OAKLAND RAIDERS (3-4) vs. PHILADELPHIA EAGLES (3-5)

GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders will begin a two-game stretch against NFC East opponents as they take on the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday, Nov. 3. Sunday's game marks the first meeting between the Raiders and Eagles since 10/18/09, when the two teams met in Oakland as well. This will be the second time on the year that the Silver and Black face an NFC East opponent, having fallen to the Redskins on Sept. 29, 14-24. Oakland is coming off of a victory at home over Pittsburgh last week, 21-18, while Philadelphia fell at home to the Giants, 7-15, who the Raiders will play next week.

Last week, The Raiders returned off their bye to beat the Steelers at home by a final of 21-18. The Silver and Black wasted no time getting started, as QB Terrelle Pryor took the snap on the first play from scrimmage and ran 93 yards for the score. The play marked the longest TD rush by a quarterback in NFL history, as well as the longest run in Raiders history. RB Darren McFadden also played a major role in the run game, rushing for 73 yards and two TDs. Oakland's defense proved hard to move the ball on, limiting the Steelers to just 276 yards of offense (only 90 in the first half) and intercepting two passes.

Philadelphia comes to town having lost last weekend at home to the New York Giants, 7-15. The Eagles' defense limited New York to just 88 yards rushing and did not allow a TD on the afternoon. QB Matt Barkley replaced an injured QB Michael Vick and threw for 158 yards. Philadelphia's special teams stepped up in a big way, scoring a TD when LB Najee Goode recovered an errant snap on a Giants punt attempt.

Following Sunday's contest, the Raiders will travel East to play the New York Giants next Sunday, and the Eagles will go to Green Bay to face the Packers.

QUOTING ALLEN

"It's great when you get a chance to get a win. You can't ever take these things for granted in the National Football League. They're tough to come by, so for us to get a win, get our record to 3-4, we've got an opportunity with Philadelphia coming in here to get our record back to .500, and maybe we can create a little momentum." -- Raiders Head Coach Dennis Allen

Eagles from the Bay Area

- There is one Eagles player from the Bay Area: TE Zach Ertz (Danville).

KEY NOTES & NUMBERS

Stopping the Run

Over the last four games, the Raiders defense has not allowed their opponents much in the ground game. From Weeks 4-8, Oakland's run defense has allowed just 76.0 yards per game, good for second in the league over that time.

Rank	Team	Rush Yards per Game	Att.	Rushing Yards
1.	Carolina	69.0	76	276
2.	Oakland	76.0	97	304
3.	Green Bay	76.3	83	305
4.	NY Jets	76.8	124	384
5.	San Francisco	83.6	108	418

Running for Distance

QB Terrelle Pryor is now leading the league in rushing yards per carry - by almost a full two yards. Pryor's 7.4 yards per carry is also on pace to be the sixth-best single-season total in NFL history. In 2013, the leaders in yards per carry are 1) Pryor, 7.4, 2) Seahawks QB Russell Wilson, 5.6 and 3) Redskins RB Alfred Morris, 5.2.

RAIDERS VS. EAGLES

THE HEAD COACHES

Raiders Head Coach Dennis Allen

When Dennis Allen became the 18th head coach in Raiders history on Jan. 30, 2012, he promised to field a tough, smart, disciplined and committed football team, noting that organizations win games in the National Football League by more than talent alone.

Allen, 41, is the NFL's youngest head coach, more than six months younger than the league's previously youngest coach, Pittsburgh's Mike Tomlin.

In 2012, his first year as a head coach at any level, Allen guided an Oakland team in transition, posting a 4-12 mark. The 2012 Raiders were defined by offensive, defensive and special teams units that improved throughout the season, laying a foundation for future success.

With 17 years of combined coaching experience at the college and professional levels, Allen enters his 12th NFL season. On six occasions during his 10 years as an NFL assistant, his team earned a playoff berth: 2002, 2004, 2006, 2009, 2010 and 2011. And four of those trips came after division championships: The NFC South with Atlanta in 2004 and New Orleans in both 2006 and 2009, and the AFC West with Denver in 2011.

His résumé also includes football's ultimate prize, a Super Bowl XLIV ring he earned by helping the Saints beat season MVP Peyton Manning, who threw for more than 4,500 yards with 33 touchdowns, and the Indianapolis Colts to conclude the 2009 campaign.

The NFL's second-youngest defensive coordinator when the Broncos hired him in 2011, he coordinated a defense that helped Denver parlay an AFC West crown into a Wild Card win and a date in the Divisional round. During his only year in Denver, despite starting three rookies most of the season, the Broncos improved 12 spots over 2010 in overall defensive ranking (from 32nd to 20th) and bettered their points allowed by eight spots (from 32nd to 24th).

Prior to joining the Broncos, Allen was an assistant coach for five seasons with New Orleans, first as assistant defensive line coach (2006-07), then as defensive backs coach (2008-10). Under Allen's direction in 2010, the Saints' secondary allowed an NFL-low 13 touchdown passes while ranking fourth in the NFL in net passing yards per game (193.9).

In 2009, Allen tutored a secondary that played a key role in helping the Saints to their first Super Bowl victory. His unit accounted for an NFL-high six interception returns for touchdowns and totaled 22 picks en route to their championship.

In 2008, his first year as secondary coach, Allen helped the Saints overcome season-ending injuries to both starting cornerbacks and contributed to a defense that held five opponents under 200 yards passing.

Allen assisted in tutoring the Saints' defensive line from 2006-07, helping defensive end Will Smith become a Pro Bowler in 2006 after posting 10½ sacks and forcing three fumbles.

He originally entered the NFL coaching ranks with Atlanta in 2002, spending four seasons with the Falcons as a defensive assistant. During his stint in Atlanta, the Falcons qualified for the playoffs twice—as a wild card in 2002 and as NFC South champs in 2004—and played in the NFC Championship in 2004.

Allen kicked off his football coaching career in 1996 as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Texas A&M, where he was a four-year letterman as a safety. He worked with Aggies defensive backs for four seasons before coaching the secondary at the University of Tulsa from 2000-01.

Eagles Head Coach Chip Kelly

Following a successful four-year stint manning the sidelines at the University of Oregon, Chip Kelly was named head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles on January 16, 2013. Kelly joined the NFL coaching fraternity after 23 years of working in the college ranks.

His remarkable four-year tenure with the Ducks produced a 46-7 (.868) overall record and transformed that university into one of the nation's premiere football destinations.

Amidst Kelly's meteoric rise, he became the first coach in Oregon's history to guide the program to three undisputed conference championships from 2009-12. Additionally, the Ducks made an appearance in a BCS Bowl game in each of Kelly's four seasons as head coach. In just Kelly's second season, Oregon earned a trip to the BCS National Championship game in 2010.

Not only did Kelly implement an offense with a fast pace, but his schemes also resulted in racking up big plays. During Kelly's tenure, the Ducks led the FBS in big plays, including 25-yard passing plays (220) and 25-yard rushes (110). In his four seasons at Oregon, the Ducks scored a whopping 44.7 points per game.

His 2012 Ducks squad finished 12-1 and ranked fourth in total offense accumulating nearly 7,000 yards while scoring an average of 49.6 points per game. They rushed for 315.2 yards per game while ranking fifth, averaging 537.4 total yards. Their offense ran 1,077 plays in just 13 games, which would have ranked 7th in the NFL's 16-game schedule.

Known as a football junkie, Kelly has a matter-of-fact leadership style in addition to his mastery of the spread offense. Following Oregon's run at a potential national title in 2010, Kelly's leadership was recognized with a multitude of Coach of the Year awards from outlets such as Associated Press, Sporting News, The Walter Camp Football Foundation, and other postseason titles including the Eddie Robinson Coach of the Year, AFCA Coach of the Year, and Pac-10 Coach of the Year.

Prior to taking over as Oregon's head coach, Kelly spent two seasons as the team's offensive coordinator. In his first season leading the team's offense, the Ducks were forced into playing four different starting quarterbacks during the final four games of 2007. Kelly's plug-and-play style was cemented when the team had an impressive 56-21 Sun Bowl victory over South Florida.

Before joining Oregon's program, Kelly served as New Hampshire's offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach from 1999-2006. His offenses at his alma mater averaged better than 400 yards of total offense in seven of his eight seasons and more than 30 points per game in his final four years. As a result, three Wild-cat players received first-team All-America acclaim each of his last two seasons in the Granite State. In 2006, junior QB Ricky Santos earned the Walter Payton Award as the most outstanding players in FCS.

A product of the University of New Hampshire, Kelly earned a bachelor's degree in physical education. He played quarterback and defensive back for legendary coach Bill Bowes at UNH from 1981-84.

RAIDERS VS. EAGLES

EAGLES SNAPSHOT

Overview: The Philadelphia Eagles come into this game with a 3-5 record. After finishing 4-12 last season, the team hired Chip Kelly, the former Head Coach of the Oregon Ducks. Kelly brings a non-stop energy to the sidelines and to his offense. Currently, the Eagles are tied for second place in the NFC East with a record of 3-5, one game behind the Dallas Cowboys. The Eagles are looking to make it back to the playoffs for the first time since the 2010 season.

Offense: The Eagles offense has been bolstered by Kelly, who brings a unique style of play calling and a constant fast-paced speed to each play. The Eagles are fifth in the NFL in total tackles with 66, and is tied for second on the team with two sacks and has also recorded one interception this year. Leading the secondary is fifth-year CB Cary Williams, who leads the team with two interceptions and has tallied 38 tackles through the first half of the season.

Defense: The Eagles are currently 31st in the NFL in yards per game, giving up over 400 yards per game thus far. The defense is paced by ILB DeMeco Ryans, who leads the team in total tackles with 66, and is tied for second on the team with two sacks and has also recorded one interception this year. Leading the secondary is fifth-year CB Cary Williams, who leads the team with two interceptions and has tallied 38 tackles through the first half of the season.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

S Tyvon Branch

- Needs one sack to tie No. 3 Albert Lewis (8.0, 1994-98) on the franchise's career list among defensive backs. He enters the game with seven after recording one against Indianapolis in the season opener.

WR Jacoby Ford

- Needs 20 kickoff return yards to pass George Atkinson for seventh place on the Raiders' all-time KOR yards list.

DE Lamarr Houston

- Needs four sacks to enter the top 20 in Raiders team history.

K Sebastian Janikowski

- Has now converted on 140-consecutive PAT attempts.
- Needs just 75 points to reach 1,500 for his career.

RB Darren McFadden

- Needs eight rushing yards to move into seventh place on the Raiders' all-time rushing list.
- Needs 470 receiving yards to eclipse 1,500 yards for his career.

- Needs one rushing TD to move into sole possession of ninth place on the franchise's career list, and two to tie No. 8 Charlie Smith (24, 1968-74). McFadden enters the game with 22.

WR Denarius Moore

- Needs 210 receiving yards to reach 2,000 for his career.

QB Terrelle Pryor

- Is currently first amongst all quarterbacks with 391 rushing yards. Pryor could eclipse the Raiders' single-season mark of rushing yards by a quarterback with just 139 more yards. Rich Gannon set the mark in 2000 with 529.

WR Rod Streater

- Needs 97 receiving yards to reach 1,000 for his career.

S Charles Woodson

- Needs five interceptions to tie Ed Reed for first on the interceptions list among all active players with 61.
- Needs one INT-TD to pass Rod Woodson for first on the all-time list with 12.
- Needs one defensive touchdown to pass Rod Woodson and Darren Sharper for the most defensive touchdowns in NFL history with 13.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 53rd year of professional football competition, including the last 43 as a member of the National Football League.

In five memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the 2000s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these Decades of Dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL Championship, four American Football Conference Championships, three World Championships of Professional Football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 Championship Games, won or tied for 17 Division Championships, had 21 playoff seasons, finished 34 seasons at .500 or better and played in 40 postseason games.

Pro Football's Dynamic Organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s and have won the most games of any original AFL franchise.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only two original AFL teams to have captured three World Championships of Professional Football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four different head coaches and started four different quarterbacks.

The Raiders are the last AFC Western Division team to go to the Super Bowl.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have totally dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During those memorable 50 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 421 league games, tied 11 and lost only 330.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raider organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

Nineteen of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Professional Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced five Pro Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 62 Pro Bowl players have made 180 Pro Bowl appearances representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-69-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders total domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 37-26-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 15-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the 2000s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

TEAM NOTES

SMOTHERING DEFENSE

Since not forcing a turnover in the first two weeks, Oakland's defense has turned up the pressure. In Weeks 3-8, the Raiders have forced 11 turnovers (6 fumble recoveries, 5 interceptions), which is tied for eighth most in the league over that stretch.

In Sunday's win vs. Pittsburgh, the Raiders defense had at least four sacks for the third time this season, and has now tallied eight over the last two weeks. It was the second time this year with five.

The win vs. Pittsburgh also marked the third time this season that Oakland has held an opponent to three-or-fewer points in the first half.

STUFFING THE RUN

The Raiders have allowed just one first-half rushing touchdown this season. In seven games, the Raiders have allowed just 37.9 first-half rushing yards per game, including just 8 against Pittsburgh in Week 8. Oakland now ranks first in the NFL, allowing just 37.9 rushing yards per game in the first half.

Since the Raiders returned to Oakland in 1995, the team has limited the opposition to less than two yards per carry in a game only 12 times, including three this year. The 1.8 yards per carry allowed vs. Jacksonville, the 1.9 allowed vs. San Diego and the 1.8 allowed vs. Pittsburgh were the third, fourth and fifth time in the last two seasons the Silver and Black have allowed an average of less than two yards per carry.

With a revamped defense and under the guidance of defensive coordinator Jason Tarver, the Silver and Black have limited their opponents to just 3.6 yards per carry this season. That number is good for third in the AFC.

AFC Rank	Team	Avg.	Attempts	Rushing Yards

STARTING FAST

On the first play from scrimmage in the victory vs. Pittsburgh last week, QB Terrelle Pryor raced 93 yards for a TD. Pryor's run from scrimmage was a Raider record, eclipsing Bo Jackson's 1989 run of 92 yards against Cincinnati. It was also the longest TD run by a quarterback in NFL history.

Oakland scored three rushing TDs in the first half (two by RB Darren McFadden and one by Pryor), which is only the second time since 2000 that the team has rushed for three scores before halftime.

Over the last four games, the Silver and Black have outscored their opponents by a combined 59-20, and outgaining them 819-526 in the first half.

NO LONG GAINS

The Raiders are the only team this year to not allow a run of longer than 20 yards this season. The longest gain they have given up on the ground was in the opener when Colts QB Andrew Luck ran for a 19-yard TD. Here is a look at the defenses that have not allowed a run longer than 30 yards this year:

Team	Longest Gain Allowed
Oakland	19
Philadelphia	24
Miami	28
New England	28
Seattle	28
Indianapolis	29

SPECIAL TEAMS SUCCESS

Oakland's special teams unit has been one of the best in the league so far this season under new special teams coordinator Bobby April. When it comes to covering kickoffs, Oakland's special teams has allowed just 19.8 yards per return, good for second in the NFL.

Team	Avg.
Pittsburgh	19.6
Oakland	19.8
New England	19.9
Arizona	20.0

Last week vs. Pittsburgh, RB Rashad Jennings partially blocked a punt, leading to good field position for the Silver and Black. Week 5's win vs. San Diego marked the second-straight game that the Raiders have recorded a blocked kick. In Week 4 vs. Washington, Oakland blocked a punt that they recovered for a TD, and vs. San Diego, the special teams came through with a blocked field goal.

TEAM NOTES

WINNING WAYS

The Raiders are among the elite teams in the NFL, ranking among the top four from 1963-2013 in winning percentage. The Raiders rank fourth with a .559 percentage since Al Davis was named head coach and general manager in 1963, trailing only the Dallas Cowboys, Pittsburgh Steelers and the Miami Dolphins.

5.	Minnesota Vikings	422	339	8	.554

GETTING TO THE QB

The Raiders sacked Colts QB Andrew Luck four times in Week 1, pressuring him from all angles. Four different players recorded a sack in the games - including two defensive backs (S Tyvon Branch and CB Tracy Porter) - marking the second most sacks that Oakland has had in a season opener since 2004. Only in 2011, when the Raiders posted five sacks, has the team recorded more sacks in a season opener. The Raiders have also not had more than four players post sacks in a season opener in that time frame. Here is a look at the top three team sack performances in the last 10 season openers.

ROAD WARRIORS

The Raiders are among the top-performing road teams in NFL history. The Silver and Black rank fifth since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with a .477 winning percentage in games away from home. Oakland is 0-3 on the road this season.

ROSTER TURNOVER

Since General Manager Reggie McKenzie took over the job on Jan. 10, 2012, Oakland's roster has undergone a major makeover. Of the 53 players currently on the active roster, only 13 players were on the team during the 2011 season. Additionally, only K Sebastian Janikowski, the longest tenured Raider, has been with the Silver and Black for more than six seasons.

COMING OUT FIRING

In the season opener at Indianapolis, Oakland came out of the gates in a big way, outgaining the Colts by almost 100 yards, 372 to 274. Additionally, the Raiders rushed for 171 yards to the Colts' 127, and leading the way was QB Terrelle Pryor and his 112 rushing yards. Oakland's 372 total yards of offense was the second-best offensive output in a season opener since 2004. Here is where the Raiders' 372 yards ranks in the last 10 years.

Khalif Barnes is the longest-tenured Raider on the offensive line.

DRASTIC DRIVES

In the Week 5 win vs. San Diego, Oakland had two drastically different drives in the first quarter that both led to TDs. After S Usama Young intercepted a Philip Rivers pass on the Chargers' opening drive, QB Terrelle Pryor connected with WR Rod Streater on the next play for a 44-yard TD. On the next possession, Pryor led a 13-play, 88-yard drive that ended when he connected with WR Denarius Moore for the score. The 0:08 drive was the Silver and Black's shortest drive of the season, while the 8:08 drive was the year's longest. Here is a look at the two TD drives:

Plays	Time	Runs	Passes	TD Play
1	0:08	0	1	Streater 44-yard pass from Pryor
13	8:08	6	7	Moore two-yard pass from Pryor

GLOBAL PRESENCE

The Raiders have a number of individuals with an international background. 2013 second-round draft pick T Menelik Watson and third-round pick LB Sio Moore are the latest additions to an already global lineup.

INDIVIDUAL NOTES

WOODSON RETURNS HOME

One of the most beloved players to ever put on the Silver and Black signed with the Raiders on May 22, 2013, returning him home to the team that drafted him with their first-round selection in the 1998 NFL Draft. After seven years with the Green Bay Packers, Woodson brings his Hall of Fame credentials back to the Raiders, solidifying a revamped secondary.

