GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders will play in their home opener this week-end as they host the Atlanta Falcons at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum on Sunday, Sept. 18 at 1:25 p.m. PT. Coupled with last week's victory on the road at New Orleans, Oakland opens the year with two NFC opponents for the first time since 1999, when they opened with the Packers and Minnesota Vikings. Sunday's game will mark the Falcons' first trip to Oakland since 2008 and the first matchup between the two teams since they met in 2012 in Atlanta. Last week, the Raiders pulled out a come-from-behind victory against the Saints, while the Falcons fell at home to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The Raiders opened their 2016 season in dramatic fashion last week in New Orleans, edging the Saints by a final of 35-34. After scoring a touchdown to pull within one point with 47 seconds left, Head Coach Jack Del Rio decided to go for the two-point conversion and WR Michael Crabtree hauled in the pass from QB Derek Carr to seal the Raiders victory. Carr led the offense to four touchdown drives on the day, throwing for 319 yards on 24-of-38 passing with one touchdown for a 98.5 quarterback rating. WR Amari Cooper led the team with 137 receiving yards on six receptions and WR Seth Roberts hauled in the third game-winning reception of his young career. RB Jalen Richard led the ground attack with a game-high 84 yards. RB Latavius Murray, FB/RB Jamize Olawale and Richard all tallied rushing touchdowns. On defense, LB Bruce Irvin recorded his first sack as a Raider, forcing a fumble in the process that was recovered by DL Jihad Ward to set up a field goal. S Reggie Nelson paced the defensive unit with nine tackles.

After Sunday's game, the Raiders will head back on the road for two games, traveling to Tennessee to play the Titans and Baltimore for a matchup with the Ravens. The Falcons will play another road game against the Saints next week.

WEEK 1 NOTABLES

Below are some key notes from last Sunday's Week 1 35-34 victory over the Saints in New Orleans:

- WR Michael Crabtree hauled in the game-winning two-point conversion with 47 seconds remaining in the game, making the Raiders the fourth team to score the game-winning points on a two-point conversion in the final minute of the fourth quarter and the first to do so in a season opener.
- The Raiders' come-from-behind victory marked the first time since Sept. 10, 2000 the team overcame a 14-or-more-point deficit on the road.
- WR Amari Cooper finished the game with 137 receiving yards, the second highest total by a Raider in a season opener since 1970 (Tim Brown posted 158 yards on Aug. 31, 1997 at the Tennessee Oilers).
- On rookie RB Jalen Richard's first career carry, he rushed 75 yards for a touchdown. With his 75-yard touchdown, Richard became just the fourth player ever to record a 75-or-more-yard rushing touchdown in his NFL debut, joining Oran Pape (1930), Alan Ameche (1955) and Ottis Anderson (1979).

- With his 75-yard touchdown, Richard became just the fourth player ever to score on a 75-or-more yard run in his NFL debut, joining the likes of Oran Pape (1930), Alan Ameche (1955) and Ottis Anderson (1979).
- Richard finished the day with three carries for 84 yards (28.0 avg.) with a touchdown and added two catches for 11 yards (5.5 avg.).

WR Seth Roberts

- WR Seth Roberts caught the Raiders first receiving touchdown of the 2016 season with 47 seconds left in the game on just his second grab of the day, a 10-yard pass from QB Derek Carr. Roberts' touchdown put the Raiders in position to win as they completed a two-point conversion on the following play.

LB Bruce Irvin

HEAD COACHING MATCHUP

JACK DEL RIO

Jack Del Rio was named the 19th head coach in the 56-year history of the Oakland Raiders franchise on Jan. 15, 2015. The appointment marked a homecoming for Del Rio, who was raised in nearby Hayward, Calif.

In his first season with the Raiders, Del Rio oversaw significant improvements as the Raiders more than doubled the previous year's win total. Oakland moved up 15 spots in the NFL rankings in turnover ratio, finishing 17th in the league (+1) after ranking 32nd in 2014 (-15). The team improved in five major statistical categories on offense alone, making gains in total offense, rushing, passing, points per game and third-down efficiency. On defense, the Raiders improved in rushing defense, points per game allowed and third-down defense. Six Raiders were selected for the Pro Bowl, matching a franchise record set in 1994.

As defensive coordinator with the Denver Broncos from 2012-14, Del Rio was part of three-straight AFC West titles and helped lead Denver to an AFC Championship and appearance in Super Bowl XLVIII following the 2013 campaign. It marked his second stint under Head Coach John Fox, as the two also spent the 2002 season together in Carolina. In all, he has coached 24 players to a total of 33 Pro Bowl selections.

Prior to joining the Broncos in 2012, Del Rio spent nine seasons at the helm in Jacksonville. During his head coaching tenure (2003 to 2011) with the Jaguars, the club ranked sixth in the NFL in yards per game allowed (317.3) and eighth in points per game allowed (20.3).

Under Del Rio, the Jaguars made two playoff appearances in 2005 and 2007, highlighted by the club's first postseason win in eight seasons with a 31-29 road victory against the Pittsburgh Steelers in a 2007 AFC Wild Card Game.

During his lone season as a defensive coordinator with Carolina in 2002, he inherited the NFL's worst defense statistically (371.4 yards per game allowed) and turned it into the league's second-ranked unit (290.4 yards per game allowed).

As linebackers coach for the Baltimore Ravens from 1999-2001, Del Rio tutored a talented group that included Peter Boulware, Ray Lewis and Jamie Sharper. Baltimore's 2000 team set the NFL 16-game record by allowing only 165 points while recording four shutouts and forcing a league-best 49 turnovers.

A veteran of 11 seasons as an NFL linebacker, he was selected in the third round (68th overall) of the 1985 NFL Draft by New Orleans and went on to make the NFL's All-Rookie Team and earn the Saints' Rookie of the Year award. For his career, he played 160 games in the regular season and totaled 1,078 tackles, 12 sacks and 13 interceptions.

Del Rio was a four-year starter at the University of Southern California, where he earned consensus All-American honors as a senior and was runner-up for the Lombardi Award, given to the nation's best lineman or linebacker. Named co-MVP of the 1985 Rose Bowl, Del Rio recorded 340 career defensive stops, including 58 tackles for a loss. A standout catcher on the USC baseball team, Del Rio was drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays in 1981. He was inducted into the USC Athletic Hall of Fame in May 2015.

Del Rio was a three-sport star in football, baseball and basketball at Hayward High School in Hayward, Calif. He earned a degree in political science from the University of Kansas while playing for the Chiefs.

Born on April 4, 1963, in Castro Valley, Calif., Del Rio and his wife, Linda, have three daughters, Lauren, Hope and Aubrey, and a son, Luke, who is a quarterback at the University of Florida.

DAN QUINN

Dan Quinn became the 16th head coach in Atlanta Falcons history in February of 2015. In his first season at the helm Quinn led the team to a 5-0 start, becoming the first coach in franchise history to begin his career with five straight wins. Despite a mid-season slump, Quinn rallied the Falcons to wins in two of their final three games to close out the season with an 8-8 record. His defensive background was crucial in helping Atlanta improve from 32nd in total defense to 16th in the course of one year. Four players were selected to go to the Pro Bowl during Quinn's first year: CB Desmond Trufant, WR Julio Jones, FB Patrick DiMarco, and RB Devonta Freeman.

Quinn took over the club after serving as the Seattle Seahawks defensive coordinator for two seasons (2013-14), helping guide them to consecutive Super Bowl appearances. During that span, Quinn oversaw the NFL's top defensive unit as Seattle led the League allowing 270.4 yards per game, 15.2 points per game, and 178.8 passing yards per game while holding opponents to 91.6 rushing yards per game.

In 2014, Quinn's defense led the NFL in scoring defense (15.9), total defense (267.1), and passing yards (185.6), while ranking third in rushing yards (81.5). The Seahawks also boasted the League's top defensive unit in 2013, en route to a win over the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XLVIII.

Quinn originally joined the Seahawks in 2009, after spending the previous six years coaching the defensive lines for the San Francisco 49ers (2003-04), Miami Dolphins (2005-06) and the New York Jets (2007-08). He previously served as the Seahawks assistant head coach/defensive line coach in 2009 under Jim Mora.

Quinn left Seattle in 2011 to become the defensive coordinator at the University of Florida where his defenses ranked in the top-10 in the country.

Prior to joining Seattle, Quinn coached the defensive line for the New York Jets from 2007- 2008.

He held the same position for the Miami Dolphins for two seasons (2005-06), where Quinn helped the Dolphins rank first in the AFC and second in the NFL with 49 sacks.

He began his NFL coaching career in San Francisco as its defensive assistant in 2001 before moving on to coach the 49ers defensive line from 2003- 2004. Quinn got his start coaching the defensive line at William and Mary in 1994, followed by a season at Virginia Military Institute. He held the same position with Hofstra for four seasons before being promoted to defensive coordinator in 2000.

Quinn was a four-year letter winner and two-time co-captain at Division III Salisbury (Md.) State as a defensive lineman, where he recorded 139 tackles and eight tackles for loss. He also lettered in track and held the school record in the hammer throw. He was inducted into the Salisbury State Athletic Hall of Fame in 2005.

Quinn was born in Morristown, New Jersey. He and his wife, Stacey, reside in Suwanee, Ga.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 57th year of professional football competition, including the last 46 as a member of the National Football League.

In five memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the 2000s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three world championships of professional football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 21 playoff seasons, finished 34 seasons at .500 or better and played in 40 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three world championships of professional football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only four AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

With four postseason victories, the Raiders were the first of the AFC West teams to win multiple postseason contests in the new millennium by six years.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During those memorable 56 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 444 league games, tied 11 and lost 397.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

More than 20 of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced five Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 66 Pro Bowl players have made 188 Pro Bowl appearances representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-77-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 37-27-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 15-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the 2000s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

REGGIE McKENZIE

THE GENERAL MANAGER

Reggie McKenzie, a former draft pick by Raiders Owner Al Davis as a player, enters his 30th season in the National Football League and his fourth as General Manager of the Silver and Black. McKenzie was named to the position by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 10, 2012, becoming the first General Manager of the franchise since Al Davis was hired as Head Coach and General Manager in 1963. Owner Mark Davis rewarded McKenzie with a four-year contract extension in July 2016.

Now in his fifth season as General Manager, McKenzie has overseen significant changes in the organization's scouting, player personnel and football operations departments, while bringing refined football acumen to the Silver and Black. Adhering to a strategy of building a competitive roster through the draft while making strategic acquisitions via free agency and trades, McKenzie enters his fifth season at the helm having already earned plaudits from some of the most respected voices in football.

UNDRAFTED GEMS

Every preseason, hundreds of undrafted free agents vie for a spot on their team's 53-man roster. Reggie McKenzie has brought in numerous players that were not drafted, developing them into significant contributors for the Silver and Black.

- WR Andre Holmes, originally an undrafted free agent with the Minnesota Vikings in 2011, set career highs in 2014 with 47 catches for 693 yards and four touchdowns.

- In 2015, P Marquette King set a franchise record by placing 40 punts inside the opponents' 20-yard line. In 2014, King set Raider franchise records in punts (109) and punting yards (4,930).

- On RB Jalen Richard's first career carry, he rushed 75 yards for a touchdown. With his 75-yard touchdown, Richard became just the fourth player ever to record a 75-or-more-yard rushing touchdown in his NFL debut, joining Oran Pape (1930), Alan Ameche (1955) and Ottis Anderson (1979).

- WR Seth Roberts has totaled three game-winning touchdowns in his career (Week 2 of 2015 vs. Baltimore, Week 12 of 2015 at Tennessee and Week 1 of 2016 at New Orleans).

Below are some of the notable current Raiders who entered the NFL as undrafted free agents:

2012	2
2013	2
2014	0

LATE-ROUND STEALS

"It definitely helps. When you play on Sunday and a guy goes down and that player that you have running on special teams now can play a position and you're not afraid to put him in, it gives you depth. They may not be the starter. These young guys, you really have to give them a couple of years to figure out what they really are. Some of them, you have to throw them in because of where you are as a team. Let's all hope that not only the guys at the top of the draft but the guys at the bottom, if we can get a couple of those guys to give us some production within the first three years, that would be great." - Raiders GM Reggie McKenzie on getting production from lower-level draft picks

GM Reggie McKenzie's philosophy of building his roster through the draft includes standout players from the top of the board like DE Khalil Mack, QB Derek Carr and WR Amari Cooper. But a good drafting team will make all of their picks count, and McKenzie has done that of late. Here is a look at some players that McKenzie has drafted in the fourth round or later since 2013 and have provided solid production:

Player	Year	Round
RB Latavius Murray^	2013	6
TE Mychal Rivera^	2013	6
DT Stacy McGee^	2013	6
DT Justin Ellis^	2014	4
CB TJ Carrie^	2014	7
G/C Jon Feliciano^	2015	4
LB Ben Heeney^	2015	5
LB Neiron Ball^	2015	5

^ - has started multiple games over career

THAT'S WHAT THEY SAID...

"My approach is old school. I'm a roll up the sleeves type of guy that wakes up early in the morning like iron workers, and comes prepared to get the job done." - Reggie McKenzie, introductory press conference, Jan. 10, 2012

"He has the courage of his convictions about players that Ron Wolf had, including blunt assessments of their talent. But Reggie also has the patience of Ted Thompson; he adheres to the draft-and-develop model of team-building. The latter means trusting scouts to constantly fill a pipeline of young talent, empowering coaches to play and develop young players, and identifying core players to secure contractually for the future." - Andrew Brandt, Monday Morning Quarterback (MMQB), March 12, 2014

"He is an exceptional evaluator of talent. Just has a great skill for it, especially for guys already in the NFL who might be flying under the radar. He was my right-hand man for all those years, a big reason why the Packers were good all those years." - Ron Wolf, April 24, 2012

"You can see this foundation starting to build there with the things Reggie [McKenzie] has done. He goes and hires Jack Del Rio, and I think that's a pretty good situation. They have a ton of cap space and an opportunity to build. All of a sudden you look at the AFC West, and they're kind of on the rise and you're very familiar with the AFC West so you know. It's very competitive." - Andy Reid, March 24, 2015

- Last season, the Raiders hosted the San Diego Chargers on Thursday Night Football, beating the Chargers 23-20 in overtime. The Christmas Eve game served as Raiders S Charles Woodson's final home game and marked a season sweep over the team's AFC West rivals. P Marquette King was spectacular in the contest, earning AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors after booting eight punts for 400 yards (50.0 gross average; 49.8 net average) with a long of 65 and six punts downed inside the opponent's 20-yard line. It marked the second straight year that a Raider had won a Player of the Week Award for a performance on Thursday Night Football, as Woodson won AFC Defensive Player of the Week for his play in Week 12 of 2014.

TEAM NOTES

'COOP' AND 'CRAB'

Carrying over their success from last year, WRs Amari Cooper and Michael Crabtree have continued to give NFL secondaries trouble in their second year together. In the Silver and Black's Week 1 victory over the New Orleans Saints, the two combined for 224 receiving yards (Cooper, 137 and Crabtree, 87) and each converted crucial two-point conversions in the fourth quarter.

In the Raiders' Week 2 win against the Baltimore Ravens last season, Cooper (seven receptions, 109 yards and one touchdown) and Crabtree (nine receptions, 111 yards and one touchdown) became the first pair of Raiders receivers to each post 100 receiving yards in a game since Jan. 1, 2012. This also marked the first time since Dec. 31, 2005 that the Raiders had two receivers with 100 receiving yards and one touchdown each.

Together, "Coop" and "Crab" have averaged 13.0 receptions and 224.0 yards per game in 2016. Here is a look at their combined production:

COOPER AND CRABTREE COMBINED 2016 STATISTICS

09/11	at NO	W	13	224	17.2	0
Totals		1-0	13	224	17.2	0

Notes

- Between the two of them, they have nine 100-yard receiving games since 2015 (Cooper has six and Crabtree has three).
- Both Cooper and Crabtree caught over 70 passes and recorded over 900 receiving yards last season.
- Both players have caught at least four passes in 13 of the team's 17 games since 2015. The Raiders are 6-3 when they have combined for at least 10 receptions in a game.

GOING FOR 2

After the Raiders scored a touchdown to pull within one point of the Saints with 47 seconds left in Week 1, Head Coach Jack Del Rio decided to go for the two-point conversion and the win. On the ensuing try, QB Derek Carr connected with WR Michael Crabtree on the game-winning two-point conversion to give the Raiders the lead that they would hold onto.

The Raiders are the fourth team to score the game-winning points on a two-point conversion in the final minute of the fourth quarter and the first to do so in a season opener. The other three teams to accomplish the feat are the 2002 Minnesota Vikings (December 15, 2002), 2005 Tampa Bay Buccaneers (November 13, 2005) and 2008 Denver Broncos (September 14, 2008).

SPREADING IT AROUND

Last year, 14 different receivers caught a pass from either QBs Derek Carr or Matt McGloin. So far this year, eight different receivers have already caught a pass from Carr. Those who have caught passes for the Silver and Black this season include WR Amari Cooper, WR Michael Crabtree, RB Taiwan Jones, RB Latavious Murray, RB Jalen Richard, WR Seth Roberts, TE Clive Walford and RB DeAndré Washington.

KHALIL MACK

SILVER AND MACK

As the Raiders' first-round pick in the 2014 NFL Draft, DE Khalil Mack had lofty expectations in his rookie season and he met them all and more. Mack finished third in Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year voting, falling to St. Louis' DT Aaron Donald. Proving to be one of the NFL's best run defenders and generating pressure on quarterbacks that didn't always show up on the stat sheet, Mack was selected to the Pro Football Writers of America, Sports Illustrated and NFL.com All-Rookie Teams.

In 2015, Mack significantly surpassed the totals from his rookie year. After setting a new career high with his fifth sack in Week 10, he more than tripled his career high in sacks.

FIVE SACK GAME

Mack tied a franchise record set more than 32 years ago and set a career high with five sacks in Week 14 at Denver last year. His incredible performance matched Howie Long's five sacks on Oct. 2, 1983. Below is a look at the top single-game sack performances in franchise history:

Player	Sacks	Date
Khalil Mack	5.0	12/13/15
Howie Long	5.0	10/2/83
Kameron Wimbley	4.0	11/10/11
Anthony Smith	4.0	9/12/93
Anthony Smith	4.0	10/18/92

Mack became the first player with five sacks in a game in which his team won by three points or fewer since sacks became an official stat in 1982. All of Mack's five sacks came in the second half against Denver, tying for the most sacks in a half since 1991. Here is a look at the most sacks in a half since 1991:

Player	Sacks	Date
Khalil Mack (Oak.)	5.0	12/13/15
Vonnie Holliday (GB)	5.0	12/22/02
10 Tied	4.0	-

Since sacks became an official stat in 1982, only six other players have recorded more than five sacks in a game in NFL history. Mack is the sixth player to record five sacks and one forced fumble in a game. The last player to do so was Aldon Smith for the San Francisco 49ers in 2012. Below is a look at the six players to record five sacks and one forced fumble in game:

Player	Date	Sacks	FF
Chuck Smith (Atl.)	10/12/97	5.0	3
Derrick Thomas (KC)	9/6/98	6.0	1

SACK ATTACK

In Week 14 at Denver last year, Mack posted five sacks, the most in an NFL game this season, improving his season total to 14 sacks. With that performance, Mack jumped to the top of the NFL leaderboard in 2015 sacks. Mack added one more sack in Week 15 to finish the season with 15 sacks, good for second in the league.

J.J. Watt (Hou.)	17.5
Khalil Mack (Oak.)	15.0
Ezekiel Ansah (Det.)	14.5

Mack is the 14th different Raider with 10 sacks in a season and the first to do so since 2006 (Derrick Burgess and Warren Sapp). His 15 sacks this season are the most by a Raider since 2005 and the third most in franchise history.

FRANCHISE SINGLE-SEASON SACK LEADERS

Player	Sacks	Year
Derrick Burgess	16.0	2005
Sean Jones	15.5	1986
Khalil Mack	15.0	2015

Most of Mack's production came in the second half of the season, totaling 53 tackles (39 solo) with 11 sacks since Nov. 15, including three multi-sack games in Weeks 12-14.

Mack had a sack in four straight games from Week 12-15, tying the second longest streak by a Raider since 2001. The last Raider with a sack in four straight games was Desmond Bryant in 2012.

MULTI-SACK MACK

Mack notched at least two sacks in three straight games, making him the only NFL player to do so last season. His streak tied the second longest streak in the NFL since 2001.

Mack's five multi-sack games tie Anthony Smith (1991-92) for the most by a Raider through his first two seasons. He is also the first Raider with two sacks in three straight games since Derrick Burgess in 2006.

After totaling just four sacks in his rookie year, Mack propelled himself near the top of his class in his sophomore campaign and is second among his 2014 draft class with 19.0 career sacks.

