GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders return home to Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum to play the Cleveland Browns in Week 4 following two consecutive road games in Denver and Miami against the Broncos and Dolphins. Kickoff is set for Sunday, Sept. 30 at 1:05 p.m. PT. The Week 4 matchup with the Browns will mark the first time Cleveland has traveled to Oakland since 2012. In their most recent tilt in 2015, the Raiders defeated the Browns by a score of 27-20 at FirstEnergy Stadium.

In Week 3, the Raiders lost to the AFC East's first-place Miami Dolphins by a score of 20-28. Highlighted in the contest was a breakout performance by WR Jordy Nelson, as he totaled 173 yards receiving on just six receptions (28.8 avg.) and added his first score of the season. In his last two games against the Dolphins, Nelson has hauled in 15 passes for 280 yards (18.8 avg.) and recorded two touchdowns. Nelson was the third Raiders receiver to cross the 100-yard barrier in a game this season, making the club just one-of-two teams in the league to have three different receivers achieve the feat in each week thus far. QB Derek Carr also notched his second 300-yard performance of the season as he totaled 345 yards through the air on 27-of-39 attempts. Through three games this season, Carr is averaging 302 yards per game (sixth in the NFL) while achieving a 76.6 percent completion percentage (second in the NFL).

The Browns won their first game of the season last week on Thursday Night Football against the New York Jets by a score of 21-17, bringing their record on the year to 1-1-1. Next week, the Raiders will travel to Los Angeles to face the AFC West divisional rival Chargers for their second divisional matchup of the season, before heading overseas to London to face the Seattle Seahawks in Week 6. The Browns will return to Cleveland to host two consecutive games against the Baltimore Ravens and the Los Angeles Chargers.

JORDY NELSON

In Week 3, Nelson had his coming out party in Silver and Black, as he recorded two 60-plus-yard receptions in the first quarter of the contest en route to racking up a league-best 151 yards in the first half. Nelson finished the afternoon with 173 receiving yards, the second-most in his career. His 173 yards in the contest rank as the third-most for a single game in 2018 (first in Week 3). Nelson became just the sixth player since 2008 to record multiple 60-yard receptions in a single contest, while becoming just the second player to do so in the first half of a contest since 2006 (Lee Evans).

----- Most 60-Yard Receptions Since 2012 -----

| Rank | Player              | Receptions | TDs      |
|------|---------------------|------------|----------|
| 1.   | Jordy Nelson | 12  | 7 |

| 5.   | A.J. Green          | 8          | 8        |

More Nelson Notes:

- Nelson's two receptions of at least 60 yards rank first in the NFL in 2018
- Among receivers with at least five receptions in Week 3, Nelson's 28.8-yard average ranks first
- Nelson's 99 yards after the catch in Week 3 ranks first among all wide receivers
- Dating back to 1991, Nelson is the only Raider with multiple receptions of at least 60 yards in a single contest

BROWNS SNAPSHOT

Overview: Head Coach Hue Jackson enters his third year in Cleveland and has posted a 2-32-1 record as head coach of the Browns. The Browns enter Sunday's contest 1-1-1 after defeating the New York Jets, 21-17, in Week 3. Jackson spent the 2010 season as the Raiders' offensive coordinator and was promoted to head coach in 2011 when he went 8-8. First-year offensive coordinator Todd Haley looks to lead a high-powered rushing attack and revamped receiving core in 2018. The Browns trail the Raiders, 12-10, in the all-time regular season series.

Offense: QB Baker Mayfield will earn his first career NFL start against the Raiders after completing 17-of-23 passes for 201 yards in Week 3, leading the Browns back from a 14-0 deficit to defeat the Jets. RB Carlos Hyde leads the AFC in rushing yards (203) and rushing TDs (four). WR Jarvis Landry has hauled in 20 passes for 278 yards (second in the AFC), while WR Antonio Callaway has seven receptions for 101 yards (14.43 avg.) and one TD. Last year's receiving leader in TDs (four), TE David Njoku, remains a top target with nine receptions for 69 yards through three games.

Defense: Now in his second season as defensive coordinator, Gregg Williams, returns a defense that is currently ranked third in INTs (five) and sixth in sacks (nine). DE Myles Garrett is tied for the NFL lead with four sacks and has added two forced fumbles, while DT Larry Ogunjobi has recorded 10 tackles and three sacks. First-round pick DB Denzel Ward has recorded two INTs, along with 17 tackles and one forced fumble. DB Terrance Mitchell and LB Joe Schobert each recorded an INT in the victory over the Jets last week. Schobert, who led the NFL with 144 tackles in 2017, leads the Browns with 23 tackles this season.

SERIES SNAPSHOT

In the first Raiders home game following the passing of Owner Al Davis, the Raiders fought through a season-ending injury to the team's starting quarterback and a late surge by the visiting Cleveland Browns to post a 24-17 victory on Oct. 16, 2011. John Madden lit the memorial torch for the first time in honor of the Raiders' owner and pro football trailblazer and the Silver and Black jumped out to an early lead behind a touchdown by Darren McFadden, who rushed for 91 yards on the day. Jacoby Ford's 101-yard kickoff return for a touchdown followed a Browns score and after Jason Campbell left the game with a broken collarbone, the Raiders used some trickery as Shane Lechler connected with Kevin Boss for a 35-yard touchdown on a fake field-goal play. Head Coach Hue Jackson's squad then weathered 10 Cleveland points in the fourth quarter to hold on for the win.

RAIDERS VS. BROWNS

WHAT TO WATCH FOR VS. CLEVELAND

- A Raider recording 100-plus receiving yards for the fourth consecutive game with Jared Cook recording 180 yards in Week 1, Amari Cooper finishing with 116 yards in Week 2 and Jordy Nelson totaling 173 yards in Week 3.
- QB Derek Carr recording his 20th career game with a passer rating of at least 100 points, which would tie him with Jeff Hostetler for the fifth most in franchise history.
- Carr throwing for 300 yards in back-to-back weeks, marking the third time this season and the 17th time in his career. The Raiders are 10-6 when he reaches the 300-yard milestone.
- Carr completing 90 percent of his passes to become the first player in NFL history to post a 90-plus completion percentage in multiple games. In Week 2, Carr became the first quarterback in NFL history to complete 90 percent of his passes on at least 30 attempts.
- Carr throwing three touchdowns in a game for the first time this season. Carr has posted three touchdowns in 14 games thus far, ranking tied for third in NFL history with the most three-touchdown performances to start his career.
- TE Jared Cook leading all tight ends in the NFL in receiving yards for the fourth consecutive week. Cook enters Sunday's game as the only tight end to surpass 250-plus receiving yards this season.
- Cook continuing to lead the league among tight ends with the most receptions for first downs (12). Since joining the Silver and Black in 2017, Cook is tied fourth among tight ends with 47 first-down receptions.
- Cook hauling in one touchdown to bring his career total to 20, which would tie him for 15th in the league among active tight ends.
- Cook needs 172 yards to bring his career total to 5,000, becoming just the eight active tight end to accomplish the feat.
- WR Amari Cooper recording 100 receiving yards for the second time this season after recording 119 yards in Week 2, marking his 13th career game with at least 100 yards.
- DE Bruce Irvin totaling two sacks, which would bring his career total to 40 to become the 19th active player to accomplish the feat.
- Irvin continuing to lead the league in forced fumbles since joining the Silver and Black in 2016 with 11. Since 2016, Irvin is one of two players in the NFL who have registered at least 15 sacks and 10 forced fumbles.
- RB Marshawn Lynch recording a rushing touchdown for the fourth consecutive game, marking the first time he's done so with the Silver and Black. Lynch needs five touchdowns to become the 15th rusher in NFL history with 90 career scores.
- Lynch continuing to lead the league with 61 rushing touchdowns since the beginning of the 2011 season, despite only playing in seven games in the 2015 season due to an abdominal injury and being retired for the duration of the 2016 season.
- Lynch needs six more carries to move into 27th place in NFL history. Lynch enters today contest ranked third among active players with 2,399 rushes behind Frank Gore (3,250) and Adrian Peterson (2,630).
- WR Jordy Nelson recording 100-plus receiving yards in back-to-back games for the first time since Week 15-16 of the 2016 season. Nelson has recorded 26 contests with at least 100 receiving yards.
- Nelson recording 150 receiving yards for the second time this season and the seventh time in his career. Nelson is one of six players this season to have record at least 150 receiving yards in a contest.
- Nelson recording one receiving touchdown in the redzone lead the league with 18 such scores since 2016. Nelson currently owns 42 redzone scores, which ranks sixth among active players.
- WR Seth Roberts recording his 13th career receiving touchdown, giving him sole possession of second most by a Raiders undrafted free agent. The Raiders are 10-1 when Roberts catches a touchdown.
- Roberts recording 114 receiving yards in his 50th career game, which would make him the only undrafted Raider to reach 1,500 yards in his first 50 games.

A WIN WOULD...

...improve Oakland's all-time regular season series record against Cleveland to 13-10.

...give the Raiders a two-game win streak over the Browns. The Silver and Black won the last contest against the Browns, defeating the club on the road at FirstEnergy Stadium in 2015 by a score of 27-20.

...give the Raiders their first victory in consecutive contests since the 1985 and 1986 seasons. The team won 21-20 in Cleveland in 1985 and defeated the Browns again in 1986 at Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum in 1986 by a final of 27-14.

...mark Oakland's first win at home against Cleveland since the 2011 season, when the Silver and Black earned a 24-17 victory. The series is currently tied a 7-7 advantage when the Raiders are the home team.

HEAD COACHING MATCHUP

JON GRUDEN

Jon Gruden returns as head coach of the Oakland Raiders, welcoming back one of the most respected and successful coaches in the storied history of the Silver and Black. Gruden, who was first introduced as head coach of the Raiders 20 years ago, served four seasons with the Raiders from 1998-2001.

Gruden has compiled a 95-82 (.540) regular season mark as a head coach with the Raiders and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (2002-08), and a 5-4 record (.556) in postseason contests, which includes a victory in Super Bowl XXXVII.

The youngest head coach in the NFL at age 34 upon his initial hire by Raiders Owner Al Davis in 1998, Gruden posted a 38-26 record (.594) and led the Silver and Black to back-to-back AFC West titles in 2000 and 2001. He guided the Raiders to an AFC Championship Game appearance in 2000, a campaign in which the Raiders set a franchise record with 479 points and led the NFL in rushing (154.4 avg.).

In all, Gruden-led teams have claimed five division championships and have recorded six seasons with nine-or-more wins. As a head coach, he has seen 21 different players combine for 39 Pro Bowl selections. In addition, Rich Gannon was tabbed for the Maxwell Club's Bert Bell Award as the league's Most Valuable Player in 2000 and four players who Gruden tutored as a head coach have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame: Jerry Rice (2010), Warren Sapp (2013), Derrick Brooks (2014) and Tim Brown (2015).

Gruden spent seven seasons as head coach of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, finishing his time there as the winningest coach in franchise history by compiling a 57-55 (.509) regular-season record, while leading the Buccaneers to three division titles and a 3-2 mark in the postseason, including a Super Bowl XXXVII victory, becoming the youngest head coach in NFL history to win a Super Bowl.

Prior to beginning his initial tenure in Oakland, Gruden was a seven-year NFL assistant, helping his teams qualify for the playoffs five times. Gruden spent three seasons (1995-97) as offensive coordinator for the Philadelphia Eagles. He was the NFL's youngest offensive coordinator at age 31.

Before joining Philadelphia, Gruden worked for three years at Green Bay from 1992-94. He served as an offensive assistant to head coach Mike Holmgren in 1992 and spent the 1993 and 1994 seasons as Green Bay's wide receivers coach. Gruden worked as offensive assistant to head coach George Seifert with the San Francisco 49ers in 1990.

Born August 17, 1963 in Sandusky, Ohio, Gruden attended South Bend (Ind.) Clay High School and was a three-year letterman at quarterback at the University of Dayton, graduating in 1985 with a degree in communications. Gruden and his wife, Cindy, a former University of Tennessee cheerleader, have three sons, Deuce, who is in his first season as an assistant strength and conditioning coach for the Silver and Black, Michael and Jayson.

HUE JACKSON

Hue Jackson was named the 16th full-time head coach in Cleveland Browns history by Dee and Jimmy Haslam on January 13, 2016. He has 31 years of coaching experience, including the last 17 in the NFL.

In 2017, the Browns defense made significant improvements in many categories. The Browns, who finished 31st in the NFL in both total defense and rushing defense in 2016, ranked 14th in total defense and seventh in rushing defense in 2017. Cleveland recorded its best finish in rush defense since 1992 and held opponents to a 3.35 rushing average. Joe Schobert became the first Browns linebacker named to the Pro Bowl in 16 years as he tied for first in the NFL with 144 tackles. Defensive lineman Myles Garrett, the first overall pick of the 2017 NFL Draft, led the Browns with seven sacks, tied for second among all NFL rookies.

In his first year with Cleveland, Jackson helped the Browns finish second in the NFL with a 4.89 rushing average, the team's best mark since 1966. Linebacker Christian Kirksey finished third in the NFL with 148 tackles, while left tackle Joe Thomas was selected to his 10th career Pro Bowl.

Prior to joining the Browns, Jackson spent the previous four seasons (2012-15) with the Cincinnati Bengals. During that time, he helped the Bengals to two division titles and a trip to the postseason all four years. In 2012, he served as secondary/assistant special teams coach before coaching the running backs in 2013. Jackson spent 2014-15 as offensive coordinator.

After spending the 2010 season as the Raiders offensive coordinator, Jackson was promoted to head coach in 2011. Oakland finished the year 8-8 and tied for first in the AFC West but missed the postseason via tiebreaker. The 8-8 mark was the best record by any Raiders team since 2002. Before joining the Raiders, Jackson spent two seasons (2008-09) as quarterbacks coach for Baltimore, helping the Ravens advance to the playoffs both years. He was vital in the development of Joe Flacco, who was named NFL Rookie of the Year in 2008 and became the first rookie quarterback to win two playoff games as the Ravens advanced to the AFC Championship game.

From 2004-06, Jackson served as the Bengals wide receivers coach, helping develop one of the best wide receiver tandems in NFL history with Chad Johnson and T.J. Houshmandzadeh. In 2006, Johnson and Houshmandzadeh became the first Bengals duo to each top 1,000 receiving yards in the same season.

Jackson spent 14 years coaching on the college level, going from a graduate assistant at Pacific all the way to offensive coordinator at Southern California. He spent four seasons (1997-2000) as USC's offensive coordinator.

Jackson and his wife have three daughters, Jordyn, Baylee and Haydyn.

- o Nelson recorded his first touchdown as a Raider on the opening drive, hauling a 12-yard reception from Derek Carr to cap a 4-play, 75-yard drive lasting 1:26. Nelson also had a 61-yard reception on the drive, accounting for 73 yards on the drive.
- o Nelson's touchdown marked the 70th of his career, making him the sixth active player and 44th all time to haul in 70 career receiving scores.
- o Nelson now leads the league with 17 redzone touchdowns since 2016.
- o On the second drive, Nelson recorded a 66-yard reception, which marks the Raiders longest play from scrimmage this season and Nelson's longest receptions since Week 10 of the 2014 season.
- o On his 66-yard reception, Nelson surpassed 8,000 career receiving yards to become the 11th active player to accomplish the feat.
- o Nelson finished the first half with 151 yards, the most by a receiver in the league entering today's contest. It also ranks as the second most receiving yards in the first half of play of his career.
- o Nelson ended the contest with 173, the third most in a single game this season entering today's contest and the second most in his career.

- K Mike Nugent

- o With 3:35 left in the second quarter, Nugent capped off a 16-play, 68-yard drive that lasted 8:37 with a 25-yard field goal to give Oakland a 10-7 lead at the half.
- o Nugent recorded his second field goal of the day on a 52-yard field goal with 25 seconds left in the contest. The field goal marked Nugent's longest this season.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 58th year of professional football competition, including the last 47 as a member of the National Football League.

In six memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s and 2010s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three world championships of professional football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 22 playoff seasons, finished 35 seasons at .500 or better and played in 41 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three world championships of professional football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

With four postseason victories, the Raiders were the first of the AFC West teams to win multiple postseason contests in the new millennium by six years.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During the memorable 58 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 462 league games, tied 11 and lost 414.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

More than 20 of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced six Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 70 Pro Bowl players have earned 195 Pro Bowl selections representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-77-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 38-27-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 16-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s and now the 2010s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

REGGIE McKENZIE

THE GENERAL MANAGER

Reggie McKenzie, a former draft pick by Raiders Owner Al Davis as a player, enters his 32nd season in the National Football League and his seventh as General Manager of the Silver and Black. McKenzie was named to the position by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 10, 2012, becoming the first General Manager of the franchise since Al Davis was hired as Head Coach and General Manager in 1963. Owner Mark Davis rewarded McKenzie with a four-year contract extension in July 2016, and McKenzie went on to be named the Executive of the Year by the Pro Football Writers of America and Sporting News in 2016.

McKenzie has overseen significant changes in the organization's scouting, player personnel and football operations departments, while bringing refined football acumen to the Silver and Black. Adhering to a strategy of building a competitive roster through the draft while making strategic acquisitions via free agency and trades, McKenzie finished his sixth season at the helm having already earned plaudits from some of the most respected voices in football.

UNDRAFTED GEMS

Every preseason, hundreds of undrafted free agents vie for a spot on their team's 53-man roster. Reggie McKenzie has brought in numerous players that were not drafted, developing them into significant contributors for the Silver and Black.

- On RB Jalen Richard's first NFL carry in 2016, he rushed 75 yards for a touchdown. With his 75-yard touchdown, Richard became just the fourth player ever to record a 75-or-more-yard rushing touchdown in his NFL debut, joining Oran Pape (1930), Alan Ameche (1955) and Ottis Anderson (1979). He has totaled five scores and combined for 1,357 scrimmage yards in 35 career games.

- WR Seth Roberts has totaled four game-winning touchdowns in his career (Week 2 of 2015 vs. Baltimore, Week 12 of 2015 at Tennessee and Week 1 of 2016 at New Orleans). The Raiders are 10-1 in games when he records a touchdown reception.

Notable Raiders who entered the NFL as undrafted FAs:

| Player             | School               | Year | Team      |
|--------------------|----------------------|------|-----------|
| LB Nicholas Morrow | Greenville           | 2017 | Oakland   |
| T Donald Penn      | Utah State           | 2006 | Minnesota |
| RB Jalen Richard   | Southern Mississippi | 2016 | Oakland   |
| WR Seth Roberts    | West Alabama         | 2014 | Oakland   |

Since McKenzie took over as GM in 2012, the Raiders have had 11 UDFAs on the initial 53-man roster. Here is the yearly breakdown:

| Year | UDFAs on Initial 53 |
| 2012 | 2                   |
| 2013 | 2                   |
| 2015 | 2                   |
| 2016 | 4                   |
| 2017 | 1                   |

LATE-ROUND STEALS

"It definitely helps. When you play on Sunday and a guy goes down and that player that you have running on special teams now can play a position and you're not afraid to put him in, it gives you depth. They may not be the starter. These young guys, you really have to give them a couple of years to figure out what they really are. Some of them, you have to throw them in because of where you are as a team. Let's all hope that not only the guys at the top of the draft but the guys at the bottom, if we can get a couple of those guys to give us some production within the first three years, that would be great." - Raiders GM Reggie McKenzie on getting production from lower-level draft picks

GM Reggie McKenzie's philosophy of building his roster through the draft includes standout players from the top of the board like QB Derek Carr and WR Amari Cooper. But a good drafting team will make all of their picks count, and McKenzie has done that of late. Here is a look at some players currently on the roster that McKenzie has drafted in the fourth round or later and have provided solid production:

McKenzie's Picks

THAT'S WHAT THEY SAID

"My approach is old school. I'm a roll up the sleeves type of guy that wakes up early in the morning like iron workers, and comes prepared to get the job done." - Reggie McKenzie, introductory press conference, Jan. 10, 2012

"He has the courage of his convictions about players that Ron Wolf had, including blunt assessments of their talent. But Reggie also has the patience of Ted Thompson; he adheres to the draft-and-develop model of team-building. The latter means trusting scouts to constantly fill a pipeline of young talent, empowering coaches to play and develop young players, and identifying core players to secure contractually for the future." - Andrew Brandt, Monday Morning Quarterback (MMQB), March 12, 2014

"He is an exceptional evaluator of talent. Just has a great skill for it, especially for guys already in the NFL who might be flying under the radar. He was my right-hand man for all those years, a big reason why the Packers were good all those years." - Ron Wolf, April 24, 2012

"You can see this foundation starting to build there with the things Reggie [McKenzie] has done. He goes and hires Jack Del Rio, and I think that's a pretty good situation. They have a ton of cap space and an opportunity to build. All of a sudden you look at the AFC West, and they're kind of on the rise and you're very familiar with the AFC West so you know. It's very competitive." - Andy Reid, March 24, 2015

GRUDEN QUICK HITS

- The Raiders ranked in the top-seven in total offense in three of Gruden's first four seasons in Oakland, including the top-three in rushing twice and the top-seven in passing once. Defensively, Gruden's units twice ranked among the league's top-10 in total defense, including the fifth-overall rush defense in 2000 and two top-nine finishes in passing defense.

SILVER AND BLACK IN PRIME TIME

- The Raiders will play four primetime games in 2018: the season opener on Monday Night Football against the Los Angeles Rams on Sept. 10 - a game the Rams won by a score of 33-13, a Thursday Night Football contest against the Bay Area-rival San Francisco 49ers on Nov. 1, a Sunday Night Football matchup with the Pittsburgh Steelers on Dec. 9 and a second Monday Night Football game on Christmas Eve against the Denver Broncos on Dec. 24. The Thursday Night Football contest against the 49ers will be televised on FOX with a simulcast on NFL Network.
- The Raiders will appear on Sunday Night Football one time in 2018, marking the second consecutive season that Oakland has been scheduled for a Sunday night. Last year, the Raiders appeared on Sunday Night Football three times, facing the Washington Redskins in Week 3, the Miami Dolphins in Week 9 and the Dallas Cowboys in Week 15. The Raiders went 1-2 in 2017 on Sunday Night Football, defeating the Dolphins, 27-24, in Miami. In 2013, the Raiders participated in the latest NFL game ever played when they hosted the San Diego Chargers on Oct. 6. Due to an Oakland Athletics' postseason game at Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, the Raiders moved their game to an 8:35 p.m. PT start, marking the latest start time in NFL history.
- The Raiders, 19-20 all-time in Sunday night contests since 1978, are 1-0 against the Steelers on Sunday night, who they will play on Dec. 9 in Oakland.
- This will mark the Raiders' 69th and 70th contest on Monday Night Football and third consecutive year after playing their first-ever Monday Night Football game on Christmas Day last season and their first Monday Night Football contest outside of the United States in 2016 in Mexico City, Mexico. The Raiders have split their last two Monday Night Football appearances, defeating the Texans, 27-20, in 2016 and falling to the Eagles, 10-19, last year. It will mark the first MNF matchup against the Broncos since 2013 and first MNF game against the Rams since 1985.
- Oakland holds a 38-29-1 all-time record in Monday Night Football contests. The Silver and Black last played on Monday Night Football on Sept. 10 at home against the Los Angeles Rams.
- On Thursdays, the Raiders are 10-10 all-time, including a 3-4 record on Thanksgiving Days. The contest against the 49ers will mark just the second overall primetime matchup between the two teams and first since 1994, when they met on Monday Night Football.

MILES AND MILES

Factoring in three trips to the Eastern Time Zone and two more to the Central Time Zone, the Raiders will travel more miles in the NFL this upcoming season than any other club. Oakland is scheduled to log 31,732 miles in 2018, nearly 1,000 more than their 30,889 miles traveled in 2017. As a division, the AFC West will also lead the NFL in terms of most miles traveled (94,857). In all, the Raiders have four round-trips that will exceed 4,000 miles, with their trip to London surpassing 10,000 miles alone. Below is a look at the five teams who travel the most in 2018, with the Silver and Black being the only team to cross the 30,000-mile barrier.

| 2018 TRAVELING BREAKDOWN |                      |
|--------------------------|----------------------|
| Team                     | 2018 Traveling Miles |
| Oakland Raiders   | 31,732        |
| Seattle Seahawks         | 29,068               |
| Los Angeles Chargers     | 29,055               |
| Jacksonville Jaguars     | 20,278               |
| Philadelphia Eagles      | 20,262               |

Fun Fact: Three teams (L.A. Chargers, Oakland Raiders and Seattle Seahawks) will "travel around the world" at least once in 2018 (approximately 25,000 miles).

WINNING WAYS

The Raiders are among the elite teams in NFL history, ranking among the top teams from 1963-2017 in winning percentage of teams playing at least 500 games. The Raiders are tied seventh with a .543 percentage since Al Davis was named head coach and general manager in 1963.

OFFENSIVE EFFICIENCY

In 2018, Oakland's offensive unit returned four Pro Bowlers from last season in QB Derek Carr, C Rodney Hudson, G/T Kelechi Osemele and T Donald Penn. Additionally, the club added former All-Pro and 2014 Pro Bowler WR Jordy Nelson to the arsenal. A look below shows where the offense excelled in through two weeks of play in 2018.

100-YARD RECEIVERS

Now entering Week 4 of the regular season, the Raiders offense has featured a different player each week, as three different players have recorded 100-yard receiving games thus far.

----- 100-YARD RECEIVING GAMES -----

| Rank | Player       | Week | Yards | Receptions |
|------|--------------|------|-------|------------|
| 1.   | Jared Cook   | 1    | 180   | 9          |
| 2.   | Jordy Nelson | 3    | 173   | 6          |
| 3.   | Amari Cooper | 2    | 116   | 10         |

The Raiders are one of just two teams in the NFL this year to have a different player record 100 yards receiving in each of the first three weeks of the season, with the other being the Kansas City Chiefs. Additionally, the Raiders are the only team in the league to have multiple players record at least 170 receiving yards in a contest.

The three 100-yard performances from Cook, Cooper and Nelson - each in a different week - marks the first time the feat has been accomplished by the Silver and Black through the first three weeks of any campaign in team history. The last time the team began the season with three straight 100-yard receiving performances - no matter the player - was in 2005, when Randy Moss notched one in Weeks 1 and 2, and Courtney Anderson added one in Week 3.

COMPLETION %

Through Week 3 of the regular season, the Raiders have been extremely efficient in the passing game, connecting on 85-of-111 pass attempts. The chart below highlights NFL completion percentage.

----- 2018 NFL COMPLETION PERCENTAGE (BY TEAM) -----

| Rank | Team                 | RZ Eff.      |
|------|----------------------|--------------|
| 1.   | New Orleans          | 80.6%        |
| 2.   | Tampa Bay            | 78.7%        |
| 3.   | Oakland       | 76.6% |
| 4.   | New York Giants      | 73.6%        |
| 5.   | Miami                | 73.3%        |
| 6.   | Los Angeles Rams     | 70.3%        |
| 7.   | Los Angeles Chargers | 69.4%        |
| 8.   | Chicago              | 69.2%        |
| 9.   | Washington           | 68.8%        |
| 10.  | Minnesota            | 68.3%        |

In Week 2 against the Broncos, QB Derek Carr completed 29-of-32 pass attempts for a franchise record 90.6 completion %.

EVERYBODY EATS

In 2017, 12 different Raiders on the roster hauled in a pass from QB Derek Carr. Thus far in 2018, Carr has connected on passes with 11 different receivers on the roster. Below shows the number of receivers to haul in a pass each week.

| Date | Opp.    | Number of Receivers |
|------|---------|---------------------|
| 9/10 | vs. LAR | 8                   |

JUST COOK'N

With 107 yards on six receptions in the team's 2017 Week 7 thriller against the Kansas City Chiefs, TE Jared Cook became the first tight end in NFL history to record at least one 100-yard receiving game with four different teams. Cook surpassed 30 receptions in Week 8 for the seventh consecutive season, and set a career high when he finished with 54 in 2017, 11th-most among all tight ends. His 688 receiving yards ranked seventh among tight ends and led the team. In Week 1 of 2018, Cook led all receivers with 180 yards, marking a new franchise record by a tight end.

----- COOK'S CAREER 100-YARD GAMES -----

| Rank | Team      | Opponent     | Yards | Receptions |
|------|-----------|--------------|-------|------------|
| 1.   | Oakland   | L.A. Rams    | 180   | 9          |
| 2.   | Tennessee | Jacksonville | 169   | 8          |
| 3.   | St. Louis | Arizona      | 141   | 7          |
| 4.   | Oakland   | Miami        | 126   | 8          |
| 5.   | Oakland   | Kansas City  | 107   | 6          |

3-AND-OUT

Though three weeks of action in 2018, the Raiders defense has shown improvement on many fronts. In one particular area, opponent 3-and-out drives, the Raiders have drastically improved from their final ranking in 2017 of 25th in the NFL. Currently, the Silver and Black have forced their opponents to 3-and-outs on 25.8 percent of their drives, a mark that ranks seventh in the NFL through Week 3. Shown below is a chart highlighting the aforementioned category and its top-10.

----- 2018 OPPONENT 3 & OUT DRIVES -----

| Rank | Team           | Defensive Series | 3 & Out Drives | 3 & Out %   |

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

On May 7, LB Derrick Johnson signed to the Raiders and made the trip to the dark side in Silver and Black. Johnson, an All-Pro in 2011 and four-time Pro Bowler (2011-13, 15) left the Kansas City Chiefs as the club's all-time leader in tackles (1,262), and stands as the NFL's active leader in the respective category.

Last season, Johnson was graded as the sixth ranked (grade of 86.0) off-ball linebacker in coverage last season, per Pro Football Focus. Johnson tallied five stops in his debut as a Raider.

