GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders will close out the preseason on the road as they travel to Seattle to take on the defending NFC Champion Seahawks on Thursday, Sept. 3 at 7:00 p.m. PT at CenturyLink Field. This will mark the 10th consecutive season that the Raiders and Seahawks have concluded their preseason schedule against one another. Thursday's game will also be the eighth out of those 10 contests that the game has been played in Seattle. The game marks the third NFC West opponent that Oakland will face in the preseason, having already hosted the St. Louis Rams and Arizona Cardinals. Last week, the Raiders fell at home to the Cardinals, 23-30. With Thursday's game, the Seahawks will conclude a presason slate in which they faced all four teams from the AFC West. Last week, Seattle won a road contest in San Diego against the Chargers, 16-15.

The defense turned in a strong first-half performance last week against Arizona, led by LB Khalil Mack and his two sacks. Mack was a force all evening, finishing with three tackles, two sacks and one forced fumble. DE Mario Edwards Jr. also provided strong play along the defensive line, adding two sacks. S Nate Allen fortified the secondary, recording two interceptions in the first half. WR Amari Cooper led the way on offense, posting a gamehigh 62 receiving yards on four catches (15.5 avg.). QB Derek Carr finished the game 18-of-34 for 213 yards and one interception.

Following Thursday's game, the Raiders will travel home and reduce their roster to 53 players ahead of Saturday's deadline. The team will then turn their attention to their Week 1 regular season opponent, the Cincinnati Bengals.

MACK ATTACK

"Being a guy that came in as a rookie, was able to play 16 games, I think the game for him is already slowing down, even though it's your second year. He has some experience in this game. This guy is only going to get better. He's only getting his feet wet right now. He's going to be a star." - Raiders S Charles Woodson

LB Khalil Mack has translated his success as a rookie to the preseason this year. Last week, he turned in his most dominant outing so far this year, totaling two sacks and one forced fumble. Below is a look at this numbers so far this preseason:

SEAHAWKS SNAPSHOT

Overview: Head Coach Pete Carroll, who is 50-30 (.625) in the regular season with Seattle, has led the Seahawks to a franchise-best three consecutive 10-win seasons, with three straight playoff appearances and trips to each of the last two Super Bowls. After winning 13 games in 2013 and defeating the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XLVIII, the Seahawks posted a 12-4 mark in 2014 before falling to the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XLIX.

Offense: The Seahawks' offense, which ranked in the top 10 in both points (24.6) and yards (375.8) per game last season, is led by fourth-year QB Russell Wilson, who has continued to post big numbers both through the air and on the ground. Last season, Wilson threw for 3,475 yards on 285-of-452 passing (63.1 percent) with 20 touchdowns for a 95.0 passer rating. He also ranked second on the team with 118 carries for 849 yards (7.2 avg.) with six touchdowns. RB Marshawn Lynch led the rushing attack with 1,306 yards on 280 carries (4.7 avg.) with 13 touchdowns. In addition to TE Jimmy Graham, who led the Saints with 85 receptions and 10 touchdowns with 889 yards (10.5 avg.), Wilson will have one of his top targets from a year ago in WR Doug Baldwin, who returns after notching a team-leading 66 receptions last year.

Defense: Kris Richard enters his sixth season coaching with the Seahawks and his first as defensive coordinator. He inherits a unit that ranked first in the NFL in both points and yards allowed per game in both 2013 and 2014. The catalyst of the defense is a strong secondary, led by CB Richard Sherman, who led the way with four interceptions last season. Safeties Kam Chancellor and Earl Thomas also contributed to one of the league's best passing defenses with one interception apiece. Up front, DE Michael Bennett has harassed opposing passers to the tune of seven sacks, a team high in 2014, while LB Bruce Irvin added 6.5 sacks.

NOTES FROM LAST WEEK'S GAME VS. ARIZONA

Oakland Raiders (1-2) vs. Arizona Cardinals (1-2) Preseason Week 3 | Sunday, Aug. 30, 2015 | 5:00 p.m. PT O.co Coliseum | Oakland, Calif.

	1	2	3	4	Total
Arizona Cardinals	0	3	7	20	30
Oakland Raiders	6	9	0	8	23

Allen Records Two Picks of Palmer

- S Nate Allen ended the Cardinals' opening drive with an interception of QB Carson Palmer, marking his first takeaway as a Raider and the team's second of the preseason.
- · Allen hauled in his second interception of Palmer late in the second quarter, adding a 14-yard return after the catch.
- The last Raider to intercept two passes in the first half of a game in the regular season was Nnamdi Asomugha, Dec. 10, 2006, at Cincinnati.

Mack Attack

- LB Khalil Mack recorded two sacks of Palmer, four quarterback hits and one forced fumble in the contest. His first sack came on third down in the second quarter, dropping Palmer for a 4-yard loss and forcing a Cardinals punt. His second sack, a 6-yard loss, ended the first half.
- On a third-and-short play in the first quarter, Mack forced a 3-yard loss while also stripping RB David Johnson for a forced fumble. The play forced a Cardinals field goal attempt, which was short.

Cooper Doubles Preseason Totals

- Rookie WR Amari Cooper finished as the game's leading receiver with four catches for 62 yards (15.5 avg.), doubling his totals entering the game to give him eight receptions for 124 yards (15.5 avg.) this preseason.
- Cooper picked up 36 yards on his second reception of the game, with most of the yardage coming after the catch when he broke a tackle and continued deep into Cardinals territory. Cooper caught a 13-yard pass on the very next play, bringing the Raiders down to Arizona's 8-yard line.

Janikowski 5-for-5 in First Half

- K Sebastian Janikowski opened up the game's scoring with a 49-yard field goal following Nate Allen's first interception, and booted a 33-yarder at the end of the first guarter. In the second frame, Janikowski added conversions from 42-, 28- and 32-yards out.
- Janikowski's five field goals would be tied for the second most in a game in Raiders regular season history, and would also be the most field goals made by a Raider in a single half.

Edwards Jr. Records Two Sacks

- Rookie DE Mario Edwards Jr. got to Palmer in the first quarter for an 8-yard sack. The sack forced a Cardinals fourth down and field goal attempt.
- Edwards Jr. took down QB Logan Thomas late in the fourth quarter for his second sack of the game, giving him 2.5 this preseason.

Smith Smothers the Cards

- LB Malcolm Smith led the Raiders in tackling with nine stops (six solo) with one tackle for loss, according to unofficial press box statistics.
- Smith helped stall a Cardinals drive in the second quarter by identifying a screen pass and making the open-field tackle for a 4-yard loss.

Autry and McGee Deflect Four Passes

- DE Denico Autry was active on the front line, especially when he deflected a first-quarter pass attempt from Palmer at the line of scrimmage for an incompletion. Autry knocked down another attempt from Palmer at the line late in the first half for his second pass defensed of the game. He also added a tackle for loss in the contest.
- DT Stacy McGee added a deflection of his own in the second quarter on a first-down attempt from Palmer, and another late in the fourth quarter on an attempt from QB Logan Thomas.

Reece, Richardson, Rivera and Roberts All Produce

- FB Marcel Reece hauled in a deep pass from QB Derek Carr and raced down the right sideline for a 41-yard gain on his second reception of the preseason. Reece finished the game with two receptions for 42 yards (21.0 avg.). The 41-yard completion to Reece marked Carr's longest pass of the preseason.
- RB Trent Richardson had a few impressive carries in the second half, including a 15-yard scamper, his longest as a Raider. He finished with five carries for 19 yards (3.8 avg.), both team highs.
- TE Mychal Rivera entered the game with just one reception this preseason, but added three catches for 42 yards (14.0 avg.) in the contest, including an 18-yard catch for a first down.
- WR Seth Roberts ranked second on the team in receiving with three catches for 52 yards (17.3 avg.).

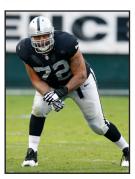

WHAT TO WATCH FOR IN 2015

- The Raiders opening the season with two straight home games for the first time since 1969, John Madden's first year as head coach. Madden's Raiders began the 1969 season 3-0 and went on to finish 12-1-1.
- The Raiders earning a victory in Week 1 victory for the first time since 2011, when Hue Jackson, currently the Cincinnati Bengals offensive coordinator, was head coach.
- The Raiders extending their three-game home winning streak, the team's longest since a three-game streak in 2010. The last time the Raiders had a home winning streak longer than three games came in 2002 when the team won six straight – the final four games of the regular season and both AFC Playoff games.
- The team to snap an 11-game road losing streak, which dates back to the team's 28-23 win at Houston on Nov. 17, 2013.
- Any Raider rookie to start all 16 games, marking the second time in Raiders history the team has had a rookie start every game in back-to-back years. Matt Millen (1980) and Johnny Robinson (1981) comprise the only other pair to do so. Only 12 Raiders rookies have accomplished the feat, and last season, QB Derek Carr and LB Khalil Mack became the first pair of Raiders teammates to do so in the same year.
- QB Derek Carr throwing for 645 yards and seven touchdowns to eclipse Tom Flores (1960-61) for the most passing yards and passing touchdowns by a Raider in his first two NFL seasons.
- Carr to finish four games with at least 30 passing attempts and no interceptions, tying Jeff Garcia (10, 1999-2000) for the most such outings in his first two seasons.
- If Carr throws fewer than five interceptions in his first 151 attempts, he will jump to the top of the list in fewest interceptions thrown over a player's first two NFL seasons (min. 750 att.), supplanting Robert Griffin III (17, 2012-13) and Bernie Kosar (17, 1985-86).

- WR Amari Cooper catching at least 45 passes on the season to set the Raiders rookie record, passing TE Zach Miller (44 in 2007). Tim Brown holds the record for Raiders rookie wide receivers with 43 receptions (1988).
- Cooper hauling in at least eight receiving touchdowns to set the franchise rookie mark, passing Raymond Chester's seven touchdowns in 1970. With 772 receiving yards, Cooper would pass James Jett for the franchise rookie record.

- Cooper catching eight passes in a single game to tie the team rookie mark currently shared by Marcus Allen (1982), Tim Brown (1988), Raymond Chester (1970) and Zach Miller (2007).
- WR Michael Crabtree posting at least 673 receiving yards to reach the 5,000-yard mark for his career.
- K Sebastian Janikowski passing Tim Brown (240) for the most games played as a Raider. Currently at 236 games, Janikowski is on pace to eclipse Brown in Week 5 vs. Denver.
- Janikowski making four field goals of 50 yards or longer to tie Jason Hanson (52) for the all-time record.
- Janikowski booting seven touchbacks on kickoffs to set the NFL record for most touchbacks, passing Jason Hanson (323).
- P Marquette King punting seven times to reach 200 for his career, and punting for 963 yards to eclipse 10,000 career punting yards.
- LB Curtis Lofton starting his 100th consecutive game at line-backer. His 99 straight starts are currently second among active streaks behind the New York Jets' David Harris (100).
- T Donald Penn extending his streak of 124 consecutive starts at offensive tackle, good for third among active streaks behind the New York Jets' D'Brickashaw Ferguson and the Cleveland Browns' Joe Thomas.

- TE Mychal Rivera eclipsing the 1,000-yard, 100-reception and 10-touchdown marks for his career. Rivera needs 59 yards, four receptions and two touchdowns to reach those milestones.
- TE Clive Walford emerging onto the NFL scene and challenging Raymond Chester's rookie total of 556 receiving yards, a record for Raiders rookie tight ends that has remained unbroken since 1970
- S Charles Woodson intercepting a pass for the 18th consecutive season, putting him just one year behind Darrell Green's NFL-record 19 straight seasons (1983-2001).
- Woodson scoring his 14th defensive touchdown to pass his current assistant defensive backs coach Rod Woodson and Darren Sharper for the most all-time. An interception return for a touchdown would tie R. Woodson (12) for the most in NFL history.
- If Woodson returns a single punt in 2015, he will pass Tim Brown (38 years and 94 days) as the oldest NFL player to return a punt. Woodson moved into second place, shy of Brown by just 12 days, in Week 17 at Denver.

HEAD COACHING MATCH-UP

JACK DEL RIO

Jack Del Rio was named the 19th head coach in the 55-year history of the Oakland Raiders franchise on Jan. 15, 2015. The appointment marked a homecoming for Del Rio, who was raised in nearby Hayward, Calif.

Now in his 30th year in the NFL and his 19th season in coaching, He recently concluded his second stint as a defensive coordinator under Head Coach John Fox, as the two also spent the 2002 season together in Carolina. In all, he has coached 18 players to a total of 27 Pro Bowl selections.

In his second season with the Broncos in 2013, Del Rio's defense helped Denver to a 12-4 record and an appearance in Super Bowl XLVIII. Del Rio also accepted the additional role of interim head coach (Weeks 10-13) while Fox underwent a heart procedure, and led the Broncos to a 3-1 record against teams with a combined record of 29-9 (.763).

Prior to joining the Broncos in 2012, Del Rio spent nine seasons at the helm in Jacksonville. During his head coaching tenure (2003 to 2011) with the Jaguars, the club ranked sixth in the NFL in yards per game allowed (317.3) and eighth in points per game allowed (20.3).

Under Del Rio, the Jaguars made two playoff appearances in 2005 and 2007, highlighted by the club's first postseason win in eight seasons with a 31-29 road victory against the Pittsburgh Steelers in a 2007 AFC Wild Card Game.

The Jaguars posted an 11-5 record in 2007 to earn a second playoff berth in three years, in addition to claiming the franchise's first playoff win since the 1999 season, while becoming the first team in NFL history to win in Pittsburgh twice in one season.

In 2005, the Jaguars won eight of the last nine regular season games, including four straight on the road, en route to a 12-4 finish and a Wild Card playoff berth.

During his lone season as a defensive coordinator with Carolina in 2002, he inherited the NFL's worst defense statistically (371.4 yards per game allowed) and turned it into the league's second-ranked unit (290.4 yards per game allowed). Additionally, the 2002 Panthers squad led the NFL in rushing average against (3.7 avg.).

As linebackers coach for the Baltimore Ravens from 1999-2001, Del Rio tutored a talented group that included Ray Lewis. Baltimore's 2000 team set the NFL 16-game record by allowing only 165 points while recording four shutouts and forcing a league-best 49 turnovers. Lewis was named the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year and the MVP of Super Bowl XXXV that season.

Del Rio began his coaching career with the New Orleans Saints under Head Coach Mike Ditka, serving as an assistant strength coach in 1997 before moving on to coach the linebackers in 1998.

A veteran of 11 seasons as an NFL linebacker, he was selected in the third round (68th overall) of the 1985 NFL Draft by New Orleans and went on to make the NFL's All-Rookie Team and earn the Saints' Rookie of the Year award. For his career, he played 160 games in the regular season and totaled 1,078 tackles, 12 sacks and 13 interceptions.

Born on April 4, 1963, in Castro Valley, Calif., Del Rio and his wife, Linda, have three daughters, Lauren, Hope and Aubrey, and a son, Luke, who is a collegiate quarterback.

PETE CARROLL

Named head coach on January 11, 2010, Pete Carroll became the eighth head coach in Seahawks history after one of the most successful runs in USC history in the college ranks. He brings 21 years of NFL experience and 19 years of collegiate experience to Seattle. Carroll's overall head coaching record is 83-61 in the regular season and 8-5 in the postseason in his nine years of head coaching.

In his five seasons as head coach in Seattle, Carroll and General Manager John Schneider constructed the best teams in Seahawks history over the past three seasons with a combined 36-12 record and back-to-back Super Bowl appearances.

Seattle won its ninth division title in club history in 2014, third under Carroll, after winning the NFC West with a 12-4 record. Seattle has advanced to the divisional round in four of Carroll's five seasons as coach, winning two NFC Championships and one Super Bowl, while claiming the No. 1 seed in the NFC for the third time in club history (2005, 2013-14).

Carroll led Seattle to its first Super Bowl title in franchise history with a 43-8 victory over the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XLVIII on February 2, 2014, after a franchise-best 13-3 regular season record, and joined Jimmy Johnson and Barry Switzer as the only coaches to win a college football national title and a Super Bowl in their career.

Carroll returned to the NFL after spending nine years (2001-09) as head coach at USC, where he won seven consecutive Pac-10 titles (2002-08), two national championships (2003-04) and led the Trojans to a 97-19 record. He reached a bowl in each of his nine seasons and won seven. His 88 victories from 2001 to 2008 tied Bob Pruett of Marshall for most by a Division I coach in their first eight seasons since 1900 (Penn's George Woodruff - 102). From 2002-08, his teams appeared in an NCAA-record seven consecutive BCS bowls, recorded at least 11 victories seven times (an NCAA record) and finished ranked in the AP Top 4.

He began his NFL career as defensive backs coach for Buffalo (1984) and Minnesota (1985-89) before becoming the New York Jets defensive coordinator (1990-93) and head coach (1994). He spent two years as San Francisco's defensive coordinator (1995-96), leading the league in total defense in 1995, before leading New England to a 27-21 record and two playoff appearances as head coach (1997-99). 979). Carroll was a two-time (1971-72) All-Pacific Coast Conference free safety at Pacific and earned his bachelor's degree in 1973 in business administration.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 56th year of professional football competition, including the last 45 as a member of the National Football League.

In five memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the 2000s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three world championships of professional football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 21 playoff seasons, finished 34 seasons at .500 or better and played in 40 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only two original AFL teams to have captured three world championships of professional football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only four AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

With four postseason victories, the Raiders were the first of the AFC West teams to win multiple postseason contests in the new millennium by six years.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During those memorable 55 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 437 league games, tied 11 and lost 388.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

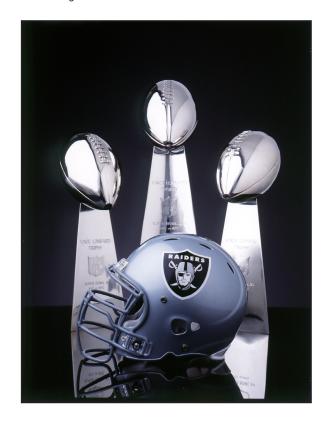

More than 20 of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced five Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 62 Pro Bowl players have made 182 Pro Bowl appearances representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-73-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 37-27-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 15-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the 2000s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

REGGIE McKENZIE

THE GENERAL MANAGER

Reggie McKenzie, a former draft pick by Raiders Owner Al Davis as a player, enters his 29th season in the National Football League and his fourth as General Manager of the Silver and Black. McKenzie was named to the position by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 10, 2012, becoming the first General Manager of the franchise since Al Davis was hired as Head Coach and General Manager in 1963.

In his first three years as General Manager, McKenzie has overseen significant changes in the organization's scouting, player personnel and football operations departments, while bringing refined football acumen to the Silver and Black. Adhering to a strategy of building a competitive roster through the draft while making strategic acquisitions via free agency and trades, McKenzie enters his fourth season at the helm having already earned plaudits from some of the most respected voices in football.

UNDRAFTED GEMS

Every preseason, hundreds of undrafted free agents vie for a spot on their team's 53-man roster. Reggie McKenzie has brought in numerous players that were not drafted, developing them into significant contributors for the Silver and Black.

- WR Andre Holmes, originally an undrafted free agent with the Minnesota Vikings in 2011, has two of the Raiders' top four singlegame receiving totals over the last two seasons. He set career highs in 2014 with 47 catches for 693 yards and four touchdowns.
- In 2013, P Marquette King posted numbers among the NFL's best in both gross average and punting yards. With 4,107 punting yards on the year, King finished sixth in the NFL, and led the league in gross punting with an average of 48.9. In 2014, King set Raider franchise records in punts (109) and punting yards (4,930).
- QB Matt McGloin made his mark on the NFL in his rookie season, making his first career start on Nov. 17, 2013 at Houston. In that game, McGloin became the first undrafted rookie to throw for three-or-more touchdown passes in his first NFL start since 1987. He also became just the second quarterback to throw for three touchdowns without an interception in his first NFL start since the NFL-AFL merger in 1970.
- WR Rod Streater led the team in receptions (60) and receiving yards (888) in 2013 and totaled 39 receptions as a rookie in 2012, good for fourth most by a rookie in franchise history.

Below are some of the notable current Raiders who entered the NFL as undrafted free agents:

Player	School	Year	Team
LB R. Armstrong	Miami (Fla.)	2013	St. Louis
LS Jon Condo	Maryland	2005	Dallas

2014 DRAFT CLASS

First Round - LB Khalil Mack (No. 5 overall)

- Mack started all 16 games this season and has posted 84 tackles (59 solo), four sacks, four passes defensed and one forced fumble, according to official coaches' statistics.

- According to Pro Football Focus, Mack was the highest rated 4-3 outside linebacker in the NFL with a 56.4 overall rating and a 47.4 rating against the run, more than 25 points higher than the next highest rated player (Von Miller, 22.0).

- Mack finished second in the NFL behind J.J. Watt (12) with 11 tackles for loss against the run. He also ranks second behind Watt in stuffs with 11.5 tackles at or behind the line of scrimmage.

Honors: Finished third in Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year voting...Selected to the Pro Football Writers of America, Sports Illustrated and NFL.com All-Rookie Team...Was the only rookie named to the USA Football All-Fundamentals Team, which honors 26 NFL players who exhibit exemplary football techniques for young players to emulate.

Second Round - QB Derek Carr (No. 36 overall)

- Carr, the 14th NFL rookie quarterback to start all 16 games, is the owner of every franchise-rookie passing record and ranks first among 2014 rookies with 348 completions (second among all-time rookies), 3,270 passing yards (10th among rookies) and 21 touchdowns (T-5th among rookies).

- Carr boasted a 2.0 interception percentage despite attempting 599 passes, marking the best percentage among 2014 rookies and the seventh best among all NFL quarterbacks. He is one of just four rookies in NFL history with at least 20 touchdowns and 12-or-fewer picks.

Honors: Named to Sports Illustrated's All-Rookie Team.

Third Round - G Gabe Jackson (No. 81 overall)

- Jackson earned the starting left guard job during training camp and went on to play in 13 games with 12 starts. He is the first Raider offensive lineman to start at least 10 games since Stefen Wisniewski started 15 in 2011.

 In 528 passing plays, Jackson allowed just one sack and two pressures, ranking tied for seventh and tied for fifth among NFL guards, respectively, according to Pro Football Focus.

Fourth Round - DT Justin Ellis (No. 107 overall)

- Ellis was a surprise force on the defensive line, appearing in all 16 games with 14 starts after stepping into the starting position in Week 3.

- He finished the season with 39 tackles (21 solo) and one pass broken up.

Honors: Named to Sports Illustrated and Pro Football Writers of America's All-Rookie Team.

Fourth Round - CB Keith McGill (No. 116 overall)

- Despite being plagued by injury through much of the year, McGill contributed on special teams all season long, posting three special teams tackles. He finished the year with 12 tackles (six solo) and four passes defensed.

- McGill finally got his opportunity as the starting cornerback in Week 17 at Den., where he made a heads-up play by picking up a fumble on a lateral pass and returning it 18 yards for a touchdown.

Seventh Round - CB TJ Carrie (No. 219 overall)

- Carrie made immediate contributions on both defense and special teams, appearing in 13 games and starting four at cornerback. He finished the year with 48 stops (40 solo), an interception, 12 passes defensed, a forced fumble and two fumble recoveries (one special teams).

- As the Raiders' leading punt returner, Carrie brought back 26 punts for 195 yards (7.5 avg.). He also returned kickoffs, totaling 15 kick returns for 362 yards (24.1 avg.) with a long of 42 yards.

JACK DEL RIO

DEL RIO QUICK FACTS

- Jack Del Rio left the Jaguars tied with Tom Coughlin as the franchise's winningest head coach with 68 wins. Del Rio compiled a 68-71 regular season record (1-2 in the postseason) with Jacksonville from 2003 to '11. As the Broncos' interm head coach from Weeks 10-13 in 2013, he posted a 3-1 record, helping the Broncos secure the top seed in the AFC Playoffs.
- As a defensive coordinator and head coach, Del Rio's defenses have finished in the top 10 in total defense in seven times, and four times in the top five. Of the top seven defensive seasons in Jaguars team history, Del Rio was the head coach for for five of them.

Year	Team	Position	Rank	Yds./Game

COORDINATORS

BILL MUSGRAVE

Bill Musgrave is in his 17th season in the NFL coaching ranks and second stint with the Raiders, having served as the team's quarterbacks coach in 1997

In his fifth assignment as an NFL offensive coordinator, Musgrave has served in that role with the Philadelphia Eagles, Carolina Panthers, Jacksonville Jaguars and Minnesota Vikings. He also spent two seasons as the offensive coordinator at the University of Virginia. While at the helm of the Vikings from 2011-13, Musgrave oversaw the best rushing attack in the league over that span. During his three seasons at the helm, Minnesota led the league in rushing, posting 146.5 yards per game, and RB Adrian Peterson paced the NFL with 4,333 rushing yards. He has also mentored numerous of quarterbacks during his time in the league, including Matt Ryan, who won the 2008 Associated Press and Sporting News Offensive Rookie of the Year.

A former NFL quarterback himself, Musgrave played six seasons in the league for the San Francisco 49ers and Denver Broncos.

KEN NORTON, JR.

Ken Norton, Jr. joins the Raiders in 2015 for his sixth NFL coaching season, and his first as Oakland's defensive coordinator.

As an 18-year NFL veteran as a player and coach, Norton, Jr. has been a part of four Super Bowl-winning teams (three as a player and one as a coach). He is entering his 19th season overall in the NFL, with 13 coming as an All-Pro linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers. He and Raiders Head Coach Jack Del Rio played alongside one another in the linebacking corps of the Cowboys from 1989-91.

From 2010-14, Norton, Jr. served as Seattle's linebackers coach, helping the team to three NFC West Division titles, two NFC Championships and a Super Bowl XLVIII title. Over that period, he helped the Seahawks' defense rank second in total defense (309.5 yards per game) and the unit finished in the top 10 four times (2011-14), including leading the league in total defense the past two seasons. Additionally, he was part of a defensive staff that sent 11 players to the Pro Bowl from 2011-14.

COACHING STAFF NOTES

FROM PLAYERS TO COACHES

The 2015 Oakland Raiders coaching staff certainly has pedigree. Ten of team's coaches played at the NFL level before getting into coaching. The staff has 102 years of combined playing experience, with 15 Pro Bowl appearances, five All-Pro selections and one induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Raiders S Charles Woodson on having former players on the 2015 coaching staff: "Yeah, I think for any player, when you have a guy that played the game, he knows the scrutiny put on you as a player. He knows the bumps and bruises that you take on a day-in and day-out basis. He knows about being in training camp. He knows about what it takes to win. It's validation for that guy when he played the game. When you're a player, there's almost automatically a respect that you have for a person that's been in it, been in that fight, knows what it's all about. These guys really they do have a wealth of knowledge. I think our teaching level this year has been at an all-time high, as far as guys understanding where they're supposed to be each and every play. I think that'll go well for us.

Head Coach Jack Del Rio: 11 years as an NFL player

McGLOIN TO BUTLER

Since entering the league together in 2013, QB Matt McGloin and WR Brice Butler have developed quite the connection in the preseason. In their very first preseason game together against the Dallas Cowboys on Aug. 9, 2013, McGloin found Butler for a 30-yard touchdown to give the Raiders the lead late in the second half, on which Butler made a sensational diving grab. A year later on Aug. 15, 2014 against the Detroit Lions, the two connected for a game-winning touchdown with :06 remaining in the game. In this season's first preseason contest, they hooked up for a 16-yard score in the third quarter. Here is a look at their preseason numbers over the past three seasons, when Butler has caught all six of his touchdown passes from McGloin:

"MEAT AND POTATOES"

During a press conference in training camp, LB Khalil Mack revealed that he calls DTs Justin Ellis (6-foot-2, 335 pounds) and Dan Williams (6-foot-2, 330 pounds) the Raiders' "meat and potatoes" up front.

With Ellis and Williams and the rest of the Raiders' defense playing the run, Oakland has limited opponents to just 3.2 yards per rush through its first two preseason games, with the opposition gaining just 246 yards on 77 carries. Below is a look at how the Raiders' run defense has performed through the preseason:

O.CO WINNING

Dating back to Nov. 20 of last season, the Raiders have now won three consecutive regular season games at 0.co Coliseum, ending the 2014 regular season with three straight wins over the Kansas City Chiefs, San Francisco 49ers and Buffalo Bills.

In the preseason, Oakland has won five of its last seven home games dating back to 2012. In those contests, they have beaten the Detroit Lions (twice), Dallas Cowboys, Seattle Seahawks and St. Louis Rams. The only losses came against the Chicago Bears on Aug. 23, 2013 and Arizona Cardinals on Aug. 30, 2015.

The Raiders will look to their three-game home winning streak (not counting preseason), the team's longest since a three-game streak in 2010. The last time Oakland had a home winning streak longer than three games came in 2002 when the team won six straight – the final four games of the regular season and both AFC Playoff games.

