 season, becoming the first rookie QB in team history to start in Week 1. Carr has grown into one of the league's elite QBs, as he became the third QB in NFL history to complete at least 300 passes in each of his first four seasons. In 2016, he became the first QB in franchise history to throw for 3,000 yards in each of his first three seasons and led seven fourth-quarter comebacks en route to winning the NFL's Castrol Edge Clutch Performer of the Year award.

THROWING FOR SIX

Carr has enjoyed one of the most prolific starts to a career in NFL history, especially when it comes to finding the end zone. His 53 TDs rank second most by any NFL player through his first two seasons, trailing only Dan Marino (68). And although his 2016 season was cut short due to injury, he continued his stellar start to his career by throwing 28 more TDs in his third season. His 103 TDs are also 10th-most in the NFL since 2014.

4.	Derek Carr (Oak.)	2014-16	103
5.	Andrew Luck (Ind.)	2012-15	101

Carr crossed the 100-touchdown barrier just 60 games into his NFL career, the quickest to reach 100 passing scores in Raiders history. By doing so in his first four seasons, Carr joined Dan Marino, Peyton Manning, Andrew Luck and Russell Wilson as the only quarterbacks in NFL history to toss 100 touchdowns through their first four seasons in the league.

DEREK CARR

2015 TDs

Carr threw a career-high 32 TD passes in 2015, averaging two TDs per start. Carr finished the year just two TDs shy of the Raiders franchise record, currently held by Daryle Lamonica (34 in 1969). Here is where Carr ranked in TD passes in 2015:

----- 2015 TOUCHDOWN PASSES -----

HIGHLY RATED

Over the last two seasons, Carr has emerged as one of the league's leading passers. His passer rating improved by 14.5 points from his rookie season in 2015 and by 5.6 more in 2016, helping him post the eighth- and third-best ratings in franchise history. Here is how Carr's 2015 and 2016 season rank among the best passing campaigns in Raiders team history:

A CARR IN ITS OWN CLASS

In his 53rd career game in Week 7 against the Kansas City Chiefs, a three-touchdown, 417-yard performance pushed Carr passed 90 career touchdowns (92). He became the first quarterback in NFL history to cross 90 touchdown passes while throwing less than 40 interceptions. Listed below are other players who have reached 90 touchdowns through 53 games.

TD-INT RATIO

Among Carr's great talents as a quarterback is his ability to protect the ball and minimize turnovers. Through the first four years of his career, there have been few to ever do it better than Carr when it comes to touchdown-to-interception ratio.

Carr's 2.19 TD-INT ratio (103/47) is fourth-best in NFL history among QBs with 1,500-or-more attempts. Shown below is the elite company Carr has joined with those numbers:

Rank	Player	Team	Ratio
1.	Aaron Rodgers	Green Bay	4.05
2.	Tom Brady	New England	3.05
3.	Russell Wilson	Seattle	2.83
4.	Derek Carr	Oakland	2.19

14 THREE-TD GAMES

Through his first 53 games, Carr put up some of the most prolific numbers in NFL history, as he ranks tied for third with the most three-touchdown performances to start his career. See Below:

Rank	Player	Team	3-TD Games
1.	Dan Marino	Dolphins	22

BRUCE IRVIN

BRUCE IRVIN

In 2016, the Raiders signed LB Bruce Irvin, the dynamic defender who played his first four years with the Seattle Seahawks after being drafted 15th overall by the club in the first round of the 2012 NFL Draft. His tenure as a Seahawk included two NFC Championships and a victory in Super Bowl XLVIII. Since his arrival with the Silver and Black, Irvin has started all 33 games for the club. His career statistics are shown below.

WHEN IT MATTERS MOST

A staple of his game, Irvin has made the most in the latter portion of the season and particularly in the month leading up to postseason play. Since 2016, Irvin is tied for fourth in the NFL with 6.5 sacks in the month of December alone.

ROOKIE LEADER

Bursting on the scene in 2012, Irvin wasted no time taking the league by storm, as he racked up a Seahawks-record eight sacks in his first year with the club. Not only did he set a franchise-rookie record, but he led the NFL that year among all rookies as well.

SACK FACTS

Irvin has been a playmaker for the club since signing with the team, and his stats prove it. Since 2016, there are only two players in the NFL who have registered at least 15 sacks and 10 forced fumbles.

*Irvin's six forced fumbles in 2016 led the team and tied for the NFL lead.

Irvin enjoyed a career year in 2017, posting a career-best 64 tackles (47 solo), tying a career high with eight sacks and adding three passes defended. Adding four more forced fumbles to his resume, Irvin became the only player to wear the Silver and Black to register at least four fumbles in two seasons (dating back to 2000). Additionally, his 5.5 sacks since Week 12 were sixth-most in the league, also good for most on the team during that span.

SACK MAN

It's simple - When DE Bruce Irvin gets to the quarterback (half-sack), the odds of winning go up. The Raiders are 9-5 when Irvin gets home, and for his career, team's are 24-9 when Irvin finds his way home in the backfield.

MAN OF THE YEAR

In 2017 Irvin was named the team's nominee for the Walter Payton Man of the Year, representing the best of the NFL's commitment to philanthropy and community impact. The Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award recognizes a player for his excellence on and off the field.

MARSHAWN LYNCH

BEAST MODE

After an injury-riddled 2015 campaign, the Beast went into hibernation for the entirety of the 2016 season. In 2017, a whiff of home brought the beast, RB Marshawn Lynch, out of retirement and placed him into the Silver and Black uniform, the team he grew up watching as an Oakland native. The Oakland Technical High School and Cal Berkley grad joined the Raiders as a five-time Pro Bowler. Lynch is also a two-time member of the Associated press' All-Pro Teams (First Team in 2012 and Second Team in 2014). He returns to the squad in 2018 having compiled 891 yards on the ground and seven TDs.

Lynch became just the 31st running back in NFL history to rush for 10,000 yards with 891 yards in 2017, his seventh season with at least 800 yards on the ground. Lynch currently owns 33 career 100-yard games, ranking fourth among all active players, while also tying for the second-most multi-td games among active rushers with 13 such games. Below is a chart of Beast Mode's career:

LIKE HE NEVER LEFT

With 59 rushing touchdowns since the beginning of the 2011 season, RB Marshawn Lynch ranks first among all rushers in the NFL. That includes his 2015 season in which he only took the field seven times due to an abdominal injury, and being retired for the duration of the 2016 season.

----- NFL RUSHING LEADERS SINCE 2011 -----

Player	Touchdowns
Marshawn Lynch	59

From 2011 to 2014, only four running backs totaled double-digit rushing scores in multiple seasons, with Lynch being one of them. Of those four, only Lynch recorded 10+ scores in all four consecutive seasons, amassing an incredible 48 touchdowns in that span, 14 more than the next closest running back. Lynch led the NFL in rushing scores from 2013-14 with 12 and 13 touchdowns.

YARDS AFTER CONTACT

Since 2013, few running backs have rushed for yards after contact like Lynch has, as he's gained an average of 2.64 additional yards per rush after being hit. Listed below are the top 7 in the aforementioned category, with Lynch leading the pack.

Player	Avg. YAC

ACTIVE LEADERS

With 10,044 yards on the ground through 143 games in his career, Lynch currently ranks fourth among all active rushers in the NFL.

----- CAREER RUSHING RANKS -----

Rank	Player	Rushing Yards
1.	Frank Gore	14,087
2.	Adrian Peterson	12,372
3.	LeSean McCoy	10,114
4.	Marshawn Lynch	10,044

Additionally, Lynch leads all NFL rushers in missed tackles since 2013, per Pro Football Focus. Lynch has forced an incredible 295 missed tackles since 2013. With 245 entering 2017, he had 66 more than any other running back in the NFL during that span, all without Lynch playing a single down during the 2016 campaign.

NOT DONE YET

Lynch powered through 2017, ending the year with a 101-yard effort to cross the 10,000-yard barrier for his career. He also became just the second active player, joining Adrian Peterson, to register 80 career rushing scores.

Additional Notes:

- Lynch needs eight TDs to become the 15th rusher in NFL history with 90 career scores.
- Lynch needs 9 rushing TDs to become the 15th player in NFL history to record double-digit rushing scores in five different seasons (he would become only the second active player to do so, joining Adrian Peterson (eight)).

AMARI COOPER

FIRST-ROUNDER

WR Amari Cooper finished 2017 looking to build upon his prolific career start. He was tabbed as the Raiders' first-round draft pick in the 2015 NFL Draft and the fourth-overall selection. He was the highest wide receiver taken in the draft and the first receiver taken by Oakland in the first round since 2009.

After enjoying one of the most dominant careers a wide receiver has ever had at the college level, Cooper saw that success translate to the NFL, as he became the first Raiders rookie to ever reach 1,000 receiving yards. Cooper also holds the franchise records for receptions and 100-yard games (five) by a rookie. Cooper continued his success in 2016, becoming just the third player in NFL history to post at least 70 receptions and 1,000 yards in each of his first two seasons. In 2017, Cooper battled through injuries and played in 14 games, tallying 680 yards and a career-high seven touchdown receptions.

HISTORICAL COOP

Coop's 2,903 yards receiving before age 24 rank ninth in NFL history.

Only 15 players in NFL history have more touchdown receptions than Cooper's 19 before the age of 24.

Cooper became the first WR in NFL history to surpass 500 yards receiving in the first six games in each of his first two seasons.

Cooper posted five 100-yard outings as a rookie, a franchise rookie record and tied with Keenan Allen (2013) for the most by any player 21-years-old or younger. His nine through his first two seasons are tied for eighth most in NFL history.

His five 100-yard games are tied for the second most by a rookie since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger (leader: Odell Beckham Jr., seven in 2014).

Cooper became the first NFL rookie since 1961 (Mike Ditka) with three 100-yard receiving games in his team's first six games.

Cooper joined DeSean Jackson (2008) as the only NFL rookies in the past 30 years with two 100-yard receiving games in their team's first three games.

In Week 3 at Cleveland in 2015 (8 rec., 134 yds), Cooper became the first Raiders rookie with 100 receiving yards in back-to-back games since James Jett (Nov. 21-28, 1993).

COOPER 200

In Week 7 against the Chiefs, Cooper put together what was arguably the best game of his career, compiling 210 yards (second-most in club history) on 11 receptions (19.1 avg.) and added two touchdown receptions. His performance will go down in history as one of the greatest Thursday performances in NFL history, ranking third all-time in receiving yards in a Thursday contest.

AGE IS ONLY A NUMBER

Cooper was 21 years old for the duration of his rookie season, making him one of the most electric receivers his age to play in the NFL. He holds the all-time record for receptions by a wide receiver 21 or younger. Listed below are more of his recent accomplishments before his 24th birthday.

- Only Randy Moss (27), Bob Hayes (19), Odell Beckham (12) and Brandin Cooks (12) have more 30+ yard TD receptions than Cooper (11) before age 24.
- Cooper's 72 receptions are the most ever by a wide receiver 21 or younger. Only RB Reggie Bush (88) and TE Aaron Hernandez (74) posted more.
- Cooper's 1,070 receiving yards are the second most by any NFL player 21 or younger, trailing Randy Moss' 1,313 yards in 1998.
- Cooper's six receiving touchdowns are tied for the eighth most by an NFL player 21-or-younger (record: Randy Moss, 17, 1998).
- Among WRs in NFL history before age 23, Cooper ranks second with 155 receptions and fourth with 2,223 yards.

NOT COOPED UP

In 2016, Cooper led the NFL with five touchdown receptions of at least 30 yards, while setting a franchise record with 15 receptions of at least 25 yards. In 2017, he added two 30-plus-yard touchdown receptions in Week 7, and consecutive such scores in Week 16 and 17 with a 63-yarder against the Eagles and a career-long 87-yarder against the Chargers.

In 2016, Cooper achieved multiple milestones:

- Set the franchise mark for receptions in a player's first two seasons
- Set the franchise mark for receiving yards in a player's first two seasons
- Eclipsed 2,000 receiving yards for his career, making him the seventh player in NFL history to record 2,000 yards before turning 23 years old
- Became the eighth player in NFL history to start his career with back-to-back 70-catch seasons
- Became the seventh player since 1970 to begin his career with back-to-back 1,000-yard receiving seasons
- Became the first Raider since Jerry Rice in 2001-02 to post consecutive seasons with at least 1,000 receiving yards
- Became the third player in NFL history with 70 receptions and 1,000 receiving yards in each of his first two seasons

JORDY NELSON

NELSON JOINS OAKLAND

After 10 seasons with the Green Bay Packers, Pro Bowl WR Jordy Nelson joins the Raiders in 2018 after signing with the team in March. Nelson's resume details one of the NFL's most accomplished active wide receivers, as he currently ranks 11th in receptions, ninth in receiving yards and tied for third in touchdowns among active players.

Career Highlights

- Is one of only two players in Packers history to register three straight seasons with 85-plus receptions.
- Is the only active player to record three seasons with 13-plus TD receptions.
- Has posted 1,250-plus receiving yards and 13-plus TD catches in the same season three times in his career, the fourth most in NFL history behind only Jerry Rice (six), Randy Moss (five) and Terrell Owens (four).
- Set a single-season Packers record with 1,519 receiving yards in 2014, as he was selected to his first career Pro Bowl and earned second-team All-Pro honors from the Associated Press.
- Also led the team with a career-high 98 receptions and 13 receiving TDs in 2014, becoming just the eighth player in NFL history to record 95-plus receptions, 1,500-plus receiving yards and 13-plus receiving TDs in the same season.
- Ranks first in Packers postseason history with 54 career receptions.
- Became just the fourth receiver in Super Bowl history to register nine-plus receptions for at least 140 yards and a TD when he hauled in nine passes for 140 yards and a score vs. Pittsburgh in Super Bowl XLV.

Awards and Honors

- 2014 Pro Bowl
- 2014 Associated Press All-Pro Second Team
- 2015 Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year

All-Time Packers Franchise Rankings

Nelson leaves the Packers as one of the franchise's all-time receiving leaders. Here is a look at where he ranks in...

- Receptions - 550 (Third)
- Receiving Yards - 7,848 (Fifth)
- Receiving Touchdowns - 69 (Second)

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

BAY AREA NEWS GROUP

Raiders stink up the joint in second half of 33-13 loss to Rams

By Matt Schneidman

September 11, 2018

OAKLAND — A deadly combination of skunk afterglow and sewage fumes filtered throughout one side of the Coliseum well after everyone but media and stadium staff had left.

People covered their noses and mouths, zig-zagging through the bowels of the stadium so their dinner stayed down. One security guard joked he had eaten a rotten burrito, but the stench was no joke. This was serious. It stunk. Real bad.

But even as a horrid smell soured the night of everyone still at the Coliseum, it was hardly the most foul part of the night.

That honor, of course, belonged to the Raiders, specifically their second-half atrocity in a season-opening 33-13 defeat to the Rams. The hosts held a 13-10 lead at halftime against one of the Super Bowl favorites, but a 23-0 second half advantage to the visitors began Jon Gruden's second era in Oakland with a thud.

"They were impressive. They had balance today, they could run it and throw it," Gruden said. "They proved their stuff tonight in the second half. Offensively, we just couldn't get anything going. We turned the ball over, we failed to pick up a blitz one time. It was very disappointing."

The game couldn't have started much better for the Raiders, who rode a 45-yard Derek Carr-to-Jared Cook connection to an eventual 10-yard touchdown run from the ever-churning legs of Marshawn Lynch. The Raiders' top back was stonewalled around the 3-yard line, but a hefty push from his offensive linemen earned six points and the game's first score. Carr completed 12 of his first 13 passes for 145 efficient yards, zipping balls not to star wideout Amari Cooper but Cook, Lynch, Doug Martin, Jordy Nelson, Derek Carrier and Jalen Richard.

Everyone got the love, and Gruden's offense that remained a mystery until Monday night seemed to click against a ferocious Rams defense that features two Pro Bowl defensive tackles and two more Pro Bowl cornerbacks.

But one Carr underthrow changed the entire game. A touchdown would've given the Raiders a 17-7 lead with under five minutes remaining in the first half. Instead, Carr short-armed a streaking Cook, and Rams safety John Johnson plucked the ball from mid-air in the end zone. The Rams' ensuing drive ended in a Greg Zuerlein field goal that tied the game at 10. After Carr's first of three interceptions on the night, the Rams outscored the Raiders, 26-3.

"Our execution as an offense – whether it's bad throws, miscommunication, all that kind of stuff, stuff that usually happens in a first game, but you don't really pay the consequence for them all the time," Carr said. "But we did today. And that's my fault. I have to do a better job for my team and I will."

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

The Raiders even carried a three-point edge into halftime against the juggernaut Rams, but that advantage didn't last long. Zuerlein hit a 28-yard chip shot less than six minutes into the third, and the Raiders never led again. In fact, they never scored again, while Los Angeles piled on 20 more points.

Carr was left flummoxed, throwing his arms to his side and palms to the sky in confusion when talking with Gruden. The quarterback barked at Richard after an incompletion in which the two were clearly on different pages. Carr lofted his second interception of the night into the hands of Rams linebacker Cory Littleton, with no Raiders in the same zip code. Boos rained down from the stands well before the game ended, and fans near the Raiders bench peppered Gruden and Carr with jeers as their once-promising night snowballed out of control.

"It's not time for that anymore," Gruden said when asked to reminisce about his return. "It is about getting this football team better. It wasn't good enough tonight."

To put one final exclamation point on the night, cornerback Marcus Peters returned Carr's third pick of the night all the way to the house. As he neared the goal line, he turned his back to the end zone, leaped in the air, stuck his left arm up while grasping the ball and grabbed his, uh, pelvic area with his right hand. Remember when a certain Marshawn Lynch, Peters' close friend and fellow Oakland native, did the same with the Seahawks?

"I did the Beastmode," Peters said after the game. "That's what I did."

It was the best thing anybody associated with the town of Oakland did all night, a fitting end to the most foul of performances any team could put forth in a single half.

Fans escorted the Raiders off the field with boos. Players, however, remained optimistic postgame. So too did Gruden. Carr said this loss feels different than any he's ever had, mainly because his head coach remained so positive.

As Gruden left the locker room, his final words fittingly summed up the night.

Derek Carr's woeful debut raises serious questions for Jon Gruden, the Raiders
Dressed in full suit and still wearing his coaching visor, Gruden headed for the door.

"How do I get out of here," he joked, searching for any dose of humor in an otherwise dreadful night, the Raiders forced to see any sort of light as it is, after all, just one game.

Raiders drop season opener to Rams 33-13

By Matt Kawahara

September 11, 2018

The Raiders' first drive Monday night carried all the promise and potential of their first season in the second coming of head coach Jon Gruden: a seven-play, 75-yard march culminating in a touchdown.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

The rest of the night illustrated how results in Gruden's return might not be so immediate.

Never again as sharp as on that opening series, the Raiders fell 33-13 to the Los Angeles Rams in a humbling performance on national TV with Gruden coaching his first regular-season game in nearly a decade.

Gruden afterward called the game "a tale of two halves" and brushed off a question about his return to the Coliseum.

"It's not time for that anymore," Gruden said. "It's about getting this football team better. And it wasn't good enough tonight."

The Raiders were outscored 23-0 after halftime and saw quarterback Derek Carr throw two of his three interceptions in the fourth quarter, salting away what had been a competitive game amid a charged atmosphere at the Coliseum.