MOVING THE BALL

Through three weeks of regular season football, the Raiders offense has racked up substantial yardage in each contest, averaging just over 400 yards per game (400.7 avg.). It's just the third time since 2002 in which a Raiders offense has averaged at least 400 yards per game through the season's first three weeks. In those contests, QB Derek Carr has thrown for 300 yards twice, while each game a Raiders receiver has notched a 100-yard receiver.

----- 400 YARDS PER GAME THROUGH WEEK 3 -----

| Rank | Year | Yards Per Game | Final Ranking    |
|------|------|----------------|------------------|
| 1.   | 2002 | 443.5          | 1st (389.8 avg.) |
| 2.   | 2016 | 436.0          | 6th (373.3 avg.) |

T-DUB

The Raiders welcomed another new face to the defense in 2018 with the signing of LB Tahir Whitehead. Since 2016, Whitehead has recorded two 100-plus tackle seasons, while he also became just the 11th Detroit Lion all-time to notch 130-plus tackles in a single season in 2015.

----- MOST TACKLES SINCE 2016 -----

| Rank | Player                 | Total Tackles |

KEEP YOUR CARR CLEAN

The offensive line performed at an elite level in 2017 for the second season in a row, after posting a league-best and the fewest by the club since the 1970 AFL-NFL Merger, 18 sacks in the 2016 campaign. With 24 sacks surrendered in 2017, the unit tied for the third-fewest sacks given up league wide.

Since QB Derek Carr entered the league in 2014, the team's 108 sacks allowed are the fewest in the NFL. In addition, the Raiders' 80 sacks surrendered since 2015 are uncontested as well.

2017 NFL SACKS ALLOWED

2017 Weeks With Zero Sacks: Week 2 (New York Jets), Week 7 (Kansas City Chiefs), Week 8 (Buffalo Bills) and again in Week 15 (Dallas Cowboys).

After only surrendering just five sacks against the Los Angeles Rams, Denver Broncos and Miami Dolphins in Weeks 1-3, the club's 47 sacks given up since 2016 are the fewest in the NFL.

PAVING THE WAY

Three games into the 2018 season, the offensive line has paved the way for three RB Marshawn Lynch touchdown rushes, a number that sits tied for fourth in the NFL through Week 3. Lynch's touchdown in Week 3 against the Dolphins marked the first time since 2008 that Beast Mode has recorded a rushing touchdown in each of the first three games of the season. A touchdown in Week 4 would make Lynch the first Raider in franchise history to begin the season with a touchdown in four straight games.

The Raiders' stable of backs finished the season ranked 13th in yards per rush in 2017, averaging 4.20 yards. The line guided Lynch to his seventh career season with at least 800 yards on the ground, including two 100-yard performances in Week 13 (101 yards on 17 attempts - 5.9 avg.) and Week 17 (101 yards on 19 attempts - 5.3 avg.). Since returning to action in Week 9, Lynch averaged 78.1 yards rushing per game (625 total), a mark that tied for third in the NFL during that span. Additionally, Lynch became just the second active running back to record 80 scores on the ground, joining Adrian Peterson. The men up front also paved the way for his 13th multi-rushing touchdown contest (Week 9) of his career. Teams with Lynch are 13-0 when he scores twice on the ground.

CARR'S SHOP

In 2017, the Raiders' offensive line was dominant in pass protection, allowing QB Derek Carr and company an abundance of time to survey the field and make big plays. The line helped the offense tie for first in 20-plus-yard touchdowns (17) on the season. The club has kicked off 2018 right where they left off, surrendering a sack on just 4.3% of their pass attempts. Shown below is where the Raiders rank in sacks surrendered per attempt in 2018.

2018 NFL SACKS SURRENDERED (SACKS/ATT.)

| Rk. | Team             | Sacks/Att.  |

| 9.  | Oakland   | 4.3% |
| 10. | Denver           | 4.4%        |

Anchoring the line in 2018 is C Rodney Hudson, who has surrendered just one sack since Week 1 of 2015 (1,917 pass snaps), per PFF.

DAMAGE CONTROL

Not only did the Raiders surrender the third-fewest sacks in 2017, Carr and company also managed to minimize yards lost on all sacks. The Raiders lost just 130 yards total on sacks in 2017, and have totaled 216 in the last two seasons combined, the only team to remain under 300 total lost yards during the same time frame.

DEREK CARR

CARR AT THE HELM

QB Derek Carr was named the Raiders' starting QB heading into the 2014 season, becoming the first rookie QB in team history to start in Week 1. Carr has grown into one of the league's elite QBs, as he became the third QB in NFL history to complete at least 300 passes in each of his first four seasons while also reaching 15,000 passing yards in the fewest games (64) in club history. In 2016, he became the first QB in franchise history to throw for 3,000 yards in each of his first three seasons and led seven fourth-quarter comebacks en route to winning the NFL's Castrol Edge Clutch Performer of the Year award.

THROWING FOR SIX

Carr has enjoyed one of the most prolific starts to a career in NFL history, especially when it comes to finding the end zone. His 53 TDs rank second most by any NFL player through his first two seasons, trailing only Dan Marino (68). And although his 2016 season was cut short due to injury, he continued his stellar start to his career by throwing 28 more TDs in his third season. His 105 TDs are also 10th-most in the NFL since 2014.

| 5.   | Andrew Luck (Ind.)       | 2012-15        | 101        |

Carr crossed the 100-touchdown barrier just 60 games into his NFL career, the quickest to reach 100 passing scores in Raiders history. By doing so in his first four seasons, Carr joined Dan Marino, Peyton Manning, Andrew Luck and Russell Wilson as the only quarterbacks in NFL history to toss 100 touchdowns through their first four seasons in the league.

2015 TDs

Carr threw a career-high 32 TD passes in 2015, averaging two TDs per start. Carr finished the year just two TDs shy of the Raiders franchise record, currently held by Daryle Lamonica (34 in 1969). Here is where Carr ranked in TD passes in 2015:

HIGHLY RATED

Over the last three seasons, Carr has emerged as one of the league's leading passers. His passer rating improved by 14.5 points from his rookie season in 2015 and by 5.6 more in 2016, helping him post the eighth- and third-best ratings in franchise history. Here is how Carr's 2015 and 2016 season rank among the best passing campaigns in Raiders team history:

RAIDERS ELITE

Carr threw 32 TD passes in 2015, giving him the second most TD passes in a season in franchise history behind Daryle Lamonica's 34 TDs in 1969. Lamonica also threw 30 TDs in 1967, making him and Carr the only Raiders to throw 30-plus TD passes in a season.

A CARR IN ITS OWN CLASS

In his 53rd career game in Week 7 against the Kansas City Chiefs, a three-touchdown, 417-yard performance pushed Carr passed 90 career touchdowns (92). He became the first quarterback in NFL history to cross 90 touchdown passes while throwing less than 40 interceptions. Listed below are other players who have also reached the aforementioned milestone at the time of Carr's feat.

| Player                   | Pass TDs  | INTs      | Rating      |
|--------------------------|-----------|-----------|-------------|
| Dan Marino (Mia.)        | 121       | 60        | 94.0        |
| Kurt Warner (Stl.)       | 102       | 65        | 97.2        |
| Andrew Luck (Ind.)       | 97        | 52        | 85.5        |
| Matthew Stafford (Det.)  | 96        | 60        | 84.6        |
| Peyton Manning (Ind.)    | 95        | 67        | 85.8        |
| Carson Palmer (Cin.)     | 94        | 53        | 91.4        |
| Derek Carr (Oak.) | 92 | 35 | 88.7 |

15K

QB Derek Carr surpassed 15,000 passing yards, becoming just the 17th quarterback in NFL history to surpass the mark in 64 games or less. Carr reached the mark in the fewest games among Raider greats, joining just three other quarterbacks with over 15,000 passing yards in club annals.

TD-INT RATIO

Among Carr's great talents as a quarterback is his ability to protect the ball and minimize turnovers. Through the first four years of his career, there have been few to ever do it better than Carr when it comes to touchdown-to-interception ratio.

Carr's 2.14 TD-INT ratio (105/49) is seventh-best in NFL history among QBs with 1,500-or-more attempts. Shown below is the elite company Carr has joined with those numbers:

| Rank      | Player            | Team           | Ratio       |
|-----------|-------------------|----------------|-------------|

CARR IN CRUISE CONTROL

In Week 2 against the Denver Broncos, QB Derek Carr put together one of the greatest single-game performances in NFL history when he completed 29 of his 32 pass attempts for a 90.6 completion percentage. Among quarterbacks with at least 20 pass attempts in a contest, Carr's mark against the Broncos ranks fourth all-time, while standing as the best single-game percentage in club history. Only eight quarterbacks in NFL history have crossed the 90 completion percentage barrier among the same criteria.

*As shown above, Carr became the first quarterback in NFL history to complete at least 90 percent of his passes while recording at least 30 pass attempts in the contest.

BRUCE IRVIN

BRUCE IRVIN

In 2016, the Raiders signed LB Bruce Irvin, the dynamic defender who played his first four years with the Seattle Seahawks after being drafted 15th overall by the club in the first round of the 2012 NFL Draft. His tenure as a Seahawk included two NFC Championships and a victory in Super Bowl XLVIII. Since his arrival with the Silver and Black, Irvin has started all 35 games for the club. His career statistics are shown below.

WHEN IT MATTERS MOST

A staple of his game, Irvin has made the most in the latter portion of the season and particularly in the month leading up to postseason play. Since 2016, Irvin is tied for fourth in the NFL with 6.5 sacks in the month of December alone.

ROOKIE LEADER

Bursting on the scene in 2012, Irvin wasted no time taking the league by storm, as he racked up a Seahawks-record eight sacks in his first year with the club. Not only did he set a franchise-rookie record, but he led the NFL that year among all rookies as well.

SACK FACTS

Irvin has been a playmaker for the club since signing with the team, and his stats prove it. Since 2016, there are only two players in the NFL who have registered at least 15 sacks and 10 forced fumbles.

----- PLAYERS WITH 15 SACKS AND 10 FFs SINCE 2016 -----

| Team                   | Player             |
|------------------------|--------------------|
| Oakland Raiders | Bruce Irvin |
| Jacksonville Jaguars   | Yannick Ngakoue    |

----- FORCED FUMBLES SINCE 2016 -----

| Team                   | Player             | FFs       |
|------------------------|--------------------|-----------|
| Oakland Raiders | Bruce Irvin | 11 |
| Jacksonville Jaguars   | Yannick Ngakoue    | 10        |
| Tampa Bay Buccaneers   | Lavonte David      | 9         |
| Chicago Bears          | Khalil Mack        | 9         |

*Irvin's six forced fumbles in 2016 led the team and tied for the NFL lead.

Irvin enjoyed a career year in 2017, posting a career-best 64 tackles (47 solo), tying a career high with eight sacks and adding three passes defended. Adding four more forced fumbles to his resume, Irvin became the only player to wear the Silver and Black to register at least four fumbles in two seasons (dating back to 2000). Additionally, his 5.5 sacks since Week 12 were sixth-most in the league, also good for most on the team during that span.

SACK MAN

It's simple - When DE Bruce Irvin gets to the quarterback (half-sack), the odds of winning go up. The Raiders are 9-5 when Irvin gets home, and for his career, team's are 24-9 when Irvin finds his way home in the backfield.

MAN OF THE YEAR

In 2017 Irvin was named the team's nominee for the Walter Payton Man of the Year, representing the best of the NFL's commitment to philanthropy and community impact. The Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award recognizes a player for his excellence on and off the field.

MARSHAWN LYNCH

BEAST MODE

After an injury-riddled 2015 campaign, the Beast went into hibernation for the entirety of the 2016 season. In 2017, a whiff of home brought the beast, RB Marshawn Lynch, out of retirement and placed him into the Silver and Black uniform, the team he grew up watching as an Oakland native. The Oakland Technical High School and Cal Berkley grad joined the Raiders as a five-time Pro Bowler. Lynch is also a two-time member of the Associated press' All-Pro Teams (First Team in 2012 and Second Team in 2014). He returns to the squad in 2018 having compiled 891 yards on the ground and seven TDs in his first season with the Raiders.

Lynch became just the 31st running back in NFL history to rush for 10,000 yards with 891 yards in 2017, his seventh season with at least 800 yards on the ground. Lynch currently owns 33 career 100-yard games, ranking fourth among all active players, while also tying for the second-most multi-td games among active rushers with 13 such games. Below is a chart of Beast Mode's career:

LIKE HE NEVER LEFT

With 61 rushing touchdowns since the beginning of the 2011 season, RB Marshawn Lynch ranks first among all rushers in the NFL. That includes his 2015 season in which he only took the field seven times due to an abdominal injury, and being retired for the duration of the 2016 season.

----- NFL RUSHING LEADERS SINCE 2011 -----

| Player                | Touchdowns |
|-----------------------|------------|
| Marshawn Lynch | 61  |
| Cam Newton            | 57         |
| LeSean McCoy          | 55         |
| Adrian Peterson       | 50         |
| DeMarco Murray        | 49         |
| LeGarrette Blount     | 45         |

From 2011 to 2014, only four running backs totaled double-digit rushing scores in multiple seasons, with Lynch being one of them. Of those four, only Lynch recorded 10+ scores in all four consecutive seasons, amassing an incredible 48 touchdowns in that span, 14 more than the next closest running back. Lynch led the NFL in rushing scores from 2013-14 with 12 and 13 touchdowns.

----- NFL RUSHING LEADERS 2011-14 -----

YARDS AFTER CONTACT

Since 2013, few running backs have rushed for yards after contact like Lynch has, as he's gained an average of 2.71 additional yards per rush after being hit. Listed below are the top-7 in the aforementioned category, with Lynch leading the pack.

| Player                | Avg. YAC    |

ACTIVE LEADERS

With 10,173 yards on the ground through 145 games in his career, Lynch currently ranks third among all active rushers in the NFL.

----- CAREER RUSHING RANKS -----

| Rank | Player                | Rushing Yards |
|------|-----------------------|---------------|
| 1.   | Frank Gore            | 14,124        |
| 2.   | Adrian Peterson       | 12,512        |
| 3.   | Marshawn Lynch | 10,173 |
| 4.   | LeSean McCoy          | 10,153        |

Additionally, Lynch leads all NFL rushers in missed tackles since 2013, per Pro Football Focus. Lynch has forced an incredible 305 missed tackles since 2013. With 245 entering 2017, he had 66 more than any other running back in the NFL during that span, all without Lynch playing a single down during the 2016 campaign.

NOT DONE YET

Lynch powered through 2017, ending the year with a 101-yard effort to cross the 10,000-yard barrier for his career. He also became just the second active player, joining Adrian Peterson, to register 80 career rushing scores.

Additional Notes:

- Lynch needs six TDs to become the 15th rusher in NFL history with 90 career scores.
- Lynch needs 7 rushing TDs to become the 15th player in NFL history to record double-digit rushing scores in five different seasons (he would become only the second active player to do so, joining Adrian Peterson (eight)).

AMARI COOPER

FIRST-ROUNDER

WR Amari Cooper finished 2017 looking to build upon his prolific career start. He was tabbed as the Raiders' first-round draft pick in the 2015 NFL Draft and the fourth-overall selection. He was the highest wide receiver taken in the draft and the first receiver taken by Oakland in the first round since 2009.

After enjoying one of the most dominant careers a wide receiver has ever had at the college level, Cooper saw that success translate to the NFL, as he became the first Raiders rookie to ever reach 1,000 receiving yards. Cooper also holds the franchise records for receptions and 100-yard games (five) by a rookie. Cooper continued his success in 2016, becoming just the third player in NFL history to post at least 70 receptions and 1,000 yards in each of his first two seasons. In 2017, Cooper battled through injuries and played in 14 games, tallying 680 yards and a career-high seven touchdown receptions.

HISTORICAL COOP

Coop's 2,903 yards receiving before age 24 rank ninth in NFL history.

Only 15 players in NFL history have more touchdown receptions than Cooper's 18 before the age of 24.

Cooper became the first WR in NFL history to surpass 500 yards receiving in the first six games in each of his first two seasons.

Cooper posted five 100-yard outings as a rookie, a franchise rookie record and tied with Keenan Allen (2013) for the most by any player 21-years-old or younger. His nine through his first two seasons are tied for eighth most in NFL history.

His five 100-yard games are tied for the second most by a rookie since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger (leader: Odell Beckham Jr., seven in 2014).

Cooper became the first NFL rookie since 1961 (Mike Ditka) with three 100-yard receiving games in his team's first six games.

Cooper joined DeSean Jackson (2008) as the only NFL rookies in the past 30 years with two 100-yard receiving games in their team's first three games.

In Week 3 at Cleveland in 2015 (8 rec., 134 yds), Cooper became the first Raiders rookie with 100 receiving yards in back-to-back games since James Jett (Nov. 21-28, 1993).

COOPER 200

In Week 7 against the Chiefs, Cooper put together what was arguably the best game of his career, compiling 210 yards (second-most in club history) on 11 receptions (19.1 avg.) and added two touchdown receptions. His performance will go down in history as one of the greatest Thursday performances in NFL history, ranking third all-time in receiving yards in a Thursday contest.

Top Thursday Performances in NFL History (Receiving Yards)

AGE IS ONLY A NUMBER

Cooper was 21 years old for the duration of his rookie season, making him one of the most electric receivers his age to play in the NFL. He holds the all-time record for receptions by a wide receiver 21 or younger. Listed below are more of his recent accomplishments before his 24th birthday.

- Only Randy Moss (27), Bob Hayes (19), Odell Beckham (12) and Brandin Cooks (12) have more 30+ yard TD receptions than Cooper (11) before age 24.
- Cooper's 72 receptions are the most ever by a wide receiver 21 or younger. Only RB Reggie Bush (88) and TE Aaron Hernandez (74) posted more.
- Cooper's 1,070 receiving yards are the second most by any NFL player 21 or younger, trailing Randy Moss' 1,313 yards in 1998.
- Cooper's six receiving touchdowns are tied for the eighth most by an NFL player 21-or-younger (record: Randy Moss, 17, 1998).
- Among WRs in NFL history before age 23, Cooper ranks second with 155 receptions and fourth with 2,223 yards.

NOT COOPED UP

In 2016, Cooper led the NFL with five touchdown receptions of at least 30 yards, while setting a franchise record with 15 receptions of at least 25 yards. In 2017, he added two 30-plus-yard touchdown receptions in Week 7, and consecutive such scores in Week 16 and 17 with a 63-yarder against the Eagles and a career-long 87-yarder against the Chargers.

3,000 RECEIVING YARDS

In Week 2 against the Denver Broncos, 'Coop' recorded his 12th career 100-yard performance, moving into sole possession of seventh place on the Raiders' all-time list in just his 48th career game. With 116 yards on 10 receptions, Coop produced the largest output of his career against Denver's squad and in doing so crossed the 3,000-yard barrier for his career, becoming just the third Raider to do so in 50 games or less, joining Warren Wells and Fred Biletnikoff.

JORDY NELSON

NELSON JOINS OAKLAND

After 10 seasons with the Green Bay Packers, Pro Bowl WR Jordy Nelson joins the Raiders in 2018 after signing with the team in March. Nelson's resume details one of the NFL's most accomplished active wide receivers, as he currently ranks 12th in receptions, ninth in receiving yards and fifth in touchdowns among active players.

Career Highlights

- In Week 3 of this season, became the 10th active receiver to surpass 8,000 career receiving yards.
- Is one of only two players in Packers history to register three straight seasons with 85-plus receptions.
- Is the only active player to record three seasons with 13-plus TD receptions.
- Has posted 1,250-plus receiving yards and 13-plus TD catches in the same season three times in his career, the fourth most in NFL history behind only Jerry Rice (six), Randy Moss (five) and Terrell Owens (four).
- Set a single-season Packers record with 1,519 receiving yards in 2014, as he was selected to his first career Pro Bowl and earned second-team All-Pro honors from the Associated Press.
- Also led the team with a career-high 98 receptions and 13 receiving TDs in 2014, becoming just the eighth player in NFL history to record 95-plus receptions, 1,500-plus receiving yards and 13-plus receiving TDs in the same season.
- Ranks first in Packers postseason history with 54 career receptions.
- Became just the fourth receiver in Super Bowl history to register nine-plus receptions for at least 140 yards and a TD when he hauled in nine passes for 140 yards and a score vs. Pittsburgh in Super Bowl XLV.

Dolphins 28, Raiders 20: 5 takeaways from another late collapse

By Matt Schneidman

September 23, 2018

MIAMI — For the third straight game, the Raiders led at halftime. For the third straight game, the Raiders blew that lead.

Derek Carr's fade intended for Martavis Bryant with under three minutes left in the game and the Raiders trailing by four was intercepted. Two plays later, Albert Wilson ran 74 yards to the end zone, high-fived with fellow wideout Jakeem Grant before even reaching the goal line and sent the Raiders packing.

Jon Gruden's return to the Raiders has officially reached disaster status with not just their 0-3 start, but how they've lost the first three games.

Here are five quick takeaways from another late collapse.

The numbers behind Oakland's dreadful second halves

In three games this season, the Raiders have held halftime leads of three points, 12 points and three points.

They've lost by 20 points, one point and eight points. The Raiders have been outscored 37-3 in the fourth quarter so far, the worst such margin in the league. Only a Mike Nugent 52-yard field goal with 20 seconds left against the Dolphins saved the Raiders from putting up three straight zeroes in the fourth quarter.

Gruden was asked after the game if he can pinpoint where his team's fourth-quarter struggles originate.

"That's just my responsibility to fix it," he said.

Sunday provided an opportunity for the Raiders to break the streak of second-half collapses against a seemingly inferior Dolphins team, but instead the Raiders followed script and lost control once again.

"We have a lot of work to do here. We're going to continue to work. I'm proud of the way we're competing," Gruden said. "We played three teams, I think, that might be undefeated. I don't know. We've played three good football teams. We played them hard. We have a lot of work to do here. We'll continue to work and we'll get this show on the road here hopefully soon."

Yeah, so about that pass rush...

If you thought you saw Khalil Mack sacking Dolphins quarterback Ryan Tannehill in the second quarter, you weren't far off ... kind of.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Mack lookalike and new Raiders defensive tackle Clinton McDonald delivered a timely third-down sack for the Raiders, taking down Tannehill for a loss of 9 yards on 3rd-and-19 with 1:05 left in the first half and the Raiders leading by three. It was the only substantial pressure the Raiders generated on the afternoon, however, as their pass-rush struggles since trading their best player continued.

Defensive coordinator Paul Guenther called a couple nice third-down cornerback blitzes that resulted in pass deflections by Rashaan Melvin and Leon Hall, but those were dwarfed by much bigger deficiencies in an area that has now become the elephant in the room every time Gruden steps to the podium.

The Raiders only tallied one sack and two quarterback hits (one from McDonald and one from Arden Key). They've only recorded one sack in each game this season and have a total of nine quarterback hits in three games.

Marshawn Lynch finds the end zone again

As Lynch skied over the pile on 3rd-and-goal from the 1-yard line in the third quarter, he made it three straight games with a rushing touchdown. Lynch also scored twice in Miami last season in a Raiders win.

Lynch's score gave the Raiders a 16-7 lead and capped off a Raiders drive that went 67 yards on 15 plays in a lengthy 9:44. Earlier in the game, Gruden gave the ball to fullback Keith Smith on 4th-and-goal from the 1. Smith failed to convert. Gruden learned from his play-calling mistake, and feeding Beast Mode paid dividends the second time around even though it didn't matter in the end.

The Raiders fed Lynch more as the game went on, and it seemed to wear down to Dolphins defense. He finished with 19 rushes for 64 yards on the day and also caught three passes for 22 yards in the loss. He even addressed the media for the first time since following a Week 2 win against the Jets last season.

"To be honest with you, it's like we're just a play away, a check away from being, probably, the most explosive offense in the league," Lynch said. "It comes with time and it comes with preparation, and I don't think we're going to stop doing that, so any given moment it could click."

Jordy Nelson gets his big day

Jordy Nelson caught three passes for 139 yards and a touchdown in the first seven minutes alone after grabbing only five balls for 53 yards in Weeks 1 and 2 combined. Tight end Jared Cook had a big day against the Rams with nine catches for 180 yards and Amari Cooper caught 10 passes for 116 yards against the Broncos. Nelson joked during the week that it was his turn to be the starring receiver, but it turned out to be no joke.

Nelson's 151 first-half receiving yards, on four catches, were the most by any player in a first half this season.

Nelson hardly turned on the jets on gains of 61 and 66 yards in the first quarter – both could've gone for touchdowns with faster legs – but he proved he still has plenty left in the route-running and hands departments.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

"I've seen what he can do. You guys saw it at practice and during camp and all that. He's a big-play guy," Carr said. " ... He's a friendly guy to throw to. I'll just say that. Obviously he's very talented, so I love Jordy, love throwing to him. He had a big game and I wish we could've won so he could've felt better."

Nelson finished with six catches for 173 yards, delivering a silver lining in the Raiders' defeat.

Donald Penn suffers concussion

Backup right tackle T.J. Clemmings replaced veteran Donald Penn early in the second quarter, and the Raiders later announced Penn was being evaluated for a concussion. As the second half started, Penn was ruled out for the game.

Penn hasn't been great this season in his transition from left tackle, the position at which he's made three Pro Bowls, and Clemmings didn't get off to a great start there either. Early in his replacement stint, he let Cameron Wake dart by and sack Carr for an 8-yard loss. Clemmings was better as the game went on, however, which had to reassure the Raiders if Penn misses any more time.

Clemmings said after allowing that sack, he settled in and felt the remainder of his afternoon went smoothly.

"Do what's asked of me and keep practicing and keep getting better. When my name is called, just continue to be ready," Clemmings said. " ... If you're mentally prepared for it, it's not tough."

Raiders collapse again late in loss to Dolphins
By Matt Kawahara
September 23, 2018

MIAMI GARDENS, Fla. — Different setting, similar script.

The Raiders, letting a game they mostly had controlled slip away late.

For the third time this season, the Raiders took a lead into halftime. For the third time, they fell apart late, outscored 21-3 in the final 15-plus minutes of a 28-20 loss to the Dolphins on Sunday that kept Jon Gruden winless in his return to coaching.

"Pretty much the same thing," linebacker Tahir Whitehead said. "Same old song the last three weeks."

The Raiders (0-3) have outscored opponents in first halves this season 35-17. They have been outscored in the second half 64-17, including 37-3 in the fourth quarter.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

"Offense, they're going out there, putting up points," Whitehead said. "Defense, pretty much holding offenses down for the majority of the game. But we've just got to close the games out, find a way to come out at halftime with even more juice to keep it going, keep swinging."

Two years ago, the Raiders thrived late in games, mounting seven fourth-quarter comebacks. Left guard Kelechi Osemele said he considers playing well late to be "a mentality."

"And I think we do have that mentality," Osemele said. "It's just not coming together."

"There's no quit in the huddle whatsoever. The willpower's there. The mentality is there. The mental toughness is there. It'll fall our way. It's just we're a couple of plays away from making it happen."

The pivotal plays Sunday came with an extra dash of salt in the wound. Miami (3-0) took its first lead with 7:18 left on a trick play. Running back Frank Gore took a handoff, then pitched the ball to receiver Albert Wilson. As Wilson was running around the right end, he threw to an open Jakeem Grant for a 52-yard touchdown.

Down 21-17, the Raiders drove to Miami's 13-yard line, but quarterback Derek Carr's throw for Martavis Bryant in the end zone was intercepted by cornerback Xavier Howard — one of two interceptions by Howard.

"I just saw one-on-one with Martavis," Carr said. "He was hot, he was doing some good things. I just gave him a chance, just like I have a hundred other times in my life. ... Going back through it in my head, getting one-on-one with that guy, I'd probably have to do it again."

Two plays later, Wilson broke free on a shovel pass for a 74-yard touchdown. As he neared the end zone with Grant running alongside, the two high-fived — at the 15-yard line.

"Plays like that in a game, it always catches you off-guard," Whitehead said of the trick plays. "They get you flowing one way or another and then, boom. ... I think we're playing solid defense overall. And as long as we stick together, we're going to find a way to win these games."

For a third straight game, the Raiders scored on their opening drive, with Carr finding receiver Jordy Nelson for a 12-yard touchdown two plays after Nelson turned a crossing route into a 61-yard gain. Nelson finished with six catches for 173 yards, adding a 66-yard reception on the Raiders' second drive that put them at Miami's 8-yard line.

The drive stalled at the 1, though, as Gruden opted to run the ball with fullback Keith Smith on 4th-and-goal. Smith was stopped cold. The Raiders were 2-for-5 on red-zone trips Sunday.

"A 240-pound fullback, it's less than half a yard," Gruden said. "We didn't get it done — bottom line."

Carr completed 27 of his 39 throws for 345 yards. But on the Raiders' third possession, Carr threw deep for Amari Cooper, who stopped running, and the pass was intercepted. Carr said he thought "Coop had him beat, so I let it go. But he never saw me, he never saw the ball."

The Raiders mounted a 16-play, 68-yard drive that used 8:37 in the second quarter, settling for a field goal, and a 15-play, 67-yard slog on their first drive of the second half, eating up 9:44 off the clock. On the latter, facing 3rd-and-goal at the 1, Gruden this time opted to give the ball to Marshawn Lynch, who leaped over the pile for a touchdown.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

"We had them off balance," Gruden said. "We moved the ball very well."

The Raiders edged Miami in net yards, 434-373. They had 25 first downs to Miami's 13 and held the ball for 38:31 of game time. They led 10-7 at halftime. Yet they were left with a too-familiar result.

Three quick takeaways from Raiders' 28-20 loss to Dolphins

By Scott Bair

September 23, 2018

MIAMI GARDENS, Fla. -- The Raiders held a halftime lead for the third time in three weeks. They let yet another one slip.