STANDING GROUND

The Raiders' revamped offensive line excelled in pass protection in 2014, ranking among the best units in the league in that regard. Oakland only allowed 28 sacks on the season, good for tied for sixth in the NFL. Here is how the Raiders stack up against other offensive fronts in 2014:

SACKS ALLOWED IN 2014

Rank	Team	Sacks Allowed	Sack Yards
1.	Denver	17	118
2.	Baltimore	19	167

CLEAN QB JERSEYS

In Week 2 (9/14 vs. Hou.) and Week 3 (9/21 at NE) of the 2014 season, the Raiders offensive line recorded clean sheets by not allowing a single sack in either game. That marks the second straight season, and the 10th time since team sacks became an official statistic in 1982, that the Raiders' line kept the quarterback upright in back-to-back games. The Raiders also allowed zero sacks in a contest four times in 2014. Here is a look at those streaks since 1990:

CONSECUTIVE GAMES NOT ALLOWING A SACK (SINCE 1990)

FOURTH DOWN SUCCESS

Fourth down in the NFL is a "do or die" situation for offenses, and Oakland's offense was effective in those situations this season. The Raiders finished third in the NFL when facing fourth down, extending drives at a 60.0 percent clip. Here is a look at how the Raiders stack up against the rest of the NFL last season:

FOURTH DOWN PERCENTAGE IN 2014

Rank	Team	Attempts	Conversions	Pct.
1.	Arizona	4	3	75.0
2.	Philadelphia	11	7	63.6

5.	Houston	17	10	58.8
6.	NY Jets	16	9	56.3

PUNCHING IT IN

When the Raiders get down inside the opponent's 20-yard line, which they did 29 times in 2014, the offense has shown the ability to gain those crucial final yards and cross the goal line. The Raiders scored touchdowns on 21-of-29 red zone possessions, good for first in the league with a 72.4 percent success rate. Here is a look at the top red zone teams from 2014:

RED ZONE TD PERCENTAGE IN 2014

STUFFING THE RUN

Since the Raiders returned to Oakland in 1995, the team limited the opposition to less than two yards per carry in a game only 13 times, including three in 2013 and twice in 2014. The 1.0 yards per carry allowed vs. Buffalo was the seventh time since 2012 that the Silver and Black have allowed an average of less than two yards per carry. Here is a look at the games:

Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards	Attempts	Avg.
12/16/12	Kansas City	10	10	1.0
12/21/14	Buffalo	13	13	1.0

SACKS & TURNOVERS

In their Week 1 contest at the New York Jets, the Raiders were able to force two turnovers (one S Charles Woodson interception and one CB TJ Carrie forced fumble/recovery). Oakland also racked up two sacks in the game, one coming when S Tyvon Branch registered a 19-yard sack of Geno Smith on third down, knocking the Jets out of field goal range. When LB Sio Moore caused a sack-fumble, it marked the first time since 2011 that Oakland had forced at least two fumbles and recorded at least two sacks in their season-opener. The Raiders forced three turnovers and posted five sacks in their win over the Broncos on Sept. 12, 2011. In Week 14 vs. San Francisco, the Raiders added five sacks and two more interceptions. Here is a look at the two games:

Date/Opp.	Sacks	Forced Turnovers	Result
9/12/11 at Den.	5	3	W, 23-20
9/7/14 at NYJ	2	2	L, 14-19
12/7/14 vs. SF	5	2	W, 24-13

MILES AND MILES

Factoring in three trips to the Eastern time zone and two more to the Central time zone, the Raiders will travel the third most miles in the NFL this season. According to Pro Football Reference, Oakland travels 26,336 miles in 2015, with three trips over 2,000 miles. The Raiders trail only the Miami Dolphins (26,452 miles, including a trip to London) and San Francisco 49ers (27,998) Here is a look at the teams that travel the most in 2015:

FRED BILETNIKOFF

Pro Football Hall of Famer Fred Biletnikoff is one of the most beloved Raiders of all-time. He is is the second leading receiver in Raiders history, catching 589 passes for 8,974 and 76 touchdowns during his 14-year career as a Raider and the collegiate award given annually to the nation's top wide receiver is named after him. After not having a winner of Biletnikoff Award in more than a decade, the Raiders now have two on the team - WR Amari Cooper (2014 winner) and WR Michael Crabtree (2007 and 2008 winner). Oakland is one of three teams in the league (Detroit Lions and Jacksonville Jaguars) who have two winners of the award on their roster.

Cooper on Biletnikoff and meeting him at training camp this year: "He was a really great receiver and that award was something that I really wanted, that I really sought after my whole career in college. It was nice to finally meet him. It means a lot to just be in the NFL. To play for the team that Fred Biletnikoff played for is just a great feeling to try to continue that legacy."

Biletnikoff on having two winners of the Biletnikoff Award on the Raiders this season: "It's great. I'm excited about it. It means a helluva lot to me to have both of these guys on the team, with both of them winning the award. I have big expectations of those two guys and I'm so happy they're playing together and they're going to be a part of this team. They're going to make a big difference with this team, they really are."

In April 2015, Raiders Owner Mark Davis donated $50,000 to Fred and Angela Biletnikoff and the Biletnikoff Foundation to help increase education in an effort to eradicate this horrible dilemma. In addition to monetary support, the Raiders will execute an extensive platform, including ongoing programs and public service campaigns to assist in preventing domestic violence and sexual assault.

"The Raiders are proud of our continuing commitment to raising awareness of this important issue that is close to the heart of the Raider family," said Davis. "We are excited to have the opportunity to work with this tremendous organization and assist them in reaching the ultimate goal, ending domestic violence and sexual assault."

The Biletnikoff Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to supporting youth, primarily from low to moderate income neighborhoods or backgrounds, who are "at risk," particularly to the realities of drug and alcohol addiction as well as domestic and gender violence. The mission of the Biletnikoff Foundation is to commemorate Tracey Biletnikoff's life and her untimely death and to enable young people to realize their full potential through the support of community and education programs that effectively address the related problems of substance abuse and gender violence.

CRAIG LONG AWARD

Last season, the Raiders introduced the Craig Long Award, presented to the player who best exemplifies professionalism and collaboration with the media at large. The award, chosen by a select group of local media and facilitated by the Oakland Raiders' media relations department, was won by DL Antonio Smith.

Craig Long, who passed away in 2007 at age 36, was a valuable member of the Oakland Raiders' public relations staff from 1997-2004. An Iowa native, Long fulfilled his childhood dream of working in the front office for his favorite team.

RAIDERS EXCELLENCE

Each season, Raiders players vote on which teammate should receive the prestigious Commitment to Excellence Award, given to the Raider who best exemplifies hard work, leadership, and excellence on and off the field throughout the season. In 2014, S Charles Woodson was presented with the award following another standout season on the field, as well as impressive list of off-the-field work. It started as the Gorman Award in 1967 and was later renamed the Commitment to Excellence Award in 1983. Here is a look at the winners of the award since 1967:

CHARLES WOODSON

A LEADER IN PICKS

5 Charles Woodson, who posted nine interceptions when he won the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year award in 2009, is the NFL's active leader in interceptions. Woodson, who just completed his 17th NFL campaign, has 60 interceptions, 17 more than DeAngelo Hall's 43. Woodson has five seasons with at least five picks in his Hall of Fame career.

LONG-TERM HAWK

Remarkably, S Charles Woodson has intercepted at least one pass in each of his first 17 NFL seasons. Woodson has joined an elite company of just one other player to intercept a pass in at least 17 consecutive seasons. He is now in sole possession of second place on this list, trailing only Hall of Famer Darrell Green. Woodson has four seasons of at least seven interceptions in his career.

FIRST TO 50 AND 60/20

In Week 12 against Kansas City, S Charles Woodson achieved some history. With a third quarter sack of Chiefs QB Alex Smith, Woodson became the first player since sacks became an official statistic in 1982 to record 50 interceptions and 20 sacks for his career. Woodson is the only active player with at least 60 career picks and one of just 11 players in NFL history. His 20 sacks are tops among current defensive backs and make him just one of eight defensive backs to record at least 20 sacks for their career.

WOODSON QUICK HITS

- Only two players in football history have ever won a Heisman Trophy, Associated Press Rookie of the Year, Associated Press Player of the Year and a Super Bowl in their career. Charles Woodson is one of them. The other? Former Raiders RB Marcus Allen.
- Since 1995, only four players have won both the Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year and Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year awards in their career Raiders S Charles Woodson (1998 & 2009), Ravens OLB Terrell Suggs (2003 & 2011), former Bears LB Brian Urlacher (2000 & 2005) and Panthers LB Luke Kuechly (2012 & 2013).
- when Woodson posted an interception touchdown in six straight seasons (2006-11), becoming the first player in NFL history to do so. No other NFL player has accomplished the feat in more than four consecutive seasons.
 - In 2009, Woodson became the fourth player in NFL history (since sacks became an official statistic in 1982) to record at least nine interceptions and two sacks in a single season.
 - Is the only player in NFL history to post at least seven interceptions and two sacks in back-to-back seasons.
 - Became the first NFL player (since sacks became an official statistic in 1982) to record two interceptions, an interception touchdown, a sack and a fumble recovery in the same game when he posted all of those statistics on 11/26/09 at Det.
 - Became the first player in NFL history to record 60 interceptions and 20 sacks for his career on Dec. 21, 2014.

TAKING IT TO THE HOUSE

The only thing better than forcing a turnover is turning it into a touchdown, and S Charles Woodson has done that just as well as anybody in the history of the NFL. Woodson is one interception-touchdown away from tying assistant defensive backs coach Rod Woodson's all-time mark, and just one defensive touchdown away from setting the all-time mark. With every touchdown going forward, Woodson will be adding a new note to the NFL record books.

KHALIL MACK

SILVER AND MACK

As the Raiders' first-round pick in the 2014 NFL Draft, LB Khalil Mack had lofty expectations in his rookie season and he met them all and more. Mack finished the third third in Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year voting, falling to St. Louis' DT Aaron Donald. Proving to be of the NFL's best run defenders and generating pressure on quarterbacks that didn't always show up on the stat sheet, Mack was selected to the Pro Football Writers of America, Sports Illustrated and NFL.com All-Rookie Teams.

Mack was the only rookie named to the 2014 USA Football All-Fundamentals Team, on December 10, 2014, an honor awarded to 26 NFL players who exhibit exemplary football techniques for young players to emulate. The USA Football All-Fundamentals Team was assembled with guidance from a five-person selection committee: Charles Davis, Herm Edwards, Merril Hoge, Carl Peterson, Bill Polian.

Last season, became the third Raider Linebacker to start all 16 games in his rookie season, and the first to do so since General Manager Reggie McKenzie in 1985. Matt Millen also started all 16 games as a rookie in 1980.

While most of Mack's success last year didn't always show up on the stat sheet, he'll look to improve on the below numbers from last year, seeing a lot of time as a defensive end.

S"MACK" TALK

LB Khalil Mack's NFL career is still in its initial stages, but opposing coaches and players are already taking notice. Mack has made an impact on games as a run defender and pass rusher. Here are a few things players and coaches around the NFL have had to say about Mack:

"Khalil was definitely a guy that we thought was an instinctive player, an explosive player, a guy that we felt like his best football was ahead of him, because we felt like this is a guy that can really rush the passer and also probably drop into pass coverage, be a second-level defender. That's what we see on tape, he's a really good football player." - Texans Head Coach Bill O'Brien, Sept. 10, 2014

"No. 52 [Khatil Mack] is a phenomenal player. He's a great pass rusher, but he's really good in the run game. We knew it was going to be a challenge." - Cardinals QB Carson Palmer, Oct. 19, 2014

"He was a guy that was definitely highly rated on our board. We thought a lot of him coming out. And sometimes you don't necessarily get the sack production and people can be fooled by that. We look at the effectiveness of a rusher – how much they're affecting the quarterback. They might not be getting the finish, they might be causing production for somebody else." - Browns Head Coach Mike Pettine, Oct. 22, 2014

"Talking to the guys in the locker room, he gained the respect of everybody on our team. That guy 52, Khalil Mack, is one of the best players we've gone against this year and that's a unanimous decision in that locker room. He gained all of our respect, and we knew coming in he was going to be a tough player." - Browns QB Brian Hoyer, Oct. 26, 2014

"He's a rookie, but you wouldn't think that by the way he's been playing. When you look at him on film, he attacks the line and he's aggressive. He makes plays." - Browns RB Terrance West, Oct. 26, 2014

"I think he's really good. He jumps off the film. Every one of our coaches, when they break up and start looking at the Raiders and taking seriously what they're doing well, everybody comes back talking about him. He's almost unblockable and he's got a great motor. He's fast, he's tough, he's instinctive. We think he's an obvious factor." - Seahawks Head Coach Pete Carroll, Oct. 29, 2014

"Every week, one of the teams I watch early on is the Raider defense, and the reason I want to watch is Khalil Mack. He's not just one of the best rookies to come out, he's the best linebacker in the National Football League, and he is the best against the run."

- Former NFL RB and current ESPN analyst Merrill Hoge

DEREK CARR

CARR AT THE HELM

QB Derek Carr was named the Raiders' starting quarterback heading into Week 1 last year, becoming the first rookie quarterback in franchise history to start in Week 1. Oakland's second-round pick of the 2014 NFL Draft was solid in his NFL debut, finishing the game 20-for-32 passing for 151 yards, two TDs and a passer rating of 94.7. Carr became the ninth Raider QB and second rookie to throw at least two TD passes in his debut. His 94.7 passer rating is the third highest for a Raider rookie in his first start. Carr began his career nearly perfect, going 7-for-7 for 53 yards and one TD before throwing his first incompletion in the second guarter.

Carr began his career with a completion percentage of at least 60.0 in his first four games. In NFL history, only two other quarter-backs have accomplished the feat: Robert Griffin III (Was.) in 2012 and Rick Mirer (Sea.) in 1993.

Carr's 300-yard passing performance (328) on Oct. 26 at Cleveland was the first 300-yard passing game of his career and first ever by a Raider rookie.

Carr engineered his first game-winning drive in Week 12 against Kansas City, producing a 17-play, 80-yard touchdown drive that took 7:21, ending with a touchdown pass with 1:42 remaining.

Carr set a career high with a passer rating of 140.2 on Dec. 7 vs. San Francisco, and it is the seventh highest single-game passer rating in franchise history (min. 20 attempts). It is also the sixth-best passer rating by a rookie quarterback since 1960 (min. 20 attempts).

HISTORICAL FEAT

QB Derek Carr vaulted himself into rare company following his 4 TD performance in Week 6 vs. San Diego last year. Carr posted eight TD passes in his first five games, which is the most ever by a rookie quarterback in the first five games of his career. Here is a look at where Carr's historical start to his career stacks up:

TD PASSES BY ROOKIE QBs (FIRST FIVE GAMES)

Rank	Player	Season	TD Passes
1.	Derek Carr	2014	8
2t.	Andrew Luck	2012	7
2t.	Cam Newton	2011	7
2t.	Geno Smith	2013	7

QB Derek Carr completed passes with the kind of pinpoint accuracy only seen a handful of times previously in league history. In his first four games, Carr completed 84-of-133 passes for a completion rate of 63.2 percent. Since 1960, that places Carr second among rookie quarterbacks with at least 100 passing attempts through their first four games. Here is a look:

HIGHEST COMP. % BY ROOKIE QB IN FIRST 4 GAMES (MIN. 100 ATT.)

Rank	Player	Year	Cmp. %
1	Robert Griffin III (Was.)	2012	69.35
2	Derek Carr (Oak.)	2014	63.16
3	Chris Weinke (Car.)	2001	62.14
4	Jim Kelly (Buf.)	1986	61.17
5	Russell Wilson (Sea.)	2012	60.00

ELITE EFFICIENCY

Carr attempted 599 passes last season, second all-time among rookies. Despite the heavy workload, Carr completed his passes at a 58.1 percent clip, fourth best all-time among rookies (min. 500 attempts).

Of the eight rookie QBs ever to attempt 500 passes in a season, Carr owns the fourth highest completion percentage (Sam Bradford) 60.0 percent in 2010; Cam Newton - 60.0 percent in 2011; Andy Dalton - 58.1 percent in 2011).

Carr also ranks first among rookies since 1960 with four games of at least 40 attempts and 25 completions.

Carr owns the fewest interceptions of any rookie in NFL history with at least 500 attempts. Carr's 2.0 interception percentage also ranksed first among 2014 rookies and seventh among NFL QBs.

On six occasions, Carr threw at least 30 times without an interception, tied with Andy Dalton for the most such games by any rookie since 1960. Lastly, Carr was one of four rookies with at least 20 TDs and fewer than 12 INTs (R. Griffin III, D. Marino and R. Wilson).

Carr was just the 14th quarterback since the 16-game season was adopted in 1978 to start every game in his rookie campaign. He and his brother, David Carr (fourth quarterback, 2002), comprise the only pair of siblings to have accomplished the feat.

LEADING THE CLASS

With his rookie campaign behind him, Derek Carr was in elite company, as he ranks in or near the top 10 in multiple rookie passing categories. Here is a look at how Carr stacked up against 2014 rookie guarterbacks and all-time rookie passers.

Category	Carr	2014 Rookie Rank	All-Time Rookies
Completions	348	1	2
Passing Yards	3,270	1	10
Passing TDs	21	1	5t
QB Rating	76.6	2	14

PUTTING UP POINTS

The owner of 21 career TD passes, Carr quickly jumped into the history books as one of the most prolific rookie scorers in NFL history.

Carr's 21 touchdowns tied with Cam Newton for fifth all-time among NFL rookies.

Carr tied for sixth among rookies since 1960 with six multi-TD performances, including two three-TD outings (Week 6 vs. SD and Week 14 vs. SF).

In Week 6, Carr lit up the Chargers defense for 282 yards and four TDs, a career high and tied for the second-most TDs ever thrown by a rookie in a single game. It was also the most touchdowns ever thrown by a rookie against San Diego.

Carr's four-TD day also marked the first time an NFL rookie threw four in a game since Russell Wilson and Andrew Luck each did it in 2012, and just the eighth four-TD game by a rookie since 2000.

AMARI COOPER

FIRST-ROUNDER

WR Amari Cooper was tabbed as the Raiders' first-round draft pick in the 2015 NFL Draft and the fourth-overall selection. He was the highest wide receiver taken in the draft and the first receiver taken by Oakland in the first round since 2009. Despite the hype, the even-keeled Cooper has garnered rave reviews from his college playing days and so far in his young NFL career. While enjoying one of the most dominant careers a wide receiver has ever had at the college level, Cooper looks for that success to translate to the NFL.

COLLEGIATE CAREER

In three years at Alabama, Cooper emerged as one of the nation's most explosive and polished receivers. Below is a look at his offensive totals at Alabama.

COOPER QUICK HITS

Here is a brief look at where Cooper's offensive exploits ranked among his peers in the SEC and NCAA, along with some other notables from his Alabama career:

Receiving Touchdowns

- Ranks first in SEC annals (since 1956) with 31 career TDs
- Finished first in the SEC, and second in the NCAA, with 16 TDs in 2014
- Second in the SEC with 11 TDs as a freshman in 2012, an Alabama-freshman record

Receptions

- Ranks third in SEC history (since '56) with 228 career receptions
- Topped the SEC and NCAA in 2014 with 124 receptions, setting the SEC record
- In 2012, finished with 59 cathces, second all-time among Alabama freshmen

Receiving Yards

- Second all-time in SEC history (since '56) with 3,463 yards
- Led the SEC, finishing second in the NCAA, with 1,727 yards in 2014
- His 1,000-yard season in 2012 was good for fifth in the SEC that season, and the third-best yardage total among Alabama freshman

QUOTES ON COOPER

"He is a pro. He is a legit pro and he's been a pro even when he wasn't a pro. He is gym rat who just only wants to play football. On the field, he's just polished. ... He is smart enough and savvy enough to do a lot of things, and that's great. If he's the kind of player that the Raiders think and a lot of other people around the NFL think, then you're going to have to find ways to get him out of double coverage, and moving him around will help." - NFL Network reporter lan Rapoport

"They have their new Tim Brown. He's very much like Tim Brown, very explosive, got speed to burn, really going to strike fear into the opposing team." - Pro Football Hall of Fame and former Raiders WR Jerry Rice

SACK ARTIST

In an effort to bolster the pass rush, Oakland signed proven pass rusher DE Justin Tuck before the 2014 campaign. Tuck, who owns 65.5 career sacks, joined the Raiders after nine seasons with the New York Giants. He helped the Giants win two Super Bowls during his tenure, while earning two trips to the Pro Bowl and two Associated Press

All-Pro selections (one first team and one second team).

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

LB Curtis Lofton was signed as a free agent this offseason, bolstering the Raiders defense up the middle. Lofton, who has made stops with the Atlanta Falcons and New Orleans Saints, is a tackling machine, recording at least 100 tackles in each of his first seven NFL seasons. He also set a career high and Saints franchise record with 185 tackles last season. Below is a look at his career numbers:

SUPER BOWL XLVIII MVP

Coming over from the Seattle Seahawks in the offseason, LB Malcolm Smith has big-game pedigree. Appearing in eight postseason games over the last three years, Smith has totaled 27 tackles [16 solo], two interceptions, two passes defensed and one fumble recovery. In Seattle's win over the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XLVIII, Smith earned Super Bowl MVP honors after posting nine tackles (five solo), one fumble recovery and one interception returned 69 yards for a touchdown. Smith also intercepted 49ers QB Colin Kaepernick in the final seconds of the 2014 NFC Championship Game, clinching a victory over San Francisco and a Super Bowl berth.

DJ AT CORNER

The Raiders' first-round selection (No. 12 overall) in the 2013 NFL Draft, CB DJ Hayden has come a long way. After suffering a life-threatening injury to his heart in November 2012, Hayden played a major role in Oakland's defensive makeover. In his rookie year, Hayden recorded 29 tackles and two PD. In the Week 5 win vs. San Diego, Hayden hauled in his first NFL interception, picking off Philip Rivers in the end zone to stop a potential Chargers scoring drive. His season was cut short due to a groin injury on Nov. 20, 2013.

After spending the first seven weeks on the PUP list to start the 2014 season after rehabbing from an offseason foot injury, Hayden returned to game action on Oct. 26, 2014 at Cleveland. In his first significant action of 2014, Hayden had four passes defensed in the Raiders' match-up with the defending champion Seattle Seahawks. He also added his first interception of the season in Week 10 against the Broncos. Here is a look at his numbers last season:

ADDING ALLEN

The Raiders added a reliable member of the secondary in free agency this past offseason, signing S Nate Allen in March. Allen joins Oakland following five seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles, where he played in 74 games and made 69 starts. Originally a second-round pick in 2010, Allen has totaled 10 career interceptions and 28 passes de-fensed.

Career Highlights

- Posted a career-high four interceptions, two forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries in 2014.
- Tallied a career-high 94 tackles in 2013 as he started all 16 games for the first time in his career.
- As a rookie, earned NFL Defensive Rookie of the Month honors for September 2010 after recording 19 tackles (13 solo), two interceptions and one sack in three games.
- Became the only rookie in Eagles history to record at least three interceptions and two sacks in his rookie campaign.

DYNAMIC TJ

Bay Area-native CB TJ Carrie was drafted by the Raiders in the seventh round of the 2014 NFL Draft and immediately showed he belongs. Carrie proved to be one of Oakland's most versatile players last season, contributing on defense and special teams. Not only did he handle his assignment as one of the team's top cornerbacks, he also served as the team's primary punt returner and took over returning kickoffs midway through the season.

MURRAY MAKES HISTORY

RB Latavius Murray emerged onto the scene late in 2014, totaling 424 rushing yards on 82 carries (5.2 avg.) in six games since Week 11. Murray, who spent the 2013 season on the reserve/injured list, made a name for himself in his sophomore campaign, getting the majority of the carries down the stretch last season.

In Week 12 against Kansas City, Murray burst onto the scene on national television, producing 112 rushing yards on just four carries (28.0 avg.) and two touchdowns before leaving the game due to injury. Here are a few notes from Murray's breakthrough performance:

Murray scored his first career touchdown on an 11-yard run around the left end in the first quarter and added a 90-yard rushing touchdown in the second quarter. Murray finished with four carries for 112 yards [28.0 avg.] and two touchdowns, making him the Raiders' first 100-yard rusher since Marcel Reece ran for 123 yards at NYJ on 12/8/13.

Murray is the first player in NFL history to gain at least 110 rushing yards on five or fewer carries, posting four rushes for 112 yards (28.0 avg.) and two touchdowns, all in the first half.

Murray's 11-yard touchdown run in the first quarter was the first rushing touchdown allowed by the Kansas City Chiefs in their last 12 games (12/22/13 vs. Ind.). It was also the Raiders' third rushing touchdown of the season and the first since 10/19 vs. Arizona.

Murray's 90-yard touchdown run was the Raiders' second rushing touchdown of 90-plus yards since 1998 and the longest by a Raider since Terrelle Pryor's 93-yard score against the Steelers on Oct. 27, 2013.

Murray's 90-yard touchdown was the longest offensive scoring play in the NFL in 2014 and the fourth rushing touchdown of 90-plus yards in Raiders history (last: Terrelle Pryor's 93-yard score vs. Pit., 10/27/13).

THE LEAD BACK

Since 2009, FB Marcel Reece has been lethal out of the backfield when it comes to picking up big yards through the air. Reece, who is second in the NFL during this time in average yards per reception among active RBs and FBs, averages 10.0 yards per catch.

RIVERA STEPS UP

TE Mychal Rivera proved to be one of QB Derek Carr's favorite targets last season, as he finished second on the team with 58 receptions and third with 534 receiving yards. Since being drafted in the sixth round of the 2013 NFL Draft, Rivera has emerged as the Raiders' primary tight end, providing a security blanket for quarterbacks. In

Week 14 vs. San Francisco in 2014, Rivera posted a career high with 109 receiving yards on seven catches and one touchdown, becoming the first Raiders tight end since 2012 to eclipse 100 yards. Here is a look at his 2014 season:

DURABLE PENN

T Donald Penn joined the Raiders prior to the 2014 season after he was released from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Last season, Penn was widely considered one of the better left tackles in the league and helped Oakland yield only 28 sacks on the year, good for sixth in the NFL.

Since 2007, Penn has been one of the most durable players in the NFL. He has played in 128 consecutive games and started 124 conecutive games. Both of the totals are fourth in the NFL during that time frame among offensive lineman. His streak will carry into its ninth season in 2015.

Originally signed by the Minnesota Vikings as an undrafted free agent in 2006 out of Utah State - where he started 44 consecutive games - Penn earned Pro Bowl honors after the 2010 season, when he helped the Buccaneers to one of the best offensive seasons in franchise history.

CRAB CROSSES THE BAY

When the Raiders signed WR Michael Crabtree in April, they immediately upgraded their offense with a proven performer. After being selected by the San Francisco 49ers in the first round (10th overall) of the 2009 NFL Draft, Crabtree has caught at least one pass in each of his 79 games played. Before joining the NFL ranks, "Crab" turned in one of the most prolific receiving careers in college football history, winning the Biletnikoff Award - given to the nation's most outstanding wide receiver - in each of his two seasons at Texas Tech. He was the first and only player to win the coveted award twice.

Career Highlights

- Became the first 49ers player since WR Terrell Owens in 2003 to post a 1,000-yard receiving season, tallying a career year in 2012 with 85 receptions for 1,105 yards and nine touchdowns.
- Registered two 100-yard receiving games in the 2012 postseason with three touchdown receptions.
- Has registered at least three receptions in 66 of his 79 career games.
- Scored the first touchdown in Levi's Stadium history on Sept. 14 2014

ALL-TIME RAIDER

Moving up the all-time games played list for a franchise as historic as the Raiders takes longevity, and K Sebastian Janikowski has it. In 2013, Janikowski moved into second place on the all-time list, and will eventually pass Tim Brown for sole possession of first place this year. Here is where Janikowski ranks on the Raiders' all-time games played list:

PUNTING KING

In his first season as the Raiders' punter in 2013, P Marquette King put up numbers among the NFL's best in both gross and punting yards. With 4,107 punting yards, King finished sixth in the league and led the NFL in gross punting with an average of 48.9. Here's how the second-year player from Fort Valley State finished the year:

HISTORICAL PUNTER

In 2013, P Marquette King became the third punter in franchise history to lead the league in gross punting with an average of 48.9. It was the eighth time since 1974 that a Raiders punter has led the league in the category. Shance Lechler accomplished the feat four times, and newly-inducted Hall of Famer Ray Guy did it three times. Below is a look at the seasons a Raiders punter has led the league in gross average:

GAME RECAP CLIPS RAIDERS VS. CARDINALS

Raiders suffer costly injury in loss to Arizona Cardinals

By Jimmy Durkin August 30, 2015

OAKLAND -- The Raiders' healthy trek toward the start of the regular season hit a roadblock Sunday night.

Starting right tackle Menelik Watson ruptured his left Achilles tendon in Oakland's 30-23 loss to the Arizona Cardinals, a game that left the Raiders unsatisfied with their offensive performance.

Watson presumably will be placed on injured reserve and be out for the season. He was hurt on the final play of the second drive, on which he was flagged for holding after being beaten by an Arizona pass rush. He limped off the field and eventually ended up face down on the training table with his left shoe off.

Watson tried to put weight on the left foot with help from the trainers only to stumble in pain. His reaction -- he threw his arms up in frustration before being helped to the locker -- told of the severity, and he later tweeted the diagnosis.

"I will be back stronger than ever," Watson also tweeted. "Main thing is supporting the team right now."

Austin Howard took over on the next series and figures to get the first shot to be the starter at that position.

"He'll be called on for a much bigger role than he might have if Menelik stayed healthy," Raiders coach Jack Del Rio said of Howard. "That's part of why you have depth and competition."

Watson did not address the media but had a heavy brace on his left foot as he limped through the locker room after the game.

The game resulted in Oakland's second straight preseason loss and in one swoop featured a highly encouraging defensive performance and a troubling offensive outing.

The starters played the first half and one drive of the third quarter. In that time, the defense allowed just one field goal, produced two turnovers (both Nate Allen interceptions) and plenty of pass rush, mostly from Khalil Mack.

Mack had two sacks and four quarterback hurries as the Raiders harassed Carson Palmer on a night he completed 8 of 22 passes for 103 yards. Arizona didn't score an offensive touchdown until the first play of the fourth quarter when Oakland had its second-string defense on the field.