Woodson grew to fame at the University of Michigan, where he helped the Wolverines capture the 1997 Associated Press National Championship. His individual performance during the 1997 season earned him the Heisman Trophy, becoming the first predominantly defensive player ever to win the illustrious award. He was also honored with the Walter Camp Player of the Year, Jim Thorpe Award, Bronko Nagurski Award and Sporting News Player of the Year.

The fourth-overall selection by Al Davis in the 1998 NFL Draft made an immediate impact in the league, earning the Defensive Rookie of the Year and being selected to the Pro Bowl in each of his first four seasons (1998-2001). During his first stint with the Raiders, Woodson also earned first-team All-Pro accolades on three occasions (Associated Press in 1999, Sports Illustrated in 2000 and Sporting News and College & Pro Football Newsweekly in 2001).

After signing with the Packers prior to the 2006 season, Woodson continued to collect the hardware and add to his legacy. From 2006-12 with Green Bay, he was selected to four Pro Bowls (2008-11), two more first-team All-Pro selections (2009 and 2011) and the 2009 NFL Defensive Player of the Year. In addition to earning the highest honor a defensive player can achieve in a single season, Woodson followed up the 2009 campaign by helping the Packers win the Super Bowl in 2010.

All in all, the resume Woodson brings back to Oakland is impressive: The 1997 Heisman Trophy Award and National Championship in college, eight Pro Bowl selections, three first-team All-Pro selections, the NFL's 2009 Defensive Player of the Year award, four conference championship game appearances, two Super Bowl appearances and one Super Bowl championship. Charles Woodson has returned to the Silver and Black to write the next chapter.

A LEADER IN PICKS

S Charles Woodson, who posted nine interceptions when he won the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year award in 2009, is among the NFL's active leaders with 56 interceptions. Woodson trails only Texans S Ed Reed on the list of active leaders.

SELECT COMPANY

• Only two players in football history have ever won a Heisman Trophy, Associated Press Rookie of the Year, Associated Press Player of the Year and a Super Bowl in their career. Charles Woodson is one of them. The other? Former Raiders RB Marcus Allen.

• Since 1995, only three players have won both the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Year and Defensive Player of the Year awards in their career - Raiders S Charles Woodson (1998 & 2009), Ravens OLB Terrell Suggs (2003 & 2011) and former Bears LB Brian Urlacher (2000 & 2005).

LONG-TERM THREAT

Remarkably, S Charles Woodson has intercepted at least one pass in each of his first 15 NFL seasons. With a pick in 2013, Woodson has joined an elite list of players to intercept a pass in at least 16-consecutive seasons.

WOODSON: QUICK HITS

• Woodson posted an interception touchdown in six-straight seasons (2006-11), becoming the first player in NFL history to do so. No other NFL player has accomplished the feat in more than four-consecutive seasons.

• In 2009, Woodson became the fourth player in NFL history (since sacks became an official statistic) to record at least nine interceptions and two sacks in a single season.

• Is the only player in NFL history to post at least seven interceptions and two sacks in back-to-back seasons.

• Became the first NFL player (since sacks became an official statistic) to record two interceptions, an interception touchdown, a sack and a fumble recovery in the same game when he posted all of those statistics on 11/26/09 at Det.

team.

S Tyvon Branch has been one the most consistent Raiders over the last four seasons. Branch enjoyed a breakout year in 2009, posting 124 tackles in his first season as a starter, leading all DBs in that category. Branch followed it up by leading Oakland in tackles for 2010 and 2011. Additionally, Branch set a career high in 2012 with 146 tackles, good for second on the

BROTHER 'BACKERS

LB Kevin Burnett

Kevin and Kaelin Burnett became the first brothers to play in a regular season game in the history of the Raiders franchise in Week 1 at Indianapolis. The Burnett brothers are also the only active siblings in the NFL on the same team. Kevin, who is eight years older than Kaelin, joined Oakland on March 18, 2013, following two seasons with the Miami Dolphins. Kevin was originally drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 2005 and has appeared in 127 games over his nine seasons. Kaelin originally signed with the Raiders as an undrafted free agent prior to the 2012 season. Kaelin spent the first 10 games of the 2012 season on the practice squad before being elevated to the 53-man roster for the final six games.

JENNINGS' BIG DAY

In Week 4 vs. Washington, RB Rashad Jennings had one of the best all-around days in recent memory. In the first quarter, Jennings broke through the left side of the offensive line to block a punt that was recovered in the end zone for a touchdown. Later in the game, filling in for an injured RB Darren McFadden, Jennings produced 116 total yards of offense (45 rushing, 71 receiving). Jennings is the first person this season to amass over 100 yards of total offense and block a punt in the same game.

THE LEAD BACK

In 2012, FB Marcel Reece tied for fourth among all NFL backs with 52 receptions and second among backs with 496 receiving yards. Reece now has 106 receptions for 1,150 yards and six TDs.

DYNAMIC PRYOR

Making just his second career start, QB Terrelle Pryor electrified in the 2013 season opener at Indianapolis. Pryor combined for 329 total yards of offense (217 passing, 112 rushing) and led the Raiders to one of the best offensive outputs the team has had in the last 10 years. Pryor's 112 rushing yards were a franchise record for rushing yards by a quarterback in a single game. Pryor broke the previous record of 85 set by Rich Gannon on 10/8/00. His 217 passing yards were also the most by an Oakland quarterback since Carson Palmer threw for 273 on 12/6/12. Below is a look at where Pryor's day on the ground stacks up against other QB rushing totals from the last three-plus seasons.

Oakland Raiders beat Pittsburgh Steelers 21-18

By Jerry McDonald

Oct. 27, 2013

OAKLAND -- The enduring image of a 21-18 win by the Raiders over the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday came in the first 19 seconds.

That's how long it took Terrelle Pryor to rewrite franchise and NFL record books with a 93-yard touchdown run at O.co Coliseum.

Some of the crowd of 52,950 were still settling into their seats when Pryor became the author of the longest run in Raiders history, surpassing Bo Jackson (92 yards against Cincinnati in 1989) and the longest by a quarterback in league history (80 yards by Pittsburgh's Kordell Stewart in 1996).

"He's like a dad-gum gazelle out there," right guard Mike Brisiel said.

A lot else had to happen in the final 59:41 for the Raiders to improve to 3-4. The Raiders went into the half with a 21-3 halftime lead and ended up needing to recover an onside kick as well as stop the Steelers one final time after Oakland's offense went stagnant in the second half.

As pleased as coach Dennis Allen was with the win, there was a hint of exasperation in his voice when discussing an interception directly off the hands of wide receiver Brice Butler and a fumble deep in Raiders territory by Jacoby Ford that could have cost the Raiders dearly.

"You're giving them an opportunity to get back in the game, and you can't do that," Allen said. "Good football teams, they don't do that. ... What I'm going to visit with our guys about is you have to understand what wins and losses in this game."

After Pryor's electrifying opening act, the Raiders got touchdown runs of 7 and 4 yards by Darren McFadden, with the Steelers managing a 47-yard field goal by Shaun Suisham before the half.

Suisham would later miss his first two field goals of the season, from distances of 34 and 32 yards, which would come back to haunt the Steelers as Oakland snapped a 10-game losing streak after bye weeks.

Pittsburgh, which came in having won its last two games, fell to 2-5 with its third consecutive loss in Oakland.

"We allowed them to control and dictate the flow of the game and how we started really in all three phases," Pittsburgh coach Mike Tomlin said. "The first 30 minutes of football were poor on our part."

In the fourth quarter, Pittsburgh got the Raiders nervous with a 9-yard pass from Ben Roethlisberger to Emmanuel Sanders and a 2-yard run by Le'Veon Bell with 1:24 to play, followed by Sanders' run on a two-point conversion.

The Raiders defense held up heroically while the offense sputtered in the second half. Oakland managed only one first down in the second half -- an 18-yard slant pass from Pryor to Denarius Moore when backed up against its own end zone.

After rushing for 182 yards in the first half, the Raiders had 13 rushes for 15 yards in the second half. McFadden finished with 73 yards on 24 carries, with 56 yards coming on 13 first-half rushes. The Raiders had 35 yards of total offense in the second half.

Mike Jenkins and Tracy Porter had interceptions against Roethlisberger (Porter's play was originally ruled a fumble recover but changed in the game book), and the Steelers never could mount any kind of a running game (19 carries, 35 yards).

Roethlisberger put up much of his stats (29 of 45 for 275 yards) in the second half while working with a deficit, was sacked five times (twice by linebacker Sio Moore) and at times had difficulty finding open receivers.

"The important thing was for the most part when we got our hands on Ben, we got him down," safety Charles Woodson said.

Pryor, who ended the game completing 10 of 19 passes for 88 yards with two interceptions, called it "a team win, whether we play great or the defense plays great. I think we had a phenomenal first half, and the defense had a phenomenal second half."

Tomlin's big mistake may have been electing to put his defense on the field to start to game after the Steelers won the coin toss.

"Obviously we can't choose to defer a kickoff and allow them to explode, spotting them seven on the first play of the game," Tomlin said.

Pryor sparks Raiders to 21-18 win over Steelers

By Vic Tafur

Oct.27, 2013

It was a spark, not an explosion, that lit a fire early under the Raiders and their fans Sunday.

Terrelle Pryor opened the game with a 93-yard touchdown run, and when the flame started to flicker later, the Oakland defensive players kept up the hitting and friction long enough to hold off Pittsburgh for a 21-18 win at the Coliseum.

The Raiders are a surprising 3-4, so excuse them if the second half wasn't a work of artistic beauty.

Yes, Oakland was so tight offensively in the second half while protecting a 21-3 lead that it barely could walk. But there are no asterisks in the win-loss column, and a team that many picked as one of the worst in the league isn't apologizing for another win.

"Our guys should feel good about themselves," head coach Dennis Allen said.

There is more work to be done, but Sunday's day at the office got off to one of the best starts in Raiders history.

With the team starting at its 7, Pryor took off on a read-option run that was not only the longest in Raiders history but was also the longest touchdown run by a quarterback in NFL history.

The Raiders pulled right guard Mike Brisiel to the left and Pryor faked a handoff to Darren McFadden. The quarterback then broke free to the right and ran untouched down the middle of the field.

"No one is going to catch him," Brisiel said. "He is a dadgum gazelle out there."

McFadden added two touchdown runs in the first half and the defense put constant pressure on Pittsburgh quarterback Ben Roethlisberger for Oakland's first win following a bye week since 2002.

The Raiders had to sweat it a little bit as the Steelers scored twice in the fourth quarter, the first a result of a Jacoby Ford fumble. It wasn't until Rashad Jennings tucked in an onside kick with 1:24 left that Oakland could exhale a little bit.

Pittsburgh actually got the ball back at its 3-yard line with 18 seconds left, but Roethlisberger's 33-yard pass to Emmanuel Sanders chewed up the rest of the clock.

The Raiders have beaten the Steelers two years in a row in Oakland and four times in the teams' past five meetings. Pittsburgh (2-5) will be wondering what could have been if Shaun Suisham hadn't missed two short field-goal tries.

Oakland, which will play six more games before confronting an opponent that currently has a winning record, knows it has to finish better.

"There definitely was some hoo's and ha's" in the locker room afterward, said cornerback Mike Jenkins, who had one of two interceptions against Roethlisberger. "There was a lot of joy in here. We just want to keep it going, stay on the same page and get it next week."

Allen and offensive coordinator Greg Olson were extremely conservative on offense in the second half, and Oakland won despite having one first down and 35 yards of offense in the second half. That's the fewest yards in a half of a win since the Raiders had 35 in the second half against the Steelers in 2006.

"Our defense was playing extremely well," Allen said, "and I didn't want to do anything that was going to give them an opportunity to get back into the game."

The Steelers did, though. They took advantage of Ford's fumble and scored on a 9-yard pass to Sanders that made it 21-10. Le'Veon Bell's 2-yard touchdown run and a two-point conversion with 1:24 to go made it 21-18.

Still, the Raiders' defense continued to make plays in the fourth quarter, with Jenkins and Tracy Porter picking off Roethlisberger passes.

Rookie Sio Moore had two of Oakland's five sacks, feeding off the run defense. The Steelers gained only 35 yards on the ground, the third time this year a Raiders opponent has run for fewer than 40 yards - all at home.

Pryor, 3-0 in home starts, didn't do much after the big touchdown run, finishing with more yards rushing (106) than passing (87).

The Raiders took advantage of a short field after a deflected punt by Jennings to make it 14-0 on McFadden's first touchdown run. His second came in the wildcat formation. McFadden faked a run right and a throw before cutting back up the middle for a 4-yard TD run and a 21-3 lead with 1:55 left in the half.

Pryor threw two interceptions, one on a pass that hit receiver Brice Butler in the hands. Pryor did get the party started, and the defense took care of the food, music and cleanup.

"We are becoming a football team," safety Charles Woodson said. "That's a good way to put it. I think we have some good players that have been assembled on this team, and we're learning how to play together.

"We're learning what each other's strengths and weaknesses are. We're just making some plays out there."

Pryor's record-setting TD run sets tone for Raiders victory

By Scott Bair
Oct. 27, 2013

OAKLAND – Raiders quarterback Terrelle Pryor fooled just about everybody on the first snap of Sunday's game. That included his teammates.

Considering how many men swarmed Darren McFadden, center Stefen Wisniewski assumed the star running back had possession. He didn't.

"I heard the crowd roar and then I looked at D-Mac, and I thought it was weird for the crowd to be going nuts for a 6-yard run," Wisniewski said. "Then I looked up and saw Pryor all by himself headed for the end zone. I knew nobody was going to catch him."

Pryor's 93-yard touchdown run set a franchise record for longest run from scrimmage and was the longest run by a quarterback in NFL history.

More important, it set the tone for Sunday's 21-18 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"That was amazing," right guard Mike Brisiel said. "It got the crowd involved early and got our team going. It was an outstanding play call, and we were as prepared as possible, and everything went right."

"I don't think anyone was close to catching him. He's a dadgum gazelle out there. He broke free, and that was all she wrote."

Rod Streater made the key block that let Pryor loose. Steelers strong safety Troy Polamalu didn't bite on the handoff that wasn't, and he was waiting for Pryor to come around the right edge. Streater engaged and held strong long enough for Pryor to sneak.

Once he reached open field, nobody was going to catch him. Pryor turned on the jets and scored a touchdown vital to the outcome.

The Raiders coaching staff decided to run that read-option play first on Saturday night, hoping that it would give Pryor some early confidence. It worked better than the Raiders could've hoped.

"We wanted to give Terrelle a chance to get in the flow of the game and give him some easy plays to start things out," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "He did a great job of making the right read. When you execute the play and read it out properly, you have a chance to get some explosive plays. I'm glad he was able to run it for 93 yards. That (kid's) pretty fast."

Raiders' Dennis Allen learned from Saints' Sean Payton

By Jerry McDonald

August 15, 2013

NEW ORLEANS -- Dennis Allen remembers sitting at a table at his first staff meeting as an assistant coach with the New Orleans Saints, listening to a voice that would define his future.

"One of the things Sean Payton says is, when you take this staff picture, I want to be able to look back on it 10, 15, 20 years from now and see where guys have gone on to have success, to be head coaches and coordinators," Allen said. "He's always been great about trying to promote his guys. It's something he takes great pride in."

While general manager Reggie McKenzie has restructured the Raiders' front office and personnel department using what he learned working for the Green Bay Packers, the on-field operation as structured by Allen in many ways mirrors New Orleans.

Allen returns to New Orleans, with Payton on the opposite sideline, when the Raiders visit the Saints at the Mercedes-Benz Superdome at 5 p.m. Friday.

Payton hired Allen off the staff of the Atlanta Falcons in 2006 as an assistant defensive line coach. Allen became defensive backs coach in 2008 and stayed there until he became defensive coordinator for the Denver Broncos with Payton's blessing in 2011.

Raiders safety Usama Young, who played for the Saints from 2008-10, can see the similarities between teams run by Payton and Allen.

"The tempo of the practices, the meetings, the way you prepared for things you never would have even considered, they're very much the same," Young said.

Allen said he indeed borrowed heavily from New Orleans, where he won a championship ring after the 2009 season with a 31-17 win over the Indianapolis Colts in Super Bowl XLIV.

"The way we practice, the way we meet, the schedule that we have, a lot of that comes from the time I had in New Orleans," Allen said. "We had a lot of success doing it that way. It's no different than growing up as a child. You develop a lot of your personality, your character, from the environment that you're in."

In much the way that Payton repeated some of the things he learned under Bill Parcells as a Dallas assistant, Allen is passing along things he learned from Payton.

"I catch myself a lot of times with the same demeanor, the same message, even the same delivery," Allen said. "You've got to be your own guy as the head coach, and coach to your own personality. But there are a lot of things I've seen him do as far as managing a team that I've tried to incorporate."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

With Payton being an offensive coach and Allen being a defensive coach, Young has been around Allen much more than he was ever around Payton.

"Sean would come in, draw a couple of things on the board, then he'd be off with the offense," Young said. "D.A., he's in the room with us scheming, adding things, drawing up things."

Allen said he stays in touch with Payton although not so much during training camp. When Payton was suspended last season for his role in the Saints' bounty scandal, he was prohibited from talking with anyone associated from an NFL team.

"He couldn't do anything with anybody, and that was tough, because he's obviously one of my mentors," Allen said.

New Orleans went 7-9 last season with Payton under suspension after winning 37 games the previous three seasons. Allen expects a return to form.

"I think you'll see a different New Orleans team this year with him back," Allen said.

Kawakami: Revamped Raiders a better fit for Dennis Allen's style

By Tim Kawakami

August 14, 2013

NAPA -- This is Dennis Allen's kind of Raiders team, which I know mostly because Allen keeps pointing it out.

He's not saying this is a tremendously talented team, because he's too smart to oversell his current squad of mostly unknown, unproven players.

And he's not critiquing last season's more recognizable bunch, though we can all make plausible conclusions from what he won't say about the 2012 Raiders' 4-12 swoon.

But Allen, starting his second season in the Raiders' massive reboot alongside general manager Reggie McKenzie, is much more in his element in this year's training camp surrounded by players who actually want to be here.

"I think your first year you're really trying to figure it out, OK?" Allen said in an interview after Tuesday afternoon's practice.

"There's a lot of things you deal with as a head coach that you never dealt with as a coordinator, you never dealt with as a position coach ...

"There's no question I feel a lot more comfortable in my role. And I think having the guys on this team that we have, I think, helps me in that."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That's a twofold leap: Allen, the first-time head coach, now clearly understands the totality of his job (and there's no totality greater than inheriting the recent Raiders' mess); and that leads to the importance of gathering like-minded players.

Yes, it probably took longer than he and McKenzie thought it would take to get here, and this is just the start of the start.

In many ways -- new quarterback, new offensive coordinator, mostly an entirely new defense from 2012 -- this feels more like Year 1 in a startup than Year 2.

Still, Allen sees progress -- with his own coaching abilities, with his roster, and with the organization as a whole.