It was still a 10-point game when Carr rolled right and floated a pass back across the field that Rams linebacker Cory Littleton intercepted easily with 8:08 left. Carr said he'd meant to throw the ball away but second-guessed the decision and "tried to pull it back."

"It's one of those that you sit there like, 'That is one of the dumbest plays you can ever have,'" Carr said.

The Rams drove down for a field goal. Four plays later, Carr was intercepted again, this time by cornerback Marcus Peters, who returned it 50 yards for a touchdown. Carr targeted Jared Cook and said he "threw it out in front of him, and (Peters) just ended up getting a gift, honestly."

Carr completed 20 of 24 passes for 199 yards in the first half but finished 29 of 40 for 303 yards with no touchdowns and the three interceptions. He was also picked off by safety John Johnson III on a first-half fade route to Cook in the end zone.

"I thought he did some good things tonight," Gruden said of Carr. "Obviously there were some critical errors that we have to eliminate ... And one of them wasn't his fault, he got fooled by one of our own receivers. And we've got to do a better job of coaching. It goes on me."

The Raiders led 13-10 at halftime and out-gained the Rams, 254-to-98, in the first half. But they gained just 17 yards in a pivotal third quarter.

"We just executed better in the first half, to be honest," Carr said. "They tried to put different looks for the run game, different looks for the pass game, but nothing we didn't prepare for."

"Some of the things that we did are going to be overlooked by the bad stuff. And that sucks. That's tough, because we did a lot of good things."

Gruden's first drive calling plays couldn't have gone much more smoothly. The Raiders marched 75 yards on seven plays, culminating in a stubborn 10-yard touchdown run by Marshawn Lynch, who was stood up at the 3-yard line but pushed into the end zone by teammates.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Carr connected with Cook for a 45-yard gain over the middle on the drive, part of a huge night for the tight end, who finished with nine catches for 180 yards.

3 NOTABLES

TE Jared Cook: The only bright spot in the offense, he finished with a career-best 180 yards on a career-high-tying nine receptions.

RB Marshawn Lynch: "Beast Mode" had the joint jumping on the first drive — which he ended by bulling his way into the end zone from 10 yards out. But he finished with only 11 carries for 41 yards.

K Mike Nugent: Never a good sign when your kicker outscores the rest of the offense, but Nugent did with field goals of 24 and 48 yards and an extra point.

"We knew going into the game (the Rams) were going to play a lot of man," Cook said. "So we knew we had matchups all the way across the board."

While Cook and running back Jalen Richard both had nine catches, though, top receivers Amari Cooper and Jordy Nelson were largely missing from the passing game. Nelson had three catches for 23 yards. Cooper was targeted three times and had one catch for nine yards.

"They really wanted to take both wideouts out," Carr said. "Not only did they have Peters and (Aqib) Talib on those guys, but most of the time they were doubling also with the safety. Kind of a little box deal, keep them in a little frame. And that's why Jared had a big game."

Lynch finished with 41 yards on 11 carries as the Raiders totaled 95 yards on the ground. Rams running back Todd Gurley carried 20 times for 108 yards, gaining steam as the night went on.

"(The Rams) had balance today," Gruden said. "They could run it and throw it. They proved their stuff, I think, tonight in the second half. And offensively we just couldn't get anything going. We turned the ball over. We failed to pick up the blitz one time. Very disappointing."

The offense also committed seven penalties in the first half - part of 10 overall on the Raiders that cost them 145 yards. That included two long defensive pass interference flags drawn by speedy Rams receiver Brandin Cooks against corners Rashaan Melvin and Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie, the latter setting up a Greg Zuerlein field goal that tied the game 10-10.

The Raiders defense held the Rams to seven first downs in the first half and an 0-for-3 mark on third downs. It was a promising start for a unit playing its first game under defensive coordinator Paul Guenther and since the trade of edge rusher Khalil Mack to Chicago.

But the second half spoiled the Raiders' debut under Gruden, putting a damper on what started as an electric night at the Coliseum and striking a sour opening note for the season.

"I think we moved the ball very good at times," Gruden said. "They're a good defensive team, they've added a lot of pieces. And they're going to be a challenging opponent for a lot of offenses. We expect a lot better from ourselves. And it goes on me."

Three quick takeaways from Raiders' 33-13 loss to Rams

By Scott Bair

September 11, 2018

OAKLAND – The Raiders didn't run a standard NFL dress rehearsal Friday during their third preseason game.

Fans hoping to see offensive stars shouldn't have blinked. Head coach Jon Gruden pulled quarterback Derek Carr, Amari Cooper and Jordy Nelson, and running back Marshawn Lynch after one series against the Green Bay Packers. The rest of the regular offense didn't last much longer.

Select defenders played through the first half, but not everybody. The Green Bay Packers pulled punches, sitting quarterback Aaron Rodgers among a host of others.

The Raiders won 13-6 at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, by the way. Not that it matters in the slightest.

Gruden isn't giving much away this preseason, surely leaving some tricks up his sleeve for when games actually count.

There isn't much tape of Carr working Gruden's offense, which is very likely by design.

Regulars will play even less, most not at all, next week in the preseason finale against Seattle.

The Raiders are largely healthy and Gruden wants to keep it that way, showing how little these exhibitions mean in the grand scheme. That's especially true for a Raiders team with precious few roster spots that are truly open. Most guys have roles already defined, leaving little to decide in game action.

Gruden gave more extensive work to those hurt this preseason, including Gareon Conley and Marcus Gilchrist. Marquel Lee, Rashaan Melvin, Mario Edwards Jr. and Erik Harris also got extended snaps.

With little to assess regarding the Raiders offense or defense as a whole, there were a few takeaways from this one.

Let's list them...

-- The Raiders have a backup quarterback problem. Connor Cook and EJ Manuel were awful for a second straight week, and it's entirely possible Derek Carr's reserve isn't on the roster right now.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Cook struggled with accuracy. Again. EJ Manuel struggled with ball security. Again.

-- Gruden and co. will have some tough decisions on the defensive line, because they might have too many good ones. Young pass rushers showed well yet again, with Fadol Brown, Arden Key, Shilique Calhoun and Maurice Hurst standing out in a positive way. As a note, Bruce Irvin was not at Friday's game due to an excused absence.

The Raiders generated heat anyway, a positive sign for a team that has struggled with sacks in recent seasons.

-- It sure seems like the cornerback lineup isn't set just yet, with Daryl Worley, Rashaan Melvin and Gareon Conley rotating in different pairs on the outside.

-- The Raiders offensive line needs some work on the flanks, with right tackle Donald Penn having a rough start in his first start as a right tackle Kolton Miller wasn't much better on the left, making it even smarter to get Carr out of there quickly.

Rams roll Raiders 33-13 to spoil Jon Gruden's debut

By Michael Gehlken

September 11, 2018

OAKLAND, Calif. — A smattered chant for "Defense!" began at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum.

Slowly, it built in volume.

What was thought to be a potential shootout Monday evening — at least, with the high-powered Los Angeles Rams in town, it seemed it'd need to be for the Raiders to keep pace — had proved otherwise. Tight end Jared Cook had 7 more yards receiving, 113, than Rams quarterback Jared Goff did passing with less than two minutes remaining in the third quarter.

The crowd wanted more defense.

The unit could only do so much.

Nine days after trading its best player, Oakland contained the highest-scoring road offense from last season to 13 points and 187 total yards with most of the game elapsed. But the Rams were contained for only so long, rattling off three consecutive scoring drives while the Raiders' offense fell silent in a 33-13 loss.

Jon Gruden, Derek Carr speak on the Raiders' loss to the Rams

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Oakland Raiders head coach Jon Gruden and quarterback Derek Carr reflect on the team's week one loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

"There was a lot of great effort on that field tonight by our team," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said. "I thank our fans. In a lot of ways, I'm proud of our football team. It was a tale of two halves. Obviously, we did not take care of the ball. That was a critical part of this football game."

Quarterback Derek Carr threw three interceptions in the season-opening defeat.

Two transpired in the fourth quarter. The final one, courtesy of cornerback and Oakland native Marcus Peters, was returned for a 50-yard touchdown. The Raiders hadn't trailed all game and were tied 13-13 before the chant sounded. Beginning with an 8-yard Goff touchdown to wide receiver Cooper Kupp, the Raiders surrendered 20 points to cap the night.

By the end, Cook largely was reduced to being the Raiders' offense.

He caught nine of 12 passes for a career-high 180 yards. That set a franchise record for most receiving yards by a tight end in a single game. The performance surpassed the 173 previously established by Todd Christensen on Nov. 20, 1986 against the San Diego Chargers. Cook now owns the positional yardage record for the Tennessee Titans, Rams and Raiders organizations.

Through no fault of the Raiders' defense, that wasn't enough.

It largely did its job.

"I knew that when we got (defensive coordinator Paul) Guenther it was going to be good," Carr said. "Our defense had hands on multiple passes. ... I love our defense. I love the way they play. I love the scheme that Coach Guenther brings because it's difficult on quarterbacks. I'm glad that he's on our team."

Los Angeles did not convert a third down until the third quarter, having opened 0-for-3 in the often-critical category. On a third down in the second quarter, defensive end Bruce Irvin strip-sacked Goff to lengthen a field goal try that Rams kicker Greg Zuerlein would miss. Cornerbacks Rashaan Melvin and Leon Hall were among those to contest passes.

Despite some miscues, the evening only could be viewed a successful first chapter to life without Khalil Mack, whom the Raiders traded to the Chicago Bears following an extensive contractual holdout.

But the offense was stuck on neutral.

It committed seven of the team's 12 first-half penalties. Wide receiver Amari Cooper was quiet, managing one catch on three targets for 9 yards. No Raiders wide receiver, for that matter, reached 25 yards. The team was shut out entirely in the second half.

"Defense! Defense!"

On this night, the offense failed to answer the call.

Gruden's return to Raiders turns into dud after fast start

By Josh Dubow

September 11, 2018

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jon Gruden's return to the Oakland Raiders' sideline couldn't have gotten off to a better start, with Marshawn Lynch powering his way into the end zone for a touchdown.

The rest of the night turned out to be rather forgettable for the Raiders and showed that Oakland has a long way to go to get back to the level Gruden had the team playing at when his first stint as coach ended more than 16 years ago.

All that positive energy generated when Gruden was hired back in January turned to a chorus of boos by the end of a 33-13 loss to the Los Angeles Rams on Monday.

"It was great," Gruden said of being back on the sideline at the Oakland Coliseum. "It's not time for that anymore. It's about getting this football team better. It wasn't good enough tonight."

The Raiders (0-1) were good enough for one half as Derek Carr led the team to that opening-drive touchdown and two more field goals that gave Oakland a 13-10 lead at halftime.

But the Rams (1-0) then scored all 23 points in the second half, with Marcus Peters returning Carr's third interception of the game 50 yards for a game-sealing touchdown that sent the fans who pined for Gruden's return for years heading to the exits.

"We are a better team than what was put out there on the field," tight end Jared Cook said. "This one game does not define us."

The Raiders took the opening kick and drove 75 yards for a touchdown on a 10-yard run by Lynch. The Rams had Lynch stood up at the 3, but he powered his way into the end zone with help from a push by his offensive linemen.

Oakland managed just six points the rest of the way against a defense fortified by the offseason additions of former All-Pros Peters, Aqib Talib and Ndamukong Suh.

Carr threw an interception in the end zone to John Johnson in the second quarter, another in the fourth when he tried to pull back a pass at the last minute only to have the ball slip out and float right to linebacker Cory Littleton, and then the third on a miscommunication with Cook.

"He did some good things tonight and obviously there are some critical errors he has to eliminate," Gruden said. "He knows that. We all know that."

Here are some other takeaways from the game:

FIND A RHYTHM

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

The Rams started slowly after resting their entire starting offense throughout the preseason, as well as several key defensive players. But things turned in the second half, starting with quarterback Jared Goff leading the team to a tying field goal on the opening drive. Then they took the lead for good on a 58-yard, four-play drive that featured two passes downfield to another offseason addition, Brandin Cooks, and an 8-yard TD to Cooper Kupp.

"Any first game of the year, you're dealing with some things," Goff said. "You look at other teams around the league and it's no different for us."

COOK'S NIGHT

Cook was one of the only Raiders to have a big night. He caught nine passes for 180 yards , breaking Todd Christensen's franchise record for receiving yards by a tight end. Christensen had 173 vs. the Chargers on Nov. 20, 1986.

OH, SNAP

The Raiders got thrown for a loop early when long snapper Andrew DePaola injured his knee on a punt in the first quarter and didn't return. Tight end Lee Smith filled in and provided accurate snaps on two field goals. He had a high snap on a punt, but Johnny Townsend leaped and brought it down with no issues. It was a far cry from the 2012 season opener when Jon Condo got hurt for Oakland and Travis Goethel came in and botched three snaps in a loss to the Chargers.

"It was stressful, I can't even lie to you guys," Smith said. "I'm just glad they all got back there."

FEED THE BEAST

Rams RB Todd Gurley had just five touches in the first half. He carried four times for 19 yards and took a short flip from Goff 19 yards for a score on his only reception. Gurley had 18 touches in the second half, carrying 16 times for 89 yards and catching two passes for 20 yards.

"You just try to get in that rhythm, get the ball, get consecutive run plays in a row," he said. "We were able to do that in the second half."

In Oakland, Jon Gruden Is Ready to Grind

By S.L. Price

February 19, 2018

This story appears in the February 26 issue of Sports Illustrated. To subscribe, click here.

Jon Gruden has this idea for a story. It's not his story—not yet—though it's clear he'd like it to be. And maybe that shouldn't come as a surprise. He did spend plenty of time in the dark, alone, over the last decade, and that would set any man, even one who tries to “stay in two feet of water, don't get too deep or philosophical,” to thinking. Then there's the fact that at 54 you hear a lot about guys your age getting hit by cancer or heart attack, here one day and—boom!—gone the next. So, yeah, Gruden formulated this theory about purpose and fraudulence and death. He jotted down some notes and even a title, The Football Gods.

“I thought I could write a cool Broadway play,” he says. “I really do want to write this book. But I'd rather it be a movie.”

The base conceit is that in the end, your passion leads to your heaven. Live for classical music? Die and you'll be up there conducting the New York Philharmonic. Legendary football coaches like Lombardi and Halas? They arrived, started talking ball and never stopped. And now they monitor the coaches down on earth. Gruden is “convinced” this part is real. All those icons are up there, judging.

“If you're faking it, the football gods will get you,” he says. “They reward the guys who work hard. That's why Tom Brady is where he is. If you're focused and determined and legit, good things will happen. I believe that.”

Now, to Gruden-bashers this idea couldn't be more hokey, but you can't overstate the power of context. He is saying this not from the Monday Night Football booth, or while tutoring some wide-eyed QB on ESPN. No, he's sitting now in his old/new Raiders office in Alameda, 27 days after breaking a nine-year exile in broadcasting to become the highest-paid coach in NFL history. It's Super Bowl Sunday, but he's been here since before sunrise, “grinding” and “layin' bricks,” with no one else in sight.

The glass-walled warren is hushed and dark when he first walks me in, a perfect setting for the horror movie Child's Play, with its psychodoll/Gruden doppelgänger, Chucky. There's a massive monitor mounted over his desk, paused on a practice script, and another gargantuscreen over his right shoulder playing America's annual football-and-marketing orgasm, with its endless blabber of pregame, in-game and postgame talking heads.

“Al Davis wanted these walls to be glass,” he says, “so he could see that you were working. He always wore this cologne—a lot of it—and you could smell him before he got to you. ‘He's coming this way!’ I'm still expecting to smell it sometimes.”

Which makes sense. It's not just that Gruden is back in the same facility he left on Feb. 18, 2002, when Davis, the Raiders' notoriously hands-on owner, up and shipped the coach to Tampa Bay for two first-and two second-round draft choices. It's also that Davis's Just win, baby persona—brass-knuckle fierce and darker than 2 a.m.—was so unrelenting that even now, his 2011 death at age 82 can seem like a mere technicality. For many, Al Davis remains the Raiders' heart and soul.

"Did you know," Gruden asks, one eyebrow cocked northward, "that they've kept his office exactly as it was?"

It's true. Mark Davis, Al's only son, didn't dare move into the owner's suite when he took over the family business. (Asked where his office stands in relation to his dad's, Mark says, "He's across the hall.") While Super Bowl Sunday rattles on in the background, Gruden pads over to the empty desks of Al's two longtime "angels," his assistants Karen (Fudgie) Otten and Kristi Bailey; now dedicated to team alumni, they're due back at their stations next week. Here, some 20 years ago, Gruden would come and wait to be summoned, wondering what he was in for. Often, the angels winced, mouthing, "Good luuuck."

After a cursory tour of Al's office—rack of leather jackets in the corner; certificates from Syracuse and the Sugar Ray Robinson Youth Foundation; jersey from Lance Alworth, Al's first signing coup—Gruden dips into Davis's film room, past four idle TV screens, to a fully marked-up whiteboard backed against a wall. "Here it is," he says.

Davis, named the AFL's Coach of the Year in 1963, was consumed by X's and O's to the end, and the fact that his last whiteboard, the repository of his scribbled plays and plans, remains untouched from 2011 gives Gruden the biggest thrill. "Lookit," he says, and then reads aloud from Davis's scribbles: "Power. Big people. Pass pro. Defense. Play calling. Offensive line. Not signed: 21. 24. 26. 31. That's the last time he was here."

Then Gruden's out, down the hall toward Al's private bathroom, stopping at a bookshelf jammed with Davis's massive video collection of games, plays, ceremonies. Gruden had epic arguments with the old man, and they never made peace after a final dispute over roster control and salary led Davis to deal him. But, really, who would better appreciate the stiletto irony of Gruden's coming back that first season in Tampa Bay to crush the Raiders in Super Bowl XXXVII? Looking back, Gruden loves the man for his sheer territoriality, that hilariously profane will.

"His wife, Carol, had all these videos at their house, and she'd ask, 'Do you want any?' " Gruden recalls, laughing. "I'd say, 'I would love to have some of those.' And Al says"—here the coach affects a menacing, low-and-slow, Brooklyn-tinged Al Davis inflection—" 'Carol . . . don't you . . . give him . . . a f--- thing!' " "

It's at that moment I realize: If Gruden ever writes The Football Gods, Al Davis will be one of them. Hell, maybe football heaven ends up a version of this very office. Because, at least in Gruden's mind, this return to the game isn't all about proving critics wrong, or justifying that 10-year, $100 million contract, or giving Oakland a playoff run before its planned move to Las Vegas in 2020. Years ago Gruden called the Raiders, got the name of Davis's cologne (Antaeus, by Chanel), mispronounced it at a New York department store, bought a bottle and, to his wife's dismay, doused himself with "four scoops," à la Al. There's a bottle in his Hampton Inn hotel room right now. Gruden, for gods' sake, wants to channel the old pirate.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"A lot of coaches are miserable," Gruden says. "These guys have been fired, hired, fired again; they've got houses here, got to move over there. They're distraught. I grew up [associating] every team with a coach. Pittsburgh Steelers, I'd think Chuck Noll. Seahawks, Chuck Knox. Now? Who's coaching up in Jacksonville? In Miami? I don't know how many coaches they've had in Tampa since they fired me! I don't like it.