The offense was a far different story. Despite taking over at the Arizona 34-yard line on its opening drive after Allen's first interception, the Raiders settled for a 49-yard Sebastian Janikowski field goal -- his first of five on the night, all of which came in the first half.

The Raiders didn't notch a first down until their fourth possession, and the starting offense was kept out of the end zone on four red-zone trips.

"As an offense, we're pretty upset right now because we want to score a lot of points," quarterback Derek Carr said. "We felt like we left a lot out there."

Carr completed 18 of 34 passes for 213 yards, with three plays of 30 or more yards boosting his final line. But he ended the night on a bad note.

The Raiders opened the second half with a drive that reached the Arizona 9, leading 15-3. A false start penalty moved them back, and Oakland tried to set up a screen pass.

The Cardinals read the play, and Carr scrambled and still tried to hit a double-covered Rod Streater. Carr's fluttering pass was picked off and taken 81 yards by Cariel Brooks.

"I made a mistake. I'll learn from that," Carr said. "I knew I was coming out for one series. We had a great drive going, it sucks that it had to end on something like that."

Amari Cooper was targeted nine times and caught four of those for 62 yards. He lost one pass in the sun, and Carr missed him a couple of times on a night he was far from sharp. Cooper shared in the offense's frustrations.

"We attempted way too many field goals," Cooper said. "I think we should've capitalized more and scored touchdowns."

Carr, who won't play much if at all in the final preseason game Thursday in Seattle, has yet to throw a touchdown pass in three exhibition games. The first-team offense has just one touchdown.

"We have some time before the Cincinnati week gets here to get those things fixed, and I know that we're going to work to do it," Carr said, referring to the season opener Sept. 13 against the visiting Bengals.

The Raiders' running game was nonexistent, racking up just 1 yard on 12 first-half carries against the Arizona starters.

"We expect our team to run better," Del Rio said. "I told the team tonight after that game that we're going to run the ball better than that, and we have to and we will."

Matt McGloin led the Raiders on a game-tying drive late, hitting Kris Durham for a 4-yard touchdown. A two-point conversion pass to Brice Butler made it 23-23 with 2:18 to play.

But Arizona charged down the field, and Marion Grice scored on an 11-yard touchdown run with 31 seconds left for the winning score.

Raiders dominate first half, but lose to Cardinals 30-23

By Vic Tafur August 30, 2015

Some Raiders fans had started heading for the exits midway through the fourth quarter after the Cardinals scored 20 straight points. Most, though, stayed because the King of the Preseason was getting loose.

Onetime starter Matt McGloin led Oakland 83 yards down the field in 12 plays. He threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Kris Durham and then a two-point conversion pass to Brice Butler to tie the game 23-23 with 2:18 left.

McGloin's annual domination of third-team defenses would not save the day, as with 31 seconds left, Marion Grice ran for a 12-yard touchdown and a 30-23 Arizona win at the Coliseum on Sunday night.

It was a fitting end to an uneven game the Raiders had dominated — in ugly fashion — early.

Head coach Jack Del Rio, with his team up 15-3, wanted his starters to get a taste of playing in the third quarter in their third preseason game.

So, he watched Derek Carr lob a pass into double coverage and the Cardinals' Cariel Brooks returned the interception 81 yards for a touchdown. Then, Oakland's starting defense gave up a 12-play, 80-yard touchdown drive to Arizona's second-team offense.

Just like that, after a failed two-point conversion, the Raiders were down 16-15 and a dominant first half by their defense wasn't the main story line.

Khalil Mack and rookie Mario Edwards Jr. each had two sacks, torturing former Raiders tackle Jared Veldheer, Denico Autry knocked down two Carson Palmer passes and Nate Allen had two interceptions in the first two quarters.

"We feel like our front is going to be pretty stout," Del Rio said. "Some lapses there at the end, need to see the tape on that. I thought early in the game, they were rugged, did a good job clogging the running lanes, did a good job knocking the ball down and sacking the quarterback."

The offense couldn't capitalize, settling for five Sebastian Janikowski field goals. Including Carr's third-quarter interception, Oakland didn't score a touchdown on its first four trips inside the red zone.

"We'd obviously like to close the deal there," Del Rio said.

Carr finished 18-for-34 for 213 yards and the interception, with a lot of his passes sailing high.

Wait ... we know what you're thinking. Why did Carr throw the ball 34 times in 2½ quarters?

Because the Cardinals' defense ate the Raiders' offensive line for dinner, and Oakland running backs could muster only 28 yards on 18 carries through the first three quarters. Starter Latavius Murray gained a yard on seven carries, Roy Helu picked up 8 on four carries and Trent Richardson — more and more a longshot to make the roster — had 4 yards on four carries before popping a 15-yarder.

"I didn't see anything from our running game," Del Rio said. "We expect to run it better. I told our team tonight after the game, we're going to run the ball better than that. We have to. We will. ...

"Clearly when they're nailing you behind the line as many times as they hit us tonight, not a good night for the running game."

A national television audience stayed tuned, and did get to see first-round pick Amari Cooper, after some early troubles with the sun, pull down four catches for 62 yards.

The fans also got to see that bad decision by Carr to toss a ball while back-pedaling, intended for a double-covered Butler. Carr said he was not trying to throw the ball away, and Del Rio said that was the problem.

"The play started breaking down and he kind of tried to keep it alive; he knew that was his last series," Del Rio said. "I don't know if that played into the decision to go ahead and put it in play there ... really, we're better off with him just dumping that ball and moving on to the next play."

Kicking enthusiasts probably didn't mind the offense's struggles as they got to see Janikowski swing true on field goals of 49, 33, 42, 28 and 32 yards.

Instant Replay: Raiders fall to Cardinals in final minute

By Scott Bair August 30, 2015

OAKLAND – Raiders head coach Jack Del Rio wanted his starters to experience playing out of a halftime versus Arizona in their third exhibition game, often considered a dress rehearsal for the regular season.

The defense didn't need the extra snaps after a dominant stretch where Nate Allen had two interceptions and the front seven wreaked havoc in the Cardinals backfield. Khalil Mack, Denico Autry and the rest of the defensive line made life difficult on the Cardinals early in a 30-23 loss to Arizona on Sunday evening at O.co Coliseum.

The defense had three sacks, two interceptions and allowed just 2.4 yards per carry in the first half, showing real pass-rush ability even without injured end Justin Tuck.

Mack was truly special, dominating both Arizona tackles with a rare combination of power and speed the Raiders hope paces a stingy defense during the regular season. If they play like they did Sunday night, that reputation will be well earned.

The offense must do better, and that starts with the quarterback. Carr was inaccurate and inconsistent in nine series. He had some good moments driving downfield and had some decent yardage, but completed 18-of-34 passes for 213 yards and an awful interception on a pass he didn't throw away well enough.

The running game never got going in the first half, with just one yard on 12 attempts.

This was the preseason's longest look at the first unit, which will make cameos in Thursday's exhibition finale at Seattle. The defense showed a dynamic quality up front that could aid a young cornerback trio.

The offense needs to find consistency, especially in the red zone. They have rarely scored inside the 20 in three preseason games. Receiver Amari Cooper had a few nice plays. So did Marcel Reece and Brice Butler.

Autry and rookie defensive end Mario Edwards Jr. made an impact up front, and Malcolm Smith was a tackling machine as usual.

McGloin ties it up late: Matt McGloin is well known for preseason heroics, and Sunday's effort was no different. The third-string quarterback didn't see much time on Sunday night, but wowed on his first series of the night. Down 23-15 with roughly 5 minutes left, McGloin took the third unit 83 yards on a 12-play drive that ended with a touchdown pass to Kris Durham. McGloin then connected with Brice Butler for a 2-point conversion to tie the game at 23-23. The lead didn't last long, as the Cardinals responded with a touchdown on the third-string defense.

Sea Bass gets a workout: Raiders kicker Sebastian Janikowksi saw tons of action in the first half thanks to his team's inability to find the end zone. Janikowski converted all five of his field goal attempts, with a long of 49 yards off the infield dirt.

Cooper shows flash: Receiver Amari Cooper didn't catch every pass throw his way. A few were off target and one got lost in the sun, but Cooper showed great potential with four catches for 46 yards. His best effort came on a 39-yard reception with Pro Bowler Patrick Peterson in coverage. He got inside position, caught the ball and broke inside then out on a long gain.

Stay in Oakland?? The Raiders hold a fan trivia contest between the first and second quarter of each home game. This one took a little turn. Instead of answering Raiders trivia, the contestants wrote "Stay in Oakland" on their dry-erase boards instead. Fans are hoping the Silver and Black remain in the Bay Area as opposed to bolting for Los Angeles or another green pasture.

The stadium brass didn't like the protest, and wouldn't show the fans on the video board after the first of three questions.

Injury update: Injuries hadn't hit the Raiders hard during this preseason, but right tackle Menelik Watson went down with a ruptured Achilles' tendon and is out for the year.

Watson was tended to face down on the trainer's table and was emotional when physicians examined his lower left leg. He was helped off the field and into the locker room.

Receiver Rod Streater got his bell rung during a scary first-half moment, but walked off the field under his own power and returned for the next series.

Sitting it out: The Raiders injury list was short heading into Sunday night's game. Defensive end Justin Tuck, fullback Jamize Olawale, receiver Andre Holmes and tight end Clive Walford did not suit up against the Cardinals.

What's next: The Raiders have some tough decisions ahead this week. They have to cut the roster to 75 players by Tuesday afternoon and 53 by Saturday. The preseason finale comes on a short week, with an exhibition at Seattle on Thursday night.

Starting offense struggles, Cardinals beat Raiders 30-23

By Josh Dubow August 31, 2015

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Even though Carson Palmer spent much of the first half on his back and running from the Oakland defense, Arizona coach Bruce Arians is not concerned about his offensive line.

Palmer was sacked three times and threw two interceptions before the Cardinals rallied in the second half to beat the Raiders 30-23 on Sunday night when Marion Grice ran for an 11-yard score with 31 seconds left.

"Pass protection is not an issue," Arians said. "We've got to do a better job of getting the ball out of our hands sometimes. I thought we held it a little bit longer today."

Palmer struggled against his former team as he was under pressure for most of the first half. Palmer was 8 for 22 for 103 yards and was intercepted twice by Nate Allen. Palmer also was sacked three times, including twice by Khalil Mack.

"Out of sync," Palmer said. "Just wasn't good enough. We expect to be able to go down and score every drive. Obviously you don't always do that, but for us to not go down and score points is disappointing."

The Raiders (1-2) got five field goals from Sebastian Janikowski in the first half but didn't get into the end zone until Matt McGloin led an 83-yard drive late in the fourth quarter. He capped it with a 4-yard TD pass to Kris Durham with 2:18 left and Oakland tied the game when McGloin connected with Brice Butler on the 2-point conversion.

"As an offense we're pretty upset right now," starting quarterback Derek Carr said. "We want to score a lot of points. We felt like we left a lot out there and we did."

Logan Thomas answered by leading the winning drive with help from a 38-yard pass to Ifeanyi Momah.

It was a costly game for the Raiders, who lost starting right tackle Menelik Watson to a ruptured Achilles.

"That's a tough break for us," coach Jack Del Rio said. "It's really unfortunate. He was having a great camp for us."

PICK SIX

The game turned on the opening drive of the second half when Carr tried to throw the ball way on a screen pass deep in Cardinals territory only to have it end up right in Cariel Brooks' arms. Brooks ran untouched 81 yards for the score that ended Carr's night.

QB COMPARISON

Cardinals: Backup Drew Stanton fared well against Oakland's starting defense, going 8 for 9 for 58 yards in his only drive. He capped it with an 8-yard TD pass to David Johnson.

Raiders: Carr finished 18 for 34 for 213 yards but was unable to lead the Raiders into the end zone. McGloin was 11 for 15 for 114 yards in his late-game action.

ROOKIE WATCH

Cardinals: Phillip Sims looked good on his one drive, going 3 for 4 for 29 yards with the 10-yard TD pass to Kerwynn Williams. The undrafted rookie from Winston-Salem is trying to earn a spot as the third QB for Arizona.

Raiders: Amari Cooper had four catches for 62 yards, including a 36-yarder against Arizona star Patrick Peterson. Second-round pick Mario Edwards Jr. had two sacks.

GROUNDED

Both teams struggled to run the ball with their starting offenses. Andre Ellington was held to 19 yards on nine carries for Arizona, while Latavius Murray had 1 yard on seven carries for Oakland.

INJURY REPORT

Cardinals: RB Chris Johnson did not play as he is nursing a hamstring injury. Johnson has yet to play this preseason after being signed during camp by Arizona.

Raiders: DE Justin Tuck and TE Clive Walford did not dress for the Raiders as they nurse undisclosed injuries.

TRIVIA TIME

During a trivia contest in the first half, two fans wrote "Stay in Oakland" for their answers and were taken off the video board. The Raiders are playing on a one-year lease at the Coliseum and are in talks with the San Diego Chargers about building a new stadium near Los Angeles in Carson.

QUOTABLE

Cardinals: "I felt like I needed to make a big play so I can have a chance to make this team," Brooks said.

Raiders: "I made a mistake. I'll learn from that obviously. The timing wasn't there. Just throw it away and play the next down," Carr said.

HEAD COACH JACK DEL RIO

Del Rio to Raiders: Pride of Hayward comes home

By Daniel Brown January 14, 2015

Hayward High sits 10.1 miles from the Oakland Coliseum. If all is clear on I-880 North, the commute should take less than 15 minutes.

It took Jack Del Rio almost 34 years. But at long last, the East Bay native, whose father worshipped Raiders stars like Ken Stabler and John Matuszak, will be working for his home team.

The Raiders hired Del Rio, 51, on Wednesday to serve as their next head coach. Among the first to hear the news were Del Rio's old pals from Hayward High. Andy Miller, a friend since the fifth grade, said he got a text from Del Rio early Wednesday morning.

Miller declined to read the exact contents of the exchange but said the message was, essentially: I'm coming home and I'm proud to be leading the Silver & Black.

"It's almost impossible to believe. It's something I've been dreaming about since he got into coaching," Miller said. "To have him come home to the Raiders just boggles the mind."

Del Rio, who graduated in '81, was a three-sport star at Hayward High -- football, baseball and basketball -- and remains closely connected to the school. His former teammates include Don Wakamatsu, the Kansas City Royals bench coach and former Seattle Mariners manager, who said Wednesday that he was "thrilled for him. I think it's the perfect place."

Del Rio, previously a head coach with the Jacksonville Jaguars, is the second Hayward High graduate to coach in the NFL. Bill Walsh, a Hall of Famer with the 49ers, played running back at the school.

Wakamatsu, like others who knew Del Rio growing up, recall a player who was good at whatever sport he tried. But they stressed that Raiders fans should know their new coach has brains, too.

Miller, now an attorney in Pleasant Hill, remembered playing alongside the linebacker on the freshman football team. The coach had a "very simple defense," he said, so Del Rio sometimes shrugged off one of the three blitz packages being signaled from the sideline.

"Jack would look over at the coach and get the call and then he would ignore what the coach said and then call his own defense," Miller said. "That was as a freshman."

Around that same time, Miller said Del Rio would come over to his house sometimes and sit there drawing up X's and O's on binder paper. He's hoping he still has a few of those schemes in his boxes of childhood souvenirs.

Wakamatsu, who also grew up to coach at the Coliseum -- as the A's bench coach in 2008 -- said Del Rio "had a great feel for whatever game he played. That leads to where he is now. I think he understood defenses. He understood the bigger picture in whatever he did. It's no shock to me that he's doing all this now."

'WE CAN BEAT ANYBODY'

Del Rio, who was born in Castro Valley, played 11 seasons as an NFL linebacker and made the Pro Bowl in 1994 while with the Minnesota Vikings. In his previous stint as a head coach, he went 68-71 (.489) for the Jacksonville Jaguars from 2003-11.

Along they way, friends say, he's demonstrated an attitude his father taught him in Little League. Jack Sr. -- even the other boys called him "Pops" -- was a Raiders fan who admired the way John Madden's teams embraced the underdog role.

"That's really where that mindset of, 'We can beat anybody' came from," said Jim Gurule, who was two years behind Del Rio at Hayward High and grew up to become a distinguished rugby coach. "That's very much from the Raiders days and the Super Bowls that they were winning at that time."

Del Rio remains so grateful to his Hayward High mentors that when he coached against the 49ers at Candlestick Park in 2009, he invited former coaches to the game. That included Jim Bisenius (baseball), Charley Kendall (basketball), Joe Fuccy (basketball) and Jeff Rankin (football).

"There's no question the man I am today, the type of coach I am, they all have shaped who I am," Del Rio said at the time. "I definitely appreciate that. I'm talking about Little League coaches, youth coaches, high school coaches, all the way through."

Del Rio had a lot of coaches because he played a lot of sports. He was a sensational shooter in basketball who once hit a turnaround jumper at the buzzer to beat powerhouse Berkeley High. Wakamatsu said he thinks his friend once topped 50 points in a game. ("He was the prototypical 6-foot-4, 240 guard," he joked.)

Del Rio was also a power-hitting catcher/pitcher/first baseman who went on to spend some time behind the plate at USC. His teammates included a wild-armed left-hander named Randy Johnson, who was recently elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"Randy had wicked movement. He crossed me up once and got me right in the cup," Del Rio once told The Denver Post. "At UCLA's baseball stadium. And, of course, they all delighted in that."

The Toronto Blue Jays liked him enough to draft him in the 22nd round out of Hayward High in 1981, but his high school teammates knew all along that his future was in football. Del Rio proved that on the same field where he'll soon be coaching.

In the NCS 2A championship at the Oakland Coliseum in 1979, the Hayward High Farmers were being tormented by the brilliant short passing game of Miramonte High quarterback Bryan McKeen.

The Miramonte game plan was smart enough to keep rolling away from Del Rio's side of the field. But early in the third quarter, Del Rio solved the riddle, blasted through the line and delivered a clean but potent hit that left McKeen with a broken collarbone.

Hayward went on to beat the Matadors 12-10 for the title.

Miller, who also played in that game, can't believe Del Rio will now be calling NFL plays from the same sideline.

"It's such a Hollywood story," said Miller, a Raiders season-ticket holder since 1995. "I've been imploring him to come save this franchise for a long time. Now, it's a remarkable day today. And my phone has just been blow

Raiders' choice of Del Rio ushers in new era

By Jerry McDonald January 14, 2015

The Raiders decided on a head coach from their own backyard rather than one from their own building Wednesday.

Jack Del Rio, 51, grew up a Raiders fan with East Bay roots as a three-sport start athlete at Hayward High, which makes for an interesting story even if it has little to do with why he was hired over interim coach Tony Sparano.

An announcement isn't expected until Thursday. According to CSN-Bay Area, the press conference will be Friday.

Del Rio, the Denver Broncos defensive coordinator the past two seasons, was busy lining up possibilities for a coaching staff even before details of a reported four-year contract were being worked out. The Associated Press reported Sparano was told Wednesday morning he was out of the running.

The Raiders interviewed seven candidates for the job, five of them with NFL head coaching experience, before zeroing in on Del Rio and Sparano. Del Rio got the job the morning after a four-hour off-site interview that included owner Mark Davis, general manager Reggie McKenzie and Hall of Fame coach John Madden.

Sparano, who still has a year left on his contract, will be freed to explore other options after posting a 3-9 record and making an impassioned pitch for the job at his postseason press conference.

While Sparano cited a need for continuity, Davis ultimately decided he wanted change given the direction of a franchise which hasn't had a winning season since 2002 and is 11-37 over the past three seasons with 24 of those losses coming by 10 points or more.

The Broncos had the NFL's third-ranked defense in 2014 and were second in 2013. Pro Bowl defensive tackle Terrance Knighton, a pending free agent, said in a tweet, "The Raiders are getting a great damn coach. He will revive that locker room and that organization."

In 2013, Del Rio was interim head coach for four games when coach John Fox was out following heart surgery, going 3-1.

The head coach of the Jacksonville Jaguars from 2003 through 2011, Del Rio had playoff appearances in 2005 and 2007 with a regular-season record of 68-71. He was fired with a 3-8 record in 2011 and hired the next season as the defensive coordinator for the Broncos.

Former Raiders quarterback and CBS analyst Rich Gannon was a teammate of Del Rio's with the Minnesota Vikings in 1992 and believes the move was a good one.

"I think he felt like he had some unfinished business after the way things ended in Jacksonvillle," Gannon said. "They made some personnel decisions that weren't the best, he was looking to land in a better place, and I think he thinks he found that in Oakland."

Del Rio is targeting Mike Smith, the former Falcons head coach, as defensive coordinator. Smith was the defensive coordinator under Del Rio in Jacksonville from 2003 through 2007. According to Fox Sports, Del Rio is interested in Marc Trestman as a possible offensive coordinator.

Trestman, who is under consideration for that post in Cleveland, was the Chicago Bears head coach the past two seasons and the Raiders offensive coordinator under Bill Callahan in 2002 and 2003. He also is rumored to be in the mix with the 49ers, where he was offensive coordinator in 1995-96.

In Jacksonville, Del Rio stressed defense and the running game. A defensive coordinator in Carolina for a season before taking over in Jacksonville, Del Rio's teams were considered fundamentally sound but were not known for blitzing heavily.

Gannon thinks Del Rio has the right mindset to deal with a team that has gone a long time without winning.

"He's not going to be a class clown or a comedian," Gannon said. "He's honest, and players won't feel they're having the wool pulled over their eyes. He'll dig in, find out what the issues are and go to work."

A third-round draft pick out of USC, Del Rio played 11 seasons in the NFL for the Rams, Chiefs, Cowboys and Vikings. He played in 160 games, starting 128, with 13 sacks, 13 interceptions and 12 forced fumbles.

Del Rio worked his way up through the coaching ranks, starting as a strength and conditioning coach under Mike Ditka in New Orleans in 1997. He became linebackers coach with the Baltimore Ravens in 1999 and was there when the Ravens beat the Raiders 16-3 in the AFC championshpi game en route to a Super Bowl victory.

The Carolina Panthers made Del Rio their defensive coordinator in 2002 and he was hired by Jacksonville to be head coach the following season.

Other Raiders coaches under contract include offensive coordinator Greg Olson and special teams coordinator Bobby April. Olson is not expected to return and reportedly will interview with Jacksonville to be offensive coordinator.

Raiders' Jack Del Rio creates sound approach

By Ann Killion August 6, 2015

The music blasts out of the loudspeakers over the practice field behind the Napa Valley Marriott. Rap, some hip-hop, a bit of country and occasionally a classic rock hit.

If it's the last, you know that's the head coach's contribution to the playlist.

"Blue Oyster Cult, Ted Nugent, AC/DC," said Jack Del Rio, who saw many of the bands at the Day on the Green concerts at the Oakland Coliseum when he was growing up in Hayward. "Journey, Foreigner. When you hear classic rock, that's coming from me."

The Raiders' summer soundtrack is significant in a couple of ways. First, it's part of the high-energy, upbeat mood around the team.

"We want them to get used to playing with noise and we also want to connect with guys," Del Rio said. "It keeps the mood light and fresh."

That's a big emphasis with the Raiders this training camp. Del Rio is working — on virtually every level — at changing attitudes, energy levels and mind-sets.

"Everything we're doing is with an eye on creating and sustaining a high-performance environment," he said.

To that end, he also has hired a high-performance coach — Scott Peltin of the firm Tignum — to work with coaches and players on positive energy and mind-set.

"He came in and talked to us about ways to communicate with each other in a positive way," Del Rio. "How you eat, sleep. Everything that has to do with performance."

Del Rio uses phrases like "being mindful" and "bringing positive energy." He's not exactly new-agey but he is employing whatever tactics are available to get his team moving in the right direction. The Raiders have been mired in negativity for too long.

"I'm definitely making a concentrated effort to turn the page on all that and look to the future," said Del Rio, who went as far as asking the alumni who visited camp not to discuss past failures. "This is one of the many ways that we're going to invest in ourselves, in creating the best environment possible for players and staff."

Del Rio has collected ideas and strategies for years. From his playing days, his days as the head coach in Jacksonville, his time as Denver's defensive coordinator.

"I definitely am far more prepared now," he said. "You're able to spend some time and think through how you'd do it if you got another opportunity. And apply some of those lessons."

So you'll see a little Denny Green, some Jimmy Johnson, a dash of Pete Carroll (who plays music at his practices). Some Bum Phillips, who taught Del Rio that players respond better if they feel like their coaches truly care about them.

And some John Wooden, a legend Del Rio admires. In Jacksonville, Del Rio had Wooden's Pyramid of Success on the locker room wall and he might introduce it to the Raiders.

"I believe in building a team that way," Del Rio said of the pyramid, which has a foundation of strong character traits. "It's simple. It's wisdom."

Del Rio is also pleased with the current $8 million investment to improve the team's Alameda training facility, something he convinced owner Mark Davis was mandatory.

"We want to create an environment where coaches are excited and players are excited about coming to work every day," he said.

Del Rio speaks and carries himself with more authority and swagger than any other head coach in the Raiders' recent history. He seems comfortable in his own skin, comfortable enough for a little sartorial splendor, like the cool white Stetson — complete with black Raiders hatband — he wears to deal with the Napa sun. (Del Rio was the only head coach besides the 49ers' Mike Nolan to wear that black Reebok suit on the sideline a decade ago).

Of course, Del Rio played at USC and had a long NFL career as a linebacker. His exterior confidence is similar to Jim Harbaugh's, though he has a much more extensive NFL coaching resume and doesn't seem to have the manic Harbaugh tendencies. But the swagger is similar.

What's the other reason a little shot of Aerosmith's "Dream On" coming over the Napa loudspeakers is relevant?

Because it's a nod to Del Rio's roots, planted deep in the East Bay, including at those Bill Graham productions on the same field where his team will play this season. Del Rio also has roots in Napa, where his grandfather had a farm not too far from the Raiders' training grounds, before the valley's wine boom. He has had old friends stop by training camp to say hello.

Sometimes, Del Rio finds himself overwhelmed at his new position, coaching his childhood team, wearing the colors he loves, surrounded by the familiar.

"Yes, I get sentimental at times," he said, "because it's so cool to be home."

Raiders head coach Jack Del Rio still hero in Hayward

By Vic Tafur January 21, 2015

It's been a week since Jack Del Rio was named head coach of the Raiders. He's been busy doing all the things required of an NFL coach, which hasn't given the East Bay native much of an opportunity to relive his glory days in Hayward or reach out to all the people who helped him along the way. But he will.

"Overwhelming," Del Rio, 51, said of the reaction in his hometown. "It's been great. They've all reached out. I haven't had the time or chance to really sit and take it all in because it's a whirlwind. ... Just a text response saying, 'Thank you, appreciate that.'"

While Del Rio has been too busy to recount his story of becoming a Bay Area high school sports legend, his former coaches have been more than happy to do so.

Del Rio, who was born in Castro Valley, graduated from Hayward High School in 1981 after a trophy- and accolade-filled career that saw the Farmers take home seven consecutive Hayward Area Athletic League titles in three sports: football, basketball and baseball.

The greatest ever?

Charley Kendall, the basketball coach at Hayward High in Del Rio's junior and senior seasons, thinks tales of Del Rio should be told throughout the region.

"There is a real argument that Jack was the greatest athlete in the history of NorCal high school sports," Kendall said. "Nobody was as good in all three sports."

Former Farmers defensive coordinator Jeff Rankin agrees.

"He is the guy," Rankin said.

Rankin said it was borderline cruel for opposing players to go against the muscular 6-foot-3 Del Rio at linebacker.

"Right from the beginning, it was amazing how much better he was than the people he was going against," Rankin said. "It really was a man going against boys. Jack was too strong, too fast, too smart."

Just like his old man, Jack Sr., who was a star running back for the Farmers in 1954.

"People like to say John Elway was the greatest all-around Bay Area athlete, but he couldn't play basketball like Jack did," said Joe Fuccy, Del Rio's basketball coach his sophomore season. "Jack had great body control and could knock down 17-foot jumpers all day."

A born leader

Fuccy, who said Del Rio could have started as a freshman, made Del Rio a co-captain.

"Some of the seniors on the team didn't like that, but it was clear he was a leader and I wanted him to be in that role," Fuccy said. "It was a nonissue. He was great."

Del Rio was also the defensive captain of the football team as a sophomore.

"He wasn't afraid of it," Rankin said.

Kendall said Del Rio made his job easier as coach.

"He was the first one to kick his teammates in the butt if they didn't play hard," Kendall said. "I never had to."

Del Rio primarily knocked down jumpers but also dunked during a game in which Hayward High reportedly became the first school to score 100 points against perennial power McClymonds-Oakland.

All the coaches interviewed said basketball was clearly Del Rio's favorite sport, but "there are no 6-foot-4 power forwards in the NBA," Rankin said.

Del Rio saw that his future was in football, even though he also might have cracked the major leagues as a power-hitting catcher. He was even called on to pitch to bail out an injured staff. He struck out 16 in a playoff game against Mission San Jose-Fremont.

"No question he would have made the major leagues if he stuck to baseball," former Farmers baseball coach Jim Bisenius said. "He was so smart that I could tell, whichever sport he chose, one day he was going to be a coach."

That's the same career path blazed by another Hayward graduate, onetime Farmers running back and 49ers Hall of Fame coach Bill Walsh.

Besides dominating in three sports, Del Rio also found time to work at the student newspaper and was sports editor his senior year.

"All the kids in school looked up to him," said Kendall, who supervised students on the newspaper. "But he was never arrogant and was good to everybody around him."

And there were plenty of chances to get a big head: buzzer-beating jump shots; tackles that led to a North Coast Section 2A Championship defeat of Miramonte at the Oakland Coliseum in 1979; two home runs in the HAAL playoffs at Chabot College (which has major-league dimensions); being drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays in the 22nd round of the 1981 draft.