"What I'll say is, I like the players we have on this team," Allen said. "I like the way they come to work every day. I like their unselfishness.

"I like the fact that they want to come out to work every day and they want to try to get better.

"That's what I like about the 2013 Raiders."

For a lot of different reasons, he probably didn't feel much of that last season.

Instead, because of salary-cap constraints and the desire to keep the Raiders as competitive as possible (oops!), Allen had to slalom around the egos and declining production of veterans such as Rolando McClain, Richard Seymour, Tommy Kelly and Carson Palmer.

Now those players are gone. I would assume the woes of 2012 still linger in owner Mark Davis' memory, though.

So McKenzie and especially Allen are under the microscope this season, and Allen seems entirely fine with that.

"As I've moved forward, I've done a better job of trying to pick out who those guys are going to be that can help this team and lead this team and preach the same message that I'm preaching," Allen said.

What's left is a squad with expansion-level elements, especially after the rash of camp injuries that included Wednesday's devastating announcement that left tackle Jared Veldheer has a torn triceps and will be out for a while.

The Week 1 quarterback almost certainly will be journeyman Matt Flynn; other than tailback Darren McFadden and maybe safety Tyvon Branch, there isn't a prime-age star on this roster. "Me personally, I like our roster," Flynn said. "There's a lot of guys that have a lot of talent and probably some names that people have never heard of.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"But I truly believe that they will very soon."

Fact: This is not a quality roster. But a good coaching staff can do more and better things with a roster full of hungry, unproven players than the sludgy group the Raiders tried last year.

"Any time you come into a new situation, it's never exactly how you want it," Allen said. "So it's a process. And sometimes those processes take a little bit of time."

"It takes time to get everybody in place that kind of sees the same vision that you do."

At this year's training camp, Allen has turned toward a more collegiate atmosphere -- most notably, one practice determines whether the offense or defense gets to wear silver jerseys in the next.

The holdovers from last year have embraced it; Allen is quick to name defensive lineman Lamarr Houston and fullback Marcel Reece as returnees who have taken leadership roles this season. Allen also hired offensive coordinator Greg Olson to replace Greg Knapp and dump the zone-blocking scheme, and there were other key staff changes.

Again, this is much closer to Allen's kind of team, at least in attitude and philosophy. It's Allen's stamp on this franchise.

The Raiders probably won't win a lot of games, but they will have his stamp. They need his stamp.

If Allen's going to be on the hot seat in Year 2, he might as well do it his way. And I think Allen is the best shot the Raiders have right now.

KEVIN BURNETT

SF CHRONICLE

Raiders' older Burnett pushes the younger

Vic Tafur

September 4, 2013

Kaelin Burnett was an undrafted rookie at the Raiders' training camp last year, talking to his brother on the phone. Kevin, then 29 and almost seven years older, was a starting linebacker for the Miami Dolphins.

"We were talking about how great it would be if we could ever be on the same team," Kaelin said. "Kev said you never know what will happen, and the next year, voila, we're on the same team. ... Dreams do come true."

Kaelin, also a linebacker, has wanted to be like his brother his whole life, and in Sunday's opener, they both will run out of the tunnel in Indianapolis wearing silver and black. Kevin, signed as a free agent, will start; Kaelin is a backup.

They are the 73rd set of brothers to play for the same team in the same season, according to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, and the first to do so for the Raiders. They will have to buy a lot of tickets for family members this season, but Kaelin said the sticker shock will be well worth it.

"He's the reason I played ball when I was younger," said Kaelin, who grew up in the Los Angeles area. "My big brother plays football. I am going to play football, too. My big brother plays linebacker. I am going to play linebacker, too."

Kaelin didn't make the cut initially last season, but was placed on the Raiders' practice squad before being called up for the last six games. This year, he wasn't really sweating cut-down day Saturday. He was pretty confident based on how he played this preseason, and so was his family.

"My family felt I did way better this preseason than last preseason," Kaelin said. "They felt I looked the part."

They should know. Older brother Kevin has been an NFL linebacker for eight seasons, and a pretty good, underrated one. Playing for the Cowboys, Chargers and Dolphins, Burnett has made 49 straight starts, and his 311 tackles since 2010 rank 17th in the NFL.

"Kevin's done a nice job," head coach Dennis Allen said. "I think he's an athletic linebacker. I think he fills a leadership role for us on defense, and we expect big things out of Kevin."

And, as you can expect, big brother expects big things out of his little brother. Kevin is often yelling at Kaelin during plays.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I love it," Kaelin said. "He's helping me with everything, picking up on little keys. ... It's just great having your big brother here looking after you."

Kevin's pretty tough on him, right?

"Yeah, ever since I was young," Kaelin said, "so I am used to it by now."
Well ...

"It's hard for him to take," Kevin said, "and hard for him to accept at times. I'm yelling at him while a play is going on, and then after the play, and it bothers him to some extent."

Kaelin has gotten a lot better, improving his hand-placement and pad-level techniques and getting off blocks. But not too quickly.

"Sometimes, I get too hyped up," Kaelin said. "I need to extend them first, use my eyes and see where the play is going and then get to the ball. Body control."

Allen said that Kaelin's "a guy that can run. He's still got a lot of developing that he needs to do, but he has a chance to develop."

Kaelin thinks he got better this preseason, and Kevin agrees.

"He's coming along," Kevin said. "I can't ask anything more of him. He is eager to learn and he wants to be good. He wants to be 100 percent on his assignments. Now it's just doing it over and over again."

When they leave the team facility at night, Kevin lists the things that Kaelin did wrong that day, so Kaelin can come in the next day and address them.

"I don't want to be a repeat-mistake offender," Kaelin said.

But, yes, there are times Kaelin doesn't want to hear what Kevin is saying. Because Kaelin not only grew up wanting to be like his brother, but he wanted to be better.

"It's very competitive, I must say," Kaelin said after a big sigh. "I love competing. We try to keep the smack-talking level down, but I feel like I am going to be a better player than him."

"He always tells me, 'Know your role. I am the big brother.' But I feel like in a few years, teams are going to have to look out for me."

Let you in on a little secret: Kevin wants Kaelin to be better than he is, too.

"I want him to be the best Burnett linebacker," Kevin Burnett. "It's not about who's better than who, it's about reaching your potential. "If his potential is better than (mine), I am going to help him reach that."

BRICE BUTLER

SACRAMENTO BEE

Rookie WR Brice Butler impresses Raiders

By Josh Dubow

August 12, 2013

NAPA, Calif. -- Two long catches and a touchdown in his NFL exhibition debut earned Oakland Raiders receiver Brice Butler plenty of congratulatory messages from friends and family.

His response: Ignore it.

Because as a seventh-round pick with little college pedigree, Butler knows that he is just one bad practice or game from transforming from summertime revelation to struggling to make the 53-man roster.

"I don't try to let it get to me," Butler said. "It's just one game. I just have to keep working. If I play terrible nobody will remember last week. I just have to keep working."

That's just the reaction coach Dennis Allen wants Butler to have, saying that he hoped Butler wouldn't read all the glowing reviews from a game where he had an impressive 40-yard catch and run followed by a diving 30-yard touchdown catch on one attention-getting drive.

That kind of performance has vaulted Butler into the mix for a roster spot on a team still searching for dependable receiving options.

"Make no mistake about it; he's been a nice surprise," Allen said. "When you get a seventh-round draft pick like that who's really developed, that's a good thing to have. But at the same time, I don't want him reading too much of his press clippings and start feeling too good about himself.

He's still a rookie. He still has a long way to go, but he's off to a nice start."

Butler knows firsthand how quickly a player's position can change. A Super Prep All-American in high school in Georgia, Butler went to Southern California and had 20 catches his first year and was named to the Pac-10 all-freshman team.

But his playing time dwindled the next two years when he combined for just 21 catches and he ended up transferring to San Diego State for his senior year. He caught 24 passes for the Aztecs on a team that ranked 111th in the nation in pass attempts.

That journey is one reason why Butler is more focused on his mistakes from Friday night than his successes.

"I honestly don't think I played that good," he said. "Until those couple of plays on that one drive I didn't feel good about my play at all. I definitely have to work on it. Watching tape there was a lot of stuff I can work on. ... I definitely just have to build on it."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Butler has the advantage of getting some outside help from his father, Bobby, who played 12 years in the NFL as a cornerback for the Atlanta Falcons.

Bobby Butler can help his son on the intricacies of the NFL game from the perspective of someone who made a career stopping wide receivers.

"Defensively, he tells me what he sees when he watches me run routes or he watches me in the run game," Brice Butler said. "Offensively, he tells me what I should do to trigger different things from the corner and stuff like that. He's always been like that with me. When he realized I didn't want to play corner he has always been there on the side helping."

Butler is on a similar path to the one teammate Rod Streater followed last summer. Streater arrived as an undrafted free agent from Temple who had just 19 catches as a senior.

But he quickly caught the eyes of his coaches with his good hands and route-running and had 39 catches for 584 yards and three touchdowns as a rookie. Streater now has a starting role a year after making the team out of nowhere and is dispensing advice to younger players like Butler.

"We talk about it all the time," Streater said. "He was a blocking guy and had almost similar stats. We instantly connected. I told him, 'You just got to work and when you're on the field, college is done now. This is the NFL. You get a new chance.'"

Brice Butler looks to build on fast start with Oakland Raiders

By Steve Corkran

August 11, 2013

NAPA -- If wide receiver Brice Butler doesn't know about Ken-Yon Rambo, it's worth his time and effort to find out soon so that he can avoid a similar outcome to Rambo's once-promising Raiders career.

Like Butler, Rambo joined the Raiders as a seventh-round draft pick on a team with plenty of receiver depth. Butler also followed the trail blazed by Rambo by turning a late-game catch into a pivotal touchdown in his Raiders debut Friday night.

The key now is for Butler to build upon his fast start and not flame out the way Rambo did in 2001. The Raiders released Rambo at the end of training camp after his lone TD catch was his exhibition highlight. Butler still has plenty of time to bolster his stock.

"He's been a nice surprise," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said of Butler. Yet, what he has done so far is little more than a nice start in the overall scheme of things. It's imperative Butler not get complacent and make too much of his showing against the Dallas Cowboys, when Butler led all receivers with 70 yards on his two receptions.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"We'll make sure we keep our thumb on him, make sure he doesn't read too much of the good stuff (reporters are) going to write about him," Allen said.

Butler arrived from San Diego State via USC, the ninth of 10 players selected by the Raiders in the NFL draft in April.

He joined a crowded field of hopefuls that included undrafted rookies Greg Jenkins, Conner Vernon and Sam McGuffie and inexperienced players such as Travionte Session, Isaiah Williams and Juron Criner.

Making the leap from prospect to the opening-game, 53-man roster entails standing out during practice and games.

Denarius Moore did just that in 2011 and went from fifth-round draft pick to starting receiver. Rod Streater followed suit in 2012 in going from undrafted rookie to opening-day starter.

Now it's Butler who is surging to the head of the class and making a push for not only a roster spot but also meaningful playing time.

Streater said he and Butler bonded instantly because of their similar backgrounds, as well as their college stats.

Players in their situation have to be almost "perfect" to overcome the long odds, Streater added. They also have to put behind them stellar plays, solid practices and good games.

"You got to move on," Streater said. "The coaches want to see improvement every game, and the next game is the most important. You can't live off the past."

That already seems ingrained in Butler, who tired of all the praise from friends and family after the Cowboys game.

"I honestly don't think I played that good," Butler said. "Until those couple of plays on that one drive, I didn't feel good about my play at all. I definitely have to work on it. Watching tape, there was a lot of stuff I can work on."

Butler transferred to San Diego State after his junior season at USC when playing time dwindled. That experience prepared him for the tenuous existence of an NFL player.

"I can't focus on what the coaches are thinking or what the other players are doing," Butler said. "I've done that in the past, and it didn't really go well for me. So, I'm really just focusing on what ... I can do best for the team."

Having a father that played in the NFL for 12 seasons gives Butler an edge in that he has someone to speak with about the process.

Bobby Butler played cornerback for the Atlanta Falcons from 1981-92. Brice said his father passes along tips on what to look for from cornerbacks and how to gain an advantage.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Cornerback Taiwan Jones and linebacker Sio Moore suffered undisclosed injuries, and they weren't able to finish practice.

Gurode and Bergstrom got all the reps because Mike Brisiel and Lucas Nix didn't practice and weren't able to compete for job openings.

Allen said it's crucial for the Raiders to find five reliable offensive linemen as soon as possible, but it's more important to make the proper decisions before the regular-season opener.

Hayden progressing under the microscope

By Scott Bair

October 12, 2013

KANSAS CITY, Mo. -- Raiders cornerback D.J. Hayden's draft status is a blessing and a curse. The No. 12 overall pick makes more than most his age, even with the new, slimming, rookie wage scale.

In Oakland, people know him. His jersey is popular in Raider Nation, with No. 25s all over Oakland Coliseum. On Sundays, that spotlight becomes an electron microscope.

Every pass thrown his way, every catch against him is analyzing and dissected at length. At some points, ad nauseam.

"It comes with the territory," Hayden said. "I understand that expectations come with being a first-round pick, and that you're going to be under a microscope all season. People always have something to say. I don't pay any attention to it, whether it's positive or negative. I'm focused on what I do and what I can control."

Everybody has an opinion on how Hayden should play. He needs to be more aggressive. He needs to be physical with opponents, to use leverage in the bump-and-run. He needs to take better angles in pursuit and tackle with vigor. He needs to this, that and the other thing.

At times, fans forget the kid's NFL career is five games old heading into Sunday's game at Kansas City. He isn't perfect, which is a problem if you're a first-round pick.

The coaching staff isn't worried about perception. They're focused on continued improvement in the pursuit of perfection.

"He's getting better, and he's going to continue to get better," Raiders head coach Dennis Allen said. "I think a lot of times when you have young players like that, everyone wants to jump to a conclusion early in the season. The key is, do these guys continue to develop? Do they continue to get better on a week-in and week-out basis? He's getting more confident in what we're asking him to do and the things that he's capable of doing on the football field. I'm pleased with where he's at. He's got to continue to work and get better, and he'll do that."

The numbers show steady improvement. He allowed 13 catches over the first three games, and three receptions over the last two. That includes last week's win over San Diego, when he gave up one reception on five targets over 68 snaps.

Oh, and he had an interception in the end zone that essentially sealed victory. The pick showed serious potential and the need for improvement. Hayden went horizontal and intercepted Chargers quarterback Philip Rivers in the end zone late in the fourth quarter.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Problem is, intended receiver Keenan Allen beat Hayden off the ball. Hayden let his man slant toward the post without disruption. For a beat, Hayden's man was wide open. Allen called for the ball and, had Rivers thrown it on time, the Chargers would've scored a touchdown crucial to their comeback effort. Rivers held off a beat, which allowed Hayden to close and make an athletic play.

"That was a great play," Raiders defensive coordinator Jason Tarver said. "We hope he can build on that momentum, because that was a great football play. You saw all the guys go get him and celebrate right away. That's how much they like him. We all do."

Tarver appreciates Hayden's improvement, but understands he must push the 23-year old to perform better.

"As long as you're totally engaged and do what you're supposed to do, then the learning accelerates, Tarver said. "If you're thinking about something other than what you're supposed to think about, well, then chances are you're going to lose, but you're going to miss out on that learning moment. And that's when you need to stay in the moment. That's what the great cover guys have. They have the confidence and attitude to say, 'Come on, it's you and I. I like it like this. Let's go.'"

Confidence leads to aggressiveness, which Hayden's coverage is lacking. That's Allen and Tarver talking now, not an impatient fan base. He knows physicality must increase, especially on Sunday against a Chiefs offense that thrives on short, quick passes.

"The goal is to keep focused at the line of scrimmage, and disrupt the timing of a route," Hayden said. "I'll do whatever it takes. There are some situations where you need finesse and speed. Other times you have to be physical at the line. You have to be good at everything, consistently cover well and you have to pick the right spots to gamble a bit and make a big play."

Big plays are coming, probably a bit slower that Raider Nation would like. Hayden has faith in the process, and is confident he'll excel at an NFL level.

"I feel like I'm heading in the right direction," Hayden said. "The last game was a positive step. I'm playing better and better. Each week, I learn something that helps me get more comfortable."

DJ Hayden's maturation continues

By Paul Gutierrez

October 11, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- The aspect of D.J. Hayden's game that the Raiders rookie cornerback most wants to work on?

It's a staple of Oakland's corners from time immemorial ... the bump and run.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"That is something that I'm trying to get down right now," Hayden said. "In college, you can't use your hands that much. But in the NFL you make your job a lot easier if you do."

Hayden is coming off his best and busiest performance of the season, having been on the field for 68 of 75 snaps -- generally he comes in at right cornerback in the Raiders' nickel defense with Tracy Porter sliding down into the slot -- and picking off San Diego's Philip Rivers in the end zone for his first career interception.

On the year, the No. 12 overall draft pick out of Houston has a "burn rate" of 61.5 percent, giving up 16 completions on 26 targets for 178 yards with 52 yards after the catch, according to Pro Football Focus.

In fact, PFF gave him a positive coverage grade of 1.5 against the Chargers, two weeks after a negative-4.9 against Denver, when he also missed six tackles.

Hayden also surrendered the go-ahead touchdown to Washington on a five-yard slant.

"He needs to get tighter, yes, he needs to get tighter," coach Dennis Allen said at the time. "That's another one of those learning experiences for him."

It's all part of Hayden's maturation process.

"With a corner with ability, it's a lot of just trusting in yourself and just challenging [receivers], and just feeling what they're doing and just continuing to work that technique," Raiders defensive coordinator Jason Tarver said. "As long as he learns what's happening, and challenges and competes, gets up there and uses that great ability, moves his feet and get his hands on guys, we'll see what happens. And when he's done that he's played pretty well. When he hasn't, he's learned from it."

"That's what the great cover guys have, 'Come on, it's you and I. I like it like this. Let's go.'"

It's what Lester Hayes thrived on. It's what the former Raiders cornerback wants to see out of his fellow native Texan in Hayden, who nearly lost his life after a practice collision at Houston last November when a heart valve tore.

"He's got sweet feet," Hayes said. "There are great feet, but he's got sweet feet. The most important phase of the bump and run is the bump. You must re-route him. No free passes. That's the phase of D.J.'s game that needs to be shined up. Shine it up."

"Work and work and work and keep shining and work on his bump. Never give a man a free pass."

Now, Hayden said he was "pretty somewhat familiar" of Hayes, but was not all that schooled in The Judge's exploits. To be fair, Hayden was born in 1990, four years after Hayes' last NFL game, a full decade after Hayes had 13 interceptions.

"Sounds nice," Hayden said of a baker's dozen in picks, his eyes widening. "Sounds real nice."

Sounds beautiful.”

It’s how the Raiders expect to describe Hayden’s play in the near future.