That put the Silver and Black in a bind. They aren't adept getting out of chokeholds.

That, above all else, is why the Raiders haven't won.

The Silver and Black remain winless after Sunday's 28-20 loss to the Miami Dolphins at Hard Rock Stadium.

The Raiders just can't close, on offense or defense. They are better than 0-3 suggests, but that doesn't matter at this point. A season that suffered a blow before its start with the Khalil Mack trade still has the Raiders stumbling through three games -- and their season heading downhill fast.

Can they turn things around? Time will tell on that front, but a prolonged winning streak is required to ignite the season. Right now, the Raiders can't even get the car to start.

Here are three quick takeaways from Sunday's loss to the Dolphins.

Raiders still can't finish

The Raiders have struggled mightily to close out games, albeit against tough competition. The offense slowed as Sunday's game wore on, and the defense got beat on a pass from receiver (!!!) Albert Wilson to Jakeem Hunt as the Dolphins took a fourth-quarter lead.

Derek Carr and the Raiders' offense had plenty of time to snatch it back, but the team's signal-caller threw an interception in the end zone. Two plays later, Albert Wilson took a shovel pass 74 yards to put the Dolphins up two scores with two minutes remaining.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

The 2016 Raiders had the fourth-quarter magic, which worked out well in a 12-4 season. That is long gone. They start hot and clearly have solid game plans, but they have struggled to make adjustments late in games, and haven't executed well enough down the stretch to earn a victory.

As long as this is the case, the Raiders will struggle. Their fans, in turn, will have their hearts broken far too often.

Struggling to break through

The Raiders' offense can move the football. The Silver and Black racks up yards with the best of them but has had trouble crossing the goal line this season. That has been problematic each week, and the trend continued against the Dolphins.

The Raiders could've gone up big in the first half, but they only scored one touchdown despite being in the red zone three times. That kept the game close, and a Marshawn Lynch TD run put the team up two scores late in the third quarter. It could've been a blowout by then, if the Raiders converted on proper chances. Instead, the Dolphins raged back, took a fourth-quarter lead and sustained it.

The Raiders didn't exceed 20 points in either of the first two games for the same reasons, and the team needs work inside the 20-yard line to operate at maximum efficiency. It cost the Raiders on this day, and put them in an uncomfortable yet familiar position with seven minutes left in the fourth quarter.

Hey, Jordy

Jordy Nelson had 53 receiving yards through two games. Then he exceeded that on one catch.

Nelson went 61 yards on the game's second play to set up the Raiders' first score. He hit another long one later in the game, all while in a matchup that Jon Gruden exploited on several occasions.

This comes after Jared Cook was the primary target in Week 1 and Amari Cooper went off in Week 2.

Nelson had six catches for 173 yards in this game.

Nelson is growing accustomed to a new quarterback and offensive scheme after a decade in Green Bay, but he found a rhythm early against Miami and made a few big plays. It shows he can be a weapon in the passing game, and should force defenses to play honest with Cooper and Cook. That will be a long-term positive for an Oakland offense with plenty of weapons.

Raiders can't finish what they start in 28-20 loss to Dolphins

By Michael Gehlken

September 23, 2018

MIAMI GARDENS, Fla. — Whatever future level of dominance the Raiders might reach under Jon Gruden seems destined today to exist only in flashes. A half of football here. A half-quarter there. Glimpses, however glamorous, are all the 2018 team has proven it can muster.

Exotic yet exhausting.

Inspiring yet inadequate.

The work-in-progress Raiders revealed themselves again Sunday — for better and for worse.

By and large, the team handled the Miami Dolphins early on a sweltering afternoon at Hard Rock Stadium. But where there was Beauty, there was Beast. The offense stalled often in the red zone, and the defense allowed wide receiver Albert Wilson to throw a 52-yard touchdown and catch a 74-yard score in the fourth quarter of a 28-20 loss.

The Raiders led 17-7 in the third quarter. They've been outscored 37-3 in the fourth this season, including 14-3 Sunday. They are winless in three games.

Fast starts. Slow finishes. Rinse, repeat.

"I've been part of years where finishing was easy, right, and the beginnings were the problem," said quarterback Derek Carr, whose 156 passing yards in the first quarter were a career high. "This is just what we have to deal with right now. I think we need to finish our practices better, finish our lifts better, finish meetings better, finish everything better because clearly we're doing everything better at the beginning.

"We can finish in all phases better, and I think that's what's going to put us over the hump. It's no secret. We're running the same plays. We're getting the same looks and all of those things. I think the little things we need to finish better."

Carr and Jordy Nelson opened with a clinic.

They connected on a 61-yard pass on the second play from scrimmage and a 12-yard touchdown on the fourth snap. After the defense forced a three-and-out, Nelson had a 66-yard reception to set up first-and-goal from the 8-yard line.

Someday, this could be where the Raiders execute.

They worked to the 1-yard line, but fullback Keith Smith was stuffed on a fourth-down carry up the middle. Carr threw an interception on the first play of the next drive; wide receiver Amari Cooper didn't notice the deep pass in the air. The two other Raiders drives that half were a three-and-out and 16-play series that stalled at the 9-yard line for a field goal.

"We've got to make sure we keep our foot on their necks and finish," tight end Jared Cook said.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Field conditions Sunday were formidable.

It was 90 degrees at kickoff. With the humidity, the heat index reached 99 degrees, according to National Weather Service. Wide receiver Dwayne Harris exited in the second half to receive intravenous fluids in response to muscle cramping. After halftime, fans appeared in no rush to return to seats in the sun.

Here, the Raiders ran hot and cold.

They managed two touchdowns on five trips inside the Dolphins' 20-yard line. On the last visit, Carr threw an end zone interception, a pass he heaved while defensive end Cameron Wake slammed into his right ribs. Two plays later, Wilson caught a shovel pass and sprinted untouched for 74 yards.

Months or years from now, the Raiders' inconsistent execution this month may be remembered as the price for something better, as the growing pains to a new offense and defense that Gruden and defensive coordinator Paul Guenther installed this offseason, respectively.

On Sunday, it was just another uneven afternoon.

A tale as old as time.

Another late collapse sends Gruden's Raiders to 0-3 start

By Steven Wine

September 23, 2018

MIAMI GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Jon Gruden's Oakland Raiders are off to a bad start because they can't finish.

Fooled repeatedly by the Miami Dolphins' razzle dazzle, the Raiders blew a second-half lead for the third game in a row and lost Sunday, 28-20 .

Oakland was outscored 14-3 in the final 7:18, and has been outscored 37-3 in the fourth period this year.

"That's just my responsibility to fix it," Gruden said.

Back on the sideline for the first time in a decade, Gruden has lost seven games in a row. He dropped his final four games with Tampa Bay in 2008.

The Raiders have lost their past seven games. They're 0-3 for the first time since 2014, when they started 0-10.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

"We have a lot of work to do here," Gruden said. "We'll continue to work, and we'll get this show on the road here hopefully soon."

The Raiders did a lot right against Miami. On a sunny, 90-degree afternoon, they had a 17-minute advantage in time of possession, and a 25-13 advantage in first downs. They ran 74 plays to 39 for the Dolphins. Derek Carr threw for 345 yards , including 173 to Jordy Nelson.

But three trips to the red zone produced only 10 points. Xavien Howard twice intercepted Carr deep in Dolphins territory, and the Raiders were stopped at the Miami 1 on downs.

Worst of all, the Raiders gave up two touchdowns on jet sweeps, and another on receiver Albert Wilson's 52-yard pass to Jakeem Grant. Two of the big plays fueled Miami's late rally.

"Clearly we're doing a good job at the beginning," Carr said, "but we can finish in all phases better."

Carr said an 0-3 start is not what he expected, and he feels terrible about it.

"Terrible, but not bad," he said. "I know how to deal with adversity. You don't do it by going in the dumps, stop working hard, and give up. That's what soft people do, and not what this team does."

Running back Marshawn Lynch , who rarely shares his thoughts publicly, said he remains optimistic about the Raiders' potential.

"We're just like a play away from being the most explosive offense in the league," Lynch said. "From the outside looking in, it looks terrible. But we know what we have on the inside, and if we get behind each other, we can turn this around."

They'll try to start Sunday at home against the Cleveland Browns, another team that knows about losing. The Browns are coming off their first victory since December 2016.

Head Coach Jon Gruden

In Oakland, Jon Gruden Is Ready to Grind

Jon Gruden has this idea for a story. It's not his story—not yet—though it's clear he'd like it to be. And maybe that shouldn't come as a surprise. He did spend plenty of time in the dark, alone, over the last decade, and that would set any man, even one who tries to “stay in two feet of water, don't get too deep or philosophical,” to thinking. Then there's the fact that at 54 you hear a lot about guys your age getting hit by cancer or heart attack, here one day and—boom!—gone the next. So, yeah, Gruden formulated this theory about purpose and fraudulence and death. He jotted down some notes and even a title, The Football Gods.

“I thought I could write a cool Broadway play,” he says. “I really do want to write this book. But I'd rather it be a movie.”

The base conceit is that in the end, your passion leads to your heaven. Live for classical music? Die and you'll be up there conducting the New York Philharmonic. Legendary football coaches like Lombardi and Halas? They arrived, started talking ball and never stopped. And now they monitor the coaches down on earth. Gruden is “convinced” this part is real. All those icons are up there, judging.

“If you're faking it, the football gods will get you,” he says. “They reward the guys who work hard. That's why Tom Brady is where he is. If you're focused and determined and legit, good things will happen. I believe that.”

Now, to Gruden-bashers this idea couldn't be more hokey, but you can't overstate the power of context. He is saying this not from the Monday Night Football booth, or while tutoring some wide-eyed QB on ESPN. No, he's sitting now in his old/new Raiders office in Alameda, 27 days after breaking a nine-year exile in broadcasting to become the highest-paid coach in NFL history. It's Super Bowl Sunday, but he's been here since before sunrise, “grinding” and “layin' bricks,” with no one else in sight.

The glass-walled warren is hushed and dark when he first walks me in, a perfect setting for the horror movie Child's Play, with its psychodoll/Gruden doppelgänger, Chucky. There's a massive monitor mounted over his desk, paused on a practice script, and another gargantuscreen over his right shoulder playing America's annual football-and-marketing orgasm, with its endless blabber of pregame, in-game and postgame talking heads.

“Al Davis wanted these walls to be glass,” he says, “so he could see that you were working. He always wore this cologne—a lot of it—and you could smell him before he got to you. ‘He's coming this way!’ I'm still expecting to smell it sometimes.”

Which makes sense. It's not just that Gruden is back in the same facility he left on Feb. 18, 2002, when Davis, the Raiders' notoriously hands-on owner, up and shipped the coach to Tampa Bay for two first-and two second-round draft choices. It's also that Davis's Just win, baby persona—brass-knuckle fierce and darker than 2 a.m.—was so unrelenting that even now, his 2011 death at age 82 can seem like a mere technicality. For many, Al Davis remains the Raiders' heart and soul.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Did you know," Gruden asks, one eyebrow cocked northward, "that they've kept his office exactly as it was?"

It's true. Mark Davis, Al's only son, didn't dare move into the owner's suite when he took over the family business. (Asked where his office stands in relation to his dad's, Mark says, "He's across the hall.") While Super Bowl Sunday rattles on in the background, Gruden pads over to the empty desks of Al's two longtime "angels," his assistants Karen (Fudgie) Otten and Kristi Bailey; now dedicated to team alumni, they're due back at their stations next week. Here, some 20 years ago, Gruden would come and wait to be summoned, wondering what he was in for. Often, the angels winced, mouthing, "Good luuuck."

"It's just weird coming in here, man," Gruden says. "Feel like you're 34 years old again."

After a cursory tour of Al's office—rack of leather jackets in the corner; certificates from Syracuse and the Sugar Ray Robinson Youth Foundation; jersey from Lance Alworth, Al's first signing coup—Gruden dips into Davis's film room, past four idle TV screens, to a fully marked-up whiteboard backed against a wall. "Here it is," he says.

Davis, named the AFL's Coach of the Year in 1963, was consumed by X's and O's to the end, and the fact that his last whiteboard, the repository of his scribbled plays and plans, remains untouched from 2011 gives Gruden the biggest thrill. "Lookit," he says, and then reads aloud from Davis's scribbles: "Power. Big people. Pass pro. Defense. Play calling. Offensive line. Not signed: 21. 24. 26. 31. That's the last time he was here."

Then Gruden's out, down the hall toward Al's private bathroom, stopping at a bookshelf jammed with Davis's massive video collection of games, plays, ceremonies. Gruden had epic arguments with the old man, and they never made peace after a final dispute over roster control and salary led Davis to deal him. But, really, who would better appreciate the stiletto irony of Gruden's coming back that first season in Tampa Bay to crush the Raiders in Super Bowl XXXVII? Looking back, Gruden loves the man for his sheer territoriality, that hilariously profane will.

"His wife, Carol, had all these videos at their house, and she'd ask, 'Do you want any?' " Gruden recalls, laughing. "I'd say, 'I would love to have some of those.' And Al says"—here the coach affects a menacing, low-and-slow, Brooklyn-tinged Al Davis inflection—" 'Carol . . . don't you . . . give him . . . a f--- thing!' "

It's at that moment I realize: If Gruden ever writes The Football Gods, Al Davis will be one of them. Hell, maybe football heaven ends up a version of this very office. Because, at least in Gruden's mind, this return to the game isn't all about proving critics wrong, or justifying that 10-year, $100 million contract, or giving Oakland a playoff run before its planned move to Las Vegas in 2020. Years ago Gruden called the Raiders, got the name of Davis's cologne (Antaeus, by Chanel), mispronounced it at a New York department store, bought a bottle and, to his wife's dismay, doused himself with "four scoops," à la Al. There's a bottle in his Hampton Inn hotel room right now. Gruden, for gods' sake, wants to channel the old pirate.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"A lot of coaches are miserable," Gruden says. "These guys have been fired, hired, fired again; they've got houses here, got to move over there. They're distraught. I grew up [associating] every team with a coach. Pittsburgh Steelers, I'd think Chuck Noll. Seahawks, Chuck Knox. Now? Who's coaching up in Jacksonville? In Miami? I don't know how many coaches they've had in Tampa since they fired me! I don't like it.

"So, you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to come back and put it all on me. Everybody's going to want to kick my ass, step on me. They can't wait to talk about what a dumbass I am, and how s----- I was to start with. How 'overrated' I am. I hear it all. I know it's going to happen. And I'm like: Come on! Just like Al Davis. When I was here, he said, 'The great thing you've got going, Jon, is they're never going to rip you. They're going to rip me.' "

Gruden's mouth tightens into a slash, one eye popping wider than the other, and there it is for the first time today: full-on Chucky, to finish the thought. "And Al goes, 'I love it, personally.' "

He settles back into his office chair, his face reverting to the one his mother loves. The volume drops. "I've kind of taken to that, man."

The idea was to sit with the Raiders' new coach and watch Super Bowl LIII. It seemed cool, if obvious: ESPN's highest-paid broadcaster (at a reported $6.5 million per), nine years the face of Monday Night Football, eight years the host of the quirky-compelling QB Camp show, calls one last game before diving back in. Setting this up turned out far easier than expected, though, because of one minor-key bizarre fact: Jon Gruden answers his phone.

Do you instantly pick up when a strange number flashes across your cell? Does your spouse or teenage kid—seriously?—answer each time you call? The most mundane exchange, these days, demands some texty preamble. And if your target carries any kind of heft, like a coach or a television personality, the road to any kind of chat involves email proposals, agents, media-relations officials, a clutch of on-the-ground minders.

Someone flipped me a number for Gruden, last tried in 2012. It was a Saturday, 72 hours before his hiring would be officially announced at a press conference in Oakland: NFL World was ablaze with rumors and stories about his return. I figured I'd leave a never-to-be-heard message on a phantom voicemail, to be stranded in limbo forever. . . .

"Hel-lo," Gruden replied.

I had written an SI cover story about him 16 years earlier, and he vaguely remembered the photo but—rightly—had no memory of me. Still, he said, he might be able to make some time.

The Jan. 9 presser, attended by just about every living Raiders notable, felt less like a coaching change than the Dauphin's return. Mark Davis, 62, confirmed that he'd spent six years chasing his man and called it "the biggest day of my life"; Gruden spoke of how he viewed his first-go-round in Oakland as "unfinished business." Nobody seemed bothered that 11 months after the announcement of a four-year contract extension for the now-deposed Jack Del Rio, the franchise would be on the hook for $20 million.

Though it was officially affirmed that Oakland had complied with the Rooney Rule by first interviewing USC offensive coordinator Tee Martin and Raiders assistant Bobby Johnson, it was clear that both minority candidates were called in for form's sake. Asked later if, lacking Gruden, he would've fired Del

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Rio, Davis says: “I don’t see how I could have. To spend $20 million, and on top of that hire Tee Martin? No. What I would’ve done is probably brought in a president—somebody with X’s and O’s ability—to work with Jack, and I would’ve gotten some more competent coordinators.”

Still, even the biggest cynic had to admit Davis had pulled off a p.r. coup. For years, anytime a big NFL job opened, Gruden’s name was floated. And when he seriously mulled a previous Oakland offer, in 2014, ESPN jacked up his salary with a seven-year extension. Considering that Gruden and Del Rio share the same agent, Bob LaMonte, Davis says that landing his man was a tougher lift, even, than getting NFL owners, in 2017, to approve the Raiders’ move. “This ain’t just some cakewalk, like hiring a teacher,” he says. “This is Jon f-----’ Gruden.”

An f-bomb middle name is hardly the most eloquent way to convey charisma, but that quote isn’t meant for the high rollers. Davis is speaking here to the gritty, embittered core of Raider Nation. “The team has one—perhaps more—year left in the market,” says former Raiders CEO Amy Trask, now an NFL analyst for CBS. “Their magnificent fans have supported them through thick and thin; this is going to excite them. And the team has taken on a breathtaking amount of debt associated with the Las Vegas deal [a reported $650 million loan] and, therefore, has a tremendous amount of extremely expensive product to sell in that new stadium—sponsorships, suites, club seats. Hiring Jon is going to help them do that. It’s a shrewd business move.”

In the weeks after the announcement, the issue of Gruden’s appeal—his seeming ability to excite the base and engage casual fans—became oddly entwined for me with his phone. His answering felt more a matter of reflex than cultivation; I never showed up as more than a strange area code on his caller ID. The second time I rang, he was meeting with his coaching staff. The third, he was sitting down to dinner with family. I kept wondering, Why pick up at all? Would Bill Belichick or Nick Saban even bother?

A few days after LaMonte called to relay that his client would be going home to Florida to “say goodbye,” and then would meet me in Oakland, I rang Gruden again. “Just sitting here alone in the office in Alameda,” he said. “Grindin’.”

What of Florida and bidding the state farewell?

“Already did that,” he rasped. “I’m like Chevy Chase in Vacation, man, looking at the Grand Canyon. Yep. I see it. How much longer do I have to be here? Goodbye.”

I proposed watching the Super Bowl together, but he said not to expect anything special. In previous years he would do his ESPN pregame show on-site, then jet home during the game. For someone who’s set off by the tiniest clank of a spoon on a cereal bowl, the jostling drunks and traffic and hype is a special kind of torture. “I don’t have a team in it,” he said. “It’s not like I really care about what happens.”

Yes and no. When I arrive a week later, Gruden has little interest in the broadcast, though he plans to mine the game tape later for any stealable material. He declares the Eagles the better team, gives the edge to Patriots quarterback Tom Brady and predicts a New England win. With Philadelphia up 15–6 in the first half, he blurts out something prescient: “What will Philadelphia prove, if they keep this lead? They have a fourth-quarter pass rush to close you out, unlike Atlanta did last year.”

But he’s more engaged in talking about why, after so many flirtations with Mark Davis (and at least one other serious bid by an NFL team), he came back now. ESPN was a sweet gig, being home for his three boys' high school years while still punching in at his Fired Football Coaches Association. Daily, he'd go to his custom setup in a Tampa office complex—film library and shower downstairs, gym and bed upstairs—and for years he loved it, spending days and nights surrounded by hundreds of miles of tape. Coaches from all over the league, college and even Pop Warner, would come to brainstorm. Quarterbacks shut out of their team facilities by the collective bargaining agreement would come to chalk-talk and throw.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Year after year, at least 15 times, Mark Davis would show up, too, and try to pull Gruden away. But he was having fun without the pain that losing brings. "I was near the fire, but I didn't get burned," Gruden says. "In some ways I was coaching."

"As the years went on," says his wife, Cindy, "I got tired of living in my brain, 30 places that he'd consider. I just decided that he was not going back ever. Then it became so long that I really didn't think he would."

But the house kept getting emptier. The oldest Gruden, 24-year-old Deuce, spent the last two years with his uncle, Jay, as a Redskins strength and conditioning coach; Michael, 21, is a junior at Tennessee; Jayson, 17, has just one more year of high school. When Jon was inducted into the Bucs' ring of honor in December, surrounded on the field again by 70 of his old players, it stirred him to tears. The following week, the Raiders were in Philly for a Monday game, and the night before, Christmas Eve, Davis hosted Jon and Cindy in his hotel suite for dinner. Gruden had shot up similar flares before, but this time when he said, "I'm going to get back in, if I can get a job," Davis sensed he meant it.

"Leaving dinner that night I felt very, very, very strongly it was going to happen," says Davis. (Not Cindy: "Not until he signed on the dotted line. I never pretend to know what my husband is thinking. As soon as you do, he'll change his mind.")

This time was different. "I got tired of sitting in a dark room, watching tape by myself," Gruden says. "I took rumba-dancing classes; that didn't last—I wasn't any good. Bought a boat; I never used it. Live on a golf course; I never play. I'd go to the FFCA early, and next thing I know it's 10:30 at night. I'm thinking, S---. I'm wasting my time. I got to go compete."

He glances up from his desk. Deuce, a 5' 6" wedge of muscle, is standing in the doorway. Gruden blurts out the fact that his eldest won a powerlifting gold at last year's world championships and introduces him as the Raiders' newest strength-and-conditioning staffer. Deuce chats, politely, then gets to the point: "They got food near here?" Gruden says no and reaches for his car keys, but his son has wheeled and gone. "He's like his mom, a tiny little lady," Gruden says. "But he's a beast."

Having a son in the office is a bonus, no doubt, but Gruden's guilt over neglecting his family has come and gone. The doubt planted by mentor Bobb McKittrick, a 49ers line coach who died lamenting their monomaniacal obsession with the game, has eased. "The one thing I will regret," Gruden says, "is that [McKittrick and I] really didn't take to fishing, we didn't like traveling abroad. We just liked one thing. But I don't think I'm going to be regretting my decision. Life is flying by. Here I'm 54 years old, just like that. Football is going to be the only consistent theme in my life. The feelings inside of me that I can't get enough of"—and here Gruden squints, rubbing his fingertips together—"are nervousness, excitement, a little fear, a little pressure. People go to casinos to get that. But I wake up every morning now and I go, God! Whoo!"

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Jon Gruden is an awful driver. Sure, he can handle a straight shot on an empty highway, with Zeppelin or BTO cranking, on the two-minute early-morning hop from the Hampton Inn to the Raiders' facility. But given that the team just dropped this gleaming Mercedes S 550 on him four days ago, and that there's all kinds of new signage and roads and a helluva lot more traffic since he worked here 16 years ago, the 20-minute trip to Ricky's Sports Theatre and Grill in San Leandro figures to be a bit of an adventure.

First there's the matter of his side-view mirrors, which stay folded flush no matter how much Gruden shoves and bangs with his left hand, or feels about the car's instrument panel with his right, all while drifting down 98th Avenue toward I-880 South as the GPS lady voice cuts in every 10 seconds to dictate the next turn. "Where am I going here, you think?" he asks more than once. "You think this is right?"

Finally Gruden hits the correct button, and the mirrors unfold like wings. But—what with his utter lack of direction, the cars whizzing angrily past, the rehash of yesterday's Super Bowl ("I got caught up in it," he says of the second half, "and it came down to fourth-quarter pass rush"), one missed turn, his describing the morning's offensive meeting and breaking down two still-delicious plays he called in the 2002 NFC championship game—it's a wonder we arrive unscathed. "That's why I have a driver most of the time," he says.

Gruden has only been to Ricky's, a semi-biker hangout and a hub of Raider lunacy since the AFL days, a few times, but he's still got a reserved parking space, and when we arrive, owners Ricky and Tina Ricardo (who switched allegiances to Tampa when Gruden was traded) are waiting. Tina screams, drops her head through the open passenger window and plants a kiss on Gruden's cheek. "We believe, we believe, we believe!" she gushes. "You're here. . . ."

It's 4 p.m. on this hangover Monday, so the place may be brimming with Silver and Black memorabilia, but it's also nearly empty. We walk in with Gruden's new defensive coordinator, Paul Guenther, a former colleague of Jay's who wisely took his own car. Immediately some former Raiders game-day employees point out how things have changed at Oakland Coliseum since Gruden last coached there, how the starters no longer run out from the south end zone's infamous "black hole" of costumed crazies, how NFL and team marketing forces keep trying to tame Al Davis's Oakland beast.

"They don't come out of the black hole anymore?" Gruden asks. "I'm going to have to look into that."

We sit at a high-top, order burgers and beer. Word has already spread, and over the next hour a steady trickle of fans hustle in. Gruden's modus operandi is to greet anyone warily edging his way with a hearty "What is going on? What's your name?" Then up steps Ahmed Fasail, with his two kids, all kitted out in Raiders gear. His nine-year-old daughter hands Gruden a fistful of dandelions and asks, "How come you left the Raiders?"

"I got traded!" Gruden replies.

Ahmed: "I told her, 'He didn't leave. They left him.' "

"How would you like to come home one day and hear you got traded to Florida?" Gruden asks. "You wouldn't like that, would ya?"

Ahmed's eyes widen. "Wow, you got the same voice as on TV!" he says. "The same voice!"

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

They talk a few more minutes and Gruden insists on buying the family lunch. I wander over to speak to Guenther, but after a while, over the bar din, I overhear two words: “Marshawn Lynch.” The Raiders’ flinty running back has been a hot topic ever since Gruden was hired, with speculation centering around their ability to coexist. In the coming days, in fact, one report will state that Lynch blew off a meeting with his new coach, and another will feature Lynch’s agent’s denial. The entire matter remains touchy because, under the current CBA, coach and player aren’t allowed contact until April.

But now I look over, and Gruden is telling superfan Ahmed, in an open bar, “I met Marshawn today at the facility. He and Josh Johnson [a Texans backup and Lynch’s cousin] came in.” And when Ahmed asks Gruden the question of the moment—What’s your impression?—Gruden says, “I like him.”

Ahmed, to his eternal credit, isn’t having it.

“I like him, too,” he presses, “but what do you think?”

“We’ve got to get him in, ah, better and stronger, through the season. . . .”

“He didn’t get in shape until Week 10,” Ahmed says of last year.

“We’re not going to have that,” Gruden says. “No. I said to him: ‘I need Marshawn Lynch. I don’t need this part-time Lynch. I need full-time Lynch.’”

“Man, you’re motivating me right now, baby! If he ain’t getting motivated, something’s wrong.”

“We need the real deal,” Gruden says. “If you’re going to put those letters on the back of your jersey, man, you’ve got to back it up, Marshawn—right? We don’t need another back, we need a feature back.”

Just as I’m trying to conjure Bill Walsh or Chip Kelly—or any other coach, past or present, who has run his football operation like some CIA sleeper cell—casually spilling such news, Tina stops by to say that during Gruden’s payback Super Bowl win with Tampa, she designed a play for the coach to use against the Raiders. “South right, Nickel 41, Kill 3, 74 Wasp,” sent via text to Gruden’s mother, she says. “Took me three days. I drew it up, and he used it.”

Gruden takes this in, nodding, and whether or not the play was already in his game script, he’s happy to give her credit. The Buccaneers, leading 13–3 at the time, faced first-and-goal on the Raiders’ five-yard line. “It was going to be a draw to Michael Pittman if they were playing zone,” he says. “But we killed it, we changed the play—Kill, kill, kill! Seventy-four wasp! . . . Keenan McCardell [on a fly stop route], touchdown. He came off the field going, ‘Bzzz!’ ”

Everybody roars, and I’m beginning to see it as all of a piece: the phone etiquette, the Lynch revelation, the always-glowing assessments of players on Monday Night Football. Gruden has never been pure rah-rah; he rode Tampa quarterback Chris Simms and tackle Kenyatta Walker mercilessly. (“Some people think I was an a-----, and I probably was at times.”) But he has always been open to players, owners, fans—anyone who matches his energy, who needs football as much as he does—and he will talk to anybody, anytime, on the off chance of finding a kindred spark. “Do you like the game plan? The play call?” he used to implore players back in the day. And when they nodded, “just [like] a bobblehead,” it killed him. Oakland quarterback Rich Gannon knew enough to trot off shouting, “I love it, man! Love it! Love!!!”

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

But a motor can only rev so hard, and for so long. Ninety minutes after our arrival, time to go, Gruden's mood has dropped. Maybe it's the setting sun, or the fender he scraped on a post backing his Mercedes out. Traffic has thinned on I-880; the car's interior is growing dimmer. After a mile, he breaks the quiet. "You come back and it's not the same," Gruden says. He mentions Raiders legend Ken Stabler, a regular visitor during his first stint, dead since 2015. He mentions Ricky, once so vital, now halting and frail.

"It hits you in your core," Gruden says. "It's almost like I'm living my life twice, like Back to the Future. I've got the same office. I walk down the hall, in frickin' Al Davis's office, and he's not there. You see his writing on the board. . . ."