"So, you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to come back and put it all on me. Everybody's going to want to kick my ass, step on me. They can't wait to talk about what a dumbass I am, and how s----- I was to start with. How 'overrated' I am. I hear it all. I know it's going to happen. And I'm like: Come on! Just like Al Davis. When I was here, he said, 'The great thing you've got going, Jon, is they're never going to rip you. They're going to rip me.' "

Gruden's mouth tightens into a slash, one eye popping wider than the other, and there it is for the first time today: full-on Chucky, to finish the thought. "And Al goes, 'I love it, personally.' "

He settles back into his office chair, his face reverting to the one his mother loves. The volume drops. "I've kind of taken to that, man."

The idea was to sit with the Raiders' new coach and watch Super Bowl LIII. It seemed cool, if obvious: ESPN's highest-paid broadcaster (at a reported $6.5 million per), nine years the face of Monday Night Football, eight years the host of the quirky-compelling QB Camp show, calls one last game before diving back in. Setting this up turned out far easier than expected, though, because of one minor-key bizarre fact: Jon Gruden answers his phone.

Do you instantly pick up when a strange number flashes across your cell? Does your spouse or teenage kid—seriously?—answer each time you call? The most mundane exchange, these days, demands some texty preamble. And if your target carries any kind of heft, like a coach or a television personality, the road to any kind of chat involves email proposals, agents, media-relations officials, a clutch of on-the-ground minders.

Someone flipped me a number for Gruden, last tried in 2012. It was a Saturday, 72 hours before his hiring would be officially announced at a press conference in Oakland: NFL World was ablaze with rumors and stories about his return. I figured I'd leave a never-to-be-heard message on a phantom voicemail, to be stranded in limbo forever. . . .

"Hel-lo," Gruden replied.

I had written an SI cover story about him 16 years earlier, and he vaguely remembered the photo but—rightly—had no memory of me. Still, he said, he might be able to make some time.

The Jan. 9 presser, attended by just about every living Raiders notable, felt less like a coaching change than the Dauphin's return. Mark Davis, 62, confirmed that he'd spent six years chasing his man and called it "the biggest day of my life"; Gruden spoke of how he viewed his first-go-round in Oakland as "unfinished business." Nobody seemed bothered that 11 months after the announcement of a four-year contract extension for the now-deposed Jack Del Rio, the franchise would be on the hook for $20 million.

Though it was officially affirmed that Oakland had complied with the Rooney Rule by first interviewing USC offensive coordinator Tee Martin and Raiders assistant Bobby Johnson, it was clear that both minority candidates were called in for form's sake. Asked later if, lacking Gruden, he would've fired Del

Rio, Davis says: “I don’t see how I could have. To spend $20 million, and on top of that hire Tee Martin? No. What I would’ve done is probably brought in a president—somebody with X’s and O’s ability—to work with Jack, and I would’ve gotten some more competent coordinators.”

Still, even the biggest cynic had to admit Davis had pulled off a p.r. coup. For years, anytime a big NFL job opened, Gruden’s name was floated. And when he seriously mulled a previous Oakland offer, in 2014, ESPN jacked up his salary with a seven-year extension. Considering that Gruden and Del Rio share the same agent, Bob LaMonte, Davis says that landing his man was a tougher lift, even, than getting NFL owners, in 2017, to approve the Raiders’ move. “This ain’t just some cakewalk, like hiring a teacher,” he says. “This is Jon f-----’ Gruden.”

An f-bomb middle name is hardly the most eloquent way to convey charisma, but that quote isn’t meant for the high rollers. Davis is speaking here to the gritty, embittered core of Raider Nation. “The team has one—perhaps more—year left in the market,” says former Raiders CEO Amy Trask, now an NFL analyst for CBS. “Their magnificent fans have supported them through thick and thin; this is going to excite them. And the team has taken on a breathtaking amount of debt associated with the Las Vegas deal [a reported $650 million loan] and, therefore, has a tremendous amount of extremely expensive product to sell in that new stadium—sponsorships, suites, club seats. Hiring Jon is going to help them do that. It’s a shrewd business move.”

In the weeks after the announcement, the issue of Gruden’s appeal—his seeming ability to excite the base and engage casual fans—became oddly entwined for me with his phone. His answering felt more a matter of reflex than cultivation; I never showed up as more than a strange area code on his caller ID. The second time I rang, he was meeting with his coaching staff. The third, he was sitting down to dinner with family. I kept wondering, Why pick up at all? Would Bill Belichick or Nick Saban even bother?

A few days after LaMonte called to relay that his client would be going home to Florida to “say goodbye,” and then would meet me in Oakland, I rang Gruden again. “Just sitting here alone in the office in Alameda,” he said. “Grindin’.”

What of Florida and bidding the state farewell?

“Already did that,” he rasped. “I’m like Chevy Chase in Vacation, man, looking at the Grand Canyon. Yep. I see it. How much longer do I have to be here? Goodbye.”

I proposed watching the Super Bowl together, but he said not to expect anything special. In previous years he would do his ESPN pregame show on-site, then jet home during the game. For someone who’s set off by the tiniest clank of a spoon on a cereal bowl, the jostling drunks and traffic and hype is a special kind of torture. “I don’t have a team in it,” he said. “It’s not like I really care about what happens.”

Yes and no. When I arrive a week later, Gruden has little interest in the broadcast, though he plans to mine the game tape later for any stealable material. He declares the Eagles the better team, gives the edge to Patriots quarterback Tom Brady and predicts a New England win. With Philadelphia up 15–6 in the first half, he blurts out something prescient: “What will Philadelphia prove, if they keep this lead? They have a fourth-quarter pass rush to close you out, unlike Atlanta did last year.”

But he’s more engaged in talking about why, after so many flirtations with Mark Davis (and at least one other serious bid by an NFL team), he came back now. ESPN was a sweet gig, being home for his three boys' high school years while still punching in at his Fired Football Coaches Association. Daily, he'd go to his custom setup in a Tampa office complex—film library and shower downstairs, gym and bed upstairs—and for years he loved it, spending days and nights surrounded by hundreds of miles of tape. Coaches from all over the league, college and even Pop Warner, would come to brainstorm. Quarterbacks shut out of their team facilities by the collective bargaining agreement would come to chalk-talk and throw.

Year after year, at least 15 times, Mark Davis would show up, too, and try to pull Gruden away. But he was having fun without the pain that losing brings. "I was near the fire, but I didn't get burned," Gruden says. "In some ways I was coaching."

"As the years went on," says his wife, Cindy, "I got tired of living in my brain, 30 places that he'd consider. I just decided that he was not going back ever. Then it became so long that I really didn't think he would."

But the house kept getting emptier. The oldest Gruden, 24-year-old Deuce, spent the last two years with his uncle, Jay, as a Redskins strength and conditioning coach; Michael, 21, is a junior at Tennessee; Jayson, 17, has just one more year of high school. When Jon was inducted into the Bucs' ring of honor in December, surrounded on the field again by 70 of his old players, it stirred him to tears. The following week, the Raiders were in Philly for a Monday game, and the night before, Christmas Eve, Davis hosted Jon and Cindy in his hotel suite for dinner. Gruden had shot up similar flares before, but this time when he said, "I'm going to get back in, if I can get a job," Davis sensed he meant it.

"Leaving dinner that night I felt very, very, very strongly it was going to happen," says Davis. (Not Cindy: "Not until he signed on the dotted line. I never pretend to know what my husband is thinking. As soon as you do, he'll change his mind.")

This time was different. "I got tired of sitting in a dark room, watching tape by myself," Gruden says. "I took rumba-dancing classes; that didn't last—I wasn't any good. Bought a boat; I never used it. Live on a golf course; I never play. I'd go to the FFCA early, and next thing I know it's 10:30 at night. I'm thinking, S---. I'm wasting my time. I got to go compete."

He glances up from his desk. Deuce, a 5' 6" wedge of muscle, is standing in the doorway. Gruden blurts out the fact that his eldest won a powerlifting gold at last year's world championships and introduces him as the Raiders' newest strength-and-conditioning staffer. Deuce chats, politely, then gets to the point: "They got food near here?" Gruden says no and reaches for his car keys, but his son has wheeled and gone. "He's like his mom, a tiny little lady," Gruden says. "But he's a beast."

Having a son in the office is a bonus, no doubt, but Gruden's guilt over neglecting his family has come and gone. The doubt planted by mentor Bobb McKittrick, a 49ers line coach who died lamenting their monomaniacal obsession with the game, has eased. "The one thing I will regret," Gruden says, "is that [McKittrick and I] really didn't take to fishing, we didn't like traveling abroad. We just liked one thing. But I don't think I'm going to be regretting my decision. Life is flying by. Here I'm 54 years old, just like that. Football is going to be the only consistent theme in my life. The feelings inside of me that I can't get enough of"—and here Gruden squints, rubbing his fingertips together—"are nervousness, excitement, a little fear, a little pressure. People go to casinos to get that. But I wake up every morning now and I go, God! Whoo!"

Jon Gruden is an awful driver. Sure, he can handle a straight shot on an empty highway, with Zeppelin or BTO cranking, on the two-minute early-morning hop from the Hampton Inn to the Raiders' facility. But given that the team just dropped this gleaming Mercedes S 550 on him four days ago, and that there's all kinds of new signage and roads and a helluva lot more traffic since he worked here 16 years ago, the 20-minute trip to Ricky's Sports Theatre and Grill in San Leandro figures to be a bit of an adventure.

First there's the matter of his side-view mirrors, which stay folded flush no matter how much Gruden shoves and bangs with his left hand, or feels about the car's instrument panel with his right, all while drifting down 98th Avenue toward I-880 South as the GPS lady voice cuts in every 10 seconds to dictate the next turn. "Where am I going here, you think?" he asks more than once. "You think this is right?"

Finally Gruden hits the correct button, and the mirrors unfold like wings. But—what with his utter lack of direction, the cars whizzing angrily past, the rehash of yesterday's Super Bowl ("I got caught up in it," he says of the second half, "and it came down to fourth-quarter pass rush"), one missed turn, his describing the morning's offensive meeting and breaking down two still-delicious plays he called in the 2002 NFC championship game—it's a wonder we arrive unscathed. "That's why I have a driver most of the time," he says.

Gruden has only been to Ricky's, a semi-biker hangout and a hub of Raider lunacy since the AFL days, a few times, but he's still got a reserved parking space, and when we arrive, owners Ricky and Tina Ricardo (who switched allegiances to Tampa when Gruden was traded) are waiting. Tina screams, drops her head through the open passenger window and plants a kiss on Gruden's cheek. "We believe, we believe, we believe!" she gushes. "You're here. . . ."

It's 4 p.m. on this hangover Monday, so the place may be brimming with Silver and Black memorabilia, but it's also nearly empty. We walk in with Gruden's new defensive coordinator, Paul Guenther, a former colleague of Jay's who wisely took his own car. Immediately some former Raiders game-day employees point out how things have changed at Oakland Coliseum since Gruden last coached there, how the starters no longer run out from the south end zone's infamous "black hole" of costumed crazies, how NFL and team marketing forces keep trying to tame Al Davis's Oakland beast.

"They don't come out of the black hole anymore?" Gruden asks. "I'm going to have to look into that."

We sit at a high-top, order burgers and beer. Word has already spread, and over the next hour a steady trickle of fans hustle in. Gruden's modus operandi is to greet anyone warily edging his way with a hearty "What is going on? What's your name?" Then up steps Ahmed Fasail, with his two kids, all kitted out in Raiders gear. His nine-year-old daughter hands Gruden a fistful of dandelions and asks, "How come you left the Raiders?"

"I got traded!" Gruden replies.

Ahmed: "I told her, 'He didn't leave. They left him.' "

"How would you like to come home one day and hear you got traded to Florida?" Gruden asks. "You wouldn't like that, would ya?"

Ahmed's eyes widen. "Wow, you got the same voice as on TV!" he says. "The same voice!"

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

They talk a few more minutes and Gruden insists on buying the family lunch. I wander over to speak to Guenther, but after a while, over the bar din, I overhear two words: “Marshawn Lynch.” The Raiders’ flinty running back has been a hot topic ever since Gruden was hired, with speculation centering around their ability to coexist. In the coming days, in fact, one report will state that Lynch blew off a meeting with his new coach, and another will feature Lynch’s agent’s denial. The entire matter remains touchy because, under the current CBA, coach and player aren’t allowed contact until April.

But now I look over, and Gruden is telling superfan Ahmed, in an open bar, “I met Marshawn today at the facility. He and Josh Johnson [a Texans backup and Lynch’s cousin] came in.” And when Ahmed asks Gruden the question of the moment—What’s your impression?—Gruden says, “I like him.”

Ahmed, to his eternal credit, isn’t having it.

“I like him, too,” he presses, “but what do you think?”

“We’ve got to get him in, ah, better and stronger, through the season. . . .”

“He didn’t get in shape until Week 10,” Ahmed says of last year.

“We’re not going to have that,” Gruden says. “No. I said to him: ‘I need Marshawn Lynch. I don’t need this part-time Lynch. I need full-time Lynch.’”

“We need the real deal,” Gruden says. “If you’re going to put those letters on the back of your jersey, man, you’ve got to back it up, Marshawn—right? We don’t need another back, we need a feature back.”

Just as I’m trying to conjure Bill Walsh or Chip Kelly—or any other coach, past or present, who has run his football operation like some CIA sleeper cell—casually spilling such news, Tina stops by to say that during Gruden’s payback Super Bowl win with Tampa, she designed a play for the coach to use against the Raiders. “South right, Nickel 41, Kill 3, 74 Wasp,” sent via text to Gruden’s mother, she says. “Took me three days. I drew it up, and he used it.”

Gruden takes this in, nodding, and whether or not the play was already in his game script, he’s happy to give her credit. The Buccaneers, leading 13–3 at the time, faced first-and-goal on the Raiders’ five-yard line. “It was going to be a draw to Michael Pittman if they were playing zone,” he says. “But we killed it, we changed the play—Kill, kill, kill! Seventy-four wasp! . . . Keenan McCardell [on a fly stop route], touchdown. He came off the field going, ‘Bzzz!’ ”

Everybody roars, and I’m beginning to see it as all of a piece: the phone etiquette, the Lynch revelation, the always-glowing assessments of players on Monday Night Football. Gruden has never been pure rah-rah; he rode Tampa quarterback Chris Simms and tackle Kenyatta Walker mercilessly. (“Some people think I was an a-----, and I probably was at times.”) But he has always been open to players, owners, fans—anyone who matches his energy, who needs football as much as he does—and he will talk to anybody, anytime, on the off chance of finding a kindred spark. “Do you like the game plan? The play call?” he used to implore players back in the day. And when they nodded, “just [like] a bobblehead,” it killed him. Oakland quarterback Rich Gannon knew enough to trot off shouting, “I love it, man! Love it! Love!!!”

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

But a motor can only rev so hard, and for so long. Ninety minutes after our arrival, time to go, Gruden's mood has dropped. Maybe it's the setting sun, or the fender he scraped on a post backing his Mercedes out. Traffic has thinned on I-880; the car's interior is growing dimmer. After a mile, he breaks the quiet. "You come back and it's not the same," Gruden says. He mentions Raiders legend Ken Stabler, a regular visitor during his first stint, dead since 2015. He mentions Ricky, once so vital, now halting and frail.

"It hits you in your core," Gruden says. "It's almost like I'm living my life twice, like Back to the Future. I've got the same office. I walk down the hall, in frickin' Al Davis's office, and he's not there. You see his writing on the board. . . ."

There's something else. It's as if Gruden, after reveling again in the fans' pure passion, remembers the pain that sets in when, suddenly, there's no place for it to go. The Bucs fired him after the 2008 season. Soon the Raiders will leave for Vegas. He's closing in on the team facility now, the control tower at Oakland Airport looming outside.

"It's kind of sad, man," Gruden says. "What will they have once we go?"

Heaven is just the setup. The key conceit to Gruden's novel/movie/play about the football gods is that they've been watching and judging the sport like some celestial TV panel, and they're appalled by what they see. Yes, in this case writing is autobiography; Gruden happens to be upset about the same things. Most pressing, of course, is the CBA which limits his offseason time with players, restricts him to 14 regular-season padded practices, stops him from extending sessions an extra hour whenever he'd like. But that's just the iceberg tip. Overall, he's sure football is losing its soul.

"The state of the game? We have to put a GPS in Bobby's shoulder pad to see if he's working too hard," Gruden sighs. "We stop a high school game in Florida three times every half to give 'em a water break. We run a zone-read every play in college—don't even block the defensive end; we read him—because players can't push themselves. It's too risky; somebody had an episode six years ago. . . . Anyway, the Lord sees these gods and says, 'We've got a problem with football. I need you guys to go back to earth and fix this.'"

So down to earth go Bear Bryant, George Allen, Vince Lombardi and the rest. They don't look the same; they're young guys with names like Jimmy Bryant or Joey Halas. But they take over and go all Junction Boys on the millennials, with hard-ass practices and endless film sessions. It's Jon Gruden's fantasy football league. One god curses out a ref and can't believe it when he gets fined $15,000. A bunch sit in on owners' meetings, disgusted by the obsession with marketing and fan experience. "I just think it would be hilarious," Gruden says.

Maybe, but any laugh would be sardonic. His time at the FFCA, and volunteer-coaching Deuce's and Jayson's high school team, convinced Gruden that the game faces a serious crisis of identity and morale. Almost as soon as the Bucs fired him, he began distributing personal funds to high schools, landed some corporate sponsors and spearheaded an initiative to raise hundreds of thousands of dollars for youth and prep teams. He says he's on a "mission to save football," and, yes, it's personal. The game gave him work, discipline and joy, and it has made him ridiculously rich.

"I wasn't worth a damn, but I was on a team, I had to [report] by seven o'clock," Gruden says of his time playing in high school and college. "I had to run through the line, not to it; my coach made me do it right. And I hated it at times. But if it wasn't for football, I wouldn't have any of these benefits. These geniuses tell you, 'It's a dangerous game, we shouldn't play, you can [learn the same things] in drama class.' I say bulls---."

Of course, Gruden is reentering an NFL in which throwback fashion applies only to jerseys. His appreciation for sheer physicality seems undented by the tragedy of player concussions and CTE research, and the one clanging note at his press conference was his curiously lax handle on national anthem protests. "I'm not really aware," he said, "of that subject at all." Meanwhile, the raw clay he's so eager to grab has this whole new texture.

"These players are different," says Jay Gruden, an offensive assistant under his brother in Tampa, and now the Redskins' coach. Jon "will have to adjust. College football is different now—less refined, a lot more no-huddle and spread offense, a lot less physicality. We're getting a different type of player. Some are fine, but some you have to teach. There's more ADHD, more video games. It's a matter of molding 'em, and that's why it's so important to get your hands on 'em. But these rules [limit] that. So you do the best you can: Draft well, get the free agents you want. . . ."

With personnel at even more of a premium, then, the new coach's relationship with Raiders general manager Reggie McKenzie figures to be crucial. Gruden wasn't shy about opposing Al Davis's draft picks or roster moves in 2001; he clashed with Bucs GM Rich McKay until winning that power struggle; and—together with McKay's replacement, Bruce Allen—he made a string of questionable player bets (Cadillac Williams over Aaron Rodgers in the '05 draft?) in his last six years in Tampa. Asked what makes Belichick so special, Gruden starts with "unrelenting drive," but very quickly he gets to "the great thing that he has: complete control of that organization."

