OAKLAND RAIDERS (0-10)

vs.

KANSAS CITY CHIEFS (7-3)

GAME PREVIEW

The Oakland Raiders play in their first and only primetime game of the 2014 season, as they host the Kansas City Chiefs at O.co Coliseum on Thursday, Nov. 20 at 5:25 p.m. PT. Thursday night's game will be the first meeting of the season with the division-rival Chiefs, and the third consecutive match-up with an AFC West opponent, having faced the Denver Broncos and San Diego Chargers the previous two weeks. The contest will mark the first of two meetings between these longtime rivals, with the second installment coming on Dec. 14 in Kansas City. This will be Oakland's 10th Thursday night game, compiling a 4-5 record in the previous nine. This will also be the last home game against an AFC West foe for the 2014 campaign. Last week, the Silver and Black fell on the road against the Chargers, 6-13, while the Chiefs beat the Seattle Seahawks at home, 24-20.

Oakland fell at Qualcomm Stadium last Sunday to the San Diego Chargers. The team got a strong effort from the defense throughout the contest, allowing only one touchdown on the afternoon, and holding the Chargers to just 180 passing yards. Rookie LB Khalil Mack once again made a major impact, posting five tackles (four solo) and his first career sack. DL Antonio Smith also got in on the action, recording his first sack as a Raider. RB Latavius Murray paced the running game, rushing for 43 yards. QB Derek Carr threw for 172 yards.

The Chiefs knocked off the defending Super Bowl champs behind a dominant performance by RB Jamaal Charles, who rushed for 159 yards on 20 carries (8.0 avg.) and two touchdowns. On the defensive side, LB Tamba Hali and DT Dontari Poe posted sacks.

Next week, the Raiders will play another team from Missouri, traveling to St. Louis to play the Rams, while the Chiefs will play the Broncos on Sunday Night Football.

QUOTING SPARANO

"Another tough, hard-fought game. The kids played hard out there [Sunday], I thought, but unfortunately we came up short again. We have to stop putting ourselves in some bad positions out there and we did that today. ... I thought our defense really played well today. They played hard out there. ... Again our defense really did a good job I thought. We have to do a better job from an offensive standpoint. We have to do a better job on third down, extending our drives and keeping our defense off [the field]." - Raiders Interim Head Coach Tony Sparano

CHIEFS SNAPSHOT

Overview: The Kansas City Chiefs are riding a five-game winning streak into Oakland for their Thursday night contest against the Raiders. The Chiefs, 7-3, defeated the defending Super Bowl champion Seattle Seahawks 24-20 at home in Week 10, putting them in a tie for first place in the AFC West. Under the direction of Head Coach Andy Reid (148-101-1), now in his 16th year as a head coach, the Chiefs have gone 18-8, and finished 11-5 in 2013. The Chiefs' 11 wins last season marked the most for the franchise since 2003 and earned the team a playoff berth, though an early exit came in the Wild Card game at the hands of the Indianapolis Colts.

Offense: QB Alex Smith, now in his ninth NFL season and second with Kansas City, has started all 10 games for the Chiefs this year. Smith has thrown for 1,977 yards on 193-of-291 passing (66.3 percent) with 11 touchdowns, four interceptions and a 92.5 passer rating. Smith has been supported by a two-pronged ground attack featuring RB Jamaal Charles and RB Knile Davis. Charles leads the team with 133 carries for 692 yards (5.2 avg.) with eight touchdowns and another two receiving scores, while Davis has 111 rushes for 421 yards (3.8 avg.) and five touchdowns. Eighth-year WR Dwyane Bowe is once again the Chiefs' leading receiver with 41 receptions for 509 yards (12.4 avg.). TE Travis Kelce has seen his first significant NFL action this season, playing in all 10 games and totaling 37 receptions for 475 yards (12.8 avg.) with four touchdowns.

Defense: The Chiefs' defense forces opponents into a one-dimensional game as it has proven to be the league's top-ranked passing defense this season, allowing just 201.6 net passing yards per game. During the Chiefs' five-game winning streak, the defense has held each of its opponents to 20 points or less. LB Justin Houston, the NFL sack leader, has cemented his place as one of the game's elite pass rushers with 12.0 sacks so far this year. DE Tamba Hali has added five sacks of his own to the team's total of 30. FS Husain Abdullah has the Chiefs' lone pick-six on the season, a 39-yard touchdown return, while three others also have one interception. LB Josh Mauga leads the unit in tackles with 66 stops (58 solo).

RAIDERS VS. CHIEFS

PRIMETIME RAIDERS

Over the course of their history, the Raiders have played in many primetime matchups, being featured on Monday Night Football, Sunday Night Football and Thursday Night Football. Heading into Thursday's match-up with the Chiefs, the Raiders hold a 58-50-1 record in primetime games, and a 4-5 record in Thursday night contests. This will be just the third Thursday night game at home for the Raiders, with a 1-1 record in those contests. Here is a look at the previous nine Thursday night games Oakland has been featured in:

RAIDERS ALL-TIME THURSDAY NIGHT GAMES

Date	Opponent	Result
10/25/79	San Diego	W, 45-22
12/1/83	at San Diego	W, 42-10
9/12/85	at Kansas City	L, 20-36
11/20/86	at San Diego	W, 37-31 (OT)
12/9/99	at Tennessee	L, 14-21
9/8/05	at New England	L, 20-30
12/4/08	at San Diego	L, 7-34
11/10/11	at San Diego	W, 24-17
12/6/12	Denver	L, 13-26

A WIN WOULD...

...mark the Raiders' first win in a Thursday night contest at home since 1979 when the Raiders defeated the San Diego Chargers 45-22 on Oct. 25. The Raiders are 1-1 in Thursday night home games, losing to the Denver Broncos in 2012.

...even the Raiders' Thursday night record at 5-5, with the team's last win coming at San Diego on Nov. 10, 2011. Including Thanksgiving Day games, the Raiders are 7-9 on Thursdays.

...improve the Raiders' record in divisional play to 1-3, ending a six-game losing streak against AFC West opposition dating back to last year's 27-17 win vs. San Diego (10/6/13).

...narrow the gap in the all-time series between the Raiders and Chiefs, lifting the Raiders' record to 51-55-2 (1-2 in postseason). Oakland's last win over Kansas City was a 15-0 shutout on Dec. 16, 2012.

...give Interim Head Coach Tony Sparano his first win in his current position and improve his record to 30-38 (.411) as an NFL head coach.

WHAT TO WATCH FOR

- The Raiders' offensive line staying on pace to break the franchise record for fewest sacks allowed in a 16-game season (since 1978). Oakland has allowed just 12 sacks in 10 games, putting them in position to break the mark of 23 sacks set by the 1982 Raiders.
- The offensive line not allowing a sack for the fifth game this season, tying the franchise record of five games set by the 1969 Raiders.
- QB Derek Carr becoming the second rookie (Brandon Weeden, 320) to throw for 300 yards in a Thursday night game. Robert Griffin III (304) also surpassed 300 yards on a Thursday in a Thanksgiving afternoon contest in 2012.
- Carr throwing three touchdowns to tie Peyton Manning (1998), Robert Griffin III (2012) and Andy Dalton (2011) for the fourth most passing touchdowns by a rookie through 11 games.
- RB Darren McFadden amassing 54 yards from scrimmage to claim seventh place in franchise history, passing Todd Christensen (5,866) and Napoleon Kaufman (5,899).
- FB Marcel Reece gaining 21 yards through the air to pass Charlie Smith (1,596) for sixth all-time among Raider running backs.
- TE Mychal Rivera catching five passes to set a new single-season high, surpassing his rookie total of 38 receptions.
- WR James Jones picking up just one reception and two yards to reach 50 catches (third straight season) and 500 yards (fifth straight season) this year.
- LB Khalil Mack sacking the quarterback for the second straight game to tie him with five others for fifth among NFL rookies with 2.0 sacks.
- DL Antonio Smith totaling 1.5 sacks to mark his 10th straight season with at least 2.5 sacks. Smith would join Trent Cole, Julius Peppers and DeMarcus Ware as the only players to record 2.5 sacks in every season since 2005.
- S Charles Woodson recording double-digit tackles for the third straight game, extending the longest streak of his career.
- Woodson scoring his 14th defensive touchdown to claim the all-time record, passing Rod Woodson and Darren Sharper. An interception return for a touchdown would be Woodson's 12th, tying him for first all-time with R. Woodson.
- CB TJ Carrie (nine) and CB Tarell Brown (11) competing for the team lead in passes defended this season.
- K Sebastian Janikowski kicking one field goal to claim 14th place on the all-time list, passing Olindo Mare. Janikowski needs just two attempts to pass Mare and tie Jim Bakken (447) for 19th in NFL history in field-goal attempts.
- P Marquette King landing six punts inside the opponents' 20-yard line to tie his rookie season total of 23.