THE MONDAY MORNING QUARTERBACK

Robert Klemko

September 10, 2013

INDIANAPOLIS—Tori Hayden had a son, and she raised him as a single parent. She dropped out of college to do it. He chose football, and she didn’t worry about the potential for broken bones or a bruised brain; she was just happy he wasn’t selling drugs or buying them. Football helped raise him, drove him to college, and then it nearly killed him. He’s got an 18-inch scar running down the center of his chest to prove it. But he refused to quit on football, and 10 months after his heart nearly gave out on him, Tori’s son is playing against the biggest, fastest men she has ever seen in person.

Sitting in Section 137, Row 4, Seat 8 at Lucas Oil Stadium on Sunday afternoon, D.J. Hayden’s mom squirmed as the rookie cornerback chosen in the first round of April’s NFL draft made his regular-season pro debut. He entered the game on Oakland’s first defensive drive. She could tell it was him by the way he walked across the field, the way he stood, the way he crouched in position.

“Oh Lord,” she whispered, covering her mouth with her hands. “They’re gonna throw at him because he just got out there.”

Maybe you know the story: Hayden was polishing off a stellar senior season at the University of Houston when one day at a November practice a teammate’s knee struck his chest, tearing the inferior vena cava—the major vein that cycles blood from the lower body to the heart. Most commonly the result of high-speed vehicle collisions, the injury proves fatal for 95% of those afflicted, according to the university’s team doctor.

But Hayden lived—it helps that football teams have medical staff immediately at hand; Houston’s medical trainer acted quickly to get Hayden into an ambulance and to a hospital—and after recovering he was cleared to play football. He was drafted by the Raiders, who many believe gambled with the 12th overall pick. Hayden had an impressive resume on tape, and glowing character endorsements—he was voted a near-unanimous team captain as a senior after only one year in the program, and he finished his degree in sociology while rehabbing the injury in the spring—but several teams took him off their draft boards for medical reasons alone. Plus, even if he was physically OK, could he ever be the player he once was? The Raiders had their concerns too, holding Hayden out of full contact until two weeks ago in the third preseason game, against the Bears. That day, Tori was so nervous for her son’s first play that she reached down and dug her fingernails into the leg of the understanding stranger sitting next to her. On Sunday she was still nervous, but less so. Wearing an autographed, black No. 25 jersey, Tori predicted the play when the Raiders trotted out their nickel package on the first drive.

“That’s what the Bears did,” she said. “Go right at the rookie.”

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

And Colts quarterback Andrew Luck did just that, hitting Darrius Heyward-Bey on a crossing route just before Hayden got hands on him to drag the receiver down after a 16-yard gain. “I knew it,” she said.

Tori was once what you might call a helicopter mom. Born in Kentucky, she dropped out of Prairie View A&M in Texas upon having D.J. She moved to Houston with him and was working for an energy company in town when D.J. went to college, and when word got to her from a coach that her son was slipping academically and showing up late to one of his classes as a junior-college transfer, she came to the lecture hall at UH to confront him. Yet when Hayden was faced with a life-altering decision—whether to continue playing football after emergency heart surgery and six days in critical condition—she stepped back and let him decide.

“I wasn’t completely fine with him coming back, but I told myself he’s a grown man and he can make decisions for himself,” she says. “He knows his body, he knows his limitations and he’s always made good decisions, so I just felt like he could make it on his own without me.”

But she kept watching, and worrying. She’s cautious about asking him about his health; after seeing how confident he’s become, she doesn’t want to project her fears and concerns onto him.

But they were evident as Tori watched each snap from her stadium seat, eyes fixed upon D.J., hoping only that he doesn’t get hurt.

After Heyward-Bey’s first down, the rest of the game was more encouraging for Tori, her uncle and Hayden’s agent, Graylan Crain, sitting side by side. With eight more defensive opportunities in the first half, Hayden shut down his opposite numbers—T.Y. Hilton and Heyward-Bey—and Luck didn’t look his way. On two punt returns he was the jammer across from the punt team’s gunner, but the 23-year-old forgot he was allowed to jam the hopeful tackler.

“At first I just let him run, and ran with him,” he said later. “I realized that I could put my hands on him. I put my hands on him and I think I did good.”

By halftime Tori was alarmed by the speed and ferocity of play, shrieking as Colts linebacker Erik Walden clawed for a forced fumble. “They’re too rough out there!”

But she grew more confident in D.J.—his play and his personal safety—as the game wore on. By the third quarter she watched the Raiders as a whole, with an eye on her son. “Now I just want him to get an interception,” she said. “That’s a drastic change, isn’t it?”

The Raiders led as late as the fourth quarter behind an inspired performance by the defensive line and quarterback Terrelle Pryor. With less than 10 minutes to play, the Colts faced 3rd-and-2 at their own 42 as Hayden lined up across from six-time Pro Bowl receiver Reggie Wayne.

Hayden says he knew what was coming: Luck zipped a slant to Wayne, and Hayden closed fast, making contact with Wayne as the ball arrived and nearly swatting it away. He jumped to his feet in celebration, only to realize a moment later that Wayne had caught the ball for a first down.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That, he says, was his 'Welcome to the NFL' moment.

"I thought I broke it up, but he caught it," he says. "I thought it was good coverage. I've got to work on finishing the play."

The Colts went on to score the game-winning touchdown on the drive, Luck scrambling 19 yards past Hayden (who was in man coverage on Heyward-Bey, with his back turned to the QB—he's No. 25 in the video below) and the rest of the Raiders for a 21-17 lead. Pryor threw an interception in the final seconds at the goal line, ensuring a Colts victory. Hayden went without a breakup or a big hit on a par with his tackle of Matt Forte in his preseason debut—a torquing, slamming takedown that he says was the most contact he'd endured since the injury. This time around he played more than 25 snaps, the majority on defense as an outside corner in nickel. He was targeted three times, giving up three catches for 37 yards and making the tackle each time.

"I wasn't really nervous at all," he said afterward. "I feel normal. I was just happy to be back out there doing my thing."

After the game Hayden dressed in the black slacks and shirt he bought at Men's Wearhouse before the preseason and the black and white blazer he picked up at Express, and shared a hug with his mother, who waited on the other side of a hip-high metal barrier separating family and friends from players as they made way to the team bus. She asked him how it felt: "Like a football game," he replied, bluntly. Head coach Dennis Allen stopped by, hugged Tori, shook hands with her uncle and agent, and offered his congratulations and encouragement to Hayden. Fellow Raiders rookie Sio Moore stopped by too, reminding DJ of his third-down gaffe.

"Next time, see the play before you celebrate," he said, grinning.

Moore and DJ have become close, rooming together on the road and in training camp and now sharing an apartment. While DJ sends mostly one-word answers to regular texters such as his agents and his mom, he has opened up to Moore recently. The linebacker is convinced DJ has mentally overcome nearly dying less than a year ago. Like a shark-bite victim who returns to surfing, Hayden felt he had no choice but to dive back in.

"People assume he's nervous," Moore says, "but he just goes out there with a mentality to play ball. Had he been like that, nervous, that would hold you back. We've had conversations; he's good. He just wants to stop talking about it."

In the media, sure, Hayden answers obligatory questions about the injury with curt-yet-polite one-liners. In postgame locker rooms he prefers to put on a shirt before facing the media, so as not to draw attention to the scar running down the middle of his chest. But at home with Moore he walks around shirtless, and on fishing trips too; not showing off, but not hiding either.

"He wears it with pride," Moore says of the scar. "It's not something he's ashamed of or doesn't like. It's a badge. Whenever he wakes, and especially when we go out on the field, he remembers what it took for him to get here."

Hayden puts heart injury in past

By Paul Gutierrez

May 11, 2013

ALAMEDA -- The last time D.J. Hayden stepped on a football field? He almost died. A nondescript practice collision at Houston on Nov. 6 ruptured the inferior vena cava, a large vein that pumps blood from the lower part of the body into the heart and Hayden nearly bled out internally.

So forgive Hayden if he got a little reflective this weekend as he took part in his first NFL camp with the Raiders holding their three-day rookie camp at their facility.

"It felt like old times," Hayden said Saturday. "I did my usual routine. I came here, took a knee, said a little prayer then just went out there. It wasn't like it took me extra time to get ready. I just went out there and did what I did."

Drafted No. 12 overall by the Raiders, Hayden has been medically cleared to participate in everything the Raiders will do in camp. Including, it turns out, what Oakland drafted him to do -- break up passes.

Yes, it's early. It's a ridiculously small sample size after two non-contact practices to gauge what Hayden can and cannot do on an NFL field. But the fact that he is here at all is a small victory. To be the game-changing cover cornerback in the mold of such Raiders greats as Willie Brown, Lester Hayes, Mike Haynes, Charles Woodson and Nnamdi Asomugha is the eventual goal.

Big talk? Yes. But there's a reason general manager Reggie McKenzie and coach Dennis Allen would have taken him at No. 3 overall had they not found a suitable trade partner to move down.

So it was heartening, so to speak, to see Hayden flash across the field to break up a pass from Tyler Wilson to an unidentified tryout player on Saturday, Hayden seemingly beaten before stretching out to bat away the ball in stride.

It was as pretty as it was simple.

"It helps put me at ease," he said of the play. "As long as I keep making production, I feel like I can get better. Just make plays. When I made the little play I was happy. I should have caught it but there's always room for improvement."

"Corner's basically the same thing everywhere. The coverages aren't that hard. I think I'm picking it up pretty good. I'm just trying to soak in everything coach (Clayton) Lopez and coach (Johnnie)

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Lynn are trying to teach me. I'm just trying to soak it all in like a sponge."

Even as he is nursing a hamstring he strained during his Pro Day.

"So he's still not quite 100 percent from there but he's been out there, working through it," Allen said. "He made a nice play on the ball today. So I'm pleased with where D.J.'s at and, again, it's going to be a learning process.

"It's putting one foot in front of the other and I think when it comes time to play games this September, I think he'll be ready to roll."

Before then, though, will come tons of information to process. And intricacies to learn.

"I would just say getting used to not putting your hands on people down the field because in the NFL you have the 5-yard rule, so, just adjusting to that," Hayden said. "In college I used to kind of push people a little bit so I have to adjust to that."

He was not laughing.

He did smile, though, when I asked him if Brown, the Hall of Famer, had given him any pearls yet, though.

Hayden moved his hands in a quick-burst chopping, north-south motion.

"Yeah," Hayden said, "he told me to move my hands out of my break."

So, what kind corner does he profess himself to be -- off the ball or press?

"Probably a mixture of both," he said. "It all depends on the down and distance and the situation. Yeah, when I get up there I'm going to have to be more physical and re-route them, and then again when I'm at '7,' I've got to play off and I can't touch them. I've got to mirror them."

Talks of his injury, though, have been nonexistent thus far.

"I don't even think about it," he said. "The only time I think about is when somebody asks me. But when I'm on the field I don't think about that. I think about the play and I think about the coverage that I'm in. I put it past me."

If at least, for one weekend.

Raiders should sign Houston to long-term deal

By Scott Ostler

Oct. 23, 2013

Today's Raiders quiz:

- Which Raider is the most vital key to the team's future?
- Which Raider might turn out to be Al Davis' best parting gift to the franchise?
- Who is the only current defensive starter who started for the Raiders last season?
- Which Raider has a blond cap to his Afro, a look he took to help his wife when she was nervous about dying her hair?

Answers: It's all the same man, Lamarr Houston.

Terrelle Pryor has jumped into the Raiders' spotlight this season, the quarterback of the future. Running back Darren McFadden could be a big part of the team's future, depending on what happens the next 10 games.

But Houston, the fourth-year defensive end from Texas, he's the quiet one, an unsung budding star the Raiders have stamped "must keep." Houston becomes a free agent after this season, unless the Raiders head off that headache by signing him long-term, or by franchising him.

The Raiders really, really would like to sign Houston for a long time. Not because he is great, although that potentially lurks, but because he is very good, young, and signing him would send a loud message.

The Raiders will need to do some major recruiting before next season. They have several rental players they might want to bring back, and they'll be looking at other free agents.

Houston is well-thought-of around the league, a popular guy and a very promising player. One website rates him the seventh-best free agent in the upcoming crop. (Offensive tackle Jared Veldheer is No. 9.) If the Raiders take care of Houston, they will send a message: We are a smart, squared-away organization that cares about winning and keeping its good, young players.

Houston declines to talk contract. He deflects all such questions, turning the subject back to team-team-team. He's a gregarious, good-natured fellow, also religious and serious, and nobody's blowhard.

He does, however, admit he'd like to stick with Oakland.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I like this organization," Houston said Wednesday. "I love it here, and when Al Davis drafted me (second round, in 2010) he was someone who gave me a chance when other people didn't. He's seen a vision for me that I'm living right now, and I want to stand behind his vision and help this team win and get back to where they were."

Houston is 6-foot-3 and 305, and when he came out of Texas, scouts couldn't decide if he'd be a tackle, a 3-4 end, a 4-3 end, or what. Davis saw Houston as a pass rusher, and Al had special love for those guys.

"Al Davis took his chances on me and said I could play 4-3," Houston said, "and that's what I'm doing today, and I'm very blessed, humbled and grateful that he gave me the opportunity to showcase my talent. And every day I think about that, and it's something that sticks with me and helps me. This opportunity could have been missed if it wasn't for Al Davis, so I've gotta put in the work."

Houston has not missed a game in three-plus seasons. This season he is filling the leadership void left by the departures of Richard Seymour and Tommy Kelly, and Houston has stepped up his game. He leads the team with three sacks and is on pace, statistically and artistically, to continue his steady improvement.

When Houston talks about putting in the work, he isn't simply talking. He comes from a hard-working family. His mother and father are both pastors, and dad also works blue-collar jobs, including construction and janitorial.

His parents live in Nashville, but they had Houston in San Francisco; he calls it Frisco. Lamarr was the sixth of eight children - five boys, three girls - and he lived in the Bay Area, much of the time in the East Bay, until the family moved to Colorado when he was 9.

Houston was a prep superstar, a 265-pound linebacker/running back. He laughed Wednesday when I suggested he might try a Refrigerator Perry cameo as a running back.

"It would be nice," Houston said. "It would be fun to do something like that, but I'd rather just be hitting guys."

Oh, I mentioned the hair, that blond tuft atop his Afro. Houston's wife was thinking about dying her hair but was apprehensive, so Lamarr told her he'd be her guinea pig. He tries to rock different looks, anyway. He said he likes this one, but is in the market for his next 'do.

The Raiders don't care what Houston does with his hair, as long as he keeps it under a silver helmet.

Raiders' Houston no longer 'little brother'

Paul Gutierrez

September 6, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. – How different will the Oakland Raiders' defense look Sunday?

Consider: Besides there being nine new starters, Lamarr Houston, who is making the switch from left defensive end to the right side, will be the only Raiders defensive player who had a sack last season with Oakland.

Yes, the Raiders had 25 sacks as a team last year, which ranked 31st in the NFL, and Houston tied for the team lead with four. Linebacker Miles Burris, who is on the reserve/physically unable to perform list, added 1.5 sacks. And that's it.

It's no surprise, then, that much is expected this season of Houston, who was voted a team captain along with fullback Marcel Reece and long-snapper Jon Condo.

"Lamarr was a guy that, going into this season, we kind of pegged as a guy that we wanted to be a leader for this team," said Raiders coach Dennis Allen. "He began to take a little bit of that role at the end of last year, and I think he's continued to improve in that regard as we've gone through the offseason and training camp.

"I think he'll continue to develop as a leader for this football team as we go forward."

Selected in the second round of the 2010 draft, Houston immediately made a mark with numerous training camp scraps. But he seemed soft-spoken off the field.

"When I was younger, I had (Richard) Seymour and Tommy (Kelly) here, so I thought I was going to be 'little brother' forever," Houston said with a roaring laugh. "Nah, but as the years have gone by, I could see myself being a captain now. A lot of my teammates respect me and it means a lot to me -- and I'm going to do the best I can to fulfill this role for this team."

So what, exactly, does being tabbed a captain mean to Houston?

"It means it's a lot of responsibility, a lot of respect," he said. "It's a big role to play. It means you're a leader. You basically represent the team when you're a captain, so it's a great honor. But it's more about the team."

And still, there are questions about Houston's skill set, and how it translates to the more pass-rush-emphasized right side.

At 6-feet-3, 300 pounds, Houston is not your stereotypical edge rusher, nor is he a bull-rusher.

"To be honest, I think my skill set fits perfect," he said. "Pass-rushing is about technique; it's not about who's the fastest or who's the strongest. I've been working on that a lot this offseason and it's been showing up in this preseason a little bit and in training camp, so I'm just going to try and build on that and do whatever I can to get better at playing on that right end."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Raiders seek leadership, sacks from Lamarr Houston

Josh Dubow

September 5, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- Lamarr Houston's time in the shadows of the Oakland Raiders defensive line is over.

After spending his first three seasons as the young guy on a veteran line dominated by Richard Seymour and Tommy Kelly, Houston is being counted on to lead Oakland's front.

He has moved from left defensive end to the right side, where he is being counted on as the primary pass rusher on a defense that has no proven player when it comes to getting to the quarterback.

He has also stepped into the leadership void on a defense that will have nine new starters from last season.

"Fortunately I was here with Seymour and Tommy and they taught me a lot," Houston said. "I've been learning and I'm still learning. But being one of the older guys on the line, I just feel it's my job to help the other guys to come along and get toward the vision we want as a team."

The Raiders overhauled their defense after it struggled a year ago in the first season under defensive-minded head coach Dennis Allen and coordinator Jason Tarver. Seymour, Kelly, Rolando McClain and Michael Huff were all cut. Philip Wheeler, Matt Shaughnessy and Desmond Bryant were among those who left in free agency.

In total, the players who won't be on the active roster for Sunday's opener against the Indianapolis Colts accounted for 79 percent of the defensive snaps a year ago.

"He's running that show there up front," Tarver said. "We're excited about what he's doing. He's the one that's running that group and he does a good job with it."

As much as the Raiders need leadership, they really need a pass rush from Houston. The entire defensive roster accounted for just 16 sacks in the NFL last year and lacks a proven pass rusher.

Houston rushed the passer from the left side more than 90 percent of the time last season, according to game-tracking by the Website Pro Football Focus.

"He's demonstrated that he's got the best ability as a rusher," Allen said. "He's a little bit more of a power rusher than he is a speed rusher. But I really think he's a guy that can help getting some pressure on the quarterback."

He was rated the 15th best 4-3 defensive end at pressuring the passer with four sacks, 14 quarterback hits and 35 quarterback hurries. His production picked up as the season went along with 25 of his 53 pressures and three of his sacks coming in the final five games.

He will be counted on to be the team's primary pass rusher to disrupt the opposing quarterback from the blind side.