But Gruden also says that years of grilling coaches and execs for TV broadened his appreciation for a team's total makeup and killed dead the notion that players were less vital to success than genius play calls. "I can work with Reggie," he says. "I need him."

For his part, McKenzie, who has known Gruden for 33 years and worked with him on the Packers' staff in 1994, says, "I really wanted to have him on board." Why else, when the Gruden hire was all but done, would McKenzie decline Green Bay's request to interview him for its vacant GM position? "If I had any doubt, I probably would've considered it," he says. "I have no question we can work together."

That imperative, of course, is urgent for reasons that go beyond last year's 6–10 stumble. Mark Davis would love to rejuvenate his Oakland fan base, go out with a bang before bolting for Vegas. And NFL history has seen plenty of popular coaches try, unsuccessfully, for an Act II. All with a stake in Gruden's return betray no worry in that regard, not least because he won his title against the Raiders, not with them. Yes, unfinished business. Here, Act II is less a restoration than it is a do-over: Davis feels his dad never should have traded Gruden in the first place.

Still. Mark can declare himself at peace now and put up $100 million to prove it, but he's just like anyone else. He has no idea how Gruden will work this time around. This much becomes clear when the Raiders' owner, after spending two hours in a Walnut Creek restaurant preaching his new hire's every virtue, leans back against the booth, pauses and asks, "You still think he's got it?"

And in answer I end up weaseling a bit, repeating arguments about why he may and why he may not. I don't mention that this very subject is on Gruden's mind too; that on the quiet drive back from Ricky's he said, "If we don't win? It's going to be, 'Gruden ain't got it. He ain't got it.' But I know one thing: I still got it."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

But it's often the case, too, that those gifted with a distinctive edge are the last to know when it's gone. Gruden never won another playoff game after that Super Bowl with Tampa. He had unlimited power to shape and coach—and went 45–53 the rest of the way. His partisans will point to his five division titles or say the Bucs were hamstrung by the very trade that brought him to Tampa, all those lost high draft picks. Karma: One more win in 2008 would've put Gruden back in the postseason, but the 5–11 Raiders came to town for his last home game and won. Gruden's voice had worn thin. His West Coast offenses, heavy on veterans and ball control, struggled to score. And through it all, despite his reputation as a QB guru, he never did develop a great young passer.

"We helped do some good things in Tampa; it wasn't a total train wreck," he says. "And now [in Oakland] we've got a young quarterback signed for a long time. I owe it to myself to give it one more shot."

Indeed, it was only back at his office afterward, when Gruden spoke of Raiders quarterback Derek Carr, that I felt myself buying in. The coach was calm describing Carr's visit to QB Camp in 2014, but then he started mimicking Carr scribbling notes, leaning on his elbows—and within seconds Gruden's eyes were gleaming.

Then he started yelling, filling the halls with his voice, about how Carr had a rocket! for an arm and in one drill kept nailing this bull's-eye on a target; how, yeah, the damn CBA won't let him work with his QB right now, but Gruden brought his tapes along so he can watch Carr installing a hurry-up on the fly, see him adjusting to six different slot combinations, see him just grinding.

"Unbelievable," Gruden says. "I like him. Family man, married, two kids. He's just got it. He's alive."

And that's the moment I realized: Yeah, I'll steal that story idea. Football god arrives, mad and glad and hair on fire. And Gruden is right, it shouldn't be told with paper and ink. The entire thing needs to play out in high definition, week after lunatic week, loud and in living color.

Defensive Coordinator Paul Guenther

Paul Guenther adept teaching Raiders to play new style of defense

By Scott Bair

August 7, 2018

NAPA – Paul Guenther breaks the offseason and training camp into three phases. He installs the new Raiders defense in each one. Repetition, it seems, leads to mastery.

The last phase starts in training camp, but the final installation runs unlike the previous two.

Lectures are over. In Napa, students become the teacher. Guenther randomly calls players to the front of the class to decipher plays and call out the adjustments required to make them work well.

Guenther's teaching methods have worked well. Scheme retention was strong following a summer off, a positive that allowed the Raiders to hit the ground running in training camp.

That's no easy task. Guenther's defense is vast, loaded with plays that include deception and disguise. It's well respected, with a long track record of success. It doesn't matter, Guenther says, if he can't transfer his knowledge to those who execute.

"Football is a simple game made complicated by coaches," Guenther said on this week's Raiders Insider Podcast. "You have to teach the system in a way that all 11 guys understand everyone else is doing. You can't exist in the little world of your position group. They have to know how others fit around them. If they understand why I'm making calls, and what everyone is supposed to do, then they can make in-game adjustments on Sundays. We need to be fast-minded. The only way you can play fast is to have the system down."

Players rave about Guenther the teacher. Derrick Johnson called him a mastermind. Leon Hall says players learn well because he can identify with every position group.

Marcus Gilchrist enters the season with his fourth team and fifth defensive coordinator. The safety knows the importance of getting a message across, and considers Guenther great at it.

"Probably one of the best ones I've been around in my eight years," he said. "Getting guys to understand whatever their role is on this defense or a certain coverage, whatever scheme that it is, probably the best that I've been around at getting guys to learn a scheme and being able to teach it the right way."

Guenther can sense when somebody doesn't get it, even when they're unwilling to raise a hand.

"If there's a look of uncertainty on your face or in your body language, he's going to see it and help you understand it," weakside linebacker Tahir Whitehead said. "He's not just going to give you a coaching point and then back off and expect you to have it. He wants you to think the way he's thinking. He wants us to take ownership of the scheme."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

The scheme works. It came from Marvin Lewis and Mike Zimmer in Cincinnati and refined by Guenther the past four seasons.

Zimmer was his biggest influence, someone who helped establish his own defensive philosophy.

"He's incredibly smart," Zimmer said in March. "He was able to add to the things we did in Cincinnati, and was creative finding new ways to get the job done."

Guenther thrived on his own, after Zimmer left to become Minnesota's head coach in 2014. The Bengals finished in the top half in scoring defense each year under Guenther, with two campaigns in the top 10.

The Raiders, by contrast, never finished above 20th in that same span.

Guenther is equal parts tactician, motivator and college professor, with a track record of success unknown in these parts over the last decade.

Head coach Jon Gruden has given Guenther relative autonomy over the defense, with control to implement the scheme and arrange the depth chart. Guenther had a chance to leave Cincinnati in 2014, with offers to join Zimmer in Minnesota or Jay Gruden in Washington. He stayed home then, but felt it time to move on with Jon Gruden came calling. Guenther was part of the Gruden package, and is an integral part of this coaching staff.

Guenther and Jon Gruden are close friends, but have developed a rivalry that ratchets up practice intensity.

"Coach Gruden is on me all the time instilling that, 'I want to kick Coach Guenther's butt every day,'" quarterback Derek Carr said. "I think he wants to embarrass us as well. That little rivalry, that little work is the same. But you'll see us all three at dinner together – we're a team – but it definitely helps us come the season.

"...Ask any quarterback in the NFL, Coach Guenther is one of the best in the NFL and it's not even close. He gives you the most problems, he presents the most challenges, he makes you think more than anybody. He's one of the best and I'm glad he's here."

Guenther doesn't blitz much but disguises his intentions well and works to find favorable matchups for his best players. He wants to establish a tough defense that knows its stuff. That's why teaching the scheme right in the offseason and training camp is vital to regular-season success.

"We're going to be a physical team," Guenther said. "When you come to play the Raiders, you'd better pack a lunch pail. We're going to be smart situationally, we're going to create turnovers and we're going to get after the quarterback. I grew up watching the old Raiders defenses. I'm trying to get us back to that."

Strength and Conditioning Assistant Kelsey Martinez

LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

Kelsey Martinez strengthens Raiders as 1st female assistant coach

By Michael Gehlken

August 5, 2018

NAPA, Calif. — She wore a black hooded sweatshirt and black pants when pacing the Raiders' practice field. Her brown hair sat in a ponytail, a whistle in her right hand. She monitored the dynamic-stretching technique of 80-plus NFL players, all of whom awaited her next call.

"Stride forward." They strode.

"Backward run." They ran.

"Three-step cuts." They cut.

This is Kelsey Martinez at work. On the football field, she says, she seldom thinks about any trail she's blazed. But there have been conversations with Raiders coaches, men who have daughters. They've thanked her for embodying how their girls can do whatever they want in life.

"That's when it started to hit: 'Oh, wow. This is a big deal,' " Martinez said. "To be an inspiration for them is huge to me."

Martinez is an example of how initiative and work ethic can lead to an NFL opportunity at age 26. She also happens to be a woman. Part of an organization that has broken race and gender barriers in its history, the strength and conditioning assistant is the Raiders' first female assistant coach.

Martinez joined in March and is nearly two weeks into her first training camp.

She seems to have acclimated well to the Raiders — and they to her.

Some players worked with Martinez before her arrival. Of those in camp, nose tackle Justin Ellis, defensive end Bruce Irvin, outside linebacker James Cowser and defensive end Shakir Soto have conducted offseason training at Tom Shaw Performance at ESPN Wide World of Sports in Orlando.

Martinez worked for four years under Shaw, whom she said "treats me like a daughter" and is "the closest thing to a father figure to me." Shaw now coordinates the Raiders' strength and conditioning department. She credits the mentor for the respect and support received, be it in Florida or here in California.

But she is plenty responsible for that reception, too.

Martinez can stand on her own merit. For example, Cowser credits her for refining his sprint technique. Once in Orlando, she watched his movement and suggested focus on pushing off the ground more with his feet when he explodes to run. Cowser did so and followed with his best recorded time on the drill, he said.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"She's super awesome," Cowser, 27, said. "I mean, there's a reason I went to Tom Shaw in the offseason, right? When I first met her, from the beginning, she opens her mouth, and you instantly know she knows what she's talking about. It's the same reaction here with all the guys. At first glance, you're like, 'Wow, that's a woman.' And then they start talking, and it's, 'Oh, that's a coach.' You know what I mean? It's that instant switch of, 'Oh, that's interesting,' to, 'Oh, I need to get my feet up.'"

"It instantly becomes business, and that's what it's all about. I think that's a testament to her and who she is because she's able to get us to switch into work mode. We don't think about male-female whatever. It's just business and how can we get better."

'You can't limit yourself'

Martinez grew up in Pueblo, Colorado.

A softball standout, she played outfield at Bethany College in Lindsborg, Kansas, before transferring closer to home. She ultimately earned a Bachelor degree in Exercise Science from Colorado State University, but her education continued under Shaw's tutelage.

This offseason, the Raiders have noticed results from their strength and conditioning department. Perhaps no position group exemplifies this more than offensive line, a group that collectively struggled this spring to keep up with the pace that coach Tom Cable dictated during individual drills.

Tackle David Sharpe, guard Jordan Simmons and guard Denver Kirkland are among those who followed a personalized plan, lost weight and showed improvement in camp.

Martinez is focused on inspiring such success stories. Yet, she inspires more.

Running backs coach Jemal Singleton and his wife have a young daughter. He has thanked Martinez for being an example to her. Months ago, special teams coordinator Rich Bisaccia had dinner with different members of the strength and conditioning staff, including Martinez and Shaw.

He thanked her, too.

"I have five sisters, and I have three daughters," Bisaccia said. "For them to be able to, along with all other females, see that she's accomplished this goal is going to give them a chance to realize, 'Wow, this is a path I can take.' ...She carries herself extremely professionally. She's incredibly knowledgeable in what she's trying to teach these guys. She hasn't missed a beat with the players. ..."

"Once a pro player feels like you're knowledgeable and you can help them get better, they're going to listen to you. And I feel like with Kelsey, that was evident right away, not only to the coaches but certainly to the players."

For the New York Jets, Lee Brandon is widely credited as having become the NFL's first female strength and conditioning assistant. That was 1990.

All these years later, an NFL weight room remains a male-dominated setting. None of the league's other 31 teams have a woman listed on their strength and conditioning staff, according to the directory page posted on each club's website.

A message accompanies Martinez' journey.

It can apply to any gender.

"Don't create limits on yourself," Martinez said. "There's many excuses or whatever that can be made, but at the end of the day, what do you love to do? I was able to find what I love to do, and that's working for Jon Gruden every day. 'Do you love football?' That's his number one question. Do you love football? Do you love what you do? Why limit yourself or who you are if that's what you want?"

"I didn't let that try to ever stop me. More than anything, I'm thinking of how young I am coming in here versus me being a girl. You can't limit yourself."

Kelsey Martinez blazing trails and inspiring as first female coach in Raiders history

By Matt Schneidman

August 15, 2018

Kelsey Martinez approached Mallory Singleton right when she noticed her on the Coliseum field last Friday afternoon. Martinez, 26, is a strength and conditioning assistant for the Raiders, the first female coach in team history and currently the NFL's only female strength coach. Singleton, 5, is the daughter of Raiders running backs coach Jemal Singleton.

The 5-year-old looked up in awe at Martinez, who couldn't help but hoist her and ask for a picture before the Raiders' preseason opener against the Detroit Lions.

"It's one of those things as a father, you want your daughter to have those aspirations to be whatever she wants to be. It's nice to have something she can put her eyes on and say, 'She's a coach. I could be a coach,'" Singleton said. "I know a lot of hype has been put on, 'She's female.' She's just a good strength coach. That's going to be the bottom line at the end of the day and that's what she does well."

This is one of the most rewarding parts of the job for Martinez, when young girls look up to her. Of course she knows the rarity of women in her profession, but she wants to be coach first, female coach second. Raiders head strength coach Tom Shaw has known Martinez for eight years. They worked together extensively at Shaw's training center in Orlando for almost five, and Shaw recommended to Jon Gruden she be one of his lieutenants. Gruden even sent one of his two right-hand men, Mark Arteaga, to watch Martinez work out professional athletes in Orlando.

Now she continues to break barriers for an organization historically known for doing so, even if she doesn't always look at herself that way. She'd rather spot Kelechi Osemele, maybe the strongest player on the team, or reduce aching in Frostee Rucker's knees by recommending one-legged squats with less weight instead of two-legged ones with more. Those are the day-to-day tasks that fuel pre-dawn wakeups for Martinez, who in her first season with the Raiders is sticking out as the only female on the field but at the same time fitting right in.

"Believe me, if she didn't know what she was talking about when she would actually talk to them and didn't know the program, they would find somebody else to go to because they're all trying to stay in the league," Shaw said. "In the NFL, that's what you have to do is you have to prove yourself in order to be accepted and she has proven herself."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Martinez grew up playing softball because she hated being indoors. Without a college softball career, she sought ways to stay around athletes. That's where her desire to be a trainer bloomed. Martinez interned with NFL strength coaches, some of whom ventured to Orlando to learn from Shaw. Once she sampled a taste of the NFL trainer life, she wanted in.

At Shaw's performance center, Martinez oversaw the regimens of over 40 MLB players, including Cleveland Indians All-Star shortstop Francisco Lindor and Miami Marlins third baseman Martin Prado. She worked with other professional athletes, too, four who happen to be current Raiders – Bruce Irvin, Justin Ellis, James Cowser and Shakir Soto. She was nervous to first train pros as a college student under Shaw, who has groomed a litany of NFL first-round picks, No. 1 overall picks and Super Bowl MVPs, but gradually earned a reputation as a trusted trainer that eased her nerves.

Gruden liked what he saw in Martinez so much after Shaw and Arteaga's recommendations, he told reporters in March at the annual league meeting, "She's spectacular. Wait 'till you meet her." We've waited until now since Martinez has been reluctant to do interviews and instead let her work do the talking. She still needed to prove herself in the NFL, like Shaw said, and relied on the word of those Raiders she'd trained before to vouch for her to those she hadn't when she came on board.

Ellis, a starting defensive tackle who trained at Shaw's facility, remembers the reaction when teammates heard Gruden hired the NFL's only female strength coach.

"Guys were like, 'Oh, man, we got a woman trainer,'" he said with a slight tone of shock. "I was just telling them, 'She knows what she's talking about.' ... She knew more than the guys that are working in some areas."

These days in Napa, Martinez and the rest of Oakland's strength staff arrive in the weight area around 5 a.m. (In Orlando they started at 9 a.m.) When the strength staff first joined the Raiders early in the offseason, in order to absorb the new system quicker, they rose an hour earlier. But now players trickle over the dew-stained grass and into the outdoor weight facility around 5:30 or 6 a.m. Players can lift at three different times throughout the day, and Martinez and Co. are there to supervise each one.

She intently watches practice, too, so she can incorporate position-specific drills in agility and strength work during the next offseason program. Right after practice ends around noon she'll dart around the weight area, spotting for Jordy Nelson one second then instructing Rucker the next and helping Derek Carr on the bench press another. There's far less time to interact with players during training camp than there was during the offseason, when she worked with them for four-plus hours on some days.

"Our day stays very busy. We're never chilling," Martinez said. "Some people have said that, 'You'll kind of just be hanging back, only working with them in the weight room.' I can't imagine that. There's too much going on."

Even without weights or speed drills, Martinez connects with players. She reserves two pages of paper for each player with the theme, "What's your story?" They open up to Martinez about everything from life in elementary school to their parents' history, Shaw said. She then shares those backgrounds in staff meetings, so coaches learn about players beyond the gridiron and the bench press.

It seems like the new coach in town has endeared herself to all the players she didn't know just fine.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"She's been great working with the guys," Carr said. "I haven't heard anybody complain or anything like that, like 'Oh man, she didn't know this or that.' She's very smart. She knows her stuff. I think that's why she's so respected."

Back in 1990, Lee Brandon became the first female strength coach in NFL history when she joined the New York Jets' strength staff. Martinez wasn't even born. Female coaches in the NFL have rarely surfaced in the 28 years since, whether they be on strength staffs or as position coaches, and only in recent years have women carved out roles in the league.

Jen Welter became the league's first female position coach in 2015 when she coached inside linebackers for the Arizona Cardinals during training camp and the preseason as part of an internship. Kathryn Smith became the first full-time female coach in 2016, serving as special teams quality control coach for the Buffalo Bills. The San Francisco 49ers hired Katie Sowers as an offensive assistant before the start of last season, making her the second full-time female coach.

Currently Martinez is the only female strength coach listed on a team website, which brings a smile to the first one in league history.

"I'm absolutely elated and love that the NFL is embracing women in such a classically male-dominated arena," Brandon said earlier in the offseason. "It's very exciting, and I'm mostly excited because I think that as strength and conditioning specialists, if you look at any of the top NFL websites and you touch the coaching tab, you'll see underneath the head coach, the line coaches and all the coaches, you're always gonna see the head strength coach and the assistant strength coach."

Martinez doesn't care much if her name is on a website or if she garners attention. Her biggest reward comes when players say they feel better during practices and games because of something she's worked on with them. That, and inspiring young girls to follow goals some might deem unrealistic, is why she rises at Jon Gruden-esque hours to hone her craft.

To others, she may be a pioneer.

To Kelsey Martinez, though, she's just doing her job.

S Erik Harris

THE ATHLETIC

How a letter written by his mother ignited Erik Harris' journey to the Raiders

By Vic Tafur

August 17, 2018

Christine Higgins, after a long day working and tending to her five other kids, sat down and started writing a letter. It was about her son, now Raiders safety Erik Harris.