HEAD COACHING MATCH-UP

TONY SPARANO

Tony Sparano was named the Oakland Raiders' interim head coach on Sept. 30, 2014. Sparano is the team's 19th head coach and fifth interim head coach in franchise history. Sparano brings 31 years of coaching experience to the job, including 16 at the NFL level and nine combined seasons as a head coach at the college and NFL level.

From 2008-11, Sparano served as the head coach of the Miami Dolphins, posting an overall regular season record of 29-32 (0-1 in the postseason) (.475). In 2008, Sparano's first year as the Dolphins' head coach, he guided the team to one of the best single-season turnarounds in NFL history, a 10-game improvement over the previous year. Taking over a 1-15 squad from a year earlier, he led the Dolphins to an 11-5 record and the AFC East title. For his efforts, Sparano was named as 2008 NFL Coach of the Year by the NFL Alumni and the Pro Football Weekly/Professional Football Writers of America, and AFC Coach of the Year by the Kansas City 101 Committee. He shared USA Today's Coach of the Year honors with Atlanta's Mike Smith.

With the Cowboys from 2003-07, Sparano served as the team's tight ends coach from 2003-04, offensive line/running game coordinator in 2005, and assistant head coach/offensive line from 2006-07. During those five years, the Cowboys qualified for the playoffs three times, including 2007 when they won the NFC East with a 13-3 record.

Prior to two one-year stops as a tight ends coach, with the Redskins in 2001 and Jaguars in 2002, Sparano helped launch the expansion Cleveland Browns. In 1999, Cleveland's first year back in the NFL, Sparano was an offensive quality control coach. He spent 2000 in charge of the Browns' offensive line.

Sparano made the jump to the NFL after five years as head coach (1994-98) of his alma mater, Division II New Haven, where he compiled a 41-14 record (.745), with four winning campaigns and one .500 season. In that tenure, he also guided the Chargers to a pair of NCAA playoff berths. In 1997, his 12-2 club led the country in scoring offense (42.8 points per contest) and ranked second in scoring defense (11.6) before losing in the national championship.

He spent the previous six seasons (1988-93) at Division I-AA Boston University, coaching the Terriers' offensive linemen from 1988-89, including Cleveland Browns 1989 draft selection Mike Graybill, before serving as offensive coordinator from 1990-93. In his final season at BU, the 12-1 team won the Yankee Conference and advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA playoffs.

A native of West Haven, Conn., Sparano and his wife, Jeanette, have three children, sons Tony and Andrew and daughter Ryan Leigh.

ANDY REID

Andy Reid was hired as the club's 13th head coach in franchise history on January 7, 2013. Reid joined the Chiefs after 14 seasons as Head Coach/Executive Vice President of Football Operations of the Philadelphia Eagles where he compiled a 130-93-1 (.583) regular season record. He added six division titles, five NFC Championship appearances and one Super Bowl appearance. In his coaching career, Reid's teams have made the playoffs 16 times (19-15 record), and he has coached in three Super Bowls and eight NFC Championship Games. He owns three NFL Coach of the Year titles. Reid was named the 2013 AFC Coach of the Year by the 101 Committee after his squad recorded the greatest single-season turnaround in franchise history. In his first year at the helm, Reid's team finished with an 11-5 record, a nine-game turnaround from the previous season. The club qualified for the postseason for the first time since 2010.

In addition to his 141-98-1 regular season record, he owns a 10-10 postseason record as a head coach. His 141 wins in regular season and postseason play rank 22nd in NFL history. Among active head coaches through the end of the 2013 season, Reid ranks fifth in regular season and playoff wins, trailing only Bill Belichick (205), Mike Shanahan (175), Tom Coughlin (163) and Jeff Fisher (154). While compiling his 10-9 postseason record with Philadelphia, Reid led the Eagles franchise to one Super Bowl appearance, a game that saw Philadelphia fall by a mere field goal to the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XXXIX following the 2004 season.

Reid was originally introduced as the head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles on Jan. 11, 1999, after spending seven seasons as an assistant coach with the Green Bay Packers under Head Coach Mike Holmgren. During his seven years with the Packers, Reid served as the tight ends coach and assistant offensive line coach (1992-96) and as quarterbacks coach (1997-98). During his two-year stint as quarterbacks coach, Reid worked with Packers quarterback Brett Favre. In his first NFL coaching role, Reid oversaw the tight ends while assisting Offensive Line Coach Tom Lovat.

Prior to joining the NFL ranks, Reid's final collegiate stop was also in the Show-Me State as he coached the offensive line at the University of Missouri (1989-91). Prior to his stint with the Tigers, Reid spent two years working with the offensive line at the University of Texas - El Paso, and before that, he held the same position with Northern Arizona. In 1983, Reid took the position of offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at San Francisco State, helping the Gators lead the nation in passing and total offense for three consecutive years (1983-85).

A tackle and guard at Brigham Young University from 1979-81, Reid entered the coaching ranks as a graduate assistant at BYU under Head Coach LaVell Edwards in 1982. It was in that time at BYU that Reid began his association with Holmgren, who served as the quarterbacks coach for the Cougars. While at BYU, Reid earned both a bachelor's degree in physical education and a master's degree in professional leadership in physical education and athletics. While playing for the Cougars, Reid was also a columnist for the Provo Daily Herald.

A native of Los Angeles, Reid prepped at John Marshall High School in Los Angeles and went on to go to Glendale (Calif.) Junior College before attending BYU.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — enter their 55th year of professional football competition, including the last 44 as a member of the National Football League.

In five memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the 2000s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three world championships of professional football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 21 playoff seasons, finished 34 seasons at .500 or better and played in 40 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only two original AFL teams to have captured three world championships of professional football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only four AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

With four postseason victories, the Raiders were the first of the AFC West teams to win multiple postseason contests in the new millennium by six years.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During those memorable 54 years in Oakland and Los Angeles, the Raiders have won 434 league games, tied 11 and lost only 375.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

More than 20 of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced five Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 62 Pro Bowl players have made 181 Pro Bowl appearances representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders have compiled a remarkable 92-73-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build an incredible 37-27-1 record in Monday night play. In the 43 years of this series, the Raiders are 15-8-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and now the 2000s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

BOBBY APRIL

Bobby April, entering his 23rd season as an NFL assistant coach, is in his second year as Oakland's special teams coordinator. April, one of the NFL's most highly-regarded special teams coaches, was named to his current position on Jan. 19, 2013, after serving as Philadelphia's special teams coordinator from 2010-12.