"Everybody takes pride in getting the quarterback down," he said. "That's one of Al Davis' most famous quotes. Take the quarterback down in the first couple of plays and take him down hard. As a D-lineman I pride myself on trying to get to the quarterback."

Houston has been at his best early in his career as an edge-setting defensive end in the run game. He has just 10 career sacks and is more of a power rusher than a typical speed guy who beats tackles around the edge to get to the quarterback.

After cutting veteran pass rusher Andre Carter to get down to the 53-man roster limit, the current Raiders defense has no proven pass rusher.

The Raiders need an upgrade from the pass rush after having a franchise-low 25 sacks a year ago if this defense is going to be able to slow down opposing offenses.

"I want to be a complete player," Houston said. "Some of the best guys who ever played on the D-line did a pretty good job of both stopping the run and sacking the quarterback. Guys like Deacon Jones, Reggie White, John Randle. I think it's important to be the total player."

Raiders' Lamarr Houston seeks to ignite pass rush

Jerry McDonald

August 26, 2013

ALAMEDA -- Lamarr Houston is aware the Raiders' first-team defense barely laid a hand on Drew Brees or Jay Cutler in the past two exhibition games.

He's not overly concerned.

"We want to get it out there that we can rush the passer, but at the same time, it's preseason, everything is very vanilla and offenses are very vanilla," Houston said. "Right now, you can't really tell how much better we've gotten as a defensive line, but soon, you'll be able to see."

Considering the Raiders open the season with Andrew Luck and the Indianapolis Colts and face Peyton Manning and the Denver Broncos in Week 3 -- both on the road -- the sooner, the better.

Houston and strong safety Tyvon Branch will be the only starters remaining from a defensive personnel purge after the 2012 season. A third, linebacker Miles Burris, has yet to practice after offseason knee surgery.

The Raiders moved Houston from left end to right end, making him the blind side pass rusher, although he'll move inside on some downs with Andre Carter coming in as a nickel rusher.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

A two-week absence with an undisclosed injury slowed Houston's progress. He played Friday against the Bears after minimal practice time, and it showed, and coach Dennis Allen is hoping for better things when the Raiders close out the preseason Thursday night in Seattle.

"I thought he was rusty," Allen said. "I don't think that was his best effort. That just goes to show you it's hard to play this game if you don't get a chance to practice, so I'm looking forward to seeing improvement Thursday night and as we go into the regular season."

Houston, 6-foot-3 and 300 pounds, is not the prototype right end, playing with high energy, a low center of gravity and without the jet-propelled outside rush so often associated with his position. He has 10 1/2 sacks in three seasons at left end and ideally would get that many this season at right end.

"He's a little bit more of a power rusher than he is a speed rusher, but I really think he's a guy that can help in getting some pressure on the quarterback," Allen said.

Houston was a record-breaking running back who also played linebacker in high school in Colorado Springs, Colo., before going to Texas and playing defensive end, then moving inside to tackle as a junior.

Being on the move so often has Houston resistant to being typecast by where he lines up.

"I really don't think of positions like that," Houston said. "I wouldn't put myself in a category as being a pass-rusher or a run-stopper. I just think I'm a pretty good athlete who loves to play football."

JASON HUNTER

Oakland Raiders' Jason Hunter likes living on the edge

By Jerry McDonald

Aug 1, 2013

NAPA -- Living life on the edge as a defensive end isn't the most glamorous job in the NFL, but it suits Jason Hunter just fine.

The Raiders' starting left defensive end loves "setting the edge," a part of the game that doesn't carry with it the kind of fame and glory that comes from rushing the passer.

"Basically setting an edge is getting an extension on that tackle and knocking him back, that way it stops the line of scrimmage so the (running) back can't just get to the edge, and it forces him back inside to where the help is," Hunter said.

Setting edges has been an issue for a Raiders defense that has been run-challenged for the better part of the past decade. Right tackle Khalif Barnes, who has worked against Hunter throughout the offseason and training camp, thinks Hunter is more stout than his 6-foot-4, 270-pound build would suggest.

Offensive tackles blocking Hunter typically outweigh him by at least 30 pounds.

"He's thick, powerful, and he may look smaller, but he's very strong and has good hands," Barnes said.

In most cases, if Hunter has done his job, he hasn't made the tackle himself. Rather, he's set up an interior lineman or linebacker to make the hit.

"He's a guy who just tries to do his part," Barnes said. "If you try and do your part and then half of somebody else's, that takes away what you do by half. Do your part. It's a great mindset and the whole team needs to be like that."

Hunter's willingness to set the edge, as well as his work ethic and demeanor, are what led him back to general manager Reggie McKenzie and coach Dennis Allen.

McKenzie was a personnel executive in Green Bay when Hunter played with the Packers as an undrafted free agent out of Appalachian State from 2006 through 2008. When Allen was defensive coordinator in Denver in 2011, Hunter was a reserve defensive end, having played the season before in a 3-4 defense as an outside linebacker.

On a Raiders defensive line that too often has failed in terms of maintaining gaps and position despite having well-regarded talent, Hunter brings a reputation of carrying out his assignments with enthusiasm.

"Jason loves football, and he enjoys competing," Allen said. "He likes the physical aspect of the game where you're not begging Jason to come out here and want to play. You're not begging Jason to get the pads on."

Hunter was particularly excited to get the pads on this season after spending the 2012 season on injured reserve because of a torn triceps. It happened at a time when Hunter had ascended to a starting position under Jack Del Rio, who replaced Allen as defensive coordinator.

The timing could not have been worse.

"It really hurt me, man," Hunter said. "I thought I was having a real good training camp. It was hard, sitting at home, watching on TV and seeing all my peers from around the league playing games. It made me more focused to take care of my body, do the right things."

RASHAD JENNINGS

Newcomer Jennings takes sleep seriously

By Josh Dubow

August 14, 2013

NAPA – Rashad Jennings takes every precaution he can to keep his body in top shape necessary for an NFL running back.

He eats a gluten-free diet and sticks to organic foods. He stretches every night and has a regular routine of pilates, acupuncture, yoga and massage.

And when the long days at Oakland's training camp are over, instead of settling into a soft bed, the first-year Raider climbs into a hyperbaric oxygen chamber to sleep.

Jennings bought the oxygen chamber as a rookie instead of splurging for a car, thinking it would help keep him fresh and prolong his career.

He admits it "freaks" out some people at first, and the loud noise forced him into a single room in what he calls the "dungeon" of the team hotel at camp.

But Jennings is working on getting some converts, saying at least six teammates are waiting to try out the chamber next week.

"It's not an end-all be-all," Jennings said. "It's not like this is the biggest healer in the world type of thing, but it does heal you on a certain level. It speeds up the process. I love to practice, and I love to stay on the field. It keeps you healthy. Playing this game is important to me. The way I eat and take care of my body is pretty important."

The Raiders are counting on a healthy Jennings as the backup to Darren McFadden, who has never made it through any of his five NFL seasons without an injury.

Playing the role of a backup to a big-play back is something Jennings has plenty of experience doing. He served in that role behind Maurice Jones-Drew in Jacksonville to start his career.

"I tell people all the time there aren't any backups in this league," Jennings said. "The backups are at home. You got to prepare as the starter."

"It's too late to prepare when the opportunity presents itself. I'm a piece of a puzzle. When I'm called upon, I have to make sure I'm making my statement."

Jennings did a good job of that in the preseason opener Friday against Dallas, carrying nine times for 39 yards.

He broke loose for a 16-yard run on a read-option play with quarterback Terrelle Pryor and showed the ability to grind for tough yards, something the Raiders are looking for in McFadden's backup.

Jennings is working his way back from two disappointing seasons in Jacksonville.

After averaging more than five yards a carry in each of his first two seasons, Jennings missed the 2011 season because of a knee injury.

He then struggled mightily last season, averaging 2.8 yards per carry and becoming the 10th back with at least 100 carries to average fewer than three yards since 2000.

"It was a lot of things," Jennings said. "Looking at film, I could've done better, but it's all in the past whatever happened. It's a fresh start as a Raider, and that's what I'm out here to capitalize on."

Jennings entered camp in a competition with sixth-round pick Latavius Murray to be McFadden's backup and seems in position to get that job because of his experience and reliability.

Murray also showed some good signs in the preseason opener, carrying eight times for 29 yards. But he has missed time throughout camp with injuries, to coach Dennis Allen's dismay.

"Being available and being accountable are two things that we have to make sure we're able to be," Allen said.

Oakland Raiders' Rashad Jennings has a healthy attitude

By Steve Corkran

Aug 3, 2013

NAPA -- When Rashad Jennings entered the league, he did what most rookies do when they get their first chunk of money. He indulged in a big-ticket purchase.

Instead of a house for his mother or a fancy car for himself, though, Jennings bought a hyperbaric chamber as a means of helping his body recover quicker and better from the rigors of football.

"I bought one in my rookie year instead of buying a car because I knew this was going to prolong my career," Jennings said.

Sure enough, the day Jennings arrived here for his first training camp with the Raiders, Jennings unloaded the hyperbaric chamber from his car and hauled it up to his hotel room.

The device allows Jennings to sleep in an oxygen-rich environment, which promotes healing of his body. He also is on a gluten-free diet, eats organic foods, stretches every night and delves in yoga, Pilates, acupuncture, whatever has the ability to give him an edge.

The 4-foot-by-9-foot sleeping chamber also tends to make a ton of noise. Hence, Jennings is going solo this year, whereas his teammates share a room with one other player.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

In Jennings, the Raiders are confident that they found a back that can make some noise as a replacement for departed veteran Mike Goodson, who served as Darren McFadden's primary backup last season.

The jury is out, for Jennings averaged only 2.8 yards per carry for the Jacksonville Jaguars last season in becoming one of 10 backs since 2000 to average fewer than 3 yards per carry with at least 100 rushes.

Goodson averaged 6.3 last season, though on only 35 carries. He bolted for the New York Jets in free agency. Soon thereafter, the Raiders pounced on Jennings.

Jennings, 6-foot-1 and 231 pounds, views himself as a lead back, though he has spent his entire NFL career backing up Maurice Jones-Drew. He is competing for the backup spot in Oakland against the likes of Jeremy Stewart and rookie Latavius Murray.

"I see myself just as a complete back, day-in, day-out, getting better," Jennings said. "Never making the same mistakes twice. I'll let the geniuses figure out where to put me on the field."

In a recent practice, Jennings was on the field as a short-yardage back. He showed little difficulty in converting third-and-1 plays during the drill.

"He's done some good things for us," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "One of the challenges you have for Rashad is ... Rashad's a big back, we want Rashad to play like a big back. That will be something we're going to look at as we go into the preseason is him being that big physical presence that we expect him to be."

So far, Jennings is looking more like the back that averaged 5.2 yards and 5.5 his first two seasons, respectively.

In a strange way, Jennings and the Raiders are alike in that they can't wait to put last year behind them and recapture past glory.

"These fans don't deserve that," Jennings said of the team's negative perception. "This organization doesn't deserve it. The city doesn't deserve it. Nobody on this team thinks that's going to happen this year, and we're going out every single day, erasing what happened from yesterday and preparing and focusing on turning things around."

TAIWAN JONES

Former RB Jones thrives in Raiders special teams

By Scott Bair

Oct. 20, 2013

ALAMEDA – Raiders cornerback Taiwan Jones is a converted running back. He made the switch starting this offseason, but the transition isn't complete. The switch from offense to defense will take time, especially with decreased practice reps during game week.

Jones has found a way to contribute in the interim. The third-year pro has become a standout special teams player, especially on coverage units. Blazing speed makes Jones an excellent gunner, who is adept at reaching returners in sync with Marquette King's punt. He generally makes a tackle or slows a return down so others can.

He's been so good that it prompted head coach Dennis Allen to make a bold proclamation.

"If he's not the best special teams player in the league, he's one of the best special teams players in the league," Allen said. "He's a difference maker in all of our coverage units."

Jones has thrived in that role because he's committed to it. He enjoys the responsibility of beating someone one-on-one and giving the defense a long field to work with.

He also knows that special teams is his niche, and it makes him feel a valued part of this year's team.

"It has helped to have a role while I'm developing as a corner," Jones said. "I'm working on that craft, but I'm glad I have some way to contribute to this season's team. The goal is to make a difference wherever I can. Right now, that's on special teams."

Jones believes he can be a starting corner in time. He has the speed, agility – the kid jumped a car in jeans, for goodness sake -- and quick reaction time to excel in the secondary. He wasn't fit to be a running back because of a slight frame and ball security issues, which also makes him an ill fit returning punts.

Without his coverage skill, Jones would've had a tough time finding a role with the Raiders. The kicking game, however, has given him a real jolt of confidence that grows with Allen's kind words.

"To hear that from a head coach really means something because we're working hard every day," Jones said. "Special teams don't really get the glory that other units get, so it's great to have it recognized. It really means a lot."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Jones has so much speed in fact that the Raiders are trying to sync King's hang time and distance in such a way that Jones will already be there to down it. Few, if any, are capable of such a feat.

"We might be biased, but I don't think there's a better coverage man out there," special teams coach Bobby April said. "He's playing lights out. His coverage is fantastic."

Taiwan Jones carving niche at 'gunner'

By Paul Gutierrez

Oct. 16, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- Taiwan Jones, drafted to be a speedy change-of-pace back for Darren McFadden in 2011 before being converted to cornerback this offseason, has found a home on special teams.

And he's made being a gunner on the Raiders' punt-coverage teams somewhat fashionable.

"I think Taiwan Jones, if he's not the best special-teams player in the league, he's one of the best in the league," said Raiders coach Dennis Allen. "He's a difference-maker in all of our coverage units.

"The type of speed that he's got, his willingness to go down and create contact and make tackles ... those are the things that you have to have and I think he's done an outstanding job."

Besides disrupting punt returners, often while being double-teamed, Jones has also flashed his world-class speed. On a trick play against Washington, he took the direct snap from Jon Condo after the Raiders shifted into a formation out of a punt with Jacoby Ford just off center. Jones then sped off for a 19-yard gain and a first down.

And, yes, while there was satisfaction in bursting down the left sideline on that play, his main job description is to blow up punt returns. And the way he's been playing the position of late -- he has five tackles on the season, including two at Kansas City last weekend -- he is getting satisfaction out of it.

"I have a lot of pleasure," he said. "I'm having fun out there. Being a gunner, it's one of those positions where it's not too much scheming; it's just man on man, mano y mano out there, and whoever has the most effort out there is going to win. That's one thing I enjoy."

Sunday, he limited Dexter McCluster to a 1-yard punt return off a Marquette King 50-yard punt in the third quarter before stopping McCluster for a 7-yard gain on a 51-yard King punt in the fourth.

"You've got to watch film," Jones said. "You've got to learn other team's tendencies, key into some of the clues they give you and use them to your advantage.”

Jones said his goal is to make the Pro Bowl as a special-teamer.

“I’m shooting to be the best at what I’m doing right now,” he said.

Allen obviously believes Jones is coming through on that promise.

“It means a lot because when you’re putting it out on the field every day,” Jones said, “it’s good to see your head coach notice that.”

Jones is making it easy for Allen, and opponents, to notice.

Oakland hopes fleet Jones is a fast learner

By Josh Dubow

August 19, 2013

NAPA – Taiwan Jones' NFL career got off to a slow start when a variety of injuries and the inability to hold onto the ball kept him off the field for much of his first two seasons with the Raiders.

Now the former running back with sprinter's speed is getting a second chance at establishing himself as an NFL player following a switch to cornerback.

While his coverage skills are still a bit raw after not playing cornerback since his freshman year at Eastern Washington, Jones still has the blazing speed that tantalized the Raiders those last two years.

Combined with his stellar coverage skills on special teams, Jones is making a strong bid to make the team at a second position.

"I'm still just happy to be on the roster," Jones said. "If I can help the team on defense, I'm willing to do it. I was kind of upset that I couldn't show everybody what kind of running back I could be, but I think it's a good thing as far as my career."

Jones was drafted by the Raiders in the fourth round in 2011 after rushing for 2,955 yards (7.7 average) and scoring 36 touchdowns in two seasons at Eastern Washington.

Those gaudy statistics, a 4.33-second 40-yard dash before the draft and the fact Jones is a Bay Area native made him a fan favorite, but it never translated to success on the field.

A variety of minor injuries and a propensity to fumble in the preseason made it hard for Jones to earn the trust of his coaches.

He had 22 rushes for 94 yards, four catches for 36 yards and 10 kick returns for 187 yards in 24 games but never made it into the end zone.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That led to the position switch in the offseason, and the Raiders hope Jones proves better at preventing touchdowns than he did at scoring them. He hasn't quite reached that point yet despite allowing just three catches on seven throws in his direction so far in the preseason, according to Pro Football Focus. But he also committed a long pass-interference penalty.

Jones was given a scholarship to play cornerback in college but switched to offense in his second season. His college coaches thought he'd be converted back to cornerback in the NFL, and Jones was prepared for the switch when it happened.

Now he has two more preseason games to show he should stick there when the season starts.

"He's as athletic as anybody you'll ever see on the football field, but it's different," teammate Charles Woodson said. "It's different from offense to defense and learning a new position and them expecting you to just be able to do it. That's hard for a young guy like him."

Taiwan Jones having fun, making plays at corner back

By Vic Tafur

August 11, 2013

Taiwan Jones is trying to pull off something as cool and rare as his name – switching from running back to cornerback, in the NFL.

Putting the ball on the ground will no longer be seen as a liability.

Jones has made some plays at the Raiders' training camp and in Friday's preseason opener, and is having fun making the coaches see him a whole new light.

"I was just excited to still be on the roster," said Jones, who had fumbling issues at practice last season and couldn't get on the field even when starter Darren McFadden and backup Mike Goodson were injured.

"I was kind of upset I couldn't show everybody what kind of running back I could be but I think it's a good thing as far as my career, said Jones, who finishes with four career carries for 36 yards. "It's going pretty good, and I am having fun."

The 2011 fourth-round pick has the size (6-foot, 194 pounds) and speed (4.33 40-yard dash) to pull this off.

"He's got that physical ability to play the game," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "There are still a lot of things that we have to get cleaned up. Just understating how to play the cornerback position from alignments, assignments and stuff like that.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

“He’s pretty solid on his assignments, but they’re still just some details to the position that we have to continue to work with him on.”

Allen said backup cornerback Chimdi Chekwa has also improved at what is a very crowded position. Veterans Tracy Porter and Mike Jenkins are penciled in as the starters, with first-round pick D.J. Hayden still not being cleared for contact after abdomen surgery. And Joselio Hanson and Phillip Adams are back from last season.

But Jones has a special gift that those guys don’t have.

“Taiwan is exceptional on special teams,” Allen said. “You watch the first kickoff of the game (Friday), and he goes down there and he’s on the 10-yard line when the returner is just starting to return the ball, so that’s something that you can’t discount.”