There's something else. It's as if Gruden, after reveling again in the fans' pure passion, remembers the pain that sets in when, suddenly, there's no place for it to go. The Bucs fired him after the 2008 season. Soon the Raiders will leave for Vegas. He's closing in on the team facility now, the control tower at Oakland Airport looming outside.

"It's kind of sad, man," Gruden says. "What will they have once we go?"

Heaven is just the setup. The key conceit to Gruden's novel/movie/play about the football gods is that they've been watching and judging the sport like some celestial TV panel, and they're appalled by what they see. Yes, in this case writing is autobiography; Gruden happens to be upset about the same things. Most pressing, of course, is the CBA which limits his offseason time with players, restricts him to 14 regular-season padded practices, stops him from extending sessions an extra hour whenever he'd like. But that's just the iceberg tip. Overall, he's sure football is losing its soul.

"The state of the game? We have to put a GPS in Bobby's shoulder pad to see if he's working too hard," Gruden sighs. "We stop a high school game in Florida three times every half to give 'em a water break. We run a zone-read every play in college—don't even block the defensive end; we read him—because players can't push themselves. It's too risky; somebody had an episode six years ago. . . . Anyway, the Lord sees these gods and says, 'We've got a problem with football. I need you guys to go back to earth and fix this.'"

So down to earth go Bear Bryant, George Allen, Vince Lombardi and the rest. They don't look the same; they're young guys with names like Jimmy Bryant or Joey Halas. But they take over and go all Junction Boys on the millennials, with hard-ass practices and endless film sessions. It's Jon Gruden's fantasy football league. One god curses out a ref and can't believe it when he gets fined $15,000. A bunch sit in on owners' meetings, disgusted by the obsession with marketing and fan experience. "I just think it would be hilarious," Gruden says.

Maybe, but any laugh would be sardonic. His time at the FFCA, and volunteer-coaching Deuce's and Jayson's high school team, convinced Gruden that the game faces a serious crisis of identity and morale. Almost as soon as the Bucs fired him, he began distributing personal funds to high schools, landed some corporate sponsors and spearheaded an initiative to raise hundreds of thousands of dollars for youth and prep teams. He says he's on a "mission to save football," and, yes, it's personal. The game gave him work, discipline and joy, and it has made him ridiculously rich.

"I wasn't worth a damn, but I was on a team, I had to [report] by seven o'clock," Gruden says of his time playing in high school and college. "I had to run through the line, not to it; my coach made me do it right. And I hated it at times. But if it wasn't for football, I wouldn't have any of these benefits. These geniuses tell you, 'It's a dangerous game, we shouldn't play, you can [learn the same things] in drama class.' I say bulls---."

Of course, Gruden is reentering an NFL in which throwback fashion applies only to jerseys. His appreciation for sheer physicality seems undented by the tragedy of player concussions and CTE research, and the one clanging note at his press conference was his curiously lax handle on national anthem protests. "I'm not really aware," he said, "of that subject at all." Meanwhile, the raw clay he's so eager to grab has this whole new texture.

"These players are different," says Jay Gruden, an offensive assistant under his brother in Tampa, and now the Redskins' coach. Jon "will have to adjust. College football is different now—less refined, a lot more no-huddle and spread offense, a lot less physicality. We're getting a different type of player. Some are fine, but some you have to teach. There's more ADHD, more video games. It's a matter of molding 'em, and that's why it's so important to get your hands on 'em. But these rules [limit] that. So you do the best you can: Draft well, get the free agents you want. . . ."

With personnel at even more of a premium, then, the new coach's relationship with Raiders general manager Reggie McKenzie figures to be crucial. Gruden wasn't shy about opposing Al Davis's draft picks or roster moves in 2001; he clashed with Bucs GM Rich McKay until winning that power struggle; and—together with McKay's replacement, Bruce Allen—he made a string of questionable player bets (Cadillac Williams over Aaron Rodgers in the '05 draft?) in his last six years in Tampa. Asked what makes Belichick so special, Gruden starts with "unrelenting drive," but very quickly he gets to "the great thing that he has: complete control of that organization."

But Gruden also says that years of grilling coaches and execs for TV broadened his appreciation for a team's total makeup and killed dead the notion that players were less vital to success than genius play calls. "I can work with Reggie," he says. "I need him."

For his part, McKenzie, who has known Gruden for 33 years and worked with him on the Packers' staff in 1994, says, "I really wanted to have him on board." Why else, when the Gruden hire was all but done, would McKenzie decline Green Bay's request to interview him for its vacant GM position? "If I had any doubt, I probably would've considered it," he says. "I have no question we can work together."

That imperative, of course, is urgent for reasons that go beyond last year's 6–10 stumble. Mark Davis would love to rejuvenate his Oakland fan base, go out with a bang before bolting for Vegas. And NFL history has seen plenty of popular coaches try, unsuccessfully, for an Act II. All with a stake in Gruden's return betray no worry in that regard, not least because he won his title against the Raiders, not with them. Yes, unfinished business. Here, Act II is less a restoration than it is a do-over: Davis feels his dad never should have traded Gruden in the first place.

Still. Mark can declare himself at peace now and put up $100 million to prove it, but he's just like anyone else. He has no idea how Gruden will work this time around. This much becomes clear when the Raiders' owner, after spending two hours in a Walnut Creek restaurant preaching his new hire's every virtue, leans back against the booth, pauses and asks, "You still think he's got it?"

And in answer I end up weaseling a bit, repeating arguments about why he may and why he may not. I don't mention that this very subject is on Gruden's mind too; that on the quiet drive back from Ricky's he said, "If we don't win? It's going to be, 'Gruden ain't got it. He ain't got it.' But I know one thing: I still got it."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

But it's often the case, too, that those gifted with a distinctive edge are the last to know when it's gone. Gruden never won another playoff game after that Super Bowl with Tampa. He had unlimited power to shape and coach—and went 45–53 the rest of the way. His partisans will point to his five division titles or say the Bucs were hamstrung by the very trade that brought him to Tampa, all those lost high draft picks. Karma: One more win in 2008 would've put Gruden back in the postseason, but the 5–11 Raiders came to town for his last home game and won. Gruden's voice had worn thin. His West Coast offenses, heavy on veterans and ball control, struggled to score. And through it all, despite his reputation as a QB guru, he never did develop a great young passer.

"We helped do some good things in Tampa; it wasn't a total train wreck," he says. "And now [in Oakland] we've got a young quarterback signed for a long time. I owe it to myself to give it one more shot."

Indeed, it was only back at his office afterward, when Gruden spoke of Raiders quarterback Derek Carr, that I felt myself buying in. The coach was calm describing Carr's visit to QB Camp in 2014, but then he started mimicking Carr scribbling notes, leaning on his elbows—and within seconds Gruden's eyes were gleaming.

Then he started yelling, filling the halls with his voice, about how Carr had a rocket! for an arm and in one drill kept nailing this bull's-eye on a target; how, yeah, the damn CBA won't let him work with his QB right now, but Gruden brought his tapes along so he can watch Carr installing a hurry-up on the fly, see him adjusting to six different slot combinations, see him just grinding.

"Unbelievable," Gruden says. "I like him. Family man, married, two kids. He's just got it. He's alive."

And that's the moment I realized: Yeah, I'll steal that story idea. Football god arrives, mad and glad and hair on fire. And Gruden is right, it shouldn't be told with paper and ink. The entire thing needs to play out in high definition, week after lunatic week, loud and in living color.

BLEACHER REPORT

The Jon Gruden Time Machine

By Dan Pompei

September 5, 2018

A small Raiders helmet sits on a large workstation in a hotel room that has been converted to an office. Two desktop screens play cutups from not one but two servers. Within reach are a laptop, a stack of videos, a playbook and spiral notebooks. Also a highlighter, some pens and a cup of joe. The windows are covered, and the only way to know if it's day or night outside in Napa, California, is by the digital clock.

On the other side of these walls, Raiders players breathe hard and talk of rejuvenation, passion and energy. Beads of sweat trickle down the sides of their faces. More than 100 Raiders alumni in various stages of deterioration and inebriation tell white lies about the old days and laugh loudly. A group of Raiderettes leave a lovely aroma in their wake. Fans painted and costumed in all sorts of bizarre ways shake fists and make their voices as deep as possible to yell the things Raiders fans yell. And just across the street, a train full of tipsy tourists eating French food passes by.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

All of them—the players, former players, Raiderettes, fans and even the tipsy tourists—are buzzing about what is happening in this office.

But here, it's silent. Here, it's sacred. Here, it's magic.

Here, the Raiders head coach of past and present stares into a screen the way some might stare into a lover's eyes. Here, he studies the team's playbook the way some might study a Bible. Here, he scrutinizes the day's practice script the way some might scrutinize a credit card bill.

Here, Jon Gruden introduces the past to the future.

The past

They say time changes everything. But in some ways, time has changed nothing.

This is the same room in the Napa Valley Marriott that Gruden worked from during training camp from 1998 to 2001, when he was the coach of the Raiders for the first time.

Back then, Gruden watched everything Al Davis did. Now he draws on it. Davis would order a wedge salad chopped up. Now Gruden orders a wedge salad chopped up. He bought a bottle of the cologne Davis used to wear, Antaeus by Chanel, just so he can be reminded of what he smelled like. Some of the audibles and names of plays in Gruden's playbook are references to Davis.

"We are the same in that Al loved football; I love football," Gruden says. "I don't think he was on top of his golf game or shopping on Fifth Avenue. I didn't play any golf this summer. I didn't turn on the TV for six months. Now you got naked people in the woods on TV. Some of the stuff I see, it's like, really? I didn't do anything outside of football in the offseason. I took my sons to the UFC fight in Vegas. And I got to see Muir Woods in San Francisco. That's about it."

The last time Gruden and Davis spoke was Feb. 18, 2002, the day Davis traded Gruden to the Bucs. Davis died in 2011, leaving his son, Mark, in charge of his team.

Since Mark couldn't bring back his father, Gruden was the next best thing.

"God, I loved him, man," Gruden says of Al. "It is different without him here. When he'd walk in, whether it was a defensive meeting, offensive meeting or special teams, you had to be ready. You don't want complacency to set in. That's one thing he never let happen. I'm going to make sure his spirit, his legacy, remain alive."

And so Gruden reshapes this iconic franchise as Davis likely would have. Many of his offseason roster decisions were straight from the Al Davis book on how to put together a team.

Davis never hesitated to make a bold move, even if he knew he would be criticized, whether it was shipping off Kenny Stabler when Raider Nation thought Stabler was a football deity or trading Gruden himself at the height of his popularity. Gruden doesn't mind being in the eye of the hurricane either. He thought the Raiders needed cap space and cash this year more than the former Defensive Player of the Year, so he traded camp holdout Khalil Mack to the Bears, telling Bleacher Report simply of the deal, "We did what we felt was in the best interest of the Raiders moving forward."

Davis valued speed above all else. Gruden hired Tom Shaw, renowned as one of the finest speed coaches in the country, to be his strength and conditioning coordinator.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Davis gambled on players who had not always walked a straight line. Gruden traded a third-round pick for twice-suspended wide receiver Martavis Bryant—then cut his losses by waiving him at the end of camp. He signed cornerback Daryl Worley eight days after he was arrested on six charges, including driving under the influence, disorderly conduct and a firearms violation. He drafted pass-rusher Arden Key, who reportedly went to rehab for a marijuana problem.

"I've seen what the right culture can do," Gruden says, looking up from his playbook and over his granny glasses. "You can put a guy in the channel of success. Just follow Bruce Irvin. Hang out with Derek Carr. Go over there with Jordy Nelson and Amari Cooper. Go out to dinner with these guys tonight. Here, take my credit card. When they are around every day and they are pushed and pushed, sometimes they start changing."

Tapping into small schools was a passion for Davis. In his first draft back with the Raiders, Gruden selected defensive tackle P.J. Hall from Sam Houston State in Round 2 and offensive tackle Brandon Parker from North Carolina A&T in Round 3.

Davis had an affinity for older players. These Raiders went to camp with 14 players 30 or older. Among the players Gruden acquired are 33-year-old safety Leon Hall, 35-year-old linebacker Derrick Johnson and 33-year-old wide receiver Nelson.

But he didn't just acquire them. He reveres them—and wants his young players to do the same.

"When Leon Hall walks in, know that he is in his 12th year," Gruden says. "Know that he's a badass from the Bengals and he's played with the Giants and the 49ers. Derrick Johnson walks in, have a little respect, man. That guy is the Chiefs' all-time leading tackler."

In the offseason, Gruden distributed packets on franchise history to his young players that included bios of Raiders greats and stories of memorable seasons. And he has embraced the alums. Shortly after being hired, he called old Raiders linebacker Phil Villapiano. "You're in, Phil," he told him.

Back during OTAs, Gruden had his rookies compete in a game of Raiders Jeopardy and narrated it savagely, to the delight of the veterans. He showed a photo of Johnson as a freshman at Texas and Hall when he was a freshman at Michigan. Blank stares. He played a video of Jack Tatum making a tackle and Art Shell making a block. "They had no idea they ever were on the face of the Earth," he says, one eyebrow up, the other down.

He had his new video director intercut Kirk Gibson's walk-off home run in the 1988 World Series with practice tape to send a message about playing hurt.

"My video guy, Joe Harrington, might be the greatest video guy ever," Gruden says. "Got him from the University of Tennessee, and he might be the greatest loss in Tennessee history behind Peyton Manning. Bernard King would be third."

When Gruden wanted to make a point about mental toughness, he had Harrington put together a video on Tom Brady. "He can't run, can't jump, he's too old," Gruden says. "He gets his ass knocked off. But he's a Terminator. He ran me out of Oakland in the Tuck Game. Damn. He brought those bastards back in a two-minute drill to beat us in a driving snow. They didn't do anything the whole night until the game was on the line. And here I am 20 years later, and guess who's still there. That's why I'm back."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

There are some aspects of the game he liked better before. Instant replay has run amok, in his opinion. He doesn't understand the regulations that prohibit contact between coaches and players for about three months in the offseason. He's not sure what a catch is anymore.

And he can do without some modern technology, like virtual reality training. "I don't want to wear goggles in my quarterback meetings, you know?" he says, putting his fingers in rings around his eyes. "I don't. We're not going to sit there in goggles and buy a spaceship. I'm not going to have some robot tell me what play to call."

But none of this diminishes his love of the game and his love of the Raiders. He is home again for the first time in 17 years.

Before camp, he held a pep rally for fans at Ricky's Sports Theatre and Grill just south of Oakland. He interacted with hundreds, including the fan known as Gorilla Rilla. Gruden knew him from his first go-round in Oakland. Another fan was dressed as if he got lost on the way to Comic Con. "I'm your meat guy!" he yelled at Gruden. "Hey! I'm your meat guy! Come by the grocery store, and I'll get you some meat! Go Raiders!"

It bothers Gruden that the Raiders have had one winning season in the last 15 years even though he had nothing to do with the last 15 years. They were his team when he was a boy, and they are his team always.

"We have the greatest fans and the greatest brand in sports," Gruden says. "I love this brand: the Raiiiiduhs. Cadillac, I love Cadillac. Every Cadillac I've ever been in, I love it. I'd rather drive a Cadillac than damn near do anything. It's class. I wish I was in a Cadillac now. I remember Jerry Rice putting on silver and black. He was in front of the mirror before he was going to go out for his first preseason game. 'Whoooo! Man, I love it!' Al Davis used to say, 'Close your eyes, Butch.' Silver and black, what do you think? Raiders."

The future

You might not believe what you were seeing if you were in that dark office when Gruden was studying page after page of Pro Football Focus reports. Or when he was telling his brother, Redskins coach Jay Gruden, that his team needs to subscribe to the analytics service.

When he was asked about analytics at the NFL scouting combine in February, Gruden said, "Man, I'm trying to throw back the game to 1998."

Gruden is 54 years old and looks like he's 44. But sometimes he talks like he's 74.

The truth? He is big into analytics and always has been.

"I was one of the first analytics guys in football," he says. "Ask Mike Holmgren. I had to do all the tendencies. What are we doing out of red formation, split backs? How many runs, how many passes? What are we doing on 2nd-and-10-plus? What are we doing on 3rd-and-1? What are our short-yardage tendencies—are we running left, or are we running right? I used to do it by hand. Now, Pro Football Focus does it all for you."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

The Gruden time machine travels forward as well as back.

During practice warm-ups one day, fans yell, "Welcome back, Chuckeeeee!" He turns to face them, raises his fist and gives them that big head nod. But this really isn't Chucky anymore. It's more like seed of Chucky.

The evolving Gruden has borrowed from coaches he visited during his nine years as an analyst for Monday Night Football on ESPN.

He has two large video boards on the practice field replaying everything that happens. The idea came from Adam Gase of the Dolphins.

Early in practice, right after stretching, the Raiders run ball-protection drills. That's how Gruden saw Pete Carroll do it with the Seahawks. It is a good way, Gruden thinks, to get energy flowing.

Gruden has Carr and the receivers work together after practice. Sean Payton did the same thing with Drew Brees and his receivers in New Orleans, reviewing audibles and running routes to make sure everyone was on the same page. Gruden believes it helps maximize on-field time.

Gruden learned from many coaches during his time off, filling stacks of spiral notebooks with thoughts. Among them was Chip Kelly. "He saw the world totally different," Gruden says. "He's a Martian. I thought it was cool, man. I thought the guy carrying the ball came from underground."

Gruden's offense, subsequently, has mutated. In fact, it is more likely to look like it's from 2028 than 1998. Greg Olson was Gruden's quarterbacks coach during his last year in Tampa, and he's his offensive coordinator in Oakland. He says Gruden's offensive playbook is 10 to 15 percent bigger than it was with the Bucs. He also says it's the most voluminous playbook he has seen in 31 years of coaching.

Gruden relies on a library of game tape that goes back to Crazy Legs Hirsch at least. He transferred his personal tape library from his office at the Fired Football Coaches Association in Tampa to the Raiders and stored it on a separate server from his Raiders tape. "Does any other coach in the history of the league have two servers?" he says. "I take pride in it."

He also has more ways to watch practice tape than he used to, with his quarterback wearing a helmet cam and with cameras attached to long poles around practice to focus on individual positions.

Of course, coaching is about more than operating a remote control. Some wonder how his lively personality will play with Generations Y and Z—that younger players might rebel against treatment like, say, in the middle of one recent presentation, when Gruden paused and stared at one of his young players to ask, "Hey, man, do you really have a tattoo underneath your lip?"

Gruden sneers at the idea. "I'm more conscious of a lot of things that these guys are going through because I have kids their age now," he says.

One of those kids, 24-year-old Deuce, is a strength and conditioning assistant for the Raiders and "the strongest 180-pound man in the world," according to his father. Deuce won a gold medal in the 2017 International Powerlifting Federation World Championship. Michael, 21, is a deejay attending the University of Tennessee, and Jayson, 18, is an aspiring MMA fighter.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Gruden is a classic rock guy, but he will tolerate Deuce's Slipknot that "rattles my bones" and Michael's techno mixes. "I'm learning," he says, but he's not learning well enough for running back Marshawn Lynch and defensive end Irvin, who voice their complaints to him about the music at practice.

But the banter cuts the monotony of camp, and they all had a laugh. It's funny how what divides people sometimes can draw them closer.

Gruden's intensity—"Huddle up! Huddle up! Goddammit!" he yelled when presnap confusion was evident on one practice snap—can be off-putting to some. But not to safety Marcus Gilchrist.

When Gilchrist walks by, Gruden says, "That might be one of my favorite players I've ever coached."

And then, "Hey, what's Klay Thompson mean to you?"

It's a code word Gruden used on offense that Gilchrist had deciphered in a recent practice. "I got you today," Gilchrist says, grinning.

"What about Kareem?" Gruden asks.

Yep, Gilchrist knew that one too.

And then, "You hear West Coast, what are you thinking?"

Gilchrist had figured them all out, and the player and coach chuckle.

"He's going to be my defensive coordinator in five years," Gruden says. Then he turns to Gilchrist. "But wait until you get the new series next week."

Gilchrist is looking forward to the challenge. "He's one of those guys," Gilchrist says, "that you want to run through a wall for."

Gruden thinks he knows why some coaches have struggled with gaining and keeping the attention of members of the younger generation.

"Don't you think a lot of it is that we've changed as leaders?" he says, spitting the words. "We've allowed some of this to happen. Sit up in your chair. Listen. This is a piece of paper. Why don't you write this down? Let me watch you. 200 Jet Dragon. It's the No. 1 play in our offense. This is what we are after in the meeting rooms. So sit up in your chair, man, c'mon."

Gruden does not have many rules. But his players know better than to be on their mobile devices when a coach is speaking.

"You think someone is going to sit in there and play Twitter while we are getting ready for the L.A. Rams?" he asks. "What the hell do you think this is? We give these guys plenty of free time. And they are connected to the whole world. They can Facebook, Facechat, Snapchat, Instagram. I've seen it all. And you're not going to pull that bulls--t over my eyes. I know what's going on. Me and my kids Snapchat my brother every so often just to stay connected. It's a cool thing, a great invention."

Says rookie defensive tackle Maurice Hurst, "He's a guy you can listen to talk all day."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

The present
What about all that money?

When Gruden is asked a question, the answer usually comes out rapid-fire. But this particular question hangs there in the dark office. And then the office seems to get darker.

"All that money," he says slowly. Gruden's contract with the Raiders reportedly calls for him to earn $100 million over 10 years—the richest coaching contract in NFL history. "That comes later in the contract. I may not live that long. I don't have time to enjoy anything anyway.

"People ask me about it, it makes me want to coach for nothing, which I probably should be."

Gruden doesn't need the money. ESPN reportedly was paying him $6.5 million a year. He has saved much and invested well.

"He ain't doing it for the money," Gilchrist says. "He loves the game."

What would Gruden say to his team about money?

"Who would play for nothing?" he says, scrunching up his nose, bottom lip over his top. It seems to be brighter in the office again now. "Raise your hand. Who would come out here tonight [continuing in a Wolfman Jack voice] and play Jones Junior High? They want to play us. Let's get their ass. Who will be here with me?"

Gruden might do this for nothing, but that doesn't mean he's always jolly. At practices, his black Raiders visor reveals how he's feeling.

Square and tight. Mood: What's up?

Off his head, in his hand. Mood: Come on now.

Low over his eyes so he has to tilt back his head to see. Mood: Are you kidding me?

High on his head, slightly askew. Mood: What the hell?

Whatever the mood, he really is into it. "He's the same guy with maybe more energy," Olson says.

"He is rejuvenated," says Jeff Leonardo, whom Gruden hired to be a coaching assistant after they worked together on Monday Night Football.

Among Leonardo's responsibilities is showing up in Gruden's driveway every morning—usually at 4:15—to drive him 26 miles to the office. "I can't drive worth a damn," Gruden says. "The first few days, I was driving to work and cars were going like 85, 90. I'm like: 'Holy s--t! I'm going to get killed.'"

So now, Gruden sits back and works on scripts for the day or plays "Name that artist" with Leonardo, a former roadie for rock acts, including the Rolling Stones and Paul McCartney. They listen to SiriusXM channels Classic Vinyl, Classic Rewind, Ozzy's Boneyard, Hair Nation and '70s on Seven. Gruden is better served riding shotgun and controlling the radio than he would be concerning himself with merging traffic or changing lanes.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I just want to match the effort, work ethic and focus that I had the first time," he says. "I want to match those things—nothing else. Worry about what you can control."

There is something else he wants. "I want to have fun," he says. "I'm here to have fun. I like laughing, man. I'm not going to be miserable. I didn't have any fun the last three or four years when I was coaching."

Fun? Fun was filming his assistant coaches running plays back in March so he could show the players what it is supposed to look like. Tom Cable at center making the protection calls, flanked by Tim Berbenich at left guard and Lemuel Jeanpierre at right guard. They wear big black shirts with letters corresponding to their positions. Jemal Singleton is H. Frank Smith is J. Olson is Z. Edgar Bennett is X, and he pulled his hamstring running a chase route. Brian Callahan is the quarterback. "He had a QB rating of 155," Gruden says. "It's good s--t, man."

Fun? Fun is telling AI stories to an audience that hasn't heard them before. "I used to watch him come out of the tunnel at games," Gruden says. "I'd be on the field. I'd hear this ruckus. People going crazy. I looked down, AI's hair's flying back in the wind. He has his white suit on. He's pointing at the Black Hole." Gruden squints and imitates Davis. "Ahhhhhhh!"

Coaching Derek Carr, now that's fun. Carr is the quarterback Gruden always wanted but never had.

To some, Gruden and Carr seemed to be an odd match, but they are bringing out each other's best, challenging each other daily. They are the first ones in the office and the first ones on the practice field. During OTAs, Carr tried to beat Gruden to the office. He set his alarm for 4 a.m. and went straight to his car. When he arrived, Gruden's car was already in the lot.

Back in April, Gruden tried to make it easier for Carr than he did for his quarterbacks in previous jobs by asking for his participation in determining new terminology. Gruden, Olson and Carr came up with more concise play calls than Gruden previously used.

In camp, Gruden and Carr meet in a room that connects to Gruden's office. It's the same room in which Gruden met with Rich Gannon. Back then, there was a pool table in the room. Gruden got rid of it. The room is for working, not playing.

"Last night, I was saying we need to slip some NyQuil in his coffee—try to tone him down at night so he can get some rest," Carr says. "He'll make these elaborate cutups. I know it takes a long time to make an easy 20-play cutup of a certain coverage and certain look. He makes cutups with maybe 80 plays each and eight coverages, and he does it every day. He finds them in every which way, from college football, pro football, from 1998, from 1976. Where does he find the time?"

As Carr was finishing up a day's work in the spring, Gruden stopped him.

"I just want to tell you I love you and appreciate you," he told him. "Your work ethic is awesome. If you screw up, it's my fault because I didn't prepare you well."

That was all Carr needed to hear. "Now, if I screw something up and he gets on me, I don't question it," he says. "It's more like I feel like I let my dad down, and you don't want to do that."

The Gruden that Carr describes does not jibe with his reputation.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"He's one of the most loving people I've ever been around," Carr says. "He's family. I know he loves me, would give me the shirt off his back. He would do anything for my two boys, for my wife. He wants to know everything about me. He wants to meet my doctor. He wants to meet my agent. He wants to meet my business team, my parents, my brothers, my nieces, my nephews. He told my brother [NFL Network analyst David Carr] he can come whenever he wants."

Yes, this is a honeymoon.

Gruden has not had to live through a regular-season loss yet. A bad call has not gone against him. A draft pick hasn't flopped. An ominous cloud rarely has darkened the sky.

The Mack ordeal has tested him. But for the most part, he has been Jonny Sunshine.

Negativity and impatience did not serve Gruden well in his first coaching incarnation. He knows it. And he waited nine years for this, the perfect opportunity.

Gruden, as those his age tend to be, is more appreciative than he once was. People who have known him for years have noticed a mellowing.

"Last time I was here, I was 34 years old," he says. "I saw football as X's and O's and the urgency to get better as the primary focus. I probably was nuts. Now I'm trying to slow the train down and have a different perspective that way. I try to take more interest in these guys than I did last time. I try not to scream and yell and get all unglued all the time."

Old coach, new man?

This office is the intersection of yesterday and tomorrow.

"We're proud of our past here," Gruden says. "But like Al Davis used to always say, 'It's time for someone to take this team into the future.'"

And there is no one better to do that than the man who works in a dark, familiar hotel room, oblivious to the world outside.

THE ATHLETIC

Brian Callahan feels back at home with the Raiders — now he has to get AJ McCarron ready in a hurry

By Vic Tafur

September 8, 2018

If we're ranking the people who took the news hardest when the Raiders cut backup quarterbacks Connor Cook and EJ Manuel last week, quarterbacks coach Brian Callahan might be fourth or fifth on the list.

"I really liked Connor and EJ — they're really good people — and I spent more time with those guys than I do with my wife," Callahan said after practice on Friday. "It's like, 'Maannnnnn.' You never really like to see those guys go but you have to deal with it, and I will always stay close to those guys and text and check in on them. But it's part of the business."

The Raiders had invested a lot of time and money in Cook and Manuel, and just like that they traded for AJ McCarron and hit the reset button. With coach Jon Gruden and offensive coordinator Greg Olson focused on Monday's season opener, it's Callahan's job to get McCarron up to speed.

The former Bengals and Bills quarterback arrived in Alameda on Sunday, and he and Callahan met for ... what, a couple hours? Four? Six?

"We met for as long as two people could meet," Callahan said. "And then the same Monday. It's been a long week for me, man. But it's been a good week. He makes it easy because he is a veteran player and he is really, really smart."

Callahan, 34, is no stranger to long weeks in Alameda. When he was at De La Salle High, his dad, Bill, was the offensive coordinator for the Raiders under Gruden, and then as head coach, he took the Raiders to the Super Bowl. Brian would help out the equipment guys and occasionally throw passes to Jerry Rice and the other receivers after practice.

"I never thought I would be back," Callahan said. "But the Raiders always held a place in my heart and this has always been home to me. Most of my friends still live out here ...

"Hey, they didn't fire me 20 years ago," Callahan said, laughing. "I am excited to be back. It's been a blast."

Callahan wanted to be a quarterback like Rich Gannon when he grew up and walked on at UCLA. He settled for earning a scholarship as a senior as a holder, and was planning to be a teacher before he enjoyed being a graduate assistant coach with the Bruins and then offensive coordinator at Serra High in San Mateo.

"I realized, at 23, I wasn't ready to settle in and teach for the next 30 years," Callahan said.

So he ran his idea of coaching for a living by his parents.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"My dad said, 'You know what you're getting into,' and my mom said, 'Are you out of your mind?'" Callahan said. "And here we are."