QB Derek Carr was named the Raiders' starting quarterback heading into the 2014 season, becoming the first rookie QB in team history to start in Week 1. He has since become one of the first Raiders offensive player to start 33 games over his first two seasons. Praised for his poise and maturity as a young signal caller, Carr has already shown growth in a number of key areas. Here is a look at his career statistics:

DEREK CARR CAREER STATISTICS

RIISING TO THE TOP

In only his second NFL season, QB Derek Carr's statistics put him near the top of many of the NFL's passings lists. Here is where he stands in several major passing categories:

Category	Carr	2015 Rank
Passing TDs	32	T-7th
25+ Yard Completions	34	7th
TD/Attempt %	5.58	7th

Carr threw a career-high 32 TD passes last season, averaging two TDs per start. He threw TDs on 5.58 percent of his 573 attempts on the year, which was the seventh best TD percentage in the league in 2015. Carr finished the year just two TDs shy of the Raiders franchise record, currently held by Daryle Lamonica (34 in 1969). Here is where Carr ranked in TD passes in 2015:

The success of a young signal caller is often measured by his improvements from Year 1 to Year 2. After posting one of the most prolific rookie campaigns in NFL history, Carr has made the fifth biggest year-to-year improvement among quarterbacks who have started at least 10 games in each of the last two seasons.

MOST IMPROVED PASSER RATING FROM 2014 TO 2015

AMARI COOPER

FIRST-ROUNDER

WR Amari Cooper was tabbed as the Raiders' first-round draft pick in the 2015 NFL Draft and the fourth-overall selection. He was the highest wide receiver taken in the draft and the first receiver taken by Oakland in the first round since 2009. After enjoying one of the most dominant careers a wide receiver has ever had at the college level, Cooper saw that success translate to the NFL, as he became the first Raiders rookie to ever reach 1,000 receiving yards. Cooper also holds the franchise records for receptions and 100-yard games (five) by a rookie.

Age Not a Factor

- In Week 2 of 2015, Cooper became the youngest Raiders wide receiver and second youngest player in franchise history to catch a TD pass.

SIX 100-YARD GAMES

Cooper posted five 100-yard outings as a rookie, a franchise rookie record and tied with Keenan Allen (2013) for the most by any player 21-years-old or younger.

His five 100-yard games are tied for the second most by a rookie since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger (leader: Odell Beckham Jr., seven in 2014).

Cooper became the first NFL rookie since 1961 (Mike Ditka) with three 100-yard receiving games in his team's first six games.

Cooper joins DeSean Jackson (2008) as the only NFL rookies in the past 30 years with two 100-yard receiving games in their team's first three games.

In Week 3 at Cleveland (8 rec., 134 yds), Cooper became the first Raiders rookie with 100 receiving yards in back-to-back games since James Jett (Nov. 21-28, 1993).

Cooper got off to a hot start in 2016, hauling in a career-high 137 yards in Week 1 at New Orleans.

Raiders rally for thrilling season-opening win over Saints

By Jimmy Durkin

September 11, 2016

NEW ORLEANS — The Raiders opened the season with one heck of a thriller.

Derek Carr hooked up with Michael Crabtree for a two-point conversion after the Raiders scored a touchdown with 47 seconds left and Oakland stunned the New Orleans Saints 35-34 on Sunday at the Superdome.

New Orleans had one last chance to win, but kicker Wil Lutz was wide left on a 61-yard field goal as time expired and the Raiders celebrated a huge victory.

KEY MOMENTS

Bold move: The Raiders weren't interested in simply tying this game up after Carr hit Seth Roberts for a touchdown pass with 47 seconds to go. Coach Jack Del Rio called for a two-point conversion and, after a time out, Carr found Crabtree with a jump ball pass in the end zone to give the Raiders the 35-34 lead and ultimately the victory.

Immediate impression: Jalen Richard grew up in Louisiana, but had never set foot in the Superdome until this weekend. He impressed early in the game with a nice punt return that got negated by a penalty, but then he had his big shining moment in the fourth quarter. On the first carry of his NFL career, Richard exploded 75 yards for a touchdown. When Derek Carr hit Amari Cooper for the two-point conversion, the game was tied at 27 with 8:38 to play.

Fortuitous fumble: After the Raiders tied the game on Jalen Richard's 75-yard touchdown run, the Saints tried to answer and Drew Brees hit Coby Fleener for a deep pass. Reggie Nelson made the tackle and forced a fumble, but the ball bounced forward and Willie Snead recovered it at the 2-yard line. The Saints scored the go-ahead touchdown a play later to make it 34-27, but that didn't hold up.

Burnt toast: Marquette King and Andre Holmes set the Raiders up in a great position after the second drive of the third quarter stall. King's high punt was downed by Holmes at the 2-yard line to back the Saints up. It didn't matter. Brandin Cooks got free off the line from Sean Smith as he broke to the outside and quickly gained a step. Smith had no chance to make up that ground and when Brees deep ball down the left sideline hit Cooks in stride it was an easy 98-yard touchdown — the longest pass play and the longest offensive scoring play in New Orleans history. Smith was benched afterwards, with DJ Hayden replacing him at the outside cornerback spot.

Offensive dud: How could the game have started any better for the Raiders than by getting a strip sack from prized free agent pass rusher Bruce Irvin, which was recovered by rookie Jihad Ward at the Saints 21-yard line? What followed was utterly uninspiring. A holding penalty on Michael Crabtree on the first play backed the Raiders up and they followed with a pair of short screen passes and a running back draw. Sebastian Janikowski drilled his 47-yard field goal, but that doesn't exactly signify taking advantage of a tremendous situation.

IMPACT PLAYERS

Raiders QB Derek Carr: It took a while to get going, but the Raiders third-year quarterback delivered another fourth quarter comeback (he had four last season). He completed 24 of 38 passes for 319 yards and a touchdown.

Raiders WR Amari Cooper: The second-year star opened his season by fumbling a short pass out of bounds on his first reception. But he came back to have a terrific game, catching six passes for 137 yards along with the two-point conversion reception.

Raiders RB Jalen Richard: This was already a dream scenario for Richard to make his NFL debut at the Superdome. In addition to his first touchdown, he finished with three carries for 84 yards and two catches for 11 yards.

Saints WR Brandin Cooks: His 98-yard touchdown was the play of the game and gave the Saints a 24-10 lead at the time. He finished the game with six catches and 143 yards and two touchdowns and his speed was too much for the Raiders to deal with. Fellow receiver Willie Snead had nine catches for 172 yards.

Raiders' late gamble pays off with season-opening win
By Vic Tafur

NEW ORLEANS — The Saints were marching in for a good part of the game, and the penalty flags were flying in, but in the end, Sunday's season opener came down to standing your ground and guts. And the Raiders showed they have them and then some, coming back to win 35-34 in the final minute at the Superdome.

Especially head coach Jack Del Rio, who went all in with 47 seconds left in his team's first game.

Down by a point, Del Rio called for a two-point conversion, rather than kick for possible overtime, and Derek Carr floated a pass to a leaping Michael Crabtree for the winning points.

"We're here to win," Del Rio said of his decision. "Let's win it right now."

Carr had hit Seth Roberts for a 10-yard touchdown to trim the deficit to one and immediately put up fingers to signal the Raiders were going for the two-point conversion.

"I let them know early that drive that when we go score here, we are going to go for two and you are going to win it right here," Del Rio said.

The Raiders had the matchup they wanted in Crabtree against rookie cornerback Ken Crawley after starter Kelvin Breaux left in the third quarter with a broken leg.

Carr said, "I just put it on the top shelf and Crab did everything."

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

"Why not trust Crab?" Del Rio said, smiling. "He has great hands. Derek gave him a really good ball."

The Raiders, thanks to a 22-point fourth quarter, are 1-0 but left New Orleans with a lot more than that.

"It's just that kind of belief and that kind of trust, for a coach to believe in us like that," Carr said. "It just gives us so much confidence to have him do that for us."

It's the Raiders' first win on the road after trailing by 14 or more points since Sept. 10, 2000, against Indianapolis.

And they can thank resolve. Like Crabtree on the final drive, coming back for a pass and then fighting for a first down on 2nd-and-9 at the Saints' 35. Or Roberts forgetting about a drop four plays before his touchdown catch.

After Crabtree scored, the Saints did get to the Raiders' 43, but kicker Wil Lutz missed a 61-yard field-goal try on the game's final play.

Carr finished 24-for-38 for 319 yards and the touchdown, wasn't sacked and didn't throw an interception.

"That's the key, right?" Del Rio said. "Your trigger man has to make it happen for you. ... He traded punches with a great quarterback, Drew Brees."

Brees took advantage of a quiet Oakland pass rush and step-slow secondary to throw for 423 yards and four touchdowns.

Midway through the third quarter, Brees threw a franchise-record 98-yarder to Brandin Cooks to put the Saints up 24-10. Cooks beat Sean Smith in single coverage and then easily pulled away from him and safety Reggie Nelson.

Smith, the prized free-agent signing from Kansas City, was benched after the play.

Oakland rookie Jalen Richard delivered a 75-yard touchdown run on his first NFL carry to tie the score 27-27 with 8:26 left. The Raiders also had earlier touchdown runs of 6 yards by Latavius Murray and 2 by Jamize Olawale.

Brees and the Saints took a 34-27 lead on a 2-yard touchdown reception by Travaris Cadet, that was set up by a 43-yard pass to Willie Snead. The Raiders had a hard time finding the receiver with long blonde curls all day, as Snead finished with nine catches for 172 yards.

It was an ugly day before the sun came out, as the Raiders also had 14 penalties for 141 yards.

"I have never seen so many flags in my life," cornerback David Amerson said. "And our defense has a lot of things to work out; we got clipped pretty good in that shootout.

"But we got the win and that's all that matters."

Especially how they got it in the end, with their coach laying it all on the line.

Instant Replay: Raiders stun Saints with late TD in 2016 opener

By Scott Bair

September 11, 2015

NEW ORLEANS, La. – The Raiders went through the 2015 offseason receiving praise for transactions well made. Then they went out in that season opener against Cincinnati and got demolished.

The hype was amplified this spring and summer, with many considering the Raiders a playoff team. This time, in New Orleans, the Raiders put up a fight.

They erased a two-touchdown deficit in the second half, and countered every punch thrown by Saints quarterback Drew Brees and beat New Orleans 35-34 in a game that was simply bonkers.

The Raiders were down seven points with five minutes left, but drove 75 yards on 11 plays and tied it with a 10-yard touchdown catch from Derek Carr to Seth Roberts.

Then Jack Del Rio pushed his chips into the middle of the table and went for two. The Raiders converted with a catch by Michael Crabtree with 47 seconds left.

The Saints weren't done yet, and pushed the ball downfield on gave kicker Will Lutz a shot from 61 yards, but his attempt fell short and wide left.

Good football is rarely easy. It's a lot harder in a place like the Superdome, where the crowd can be energetic and at times intimidating in support of their Saints and quarterback Drew Brees.

The laser sharp signal caller carved the Raiders secondary, totaling 437 yards and four touchdowns in this one. That put an anvil on Derek Carr's chest, creating the need to score in bunches.

The Raiders did that to some extent, but had a tough time keeping pace. A 98-yard touchdown pass to Brandin Cooks in the third quarter – Sean Smith got flat smoked -- was a tide turner. It put the Saints up two scores.

The Raiders countered with a field goal, an unacceptable result in a high-scoring battle with Brees at the helm.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Brees applied pressure all day with steady, productive offense. He had 200 yards and two touchdowns by halftime, an alarming clip highlighted by scoring passes to Willie Snead and Brandin Cooks.

The Raiders had no answers on the outside, especially in dealing with Cooks. Smith got beat on the long touchdown catch and wasn't back on the field after. DJ Hayden didn't fare better as the defense failed to make stops when needed.

The Raiders tied it on a 75-yard touchdown by Jalen Richard and a subsequent two-point conversion. Brees responded with his fourth touchdown pass to take the lead with six minutes remaining.

McGill's surprise start: The Raiders mixed up their depth chart this week, putting Nate Allen in the first slot at strong safety over Karl Joseph. Neither guy started on Sunday.

Keith McGill did, however, after switching from cornerback this offseason. The Utah alum spent most of the preseason working with the second and third team, though he was given the nod. McGill was rarely used on defense in two previous seasons.

Thin up front: Right tackle Menelik Watson suffered a groin injury in the first half and did not return. That was the first issue with the offensive line, not the last. He was replaced by Matt McCants, who also suffered an injury that pulled him from the game. That forced the Raiders to adjust, with guard Kelechi Osemele moving to left tackle and Donald Penn shifting to right tackle.

This 'n that: The Raiders stuck with old returners after experimenting with several others this preseason. Taiwan Jones was back returning kickoffs and TJ Carrie handled punts ...The Raiders were heavily penalized in this game, as they were all preseason. They were flagged 14 times for 141 yards. ... Cornerback Sean Smith got beat on the long touchdown pass, and didn't come back on the next defensive series. DJ Hayden took his place at outside cornerback, with TJ Carrie entering in the slot.

Sitting it out: Tight end Mychal Rivera was a healthy scratch, a surprise to many who expected the Raiders to activate three at that position. Rivera has been behind Lee Smith and Clive Walford on the depth chart all summer. He was joined on the inactive list by Vadal Alexander, Connor Cook, Dexter McDonald, Antonio Hamilton and Austin Howard.

C.J. Spiller was a surprise scratch for the Saints.

What's next: The Raiders come back home to open their Oakland Coliseum slate against the Atlanta Falcons.

Gutsy call lifts Raiders past Saints, 35-34
By Brett Martel
September 11, 2015

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For Oakland coach Jack Del Rio, calling for a do-or-die, 2-point conversion was less a gamble than a philosophical declaration.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

Del Rio had no interest in a conservative point-after kick, and let his offense know it well before the decision had to be made. So when Derek Carr hit Seth Roberts for a 10-yard touchdown to cut New Orleans lead to a single point with 47 seconds left, kicker Sebastian Janikowski stood far from the action, helmet at his side, watching as Carr delivered a decisive fade pass to Michael Crabtree for a 35-34, season opening victory Sunday.

"Everyone knew about our strategy," said Del Rio, now in his second season with Oakland. "I didn't really ask for any feedback there. I said, 'When we score here, we are going to go for 2 and win it right here.'"

His Raiders had already demonstrated considerable resolve just to get to that point.

Oakland had to overcome a 14-point, second-half deficit and a 424-yard, four-touchdown performance by Drew Brees.

"The belief and trust that coach has in us gives us so much confidence," Carr said.

Brees called the late 2-point try gutsy, but not surprising.

"You'll see that from time to time. You feel like you have the momentum, and let's dial it up and let's win the game," Brees said. "I could see us doing that."

FURIOUS FINISH: After the Raiders took their late lead, they still had to sweat out rookie kicker Wil Lutz's last-second field goal attempt from 61 yards, which narrowly missed wide left as the Superdome crowd briefly erupted before realizing the kick was no good.

"I thought it was good off my foot," Lutz said. "The ball moved on me."

Jalen Richard ran 75 yards for a touchdown on his first NFL carry and Amari Cooper caught Carr's pass for a 2-point conversion to briefly tie the game at 27 in the middle of the fourth quarter.

But Brees marched New Orleans for another score, highlighted by a 57-yard completion that receiver Willie Snead fumbled and rookie wideout Michael Thomas recovered and advanced to the Oakland 2. That set up Travaris Cadet's short touchdown catch, giving New Orleans a 34-27 lead.

New Orleans nearly held on, but Saints linebacker Craig Robertson was flagged for interference on a fourth-down pass that sailed out of bounds.

"I'm not going to start the season off complaining about the officials. We have to play better," Saints coach Sean Payton said. "That was just one play."

BIG NUMBERS: Brees eclipsed 400 yards passing for the 14th time in his career, tying Peyton Manning for the most such performances in NFL history. Snead finished with nine catches for 172 yards, including fourth-down, 1-yard TD catch in the first half.

Carr finished with 319 yards and one touchdown passing against a Saints defense coached by his former Raiders head coach, Dennis Allen. The Raiders rushed for 167 yards, including touchdown runs of 6 yards by Latavius Murray and 2 yards by Jamize Olawale.

OAKLAND RAIDERS GAME RECAP CLIPS

RECORD TD: Brees' touchdowns included a franchise-record 98-yarder to Brandin Cooks, who beat Sean Smith in single coverage and raced away from free safety Reggie Nelson. It was a career-long passing play for Brees as well.

"Brandin got a great release, I threw it up to him and he did the rest," Brees said. "He looked like Usain Bolt running down the sideline there."

Previously, Billy Joe Hobert and Eddie Kennison owned the Saints' longest scoring play — a 90-yard connection against Atlanta on Oct. 10, 1999. The Saints' previous longest play from scrimmage was as 96-yard passing play from Billy Kilmer to Walter Roberts on Nov. 19, 1967, the franchise's inaugural season.

COOPED UP: Cooper, familiar to fans in the Gulf South from his college days at Alabama, elicited cheers of, "Cooop!" from an audible contingent of Raiders fans in the Superdome with a couple receptions for long gains. He finished with six catches for 137 yards.

CAREER KICKOFF: Lutz made two of four field goal attempts — missing twice from 50 or more yards — in his NFL debut. Payton made the surprising move of cutting veteran incumbent kicker Kai Forbath in favor of Lutz this past week after the undrafted rookie out of Georgia State had been waived by Baltimore. Lutz hit his first field goal from 42 yards. He also handled kickoffs and hit a 20-yard field goal that was tipped.

"I like this guy a lot," Payton said of Lutz. "He's going to be kicking long after I am coaching here. He's really talented. There are obviously going to be some bumps along the way."

General Manager Reggie McKenzie

THE SACRAMENTO BEE

Raiders' Reggie McKenzie learned tricks from one of trade's best

By Andy Furillo

September 4, 2016

Reggie McKenzie knew where to apply when it was time to pursue a career as a pro football executive.

It was 1994, and McKenzie – his playing days over and looking to become a scout – sent his résumé to the evaluator who first evaluated him.

As a scout for the then-Los Angeles Raiders in 1985, Ron Wolf recommended to Al Davis, the team's managing general partner, that the team draft McKenzie when he was a linebacker coming out of Tennessee. So when Wolf became the general manager of the Green Bay Packers, he had a fairly good idea what to expect in McKenzie – a hard worker who knew, loved and respected the game.

Wolf barely finished interviewing McKenzie for a scouting position when he'd made up his mind.

"I think I hired him on the spot," Wolf said last month.

McKenzie didn't know it at the time, but he was stepping into a hothouse where Wolf was growing a crop of future NFL player personnel executives.

The same year Wolf brought in McKenzie, he also hired Scot McCloughan as a scout. The staff already included John Schneider and John Dorsey, and the director of pro personnel was Ted Thompson.

Within four years, the Packers were rebuilt into Super Bowl champions. As a testament to Wolf's greatness, all five became NFL general managers, and Wolf later was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Thompson, who succeeded Wolf at Green Bay, and Schneider, now the general manager with the Seattle Seahawks, both created Super Bowl championship teams, like their former boss. Dorsey took a Kansas City Chiefs franchise that had endured five losing seasons in its last six and turned it into one that has made the playoffs twice in his three years. McCloughan, from Alameda, improved the losing Washington Redskins into a divisional champion in one year. It was McCloughan's second stint as a general manager – 49ers fans will remember him during the team's mediocre 2008 and 2009 seasons.

With his other protégés having experienced varying degrees of success, Wolf thinks McKenzie's time has come "to get on with it."

In four years, the Raiders are just 18-46, but Wolf gives McKenzie something of a mulligan. McKenzie walked into the job in 2012 with the franchise suffering under the weight of several years of bad drafts and lousy contracts that left it short of talent, and it has taken him a few years to work through the mess and mold the team into his own.

McKenzie has had three consecutive productive drafts and two strong offseasons of free-agent acquisitions. He also hired coach Jack Del Rio, who created a new energy and sense of confidence around the team. Now, in McKenzie's fifth year, the Raiders have a decent chance of winning the AFC West.

"You had to turn that whole thing around, and evidently he's been able to do that – to the satisfaction of the ownership there," Wolf said. "That's a really big plus for him. And nobody's rooting for him harder than I am. He's a heck of a person."

BRINGING STABILITY TO RAIDERS

McKenzie became the Raiders' general manager less than a year after the death of Davis, who saved the franchise in 1963 as head coach and later ruled it for 39 years. With Davis having complete and unchallenged authority, his teams won three Super Bowls. It had become almost inconceivable to think of the Raiders without Davis in charge. And in 2012, that inconceivability for McKenzie was topped off by the unsettling realization that he, of all people, had been named as the replacement.

"You had to step back and let it all sink in," McKenzie said.

While nobody knows where the Raiders will play home games over the long term, the team is moving ahead with a sense of stability. It starts with McKenzie, and Al Davis' son, Mark, now the chief executive of the team, acknowledged as much just before training camp began in late July when he signed McKenzie to a four-year contract extension.

"A lot of hard work went into it," McKenzie said of the drafts and player acquisitions that elevated the Raiders from laughingstock to contenders. "Hopefully, we can reap some benefits. It's good to see that Mark Davis sees the vision coming into play. We're on the same page, moving forward with this great organization. So I really feel good about the future of the Raiders."

With McKenzie at the controls, the Raiders in 2014 drafted defensive end Khalil Mack, now an All Pro. They also went for a second-rounder, Derek Carr, who looks like a future star at quarterback. In 2015, McKenzie drafted Amari Cooper, a potentially great wide receiver, and used the draft to load the team from front to back on both sides of the ball with talent and potential.