Jones, who missed Sunday’s practice with a minor injury, showed his good pursuit skills on special teams last season, and it’s not just natural instincts.

The Antioch native was given a scholarship to Eastern Washington to play cornerback, and didn’t make the switch to running back until his sophomore season. Jones rushed for 1,742 yards to lead the Eagles to the NCAA FCS national championship his junior year, and then turned pro.

“A lot of my college coaches, they thought once I made it to the NFL that I would be converted to a corner,” Jones said. “So, that’s kind of my mindset and what I thought also. So, when I got drafted as running back, it came to me somewhat as a surprise.”

He has had a handful of interceptions at camp, as he reacts well and has exceptional closing speed. The rest is getting used to what receivers are trying to do, and that comes from watching film and getting reps in practice.

“I am learning something new every day,” Jones said. “I still have to work on my leverage and getting my eyes in the right places.” Off the field, Jones has always looked at things from a positive perspective, even during a tough 2012 season.

“When you make your work fun, you can do a lot of great things,” he said.

Besides Jones, linebackers Sio Moore and Keenan Clayton, running back Latavius Murray and WR Juron Criner also sat out Sunday with injuries from Friday’s game.

“I don’t expect those guys to miss a lot of time,” Allen said.

Taiwan Jones working through tough position switch

By Scott Bair

August 5, 2013

NAPA – Taiwan Jones made an excellent play on a receiver he wasn't even covering. The Raiders cornerback saw Terrelle Pryor's pass directed away from his path, so he stopped in an instant, dove back and rendered the ball incomplete. It was a veteran move, a cagy breakup expected of a lifelong corner. Not bad for a novice.

Jones has been playing cornerback just a few months now, after the Raiders suggested he convert from running back. Jones was stuck down on the depth chart without hope of promotion, so head coach Dennis Allen asked him to man a position he hadn't played since high school.

Jones was a quality corner back in his youth, and never considered a switch at the professional level. In order to remain a Raider, Jones was willing to try anything.

"I'm still just happy to be on the roster," Jones said. "Whatever I can do to help the team and if I can help the team on defense then I'm willing to do it. I was kind of upset that I couldn't show everybody what kind of running back I could be, but I think it's a good thing as far as my career."

It's incredibly difficult to learn a position while fighting for a roster spot. He's typically working with the third team, with players likely cut by September. Jones is an excellent special teams player, which could help him carve a niche while he develops as a corner.

"I will say this. It's a tough transition," coach Dennis Allen said. "He's been playing running back, and then all of a sudden we put him on the other side of the ball and start working him at corner, but I think he's doing a nice job. He is still behind, though."

"But the other thing I think you have to understand about Taiwan is, [that] Taiwan is probably one of the better special teams players in the league. I think that's always going to come down and be a factor when we start looking at the roster. I think special teams will be a big factor in that for him."

Allen sees potential in this position switch.

While technical aspects are being learned each day, Jones has the quick reaction time required to be a quality defensive back. His acrobatic pass breakup is proof of that.

"Playing corner feels really natural," Jones said. "But there are things working through. I do have to work on using my leverage to my advantage and getting my eyes in the right places. I need to keep progressing, but I feel like I'm getting there."

Motivated McFadden 'owes Raiders fantastic season'

Scott Bair

September 5, 2013

Darren McFadden hears you talking.

The Raiders feature running back knows you call him injury prone. He knows you think his best football is behind him.

That's okay. Everyone's entitled to an opinion. It won't change the way he plays football.

He takes the negativity, bottles it up and turns it into fuel.

"I feel I've shown glimpses of what I can do," McFadden said, "but I still think my best football is ahead of me."

McFadden has reason to believe a career year is upon him. He's in the best shape of his life. He's working in a downhill, gap-control running scheme that suits his rushing style.

It's tailor-made for McFadden, a fact not lost on the former first-round pick.

"The organization has shown tremendous faith in me, and I'm very grateful for that," McFadden said. "I feel like it shows real faith in me and in this offense as a whole. They clearly have confidence in my ability and what I can do in a downhill running scheme.

I'm so excited to be able to run in this type of offense again. I feel like I owe the Raiders a fantastic season."

McFadden can only do that by staying healthy. He's been hurt in each professional season, making durability the biggest knock on this undeniable talent.

McFadden doesn't like being called injury prone. Hates it in fact. But he doesn't let it psyche him out.

"I just let it roll off my back," McFadden said. "But, at the same time, you can't help but think about it. I don't want to be known or thought of as injury prone, but I have gotten hurt. It's not going to change how I play the game. If I get hurt, then I get hurt. Those things happen. I'm going to play hard."

McFadden is also going to play fast. He has the speed of a less weathered back, the strength of a short-yardage back and the agility of a big-play maker.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Fans haven't seen that because McFadden has been extremely limited during a preseason where health is the only concern. Coaches have.

"I see the speed, I see that from Darren McFadden," Raiders offensive coordinator Greg Olson said. "We haven't gotten into any real live performance where he's going to go in and carry it 20 times a game but I don't see wear and tear on this running back, I don't see a decline in speed.

"We'll get a chance to see when the regular season gets going but we still believe that we have a real fine running back."

McFadden didn't live up to that billing last season. He averaged a career-worst 3.3 yards per carry and scored just three touchdowns. Then-coordinator Greg Kanpp's zone-blocking became the scapegoat for such a performance, especially after McFadden averaged 5.3 yards per carry in the two previous seasons.

The scheme was a source of aggravation for McFadden and the offense. He admits the season wore on his psyche.

McFadden enters this season with renewed optimism about this team.

"I think we're being underestimated," McFadden said. "We're better than most people think. I think we'll win some games and prove some of our doubters wrong."

McFadden is speaking for the Raiders and himself. He considers this the most important season of his career. A second straight bomb will kill his street cred and his earning power.

He enters a contract year looking for one more big payday. He prefers his checks signed by a Davis. If he doesn't perform, that won't happen. If he doesn't perform well, a long-term contract is out of the cards, maybe forever.

"It's going to enhance your motivation. How could it not?" McFadden said. "It's in the back of your head, but I'm still focused on football. I know that, if I take care of business on the field, everything else will fall in line."

This training camp hasn't lined up perfectly. His best blocker, left tackle Jared Veldheer, is lost until midseason. The interior line is in flux and Menelik Watson is playing out of position. Despite a radical change in scheme, the stars haven't aligned.

Having quarterback Terrelle Pryor should take some pressure off McFadden and the run game, but the world still knows No. 20 is gettin' the rock. While Pryor steals headlines, McFadden's the real marquee player. Without him, the offense can't survive.

McFadden is ready, willing and able to shoulder such responsibility.

"I feel as good as I ever have," McFadden said. "I'm 26 years old, but I still feel young. I feel like it shows when I'm on the field. I can still go out and fly around and make big plays. I'm always going to give my team maximum effort. I go all out on every play."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Oakland Raiders' McFadden happy to be running downhill again

By Jerry McDonald

July 26, 2013

NAPA -- Darren McFadden took a handoff from Matt Flynn on Friday and with no hesitation hit a sliver of air between guard Lucas Nix and center Stefen Wisniewski at nearly full speed.

No defender laid a hand on McFadden until he was at least three yards downfield -- which is roughly what he averaged per carry in 2012 in a zone scheme ill-suited to his nature as a runner.

It was a simple running play in a non-padded practice on the first day of training camp, but illustrated nicely what McFadden does best. The zone scheme, which called on McFadden to move laterally before cutting back against the grain, helped drop his yards per carry to a career-low 3.3 yards.

"I love a downhill scheme, so I'm very confident about it," McFadden said. "I'll just be able to get out there and go downhill. That's one of my strong points.

For all the changes on the Oakland roster, the one constant was McFadden. Both coach Dennis Allen and general manager Reggie McKenzie went out of their way to talk him up in the offseason.

Allen's hiring of line coach Tony Sparano and offensive coordinator Greg Olson came in part because both had the right answer in terms of getting McFadden back to the form he displayed in 2010 and 2011 when Hue Jackson designed the offense and called the plays.

It was Jackson who put in McFadden's favorite gap and power runs at the expense of the zone scheme preferred by Tom Cable. McFadden averaged 5.2 and 5.4 yards per carry in 20 games over those two seasons with 11 rushing touchdowns.

Asked what it feels like to have coaches who will cater to his talents, McFadden said, "It feels great. I feel like I'm a downhill runner and that's something the coaches see also. By getting us in a gap scheme offense, they feel that suits me a lot more."

Allen liked what he saw of the re-tooled running game on the first day of practice.

"We ran the football well, the offensive line did a nice job, the backs did an excellent job of being able to run the football," Allen said. "That's something we're going to have to be able to do.

McKenzie has “no doubts” Raiders will be better this season

By Vic Tafur
July 26, 2013

You can tell by the smile on Raiders general manager Reggie McKenzie’s face that he’s heard all the preseason predictions and power rankings.

He was asked his thoughts on his team being picked at, or near, the bottom of the NFL. “I like being an underdog,” McKenzie said after the first training camp practice on Friday. “We have expectations here, and I know the thoughts outside of the Raiders wall. I am looking forward to September.”

McKenzie won’t make any predictions but “I do know we’ll play better than last season. I know we’ll be better. I have no doubts about that.”

The Raiders were 4-12 last season in his and coach Dennis Allen’s first year. What bar will McKenzie use to evaluate progress this year if not wins and losses?

“You know it when you see a good football team,” McKenzie said.

How close is Oakland to that?

“We’ll see,” he said. “We’re not too far.”

McKenzie was asked if he was curious to see how the new talent he’s put together — 57 of the 87 guys on the roster today weren’t in camp last year — gels in camp and the preseason.

“I’m not curious, I am eager, very eager,” McKenzie said. “I am excited to see how the new guys we added mesh and develop. And I want to see how the four new (assistant) coaches do. So far, it’s been good. ... I’m excited.”

McKenzie was happy to see first-round pick D.J. Hayden on the field Friday, after the cornerback missed the offseason workouts due to abdomen surgery.

“In the NFL, it’s all about having guys available,” McKenzie said. “You need your better players on the field to have a chance to win.”

McKenzie: 'I like being the underdog'

By Scott Bair

July 26, 2013

NAPA – Reggie McKenzie hears all.

The general manager knows his Raiders are ranked among the NFL's worst. He's heard grumblings about a lack of talent and that he's restructuring this franchise at a snail's pace. He's aware this season is supposed to go so poorly that McKenzie might have the first pick in next year's draft.

McKenzie knows what is being said, and respectfully disagrees with all of it.

His message during Friday's meeting with the media was a simple one: Go ahead. Count us down and out.

"I like being the underdog," McKenzie said. "We have our own expectations here, and I believe we'll reach them."

McKenzie didn't set a bar for wins or guaranteed success, yet he believes his Raiders are better in Phase Two of his master plan.

The first step was hiring a new coach in Dennis Allen last year. Since then he's tried to stock this roster with a hand tied behind his back, waiting for the team to escape salary-cap hell. In such a position, slow and steady is the only way to win a race.

McKenize overhauled the roster with low-profile acquisitions, especially on a defense that should have nine new starters, but believes this team is much better than last year's group.

"Without a doubt," McKenzie said. "That's what comes in time. When you get things going the way you want, good things happen. When you get your coach and you start adding the right players, things start to mesh together."

He believes this group will bond together during camp and emerge a more competitive team despite so many new faces.

"I'm not curious about this group, I'm eager," McKenzie said. "I'm eager and excited to see how they play during the regular season."

McKenzie thinks fans will see the improvement he sees, and believes his Raiders are on the verge of being a good football team.

"We'll see," he said. "It's not too far (away)."

SIO MOORE

SILVER AND BLACK PRIDE

Life lessons have only strengthened Sio Moore

By Marcus Allen Krause

July 31, 2013

Sio Moore was given a second chance at life. Not everyone does, just look at yesterdays tragedy for an example of two athletes that weren't granted that luxury. Texas A&M redshirt freshman Polo Manukainiu and Utah incoming freshman recruit Gaius "Keio" Vaenuku lost their lives in a car crash yesterday. Sadly all we can do at moments like this is let them truly remind us of how lucky we are to be alive.

Sio doesn't need the reminder even if some of us do forget how lucky we are from time to time. No, Sio Moore already lives his life knowing how close it was to being taken away. He has used his near death experience as motivation, always remembering how just a shake of his head could have taken his life.

Moore's family is originally from Liberia, a country torn by a Civil War that got so bad that his parents migrated to the US in 1990. Ironically they took him from a true war zone in Liberia, to one that he put himself squarely in the middle of by associating with the wrong crowd.

Sio knows now that the people he was with were not who he belonged around. He was risking himself by being in the wrong places at the wrong times and it took a near death experience to awaken his inner warrior. He was just 14 and at a party that had just been shutdown. It was here where he had his moment of change. It came from a gunman firing at the back of his head as he fled for his life.

"I wasn't hanging around the right people," Moore told New Haven Register columnist Chip Malafronte "I was getting myself into situations I shouldn't have been in. It took a near-death event for me to realize the path I was going down was the wrong one."

"A bullet went right by my right ear and hit a car next to me," Moore said. "That haunted me for a good while. I kept thinking about it. What if I turned around at the wrong time? That bullet would have hit me in the head."

After that day Sio stopped hanging out with that crowd, he realized he must live better, and he uprooted himself on his own to make his desire for a better life a reality. He picked up the phone and he called his sister Tiplah Broadnax who is 19 years his senior and her husband Grady. He asked them if he could live with them, and then Sio promptly moved many miles away from where that speeding bullet almost took his life.

Our own Levi Damien recently interviewed Sio and he asked about that moment. Its easy to see what we all like so much about Moore when you read his response.

"Yeah, man. 100 percent. My life could have been changed multiple times. That was only once. I had Civil War broken out in 1990, I would have never came to the U.S. There are so many things that I'm thankful for, blessings and things around me."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Though the attempt at his life was plenty enough of a life changing event to change Sio deep within his soul, it would still not be all that he would face. Even after he made his way out of the life he was living and onto Connecticut University's football roster the fates would still test him more.

The new test would come at the expense of another young man who was cut down mercilessly and unjustly, though this was no accident like what took the lives of Polo and Keio. The test would come at the expense of a teammate, a leader of the Husky defense, and a friend who was succeeding at life in a way few are lucky enough to experience. The test would come at the expense of UConn DB Jasper Howard, who was stabbed to death in a senseless crime that happened on campus in 2009.

Now Sio Moore lives life to the absolute fullest. He carries a reminder of his friend Jasper with him everywhere, he has a tattoo in memory of him across his mid-section in the same area that Howard was stabbed in. Its another reminder of the pain he has gone through that has strengthened his resolve, the same as another tattoo that depicts his life without his father has.

Though those tattoos remind him of the pain he felt, there is also hope and love deeply involved in them. The hope in the tattoo of Jasper is the hope of honoring his lost friend, the hope of living his life in a way that would make Jasper proud. Its a reminder to never again take his life for granted, which is a hope that we could all use instilled in us.

The tattoo about his father has a man and a boy standing next to each other with a space between their reached out hands, which Sio says is to symbolize his non-relationship with his own dad. The hope is there though still because he plans on uniting the hands the day he has a child. The tattoo is there to remind himself to be a better father than the one he had, which is a hope that many people understand more than words can express.

Seeing the strength of Sio's commitment to life is what so many of us are drawn to. We don't know yet if he will be able to play in the NFL, but he gives every reason there is to believe he can. He is the change we need in this franchise and the hope we all have for the Raiders future. Its a lot of pressure but it feels right to put it on Moore's shoulders. After all, his life has shown that he is already a man that refuses to break.

Denarius Moore

Oakland Raiders receiver Denarius Moore finally beginning to emerge

By Jerry McDonald

October 11, 2013

ALAMEDA -- Raiders receiver Denarius Moore hadn't seen anything like it since his days as a youth in Tatum, Texas.

He worked his way to the back of the end zone, saw quarterback Terrelle Pryor rolling to his right, then could scarcely believe his eyes as Pryor gave him a nod indicating he wanted Moore to drift to his right.

The result was a 2-yard touchdown pass in a victory over the San Diego Chargers last week.

"Last time I did that was playing in my backyard," Moore said this week.

In his third year out of Tennessee, Moore might be on the verge of producing in the NFL as he did in his backyard. He has 15 receptions for 274 yards and two touchdowns in his past three games, the most productive three-game stretch of his career.

"It all comes back to just playing football, something we've done since we were 6 years old," Moore said.

When the Raiders visit the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday, Moore will face one of the NFL's top secondaries, with three outstanding cornerbacks in Brandon Flowers, Sean Smith and Marcus Cooper.

"Seems like every game they're right there with the wide receivers, and they put themselves in the running game, too, coming up and making tackles," Moore said.

Toward that end, Raiders wide receivers and defensive backs were given boxing gloves urging them to win one-on-one battles this week with the following message taped to their locker:

"Will you fight on the line of scrimmage this week?"

Getting Moore to fight with a passion to match his ability has been something coaches have been working on since he arrived.

"He can be as good as he wants to be," former Raiders quarterback Carson Palmer said last season.

In late August, offensive coordinator Greg Olson, when talking about Moore's maturity, said he needed to be more of a self-starter, although he later said he was talking about the offense as a whole.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Moore has been the Raiders' best playmaking receiver since he set foot in training camp as a fifth-round draft pick. In 33 games and 29 starts, Moore has 104 receptions for 1,676 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Yet the M.O. for the player whom teammates call "D-Moe" has a propensity to be almost invisible for stretches, with the occasional dropped pass or blown route.

In his senior season at Tennessee, Moore was the only player among NCAA Division I programs to have two games with 200 yards receiving, yet he didn't reach 1,000 yards for the season.

In a league where 1,000-yard seasons by receivers are routine -- there were 20 in the NFL last season -- the Raiders haven't had one since Randy Moss had 1,005 in 2005.

Moore represents the best hope for the Raiders to break that spell, provided he avoids the dry spells.

At a position where bravado is commonplace and requests for the ball are routine, Moore is more introverted by nature.

Getting him to understand his ability and attack not only the ball but also the way he conducts his business has been a goal of the coaching staff.

"The big thing is just having the confidence to go out and play, and when the opportunities come your way, make the play when you have the opportunity," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "He's done a better job of that in the last three weeks. Hopefully he'll continue to grow."

Pryor vastly improved since last Chargers game

By Scott Bair

October 4, 2013

ALAMEDA – Greg Olson watched every Raiders game from last season after being hired as offensive coordinator. It helped create a knowledge base for his new job, especially for the offensive weapons retained.

Olson revisited 2012's regular-season finale against the Chargers this week while brushing up on Sunday's opponent, a game that doubled as Terrelle Pryor's first NFL start.

Olson couldn't believe the quarterback on film was the same he works with every day. He sent Pryor a text message expressing such shock, awe and admiration.