Callahan took after his dad, but only so much as their position specialties allow. Bill now coaches the offensive linemen in Washington, as he's done throughout most of his 38-year coaching career.

"I share my dad's intensity," Callahan said, "but I don't know if I share it to his level. He coaches a different position, and he's half out of his mind when he is talking to those big guys and getting them ready."

"But ... if anybody ever told me ... at some point in my life, they came to me and said, 'You teach as good as your dad does,' that would be it for me. That's as good a compliment as I could get. He's a phenomenal teacher. His ability to teach details and fundamentals and techniques is as good as anybody."

McCarron had thought he was going to be the Bills starting quarterback at the start of training camp, and was a little surprised when they traded him for a fifth-round pick last Saturday.

"You just try to figure out where your bags are and how you're going to get your clothes in there and when the flight is," McCarron said before practice on Thursday. "It's just part of the business. You're always excited for a new adventure."

While McCarron was on the plane, Callahan watched all of McCarron's preseason snaps and then watched his snaps with the Bengals from his first four years in the league.

"I think he is a really good player," Callahan said. "The guy won two national championships at Alabama. And he's played well in this league when called upon."

The Raiders had been keeping an eye on McCarron well before Saturday, according to Olson.

"We had some intel on AJ from coaches that had worked with him," Olson said. "We were happy to get him."

McCarron has been sleeping with the playbook, and says he will be ready if Derek Carr gets injured on Monday night.

"God forbid I get in there, it's not going to be perfect," McCarron said. "But I know how to battle and keep trying."

Callahan said he has not scaled back the playbook for McCarron, but he is only feeding him information in smaller bites.

"It's not the easiest thing in the world," McCarron said. "I'm trying my hardest. Callahan is doing a great job of working with me. I've been coming in really early, spending a lot of time staying late."

McCarron said the Raiders have entirely "different schemes and thought processes than the Bills do, but a lot of the plays are similar."

"He's run plenty of the same concepts, they just called it something different," Callahan said. "I just have to translate and we spent most of our time just getting caught up with the base system."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

That's where it being game week helped Callahan and McCarron. A lot of the playbook has already been pared down to this week's gameplan and call sheet.

"He can narrow his focus, and we can fill in the gaps as we go," Callahan said.

And whether it was Cook, Manuel or McCarron, Callahan and the other coaches' plan for the backup doesn't change.

"Every Saturday night, I will sit down with the backup and ask him his favorite third-and-2 call," Callahan said. "Give your favorite third-and-6 call. Give me your top three dropbacks."

"So I always have an idea, should it ever come up, I can go to Coach and say, 'This one, this one, this one.' So Coach has an idea of where he is at and what to call."

Callahan first met Gruden in 1995, when he was in the seventh grade. Gruden was the Eagles offensive coordinator and Bill was the offensive line coach.

"(Gruden) hasn't changed much at all," Callahan said. "I used to sit in on his quarterback meetings at training camp. I would help the equipment guys and throw to the receivers at minicamp. He is the same guy. He is about as good a football coach as you will ever come around."

Gruden had told several members of his current staff that he might return to coaching one day and to be ready for the phone call. Callahan had no idea he was on Gruden's list.

"I saw him here and there, when he was doing the broadcasting, and I would say hello to him. He and my dad are still close ... but I got let go in Detroit and Jon was one of the first people to text me about a job."

Callahan can have a relationship with quarterbacks that is different than Gruden's and Olson's because he is so much closer to them in age.

"There is a relatability that helps and I can sort of work as a bridge between everybody," Callahan said. "It's a good role. I like it."

Working with Carr was a big part of the draw of coming to Oakland.

"It's why a lot of people came here," Callahan said. "He is a bona fide starting quarterback in this league who has had success and is only getting better."

Like everyone else, Callahan wondered from afar why Carr had the dip in performance last season. He and Olson sat down and watched the film, and came up with a list.

Not surprisingly, Callahan doesn't wish to share that list.

"I don't want to get into specifics, but I think there's definitely cases where I think checking the ball down a few more times a game is going to make a difference between your completion percentage being 62 and being 70. And not forcing the ball.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“Quarterbacks that have confidence want to push the ball down the field. And they believe they can do it, and they should. But sometimes the 4-yard throw is good, too. So you look at maybe being more efficient in how we’re approaching the decision-making process.”

Before he was the quarterbacks coach in Detroit, Callahan spent six years with the Broncos and really studied under his quarterback, Peyton Manning, early on.

“He is one of the biggest influences on how I approach my job and quarterback play,” Callahan said. “How I go about teaching it. He is by far the greatest preparer I have ever seen. And maybe there ever will be. If you said this is how it’s supposed to look, it was 10 times that. And not everybody is wired like him, but there are a lot of elements about how he went about his business that help quarterbacks improve.”

Callahan was on call 24-7 with Manning.

“I was the information giver,” Callahan said. “I had to watch everything and try to anticipate what he was going to ask for. He would always ask so many questions in meetings, and I wanted to tell him and tell him with some affirmation.”

Gruden, Olson and Callahan have tried to tell the quarterbacks why they are running certain plays, and that was something Cook said he really appreciated. That is, before he was cut last Saturday.

“I think it’s incredibly important,” Callahan said. “If you’re a quarterback and you’re just running plays, I don’t think you can visualize what we’re trying to do. They should be thinking, ‘We’re trying to attack this, and if that’s not there, here is the answer.’ We’re always trying to provide answers for the quarterback.”

And with that, Callahan was off to another meeting with McCarron.

Paul Guenther adept teaching Raiders to play new style of defense

By Scott Bair

August 7, 2018

NAPA – Paul Guenther breaks the offseason and training camp into three phases. He installs the new Raiders defense in each one. Repetition, it seems, leads to mastery.

The last phase starts in training camp, but the final installation runs unlike the previous two.

Lectures are over. In Napa, students become the teacher. Guenther randomly calls players to the front of the class to decipher plays and call out the adjustments required to make them work well.

Guenther's teaching methods have worked well. Scheme retention was strong following a summer off, a positive that allowed the Raiders to hit the ground running in training camp.

That's no easy task. Guenther's defense is vast, loaded with plays that include deception and disguise. It's well respected, with a long track record of success. It doesn't matter, Guenther says, if he can't transfer his knowledge to those who execute.

"Football is a simple game made complicated by coaches," Guenther said on this week's Raiders Insider Podcast. "You have to teach the system in a way that all 11 guys understand everyone else is doing. You can't exist in the little world of your position group. They have to know how others fit around them. If they understand why I'm making calls, and what everyone is supposed to do, then they can make in-game adjustments on Sundays. We need to be fast-minded. The only way you can play fast is to have the system down."

Players rave about Guenther the teacher. Derrick Johnson called him a mastermind. Leon Hall says players learn well because he can identify with every position group.

Marcus Gilchrist enters the season with his fourth team and fifth defensive coordinator. The safety knows the importance of getting a message across, and considers Guenther great at it.

"Probably one of the best ones I've been around in my eight years," he said. "Getting guys to understand whatever their role is on this defense or a certain coverage, whatever scheme that it is, probably the best that I've been around at getting guys to learn a scheme and being able to teach it the right way."

Guenther can sense when somebody doesn't get it, even when they're unwilling to raise a hand.

"If there's a look of uncertainty on your face or in your body language, he's going to see it and help you understand it," weakside linebacker Tahir Whitehead said. "He's not just going to give you a coaching point and then back off and expect you to have it. He wants you to think the way he's thinking. He wants us to take ownership of the scheme."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

The scheme works. It came from Marvin Lewis and Mike Zimmer in Cincinnati and refined by Guenther the past four seasons.

Zimmer was his biggest influence, someone who helped establish his own defensive philosophy.

"He's incredibly smart," Zimmer said in March. "He was able to add to the things we did in Cincinnati, and was creative finding new ways to get the job done."

Guenther thrived on his own, after Zimmer left to become Minnesota's head coach in 2014. The Bengals finished in the top half in scoring defense each year under Guenther, with two campaigns in the top 10.

The Raiders, by contrast, never finished above 20th in that same span.

Guenther is equal parts tactician, motivator and college professor, with a track record of success unknown in these parts over the last decade.

Head coach Jon Gruden has given Guenther relative autonomy over the defense, with control to implement the scheme and arrange the depth chart. Guenther had a chance to leave Cincinnati in 2014, with offers to join Zimmer in Minnesota or Jay Gruden in Washington. He stayed home then, but felt it time to move on with Jon Gruden came calling. Guenther was part of the Gruden package, and is an integral part of this coaching staff.

Guenther and Jon Gruden are close friends, but have developed a rivalry that ratchets up practice intensity.

"Coach Gruden is on me all the time instilling that, 'I want to kick Coach Guenther's butt every day,'" quarterback Derek Carr said. "I think he wants to embarrass us as well. That little rivalry, that little work is the same. But you'll see us all three at dinner together – we're a team – but it definitely helps us come the season.

"...Ask any quarterback in the NFL, Coach Guenther is one of the best in the NFL and it's not even close. He gives you the most problems, he presents the most challenges, he makes you think more than anybody. He's one of the best and I'm glad he's here."

Guenther doesn't blitz much but disguises his intentions well and works to find favorable matchups for his best players. He wants to establish a tough defense that knows its stuff. That's why teaching the scheme right in the offseason and training camp is vital to regular-season success.

"We're going to be a physical team," Guenther said. "When you come to play the Raiders, you'd better pack a lunch pail. We're going to be smart situationally, we're going to create turnovers and we're going to get after the quarterback. I grew up watching the old Raiders defenses. I'm trying to get us back to that."

Strength and Conditioning Assistant Kelsey Martinez

LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

Kelsey Martinez strengthens Raiders as 1st female assistant coach

By Michael Gehlken

August 5, 2018

NAPA, Calif. — She wore a black hooded sweatshirt and black pants when pacing the Raiders' practice field. Her brown hair sat in a ponytail, a whistle in her right hand. She monitored the dynamic-stretching technique of 80-plus NFL players, all of whom awaited her next call.

"Stride forward." They strode.

"Backward run." They ran.

"Three-step cuts." They cut.

This is Kelsey Martinez at work. On the football field, she says, she seldom thinks about any trail she's blazed. But there have been conversations with Raiders coaches, men who have daughters. They've thanked her for embodying how their girls can do whatever they want in life.

"That's when it started to hit: 'Oh, wow. This is a big deal,' " Martinez said. "To be an inspiration for them is huge to me."

Martinez is an example of how initiative and work ethic can lead to an NFL opportunity at age 26. She also happens to be a woman. Part of an organization that has broken race and gender barriers in its history, the strength and conditioning assistant is the Raiders' first female assistant coach.

Martinez joined in March and is nearly two weeks into her first training camp.

She seems to have acclimated well to the Raiders — and they to her.

Some players worked with Martinez before her arrival. Of those in camp, nose tackle Justin Ellis, defensive end Bruce Irvin, outside linebacker James Cowser and defensive end Shakir Soto have conducted offseason training at Tom Shaw Performance at ESPN Wide World of Sports in Orlando.

Martinez worked for four years under Shaw, whom she said "treats me like a daughter" and is "the closest thing to a father figure to me." Shaw now coordinates the Raiders' strength and conditioning department. She credits the mentor for the respect and support received, be it in Florida or here in California.

But she is plenty responsible for that reception, too.

Martinez can stand on her own merit. For example, Cowser credits her for refining his sprint technique. Once in Orlando, she watched his movement and suggested focus on pushing off the ground more with his feet when he explodes to run. Cowser did so and followed with his best recorded time on the drill, he said.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"She's super awesome," Cowser, 27, said. "I mean, there's a reason I went to Tom Shaw in the offseason, right? When I first met her, from the beginning, she opens her mouth, and you instantly know she knows what she's talking about. It's the same reaction here with all the guys. At first glance, you're like, 'Wow, that's a woman.' And then they start talking, and it's, 'Oh, that's a coach.' You know what I mean? It's that instant switch of, 'Oh, that's interesting,' to, 'Oh, I need to get my feet up.'"

"It instantly becomes business, and that's what it's all about. I think that's a testament to her and who she is because she's able to get us to switch into work mode. We don't think about male-female whatever. It's just business and how can we get better."

'You can't limit yourself'

Martinez grew up in Pueblo, Colorado.

A softball standout, she played outfield at Bethany College in Lindsborg, Kansas, before transferring closer to home. She ultimately earned a Bachelor degree in Exercise Science from Colorado State University, but her education continued under Shaw's tutelage.

This offseason, the Raiders have noticed results from their strength and conditioning department. Perhaps no position group exemplifies this more than offensive line, a group that collectively struggled this spring to keep up with the pace that coach Tom Cable dictated during individual drills.

Tackle David Sharpe, guard Jordan Simmons and guard Denver Kirkland are among those who followed a personalized plan, lost weight and showed improvement in camp.

Martinez is focused on inspiring such success stories. Yet, she inspires more.

Running backs coach Jemal Singleton and his wife have a young daughter. He has thanked Martinez for being an example to her. Months ago, special teams coordinator Rich Bisaccia had dinner with different members of the strength and conditioning staff, including Martinez and Shaw.

He thanked her, too.

"I have five sisters, and I have three daughters," Bisaccia said. "For them to be able to, along with all other females, see that she's accomplished this goal is going to give them a chance to realize, 'Wow, this is a path I can take.' ...She carries herself extremely professionally. She's incredibly knowledgeable in what she's trying to teach these guys. She hasn't missed a beat with the players. ..."

"Once a pro player feels like you're knowledgeable and you can help them get better, they're going to listen to you. And I feel like with Kelsey, that was evident right away, not only to the coaches but certainly to the players."

For the New York Jets, Lee Brandon is widely credited as having become the NFL's first female strength and conditioning assistant. That was 1990.

All these years later, an NFL weight room remains a male-dominated setting. None of the league's other 31 teams have a woman listed on their strength and conditioning staff, according to the directory page posted on each club's website.

A message accompanies Martinez' journey.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

It can apply to any gender.

“Don’t create limits on yourself,” Martinez said. “There’s many excuses or whatever that can be made, but at the end of the day, what do you love to do? I was able to find what I love to do, and that’s working for Jon Gruden every day. ‘Do you love football?’ That’s his number one question. Do you love football? Do you love what you do? Why limit yourself or who you are if that’s what you want?”

“I didn’t let that try to ever stop me. More than anything, I’m thinking of how young I am coming in here versus me being a girl. You can’t limit yourself.”

Kelsey Martinez blazing trails and inspiring as first female coach in Raiders history

By Matt Schneidman

August 15, 2018

Kelsey Martinez approached Mallory Singleton right when she noticed her on the Coliseum field last Friday afternoon. Martinez, 26, is a strength and conditioning assistant for the Raiders, the first female coach in team history and currently the NFL’s only female strength coach. Singleton, 5, is the daughter of Raiders running backs coach Jemal Singleton.

The 5-year-old looked up in awe at Martinez, who couldn’t help but hoist her and ask for a picture before the Raiders’ preseason opener against the Detroit Lions.

“It’s one of those things as a father, you want your daughter to have those aspirations to be whatever she wants to be. It’s nice to have something she can put her eyes on and say, ‘She’s a coach. I could be a coach,’” Singleton said. “I know a lot of hype has been put on, ‘She’s female.’ She’s just a good strength coach. That’s going to be the bottom line at the end of the day and that’s what she does well.”

This is one of the most rewarding parts of the job for Martinez, when young girls look up to her. Of course she knows the rarity of women in her profession, but she wants to be coach first, female coach second. Raiders head strength coach Tom Shaw has known Martinez for eight years. They worked together extensively at Shaw’s training center in Orlando for almost five, and Shaw recommended to Jon Gruden she be one of his lieutenants. Gruden even sent one of his two right-hand men, Mark Arteaga, to watch Martinez work out professional athletes in Orlando.

Now she continues to break barriers for an organization historically known for doing so, even if she doesn’t always look at herself that way. She’d rather spot Kelechi Osemele, maybe the strongest player on the team, or reduce aching in Frostee Rucker’s knees by recommending one-legged squats with less weight instead of two-legged ones with more. Those are the day-to-day tasks that fuel pre-dawn wakeups for Martinez, who in her first season with the Raiders is sticking out as the only female on the field but at the same time fitting right in.

“Believe me, if she didn’t know what she was talking about when she would actually talk to them and didn’t know the program, they would find somebody else to go to because they’re all trying to stay in the league,” Shaw said. “In the NFL, that’s what you have to do is you have to prove yourself in order to be accepted and she has proven herself.”

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Martinez grew up playing softball because she hated being indoors. Without a college softball career, she sought ways to stay around athletes. That's where her desire to be a trainer bloomed. Martinez interned with NFL strength coaches, some of whom ventured to Orlando to learn from Shaw. Once she sampled a taste of the NFL trainer life, she wanted in.

At Shaw's performance center, Martinez oversaw the regimens of over 40 MLB players, including Cleveland Indians All-Star shortstop Francisco Lindor and Miami Marlins third baseman Martin Prado. She worked with other professional athletes, too, four who happen to be current Raiders – Bruce Irvin, Justin Ellis, James Cowser and Shakir Soto. She was nervous to first train pros as a college student under Shaw, who has groomed a litany of NFL first-round picks, No. 1 overall picks and Super Bowl MVPs, but gradually earned a reputation as a trusted trainer that eased her nerves.

Gruden liked what he saw in Martinez so much after Shaw and Arteaga's recommendations, he told reporters in March at the annual league meeting, "She's spectacular. Wait 'till you meet her." We've waited until now since Martinez has been reluctant to do interviews and instead let her work do the talking. She still needed to prove herself in the NFL, like Shaw said, and relied on the word of those Raiders she'd trained before to vouch for her to those she hadn't when she came on board.

Ellis, a starting defensive tackle who trained at Shaw's facility, remembers the reaction when teammates heard Gruden hired the NFL's only female strength coach.

"Guys were like, 'Oh, man, we got a woman trainer,'" he said with a slight tone of shock. "I was just telling them, 'She knows what she's talking about.' ... She knew more than the guys that are working in some areas."

These days in Napa, Martinez and the rest of Oakland's strength staff arrive in the weight area around 5 a.m. (In Orlando they started at 9 a.m.) When the strength staff first joined the Raiders early in the offseason, in order to absorb the new system quicker, they rose an hour earlier. But now players trickle over the dew-stained grass and into the outdoor weight facility around 5:30 or 6 a.m. Players can lift at three different times throughout the day, and Martinez and Co. are there to supervise each one.

She intently watches practice, too, so she can incorporate position-specific drills in agility and strength work during the next offseason program. Right after practice ends around noon she'll dart around the weight area, spotting for Jordy Nelson one second then instructing Rucker the next and helping Derek Carr on the bench press another. There's far less time to interact with players during training camp than there was during the offseason, when she worked with them for four-plus hours on some days.

"Our day stays very busy. We're never chilling," Martinez said. "Some people have said that, 'You'll kind of just be hanging back, only working with them in the weight room.' I can't imagine that. There's too much going on."

Even without weights or speed drills, Martinez connects with players. She reserves two pages of paper for each player with the theme, "What's your story?" They open up to Martinez about everything from life in elementary school to their parents' history, Shaw said. She then shares those backgrounds in staff meetings, so coaches learn about players beyond the gridiron and the bench press.

It seems like the new coach in town has endeared herself to all the players she didn't know just fine.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"She's been great working with the guys," Carr said. "I haven't heard anybody complain or anything like that, like 'Oh man, she didn't know this or that.' She's very smart. She knows her stuff. I think that's why she's so respected."

Back in 1990, Lee Brandon became the first female strength coach in NFL history when she joined the New York Jets' strength staff. Martinez wasn't even born. Female coaches in the NFL have rarely surfaced in the 28 years since, whether they be on strength staffs or as position coaches, and only in recent years have women carved out roles in the league.

Jen Welter became the league's first female position coach in 2015 when she coached inside linebackers for the Arizona Cardinals during training camp and the preseason as part of an internship. Kathryn Smith became the first full-time female coach in 2016, serving as special teams quality control coach for the Buffalo Bills. The San Francisco 49ers hired Katie Sowers as an offensive assistant before the start of last season, making her the second full-time female coach.

Currently Martinez is the only female strength coach listed on a team website, which brings a smile to the first one in league history.

"I'm absolutely elated and love that the NFL is embracing women in such a classically male-dominated arena," Brandon said earlier in the offseason. "It's very exciting, and I'm mostly excited because I think that as strength and conditioning specialists, if you look at any of the top NFL websites and you touch the coaching tab, you'll see underneath the head coach, the line coaches and all the coaches, you're always gonna see the head strength coach and the assistant strength coach."

Martinez doesn't care much if her name is on a website or if she garners attention. Her biggest reward comes when players say they feel better during practices and games because of something she's worked on with them. That, and inspiring young girls to follow goals some might deem unrealistic, is why she rises at Jon Gruden-esque hours to hone her craft.

To others, she may be a pioneer.

To Kelsey Martinez, though, she's just doing her job.

Kelsey Martinez breaks ground as Raiders' first female assistant coach

By Matt Kawahara

September 14, 2018

Kelsey Martinez crawled at five months old and walked at nine months, says her mother, Khristina Fuentes. She rode her first bike without training wheels. She hated being inside and spent much of her childhood in Pueblo, Colo., outdoors and playing sports.

"She was in the trees, she was playing baseball, you name it," Fuentes said. "Everything that the boys could do, she could do."

And still, when Martinez told her mother she intended to pursue a coaching job in the NFL, Fuentes figured there would be challenges.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I told her, 'That's great, and I want you to have goals like that, and I hope you can achieve that,'" Fuentes said. " 'Just know that's a male-dominant type of career — or not even really career, just atmosphere.'"

That conversation, Fuentes said, happened a little over a year ago. Martinez is now in her first season as a strength and conditioning assistant for the Raiders. She's the first female assistant coach in the team's history and the only female strength coach in the NFL. Sunday, her family and friends will make the trip to Denver to watch her at work as the Raiders play the Broncos.

At 26, Martinez is once again the embodiment of forward progress.

In the NFL, it seems, the times are catching up.

Five years ago, there were no women in full-time roles on NFL coaching staffs. Currently, there are three — Martinez, Katie Sowers with the 49ers and Phoebe Schechter with the Bills.

Lee Brandon was the NFL's first female assistant strength coach with the New York Jets in 1990. Jen Welter became the NFL's first female position coach in 2015 when she was hired by Arizona to coach linebackers in training camp and preseason. Kathryn Smith became the first woman in a full-time NFL assistant coach role in 2016, as a special teams quality control coach for Buffalo.

Sowers was hired by the 49ers as an offensive assistant in 2017, becoming the league's second female full-time assistant coach and the first openly gay NFL coach. Buffalo appointed Schechter to a season-long coaching internship last month, assisting the Bills' quality control coaches.

It's progress, said Sam Rapoport, the NFL's director of football development, whose efforts to broaden the pipeline into NFL football operations include creating the Women's Careers in Football Forum in 2017. She said in a phone interview the forum is "seeing some good results" and the ultimate goal "is to normalize women on the sidelines in football."

"Kelsey is certainly a first, and it was monumental when she was hired," Rapoport said. "We certainly want to celebrate firsts. But then we want to move on and let these folks do their jobs and impress the people that they need to, like every other candidate and intern and temporary employee."

In August, during training camp, Martinez said attention accompanying her groundbreaking role is "something that has come with the territory a little bit." But she has remained focused on the job itself.

"How I got here, I'm not surprised in a sense, just because I got to see, first of all, the athletes work, and then their coaches work with them," Martinez said. "I was like, this is something, if you want to do it, you can do it. The only person that can stop you is you."

After high school, Martinez attended Bethany College in Kansas for a year, playing softball, then transferred to Colorado State, entering its health and exercise science program. She landed an internship, and later a job, at Tom Shaw Performance in Orlando, Fla., working with athletes at levels including the NFL and, Shaw said, managing the regimens of more than 40 MLB players.

Shaw was hired this spring by head coach Jon Gruden as the Raiders' strength and conditioning coordinator, and said that before filling out the rest of the staff, Gruden sent trusted aide Mark Arteaga to Orlando to watch Martinez work with athletes. The report back was positive.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"The biggest thing is she has the ability to help guys get better," Shaw said in August. "Believe me, if she didn't know what she was talking about when she talked to them, and didn't know the program, they would find somebody else to go to. ... I think in the NFL, that's what you have to do — you have to prove yourself in order to be accepted. And she's proven herself."

Martinez usually leads part of team warm-ups in practice and monitors practices to give player- or position-specific feedback. Off the field, she works with players in the weight room and speed and agility drills. She also learns about their backgrounds to help broaden the coaching staff's knowledge of individual players.

Tight end Derek Carrier said he thought little of it when he learned the Raiders had hired a female strength coach.

"I've been in positions before where we've had female athletic trainers," Carrier said. "To the outside world, I feel like it's a big thing. But at the end of the day, if people can do their job, it doesn't really matter who they are or what their background is. She's an awesome strength coach, and that's perfectly how it is."

Going into her first NFL job, Martinez said, she felt "confident in what I was doing."

"In the beginning, you have to build everyone's trust as players," she said. "Now we're just getting them in and out, making sure they're getting stronger, faster, more explosive. And when they buy in, it's easy to do that."

Martinez is now immersed in the grind of her first season. Still, having spent the past few years living in Florida and California, she said she's looking forward to Sunday's game in Denver, where she expects more than 20 family members and friends in the stands.

"It's like a homecoming game for me," Martinez said.

Fuentes said she attended plenty of Broncos games in the past. Sunday's will be different.

"It's going to be so exciting," said Fuentes, Martinez's mother. "A lot of people ask me if I'm now a Raiders fan or if I'm a Broncos fan. And I usually tell them, 'I am a fan of my daughter.'"

How a letter written by his mother ignited Erik Harris' journey to the Raiders

By Vic Tafur

August 17, 2018

Christine Higgins, after a long day working and tending to her five other kids, sat down and started writing a letter. It was about her son, now Raiders safety Erik Harris.

She sent it to someone she had never met, California University of Pennsylvania football coach John Luckhardt. Harris was slipping through the cracks, and his mom thought the New Oxford High (Pennsylvania) football star deserved a chance.

"It's always nice to know a little something about somebody, and I just wanted the coach to know about Erik's life story," she said in a telephone interview on Wednesday. "Where he comes from and the struggles he had been through, just with me being a single parent and how much he helped out and watched his little brothers. I don't know ... I just felt he never got a fair shot.

"As hard as he worked, it seemed like he was getting overlooked. It was scary, because that's all he ever dreamed about, was playing football. ... There were a few scary moments. ... His SAT scores weren't that great, and that was the first time we ever thought he wouldn't go right to college and play, because he had been such a good player in high school."

The letter was three pages long, and was accompanied by a highlight tape and press clippings of all of Harris' feats in football and track and field.

"Those articles spoke for themselves, but I just wanted to put it out there so that they knew his dad wasn't involved in his life and how we had moved from Baltimore and Erik had a tough transition," Higgins said. "And how much he did for his brothers."

Luckhardt remembers receiving the letter in 2007 and handing it off to one of his assistants to look into. The staff had used up its scholarship money for the coming season by that point, but promised Higgins they would take a look at the tape and give her an honest opinion.

"That's all I could ask," Higgins said. "When they called back and said they would love to have him, I was so surprised."

Luckhardt fell in love with Harris, just as new Raiders coach Jon Gruden has. Gruden said Harris, a special teams player a year ago, has a chance to win a starting job this preseason.

"Erik's really a great kid and was a great player and leader for us," Luckhardt said in a telephone interview on Thursday. "He came in as a preferred walk-on and got everybody's attention very fast. He is a very physical player. He is a grinder and is never going to give up. ...

"And his mom was the first to bring all of that to our attention. She asked us to give her son a chance, and we did."

There were other scary moments, as Higgins said, from a car crash a year later to being undrafted after college and getting a job lifting 50-pound bags of corn flour at a potato chip factory. But Higgins always believed her son when he said things would work out. He didn't give her any choice.

"When Erik was a little boy, he told me he was going to play in the NFL," she recalled. "As he got older, I would try and talk to him about real life, and how he has to really start thinking about what he wants to be when he grows up. And he would look at me ...

"'Mom. I am going to be an NFL player.' He would tell me that all the time, and would never even talk about anything else. That's what he was going to be."

Harris broke his finger at training camp two weeks ago and missed only three days of practice. He now plays with a splint on his right hand — it kills him not to be able to shake people's hands — but missing more time was never an option for Harris.

After a three-year stint in the Canadian Football League, the 6-foot-3, 225-pound Harris signed with the Saints in 2016 and played four games before tearing up his knee. The Raiders signed him three days after New Orleans cut him last year, and Harris was a valuable special teams player for them.

But Harris is 28 now and he didn't grow up dreaming about running downfield on kick coverage.

"I felt like this was a big year for me to get that special teams label off of me," Harris said after Tuesday's practice. "I do have something to offer on the defensive side of the ball."

He didn't think that was going so well during the first month of offseason workouts, when Gruden only referred to him as "25," Harris' jersey number.

"I was like, 'Man, I need to get him to know my name,'" Harris said, smiling.

Then one day, Gruden was asked after practice about Obi Melifonwu (he gets those a lot) and veered left instead of right back at the question.

"The guy that's really been stunning for us is Erik Harris," Gruden said back in June. "I'm doing my research on this guy. Who is this cat?"

The cat was thrilled.

"It was nice to hear those comments because you put so much work in in the offseason," Harris said.

Harris is vying for playing time at safety with returning starters Karl Joseph and Reggie Nelson and free-agent signee Marcus Gilchrist. He has flown by Melifonwu, last year's second-round pick.

Harris has shown good breaks on the ball and he credits new coordinator Paul Guenther's disguised defense. "It's simple for us to play and difficult for offenses to play against," Harris said.

If you think Harris is in good shape now, you should have seen him in the summer of 2012.