In 2013, Oakland's special teams unit ranked among the best in the league. On kickoff coverage, the special teams allowed just 20.4 yards per return, good for fourth in the NFL. April also helped first-year punter Marquette King lead the league in gross punting (48.9 avg.) and punts of 60-plus yards (10), while ranking sixth in punting yards (4,107). April spent three seasons (2010-12) with the Philadelphia Eagles before coming to Oakland. In 2011, April successfully integrated both a rookie kicker, Alex Henery, and a rookie punter, Chas Henry, on his units.

Prior to joining the Eagles, April spent six seasons with the Buffalo Bills (2004-09). In three of those six years, he guided the Bills to the No. 1 spot in the annual Dallas Morning News rankings. April was named Special Teams Coach of the Year by his peers twice, in 2004 and 2008.

He joined the Bills after three seasons (2001-03) in charge of the special teams with the St. Louis Rams, where he helped the team to an appearance in Super Bowl XXXVI. As Pittsburgh's special teams coordinator from 1994-95, April helped the Steelers earn a berth in Super Bowl XXX.

A native of New Orleans, April and his wife, Charlene, have five children, a son, Bobby III, currently the linebackers coach for the N.Y. Jets, and four daughters: Julie, Jamie Lee, Angela and Jaclyn.

GREG OLSON

Greg Olson, entering his 28th season in the coaching profession, is in his second year as Oakland's offensive coordinator.

Under Olson's guidance last season, the Raiders offense averaged 20.1 points and 333.8 yards per game. Olson's group showed improvements in many significant areas from 2012, including yards per rush (3.8 in 2012 to 4.6 in 2013), 20-plus-yard runs (eight to 18), red zone touchdown percentage (42.9 to 59.5) and points on the opening possession (three to 41).

Olson served four seasons with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, including the last three as offensive coordinator. Olson helped guide the Buccaneers to one of their best offensive seasons in team history in 2010, setting franchise records for yards per play (5.61), average per rush (4.64 yards), average per pass play (7.21), passer rating (96.2) and fewest interceptions thrown (six).

Prior to joining Tampa Bay, Olson spent two seasons (2006-07) as offensive coordinator for the St. Louis Rams. Under Olson's direction, the 2006 Rams became just the fourth team in NFL history to produce a 4,000-yard passer (QB Marc Bulger), a 1,500-yard rusher (RB Steven Jackson) and two 1,000-yard receivers (WRs Torrey Holt and Isaac Bruce). Bulger, Jackson and Holt were all selected to the Pro Bowl.

From 1997-2000, as quarterbacks coach at Purdue, Olson played a key role in the development of future Pro Bowl and Super Bowl-winning QB Drew Brees. Under Olson, Brees was a Heisman Trophy finalist in 1999 and 2000 while winning the Maxwell Award as the nation's most outstanding player in 2000. He was also a finalist for the Davey O'Brien Award as the nation's top quarterback in 1999 and 2000. Brees finished his collegiate career as the Big Ten and Purdue's all-time leader in passing yardage, touchdown passes, total yards, completion percentage, completions and attempts. Brees earned Big Ten Player of Year honors in 1998 and 2000 and All-Conference accolades for three straight years (1998-2000).

A native of Richland, Wash., he and his wife, Lissa, have twins, Kenneth and Grayce.

JASON TARVER

Jason Tarver is in his third season as defensive coordinator for the Oakland Raiders. Tarver, who coached in various capacities with the San Francisco 49ers for 10 seasons, joined the Silver and Black after spending one year as Stanford's co-defensive coordinator.

Last season signified a major transition on defense for the Raiders, as Tarver's unit started 10 new players on defense. The defense showed significant improvement against the run, allowing 107.9 yards per game to rank 13th in the NFL after ranking 18th in the previous season. Oakland also held opponents to less than 40 yards on the ground three times during the campaign. The Raiders improved the team's sack count from the previous season by 13, with a remarkable 15 different players getting to the quarterback in 2013.

Before coaching at Stanford for one season in 2011, Tarver spent the previous decade on the staff of the 49ers, coaching San Francisco's outside linebackers for six seasons (2005-10) prior to his appointment at Stanford. He began coaching in the NFL as a quality control coach for the 49ers (2001-03) before being promoted to assistant running backs/offensive assistant coach in 2004.

Prior to joining the 49ers in 2001, Tarver spent three seasons (1998-2000) as a graduate assistant coach at UCLA, where he worked primarily with the defensive backs while assisting with the special teams. During his tenure with the Bruins, three defensive backs, Ricky Manning and Jason Bell along with Marques Anderson, became NFL players.

A native of Stanford, Calif., Tarver and his wife, Katie, have two sons, Merrick and Keegan.

ASSISTANT COACHES

CHRIS BONIOL

Chris Boniol, who played six years as a kicker in the National Football League, enters his first season with the Raiders. He was named to his current position on Feb. 6, 2014, after spending the previous four years as the assistant special teams coach with the Dallas Cowboys.

Boniol coached the kickers while assisting with the special teams units in Dallas from 2010-13. Last season, kicker Dan Bailey led the NFL in field-goal percentage, making 28-of-30 attempts (93.3 percent), and ranked fourth in the league with 52 touchbacks. In 2012, Bailey led the NFL in field-goal percentage, nailing 29-of-31 attempts (93.5 percent). In 2011, Bailey was named to the Pro Football Weekly/Pro Football Writers Association All-Rookie Team.

Boniol enjoyed a six-year pro career, playing for three different NFL teams. From 1994-96, he converted 118-of-121 PATs and 81-of-93 (87.1 percent) of his field goals while helping the Cowboys to the Super Bowl XXX Championship. Boniol also played two seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles (1997-98) and one with the Chicago Bears (1999).

An Alexandria, La., native, Boniol and his wife, Christine, have two sons, Gaige and Garin.

JOHN DeFILIPPO

John DeFilippo enters his fifth year with the Raiders as quarterbacks coach in 2014. He is in his second stint with Oakland, having served in the same capacity from 2007-08. DeFilippo rejoined the Raiders after serving as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at San Jose State from 2010-11. He was the assistant quarterbacks coach for the New York Jets in 2009, and also served on Tom Coughlin's staff with the New York Giants for two years beginning in 2005.

DeFilippo joined the Giants after two seasons as quarterbacks coach at Columbia, where he tutored QB Jeff Otis, who left the school ranked second in program history in completions and passing yards, and went on to spend time on the Raiders' practice squad. From 2001-02, DeFilippo was a graduate assistant at Notre Dame, working with wide receivers and tight ends. He began his coaching career tutoring quarterbacks at Fordham in 2000.

A native of Youngstown, Ohio, DeFilippo earned four letters as a quarterback at James Madison University, leading the team to a conference title as a senior in 1999. His father, Gene, served 15 years as athletic director at Boston College.

TED GILMORE

Ted Gilmore enters his third season as wide receivers coach for the Oakland Raiders. Gilmore coached at the collegiate level for 17 seasons prior to joining the Silver and Black. Last year, Gilmore aided Oakland's youthful receiving corps, with second-year WR Rod Streater leading the team with 60 receptions and 888 yards.

Gilmore served as wide receivers coach at USC in 2011, when he was named the NCAA's top receivers coach by FootballScoop.com. Gilmore spent six years at Nebraska (2005-10), coaching the wide receivers, and was assistant head coach/offense in 2008. Gilmore arrived at Nebraska after two seasons at Colorado (2003-04). Gilmore was also Purdue's wide receivers coach for two seasons (2001-02). He was wide receivers coach at the University of Houston in 2000 after spending one season as the tight ends coach at Kansas (1999). Gilmore began his coaching career at his alma mater, Wyoming. He was in charge of the wide receivers for two seasons (1997-98).

A native of Wichita, Kan., Gilmore and his wife, Jennifer, have two children.

JOHN GRIECO

John Grieco, who has nearly two decades of strength and conditioning coaching experience at the collegiate and professional levels, enters his third season with the Oakland Raiders and first in his present capacity. Grieco served two seasons as assistant strength and conditioning coach from 2012-13.