"It had been a while since I watched that game, so when it came up this week I got a chance to see it again," Olson said. "It refreshed my memory, and I thought, 'Oh, this guy has shown a lot of improvement in the course of when he last played the Chargers in that last game.' That was encouraging to me after watching that."

Pryor had happy feet then. He threw lobbs when fastballs were required and vice versa. Passes wobbled and he looked uncomfortable in the pocket.

Pryor is far from a finished product now, but his improvement makes the tape borderline useless as an opponent's scouting tool.

"I just feel like he's a lot calmer in the pocket," Olson said. "His footwork is much better; he has better instincts. He just looked like a rookie player in there last year, so he looks much better."

We all know how much work Pryor put in this offseason, how he went through a mechanical overhaul with private quarterbacks coach Tom House. We know he has thrived under Olson, who has slowly expanded his repertoire and streamlined his decision-making. We know he gives these Raiders a real chance to win.

Pryor watched last year's film and replicated Olson's reaction. The coordinator's text validated his feelings and gave him a sense of pride in an offseason well worked.

"He's right. I made big strides and big steps throughout the process," Pryor said. "I have to keep on working hard and understand you're never good enough. You always have to keep on pushing and try to better yourself because that's only going to help the team."

Pryor has improved during the regular season, and his best game as a pure passer was his last. The Sept. 23 game at Denver was his most accurate, moving the team from the pocket. He threw for a career-best 281 yards a 112.4 quarterback rating. He hasn't thrown an interception since the regular-season opener.

That offers stark contrast to that 2012 start, when he completed just 46.4 percent of his attempts.

While it's easy to bag on his first professional start and see how much better he is now, Pryor was an unrefined version of himself. There's still a legit playmaker in there, just below the surface.

That was crystal clear on one fourth-quarter scoring play. Pryor felt the pocket collapse, wiggled to his right to extended the play and stalled the rush by threatening to run until Denarius Moore found open space. He lobbed a pass Moore secured for a touchdown earned with playmaking ability.

Despite all the mechanical improvements and on-field mental clarity, Pryor hasn't lost the basic instincts that guide him so well.

"I just try to make the right decisions and the smart decisions and be a smart person and player," Pryor said. "Just be myself and play football. That's how I have to play."

Terrelle Pryor living for the now

By Paul Gutierrez

October 3, 2013

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- From Bobby Layne to Fran Tarkenton to Jim Zorn to Randall Cunningham to Michael Vick, the fear for running quarterbacks was that they unnecessarily put themselves in harm's way.

Try telling that to this new breed of zone-read-option quarterbacks, such as Cam Newton, Robert Griffin III, Russell Wilson, Colin Kaepernick and, yes, even Terrelle Pryor.

By the time Pryor takes the field Sunday night under the lights of the O.co Coliseum for the Oakland Raiders, it will have been 13 days since he last took a hard hit. The concussion-causing helmet-to-helmet blow from Denver linebacker Wesley Woodyard came on a quarterback draw and blitz and kept Pryor on the sideline for last weekend's winnable game against Washington, a game Oakland lost 24-14.

So now, as he prepares to start against the San Diego Chargers, might the Raiders dial back some of Pryor's designed runs, knowing what happened the last time he ran the ball?

"If you start trying to limit the things that he does, I think you decrease his effectiveness," said Raiders coach Dennis Allen. "You have to let him be the quarterback that he is and let him make plays."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Pryor, despite missing a series in Denver and the entire Washington game, is still the Raiders' second-leading rusher, with 198 yards on 26 carries.

With Darren McFadden missing practice Wednesday with his strained right hamstring, the Chargers might be able to key more on Pryor as a running threat. Still, Pryor said he would not be playing if he did not feel ready.

"I believe I'm 100 percent right now. I feel normal," said Pryor, who was medically cleared to play against Washington but was held out by the Raiders as a precaution. He is showing no symptoms now and will start against the Chargers.

"Whatever is going to happen is going to happen," he said. "That's how I live for now. I just try to make the right decisions and the smart decisions and be a smart person and player. Obviously, if there's three guys coming cramming down on me, I don't want to challenge all three of those guys, so get down. Just be myself and play football. That's how I have to play."

Purdy: Raiders quarterback Terrelle Pryor provides glimmer of hope

Mark Purdy

September 23, 2013

DENVER -- In a quarterback battle between Peyton Manning and Terrelle Pryor, there is no suspense. We all know who is going to win. It's just a matter of how much damage is done by night's end.

Monday, the damage on the scoreboard was about what you'd expect. Manning and his Denver Broncos blew out to a 30-7 lead and went on to finish off the Raiders 37-21.

In terms of the quarterback matchup, Pryor also took the expected back seat to Manning. But in a slight surprise, the back seat was not as far to the rear as, say, the back seat of a jumbo jet. It was more like the back seat of an airport shuttle bus.

Which at this stage of Pryor's young career, is saying something. He was making just his fourth NFL start Monday. He isn't close to being in the neighborhood of the NFL's top tier quarterbacks. Yet week by week, snap by snap, the kid is showing that he's not completely in the next area code. His upside still has upside. He was easily the most optimistic Raider element in Monday's game.

"The big stage doesn't bother him," said Denarius Moore, who caught a 73-yard touchdown pass from Pryor that briefly pulled the Raiders to within 10 points of the Broncos in the first half. "It's like he has been a starting quarterback for five years now."

Alas, Pryor now might not even be the starting quarterback next week because his night ended with a wince-inducing concussion. It happened in the fourth quarter when he was carrying the ball on a called quarterback run inside the Broncos' 8-yard line.

As Pryor turned toward the line of scrimmage behind the right side of the Raiders line, Denver linebacker Wesley Woodyard initiated a collision that was pretty much helmet-on-helmet. Pryor rose to his feet and stayed on the field for two more plays, including one complete pass, then went to the locker room with five minutes remaining in the game for a medical exam.

Afterward, Raiders coach Dennis Allen confirmed Pryor's concussion. Following protocol, that meant the quarterback was not available for postgame interviews. However, Pryor was spotted in the locker room fully dressed and ready to roll his own bag to the team plane. Pryor nodded a greeting and, when someone asked how he was feeling, said: "Good."

No way to know if "good" means good enough to start next Sunday against Washington in Oakland, or good enough to be back in two or three weeks. Asked about Pryor's availability against the Redskins, Allen said: "I have no idea."

Which was the proper answer. But whether Pryor returns soon or in October, he remains the Raiders' quarterback of the future until further notice. Monday, he made the usual inexperience-related mistakes. As Manning was putting on a clinic, Pryor was doing an internship. Weirdly, he has trouble throwing touch passes as he rolls to his right, usually a money throw for a right-handed quarterback.

Yet several times Monday, Pryor connected on timing patterns to the outside. And his overall statistical line -- 19 completions in 28 attempts for 281 yards with a touchdown and a 112.4 passer rating -- was easily the best of his young career. And it was under tough, noisy Mile High conditions.

"I thought he was a little hot and cold," Allen said of Pryor. "I thought as the game wore on, he executed a little more and made a few plays."

Some of Pryor's most impressive plays didn't show up on the score sheet. In the third quarter at his own 17-yard line, a center snap flew wildly over Pryor's head and the ball skittered into the end zone behind him. He was steady enough under pressure to pick up the ball and roll left to hurl it downfield along the out of bounds barrier for an incomplete pass. The Raiders could safely punt the ball away.

Also on Monday, Pryor showed more patience in the pocket and didn't seem as eager to take off with his swift feet. Given the way he was injured in the final period, that's also a positive. Allen said he "couldn't tell" whether Woodyard's hit was legal. He pointed out that since the collision took place within the tackle box and that Pryor was clearly a ball carrier, it might not have qualified for a penalty, anyway.

"I don't think we went backwards tonight," center Stefen Wisniewski said. "But we certainly didn't go forward. We've got to play better than that."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

As soon as Pryor returns, he should give them that chance. A year ago, with veteran Carson Palmer at quarterback, the Raiders didn't score a touchdown against the Broncos. This was an improvement over that, wasn't it?

THE MONDAY MORNING QUARTERBACK

No Pryor Restraint

By Jim Trotter

August 30, 2013

SEATTLE — After concluding the preseason with a 22-6 loss to the Seahawks on Thursday night, Raiders coach Dennis Allen was asked if he knows who his Week 1 starting quarterback will be at Indianapolis.

"I'm not going to tell you, but yes," he said.

Football coaches are funny creatures. They treat secrecy as if it were currency and cling to the concept as if it were gold. Still, you would have to be deaf (to the players), dumb (to the realities of the Raiders' situation) and blind (to the playmaking abilities of the candidates) to believe Allen should go with anyone but Terrelle Pryor, the unpolished passer yet gifted runner who has provided the biggest spark to the offense.

It's true that Pryor's numbers were awful in his only preseason start on Thursday. He completed just 3 of 8 passes for 31 yards with no touchdowns, one interception and a 9.9 rating. By artwork standards, it was a finger-painting. But what the numbers do not say is that the Raiders' blueprint for winning has blown up. They entered training camp wanting to be stingy on defense and mistake-free on offense; that way they could get to the fourth quarter and have an opportunity to make a play and win. But in four exhibition games the defense allowed scores on 16 of 18 first-half series, excluding a kneel down. It gave up seven touchdowns and nine field goals, forced just one punt and had another series end with a blocked field goal.

There's little reason to believe the unit, which could have as many as nine new starters, can flip a switch at the beginning the regular season. Consequently the Raiders are going to have to be more dynamic on offense, which hurts Matt Flynn. His advantage over Pryor is his experience and efficiency. That, however, works against him if the offense is playing catch-up, particularly with a line that might be among the worst in the league (especially after left tackle Jared Veldheer was lost until at least the midseason with a torn left triceps).

It's little wonder that the word most often heard in the Raiders' locker room after the game—and in private conversations with players beforehand—was playmakers. As in, We need them. Pryor is just that, even if the numbers from Thursday don't reflect it. When he's on the field there's a feeling that something positive could happen. On any given play he could carry the ball 70 yards, and, unlike Flynn, he has the arm strength to stretch the field in the passing game.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That's critical because the Raiders sorely lack playmakers on offense. Running back Darren McFadden has the ability, but he has yet to play a full season since entering the league in 2008. Wideout Denarius Moore is another, but he tends to disappear for stretches. Running back Marcel Reece can pose a matchup problem for defenses in the passing game. There are no established threats beyond them.

Behind a stout line, with a stingy defense, the Raiders could make it work with Flynn. But that's connect-the-dots stuff, and Oakland lacks the necessary dots. Which is why they need someone like Pryor, a 6-4, 233-pound signal-caller who can improvise on a broken play to create something beautiful, as he did on Thursday night when he gained 25 yards on a scramble.

His rawness as a passer works against him, although he is improving. On Thursday he was hurt by a couple of drops, and his interception was the result of being late with the delivery on a deep pass down the sideline. Pryor attributed his tardiness to being inexperienced throwing to double-moves from the pistol formation, which is what was called on that play.

While he will never be confused with Tom Brady, the Patriots icon with whom he worked out part of the offseason, he also should not be viewed as the newborn colt who stumbled around the pocket at Ohio State. His abilities as a passer, and his understanding of the passing game, have increased exponentially since entering the league two years ago. Much of it stems from his work this offseason with Tom House, a mechanics/movement coach whose clients includes Brady, Saints QB Drew Brees and Chiefs QB Alex Smith.

His company, 3D QB, evaluates each athlete's throwing motion and functional arm strength, then develops programs to help build on strengths and correct weaknesses. It also develops a nutritional plan for participants and creates a mental/emotional profile. Pryor spent roughly three months working with House, sometimes two and three times a week.

"Pretty special kid," House says of Pryor. "The awesome thing about him is that he made adjustments almost immediately. He was hungry. He was willing to give what we offered a shot. The combination of his willingness to embrace the science and make it a little bit better for him physically and mechanically turned into some positive feedback real quick."

For instance, Pryor learned that he was leaving his chest open, which made him late with his delivery. "So when I was coming down to throw with my left arm, my right arm was saying it's time to go, the timing wasn't right," he said. "[House] kind of helped me with that."

"I tell all the great ones and those who strive to be great: Problem identification is half your solution," House says. "If we have a toolkit to help you with your solution, that's where the relationship builds. When we identified the few small problems that Terrelle had, and showed him the toolkit, it was unbelievable how quick he made adjustments. He's very authentic. He can actually look at his strengths and weaknesses and learn how to make the adjustments. That's what was cool working with him."

There will be growing pains if the Raiders go with Pryor. Their initial plan was to create a package of plays for him, many relying on his athleticism. But that has been adjusted in recent weeks. More is being put on his plate. Viewed as a role player coming into camp, he's now a potential leading man. So much so that Allen got upset with him Thursday night for taking an unnecessary hit on a bootleg. That never would have happened last year, or even a few weeks ago in the first preseason games. But times are changing.

Allen knows Pryor's value is now greater than a dozen or so plays. He didn't say as much Thursday night, but look for him to do so in the next few days. It'll be the right call.

Raiders' Terrelle Pryor rebuilds his image as a quarterback

Sam Farmer

August 11, 2013

NAPA, Calif. — Terrelle Pryor, the last draft pick made by Oakland Raiders owner Al Davis, can now make a remarkable admission for an NFL quarterback.

Until this year, he didn't really know how to throw a football.

That may be a little extreme. He thought he knew how to throw, and he could pick up a ball and wing it. But his body mechanics were so inefficient and his tosses were so scattershot, he said, he had no future in the pros.

"I look back on last year, and I just knew I wasn't ready," said Pryor, 23, entering his third NFL season and now an intriguing figure in the Raiders' quarterback mix, probably as a change-of-speed option to presumed starter Matt Flynn.

Determined to rebuild his motion, Pryor worked extensively with throwing specialist Tom House at USC this off-season, developing new timing and "unlocking" his upper body to improve his accuracy. House works with an array of NFL players — along with college and Major League Baseball players — among them quarterbacks Tom Brady and Drew Brees.

"I truly believe that after spending a month and a half with Tom, I can now sit back in the pocket and throw the ball," he said.

Pryor played well Friday in a 19-17 exhibition victory against Dallas, completing six of 10 passes for 88 yards, and running three times for 31 yards.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

The pass that got away was a cross-body fling into the end zone six yards away that was picked off by Dallas' J.J. Wilcox. There appeared to be room for Pryor to score with his feet, but instead he tried to force a pass.

"I looked at the pictures and I could have easily ran it in, but I got greedy," Pryor said.

He disagreed with the notion that he wanted to throw for the score rather than run for it because he's determined to prove he can win with his arm, that he's not simply a one-dimensional read-option threat.

But Raiders Coach Dennis Allen said the next step in Pryor's maturation process is learning that sometimes he needs to listen to his instincts and make the play that unfolds before him, rather than reaching for that higher degree of difficulty.

"That's been one thing we've consistently talked to Terrelle about is in those situations, don't be afraid to use your legs," Allen said. "Don't be afraid to use your skill set. ... Not every play has to be a great play, not every play has to be a spectacular play."

That Pryor is even a consideration now is a significant achievement for him and means he has made big strides. He was very raw coming out of Ohio State, and many people expected him to switch positions in the NFL, becoming a receiver or tight end.

Pryor was selected by the Raiders in the third round of the 2011 supplemental draft. He chose to skip his senior season at Ohio State in the aftermath of a tattoo-for-memorabilia scandal that cost coach Jim Tressel his job.

Pryor's NFL career began under a dark cloud, with the league taking the unusual step of carrying over the NCAA's penalty and imposing a corresponding five-game suspension of its own. He ran a 40 in under 4.4 seconds for scouts, freakish for a player who stands 6 feet 4 and weighs 233 pounds.

He made his starting debut at the end of last season, taking over for the injured Carson Palmer in a finale against San Diego. Pryor showed flashes of promise in that game, throwing two touchdown passes despite completing only 46% of his passes — 13 of 28 — and running for another score. He proved he could get in and out of the huddle quickly, often a problem for young quarterbacks, and showed elements of leadership, at one point breaking up a fight on the field.

But it was the work he did this off-season, he believes, that will make him a more accurate, more dangerous player this season.

"We're going to continue to give him opportunities to showcase his skills," Allen said. "But right now, he's not there yet."

Pryor, for one, is confident he will be.

"I'm very honest with myself," he said. "Last year, I look back and I just know I wasn't ready. I didn't have the mind-set. I knew I wasn't ready in terms of mechanics. I was so far off."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"This year, I'm very confident. I'm confident in the huddle, getting the calls to the guys, saying the protections. And I truly believe that any time a route or concept is called, I can put the ball where I want."

CHARLES WOODSON

'Old man' Woodson drives Raiders defense

Scott Bair

September 17, 2013

The Raiders were seven yards from wasting a near-perfect start, and Charles Woodson could sense disappointment wearing on the huddle. The Jaguars marched right downfield, with little sign of slowing before pay dirt.

This defense -- this team -- needed a pick-me-up. The veteran free safety knew words wouldn't work. Actions would speak louder.

Maurice Jones-Drew ran left toward the pylon, and Woodson was presented with an opportunity. He could pursue him toward the goal line and push him out of bounds just in time.

Woodson went with Option B. D.J. Hayden was getting manhandled by a blocker twice his size, creating a bubble for Jones-Drew that could only be popped from the top.

Woodson took flight, sailing over left tackle Eugene Monroe completely horizontal. He hit Jones-Drew unaware, knocking him out of bounds after a 3-yard gain.

The crowd went nuts. So did the Raiders defense. Woodson drew a wry smile with one thought in mind. Mission accomplished.

Woodson killed the Jaguars momentum -- they settled for a field goal -- energized a sulking defense and got the Raiders back on track in their 19-9 win over Jacksonville. In short, the 36-year old did his job.

"That was a critical play in the game and a big momentum builder for us," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "You could feel the enthusiasm of the whole stadium when he made that play on Maurice Jones-Drew.

"Charles has been a heck of a football player for us. He's been a great leader for us. He's been everything that we had hoped for and anticipated when we brought him here."

The Raiders needed a veteran to mentor a young team in transition in the locker room and on the field. The 36-year old's wisdom and his status as a Bay Area icon ensured the former. It was uncertain how much the old man had left.

The NFL wasn't so sure. A humbling free agent tour expressed that. The Green Bay Packers thanked him for seven excellent years and moved on. The Denver Broncos wouldn't offer a dime in guaranteed money. The San Francisco 49ers took a pass.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

The Raiders made him feel welcome, wanted. They gave him a real chance, and Woodson has rewarded them with excellent play at retirement age.

"All I hear these days now is 'old man,'" Woodson said. "Like I told these guys when I first got here, man, I love playing football. Those kinds of plays, like the one from Sunday, are second nature. As long as I'm out there on the field, that's the kind of effort I'm going to give."

That's the effort Woodson expects from others. He hopes unspoken peer pressure brings out the best in these Raiders.