Harris had survived a car crash his freshman year that left his girlfriend and now wife, Theresa, hospitalized. And he was done with college, a standout player that not only earned all-conference honors at safety, but also punted his senior season.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Harris had focused on preparing for the NFL Draft. Not only was he not drafted, but he didn't get an invite to an NFL camp as a free agent.

"I went back home and had to work, because I still had school to finish up after taking the semester off to train," Harris said. "And I got a job at the Utz potato chip factory. A lot of college kids worked there."

But not many kids drew the job of corn mixer.

"I said, 'God, what's a corn mixer?'" Harris said. "And everybody just looked at me. I had the worst job in that whole factory. It was miserable. Every half-hour, I had to lift 50-pound bags of corn flour."

He emptied the bags into a mixer, stirred the corn and shoved it down through the oven. For 11 hours. In 110-degree heat.

"It was humbling," Harris said. "But I was in great shape."

His mom had worked in an Utz factory for 15 years, and she knew all about the corn mixers.

"My mom told me she was actually surprised I kept the job," Harris said. "And I'm like, 'I just don't quit.'"

His mom said the heat had gotten the best of others, and that's the only reason she thought he would quit.

"But he didn't miss one day," Higgins said.

Harris then got a job with UPS and finished school, "sitting in the front row and making Dean's List for the first time."

Still, he always knew football was out there for him, and one day drove five hours to Buffalo and paid $80 to tryout for the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Three days later, they offered him a three-year contract.

"I didn't have an agent at the time," Harris said, "so I signed whatever they threw at me because I was expecting twins at the time, too. I was like, 'Yeah, I'll take whatever.'"

Luckhardt thinks the wider fields and wide-open attacks of the CFL helped prepare Harris for the NFL.

Family is everything to Harris. He and Theresa have three kids now with a fourth on the way. His mom always knew he would be a good father, as he and his older sister helped raise the four youngest boys.

There were days Harris would be late for high school practices, and his coach would be mad. One day his mom explained to him that Harris was watching his brothers while she worked.

"He made them dinners while I worked and looked after them," Higgins said. "The best thing he did was be a great example and role model for them."

And then she told Luckhardt the same thing in that letter.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"When I was waiting for a college to offer me something out of high school, my mom kept saying, 'There is no way it can end like this, there is no way it can end like this,'" Harris said. "My mom was very persistent."

At the end of Harris' college career, four years after the first letter, Christine Higgins sat down to write another letter to Luckhardt.

"It was a 'thank you' letter, but it was better than that," Luckhardt said. "It was a reinforcement of what his experience was. To come from a single-parent family, and to help take care of his family. Because he was a walk-on, he scrambled to pay for school his first year, before we gave him a scholarship. His mom was appreciative of who he was, and that we recognized how special he was."

Luckhardt coached for 45 years before retiring three years ago, and Harris still stands out.

"You look at Erik and you see all the qualities that people want, and what they can get out of this sport," Luckhardt said. "He didn't ask for anything and he has worked for everything he has got. He is an outstanding player, but he is a better person than he is a player."

Higgins now works at Hobby Lobby in the frame shop, and a proud central Pennsylvanian recently brought in Harris' Raiders jersey to be framed.

"Some of the girls at the store were buzzing about that," Higgins said. "It just doesn't seem real, It's super-exciting, but even now, two years after he made the NFL, it still seems like a dream. ...

"I am surprised he made it. I always thought he had the ability, but you never think it's really going to happen because there are so many kids who want to play in the NFL. You never think it's going to happen to your child. But Erik did, and as a parent, all you can do is help your kids in any way you can and hope."

The unlikely rise of Raiders safety Erik Harris

By Matt Schneidman

August 16, 2018

Erik Harris watched as paramedics loaded his then-girlfriend and current wife into the back of an ambulance.

She was a senior in high school and he was a year older, the two in their first year dating a decade ago. The car in which they were passengers had just crashed with an oncoming vehicle on a back road near Uniontown, Penn.

"The driver of our car lost control of the car," Theresa Harris said. "We were very fortunate that everyone was OK. There were five of us."

Erik sustained whiplash and didn't even get checked out. Theresa, lying on the gurney as her new boyfriend watched in fear, suffered brain injuries.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

She had received early admission into nursing school, and wanted to work in labor and delivery. Now she couldn't pursue her desired career, while Erik chased his as a NFL hopeful in his first year at Division II California University of Pennsylvania.

Bouts with football unemployment in 2012, the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats from 2013-15 and the New Orleans Saints in 2016 dot a road that's taken him to the brink of a starting spot with the Raiders, a peak that seemed laughable not long ago.

In between his journey has veered from the conventional, from helping his single mother watch four younger brothers to emerging unscathed from the nasty accident to working at a potato chip factory after he went undrafted to now drawing unprompted praise from one of the NFL's most famous head coaches in Jon Gruden.

But listen to those who've been closest to Erik all along, and you'll learn this is exactly what they expected.

"God does things in mysterious ways and it was supposed to put us on a different path," Theresa said. "And it sure did."

***

Harris had more pressing duties to worry about than making the NFL growing up in a single-parent home.

He's the oldest of five boys with one older sister. When she couldn't watch the siblings while their mom, Christine Higgins, worked as a packer at a local Utz potato chip factory, Harris played father figure since the family didn't use daycare services.

When mom wasn't working, she watched kids at home, sneaking in any chunk of sleep she could while they watched cartoons. Harris saw how his mom labored, at home and in the factory, and vowed to be a father that supported his kids later in life.

Harris even arrived late to high school football practices because he was busy watching his younger brothers until mom returned home. His coach reprimanded him, but Harris never revealed why he was late. "One time ... he had no choice but to tell the coach why he was late," Christine said. "I was the reason why he was late, but he never said nothing for a long while and then the coach kind of looked at him a lot different after that."

Harris earned more scholarships for track than football. Division I schools initiated contact regarding football, Christine said, but their interest faded because she thinks schools probably found her son's SAT scores. With options dwindling, and community college an unappealing last resort, Christine gathered her son's newspaper clippings, sent a letter to California University of Pennsylvania and followed up just to make sure they received the materials.

"It was like the last hope," she said. "That was it."

"He comes from a relatively small high school in Pennsylvania, so he wasn't getting a lot of attention," said John Luckhardt, Harris' college head coach. "We'd already spent our scholarship money, so the only thing we could offer Erik initially was a preferred walk-on and he chose to do that ... We fell in love with him and basically as soon as we had some scholarship money available, we got it to him."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Out of curiosity, Harris asked his high school coach why he never advertised him to Cal U. "Honestly Erik, I didn't think you could play at that level," he said, as mom recalls. "That was terrible. I was thinking, 'How could you not see that?' It was things like that, though, that gave Erik more and more drive to succeed."

Then came the accident not long after Harris graduated from New Oxford High School, and somehow he escaped unharmed while Theresa's future went on hold. If he had suffered injuries like his future wife, whose seizure activity went away when she was pregnant with twin boys over five years ago, there's no telling how long he would've missed football or if he ever would've even sniffed the level he's at now.

Luckily healthy, Harris tallied 231 total tackles, 18 tackles for loss, 22 passes deflected and nine interceptions in his college career. He skipped his final semester of college to train for pro day, hoping to hear his name called on draft day.

He waited for his phone to ring for three days during the draft. Nothing.

He waited for his phone to ring to sign as an undrafted free agent. Nothing.

He waited for his phone to ring with an invitation to rookie mini-camp, a courtesy extended every year to a bevy of no-names. Still nothing.

Even so, Harris still believed he could make it to the NFL one day.

***

Harris and his coworkers at an Utz potato chip factory randomly picked their summer tasks in 2012.

Harris drew "corn mixer."

"I said, 'God, what's corn mixer?' the 28-year-old says now, standing on the Raiders' practice field in Napa. "And everybody just looked at me. I had the worst job in that whole factory. It was miserable."

Harris worked 11-hour shifts in a 110-degree room for an entire summer in Hanover, Penn. Every 30 minutes, he lifted 50-pound bags of corn flower and emptied them into a mixer, stirred the corn and shoved it into an oven.

After he garnered literally no NFL interest, he returned home to southern Pennsylvania, threw on long pants and a T-shirt for the summer and went to work in grueling indoor heat.

"My mom told me she was actually surprised I kept the job," Harris said. "And I'm like, 'I just don't quit.' ... It was humbling."

Harris still carried his dream of making the NFL, vowing it was too soon after his college career to give up. Christine repeatedly insisted, "There's no way it can end like this." She worked at another Utz factory for 15 years, often as a packer on the 10 p.m.-7 a.m. shift. She never quit, even while raising six kids who she couldn't always be home to care for.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

After his summer mixing corn, Harris returned to school to finish those stray credits, sat in the first row of his classes and made Dean's List for the first time. He got a job loading boxes for UPS, then earned a promotion to part-time supervisor. He worked 9 p.m.-5 a.m., returned home to sleep, woke up for classes, hit the gym and went back to UPS.

While working in Pennsylvania, Harris heard there was a tryout for the CFL's Hamilton Tiger-Cats. He drove five hours from Pennsylvania to Buffalo and paid $80 for coaches to evaluate him. Three days after his tryout, the Tiger-Cats offered him a three-year contract in early April 2013.

"I didn't have an agent at the time, so I signed whatever they threw at me because I was expecting twins at the time, too," Harris said. "I was like, 'Yeah, I'll take whatever.'"

The Tiger-Cats lumped Harris on the practice roster, but they elevated him to the active roster within a week. He carved out a niche on special teams and also played defense. After three years in Canada, Harris signed with the Saints on a reserve/future deal, and was later promoted to the 53-man roster. But with only four regular season NFL games under his belt, Harris tore his ACL and never played for the Saints again.

Three days after the Saints cut Harris in September 2017, the Raiders swooped in. Last season he again found his calling on special teams, seeing 286 snaps there compared to only three on defense. New Raiders special teams coordinator Rich Bisaccia, who coached Dallas special teams in 2017, said the Cowboys devised a plan in Week 15 specifically to counter Harris since he was so effective on Oakland's special teams.

"Right now he's our person protector on the punt team and he's playing on every phase," Bisaccia said. "I know he's working his butt off on defense and he's climbing the charts over there as well, so he's vital for us. Depending on what his status ends up on defense will be how much we use him and where we use him. He's really had a great camp."

Harris is nearing 30, and hopes 2018 is the year he finally sheds the special-teams-only tag.

He's thrived in that role since beginning his professional career five years ago, but wants to be known for more.

***

Asked about Harris' fellow safety Obi Melifonwu in June, Gruden changed course in the middle of his answer.

"The guy that's really been stunning for us is Erik Harris," the $100 million head coach said. "I'm doing my research on this guy. Who is this cat?"

Then earlier this month, Gruden emphatically stated Harris had a realistic shot to start for the Raiders at safety. For Harris, the guy whose high school coach didn't think he could play at California University of Pennsylvania, the guy who failed to draw even the slightest NFL interest after the 2012 draft, Gruden's plaudits are more than just press conference coach-speak.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I never really thought he'd actually make it to the NFL and it wasn't because of his abilities," Harris' mom said. "It was just because there's so many athletes out there that want to go to the NFL. You just don't really envision your child making it to the NFL."

This season is important for Harris, too, because he'll welcome a fourth child. His wife is due in late September with a boy, joining their 5-year-old twin boys and 2-year-old girl. Theresa and the kids live in Louisiana from Erik's days with the Saints, but she'll have a C-section in Pennsylvania because she has a high-risk pregnancy. The Raiders play in Miami Sept. 23, so she hopes her husband plays in the game, flies to Pennsylvania for his son's birth the next day, then flies back west to practice for Week 4 against the Cleveland Browns. Doctors laugh at her. A mom of three already, they say, she should know it probably won't work out perfectly like that.

Theresa fell for Erik in high school when she saw him care for his siblings. "He was after me in high school, and I wasn't quite sure, and then I saw him with a baby and it was over," she said. He's always had that fatherly instinct, so you bet it's hard for Harris to carry out his dream a whole country away.

Theresa could pursue nursing now, but with three kids and a fourth on the way, there's no time for that. Caring for them, even if it's by herself sometimes, is the only future she wants right now.

The family always ponders living together in California, but the pieces haven't yet aligned. So to be that father who supports his kids, the one he didn't have growing up, Harris has to be here in California, on the field. That's why, when he broke a finger earlier in training camp jamming Jordy Nelson in a non-padded session, Harris only missed three days. Now he plays with a small club on his right hand, still barking out calls from the secondary, darting up to the line of scrimmage and zipping back.

Unlike ripping open bags of corn flower, Harris can do this job with a bum hand. Good thing, too, because he has a point to prove.

He wants to show the kid who helped his single mom can provide for his own with a NFL career. The player his high school coach counted out can stick with the big boys. The car crash survivor and corn mixer can beat these odds, too, and become a starter in the league.

If Erik Harris' past is any indication of what's to come, he just might be able to.

Raiders safety Erik Harris traveled long road to NFL

By Matt Kawahara

September 4, 2018

In three decades as a college football head coach, John Luckhardt recalls receiving a number of letters from parents writing him about their sons.

The one sent to him about 10 years ago from a New Oxford, Pa., mother named Christine Higgins, he says, was different.

Higgins wrote about the second of her six children, Erik Harris — not only his high school athletic exploits but the role he played at home helping raise four younger brothers. What resonates with

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Luckhardt today when he thinks about the Raiders safety is the same thing that came to mind when their paths first crossed at California University of Pennsylvania – and it encompasses much more than football.

“I just think he exemplifies what you’d like to call the American experiment,” Luckhardt said in a phone call. “He created a small opportunity and at every level he’s improved that to greater opportunities. And it’s not been an easy task for him along the way.”

Lightly recruited out of high school and undrafted out of college, Harris’ journey to the NFL included a year out of organized football, jobs at a potato chip factory and with UPS and three years playing in the Canadian Football League. He tore his ACL as an NFL rookie. Now 28, Harris is entering his second season with the Raiders and, according to head coach Jon Gruden, is in contention for a starting safety job.

That determination, Higgins said, is something she recognized in her son at an early age. His nickname in youth football was Whiplash “because that was how he hit,” she said. A few times, Higgins tried broaching the subject of careers besides sports with her son.

“He was like, ‘Mom, I don’t need to think about that, because I’m going to play in the NFL,’” Higgins said by phone. “He would say that all the time. And I would just drop the subject, because he really didn’t want to talk about it. He had his mind set.”

Higgins worked for 15 years in an Utz potato chip factory, often on the night shift. After her oldest child and only daughter moved away, Higgins said, “Erik took over where she left off” watching the younger siblings.

“He would make sure we were in bed on time, do the dishes, take out the trash, straighten up the house for my mom,” said Aaron Brown, at 23 the next-oldest after Harris. “Because when she came home in the morning she wasn’t trying to do all that.”

“I always looked at Erik as more than just a brother. None of us really had our fathers in our lives growing up. So he was always that role model. Growing up I wanted to be just like him.”

Harris starred at New Oxford High School in football and track and field, and Higgins expected that colleges would come calling. But contact from Division I schools fizzled and Harris ended up with more scholarship offers for track than football. Higgins suspects SAT scores played a part but said: “The right people, I guess, just didn’t know of him.”

So Higgins decided to introduce them. She wrote a letter, packaged it with Harris’ newspaper clippings and a highlight tape and sent it off to the California (Pa.) coaching staff.

“She kept saying, ‘There’s no way it can end like this,’” Harris said.

She was right. By the time Luckhardt saw the materials, California (Pa.) had used its scholarship money for the coming season. But the program accepted Harris as a preferred walk-on and he became an all-conference defensive back for the Division II Vulcans, even punting as a senior.

Harris took off spring of his senior year to prepare for the NFL draft. But he wasn’t drafted, no team signed him as an undrafted rookie and he received zero invites to rookie minicamps. So it was back to Pennsylvania, where he got a summer job at an Utz chip factory in Hanover.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

His job title, he learned the first day, was: “Corn mixer.”

“I’m like, ‘What’s a corn mixer?’” Harris recalls. “And everyone just looked at me. I had the worst job in the whole factory. It was miserable.”

Every 30 minutes, Harris poured 50-pound bags of corn flour into a mixer and pushed the flour down. Days lasted 11 hours and temperatures in the room reached 110 degrees.

“I didn’t think he would stick with it,” Higgins said. “And I was kind of concerned, him working in the heat like that.”

“He said, ‘Nope. I started, I want to finish it.’ And he did. He hung in there.”

As a positive, Harris said, he emerged from the summer in “great shape.” He also got a glimpse at where he did not want to end up.

“I went back to school and I actually made dean’s list for the first time,” he said. “I’m like, ‘I’m going to school, I’m sitting front row and I’m all passing all these classes.’”

While in school, Harris said, he got a job as a part-time supervisor at UPS, working from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. In spring 2013, he heard about a free-agent tryout for the CFL’s Hamilton Tiger-Cats, drove five hours to Buffalo, N.Y., and paid the $80 fee to try out. Three days later, he was offered a contract.

“I didn’t have an agent at the time so I signed for whatever they threw at me,” Harris said. “I was expecting twins at the time, too, so I was like, ‘Yeah, I’ll take whatever.’”

Harris played three seasons for the Tiger-Cats. Then-defensive coordinator Orlando Steinauer said Harris broke in with special teams “and worked hard at it until he became a starter – and then he still didn’t take himself off special teams.”

Steinauer recalled Harris as a versatile defender who even played some tight end. In one 2014 game, Harris recorded a sack, an interception and a touchdown catch on offense.

In February 2016, Harris got his NFL break, signing a reserve/future contract with the Saints. Said Steinauer: “We knew that if he got a real opportunity, he wasn’t coming back.”

Harris played in four games in 2016 before injuring his knee, was waived by New Orleans in September 2017 and signed with the Raiders shortly thereafter. He played in 15 games with five tackles last season but could be in for a bigger role this year.

In June, Gruden said Harris had been “stunning” in spring workouts. Gruden backed up that statement early in camp, saying of Harris: “Right now, he has a chance to be a full-time starter for the Oakland Raiders.”

A potential snag occurred the first week when Harris fractured his right index finger jamming receiver Jordy Nelson at the line. Harris missed just three days of practice and has played since with the finger wrapped. As safeties Marcus Gilchrist and Obi Melifonwu dealt with injuries, Harris recognized the opportunity before him.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I'm 28," he said. "So I felt like this was a big year for me to get that special teams label off me. ... I want to let people know that I do have something to offer on the defensive side of the ball."

Luckhardt, who has retired from coaching, said he still follows Harris and occasionally updates former college teammates of his progress.

"If there's anybody that you'd like to root for to make it, and to have success, this is a kid that deserves it," Luckhardt said. "He's created his own opportunities. He's not asked for anything. He's not expected anybody to hand him anything."

Brown, the younger brother, who was lightly recruited out of New Oxford High, is now a defensive back at California (Pa.), following a familiar path. He said Harris recently asked for his game film to analyze.

"Seeing his path and things he's been through ... it's very encouraging, gives me a lot of hope," Brown said. "Because obviously, I have the same dreams as he does."

Higgins said she can't remember Harris getting discouraged at any point in his road to the NFL.

"He always seemed real driven," Higgins said. "Every little setback just made him work harder. He felt like he had something to prove."

Fittingly, with Harris, that applies off the field as well. Harris and his wife Theresa are expecting their fourth child in September. The family still lives in Louisiana, which Harris acknowledged is "not easy for us" during the season but "keeps me driven."

"She basically sacrificed her future plans, to be a mom and hold our family together while I'm out here kind of living my dream," Harris said of his wife. "And we're doing it together."

"I give a lot of credit to my mom. Just growing up without a dad, I always said I was going to be there for my kids and I was going to give them what I never had. Thank God and praise the Lord, I'm in a situation to do that."

DE Arden Key

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Raiders rookie DE Arden Key a student of the pass rush

By Matt Kawahara

August 16, 2018

Raiders defensive end Arden Key has a quick spin move, but he can slide in pretty smoothly, too.

Just ask Chuck Smith, the former NFL defensive end who now trains some of the league's best pass rushers. A few years ago, Smith recalls, he received a direct message on Twitter from Key that caught his eye. For one thing, Key was asking for pass-rush tutelage while still in high school. And Key's approach did not lack for confidence.

"He was like, 'Coach, I want to be a great pass rusher,'" Smith said. "I can be the greatest pass rusher of all time."

Said Key this week: "The worst thing he could say was no."

Smith did not say no. Intrigued, he sought out video of Key and saw a tall, lanky fellow Georgian who seemed serious about getting after the quarterback. Smith invited Key to train with him, and the two continued to work together as Key became a top college player at LSU, then a third-round draft pick in April by the Raiders.

After falling to the second day of the draft, largely because of a tumultuous final college season, Key told reporters he considered himself "a first-round talent — top-five." Asked in a phone interview if he would agree with that assessment, it was Smith's turn to sound confident.

"Arden," Smith said, "should have been 1, 2 or 3."

As Smith recalls, Key began attending his "Big Skill Sunday" workouts as a high school senior in Union City, Ga., driving about 50 miles each weekend to a training facility north of Atlanta. There, Smith said, players would train for "hours — I mean like getting medieval, hard-core, pass-rush work." Key took to it immediately.

"That just showed you, I felt like he loved pass rush so much," said Smith, an All-Pro with the Falcons in 1997. "And I loved it. That's why we hit it off so great. He had the love."

Smith would ask Key to name his favorite pass rushers of all time. Key would ask about rushers with whom Smith had played or coached like Reggie White, Von Miller and Robert Mathis. Watching video of those players with Smith, Key said, was particularly helpful.

"I got a lot out of that," Key said. "Before, all I was looking at was, 'OK, he used that move and got to the quarterback.' When I looked at it with Chuck, it was more, 'OK, this is the set the offensive tackle gave him. This is the move he used. This is why he used it. This is why he won.'"

"It was a lot more knowledge of the game and learning how to study film rather than watching a guy get a bunch of sacks and not know why."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

At the NFL combine in March, Key ran an unimpressive time in the 40-yard dash (4.9 seconds). Smith scoffs at that being a measure of Key's quickness off the edge. In pass rushing, says Smith, "the great ones win in 5 yards," the area encompassing the rusher and the lineman he's trying to beat.

"In that 5 yards, you have to have lateral movement, bends, change of direction, pivot, plant," Smith said. "The great ones do all that. And Arden Key has all those qualities."

At 6-foot-5, Key sets up in a front-loaded stance with his hips raised at about the same height as his shoulders. From there, he can stay low and try to beat his tackle around the edge with quickness or deploy one of a variety of pass-rushing moves.

Key displayed a few in one-on-one drills in training camp. Going against fellow rookie Brandon Parker, Key used his hands to knock away Parker's and spun inside, leaving Parker frozen and facing forward as he chased after the stand-in quarterback. On another matchup, Key lined up against first-round pick Koltan Miller, faked an inside spin and blew past Miller into the backfield.

The Raiders have yet to see Key's maneuvers in a game; he missed the preseason opener against Detroit last Friday after tweaking an ankle, but practiced this week and could make his debut Saturday against the Rams. Key said recently he enjoys experimenting with and putting his own twist on different moves, as well as the in-game chess match against opposing linemen.

"You might beat him on one set, but naturally, if he's been in the league for a long time, he already knows as a rookie what your next move is," Key said. "So I've got to think, 'What's my next move? What's my next move after that?' and put that as the second one."

Physical ability was not the reason Key fell to the draft's third round. In 2016, Key set the LSU season record with 12 sacks as a sophomore. But his junior year was rocky.

In February 2017, Key took a leave of absence from LSU for personal reasons. He had shoulder surgery that spring and missed the first two games of the season. He returned weighing 270 pounds, compared with his current listed weight of 238 pounds. Although the reason for Key's leave was not made public, NFL Network reported Key had entered rehab for marijuana use.

In May, Key acknowledged that "off-the-field" issues led to his draft slide and stated his intent to "stay on the straight path" in the NFL. Key said the Raiders "set a plan" for him when he arrived, and he has formed a quick bond with defensive end Bruce Irvin, a fellow Atlanta native who also trained with Smith.

"We love Key," head coach Jon Gruden said this month. "You go back two years ago and watch him at LSU, he's as good an edge rusher as there is in the country. He struggled a little bit his last season in Baton Rouge, but Chuck Smith, his private coach in the offseason, sent us a lot of videos and kept us up to speed. There are some things this kid can do that are very special."

Smith, who considers himself a mentor to Key, was candid when asked about Key's 2017 drop-off.

"At the end of the day, he's a grown man. He has to play the hand he deals himself," Smith said. "He has a great hand right now. He's done everything you can do to get back on track."

“He’s young, he’s a kid — but he’s in the big-boy game now. He has to do like everybody else. He has to be disciplined.”

Smith believes Key is capable of that. He also has another story to illustrate Key’s motivation:

One day, Key was at the Atlanta-area facility training at the same time as Robert Mathis, the former Indianapolis defensive end/linebacker and 2013 Defensive Player of the Year. Smith posted a Twitter video of Mathis working on a spin move. And Key, he says, replied with a clip of himself doing the same spin, writing: “Rob Mathis, I’m going to be doing your move better than you!”

“And this guy’s in the 12th grade, man,” Smith said. “I had to tell Arden, ‘Humble yourself, boy! This is the Defensive Player of the Year!’

THE ATHLETIC

New beginning: Raiders rookie Arden Key reflects on his setbacks and looks poised to prove the doubters wrong

By Vic Tafur

August 29, 2018

All eyes are on Arden Key. And he wouldn’t have it any other way.

The Raiders’ rookie pass rusher is 12 days away from his NFL debut with the Raiders, and he knows what everybody is thinking.

“A lot of people want to see me play,” Key said recently. “They want to see the sacks. But there’s no pressure on me. I have been doing that for a long time.”

Key thinks he should have been a top-5 pick in this year’s NFL Draft. That he wasn’t is what makes the defensive end even more interesting. And maybe even better off.

“He was the best defensive player in the draft,” former NFL defensive end Chuck Smith said.

And here’s Raiders defensive coordinator Paul Guenther:

“We know he can rush. He’s special that way,” Guenther said.

The 6-foot-5, 250-pound Key set a school record his sophomore season at LSU with 12 sacks. Then, in February 2017, he left school. Key won’t say why — to non-team members at least — but the NFL Network reported that he checked into rehab for marijuana use. Key returned to LSU after four months a different man. And a much bigger man, weighing 280 pounds after having shoulder surgery and sitting around.

He only had four sacks in eight games last season, but the Raiders pounced when he was on the board at No. 89 in the third round.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"There is a reason I fell, but I am better person now for it," Key said. "It won't matter where I was drafted when I start sacking the quarterback again and start winning games."

Raiders coach Jon Gruden said he "loves Key," much as all coaches love potentially elite pass rushers.

"We felt lucky to get him where we got him," Gruden said. "You go back two years ago and watch him at LSU, he's as good an edge rusher as there is in the country. He struggled a little bit his last season in Baton Rouge, but Chuck Smith, who is his private coach in the offseason, sent us a lot of videos and kept us up to speed."

"There are some things this kid can do that are very special."

Smith sent Gruden a virtual pro day, which he does with all of his clients.

"I told Jon what kind of person Arden is and the talent on the video spoke for itself," Smith said in a telephone interview.

Actually, let's back up a little bit.

Smith has been calling Guenther about Key for years.

"I have been a pass-rush consultant for the Bengals for four years, and when Paulie was there I would always call him," Smith said. "I have been talking up Arden and sending Paulie videos forever. Since Arden was a freshman."

"I talked to Paulie about a lot of players, but Arden was a special one."

Actually, let's back up a little more.

"I have known (general manager) Reggie (McKenzie) for 20 years now," Smith said, laughing. "I am a (Tennessee) Vol, too. I have been sending him Arden videos, too."

When the Raiders selected Key in the draft, Smith was not surprised in the least.

"It was almost like it was destined to happen," Smith said. "To have a tough-ass coach like Jon, a no-nonsense guy like Paulie and then ... he has a GM that will get in his ass, too, if he acts up. That's three role models, three mentor-type guys that make sure Arden gets the most out of his ability."

"He is in the right place and he is a great kid. Now it's up to him."

Key knew the Raiders were the right team for him before he was drafted, too. He came in for a pre-draft visit and sat down with Raiders director of player engagement Lamonte Winston. They talked about what Key wanted in life on and off the football field, what happened at LSU and what he planned to do about it now.

"We talked about his family, his values and he was very straightforward about his struggles," Winston said Monday. "We talked about the expectations of the National Football League, and we can't worry about what's happened but what are you going to do next. It doesn't matter when you were drafted, here's your opportunity. What are you going to do with it?"

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Key said he was going to grab it. He asked a lot of questions, told Winston about his plans.

"We talked about things outside of football, what I want to do as far as business and career, things of that sort," Key said. "We wrote a plan out, and we stuck with that plan. It was saying I was going to be a Raider. We spoke it into existence."

The first deposit had been made.

"He knew he had to put good money in the bank, so to speak, to repair his name, and carry the shield for the Raiders and the league," Winston said.

Then, at lunch that day, Winston introduced Key to defensive end Bruce Irvin. Irvin overcame his own troubles and not only reached the NFL but earned his degree from West Virginia this summer. All that and he will bite an offensive player's head off on the field.

A better example for Key there is not.

"Bruce asked Arden where he was from," Winston said. "Arden said 'Atlanta.' Bruce said, 'I am from Atlanta.' Boom."

Because of his lean build and No. 99 jersey, and hopefully not because of the off-field issues, Key has heard a lot of comparisons to Aldon Smith already. Irvin also mentioned it.

"He compared me to Aldon Smith, and told me that I am going to be under his wing and we're going to work," Key said. "And we're from the same area. I have been hearing stories about Bruce since I was younger, so I was already looking up to him way back then."