Del Rio instead chose a football scholarship to the University of Southern California, where he also played baseball and caught for Hall of Fame pitcher Randy Johnson.

Del Rio went on to play 11 years at linebacker in the NFL for the Saints, Chiefs, Cowboys and Vikings. He had three stops as an assistant coach before being the head coach in Jacksonville from 2003 to 2011.

Staying true to his school

But Del Rio also kept a foothold in Hayward.

"I'm still close with all my high school coaches from Hayward High," Del Rio said. "They all had an impact on me."

Del Rio has had former coaches and teammates as his guests at Jaguars games, in Jacksonville and on the road.

"He appreciates loyalty," Fuccy said. "And he is extremely loyal himself."

Del Rio has hosted golf tournaments and luaus to raise money for the Hayward High football program in the past 10 years, and current Farmers coach Justin Redemer said Del Rio often makes donations "out of his own pocket."

"The name Del Rio means something in Hayward," Rankin said. "And hopefully it will for the Raiders as well."

LB NEIRON BALL

Raiders rookie LB Neiron Ball has persevered through crisis after crisis By Bill Williamson June 9, 2015

Tuesday marks the first day of what Neiron Ball hopes will be many minicamps in his NFL career.

Four years ago, the idea of practicing football suddenly became insignificant in Ball's world.

"Football wasn't on my mind much, I was just trying to live," Ball said in a telephone interview Monday after working out at the Oakland Raiders' facility. "I just wanted to live."

After dealing with unspeakable tragedy as a child, Ball, a high-energy outside linebacker, was preparing for his sophomore season at the University of Florida when he had to stop a workout.

"I developed a headache and was feeling off balance," Ball recalled. "I was sent home to rest and I never felt any better. I was taken to the emergency room and then everything was discovered and it all got kind of fuzzy after that."

Ball underwent emergency brain surgery after physicians discovered that he was bleeding on his brain. Ball was diagnosed with a rare condition called an arteriovenous malformation (AVM). It's a congenital condition in which the brain's blood vessels get tangled and rupture.

It was another in a series of shocking, life-altering events for Ball, then 18-years old.

When he was 6, Ball's mother, Johanna, who was fighting cancer, died on Mother's Day after suffering a heart attack.

Three years later, Ball's father, Ronnie, was diagnosed with lung cancer. Soon after, Ball watched his father have a sudden seizure. He died that night.

"When Neiron had his brain surgery, it was so tough to see," said Dary Myricks, Ball's brother-in-law. Myricks, who entered Ball's life when Ball was a toddler, was a high school football coach in the Atlanta area. Myricks also became a father figure to Ball after his dad died.

"This is a kid who has gone through a lot in life -- a lot," Myricks said. "He's seen so much death. ... For him to be dealing with an uncertain future, it was just so hard to watch."

However, the surgery was a success and physicians assured Ball and his family he eventually would be able to resume a normal life. Ball sat out the 2011 season. Physically, he focused on regaining his balance and dealing with some sensitivity to light. Myricks credits the Florida coaching staff for sticking with Ball and helping him focus on his academics while he recovered. A year later, he was cleared to resume playing football.

"I will never forget the day I was cleared," Ball said. "It was one of the greatest moments of my life. I will always cherish it."

Doctors told Ball and his family that while there is a small chance of a recurrence of his AVM, it's highly unlikely. Myricks said physicians assured the family that football presents no specific danger because of Ball's condition, and if he were to have a complication, it would be just as likely to occur if he were mowing the lawn as if he were running on a football field.2

Once he resumed football, Ball continued to excel for the Gators. Even though his 2014 season was cut short with a knee injury that required microfracture surgery, Ball was closely scouted. He had an excellent showing at the Florida pro day and he visited about a dozen NFL teams prior to the Raiders taking Ball in the fifth round on May 2.

"NFL teams did their homework on him medically," Myricks said. "It was an emotional day when the Raiders took him. It was such a long road.

"But to me, what I think the Raiders are getting in Neiron as much as a good football player, is a great kid. He's a great kid. The Raider Nation should feel good that he is going to represent them and the people who drafted him well."

Myricks said Ball's ability to get through the hard times of his life has made him a stronger, more mature person. Perhaps that's one of the reasons Ball continues to make strides after having microfracture surgery, which can come with big complications.

Ball has his sights set on contributing on special teams early in his Oakland career. He is thankful for getting this far.

"I try to get stronger every day in life," Ball said. "I thank God every day for getting me this far and allowing me to function through all of this."

Neiron Ball Is Beating the Odds to Become an NFL Draft Prospect

By Bo Marchionte March 18, 2015

Former Florida Gators linebacker Neiron Ball spent five years in Gainesville, Florida. The fifth-year senior is now doing NFL Draft Prep (training) at Bommarito Performance Systems as he readies himself for his Pro Day which is slated for April 7th. What Ball is doing is similar to basically every other top prospect across the country making their path towards the NFL Draft.

That is where the similarities stop.

"I didn't want to die," said Ball.

It first began with pain in his neck during practice. The throbbing discomfort continued to persist in the morning session and led Florida head trainer Anthony Pass to send Ball home for some rest.

Ball left practice on Valentines Day (2011). The unbearable aching did not cease for Ball. It only worsened as the day continued on.

"Excruciating," said Ball referring to the pain he felt. "I could not even look down. My initial thought was I just want this pain to go away. I was hoping it wasn't life threatening."

It was the last thing Ball expected to encounter after leaving Jackson High School (Georgia) as a four-star recruit who the Gators envisioned as their future defensive end.

"Football wasn't even a thought when I was going through that," said Ball. I wasn't just trying to survive."

Ball woke up the next day and doctors determined he had a rare medical condition known as arteriovenous malformation (AVM), where the brain's blood vessels get knotted and rupture. The bleeding on Ball's brain could have cost him his life.

Fortunately, Ball recovered and was given another chance at life. He is taking on the next challenge in his path and looking to earn his keep on a 53-man NFL roster.

"It is like a dream come true," Ball said as he is readying himself for the NFL Draft.

He originally played quarterback growing up and spent some time as a defensive back before moving to linebacker. Former Gators head coach Urban Meyer wanted him to be up front playing defensive end, but that changed once they got him to Gainesville.

"They wanted me to play defensive end," said Ball. "They saw my athletic ability and that I could drop in coverage and they moved me to linebacker."

Ball appeared in all 13 games as a true freshman before missing the next year due to his illness. He returned to full strength one year later (2012) and started two games. He continued to work his way back to form and Ball made his first career sack in 2013 against Florida State quarterback Jameis Winston.

In his final season with the Gators, Ball played in nine games, making seven starts. He finished with a career high 49 tackles, three tackles-for-loss, two sacks, two fumble recoveries, and one forced fumble. He missed the last three games of the year after hurting his meniscus that required surgery. Ball was tied for second on the Gators defense in tackles at the time of the injury.

Only a couple short months ago Ball said he "was walking with a limp" and now he is pushing on all cylinders when attacking his 40-yard dash in practice. He arrived at Bommarito Performance System at 217 pounds and added nearly 20 pounds (19) of muscle to his lean frame.

"My rehab went well," stated Ball. "I'm training for my drills. I feel good. Injuries come and go."

With a clean bill of health, Ball can now focus on his Pro Day and the chance to impress the teams that attend.

"I'm able to play in the box," says Ball referring to some of the qualities scouts will revel in when breaking down Ball as a player. "I can drop in coverage and plus I can rush the passer."

Ball's versatility is his ticket to the next level as a three-down linebacker. In a league that emphases the passing game the talent Ball brings to the table plays well in his favor. He can be stout against the run and use his size (6-foot-3, 236 pounds) to show his fluid smooth hips and quick feet to drop in coverage. Those intangibles few possess at his position, but Ball is not a one-trick pony. He can do it all.

"I really like Von Miller (Denver Broncos) and Jamie Collins (New England Patriots)," said Ball. "I really like to watch those guys. I kind of remind myself of them and Justin Brown (Kansas City Chiefs) too."

Each one of those linebackers he mentions are able to stay on the field and provide their respective teams with three-down play at an extremely high level.

In limited action throughout his career at Florida and rehabbing his injury, Ball was still an invitee to the NFL Scouting Combine. It validates the potential NFL teams see in Ball. Projected to be a fourth to sixth round pick, his Pro Day will be paramount in determining his value on draft day.

Ball anxiously awaits the opportunity to display his array of talents to NFL Scouts, and conquer another obstacle in his path.

Raiders' Neiron Ball has Already Overcome Insurmountable Odds

By Sean Bialaszek May 5, 2015

With the 161st pick in the NFL Draft, the Oakland Raiders selected Neiron Ball, an outside linebacker from Florida. The pick wasn't the most highly regarded, but after everything he's gone through, finding a role on an NFL team seems like child's play.

Ball stands 6'2", and tips the scales around 235 pounds. In his college career, he totaled 5.5 tackles for loss, three sacks, an interception, and three pass deflections.

He has NFL size, and is versatile. He played outside linebacker in both 3-4 and 4-3 schemes, and has played inside linebacker as well. Ball possess good speed, and the non-stop motor that coaches love.

The numbers are not all that impressive, and they won't make your eyes pop. But his story is incredible. He underwent knee surgery last November. Microfracture surgery to be exact, the same procedure that Jadeveon Clowney underwent during the 2014 season. But after everything that Ball went through before that, that surgery seems almost trivial.

The term "lucky to be alive" is used quite a lot, and when it's used, it doesn't always mean exactly what it says. However, when you say Ball is lucky to be alive, you mean it.

Ball lost both parents when he was a child. His mother, Johanna, died when he was six, on Mother's Day in 1998, from a heart attack.

A few years later, his father, Ronnie, was diagnosed with lung cancer, and underwent surgery on his throat. The nine-year-old Ball had to help his father eat through a tube, and one night during this ritual, Ronnie suffered a seizure, and passed away later that night. He watched his father die.

Ball stuck with football, and eventually became a Florida Gator. He played all 13 games in 2010, his freshman year, in his familiar linebacker spot. But after his inaugural college campaign, he experienced something that nearly cost him his own life.

In a February practice in 2011, Ball was forced to leave practice with a migraine that caused him horrible pain. When the aching persisted, he found himself in the hospital, and had to sit in a dark room, because the pain was just too much to handle.

It turned out that Ball had bleeding in his brain. The diagnosis came back as Arteriovenous Malformation (AVM), which is defined as "a tangle of abnormal blood vessels connecting arteries and veins in the brain." In other words, the blood vessels in the brain get tangled up, and eventually rupture, causing bleeding.

AVM is a congenital condition, meaning if a person has it, they were born with it. Less than one percent of the population, one in approximately 200-500 people, have the condition. Once the brain starts to bleed for the first time, 10 to 15 percent of people don't survive. If another hemorrhage were to occur, that percentage vastly increases. Another 30 percent suffer permanent brain damage.

If he hadn't gone to the hospital, if he had continued on with practice like normal and the bleeding continued and eventually worsened, he might have ended up with irreparable brain damage, or worse.

Surgery occurred a little later for Ball, with surgeons basically untangling the vessels, stopping the bleeding, and putting them back where they're supposed to be. Ball was essentially fixed, but his journey, another journey, was just starting.

He worked hard in recovery, the same way he worked hard on the field, putting his non-stop motor to use in a different area. Little by little, Ball regained strength, but he missed the 2011 season, and his football future remained in doubt. Even though Ball's brain condition had been fixed, he had still gone through brain surgery, and there is always that nagging thought that maybe his head can't take another blow.

He continued his trek back, and in June of 2012, 16 months after his brain operation, he was cleared to play again. Another two months passed before he strapped on the pads again. But one and a half years after a dangerous condition nearly took his life, he suited up and practiced with his team. In 2012, Ball ended up playing 11 games for the Gators, and totaled 10 tackles with his only career interception.

The knee surgery is likely to cost Ball his rookie year, as the recovery for a microfracture procedure can take anywhere from nine to 15 months. NBA players have returned in six months, but that's a completely different game. It usually takes football players longer to get back. If Ball approaches this recovery with the same vigor and gusto he's become known for, his return could fall on the lower end of the scale.

Ball may never become an impact player in the NFL. He may never change a game single-handedly. Quite honestly, he may never play a down in the league. But he will work harder than anyone else who steps on the practice field. He has no choice. You never know when it all is going to go away.

QB DEREK CARR

CSN BAY AREA

'Faith, family, football' puts Raiders QB Carr on brink of stardom By Scott Bair August 24, 2015

BAKERSFIELD – Derek Carr was born to play quarterback, equipped with a perfect combination of nature and nurture to hone a difficult craft. He was athletically predisposed with size, speed, smarts and a cannon right arm accented with the right amount of touch.

He had guidance worthy of a crown prince, with a father to mentor him early on and an older brother who had already been king. Rodger Carr taught his son about fundamentals and work ethic. David Carr, an excellent quarterback in his own right, bestowed football knowledge and life lessons he experienced as a Fresno State star and an NFL signal-caller to a brother 12 years younger.

Thanks to David's labor of love, little Derek had a blueprint for success. Work hard, stay focused, maximize talent and follow a pre-travelled path to the pros. Do that Derek, and you'll get there. Stumble along the way? Pops and big brother will pick you back up.

Support certainly helped Derek Carr become a Fresno State legend and a Raider with the No. 36 overall pick in last year's NFL draft.

Assuming that made everything easy is oversimplification. Hard times made Derek Carr the man he is today, someone able to weather adversity without crumbling under its weight. That's a trait only discovered by doing.

There was no instruction manual detailing how to handle 10 straight losses to start a pro career or stay above water in tidal waves of change, with three head coaches and two offensive schemes in 12 months. Yet here he stands, on the verge of a second season as Raiders quarterback, confident as ever that this is the start of something great.

There was no instruction manual for how to act with a son at death's door just days after taking his first breath. Yet there he stood at 22 years old, a pillar of strength while baby Dallas spent his first 23 days clinging to life.

While he's learned from his mentors, individual experiences like these make Derek unique and properly equipped to handle the pressure of his current position. He's a person with fixed priorities and overflowing optimism in difficult situations, even when frustration might play better to the crowd.

"People wonder if bad times impact me because I have a smile on my face," Carr said last month in an extended interview with CSNBayArea.com at one of his family's Carr Elite football camps. "Of course they do. They rip my heart out, but I'm going to fight harder than anyone because I lean on my faith in tough times. That's where I find my strength. When a doctor says, 'Dallas might not make it,' all I can do is lean on my faith to keep from crumbling. That's all I know how to do. And I trust it's right because I've seen it come through time and time again."

The Carr family mantra is a priority list: Faith. Family. Football. In that order.

You've certainly heard that cadence before. It was a common refrain during Derek's rookie press conferences, often combating questions about the wear and tear of a Raiders season quickly circling the drain. The point: Losses ruin Derek's evening, not his entire week.

Football isn't life. It's a game, a job he loves dearly. He's grateful for every moment in a jersey, but it doesn't compare to the time spent with his wife and son.

Derek the quarterback is an incredibly early riser, someone who arrives at the Raiders' Alameda facility with the sun and returns to his Dublin home after it sets behind him.

Carr has the unique ability to leave No. 4 in the car, turning himself over to his wife Heather and son Dallas upon walking through the door.

"It's good to be able to get away from it all," Heather Carr said. "Derek will tell you that football is his job, it's not who he is. That's so true. When he comes home, he isn't NFL quarterback. He's dad. He's husband. We don't really talk about football at home unless he wants to. He doesn't let bad days bleed into his home life. We just get to be family."

Those times are never, ever taken for granted. Whether it's an extra 90 seconds engaged with Dallas or a friendly game of Nerf basketball between husband and wife (please, watch this video), the Carrs try to maximize each minute together.

Through simple pleasantries and grand gestures, Derek and Heather walk an extra mile to honor this dynamic and the three weeks when it was nearly ripped apart.

"I always think about those times," Heather said. "You can still see the scar on Dallas' belly and when you do, you just thank God that he's alive. It could have all been taken from us. That's why we cherish every moment we have as a family. We know that, no matter what happens, family will always be our top priority."

Dallas' scar symbolizes a young life saved. The boy was born on Aug. 5, 2013, just before Derek started his senior season at Fresno State. Derek was a Heisman hopeful and the San Joaquin Valley's favorite son, with an NFL gig ahead on a career path paved in gold.

Early, frequent vomiting was the first sign of trouble. It led to panic and eventually a life-threatening diagnosis. Dallas Mason Carr had intestinal malrotation, meaning his intestines weren't properly aligned and cutting off the flow of his digestive tract. Dallas needed surgery, and was taken by ambulance from a Clovis hospital to Children's Hospital Central California in Madera.

He underwent one procedure, then another during a touch-and-go 23-day period that coincided with Bulldogs training camp. Derek rarely missed a practice, and spent most every other minute at the hospital with his wife and son.

The schedule was emotionally and physically draining. It wore on Derek, who broke down several times over the phone with his parents and coaches.

In front of his wife, Derek held strong. He would read Bible verses aloud well into the night, and remained a source of positivity as the couple prayed for a happy ending that was not guaranteed.

"I always had my faith, but that was a real test of it," Derek Carr said. "Everyone knew who we were in Fresno. It was my senior year and everything was going great. Life was good, and we didn't worry about much. Then Dallas' ordeal comes up and it ripped my heart out. At that point, I thought, 'am I still going to be the man I say that I am? Am I going to be strong and be there for my wife and child?' Saying those things is easy. Living and doing can be extremely difficult."

This was, and always will be, Derek's defining moment.

"There was no way to tell him how to get through it," said Rodger Carr, Derek's father. "Derek had to be the man of the house, and he stepped up in a big way. He had things under control and believed God would help him and his family through it. You won't find anyone in the family who didn't have faith Dallas was going to make it.

"That's how we looked at it. We knew Derek and Heather would do their part and that God would do the rest."

Dallas underwent a third procedure in September 2013, but was eventually given a clean bill of health. He recently celebrated his second birthday and carries on with the exuberance of a young child unaware of a scary period that put life in proper perspective.

Faith. Family. Football. In that order. That was something Rodger Carr often told his three young sons.

Before Heather, before Dallas, that mantra didn't belong to Derek. It was something he heard, not advice he heeded. He was a teenager interested in teenager things, especially after enrolling at Fresno State in the footsteps of his famous older brother. He was a rock star before throwing a college pass, especially as a big fish in a small pond.

After Heather, after Dallas, Derek's priorities came into focus. They all stem from faith. He has faith his family will offer unconditional support. He has faith in his own character and work ethic. Dallas' ordeal taught Derek that his faith in God is a sturdy crutch, one that won't let him buckle under stresses he can't control.

"I knew faith, family and football was my foundation, but I wasn't living by it until I grew up and figured it out on my own," Derek Carr said. "It wasn't people saying things to me. I found the path through experience. I've lived both ways, and I like the path I'm on a whole lot more."

Derek Carr is mature beyond his 24 years, overqualified to survive 0-10 and eventually 3-13 without permanent damage.

Talented quarterbacks have been beaten down by losses, but Derek weathered a trying rookie season with aplomb because he knows that football isn't life. It's just a game, one with problems he can work through.

His optimism and determination never waned, even late in a chaotic season where the Raiders hit rock bottom.

"I am human, and I feel each loss as much as anyone," Carr said. "I hate to lose. There were moments where I took time to be disappointed and admit just how hard winning is at this level. There were times when I'd talk to my brother or my wife about just how difficult all the losing was, but they never lasted long. It does me no good to feel sorry for myself or wallow in disappointment. I didn't worry or stress out because I knew I would keep working and I had faith there were better days ahead."

David Carr experienced his youngest brother's trying rookie season from the couch. He didn't travel to road games and stayed away from Raiders home dates on purpose, to avoid the inevitable comparisons between them. David didn't want cameras searching for a reaction every time Derek did something on the field, so he chose to babysit nephew Dallas while momma and family watched games in person.

It wasn't just games experienced from afar. David Carr has stayed away from Raiders training camps and inseason practices. He was loathe to go on the record last season, while Derek was getting used to life in the league.

"The comparisons between us always come, from his rookie year through each stage of his progress," David Carr said. "I just want him to have his own career and let him do his own thing. I can take a step back, but he knows I'll always be there for him no matter what."

The two still have an open dialogue, and Derek would be crazy not to use David's intelligent football mind. David knows a phone call is coming after road games, when brothers freely discuss what went right and wrong. David typically stays in Dublin after home games, ready to break down tape after baby brother returns from a long, hard Sunday.

They used to do something similar a decade ago, when David quarterbacked the expansion Houston Texans and young Derek was an aspiring signal-caller obsessed with football scheme and strategy. Derek became proficient at X's and O's working with David – Derek even called his own plays in high school -- who also helped him refine form, technique and his life around the game.

David "put extra tools in the toolbox," but Derek now has to build his own house.

"My hands are off," David Carr said. "If he specifically asks me a question or something comes up in conversation about a coverage or a play, we'll discuss. He's pretty savvy chalkboard-wise, but there's no equal to experience. I'm trying to let his NFL development happen naturally over time ... Hopefully I give him enough information to help him grow, but Derek has to take ownership of himself. He's done a great job of that since getting drafted."

Derek Carr's better for the 16 games played his rookie year, and many believe he's on the path to stardom with an upgraded supporting cast heading into the 2015 season.

He was far from perfect as a rookie, with plenty to work on as his career advances. Unlike last year at this time, Carr is not the quarterback of the future. He's the quarterback right now, someone counted on to produce each week.

Teammates and coaches believe in his brand of leadership and have faith he can make strides necessary to spark a Raiders renaissance.

A resurgence won't happen without quality quarterbacking, but that doesn't add pressure to this fall's proceedings.

Outside expectations will never match his own benchmarks, which are sky high because Carr has been to the puppet show and seen the strings. There are no illusions about NFL life and what it takes to succeed.

"It was such a blessing to be able to play all 16 games and gain that experience because now, coming into it, I don't just have a film point of view," Carr said. "I have a 'from where I stood' point of view. I know what works. I know what I can and can't get away with. The experience is just a huge factor."

No matter what he experiences this year, Carr knows he can handle it. He is supremely comfortable in his own skin and the knowledge that faith, family and football will carry him through.

With Amari Cooper, Raiders are in good hands

By Daniel Brown May 7, 2015

ALAMEDA -- Amari Cooper reports for duty Friday with the opening of Raiders rookie minicamp. Fred Biletnikoff, who is already a Cooper expert, expects the No. 4 overall draft pick to get off on a better foot than he himself did back in 1965.

"Oh, I was horrible," Biletnikoff said. "I had a hell of a time making the adjustments. Lots of dropped balls."

Cooper, in contrast, appears ready to make an immediate impact. On draft day, general manager Reggie McKenzie and coach Jack Del Rio described the Alabama star, who officially signed his deal Thursday, as "polished" so often you started to think the Raiders drafted a pair of Oxford wingtips.

Biletnikoff, who recovered from his shaky early Raiders days to earn a place in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, agreed. And he ought to know: Cooper won the honor that bears his name, the Biletnikoff Award, as the top receiver in college football.

"If you know nothing about football, you might not see that he's mature beyond his years," Biletnikoff, 72, said in a phone interview. "But he's a step ahead when it comes to the things required to be a receiver. The way he runs his routes, catches balls, gets open. He can do it against man-to-man coverage or press or zone. This guy is not one-dimensional.

"He can line up inside, outside, right or left and do a good job wherever he is. Jack and Reggie and the staff were dead on when they talked about him."

TOP IN HIS CLASS

The numbers support the case. Pro Football Focus, which analyzed every play and player on the college schedule last season, evaluated 1,800 receivers. They ranked Cooper No. 1, in part because of his complete game.

Playing against top competition while at Alabama, Cooper led the country in targets and receptions and finished second in receiving yards and touchdowns. PFF found a few hidden measures of success, noting Cooper tied for the most missed tackles forced (26) and finished third in total yards after the catch (878).

Del Rio praised Cooper on draft day for his ability to run the entire route tree. PFF determined that Cooper logged 30 catches on screens, 57 on stops, slants, crosses or outs and 16 on posts or go-routes. Half of his catches on post/gos resulted in touchdowns.

As it turns out, Cooper was running those patterns as early as 5 years old. He just didn't know what they were called. In a constant search of ways to juke his friends during backyard games in Miami, Cooper learned the science of planting, cutting, turning and blasting his way out of a break.

"So when I had to run a slant route or a comeback route, which the coach called it, I was already familiar with running and getting open," he says now. "It came easy."

Teddy Bridgewater was among the first beneficiaries. Before he grew up to be the quarterback of the Minnesota Vikings, Bridgewater was a star at Miami Northwestern Senior High, a local football powerhouse.

Cooper was one of his top targets. "He was always in the right place at the right time," Bridgewater recalled.

Bridgewater, in a phone interview, said that the football team's tradition called for the best receiver on the team to wear jersey No. 2. This was hallowed territory. Miami Northwestern receivers over the years have included Antonio Bryant, Brett Perriman and Tony Martin -- all of whom went on to produce 1,000-yard seasons in the NFL.

Bridgewater said that Cooper, well aware of the lineage, set his sights on the jersey early.

"He wound up wearing No. 2 for two years," the quarterback said. "He took pride in running the best routes. And he didn't want to just be the best on the team. He wanted to be the best in the state of Florida."

Cooper's seriousness about his craft can make for stilted conversation. At his first news conference with the Raiders, the 6-foot-1, 211-pounder looked as happy as the last guy in line at the DMV. He barely smiled for photos and answered questions in a quiet monotone.

Reporter: "The team hasn't had a 1,000-yard receiver in 10 years. Do you think you can end the drought?"

Cooper: "Hopefully."

Reporter: "You mentioned running routes as a kid. Was the NFL the main dream you had growing up?"

Cooper: "Yes."

And so on.

It was a jarring introduction, but Bridgewater recognized the look. He said Cooper was intensely serious-minded even as a teenager. The two were so determined to follow in the footsteps of the college-bound players from their high school that they treated schoolwork and practice as a job.

The duo proved so influential on campus that they wound up changing the culture of the school. Principal Wallace Aristide credits Cooper and Bridgewater for setting a new academic tone at what had been a sports-focused campus.

Aristide said Miami Northwestern went from annually getting "F" and "D" grades in the state's annual evaluation to becoming the first inner-city school in Miami to receive a "B" grade in 2011.

"People like Amari and Teddy were instrumental in helping us really change the climate," Aristide said. "When you're on campus -- especially one like ours -- the people with the most influence are the football players. Everybody looks up to them.

"And when they carry themselves the right way, they help you sell the importance of academic success. And I think Amari helped us do that here. ... He carried himself around campus like he was all about business. He was a tremendous student when he was here at this institution."

IN NEED OF A BOOST

Now, the Raiders hope Cooper can transform another moribund institution. Oakland hasn't had a 1,000-yard receiver since Randy Moss in 2005 and is coming off a season in which it finished last in overall offense.

The Raiders had only 30 connections of 20 yards or more. The Indianapolis Colts, in contrast, had 78.

Cooper offers some big-play potential. Over three years with the Crimson Tide, he averaged 15.2 yards on his 228 receptions.

He also shown a knack for the end zone: His 31 career touchdowns catches are the most by an SEC player since 1956.

At the scouting combine -- where he ran a 4.42 in the 40-yard dash -- Cooper credited Alabama offensive coordinator Lane Kiffin for making the most of his talents. Cooper said the former Raiders head coach "moves me around a lot, so a team can't really prepare for me. He'll line me up at the H, Z to X, he'll even put me in the backfield to create some mismatches."

Wherever he was, Cooper caught passes -- and attention. As soon as the Raiders called his name, some key voices cheered the selection on Twitter.

Rich Gannon, the former Raiders quarterback and NFL MVP, posted: "(Derek) Carr and Cooper ... Match made in heaven for the Oakland Raiders!"

Another former Raider, Hall of Fame receiver Tim Brown, wrote: "Young brother! Welcome to the dark side! If you need me I'm here for you!"

Chad Johnson, the six-time All-Pro receiver wrote: "Who's the offensive coordinator in Oakland? It's a blessing to have a receiver you don't have to move around to get open."

Biletnikoff isn't of the social media generation, but he, too, was enthusiastic in his review. With Cooper and fellow Biletnikoff Award winner Michael Crabtree added to the mix, the former Raider expects Carr to enjoy a breakthrough season.

"Derek's confidence has to be going sky high," Biletnikoff said. "You know how pitchers can get by as long as guys are making plays behind them? It's the same way with quarterbacks.

"You catch the ball for him, he's going to win some games. And Amari can catch the football as well as anybody."

The Amari Cooper you don't see on camera is the reason he's a Heisman Trophy finalist By Michael Casagrande
December 12, 2014

Tuscaloosa, Alabama — The look on Amari Cooper's face rarely changes. Smiles are rare, but that's not an indication of happiness.

Alabama's star receiver is just hyper-focused on the dream and everything else is just noise. So, this weekend he'll travel the awards circuit, but his mind is likely on the next prize.

From Orlando for Thursday night's College Football Awards Show, Cooper will fly north to New York. Few receivers get invitations to the Heisman Trophy ceremony as the Tide junior becomes the first since Larry Fitzgerald made it in 2003. The former Pitt star finished second — the best any receiver's finished since Desmond Howard became the last receiver to win the statue 23 years ago.

As a receiver who doesn't return kicks or punts, the odds of winning the Heisman at 7:50 p.m. Saturday wouldn't be great historically against Oregon's star quarterback Marcus Mariota and Wisconsin running back Melvin Gordon. Howard and Tim Brown, the other receiver to win the award, were also explosive returners. But that's also where Cooper's intense attention to detail becomes a factor as his presence alone changes games.