Grieco came to the Silver and Black following two years as the head strength and conditioning coach at Louisiana-Monroe, where he was named the top strength and conditioning coach in the country by the Professional Football Strength and Conditioning Coaches Society. Grieco served four seasons as the director of strength and conditioning at UNLV. He spent two years at East Carolina, serving as the director of the Pirates' football strength program and as an assistant strength coach.

After graduating from Florida, Grieco began his coaching career at his alma mater and remained there for nine years (1995-2003). He was part of a Gator football program that enjoyed a national championship victory in 1996 and two Orange Bowl wins (1998, 2001).

Originally from Greensburg, Pa., Grieco and his wife, Jamie, have a son, Nicholas, and a daughter, Gianna.

JUSTIN GRIFFITH

Former Raider and eight-year NFL veteran Justin Griffith is in his third season on the Oakland coaching staff, serving as an offensive quality control assistant. He was a coaching intern with the Seattle Seahawks prior to joining the Silver and Black.

Through the last two seasons with Oakland, Griffith has worked primarily with the offensive line and tight end positions. In 2013, Griffith aided a shuffling offensive line through eight different starting combinations, the most in the NFL. Despite injuries, the offensive line paved the way for four different players to rush for 100 yards in a game, becoming the first NFL team to do so since 1978. Griffith also worked with the tight ends, the offense's youngest unit.

Griffith played in 96 NFL games with 73 starts, including 23 games in two seasons at fullback with the Silver and Black (2007-08). Originally drafted by the Atlanta Falcons in the fourth round of the 2003 NFL Draft, he retired following the 2009 season, which he spent with Seattle.

A native of Magee, Miss., Griffith and his wife, Kim, have two sons, Brody and Dylan. He also has a fraternal twin.

NICK HOLZ

Nick Holz enters his third season as offensive assistant for the Oakland Raiders. Holz served the previous four seasons in a similar capacity at Stanford.

Last year, Holz worked extensively with Oakland's youthful receiving corps, helping second-year WR Rod Streater lead the team with 60 receptions and 888 yards. In 2012, Holz aided Streater, who became one of the most productive undrafted rookie players in recent NFL history. Streater's 39 catches in 2012 were tied for third most among undrafted rookies since 2000, and fourth most by a Raider rookie.

While assisting Stanford, Holz helped the Cardinal appear in the Sun Bowl, Orange Bowl and Fiesta Bowl. As an assistant quarterbacks coach, he helped QB Andrew Luck to first-team All-American honors. He began his collegiate coaching career at Nebraska, where he served as offensive quality control coach and video intern for the Cornhuskers in 2007.

A native of Danville, Calif., Holz prepped at De La Salle High School in Concord, Calif., where he was teammates with current Raiders RB Maurice Jones-Drew.

ASSISTANT COACHES

MARK HUTSON

Mark Hutson enters his third season as tight ends coach for the Silver and Black. He joined the Raiders after coaching at the collegiate level for two decades, including two stints as an interim head coach.

Last season, Hutson tutored the youngest unit on the Raiders' offense, a group that included two rookies and counted just one career catch among three players entering the regular season. Rookie Mychal Rivera saw action in all 16 games in his first season, leading the group with 38 catches for 407 yards and four touchdowns.

Hutson spent the previous five seasons as an assistant at Tulane, serving as the interim head coach for the Green Wave in 2011. Prior to being named interim head coach, Hutson served as offensive line coach for five seasons. In 2010, Hutson's offensive line led the way for RB Orleans Darkwa, who set a freshman program record with 925 yards.

A native of Fort Smith, Ark., Hutson was part of a famous "fumblerooski" play in the 1988 Orange Bowl, scooping up an intentional fumble and scampering 29 yards for a touchdown with 2:05 remaining in the contest. He and his wife, Sherri, have two sons, Ethan, an offensive lineman at Troy University, and Dillion.

MARCUS ROBERTSON

Marcus Robertson enters his first season with the Silver and Black as assistant defensive backs coach. A 12-year NFL veteran as a player and former All-Pro safety, Robertson has served as an NFL assistant for seven years, including the last two with the Detroit Lions.

Robertson was secondary coach for the Tennessee Titans from 2009-11, helping the team rank second in the NFL in average passing yards/completion (10.55) during that span.

Robertson served as the Titans' director of player development from 2003-06. He spent those four years assisting players with their career transition into and out of the NFL through continuing education, financial education and administering player programs.

A native of Pasadena, Calif., he played 12 seasons as a safety with the Houston Oilers/Tennessee Oilers/Tennessee Titans (1991-2000) and the Seattle Seahawks (2001-02) after being selected by Houston in the fourth round of the 1991 NFL Draft. He played in 162 career games with 144 starts, totaling 24 interceptions, 1.5 sacks, nine forced fumbles and 11 fumble recoveries. He and his wife, Holly, have three children: Morgan, Milan and Marcus Andrew.

BOB SANDERS

Bob Sanders enters his second year as Oakland's linebackers coach. Sanders has coached at the collegiate and professional levels for over 36 years, including three seasons as the defensive coordinator for the Green Bay Packers (2006-08).

In Green Bay for four seasons (2005-08), Sanders began as defensive ends coach (2005), then was named by Mike McCarthy as the new head coach's first defensive coordinator, a role he held from 2006-08. In 2007, Green Bay ranked sixth in scoring defense, 11th in total defense and third in opponent third-down-conversion percentage, posting a 13-3 record and earning a spot in the NFC Championship game. And in 2006, Green Bay led the NFC with 46 sacks.

Sanders' first NFL coaching position came as linebackers coach with the Miami Dolphins from 2001-04. A college assistant for 22 years, his final collegiate stop was the University of Florida, where he held six coaching titles, ranging from defensive line to linebackers.

A Native of Jacksonville, N.C., he and his wife, Kathie, have three children, Lindsay, Sarah and Robby.

ERIC SANDERS

Eric Sanders is in his fifth season with the Oakland Raiders and third in his present capacity. Sanders served in an offensive quality control role during his first two seasons in Oakland.

For the past two years, Sanders has assisted primarily with the defensive line. In 2013, the Raiders finished sixth in the AFC in rushing defense, allowing just 107.9 yards per game, and tied for first in the league by allowing just five opponent rushes of 20-or-more yards. As an offensive assistant for the Silver and Black (2010-11), Sanders worked primarily with the tight ends.

Before joining the Raiders, Sanders coached linebackers for two seasons at UC Davis. He also served as the assistant offensive line/tight ends coach at UC Davis in 2006, before becoming a graduate assistant at Utah State.

Sanders was involved with the UC Davis program as an undergraduate and earned his bachelor's degree in psychology with a biological emphasis in 2005. From 2003-05, he was the team's video coordinator and assisted in coaching the defensive line.

Sanders is a native of nearby San Francisco, Calif.

AL SAUNDERS

Al Saunders returns for his fourth season on the Oakland Raiders' coaching staff. Saunders has over 40 years of coaching experience, including the past 31 in the National Football League. He has been a part of 15 playoff teams, five division titles and one Super Bowl championship as an NFL coach and 20 times his offensive units have ranked first in the NFL in total offense, passing, rushing or scoring.

He served as the assistant head coach/offensive coordinator for Dick Vermeil with the Kansas City Chiefs from 2001-05. During his second stint with the Chiefs, Saunders' offense established 46 franchise records and exploded with 2,157 points, 262 touchdowns and 30,470 net yards, more than any other NFL team across those five seasons. In 2005, he was named USA Today's Offensive Coach of the Year as the Chiefs offense led the NFL for a second consecutive year.

His first NFL head coaching position came with the Chargers as interim head coach in 1986, following the resignation of Don Coryell. He spent two full seasons as the Chargers head coach.