She sent it to someone she had never met, California University of Pennsylvania football coach John Luckhardt. Harris was slipping through the cracks, and his mom thought the New Oxford High (Pennsylvania) football star deserved a chance.

"It's always nice to know a little something about somebody, and I just wanted the coach to know about Erik's life story," she said in a telephone interview on Wednesday. "Where he comes from and the struggles he had been through, just with me being a single parent and how much he helped out and watched his little brothers. I don't know ... I just felt he never got a fair shot.

"As hard as he worked, it seemed like he was getting overlooked. It was scary, because that's all he ever dreamed about, was playing football. ... There were a few scary moments. ... His SAT scores weren't that great, and that was the first time we ever thought he wouldn't go right to college and play, because he had been such a good player in high school."

The letter was three pages long, and was accompanied by a highlight tape and press clippings of all of Harris' feats in football and track and field.

"Those articles spoke for themselves, but I just wanted to put it out there so that they knew his dad wasn't involved in his life and how we had moved from Baltimore and Erik had a tough transition," Higgins said. "And how much he did for his brothers."

Luckhardt remembers receiving the letter in 2007 and handing it off to one of his assistants to look into. The staff had used up its scholarship money for the coming season by that point, but promised Higgins they would take a look at the tape and give her an honest opinion.

"That's all I could ask," Higgins said. "When they called back and said they would love to have him, I was so surprised."

Luckhardt fell in love with Harris, just as new Raiders coach Jon Gruden has. Gruden said Harris, a special teams player a year ago, has a chance to win a starting job this preseason.

"Erik's really a great kid and was a great player and leader for us," Luckhardt said in a telephone interview on Thursday. "He came in as a preferred walk-on and got everybody's attention very fast. He is a very physical player. He is a grinder and is never going to give up. ...

"And his mom was the first to bring all of that to our attention. She asked us to give her son a chance, and we did."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

There were other scary moments, as Higgins said, from a car crash a year later to being undrafted after college and getting a job lifting 50-pound bags of corn flour at a potato chip factory. But Higgins always believed her son when he said things would work out. He didn't give her any choice.

"When Erik was a little boy, he told me he was going to play in the NFL," she recalled. "As he got older, I would try and talk to him about real life, and how he has to really start thinking about what he wants to be when he grows up. And he would look at me ...

"'Mom. I am going to be an NFL player.' He would tell me that all the time, and would never even talk about anything else. That's what he was going to be."

Harris broke his finger at training camp two weeks ago and missed only three days of practice. He now plays with a splint on his right hand — it kills him not to be able to shake people's hands — but missing more time was never an option for Harris.

After a three-year stint in the Canadian Football League, the 6-foot-3, 225-pound Harris signed with the Saints in 2016 and played four games before tearing up his knee. The Raiders signed him three days after New Orleans cut him last year, and Harris was a valuable special teams player for them.

But Harris is 28 now and he didn't grow up dreaming about running downfield on kick coverage.

"I felt like this was a big year for me to get that special teams label off of me," Harris said after Tuesday's practice. "I do have something to offer on the defensive side of the ball."

He didn't think that was going so well during the first month of offseason workouts, when Gruden only referred to him as "25," Harris' jersey number.

"I was like, 'Man, I need to get him to know my name,'" Harris said, smiling.

Then one day, Gruden was asked after practice about Obi Melifonwu (he gets those a lot) and veered left instead of right back at the question.

"The guy that's really been stunning for us is Erik Harris," Gruden said back in June. "I'm doing my research on this guy. Who is this cat?"

The cat was thrilled.

"It was nice to hear those comments because you put so much work in in the offseason," Harris said.

Harris is vying for playing time at safety with returning starters Karl Joseph and Reggie Nelson and free-agent signee Marcus Gilchrist. He has flown by Melifonwu, last year's second-round pick.

Harris has shown good breaks on the ball and he credits new coordinator Paul Guenther's disguised defense. "It's simple for us to play and difficult for offenses to play against," Harris said.

If you think Harris is in good shape now, you should have seen him in the summer of 2012.

Harris had survived a car crash his freshman year that left his girlfriend and now wife, Theresa, hospitalized. And he was done with college, a standout player that not only earned all-conference honors at safety, but also punted his senior season.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Harris had focused on preparing for the NFL Draft. Not only was he not drafted, but he didn't get an invite to an NFL camp as a free agent.

"I went back home and had to work, because I still had school to finish up after taking the semester off to train," Harris said. "And I got a job at the Utz potato chip factory. A lot of college kids worked there."

But not many kids drew the job of corn mixer.

"I said, 'God, what's a corn mixer?'" Harris said. "And everybody just looked at me. I had the worst job in that whole factory. It was miserable. Every half-hour, I had to lift 50-pound bags of corn flour."

He emptied the bags into a mixer, stirred the corn and shoved it down through the oven. For 11 hours. In 110-degree heat.

"It was humbling," Harris said. "But I was in great shape."

His mom had worked in an Utz factory for 15 years, and she knew all about the corn mixers.

"My mom told me she was actually surprised I kept the job," Harris said. "And I'm like, 'I just don't quit.'"

His mom said the heat had gotten the best of others, and that's the only reason she thought he would quit.

"But he didn't miss one day," Higgins said.

Harris then got a job with UPS and finished school, "sitting in the front row and making Dean's List for the first time."

Still, he always knew football was out there for him, and one day drove five hours to Buffalo and paid $80 to tryout for the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Three days later, they offered him a three-year contract.

"I didn't have an agent at the time," Harris said, "so I signed whatever they threw at me because I was expecting twins at the time, too. I was like, 'Yeah, I'll take whatever.'"

Luckhardt thinks the wider fields and wide-open attacks of the CFL helped prepare Harris for the NFL.

Family is everything to Harris. He and Theresa have three kids now with a fourth on the way. His mom always knew he would be a good father, as he and his older sister helped raise the four youngest boys.

There were days Harris would be late for high school practices, and his coach would be mad. One day his mom explained to him that Harris was watching his brothers while she worked.

"He made them dinners while I worked and looked after them," Higgins said. "The best thing he did was be a great example and role model for them."

And then she told Luckhardt the same thing in that letter.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"When I was waiting for a college to offer me something out of high school, my mom kept saying, 'There is no way it can end like this, there is no way it can end like this,'" Harris said. "My mom was very persistent."

At the end of Harris' college career, four years after the first letter, Christine Higgins sat down to write another letter to Luckhardt.

"It was a 'thank you' letter, but it was better than that," Luckhardt said. "It was a reinforcement of what his experience was. To come from a single-parent family, and to help take care of his family. Because he was a walk-on, he scrambled to pay for school his first year, before we gave him a scholarship. His mom was appreciative of who he was, and that we recognized how special he was."

Luckhardt coached for 45 years before retiring three years ago, and Harris still stands out.

"You look at Erik and you see all the qualities that people want, and what they can get out of this sport," Luckhardt said. "He didn't ask for anything and he has worked for everything he has got. He is an outstanding player, but he is a better person than he is a player."

Higgins now works at Hobby Lobby in the frame shop, and a proud central Pennsylvanian recently brought in Harris' Raiders jersey to be framed.

"Some of the girls at the store were buzzing about that," Higgins said. "It just doesn't seem real, It's super-exciting, but even now, two years after he made the NFL, it still seems like a dream. ...

"I am surprised he made it. I always thought he had the ability, but you never think it's really going to happen because there are so many kids who want to play in the NFL. You never think it's going to happen to your child. But Erik did, and as a parent, all you can do is help your kids in any way you can and hope."

The unlikely rise of Raiders safety Erik Harris

By Matt Schneidman

August 16, 2018

Erik Harris watched as paramedics loaded his then-girlfriend and current wife into the back of an ambulance.

She was a senior in high school and he was a year older, the two in their first year dating a decade ago. The car in which they were passengers had just crashed with an oncoming vehicle on a back road near Uniontown, Penn.

"The driver of our car lost control of the car," Theresa Harris said. "We were very fortunate that everyone was OK. There were five of us."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Erik sustained whiplash and didn't even get checked out. Theresa, lying on the gurney as her new boyfriend watched in fear, suffered brain injuries.

She had received early admission into nursing school, and wanted to work in labor and delivery. Now she couldn't pursue her desired career, while Erik chased his as a NFL hopeful in his first year at Division II California University of Pennsylvania.

Bouts with football unemployment in 2012, the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats from 2013-15 and the New Orleans Saints in 2016 dot a road that's taken him to the brink of a starting spot with the Raiders, a peak that seemed laughable not long ago.

In between his journey has veered from the conventional, from helping his single mother watch four younger brothers to emerging unscathed from the nasty accident to working at a potato chip factory after he went undrafted to now drawing unprompted praise from one of the NFL's most famous head coaches in Jon Gruden.

But listen to those who've been closest to Erik all along, and you'll learn this is exactly what they expected.

"God does things in mysterious ways and it was supposed to put us on a different path," Theresa said. "And it sure did."

Harris had more pressing duties to worry about than making the NFL growing up in a single-parent home.

He's the oldest of five boys with one older sister. When she couldn't watch the siblings while their mom, Christine Higgins, worked as a packer at a local Utz potato chip factory, Harris played father figure since the family didn't use daycare services.

When mom wasn't working, she watched kids at home, sneaking in any chunk of sleep she could while they watched cartoons. Harris saw how his mom labored, at home and in the factory, and vowed to be a father that supported his kids later in life.

Harris even arrived late to high school football practices because he was busy watching his younger brothers until mom returned home. His coach reprimanded him, but Harris never revealed why he was late. "One time ... he had no choice but to tell the coach why he was late," Christine said. "I was the reason why he was late, but he never said nothing for a long while and then the coach kind of looked at him a lot different after that."

Harris earned more scholarships for track than football. Division I schools initiated contact regarding football, Christine said, but their interest faded because she thinks schools probably found her son's SAT scores. With options dwindling, and community college an unappealing last resort, Christine gathered her son's newspaper clippings, sent a letter to California University of Pennsylvania and followed up just to make sure they received the materials.

"It was like the last hope," she said. "That was it."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"He comes from a relatively small high school in Pennsylvania, so he wasn't getting a lot of attention," said John Luckhardt, Harris' college head coach. "We'd already spent our scholarship money, so the only thing we could offer Erik initially was a preferred walk-on and he chose to do that ... We fell in love with him and basically as soon as we had some scholarship money available, we got it to him."

Out of curiosity, Harris asked his high school coach why he never advertised him to Cal U. "Honestly Erik, I didn't think you could play at that level," he said, as mom recalls. "That was terrible. I was thinking, 'How could you not see that?' It was things like that, though, that gave Erik more and more drive to succeed."

Then came the accident not long after Harris graduated from New Oxford High School, and somehow he escaped unharmed while Theresa's future went on hold. If he had suffered injuries like his future wife, whose seizure activity went away when she was pregnant with twin boys over five years ago, there's no telling how long he would've missed football or if he ever would've even sniffed the level he's at now.

Luckily healthy, Harris tallied 231 total tackles, 18 tackles for loss, 22 passes deflected and nine interceptions in his college career. He skipped his final semester of college to train for pro day, hoping to hear his name called on draft day.

He waited for his phone to ring for three days during the draft. Nothing.

He waited for his phone to ring to sign as an undrafted free agent. Nothing.

He waited for his phone to ring with an invitation to rookie mini-camp, a courtesy extended every year to a bevy of no-names. Still nothing.

Even so, Harris still believed he could make it to the NFL one day.

Harris and his coworkers at an Utz potato chip factory randomly picked their summer tasks in 2012.

Harris drew "corn mixer."

"I said, 'God, what's corn mixer?' the 28-year-old says now, standing on the Raiders' practice field in Napa. "And everybody just looked at me. I had the worst job in that whole factory. It was miserable."

Harris worked 11-hour shifts in a 110-degree room for an entire summer in Hanover, Penn. Every 30 minutes, he lifted 50-pound bags of corn flower and emptied them into a mixer, stirred the corn and shoved it into an oven.

After he garnered literally no NFL interest, he returned home to southern Pennsylvania, threw on long pants and a T-shirt for the summer and went to work in grueling indoor heat.

"My mom told me she was actually surprised I kept the job," Harris said. "And I'm like, 'I just don't quit.' ... It was humbling."

Harris still carried his dream of making the NFL, vowing it was too soon after his college career to give up. Christine repeatedly insisted, "There's no way it can end like this." She worked at another Utz factory for 15 years, often as a packer on the 10 p.m.-7 a.m. shift. She never quit, even while raising six kids who she couldn't always be home to care for.

After his summer mixing corn, Harris returned to school to finish those stray credits, sat in the first row of his classes and made Dean's List for the first time. He got a job loading boxes for UPS, then earned a promotion to part-time supervisor. He worked 9 p.m.-5 a.m., returned home to sleep, woke up for classes, hit the gym and went back to UPS.

While working in Pennsylvania, Harris heard there was a tryout for the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats. He drove five hours from Pennsylvania to Buffalo and paid $80 for coaches to evaluate him. Three days after his tryout, the Tiger-Cats offered him a three-year contract in early April 2013.

"I didn't have an agent at the time, so I signed whatever they threw at me because I was expecting twins at the time, too," Harris said. "I was like, 'Yeah, I'll take whatever.'"

The Tiger-Cats lumped Harris on the practice roster, but they elevated him to the active roster within a week. He carved out a niche on special teams and also played defense. After three years in Canada, Harris signed with the Saints on a reserve/future deal, and was later promoted to the 53-man roster. But with only four regular season NFL games under his belt, Harris tore his ACL and never played for the Saints again.

Three days after the Saints cut Harris in September 2017, the Raiders swooped in. Last season he again found his calling on special teams, seeing 286 snaps there compared to only three on defense. New Raiders special teams coordinator Rich Bisaccia, who coached Dallas special teams in 2017, said the Cowboys devised a plan in Week 15 specifically to counter Harris since he was so effective on Oakland's special teams.

"Right now he's our person protector on the punt team and he's playing on every phase," Bisaccia said. "I know he's working his butt off on defense and he's climbing the charts over there as well, so he's vital for us. Depending on what his status ends up on defense will be how much we use him and where we use him. He's really had a great camp."

Harris is nearing 30, and hopes 2018 is the year he finally sheds the special-teams-only tag.

He's thrived in that role since beginning his professional career five years ago, but wants to be known for more.

Asked about Harris' fellow safety Obi Melifonwu in June, Gruden changed course in the middle of his answer.

"The guy that's really been stunning for us is Erik Harris," the $100 million head coach said. "I'm doing my research on this guy. Who is this cat?"

Then earlier this month, Gruden emphatically stated Harris had a realistic shot to start for the Raiders at safety. For Harris, the guy whose high school coach didn't think he could play at California University of Pennsylvania, the guy who failed to draw even the slightest NFL interest after the 2012 draft, Gruden's plaudits are more than just press conference coach-speak.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I never really thought he'd actually make it to the NFL and it wasn't because of his abilities," Harris' mom said. "It was just because there's so many athletes out there that want to go to the NFL. You just don't really envision your child making it to the NFL."

This season is important for Harris, too, because he'll welcome a fourth child. His wife is due in late September with a boy, joining their 5-year-old twin boys and 2-year-old girl. Theresa and the kids live in Louisiana from Erik's days with the Saints, but she'll have a C-section in Pennsylvania because she has a high-risk pregnancy. The Raiders play in Miami Sept. 23, so she hopes her husband plays in the game, flies to Pennsylvania for his son's birth the next day, then flies back west to practice for Week 4 against the Cleveland Browns. Doctors laugh at her. A mom of three already, they say, she should know it probably won't work out perfectly like that.

Theresa fell for Erik in high school when she saw him care for his siblings. "He was after me in high school, and I wasn't quite sure, and then I saw him with a baby and it was over," she said. He's always had that fatherly instinct, so you bet it's hard for Harris to carry out his dream a whole country away.

Theresa could pursue nursing now, but with three kids and a fourth on the way, there's no time for that. Caring for them, even if it's by herself sometimes, is the only future she wants right now.

The family always ponders living together in California, but the pieces haven't yet aligned. So to be that father who supports his kids, the one he didn't have growing up, Harris has to be here in California, on the field. That's why, when he broke a finger earlier in training camp jamming Jordy Nelson in a non-padded session, Harris only missed three days. Now he plays with a small club on his right hand, still barking out calls from the secondary, darting up to the line of scrimmage and zipping back.

Unlike ripping open bags of corn flower, Harris can do this job with a bum hand. Good thing, too, because he has a point to prove.

He wants to show the kid who helped his single mom can provide for his own with a NFL career. The player his high school coach counted out can stick with the big boys. The car crash survivor and corn mixer can beat these odds, too, and become a starter in the league.

If Erik Harris' past is any indication of what's to come, he just might be able to.

DE Arden Key

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Raiders rookie DE Arden Key a student of the pass rush

By Matt Kawahara

August 16, 2018

Raiders defensive end Arden Key has a quick spin move, but he can slide in pretty smoothly, too.

Just ask Chuck Smith, the former NFL defensive end who now trains some of the league's best pass rushers. A few years ago, Smith recalls, he received a direct message on Twitter from Key that caught his eye. For one thing, Key was asking for pass-rush tutelage while still in high school. And Key's approach did not lack for confidence.

"He was like, 'Coach, I want to be a great pass rusher,'" Smith said. "'I can be the greatest pass rusher of all time.'"

Said Key this week: "The worst thing he could say was no."

Smith did not say no. Intrigued, he sought out video of Key and saw a tall, lanky fellow Georgian who seemed serious about getting after the quarterback. Smith invited Key to train with him, and the two continued to work together as Key became a top college player at LSU, then a third-round draft pick in April by the Raiders.

After falling to the second day of the draft, largely because of a tumultuous final college season, Key told reporters he considered himself "a first-round talent — top-five." Asked in a phone interview if he would agree with that assessment, it was Smith's turn to sound confident.

"Arden," Smith said, "should have been 1, 2 or 3."

As Smith recalls, Key began attending his "Big Skill Sunday" workouts as a high school senior in Union City, Ga., driving about 50 miles each weekend to a training facility north of Atlanta. There, Smith said, players would train for "hours — I mean like getting medieval, hard-core, pass-rush work." Key took to it immediately.

"That just showed you, I felt like he loved pass rush so much," said Smith, an All-Pro with the Falcons in 1997. "And I loved it. That's why we hit it off so great. He had the love."

Smith would ask Key to name his favorite pass rushers of all time. Key would ask about rushers with whom Smith had played or coached like Reggie White, Von Miller and Robert Mathis. Watching video of those players with Smith, Key said, was particularly helpful.

"I got a lot out of that," Key said. "Before, all I was looking at was, 'OK, he used that move and got to the quarterback.' When I looked at it with Chuck, it was more, 'OK, this is the set the offensive tackle gave him. This is the move he used. This is why he used it. This is why he won.'"

"It was a lot more knowledge of the game and learning how to study film rather than watching a guy get a bunch of sacks and not know why."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

At the NFL combine in March, Key ran an unimpressive time in the 40-yard dash (4.9 seconds). Smith scoffs at that being a measure of Key's quickness off the edge. In pass rushing, says Smith, "the great ones win in 5 yards," the area encompassing the rusher and the lineman he's trying to beat.

"In that 5 yards, you have to have lateral movement, bends, change of direction, pivot, plant," Smith said. "The great ones do all that. And Arden Key has all those qualities."