Alabama quarterback Blake Sims broke the school passing record with 1,656 yards belonging to his star receiver. He saw the hours Cooper logged in the pursuit of perfection and changed his routine.

"Sometimes when I felt tired, just knowing that he was coming up here working, I didn't want to leave him alone," Sims said Monday in a radio interview. "So I just said I would come up here with you any time of the day, no matter if it's 12 o'clock at night, it doesn't matter. Whenever you're up here, I'm up here with you. You call me and I'm going to come and that's exactly what we did."

Sims was just one of the shifting factors this fall. New offensive coordinator Lane Kiffin brought his style and reputation for feeding the playmakers after arriving in January. As the USC coach, his offense propelled Marqise Lee to a fourth-place finish in the 2012 Heisman by catching 118 passes for 1,721 yards.

Asked if he was aware of those numbers in March, Cooper's was brief.

"Yeah," he said as his stone-face broke with a knowing grin.

Under Kiffin's watch, Cooper's productivity exploded. Records fell almost weekly as the Sims to Cooper connection flourished. Through 13 games, Cooper's 1,656 yards come close to equaling the 1,736 he had his first two years combined. And he led the Tide in yardage those two seasons. His SEC-record 115 catches this year already surpassed the 104 from the past two seasons combined.

Kiffin was blown away by his pre-game preparation.

"Just always wanting to get better, always wanting to watch film," Kiffin said in a rare interview with an Arkansas radio station Tuesday. "He's one guy Friday night always after meetings, so it's 10:00 at night and he's there watching one last time, watching the DBs he's going to go against. It's just so great for our young kids to be around and learn from him."

For Nick Saban, the minor details make the difference with Cooper this year.

"He hasn't let little things bother him," Saban said, "whether it's a little nagging injury or whatever and has just been kind of a demon every time the game comes in terms of how he competes."

Last fall, Cooper's game wasn't quite as complete as the small issues got to him. Minor injuries nagged as his receiving total stood at 437 yards through 11 games. His first 100-yard game of the year came in the Iron Bowl when Cooper caught six passes for 178 yards. It was the first of nine triple-figure games in the past 15 with three 200-yarders this fall.

Cooper's presence alone changes the way opponents defend Alabama. Sims said he saw Missouri keying on Cooper in Saturday's 42-13 SEC title game win, so creases opened for DeAndrew White and Christian Jones. Cooper still caught 12 passes — one short of his school record — for 83 yards.

West Virginia coach Dana Holgorsen said Cooper should be the No. 1 overall pick in the draft. Ohio State's Urban Meyer called him "one of the best receivers ever to play college football."

It all comes back to the intense preparations. Before the season, Kiffin noted a two-hour workout Cooper completed before doing the famously intense "Fourth Quarter" conditioning drills.

"I think the things that happened when the camera wasn't on, that's what made us so good this year," Sims said. "He worked so hard and he rubs off on a lot of our players."

Cooper is cool Alabama playmaker

By A.P. Steadham January 6, 2013

Currently he keeps in contact with his former pupil through social media. The lengthier discussions have probably occurred over the internet since the introverted Tide true freshman rarely spoke on the commute. "He doesn't say ten words in a sentence," said Rolle, a third cousin to Cooper. His exceptional performance on the field constitutes a chapter of memories for the Alabama faithful.

Redshirting is the normal path for a first-year player at an established program as Alabama. Not for the ambitious Amari Cooper. His mindset was to avoid "the long line" said Rolle.

"I wanted to be great and show everybody what I could do. I expected to have a 1200 yard season. Before I came here I felt like I belonged," said Cooper with conviction sitting in the stands of the Sun Life Stadium on media day for the 2013 Discover BCS National Championship Game.

Nick Saban, anxious to welcome a top notch receiver to The Capstone, blessed the early enrollment of January 2012. Rolle was confident of a rapid career ascent but had a few doubts. "He had all the tools. I was just worried about his strength level and size to get off the line of scrimmage from defensive backs and would he be playing inside at the slot or outside," said Rolle. Quickness, athleticism and take off skills were brought to Tuscaloosa.

Zone defense was the primary coverage which meant quick outs and comebacks were the favorite routes. "You actually saw more of his talents in practice than you did in the game when we used press coverage," stated Rolle. Cooper would beg his coach to play in the secondary. Naturally, if an outstanding individual warranted his defensive presence, the all-around athlete (football, basketball, track) would be inserted as a shutdown corner on a specific receiver or as a safety to force the quarterback to throw to the outside.

A nagging high hamstring injury suffered as a sophomore during summer workouts running quarter mile sprints on the track against three upperclassmen now playing for Louisville (Michaelee Harris, Corvin Lamb and Eli Rogers) could not keep Cooper away from the field. The ferocious competitor won the race a few times causing the trio to push the youngster to keep up resulting in the mishap.

Cooper carved out a reputation as one of the best Pop Warner players in the city. A resident of the Coconut Grove area of Miami, he attended Coral Gables Senior High School as a freshman. According to Rolle, Cooper was demoted to the junior varsity after breaking a rule.

Instead of accepting reinstatement to the varsity upon completion of the junior varsity schedule, Cooper felt slighted and chose to move on to basketball and consider options. A transfer to Miami Northwestern Senior High School was shepherded by Lorenzo Woodley, Jr. He was a Pop Warner mentor to Cooper and former player under Rolle at ironically Coral Gables Senior High School and running back at Pittsburgh in the early 1990's. Even though Cooper's mother, Michelle Green, was a second cousin, the accomplished prep coach Rolle, was not aware of her son's exploits. Family connections and a recommendation by Woodley insured her a decision to change schools would prove beneficial.

Alabama's final 2011 summer camp experience was a crucial moment in the recruitment process. Tide Assistant Coach Bobby Williams had known Rolle through the years and was responsible for inviting Cooper. Former Miami assistant, Jeff Stoutland, now on the Alabama staff as the offensive line coach also contributed to landing the South Florida product.

Cooper had attended the Hurricanes camp since his sophomore year. Rolle's brother Zachary and offensive line coach Terrance Craig brought the contingent to Tuscaloosa. Camp instructor and All-Pro receiver Chris Carter was raving about three cornerback prospects.

"Amari just torched the three best defensive backs," Rolle claims. The former All-Pro reversed his opinion and began singing the praises of the fleet-footed, elusive receiver from south Florida to Nick Saban.

"I saw a look in his (Carter) eyes when I got out there. I was running routes and doing cone drills," recalled Cooper. "He started looking at me differently. I think he thought I was a real good receiver and I had a lot of potential." Cooper did not have gaudy numbers coming out of high school – 33 receptions for 772 yards with nine touchdowns, five by returns but the talent was undeniable. "I would say Alabama treated him a little more special than the Florida schools," said Rolle. "Alabama was able to eyeball him at camp."

How do you attract a gifted receiver to a program flush with superb running backs and traditionally known for their rushing attack? You mention the school's recent legendary pass catcher selected in the top-ten of the NFL Draft and the prospect in the same sentence. "Nick Saban kept saying Amari reminded him of Julio Jones and thought he could play early at Alabama," said Rolle, a four-time state of Florida high school championship coach. Woodley and Rolle promoted the notion of performing on a big stage at Alabama which appealed to Cooper.

Since Cooper has achieved spectacular results this season in Tuscaloosa, college assistant coaches who devalued him due to the lack of superlative prep statistics have caught the wrath of their head coach.

Hot temperatures and demonstrative gridiron touchdown celebrations may be prevalent in Miami but their native son is poker face cool.

"What sets Amari apart is he has no fear. He will play the same way if there are 100,000 people or 1,000 in the stands," declared Rolle. The composed freshman has deflected the external factors of packed stadiums, a national television audience and overwhelming attention. High school opponents would invariably talk smack thinking the derisive chatter would unnerve Cooper.

Just the opposite would occur. His silent assassin retaliation would consist of unleashing the 4.4 speed on the secondary. Embarrassment would ensue after spectacular receptions causing silent retreats to the huddle for those chirping cornerbacks. The player nicknamed "Hollywood" by his Tide teammates for outstanding performances shuns flamboyance. "No end zone dances. He might do a chest bump. He would always give the ball to the referee, come back to the sideline and get himself a seat," said Rolle.

Every skill the three-sport athlete learned is incorporated into being a receiver but Rolle professes the most memorable play was not on offense. The Miami Northwestern Senior School coaching staff was frantically shouting and pointing from the sidelines for Cooper to locate a tall receiver, Herb Waters (Homestead HS, FL), currently at Miami, in the formation destined to run the slant or fade pattern down by the goal-line. A touchdown would have been scored if the quarterback just signaled for the ball. "At the last second when the ball was snapped he ran over and snatched the ball out of the air with one hand and ran one hundred and two yards for a touchdown," said Rolle. He ran the wildcat formation occasionally. No matter the position, he could affect the outcome. He closed out a few games with interceptions.

The reticent Cooper is a star on the Crimson Tide football team with unlimited potential but if cast in a movie role he would have to be an action-hero with minimal dialogue. He has provided many thrills throughout the season leading the team with 26 explosive plays defined by 15-plus yards including 8 of his 9 touchdown receptions.

"He has tremendous ball skills and it is very apparent how fast he is," said Tide receivers coach Mike Groh. "He is very instinctive and how he can affect a defensive back in the way he runs his routes. All those things combined make him a very dangerous player." Cooper possesses a very high football IQ. Continued development is required to become an elite performer at the FBS level. He is concentrating on improving his blocking technique, learning schemes, understanding complex defenses, becoming a better route runner and advancing his knowledge of the game with intensive film study.

Cooper was encouraged at a young age to "work hard, never to be satisfied and always stay hungry" by the person who introduced him to football, Lorenzo Woodley, Jr. They remain close and workout to this day.

Mental preparation is a personal window to a player's temperament. Generating hype is for others. "You put in all the work during the week. When it's game time, it's game time," replied the even-keeled freshman. "You should know what you have to do and go out there and do it."

Cooper prefers listening to the motivational music of rap artist J. Cole, visualizes making big plays and focuses on what he has to do to help his team to win. "He (Cole) motivates me to do the unimaginable," said Cooper. The best moment thus far for the sensational freshman is "seeing how happy my teammates were when I caught that pass in the Georgia game for a touchdown. Everyone just ran to me and they were happy." Cooper has continued the philosophy of silence is the best policy in response to verbally aggressive defensive backs. "I really don't say anything during the games. I just try to make plays. I don't talk."

The 2013 Discover BCS National Championship Game to be held at Sun Life Stadium in Miami Gardens on Monday evening will be the first time for Cooper to perform in the venue. "It's a great feeling to be playing the national championship at home," he said. The player embracing the spotlight on the largest college football stage of the season acts if the evening is just another game.

I guess there is a little bit of pressure but I'm not focused on that right now or the people watching me. I'm focused on what I have to do to help my team win the game and just play my role." Most freshmen would be exuberant with the statistical production and accolades Cooper has achieved but for him success is a natural progression.

"I'm not surprised by it at all. I think coming out of high school every player should at least be thinking they could contribute to the team their first year," said the confident receiver. "No one wants to waste a year. I came in with expectations of having a great year. It's another game and another opportunity to prove myself."

So far Amari Cooper has met his own expectations. For the Alabama faithful he has exceeded them.

Soft-Spoken Cooper Speaks Loudly with Play

By A.P. Steadham November 27, 2014

So is the Heisman Trophy candidate from South Florida until the ball is in his hands.

Amari Cooper's loud on-the-field deeds have reverberated in the school record book. He is the most prolific wide receiver in Crimson Tide history either tying* or setting every major single game (*13, 224, *3), season (90, 11, 1,349) and career (*194, 3,085, 26) reception, receiving yards and touchdown receptions record. Two of those milestones had stood for 62 and 47 years respectively (season and career touchdown receptions).

Additionally, he had a program record six consecutive 100-yard receiving games and is tied with 13 career 100-yard receiving games. He stands alone as the only Tide wide receiver to record a pair of two-hundred plus yards receiving games.

The achievements are no surprise to Billy Rolle, Cooper's distant cousin and his former head coach at Miami Northwestern Senior High School. "If he was healthy, there wasn't anything he wouldn't be able to accomplish," said Rolle.

Cooper has matured. Rolle said, "He seems to be a lot more serious in his approach to the game. He has grown a lot not only physically but mentally, too. He wants to make something happen."

After nearly three seasons at The Capstone, Cooper's collective game day happenings have resulted in establishing records that may last for decades. Double teams and bracket coverages can normally negate the effectiveness of a single player. The addition of Lane Kiffin to the staff as offensive coordinator is another reason the Miami native has flourished. A scheme featuring a wide receiver the caliber of Cooper exploits opposing defensives.

Superior athletes occasionally are nonchalant with the routine. Cooper, anxious to generate a spectacular highlight on a short throw, has uncharacteristically had a number of miscues. "The few passes he dropped are because he saw too much daylight," said Rolle. The Blake Sims to Cooper slant pass from the right side on third down and less than 10 has become an automatic call succeeding with regularity. The 2012 consensus Freshman All-America has embraced an essential friend of every player: toughness. He has shown the ability to weather injuries ever since his sophomore season in high school.

Quiet confidence lies beneath the venire of shyness. "He's always been quiet and kind of shy," said Michelle Green, the proud mother of Alabama's next All-America wide receiver. Where did this reserved, calm and seemingly bashful superstar gain his self-assuredness? "Me, of course," she said with a hearty chuckle. "I'm confident."

Moreover, Cooper, his quiet demeanor notwithstanding, has a reputation among his teammates for being humorous. "He's very funny," said his mom. "Once he gets used to being around people, he will open up. He'll make us laugh."

Track was Cooper's first venture into sports but a curiosity developed about the game being played by boys in the nearby park – football. Thoughts of being tackled clearly were a concern but family friend, Harry Thurston, encouraged the reluctant Cooper to participate. The activity was a foreshadowing of events. His mother said, "He did real well from the very start and was making touchdowns in the park." Cooper's penchant for the end zone was immediately evident.

All of Ms. Green's children have a name beginning with the letter 'A' – Airrika, Avery, Ashley and Aspen. Searching for another with the same first letter, her cousin, Wanda Foster, suggested the name Amari. Watching her son play football is exciting, yet can elicit some apprehensive moments.

"My heart is racing every game," she said. "I am thinking, 'Please no one hurt my son."

Cooper causes serious issues for opposing defenses but off-the-field, he is a mother's dream. "He's a good kid," said his mother. "I never had any problems with him. I never had to chastise him." Mother and son have a close relationship. They speak at least twice a week and after every game.

External factors are the demons Saban rails against as distractions. Cooper seems impervious to anything resembling pressure. "He is serious about football but does not stress over it," said mom. "If he does, I don't know it. It's just a game. He enjoys playing it."

The cool demeanor shields the fervent competitor. He has tremendous poise. Cooper is the reticent celebrity shunning the attention. "Some athletes showboat, brag and like to be seen," she said. "That's not Amari's personality." He prefers tending to business, enjoys video games, and reading history – American and African-American.

Cooper loves music, too. An entertaining spirit probably remains dormant. So far Cooper has busted moves to the sheer delight of the Alabama faithful but to the chagrin of defensive backs and opposing fans. Those favoring crimson will forever remember him sprinting down the sidelines, spinning away from would-be tacklers, a series of acrobatic catches at the zenith of the ball's delivery, and double fakes on routes to break open.

Six wide receivers in the entire 122 years of Alabama football have distinguished themselves as first-team All-America. Don Hutson (1934) was a charter member of both the College and Pro Football Halls of Fame. Ozzie Newsome (1977) is also a dual inductee. Newsome known as "The Wizard" and Wayne Wheeler (1973) achieved stardom within the run-oriented wishbone offense. Ray Perkins (1966) and Dennis Homan (1967) were Crimson Tide perimeter teammates simultaneously terrorizing defenses. David Palmer (1993), the most recent honoree showcased a triple threat versatility vaulting him to third in the Heisman voting. Not even the fabled Quintorris Lopez "Julio" Jones (2008-10) was voted to be a member of this prestigious fraternity.

Every one of those sure-handed physically gifted pass catchers displayed an array of exceptional skills. Amari Cooper is a composite of the past embodying the extraordinary traits and physical attributes of the collective half-dozen Bama luminaries. Hutson (Pine Bluff, Ark.) was considered the prototype modern receiver. He was extremely fast with a game changing extra gear to chase down the deep ball.

Precise route runners Perkins and Homan shared a reputation of routinely racing past defensive backs. Separating from the secondary was the specialty for those pair of converted running backs and track stars.

Wheeler, another sprinter, was a member of that blazing speed club as well. He was known for leaving cornerbacks eating cleat generated dust on the long pass commonly called "the bomb."

Newsome was an imposing figure able to dominate possession of the ball in the air with the aplomb of a small forward in basketball. He would frequently sacrifice his body by lying out prone to make a sensational catch.

Exacting as Palmer was running routes he was equally adept at mastering the art of elusiveness amid a host of tacklers. Even defenders in close proximity assigned to chip him at the line of scrimmage rarely succeeded.

Shades of all those receivers are present in Cooper's repertoire.

"I don't know that he has a weakness, and it's not because he's at Alabama either," said Ray Perkins. Cooper was impressive the first time he laid eyes on him. "He's got excellent size, quickness and cutting ability. He's got great speed, burst and hands. I'm not sure he's the best receiver to ever come out of college. He certainly is the best receiver that's ever come out of Alabama. I think Amari Cooper will go down as one of the greatest receivers to ever come around." Perkins effusive praise for the wide receiver extends beyond the position. "He's got to be among the top three or four players regardless of position to ever come out of Alabama. He is that impressive," said the Petal, Miss., native.

Homan strongly concurred with the notion set forth by Perkins. "He is the best athlete I've ever seen in my life," Homan said. "That is any position on the field. Usually with the Heisman Trophy they select backs and quarterbacks. He ought to win the Heisman Trophy. He is that good." Homan added, "He's the best athlete in any sport you want to name. In my opinion he is the best athlete to play the game. He is so far above me when I played at Alabama or in the NFL, he could make me look like Ned in the first reader. He will do great at the next level."

Better than Jerry Rice you may ask? "He (Rice) was a great receiver no doubt and a great player," Homan said. "But I'm telling you that Amari Cooper is the best athlete I've ever seen, bar none."

Cooper broke a school record Homan held for 47 years – most career touchdown receptions of 18. He currently has 26 with at least one more regular season game, a possible league championship game, and possible multiple post-season games remaining.

Homan noted the moment with a special hand-written congratulatory note to Cooper. "I felt in my heart that was the right thing to do," Homan said. "He deserves it. I appreciate what he has done for The University and the great season and career he has had." Respect extends beyond the on-field performance.

"He is a class guy and he's a humble guy," said Homan. "When he scores a touchdown or makes a big play he hits a knee and points upward." The two have yet to meet.

Homan, a native of Muscle Shoals, said, "They can double-cover him or do whatever they want to, but he will run past them. I am not taking away from the other great players at Alabama or anywhere else. I think he is the greatest player to have ever played the game and that's at any school or program anywhere."

Man-to-man or zone coverage has not curtailed Cooper's offensive outbursts. Homan said, "He is very good at finding open spots. Great receivers know how to find them and can read defenses. He is not only talented physically with great hands but he is very smart."

Fellow (Orlando) Floridian Wayne Wheeler said, "He does a lot with the ball after he catches it with people all around him." A transformation occurs once the reception is secured. Explosive plays are a common event.

Cooper, measured against wide receivers and running backs, has a nation leading 25 plays (24 pass, 1 run) of 20 yards or more. "I just watch the way he moves," Wheeler said. "He is really fluid for a bigger guy. He moves very well with his feet. Many times someone that big does not move that well, but he runs like a running back. He is just a great complete all-around athlete. He excels at every phase of the game."

Former Alabama quarterback Richard Todd is a college teammate familiar with the exploits of Newsome, the former star at Colbert County in Leighton. Acting in proxy role due to the restrictions placed upon Baltimore Ravens General Manager and Executive Vice President Newsome from commenting on college underclassman Todd said, "Cooper's got everything. He's got good size and is stronger than people realize because of the way he pulls away from people. He reminds me of Lynn Swan with his body control but I think he is faster. He has that extra burst of speed similar to the fastest guy I ever played with on the New York Jets, Wesley Walker. He is extremely quick off the line and has great hands."

Defensive backs have difficulty slowing down Cooper at the line of scrimmage. "Half the time he jukes them so much, they can't even grab him," Todd said.

A Sympatico experience has led Palmer to view Cooper with a keen eye. Every time the ball was in the hands of "The Deuce", the crowd was on the edge of their seat with anticipation. Palmer believes the same scenario exists with Cooper. "He gets off the jam very well, runs excellent routes, and can get away from defenders.," Birmingham native Palmer said. "He's a speedster and a triple threat.

"They are getting him involved in many ways now besides throwing the ball down the field. Last week they threw the ball to him as a running back. It is very tough for defenders to cover him. He's at the top of his game right and probably the best receiver to ever come through Alabama."

Phil Savage is the executive director of the Senior Bowl and radio color commentator for the Crimson Tide Sports Network which broadcasts Alabama football games. He has witnessed the exploits of Amari Cooper since day one.

Savage said, "The first thing that jumps out when you have a chance to see him in person is the natural athleticism. He is a supreme athlete – quickness, speed, agility, balance, body control, hand-eye coordination. He's got very good hands and is sensational after the catch. He is a natural in terms of his route running and knows how to set defensive backs up. He has that subtle ability to give a hint here, a hint there and all of a sudden he's gone."

Receivers with gear changing speeds are game changers. "All the great receivers save a little something in terms of being able to gear down in a zone to make a catch or accelerate if the quarterback's pass is off-line," Savage said. "Amari can spear that ball out of mid-air and never miss a stride."

Superlatives are among the standard descriptions for any one witnessing the feats of no. 9 donning the crimson and white. The man privileged to coach him at Alabama expressed many in a November press conference. "Amari Cooper has done a great job for us his entire career," said Alabama Coach Nick Saban. "I think he's improved and been a more productive player each year as he's matured as a person and a player and gained more knowledge and experience. He's had a phenomenal year this year. He's featured in a lot of things and has seldom disappointed us in the way he's preformed and the way he's played. We're just trying to get him in a position to hopefully finish strong and put a great cap on what has so far, been an outstanding year."

The 6-1, 210 pound Cooper is one of three finalists for the Biletnikoff Award given to the outstanding receiver regardless of position based on performance for the current season. NFL scouts have high praise for Cooper. He grades well on all the critical factors: an ability to defeat the press, separation, catches the ball in a contested situation, route running, yards created after catch, elusiveness, understands the passing game, hands, variable speeds and toughness.

Alabama fifth-year senior quarterback Blake Sims was asked if trusted receiver Cooper has surprised him, ""I think the game against Mississippi State when he made that catch, man that was a great catch. Things he's been doing, I've seen a million times and I'm just happy for the success he had this year."

Sims assessed the career of his revered teammate by saying, "He has done a great job from his first year to now. He is a hard-working person. The reason he has succeeded is because of what he does when the cameras are not on and the lights are off. He is working when people are asleep which helps you get results. He is helping the people around him get better too. He is the reason other people are open. When you've got somebody like that, you want to work hard for them too."

The exclusive club of six First Team All-Americans, Hutson, Perkins, Homan, Wheeler, Newsome, and Palmer should be welcoming a seventh member soon. He could be the new chairman of the esteemed group. Admiration from those of the immortal six able to voice their opinion is unanimous. Sims also said, "I think he's the most exciting guy on the team." Amari Cooper, playmaker extraordinaire, may be the most thrilling athlete in Alabama football history.

Raiders expect an elite wide receiver with Amari Cooper draft pick

By Phil Barber April 30, 2015

OAKLAND — Derek Carr made great strides during his rookie season, cementing his place as the Raiders' quarterback for years to come. Carr may have taken another leap Thursday, without even stepping on the field.

With their young passer in mind, the Raiders used the No. 4 overall selection in the NFL Draft to acquire something they haven't had since the days of Rich Gannon flinging the football to Jerry Rice and Tim Brown: an elite wide receiver.

In Alabama's Amari Cooper, the Raiders got a guy whose epic college production is matched only by his NFL-quality route-running and reading of coverages, according to the scouts.

"He can run a route," Oakland general manager Reggie McKenzie said after making the pick. "Seems like he can do that with his eyes closed. He's exceptionally quick, he's fast and he understands the game. You can tell the guy's been playing football and playing that position all his life."

A fact quickly confirmed by Cooper, who explained on a conference call that he started to take his routes and cuts seriously when he was 5 or 6 years old, even before he had played organized football; by the time he joined a youth team in Miami in third grade, he had only to learn the names of the routes.

That team happened to have a couple of good running backs, including the coach's son, so Cooper tried his hands at wide receiver. He's never wandered from the position. The Raiders, in essence, are getting an athlete whose entire life has prepared him to catch passes in the NFL.

"It's unusual when words like polished are thrown out," Oakland head coach Jack Del Rio said. "But that's what you see. He's been lined up all across the board: outside, both sides, inside in the slot, moved around, even lined up in the backfield some. He's been exposed to a lot and utilized a lot of different ways. He's run the entire route tree."

Cooper is fast (4.42 seconds in the 40-yard dash at the scouting combine), but there are other receivers in this draft who can outrace him. He has good size (6-foot-1, 211 pounds), but won't tower over most NFL cornerbacks.

What set Cooper apart were his technique, his "football IQ" (if you can pardon the cliché) and his college production, the latter being light years ahead of the Raiders' previous top-10 pick at wide receiver, Darrius Heyward-Bey in 2009.

Alabama has been known as a run-first team for ages, but head coach Nick Saban and offensive coordinator Lane Kiffin – remember him, Raiders fans? – changed the philosophy with Cooper in the arsenal. The Crimson Tide targeted the junior an astounding 178 times in 2014. Cooper caught 124 of those passes (best in the nation) for 1,727 yards (tops among draft-eligible players) and 16 touchdowns (ditto).

Sometimes the college receivers with the biggest numbers are products of their offenses. That doesn't seem to be the case with Cooper, who is beloved by most NFL analysts.

College Football Focus, which breaks down film of every FBS game, had this to say about Cooper: "He can use his hands at the line to defeat the jam and contact from defensive backs like it's already instinct. This is something most college receivers struggle with and it takes them a while to learn it in the NFL. Cooper is already a master."

CFF added this appraisal of Cooper's mental game: "He also shows a fantastic understanding of defenses and zone coverage, knowing exactly what he's looking at and when to throttle down to sit in an open space."

"I'm a wide receiver," Cooper said. "There are only two ways you can get open at wide receiver, your releases and the top of your route. The whole route-running process is really important. I just focus on it and try to be the best that I can at it so I can create as much separation as I can for my quarterback."

In other words, Cooper is NFL-ready, maybe the most NFL-ready player on the entire board.

That's great news to new Raiders offensive coordinator Bill Musgrave, who is charged with adding some zip to an offense that ranked 26th in the NFL with 204.7 passing yards per game last season, 31st in scoring with 253 points and dead last with 30 completions of 20-plus yards.

Carr already had a stable of decent young receivers like Rod Streater, Andre Holmes, Brice Butler and tight end Mychal Rivera, and a proven newcomer in Michael Crabtree. But none of them is a clear No. 1 receiver. The Raiders hope they have found their top dog in Cooper.

The void he seeks to fill goes back for more than a decade. Oakland hasn't had a 1,000-yard receiver since Rice totaled 1,211 in 2002. That also happens to be the last time the Raiders made the playoffs.

The first two picks of this draft offered no surprises, with a pair of quarterbacks, Florida State's Jameis Winston and Oregon's Marcus Mariota, going to Tampa Bay and Tennessee, respectively. When the Jaguars took outside linebacker Dante Fowler at No. 3, the Raiders had at least a couple of strong possibilities: Cooper and Leonard Williams, the USC defensive lineman that some touted as the top talent in the draft.

Surprisingly, trading down might not have been much of an option. McKenzie said he got plenty of calls leading up to the draft, but none when the Raiders were on the clock.

To hear the general manager tell it, Williams wasn't strongly debated either. The Raiders had targeted Amari Cooper, just as his quarterbacks did 178 times last year.

DE MARIO EDWARDS JR.

CBS SPORTS

Mario Edwards, a likely first-rounder you're not seeing in many mock drafts By Jason La Canfora April 13, 2015

It is inevitable, come the start of the NFL Draft on April 30, there will be a player or two selected in the first round who virtually no one was chattering about leading up to the event. There will be first-round picks who showed up on nary a mock draft, generated precious little buzz, who teams were loathe to speak about lest they give away a secret or two, and who many in the media overlooked.

In 2015, one such player could be Florida State junior defensive lineman Mario Edwards Jr. You won't find him projected high and he might have mediocre grades from some draft sites, but plenty of evaluators I trust believe he's a legit first-round talent. In fact, I wouldn't be shocked if this kid ends up going somewhere in the teens, depending on the first 10 picks.

Execs I know who've studied Edwards are very impressed with his athleticism. They project a pass rush at the next level, making him potentially much more impactful as a pro than in college, where he was first-team All-ACC in 2014. And in 2012 he was the only true freshman to start on the Seminoles' vaunted defense.

"Why aren't any of you guys writing about Mario Edwards?" one evaluator asked. "I look around the Internet at these mock drafts and I don't think I've seen him in the first round in one of them. He's not showing up in any of them. I think you're missing on him. He's going to surprise some people. I think he goes in the first round. In this [not overly talented] draft, he's definitely a first-rounder for me."

For what it's worth, in my years of dealing with this particular scout, he has been overwhelmingly right. He's a big reason why I called for Deone Buchannon going in the first round before last year's draft. The hard-hitting safety largely was considered a mid-round guy who ended up going 27th overall. And this phenomenon occurs seemingly every year, be it Bruce Irvin or Tyson Alualu or Kyle Long. It's part of the process, and reactions I got from some evaluators regarding Edwards was pretty telling.