A native of Hendon, England, he and his wife, Karen, have three children: sons Robert and Joseph, and daughter Korrin.

KELLY SKIPPER

Kelly Skipper enters his eighth season with the Raiders, the sixth in his present capacity tutoring running backs, after two years as tight ends coach. He has 26 years of coaching experience and has served as an offensive coordinator at the collegiate level.

Under Skipper's tutelage, FB Marcel Reece garnered his second-straight Pro Bowl selection and was named second-team All-Pro by the Associated Press. In 2010, Skipper oversaw a running game that ranked second in the NFL and set a franchise record by averaging 4.9 yards per attempt.

Before joining the Raiders, Skipper spent four seasons coaching running backs and special teams at Washington State. He also spent two summers, one with Seattle and one with Washington, as an NFL minority fellowship coaching intern. From 1998-2002, Skipper was on the coaching staff at UCLA, where he was offensive coordinator from 2001-02. He was an assistant at Fresno State, his alma mater, from 1989-97, beginning his coaching career as a graduate assistant before becoming a full-time assistant in 1991.

A native of Brawley, Calif., he and his wife, Mary, have two children, Kaelen and Darius.

ASSISTANT COACHES

TRAVIS SMITH

A native of Walnut Creek, California and a graduate of Cal Poly, Raiders defensive assistant Travis Smith joined the Raiders in 2012 and has worked extensively with the linebacker corps during his time with the Silver and Black.

He began his coaching career at Cal Poly as an undergraduate assistant coach and then spent one year at Santa Monica Junior College in 2010 and another as an offensive technical intern at Colorado in 2011.

During the 2013 season with the Raiders, Smith helped tutor a defensive unit that included three new starters in veterans Nick Roach and Kevin Burnett and rookie Sio Moore. Roach recorded career highs in tackles (152) and sacks (5.5), playing every snap at middle linebacker, while Moore recorded 4.5 sacks in his first season and was named to the PFWA All-Rookie Team.

Smith was an offensive technical intern at Colorado in 2011. He coached at Santa Monica Junior College in 2010, assisting the tight ends and the defensive linemen. He also served as an undergraduate assistant coach at Cal Poly.

VERNON STEPHENS

Vernon Stephens joins the Silver and Black for his first season as the assistant strength and conditioning coach after spending six seasons (2007-12) with the San Diego Chargers in the same capacity.

During his time at San Diego, Stephens helped to oversee the team's year-round strength and conditioning program. He also spent time with the Jacksonville Jaguars during their offseason strength and conditioning program in 2002 and 2003.

Prior to working in the NFL, Stephens spent eight years in the collegiate ranks, including five years (1999-2003) as the head strength and conditioning coach at his alma mater, North Florida, and four years (2003-07) as the assistant strength and conditioning coach at Colorado.

Stephens began his coaching career at North Florida in 1999, starting the school's first NCAA strength and conditioning program. He served as head strength and conditioning coach for five years from 1999-2003, overseeing all 14 athletic programs, which encompassed approximately 230 student-athletes.

A native of Jacksonville, Fla., he and his wife, Tali, have two children.

TERRELL WILLIAMS

Now entering his third season as the defensive line coach for the Oakland Raiders, Terrell Williams previously spent 14 seasons coaching the defensive line at the collegiate level, four of which were at Purdue where he tutored several future NFL players.

In 2012, his first season with the Silver and Black, Williams tutored a veteran unit that included four players that posted three-or-more sacks on the year. During his coaching tenure at Akron, the Zips marked two firsts in program history when they won the Mid-American Conference championship game and played in the Motor City Bowl.

Williams got his first taste of the NFL in 1999 when he interned with the Jacksonville Jaguars, assisting the defensive line. He also assisted with the defensive line for the Dallas Cowboys in 2008 and with the Seattle Seahawks during training camp in 2007. Before his coaching career, Williams played nose guard at East Carolina University, helping the Pirates to a Liberty Bowl victory over Stanford in 1995 and finishing No. 23 in the final USA Today/ESPN poll.

A native of Los Angeles, Calif., he and his wife, Tifini, have two sons, Tahj and Tyson, who passed away in 2012.

JOE WOODS

Joe Woods is entering his 11th season as a defensive backs coach in the NFL and his first with the Silver and Black. Prior to joining the Raiders, Woods served as the defensive backs coach with the Minnesota Vikings for the past eight seasons (2006-13) and spent two seasons with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (2004-05).

In 2012, the Vikings secondary helped the team to wins in the final four games of the regular season to finish at 10-6 and earn a Wild Card playoff berth. During the 2012 season, Woods tutored rookie Harrison Smith who tied for the team lead with three interceptions, returning a pair of the picks for scores to tie the Vikings rookie record.

During his time with Tampa Bay, the defense posted top-five defenses each of his two seasons, leading the NFL in total defense in 2005 and ranking fifth in the NFL in total defense and first in pass defense in 2004.

Woods was a four-year letterman as a safety at Illinois state, served as captain as a senior and earned first-team All-Gateway Conference honors in 1991.

A native of North Vandergrift, Pa., he and his wife, Ellen, have two daughters, Brianna and Danari, and a son, Geno.

STANDING GROUND

The Raiders' revamped offensive line has excelled in pass protection, ranking among the best units in the league in that regard. Oakland has only allowed 12 sacks on the season, good for second in the NFL. Here is how the Raiders stack up against other offensive fronts so far in 2014:

SACKS ALLOWED IN 2014

Rank	Team	Sacks Allowed	Sack Yards
1.	Denver	11	84
2.	Oakland	12	70
3.	Cincinnati	13	77
4t.	Baltimore	14	114
4t.	New Orleans	13	73

CLEAN QB JERSEYS

In Week 2 (9/14 vs. Hou.) and Week 3 (9/21 at NE) of the 2014 season, the Raiders offensive line recorded clean sheets by not allowing a single sack in either game. That marks the second straight season, and the 10th time since team sacks became an official statistic in 1969, that the Raiders' line kept the quarterback upright in back-to-back games. The Raiders have also now allowed zero sacks in a contest four times so far in 2014. Here is a look at those streaks since 1990:

CONSECUTIVE GAMES NOT ALLOWING A SACK (SINCE 1990)

Consec. Games	Beginning	End	W/L
3	12/2/07 vs. Den.	12/16/07 vs. Ind.	1-2
2	9/14/14 vs. Hou.	9/21/14 at NE	0-2
2	11/24/13 vs. Ten.	11/28/13 at Dal.	0-2
2	12/24/11 at KC	1/1/12 vs. SD	1-1

2	12/16/90 vs. Cin.	12/22/90 at Min.	2-0

FOURTH DOWN SUCCESS

Fourth down in the NFL is a "do or die" situation for offenses, and Oakland's offense has been effective in those situations. The Raiders are the NFL's best when facing fourth down, extending drives at a 80.0 percent clip. Here is a look at how the Raiders stack up against the rest of the NFL:

FOURTH DOWN PERCENTAGE IN 2014

Rank	Team	Attempts	Conversions	Pct.
1.	Oakland	10	8	80.0
2.	Arizona	2	3	66.7
3t.	Carolina	8	5	62.5
3t.	Houston	8	5	62.5
4t.	Pittsburgh	8	5	62.5

PUNCHING IT IN

When the Raiders get down inside the opponent's 20-yard line, which they have done 16 times thus far in 2014, the offense has shown the ability to gain those crucial final yards and cross the goal line. The Raiders have scored touchdowns on 12-of-16 red zone possessions, good for first in the league with a 75.0 percent success rate. Here are the top five NFL teams in the red zone through Week 11:

RED ZONE TD PERCENTAGE IN 2014

Rank	Team	Possessions	Touchdowns	TD%
1.	Denver	31	24	77.4
2.	Oakland	16	12	75.0
3.	Kansas City	33	23	69.7
4.	Atlanta	24	16	66.7
5.	NY Giants	35	23	65.7
6.	New England	41	26	63.4

KEEPING 'EM OUT

While the offense has done their part in the red zone, Oakland's defense has performed well inside their own 20-yard line as well. The "D" is currently tied for seventh in the NFL in red zone defense, allowing touchdowns on only 50.0 percent of their opponents' red zone possessions. Here is a look at the NFL's top 10:

Rank	Team	Possessions	Touchdowns	TD%
1.	Jacksonville	36	15	41.7
2.	Kansas City	31	13	41.9
3.	Cleveland	29	13	44.8
4.	Green Bay	35	16	45.7
5.	Baltimore	32	15	46.9
6.	Detroit	27	13	48.1
7t.	Oakland	40	20	50.0
7t.	Houston	34	17	50.0
7t.	Miami	26	13	50.0
7t.	St. Louis	28	14	50.0

TEAM NOTES

STUFFING THE RUN

Since the Raiders returned to Oakland in 1995, the team has limited the opposition to less than two yards per carry in a game only 12 times, including three in 2013 and once so far in 2014. The 1.6 yards per carry allowed at Cleveland was the sixth time since 2012 that the Silver and Black have allowed an average of less than two yards per carry. Here is a look at the games:

Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards	Attempts	Avg.
12/16/12	Kansas City	10	10	1.0
10/26/14	at Cleveland	39	25	1.6
9/10/12	San Diego	32	20	1.6
9/15/13	Jacksonville	34	19	1.8
10/27/13	Pittsburgh	35	19	1.8
10/6/13	San Diego	36	19	1.9

WINNING WAYS

The Raiders are among the elite teams in the NFL, ranking among the top five from 1963-2014 in winning percentage of teams playing at least 500 games. The Raiders rank seventh with a .547 percentage since Al Davis was named head coach and general manager in 1963, trailing only the Dallas Cowboys, Miami Dolphins, Pittsburgh Steelers, Minnesota Vikings, San Francisco 49ers and Green Bay Packers.

NFL WINNING PERCENTAGE 1963-2014

Rank	Team	W	L	T	Pct.
1.	Dallas Cowboys	462	323	3	.589
2.	Pittsburgh Steelers	444	336	8	.569

6.	Green Bay Packers	425	349	14	.549
7.	Oakland Raiders	425	352	11	.547

ROAD WARRIORS

The Raiders are among the top-performing road teams in NFL history. The Silver and Black rank ninth since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with a .466 winning percentage in games away from home.

TOP ROAD RECORDS 1970-2014

Rank	Team	W	L	T	Pct.
1.	San Francisco 49ers	179	166	1	.519

WINNING MENTALITY

This past offseason, Raiders General Manager Reggie McKenzie was active in free agency and through trades. McKenzie acquired established, experienced veterans to bolster the roster and foster a winning culture in Oakland. Among the notable free agent signings are RB Maurice Jones-Drew, CB Tarell Brown, CB Carlos Rogers, DE LaMarr Woodley, G Kevin Boothe, G/T Austin Howard, T Donald Penn, WR James Jones, DE Justin Tuck, DL Antonio Smith and DL C.J. ## ADDING SACKS

After racking up 38 sacks a year ago, the Raiders went out and continued to improve their ability to get to the quarterback this offseason. Bringing in accomplished sack artists such as DE LaMarr Woodley, DE Justin Tuck and DL Antonio Smith, and drafting young pass rusher LB Khalil Mack, Oakland's pass rush looks to improve upon last year's total. Defensive coordinator Jason Tarver has some new weapons to rush the quarterback with and here is a look at some of their career sack stats:

FREE AGENT ADDITIONS

Player	Sacks	Sack Yards	Forced Fumbles
Antonio Smith	41.5	262.5	10
Justin Tuck	61.5	402.5	20
LaMarr Woodley	57.0	391.0	9
Totals	159.0	1,051.0	39

** No. 5 overall pick LB Khalil Mack totaled 28.5 sacks for 217.0 yards and 16 forced fumbles during his collegiate career at Buffalo.

SACKS & TURNOVERS

In their Week 1 contest at the New York Jets, the Raiders were able to force two turnovers (one S Charles Woodson interception and one CB TJ Carrie forced fumble/recovery). Oakland also racked up two sacks in the game, one coming when S Tyvon Branch registered a 19-yard sack of Geno Smith on third down, knocking the Jets out of field goal range. When LB Sio Moore caused a sack-fumble, it marked the first time since 2011 that Oakland had forced at least two fumbles and recorded at least two sacks in their season-opener. The Raiders forced three turnovers and posted five sacks in their win over the Broncos on Sept. 12, 2011. Here is a look at the two games:

Date/Opp.	Sacks	Forced Turnovers	Result
9/12/11 at Den.	5	3	W, 23-20
9/7/14 at NYJ	2	2	L, 14-19

UNDRAFTED GEMS

Every preseason, hundreds of undrafted free agents vie for a spot on their team's 53-man roster. The Raiders have brought in numerous players that were not drafted, developing them into significant contributors for the Silver and Black.

- In 2013, P Marquette King posted numbers among the NFL's best in both gross average and punting yards. With 4,107 punting yards on the year, King finished sixth in the NFL, and led the league in gross punting with an average of 48.9.

- QB Matt McGloin made his mark on the NFL in his rookie season, making his first career start on Nov. 17, 2013 at Houston. In that game, McGloin became the first undrafted rookie to throw for three-or-more touchdown passes in his first NFL start since 1987. He also became just the second quarterback to throw for three touchdowns without an interception in his first NFL start since the NFL-AFL merger in 1970.

- WR Andre Holmes, originally an undrafted free agent with the Minnesota Vikings in 2011, has two of the Raiders' top four single-game receiving totals over the last two seasons.

Below are some of the notable current Raiders who entered the NFL as undrafted free agents:

Player	School	Year	Team
LS Jon Condo	Maryland	2005	Dallas
WR Andre Holmes	Hillsdale	2011	Minnesota
G/T Austin Howard	Northern Iowa	2010	Philadelphia
P Marquette King	Fort Valley State	2012	Oakland
DE Benson Mayowa	Idaho	2013	Seattle
QB Matt McGloin	Penn State	2013	Oakland
FB/RB Jamize Olawale	North Texas	2012	Dallas
T Donald Penn	Utah State	2006	Minnesota
FB Marcel Reece	Washington	2008	Miami
S Brandian Ross	Youngstown State	2011	Green Bay
WR Kenbrell Thompkins	Cincinnati	2013	New England

MILES AND MILES

Factoring in three trips to the Eastern time zone and one trip to England for their game in London, the Raiders will travel more miles than any other team in the NFL this season. According to Pro Football Reference, Oakland travels 36,106 miles in 2014, almost 10,000 more miles than any other team. The team also has four trips of over 2,000 miles. Here is a look at the teams that travel the most in 2014:

Team	2014 Traveling Miles	2,000+ Mile Trips
Oakland Raiders	36,106	4
Seattle Seahawks	26,144	3
Dallas Cowboys	24,746	1
Miami Dolphins	24,546	1
Jacksonville Jaguars	22,230	2
San Diego Chargers	20,186	3
San Francisco 49ers	19,932	1
St. Louis Rams	17,850	0
Arizona Cardinals	17,728	1
Kansas City Chiefs	17,658	0

TOUGH TEST OUT WEST

This season, the AFC West and NFC West will be playing each other in the regular season for the first time since 2010. Combined, the two divisions had five playoff teams in 2013, and the Arizona Cardinals missed the post-season despite winning 10 games. Three of the NFL's "final four" teams from last year's postseason reside in their respective conference's Western division and both Super Bowl participants play in the West. Because of all this, the eight teams from these divisions have the eight hardest schedules in the league, based on their opponent's winning percentage last year. Here is a look at the teams with the 10 most difficult schedules:

Team	Opponents' 2013 Winning %
Oakland	.578
Denver	.570
St. Louis	.564
San Diego	.563
San Francisco	.563
Seattle	.561
Kansas City	.559
Arizona	.547
NY Jets	.520
New England	.516

RAIDERS MEDIA WEBSITE

The Oakland Raiders have introduced a media website, open to all members of the media, updated with content and publications from the Raiders media relations staff, including media guides, weekly releases, transcripts, post-game notes, flip cards and other information. In an effort to help media members with their coverage of the Raiders, the content will be updated on a daily basis. For any further questions, please contact a member of the Raiders media relations staff.