Woodson's leadership gives the Raiders faith they can survive without a talent like Tyvon Branch. His play within a strong secondary gives the team a puncher's chance on Monday night against quarterback Peyton Manning and the Broncos.

That's because Woodson has made more than one big play. He led the team with six tackles last week and had three the week before. He can rush the passer, but is generally the last line of defense on passing downs. By doing so well, it gives coordinator Jason Tarver the confidence to blitz defensive backs without feeling vulnerable in the passing game.

Woodson is happy in this place, and in awe of the fan response that prompted him to re-sign with the team that drafted him.

The defense was announced before Sunday's home opener and, cheers reached a crescendo at No. 24. A few quarters later, Woodson eclipsed himself with that awesome, flying strike.

"It was one of those sellout plays that you need during the course of a game that hopefully can turn the tide and give you some momentum," Woodson said. "That's what I love to do."

Raiders: Woodson's homecoming shows he's here to play

Steve Corkran

September 16, 2013

OAKLAND — There's a belief by some that Raiders owner Mark Davis signed safety Charles Woodson just to sell more tickets to home games and jerseys with Woodson's name on them. That's true, in part. Yet, it's also a fact that Woodson isn't your ordinary 36-year old, and he brings more to the equation than selling power.

"The scary thing about it is, I watch him on film and in practice every day and the guy's still got it," Raiders veteran offensive tackle Khalif Barnes said a short time after the Raiders beat the Jacksonville Jaguars 19-9 at the Coliseum in Woodson's first regular-season home game since he signed with the Raiders in the offseason.

"It's not like he's old and can't move. The dude can still play. It's crazy actually. He's a machine. I don't know how he does it after 17 years."

Plenty of thirtysomethings still can play, but how many of them can fly through the air, literally, with the greatest of ease and make perhaps the play of the day?

Woodson showed doubters about his ability to play at a high level just how much he has left Sunday, when he left his feet and launched himself shoulder height toward Jaguars running back Maurice Jones-Drew in the second quarter.

Woodson scored a direct hit, just as Jones-Drew pointed himself toward the Raiders goal line, and dragged down Jones-Drew at the 3-yard line. The Jaguars settled for a field goal two plays later.

"It don't matter, man," Woodson said of his heroics. "I'm just flying over a building in a single bound."

Raiders coach Dennis Allen called the play "huge" and said it helped the Raiders shift momentum.

"Any time you see a guy like Charles Woodson who has played as long as he has and the way he can play at the level that he's played," Allen said, "for him to make an effort play like that really gives the whole team and the defense in particular a lot of momentum. It was a great play."

Woodson's also making a huge impression on his teammates, especially the younger ones. Rookie cornerback D.J. Hayden didn't see Woodson's high-flying acrobatics. Just the same, he said, he draws inspiration from a player the Raiders selected in the first round of the 1998 NFL draft.

"It's motivation," Hayden said of Woodson's play. "If he can do it, anyone of us can do it. ... Hopefully a little bit of him rubs off on me."

Through two games so far, the Raiders defense allowed only 30 points, or slightly more than what the Raiders allowed per game last season, when Woodson was wrapping up his Green Bay Packers career.

Call it the Woodson Effect? Call it whatever you want, Woodson said, but there's a feeling that the Raiders are on to something meaningful defensively.

"We're onto playing good, hard football," Woodson said, "and that's all we can really ask of everybody. (Sunday), for the most part, we did our job as a team collectively. We beat a team I felt like we were supposed to beat and that's a step in the right direction."

Of course, Barnes would say in a lighter moment, Woodson might need a cane to take that step.

"He could play another two or three years if he wants to," Barnes said. "He's the true definition of a guy that does it because he loves to, because he really doesn't have to. It's plays like that, man, there's not a lot of guys in this room that would put their body through that."

Raiders: Can Charles Woodson still get it done?

Jerry McDonald

September 3, 2013

ALAMEDA -- Charles Woodson thinks back to the way things used to be and laughs at the thought of having become the wise old man.

"It's really funny, having 15 years in and listening to a lot of comments from the young guys," Woodson said. "I just reflect when I came in and there's Tim Brown and Jerry Rice, guys who were older than a lot of us were. I always joked with them about how old they were. Now I find myself in the same position."

Returning to where he started after seven seasons with the Green Bay Packers, Woodson has been amused by how his potential contributions to the Raiders in 2013 have been characterized.

He is the wily veteran, a coach on the field. In contrast to his burn-the-candle-at-both-ends days during his first tenure as a Raider, Woodson gets enough sleep, is a contributor in meeting rooms and didn't miss a training camp practice until coach Dennis Allen ordered him to take a day off.

In a national conference call, ESPN analyst and former Indianapolis Colts general manager Bill Polian said Woodson was so respected, anything they get from him on the field "is a bonus when you're in that kind of rebuilding mode."

Yet Woodson, who is the most recognizable star on a team that hasn't had a winning record in a decade, is expected to be more than just a reasonable facsimile of the same player who has 55 career interceptions and 29 forced fumbles.

The social-media-fueled reception that helped coax him back to Oakland on May 22 was a nice bit of nostalgia, but Charles Woodson was signed to be Charles Woodson.

"Let's make no mistake about it, Charles is here to play football and make plays for us first," Allen said. "It's a bonus to have a guy that has that veteran leadership."

So what tells Woodson he can still produce?

"By the way I move," Woodson said. "I can still move with the best of 'em and I still love the game. If you have those things, you keep playing."

Raiders defensive coordinator Jason Tarver is convinced Woodson is more than a sounding board with a Hall of Fame résumé.

"His burst surprises me every day," Tarver said. "The guy just covers ground. That's why he's a big piece of getting this defense where we want it, and hopefully that cements his legacy."

Knowing when to retire is a tricky thing. Sometimes the athlete doesn't realize it, and occasionally the employer is too eager to force a veteran out the door.

"As you get older, they use that birth certificate against you," former Raiders safety and Hall of Famer Rod Woodson said. "When things don't go well, they blame your age."

Charles Woodson helped lead the Green Bay Packers to a Super Bowl championship following the 2010 season but was released after breaking the same collarbone two times in three seasons.

Green Bay quarterback Aaron Rodgers, in a phone interview during training camp, was sorry to see Woodson become a salary cap casualty and believes whatever he's lost in terms of skills had been made up for in terms of know-how.

"He understands the game more than anybody I've ever seen at his position and I think he has a lot of ability left," Rodgers said. "He's on the older side by NFL standards, but I think the savvy and wisdom he has can make up for anything, even if physically he might not be the same as when he was as a young player."

Former Raiders cornerback Willie Brown, who returned an interception 75 yards for a touchdown against the Minnesota Vikings at age 36 in Super Bowl XI en route to the Hall of Fame, believes Woodson's skills are still top shelf.

"What kind of feet does he have versus when he first came into the league?" Brown said. "Watch his quickness and ability to keep fighting. Does he give up easy or stay in there and fight for the ball? Can he turn around as fast as he used to? His quickness is still here."

Often, the athlete is the last to know when it is time to retire. Rice had two outstanding seasons with Oakland before dwindling opportunities in Seattle and Denver led to his retirement.

"I knew, and I kept pushing it," Rice said. "Your body doesn't react like it used to. It takes a lot more time to heal."

Rod Woodson, like Charles Woodson, was a converted cornerback playing free safety when he joined the Raiders in 2002 at age 36. He had eight interceptions, including a 97-yard touchdown return against Denver, one of the biggest plays in an AFC championship season.

Forced out by injury a year later, Rod Woodson often said the distaste for offseason training is a clue that it's time to hang it up.

"When you play 15, 16 years in the league, there's a lot of workouts that you have to do," Rod Woodson said. "That takes its toll. There are different reasons for every player. I don't think you can categorize why guys retire."

Charles Woodson insists he will know when it's time to quit.

"I still keep myself on par to play a 16-game season," Woodson said. "When the time comes to retire, I think I'll know. I really do. I'll be working on the field and realize I can't get it done and I'll know."

"But that time hasn't come."

Candid Charles Woodson out to prove the doubters wrong

Jim Trotter

August 20, 2013

NAPA, Calif. -- Raiders safety Charles Woodson doesn't believe in taking the scenic route. He wants to get from Point A to Point B as quickly as possible, not only on the football field but also in conversation. Consider his response when asked whether he pays attention to reports that his game has slipped in recent years.

Many players would respond with verbal detours. They'd rather give out the password to their bank account than publicly acknowledge an outsider's criticism. Not Woodson, who is returning to his Oakland roots after seven seasons with the Packers. He goes straight at the subject as if it were an unprotected quarterback and he was coming on a blindside blitz.

"I read all of it," the 16-year veteran says, smiling. "Basically they say I can't do it. They say I haven't been getting it done for the last three years. I've read a lot of things like that -- that I've been declining every year, which is funny because I was just All-Pro two years ago.

"But it's all good because when I turn on the film or I look at me on the football field, no one plays faster than me. You can go ask coaches in Green Bay, as far as how I played before breaking my collarbone last year. Ask them who played faster than me, and I don't think they would say anybody. Maybe Clay Matthews -- Clay is a bad boy. But, nah. All the stuff they're saying just ain't true."

Woodson is not alone in his determination to prove himself a still-viable force. The Raiders, one year after allowing the third-most offensive points in the NFL, could end up fielding as many as nine new defensive starters, each of whom was given up on by his former club. The unit might look like the Land of Misfit Players to some outsiders, but within the locker room the focus is on opportunity.

"The organization brought in some hungry guys," says Woodson, who turns 37 in October. "They're guys who signed one-year or two-year deals who can come out here, show out, then next year be looking at something [more lucrative] here or elsewhere."

Even in a league where roster turnover is common, what the Raiders have done is eye-popping. According to Football Outsiders, it's only the second time in the modern era that a team has changed as many as nine primary defensive starters in one year. The only other time it was done was in 2002, by ... the Raiders, who also made nine changes.

That Oakland team advanced to the Super Bowl (where it was routed by the Bucs), but no one is expecting the past to be prologue. The Raiders haven't had a winning season in 10 years, and one

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Las Vegas sports book lists their over/under at 5.5 victories. To even have a shot at that figure, the defense must be better than it was a year ago, when it surrendered 18 touchdowns on the ground (which tied for third-most in the league), 28 scores through the air (more than all but seven other teams) and managed just 25 sacks (second-fewest in the league).

Enter tackles Pat Sims and Vance Walker, end Jason Hunter, linebackers Nick Roach, Kevin Burnett and Kaluka Maiava, cornerbacks Mike Jenkins and Tracy Porter and Woodson. The Raiders also used a first-round pick on cornerback D.J. Hayden and a third-rounder on linebacker Sio Moore, both of whom could challenge for starting jobs as rookies.

The issue is how best to turn nine new starters into a cohesive unit. "The challenge is these guys really understanding ways that guys are going to play the game and really get a feel for what everybody else is seeing on the football field," says coach Dennis Allen. "It's really about getting 11 guys to play together and understand what their role is within the scheme. The thing we've got is that we have some veteran players, who understand how to do the job. The bad thing with that sometimes is that guys can be set in their ways. The good thing is, this is a group of guys that is eager and willing to do it the Raider way. That's why I like this team."

What Allen also likes is the players' willingness to practice. It was a struggle at times last season to get some veterans to consider practice as important as he did in his first year as a head coach. In fact, there were times early in training camp when newcomers could be seen grimacing from aches and bruises, strains and sprains, yet they refused to leave the field.

Defensive coordinator Jason Tarver, meanwhile, is pleased to have a group of veterans who are capable of making adjustments on the fly. "You can talk to them about subtle things and you can talk to them about major things," he says. "It's not too big for them. The personalities are big, too. Roach is smart, a little bit funny, he wants to do it right, and he likes solving things in the moment. Communicating with those players is really what you love about coaching."

Coaches are also enamored of talented veterans who are motivated, such as Woodson. He commands your attention when he's on the field. There is a suddenness when he breaks on the ball that few players possess. Woodson makes the game look easy even when it's difficult, as the rookie Hayden has learned. As Hayden walked off the field after a recent practice, sweat pouring down his face, multiple sets of shoulder pads and helmets in his hands, he shook his head at what he had just witnessed from Woodson.

"I couldn't even believe it," Hayden said. "I don't even think he was sweating. He's just so smooth."

"I told him I'm a machine," says Woodson, who breaks into a deep laugh.

One thing Woodson won't laugh about is his desire to show he's still a defensive force. And once again he gets straight to the point. "I ain't going to lie, it's kind of hurtful to have people taking shots at you for whatever reason, or just because you're 35, 36 or going on 37," he says. "But it's all good. I read it and put in my mental bank."

Like his new teammates, he hopes to collect interest beginning in Week 1.

Poole: Charles Woodson is a new man

Monte Poole

August 19, 2013

Charles Woodson sailed into Oakland in 1998, a fascinating bundle of talent and energy, playing fast and living faster. He was famous, newly wealthy in the land of temptation. He partied hard, sometimes without regard for professional obligation.

Young Charles lived to dance along the edge of the cliff. Why not? It was fun. What could be better than inventing new angles from which to burn the proverbial candle?

All the while, C-Wood was a premier cornerback and the best pure football player on the most accomplished Raiders teams since the 1980s.

The Woodson that rejoined the Raiders on May 22, after seven seasons in Green Bay, is 36 years old and has moved to free safety. He brings instincts and ball skills, as well as grown-man wisdom and focus as sharp as an arrow's tip. He plays smart, lives smarter. His is among the most dramatic maturation processes in recent sports history.

And, still, at an age when most have faded, he's the best pure player on the roster.

"His quickness is still there, and I still see his love of the game," says Willie Brown, the Raiders Hall of Famer who has known Woodson since '98 and speaks with him often. "I wouldn't be surprised if Charles makes All-Pro this year at free safety. All we have to do is put a pretty good defense in front of him and let him go."

The root of Woodson's maturation is Charles himself. He was bright enough to acknowledge the cracks in his personal mirror and cast his eyes within -- and strong enough to respond in a way that has set an example for the jock living on the edge.

Woodson always has accepted responsibility, no matter how it reflected upon him. He had won the Heisman Trophy at Michigan -- the first primarily defensive player to do so -- and was drafted fourth overall by Oakland. He was an instant celebrity and embraced the life that came with it.

He was arrested in 2000 for DUI in Michigan. He was arrested in 2004 for refusing to get out of a woman's car at 4:20 a.m. He missed at least one curfew, resulting in suspension, and he was infamous for daydreaming or snoozing during meetings. Teammates were left to wonder if he was hung over or just indifferent to commitment.

Meanwhile, the Raiders reached the playoffs in three consecutive seasons (2000-02), and C-Wood went to four consecutive Pro Bowls (1998-01).

Such success only contributed to Woodson's belief that his active night life did not and would not impede his play. When so many talented athletes were falling over the cliff -- including former Raiders teammates Barret Robbins, Andre Rison and Darrell Russell -- Charles was having it both ways.

"I was kind of wild," says Woodson, whose primary road dogs were Charlie Garner and Rison. "I enjoyed myself as a young man. I was moving 100 miles per hour -- on and off the field. I was young, had plenty of money. I was here with a great group of guys, and a lot of us ran fast. We had fun, but we put it down when we got on the field.

"That part of it has slowed down a great deal."

The turnaround began in 2006, when the Raiders allowed him to test free agency and Woodson was greeted with funereal silence. With a history of injuries and a poor work ethic, Woodson at age 29 was perceived as damaged goods.

Pause. Reflect for a minute and consider how great Woodson was despite himself. How fantastic might he be if he truly applied himself?

Staring into the abyss and vowing rededication, Woodson finally received an offer. It came from the Packers. The Packers! Why on earth would Charles Woodson take his talents to the league's smallest and most isolated outpost?

After initial reluctance, Woodson signed with Green Bay not because he wanted to be there but because it was May and, frankly, there was no other reasonable option.

"I would say Green Bay was great for Charles," says Nnamdi Asomugha, who spent three seasons as Woodson's teammate in Oakland and still is a close friend.

Feeling dismissed and perhaps sensing he had cheated himself, Woodson eventually immersed himself in football. He studied film, listened to his coaches, made a concerted effort to tap every drop of his vast potential.

Raising his bar and that of those around him, Charles became a true leader. He also improved as a player, earning four more Pro Bowl selections and being honored in 2009 as the Defensive Player of the Year. Woodson the following season was the driving force behind Green Bay's Super Bowl championship.

"It worked out," Woodson says now. "I talk about how I slowed down, well, I moved to an environment that was that way. Green Bay is a blue-collar community, and it's all about the Packers. I was able to go there, slow down and focus on the game."

Woodson not only dived into football but also became a more responsible citizen. He made a $2 million donation to a Children and Women's hospital at his alma mater in 2009. Friends credit his joy to familial bonds; Charles and his wife, April, have two young sons, Charles Jr. and Chase.

"When you have a lot of money and you're single, you can do a lot of wild and crazy things -- which he did," Brown says of Woodson. "He had millions in his pocket, and he had a good time.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Having two kids and a good wife will slow you down."

Hall of Famer Rod Woodson, who spent two years alongside Charles in Oakland, has seen the growth and offers his amateur analysis.

"He needed to kind of get through adolescence, so to speak, while was with the Raiders," Rod Woodson says. "After he got to Green Bay, he finally matured. He matured outside of football. Before players mature on the field, they have to mature outside the field and I think he did that first, and then his play level just increased and he even got better."

Charles had gone to the brink, almost as far as Ben Roethlisberger but not nearly as far as Michael Irvin or J.R. Rider or Mike Tyson. What's remarkable is that Charles stopped, spun and flourished in midcareer. He went to Wisconsin in '06 in danger of derailing his career and left in '13 with Hall of Fame credentials and attributes worthy of adulation.

"The beauty of who Charles has become as a person is that he's so positive and happy," Asomugha says. "I talk to him all the time, and he's so encouraging. That's what you want from a leader, from a guy you looked at as a mentor and a guy you have so much respect for a lot of things he has done."

Woodson's last few years in Oakland, with the team spiraling down after the Super Bowl loss in February 2003, were filled with frustration. His arrival this year is nothing less than refreshing. And very, very welcome.

"I just continue to fall in love with the game," Woodson says. "As a young player, I never looked this far ahead. I never thought about how long I was going to play."

Season No. 16 is on the horizon. Woodson has a $1.8 million one-year contract that, with incentives, could reach $4 million. He also has the respect and confidence of those around him, from general manager Reggie McKenzie (who was with the Packers when Woodson signed there) to coach Dennis Allen to his teammates.

"When he comes out here and practices, he gives his all," strong safety Tyvon Branch says. "For the young guys to see a guy like him, somebody who has played a trillion and eight years getting after it, it just rubs off on them."

Playmaking leadership is what the Raiders want and need -- and hope they get -- from Woodson. It's his specialty. He stood at the cliff and came back to tap himself and his teammates, to be there for those who need him and those who might themselves someday dance along the edge.