Some were loathe to talk about him because, well, they would prefer I not write this column. They would prefer no one shine a light on Edwards. When the same names of defensive linemen show up over and over in mock drafts, you get a lot of smiles in the scouting community. They're perfectly fine with it. They don't want a lot of hype about a kid who they think may be falling through the cracks.

"Everybody [doing a mock draft] pretty much ends up with the same names, but in a different order," said another evaluator who doesn't believe his team is a great fit for Edwards but expects he goes high. "That's usually how it works. So why should I give you a name [outside that group]? Why would a team want to let you in on that? But, since you're asking me, do I think Edwards could be that kind of guy? You could be on to something there."

Edwards is raw, and had he stayed in school we might have heard a lot about him before the 2016 draft. But there is no denying the talent, some still untapped (that is the very nature of the draft -- projecting, projecting, projecting). His father was a star at FSU and played corner in the NFL. Edwards was considered perhaps the nation's best defender coming out of high school. He is strong and powerful at 6-feet-3, 279 pounds, and can play with burst and explosiveness. He could be a fit in a 3-4 or a 4-3 scheme, though the scouts I talked to saw him more projected as a 4-3 tackle and believe he will be more of a pass-rushing factor as he develops.

One evaluator who did extensive work on him thought Edwards should be one of the first three defensive linemen off the board, and attributed some overall dropoff in FSU's defense in 2014 to the loss of defensive coordinator Jeremy Pruitt (who left after their national title in 2013 to go to Georgia).

"There was a dropoff across the board from that defense, and a lot of it I think was from losing their coordinator," he said. "He was the man. But if you look at some of those kids over the last two or three years, man, there are a lot of players there. I think Edwards and [Seminoles defensive tackle Eddie] Goldman are first-rounders."

Within the Florida State program, Edwards was viewed as a difference maker still coming into his own. He picked up valuable scheme diversity having to work with three coordinators in three years -- all three coordinators speak very highly of Edwards, I'm told -- and someone who performed often selfless tasks in that defense at a very high level.

"There were some very high expectations on him coming as the No. 1 recruit in the nation, so I guess maybe to some on the outside it might seem like his numbers aren't huge or something like that," said someone who worked closely with him while at Florida State. "But if you evaluate his entire Florida State career, he played a very major role on a team that went 39-3 with him here, and that was just 9-4 the season before he and Jameis [Winston] got here.

"He has great leadership qualities. He was one of the most coachable kids you could work with. You could always count on him on the field and off the field. He did everything that was asked of him and expected of him. He was incredibly well-liked within the program. He's very comfortable with the professional game because of his legacy with his father playing in the NFL. He's built for the league and he will keep getting better."

Certain teams definitely seem to like Edwards more than others, including the Vikings, who pick No. 11 overall. That might be high for Edwards -- plenty of mocks have nose tackle Danny Shelton going there -- though I wouldn't rule it out. And if perhaps you see the Vikings trade down out of that spot, definitely keep an eye on Edwards as a target. It wouldn't shock me at all if the Bengals, 49ers, Cowboys, Lions, Seahawks or Browns invested a top pick in him.

He would fill a need with plenty of 3-4 teams as well, though some have said they aren't sure he would fit at defensive end and doubt he could move to outside linebacker. Others believe he could play inside in a 3-4 in certain packages. Regardless, he has people talking, or perhaps whispering. His 4.74 time in the 40 and video of him doing a standing backflip -- at 300 pounds! -- and his athletic prowess are very difficult to ignore.

Personally, I won't consider it a surprise if he ends up going somewhere between 11th and 19th. After reading this, I suppose neither should you. I assure you in some draft meetings and war rooms, it won't be looked at as a stunner, either, if things play out that way.

Can slimmer, motivated Mario Edwards Jr. convince NFL he's first-round material? By Jared Shanker April 27, 2015

The morning of the NFL draft, Mario Edwards Jr. will look at himself in the mirror, just as he's done every morning since declaring for the draft. He'll pose a question to his reflection, knowing he doesn't have a satisfying answer.

"Why did I take so long?"

The former Florida State defensive lineman, who entered the draft after his junior season, is 6-foot-3 and weighs 279 pounds and is in such good shape he spent pro day wearing the football equivalent of spandex. It's a stark contrast to where he was less than a year ago.

The last draft-eligible No. 1 high school prospect was Jadeveon Clowney, who was drafted first overall in 2014. Edwards, who succeeded Clowney as ESPN RecruitingNation's No. 1 recruit, isn't following the same trajectory. Instead, Edwards' name draws varying opinions. There's talk of him sneaking into the second half of the first round or falling all the way to the end of the second day.

NFL front offices have to ask why it took so long for Edwards, who ballooned to 310 pounds at FSU, to turn himself into the player people expected -- and whether the change is permanent.

"In order for me to be great, I've got to take care of my body," Edwards said. "The 310, it's a closed chapter."

Edwards' reputation preceded him when he arrived at Florida State in 2012. He was described as a pass-rusher with first-step quickness who also possessed the power to play defensive tackle. The Seminoles had aspirations of competing for a national championship, and the decorated recruit was expected to contribute. Unprepared and overweight, though, he would have redshirted if not for an injury to a starter.

Part of the problem was he always ate until he felt full. It might take a bucket of hot wings or a burrito bowl with quadruple meat and three tacos to do that. That would be lunch, and he'd reorder it in the evening for dinner.

Teammates cracked fat jokes, but it didn't faze Edwards. Even at 300 pounds, he could still do standing back flips. The problem, he said, was he couldn't sustain his performance all four quarters. His weight caused him to wilt.

"I couldn't blame anybody but myself," he said.

The other problem was the hype and publicity, said Edwards' father, Mario Sr., who has coached his son the last six years -- the last three as Florida State's director of development.

"I think he had the big head, because all his life he's been more talented than most guys he faced. Like a lot of kids, he felt like he already arrived," Mario Sr. said. "Being humbled and not realizing I'm not the big dog on the block anymore, it was the wake-up call he needed.

"The seed needed to be watered and nourished, and it blossomed into something beautiful."

As a sophomore, Edwards showed flashes of brilliance and dominated in the 2013 national championship. This past season, Edwards was voted a team captain. His numbers aren't staggering when compared to those of other linemen, but his role as a 3-4 defensive end differed play to play, a team-oriented role he learned to relish.

"I was an all-about-me player and not about the team," Edwards said, "and I had to learn it wasn't about me and support my teammates. I'm the guy that does my job that you don't have to worry about."

Still, NFL teams will worry. In pre-draft workouts, Edwards outperformed most other linemen and was one of the biggest risers to come from the combine. But central to the pre-draft process is convincing teams the weight will stay off. Edwards weighed 276 pounds at the Rose Bowl and 272 at pro day. He's at 279 now. That question is put to bed, he said.

Training with EXOS, a health and performance consulting company, Edwards worked with dietician and performance nutritionist Bob Calvin. Calvin said Edwards was motivated to change his eating habits, which consisted of about 80 percent of his calories coming from poor food choices.

Calvin heard all the right things from Edwards, but he still had to see whether Edwards was applying it. One of the ways Calvin gauges a player's level of sincerity is if they're eating vegetables at breakfast and eschewing sugary drinks for water. That's exactly what Edwards was doing on a daily basis, and he was ending nights with Caesar salads and sweet potatoes.

"He made upgrades in his habits and saw the rewards and benefits," Calvin said.

Weekdays at EXOS before the draft have also consisted of four workouts. Edwards was in the top linemen group, joined by potential first-round picks Dante Fowler Jr., Cam Erving and D.J. Humphries. Edwards said he wasn't the quintessential teammate early in his Florida State career, but EXOS performance specialist Stefan Underwood said he has been a valuable asset in group settings during training.

"He elevated the people around him," Underwood said. "He was there to work and brought a business mentality."

Because of his size, Edwards is being looked at as a 4-3 defensive end -- he said he'll play end in either scheme or even stand up as a linebacker -- which means he'll have to improve his pass rush. For the past month, Edwards has worked with three-time Pro Bowl left tackle Tra Thomas.

Edwards and Thomas worked on the rookie's stance and spin moves. The two watched film and Thomas offered insight into the tricks that annoy offenses most. There was no lack of motivation, Thomas said.

"He'll give a lot of O-linemen fits," Thomas said. "He's going to be a huge success."

On draft morning, Edwards might not have an answer for himself when he looks in the mirror, but he knows the person staring back is here to stay.

How does he know?

"I love what I see in the morning now."

QB CODY FAJARDO

THE ORANGE COUNTY REGISTER

Former Servite/Nevada star Cody Fajardo plays underdog role in NFL draft By Dan Albano April 29, 2015

Cody Fajardo kept the list ready in college.

While at Nevada, the four-year starting quarterback remembered the schools that snubbed him during recruiting when he was coming out of Servite High. He made it a personal challenge to play well against those teams to prove they made a mistake.

"I got a lot of teams to say, 'I don't know why we didn't we recruit you,'" he recalled.

Fajardo might start another list Saturday during the NFL draft, though he hopes it doesn't grow too long. His dream is to be drafted but he's entering the weekend with guarded optimism.

A draft party in Orange County, for example, is pending the outcome.

Fajardo's prospects generate mixed reviews. His closest football supporters believe he will get drafted in rounds 4-7 on Saturday while draft analyst Matt Miller of Bleacher Report said he won't be drafted and instead become a "priority free agent." The NFL.com mock draft also didn't list Fajardo.

But this much is certain: Fajardo's underdog story, which includes a strong sense of faith, will continue beyond this weekend. The lightly recruited high school senior, who in 2009 helped Servite beat Mater Dei for the first time since 1988, is now eager to prove himself one more time.

"When I watch the draft, all the teams that do pass me, I may just write them down and when we do play against them, (I'll) just kind of feel a little better afterward," he said. "The more people that doubt me, the more fire it just lights underneath me."

TRAINING TIME

Fajardo's desire to succeed in the NFL quickly surfaced after his senior season at Nevada.

He spent January and most of February training under the tutelage of quarterback guru Bill Cunerty and the EXOS training program run out of StubHub Center in Carson.

Cunerty, the former Saddleback College football coach, has prepped quarterbacks for the NFL Scouting Combine for the past 13 years. One of his ex-students is Stanford product Andrew Luck, now with the Colts.

Cunerty trained Fajardo and fellow quarterback prospect Brett Hundley of UCLA this year. The day-long sessions focused on technique and film sessions in a classroom setting.

Fajardo operated from the shotgun in the pistol offense at Nevada, so his footwork on drops under center has been a focus. Cunerty also emphasized the ability to verbalize defensive reads.

Cunerty emerged from the sessions impressed with Fajardo.

"The work ethic is Cody's ace in the hole," he said. "No one is going to outwork him."

Fajardo also trained with Orange County's Steve Calhoun, another noted private quarterback coach who has worked with NFL passers such as EJ Manuel of the Bills and Nick Foles of the Rams.

Calhoun ran Fajardo's pro day at Nevada that attracted about a dozen professional scouts, including one from Canada. Fajardo also interviewed with about 25 teams at the combine and performed a private workout for the Eagles before they signed Tim Tebow.

"I'm pretty anxious, pretty excited," Fajardo said of the draft. "The hardest part about it is that I have no idea what's going to go on. I put my best foot forward. I felt I performed well at the combine, helped myself at the pro day."

Calhoun said Fajardo showed a strong and accurate arm at his pro day and good footwork under center.

"He answered all the questions they (scouts) had," Calhoun said. "He reminds me a lot of Russell Wilson."

Fajardo's speed certainly helps in those comparisons. He clocked a 4.63 in the 40-yard dash at the combine in February, tying Hundley for fourth-fastest among quarterbacks.

Fajardo used his speed to rush for 3,482 career yards and 44 TDs at Nevada but also passed for another 9,659 yards and 57 TDs. Those numbers aren't too far off Colin Kaepernick's production at Nevada. The 49ers quarterback was a senior at Nevada when Fajardo redshirted.

Fajardo even hired the same agent as Kaepernick, Jason Bernstein.

"His success in the NFL has really helped me draw interest from other teams," Fajardo said of Kaepernick. "(Teams) can see that guys can transition from Nevada, playing in the pistol offense."

Miller said he believes Fajardo won't be drafted partially because of his size (6-foot-1 1/2, 223 pounds) and passing abilities. But Cunerty praised Fajardo's throwing technique and readiness for the sometimes-chaotic nature of playing quarterback in the NFL.

"Cody is not a kid who panics," Cunerty said. "He's a tough guy."

KEEP THE FAITH

For all his preparation for the NFL draft, Fajardo can't be defined by football. The first word on his Twitter bio provides a clue: Catholic.

Fajardo, 23, said his Catholic faith continued to grow while at Nevada. He helped organize pregame masses for the football team, began speaking with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and recently shared his faith with church groups in Reno and Sparks, Nev.

The path, he said, was laid for him at Servite.

"They shaped my faith," he said. "The one thing I would love to do is come back and coach at Servite."

Fajardo said his talks to church groups focus on maintaining faith during adversity and avoiding negative opinions on social media.

"I learned to stay off social media and just go through my text messages because those are the people who will support you," he said.

When it comes to the NFL draft this weekend, Fajardo will follow players from the small schools or lower-profile conferences.

"I always root for the underdog," he said. "That's kind of who I am."

ESPN.COM

Miami OL Feliciano has found his way home By Andrea Adelson October 13, 2014

He had no home. Scratch that. Technically, he had a home, but it was condemned. So he bounced around here and there, staying with his best friend or his girlfriend. On days he felt too proud to ask for another favor, he went back to the condemned house, with no water or power. He just needed a place to fall asleep.

All those nights he had nothing, Jon Feliciano thought about football. He thought about the University of Miami, the only place he ever wanted to go to college. Somehow, he thought, I have to get there. Football will get me there.

Never mind that Miami had never shown any interest in him, even though he went to high school in Davie, Florida, 40 minutes north of the campus. If Feliciano wanted to change his fate, he would have to do it himself.

So he and his high school football coach, Rashad West, arrived at Lockhart Stadium in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, for the 2008 Miami spring game with a plan.

A junior offensive lineman at the time, the 6-foot-4, 280-pound Feliciano put together a highlight tape to hand-deliver to the coach recruiting his area, Tommie Robinson. Feliciano and West initially wanted to sneak down to the field when the game ended, but there were too many people to make it far. Feliciano was crushed.

West, familiar with the stadium layout, knew where the Miami buses would be parked. He drove Feliciano to the back of the stadium, where they waited for the team to emerge. When Robinson came out, Feliciano gave him the tape.

"You pass the eyeball test," Robinson told him. "I'll watch your highlight tape, and we'll see how it goes."

The fact that Feliciano could run, let alone play football, should be regarded as a minor miracle. He was born breech and with a foot deformity that required braces, or "magic shoes," as his mother called them. For two years, he wore the braces. Doctors told Alicia Feliciano that her son would never play sports. She told the doctors they would be wrong. She spent hours pulling on his legs, willing them to work, massaging his feet until her hands hurt.

Her youngest son, Christopher, had even more health problems. He was born deaf and requiring a feeding tube and heart monitors. Her marriage deteriorated, and she got divorced when her three sons were still young. She wanted to move far away, so she left her family and home in New York with $300 in her pocket and a car worth $200 and headed to Florida.

She never had a steady job but made ends meet, always making sure her children were clean and fed. When she worked nights, Jon would take care of his little brother, cooking him dinner or helping with homework. His older brother was not always around, so it was up to Jon to be the man of the house.

When Jon was in eighth grade, Alicia developed breast cancer. She kept her diagnosis a secret because she did not want her sons to worry. She went to treatments alone and would come home with a smile, tuck her kids into bed and then scream in pain through the night. When Jon asked what was wrong, she claimed she was watching a scary movie.

When she lost her hair, Jon asked why she wore a wig. She told him her hairdresser was at fault. But after a few months, Alicia finally broke down.

"She told me, 'I've had breast cancer the last few months, but I'm OK," Jon said. "I was like, 'Thanks, Mom. I would have liked to know that a few months ago. I could have helped you.' She just didn't want me to worry about her."

Jon wanted to quit school to take care of her. His mother was outraged.

"Never say that again," she told him.

Jon always loved football, but he could not afford to play in the local Optimist league. Even if he had the money, he had no way to get there. Instead, he grew up idolizing Ray Lewis and Sean Taylor and dreamed about playing tight end for the Canes.

The summer before his freshman year of high school, a friend asked him to go check out football practice. They rode their bikes over to the field. The coaches took one look at Jon and told him, "You're going to play football."

He began to excel on the field and on the basketball court -- his first love -- but at home his mother was struggling to pay the bills. Sometimes the water and electricity would be turned off. She had a generator for food and one light. They would sometimes sleep at a cousin's house or in their car.

Jon was too proud to tell his coaches what was happening at home; his mother was too proud to ask anybody for help. She wanted to provide for her children, but she no longer could when Jon was a junior and their house was condemned.

She took Jon to lunch and delivered the news.

"I was really upset about it, but I didn't want to let my mother or younger brother know how much it was bothering me," Jon said. "My mom was very upset, crying. She would always say, 'I don't want to be a bad mother,' and I'd tell her, 'Mom, you're not a bad mother. It's not your fault.' I didn't want to put more pressure on my mother with me being upset or letting her know I was upset. I tried to stay strong for my family."

She wanted him to move back to New York with her and Christopher. Jon thought it would be best if he stayed in Florida and kept playing football, hoping to get a scholarship. Alicia reluctantly agreed.

"Promise me you'll go to school and become somebody," she told him.

He promised.

When she left, Jon spent as much time at school as possible, arriving first thing in the morning and staying until the last person left.

"I would just focus on school and playing football and playing basketball. Those things kept me away from everything. But there were times I didn't know what house I'd be able to stay at," he said. "It was challenging looking back at it, but I really just try to think about the positives. If I can get through this, I don't think there will be anything in my life harder to get through."

Jon freely admits he gets his pride from his mother. Pride kept him from giving West or his basketball coach, Steve Todd, any indication that something was wrong at home. He wanted to try to manage on his own.

"He never let on how bad it may have been," West said. "There are some things I'm finding out now that you had a clue about but you didn't know to what extreme."

Shortly after Feliciano delivered his highlight tape to Robinson, Miami called and invited him on an unofficial visit.

Feliciano and his mother, in town from New York at the time, went down to Coral Gables. Everything was how he envisioned, from the coaching staff to the facilities to the campus and community. They left, not knowing what to expect as they drove to a friend's house.

Then the phone rang. It was Miami offensive line coach Jeff Stoutland.

"Jon, we want to offer you a scholarship to the University of Miami," he said.

"OK," Feliciano said. "I'm going to commit right now."

"Are you sure?" Stoutland asked. "Do you want to talk to your mom about it?"

Feliciano turned to his mother.

"Mom," he said. "I'm committing to Miami."

She cried.

"Since he was 6 years old, all he ever said was, 'I want to go to that team, Mom!" she recalled. "He doesn't even remember being in braces, but I always said to him, 'You're going to do it, Jon!' And he did it."

Shortly after, Alicia moved back to Florida with her parents, who bought a house for them to live in. A year later, Jon arrived at Miami, but he started doubting whether he belonged. The plan was to redshirt, so he played on the scout team every day, facing stronger guys like Sean Spence, Colin McCarthy and Marcus Forston -- all in the NFL now.

Then Randy Shannon and his staff were fired. Al Golden came in with a new offensive line coach. Feliciano had no idea what to expect. After the first spring, he went in for his exit interview with Golden.

"Jon, you have four more years. Do you know how good a player you're going to be?" Golden said.

Feliciano looked at him and thought, "Do you see what I see?"

Golden saw much more. "He's tough, he's durable, and he's versatile, and that's a great combination to have," Golden said. "You could see early on that he was a very humble kid from a humble background, lunch-pail ethic, and [he was] grateful for the opportunity to be here."

Feliciano worked harder than he ever had that summer and used Christopher as inspiration. He had no reason to be down, not when he was playing the game his brother never could.

When fall camp opened, Feliciano competed for a starting job. He made his first career start at left guard, as a redshirt freshman, against Ohio State in 2011.

Feliciano has started 38 games since then while facing even more difficulty at home. Alicia was diagnosed with cancer again several years ago and had her uterus removed. She asked the coaches not to tell Jon, but they thought he already knew.

Jon wanted to go back home to help her, but Alicia refused, adamant that he finish college.

"I've been through a lot," she told him. "What I deserve is for you to stay in school."

In May, Feliciano became the first person in his family to graduate from college. His father, who has maintains a presence in Jon's life, flew down from New York for the ceremony, attending with his brothers, grandparents and, of course, Alicia, grateful to be alive to see Jon walk across the stage.

"Of all the kids who had a reason to go the other way, he is one of them," said West, his high school football coach. "But he didn't. We always say it's a great story. It could be made into a movie."

Jon and Alicia struggle to reveal all the details of their past, but it has shaped them both.

"It just taught me to be strong," Jon says. "No matter what you're going through, you'll get through it if you keep a positive attitude and work hard. Everything will be all right."

Turns out everything is more than all right. Feliciano has a football career, a college degree and a future. He has his family.

He has a home.

WR JOSH HARPER

Harpers keep it all in the family By Bill Williamson May 7, 2015

On Saturday afternoon, the large gathering at the Harper family draft party was getting a little uneasy.

Smooth, productive Fresno State receiver Josh Harper -- the youngest of former San Francisco 49ers Super Bowl-winning linebacker Willie Harper's nine children -- surprisingly went undrafted. There were plenty of questions, but no answers.

Then telephone began to ring and the after-draft game was on. Teams were calling to try to secure Harper as a priority free agent. His older sister, Qiava Harper, didn't say anything. She just sat and hoped.

Then it happened. Josh Harper, listed by ESPN draft analyst Todd McShay as the sixth best available undrafted free agent, agreed to terms with the Oakland Raiders, reuniting with his college quarterback, Derek Carr, who is entering his second season with the Raiders. Harper had 79 catches for 1,011 yards and 13 touchdowns at Fresno State in 2013 with Carr at the helm.

Qiava Harper gathered her thoughts, then went to her brother's room to congratulate him and welcome him to her NFL family.

"Then I went out and cried a little," said Harper, who is the vice president of premium seating and services for the Raiders.

Just like that, Harper will now be selling luxury boxes for people to see her brother try to score touchdowns. Harper played it straight during the entire process. She never talked to the team's decision-makers about her brother before the draft and she didn't try to sway her brother's decision when he was on his own clock.

"My baby brother is joining the (Raider) Nation. I couldn't be more proud," Qiava Harper said. "I never mentioned anything. I was just being supportive. But I'm glad he made the right decision."

Harper, who has another brother, Matthew, who is an assistant coach with the Philadelphia Eagles, was overwhelmed by all the well wishes and congratulations she received from co-workers when she showed up for work Monday.

One visitor stood out: Raiders Hall of Fame cornerback Willie Brown, who still works for the team. He visited Harper's office to remind her that it doesn't matter if a player is drafted or not, what matters is seizing the opportunity. Brown originally came into the league as an undrafted free agent with the Houston Oilers of the American Football League in 1963.

Qiava Harper enjoyed last year when the Raiders drafted Carr, her brother's former teammate. It just got better.

"It must be God's plan. We're all here -- Derek, myself and now my brother," Qiava Harper said. "It's amazing."

There also potential for in-office family bantering during the season. One of the ticket-office employees, Warren Verrett, is the older brother of Jason Verrett. He is a standout second-year cornerback with the AFC West rival San Diego Chargers, who conceivably could be covering Qiava's baby brother twice a season for the next several years.

Accident teaches Kansas linebacker Ben Heeney a lesson

By Ben Heeney (via Tom Pelissero) March 29, 2015

USA TODAY Sports has assembled a talented team of prospects to chronicle their paths to the NFL draft. Today's entry is from Kansas linebacker Ben Heeney, who had 127 tackles and earned first-team all-Big 12 honors as a senior in 2014 and was a top performer at the combine.

My grandparents have a lake house at Table Rock Lake in Missouri. We always go up there during the summertime and get on the boat and have fun. It's also the place I almost died.

It was the summer between sophomore and junior year. My uncle was driving the boat. I was on the tube with my brother. We hit a big wave or something, and I got thrown off. The boat was circling around to come get me, and when they throttled down to pick me up, the propeller wasn't all the way off and it sucked me underneath the boat.

The propeller sliced my left leg open. It was probably like an inch away from my artery. If it would've hit that, I would've died within minutes. Then it flipped me over onto my side and it got me on my butt, too. The deepest laceration was on my thigh. It was really deep. When I pulled myself onto the boat, they said it looked like a raw steak hanging out. It was pretty gross.

They elevated my leg and tied it off with the towel to stop the bleeding. Surprisingly, it didn't really bleed that much, because all the blood's in that artery. We didn't have a cell phone on the boat, so we just pulled up to a random dock and everyone – my parents, my cousins, my brother, my Nana and my uncle and my aunts – was screaming, 'Call 911! Call 911!'

I think I was in shock, because it didn't really hurt that bad. But it took 30 minutes for the ambulance to get there and another 30 minutes to get to the hospital, and the only thing that was going through my head was football. I didn't think I was going to be able to play.

Hutchinson, which is where I'm from in Kansas, had a rivalry with this other school called Rockhurst. My sophomore year, we lost. I had to play my junior year. That was the only concern I had: playing against Rockhurst.

Nobody thought I was going to be back. It was like six weeks from the injury to the first game. But I recovered really fast, went through all my treatment and rehab and I was ready to play. I still don't have feeling in my left leg, in my thigh area. It has nerve damage. But it's not even an issue anymore when I'm on the field. Even the scar is going away.

I definitely would call it a near-death experience. If it would've hit an artery, I would've bled out for sure. It just makes you think. Anything can happen. One second, everything's good and the next second, you can get your leg split open. That definitely changed my perspective on living for the moment and never taking anything for granted.

My pro day last week was good. I didn't really do much. I did my bench press again – still stuck on 19 reps, even though I got 21 like a week before in training – and then I just did position work on the field. One of the coaches from the Cowboys was running drills. All the coaches said they liked what they saw and my position drills were good.

I just had a private workout Friday morning with the New England Patriots. They sent Bill Belichick's son, Steve Belichick, who's on staff there. It was just a quick, 20-minute workout on the field and then we went inside and watched film. I have another workout coming up Tuesday with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Other than that, I'm just continuing to work out and chilling, playing some Minecraft on Xbox One. All the big stuff is out of the way now. Teams just tell me to keep doing what I'm doing. I'm not a guy they have to worry about having issues. I've just got to wait until the draft.

NFL draft diary: Kansas' Ben Heeney hoping game similar to Luke Kuechly's

By Ben Heeney (via Tom Pelissero) February 18, 2015

USA TODAY Sports has assembled a talented team of prospects to chronicle their paths to the NFL draft. Today's entry is from Kansas linebacker Ben Heeney, the bearded "diabolical defender" who had 127 tackles and earned first-team all-Big 12 honors as a senior in 2014.

The culture at Hutchinson High School in Kansas was we won football games. I won three state championships in my four years there. My dad and both of my uncles were on the baseball team at KU, and my mom was in a sorority there, so I basically came out of the womb a Jayhawk. When they offered me a scholarship, I accepted it on the spot.

I was still baby-faced back in high school. But I grew a beard in college, and I liked the way it looked. It never really caught on until my junior year. That's when everyone started recognizing me for my beard. There were people in the stands at games that would have Duck Dynasty beards, Halloween costume beards.

Everyone always thinks the beard's hot and itchy on the field but, honestly, it's not. I think it's comfortable. It's a little bit of extra padding. And it's not like (Colts quarterback) Andrew Luck's, which is a little gross. I keep mine shaped up. I have a guy in Lawrence that I go to every time. Actually, here at 8 o'clock, I have a guy coming over to my little condo in Pensacola, Fla., to trim it for me.

The "Captain Heeney" website started my senior year. That's run by the KU athletics department. Before the season started, the lady that deals with all the media had this idea, basically to give me some added exposure I guess. I'm not a big showboating kind of guy, so it's not really my style. But it was cool to have them recognize me by that.

As a player, I think I'm a fast learner. I'd never played linebacker until college. I thought I was going to play running back. coach Turner Gill and his staff recruited me basically as an athlete. They didn't know where I was going to play. But when coach Charlie Weis and his staff got hired, they needed a middle linebacker. And I was the best guy, so they just stuck me in there, and I didn't lose the spot.

I don't know what these NFL teams think about me, so I don't want to speak for them. But I'll type my name in Twitter just to see what pops up, and it seems like a lot of people think I don't have very good athleticism, which is definitely not true. I think I'm very athletic. I'm hoping to show the scouts and coaches at the combine that all my times should be pretty good. I'm hoping to be in the top of the linebackers when I go there.

I don't think my "lack of size" is going to have any hindrance on my ability to play in the NFL, either. I think the game's changed a lot in recent years. If you look back, the traditional linebacker was 6-4, 250 or 260 pounds and just a humongous guy. But it's more of a passing league now, and I think the smaller, quicker guys are being really productive — Luke Kuechly and guys like that. I think my game's similar to his, and I think I'll do fine.

I didn't come from a background of a single-parent household. I didn't grow up in poverty. I don't have a story where it's like, 'Wow, this guy overcame so much.' I'm just a guy that wakes up in the morning, and I want to be better than everybody else. I want to be the best that I can be. Ever since I was a little kid, I've always been the best player on my team no matter what sport it is. If I lose in video games or I lose in a game of checkers, I'm pissed off.

I want to be great. I'm a competitor. I'm a winner, I'd like to say. We didn't do much of it at KU, but I leave my heart and my soul out on the field after every single game, and I think anyone that has seen me play can tell you that's true.