RAIDERS.COM

The Raiders were one of the first professional teams to go online in 1995, and since then, Raiders.com has grown into one of the top on-line destinations in sports. The site continues to provide exclusive video interviews, comprehensive photography, official press releases, transactions, player stats and biographies, profiles on current and former players and team personnel, press conference video and much more. The Raiders also use social media - Twitter, Facebook and Instagram - to communicate with and interact with the worldwide Raider Nation.

In 2014, the official website of the Oakland Raiders, RAIDERS.COM, will continue to use cutting edge technology to provide the Raider Nation with news, information, team history and entertainment, offering visitors an in-depth, state-of-the-art look at the Silver and Black.

RAIDERS EXCELLENCE

Each season, Raiders players vote on which teammate should receive the prestigious Commitment to Excellence Award, given to the Raider who best exemplifies hard work, leadership, and excellence on and off the field throughout the season. In 2013, FB Marcel Reece was presented with the award following a Pro Bowl season on the field, as well as impressive list of off-the-field work. It started as the Gorman Award in 1967 and was later renamed the Commitment to Excellence Award in 1983. Here is a look at the winners of the award since 1967:

A LEADER IN PICKS

S Charles Woodson, who posted nine interceptions when he won the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year award in 2009, is the NFL's active leader in interceptions. Woodson, in his 17th NFL campaign, has 58 interceptions, 15 more than DeAngelo Hall's 43. Woodson has five seasons with at least five picks in his Hall of Fame career.

ACTIVE INTERCEPTION LEADERS

Rank	Player	INTs
1.	S Charles Woodson (Oak.)	58
2.	CB DeAngelo Hall (Was.)	43
3t.	CB Terence Newman (Cin.)	36
3t.	CB Charles Tillman (Chi.)	36

LONG-TERM HAWK

Remarkably, S Charles Woodson has intercepted at least one pass in each of his first 17 NFL seasons. Woodson has joined an elite company of just one other player to intercept a pass in at least 17 consecutive seasons. He is now in sole possession of second place on this list, trailing only Hall of Famer Darrell Green. Woodson has four seasons of at least seven interceptions in his career.

WOODSON QUICK HITS

- Only two players in football history have ever won a Heisman Trophy, Associated Press Rookie of the Year, Associated Press Player of the Year and a Super Bowl in their career. Charles Woodson is one of them. The other? Former Raiders RB Marcus Allen.
- Since 1995, only four players have won both the Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year and Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year awards in their career - Raiders S Charles Woodson (1998 & 2009), Ravens OLB Terrell Suggs (2003 & 2011), former Bears LB Brian Urlacher (2000 & 2005) and Panthers LB Luke Kuechly (2012 & 2013).
- Woodson posted an interception touchdown in six straight seasons (2006-11), becoming the first player in NFL history to do so. No other NFL player has accomplished the feat in more than four consecutive seasons.
- In 2009, Woodson became the fourth player in NFL history (since sacks became an official statistic in 1982) to record at least nine interceptions and two sacks in a single season.
- Is the only player in NFL history to post at least seven interceptions and two sacks in back-to-back seasons.
- Became the first NFL player (since sacks became an official statistic in 1982) to record two interceptions, an interception touchdown, a sack and a fumble recovery in the same game when he posted all of those statistics on 11/26/09 at Det.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

S Charles Woodson made his first memorable moment in his second stint with the Raiders just five games into last season. Woodson was named the Week 5 AFC Defensive Player of the Week last season for his performance vs. the San Diego Chargers on Oct. 6. Woodson posted eight tackles (six solo), one interception and one fumble recovery, which he returned 25 yards for a touchdown in the victory. With the touchdown, Woodson tied the NFL's all-time record for defensive touchdowns with 13.

TAKING IT TO THE HOUSE

The only thing better than forcing a turnover is turning it into a touchdown, and S Charles Woodson has done that just as well as anybody in the history of the NFL. Woodson is one interception-touchdown away from tying Rod Woodson's all-time mark, and just one defensive touchdown away from setting the all-time mark. With every touchdown going forward, Woodson will be adding a new note to the NFL record books.

SACK ARTIST

In an effort to bolster the pass rush, Oakland signed proven pass rushers DE Justin Tuck and DE LaMarr Woodley this past offseason. Tuck, who owns 62.5 career sacks, joins the Raiders after nine seasons with the New York Giants. He helped the Giants win two Super Bowls during his tenure, while earning two trips to the Pro Bowl and two Associated Press All-Pro selections (one first team and one second team).

DOUBLE DIGIT SACKS

With 11.0 sacks in 2013, DE Justin Tuck recorded the fourth double-digit sack season of his career. The 11.0 sacks (9.5 of which came over the final six games) were the third highest total of his career. Here is a look at Tuck's season-by-season sack numbers, with the double-digit campaigns bolded:

SILVER AND MACK

The Raiders used their first-round selection and the No. 5 overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft to select LB Khalil Mack from the University of Buffalo. Mack joins Oakland following a stellar collegiate career, where he set numerous school records, including career sacks (28.5) and tackles for loss (75). He is also the NCAA's all-time leader with 16 forced fumbles. At Buffalo, he totaled 327 tackles (186 solo), 28.5 sacks, 16 forced fumbles, three fumble recoveries, four interceptions and 21 passes defended. He has earned a starting spot at linebacker as rookie, setting himself up for future success in the Silver and Black. Here is a look at his rookie numbers:

S"MAC" TALK

LB Khalil Mack's NFL career is still in its initial stages, but opposing coaches and players are already taking notice. Mack has made an impact on games as a run defender and pass rusher. Here are a few things players and coaches around the NFL have had to say about Mack:

"Khalil was definitely a guy that we thought was an instinctive player, an explosive player, a guy that we felt like his best football was ahead of him, because we felt like this is a guy that can really rush the passer and also probably drop into pass coverage, be a second-level defender. That's what we see on tape, he's a really good football player." - Texans Head Coach Bill O'Brien, Sept. 10, 2014

"No. 52 [Khalil Mack] is a phenomenal player. He's a great pass rusher, but he's really good in the run game. We knew it was going to be a challenge." - Cardinals QB Carson Palmer, Oct. 19, 2014

"He was a guy that was definitely highly rated on our board. We thought a lot of him coming out. And sometimes you don't necessarily get the sack production and people can be fooled by that. We look at the effectiveness of a rusher – how much they're affecting the quarterback. They might not be getting the finish, they might be causing production for somebody else." - Browns Head Coach Mike Pettine, Oct. 22, 2014

"Talking to the guys in the locker room, he gained the respect of everybody on our team. That guy 52, Khalil Mack, is one of the best players we've gone against this year and that's a unanimous decision in that locker room. He gained all of our respect, and we knew coming in he was going to be a tough player." - Browns QB Brian Hoyer, Oct. 26, 2014

"He's a rookie, but you wouldn't think that by the way he's been playing. When you look at him on film, he attacks the line and he's aggressive. He makes plays." - Browns RB Terrance West, Oct. 26, 2014