McKenzie's most prominent free-agent acquisition probably was wide receiver Michael Crabtree, who revived his career with the Raiders after falling out of favor with the 49ers. McKenzie stocked the offensive line with free agents, including Kelechi Osemele and Rodney Hudson. On defense, he signed lineman Dan Williams and linebackers Bruce Irvin and Malcolm Smith and defensive backs Sean Smith and Reggie Nelson.

McKenzie says he also looks for character in every rookie he drafts and every free agent he signs. The result is the most tangible of the intangibles – chemistry.

Del Rio thinks the Raiders have it, and he credits McKenzie.

"We're very pleased the way it has worked out for us," Del Rio said. "We feel like the guys who have come in really fit in well. They're good teammates, and the chemistry appears to be really good."

FINDING DIAMONDS IN DRAFT

Chemistry is great, but there has to be talent, too. The Raiders don't like to discuss their evaluation process, but the guru who spotted the ability that McKenzie brings to the job says it's pretty simple.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“What makes a good evaluator,” Ron Wolf said, “is the ability to determine who can and cannot play.”

Anybody can spot an Aaron Rodgers or a Peyton Manning, Wolf said. The genius is in finding a starter with a lower-round draft pick, such as running back Latavius Murray and tight end Mychal Rivera (both sixth round), linebacker Ben Heeney (fifth round) and defensive tackle Justin Ellis (fourth round). It takes hundreds of hours, Wolf said, sitting in the dark, studying film, to separate who can help from who cannot.

“Reggie had an advantage because he was a player, and he could fall back on his memory of who the good players were and the attributes they had,” Wolf said. “Eventually, he became my right-hand man with the Packers. He was a guy I trusted implicitly with running our football operation, our scouting operation. He did a masterful job of that. He had a knack of being able to pick out the guys who could play. He also had a command of all the other people who were playing in the league, and that was really beneficial.”

In 17 years with the Packers, McKenzie moved up from scout to director of pro personnel under Wolf and then to director of football operations under Thompson. The Packers made the playoffs 13 times, played in three Super Bowls and won two of them.

McKenzie watched and learned from Wolf, came to know him as one of the best talent evaluators in the history of the league. Wolf also knew how to scout a scout and what went into becoming a good one. Then, from the ones he hired, the Hall of Famer molded a wave of future executives who are among the most successful in the league.

Is McKenzie poised to join them? If so, it will probably be from the one thing he remembers the most from Wolf.

“No matter how anybody else sees it, he sees things with his own eyes,” McKenzie said of Wolf. “That’s what he told me – ‘Trust your own eyes.’ You can’t see for anyone else. You can only see for your own self.”

Head Coach Jack Del Rio

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Playing career earns Jack Del Rio respect

By Vic Tafur

September 7, 2016

There are photos of his wife and kids, of big fish caught, of him at USC — both as a young baseball player and at last year's Hall of Fame ceremony. But the biggest and most prominent pictures in Jack Del Rio's office in Alameda are of John Madden and Tom Flores, the Raiders' two Super Bowl-winning head coaches.

"That's the goal," Del Rio said.

Del Rio sat down for a one-on-one interview recently, despite being focused on Sunday's season opener in New Orleans that can't come soon enough.

Oakland improved from 3-13 the year before to 7-9 in Del Rio's first season, but, he said, "We want more. A lot more."

So Del Rio and his staff keep pushing.

The players love that Del Rio played in the NFL — and at a high level — and that he can relate to them in a way many coaches can't. The energy at practice and in the halls between meetings at the team's practice facility is much different than it was a couple of years ago with stoic head coach Dennis Allen.

For that, Del Rio owes a debt of gratitude to former Baltimore linebacker Ray Lewis, who played for Del Rio when he was the Ravens' linebackers coach. Del Rio won a Super Bowl ring with that team.

"He said to me, and I thought it was a real compliment, 'You keep it real,'" Del Rio remembered. "And I always felt like I could keep it real, because I have been in the trenches, I have had that helmet on, those pads on, I've been in the meetings. I understand what it's like to get up and compete every day..."

"I'm not asking them to do anything that I wouldn't do myself as a player."

If the players understand what a coach wants and believe it will get results, they will give it to him. So Del Rio works at having relationships with his players, and he enjoys the interaction.

To a point.

"I'm not trying to be anybody's friend," he said. "There is a respect for what they do and an appreciation for the fact that it's a player's game. As coaches, we provide a blueprint and a vision, and we want them to embrace that."

He even takes suggestions — quarterback Derek Carr said about 10 percent of the way things were done at training camp were changed after Del Rio met with the team's leaders.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

At his first head-coaching stop, in Jacksonville, Del Rio might not have been so agreeable. He used to cringe when he was called “a player’s coach.”

“I felt I really had to fight that when I was a young coach,” he said. “Because I was so close to playing. There were so many guys still in the league that I had played with or against. Six years after I started coaching, I was a head coach.

“So I was very sensitive then. ... Now, I am completely comfortable with that label. Being a player’s coach just means that you get it and you’re not so far removed.”

Speaking of labels, how about the “defensive coach” one?

“No, I don’t like that one,” Del Rio said. “I don’t like that because I am not. I mean, that’s what my background is, and if we’re going to talk X’s and O’s, I may have more to offer on that subject. But I am a head coach.”

Del Rio is heavily involved with everything, down to special teams.

“I am very much into the offense, very heavily invested in everything that makes up the team,” he said. “The weight room, strength and performance, how we’re feeding and training our guys, how we’re traveling. Everything that helps us be as good as we can be.”

A big key to the team’s improvement this year will be the free agents that Oakland signed. Del Rio thought the secondary was a glaring need, and the Raiders added former Kansas City cornerback Sean Smith and ex-Cincinnati safety Reggie Nelson. They also addressed the run game with former Baltimore guard Kelechi Osemele and the pass rush with ex-Seattle linebacker Bruce Irvin.

“The mystery with free agents you bring in is always the chemistry, how are they going to fit in,” Del Rio said. “You ask about guys beforehand, but you never really know until they’re in the building. But we’re very pleased with how everyone has fit in.”

The goal this year — as it was last year — is to win the AFC West, and that road goes through Denver and the Super Bowl-champion Broncos.

“Expectations are important,” Del Rio said.

That road is paved by 300-pounders, as Del Rio and general manager Reggie McKenzie agree that the foundation of a football team is the offensive and defensive lines.

“Being physical in the trenches is where it all starts for both of us,” Del Rio said.

The offensive line of (left to right) Donald Penn, Osemele, Rodney Hudson, Gabe Jackson and Menelik Watson should be one of the best in the league — which is good, because Del Rio wants to run a lot this season.

“An offensive line is a fist, and the fingers are starting to come together,” Del Rio said.

One can imagine Del Rio with his fists clenched on the sideline. He not only enjoys helping players reach their potential; coaching also feeds that competitive beast that still lies within.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"It's very addictive to me, the thrill of going in there knowing that you're putting your neck on the line," he said. "And you know that there are going to be Sundays where it gets chopped off. There's going to be pain. ... But I love it."

Del Rio is getting a fresh perspective now that his son, Luke, is going through that as a quarterback at Florida. Dad flew to see the sophomore's first start Saturday.

"It's awesome for him," Jack said. "I've always told him that I am more concerned with his character than what he does in sports. I never pushed him to play or do anything, because I knew there would be a lot of pressure to live up to this whole thing and I didn't want him to feel that. He still did."

Luke transferred from Alabama to Oregon State to Florida to pursue his dream of being a starting quarterback.

"Most people would have given up by now," Jack said. "He hung in there, kept the faith, kept grinding and kept paying the price."

Luke grew up watching his dad's game film, and then, about five years back, the script flipped.

"That was cool," Jack said. "He wanted to start talking ball. We started watching his stuff, his next opponents, showing him what I was seeing on defense. We would have sessions on the plane rides home where he would draw up a play and I would show him how defenses would adjust to it."

Jack attended Florida's spring practice this year and brought along a special guest, Academy Award-winning actor Gene Hackman. Hackman's wife and Del Rio were friends at USC.

"When he was doing 'The Replacements' in 2000, he came out to Baltimore and came to practice with her," Del Rio said. "And the four of us, with my wife, hit it off."

In "The Replacements," quarterback Shane Falco (Keanu Reeves) says, "Pain heals, chicks dig scars, glory lasts forever."

Del Rio couldn't have said it better himself.

"Winning in this league is hard," Del Rio said. "For us, it's just about preparing our butts off and then competing our butts off. All that other stuff is just talk."

"When we get our opportunities, if they're not going well, how is our resolve to bounce back? When they are going well, how do we put it behind us and move forward? One way or another, you're going forward."

The two things that pleased Del Rio the most this preseason were Carr's continued development and his team's work ethic.

"Last year, we showed them how we want to do things," Del Rio said. "This year, guys that were new, whether they were free agents or draft picks, heard from the guys that were here, 'Hey, this is how we do it.'"

Since-retired safety Charles Woodson was the team leader last season — “Him buying in was huge,” Del Rio said — but Carr and All-Pro defensive end Khalil Mack, each 25, have taken over the heavy lifting.

“Those guys are really hard workers, always on point, and players see the leaders doing it so they do it,” Del Rio said. “It’s become part of the culture....

“That’s your culture change.”

Raiders rookie will cherish his New Orleans homecoming

By Marcus Thompson II

September 10, 2016

At some point, Raiders rookie guard Vadal Alexander will take the field in Sunday's season-opener in New Orleans.

His aunts and uncles and cousins are going to scream. His mother, Rhonda, will likely cry. His father, James, will scream at the top of his lungs. And then he will cry.

"It's going to be phenomenal to see him run on the field," James said. "I grew up watching the Saints as a little kid. To see him on the field against the Saints, all the feelings that will be running through me..."

You almost have to be from New Orleans to understand the significance and symbolism of this moment. Alexander, who backs up starting right guard Gabe Jackson on the depth chart, is a son of New Orleans.

He grew up in Atlanta, where his father's job as a manager of Marshall's Distribution Center relocated the family when Alexander was 3. But he was born in New Orleans. His family is there. He spent holidays and weekends there. New Orleans is home.

Which is why the thought of him making his NFL debut there trips him out.

"The crazy thing about it is I never played in the Superdome," Alexander said. "I've never been in there. I get goose bumps thinking about that building. ... That building has a lot of power, it means a lot to the people of New Orleans. It's going to be special."

To New Orleans, the Superdome is so much more than a stadium. Since the mid-70s, it has been a staple in the lives of residents. It's part of the city's identity, right up there with jazz, the world's best cuisine and Mardi Gras.

For a region big on family and fellowship, it was a gathering point. It was a place where music and food and hospitality converged to celebrate life and dust off its problems. Even when the Saints were terrible, the Superdome was a blast. Many other community events — the Essence Festival, college football, concerts — made this a community hub.

Hurricane Katrina added even more sentimental value to the Superdome. It was the ark as the storm ravaged and the levees broke and New Orleans was baptized in devastation. The Superdome took a massive beating, inside and out, but most of the people who couldn't and didn't evacuate were spared.

"The house I grew up in was gone. We lost everything," said James, Alexander's father, who housed seven family members in Atlanta after Katrina hit. "It was hard to see what the Superdome went through."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Ten years ago this month, in one of the most emotionally charged sporting events in American history, the Superdome reopened and the Saints returned home.

"I was at the first game after it reopened," said New Orleans lifer Maurice Ruffin, an author and restaurant owner who is also Alexander's uncle. "Almost anybody who was there would tell you it was one of the most special moments. ... Now it's more beautiful than ever. It represents the rebirth of New Orleans. You can see our spirit in the Superdome."

The city of New Orleans has come to be known for its resilience since Katrina.

The people there have been through it all — natural disasters, governmental misconduct, economic disparity, crime, drug and violence epidemics, poor education, poor leadership, bouts with national irrelevance — and refuse to cower to struggle and bitterness. Nothing will take their joy, rob them of the passion that produces their renowned culture.

Even now, Baton Rouge is suffering through floods bad enough to provoke flashbacks of Katrina. Alexander — who went to college in the city at LSU and whose parents and grandmother still live there — has to swallow the hurt and worry.

His friends from college who are still there and other families are helping. He'd love to have joined them, but he had to focus on making the Raiders' roster and getting his pro career off to a good start.

"It makes me appreciate this, times 10," Alexander said. "My people made it. My people are strong. The people of south Louisiana are just good people. They want to be happy. They want to live life, take every day to the fullest. They know from experience every day may not be there."

That's why it means so much for Alexander to make it pro. And even more for him to make his debut on New Orleans soil. In the same place his father calls "a beacon of light."

The people of New Orleans and surrounding areas have experienced so many reasons to anguish and worry, they take full advantage of the chance to celebrate. Alexander will provide one this Sunday.

He represents how the party doesn't stop. The generations will go on. Legacies will be continued.

That's why several of his family members, who are Saints season ticket holders, will for one game be wearing silver & black.

"New Orleans can be an interesting and difficult place to live," Ruffin said. "Part of our spirit is the idea that family is important to us. The bottom line is that when times are good and times are bad, you always have your family."

Calhoun cross training to be Raiders' super-sub edge rusher

By Scott Bair

August 7, 2016

NAPA – Shilique Calhoun is used to attack mode. He spent most every snap at Michigan State with the opposing backfield in mind, where he was a regular in college.

He had 27 sacks as a Spartan, including 18.5 in his last two seasons. He was a traditional defensive end then, a pretty good one at that. The three-time second-team All-American has been asked to step back occasionally as a strongside linebacker. That's a hybrid position generally rushing off the edge, but Calhoun must be ready for anything at that spot.

The third-round pick is excited about a role being learned during his first NFL training camp.

"I don't believe that what they have me doing is outside my reach," Calhoun said. "I've covered in college, although not as much as I'm being asked to do now, and I think it's well within my athletic abilities. There are new responsibilities, and I haven't been put in a situation where I felt uncomfortable."

The Raiders want Calhoun ready for anything, as the primary backup rushing off the edge. He'll be used on a rotational basis at least, and will likely play a key role in moments this season.

"We try and cross train them to do multiple roles so that we have flexibility when the fall gets here," Del Rio said. "Shilique's done a nice job of being able to be a guy that can play when they're behind Khalil [Mack] or he can play in there behind Bruce [Irvin]. They're going to do both. We like them coming forward a lot, but they do have coverage responsibilities from time to time and so Shilique is learning, much like they're learning how to do both."

Calhoun left college a relatively polished pass rusher, with plenty of tools on the utility belt that help him get to the quarterback. The Raiders are adding more, but ultimately want to highlight his athleticism off the edge.

"You have to advance your skills at this level, but it was so great to hear them say they want me to be myself," Calhoun said. "They drafted me for a reason, because they like my style of play. We're trying to expand my repertoire a little more to counter what people have planned for you."

Calhoun has flashed threatening agility working with the second unit. He squared off against veteran Austin Howard earlier this week, and used great quickness to sneak underneath the big tackle and make a beeline for the quarterback. He earned a simulated sack then, one of several plays that indicate he's adjusting well to professional football.

"I have a long way to go, but I'm working through the process," Calhoun said. "I believe I have a great understanding of my role and what I'm being asked to do in terms of concepts of the defense. I've matured mentally, and I've gained some good weight. I'm right where I should be, knowing I have tons of work left to do. I have high expectations, and I want to exceed those."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Calhoun doesn't like simulated sacks, but knows real deals only come in games. His first game kicks off Friday at Arizona, where he hopes to bear fruit from this training camp's labor.

"We have some really good tackles, but I do try to get home a lot," Calhoun said. "I'm not sure how much I'm doing that. We'll have to see how efficient I am in the regular season, when it really counts. If I can't finish, a good rush doesn't mean a thing.

"This first preseason game is a great opportunity for the young players to showcase their talents in a game situation. I'm excited and ready to go. I'm counting the days down now."

Raiders' Heeney counts blessings after difficult off-season

By Jerry McDonald

July 31, 2016

NAPA -- The ensuing months since the end of the 2015 season have taught linebacker Ben Heeney about both life and death.

Heeney, his fiancée Taylor and 6-month old son, Tate, were en route to church on Easter Sunday in his home state of Kansas when something random and remarkable happened.

"I hit a patch of ice, the car spun out and the oncoming traffic was coming right at me," Heeney said. "The whole right side of the car was demolished."

Heeney and Taylor walked away from the accident. Tate was taken to the hospital, checked out and given a clean bill of health.

"God had a plan for me that day," Heeney said.

A few days later, Heeney got word that Brandon Bourbon, a college teammate at Kansas, had dropped out of sight. Bourbon's body was eventually found in his van in Maries County, Kansas, his death listed as suicide.

"He was my best friend from college," Heeney said. "It was a difficult offseason, I count my blessings every day."

Heeney may have a heightened sense of perspective at age 23, but it would be inaccurate to say he's more motivated. A projected starter and defensive signal caller at middle linebacker, Heeney has long been known for nonstop effort.

As the Raiders completed their first padded practice of training camp Friday, linebacker Bruce Irvin, who signed as a free agent, sized up his new teammate.

"It's only practice, so I can only imagine what he's like in a game," Irvin said. "He's not the biggest guy, but he plays bigger than he is."

When the 2015 season ended, most checklists had the Raiders in the market for a classic middle linebacker, a thumper who would help stop the run.

Heeney, at 6-foot, 230 pounds, doesn't fit the mold in that way, but his style of play could well be a better fit for the way Ken Norton Jr. wants to play defense.

"He's smart, he's fast and he's relentless," Norton said. "He has a nose for the ball, very instinctive. He's always getting better. You can't get him out of the film room."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

The Raiders released Curtis Lofton, a nine-game starter in 2015, and never made a move to get a middle linebacker in free agency or the draft. When training camp convened, Heeney was given the helmet with a green dot, meaning he'll be entrusted as the defensive signal caller, getting radio instructions from Norton.

Heeney's dilemma is a constant balancing act between the first instinct to be a heat-seeking missile and the voice in his head telling him to be patient and not overrun the play.

"There's a lot of times where I was overaggressive last year," Heeney said. "You definitely want the game to slow down as far as seeing your reads, but I like to play fast, go get the ball and make plays.

"You definitely want the game to slow down as far as seeing your reads, but I like to play fast, go get the ball and make plays," Heeney said.

The Easter crash was the second time Heeney escaped a potentially deadly situation. In high school, a propeller sliced his leg inches from an artery in a boating accident. Heeney recovered in six weeks, but still has numbness in his left leg in the thigh area.

Given all he's been through, Heeney realizes he's a lucky man.

"I've got a son, my beautiful fiancée and a baby girl on the way -- she's supposed to be here in about two weeks," Heeney said. "I've got a lot in my life. Hopefully I'll just keep moving forward."

Amari Cooper's friend, Johnny Holton, may surprise at Raiders' camp

By Vic Tafur

August 4, 2016

Amari Cooper called it a "once-in-a-lifetime story. I never heard of anything like that until he did it."

The Raiders' receiver was talking about a childhood friend who didn't play high school football and was discovered by a junior college when he was playing in the park.

That same friend who was walking off the practice field in Napa.

Undrafted free-agent Johnny Holton.

Holton turned some heads with back-to-back deep catches in Monday's practice, just as he did in that Miami park five years ago.

"I was starting to think it was over for me and football, but I kept my faith," Holton said. "I still dreamed about playing in the NFL one day."

Holton is one of 11 kids, and because he didn't take high school seriously, anyway, he got a job working at a grocery store to help his mom make ends meet.

He loved football; he and his brother had played in the park with Cooper since they were 11, and he still played in a 7-on-7 flag-football league on weekends. "Our team was called ESPN," Holton said, smiling. "Lot of highlight plays."

A coach from the College of DuPage in Glen Ellyn, Ill., saw Holton in the park when he was in town to see another player. He liked the highlight plays.

With the door opened, Holton quickly took and passed the GED and scored 15 touchdowns for the Chaparrals in two seasons.

He transferred to Cincinnati and showed his big-play potential, averaging 19.4 yards per catch (46 for 892) and scoring 10 touchdowns in two seasons. Holton missed seven games last year with a hamstring injury and wasn't a coveted participant at the NFL combine.

Many teams flagged him as too skinny or too raw. The Chiefs even made him work out as a defensive back.

After the draft, Holton had offers from two teams — the Raiders and Lions — when he used a lifeline and phoned a friend.

"Of course, I gave him some advice," Cooper said. "I want him to be successful, so I pointed him in this direction."

Holton, who is two years older than Cooper, was leaning toward Oakland, anyway.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I thought it would be good to team up with a friend," Holton said. "We were never on the same team growing up."

Cooper made the Pro Bowl in his rookie season last year, and Holton said that even at 11 years old, Cooper was a star.

"He was the real deal growing up, too," Holton said.

Cooper said Holton wasn't too shabby himself, and his friend already has shown the coaches his ability to beat defensive backs deep.

"He's made some great catches here," Cooper said. "He has qualities you look for in a receiver. No one can jam him at the line, and he's fast. He's developing nicely."

Holton followed up his nice breakout with a leaping catch Wednesday that got some oohs and aahs from the fans in attendance.

Raiders head coach Jack Del Rio said he heard the cheers for Holton, but added, "We'll learn more as we go." That's coach-speak for, "Don't ask me about a guy we may try to sneak onto the practice squad."