BLEACHER REPORT

Kansas LB Ben Heeney Overcoming "Misconceptions," Challenges Entering NFL Draft By Dan Hope March 7, 2015

Anyone who paid attention to the 2015 NFL Scouting Combine knows that Ben Heeney is a great athlete.

The Kansas linebacker's times topped the charts among all linebackers in Indianapolis in each of the combine's three measurable agility drills. Heeney completed the three-cone drill in 6.68 seconds, the 20-yard shuttle in four seconds flat and the 60-yard shuttle in 11.06 seconds.

Heeney utilized that athleticism to rack up 335 total tackles, including 35.5 tackles for loss, in his four-year Kansas career. He was a first-team all-Big 12 selection in 2014, and a second-team all-Big 12 player in 2013 and 2012.

Yet even with his production and accolades, Heeney was not widely recognized as a great athlete until he proved it by running fast times—also including a 4.59-second 40-yard dash—in Under Armour and shorts at Lucas Oil Stadium.

"He's just a lot better pure athlete than people have ever given him credit for," Kansas assistant head coach/defensive coordinator Clint Bowen said in an interview with Bleacher Report. "I sang that song all season. Everyone was trying to say that he was a old-school, throwback Mike linebacker and I was like 'No, he's not.' He's a modern-day, fast, athletic linebacker, and everyone wanted to compare him to something that he wasn't."

Heeney, like his coach, believes that "there's been a big misconception" about his ability to move.

"I don't know what the reason behind it is, but I think hopefully [my combine performance] just shows scouts I'm athletic, I've got good burst and change-of-direction," Heeney told B/R. "My numbers speak for themselves: I'm very quick, I'm explosive, I'm a sideline-to-sideline guy."

Matt Miller, Bleacher Report's NFL Draft Lead Writer, agrees that Heeney is a "great athlete."

"Really fluid moving laterally and can chase down quarterbacks and running backs," Miller said of Heeney's game. "He's even agile enough to drop into a Cover 2 in my opinion."

Bleacher Report Featured Columnist and former NFL defensive end Ryan Riddle further quantified Heeney's athleticism by determining him to be the fastest/most agile prospect per pound at this year's combine, according to his Dynamic Speed Average with Weightformula.

"Heeney is the best version of a sideline-to-sideline player I've seen in this draft, perhaps aside from [UCLA linebacker] Eric Kendricks," Riddle said. "Incredible closing speed."

It might not have been recognized before, but it's certainly agreed upon now that Heeney has the speed and all-around movement skills that NFL teams covet at the linebacker position.

In spite of his athletic exploits, it's no guarantee that Heeney will be selected before the late rounds of this year's draft. Even after the combine, Heeney is continuing to fly under the radar—perhaps, in part, because he played on a team that didn't get much national attention during his collegiate career.

The Best Player on a Bad Team

It's a good thing for Heeney that linebackers (unlike quarterbacks) are not frequently linked with their teams' records as prospects. During Heeney's four years in Lawrence, the Jayhawks just won nine of the 48 games they played.

As a result, Heeney's play never got much recognition outside the Big 12. In fact, the most attention Kansas and its defense got in his senior season came when Oklahoma freshman running back Samaje Perine went for 427 rushing yards—the most ever in a Football Bowl Subdivision game—in an embarrassing afternoon for the Jayhawks.

Playing on a bad unit—one that ranked 109th in the FBS in total defense and 106th in scoring defense in 2014—has not helped Heeney in terms of his perception as he stacks up with the other linebackers vying for selections in the 2015 NFL draft.

The defense's struggles as a whole, however, are not necessarily a reflection on Heeney.

Bowen, who served as Kansas' interim head coach for the final eight games of this past season, said Heeney brought a different attitude to the field than many of his teammates.

"There's a lot of kids that, and a lot of people, that will accept losing," Bowen said. "And when you're losing, the guys that are on the edge, it pushes them over the edge to where losing is OK and excuse-making becomes OK, whereas you have a handful of guys like Ben Heeney that they're never going to accept that. They're never going to accept getting beat and they're a rare breed, but it's extremely difficult."

It has not helped the Jayhawks' cause that they have had regular turnover on their coaching staff since Mark Mangino resigned in 2009. Heeney, in his time at Kansas, had three different head coaches: Turner Gill in his freshman year, then Charlie Weis until he was fired four games into last season and replaced by Bowen.

"I had three head coaches in my four years here, I had three defensive coordinators, I had three different position coaches," Heeney said. "None of the circumstances that I was playing with were beneficial."

When dealing with changes to the coaching staff and subsequently the team's defensive system, "you never really get comfortable," Heeney said.

"I love the school, I love my teammates and all that stuff, but I didn't really reap many benefits from my success personally while being here just because our team struggled so much," Heeney admitted. "I wouldn't trade my time here for anything, I love my teammates and everyone I've met down here, but I'm definitely ready to take the next step in my career."

Notwithstanding the tumult within the Kansas program, Heeney still had a great collegiate career, by any measure, at least from an individual standpoint. Heeney's ability to do so, overcoming adversity, "goes back to what's inside of him," according to Bowen.

"Ben truly is a guy that when things go bad, for him or his team, he legitimately gets pissed off," Bowen said.

Bowen compared Heeney's desire to win to that of an all-time sports great.

"You read the story [of] Michael Jordan not wanting to lose a card game, well that's what Ben does," Bowen said. "He doesn't want to lose. So regardless of what was going on around him, when he stepped on the field, it was time to go."

A two-year team captain, according to Kansas' official website, Heeney is a competitor who lets his play do the talking, according to Bowen.

"He brings it every single day," Bowen said of Heeney. "He's not a rah-rah, vocal leader type guy. He doesn't have a problem communicating with guys to voice what needs to get done, but his leadership style is based on the guy shows up and practices as hard as anybody in our program practices, every single day. He is a true live wire every day and I think the other guys on the team see that, when you're in a practice and the best player on the team is also the guy playing the hardest on the team."

Heeney's competitive desire, in conjunction with his athleticism, should give him a chance to make his mark in the NFL, where he will be surrounded by significantly more talent than he had around him at Kansas. That said, there are still some concerns that teams might have about projecting him to be a core player on an NFL defense.

Can Heeney Be an NFL Starting Linebacker?

A staple on special teams at Kansas, and also when he went to this year's East-West Shrine Game, Heeney's most immediate opportunity to make a name for himself in the NFL will likely be on kickoff and punt coverage units.

"I think that's where I'm probably most likely going to start is special teams, at least at the very beginning," Heeney said. "There's a lot of guys that don't want to be on special teams, but for me, I welcome it and I want to make plays on special teams."

But while some scouts might foresee Heeney as a special teams contributor only, and not as a player who will be a regular factor on defense, Heeney believes that is another misconception about his skill set.

"A lot of people think I will only be a special teams guy. And that's not my goal, that's not my aspiration, I want to be the guy, I want to be a starter, I want to contribute on defense, which I think I'm going to do," Heeney said.

Riddle, who recently included Heeney on his list of mid-round prospects with Pro Bowl potential, thinks that Heeney "has the potential to become one of the best non-rush LBs in this draft class."

"He is solid in coverage (from what I saw) and certainly has the athleticism to stay in the hip pocket of some of the best athletes the NFL has to offer," Riddle said. "Any situation where you turn him loose and allow him to chase down ball carriers, he will succeed."

Heeney thinks he can play numerous positions—"whatever a coach wants me to play"—in any defensive scheme.

But while Heeney played middle linebacker at Kansas, Bowen acknowledged that Heeney's size limitations, at 6'0" and 231 pounds, could make him a poor fit for that position in the NFL.

"I hate to say it, but I think he's probably more of a Will linebacker on a 4-3 team that can line up behind the 3-technique and get protected a little bit, because he's not a big guy, and he's not a long guy." Bowen said.

It's evident, even at the collegiate level, that Heeney can be enveloped by bigger blockers.

Miller, who ranked Heeney 185th on his post-combine big board, has some other concerns with the prospect's game.

"The issue I saw with him was a lot of missed tackles and some bad angles to the ball," Miller said. "He'll get tied up by blockers and sometimes still create the play, but he's not a finisher."

According to a scouting report by NFL.com's Lance Zierlein, Heeney was "the college football leader in missed tackles in 2014."

For Heeney to make good upon his objective of becoming an NFL starting linebacker, he will have to capitalize upon all the playmaking opportunities he can get.

To do so, Bowen thinks Heeney, given his ability to fly around the field, "just needs to slow down a little bit."

"He is an ultra-aggressive guy so sometimes he'll get a little too jumpy and go somewhere a little too fast and has a tendency to maybe get himself out of position," Bowen said. "He's a heat-and-feet-type guy, he wanted to see and go get it, and sometimes, he would run himself out of things."

Like most draft prospects, Heeney is a player with strengths and weaknesses who is likely to have a varied range of grades from NFL teams. He could end up being a surprise early-round draft pick, given his athletic traits and collegiate production, but he could also end up falling into the draft's later rounds because of the areas in which he must improve to be a regular contributor at linebacker.

What should be widely expected of "Captain Heeney," who was labeled as a superhero during his years at Kansas, is that he is a motivated, self-confident player who will give his all in his effort to not only make the roster of his NFL team, but to be a difference-maker.

"I like to see myself as a playmaker," Heeney said. "I go on the field and I make plays. I've got a motor that doesn't stop, I'm going to give 100 percent on every play and I'm just a really hard worker and a good leader."

LB KHALIL MACK

ESPN.COM

June 5, 2015

Khalil Mack's eyes narrowed as he crouched into a two-point stance in early September. Standing across from the Oakland Raiders outside linebacker was Houston Texans Pro Bowl left tackle Duane Brown, a 6-foot-4, 320-pound mammoth of a blocker eager to test a first-year player in a game that was quickly turning into a Houston blowout. But as soon as Brown fired across the line of scrimmage after the snap, the 6-3, 252-pound Mack deftly slid away from the oncoming lineman, then easily tackled Texans running back Alfred Blue for no gain.

A few plays later, Mack was even more determined, as he noticed Texans backup tight end Ryan Griffin lining up across from him. I played against this guy in college, Mack thought to himself. If he's out here, I know I can play this game at a high level. Mack easily tossed Griffin aside on a couple more runs to remind the former UConn star that little had changed now that they were competing on football's biggest stage.

In fact, the longer Mack played in that 30-14 Week 2 loss, the more he felt as though he was making a statement with every play. The Raiders may not have been winning, but the rookie was telling the world something about a player who had been selected fifth overall in the 2014 draft. "I learned early on that it's hard to win games in this league," Mack said. "You have to pay attention to detail. You have to always have the right technique. And you really do have to play every down like it's your last."

The lessons Mack learned during his rookie season undoubtedly will come in handy this fall. There are still many questions surrounding a Raiders team that hasn't enjoyed a winning campaign since 2002 -- including the mysterious hand injury that has hampered second-year quarterback Derek Carr throughout organized team activities -- but one spot the franchise shouldn't worry about is strongside outside linebacker. At 24 years old, Mack already has flashed so much potential that Raiders safety Charles Woodson told the San Jose Mercury News last season the "dude is going to be special."

In his first season, Mack finished with 75 tackles, four sacks and a forced fumble, numbers that helped him finish third in voting for the league's defensive rookie of the year award (behind St. Louis' Aaron Donald and Baltimore's C.J. Mosley). This year the Raiders have much bigger expectations for Mack, especially with new head coach Jack Del Rio starting his first season and defensive coordinator Ken Norton installing new schemes. Del Rio wouldn't give many specifics on how Mack's role would change but he did make it apparent that Mack won't spend nearly as much time in pass coverage as he did in 2014. This time around, Mack will be chasing quarterbacks as much as possible, which is something he did quite well when given the chance, even if the sack totals don't look significant. Mack had 40 QB hurries last season to go with his exceptional run defending.

Since Del Rio coached Pro Bowl outside linebacker Von Miller as the Denver Broncos defensive coordinator from 2012-14, he'd like to see Mack have a similar impact on opposing passing attacks. "I think Khalil is way more physical than Von," Del Rio said. "Von got up to somewhere around 250 pounds when I had him but he's naturally closer to 240. Khalil can be up around 260 or 265 and they both play that strongside linebacker position and sub-pass-rusher role. Since most teams use their sub packages for two-thirds of the game, there will be some opportunities there. They're different but they're both special."

"I definitely want to get after the quarterback more this year," Mack said. "I got some hits [in 2014], but people didn't really see what I can do. Those sack numbers I had really weren't me. At the end of the day, you want people to see you at your best."

That explains why Mack didn't spend his offseason in trendy hot spots such as South Florida or Scottsdale, Arizona, the typical areas where many young NFL players prefer to train. Despite being a Florida native -- Mack grew up in Fort Pierce -- he returned to the University of Buffalo to work out with trainer John Opfer. When Mack wasn't running steep hills or lifting weights with his former college teammates, he was focusing on areas that could fine-tune his physique for a strong second year. Some of the most vital elements of Mack's conditioning program involved strengthening his hands (so he can shed blockers far more easily) and building his core muscles (to increase his overall explosiveness).

Why train in upstate New York? "It's very easy to focus in Buffalo," Mack said. The decision speaks volumes about his approach to his career in general. Mack's road to the NFL was filled with several setbacks and plenty of people who questioned if he'd ever be a difference-maker in college. The last thing he wants to do now is forget the same ideals that brought him this far in the first place.

As Mack recently leaned against a wall outside the team's training facility following an organized training activity session, it wasn't hard to see the appreciation he has for his current standing. He laughed when thinking about this time of year last season, when he walked into the locker room for his first minicamp and bumped into defensive end Justin Tuck, a veteran of 11 NFL seasons. Tuck told Mack that he was impressed with his game, then offered a bit of invaluable advice. "Whatever you do this year, just shut up and listen," Tuck said. "You're a great player but you don't have any idea of what you're doing yet."

That suggestion helped Mack understand that his road to success in pro football would come down to how well he did the little things -- such as studying film and refining his techniques -- instead of overwhelming opponents with jaw-dropping athleticism. It was a lesson quite similar to the one he learned while growing up in a deeply religious, two-parent household, with a father who worked as both a program specialist and a deacon. Sandy Mack Sr. had long ago counseled his son to spend more time listening to his elders than speaking his mind. In his father's eyes, that was the best approach for young Khalil to find his way through the hurdles that eventually would challenge him.

That combination of humility and faith helped Mack when a torn patella tendon ended his hopes of earning a basketball scholarship when he was only a sophomore at Fort Pierce Westwood high. It also meant plenty when he was a lightly regarded football recruit who wound up at Buffalo only because the coach who was previously recruiting him to Liberty University decided to take a job at that program. Of course, there's also the story of why Mack wore number 46 in college. He donned it because the video game "EA Sports College Football 10" had given him a rating of 46 (an extremely low mark) before he started his redshirt freshman season in 2010.

Mack ultimately became an All-American by his senior year and left Buffalo as the NCAA's career leader in forced fumbles and tied for career tackles for loss. "I don't know if Khalil really understood all his talents when he was in high school," said Opfer, who also has become a mentor to Mack. "He didn't go to the big [exposure] camps in the summer and he didn't play competitively until his junior and senior years. So to have that little experience and end up blowing up college football says a lot. When he started to believe he could be great, that's when he took off."

Still, all that success in college had some repercussions once Mack arrived in Oakland. When his first NFL season began, he found himself pressing to make the same splash plays that had defined him in college. "I knew the only way to make a strong impression was to make the big plays," Mack said. "But I wasn't making the same plays I was making in college when I first got here. Eventually I had to understand that this is a group effort. We all have to be involved in order to make the plays we need to make."

Just as difficult for Mack was grinding through a season during which the Raiders won only three games. He leaned on the wisdom of veterans like Tuck and Woodson but Opfer also saw a player who learned how to play the longer the season went on. "Khalil is a smart guy but he got away with being a read-and-react player in college," Opfer said. "He had so much God-given ability that he could miss a read and still react fast enough to make a play. But as last season went on, you saw his football IQ grow. He became a lot more proficient at putting himself in the best possible positions to make plays."

Mack drew plenty of praise in the process. Seattle Seahawks coach Pete Carroll told reporters last season that Mack "jumped off the film" when his staff studied the Raiders. Former Cleveland Browns quarterback Brian Hoyer, now with Houston, said Mack was one of the best players that team faced in 2014 and added that "he gained the respect of everybody on our team." Del Rio said the Broncos had similar impressions. "Our offensive guys always wanted to know where he was," Del Rio. "That tells you a lot about what he can do."

Now the Raiders need to see even more growth as Mack heads into this coming season. The popular belief in the NFL is that players show the greatest improvement between their first and second years in the league, which means Mack should be poised for a huge leap in productivity. That goal weighed heavily on his mind whenever he strapped on a weighted vest in Buffalo this offseason and trudged toward a steep hill near the facility where he trained. Joined there by former Buffalo players such as San Diego Chargers running back Branden Oliver, Mack charged up that incline at least three times a week, all with the hopes of chiseling his thick legs and testing his willpower.

Mack had followed a similar routine in college, when he helped the Bulls grow from a program that won two games during his freshman season to one that finished second in the MAC during his senior year. A similar challenge now awaits him in Oakland. The Raiders know they still have plenty of changes to make in order to become a playoff contender. But if Mack can become the foundation of a young defense, that task will prove to be much easier.

"I can definitely say we will be relentless on defense this year," Mack said. "We're going to be dominant and physical and we're going to fly to the football. That's what this game comes down -- playing with that kind of effort. And we want to be the kind of defense that takes the ball away and gives it back to our offense as much as we possibly can."

Raiders LB Mack looks to build on big rookie season By Josh Dubow August 5, 2015

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Despite being a top five draft pick, a heralded rookie and a selection on the NFL's top 100 players list, Oakland Raiders linebacker Khalil Mack is far from satisfied heading into his second pro season.

That attitude is fueled by the rejection he faced coming out of high school when he got only one scholarship offer to Buffalo rather than the opportunity to play at a higher-profile school.

It helped Mack pass all those five-star recruits to become the second defensive player drafted in 2014 and become one of the top outside linebackers — not just rookies — in the league last season.

"I had a lot of space between Buffalo and those elite conferences, so I had to do a lot of work in order to get to that level, in my mind," he said. "I'm still the same way. I feel like it's a lot of people on this level that are still great, but there's still a gap, so I'm trying to close it every day."

That work ethic has been evident all offseason as Mack has impressed a new coaching staff that had seen him from the other side of the field and on film bit not up close.

So far, only one thing has been missing for Mack, and the Raiders believe that will change this season. Mack had just four sacks as he was unable to turn all that pressure into big plays.

"Everybody is saying how good he is and he got four sacks," new defensive coordinator Ken Norton Jr. said. "I thought to myself, 'How many great players have four sacks?' You have to get in double digits. So he has a lot of growth to make. If they're thinking he's this good and he's done so little, imagine when he actually does what he's supposed to do."

In order to get to the quarterback more often, Mack added some extra pounds of muscle to allow him to use power as well as speed to beat NFL tackles.

Mack also could get more time as a defensive end this season under the new coaching staff after having a close to even split last season as a stand-up linebacker and a rush end with his hand on the ground.

"He's pretty doggone good getting after the quarterback," general manager Reggie McKenzie said. "He's just really good going forward and it's an opportunity really to do a lot of things with him. They're going to use Khalil all kinds of ways and that's the way it should be. He's a dominant defensive player, so let him do what he does best and move him around."

Mack hopes the added strength will help him deal with the longer NFL season and deliver the sacks that he was close to getting a year ago.

"It was a little frustrating," he said. "Even then, I had talks with Justin Tuck. He let me know everybody gets lucky. It's not all just because of technique and being fundamentally sound. Everybody gets lucky and you have to know how teams are scheming against you."

While many outside linebackers make their names by sacking the quarterback, Mack has been at his best against the run where he fights off blocks to make plays in the backfield every week. Mack was second in the NFL to Houston's J.J. Watt with 11 1/2 tackles at or behind the line against the run, according to STATS.

Mack is no slouch rushing the passer despite seeing more than his share of double-teams. In addition to his four sacks, he was tied for sixth among all linebackers with 51 quarterback pressures. Mack ranked third in quarterback pressures among linebackers over the last 11 weeks.

"Khalil is special," Norton said. "There are a lot of players that might be similar. But he's in a class of his own. Bruce Irvin in Seattle was similar. But, at the same time, Khalil is built. He's athletic. He's smart. And he's relentless. ... He's amazing."

Mack has earned comparisons with many of the top pass rushers in the league with former coach Dennis Allen likening him to Von Miller as soon as he was drafted.

Quarterback Derek Carr said Mack was similar to Kansas City's Justin Houston and Tamba Hali and Denver's DeMarcus Ware as well.

"I'm trying to go out there and be the best player I can be," Mack said. "My name is Khalil. I want to be the best Khalil. Whatever he says about me, I appreciate it but I still have a long way to go."

CB DEXTER McDONALD

THE TOPEKA CAPITAL-JOURNAL

Second chance reunites Miller, McDonald at KU By Austin Meek September 26, 2013

LAWRENCE — Darrian Miller and Dexter McDonald didn't plan it this way.

When Miller and McDonald were teammates at Butler Community College, exiled from Division I for various reasons, they weren't plotting ways to return to Kansas, the school where both had played as freshmen. They had known each other for years — Miller attended Blue Springs, while McDonald played for rival Rockhurst — and it was McDonald who pointed Miller toward Butler when the talented running back was dismissed at KU. But the idea of making a pilgrimage back to Lawrence? That never came up, McDonald said.

"It's funny how that worked, huh?" said McDonald, now a starting cornerback at KU. "We never really had conversations about it."

McDonald and Miller were two players who benefited from coach Charlie Weis' willingness to extend a second chance. The Jayhawks have benefited, too; McDonald is among the national leaders in passes defended, while Miller has earned a spot in KU's running back rotation.

Both players showed promise as freshmen, with Miller rushing for nearly 600 yards and McDonald appearing in seven games in 2011. Because of separate off-field circumstances, though, neither was on the roster when the Jayhawks started their first spring under Weis.

For McDonald, academics were at least part of the issue.

"I had to get my grades back to a standing where I would be eligible to get back to an NCAA Division I school," he said.

Miller, suspended for the final game of 2011 for a violation of team rules, was among 10 players dismissed by Weis shortly after he arrived. At the time, Miller wasn't entertaining any ideas of coming back.

"Honestly, I didn't have any thoughts of what was next," he said. "I was just taking it day by day. I knew my next move was to Butler.

"In the summer, I weighed out my options. When I got the chance to get back with coach (Reggie) Mitchell, that was really what I jumped back to."

Mitchell, KU's running backs coach, recruited both Miller and McDonald while serving on Turner Gill's staff. Miller maintained that connection to KU during a redshirt season at Butler, and with assurances that he had matured, the Jayhawks were willing to invite him back.

"We opened the door for him," Mitchell said. "We didn't pressure him or hound him or anything like that. We just said, 'Hey, if you want to come back, there's an opportunity for you to come back.'"

The Jayhawks happily opened the door for McDonald, too, once his grades were in order. Defensive coordinator Dave Campo knew what he could do after watching tape of his freshman season at KU, and so far McDonald hasn't disappointed.

"I saw Dexter when I first started looking at the tapes," Campo said. "I said, 'Who is this guy?

"They said he was dismissed for academic reasons. I said, 'Man, if we get a chance, we need to get this guy back, because he's what you're looking for.'"

Miller and McDonald aren't the only second-chance recipients at KU. Wide receiver Nick Harwell, redshirting this season per NCAA transfer rules, joined the Jayhawks after a series of arrests at Miami (Ohio), and defensive end Josh Williams started for KU last season after some off-field trouble at Nebraska.

These cases are evaluated individually, Weis said, and ultimately it's an inexact science. Gambles occasionally backfire, as was the case with Chris Martin, a talented but troubled linebacker who was dismissed from the team after being arrested in connection with an aggravated robbery.

Martin had bounced around from several schools, including Florida, where he developed a relationship with KU strength coach Scott Holsopple. Weis, who had recruited Martin at Notre Dame, weighed the factors and extended a lifeline to Martin out of City College of San Francisco.

"I felt like between me and the strength coach, who knew the kid very well, I thought that would be enough," Weis said. "I was wrong."

One player's mistake didn't jeopardize an opportunity for others. In Miller's case, Weis came away convinced the player had matured during his season in junior college and had no qualms welcoming him back.

"If I wasn't sold that when he went to Butler he figured it out, he wouldn't be here," Weis said. "You have to take each case individually. I don't think you can just group them all together.

"These are 18- to 23-year-old kids. Remember how many mistakes you made when you were that age? Think about it: We all did. You have to factor that in there and say, 'Can we recover from those things? Can we help a young man grow?"

Those factors created an opportunity for Miller and McDonald to finish where they started. This wasn't how they planned it, but both players are grateful for the second chance.

CB Dexter McDonald thrilled to be back with Jayhawks

By Matt Tait January 9, 2013

An issue that led Dexter McDonald away from Kansas University's football program the first time around turned out to be the very thing that brought him back.

Maturity.

Midway through the 2011 season, McDonald, then a red-shirt freshman from Rockhurst High in Kansas City, Mo., began getting a little playing time in the Jayhawks' secondary and expected that more was on the way. When it didn't come, the 6-foot-1, 220-pound cornerback became frustrated and let his disappointment affect his play and his academics.

"I didn't do what I should've done in the classroom to stay at KU because I knew I wanted to transfer to a junior college, and I let my grades fall," McDonald admitted on the day he signed, for the second time, with the Jayhawks earlier this month. "I left because of my grades, but my (bad) grades were due to me not doing anything because of the coaches that were there."

By the end of the season, the man who recruited McDonald had been fired, and Charlie Weis had been hired to replace him. A change in coaches often means turnover in all areas of a program, and McDonald knew early on that his place on the roster was in serious jeopardy.

"I met with coach Weis at the time I left, but by that time it was already too late for me," McDonald said.

Rather than sulk and let the disappointments continue to pile up, McDonald pulled himself together, enrolled at Butler Community College and began working on his game and his grades.

McDonald found success, and he credits it all to his new mind-set.

"Ultimately, the person that thrives is the person who pushes himself the most and works the hardest," McDonald said. "I knew it was gonna be hard work on the field and hard work in class, but what I didn't know was how I would manage both of those things. Now I'm more mature, and I know what's most important."

Weis said defensive coordinator Dave Campo and running-backs coach Reggie Mitchell, who served as the Jayhawks' recruiting coordinator during McDonald's first stint in Lawrence, played key roles in bringing McDonald back.

"Dexter, when he left, he was a little sour," Weis said. "Reggie's relationship with him got us to where we could talk. You can't be presumptuous that a local guy that left is going to want to get back here. But at the end of the day, he and his family all agreed that this was a different situation than the one he left, and one that he wanted to be a part of."

Since his departure, McDonald dropped 15 pounds and became a more complete cornerback. He said he was looking forward to the opportunity to get back in his old locker room and added he believed he was ready to contribute immediately.

"First and most importantly, I'm coming to be a team player," he said. "I want to help and do whatever I can to contribute to the team. If they want me on special teams, kicking the ball off, whatever, I'll do it. I want to give everything I have of myself to the Kansas football program."

From McDonald's slightly altered point of view, the program is much different than the one he left last December.

"I think if you look at the program now, just the way it's run, the players are more focused and disciplined," McDonald said. "I don't think that you can go anywhere in college and talk to coaches that can say the things that they can say to you. The whole staff is just outstanding. I'm just happy, my family's happy, and I'm ready to start school and start football. It feels like everything's right, even more than last time. It's home, basically. Once I left, I felt it was only right for me to come back. No other place felt like home for me."

RB LATAVIUS MURRAY

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Latavius Murray looks ready to become Raiders' top back

By Vic Tafur August 5, 2015

One look at Raiders running back Latavius Murray, and it's hard not to think of Adrian Peterson and DeMarco Murray. Yes, those are two of the best running backs in the NFL, and Latavius Murray has only 82 career carries.

But just look at him. How many running backs are 6-foot-3, with a chiseled 230 pounds and speed to burn?

"Size and speed," said Murray, who was asked to switch to linebacker by his coaches at Central Florida. "Not many guys with that combination. I do watch those two guys, but I know I have to stick to my game."

And — not putting the cart before the bell cow — he has to win a starting job.

Murray, who missed his rookie season in 2013 with a foot injury, had some highlight-reel runs last season and started the last three games. But new head coach Jack Del Rio still brought in Trent Richardson to compete with Murray for the starting job.

Well, Richardson has missed the first week of training camp with an injury, and Murray isn't looking back. He is getting all of the first-team reps and has looked powerful, especially in a scrimmage late in Wednesday afternoon's practice in Napa.

"My mentality is to stay where I am at and be that guy," Murray said. "It's big being able to get a series of carries together and getting comfortable back there. Get used to the scheme and the guys I am in there with."

Murray wasn't able to prove that he was a starter to the head coaches last year, Dennis Allen and interim man Tony Sparano. It took 10 losses of Darren McFadden and Maurice Jones-Drew running into tacklers before Sparano finally threw his hands up and gave Murray a shot.

General manager Reggie McKenzie was asked what took so long, what was holding back Murray.

"I think he's holding himself back," McKenzie said. "Being able to practice all the time, not having nitpicking injuries. Last season, leading up to it, he was nicked up. So, if he could stay healthy, nothing is holding him back."

This year the 2013 sixth-round pick is coming off the first offseason in which he was 100 percent healthy, and he was even a little faster, he says, coming into camp.

Is Murray ready to be a 1,000-yard, No. 1 running back in the NFL?

"No question," McKenzie said. "He can do it all."