At 6-foot-5, Key sets up in a front-loaded stance with his hips raised at about the same height as his shoulders. From there, he can stay low and try to beat his tackle around the edge with quickness or deploy one of a variety of pass-rushing moves.

Key displayed a few in one-on-one drills in training camp. Going against fellow rookie Brandon Parker, Key used his hands to knock away Parker's and spun inside, leaving Parker frozen and facing forward as he chased after the stand-in quarterback. On another matchup, Key lined up against first-round pick Koltan Miller, faked an inside spin and blew past Miller into the backfield.

The Raiders have yet to see Key's maneuvers in a game; he missed the preseason opener against Detroit last Friday after tweaking an ankle, but practiced this week and could make his debut Saturday against the Rams. Key said recently he enjoys experimenting with and putting his own twist on different moves, as well as the in-game chess match against opposing linemen.

"You might beat him on one set, but naturally, if he's been in the league for a long time, he already knows as a rookie what your next move is," Key said. "So I've got to think, 'What's my next move? What's my next move after that?' and put that as the second one."

Physical ability was not the reason Key fell to the draft's third round. In 2016, Key set the LSU season record with 12 sacks as a sophomore. But his junior year was rocky.

In February 2017, Key took a leave of absence from LSU for personal reasons. He had shoulder surgery that spring and missed the first two games of the season. He returned weighing 270 pounds, compared with his current listed weight of 238 pounds. Although the reason for Key's leave was not made public, NFL Network reported Key had entered rehab for marijuana use.

In May, Key acknowledged that "off-the-field" issues led to his draft slide and stated his intent to "stay on the straight path" in the NFL. Key said the Raiders "set a plan" for him when he arrived, and he has formed a quick bond with defensive end Bruce Irvin, a fellow Atlanta native who also trained with Smith.

"We love Key," head coach Jon Gruden said this month. "You go back two years ago and watch him at LSU, he's as good an edge rusher as there is in the country. He struggled a little bit his last season in Baton Rouge, but Chuck Smith, his private coach in the offseason, sent us a lot of videos and kept us up to speed. There are some things this kid can do that are very special."

Smith, who considers himself a mentor to Key, was candid when asked about Key's 2017 drop-off.

"At the end of the day, he's a grown man. He has to play the hand he deals himself," Smith said. "He has a great hand right now. He's done everything you can do to get back on track."

“He’s young, he’s a kid — but he’s in the big-boy game now. He has to do like everybody else. He has to be disciplined.”

Smith believes Key is capable of that. He also has another story to illustrate Key’s motivation:

One day, Key was at the Atlanta-area facility training at the same time as Robert Mathis, the former Indianapolis defensive end/linebacker and 2013 Defensive Player of the Year. Smith posted a Twitter video of Mathis working on a spin move. And Key, he says, replied with a clip of himself doing the same spin, writing: “Rob Mathis, I’m going to be doing your move better than you!”

“And this guy’s in the 12th grade, man,” Smith said. “I had to tell Arden, ‘Humble yourself, boy! This is the Defensive Player of the Year!’

“He’s like, ‘Man, I’m going to be there one day.’”

THE ATHLETIC

New beginning: Raiders rookie Arden Key reflects on his setbacks and looks poised to prove the doubters wrong

By Vic Tafur

August 29, 2018

All eyes are on Arden Key. And he wouldn’t have it any other way.

The Raiders’ rookie pass rusher is 12 days away from his NFL debut with the Raiders, and he knows what everybody is thinking.

“A lot of people want to see me play,” Key said recently. “They want to see the sacks. But there’s no pressure on me. I have been doing that for a long time.”

Key thinks he should have been a top-5 pick in this year’s NFL Draft. That he wasn’t is what makes the defensive end even more interesting. And maybe even better off.

“He was the best defensive player in the draft,” former NFL defensive end Chuck Smith said.

And here’s Raiders defensive coordinator Paul Guenther:

“We know he can rush. He’s special that way,” Guenther said.

The 6-foot-5, 250-pound Key set a school record his sophomore season at LSU with 12 sacks. Then, in February 2017, he left school. Key won’t say why — to non-team members at least — but the NFL Network reported that he checked into rehab for marijuana use. Key returned to LSU after four months a different man. And a much bigger man, weighing 280 pounds after having shoulder surgery and sitting around.

He only had four sacks in eight games last season, but the Raiders pounced when he was on the board at No. 89 in the third round.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"There is a reason I fell, but I am better person now for it," Key said. "It won't matter where I was drafted when I start sacking the quarterback again and start winning games."

Raiders coach Jon Gruden said he "loves Key," much as all coaches love potentially elite pass rushers.

"We felt lucky to get him where we got him," Gruden said. "You go back two years ago and watch him at LSU, he's as good an edge rusher as there is in the country. He struggled a little bit his last season in Baton Rouge, but Chuck Smith, who is his private coach in the offseason, sent us a lot of videos and kept us up to speed."

"There are some things this kid can do that are very special."

Smith sent Gruden a virtual pro day, which he does with all of his clients.

"I told Jon what kind of person Arden is and the talent on the video spoke for itself," Smith said in a telephone interview.

Actually, let's back up a little bit.

Smith has been calling Guenther about Key for years.

"I have been a pass-rush consultant for the Bengals for four years, and when Paulie was there I would always call him," Smith said. "I have been talking up Arden and sending Paulie videos forever. Since Arden was a freshman."

"I talked to Paulie about a lot of players, but Arden was a special one."

Actually, let's back up a little more.

"I have known (general manager) Reggie (McKenzie) for 20 years now," Smith said, laughing. "I am a (Tennessee) Vol, too. I have been sending him Arden videos, too."

When the Raiders selected Key in the draft, Smith was not surprised in the least.

"It was almost like it was destined to happen," Smith said. "To have a tough-ass coach like Jon, a no-nonsense guy like Paulie and then ... he has a GM that will get in his ass, too, if he acts up. That's three role models, three mentor-type guys that make sure Arden gets the most out of his ability."

"He is in the right place and he is a great kid. Now it's up to him."

Key knew the Raiders were the right team for him before he was drafted, too. He came in for a pre-draft visit and sat down with Raiders director of player engagement Lamonte Winston. They talked about what Key wanted in life on and off the football field, what happened at LSU and what he planned to do about it now.

"We talked about his family, his values and he was very straightforward about his struggles," Winston said Monday. "We talked about the expectations of the National Football League, and we can't worry about what's happened but what are you going to do next. It doesn't matter when you were drafted, here's your opportunity. What are you going to do with it?"

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Key said he was going to grab it. He asked a lot of questions, told Winston about his plans.

"We talked about things outside of football, what I want to do as far as business and career, things of that sort," Key said. "We wrote a plan out, and we stuck with that plan. It was saying I was going to be a Raider. We spoke it into existence."

The first deposit had been made.

"He knew he had to put good money in the bank, so to speak, to repair his name, and carry the shield for the Raiders and the league," Winston said.

Then, at lunch that day, Winston introduced Key to defensive end Bruce Irvin. Irvin overcame his own troubles and not only reached the NFL but earned his degree from West Virginia this summer. All that and he will bite an offensive player's head off on the field.

A better example for Key there is not.

"Bruce asked Arden where he was from," Winston said. "Arden said 'Atlanta.' Bruce said, 'I am from Atlanta.' Boom."

Because of his lean build and No. 99 jersey, and hopefully not because of the off-field issues, Key has heard a lot of comparisons to Aldon Smith already. Irvin also mentioned it.

"He compared me to Aldon Smith, and told me that I am going to be under his wing and we're going to work," Key said. "And we're from the same area. I have been hearing stories about Bruce since I was younger, so I was already looking up to him way back then."

At training camp in Napa, Key followed Irvin wherever he went.

"He will break you down if he doesn't like something you're doing," Key said. "But then he will build you back up. He is not going to just leave you standing there with a shit face. He is a good leader. ...

"He's been great with off-field stuff, too. There's a lot of stuff that he did that I did when I was younger. If he tells me something, it's meaningful because he has been where I've been, and right now he's where I'm trying to go."

The leader role is one that Irvin has warmed to the last couple of seasons, and he knows the special player that Key can be.

"He's long and athletic," Irvin said. "He's a really natural rusher. He reminds me a lot of the old 99 that was here. If he keeps his head on straight, which he will, he's going to be a hell of a player and a hell of a player for the Raiders."

"Can't wait to see what he's going to do this year."

Smith thinks Irvin enjoys Key's confidence.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Arden is just a young cat from South Atlanta that has got a lot of swag," Smith said. "He wears fly, colorful clothes. He grew up in Black Hollywood. He is around all the hip-hop dudes and is super confident in who he is, too. ...

"All great pass rushers are super confident."

And they all probably have a chip on their shoulder too.

"Everywhere I go, I get, 'Oh, he's too little,'" Key said. "When I got to LSU, they put a 350-pound lineman on me, outweighed me by 150 pounds, and I put him on his back. And on the next play, I give him the shake-shake and make him look stupid. Let him sit there while I go get the quarterback. ...

"Sacking the quarterback changes the game. Nothing stops an offense's momentum like a quarterback sack. Then, if you get a sack with a fumble, then it's a party."

The party stopped his junior season. Key's father, Arden Sr., said that his son just needed a break from football and all the success that he had early.

Key agrees that he appreciated the game more after he returned. And while he takes responsibility for leaving school, he still thinks his former LSU coaches piled on a little bit when NFL scouts came calling.

"I get mad when I hear about the red flags, because me and some of the coaches at LSU got into it," Key said. "They didn't want me to have surgery and some other things happened over the years. Argue. Bad conversations. And then they're mad. And then I'm mad and they gotta say whatever they gotta say. ... A lot of drama. A lot of bad blood.

"I wasn't doing nothing, had surgery and then I got big. Huge. I got up to 280, but once I was able to run, it came off pretty fast."

But it was too late to avoid a tumble down teams' draft boards.

"I definitely would have been a top-5 pick," Key said. "Because there was nothing until my last year and then you started hearing stuff. Then, more and more and more. Some of it was true, but some of it wasn't. Like they said I was lazy. Nobody said I was lazy my first three years."

Key wasn't lazy, just inactive for a stretch.

Lazy kids probably don't contact Smith when they are still in high school to ask for professional pass-rush coaching.

That senior year of high school, Key drove 50 miles from Union City, Georgia, to Smith's facility in northern Atlanta. Smith said it was love at first sight.

"I was like, 'Wow ... oh my God,'" Smith said. "It was that sudden movement, that quick twitch, that little jitterbug that running backs have. I have learned things from him that I now teach. I call him 'The Chosen One.'"

Key ran a 4.89-second 40-yard dash at his LSU pro day this spring, but Smith says you can throw that number in the garbage.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Arden is not a 4.4 guy like one of my clients, Von Miller. He is not a 4.6 guy like Aaron Donald. But I learned that in that unique area of five yards, which is all I care about now, Arden Key moves as well as anyone in the NFL. You can't get quicker in five yards than Arden Key.

"He can twist, he can spin, he can recover ... all in five yards. He is slippery. He's like an alligator doing a roll. He can do unique approaches, take two steps and he is at the quarterback.

"He has a special skill set."

Raiders rookie left tackle Kolton Miller had no answer for Key's spin move at training camp. Pro Bowl guard Kelechi Osemele terrorized Key's defensive teammates at camp, but he even was beaten by Key on an inside move.

"He can head-fake, he can bull, he can spin, he can chop, he can bend," Smith said. "Aldon Smith, when he was at his best, could do every pass-rush move, and so can Arden. You can't spin better than Arden can. And like DeMarcus Ware, Arden can spin and come out of it with balance.

"Arden can play inside, too. He would wear centers and guards out. He could drop back in coverage, too. He can play anywhere."

Key feels like he has gotten better every year and credits his work with Smith, especially this past summer.

"We worked on setting up offensive linemen, and we had a couple of those guys in to work with," Key said.

Key came into training camp polished in terms of pass-rush moves, but took a lot of notes, anyway.

"Camp was a learning process," Key said. "It was fun. College camp was way harder. At LSU, we were out there for so long and there was a lot more banging. Camp here was much easier. The difference is the mental part. The attention to detail. You spend a lot of time in the film room, and that's where my transition was slowed down a little bit."

Key said he spends more time studying what the offense is going to do than he ever has.

"How offensive tackles and guards set," Key said. "How wide the tackle is going to kick-step out wide based on where you line up."

Key grew up emulating NFL pass rushers Simeon Rice and Ware, and he has a request into Gruden for some game film on Rice, whom Gruden coached with the Bucs.

"He was big and had speed, but I don't think people realized how well Rice could bend," Key said.

Speaking of Gruden, Key loves the coach's energy at practice and the fact that players can "talk junk" to him.

"I tell him, 'I'm about to hit your quarterback,'" Key said. "And he will say, 'You better not.' Now, I am not going to, but I am a defensive player; I have to put them on edge a little bit. And Gruden really loves his quarterbacks, so he gives me that crazed look."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

And then Gruden smiles.

The first time they met, Gruden told Key this was “a new beginning.”

It’s a new chapter maybe, but Key has not thrown away the first part of the book.

“I commend him for what he’s been through and how he’s managed it,” Winston said. “A lot of people can’t do that. A lot of people won’t do that. He showed courage in admitting that he doesn’t know it all so he went and got help. ‘And I am going to continue to let people help me.’

“And he’s been like that from the second he first walked in the door.”

At the Raiders’ rookie transition program, Key talked about his past with his new teammates, and took a lot of notes during the financial workshop.

It usually takes a while for Winston to see if any of the messages hit home with young players. But he did a fist pump when he saw Key roll into the team facility last week.

“He bought a used car,” Winston said, smiling. “He listened. You see that he has been able to process what we told him. ... Not only did he buy a used car, but he washed it by hand. And he is proud as a peacock of that used car.”

Key is always smiling. When we talked, several teammates, including quarterback Derek Carr, interrupted to give him a hard time.

“Why are you talking to him?” Carr asked, smiling. “He hasn’t done anything yet.”

Oh, but he has.

“I believe in myself,” Key said. “I just gotta be me, stay out of trouble, work hard, have fun and it will be good. And I am not even talking about the sacks. Those are going to come, anyway.”

RB Marshawn Lynch

Marshawn Lynch Is Football's Foremost Ambassador

By Tim Rohan

April 10, 2018

LISBON, Portugal — In early March, when a group of NFL players arrived here on a goodwill trip, the U.S. Ambassador to Portugal, George Glass, invited them to a welcome dinner at the embassy. The players presented Glass with a football, and they all took a group photo, and, when it dispersed, Glass started tossing the ball around the embassy living room near his fine china. Soon, Glass was down in a stance, in a full suit, firing off shotgun snaps.

Wait, Marshawn Lynch said, do that again.

Glass, the white-haired former high school center, got down into a three-point stance, and Lynch, the 215-pound Oakland Raiders running back, lined up across from him. Everyone pulled out their phones, someone yelled out a snap count—"ready, set, hut"—and then Lynch launched himself at the ambassador, wrapped his arms around Glass's chest and plowed him several feet across the room. "He said, 'c'mon, c'mon,' and I thought he was just going to tap me," Glass says. "He, like, drove me back into the chairs. No mercy."

Lynch was in Portugal as a member of American Football Without Barriers, a nonprofit run largely by a group of current and former NFL players, including Breno Giacomini, Lynch's former Seahawks teammate. Each year, AFWB gathers a group of players and travels to a foreign country to put on football camps, do some charity work and do some sightseeing. In 2014, after the Seahawks won the Super Bowl, Giacomini convinced Lynch, Russell Okung and Golden Tate to come on AFWB's trip to Brazil.

While Okung and Tate and others have rotated in and out of the trips since then, Lynch has become a mainstay. He has been on four of their last five—to Brazil, Turkey, Egypt and Portugal—and he really gets into it. He sacks ambassadors, spends time visiting hospitals and orphanages, and teaches children how to play the game physically, the way he does. For most of these people, Lynch is one of the first NFL players they ever meet, and he shows them a side of himself that most people don't see. Over here, Lynch is not the reclusive curmudgeon he's sometimes made out to be in the States. Over here, he is our foremost American football ambassador to the world.

It seems fitting, then, that AFWB's trips usually start with a dinner with officials at the local U.S. embassy, as a sort of welcome assembly. While the other players typically dress up in ties for these events, Lynch arrives in his own traditional wardrobe, sweats from head to toe. His look alone sets a tone for the night and allows everyone to loosen up. "You usually have a reverence or a respect [in those situations], and it always goes out the window with Marshawn," says Pete Hammill, an AFWB staff member. "He's dropping curse words, being Marshawn, not really having a filter. A lot of times the ambassadors don't really know how to take it, so they just go with it. It's funny to see ambassadors just, like, cursing."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

By the end of the night, Lynch has won over the crowd. “The ambassadors are [Marshawn’s] best friends everywhere we go,” says Todd Buelow, the AFWB strategy director. The U.S. Consul General in Rio, John Creamer, liked Lynch so much that, a few days after their dinner he presented him with a few gifts: a brimmed hat common to the region and a cigar. In Portugal, after two videos of Lynch and Glass made TMZ, one of the players joked that Glass was so famous that he could run for president. “Only if Marshawn is my vice president!” Glass said.

In Oakland, Jon Gruden Is Ready to Grind

Going on these trips has helped Lynch expand his worldview. When AFWB visits historical sights, Lynch is curious and asks questions. He can also turn any tour into a party. In Egypt, Lynch and the other players went on a camel ride in the desert, and someone took another video of him that ended up on TMZ. Lynch is wearing a headscarf and rapping while sitting atop the camel. “We ghost-ridin’ the camel right now, you feel me?” he says, bobbing his head and waving his arms.

At the same time, when AFWB visits a local hospital or orphanage, Lynch is often one of the more attentive people there. In Brazil, for instance, AFWB visited an orphanage that did not have access to good footwear. AFWB had the children line up and the NFL players, Lynch included, went down the line washing the children’s feet and giving them new shoes. One of the young boys took a liking to Lynch’s colorful Beast Mode shoes.

Do those help you run fast? the boy asked. I want to run fast.

Well, you have to work hard to run fast, Lynch said.

As Ahmed Awadallah, an AFWB co-founder, recalls: “He started talking about you need to work hard, how you need to outrun people. ‘When you’re in the orphanage and somebody’s running, outrun them.’ ” Then Lynch gave the boy his shoes. “[Marshawn] went back to the hotel barefoot,” Awadallah says.

Lynch also has a special affinity with the younger players at the football camps. In Portugal, AFWB put on a camp for elementary school children, and in one wide receiver drill, Lynch stood in as a cornerback playing press coverage. He’d hold the kids for a second and then let them run and catch a pass. On one rep, Lynch fell back and pretended to be bowled over by a little boy. On another rep, he chased after a little girl in pigtails, who giggled all the way downfield.