Making the 53-man roster will be tough, as Oakland is set at the first four receiver spots with Cooper, Michael Crabtree, Seth Roberts and Andre Holmes. Holton's chances would improve if he returned punts well, and he got his first look there Thursday.

He will keep grinding and honor the biggest piece of advice that Cooper gave him: "Never take a day off."

That won't be a problem for Holton.

"I am so blessed to be wearing the Silver and Black," Holton said. "I used to go to high school football games and just watch after I got off work. And now I am here."

Amari Johnny Holton, From Flag Football Talent To NFL Prospect

By Kyle Martin

August 11, 2016

Oakland Raiders wide receiver Johnny Holton grew up in Miami, Florida, along with friend and fellow Raiders wide receiver Amari Cooper. Holton attended Coconut Grove High School as a teenager, but wasn't focused on playing football. His priorities were elsewhere. As one of 11 children in his family, he focused on helping around the house, "By me working, I was just trying to make money to support my family," said Holton.

Holton put his family first, above his own personal desires, and felt obligated to contribute to his household. Although Holton was preoccupied with being a quality family member, he did enjoy playing flag football recreationally at a local park.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Holton's potential stood out to a college scout who happened to witness him play and offered him a chance to develop his talent at the College of DuPage in Glen Ellyn, Ill. Recently, Cooper talked about watching Holton play at the park and their relationship on 95.7 The Game and watching him play. "The park is right across the street from his house and there would always be flag football tournaments," said Cooper, "I would go out there and watch sometimes...there was a junior college coach watching him play and he was impressed."

During his time in Junior College, Holton helped his team get to eighth overall in the NJCAA rankings. He was also named to the First Team All-Midwest Football Conference back in 2012 and had 23 catches for 548 yards including eight touchdowns. From one stage to the next Holton continued to progress as a player.

Holton credits that part of what made him successful in college was his ability to make plays after the catch. "The games I played in I had a big impression, I was leading the nation with 27.1 yards per catch," Holton said. After playing College of DuPage for two years, he was swooped up by the University of Cincinnati. In both of his years spent with the Bearcats, he had five receiving touchdowns and could've had a 99-yard kick return touchdown had it not been called back due to a penalty.

Coming out of college as an undrafted free agent, Holton reached out to Cooper and asked for his advice on what he should do. "He just told me I'm good enough to play anywhere in the NFL, just look at my options," said Holton, "I decided I wanted to be close to him and thought I had an opportunity here [with the Raiders]."

So far through training camp, Holton has opened the eyes of his coaches and peers. He's flashed a lot of athleticism and speed, while making impressive plays. Holton is putting his best foot forward to try to join his friend Cooper in the receiving corps. With the Raiders first preseason game scheduled for tomorrow night against the Arizona Cardinals, Holton will have plenty of opportunities to show what he's capable of.

With the next chapter in Holton's story set to begin, he'll be an interesting player to watch going forward.

Q&A: Bruce Irvin trying to take on Raiders' 'bully mentality'

By Vic Tafur

August 15, 2016

The number shines down on him just like the Napa sun.

"Fifteen sacks," Bruce Irvin said.

That's the number that Khalil Mack, Irvin's new teammate and opposite-end pass rusher, had for the Raiders last season.

"I hope they put three or four people on him and just let me run free," Irvin said, smiling.

Irvin is reunited with defensive coordinator Ken Norton Jr. after the Seahawks didn't pick up the fifth-year veteran's contract option. "I couldn't have been put in a better situation," Irvin said.

He sat down for a one-on-one interview after a recent training-camp practice. Among other things, he touched on leadership, being feared, Raiders tradition, Mack, his biggest surprise since joining the team and fights at training camp:

There has been a transfusion of new blood here with you, Sean Smith and Reggie Nelson on defense. What do you bring to the mix?

Irvin: Leadership. And not just talking about it, but leading by example. You have to get guys believing in one thing, and that's playing for each other. That, and try and get better every day.

When you guys take the field in the season opener against (New Orleans quarterback) Drew Brees, what do you want to be going through his mind when he looks across the field?

Irvin: Fear. We want to be feared. Not just on defense but as a team. We want to be physical and punish people. That's the biggest thing. We want people to look at the Raiders, and say, "That's a tough, nasty physical team. ... They're going to run the ball and they're going to play great defense."

Teams can take on the personalities of their coaches. Did you just describe Jack Del Rio and Ken a little bit?

Irvin: Definitely. They're a couple of bullies, and we're taking on that bully mentality. But that's just the Raiders, period. You look at the old teams here, and they would do a little extra after the play. It is what it is. That's the appearance you want to have, like you will do anything to win.

Did the young core of Mack, Derek Carr and Amari Cooper clinch it for you when you decided to sign here?

Irvin: It's a young team on the rise. And they added a lot of key pieces in the offseason. I looked at that, too. And playing in a familiar defense with one of the best players in the league in Khalil Mack.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

What makes Mack special?

Irvin: Regardless of the success he's had his first two years in the league, he's always willing to learn, always willing to see it from my perspective or somebody else's. He is a very humble person who is going to continue to get better each and every year.

You mentioned the known things coming in. Anything surprise you about your teammates in the offseason workouts and camp?

Irvin: (Middle linebacker) Ben Heeney. I really like Ben. High-motor guy who's not very big but plays bigger than he is. One thing about Ben is he's going to leave it out there for you every play. I have a genuine appreciation for that.

A lot has been written about you and Ken. But you're also reunited with (linebacker) Malcolm Smith, who was the MVP of the Super Bowl you won in Seattle. Have you seen any changes in Malcolm?

Irvin: It's a new Malcolm, because he is getting an opportunity. He didn't get a lot of opportunities in Seattle. He's been given a chance to be a leader and big-time playmaker for us, and he is doing a great job at that.

Do you have a chip on your shoulder about how it ended in Seattle?

Irvin: That's water under the bridge. I could never thank (coach) Pete (Carroll) and (general manager) John (Schneider) enough for putting me in a great situation and helping me grow as a player and as a man. But it's time to move on. I feel like I didn't reach my full potential in Seattle, and I am going to take full advantage of that opportunity here.

You tweeted out that you didn't want teammates to read the clippings and believe the hype. But ... you peek a little, right?

Irvin: Yeah. ... It is always good to be talked about. You get tired of hearing about the other 31 teams. It's good to get loved on sometimes. But it doesn't mean anything. So remember that.

What's the secret to not losing it at training camp? Meetings all day, practices, having a roommate. ... How do you ease the grind?

Irvin: You have to go out of your way to make it fun, otherwise you'll be miserable. It's draining. So you have to crack a lot of jokes at each other's expense, shoot hoops ...

Who's the guy to beat in hoops?

Irvin: The defensive backs have a lot of shooters. We have shooting contests, 30 seconds for each guy to make as many as he can, each position group. The last three days, the defensive line has won. Me and Khalil, and Shilique Calhoun and Darius Latham can both shoot.

There have also been some boxing contests between some of your defensive teammates and guard Kelechi Osemele. Is that just part of the camp grind?

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Irvin: That's just who he is. He's a physical, tough-nosed guy. We just have to get him to understand that we're all on the same team. You can't try and hurt your own guy. But he is on a new team. They may have practiced differently in Baltimore. ... He's a good guy. Going to be a great player for us. Can't wait to see him out there in the opener. Just another Raiders bully.

Still standing: Sebastian Janikowski's unlikely path to Raiders royalty

By Don Banks

June 22, 2016

OAKLAND — You hear him coming down the hall before you see him, and by the time he breezes into the room and slowly slides himself into a chair, you're already starting to get why everybody here in Raiders country seems to adore Sebastian Janikowski.

He wears a perpetual bemused smile and a cap turned backwards in his trademark fashion, the look of a guy who hasn't had a real worry in years. At 38, and entering his 17th season as an NFL kicker, there are, to be sure, a few lines on his round, jowly face these days. But he laughs easily and often, and appears quite comfortable in his weathered skin. With more than a hint of his thick Polish accent still present, a playful manner that never goes out of style, and that Hall of Fame nickname, the man they affectionately call "Seabass" is regarded as royalty around the Raiders' complex. He's a walking, talking (and kicking) Oakland institution.

"He's one of my favorite teammates I've ever had, he really is," Raiders third-year quarterback Derek Carr says. "He's got such a good heart. I talk to him every morning, and he sits behind me at every team meeting. He means the world to me."

"He's the guy around here," says Oakland fullback Marcel Reece, a teammate of Janikowski's since 2008. "We treat him like he's one of one. An original. A living legend. He's been here so long he's like a statue in front of the building. But he's one of the greatest people I've met in football, and he's a warrior."

Adds veteran Raiders offensive tackle Donald Penn: "Who doesn't love Seabass? He's like a fixture here. I would love to give him a fairy tale ending, to see him go out with the Raiders on top. But knowing Seabass, he's probably still got at least three more years in him."

The mind boggles at the thought, but it's been 16-plus years since strong-willed Raiders owner Al Davis stunned the NFL world and elicited howls of derision by taking Janikowski 17th overall out of Florida State in the 2000 draft, the first kicker selected in the first round of a non-supplemental draft since the Saints' failed Russell Erxleben experiment in 1979. But who's laughing now, with the colorful and cannon-legged Janikowski about to give Oakland a 17th season of production in return for that gutsy No. 17 pick? How many clubs ever realize that rich of a return on a draft investment?

"I think it's a hell of a return," says Janikowski, as blunt as ever. "I'm still going strong. I don't know how many guys are even still playing from the Class of 2000 draft. I think I'm the only one." (Well, there is that Tom Brady character, too, along with Janikowski's old teammate Shane Lechler.) "Everybody was like, 'What's Al Davis doing?' But hey, 17 years later and I'm still kicking, so they did something right."

Not only is he still kicking, but for the majority of his first 16 seasons as a Raider, Janikowski was arguably Oakland's best player and only real star attraction, a beacon of steady production amid the franchise's long, painful stretch of ineptitude. And yet after all these years, how is it that we hear so little about Janikowski, maybe the most underappreciated great player in recent NFL history? Chalk it up perhaps to Oakland's desultory decade-plus of putrid play.

After reaching the playoffs in each of Janikowski's first three seasons, capped by that Super Bowl trip at the end of the 2002 season, the Raiders are mired in a 13-year postseason drought that trails only Buffalo's 16-year odyssey of frustration. In 10 of those seasons, Oakland mustered five or fewer wins, topping out at 8-8 in both '10 and '11. Unless No. 11 was taking the field to bang home another long-distance kick, the Silver and Black have rarely been worth watching.

"We've lost some games, that's true," Janikowski says. "After my first three years, when we went to the playoffs and the Super Bowl, in my mind, it was like, that's how it works. Every year, playoffs. Then 13 years later, still no playoffs, and suddenly you're in the desert. You're at home watching the damn playoffs and everybody else is playing in them. You're like, 'Man, we should be in it. We should be out there.' But I think that's going to change soon."

There is finally legitimate hope in Oakland after last season's four-game improvement to 7-9, and Janikowski is dying to kick for a winner again. His 252 career games are more than any other Raider has ever appeared in, and his powerful left leg is the stuff of legend, responsible for 385 field goals in 480 career tries (80.2%) and NFL records like longest overtime field goal (57 yards in 2008), most 50-yard-plus field goals in a game (three in '11), and most 60-yard-plus field goals in a career (two, tying him with Morten Andersen).

All that he lacks at this point is that amplifying blast of late-career glory that would come with team success, giving even greater meaning to his impressive statistical accomplishment and his revered status as the Raiders' long-time survivor, the sole remaining link to Oakland's last Super Bowl team.

It's easy to forget from the vantage point of 2016, now that he's a solid citizen and beloved member of the organization and Oakland community, but there were times early on when Janikowski's career seemed to be going off the rails, destined to end almost before it began.

"No way he was going to make it this long"

Back in 2000 and '01, Janikowski's catchy nickname was more likely to elicit eye rolls than smiles, especially for then Raiders coach Jon Gruden, who grew exasperated with his kicker's inconsistency and his insatiable love of the party scene.

With that gaudy first-round target on his back, Janikowski was supposed to come in and immediately shore up Oakland's bedeviled kicking game, which in 1999 saw free-agent signee Michael Husted struggle mightily before being released after 13 games. Davis is said to have pinpointed a half-dozen games in '99 that were lost in part due to kicking failures (Oakland finished 8-8), and thus decided to go big and bold in the 2000 draft, selecting both Janikowski and Lechler, the big-legged Texas A&M punter who went in the fifth round.

But the pressure of kicking in the NFL nearly broke Janikowski, a two-time All-America selection at Florida State. He was just 22 of 32 in field goals that season (68.8%), and struggles with injuries (a case of cellulitis cost him two games) and his shaky transition to the longer pro season made his debut an endurance test he nearly flunked. He missed seven of his first 13 field goal tries in 2000.

"It was rough, the whole season," Janikowski says. "I was nervous as hell. I didn't know what to expect. And because I was a first-round pick, the spotlight is on you. You want to show the guys you were worth that pick, but you've got to be perfect. I was a young guy coming out and dealing with a lot of problems. I had off-field issues in college and all that stuff, and there's so much pressure on you that sometimes you think maybe I should have just gone in the fourth round."

Those "off-field issues" at FSU, including a pair of bar fights, followed Janikowski to the NFL, where a string of incidents highlighted his immaturity and obvious issues with drugs and alcohol. Early in his Raiders career, Janikowski's behavior was erratic enough to pose a serious public relations problem for the organization, the type rarely caused by kickers. Two months after being drafted, he was arrested on suspicion of felony possession of the date-rape drug GHB (he was later found not guilty), and in October 2001 he needed to be taken to the hospital to close a cut on his face after passing out in a San Francisco nightclub where some witnesses had said they saw him take the drug. In June 2002, he was charged with reckless driving in Tallahassee, and he was arrested in October of that year on a drunken driving charge, serving three years of probation after pleading no contest.

Still months shy of his 25th birthday, Janikowski was already at a crossroads in his career, which was beginning to be defined by his off-field problems. He has credited that drunk driving arrest in 2002 as being the impetus he needed to make real changes in his behavior, and his career began to flourish after he got his drinking under control.

"I definitely went through some stuff," Janikowski says. "I stuck with the Raiders and they stuck with me. My life now is not what it used to be back in the day. I mellowed a long time ago. I've got family, my kids [twin girls], they're going to be four in September. You grow up, you move on. I still have fun, but now it's with my kids. Back in the day, I'd be out somewhere on the street."

Back in the day, Raiders Hall of Fame receiver Tim Brown didn't give Janikowski much of a chance of making it to year seven in the NFL, let alone year 17. He marvels at Janikowski's ability to re-write the narrative of his career.

"I'm shocked that he's made it this far, because I thought there was no way he was going to make it this long in the league," says Brown, who played with the kicker from 2000 to '03. "It's always amazing when I see Seabass now and see how much of a gentleman he is and how he talks about his wife and kids. My first reaction was, 'Oh, my God, his poor wife.' But I realize he's a different man, he's a changed man. He had a lot of pressure on him when he first got to Oakland, and I don't think he was handling it very well. And his way of handling things was to go out and do more of what he had been doing the night before. That was the big issue."

Because his teammates were well aware of his partying lifestyle, Janikowski often didn't receive the benefit of the doubt if he missed a kick or struggled through an off day.

"When mistakes happen, and everybody knows you've been out partying all night and you've been out doing all this crazy stuff, then people are not going to believe you're taking this thing seriously," Brown says. "I know there were several times when he missed field goals in games, and you heard guys wondering on the sideline, 'Well, yeah, he shouldn't have been out last night or Friday night, whatever.'"

"I just think he was so talented as a kicker, he always felt like he was going to be O.K. He didn't believe in that karma thing. For a few years he just had a reputation that he just didn't care much about what was going on. Now, he would tell you he cared, and it's not like he didn't work hard in practice. But at the same time, he was working just as hard off the field on all that other stuff."

Lechler, now entering his fourth season with the Texans, was Janikowski's running partner early on, and he has seen the full arc of his friend and ex-teammate's journey from near calamity to respectability. To be young with too much disposable income and time on your hands in the NFL has long been a recipe for trouble, and Janikowski consistently found it.

"Bass came a long way, and everybody knows the Florida State stories, how [coach Bobby Bowden] treated him and gave him a long leash down there," says Lechler, who held for Janikowski at the 2000 NFL scouting combine and then throughout their 13 seasons together in Oakland. "But once we got to the NFL, and I even lived with him my first two years, I mean, we had some moments where you'd wake up the next morning like, 'Man, we've gotta quit this, you know? We've got to start focusing just on football.' Thank God there wasn't a whole lot of social media at the time and stuff like that."

In those days, Janikowski the partier was every bit as adept as Janikowski the kicker, Lechler recalls. Not that it was a sustainable career trajectory.

"It wasn't like we were out raising hell every night, but we had our times," Lechler says. "I get asked the question all the time: 'I bet that was crazy running with Seabass,' and I'm always like, 'Yeah, it was crazy, maybe like three nights a month. The rest of the time he was fine, just normal stuff. But we had a good time, and Bass of all people, he can have just as good a time as anybody you can find in this world. He can be a blast.'"

Janikowski has almost started to look like the old pirate in the Raiders' logo over the years—sans eye patch—but he's a 6' 1", 265-pound softie at heart, according to Lechler.

"He's a guy I would say that 90% of NFL fans would love to hang out with," Lechler says. "And I wish they all could, because for one it would get the bad reputation out of people's heads. He'll go and have a few beers with you, and he'll maybe miss a curfew now and then. But if you get to know deep down what the guy's like, he's a guy you'll want to be your friend, I promise you."

"There was nobody in the game better, and we knew it"

About the nickname: Janikowski came into the league with several monikers, but Seabass is the one that endured. He can tell you the wonderfully straightforward story behind it.

"Seabass is the best nickname, and it's stuck since [former FSU star receiver] Peter Warrick back in college," Janikowski says. "He said Sebastian was so long for him that he didn't want to say it. So he started calling me Seabass at Florida State and it stuck with me. That's all I'm ever called. I should [trademark] it."

If Janikowski does have a trademark of sorts, it's for playing with the psyche of the opposing team in pregame warmups. His booming left leg was always his trump card.

"This is how we approached every pregame warmup: No matter what, wherever their kicker kicked a field goal from, we went five yards further than them and kicked," Lechler says. "If we were in Denver, with that light air, we'd get back in the 68-69-70-yard range just to kind of get the upper edge in the mind games. I never even had to ask him, 'Where do you want to kick the next one from?' I just went five yards further than where the opposing kicker just kicked from, and that's where we lined up."

When it calls for classic Seabass stories, the ones that show him at his most colorful and quirkiest, Lechler is a human Wikipedia page. They didn't just live together those first two years in the NFL, they were practically inseparable as friends and fellow elite kickers. They were very, very good for a team that was usually very, very bad, and they shared that bond proudly.

“There was a stretch of four or five years there where there was nobody in the game better, and we knew it,” says Lechler, who went to seven Pro Bowls in his Oakland tenure. “We kind of had the same, I guess you’d say, attitude about toward the game. There was just a chemistry and approach to football that we shared. And we are both competitive as hell.”

Not that there weren’t annoying little differences between them that cropped up at regular intervals. Like on their rides together to Raiders home games, when Janikowski always insisted upon driving.

“I rode with Bass in his car to every home game we ever played together, and his music that he likes is way different than mine,” Lechler says. “He’s a big techno guy and I’m straight country. When we were riding, I’d get at least one of my songs in, but he’d never listen to one of mine as we were actually pulling into the stadium parking lot. Never once. It had to be his music.”

Kickers can be somewhat eccentric by nature, of course, and Janikowski developed more than a few idiosyncrasies, some of which drove his punter a little nuts.

“He had two things that bothered me,” Lechler says. “One, he wrote his number, No. 11, on his hat 11 times. It made every hat look awful. It just ruined every hat. I’d be like, ‘They just gave you that thing.’ I don’t why, but I like hats and that bugged me that he did that same thing every time. And it was No. 11, so it looked just like tally marks all over the hat. I’d be like, ‘What are you doing, man?’

“Then the other thing was no matter what kind of shape the kicking balls were in that day, he yelled at the ballboys. I actually told the ballboys, ‘Hey, listen, this is part of his routine. Those balls are probably the best balls I’ve kicked in five years, but he’s going to yell at you. I don’t care what you throw out there.’ It’s just what he does.”

As it turns out, Janikowski and Lechler don’t even agree when it comes to picking the biggest or best kick of Seabass’s storied career. Janikowski goes with his 57-yard game-winner in overtime to beat Brett Favre and the visiting Jets in October 2008, the longest OT field goal in NFL history.

“[Raiders coach Tom Cable] looked at me and said ‘Go win it,’ like he really believed in me,” Janikowski says. “But if I don’t make that field goal, they were in such good field position that they could have made one play and they win it.”

Lechler has a different perspective. He’s convinced the 61-yarder that Janikowski somehow nailed in terrible conditions in Cleveland in December 2009 was his finest moment, even if it came in a 23–9 Raiders loss.