Murray had the foot injury his rookie year and an ankle injury and concussion last year. He still finished with 75 carries for 413 yards (5.5 average) and two touchdowns, one a 90-yarder against Kansas City, in the final seven games.

"I had a great offseason, and I want that to carry over," he said.

It started with renting a house in Newport Beach (Orange County) and working out with former Central Florida teammate and current Jacksonville quarterback Blake Bortles. From there, he went back home to New York and did whatever friend and trainer Vinny Scollo told him. Murray hit the weights, ran hills with a flak jacket and played dodge ball — with large, four-square balls being flung at him.

"The biggest improvement has been in his explosiveness and his conditioning," Scollo told Syracuse.com. "Last year, we really had to taper the workouts and work around his injury. This year, his conditioning, his wind, is 100 percent there."

Raiders offensive line coach Mike Tice had heard Murray was a hard worker. Tice, back in the day, played for longtime coach George O'Leary, who coached Murray at Central Florida.

"We talk about it a lot, like 'That's something O'Leary would do or say,'" Murray said. "It's pretty cool. The O'Leary mentality is tough, physical. We still talk, and he knows I am in good hands with Coach Tice, and I know that as well."

O'Leary said Murray had to learn to run between the tackles in college instead of trying to bounce everything outside. Instead of reading the defensive linemen, Murray learned to read the linebackers.

"George (said) he is a hard worker and a tough kid," Tice said. "So I know Latavius was raised the right way, and I know he got yelled at a lot."

Tice likes Murray's jump-cut move and how he can change direction. But the main thing, again, is the combination of speed and power.

"For a big guy, Latavius has extremely good quickness," Tice said. "And when he gets behind his pads, he is hard to tackle. Smaller linebackers might be in serious trouble."

T DONALD PENN

DAILY BREEZE

St. Bernard High product Donald Penn of Raiders is sort of a big deal

By Dave Thorpe August 10, 2015

On the small campus of St. Bernard High, the hulking Donald Penn, who transferred from Manual Arts, was easy to spot.

St. Bernard football coach Greg Dixon saw him coming a mile away.

"He was one of the bigger guys on campus, if not the biggest," Dixon said. "I had to try."

Penn was a basketball player, not a football player, so Dixon had work to do.

"He was a basketball guy, and he was good," Dixon said. "I had to convince him to come out to football."

The 6-foot-4, 340-pound Penn, who is embarking upon his ninth year in the National Football League and second with the Oakland Raiders, didn't start playing football at St. Bernard until his junior year.

"I grew up playing basketball, but everybody kept telling me I'm a big guy, I should play football," Penn said. "Coach Greg Dixon asked me to tryout, and things picked up fast."

Basketball was Penn's first love, but it soon became clear football was his future.

"I had basketball dreams, but letters were coming in from colleges for football, not basketball," Penn said.

Penn was a junior on St. Bernard's 1999-2000 basketball team that reached the CIF Southern Section Division 4-AA final and the CIF Division 4 State championship game.

Serra High boys assistant basketball coach Bernard McCrumby was a senior on that team with Penn.

"It's one of my fondest memories, just playing with him," McCrumby said. "He was a light-hearted dude who kept everyone laughing."

Everyone except opposing post players.

"He was the big clog in the middle, he took up a lot of space inside," McCrumby said. "He had soft hands. Even though he was a big boy, he had the most nimble feet of anyone his size I ever played with, just excellent footwork."

Penn's nimble feet helped him adjust to being a lineman.

Penn's personality helped him become a favorite at St. Bernard.

"Donald was a team leader, one of the more popular guys on campus, all the kids loved him," Dixon said.

Penn was only lightly recruited out of high school.

"Being at a small school like St. Bernard, he flew under the radar," McCrumby said. "In this day in age of social media, he would have been a big-time lineman getting tons of offers."

There were a few Pac-10 schools interested in Penn, but nothing worked out.

"The Oregon schools were interested, but they were hesitant, I'm not quite sure why," Dixon said. "It was unfortunate, we felt he could play at that level by his senior year."

Penn actually committed to Arizona at one point, but at the end of the college season, Arizona coach Dick Tomey was replaced by John Mackoric, and the offer went to someone else.

"The new coach wanted to go in a different direction," Penn said.

Penn said Oregon presented a gray-shirt situation, but that his family could not get a loan to pay for the first semester.

"I still had a couple of offers hanging around," Penn said.

Penn ended up signing with Utah State, where he redshirted his first year before becoming a four-year standout starter. Despite his success at Utah State, he went undrafted in 2006 before signing with the Minnesota Vikings as a free agent. The Vikings released Penn, then he signed with Tampa Bay. Penn started the last 12 games of the season for the Buccaneers in 2007, and hasn't missed a start since. He's started 124 consecutive NFL games, showing amazing durability.

Penn credits Hall of Fame linebacker Derrick Brooks with helping him gain traction in the NFL.

"He really took me under his wing, he saw a lot of potential in me that I didn't really even see in myself," Penn said. "I started shutting guys down and stirring things up."

After eight years with Tampa Bay, including one Pro Bowl year, Penn was released and the Raiders picked him up before last season.

"It hurt when Tampa Bay released me, but I look at it like everything happens for a reason," Penn said.

It helped that Penn grew up rooting for the Raiders.

"It brought me closer to home, and I'm ecstatic to play for the team I grew up cheering for," Penn said.

"Playing for the Raiders is like a dream come true, and hopefully I can help turn things around here, the goal is to win a Super Bowl and retire a Raider."

And what if the Raiders end up coming to Los Angeles after this season with Penn as the starting left tackle?

"Deep down in my heart, how would I not want to play at home?" Penn said. "Of course it would be amazing. But we have some of the best fans in the country, Raider Nation is everywhere, I love playing here in Oakland, but I'm happy wherever we play."

Penn immediately helped shore up Oakland's offensive line, locking down the left tackle position and allowing rookie quarterback Derek Carr to blossom.

Now he's a veteran leader on the left side of Oakland's offensive line, mentoring younger players like Gabe Jackson and Matt McCants.

"It's crazy, when I was younger I'd joke around about how old the other guys were, it seems like just yesterday I was that young," Penn said. "It's kind of funny, but I embrace it, I make sure I do everything right, take notes heavily, come early, stay late, work hard, the younger guys see that and follow your lead."

The likability factor with Penn makes him easy to follow; it's on display every June at St. Bernard High when Penn and his foundation, which is designed to help low-income youth, host a free football camp.

"I hung out with him a couple of years ago, he's down to earth, very humble, approachable, qualities a lot of guys don't have that have his stature," McCrumby said.

Former Cal kicker looks for exposure in Raiders' camp

By Lev Facher June 12, 2015

Giorgio Tavecchio is in a tough spot in the Raiders' training camp, a situation Oakland special-teams coach Brad Seely summed up well.

"I really believe this guy's an NFL kicker," Seely said. "He just happens to be on a team with an NFL kicker."

It's not just any kicker, either. It's Sebastian Janikowski, one of the best kickers in NFL history, who has Tavecchio playing second fiddle this offseason.

Tavecchio, a Cal alum who grew up in Moraga, called Janikowski a "legend." He knows that Oakland's longtime placekicker is as firmly entrenched in his position as anybody in the organization. But he's taking a bigger-picture perspective on his tryout with the Raiders.

"I'm not naive," Tavecchio said of Janikowski's status. "As much as I'm auditioning for this team, I'm auditioning for all 32 teams."

Tavecchio is already known in the Bay Area; he ranks fifth on the Golden Bears' all-time scoring list with 256 points.

This is also his second stint with a Bay Area team. He spent the 2012 preseason with the 49ers, when Seely was San Francisco's special-teams coach, and kicked well. All the same, Tavecchio didn't stick on the roster.

He faced disappointment in the ensuing seasons, too, missing the cut in 2013 with Green Bay and again in 2014 with Detroit. The return to the Bay Area, he said, has been seamless.

"It's been awesome to be back in this area and have the NFL experience while being at home with my parents," Tavecchio said. "My mother's lasagna is never too far away."

He's also taking advantage of his proximity to his alma mater, volunteering in Cal's recruiting office during the fall. Tavecchio isn't above grunt work, and was happy to spend time reviewing YouTube videos of high-school kicking prospects and charting their information.

He's a welcome addition, said Cal special-teams coach Mark Tommerdahl. He didn't coach Tavecchio, but appreciates the continued commitment to the team.

"He does a lot of the hands-on groundwork," Tommerdahl said. "And he's really good advertising for our program."

The office work could prove helpful for a future career in coaching or administration, something Tavecchio isn't considering seriously just yet.

"That's on the back burner for me," Tavecchio said. "After my playing days are over, which, God willing, isn't for a long time."

Besides, the football facilities are a nicer place to work than they were during Tavecchio's college days. The previously antiquated stadium has since undergone an extensive face-lift. He isn't jealous of the new digs, charitably describing the stadium's old weight rooms as "full of character."

"I loved the old facilities," Tavecchio said. "I'm not a guy for pomp and circumstance. Just give me a couple of dumbbells and I'll make it work. But, in light of that, I think they did a great job."

Though he remains available to help Cal's coaches with "whatever they need," Tavecchio is keeping his eyes on the prize: a spot on a regular-season NFL roster.

The mentality of being a kicker without a team to kick for isn't easy to handle. But as he's done throughout his still-nascent professional career, Tavecchio is taking things one step at a time.

Plus, Tavecchio said, fighting for a roster spot as a kicker is an entirely different beast from competing as a nonspecialist.

"In the end, you're competing against yourself," he said.

Above all else, Tavecchio is keeping his head down both literally and metaphorically, confident in his future no matter what it holds.

"What I think I've done a good job of this spring is staying in the moment," Tavecchio said. "It's so uncertain that you can't really plan ahead."

St. Joseph graduates Valles, Hill headed to NFL

By John Russo and David Weinberg May 2, 2015

Max Valles and Gordon Hill grew up together in Winslow Township and both played football for St. Joseph High School in Hammonton.

Now both are headed to the NFL.

About an hour after Valles, an outside linebacker from the University of Virginia, was drafted by Oakland in the sixth round, Hill, a safety from Sacred Heart University, agreed to terms with San Diego as an undrafted free agent.

"This is awesome," Hill said in a phone interview Saturday night. "I just texted Max a little bit ago and I'm going over to his house. We've been playing football together our whole lives, starting back when we played for the Winslow Maulers when we were little kids. And now we're going to the NFL together."

Valles, a 2012 St. Joe graduate and former Press Player of the Year, was taken with the 179th pick overall.

"The only real contact was that I had a formal (visit) with (the Raiders) at the combine and got the call right before my name got announced on TV. That was it," Valles said in a story on the Raiders' website. He could not be reached for comment.

Valles will either play outside linebacker or defensive end in Oakland, he said. Though he's comfortable playing both, he knows he has a lot to work on as he prepares for the next level of football.

"Just working on a backup pass rush move, if one doesn't work," Valles said. "I've been working on that a lot this offseason. Overall just becoming a more physical player. Coming from college to the NFL, it's going to be a much more physical game, so I just have to step it up a notch."

The 6-foot-5, 235-pounder is coming off a solid season with Virginia in which he finished second in the Atlantic Coast Conference with nine sacks. He also had 55 tackles, 12.5 tackles for a loss, three forced fumbles, eight pass breakups and returned an interception for a touchdown while earning third-team all-conference honors.

He was the second player drafted from Virginia this weekend. Eli Harold, a defensive end, was selected 79th overall by the 49ers. They will be just 30 minutes apart from each other.

Valles, 20, was the youngest player in the draft. He attended Fork Union Military Academy in Virginia for a post-graduate season before transferring to Virginia where he enjoyed a successful 2014 campaign.

"I talked to my coach and my family about it," Valles told the website. "Everybody felt that I was ready. Second in the ACC in sacks, All-ACC, I felt like it was time."

Over Christmas break, Valles sat down and talked with his agent, Rich Rosa, of Baltimore-based Eastern Athletic Services. He decided then he was going to declare himself for the draft.

"I have to give him a lot of credit from day one when he decided to come out," Rosa said by telephone. "We had a conversation on what it would take for an early-entry guy to put himself in a position to get drafted. He did everything I asked him to do."

Rosa, like Valles, is from Sicklerville and graduated from St. Joseph. He played football for current St. Joseph coach Paul Sacco before playing at Penn State.

Rosa represents 42 players, including current Dallas Cowboys defensive end Jack Crawford (St. Augustine Prep) and Arizona Cardinals linebacker Glenn Carson (Southern Regional).

"We laid the groundwork out for him and he worked his butt off," Rosa said. "We're excited for him."

Valles and Hill have a chance to become the first St. Joseph player to appear in a regular-season NFL game. Valles is the first Wildcat to be drafted.

Jack Corcoran, a 2006 St. Joseph graduate and former Rutgers fullback went undrafted and was on the practice squad for Tennessee (2010) and San Francisco (2011).

Hill, a 5-foot-11, 212-pound safety, said the Chargers were among several teams that contacted him during the later rounds of the draft Saturday. He also heard from Kansas City and Tampa Bay.

"Teams started contacting me around the sixth round," he said. "Went I went out there for my visit (last month), I developed a really good relationship with the coaching staff. It seemed like they already had a plan for how to use me when I got there.

"Obviously, I'll be playing special teams right away, but they also talked about me playing in nickel and dime situations, and rushing off the edge. It looks like I'll be moving all over, just like I did in college."

Hill enjoyed a standout career at Sacred Heart, a Division I Football Championship Subdivision program in Fairfield, Conn. A three-year starter at safety, he led the Pioneers with 104 tackles and also collected six sacks, two interceptions and two fumble recoveries as a senior.

Hill said he was scheduled to fly to San Diego later this week to participate in an upcoming minicamp and to start in their offseason conditioning program.

That will also be the case for Valles, who will now be one of Hill's rivals in the AFC West.

"That's going to work out well for us," Hill said with a laugh. "During training camp, when everyone on the East Coast is asleep, we can talk to each other and see how things are going. As a matter of fact, I just texted him. I told him, 'It's time to go to work.'"

Students at St. Joseph anticipated Valles' eventual selection, Sacco.

"Last night, my wife and I were chaperoning the junior and senior prom and no one was dancing," said Sacco, who has coached at St. Joseph for 34 years. "They were on their phones all night.

"We're all excited here. Our kids talked about it this week."

Sacco was in Ocean City all-day Saturday, got home and saw Valles was drafted. He said he planned to see Valles either Saturday night or in the coming days.

"We try to impress on our players that when they walk the hallways, or even when they run out on the field, there are always little kids watching and it's important," Sacco said. "I told Max (the other day) that, 'All the kids are watching you, all their eyes are on you. Just make us proud.'

"And I'm sure he will."

St. Joseph Grad Max Valles is NFL's Youngest Draft Prospect

By David Weinberg April 25, 2015

Max Valles plans to watch the NFL draft next week with friends and family from his home in the Sicklerville section of Winslow Township.

When the 2012 St. Joseph High School graduate does get picked - the outside linebacker/defensive end is projected to be selected in the middle rounds - his celebration will be subdued. At 20 years old, Valles is the youngest player in the draft and still a year away from reaching the legal drinking age.

"I look at my age as being a positive," Valles said in a phone interview. "Being that I'm only 20, I'll be able to play in the NFL for a very long time."

Drafting such young players is rare in the NFL. Running back LeSean McCoy, who was traded to Buffalo earlier this month, was 20 when the Eagles selected him in the second round in 2009.

Like McCoy, who starred at the University of Pittsburgh, Valles played only two years of college football. Upon graduating from St. Joe -- he was The Press 2011 Co-Athlete of the Fall - Valles spent a year in the post-graduate program at Fork Union Military Academy in Virginia before enrolling at the University of Virginia.

The 6-foot-5, 253-pounder enjoyed a solid 2014 season for the Cavaliers. He finished second in the Atlantic Coast Conference with nine sacks. He also had 12 tackles for a loss, three forced fumbles and an interception return for a touchdown while earning third-team All-ACC honors.

Valles intended to return to Virginia for one more season but reconsidered after talking it over with his parents, Pamela and Paul, and St. Joe coach Paul Sacco.

"I talk to Coach Sacco a lot," said Valles, who works out at the high school in Hammonton when he's in town. "Besides my parents, he's been the most influential person in my life. I'm hoping he'll be watching the draft with us.

"I just felt like it was the right time to go to the NFL, but I had to promise my parents that I would get my degree during the offseason. My mother is a teacher (in the Winslow Township school district), and my family has always emphasized the importance of getting an education. I'm only a year away from getting my degree (in media studies)."

Over the Christmas break, Max and his father broke the news to Virginia coach Mike London.

"Obviously, I was hoping he would stay at least one more year," London said Saturday in a phone interview. "But Max had to do what was best for him and his family. I think he would have benefited from playing for us one or two more years.

"But there's no question he has a lot of potential because of his versatility. Not only can he rush the passer, but he can also (cover) tight ends. I have no doubt that someone will be drafting him, and I wish him all the best."

Earlier this year, London said in a statement, "I believe he was on the verge of blossoming into a dominant player."

Valles will try to join former local high school standouts Glenn Carson (Southern Regional), Jack Crawford (St. Augustine Prep) and Dominique Williams (Bridgeton) in the NFL. Carson will begin his second season with Arizona as an outside linebacker after making the team as an undrafted free agent in 2014. Crawford, Oakland's fifth-round draft pick in 2012, is heading into his second season with Dallas as a defensive end after getting released by the Raiders last preseason. Williams, a running back, spent most of last season on Minnesota's practice squad after a brief stint on Arizona's practice squad.

Valles also could become the first St. Joseph player to appear in an NFL game. Jack Corcoran, a 2006 graduate, was on practice squads in Tennessee (2010) and San Francisco (2011).

Like Crawford, Valles is represented by St. Joseph graduate Rich Rosa, of Baltimore-based Eastern Athletic Services. Rosa was a star defensive back for both St. Joe and Penn State.

"I never usually watch the draft, but I think I'll watch it this year because of Max," Sacco said. "I've been talking to Rich Rosa, and he feels like this is a great opportunity for Max and that he stands a real good chance to go in the early rounds. I'm entering my 34th year at St. Joe and to see one of our own get a chance to play in the NFL is very exciting."

Preparation, evaluation

The draft will cap a three-month-long odyssey for Valles that featured trips to the NFL combine in Indianapolis in February, Virginia's Pro Day in early March, and individual interviews and workouts with several NFL teams in recent weeks.

Valles said he had eight individual workouts and visited with Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Tennessee. The Eagles, who are looking for depth at outside linebacker in their 3-4 defense behind starters Connor Barwin and Brandon Graham, were the first team to work him out.

Eagles vice president of player personnel Ed Marynowitz said he was impressed with Valles' size and speed but also with his maturity and ability to process information quickly.

"We try to do our due diligence on every player to make sure that if we (draft) them that there are no surprises," Marynowitz said. "We don't just go to pro days or private workouts just to do. We go for a specific reason. With us, it's really a three-part evaluation. Number one is height, weight and speed according to the position. The second part is the position specifics, which is basically the guy's athletic ability to play in your system and scheme. The third part is attitude and intelligence in terms of their football makeup. We want guys that are wired the right way.

"Max's age is not a concern for us at all because there are a few guys in that range in this draft. You want to make sure with all those guys that they have the right maturity and can process information quickly. I think Max has a lot of ability."

Draft analysts have differing opinions as to when Valles will be drafted.

ESPN analyst Mel Kiper has him going in the third or fourth round while others have projected him to go between the fifth and seventh. The last time a local player was drafted before the fifth round was in 2002, when the Cleveland Browns chose running back William Green, an Atlantic City native and Holy Spirit graduate, in the first round.

"I've been hearing somewhere between the second and fourth round and if that happens, it would be great," Valles said. "But no matter where I'm drafted, I'm just excited to get this opportunity."

TE CLIVE WALFORD

MIAMI HERALD

For UM tight end Clive Walford, football is now a family matter

By Susan Miller Degnan September 18, 2013

Clive Walford has a sleek new haircut, precious new son and proud new attitude.

Now all the Miami tight end needs is some old-school Hurricanes production.

"My overall favorite tight end is Kellen Winslow," Walford said of the former Cane, recalling Winslow's famous "It's about this U!" rant after Miami's 2003 loss to Tennessee. "I always looked up to him when I was younger."

Walford, UM's third-leading receiver as a sophomore last season with 451 yards and four touchdowns on 25 catches, said baby Clive III — born Aug. 2 — has afforded him a fresh perspective and burning desire to do right by his namesake.

His closely cropped haircut, which he gave himself after 6 1/2 years of growing dreadlocks, has added to Walford's new, more serious image. He said he and his late cousin grew dreads together. The two made a pact that when the cousin's hair "caught up" to Walford's length, Walford would get shorn.

Tragically, his cousin died in a car accident Walford's freshman year.

"I felt like this was probably the time he would have caught me," noted Walford, 21, who said he decided on the haircut in August but needed more time to muster the courage.

"It took almost an hour to cut my first dread — my fiancée cut that one. Then it took not even six minutes to cut the rest. Once I snipped my first one, I was snipping away."

He pulled out a purple brush and began to repeatedly run it over his hair.

"With dreads it was kind of tough, having to tie them up all the time and at night sleeping. Now I feel free. I feel the breeze. My scalp can actually feel the air. I sleep more comfortably at home."

And straight home to little Clive (8 pounds, 3 ounces and 22 inches at birth) and his fiancée Aneliz — a UM senior who took the semester off to care for the baby — is where Walford goes after each day of classes, football and meetings.

"I can't even put in words what it's like being a father," said Walford, who has five catches for 58 yards and a touchdown in two games.

"It's special. You see things differently. Things that used to be fun — all the partying and stuff like that — aren't as fun. I owe it to my son."

A powerful, 6-4, 260-pounder after putting on 15 pounds of muscle in the offseason, Walford plans to graduate in December with a degree in sports administration. The fourth-year junior was a standout basketball player at Belle Glade Glades Central, and didn't play football until his senior year of high school.

He misses "being the guy" in basketball, but is intent on putting all his focus on football.

He is fast (4.6 seconds in the 40-yard dash), has a knack for big plays and said he loves blocking. In his final four games of 2012, he tallied 303 yards and three touchdowns on 11 catches. Against Duke in the season finale, he had four catches for 99 yards and a score. Just 1 more yard would have made him the first UM tight end since 2003 with two consecutive games of at least 100 receiving yards.

The last one to do that? Kellen Winslow II.

Coach Al Golden said he wants Walford to get the ball more, especially on third down, an area in which UM sorely lacks. "He's been one of the guys we've been pushing to get his timing down, run everything full speed so Stephen [Morris] knows exactly where he is."

UM offensive coordinator James Coley described Walford as "a big guy who's fast. If you're fast, you've got to learn how to get open. ... Can he get open on that safety? Can he change up his speed and burst and get out of his break? He's been working really hard at it."

Walford believes he's ready to take that next step.

"I still have a long way to go, but I'm more focused than I've ever been," he said. "I have a major responsibility to my family and myself.

MILWAUKEE JOUNRAL SENTINEL

Prospect Watch: Miami (Fla.) TE Clive Walford Driven by Late Cousin

By Tyler Dunne April 10, 2015

Green Bay — Injuries are bound to happen. Hardship. Pain to some degree. Clive Walford battled through a knee injury at the Senior Bowl and knows more dings are inevitable.

And whenever he does sprain an ankle — whatever the ailment — he'll think about his cousin.

"If I'm hurt or have a small injury," Walford said, pausing, "his life is gone. So there isn't any injury worse than having your life taken away from you."

Alonzo Jones was a virtual big brother to Walford. Blood. The one he looked up to as a kid.

And in 2010, Jones lost his life in a tragic car accident. As Walford re-tells it, Jones crashed into a canal, was knocked unconscious and drowned. A freshman at Miami (Fla.) at the time, Walford has thought about his cousin "every day" since. Heading into the NFL draft as one of the top tight end prospects, he'll keep thinking about him, too.

"I was very close to him," Walford said. "He was like my oldest brother, even though he actually wasn't my brother. I saw him that way."

The Packers' tight end duo of Andrew Quarless and Richard Rodgers did yeoman's work in 2014, combining for 58 catches, 627 yards and seven touchdowns.

If the team does decide to gamble at tight end early in the draft, the choice may be between Minnesota's athletic, highlight-waiting-to-happen Maxx Williams and the 6-foot-4, 251-pound Walford, who brands himself as a complete tight end. Last season, Walford had 44 receptions, 676 yards and seven touchdowns — and he was asked to block plenty.

Walford didn't back down from his NFL scouting combine statement that he is the best tight end in this year's draft.

"Because I'm a dual-threat tight end," he said. "I don't only catch the ball. I get down and dirty and I block. I do everything that a tight end is expected to do. ... It's very rare. A lot of guys don't take pride in their blocking or don't take pride in catching the ball. I take pride in both of them, so that's what helps me excel at both positions."

And experiences — often the tragic ones — shape us all.

Walford's most traumatic, the one that stuck with him his entire collegiate career struck when he was leaving a class that freshman year. His younger cousin called him with the news.

Alonzo was dead.

"Your heart drops," he said. "You don't know how to deal with that situation. You've got to let God handle it. Just pray about it. Memories pop in your head. The good times you had. And you just cherish those moments."

Like all the times the two played video games together. Like the time Jones bought his first car and let Walford drive even though he didn't have a license. Any down time was spent together at Jones' house.

And now, any time he plays a video game or sees a picture on his cell phone, Walford thinks of Jones. He says his cousin was "a laidback guy," who was "well-respected" by a lot of people. "A person you want to be around."

Losing this presence in life, abruptly, shaped Walford into who he is today.

"It helped me become the man I am," he said. "You realize that some things aren't going to be there forever. It made me step my game up a little more and realize what I was supposed to do. I actually think about him every day. There hasn't been a day that goes by that I don't think about him."

No wonder Walford says he'll play in his cousin's honor at the next level.

"He's up there smiling down, watching me progress," he said. "I know if he could be here and actually enjoy these moments with me, I could see the smile on his face. That just motivates me to continue to go.

"You can't measure someone's heart. I feel that I play with my heart every time I'm out there."

Walford won't get into comparisons with Williams, the one hurdling defenders and making 1-handed catches.

Turn on the tape, he says. That'll answer any questions.

"Put in the film and you tell me who you like the best," he said. "If you feel like he's better, you have to take him."

Walford does try to study New England's Rob Gronkowski when possible. Not surprisingly, he admires Gronkowski's raw heart-on-sleeve playing style above all.

He did meet with the Packers at the combine and sees a fit here, too.

"Of course," he said. "They have a great quarterback. Aaron Rodgers is very versatile and can get the ball to anybody. With my ability, if you combine it with his ability, you've got greatness. So I feel like I'd fit right in."

Wherever he goes, he has an idea what his cousin would be thinking.

Over the phone, Walford chuckles.

"Oh man, honestly I can't even tell you," he said. "I can just see the smile on his face."

DE GARY WILKINS

ROCKDALE CITIZEN (GA.)

Wilkins makes most of opportunity getting signed with Oakland

By Manny Fils May 12, 2015

COVINGTON — It seems that Newton and Rockdale counties are being put on the NFL map as former Alcovy football player Gary Wilkins becomes the third local player to sign to play professionally.

"We have a lot of talent in Covington. I have to say it's because of the work ethic of the people in Covington," he said.

Wilkins, who starred at Furman after moving on from Alcovy, made most of an opportunity as he got signed by the Oakland Raiders.

"Right after Sunday practice (Raiders head coach Jack) Del Rio wanted to have a brief word with the tryout guys and that they would be in contact with they guys they were going to keep. As soon as I'm walking off the field one of the player-personnel pulled me aside and said to put my helmet in the locker and grab my ID that they were going to sign me," Wilkins said.

"My next goal is to make the 53-player roster and to be playing on Sunday's. Special teams or whatever I can."

Being on the field with 40 other players hoping to make a name for themselves like Oakland's No. 2 draft pick Mario Edwards from Florida State, he knew he had to do something to make himself noticed. Even though Wilkins, who stands at 6-foot-2 and tips the scale at 240 pounds, was not the biggest or possibly fastest player on the field, the one thing that he did have more than just about everyone else was desire.

"I was trying to be on film as much as I could," Wilkins said. "You had to do little things to separate yourself from everybody else. If the ball is thrown downfield I'm turning around to run full speed until I catch up to the guy. That way when they look on film they'll say hold on how is this guy? Then they realize that it's a defensive end and he's catching up to a receiver. You just have to give all you've got.

"The thing that really made them notice me was my effort. I wasn't taking any plays off. I was on the defensive line but if I had a blocker that was 320 pounds I was holding my own. When the ball was thrown or of it was a run on the edge I was chasing it down to get to it."

What really took Wilkins a little off guard was the speed at which practice takes place. He said that the NFL practice speed was equivalent to college game-day speed. However, after the first day he quickly adjusted to playing at a whole new level for the final two days.

#Even though the Dallas Cowboys and the New York Jets also expressed interest, he feels that the Raiders organization is actually a good fit for him.

"Oakland had kind of been that team in the past that has put small-time players that other teams wouldn't think of looking at and put them on the map," Wilkins said. "I think it was because of my pass-rush ability, my effort and ability to work. I showed them my ability and my effort in the three days and it paid off with my contract.

"That was a big sigh of relief. I was happy. You can just be thankful for the opportunity and take advantage of that opportunity."

Wilkins was able to get a few tips as to what to expect at the camp from his father, Gary Wilkins Sr., who spend four of his six-year career with the Falcons.

"It's always good to hear it from someone else but it's even better when you hear it from your dad. He's told me stories over the years and I couldn't be more thankful for him to help me out as a player and also his son," Wilkins said. "I actually think he was more excited than I was. He was saying that he has to start booking flights to Oakland."