In Turkey, an AFWB camper dropped a few passes, got frustrated with himself and started walking off the field, crying and looking for his mother. Lynch pulled the boy, about 12 or 13 years old, aside and spoke to him for more than 20 minutes, and when the boy rejoined the drills, Lynch gave him the sweatshirt off his back. “I spoke to this kid a while after and he was like, ‘Marshawn changed my life. He taught me so much in such a little amount of time,’ ” says Deniz Somersan, an AFWB staffer based in Turkey. “The kid still talks about it every time I see him. He’s like, ‘[Marshawn] really changed the course of my life.’ ”

Football’s Missionaries Spread the Game’s Good Word—and Answer Questions About Its Safety

Lynch will even do things out of his comfort zone if it means advancing the mission of AFWB. That year in Turkey, the Seahawks had lost the Super Bowl after Malcolm Butler intercepted Russell Wilson at the one-yard line. Everyone in America wanted to know what Lynch thought about not getting the ball on that play, but Lynch naturally refused to discuss it—until he got to Turkey. A Turkish reporter requested an interview, and Lynch agreed to answer a Super Bowl-related question, in part so he could promote the AFWB camp. “Typical Marshawn: won’t talk to the U.S. media but talks to some random

guy in Turkey,” says Buelow, the AFWB strategy director. “We were all shocked that he did it.” (Lynch declined to speak to The MMQB for this story on him, nevertheless.)

The Beast Mode side of Lynch finally comes out when the older campers arrive and the serious football starts. As the running backs go through footwork drills, sometimes Lynch stands at the end, waiting to hit them with a pad, to simulate being hit in a game. He doesn’t hold back, either. In Portugal, Lynch hit one running back so hard he fell down and drew a roar from the crowd. “I received [the hit] with honor,” the player said, smiling.

Later on, the running backs were working with the linebackers, going at each other one-on-one without pads, when Lynch decided they needed to take it up a notch. He brought on an extra defender and a blocker, making it two-on-two. “We got anybody that ain’t scared?” Lynch asked turning to the crowd, looking for volunteers. “What [kind of] running back gets scared when they start hitting?” Soon, the drill expanded to three-on-three, and then half the camp was gathered around Lynch’s corner of the field, hooting and hollering over the action. With every big hit, every big collision, Lynch amped up the energy.

At one point, he walked down a line of campers, calling them out.

“Are you scared?”

“Are you scared?”

“Are you scared? Let me see you run the ball.”

“Marshawn wants to hit people; that’s all he wants to do,” says DeAngelo Williams, the former Panthers and Steelers running back who usually organizes the running back drills alongside Lynch. “He loves that aggressive nature. We have a great balance, because I don’t want to hit at all, and Marshawn wants to drill people. Literally every drill we take about five minutes of us arguing, him wanting to do something and me not letting him do it.”

Every now and then, a camper decides to challenge Lynch, the same way someone might pick a fight with the biggest guy in the bar. Usually Lynch shrugs it off, but at his first camp in Brazil, he didn’t. A linebacker had been talking trash all camp, challenging Lynch. “Everybody in the camp was like, ‘No, Marshawn, you’re not doing this,’” Williams recalls. “And he was like, ‘No, I’m not gonna just let this kid call me out.’ I was like, what? And he said, ‘If I let him do it, everybody else is gonna want to do it. I’m going to shut all of this up right now.’” Lynch put on pads and a helmet, went one-on-one with the linebacker, and ... leveled the guy. “You could see Marshawn pull up a little bit, otherwise he would’ve really [done some damage],” Williams says. “That’s when I knew then, he knows exactly what he’s doing.”

At the end of the Portugal camp—Lynch’s fourth—he lingered around and spoke with a group of about 20 of the campers, and one of the more talkative players kept yapping at him from afar. “Don’t make me put some pads on, bro,” Lynch warned. Another camper removed his pads and offered them to Lynch, but this time, he thought better of it.

An AFWB staffer announced that the bus was leaving, and the crowd dispersed. Soon, Lynch was alone on a bench, sitting next to a young man who appeared to have been crying. Lynch waited until almost everyone had left, and then he handed the young man his cleats, wrapped him in a hug, and headed for the bus, having won another lifelong fan.

Why Raiders' Kolton Miller dedicated NFL pursuit to his younger brother

By Matt Schneidman

May 14, 2018

ROSEVILLE — Kolton Miller saunters through the front door, all 6-foot-8, 309 pounds of him, fresh off a grueling workout with his trainer, past the signed Joe Montana and Jerry Rice jerseys framed on the wall to his right. That's correct. The father of the Raiders' first-round pick hangs a pair of 49ers jerseys over a billiards table covered in — you guessed it — red felt.

Miller holds no beef with Dad even if his team is Oakland's Bay Area foe. The soft-spoken 22-year-old doesn't hold beef with much of anyone, for that matter — not the critics saying the Raiders reached for him at No. 15, not being the second offensive tackle taken, not even the fake Kolton Miller making headlines for offensive tweets many Twitterheads attributed to him.

Those who know Miller best know the likely starter on Oakland's offensive line possesses a switch that transforms a carefree teddy bear into a pancake-ing behemoth. He lowers himself onto a brown leather couch, props his tree-trunk legs on an extendable leg rest and explains what motivates him, what really flips that switch. Because it's hard to envision this gentle giant mustering the tenacity to manhandle any human despite his stature, let alone the Von Millers and Joey Bosas of the AFC West and beyond.

Of course he isn't the only offensive lineman with split personalities on the gridiron and off, and he begins his answer as most others like him might. "I like competing. I like going against big competition, but yeah..."

He trails off, then pauses briefly.

"Chad, my little brother, was sort of my motivating factor up until this point."

Chad is 16 and Kolton's only sibling by blood. He was born with Moebius syndrome, a rare neurological condition that mainly restricts facial expressions and eye movement. He qualifies as legally blind, experiences short-term memory, fatigues easily and struggles at times with balance, among other symptoms. Chad wanted to be like his older brother, a football star in their hometown outside Sacramento, but physically could not.

Instead, he became involved with football in other ways: as a cheerleader, statistical know-it-all, coach's helper. His mom's motto: It's not that you cannot do anything. It might be that you can do it in a different way. Still, that wasn't enough. Chad wanted to play, but he got a promise from big brother as a consolation.

Kolton vowed to pursue an NFL playing career for Chad since he was the only brother who could. He wanted to use his earnings, if he made the league, to make life easier for his younger brother, maybe something as simple as paying for rent down the line. His NFL home could very well be farther away than Chad preferred and his finances limited depending on when he was taken, but it was a promise and a plan nonetheless.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“Sometimes it’s not fair”

Kolton was ready to march into the middle school cafeteria to confront Chad’s bullies. The towering high school lineman typically stayed quiet, but this was little brother. Breaking character was only right.

Karrie Miller recalls the incident, and her younger son’s nonchalant response. “No, no, no, no,” Chad said, declining Kolton’s help. “It’s gonna be OK.” He gradually learned to deal with his disability and its disadvantages, understanding he was different but not letting it define him.

Kolton has drawn inspiration himself from the strides Chad has made since an early childhood limited by Moebius syndrome: no sitting upright until 2, no walking until 4, no running in straight lines, only blended foods until nearly age 6.

Kolton didn’t fully grasp the severity of his brother’s disabilities until his early teens, his mom said, and did whatever he could to make Chad feel anything was possible. He often brought Chad around the football team, where he served as sideline assistant, water boy and chief of high-fives. “I think Chad gets to live a little bit vicariously through Kolton,” said Roseville football coach Larry Cunha, who got to witness the mutual benefits of the brothers’ bond up close.

Chad was so involved in Kolton’s college recruitment that he earned the nickname “Bad Chad” from former UCLA assistant Angus McClure for his spunk. Bad Chad asked coaches where his brother stood on the depth chart and about UCLA’s strength of schedule. On a visit to campus, he dressed in the full Bruins get-up for a photo op with then-head coach Jim Mora. The Bruins were courting Kolton, but Chad was part of the package.

“I didn’t realize how big of a part he was of the recruiting process really ‘till the end,” McClure said. “I still call him Bad Chad. He’s a big personality. He speaks his mind.”

Chad hung around UCLA’s summer practices, attended walkthroughs before gameday and stood outside the stadium exit to greet players following games. He doesn’t choose getting a helmet signed by the entire team for his birthday as his favorite memory from Kolton’s career, rather sneaking into UCLA’s locker room on Kolton’s Senior Night after lying that he needed somewhere to stay because he couldn’t find his parents. That’s how much he wanted to be like big brother.

Back home, Roseville coaches knew how badly Chad wanted to play. They added him to the roster and gave him a uniform despite never playing him in a game. Before practices, Chad hyped himself up by replaying Kolton’s best games in his head. “I see him as a football star, basically,” Chad said. He was far more vocal in the weight room and on the field than big brother had ever been, Kolton admits, and took videos and photographs for his teammates on the side.

He’s since hung up the cleats because of his disability — Karrie said he passed out a few times due to fatigue, among other challenges — but still helps out the staff. “They’ve got him in different roles which he doesn’t wanna do,” she said. “Chad wants to be out there in a uniform. In his mind, he thinks that he’s playing football because he has a very imaginative mind. That inspires them and it inspires Chad.”

Chad knows he can’t be like his brother, but that doesn’t mean he’ll stop trying. Following his every move may not lead to a career in the NFL, but watching Kolton live out both their dreams will certainly suffice.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Sometimes as a dad, all the stuff that Kolton did, you'd like to be able to have Chad do it, too," Dan Miller said. "But sometimes it's not fair. He's been a trooper through it all and he's a part of it."

"I just think about him and I'm instantly happy"

Karrie had returned from grabbing the boys food when she overheard their conversation from the hotel room. The family was in town toward the end of Kolton's redshirt freshman year for a UCLA game. Kolton and Chad didn't know Mom could hear them.

That's when Kolton got Chad's approval to chase the NFL, assuring he'd dedicate his journey to little brother. Karrie, hearing a "That's really cool, bro!" from her youngest, peaked into the room as tears welled from her eyes.

"You would think they are much, much closer in age," she said, "almost like they have a part of each other."

Chad may see Kolton as an icon, but Kolton views Chad the same despite their six-plus years apart. Big brother wrote down individual goals on a sheet of paper his second season with the Bruins, and they included becoming a starter and an All-American, though his ultimate goal remained the NFL. Once that became a possibility and not strictly fantasy, Kolton looked to the kid who'd always looked to him for motivation.

"I can be really good at football and go into the NFL and really provide for him," Kolton thought. "(If I'm) thinking like, 'Alright, this is a crappy day,' I just think about him and I'm instantly happy. Or it'll be my last set, I just have to think about him and that kind of gives me that extra juice to beat the rep."

As Chad played vicariously through Kolton, big brother made it his responsibility to succeed so Chad felt like he was thriving, too. All those practices, games and recruiting visits Chad joined in on were only made possible because big brother viewed little brother as an integral part of the process.

That's why when Miller received his generic "No. 1" black jersey after the Raiders took him in the first round, he didn't hold onto it for long. Chad's jersey collection consisted of former UCLA and current Jaguars linebacker Myles Jack, Odell Beckham Jr., Colin Kaepernick and Peyton Manning, among several others. Having big brother's jersey in his possession might top them all.

"It's been pretty awesome, an inspiration kind of, just to follow his footsteps," Chad said. "... Basically the whole experience, hearing 'Raaaaaaaiiiiders' the whole time is gonna be..."

His sentence fades off, which is fitting, because there really isn't one single word that can describe how much Chad watching Kolton in the NFL will mean to them both.

"Being in the media box would be pretty cool"

When Chad first strolled into the living room, he looked fresh off a nap. He slumped into the couch next to his dad, his brown hair parted in the middle and bobbing at either side. Ask him about Kolton's exploits, though, and he's wide awake.

Chad's short-term memory affects hobbies such as cooking, his mom said, in which it's safer to microwave than potentially forget a burning stove. Basic reading, too, has trouble sticking. Post-it notes are used on the bathroom mirror to remind him of daily tasks. His brother's NFL Combine numbers are a different story.

Broad jump? "10'1." (A combine record for offensive linemen.)

40? "4.95."

Bench? "24."

All correct.

When it comes to football, "He'll remember e-v-e-r-y-thing," Karrie said.

Now Chad is fully engaged, reliving and dissecting his thought process at the Miller family greenroom table when Notre Dame offensive tackle Mike McGlinchey went ninth overall to the 49ers.

"I'm like 'Welp, there's only one place where we can go now and that's Oakland.' I probably knew it in my head," he said. "Oakland's gonna pick him. Oakland's gonna pick him. He was either gonna go there or Arizona if the trade didn't happen."

Chad spoke it into existence, and now he'll be at every home game, joining those chants he's already hearing in his head. He was a big part of Kolton's Roseville High and UCLA teams, but being more than just a family member in the stands might be a different ballgame in the NFL.

"Wouldn't that be dope to like..." Kolton starts, offering a suggestion for Chad to get involved.

"Be a water boy over there on the sideline," Dan chimes in.

"No, hell no," Kolton finishes. "Lead the team out ... Maybe in my 10th year, that'd be like the one thing I could ask."

"That would be cool," Chad says calmly, almost as if leading the Raiders through flames under the arch is too low key. "Being in the media box would be pretty cool, though."

Chad has thought of entering media as a writer or cameraman. The Raiders even pledged to reserve a press box seat for a game so he can see what it's like. Chad thinks "that'd be dope" and suddenly he's discovered his ideal spot to watch Kolton's next journey from, even if he's not as close as the ones prior.

Kolton beams ear to ear with a "Hoooooooooooo, man!" An ecstatic Chad makes for an ecstatic Kolton, too.

He's seen his younger brother frustrated, eager, yearning for a goal he can't quite reach. Now he sees him teeming with excitement for one he can.

Remember the motto Chad grew frustrated with? It's not that you cannot do anything. It might be that you can do it in a different way. Now he's embracing it, seeking his own path — with Kolton right beside him after all.

Raiders' Kolton Miller reaches NFL dream to help brother

By Michael Gehlken

May 12, 2018

ROSEVILLE, Calif. — Hospital nurses said Kolton Miller would have topped 10 pounds at birth in Redwood City, California, if not for the C-section weeks before the due date.

At 6 months, he was baptized in a white embroidered outfit. Its size was intended for a 24-month-old toddler. Two weeks before the ceremony, it fit comfortably. By the day of, buttons barely fastened.

From 10 to 16 years old, his shoe size matched his age. His mother Karrie Miller fought his growing pains with massages, drawn baths and German chocolate cake. He and father Dan Miller often wrestled until, once as a teen, Kolton threw Dad darn-near across the width of a room.

"You're not fun anymore," Dan said to him.

Kolton Miller became the tallest active Raiders player at 6 feet, 8 5/8 inches when the former UCLA offensive tackle was drafted April 26 with the No. 15 overall pick. But growth spurts aren't what led him here. Not entirely. He cites his brother as his main motivation.

As a boy, Kolton asked his parents for a sibling. They tried for years in vain. Finally, he was 6 when Chad was born at 2 pounds, 13 ounces. They met behind the glass of a neonatal intensive care unit and formed a strong bond.

Their relationship and the NFL career it inspired now allow Kolton to provide financial security to Chad.

"I'm his number one fan," said Chad, who wore a Raiders hat to school the past two weeks. "And he's mine, too."

"I want him to be taken care of," Kolton said.

A protector

Karrie Miller cannot help it.

She sees some of her own father in Kolton.

Her dad, Glenn Blomseth, was a professional protector. He wore an FBI ring commemorating his graduation from the agency's academy. The 6-foot-4 man, whose Scandinavian bloodlines lent height to Kolton, served as a police lieutenant in Antioch, California, before retiring as the department's interim captain.

On March 26, 2002, he was on call for his family.

A doctor prescribed Karrie bedrest at home in Alamo, California. Complications arose from a pregnancy still in its 26th week. Blomseth stayed overnight. Early in the morning, when complications worsened, he urged her and Dan not to wait for an ambulance, Karrie said.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

He'd watch Kolton. Just go. Hurry. Go.

Specifics regarding the situation are a private family matter, aside to say Blomseth's crisis management proved momentous. Karrie and Chad endured, the latter born minutes upon arrival at a Walnut Creek hospital. Once Chad was home, a proper introduction with Kolton could be made.

It became clear Kolton was a protector, too.

If Chad sat atop someone's lap on a couch, Kolton sat next to them. If Chad was in a baby carrier, Kolton often sat on the floor, playing beside him. Chad was unable to sit up on his own until 2 years old. When needing someone against whom to prop himself, big brother was there.

Chad was born with Moebius syndrome, a rare neurological condition affecting certain cranial nerves linked to muscles that control eye movement and facial expressions. Physical therapy and other medical care often required attention. This meant Dan and Karrie missed some items on Kolton's extra-curricular calendar, including certain sporting events.

No problem.

"We had people who would take him to his practices and things like that," Karrie said. "We would address things with him. He'd be like, 'No, I'm fine. Take care of Chad.' That was his response. 'Take care of Chad.'"

Kolton's maturity extended beyond height.

Before his parents' divorce, Dan and Karrie regularly hosted family functions. Kolton often socialized with adults, not kids, at the parties. His youthful spirit would surface when retiring to his bedroom room for a wardrobe change. He returned in a Superman or Batman costume.

In elementary school, his morality was the stuff of superheroes, as teachers marveled over his willingness to confront bullies. On multiple occasions, Kolton witnessed a peer being mistreated. The tall boy from Redwood City did not spectate. Rather, he spoke up and stepped in.

Such acts included helping female students whose clothes were being pulled or had a ball stolen during a game of Four Square.

"It was how I was raised," Kolton, 22, said. "I was raised to be a good kid. Maybe it came naturally because I was bigger than other kids."

Protecting quarterbacks came naturally, too.

Shared success

Kolton kept an open mind with sports.

He first tried youth soccer but, after a few practices, told his parents he did not enjoy it. They asked if he wanted to quit. His response: "I'm not a quitter."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

He lasted the full season before retiring his shin guards for good. He later played basketball, a more natural fit because of his height, and baseball. He dabbled in track and field in high school, hurling in the discus and shot put.

But no sport compared to football.

Kolton was a two-way player at Roseville High, an offensive tackle and defensive lineman. One of his teammates at the time, running back Matt Razzano, is the son of Dave Razzano, the Raiders' director of football research.

Chad was a four-year captain to Kolton's cheering section, watching games and practices from the stands or sideline. Kolton often invited him into the postgame locker room where Chad effused positivity, individually congratulating teammates on a good game with high fives or encouraging them after a loss.

Coaches at Roseville saw Kolton's potential. Jon Osterhout soon did, too.

Dan Miller reached out to Osterhout, coach at Sacramento's American River College and founder of offseason training program Linemen Win Games, during Kolton's sophomore year. Other alumni from the academy include Raiders defensive tackle Eddie Vanderdoes, who also attended UCLA.

"He had all the redeeming qualities that you look for in a guy who's truly trying to create the best version of himself," Osterhout said. "Extremely inquisitive. Very professional in everything, from being there early to staying there late, asking great questions and really trying to improve himself every single day."

Attention from colleges followed.

When Kolton attended an Oregon football camp, he brought Chad with him. When he made official stops to Wisconsin, Oregon State and UCLA, he brought Chad with him. Over his life, Kolton outgrew shoes and shirts and pants. His profile widened and expanded across the country.

He always brought Chad along.

Chad, 16, now attends Roseville High. Before the draft, he regularly would be asked about his brother. Chad would discuss his strong performance at the NFL Scouting Combine — Kolton's broad jump of 10 feet, 1 inch set an event record for an offensive lineman — or which teams Kolton was visiting.

"You could just see the shine in his face that he was so happy," said Adam Lenakakis, Roseville offensive line coach. "Now that he is a Raider, it's even better because he's only an hour and a half from his brother. He'll be able to watch him in training camp and the preseason and as many home games as they can get to, of course."