“The Jets kick was a big-time kick, but the 61-yarder in Cleveland in the snow, that was the best kick of his NFL career,” Lechler says. “I mean, the wind’s blowing and it’s kind of snowy mix, and it cold and miserable, just typical Cleveland in December. It’s one of the only times I ever jogged out there and thought, ‘He ain’t got a chance to make this one.’ But I put it down and he split the uprights, and I’m like, ‘Holy s---.’ ”

Going unselected by both, curiously, was the league-record-tying 63-yarder Janikowski converted at the end of the first half on a Monday night in Denver in September 2011, a mark since broken by the Broncos’ Matt Prater, who hit a 64-yarder in ’13.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“He couldn’t pick that one, because he mishit the 63-yarder in Denver,” Lechler said. “He didn’t even get it good.”

Adds Janikowski: “I didn’t even really hit it hard, because in Denver with the elevation, you don’t have to. I can’t even imagine what the record might be if I got to play my whole career in Denver. Seventy yards? I think so, I mean, I’ve got to say it.”

But perhaps the quintessential Janikowski highlight, the one that captures him in all his one-of-a-kind glory, took place in Kansas City’s Arrowhead Stadium on Christmas Eve 2011. The Chiefs and Raiders were tied 13–13 in overtime, but Oakland was driving for the game-winning field goal try. Then a Chiefs fan unwisely tried to get into Janikowski’s head. Or thereabouts.

“We’re warming up on the sideline, and in Kansas City the stands are like right on top of the visiting sideline, and there’s really no room to warm up,” Lechler says. “All of a sudden this big dude throws like a chili cheese nacho and hits Seabass pretty much right in the numbers. And we’re in our white road jerseys. It’s like right on his stomach. Now, he’s not a fat guy, but to have chili and cheese on you in a white uniform, when you’re built like that, it’s not a good look.

“So now he stopped warming up because he was pissed off at the guy, and I’m like, ‘Great, now he’s mad at this guy and distracted, we’re not going to make this kick.’ He’s got the trainers trying to get all that s--- off him and they’re spraying water on it. So now we go out there, and it’s not a deep kick [36 yards], and boom, he kicked it, gives me a quick high five, and then sprints right back to the warmup spot, right to that guy. I don’t know what he said over there but I can imagine what he said. I didn’t see him again until the locker room. That was a great moment right there. That was a fun one.”

“I wouldn’t want to be the next first-round kicker”

Sixteen years after the Raiders rolled the dice on Janikowski in the first round, there was an echo of their bold pick when the Buccaneers chose another Florida State kicker, Roberto Aguayo, in the second round with pick No. 59. That’s the highest selection used on a kicker since the Jets took Ohio State’s Mike Nugent in the second round in 2005 at No. 47. In the selection of Aguayo, the Bucs seemingly gave a vindicating nod to Seabass’s long and prolific career.

“Yeah, I’m still doing it, and if the Bucs get what the Raiders got out of me, that’s a great pick,” Janikowski says. “I still watch Florida State a lot, and he’s going to turn out to be one of the greatest kickers. I think he’s going to have a hell of a career, but I know how much pressure he’s under.”

Though Oakland once again has Italian-born kicker Giorgio Tavecchio on the roster and slated to compete with Janikowski in camp, there’s no sense that Seabass is in any real roster jeopardy, even with his pricey-for-a-kicker $3.96 million salary cap number and two years left on his contract. Janikowski seems energized by the Raiders’ return to competitiveness, and for the past two years he has taken part in Oakland’s off-season program at coach Jack Del Rio’s behest, rather than stay home in Florida until training camp, as was his custom.

He paces himself now, and tries to be smarter about his conditioning and kicking load, but he talks openly about his desire to kick into his mid-40s, as legendary kickers such as Jan Stenerud, Morten Andersen, Gary Anderson and Adam Vinatieri have done.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I'm not even close to being done, the way I feel," Janikowski said. "I have always believed I have the potential to kick as long as I want to kick. I still feel good, and I still love running out there on the field and being under pressure, hearing the fans. Whether they're booing you or screaming for you, I just love it."

Just ahead on his career radar screen is the NFL record for most 50-yard-plus field goals, which he currently holds along with longtime Lions kicker Jason Hanson. Janikowski has made 52 such kicks, on a whopping 92 attempts, and he did it without ever playing in a climate-controlled dome, as Hanson did for his entire career in Detroit. Remember that when his Hall of Fame candidacy is being bantered about.

"Keep in mind, he's been kicking for 16 years outdoors in a stadium that's below sea level, and playing up to four home games a year on a field that still has infield dirt with the A's playing there," says Lechler, who is still punting as he approaches 40 in August. "And he's still top five in the game. He's done it at a high level in a place where it's not groomed for success. To hold on for all that time in Oakland, my hat's off to him. Could anybody else have done that? I don't know."

Those who know him best say Janikowski is fiercely proud, still driven by any slight, both real and imagined, and after being burned by friends as far back as his college days, he has always had difficulty trusting others. He may still be wary, but he's not wearied. And toward the end of his long, sometimes strange trip in the NFL, Seabass has become both a mainstay and an unlikely icon in Oakland, as admired for his perseverance as he is for his production as a Raider.

He revels in being Seabass, and it's not hard to notice that just being in his company puts the people around him in a good mood. If there's a gravitational center in the Oakland locker room, it's wherever No. 11 happens to be standing. In uniform, he's as relaxed and comfortable as an old shoe. Providing it's on his left foot, and laced up tight for kicking.

"We love the guy around here," Penn says. "And I know this, I wouldn't want to be the next first-round kicker to come into this league. Because that guy's got a lot to live up to after Seabass."

Marquette King Is the N.F.L.'s Only Black Punter. How Come?

By Carvell Wallace

February 5, 2016

Marquette King remembers being astonished the first time he stepped onto an N.F.L. field. Even though it was only preseason, there seemed to be about a million more people in the stands than he had ever seen at his tiny alma mater, Fort Valley State University, in Georgia. Trying to remain calm, he kept his head down, and cast his eyes safely on the grass at his feet.

He jogged to the line of scrimmage, hoping to look like he belonged. He wasn't just playing football, he was competing for a job. And even though he had experienced success at every stage of his career, had excelled at tryouts, had dominated pro-days, and impressed scouts who appraised him quietly from behind visors and sunglasses, he knew how merciless N.F.L. camps were for unproven rookies. You could have been the best at every place you played. You could sweat, and bleed, and run yourself ragged, giving every ounce and pushing far beyond your own limitations, and still, at the end of the day, an assistant might greet you at your locker with a sombre look and the words no hopeful wants to hear: "Come with me. And bring your playbook."

King knew that if he failed to execute the next fifteen to twenty seconds of his life with absolute perfection, this could be his last chance to play professional football. As he had done countless times before, he lined up at his spot and prepared to yell out the snap count. But before he could open his mouth, a player on the opposing team, the Dallas Cowboys, took one look at him and shouted.

"A black punter?! It's a fake! It's a fake!"

The opposing players, equally eager to impress their coaches by seeming on top of every nuance of the game, scrambled into new positions, King told me, guarding against the possibility that this black guy, inexplicably lined up at the whitest of N.F.L. positions, was really some backup quarterback or receiver—a speedster who would fake a kick and instead run for the first down, catching their whole defense unaware. Clearly some trickery was afoot.

For King, it was a gift. He actually laughed out loud. Even black players didn't believe that he was a punter. It wasn't the first time he had been viewed with suspicion, and the comedy of the situation calmed his nerves.

He called for the snap, took three precise steps, and dropped the ball perfectly toward his rising right leg. The ball, as it did nearly every time, rocketed into the air, nearly disappearing in the late afternoon sun. He was knocked to the ground as he finished his kick, but when he got back up, the ball was still in the air and his teammates were pounding him on the back.

Ask anyone who knows the N.F.L. well and they will tell you that the twenty-seven-year-old Oakland Raider Marquette King is one of the most impressive punters in professional football. Videos of his performances at kicking camps have almost mythic status among special-teams devotees. And he has increased his consistency each of the three seasons he's played, gradually mastering a precision with his kicking to match his tremendous power.

"Marquette King has one of the purest, strongest legs in the league," John Middlekauff, an Oakland sports-radio host and former N.F.L. scout, told me. Much of the positive reaction to King has centered on his obvious strength.

The performance of punters is judged by two principal measurements: distance and hang time. Hang time is crucial, because the longer a ball stays in the air, the more time the defending team has to get down field to guard against a return. While a typical N.F.L. punt will last about four and a half seconds in the air, King, in workouts, has reached the unthinkable mark of 5.85 seconds. He does well with distance, too: his longest punt in a game is seventy yards, managed against the Ravens, and footage exists of him kicking as far as eighty-seven yards in practices.

King spends considerable time in the weight room, a place not necessarily frequented by members of the kicking squad, and his collegiate forty-yard dash time was less than two-tenths of a second behind that of his team's fastest runner, the wide receiver Amari Cooper.

The joke about punters is that they usually look like someone from the accounting department who accidentally ended up on the team—in other words, like a pasty white guy who improbably found himself in the company of football men. King has the opposite effect: he is an athletic black man in a spot usually reserved for pasty white guys. It would probably be uncomfortable, if he weren't so used to being different.

King grew up in Macon, Georgia, and like a lot of kids his initial attraction to football was visual. He now lives an hour's drive away from where he plays and practices with his team—a distance he chose so that he can decompress before he gets home—and he told me the story of his childhood as we sat on the sofa in his underfurnished Bay Area apartment.

In middle school, he would watch one of his mom's friend's sons play football and admire the uniforms and the shiny helmets. His mother, concerned about injuries and academics, would not yet let him play, but King began training on his own, doing two-mile runs around his neighborhood with dreams of being a receiver.

Two years later, he made his high-school team—and quickly decided that after-school practices and position-specific training were not enough to fill his insistent appetite for improvement. Weekend days were spent walking around his neighborhood with a football and a set of cones that he could use to practice receiving routes. He tried to get quarterbacks, receivers, and other teammates to join him for these extra sessions, but he found that most kids, even the athletes, preferred to spend their free time watching TV or playing video games.

When he got bored, he would kick, and he soon became fond of watching the ball rocket off of his foot and into the air. He began to challenge himself. Could he kick it over this ditch? Could he kick it over this tree? He got his parents to measure how long he could keep the ball in the air. He didn't know yet about hang time and drop technique. He wasn't thinking of it as a potential career. He just liked being really good at it, and getting better.

He experimented with different techniques. One day, he said, not long after he began kicking, he was playing football with friends and a pass was thrown way out of bounds. King went to retrieve it, but instead of throwing it back, he kicked it. “Damn!” came the response. “Do that shit again!” Eventually the game devolved into neighborhood kids just trying to field King’s explosive punts.

A new coach took over his team during junior year, and King told him about his kicking. The coach made him the team’s kicker, though King continued to play receiver as well. During his senior year, a friend mentioned offhandedly that he could get paid to kick. King says he legitimately thought the guy was making fun of him.

After high school, he went to Fort Valley State, a small historically black college thirty miles from home. He didn’t play at all in his freshman year, and had trouble finding time for himself at receiver, competing against more skilled players at the position. Eventually he was told flat out by the coaching staff that if he wanted to keep his scholarship, he had to kick.

Punters don’t run as fast or lift as many weights as other football players do. They don’t tackle or block. They can’t make big hits or game-winning plays. In a football culture that prizes strength, speed, toughness, and, to some degree, violence, a guy whom you can’t even touch in a game without being penalized ordinarily commands little respect in the locker room.

He may as well be a professional darts player hanging at the gym with a bunch of M.M.A. fighters. But King either didn’t notice this or didn’t care; the same internal mechanisms that had him out alone on Saturday afternoons with a football and a bunch of cones while most other kids his age were playing Madden now induced him to throw himself completely into kicking with little regard for ego or social standing. He was simply enamored of the feeling of success when he booted a big one.

When he had bad games, he was known to stay in the stadium long after his friends and family had gone home, putting on a pair of headphones and kicking ball after ball well into the night. Assistant coaches eventually forbade him from staying late, not so much to protect his leg, but because his obsessive work kept them from getting on with their own lives. As King recalls, he responded by surreptitiously finding out where the light box to the stadium was and learning how to break into the weight room after hours.

Before his junior year, he received an invite to Kohl’s National Elite kicking camp, a proving ground and showcase for the most promising collegiate kickers, punters, and long snappers in the country. So he got on an airplane for the first time in his life and travelled to Wisconsin, which is where the Legend of Marquette King was born.

His final kicks of the weekend are immortalized in a YouTube video; screams of shock and amazement can be heard as soon as the ball comes off his foot. Word began to spread among the tightly knit kicking community and eventually among N.F.L. executives.

After graduating, he was invited to Raiders camp, where he impressed coaches so much that, despite injuring his foot during the preseason, he was given an unlikely roster spot, and placed on injured reserve for the 2012 season. The next year, he beat out veteran Chris Kluwe in camp, and was given the team’s starting job. He became the only black punter in the league, and just the fifth black man in the history of the N.F.L. to be a specialist at the position.

It is difficult to explain why African-American punters are practically unheard of in a league that at any given moment is roughly two-thirds black. It seems possible that many scouts haven’t even considered the question.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Honestly," John Middlekauff said when I asked him about the subject, "I hadn't ever thought of it in those terms. I just think most guys, most talented players, when you grow up wanting to play football, obviously kicker and punter are the last two things you want to do ... and if you are the kicker or punter, and you're the best player on the team, then that means you're also quarterback or running back. You're just also athletic, and you don't necessarily want to do that as you try to get a scholarship to go to college."

What's implied in this, of course, is that punter is not a position you choose, but one you get stuck with because you are not fast enough or strong enough to play elsewhere on the field. The other assumption here is that black football players always have better speed and strength than their white counterparts.

Greg Coleman has a slightly different theory. Coleman was the first black man to play exclusively at punter in the N.F.L. He retired in 1988, and is now a sideline reporter for the Minnesota Vikings. Few punters, Coleman told me over the phone, make N.F.L. teams in their first year after college. They have to keep honing their craft and take another shot at it the following season, and maybe the season after that.

"So if they don't have the support, the financial support, from family to keep training, to maintain that lifestyle, to sustain them for a year, or maybe even two, it's going to be difficult for them to continue."

Perhaps more than all other players, kickers are technical specialists. They have to train early and exclusively at their craft to have a shot at a professional team. Camps can cost as much as four thousand dollars for a week of private lessons and film studies, and even with such training, an N.F.L. career will remain a statistical improbability.

There are thirty-two teams in the league, and they each typically employ one player at placekicker and one at punter. There are, then, about sixty-four jobs to be divided among thousands of kids who train for this one thing. Kickers commonly earn more than two million dollars per year, and they rarely suffer the kind of high-speed collisions endured by those at other positions. At any given time, the oldest player in the league is almost always a kicker. (Currently it's Adam Vinatieri, the forty-three-year old placekicker for the Indianapolis Colts. Morton Andersen, a placekicker for multiple teams, had a career that lasted twenty-five years, an astonishing number when you consider that the average career, according to the N.F.L. Players Association, lasts a little over three years.)

All of this helps explain why a lucrative cottage industry has sprung up catering to parents looking for a way to help their kids pursue N.F.L. dreams by becoming kickers. The Web site for Kohl's Kicking lists more than a hundred and fifty camps scheduled for 2016, and a quick Google search will point you to similar camps that make tremendous promises for the futures of young kickers.

For such an experience, families and loved ones can expect to pay anywhere between three hundred and twenty-five dollars and six hundred dollars per day for attendance, a price tag that does not include travel, merchandise, instructional DVDs, equipment, or other extras. And yet this is a typical path for a young N.F.L. kicker. Which makes King even more of an outlier.

He taught himself, and was invited to his first camp free of charge in his senior year of college. But for those not possessed of his astounding drive and talent, the very possibility of a career in kicking or punting is tied to the financial means of your family. In other words, if you want to play this position, with its low physical impact, you have to be able to afford it.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Greg Coleman came along before the rise of specialized kicking camps. He was drafted in 1976, by the Cincinnati Bengals, and though he exclusively punted in college, he was expected, at the Bengals camp, to try out for receiver and running back spots before kicking. He balked at this, but, being an unsigned rookie, he had little leverage. As he describes it, when he finally got around to taking kicking reps in front of coaches, he was winded and consequently underperformed, thus losing his chance. He was cut before the season began.

He took a job teaching high-school history, in Florida, but maintained a practice routine, learning more about both the craft of kicking and the business of the N.F.L. He got another shot the next year, signing with the Cleveland Browns on January 1, 1977. Cleveland coach Forrest Gregg, like the Bengals coaches before him, wanted to use Coleman as a running back, but the young kicker, now a year wiser, took a stand: he told his coach to either let him kick exclusively or cut him from the team. Gregg gave him his chance.

The next year, though, Gregg was fired, and Coleman was let go, replaced by a younger, white draft pick. By week nine of the ensuing season, Coleman was still living in Cleveland, out of work, and his wife was pregnant. Then he got a call from the Minnesota Vikings. He spent the next nine years punting in Minneapolis, racking up impressive numbers in his career as a precision punter.

Not everyone was happy to see him on the field.

“For a long time,” he told me, “I kept my helmet on, hoping folks would think I was a dark-skinned white boy. You got stuff thrown at you. The adjectives that were hurled ... monkey. The N-word.”

It’s remarkable to hear stories that evoke Jackie Robinson integrating baseball in the fifties from a football player who’s talking about 1978. Some of the same fans shouting racial epithets at Greg Coleman were cheering for the black running backs and receivers on their own teams. It wasn’t a question of integration in football; it was merely the sight of a black man taking space where a white man should be.

“It’s something that I have not talked about a whole lot,” Coleman said, “even after all of these years.”

Coleman is from a generation that was largely taught to handle racism with a quiet dignity. Keep your chin up, and your mouth shut. Do better than they expect you to and silence them with your greatness.

But when he does open up, as he did in a short video he recorded for the Vikings, the pain is very much on the surface. In the video, he talks about the time his black Pee Wee football team won the city championship—the team, remarkably, featured four future N.F.L. players—and was nonetheless denied the chance to compete in the state’s Gator Bowl. Even as a man who prides himself on inner strength, it is clear that being excluded as a nine-year-old because he was born black is a pain that is simply too severe to get over.

Whether or not anyone wants to talk about it, there are races attached to some positions in sports. Running backs and cornerbacks are typically black. Punter, kicker, and quarterback tend to be seen as white positions. Like many aspects of race in 2016, this is changing, but in uneven ways.

When Super Bowl 50 begins, Cam Newton will become just the sixth black quarterback to start in the N.F.L. Championship Game. What explains this? Is it a lack of ability to read defenses and study playbooks on the part of African-Americans? Or is it because the preparation, training, and cultural markers associated with the quarterback position have historically been inaccessible to aspiring black athletes? If the latter is true, then the six men that have achieved this have done so by walking a path that defies probability.

The same may be said of black punters. If being an N.F.L. punter can be a lonely proposition, then being a black N.F.L. punter can be a downright desolate one. This may be one reason why, despite the relative longevity and safety of the position, so few African-American players have taken up the mantle. Even in a league that prizes mental toughness, the feat requires a whole other degree of it, one that enables you not only to compete with others but with yourself, with systems, and with isolation. You have to be, as John Middlekauff puts it, “A different type of guy.”

It is, in some respects, a familiar story. As racism becomes more difficult to explicitly identify, it becomes more impossible to challenge. How can anyone complain that racism is connected to the dearth of black punters in the N.F.L. when there are black coaches and general managers? When no one has thrown cups of beer at Marquette King or called him the N-word as he took the field?

Still, the story of his journey to the position is one of a man overcoming remarkable odds through sheer force of will. And while it would be difficult to argue that those odds had nothing to do with his race, the fact that he did overcome them lends an ironic credence, for some, to the idea that race no longer need hinder anyone’s success; that all anyone needs to do is what Marquette King and Greg Coleman did—which is to say, the near impossible. This narrative holds particular sway in professional sports, which rely so heavily on extreme discipline and the mythology of the self-made warrior.

Marquette King, meanwhile, is entering a contract year. He made a little over one and a half million dollars in 2015, which places him squarely in the middle of the pack of punter salaries. Still, it is quite a come-up for a kid from Macon, who, as he tells it, had not really heard of the Oakland Raiders before they contacted him.

Despite his stalwart performance and reputation, at the time of this writing, no word has come from the Raiders front office on a long-term deal. It is not unusual for teams to finish managing the heftier contracts of position players against the salary cap before getting around to the punters; most observers seem convinced that he’ll be well taken care of.

He may be on the verge of becoming a wealthy man, and, if he can remain healthy, a long, perhaps even legendary career is not out of the question. But no matter what happens, it’s difficult to imagine him changing much. He has been single-minded for most of his life. He does not live extravagantly, and his studio apartment looks like it could belong to any twenty-seven-year-old guy with a decent job. There’s a TV, some football mementos, a couple of places to sit. The only things on the walls are a few pictures of himself, in games; a handful of jerseys held up with thumbtacks; and a dry-erase board, on which he has written, in careful print, every single one of his goals for the 2016 season.

Latham taking advantage of his undrafted opportunity

By Jimmy Durkin

August 22, 2016

ALAMEDA — Darius Latham never imagined not hearing his name called when he declared for the NFL draft following his junior season at Indiana.