At training camp in Napa, Key followed Irvin wherever he went.

"He will break you down if he doesn't like something you're doing," Key said. "But then he will build you back up. He is not going to just leave you standing there with a shit face. He is a good leader. ...

"He's been great with off-field stuff, too. There's a lot of stuff that he did that I did when I was younger. If he tells me something, it's meaningful because he has been where I've been, and right now he's where I'm trying to go."

The leader role is one that Irvin has warmed to the last couple of seasons, and he knows the special player that Key can be.

"He's long and athletic," Irvin said. "He's a really natural rusher. He reminds me a lot of the old 99 that was here. If he keeps his head on straight, which he will, he's going to be a hell of a player and a hell of a player for the Raiders."

Smith thinks Irvin enjoys Key's confidence.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“Arden is just a young cat from South Atlanta that has got a lot of swag,” Smith said. “He wears fly, colorful clothes. He grew up in Black Hollywood. He is around all the hip-hop dudes and is super confident in who he is, too. ...

“All great pass rushers are super confident.”

And they all probably have a chip on their shoulder too.

“Everywhere I go, I get, ‘Oh, he’s too little,’” Key said. “When I got to LSU, they put a 350-pound lineman on me, outweighed me by 150 pounds, and I put him on his back. And on the next play, I give him the shake-shake and make him look stupid. Let him sit there while I go get the quarterback. ...

The party stopped his junior season. Key’s father, Arden Sr., said that his son just needed a break from football and all the success that he had early.

Key agrees that he appreciated the game more after he returned. And while he takes responsibility for leaving school, he still thinks his former LSU coaches piled on a little bit when NFL scouts came calling.

“I get mad when I hear about the red flags, because me and some of the coaches at LSU got into it,” Key said. “They didn’t want me to have surgery and some other things happened over the years. Argue. Bad conversations. And then they’re mad. And then I’m mad and they gotta say whatever they gotta say. ... A lot of drama. A lot of bad blood.

“I wasn’t doing nothing, had surgery and then I got big. Huge. I got up to 280, but once I was able to run, it came off pretty fast.”

But it was too late to avoid a tumble down teams’ draft boards.

“I definitely would have been a top-5 pick,” Key said. “Because there was nothing until my last year and then you started hearing stuff. Then, more and more and more. Some of it was true, but some of it wasn’t. Like they said I was lazy. Nobody said I was lazy my first three years.”

Key wasn’t lazy, just inactive for a stretch.

Lazy kids probably don’t contact Smith when they are still in high school to ask for professional pass-rush coaching.

That senior year of high school, Key drove 50 miles from Union City, Georgia, to Smith’s facility in northern Atlanta. Smith said it was love at first sight.

“I was like, ‘Wow ... oh my God,’” Smith said. “It was that sudden movement, that quick twitch, that little jitterbug that running backs have. I have learned things from him that I now teach. I call him ‘The Chosen One.’”

Key ran a 4.89-second 40-yard dash at his LSU pro day this spring, but Smith says you can throw that number in the garbage.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Arden is not a 4.4 guy like one of my clients, Von Miller. He is not a 4.6 guy like Aaron Donald. But I learned that in that unique area of five yards, which is all I care about now, Arden Key moves as well as anyone in the NFL. You can't get quicker in five yards than Arden Key.

"He can twist, he can spin, he can recover ... all in five yards. He is slippery. He's like an alligator doing a roll. He can do unique approaches, take two steps and he is at the quarterback.

"He has a special skill set."

Raiders rookie left tackle Kolton Miller had no answer for Key's spin move at training camp. Pro Bowl guard Kelechi Osemele terrorized Key's defensive teammates at camp, but he even was beaten by Key on an inside move.

"He can head-fake, he can bull, he can spin, he can chop, he can bend," Smith said. "Aldon Smith, when he was at his best, could do every pass-rush move, and so can Arden. You can't spin better than Arden can. And like DeMarcus Ware, Arden can spin and come out of it with balance.

"Arden can play inside, too. He would wear centers and guards out. He could drop back in coverage, too. He can play anywhere."

Key feels like he has gotten better every year and credits his work with Smith, especially this past summer.

"We worked on setting up offensive linemen, and we had a couple of those guys in to work with," Key said.

Key came into training camp polished in terms of pass-rush moves, but took a lot of notes, anyway.

"Camp was a learning process," Key said. "It was fun. College camp was way harder. At LSU, we were out there for so long and there was a lot more banging. Camp here was much easier. The difference is the mental part. The attention to detail. You spend a lot of time in the film room, and that's where my transition was slowed down a little bit."

Key said he spends more time studying what the offense is going to do than he ever has.

"How offensive tackles and guards set," Key said. "How wide the tackle is going to kick-step out wide based on where you line up."

Key grew up emulating NFL pass rushers Simeon Rice and Ware, and he has a request into Gruden for some game film on Rice, whom Gruden coached with the Bucs.

"He was big and had speed, but I don't think people realized how well Rice could bend," Key said.

Speaking of Gruden, Key loves the coach's energy at practice and the fact that players can "talk junk" to him.

"I tell him, 'I'm about to hit your quarterback,'" Key said. "And he will say, 'You better not.' Now, I am not going to, but I am a defensive player; I have to put them on edge a little bit. And Gruden really loves his quarterbacks, so he gives me that crazed look."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

And then Gruden smiles.

The first time they met, Gruden told Key this was “a new beginning.”

It’s a new chapter maybe, but Key has not thrown away the first part of the book.

“I commend him for what he’s been through and how he’s managed it,” Winston said. “A lot of people can’t do that. A lot of people won’t do that. He showed courage in admitting that he doesn’t know it all so he went and got help. ‘And I am going to continue to let people help me.’

“And he’s been like that from the second he first walked in the door.”

At the Raiders’ rookie transition program, Key talked about his past with his new teammates, and took a lot of notes during the financial workshop.

It usually takes a while for Winston to see if any of the messages hit home with young players. But he did a fist pump when he saw Key roll into the team facility last week.

“He bought a used car,” Winston said, smiling. “He listened. You see that he has been able to process what we told him. ... Not only did he buy a used car, but he washed it by hand. And he is proud as a peacock of that used car.”

Key is always smiling. When we talked, several teammates, including quarterback Derek Carr, interrupted to give him a hard time.

Oh, but he has.

“I believe in myself,” Key said. “I just gotta be me, stay out of trouble, work hard, have fun and it will be good. And I am not even talking about the sacks. Those are going to come, anyway.”

RB Marshawn Lynch

Marshawn Lynch Is Football's Foremost Ambassador

By Tim Rohan

April 10, 2018

LISBON, Portugal — In early March, when a group of NFL players arrived here on a goodwill trip, the U.S. Ambassador to Portugal, George Glass, invited them to a welcome dinner at the embassy. The players presented Glass with a football, and they all took a group photo, and, when it dispersed, Glass started tossing the ball around the embassy living room near his fine china. Soon, Glass was down in a stance, in a full suit, firing off shotgun snaps.

Wait, Marshawn Lynch said, do that again.

Glass, the white-haired former high school center, got down into a three-point stance, and Lynch, the 215-pound Oakland Raiders running back, lined up across from him. Everyone pulled out their phones, someone yelled out a snap count—"ready, set, hut"—and then Lynch launched himself at the ambassador, wrapped his arms around Glass's chest and plowed him several feet across the room. "He said, 'c'mon, c'mon,' and I thought he was just going to tap me," Glass says. "He, like, drove me back into the chairs. No mercy."

Lynch was in Portugal as a member of American Football Without Barriers, a nonprofit run largely by a group of current and former NFL players, including Breno Giacomini, Lynch's former Seahawks teammate. Each year, AFWB gathers a group of players and travels to a foreign country to put on football camps, do some charity work and do some sightseeing. In 2014, after the Seahawks won the Super Bowl, Giacomini convinced Lynch, Russell Okung and Golden Tate to come on AFWB's trip to Brazil.

While Okung and Tate and others have rotated in and out of the trips since then, Lynch has become a mainstay. He has been on four of their last five—to Brazil, Turkey, Egypt and Portugal—and he really gets into it. He sacks ambassadors, spends time visiting hospitals and orphanages, and teaches children how to play the game physically, the way he does. For most of these people, Lynch is one of the first NFL players they ever meet, and he shows them a side of himself that most people don't see. Over here, Lynch is not the reclusive curmudgeon he's sometimes made out to be in the States. Over here, he is our foremost American football ambassador to the world.

It seems fitting, then, that AFWB's trips usually start with a dinner with officials at the local U.S. embassy, as a sort of welcome assembly. While the other players typically dress up in ties for these events, Lynch arrives in his own traditional wardrobe, sweats from head to toe. His look alone sets a tone for the night and allows everyone to loosen up. "You usually have a reverence or a respect [in those situations], and it always goes out the window with Marshawn," says Pete Hammill, an AFWB staff member. "He's dropping curse words, being Marshawn, not really having a filter. A lot of times the ambassadors don't really know how to take it, so they just go with it. It's funny to see ambassadors just, like, cursing."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

By the end of the night, Lynch has won over the crowd. “The ambassadors are [Marshawn’s] best friends everywhere we go,” says Todd Buelow, the AFWB strategy director. The U.S. Consul General in Rio, John Creamer, liked Lynch so much that, a few days after their dinner he presented him with a few gifts: a brimmed hat common to the region and a cigar. In Portugal, after two videos of Lynch and Glass made TMZ, one of the players joked that Glass was so famous that he could run for president. “Only if Marshawn is my vice president!” Glass said.

In Oakland, Jon Gruden Is Ready to Grind

Going on these trips has helped Lynch expand his worldview. When AFWB visits historical sights, Lynch is curious and asks questions. He can also turn any tour into a party. In Egypt, Lynch and the other players went on a camel ride in the desert, and someone took another video of him that ended up on TMZ. Lynch is wearing a headscarf and rapping while sitting atop the camel. “We ghost-ridin’ the camel right now, you feel me?” he says, bobbing his head and waving his arms.

At the same time, when AFWB visits a local hospital or orphanage, Lynch is often one of the more attentive people there. In Brazil, for instance, AFWB visited an orphanage that did not have access to good footwear. AFWB had the children line up and the NFL players, Lynch included, went down the line washing the children’s feet and giving them new shoes. One of the young boys took a liking to Lynch’s colorful Beast Mode shoes.

Do those help you run fast? the boy asked. I want to run fast.

Well, you have to work hard to run fast, Lynch said.

As Ahmed Awadallah, an AFWB co-founder, recalls: “He started talking about you need to work hard, how you need to outrun people. ‘When you’re in the orphanage and somebody’s running, outrun them.’ ” Then Lynch gave the boy his shoes. “[Marshawn] went back to the hotel barefoot,” Awadallah says.

Lynch also has a special affinity with the younger players at the football camps. In Portugal, AFWB put on a camp for elementary school children, and in one wide receiver drill, Lynch stood in as a cornerback playing press coverage. He’d hold the kids for a second and then let them run and catch a pass. On one rep, Lynch fell back and pretended to be bowled over by a little boy. On another rep, he chased after a little girl in pigtails, who giggled all the way downfield.

In Turkey, an AFWB camper dropped a few passes, got frustrated with himself and started walking off the field, crying and looking for his mother. Lynch pulled the boy, about 12 or 13 years old, aside and spoke to him for more than 20 minutes, and when the boy rejoined the drills, Lynch gave him the sweatshirt off his back. “I spoke to this kid a while after and he was like, ‘Marshawn changed my life. He taught me so much in such a little amount of time,’ ” says Deniz Somersan, an AFWB staffer based in Turkey. “The kid still talks about it every time I see him. He’s like, ‘[Marshawn] really changed the course of my life.’ ”

Football’s Missionaries Spread the Game’s Good Word—and Answer Questions About Its Safety

Lynch will even do things out of his comfort zone if it means advancing the mission of AFWB. That year in Turkey, the Seahawks had lost the Super Bowl after Malcolm Butler intercepted Russell Wilson at the one-yard line. Everyone in America wanted to know what Lynch thought about not getting the ball on that play, but Lynch naturally refused to discuss it—until he got to Turkey. A Turkish reporter requested an interview, and Lynch agreed to answer a Super Bowl-related question, in part so he could promote the AFWB camp. “Typical Marshawn: won’t talk to the U.S. media but talks to some random

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

guy in Turkey,” says Buelow, the AFWB strategy director. “We were all shocked that he did it.” (Lynch declined to speak to The MMQB for this story on him, nevertheless.)

The Beast Mode side of Lynch finally comes out when the older campers arrive and the serious football starts. As the running backs go through footwork drills, sometimes Lynch stands at the end, waiting to hit them with a pad, to simulate being hit in a game. He doesn’t hold back, either. In Portugal, Lynch hit one running back so hard he fell down and drew a roar from the crowd. “I received [the hit] with honor,” the player said, smiling.

Later on, the running backs were working with the linebackers, going at each other one-on-one without pads, when Lynch decided they needed to take it up a notch. He brought on an extra defender and a blocker, making it two-on-two. “We got anybody that ain’t scared?” Lynch asked turning to the crowd, looking for volunteers. “What [kind of] running back gets scared when they start hitting?” Soon, the drill expanded to three-on-three, and then half the camp was gathered around Lynch’s corner of the field, hooting and hollering over the action. With every big hit, every big collision, Lynch amped up the energy.

At one point, he walked down a line of campers, calling them out.

“Are you scared?”

“Are you scared?”

“Marshawn wants to hit people; that’s all he wants to do,” says DeAngelo Williams, the former Panthers and Steelers running back who usually organizes the running back drills alongside Lynch. “He loves that aggressive nature. We have a great balance, because I don’t want to hit at all, and Marshawn wants to drill people. Literally every drill we take about five minutes of us arguing, him wanting to do something and me not letting him do it.”

Every now and then, a camper decides to challenge Lynch, the same way someone might pick a fight with the biggest guy in the bar. Usually Lynch shrugs it off, but at his first camp in Brazil, he didn’t. A linebacker had been talking trash all camp, challenging Lynch. “Everybody in the camp was like, ‘No, Marshawn, you’re not doing this,’” Williams recalls. “And he was like, ‘No, I’m not gonna just let this kid call me out.’ I was like, what? And he said, ‘If I let him do it, everybody else is gonna want to do it. I’m going to shut all of this up right now.’” Lynch put on pads and a helmet, went one-on-one with the linebacker, and ... leveled the guy. “You could see Marshawn pull up a little bit, otherwise he would’ve really [done some damage],” Williams says. “That’s when I knew then, he knows exactly what he’s doing.”

At the end of the Portugal camp—Lynch’s fourth—he lingered around and spoke with a group of about 20 of the campers, and one of the more talkative players kept yapping at him from afar. “Don’t make me put some pads on, bro,” Lynch warned. Another camper removed his pads and offered them to Lynch, but this time, he thought better of it.

An AFWB staffer announced that the bus was leaving, and the crowd dispersed. Soon, Lynch was alone on a bench, sitting next to a young man who appeared to have been crying. Lynch waited until almost everyone had left, and then he handed the young man his cleats, wrapped him in a hug, and headed for the bus, having won another lifelong fan.

Why Raiders' Kolton Miller dedicated NFL pursuit to his younger brother

By Matt Schneidman

May 14, 2018

ROSEVILLE — Kolton Miller saunters through the front door, all 6-foot-8, 309 pounds of him, fresh off a grueling workout with his trainer, past the signed Joe Montana and Jerry Rice jerseys framed on the wall to his right. That's correct. The father of the Raiders' first-round pick hangs a pair of 49ers jerseys over a billiards table covered in — you guessed it — red felt.

Miller holds no beef with Dad even if his team is Oakland's Bay Area foe. The soft-spoken 22-year-old doesn't hold beef with much of anyone, for that matter — not the critics saying the Raiders reached for him at No. 15, not being the second offensive tackle taken, not even the fake Kolton Miller making headlines for offensive tweets many Twitterheads attributed to him.

Those who know Miller best know the likely starter on Oakland's offensive line possesses a switch that transforms a carefree teddy bear into a pancake-ing behemoth. He lowers himself onto a brown leather couch, props his tree-trunk legs on an extendable leg rest and explains what motivates him, what really flips that switch. Because it's hard to envision this gentle giant mustering the tenacity to manhandle any human despite his stature, let alone the Von Millers and Joey Bosas of the AFC West and beyond.

Of course he isn't the only offensive lineman with split personalities on the gridiron and off, and he begins his answer as most others like him might. "I like competing. I like going against big competition, but yeah..."

He trails off, then pauses briefly.

"Chad, my little brother, was sort of my motivating factor up until this point."

Chad is 16 and Kolton's only sibling by blood. He was born with Moebius syndrome, a rare neurological condition that mainly restricts facial expressions and eye movement. He qualifies as legally blind, experiences short-term memory, fatigues easily and struggles at times with balance, among other symptoms. Chad wanted to be like his older brother, a football star in their hometown outside Sacramento, but physically could not.

Instead, he became involved with football in other ways: as a cheerleader, statistical know-it-all, coach's helper. His mom's motto: It's not that you cannot do anything. It might be that you can do it in a different way. Still, that wasn't enough. Chad wanted to play, but he got a promise from big brother as a consolation.

Kolton vowed to pursue an NFL playing career for Chad since he was the only brother who could. He wanted to use his earnings, if he made the league, to make life easier for his younger brother, maybe something as simple as paying for rent down the line. His NFL home could very well be farther away than Chad preferred and his finances limited depending on when he was taken, but it was a promise and a plan nonetheless.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“Sometimes it’s not fair”

Kolton was ready to march into the middle school cafeteria to confront Chad’s bullies. The towering high school lineman typically stayed quiet, but this was little brother. Breaking character was only right.

Karrie Miller recalls the incident, and her younger son’s nonchalant response. “No, no, no, no,” Chad said, declining Kolton’s help. “It’s gonna be OK.” He gradually learned to deal with his disability and its disadvantages, understanding he was different but not letting it define him.

Kolton has drawn inspiration himself from the strides Chad has made since an early childhood limited by Moebius syndrome: no sitting upright until 2, no walking until 4, no running in straight lines, only blended foods until nearly age 6.

Kolton didn’t fully grasp the severity of his brother’s disabilities until his early teens, his mom said, and did whatever he could to make Chad feel anything was possible. He often brought Chad around the football team, where he served as sideline assistant, water boy and chief of high-fives. “I think Chad gets to live a little bit vicariously through Kolton,” said Roseville football coach Larry Cunha, who got to witness the mutual benefits of the brothers’ bond up close.

Chad was so involved in Kolton’s college recruitment that he earned the nickname “Bad Chad” from former UCLA assistant Angus McClure for his spunk. Bad Chad asked coaches where his brother stood on the depth chart and about UCLA’s strength of schedule. On a visit to campus, he dressed in the full Bruins get-up for a photo op with then-head coach Jim Mora. The Bruins were courting Kolton, but Chad was part of the package.

“I didn’t realize how big of a part he was of the recruiting process really ‘till the end,” McClure said. “I still call him Bad Chad. He’s a big personality. He speaks his mind.”

Chad hung around UCLA’s summer practices, attended walkthroughs before gameday and stood outside the stadium exit to greet players following games. He doesn’t choose getting a helmet signed by the entire team for his birthday as his favorite memory from Kolton’s career, rather sneaking into UCLA’s locker room on Kolton’s Senior Night after lying that he needed somewhere to stay because he couldn’t find his parents. That’s how much he wanted to be like big brother.

Back home, Roseville coaches knew how badly Chad wanted to play. They added him to the roster and gave him a uniform despite never playing him in a game. Before practices, Chad hyped himself up by replaying Kolton’s best games in his head. “I see him as a football star, basically,” Chad said. He was far more vocal in the weight room and on the field than big brother had ever been, Kolton admits, and took videos and photographs for his teammates on the side.

He’s since hung up the cleats because of his disability — Karrie said he passed out a few times due to fatigue, among other challenges — but still helps out the staff. “They’ve got him in different roles which he doesn’t wanna do,” she said. “Chad wants to be out there in a uniform. In his mind, he thinks that he’s playing football because he has a very imaginative mind. That inspires them and it inspires Chad.”

Chad knows he can’t be like his brother, but that doesn’t mean he’ll stop trying. Following his every move may not lead to a career in the NFL, but watching Kolton live out both their dreams will certainly suffice.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Sometimes as a dad, all the stuff that Kolton did, you'd like to be able to have Chad do it, too," Dan Miller said. "But sometimes it's not fair. He's been a trooper through it all and he's a part of it."

"I just think about him and I'm instantly happy"

Karrie had returned from grabbing the boys food when she overheard their conversation from the hotel room. The family was in town toward the end of Kolton's redshirt freshman year for a UCLA game. Kolton and Chad didn't know Mom could hear them.

That's when Kolton got Chad's approval to chase the NFL, assuring he'd dedicate his journey to little brother. Karrie, hearing a "That's really cool, bro!" from her youngest, peaked into the room as tears welled from her eyes.

"You would think they are much, much closer in age," she said, "almost like they have a part of each other."

Chad may see Kolton as an icon, but Kolton views Chad the same despite their six-plus years apart. Big brother wrote down individual goals on a sheet of paper his second season with the Bruins, and they included becoming a starter and an All-American, though his ultimate goal remained the NFL. Once that became a possibility and not strictly fantasy, Kolton looked to the kid who'd always looked to him for motivation.

"I can be really good at football and go into the NFL and really provide for him," Kolton thought. "(If I'm) thinking like, 'Alright, this is a crappy day,' I just think about him and I'm instantly happy. Or it'll be my last set, I just have to think about him and that kind of gives me that extra juice to beat the rep."

As Chad played vicariously through Kolton, big brother made it his responsibility to succeed so Chad felt like he was thriving, too. All those practices, games and recruiting visits Chad joined in on were only made possible because big brother viewed little brother as an integral part of the process.

That's why when Miller received his generic "No. 1" black jersey after the Raiders took him in the first round, he didn't hold onto it for long. Chad's jersey collection consisted of former UCLA and current Jaguars linebacker Myles Jack, Odell Beckham Jr., Colin Kaepernick and Peyton Manning, among several others. Having big brother's jersey in his possession might top them all.

"It's been pretty awesome, an inspiration kind of, just to follow his footsteps," Chad said. "... Basically the whole experience, hearing 'Raaaaaaaiiiiders' the whole time is gonna be..."

His sentence fades off, which is fitting, because there really isn't one single word that can describe how much Chad watching Kolton in the NFL will mean to them both.

"Being in the media box would be pretty cool"

When Chad first strolled into the living room, he looked fresh off a nap. He slumped into the couch next to his dad, his brown hair parted in the middle and bobbing at either side. Ask him about Kolton's exploits, though, and he's wide awake.

Chad's short-term memory affects hobbies such as cooking, his mom said, in which it's safer to microwave than potentially forget a burning stove. Basic reading, too, has trouble sticking. Post-it notes are used on the bathroom mirror to remind him of daily tasks. His brother's NFL Combine numbers are a different story.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Broad jump? "10'1." (A combine record for offensive linemen.)

Bench? "24."

All correct.

When it comes to football, "He'll remember e-v-e-r-y-thing," Karrie said.

Now Chad is fully engaged, reliving and dissecting his thought process at the Miller family greenroom table when Notre Dame offensive tackle Mike McGlinchey went ninth overall to the 49ers.

"I'm like 'Welp, there's only one place where we can go now and that's Oakland.' I probably knew it in my head," he said. "Oakland's gonna pick him. Oakland's gonna pick him. He was either gonna go there or Arizona if the trade didn't happen."

Chad spoke it into existence, and now he'll be at every home game, joining those chants he's already hearing in his head. He was a big part of Kolton's Roseville High and UCLA teams, but being more than just a family member in the stands might be a different ballgame in the NFL.

"Wouldn't that be dope to like..." Kolton starts, offering a suggestion for Chad to get involved.

"Be a water boy over there on the sideline," Dan chimes in.

"No, hell no," Kolton finishes. "Lead the team out ... Maybe in my 10th year, that'd be like the one thing I could ask."

"That would be cool," Chad says calmly, almost as if leading the Raiders through flames under the arch is too low key. "Being in the media box would be pretty cool, though."

Chad has thought of entering media as a writer or cameraman. The Raiders even pledged to reserve a press box seat for a game so he can see what it's like. Chad thinks "that'd be dope" and suddenly he's discovered his ideal spot to watch Kolton's next journey from, even if he's not as close as the ones prior.

Kolton beams ear to ear with a "Hoooooooooooo, man!" An ecstatic Chad makes for an ecstatic Kolton, too.

He's seen his younger brother frustrated, eager, yearning for a goal he can't quite reach. Now he sees him teeming with excitement for one he can.

Remember the motto Chad grew frustrated with? It's not that you cannot do anything. It might be that you can do it in a different way. Now he's embracing it, seeking his own path — with Kolton right beside him after all.

Raiders' Kolton Miller reaches NFL dream to help brother

By Michael Gehlken

May 12, 2018

ROSEVILLE, Calif. — Hospital nurses said Kolton Miller would have topped 10 pounds at birth in Redwood City, California, if not for the C-section weeks before the due date.

At 6 months, he was baptized in a white embroidered outfit. Its size was intended for a 24-month-old toddler. Two weeks before the ceremony, it fit comfortably. By the day of, buttons barely fastened.

From 10 to 16 years old, his shoe size matched his age. His mother Karrie Miller fought his growing pains with massages, drawn baths and German chocolate cake. He and father Dan Miller often wrestled until, once as a teen, Kolton threw Dad darn-near across the width of a room.

"You're not fun anymore," Dan said to him.

Kolton Miller became the tallest active Raiders player at 6 feet, 8 5/8 inches when the former UCLA offensive tackle was drafted April 26 with the No. 15 overall pick. But growth spurts aren't what led him here. Not entirely. He cites his brother as his main motivation.

As a boy, Kolton asked his parents for a sibling. They tried for years in vain. Finally, he was 6 when Chad was born at 2 pounds, 13 ounces. They met behind the glass of a neonatal intensive care unit and formed a strong bond.

Their relationship and the NFL career it inspired now allow Kolton to provide financial security to Chad.

"I'm his number one fan," said Chad, who wore a Raiders hat to school the past two weeks. "And he's mine, too."

"I want him to be taken care of," Kolton said.

A protector

Karrie Miller cannot help it.

She sees some of her own father in Kolton.

Her dad, Glenn Blomseth, was a professional protector. He wore an FBI ring commemorating his graduation from the agency's academy. The 6-foot-4 man, whose Scandinavian bloodlines lent height to Kolton, served as a police lieutenant in Antioch, California, before retiring as the department's interim captain.

On March 26, 2002, he was on call for his family.

A doctor prescribed Karrie bedrest at home in Alamo, California. Complications arose from a pregnancy still in its 26th week. Blomseth stayed overnight. Early in the morning, when complications worsened, he urged her and Dan not to wait for an ambulance, Karrie said.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

He'd watch Kolton. Just go. Hurry. Go.

Specifics regarding the situation are a private family matter, aside to say Blomseth's crisis management proved momentous. Karrie and Chad endured, the latter born minutes upon arrival at a Walnut Creek hospital. Once Chad was home, a proper introduction with Kolton could be made.

It became clear Kolton was a protector, too.

If Chad sat atop someone's lap on a couch, Kolton sat next to them. If Chad was in a baby carrier, Kolton often sat on the floor, playing beside him. Chad was unable to sit up on his own until 2 years old. When needing someone against whom to prop himself, big brother was there.

Chad was born with Moebius syndrome, a rare neurological condition affecting certain cranial nerves linked to muscles that control eye movement and facial expressions. Physical therapy and other medical care often required attention. This meant Dan and Karrie missed some items on Kolton's extra-curricular calendar, including certain sporting events.

No problem.

"We had people who would take him to his practices and things like that," Karrie said. "We would address things with him. He'd be like, 'No, I'm fine. Take care of Chad.' That was his response. 'Take care of Chad.'"

Kolton's maturity extended beyond height.

Before his parents' divorce, Dan and Karrie regularly hosted family functions. Kolton often socialized with adults, not kids, at the parties. His youthful spirit would surface when retiring to his bedroom room for a wardrobe change. He returned in a Superman or Batman costume.

In elementary school, his morality was the stuff of superheroes, as teachers marveled over his willingness to confront bullies. On multiple occasions, Kolton witnessed a peer being mistreated. The tall boy from Redwood City did not spectate. Rather, he spoke up and stepped in.

Such acts included helping female students whose clothes were being pulled or had a ball stolen during a game of Four Square.

"It was how I was raised," Kolton, 22, said. "I was raised to be a good kid. Maybe it came naturally because I was bigger than other kids."

Protecting quarterbacks came naturally, too.

Shared success

Kolton kept an open mind with sports.

He first tried youth soccer but, after a few practices, told his parents he did not enjoy it. They asked if he wanted to quit. His response: "I'm not a quitter."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

He lasted the full season before retiring his shin guards for good. He later played basketball, a more natural fit because of his height, and baseball. He dabbled in track and field in high school, hurling in the discus and shot put.

But no sport compared to football.

Kolton was a two-way player at Roseville High, an offensive tackle and defensive lineman. One of his teammates at the time, running back Matt Razzano, is the son of Dave Razzano, the Raiders' director of football research.

Chad was a four-year captain to Kolton's cheering section, watching games and practices from the stands or sideline. Kolton often invited him into the postgame locker room where Chad effused positivity, individually congratulating teammates on a good game with high fives or encouraging them after a loss.

Coaches at Roseville saw Kolton's potential. Jon Osterhout soon did, too.

Dan Miller reached out to Osterhout, coach at Sacramento's American River College and founder of offseason training program Linemen Win Games, during Kolton's sophomore year. Other alumni from the academy include Raiders defensive tackle Eddie Vanderdoes, who also attended UCLA.