The missed game

A graham-cracker square is covered in a cookie dough mixed with marshmallows and chocolate chips. Once baked, the crunchy, gooey result from Cookie Connection, a Roseville-based gourmet cookie company, is the highlight to a care package Karrie routinely presented Kolton and his fellow UCLA offensive linemen when driving to all home games.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

That was until Oct. 1, 2016, against Arizona. No cookies. No Mom and Chad.

Kolton was entering his fifth start at right tackle as a redshirt sophomore. As game day approached, Karrie called Kolton and informed him she'd be unable to travel to Rose Bowl Stadium in Pasadena, California. She and Chad would watch from home in Roseville instead.

On the morning of the game, something felt wrong.

"She mentioned, 'I have this awkward, strange feeling something is going to happen,'" Chad said.

Karrie repeated the sentiment, as Chad tried to assure their mother. But in the second quarter, a teammate accidentally was tackled into Kolton's lower left leg. Kolton heard four pops in his knee. Never before needing surgery, he feared the worst. Fortunately, it was a spiral ankle fracture that did not require a procedure, although he missed the remainder of the season.

Missing the next game irked Kolton most. He could not help Josh Rosen, who suffered a season-ending injury on a fourth-quarter hit.

Kolton was unable to protect him.

"You watch, and you feel like it's partly your fault," Kolton said. "Of course, you can't say that, but it kind of feels like that."

Still growing

While at UCLA, Kolton had a sense he was NFL-bound. He told his parents they didn't need to worry. He would take care of Chad. With an upcoming four-year contract worth more than $13 million, he is positioned to do so.

But Kolton has other goals.

He wants to earn a starting job in 2018, he said. He wants to win a Super Bowl. One day, he wants to wear a gold jacket as a Pro Football Hall of Fame inductee. These are goals he can chase now, potential future moments he can share with his family.

Last year, Chad was among those to visit Kolton for Thanksgiving and a Nov. 24 game versus California. Karrie was preparing for the day when, from a hotel restroom, she overheard her two sons chatting. Kolton waved over Chad and told him he'd be going to the NFL soon. He asked what his thoughts about it were.

"Chad said, 'That's pretty cool,'" Karrie said. "And he said to Chad, 'If you don't want me to go, I won't go.' And Chad was quiet, and he said, 'Did you hear me? If you don't want me to go, I won't go because I'm going to do this for you.'"

"And Chad said, 'No, bro. I want you to go.' And he said, 'OK, I'm going to do it for you, Chad.'"

THE ATHLETIC

As the Raiders set their plan in motion on the offensive line, Kolton Miller has quietly absorbed new lessons

By David Lombardi
August 17, 2018

NAPA — There was little time to waste after the Raiders picked Kolton Miller in the first round of the 2018 NFL Draft and fellow offensive tackle Brandon Parker in the third.

Both rookies trekked immediately to the team's facility in Alameda, where Raiders offensive line coach Tom Cable set the grand plan in motion.

"The first day they were up here after we picked them, I sat down with them and brought in a couple of the veterans," Cable said of Miller and Parker on Wednesday. "I said: 'I'm going to tell you what it is to be a pro.' And then I pointed at the veterans and said: 'And they're going to show you every day how to do it.'"

Miller and Parker were raw youngsters still requiring significant developmental work, and at the time, they were also both too light to stand a fair shot of holding their own in the NFL.

But the Raiders needed help along the offensive line and they needed it immediately: The team had released 2017 starting right tackle Marshall Newhouse in March, and Donald Penn, the main man on the left side, was in the middle of his recovery from foot surgery at age 35.

Meanwhile, Derek Carr, the team's $125 million investment, was coming off the second straight season in which he'd missed time due to injury. As the No. 15 overall pick, Miller's feet immediately dangled over the fire.

So, with training camp over and the first preseason game in the books, how have the first four months in this pressure cooker gone for Miller?

Quietly.

And coming from a position where ruckus is the last thing the Raiders want, that's good news.

"Kolton is the perfect rookie," Carr said on Tuesday. "He came in and didn't say a word. He came in and said I'm just gonna show you that I'm a darn good football player, and that's what he's done."

Yes, there have been some hiccups. Bruce Irvin and Arden Key bested Miller multiple times during practice at training camp. He was flagged for a hold on the third play of the preseason opener against the Detroit Lions last week, negating Marshawn Lynch's long touchdown run (Cable says that he'd like to see Miller keep his feet moving and his hands inside to avoid recurrences of such flags in the future).

But in the larger picture, the Raiders are thrilled with Miller's progress. He's immersed himself in Jon Gruden's complex NFL playbook, and Cable says that Miller, through a diligent adherence to conditioning, has packed on strength from an initial weight of 312 pounds to reach a new weight of more than 320 pounds.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"You can count on him to do the work," Cable said. "And he's still a kid. He's naturally gonna be 335, 340 one day and not look like a fat guy. He's gonna look pretty good as his body matures physically, because he's done everything that we've asked."

Through it all, the Raiders have grown confident enough in the placid, 6-foot-8 Miller to venture forward with him as their starting left tackle, the position which protects Carr's blindside, while moving Penn to right tackle, for at least the time being.

"He's had growing pains and he'll have growing pains, they all do," Cable said of Miller. "But we've been able to minimize those, and when he does have them, he'll learn from them."

Teammates also credit Miller for efficiently absorbing the knowledge that's been showered in his direction — "as a rookie tackle, whether he wants it or not, we're gonna give him some veteran advice," Carr said — like a sponge, and with exceptional efficiency.

But the soft-spoken rookie mostly shrugs off statements about his improvement, redirecting questions about it to answers that veer onto the road of self-deprecation.

"When I look back at it, there are still some things I can clean up," Miller said of his NFL preseason debut, during which he held up well in pass protection. "I was really excited, so I was playing a little higher, so just sinking down a little bit lower would help. But it was my first game, and I was just excited."

Miller may be quiet, but at least three topics of conversation immediately bring fire to his eyes.

One is his 16-year-old brother, Chad, who has Moebius syndrome, a rare neurological condition that hampers facial expression and eye movement. Miller has said that the bond he shares with Chad, an avid football fan whose condition has prevented him from taking the field himself, is one of the primary motivators of his career.

So when the Raiders credentialed Chad, an aspiring reporter, and gave him a seat in the press box for the preseason opener, Miller was thrilled.

"That was really, really cool," Miller, beaming a smile that stretched from ear to ear, said of his brother's experience. "He had a blast. They were handing him sheets of the stats and stuff. I know that he was amazed."

And, in a moment of symmetry that he won't soon forget, Miller concurrently realized his NFL dream on the Coliseum field, directly below the press box where his brother was soaking his own dream in.

"I had a blast putting on the black and silver," Miller said. "I felt like a little kid when that happened."

The third question that thrusts Miller into a more garrulous mood is one about Penn, who has taken the rookie under his wing as a mentor. Penn, still inactive during the preseason opener, advised Miller on the sideline, and the duo's bond has taken root much deeper than that — despite the fact that they're 13 years apart in age.

"Donald's been right there every step of the way, helping me out even during the Lions game," Miller said. "After the first series, after I came out (following the holding penalty), he told me 'don't worry about that call, just go play your game.' He's been so encouraging. He's been the most helpful."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Miller then paused. An earnest look crossed his face. It was clear that he wanted to say more to hammer his point about Penn home.

“I’m really grateful for that,” Miller said deliberately. “I’m very, very grateful for that.”

Miller says that his initial weeks with the Raiders bordered on overwhelming. He fought to stay afloat as droves of complicated information from the new playbook flooded his brain, all while he fought to pack on the necessary physical strength to be ready to assume a starting role come September.

Since job turnover in the NFL is so high, veterans aren’t always the best resources for rookies in such situations, since any advice given to a youngster might be seen as a detriment to self-preservation in the league. And Penn, who tweeted “MORE MOTIVATION” (he has since deleted that tweet) and angrily phoned Gruden after the Raiders drafted Miller, initially appeared headed down the path of non-cooperation.

But Penn eventually calmed down, reversed course, and jumped aboard the Miller mentoring process — even accepting this week’s experimental move to right tackle, which the Raiders hope becomes permanent so that Miller is entrenched as their left tackle of the future.

“I’m not stupid,” Penn said Tuesday. “I’m not dumb. I’m 35 years old. I understand what’s going on here. ...

“But we have a young kid over there that is doing a lot of good things. ... I’m willing to do whatever it takes to help this team win. And if they feel like that’s going to be in the best interest of the team, I’ll do it.”

This has certainly pleased Cable.

“He doesn’t really have to do what he’s doing,” Cable said of Penn. “But if you want to be champions, then you really don’t have a choice. A lot of guys look at this and say, ‘I’m not going to help the young guy. He’s after my job.’

“But in the big picture, if you want to be on the best team, and you want to be selfless, and you want to be a champion, somebody is going to have to make those choices, and when they’re given to you, you’re going to have to choose for the team.

“To me, I’m proud of Donald, the way he’s handling this. And that was the challenge: If you’re gonna do it, then let’s do it with great integrity, let’s do it as a mentor. And I think the whole group has been very good to Kolton in that regard. They’ve all mentored him. But in Donald’s case, not only is he a mentor; he’s also being asked to make a change in his own career.”

Interestingly, the Raiders’ succession plan at left tackle reportedly started with Notre Dame’s Mike McGlinchey, who ended up going to the 49ers with the No. 9 pick of the draft — the selection that they had gotten over the Raiders as a result of a coin flip win at the NFL scouting combine.

So with McGlinchey off the table, the Raiders traded back to No. 15 and instead selected Miller, a UCLA product that they also became enamored with during the pre-draft process.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Miller's height and athleticism were both huge selling points — he set a combine record for offensive linemen with a broad jump of 10 feet and one inch — but off-field details also intrigued the Raiders.

"If you just look at Kolton's whole story: His brother is very dear to him and his illness, just going to UCLA, playing right tackle, then getting hurt and moving to left tackle — all these things that are real-life things," Cable said. "He got through them, and he got through them the right way."

Cable said that the Raiders, intent on finding a rookie who had the personality and drive necessary to develop into a starting tackle immediately, dove deep into the history of Miller's character.

"Who is he? How is he with the other guys? How was he when he was young with the older guys? How is he now as a leader at UCLA with his teammates?" Cable rattled off the questions that the Raiders asked. "And he's the same guy now. The strong, silent type. Always learning."

"When he was younger at UCLA, he'd rely on the older guys. And that's just like he's done here. You were hearing about how well he prepared there, reading his notes, that that's who he was, but now you're seeing it unfold right in front of your eyes here."

On Saturday against the Rams, Miller's acclimatization process will continue in his second preseason game, and this one will come in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, a familiar place for the UCLA product. Miller played twice in that stadium during his college career, when the Bruins were visiting crosstown rival USC.

Now, Miller returns as a pro starter, set to protect the blindside of one of the NFL's richest quarterbacks. Miller has had to grow up quickly since his last time in the Coliseum nine months ago, but he remains the quiet, unassuming learner that the Raiders took a liking to during his UCLA years.

And to illustrate that, Carr remembered the immediate aftermath of Miller's holding penalty last week, the one that negated Lynch's touchdown run.

Many linemen might be flustered after drawing such a flag, but not Miller.

"He still didn't show much emotion when that happened," Carr said, smiling, saying that Miller was simply ready to absorb the lesson and move on. "He basically may have whispered to me: 'I don't know how they called that.'"

With that murmur, Miller's rookie campaign carried on. It's begun quietly, but that's exactly what the Raiders expected, and they're just hoping for more of the same.

Why the Raiders bet the farm on Jordy Nelson

By Jerry McDonald

April 3, 2018

Considering that they let go of Michael Crabtree and signed a man nearly three years older to a contract worth up to $15 million, you could say the Raiders have bet the farm on Jordy Nelson.

The shoe fits, too. Nelson grew up on a farm in Kansas — 1,000 head of cattle on 4,000 acres. He still goes back most years to help with the wheat harvest before training camp and is fond of joking that it takes him awhile “to get back into farming shape.”

This next part is no joke, though.

“It set the foundation of who I am,” Nelson said of farm life. “The hard work, the day-in, day-out grind. Understanding that you have to go to work every day.”

Like our Oakland Raiders Facebook page for more Raiders news, commentary and conversation..

Nelson, who turns 33 in May, isn't being counted on just for running routes and catching passes. The Raiders also think the 6-foot-3, 217-pound wide receiver can help a locker room that seemed to fray last season as the team tumbled to a 6-10 finish.

New Raiders wide receivers coach Edgar Bennett was in Green Bay for the entirety of Nelson's nine-year career with the Packers and he believes Nelson's NFL success began with his upbringing.

At 6-foot-3, Nelson can go up and get it.

“That's the starting point, and the way he is I'm sure came from how he was raised by his parents, being able to stay true to who he was, being disciplined,” Bennett said. “There's a carry-over to his football career.”

Until the Raiders signed Nelson on March 15, their public stance on Crabtree had been that he was in their plans for 2018. But it was clear something had gone wrong in that relationship during the second half of last season. There was the one-game NFL suspension for his fight and ongoing feud with Denver cornerback Aqib Talib and there were times when Crabtree was not on the field when game situations suggested he should be.

The Raiders contacted Nelson on March 13, the day he was released by the Packers. Two days later, he was in Alameda and he didn't leave until putting pen to paper. Crabtree, 30, was released and signed with the Baltimore Ravens.

The swap hasn't exactly been met with universal acceptance, given that Nelson had significant drop in production last season, catching 53 passes for 482 yards and a career-low 9.1 yards per catch in 15 games. In 2016, Nelson had 97 receptions for 1,257 yards (12.9 yards per catch).

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Former Raiders defensive backs coach and Hall of Famer Rod Woodson recently joined the chorus of those who say Nelson has lost a step.

James Jones, the former San Jose State star who played with Nelson in Green Bay, isn't buying it.

"I know a lot of people are thinking, 'Oh, man, Crabtree is younger and better,'" Jones said. "Jordy has a lot left. And you're getting a guy with a chip on his shoulder. He will never say it, but trust me, when he does go out here and have a big-time year, he's going to have one eye on the Packers, saying, 'I told you I can still play this game.'"

In the middle of nowhere, between the Kansas towns of Leonardville and Riley — combined population 1,412 — sits Nelson Angus Farms.

Jordy spent his youth there, glued to ESPN and participating in football, basketball and track — but only after his completing his daily chores on a farm that has been in the family since his great, great grandfather emigrated from Sweden.

Mike Nelson, Jordy's brother and 18 months his senior, runs the farm and Jordy plans on rejoining him some day.

"I want to be my brother's hired man," Jordy told Wisconsin Agriculturalist in 2016. "He can pay me when I work and if he has to lay me off I think I will be able to survive."

Jordy was driving pickup trucks loaded with hay into town by age 12 and operating a combine as a teenager. Green Bay, which became Jordy's home in 2008 when he was drafted in the second round by the Packers, is a metropolis by comparison.

Jones was one of several Green Bay players who visited the farm and experienced the culture shock.

"Every house is three miles away from the other," Jones said.

"There's only one restaurant," he added, "and Jordy owns it."

Nelson didn't make his Green Bay guests get up with roosters and do chores. Players went four-wheeling, played some evening wiffle ball with the family, dropped by the family-run sports bar "Nelson's Landing" and even went golfing.

"One of the worst golf courses I've ever been on," Jones said with a laugh. "No putting greens, just rock. Once you hit the ball off the tee you're in a grass area, but when you get on the green it's always going to take a two-putt because it's all rock."

The fun and games stands in stark contrast to a typical day on the farm.

"You get tired of doing the work when all your buddies are playing basketball," Mike Nelson said. "But after awhile, it's what you know and what you want to do. You develop a passion for it, and the next thing you know you love it. It's a good life."

In between chores, Jordy excelled at Riley County High School in football, basketball and track. In his senior year at quarterback, he passed for more than 1,000 yards and rushed for 1,500 more. But no

Division I scholarship offers came to him, so Nelson walked on at Kansas State, a 20-mile drive his parents had made many times as football season ticket holders.

Nelson began his career at Kansas State as a defensive back until a fateful meeting with legendary K-State coach Bill Snyder.

"I told him I thought he might have a better chance to play a little quicker at wide receiver and that I wanted him to at least think about it, and then come and see me tomorrow," Snyder said. "He said, 'Coach, I don't have to think about it. If it's something you think I should do then that's what we'll do.' "

It was a fairly standard reaction from Nelson, a player from whom Snyder said he never once saw a self-aggrandizing or "look-at-me" moment.

"He is the epitome of consistency," Snyder said. "He's not one way one day and another way the next day. He's the same Jordy Nelson, day in and day out. There's no pretense to him whatsoever."

In his senior year, Nelson caught a school-record 122 passes and was drafted in the second round by the Packers. (The Raiders took Darren McFadden in that draft.)

Nelson's transition to the NFL was gradual. His coming-out party was a nine-catch, 140-yard game with a touchdown reception in Super Bowl XLV, a 31-25 win over the Pittsburgh Steelers following the 2010 season.

The next season, Nelson exploded. He caught 68 passes for 1,263 yards and 15 touchdowns, becoming the prime target for quarterback Aaron Rodgers.

Coming off a two-year run in which he averaged 91 catches for 1,416 yards and scored 21 touchdowns, Nelson missed the 2015 season after tearing his right ACL in an exhibition game. But he was back the next season — all the way back. After catching 97 passes for 1,257 yards and 14 touchdowns, Nelson was named the NFL's Comeback Player of the Year.

Last year's drop-off was at least in part attributable to an injury to Rodgers. His replacement, Brett Hundley, struggled mightily in eight games.

"We're not playing fantasy football," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said. "I realize his production fell off, but so did Davante Adams, so did Randall Cobb and so did the Packer offense when Aaron Rodgers went down."

Nelson dismisses claims that he's no longer fast enough to separate from defensive backs, noting that he was never a burner when it came to the 40-yard dash but has always been plenty fast enough in shoulder pads.

"It's still there," Bennett said. "He still has the ability to catch the football, catch it in traffic, run after the catch, create separation. He can do all those things."

When Nelson visited the Raiders in March, quarterback Derek Carr took him on a drive to the Tri-Valley area where he lives to help alleviate whatever big-city concerns Nelson might have been feeling.

Nelson laughed out loud when asked about the sticker shock of home prices — he is so tight with a dollar he he says he won't spend a single one of them to get the No. 87 jersey he wore in Green Bay from Raiders teammate Jared Cook.

No surprise to his brother Mike, who understands how difficult it is to make a farm work financially: "It's easy to grow up conservative around here because you really learn how to push the pennies."

Nelson's value system, Snyder said, remains intact.

"He comes back home and works on the farm. His family has a restaurant and he works in the restaurant," Snyder said. "That's what I appreciate so much about him. He hasn't let the NFL go to his head. To me, Jordy has not changed. He's not any different the last time I saw him then when he graduated from here. When you get down to it, he's a small-town, working class young man."

Nelson concedes he'll have to get used to Bay Area traffic. But Carr's guided tour served its purpose.

"I mean, we were driving around and seeing the hillside, the grass and cattle and deer running around," Nelson said. "I think there's still that aspect there. But it's also going to be great to be close to the city and be able to go downtown and experience some different things. I think you get the best of both worlds here."