"I probably would've stayed in school," Latham, the Raiders' rookie defensive tackle, said of the idea of him not being among the 253 draftees.

Latham was a projected late-round pick after a three-year Indiana career saw him accumulate 81 tackles and 7.5 sacks. But he didn't help his draft stock with a March arrest for operating a vehicle while intoxicated.

After being passed over, the 6-foot-5, 305-pound Latham had interest from several teams.

"I got a lot of calls, but I pretty much had my mind made up where I was going to go," Latham said.

The Raiders love versatile players on their defensive line, guys who can line up as a 5 technique (on the outside shoulder of the offensive tackle), 3 technique (in between the offensive guard and tackle) and nose (head up on the center). That fits Latham's game.

"I don't like being a one-dimensional player," he said. "I like being able to play on edges, get down and dirty in the trenches like 3 technique and nose, taking on combos and double teams. It's just a good look to be able to put those type of plays on film."

Latham played a team-high 37 snaps in last week's exhibition loss to the Green Bay Packers. Through two weeks of the preseason, the website Pro Football Focus has graded Latham as the top rookie defensive/nose tackle in the league — ahead of all 21 defensive tackles that were drafted.

"He's strong," Raiders defensive line coach Jethro Franklin said of Latham. "He plays with good pad level. He's got a little pass rush. He's still got work to do. Just take it day by day, continue to work the fundamentals and be disciplined in everything we do and see where it takes him from there."

Latham got valuable experience against the Packers when he rotated in with the starting defense during the first half. That allowed him to not only play alongside Raiders starters such as Khalil Mack, but go up against Green Bay's first-string offensive line.

"That's always good for him," Franklin said. "It's just part of the process. Guys periodically will have that opportunity. He's definitely earned it. He's just got to continue to build from that and get better."

The Raiders have an opening and need for some defensive line help with Mario Edwards Jr. sidelined for a few weeks with a hip injury. Latham said that hasn't changed his approach.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I pretty much had the same mindset always from the start," he said. "Just making plays when I'm in. Take advantage of every snap."

As the snaps keep increasing, Latham's chances of going from undrafted to the opening 53-man roster look pretty good. Latham isn't blind to that fact, but is trying to clear the positive chatter about his play from his mind.

"Nothing's guaranteed," Latham said. "You've got to still go out and work every day. Zone those type of talks out and just keep doing what I'm doing — getting better every day."

Joining Latham in the rotation with the starters last week was fellow tackle Dan Williams. The 15-game starter from last year got heavy over the offseason and had been relegated to second-team work until the Packers game.

Williams has slowly worked himself into better shape and Franklin is starting to see more of the player the Raiders had last year.

"He's getting back," Franklin said. "It's a process. As time moves along, we've just got to make sure we stay ahead of the curve. That's what we're doing."

"Dan's obviously concerned about what he needs to get done to be where he needs to be. And we've got a strong eye on him to make sure we're doing what we can to make sure that he returns to where he needs to be as well."

Khalil Mack leads Raiders' sack attack

By Vic Tafur

July 27, 2016

When Khalil Mack gets in his car Thursday and drives to the Napa Valley Marriott for the Raiders' training camp, the defensive end is packing light.

Just some clothes and maybe his guitar to help him relax at night. Rookie roommate Greg Townsend Jr. has been given the list of mandatory snacks.

Most important, Mack's not bringing any mental baggage, none of the accolades from last season or any of the expectations or hype for both him and the team this year.

"I'm still learning, just trying to get better" Mack said, taking a break from his workout at San Francisco's Empower Gym on Monday. "That's the key to all of this."

Running back Latavius Murray now calls Mack "Slash," after Mack became the first player in NFL history to earn first-team All-Pro honors at two positions in the same season (defensive end and outside linebacker). Mack, 25, finished with 15 sacks, one shy of the franchise record, and led all edge rushers in the NFL with 82 quarterback pressures and 54 run stops.

The "Slash" nickname is also appropriate because Mack thinks he was two players last season, and the one wearing No. 52 the first half of the season wasn't all that great.

"I am very critical of myself," Mack said. "Watching the tape of myself last year, it looked like two different players the first half of the season and the second half. This year, I want to start fast and finish strong."

Mack thinks he overloaded himself the first eight games. He had only four sacks in that span, and would roll off 11 over the next six games.

"I switched it up too much the first part of the season, trying to show everything I worked on in the offseason," Mack said. "All these moves and counters. ... So mentally and physically, I made it simple. Just use speed and power and focus on two moves that I was having success with throughout the year. I was able to play faster and longer."

To look at the sculpted physical specimen that Mack (6-foot-3, 255 pounds) is, one would miss what separates him and the league's other great pass rushers: His motor doesn't stop.

"Getting sacks is all effort," Mack said. "Justin Tuck used to tell me that pass rushing is one of the luckiest things in the world. The quarterback can fall in your lap sometimes, and sometimes no matter what you do, you can't quite get to them. But they all count."

It's seemingly rare in sports when a team's best player is also the one grinding the most before, during and after practice. Defensive tackle Dan Williams says the Raiders are blessed.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Khalil is such a hard worker," Williams said. "You can't put a ceiling on what he can do. ... Khalil is going to be Khalil, and we all expect him to get more sacks this year. That's kind of crazy when you think he had 15 last year. But he's ready to take over the league."

Mack tunes out compliments, whether it's from a teammate or a talking head on TV saying the Raiders are going to go from 7-9 to winning the AFC West.

"You hear all different kind of things," Mack said. "I like to focus on the negatives. Negative things tend to help me grind a lot harder. I don't like positive stuff too much. ... Not even in my relationships. Man, I don't want to hear how great things are going from anybody."

That wasn't a problem with Mack's mentor, Tuck. He is retired now, as is safety Charles Woodson, but they groomed Mack to take over the leadership role on the defense, if not the whole team, this season.

Said Mack: "It's just about being a team player right now, getting everybody on the same page so we can accomplish what we want to. We have the talent, and with a positive mind-set and hard work, anything is possible."

It's one of the reasons that he is looking forward to training camp — because of how the team clicked last year and how well the new players have fit in. Big free-agent signings Kelechi Osemele, Bruce Irvin and Sean Smith haven't needed a transition period.

"What excites me the most is that we've put together a great group of guys," Mack said. "Not only the players, but the coaches. I am excited to work with all the new cats."

Mack knows he will be a marked man this season, with opposing coaches spending the week before games against Oakland scheming to double-team and erase him.

"You have to welcome the challenge," Mack said. "But at the same time, being a leader on the team, you have to let the other guys know, 'Hey it's not just me on this side of the ball.' We got big Bruce, I got Rio (Mario Edwards), I got Big Dan, Big Jelly (Justin Ellis) ... We got 27 (Reggie Nelson), DA (David Amerson) and Big Sean on the back end ...

"We got some playmakers and heavy hitters. We're going to make some noise. ... They say you can't win them all, but we're gonna try."

Raiders' Khalil Mack: Meet the NFL's modest megastar

By Jerry McDonald

September 6, 2016

It happened, to the recollection of Khalil Mack, at a gas station along U.S. 1 near his home in Fort Pierce, Florida.

Sandy Mack, Khalil's father, spied a friend and colleague from the jail house where he worked.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

“His name was Hucklebuck, and he was a big dude. My dad was a big dude,” Khalil said following a training camp practice. “My dad was always telling people how many push-ups I could do, and Hucklebuck wanted to see. He said, ‘I’ll bet he can’t do 20.’”

“My dad says, ‘OK, Khalil, go ahead.’ So there I was — outside on the concrete at a gas station, maybe 7 years old. And I pumped out 60 push-ups.”

Khalil’s dad is hazy on the gas station exhibition, but has no doubt it’s true — because such demonstrations were relatively commonplace.

“People didn’t believe me when I said he could do push-ups — and I mean straight up, military-style push-ups,” Sandy Sr. said. “No slouching — I don’t go for that. People would hear about it, they’d ask me and I’d say, ‘Khalil, show ‘em.’ And he’d bounce ‘em out like nothing.”

Going into his third NFL season, the push-up prodigy is all grown up, a bona fide star at age 25.

Mack is on anyone’s short-list of the NFL’s top defensive players, along with Houston defensive end J.J. Watt, Denver linebacker Von Miller and Los Angeles Rams defensive tackle Aaron Donald. He was named All-Pro at two different positions — defensive end and linebacker — and his 15 sacks included a five-sack explosion in an upset win over the eventual Super Bowl champion Broncos.

Within a year or two, general manager Reggie McKenzie will present Mack with a contract that is expected to make him the first defensive player in NFL history to average $20 million a season.

None of which Mack is comfortable discussing. Quarterback Derek Carr, the offensive cornerstone of the franchise and also in line for a major payday in the near future, uses humor to disarm teammates who joke about his impending wealth and stardom.

“I try and laugh it off because I’m not smart enough to not say anything,” Carr said. “He just deflects it.”

Mack’s strategy is to give no discernable reaction. Without fuel, the fire will cease.

“He ignores every bit of it,” fullback Marcel Reece said. “He just looks straight ahead.”

In contrast to Watt, a cottage industry when it comes to commercials, media time and branding, Mack, according to his older brother, has turned down commercial opportunities as well as a guest appearance on HBO’s “Ballers” starring Dwayne “The Rock” Johnson.

“He wants to be known as the best before he gets endorsements, and he doesn’t feel like he’s done anything yet,” Sandy Jr. said.

Ask Mack about the pot of gold that awaits and he recoils like an adolescent being asked about his first girlfriend.

“I’m not comfortable talking about that stuff. That’s just not me,” Mack said. “I like to grind and not think too much about the good stuff. I like to focus on the stuff I need to get better at.”

Toward that end, Mack agreed to pull out a laptop computer to give a mini-clinic to his interviewer. He did so on one condition: No game clips of him making sacks or tackles for losses. Mack would only show the plays where he made a mistake.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Out of a file labeled “KHALIL BAD,” Mack cues up a play from last Nov. 15, a 30-14 loss to the Minnesota Vikings in Oakland.

Minnesota quarterback Teddy Bridgewater fakes a handoff to Adrian Peterson and rolls to his right.

Mack hesitates when confronted with right tackle T.J. Clemmings and tight end Kyle Rudolph, and Bridgewater rolls free to the right. The pass is completed for a short gain along the sideline.

“I could have gotten to the mesh point right there, the quarterback and running back exchange,” Mack said. “My angle was bad, and I played it too flat. I could have made it a lot easier for our cornerback David Amerson out there on the edge.”

Mack runs the same play back and forth, shaking his head slightly.

“I’m looking at my footwork, hand placement, I’m thinking about all those things,” Mack said. “I know the next team will go right to this play to see the stuff you don’t do too well.”

Next, Mack slices inside the guard and tackle and has a clear shot at Bridgewater. One problem: He takes a swipe at the ball, and Bridgewater gets away.

“These are the ones you have nightmares about right here,” Mack said. “I had the sack, and I let it go. You’ve got to make those, man. I was trying to reach for the ball instead of tackling. That could have been 16 sacks.”

Another play, another split-second hesitation, another chance for Mack to self-correct.

“See, this is nasty right here,” Mack said as Peterson takes a handoff for a short gain. “I thought it was going to be a play-action pass, and I waited instead of just blowing him up.”

It goes on like this for a few more plays before he closes the laptop and ends the lesson. Mack has made his point. He could have been better. Should have been better. Much better.

“That would have been 17 sacks ... 18 ...,” Mack said. “When you’ve got a chance, you’ve got to capitalize.”

Khalil Mack arrived in a big way on Feb. 22, 1991, the second of three sons to Sandy and Yolanda Mack.

“He was 10 pounds, 8 ounces, and they thought he might be diabetic because he was such a big baby,” Yolanda said. “But he was just a healthy baby. There was no fat on him anywhere. He already had a muscular frame — he had muscles on his calves.”

As his older brother Sandy Jr. said, “He was ripped when he came out of the womb.”

It runs in the family. Sandy Sr. is a solid 6-foot-1, 285 pounds. Sandy Jr., once a powerful high school running back nicknamed “Mack Truck,” is working toward his certification as a personal trainer. Yolanda says LeDarius, the youngest of the three at age 19, more than holds his own in the weight room.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

At the same time, church and Bible study were a constant presence in their life.

“We were expected to help others,” Sandy Jr. said. “My parents were big on believing God would open doors for us, and Khalil never took that for granted.”

Sandy Sr. worked in corrections and later as a program specialist for at-risk youth, while Yolanda was a teacher.

Through childhood and adolescence, Khalil’s personality remained consistent. He was quiet, humble and respectful. Yolanda said there was never an issue with teachers at school and that one day in his freshman year at Westwood High, Khalil came home wearing a T-shirt that said “Citizen of the Month.”

As Christmas neared, the more loquacious Sandy Jr. would make sure his parents knew his gift preferences in order of importance, while Khalil seemed fine with anything that came his way.

The only way his parents could tell if Khalil didn’t like a gift is if he didn’t use it or wear it, because he never complained.

“He was always content with what he had,” Yolanda said. “He was always a peacemaker and his own leader. He never followed the crowd. I didn’t have to worry with Khalil about peer pressure.”

Yet when it came to sports, the otherwise laid-back Khalil transformed into a fierce competitor. Dad made sure of that.

Whether it was push-ups, basketball or brain teasers, Yolanda said her husband wanted the boys competing and striving to be the best, never doing anything halfway.

“He told us all the time, ‘If you’re going to do something, be the best,’ ” Khalil said.

Sandy Mack grew up competing against his twin brother Sammie and wanted the same for his sons, even if Khalil at times would be a little overexuberant.

“When we played basketball when he was young, I had to remind him, ‘You can’t be jumping on top of my head. I have to go to work tomorrow,’ ” Sandy said. “He really wants to be very good at what he does, and he’s been like that since he was a little kid. Real quiet, but when we played basketball or football, he was like a Tasmanian devil. He has a focus that is out of this world when it comes to sports.”

While the Mack boys played youth football, Sandy was reticent for Khalil to play for fear he might hurt someone. He’d been toughened up in backyard sessions with Sandy Jr., who said he went “beast mode” on his younger sibling.

When Khalil did play youth football, he ended up breaking the collarbone of a 12-year-old opponent on a tackle.

Sandy Jr. recalled the time he and his brother promised their late grandfather they would play in the NFL. Yet as Khalil got into high school, basketball was his first love, and he didn’t play football until his senior year.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

With his son recovering from a torn patellar tendon, Sandy wanted Khalil to concentrate on graduating rather than playing football.

"I was thinking maybe the military for Khalil," Sandy Sr. said. "All I knew was I wanted him out of Fort Pierce."

That changed when first-year Westwood coach Waides Ashmon got a look at Mack and inquired why an athlete with the most impressive physique in school was not playing football.

Khalil told Ashmon to call his father, and the coach instantly whipped out a cellphone and promised Sandy Sr. his son would go to college for free if he played football his senior year.

The late start hurt recruiting, but Ashmon's promise was kept when Buffalo came through with a football scholarship.

So Mack went from Florida to freezing winters in Buffalo, as usual, without a whisper of complaint.

"He was 1,300 miles away from us, and he never once called to ask for anything. Not a dime," Sandy Sr. said. "He'd always say, 'No, I'm good, pop.' "

Mack impressed his coaches by working diligently, arriving early for meetings and breaking out a highlighter to go over practice plans and defensive assignments.

On the field, Mack began to realize his football career wouldn't necessarily end at Buffalo.

During one practice, Mack ran around the blocking attempt of James Starks, a running back who went on to play for the Green Bay Packers.

"He told me, 'Man, you're strong. You're going to the league,' " Khalil said. "That started to get me thinking."

Mack began comparing himself with other players from the Mid-America Conference and watching players such as Von Miller, the No. 2 pick in 2011, and Dion Jordan, taken No. 3 overall in 2013.

"I knew they were probably playing against better people, but the NFL looked like something I thought I could do," Khalil said.

A big game in a nonconference loss to Ohio State removed any doubt, and when Mack was available when the Raiders picked at No. 5 in the first round in 2014, McKenzie didn't hesitate.

Khalil impressed veteran teammates as much with his attitude as his work ethic, even as a rookie.

"Khalil came in, picking my brain as soon as he got in, wanted to be great, and wanted to put in the extra work," left tackle Donald Penn said. "He's not a 'me' guy. He's a team guy."

Said veteran Marcel Reece: "I've seen first-round picks come in here and think the world should be handed to them. They're prima donnas. They don't think they have to work. They don't think they have to practice. Khalil does what everyone else does — and then some."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

As a rookie, Mack stood out as a run defender, and while he pressured the quarterback consistently, he had just four sacks.

The only glitch came when the Raiders finally won their first game of the season against Kansas City after starting the season 0-10. After Sio Moore sacked Alex Smith with 28 seconds to play, the linebacker and Mack were busy performing a dance while the Chiefs quarterback rushed to the line of scrimmage to run a play.

Justin Tuck called timeout to prevent the Raiders from receiving a potentially crippling penalty.

It was a scene entirely in character for Moore, who offered regret with one-liners following the game. Mack, on the other hand, was mortified and embarrassed.

“Now,” Sandy Jr. said, “you’ve got to beg him to celebrate.”

Khalil instantly made an impression on Jack Del Rio, who took over for Dennis Allen and interim coach Tony Sparano in 2015. Del Rio knows a self-starter when he sees one, having been the position coach for Ray Lewis with the Baltimore Ravens from 1999-2001.

“With Khalil, the beautiful thing is that he’s got natural humility,” Del Rio said. “He loves this game, and he’s driven to play great. He wants to develop the skill level. He’s working tirelessly to do that.”

If there were any doubts that Mack was making a bull rush to stardom, they were erased in 2015, when he consistently stuffed the run and finished second to Watt in sacks with 15.

As he enters this season, Mack is trying to be more vocal, but his voice still occasionally trails off to a whisper and his general demeanor has not changed.

Teammates are occasionally awe-struck.

“It’s funny: Khalil doesn’t trash talk, he’s a very humble person, and he’s a really good guy,” tackle Menelik Watson said. “But once he gets into football mode, he’s going to rip your head off. It’s just that he’ll rip it off in a polite way.”

During training camp, Penn had been working on a pass blocking maneuver he was convinced gives him leverage, a quick jab he was sure would put Mack on his heels. Instead, Mack simply went lower than seemed humanly possible and blew past Penn.

“This dude, he somehow kept his balance,” Penn said. “He was two inches off the ground and kept rushing. I was all set to fall on top of him, and he just kept going. I asked (line coach) Mike Tice what I should do. He said, ‘I don’t have anything ... good luck.’”

Former Raiders linebacker Bill Romanowski said Mack’s ability to play both the run and the pass sets him apart from other edge players.

“If I had to compare Mack to anyone, it would be Von Miller,” Romanowski said. “Von may have a tiny edge in the pass rush because he’s a little smaller and a little quicker, but he can’t play the run like Mack. I think Mack is the more complete player all-around.”

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Miller, last year's Super Bowl MVP, signed a six-year, $114.5 million contract with a reported $70 million guaranteed.

The Raiders have Mack under contract through the 2017 season, and it's conceivable the four-year, $18.6 million deal he signed as a rookie will be extended as an annual salary at some point in the near future.

It's a huge commitment, but unlike a risky free-agent signing, the Raiders know exactly what they're getting in terms of character and commitment.

"You've got to keep your stars. You pay it, and then you adjust the salary structure from there," NFL Network analyst and former general manager Charley Casserly said. "Sometimes you try and beat the market and sign a guy early, but I don't think they'll worry about that with Mack. You don't worry about it when a guy's worth it."

Herm Edwards, a former NFL head coach and ESPN analyst, compares Mack's skill on the edge with Hall of Fame outside linebacker Derrick Thomas, whom he coached in Kansas City.

"When you pay that kind of money, it's great for the locker room if it's a guy you drafted," Edwards said. "The Raiders know what they have. They know what his DNA is about."

Included in Khalil's DNA, according to his mother, is a penchant for coming home to Fort Pierce, visiting with neighbors and the same tight circle of friends he's always had.

"I know that what he does has a lot of pressure that comes with it," Yolanda said. "He's worked hard for his accomplishments and knows that what he has can be here today and gone tomorrow. Our wish for him has always been to be balanced — live a balanced life."

Watson thinks the $20 million a year threshold may be a bargain when it comes to Mack.

"Shoot, with the effort, intensity and attention to detail he puts in, he might be a $30 million a year a guy," Watson said. "I really don't think there's enough money (under the salary cap) to give him what he's worth."

McKenzie understands that his boss would not look kindly at the sight of Mack in another uniform.

"Mark (Davis) would come beat me across the head if I let some Hall of Fame-type player leave the building," McKenzie said.

Mack doesn't plan on changing any time soon, regardless of fame and fortune. Anyone who saw him doing push-ups at a gas station years ago wouldn't be surprised.

"It's how I was raised. My parents put me in a nice position, but that's all it is — a nice position," Mack said. "You've got to put in the work. You've got to humble yourself."

Unlikely Raider Reggie Nelson earns respect from peers

By Paul Gutierrez

September 9, 2016

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- The Oakland Raiders needed a veteran presence in the back of their secondary this spring in the wake of Charles Woodson's retirement. And while free safety Reggie Nelson was out there, blowing in the wind of free agency, he was not really seen as an option.