"He had all the redeeming qualities that you look for in a guy who's truly trying to create the best version of himself," Osterhout said. "Extremely inquisitive. Very professional in everything, from being there early to staying there late, asking great questions and really trying to improve himself every single day."

Attention from colleges followed.

When Kolton attended an Oregon football camp, he brought Chad with him. When he made official stops to Wisconsin, Oregon State and UCLA, he brought Chad with him. Over his life, Kolton outgrew shoes and shirts and pants. His profile widened and expanded across the country.

He always brought Chad along.

Chad, 16, now attends Roseville High. Before the draft, he regularly would be asked about his brother. Chad would discuss his strong performance at the NFL Scouting Combine — Kolton's broad jump of 10 feet, 1 inch set an event record for an offensive lineman — or which teams Kolton was visiting.

"You could just see the shine in his face that he was so happy," said Adam Lenakakis, Roseville offensive line coach. "Now that he is a Raider, it's even better because he's only an hour and a half from his brother. He'll be able to watch him in training camp and the preseason and as many home games as they can get to, of course."

The missed game

A graham-cracker square is covered in a cookie dough mixed with marshmallows and chocolate chips. Once baked, the crunchy, gooey result from Cookie Connection, a Roseville-based gourmet cookie company, is the highlight to a care package Karrie routinely presented Kolton and his fellow UCLA offensive linemen when driving to all home games.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

That was until Oct. 1, 2016, against Arizona. No cookies. No Mom and Chad.

Kolton was entering his fifth start at right tackle as a redshirt sophomore. As game day approached, Karrie called Kolton and informed him she'd be unable to travel to Rose Bowl Stadium in Pasadena, California. She and Chad would watch from home in Roseville instead.

On the morning of the game, something felt wrong.

"She mentioned, 'I have this awkward, strange feeling something is going to happen,'" Chad said.

Karrie repeated the sentiment, as Chad tried to assure their mother. But in the second quarter, a teammate accidentally was tackled into Kolton's lower left leg. Kolton heard four pops in his knee. Never before needing surgery, he feared the worst. Fortunately, it was a spiral ankle fracture that did not require a procedure, although he missed the remainder of the season.

Missing the next game irked Kolton most. He could not help Josh Rosen, who suffered a season-ending injury on a fourth-quarter hit.

Kolton was unable to protect him.

"You watch, and you feel like it's partly your fault," Kolton said. "Of course, you can't say that, but it kind of feels like that."

Still growing

While at UCLA, Kolton had a sense he was NFL-bound. He told his parents they didn't need to worry. He would take care of Chad. With an upcoming four-year contract worth more than $13 million, he is positioned to do so.

But Kolton has other goals.

He wants to earn a starting job in 2018, he said. He wants to win a Super Bowl. One day, he wants to wear a gold jacket as a Pro Football Hall of Fame inductee. These are goals he can chase now, potential future moments he can share with his family.

Last year, Chad was among those to visit Kolton for Thanksgiving and a Nov. 24 game versus California. Karrie was preparing for the day when, from a hotel restroom, she overheard her two sons chatting. Kolton waved over Chad and told him he'd be going to the NFL soon. He asked what his thoughts about it were.

"Chad said, 'That's pretty cool,'" Karrie said. "And he said to Chad, 'If you don't want me to go, I won't go.' And Chad was quiet, and he said, 'Did you hear me? If you don't want me to go, I won't go because I'm going to do this for you.'"

"And Chad said, 'No, bro. I want you to go.' And he said, 'OK, I'm going to do it for you, Chad.'"

As the Raiders set their plan in motion on the offensive line, Kolton Miller has quietly absorbed new lessons

By David Lombardi
August 17, 2018

NAPA — There was little time to waste after the Raiders picked Kolton Miller in the first round of the 2018 NFL Draft and fellow offensive tackle Brandon Parker in the third.

Both rookies trekked immediately to the team's facility in Alameda, where Raiders offensive line coach Tom Cable set the grand plan in motion.

"The first day they were up here after we picked them, I sat down with them and brought in a couple of the veterans," Cable said of Miller and Parker on Wednesday. "I said: 'I'm going to tell you what it is to be a pro.' And then I pointed at the veterans and said: 'And they're going to show you every day how to do it.'"

Miller and Parker were raw youngsters still requiring significant developmental work, and at the time, they were also both too light to stand a fair shot of holding their own in the NFL.

But the Raiders needed help along the offensive line and they needed it immediately: The team had released 2017 starting right tackle Marshall Newhouse in March, and Donald Penn, the main man on the left side, was in the middle of his recovery from foot surgery at age 35.

Meanwhile, Derek Carr, the team's $125 million investment, was coming off the second straight season in which he'd missed time due to injury. As the No. 15 overall pick, Miller's feet immediately dangled over the fire.

So, with training camp over and the first preseason game in the books, how have the first four months in this pressure cooker gone for Miller?

Quietly.

And coming from a position where ruckus is the last thing the Raiders want, that's good news.

"Kolton is the perfect rookie," Carr said on Tuesday. "He came in and didn't say a word. He came in and said I'm just gonna show you that I'm a darn good football player, and that's what he's done."

Yes, there have been some hiccups. Bruce Irvin and Arden Key bested Miller multiple times during practice at training camp. He was flagged for a hold on the third play of the preseason opener against the Detroit Lions last week, negating Marshawn Lynch's long touchdown run (Cable says that he'd like to see Miller keep his feet moving and his hands inside to avoid recurrences of such flags in the future).

But in the larger picture, the Raiders are thrilled with Miller's progress. He's immersed himself in Jon Gruden's complex NFL playbook, and Cable says that Miller, through a diligent adherence to conditioning, has packed on strength from an initial weight of 312 pounds to reach a new weight of more than 320 pounds.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"You can count on him to do the work," Cable said. "And he's still a kid. He's naturally gonna be 335, 340 one day and not look like a fat guy. He's gonna look pretty good as his body matures physically, because he's done everything that we've asked."

Through it all, the Raiders have grown confident enough in the placid, 6-foot-8 Miller to venture forward with him as their starting left tackle, the position which protects Carr's blindside, while moving Penn to right tackle, for at least the time being.

"He's had growing pains and he'll have growing pains, they all do," Cable said of Miller. "But we've been able to minimize those, and when he does have them, he'll learn from them."

Teammates also credit Miller for efficiently absorbing the knowledge that's been showered in his direction — "as a rookie tackle, whether he wants it or not, we're gonna give him some veteran advice," Carr said — like a sponge, and with exceptional efficiency.

But the soft-spoken rookie mostly shrugs off statements about his improvement, redirecting questions about it to answers that veer onto the road of self-deprecation.

"When I look back at it, there are still some things I can clean up," Miller said of his NFL preseason debut, during which he held up well in pass protection. "I was really excited, so I was playing a little higher, so just sinking down a little bit lower would help. But it was my first game, and I was just excited."

Miller may be quiet, but at least three topics of conversation immediately bring fire to his eyes.

One is his 16-year-old brother, Chad, who has Moebius syndrome, a rare neurological condition that hampers facial expression and eye movement. Miller has said that the bond he shares with Chad, an avid football fan whose condition has prevented him from taking the field himself, is one of the primary motivators of his career.

So when the Raiders credentialed Chad, an aspiring reporter, and gave him a seat in the press box for the preseason opener, Miller was thrilled.

"That was really, really cool," Miller, beaming a smile that stretched from ear to ear, said of his brother's experience. "He had a blast. They were handing him sheets of the stats and stuff. I know that he was amazed."

And, in a moment of symmetry that he won't soon forget, Miller concurrently realized his NFL dream on the Coliseum field, directly below the press box where his brother was soaking his own dream in.

"I had a blast putting on the black and silver," Miller said. "I felt like a little kid when that happened."

The third question that thrusts Miller into a more garrulous mood is one about Penn, who has taken the rookie under his wing as a mentor. Penn, still inactive during the preseason opener, advised Miller on the sideline, and the duo's bond has taken root much deeper than that — despite the fact that they're 13 years apart in age.

"Donald's been right there every step of the way, helping me out even during the Lions game," Miller said. "After the first series, after I came out (following the holding penalty), he told me 'don't worry about that call, just go play your game.' He's been so encouraging. He's been the most helpful."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Miller then paused. An earnest look crossed his face. It was clear that he wanted to say more to hammer his point about Penn home.

“I’m really grateful for that,” Miller said deliberately. “I’m very, very grateful for that.”

Miller says that his initial weeks with the Raiders bordered on overwhelming. He fought to stay afloat as droves of complicated information from the new playbook flooded his brain, all while he fought to pack on the necessary physical strength to be ready to assume a starting role come September.

Since job turnover in the NFL is so high, veterans aren’t always the best resources for rookies in such situations, since any advice given to a youngster might be seen as a detriment to self-preservation in the league. And Penn, who tweeted “MORE MOTIVATION” (he has since deleted that tweet) and angrily phoned Gruden after the Raiders drafted Miller, initially appeared headed down the path of non-cooperation.

But Penn eventually calmed down, reversed course, and jumped aboard the Miller mentoring process — even accepting this week’s experimental move to right tackle, which the Raiders hope becomes permanent so that Miller is entrenched as their left tackle of the future.

“I’m not stupid,” Penn said Tuesday. “I’m not dumb. I’m 35 years old. I understand what’s going on here. ...

“But we have a young kid over there that is doing a lot of good things. ... I’m willing to do whatever it takes to help this team win. And if they feel like that’s going to be in the best interest of the team, I’ll do it.”

This has certainly pleased Cable.

“He doesn’t really have to do what he’s doing,” Cable said of Penn. “But if you want to be champions, then you really don’t have a choice. A lot of guys look at this and say, ‘I’m not going to help the young guy. He’s after my job.’

“But in the big picture, if you want to be on the best team, and you want to be selfless, and you want to be a champion, somebody is going to have to make those choices, and when they’re given to you, you’re going to have to choose for the team.

“To me, I’m proud of Donald, the way he’s handling this. And that was the challenge: If you’re gonna do it, then let’s do it with great integrity, let’s do it as a mentor. And I think the whole group has been very good to Kolton in that regard. They’ve all mentored him. But in Donald’s case, not only is he a mentor; he’s also being asked to make a change in his own career.”

Interestingly, the Raiders’ succession plan at left tackle reportedly started with Notre Dame’s Mike McGlinchey, who ended up going to the 49ers with the No. 9 pick of the draft — the selection that they had gotten over the Raiders as a result of a coin flip win at the NFL scouting combine.

So with McGlinchey off the table, the Raiders traded back to No. 15 and instead selected Miller, a UCLA product that they also became enamored with during the pre-draft process.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Miller's height and athleticism were both huge selling points — he set a combine record for offensive linemen with a broad jump of 10 feet and one inch — but off-field details also intrigued the Raiders.

"If you just look at Kolton's whole story: His brother is very dear to him and his illness, just going to UCLA, playing right tackle, then getting hurt and moving to left tackle — all these things that are real-life things," Cable said. "He got through them, and he got through them the right way."

Cable said that the Raiders, intent on finding a rookie who had the personality and drive necessary to develop into a starting tackle immediately, dove deep into the history of Miller's character.

"Who is he? How is he with the other guys? How was he when he was young with the older guys? How is he now as a leader at UCLA with his teammates?" Cable rattled off the questions that the Raiders asked. "And he's the same guy now. The strong, silent type. Always learning."

"When he was younger at UCLA, he'd rely on the older guys. And that's just like he's done here. You were hearing about how well he prepared there, reading his notes, that that's who he was, but now you're seeing it unfold right in front of your eyes here."

On Saturday against the Rams, Miller's acclimatization process will continue in his second preseason game, and this one will come in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, a familiar place for the UCLA product. Miller played twice in that stadium during his college career, when the Bruins were visiting crosstown rival USC.

Now, Miller returns as a pro starter, set to protect the blindside of one of the NFL's richest quarterbacks. Miller has had to grow up quickly since his last time in the Coliseum nine months ago, but he remains the quiet, unassuming learner that the Raiders took a liking to during his UCLA years.

And to illustrate that, Carr remembered the immediate aftermath of Miller's holding penalty last week, the one that negated Lynch's touchdown run.

Many linemen might be flustered after drawing such a flag, but not Miller.

"He still didn't show much emotion when that happened," Carr said, smiling, saying that Miller was simply ready to absorb the lesson and move on. "He basically may have whispered to me: 'I don't know how they called that.'"

With that murmur, Miller's rookie campaign carried on. It's begun quietly, but that's exactly what the Raiders expected, and they're just hoping for more of the same.

Why the Raiders bet the farm on Jordy Nelson

By Jerry McDonald

April 3, 2018

Considering that they let go of Michael Crabtree and signed a man nearly three years older to a contract worth up to $15 million, you could say the Raiders have bet the farm on Jordy Nelson.

The shoe fits, too. Nelson grew up on a farm in Kansas — 1,000 head of cattle on 4,000 acres. He still goes back most years to help with the wheat harvest before training camp and is fond of joking that it takes him awhile “to get back into farming shape.”

This next part is no joke, though.

“It set the foundation of who I am,” Nelson said of farm life. “The hard work, the day-in, day-out grind. Understanding that you have to go to work every day.”

Like our Oakland Raiders Facebook page for more Raiders news, commentary and conversation..

Nelson, who turns 33 in May, isn't being counted on just for running routes and catching passes. The Raiders also think the 6-foot-3, 217-pound wide receiver can help a locker room that seemed to fray last season as the team tumbled to a 6-10 finish.

New Raiders wide receivers coach Edgar Bennett was in Green Bay for the entirety of Nelson's nine-year career with the Packers and he believes Nelson's NFL success began with his upbringing.

At 6-foot-3, Nelson can go up and get it.

“That's the starting point, and the way he is I'm sure came from how he was raised by his parents, being able to stay true to who he was, being disciplined,” Bennett said. “There's a carry-over to his football career.”

Until the Raiders signed Nelson on March 15, their public stance on Crabtree had been that he was in their plans for 2018. But it was clear something had gone wrong in that relationship during the second half of last season. There was the one-game NFL suspension for his fight and ongoing feud with Denver cornerback Aqib Talib and there were times when Crabtree was not on the field when game situations suggested he should be.

The Raiders contacted Nelson on March 13, the day he was released by the Packers. Two days later, he was in Alameda and he didn't leave until putting pen to paper. Crabtree, 30, was released and signed with the Baltimore Ravens.

The swap hasn't exactly been met with universal acceptance, given that Nelson had significant drop in production last season, catching 53 passes for 482 yards and a career-low 9.1 yards per catch in 15 games. In 2016, Nelson had 97 receptions for 1,257 yards (12.9 yards per catch).

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Former Raiders defensive backs coach and Hall of Famer Rod Woodson recently joined the chorus of those who say Nelson has lost a step.

James Jones, the former San Jose State star who played with Nelson in Green Bay, isn't buying it.

"I know a lot of people are thinking, 'Oh, man, Crabtree is younger and better,'" Jones said. "Jordy has a lot left. And you're getting a guy with a chip on his shoulder. He will never say it, but trust me, when he does go out here and have a big-time year, he's going to have one eye on the Packers, saying, 'I told you I can still play this game.'"

In the middle of nowhere, between the Kansas towns of Leonardville and Riley — combined population 1,412 — sits Nelson Angus Farms.

Jordy spent his youth there, glued to ESPN and participating in football, basketball and track — but only after his completing his daily chores on a farm that has been in the family since his great, great grandfather emigrated from Sweden.

Mike Nelson, Jordy's brother and 18 months his senior, runs the farm and Jordy plans on rejoining him some day.

"I want to be my brother's hired man," Jordy told Wisconsin Agriculturalist in 2016. "He can pay me when I work and if he has to lay me off I think I will be able to survive."

Jordy was driving pickup trucks loaded with hay into town by age 12 and operating a combine as a teenager. Green Bay, which became Jordy's home in 2008 when he was drafted in the second round by the Packers, is a metropolis by comparison.

Jones was one of several Green Bay players who visited the farm and experienced the culture shock.

"Every house is three miles away from the other," Jones said.

"There's only one restaurant," he added, "and Jordy owns it."

Nelson didn't make his Green Bay guests get up with roosters and do chores. Players went four-wheeling, played some evening wiffle ball with the family, dropped by the family-run sports bar "Nelson's Landing" and even went golfing.

"One of the worst golf courses I've ever been on," Jones said with a laugh. "No putting greens, just rock. Once you hit the ball off the tee you're in a grass area, but when you get on the green it's always going to take a two-putt because it's all rock."

The fun and games stands in stark contrast to a typical day on the farm.

"You get tired of doing the work when all your buddies are playing basketball," Mike Nelson said. "But after awhile, it's what you know and what you want to do. You develop a passion for it, and the next thing you know you love it. It's a good life."

In between chores, Jordy excelled at Riley County High School in football, basketball and track. In his senior year at quarterback, he passed for more than 1,000 yards and rushed for 1,500 more. But no

Division I scholarship offers came to him, so Nelson walked on at Kansas State, a 20-mile drive his parents had made many times as football season ticket holders.

Nelson began his career at Kansas State as a defensive back until a fateful meeting with legendary K-State coach Bill Snyder.

"I told him I thought he might have a better chance to play a little quicker at wide receiver and that I wanted him to at least think about it, and then come and see me tomorrow," Snyder said. "He said, 'Coach, I don't have to think about it. If it's something you think I should do then that's what we'll do.' "

It was a fairly standard reaction from Nelson, a player from whom Snyder said he never once saw a self-aggrandizing or "look-at-me" moment.

"He is the epitome of consistency," Snyder said. "He's not one way one day and another way the next day. He's the same Jordy Nelson, day in and day out. There's no pretense to him whatsoever."

In his senior year, Nelson caught a school-record 122 passes and was drafted in the second round by the Packers. (The Raiders took Darren McFadden in that draft.)

Nelson's transition to the NFL was gradual. His coming-out party was a nine-catch, 140-yard game with a touchdown reception in Super Bowl XLV, a 31-25 win over the Pittsburgh Steelers following the 2010 season.

The next season, Nelson exploded. He caught 68 passes for 1,263 yards and 15 touchdowns, becoming the prime target for quarterback Aaron Rodgers.

Coming off a two-year run in which he averaged 91 catches for 1,416 yards and scored 21 touchdowns, Nelson missed the 2015 season after tearing his right ACL in an exhibition game. But he was back the next season — all the way back. After catching 97 passes for 1,257 yards and 14 touchdowns, Nelson was named the NFL's Comeback Player of the Year.

Last year's drop-off was at least in part attributable to an injury to Rodgers. His replacement, Brett Hundley, struggled mightily in eight games.

"We're not playing fantasy football," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said. "I realize his production fell off, but so did Davante Adams, so did Randall Cobb and so did the Packer offense when Aaron Rodgers went down."

Nelson dismisses claims that he's no longer fast enough to separate from defensive backs, noting that he was never a burner when it came to the 40-yard dash but has always been plenty fast enough in shoulder pads.

"It's still there," Bennett said. "He still has the ability to catch the football, catch it in traffic, run after the catch, create separation. He can do all those things."

When Nelson visited the Raiders in March, quarterback Derek Carr took him on a drive to the Tri-Valley area where he lives to help alleviate whatever big-city concerns Nelson might have been feeling.

Nelson laughed out loud when asked about the sticker shock of home prices — he is so tight with a dollar he he says he won't spend a single one of them to get the No. 87 jersey he wore in Green Bay from Raiders teammate Jared Cook.

No surprise to his brother Mike, who understands how difficult it is to make a farm work financially: "It's easy to grow up conservative around here because you really learn how to push the pennies."

Nelson's value system, Snyder said, remains intact.

"He comes back home and works on the farm. His family has a restaurant and he works in the restaurant," Snyder said. "That's what I appreciate so much about him. He hasn't let the NFL go to his head. To me, Jordy has not changed. He's not any different the last time I saw him then when he graduated from here. When you get down to it, he's a small-town, working class young man."

Nelson concedes he'll have to get used to Bay Area traffic. But Carr's guided tour served its purpose.

"I mean, we were driving around and seeing the hillside, the grass and cattle and deer running around," Nelson said. "I think there's still that aspect there. But it's also going to be great to be close to the city and be able to go downtown and experience some different things. I think you get the best of both worlds here."

Never wavered: New Raiders fullback Keith Smith was toughened by a winding road to start his NFL career

By Jimmy Durkin

September 10, 2018

Imagine your lifelong dream comes true ... and then seven times over it's ripped away.

That was Keith Smith's life his first two seasons in the NFL. In a 15-month stretch, from August 2014 to November 2015, Smith was waived seven times by the Dallas Cowboys. The cuts came so frequently that calls from coach Jason Garrett became just a matter of routine to the undrafted then-linebacker.

"At one point, I would see Coach Garrett's number pop up on my phone and I'm like (rolls eyes), 'OK, I know what time it is,'" Smith said in a recent interview.

For the most part, the Cowboys would always tell Smith he was still a part of their plans and to be ready to come back to meetings in a couple of days. They thought highly enough of him that they signed him to their active roster four times during his rookie season in 2014 and he played in 10 games, mostly on special teams. Each time he was waived he was re-signed to the practice squad as soon as he cleared waivers.

But spring brings in new crops of NFL talent, with draft classes and new undrafted rookies descending to bump players like Smith off the roster. And that's what happened. The Cowboys waived him in May 2015 following their rookie minicamp, and this time he didn't get an immediate callback.

Ten weeks went by. The Covina native kept training in his Southern California base, even as the Cowboys opened training camp in late July in nearby Oxnard. Smith tried his best to hide it, but it was a rough time. It was even rougher on his mom, Juli Smith, who had spent years following him around to high school games and all but two games of his illustrious San José State career, and was looking forward to many more NFL games with her son.

"I was the one going crazy," Juli Smith said when she made her first visit to the Coliseum for the Raiders' preseason game against the Green Bay Packers. "I'm like, 'Wait, how can I get him back into football? Wait, he can't be done yet. I'm not done yet!'"

Smith wasn't done. He worked out two to three times a day, fielding a steady stream of advice from his brother-in-law and former NFL cornerback Jason David.

"He kind of just told me, 'Be ready, because if that opportunity comes and you're not ready, you'll regret it for the rest of your life,'" Smith said. "That's kind of the one thing that I kept in the back of my head. That whole time I was just grinding."

On the Cowboys' second day of training camp, Smith got the call. Linebacker Keith Rivers had retired and Rolando McClain, the former Raiders linebacker, opened camp on the physically unable to perform list. Smith was told to come work out. The Cowboys almost didn't recognize him after his 10-week absence. Their special teams coordinator, Rich Bisaccia, who now holds that same role with the Raiders, was thrilled to have him back.

“When he left, he left with not just a chip, but a boulder on his shoulder,” Bisaccia said last week. “When he did get an opportunity to work out, he was just fantastic. He was in great physical condition.”

The Cowboys wouldn’t tell Smith what his 40-yard dash time was, but they were all blown away by how much bigger, stronger and faster he was. Bisaccia pulled him aside to ask how he had made such a quick transformation.

“I just laughed like, ‘Come on, you gave me three months of free time. I had nothing else to do but to work out and get better,’” Smith said. “I feel like that was a blessing in disguise because I transformed my game and my mental (side) during that time I was gone.”

If only that were the end of the story. But for Smith, the upcoming season was another challenging one. He made the team out of camp but was cut a month into the season and spent most of the year — aside from a one-game call-up in November — on the practice squad.

Was this the end? Could Smith hold off another round of draftees and undrafted free agents? Could his special-teams skills be enough for Bisaccia to persuade the Cowboys to keep him around? Maybe, but maybe not at linebacker.

It was then that Bisaccia pitched an idea to Garrett.

“He plays the show team fullback for us every day,” Bisaccia told Garrett. “Let’s just put him there. Let’s just let him compete and put him there. He’s got great hands, he’s real smart, he can locate the ‘backers, he can hit ‘em on the move.”

Smith won the job in training camp in 2016 and played in all 33 games (including one playoff game) for the Cowboys the past two years. The best part: he hasn’t gotten another one of those calls telling him to turn in his playbook.

But as well as the transition has gone, landing him a two-year, $3 million deal with the Raiders after the Cowboys declined to tender him a contract as a restricted free agent, there were some difficult times.

Coaches praise how natural the position has come to Smith, but he had some initial hesitations. Jason Witten, a future Hall of Fame tight end, helped squashed those.

“He had kind of just pop quizzed me before workouts one day and I kind of hesitated,” Smith said of Witten, “and he was like, ‘Look, you need to know all of this like the back of your hand because when the bullets are flying, that’s how it’s going to go down. ... They didn’t make this position change for no reason. They believe in you. I believe in you. I know what you’re capable of. I’ve seen you on the scout team. I’ve been going against you. You’re capable of making this position change.’

“At that point, hearing those words from a legend like Jason Witten, it kind of was just motivation and confidence that I could do it.”

Smith isn’t exactly Mike Alstott, getting 200 carries in a season. He has just two career rushing attempts and eight receptions. He played in only 12 percent of the Cowboys’ offensive snaps last year, but he's always been a core special teamer who had nine tackles and two forced fumbles last season. Don't be surprised if his offensive numbers go up in Jon Gruden's system, however. Jon Ritchie averaged nearly 30 receptions per season in his four years in Gruden's offense (and just over 10 per season in three NFL seasons without him). Smith may not be the same polished receiver, but Bisaccia raved about his hands, and Gruden loves his versatility.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I think the most impressive thing is his awareness," Gruden said of Smith. "His ability to play tight end, fullback, in the slot, cover kicks. He's just a natural football player. He's got great instincts. He learns extremely fast. He plays physical. Just what we want in a fullback. Smart, physical, durable and versatile."

Among Smith's modest goals for this season: find the end zone. He never did at San José State, where he was the nation's leading tackler as a senior. He never did in high school, where his offensive role was as a blocking tight end and playing some fullback in heavy packages in front of childhood friend and former San Diego State star running back Adam Muema. He has to go back to his Pop Warner days for his last touchdown.

"I'm looking forward to this year, " Smith said. "I think I'm gonna get in the end zone."

He does at least have a small taste of what that's like. When the Raiders hosted the Cowboys on Sunday night last season, Smith was on the field when teammate Rod Smith scored on a 1-yard touchdown run. He gave the ball to Keith to spike as Juli's phone lit up with people thinking he had scored.

That "gesture of gratitude," as Keith called it, was part of a special night that introduced Smith fully to what the Raiders' game day experience is like. Now he's looking forward to enjoying it full-time, starting tonight in the season opener against the Rams on Monday Night Football.

"The Black Hole is something else," he said. "Honestly, I felt like I was at home."

Indeed, Smith feels like he's found a home. Getting cut seven times helped build the strong character he carries with him today. He's entering his fifth NFL season and finally feels like he has some job security. But he's smart enough to look around and realize that such a word doesn't really exist in this league.

"I think this is probably the most job security I've had in my career, but at the same time, I don't let it change my mindset," he said. "I'm always going to work and I've always been the type to where if you're not practicing good habits, then you're not going to play with good habits. I just haven't changed my mindset."

Tahir Whitehead's random act of kindness earns him a fan for life

By Kyle Martin

September 3, 2018

Nowadays, it's hard to find someone who goes out of their way to do something kind for another individual without expecting anything in return. In an era filled with what's been dubbed as the "me, me, me" generation, common acts of kindness are hard to come by.

About a week ago, Sergeant David Marquez was headed home from his reserve training when he suffered a flat tire. Pulled over on the side of Dublin Boulevard, Marquez watched car after car drive by, unwilling to offer their services; however, one car decided to see if he needed some help.

As the SUV pulled up, a figure dressed in Silver and Black apparel from head-to-toe stepped out, and offered to help Marquez. Who was it you ask? Raiders linebacker Tahir Whitehead.

At first, Marquez didn't recognize Whitehead, but after asking who he was and why he offered to help, he was shocked to hear that he was an NFL player.

"He offered to help, and at first I was just being prideful, but he insisted," Marquez said. "[He] said, 'bro, come on, let me help you out. It looks like you could use a hand,'"

Whitehead's persistence and desire to help Marquez caught him by surprise, but the connection the two shared as they changed the tire stood out to him more.

"He helped me out, but our conversation was pretty cool. We just talked about life, and God, and how the NFL is looking to progress with the military, and it was just a good conversation," Marquez explained recently. "While talking to him I realized he was just a real, genuine person. I was impressed. He was well spoken and I told somebody that he should be in a position as an ambassador for service members and vets because he's such an honest and genuine person."

When asked why he stopped to help Marquez, Whitehead kept it simple, and just thought it was the right thing to do.

"He looked like he had it figured out, but I'm just like, he looked like he was on his way somewhere," he said. "I just thought I'd help him out and send him on his way."

He also shared what it's like hearing from a Sergeant in the military that he has the potential to be a spokesman and representative if he has the desire to.

"That's huge, that's humbling," Whitehead said with a pause. "Just for him to use those words, and I believe in just being a good person. Right is right, and wrong is wrong. I saw someone in need."

Willing to help a stranger in need, but unwilling to accept any praise for his good deed, Whitehead is setting an example I think everyone should try and follow.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

In the brief time he's been a Raider, the former Temple Owl has quickly become a voice in the locker room, and it's clear his peers respect him on and off the field.

Whitehead isn't the only person to help someone on the side of the road however, if you recall just a couple years ago Raiders quarterback Derek Carr helped someone who ran out of gas on the side of the road.

It's not every day someone offers to help a stranger, let alone an NFL player. Whitehead's act of kindness resonated with Marquez, and while he considers himself a San Francisco 49ers fan, Whitehead may have converted him.

Following their interaction, Marquez continued to express his gratitude, and it's something he most likely will never forget.

"I was moved by him, because he didn't have to do that."

The two were also able to reconnect through Twitter.