Not with his ties to the Cincinnati Bengals, for whom he had just played in his first career Pro Bowl after his eight interceptions tied for the league lead. And not with his relationship with new Miami Dolphins defensive coordinator Vance Joseph, who was Nelson's position coach in Cincinnati.

All of which is what made Raiders defensive backs coach Marcus Robertson's trip to USC's pro day to check out Su'a Cravens all the more fortuitous. Robertson ran into Joseph at the workout and the topic turned to Nelson, whom Robertson saw as "a Bengal, through and through."

Besides, if he was going to leave Cincinnati, surely he'd join Joseph in Miami, no?

That's when Robertson found Raiders defensive coordinator Ken Norton Jr. at the USC workout, and the two made a call to Oakland's front office to let brass know of Nelson's availability.

A two-year contract worth as much as $12 million later, and Nelson was the 32-year-old heir apparent to Woodson ... in more ways than one.

"I knew of him, respected the player, but now that I'm here with him every single day, I love the person even more," Robertson said of Nelson during camp. "When you think about losing a guy like Woodson, and then you get a guy with [Nelson's] type of experience in the football game, his ability to go out and make plays -- he's done it year in and year out -- and then on top of that, he's a team player?"

"He gets these guys. He's an outstanding communicator and he does things right. I couldn't ask for anything more."

Nelson's influence has already been felt, even if he missed the entire offseason program and was slowed somewhat in the preseason as he rehabbed a knee injury.

While Nelson is entering his 10th season, it is his first in Oakland, yet his new teammates voted him one of four captains, along with quarterback Derek Carr, center Rodney Hudson and All-Pro defensive end/outside linebacker Khalil Mack.

"We hit it off pretty good," Nelson said this week with an understated smile. "It's a great group of guys around here. You know, I'm not a guy of too many words so I'll just lead by example and continue to keep my head down and work."

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I mean, it was a shocker when I found out I was a captain ... to be voted amongst your peers, that's a great thing. How they look at you."

Thus far, it's been in awe. Even on the other side of the ball.

"If you had to replace Charles Woodson, he's the guy you'd want to do it with," Carr said. "He's someone who's a leader on and off the field. He has no problem getting into anybody's face on the field, while at the same time, two seconds later, those same guys will listen to him and joke with him. That's a fine line that's hard to get and he has it."

"We all know his talents. I joked with him just like I did with C-Wood. I said, 'Hey man, back in the day, I was a big fan of yours back in college.'"

Carr laughed.

"He's a great player," Carr said. "But not only that, he's a great person [and now] he's a teammate of mine and not chasing me around like he did Week 1 last year."

Indeed, Nelson, who was a first-round pick of Raiders coach Jack Del Rio when he was with the Jacksonville Jaguars in 2007, picked off Carr's backup, Matt McGloin, in last season's opener after Carr left with a hand injury.

Del Rio talked about Nelson as a "calming influence" in the secondary.

"Communication is the No. 1 key," Nelson said. "When I got here, that was my thing: communicate with me. I'm new to the defense, so tell me if it's the wrong check or not. The guys have been doing that and I got it down pat, and that's the main thing that I emphasize when I'm back there with anybody, Karl [Joseph] or Nate [Allen] or Keith [McGill]."

"Just communicate with me and we'll be all right. As long as we're on the same page, nobody can stop us."

"I just try to be Reggie, man," he said. "You can't replace a guy like Charles."

But the Raiders can lean on Nelson in Sunday's season opener at New Orleans, just as they leaned on Woodson. Besides, Nelson already has an interception of Saints quarterback Drew Brees.

"As far as starting fast, you're in control of that," Nelson said. "You've got to come out and hit people in the mouth and continue to do it. You can't just do it one down; you've got to continue to do it [or] they're just going to keep on coming back. When they come back, you've got to do it again."

Raiders rookie RB Richard, veteran TE Smith hit it off in camp

By Vic Tafur

August 6, 2016

A football team is a brotherhood. That goes for the 53 men on the roster when the season starts, not necessarily the other 37 players who are at training camp currently wearing jerseys.

But Jalen Richard, an undrafted running back out of Southern Mississippi, has found an ally, someone who comes up to him after a nice run at practice and congratulates him. What makes it especially unusual is that it's not another running back but starting tight end Lee Smith.

"It's been really cool," Richard said. "Lee talks to me all the time, tells me I am doing a good job and to keep pushing."

The 5-foot-8 Richard and 6-foot-6 Smith are both from the South, Smith growing up in Powell, Tenn. Richard said teammates were giving them a hard time about their accents and they formed a bond.

"It is kind of crazy," Richard said, smiling. "We were messing around one day, and then he pulled me over for a real conversation."

Smith offered Richard tips on how to be a pro, mixed in with stories about life on his ranch with his wife and kids.

"All the players know everybody's not going to be able to be here the whole time," Richard said. "So some people tend not to build relationships because of that. But then you have the ones that don't worry about that at all, and treat you like you're going to be here forever. Lee is one of those guys."

Here's a secret: Smith, a sixth-year veteran, wasn't drawn to Richard because of his accent.

The tight end, after practice one day last week, pointed to the rookie catching tennis balls from a machine.

"There are a lot of rookies in there right now who have never played a down in this league taking a shower," Smith said. "And this kid's out here working. You know what I mean? You kind of gravitate toward certain kids, you respect them and their work ethic. He's special."

During practices, Richard has shown some wiggle and a nose for the hole, and has been lining up with the third-team offense, behind starter Latavius Murray and fifth-round pick DeAndre Washington.

Richard has even gotten to line up with starting quarterback Derek Carr a few times. It's a long way from coming to the team's rookie camp in May on a tryout, and getting a contract after it.

"I am just trying to take advantage of every opportunity I am given, and hopefully more opportunities come," Richard said. "

Raiders head coach Jack Del Rio has been impressed.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"We have a lot of reps in camp. A lot of different guys get opportunities. Yeah, I would say he's done a nice job with the looks he's gotten so far."

Richard ran for 1,098 yards and 14 touchdowns on 185 carries (5.9 per carry) his senior year, and also had 284 yards and two touchdowns receiving. He thinks catching the ball is his strength.

Richard didn't think he did well in the Raiders' offseason workouts, "because I wasn't comfortable with the offense, but I am now." He also did well for himself returning kickoffs Saturday, which improves his chances of making the roster.

Richard, at 207 pounds, is three pounds heavier than Washington. Otherwise the rookies are carbon copies of each other. Both say being a smaller player works in their favor against defenses.

"It's definitely an advantage if you know how to use it," Richard said. "It's crazy how identical DeAndre and I are as far as size, weight and skill set. We use our size to our advantage, because guys can't really see us behind the (offensive) line. We are very precise in our cuts and we have great vision."

While Washington was drafted, Richard wasn't, and only two teams offered him tryouts (the Raiders and Bucs) because of his size.

"I am just happy for the opportunity," Richard said. "It's definitely cool to be out here now with Derek Carr and Khalil Mack."

And it's nerve-racking as well.

"It's just football all over again, that's what I tell myself to calm myself down before practice," Richard said. "I tell myself, 'I've been doing this since I was 5 years old.'"

And if that doesn't do the trick, Richard will hear a deep voice yelling encouragement after a play.

"I really appreciate Lee's words," Richard said. "He's like my big brother now."

Raiders' Jalen Richard's journey from UDFA to NFL rookie makes for extra meaningful homecoming

By Courtney Cronin
September 10, 2016

ALAMEDA – Jalen Richard is right. It's hard to script a story better than this one.

The last five months have been among the most challenging the Raiders rookie running back has ever faced, and that's saying a lot for a player whose career could have been derailed by constant, nagging injuries throughout his four years at Southern Mississippi.

The type of praise he's received from veteran teammates to Oakland offensive coordinator Bill Musgrave isn't often bestowed upon an undrafted rookie free agent whose journey began on a tryout basis in May. Yet here he was last Saturday, pacing nervously while keeping an eye glued to the clock, unwilling to believe that he had come this far to make the team's 53-man roster even after the NFL's deadline for cuts had come and gone.

"I was walking through the locker room and got a couple of congratulations from different players, but in my head I'm like, 'Man, it ain't 1 o'clock yet and I don't have the general manager or coach telling me this so I don't know,'" Richard said.

Maybe that uncertainty stems from watching other opportunities he's had nearly slip away, sometimes because of his own doing. Just over a year ago, this moment of excitement and possibility was a distant dream.

It felt like there had always been something standing in between the 5-foot-8, 207 pounder and a breakout season as a Golden Eagle: injuries, grades, himself.

"It wasn't really until last year that he came from a guy that we weren't sure if he was good enough to be a starter to being a first team all-conference running back," former Southern Miss head coach and current Tampa Bay Buccaneers offensive coordinator Todd Monken said. "That's how far he came."

Richard tried to steady the scale of a major balancing act that included football, maintain his health and wellness, majoring in psychology and a social life. Following a junior season where he missed five games due to a thumb injury, Richard joined a fraternity and quickly found himself off the team because of how badly his grades had slipped, almost making him ineligible for the upcoming year.

There, on the cusp of what he needed to be his best season yet to bolster his resume for NFL scouts and prove his ability as a downhill running back that can do more than catch passes, Richard was suspended for the spring until he could get himself in better academic standing.

"We owed that to him," Monken said. "Discipline is the greatest form of love you can bestow upon anybody. All we did was show him how much we love him. If you don't care then you just let it slide and hope it all works out. He was capable of doing it. He just needed to refocus on what he wanted out of his last year of football, his last opportunity."

Tough love forced Richard to reevaluate his priorities and mature at a rapid rate. This time, he wasn't going to let himself get in the way of his future.

The time he spent focusing on academics allowed him to return in time for fall camp. During Southern Miss' turnaround season in 2015, Richard experienced his own, racking up his first 1,000-yard rushing season (1,098) with 14 touchdowns.

Hitting rock bottom was not only critical for his maturity but helped him pull through the high stress process of going from an undrafted rookie to making an NFL roster.

"That's what I used everyday to stay focused and determined," Richard said. "How I dug myself out of a hole in college and really had to get it from ground zero, coming in as an undrafted free agent and a tryout guy, I knew I was going to be at ground zero. I just had to figure out a way to preserve and get that done."

The outcome of fighting to prove his worth on a daily basis makes this story so much sweeter, and his homecoming this weekend when the Raiders play the Saints in his native Louisiana all that more meaningful.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Richard had never been to an NFL game before the first preseason snaps he took against Tennessee on Aug. 27. Despite growing up in Saints territory with his formative years spent between Baton Rouge and Alexandria, Richard was a loyal Cowboys fan.

Sunday will be his first time in the Super Dome.

"I come from Alexandria, (Louisiana), a small town," he said. "Not too many people make it out of the city, so me being a figure of that back home is real good to me."

Whether he is among one of the 46 Raiders that dresses out for the season opener, Richard's triumph is shared by those around him. His mother and father were the first to receive a phone call after the running back made final cuts. There were tears shed then. Those are likely to return for his family and friends when they see Richard run onto the field in his No. 30 jersey.

After missing a bulk of training camp and Oakland's first two preseason games due to a knee injury, Richard made up for lost time in the final two exhibition meetings, totaling 10 carries for 45 yards, three receptions for 14 yards, a returned punt for 25 yards and three kickoffs for 72 yards.

Where he goes from here to prove himself as a complimentary change up for Latavius Murray is the next chapter on his triumphant journey.

"As I told him, he's going to be the poster child for going and talking to young people about preserving and making mistakes along the way and overcoming it," Monken said.

"Its only the beginning. He can write his own story, we'll see how it goes from here."

Sons of Pasadena Sean Smith, Marcus Robertson reunite with Raiders

By Paul Gutierrez

August 22, 2016

ALAMEDA, Calif. -- The memories are more feelings now than actual stories.

"Competing," Sean Smith recalls. "Just competing. He always pushes the kids to go out there and compete. And you always want to do well in your community, because everybody talks and you definitely want to be one of the most talked-about guys around the neighborhood."

Smith was talking about being a youngster growing up in Pasadena, California, and taking to the tutelage of another native son of the 'Dena, All-Pro defensive back Marcus Robertson, as part of Robertson's football camps at the Jackie Robinson Community Center in the late 1990's.

So Smith reuniting with Robertson in Oakland all these years later -- the cornerback was one of the Raiders' most prized free-agent signings this offseason and Robertson is Oakland's defensive backs coach -- has a hint of serendipity.

"Not saying it was easy, but I just picked up the phone and said, 'Hey, Sean, I want to put you in this silver and black. What you gonna do?'" Robertson recalled his recruiting pitch being to Smith this spring.

"The relationship with Sean is a very simple one, because we're like, home team."

Indeed, the Muir High School grad leaned on his Pasadena roots to pitch the Raiders to the Blair High School alum.

And it worked. Because after four seasons with the Miami Dolphins, who drafted him in the second round in 2009 out of Utah, and three more seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs, Smith is in Oakland with a four-year, $40 million contract with $20 million guaranteed.

Smith is part of a rebuilt Oakland Raiders secondary, opposite fellow cornerback David Amerson. The unit also includes veteran free safety Reggie Nelson, who came over as a free agent from the Cincinnati Bengals, and first-round draft pick Karl Joseph at strong safety.

Smith remembered talking with Robertson when he was with the Dolphins, and Robertson was coaching with the Tennessee Titans.

"After the game, we chopped it up, man, I was like, It would be 'love' playing for you," Smith said. "All Pasadena guys are kind of alike -- we think alike, we act alike -- so it would be great to play for a coach who's from your area, knows everything about you and you're on the same page mentally."

Smith has 10 interceptions in seven seasons. But it is his physicality, more than his ball skills, which give quarterbacks, receivers and offensive coordinators fitful nights.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

At 6-feet-3, 218 pounds, Smith is huge for a cornerback and looks like a skinny outside linebacker draped all over wideouts.

"Sean is a, he's a student of the game," said Robertson, who had 24 interceptions as a free safety during a 12-year career with the Houston Oilers, Tennessee Titans and Seattle Seahawks from 1991 through 2002.

"He's got a very high football IQ. The things that he possesses in his size and his length, I think make up for a little bit of the short areas of quickness and things of that nature, because he's so difficult to get around, he's so difficult to throw over. And then you put in the football IQ of it, he understands football. So when you talk about pattern-matching and things like that, he's got it."

The normally talkative Smith was at a loss for words when told of Robertson's praises, especially about the high football IQ.

"I was always told that talent will only take you so far and eventually it will fade away," Smith finally said. "The game is played from the neck up, and when you're young, you don't really understand that because you're just used to using your athleticism and just reacting out there and making plays.

"But as you get older, you can see the game from a different angle; you can slow it down and I try to tell guys all the time, 'You guys are way more athletic than I ever was. But mentally, I'm able to slow the game down and see things that kind of help me out to where I can make a play faster than you guys would, because you guys don't see it as fast as I do,' if that makes sense."

Makes perfect sense. Almost as if Smith was now a camp counselor for Robertson at the Jackie Robinson Community Center.

Raiders CB Smith 'wouldn't be here today' without WR background

By Scott Bair

August 22, 2016

Raiders cornerback Sean Smith was a pretty good receiver way back when. One heck of a running back, too. That's how he earned a scholarship to Utah, as an All-American scoring machine for Pasadena's Blair High.

The Utes recruited Smith as a running back but eventually focused him on receiver to capitalize on an athletic 6-foot-3, 220-pound frame. The shuffle didn't produce much and, after a falling out with a coach, Smith was moved across the line of scrimmage for good.

That's a major move with just three years college eligibility and NFL dreams, a last resort that changed his career for good.

After just two years at cornerback he was a third-team All-American, entering the workforce as Miami's second-round pick. Smith had seven years gainful employment in Miami and Kansas City, before joining the Raiders this offseason on a four-year, $38 million contract. His playing background brought him to this point.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I wouldn't be here today if I didn't play offense," Smith told CSNBayArea.com last week. "Switching from receiver to corner, it's crazy how much that can help you."

Thinking like a receiver has made him an excellent cover corner. He picked up the position's mental aspects in a snap, which allowed him to flourish quickly. Smith offered some insight into his pre-snap routine and how he hones in on what the receiver might do based on his experience playing offense.

Smith said he quickly eliminates possibilities on the route tree based on formation and the receiver's positioning.

"You start breaking things down, and then analyze them through the defense we're running and where my help is going to be," Smith said. "I've now crossed a bunch of options off the list and, before the snap, I'm confident he'll run one of a small number of routes. I'll focus on defending those and react to anything else. The majority of the time, it ends up being the routes you expect."

Smith takes pride in his football acumen. Predicting routes comes easier than most, but Smith still spends significant time in the film room identifying tendencies of specific opponents and how to best defend them with his size and skill set.

Smith's size and athleticism offers a solid baseline, but a cornerback's technique, an effort refined over time in college and the pros. That's when he believes the position switch was truly complete.

"I played boundary corner and in college, you only get maybe three routes," Smith said. "I'm a big guy, and I could press and take things away. When I got to the NFL and the boss tells you to play in the middle, you really have to learn the nuances of playing cornerback."

Smith played safe early in his NFL days, often worried about getting beat. He gained confidence from experience and detail work, and started playing more aggressive.

It hasn't produced a high interception count – he has just 10 in seven seasons – but has developed an excellent cover man. Smith's completion percentage allowed now hovers in the low 50s and the passer rating against him hasn't been above 86 since 2011. Getting over on Smith is hard work. He's become a reliable player who can defend all receiver types.

The Raiders aggressively sought his services this offseason, considering him an excellent scheme fit. They were also hoping to add a leader to the position group, and got one who sets a solid example for a young corps.

"I'm just trying to get the guys to trust what they see, and don't be afraid to get beat," Smith said. "If you believe in yourself and your reads, you'll play well."

Cornerback Sean Smith a big part of Raiders' optimism

By Vic Tafur

August 24, 2016

He can't hide, so he's not going to try.

At 6-foot-3, 220 pounds, the Raiders' Sean Smith stands out among NFL cornerbacks. He knows some of the weight of the team's lofty expectations falls on his shoulders, and he welcomes that.

Smith can't hide, especially when the big free-agent signee walks in and sits down in Oakland's quarterbacks meetings. Derek Carr did a double-take the first time.

"He'll come in the quarterback room when he doesn't have a meeting and sit in," Carr said. "He'll ask questions, and we'll bounce ideas off each other. It's the first time I've ever had a defensive back do that.

"He's by far one of the smartest defensive players I have ever gone against or been around."

Carr's no dummy himself, evidenced by his not being goaded by the then-Chief's trash-talking the past two years.

Sean Smith's interception totals don't stand out — no more than two in a season — but that's a reflection of opposing quarterbacks opting not to throw in his direction.

Smith, 29, has taken to yelling at quarterbacks because most receivers don't engage in trash-talking — maybe Smith's saddest discovery about the NFL.

"It's crazy, I thought there would be much more trash-talking than there is," Smith said. "But it's quiet out there. Guys show up, do their jobs and go home. In college, you used to go back and forth....

"So I talk to the quarterbacks. They have the ball anyway. I used to always talk to D.C. Between plays, yelling at him, 'Come at me! Let's do this!' We used to go back and forth."

As Smith would tell the receivers, it's not easy looking this good. Never has been.

Smith didn't even have a position to look good at his first two years in college at Utah.

It wasn't until he was moved to cornerback that Smith started to emulate a famous Raider and thought about a future in the NFL.

"At that time, Nnamdi Asomugha was hot," Smith said. "He was the big corner. There weren't a lot of big cornerbacks at that time; everyone wanted that next Nnamdi, a corner over 6-feet tall. ... I used to always watch Nnamdi, seeing how he played and trying to imitate that on the field."

Smith has an inch and 10 pounds on the since-retired Asomugha, and with the move of Brandon Browner to safety in Seattle, he is the biggest starting cornerback in the NFL. He is a big reason that Raiders teammates, coaches and fans are talking playoffs.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"I love his competitiveness," head coach Jack Del Rio said. "Sean's a long athlete. He is a veteran with an understanding of who he is and where he fits in this league. He brings that knowledge of playing that position at a high level for a long time in this league."

Some point to Smith's size and aggressiveness, but his quick feet have paved this road for him.

"I always had good feet. I was a running back in high school, 'offensive weapon' I believe was the term we used," Smith said, smiling.

Smith was one of 18 players on the Blair-Pasadena football team, and had 2,500 all-purpose yards his senior season.

"I never had any intention of playing running back at Utah. That just wasn't the position for me," Smith said. "I begged and pleaded if I could move to receiver."

The Utes' staff moved Smith during his redshirt freshman year, but he got into a heated argument with his position coach.

"The situation carried on, and I said, you know what, I am done with offense," Smith said. "I went to my coach and said, 'I am a big guy, let me play safety.'"

Roll credits?

Nah.

"I wasn't a good tackler," Smith said. "So they said, 'Let's try corner.' I was like, 'Corner?! I don't know if I can do that.' But it ended up working out. I picked up the technique pretty fast, and having played receiver, I understood the splits and what routes a guy might run, so I was ahead of the curve on that."

Smith had four interceptions his sophomore season, and five interceptions and nine passes broken up the next year in Utah's 13-0 2008 season.

Smith was drafted by the Dolphins in the second round in 2009, and it was with Miami that he learned again that being a very good football player doesn't come easy. Another former Raider, 2014 interim coach Tony Sparano, played the starring role.

Sparano was the head coach and current Jets coach Todd Bowles the secondary coach, and neither loved Smith's attitude.

"I smiled at everything, good and bad," Smith said. "Just having the time of my life."

A benching his second year awakened Smith to the extra work needed in the NFL.

"They were patient with me, and worked with me to become the player I am today," Smith said. "They would call plays out before they happened, and taught me how to watch film."

Smith watches so much film now, he can see the future.

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

"Have to, dealing with the smaller, shiftier receivers," Smith said. "Those guys come out of their breaks so well, it forced me to watch more film and try to understand tendencies and formations. What routes do guys run 2-by-2 versus 3-by-1, so I can anticipate when to stop (running) versus just reacting.

"Bigger guys take longer to stop, so you can just use athleticism to cover those guys."

Smith is able to get his hands on a receiver right away and control him, as opposed to letting the receiver get a clean break on his route.

As far as trying to throw the ball over him, forget about it.

"It's really hard," Carr said. "If you want to throw a go-route, especially in the NFL, 90 percent of the time it has to be before 40 yards. Because the safeties are so fast, anything past that they are going to kill your receiver.

"With Sean, you can't really throw that ball on a line because he is so tall. If you want to drop one in on him, you have to bring it from the sky ... and that just gives the safety more time. It's just really hard playing against him."

Smith will pull the chair out, too, backing off and not pressing so that he can jump the route and go for the interception.

"If you already know where the guy is going to be," Smith said, "you might as well play off and keep your eyes on the quarterback and try to beat your man to the spot."

So, don't tell Smith that he's a good fit for Ken Norton's in-your-face defense.

"I fit any defense," Smith said. "Is that a compliment or are people trying to say I can only play a certain way because I am big? I am a very smart individual that works on my technique every day....

"This is a good defense. It allows you to press. We have great edge rushers, so as long as I give those guys a few seconds, we're good."

It Was The Journey

By Robert Mays

March 29, 2016

Joe's Brewery, known simply as Joe's around the University of Illinois, sits at 706 South Fifth Street in Champaign, at the eastern edge of the college-bar hub that lines the town's main thoroughfare. A faded orange canopy shields the beer garden just outside the door. Inside, a list of 21 burgers makes up a bulk of the dining options. It's a place packed for $3 U-Call-Its on a weekend and barren at noon on Monday, but on this afternoon in early March, it's what Jihad Ward wants for lunch.

Champaign-Urbana sits about 140 miles south of Chicago. Outside of the university's small sphere of population, it's beset by farmland on all sides. The campus is spacious but not sprawling, bustling in a few areas but quiet in most. In choosing his Division-I home, Ward sought calm, and he knew he'd found it here.

Before coming to play defensive end for the Illini, the north Philadelphia native spent two years at Globe Institute of Technology, a junior college whose campus is situated in New York City's Garment District only a short stroll from Times Square. His first semester in Champaign, Ward's walk to practice consisted of the seven-block stretch between Bromley Hall and Memorial Stadium. That's the same distance from the 28th Street stop on the 1 Train to the Manhattan Mini Storage on the borough's west side that housed Globe Tech's practice equipment between sessions. At Illinois, the jaunt from Bromley was the entirety of his daily commute. In New York, snagging his pads from a storage locker was just one leg of an 11.5-mile trip from his school-provided townhouse on Staten Island to practice at the Chelsea Ballfields, which were occasionally unavailable because of a youth soccer practice. Getting there meant a short bus ride, a trip across the Upper Bay aboard the Staten Island Ferry, a quick shot on the 1 through Manhattan, and finally, that relative breeze of a seven-block walk.

When practice ended, Ward and the Knights lugged their gear back to storage before trudging nearly a mile down 29th Street to a Bally's Total Fitness near Penn Station for a lift and a shower. Clean but exhausted, they stumbled to classes at Globe, which often ended around 9 p.m. From there, it was a short walk to the 42nd Street station, a subway ride to the ferry, and finally, the slow float back to Staten Island. In all, it was a 24.5-mile round-trip commute—nearly three of those miles on foot—and around 200 minutes in transit over a five-day week.

"That's why people quit," Ward says. "They didn't quit because the team sucks, or this or that. They quit because of the grind." After two years of that grind, wide-open, slow-paced Champaign felt like a haven. "Here," Ward says, "there was nothing but quiet."

As he finishes the thought, Ward—an honest 6-foot-5 and a trim but sturdy 300 pounds, cloaked entirely in charcoal Illinois athletic gear—lifts his burger from its plastic red basket. Ranch and barbecue sauce spill out the sides of the bun. In junior college, players aren't provided meals. Many of the players at Globe were broke, and finding a next meal wasn't always certain. Bubba Burgers were the unaffordable item Ward craved enough to pilfer from the nearby grocery store.

Opinions of Ward as a player cover an expanse. His standout week at the Senior Bowl led Mel Kiper to project him as a first-round pick in February. Others see an inexperienced, position-less project that doesn't deserve a thought in the first two rounds. Ward hasn't paid much mind to any of the noise. Barely 22, with a patchy beard that betrays a soft but rumbling tenor, his past has purged him of self-doubt. Whatever concerns skeptics have voiced, none of them can touch the ones he's already faced.

"Somebody complain about food, I've been through it," Ward says. "Somebody complain about traveling, I've been through that. Somebody complain about not having a father, I've been through that. Somebody complain about violence or shooting, I've been through that too. I ain't afraid of nothing. I've been through everything."

52 Bus to St. George Ferry Terminal // Staten Island Ferry to Whitehall Terminal // 1 Train to 28th St.

Globe Tech's players were scattered around the boroughs and New Jersey, but for two years, Ward lived with 19 teammates in neighboring two-story townhouses at 104 and 106 Townsend Avenue on Staten Island. A modest $3,000 rent was the appeal of each cream-colored, green-roofed building, where six players inhabited the upstairs with another four on the first floor.

The bus stop was only a few steps down the street, and with two lines running they never waited long. Rides cost $2.75, which many of them simply didn't have every day. To ensure passage, they deployed an array of tactics. The simplest, because non-college students rode for free, was flashing an old high school ID. As Ward filled out his 6-5 frame, suspicion grew, and when the MTA issued specialized passes for high schoolers, the plan was scrapped. Some mornings, he'd grab a fistful of pennies and toss them in the change slot.

Free ferry rides provided a brief respite, but the real problem waited for them across the water. "We get off the ferry, and now, we have to worry about the train," Ward says, before pausing. "That's gonna be tricky." Subway stations around Whitehall were lined with police, both MTA and NYPD. Initially, says Tyruiq Gordon, a fellow Philly native who was a year ahead of Ward at Globe, they would try to reason with workers, explaining they were willing to give what they had, even if what they had wasn't enough. "For the most part, they were lenient toward us because of the situation," Gordon says. "We weren't just hanging around." On days when that failed, players would get creative. Even at 280 pounds, Ward would slip into a turnstile with a teammate, conjuring two Metro Card swipes out of one. Like attacking a double team, the key to squeezing onto the subway was getting skinny. "It's a technique going through them things," Ward says. In times of desperation, the Knights were left with one final, undesirable option. "If you had to hop, then you hopped," Gordon says of a move that could come with a $100 fine. "When it came down to it, you couldn't miss practice or class."

"You know the movie Warriors?" Ward asks. "We did the same thing."

Empty pockets hindered travel, but the hardest days were the ones that led to empty stomachs. Groceries came from a now-defunct Waldbaum's around the corner. On his most desperate days, Ward would haul a duffel bag to the store and collect the cheap essentials—pancake mix, milk, bread—before paying, sneaking back inside, and snagging luxuries like hot dogs and french fries. "He [wouldn't] eat for two days and not say anything to me," says Cameron Chadwick, Globe's head coach. "He was one of those kids, he wouldn't ask you. He'd just go without."

During Ward's first season living at 104 Townsend there were three other players from Philadelphia and six from Hampton Roads, Va. Those shared roots created the earliest bonds, but it was hunger—both for food and a future—that ultimately fused them. Gordon and others showed Ward the way that year, and when they were gone, the mantle was his. “It’s not really teaching someone,” Ward says. “You just see it. We’ve got each other’s back.”

For Chadwick, Ward became another set of eyes when he couldn’t be around. If the house wasn’t clean or neighbors complained about noise, he knew to call his Pied Piper, the guy who rounded up players, got them fed and to practice every day. That year, fellow Philadelphian Tyrin Stone-Davis was 3,000 miles away at Pierce College in Los Angeles, but when he joined Ward at Illinois, he felt the same pull. “Just his presence, period,” Stone-Davis said of Ward’s influence. “He just leads by action, and people rally behind him.” Stone-Davis is nearly a year older than the man he now describes as his brother, but that never mattered. There was comfort to be found in Ward’s quiet ambition, and Stone-Davis clung to it. He still does. “I just feel safe around him,” Stone-Davis says. “He never lied to me. He’s never done me harm. I trust him. I love him. He wants the best for me.

Walk from 28th St. to Manhattan Mini Storage (29th St. and 11th Ave.) to Chelsea Ballfields (28th and 10th)

The Chelsea Ballfields are a fenced-in artificial surface near the High Line, outfitted with a track, backstop, and soccer fields. And during Ward’s first season at Globe, in the fall of 2012, it’s where the team held most of its practices. Compared to the arduous walk from the storage unit to De Witt Clinton Park on 52nd Street in Hell’s Kitchen, home to spring practices that year, the two blocks felt like nothing to veterans like Gordon. When Chadwick ran into scheduling conflicts, he’d sometimes audible to Pier 40, at a field that adjoins a trapeze school, but that season Globe Tech football called two main locations home: practices in Chelsea, games at Union City High School in New Jersey, on a roof surrounded by a net to keep balls from plummeting off the side.

Next to the turf patch at the Ballfields sit a trio of basketball courts, much like the ones where Ward spent most of his childhood. Kareema Ward is a single mother with five children. “Jihad” was the name of a childhood classmate, and it would become the name of her first child. There was no religious connection at the time—Kareema didn’t convert to Islam until 11 years ago, long after Jihad was born—but her education as a Muslim has brought new meaning to his name. In her purse, she carries a piece of lined notebook paper with 17 highlighted Islamic phrases, a constant resource for lessons she’s still learning. She knows what most will think. They hear “Jihad,” all they imagine is decrees of holy war and violence. But jihad can also mean to strain, to strive, to persevere. Now, when Kareema hears her son’s name, she thinks of all he’s done in his own struggle.

Until age 14, he’d never played a down of organized football. Before his sophomore year at since-closed Edward Bok Technical High School, the basketball coach approached Frank Natale, then in his first-year as Bok’s head football coach, about a tall, muscular basketball player he thought would fit with Natale’s plans. That summer, a 6-foot-3, 240-pound Jihad Ward was getting snaps for the Wildcats at wide receiver and safety. “He was 6-4 at D-back wearing no. 84,” laughs Gordon, who played running back for nearby University that year. “He looked out of place.”

Apocryphal tales have emerged about Ward’s positional history, in the way they do about players who’ve spent time on the outskirts of college sports before ending up at a major program. He’s only played defensive line for three years is a tempting way to inflate Ward’s potential. It’s also not true. He spent his second season as a standup end in Natale’s 5-2 defense, and with an eye on getting Ward’s hand in the dirt, Bok transitioned to a 4-3 when he was a senior.

Ward was second-team All-City as a junior, but Division I interest ended before it could start when coaches learned about his grades. Natale ensures that Ward was a fixture in class, but still, his GPA hung just below 2.0. Chadwick, who'd been named Globe's head coach the previous year, had history recruiting in Philadelphia, and eventually he and Natale got in touch. He made the trip to see Ward play at an all-star game at Lincoln Financial Field, but he'd been sold long before. Players built like that don't land in junior college. A defensive end from the start at Globe Tech, Ward played well enough for his teammates to elect him a captain the spring following his freshman season.

Eight hundred fifty miles away, Bill Cubit was one of several members of the Illinois coaching staff scouring JUCO tape for defensive linemen. Poring through his Hudl account, Cubit, a Philadelphia native, came across a tape from a school he'd never heard of. He might have kept going if not for seeing his hometown next to the player's name. A few plays on the grainy tape were all Cubit needed.

Cubit reached out to Ward through Illinois's Twitter account and passed along his number. His first question after Ward called was a crucial one: American cheese or Cheez Whiz? Silence followed.

"On your cheese steak," Cubit said.

A short pause.

"American cheese."

Cubit was satisfied.

Until Ward came to Illinois that fall for his official visit, the only proof Cubit had that he even existed was shoddily recorded game footage and a voice on the other end of the phone. There was more evidence that the Loch Ness monster is real. The day before Illinois' game against Wisconsin, a hulking figure walked into a banquet room at Champaign Country Club for the team's Friday meal. "When he walked through the door, I was as relieved as anybody," Cubit says. "And I turned to somebody and said, 'Now that's what they're supposed to look like.'"

A handful of schools pursued, but Illinois is where he felt wanted most. Along with a reprieve from life in New York, Ward yearned for people who cared. He didn't always have them growing up in Philadelphia. When he was 17, a paternity test revealed that the imprisoned man he thought to be his father was not. Jihad eventually did get in touch with his dad, and when his family threw a party to celebrate his acceptance to Globe, he extended an invitation. The man arrived with the smell of beer lingering on his breath and handed his son a congratulatory $20 bill. Ward hasn't seen him since.

In Philadelphia, distrust and dismissal seeped into all of life's cracks. With Cubit at Illinois, there was support, a shared vision. "He told me the other day, 'You can't feel money,'" Kareema says. "But you can feel when someone loves you."

Ward's first padded practice in Champaign was the second day of the team's fall camp. He knew how established, pedigreed Division I might view a JUCO castoff, and from the start, he wanted to announce his presence. A broader goal came with it, though. "When I do a rep against people, when I get off the ball, people feel me," Ward says. "I don't say much, but people feel me. "You're going to feel how I felt for those two years, through my whole life."

Practice started with an inside run drill, the linemen, linebackers, and backs gathered on one side of the field. On the first snap, Ward knifed into the backfield and buried running back Donovan Young into the turf. Stone-Davis was across the indoor facility with the rest of the wide receivers. "All I heard was Wooooo! Wooooo!" Stone-Davis says. "Everybody just turned their head and looked." What they saw was Ward, letting out an out-of-character roar in Young's face as he was peeled off the ground. "He felt like he'd arrived," Stone-Davis says.

Illinois was thin on the defensive line, and co-defensive coordinator Tim Banks says the staff did all they could to get Ward ready to play early that season. "I think we knew after the first practice," Banks says. "This kid was freakish, in terms of his movements. And he went hard." By the fourth game of the season, an injury made Ward one of the Illini's starting defensive ends.

He remained there all year, earning Honorable Mention All-Big Ten along the way, but when new defensive line coach Mike Phair arrived the following spring, he quickly developed grander plans. Like many who'd only seen him on film, Phair was jarred by Ward's size in person.

He saw a player that even at 6-foot-5 had the flexibility to maintain pad level and keep leverage. Throughout the spring, he experimented with Ward inside, where the quickness and length that allowed him to survive on the edge became an even more significant advantage against interior offensive linemen. "He's dangerous there," Phair says. "I thought he could really cause some problems for an offense. And I thought he did a really good job learning how to play those spots inside." A bump to tackle was just another course in Ward's rapid defensive line education. Those practices would be his only spring football experience in major college football, and that lack of background is what has teams intrigue about his room for growth. "I'm just now learning techniques and schemes," Ward says. "Getting off the ball, getting vertical, those types of things."

By the time Illinois played Iowa in its sixth game of the season, Ward was playing a considerable portion of his snaps at defensive tackle, and that week is when Phair saw it all coalesce. Ward finished that game with 11 tackles, including nine solo. In years past, players that appeared to fall between the cracks of positional designations were downgraded for it. Now, with stars like Muhammad Wilkerson, Calais Campbell, and Jurrell Casey blurring lines and erasing ballcarriers, versatility is en vogue. Phair spent five years as an NFL defensive line coach before arriving in Champaign, and when looks at Ward, he sees an instant pro. "It won't surprise me when he plays right away for whoever drafts him," Phair says.

Walk from Bally's Total Fitness to Globe Institute of Technology (38th St. and 7th Ave.)

Globe's entrance is on 38th Street. Wedged between two stores specializing in rhinestones and beads, "Garment Center Capitol" is carved into the stone above the door. When Cubit visited, following Illinois's 2013 season, he thought he was lost. Ward's thoughts were even blunter: "I was like, 'This is the school?'"

The school is three floors of beige walls, with a few rows of computer paper reading "Welcome to Globe Institute of Technology" taped behind a receptionist's desk acting as a banner. The rounded letters are filled in with black marker. It's a tough sell for head coach Cameron Chadwick, and he knows it.

Chadwick is from Union, N.J. A high school star, poor grades made junior college his only outlet after graduation. He landed at Nassau Community College, and from his housing in Hempstead, the trudge to the Garden City campus was more than 3.5 miles. After two seasons, he transferred to Rutgers, where he played defensive back under head coach Terry Shea. Three years with NFL Europe's Prague Panthers followed, and after a short stint in real estate, Chadwick felt the pull of coaching. He was hired as Globe's defensive coordinator in 2008 before finally taking the head job in 2011. "I feel like this is where I belong," Chadwick says. "I was [these players] 20 something years ago."

The main sales pitch for Globe Tech is two-prong. Prong 1 starts—and ends—with the chance to attend school in New York City. Prong 2 is about how much it costs. Last season, Globe's opponents included Stevenson College, Dean College, and Albright College. The average yearly tuition for those three schools is $33,000 a year. Lackawanna and Albright are considerably more affordable, but neither gets to Globe's annual asking price: $11,000.

Getting players to campus is a start, but keeping them is far from a certainty. In those days, with the trek to and from Manhattan, Chadwick estimates that he lost about the half the players he'd recruited before the season. "You take an 18-year-old kid straight out of high school, stick him in the heart of New York and say, 'OK, now you have to do everything yourself,'" Gordon says. "It was definitely a shock." The travel was a deterrent for some of Ward's teammates, but what sent many of them scurrying was learning that a portion of their credits wouldn't pass NCAA compliance. Following his freshman year, Washington, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois all showed interest in Ward, but some balked at Globe's accreditation.

Chadwick ensured that all they needed was additional course materials, and the concerns would be alleviated, but Ward saw it as another rejection. He was devastated. All those hungry nights, all the cunning work to make his way onto the train, all his success on the field, it had been in vain. "It really hurt me because I busted my ass to be where I was," Ward says. "I was so excited that I had a full scholarship somewhere." Chadwick did what he could to calm the unrest, and in time, Illinois was able to accept enough of Ward's credits to accept him. After coming to Globe Tech with a 1.8 GPA, he left with a 3.4, and he's on track to finish his degree at Illinois in sports management this spring.

Conference room 409, where Ward signed his letter of intent, has been unchanged since. An old Dell desktop sits in one corner, a black file cabinet in another. Two posters—an eagle for "Leadership" and group of cyclists for "Perseverance"—hang on adjacent walls. A blue Globe Tech banner fills out another, behind the long table where Ward put pen to paper. Documenting it all was Chadwick with a cell phone, the signing day cameras a world away. "After we signed him, [Jihad] must have thanked me for five, six weeks, for giving him the opportunity," Cubit says.

Even now, as Ward spends more time with former college stars entrenched in the same stretch of their lives, he can't believe what he hears. He never says anything, content to keep his head down and his mouth closed as he plugs away. Quietly, he's incredulous. "It's a regular day to them," Ward says. "It's not a regular day to me. I'd never had a practice on no college football field, in a big stadium." He says the moment he arrived at Illinois, he knew this was the future. The hardest days were behind him. But even now, short clips will land in Cubit's text messages, of Ward alone in the practice facility. "He could be a $100 million man, and he'd still feel like he's worth a penny," says Stone-Davis. "That's Jihad."

Walk from Globe Tech to 42nd Street/Times Square // 1 Train to Whitehall Terminal // Staten Island Ferry to St. George Ferry Terminal

Tourists lingered in Times Square long after the 9 p.m. let-out time for Globe's classes, but the worst of the noise was long past. After another adventure to secure a seat on the train, Ward arrived at

OAKLAND RAIDERS FEATURE CLIPS

Whitehall Terminal and waited for the next ferry back to Staten Island. Sitting on the hard plastic seats of the ferry, he'd pass the Statue of Liberty, softly lit from below as a few straggling tourists gathered near the window to snap a picture.

"Like I tell everybody," Ward says, "I just want peace at the end of the day."

He found it at the end of every night in New York, but at Illinois, he discovered it in every aspect of his day. He knows football has changed his life, but he doesn't deny he's the one that allowed it to.

"There was so much stuff happening in my life. There's always something trying to break you down," he says. "But I made it through."

The only sound on the ferry was the low hum of the engine. It was a calming churn. Staring out the window, he saw the soft light on the Lady to which so many began anew. When he looked into the sky, he saw hope.