"I think he's really good. He jumps off the film. Every one of our coaches, when they break up and start looking at the Raiders and taking seriously what they're doing well, everybody comes back talking about him. He's almost unblockable and he's got a great motor. He's fast, he's tough, he's instinctive. We think he's an obvious factor." - Seahawks Head Coach Pete Carroll, Oct. 29, 2014

DURABLE "NINJA"

Since 2006, DL Antonio Smith has been among the most durable players in the NFL. Smith has missed just one regular season game since 2006, with that game missed coming via a suspension. Smith, who goes by the nickname "The Ninja," set career highs for sacks in 2011 and then again in 2012. Here is a look at his tackle and sack totals over his career:

'BACKER BURRIS

LB Miles Burris made his first career start at middle linebacker in Week 1 at the New York Jets this season, filling in for the injured LB Nick Roach. In the game, Burris tied a career high with 14 tackles. Burris has started every game since then at middle linebacker for the Silver and Black, providing stability as the defense's quarterback. Here is a look at Burris' 2014 campaign so far at middle linebacker:

ENERGETIC MOORE

LB Sio Moore, the Raiders' high-energy third-round selection in the 2013 NFL Draft, emerged onto the scene in his rookie season. Moore, who played in 15 games and started 11, and was named the NFL Pepsi Next Rookie of the Week for his eight-tackle, 1.5-sack performance on 10/27 vs. Pit. He was also named to the Pro Football Writer's Association's All-Rookie Team. Moore also started things off on the right foot in 2014, recording a team-high 15 tackles, one sack and one forced fumble in the team's Week 1 opener at the New York Jets. Here is a look at Moore's rookie season:

ROOKIE CONTRIBUTORS

The Raiders' 2014 Draft class has been thrown into the NFL fire right away, with numerous players making significant contributions. Not only are highly touted rookies LB Khalil Mack (first round) and QB Derek Carr (second round) making their impact felt, third rounder G Gabe Jackson, fourth rounder DT Justin "Jelly" Ellis and seventh rounder CB TJ Carrie are all contributing in significant ways.

G Gabe Jackson won the starting left guard job coming out of training camp and has started in eight games so far, helping a unit that is one of the best in the NFL at protecting the quarterback.

DT Justin Ellis has appeared in all 10 games, starting eight of them, and adding depth to the defensive line. Here are his season stats:

GP	GS	Total	Solo	Asst.	Sacks	Yds.	INTs	PD	FF

CB TJ Carrie has been asked to play a number of roles for the Silver and Black, playing cornerback in the team's nickel packages and serving as Oakland's primary punt and kickoff returner. As a punt returner, Carrie has totaled 155 return yards on 16 returns and 236 return yards on nine returns as a kick returner. Here are his defensive stats:

DJ AT CORNER

The Raiders' first-round selection (No. 12 overall) in the 2013 NFL Draft, CB DJ Hayden has come a long way. After suffering a life-threatening injury to his heart in November 2012, Hayden played a major role in Oakland's defensive makeover. In his rookie year, Hayden recorded 29 tackles and two PD. In the Week 5 win vs. San Diego, Hayden hauled in his first NFL interception, picking off Philip Rivers in the end zone to stop a potential Chargers scoring drive. His season was cut short due to a groin injury on Nov. 20, 2013.

After spending the first seven weeks on the PUP list to start the 2014 season after rehabbing from an offseason foot injury, Hayden returned to game action on Oct. 26, 2014 at Cleveland. In his first significant action of 2014, Hayden had four passes defended in the Raiders' match-up with the defending champion Seattle Seahawks. He also added his first interception of the season in Week 10 against the Broncos. Here is a look at his 2014 numbers:

LOCKDOWN BROWN

Coming across the Bay after seven seasons with the San Francisco 49ers, CB Tarell Brown brings a wealth of talent and experience to Oakland. Since becoming a full-time starter and mainstay at cornerback for the 49ers in 2011, Brown has appeared in 55 games with 52 starts, 193 tackles (155 solo), six interceptions, 51 passes defended and two fumble recoveries. Additionally, in eight postseason starts from 2011-13, Brown has posted 32 tackles (28 solo), two interceptions, seven passes defended, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery.

ALL-PRO ROGERS

Making the move to the East Bay from the 49ers as well this season is fellow CB Carlos Rogers. Originally a first-round pick by the Washington Redskins in 2005, Rogers will help solidify the secondary playing in the slot and outside cornerback positions. He spent three seasons in San Francisco, starting all 48 games during his tenure. He was named to the Pro Bowl and earned second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors in 2011.

DB SACKS

The Raiders have had many great defensive backs throughout their historic past, and Raiders safeties Tyvon Branch and Charles Woodson rank among them on the franchise's all-time sack list. Branch and Woodson rank tied for third and fifth, respectively, on Oakland's all-time sack list by defensive backs, and the Raiders are hoping they continue to move up in 2014. With one more sack, Woodson will become the first player since sacks became an official statistic in 1982 to record at least 50 interceptions and 20 sacks in a career. Here is a look at the Raiders' all-time sack list by DBs:

STARTING CARR

Rookie QB Derek Carr was named the Raiders' starting quarterback heading into Week 1 against the New York Jets, becoming the first rookie quarterback in franchise history to start in Week 1. Oakland's second-round pick of the 2014 NFL Draft was solid in his NFL debut, finishing the game 20-for-32 passing for 151 yards, two TDs and a passer rating of 94.7. Carr became the ninth Raider QB and second rookie to throw at least two TD passes in his debut. His 94.7 passer rating is the third highest for a Raider rookie in his first start and 12th among all Raiders starting QBs in their Silver and Black debut. Carr began his career nearly perfect, going 7-for-7 for 53 yards and one TD before throwing his first incompletion in the second quarter. He finished the first half 9-of-12 (75.0 percent).

In Week 2 vs. Houston, Carr rushed around the right edge for 41 yards, making it the second longest rush by a quarterback for the Raiders since 2000.

Carr began his career with a completion percentage of at least 60.0 in his first four games. In NFL history, only two other quarterbacks have accomplished the feat: Robert Griffin III (Was.) in 2012 and Rick Mirer (Sea.) in 1993.

Carr's 300-yard passing performance (328) on Oct. 26 at Cleveland was the first 300-yard passing game of his career and first ever by a Raider rookie.

HISTORICAL FEAT

QB Derek Carr vaulted himself into rare company following his 4 TD performance in Week 6 vs. San Diego. Carr posted eight TD passes in his first five games, which is the most ever by a rookie quarterback in the first five games of his career. Here is a look at where Carr's historical start to his career stacks up:

TD PASSES BY ROOKIE QBs (FIRST FIVE GAMES)

Rank	Player	Season	TD Passes
1.	Derek Carr	2014	8
2t.	Andrew Luck	2012	7
2t.	Cam Newton	2011	7
2t.	Geno Smith	2013	7

QB Derek Carr has been completing passes with the kind of pinpoint accuracy only seen a handful of times previously in league history. In his first four games, Carr completed 84-of-133 passes for a completion rate of 63.2 percent. Since 1960, that places Carr second among rookie quarterbacks with at least 100 passing attempts through their first four games. Here is a look:

HIGHEST COMP. % BY ROOKIE QB THROUGH FIRST 4 GAMES (MIN. 100 ATT.)

Rank	Player	Year	Cmp. %

THE LEAD BACK

Since 2012, FB Marcel Reece has totaled 1,434 yards (512 rushing, 922 receiving) of offense. The two-time Pro Bowler has become a dynamic weapon in the Raiders' offense since joining the team in 2009, and his 1,434 total yards over the last three seasons are the most among primary fullbacks in the league. Here is a look at the chart:

FULLBACK TOTAL YARDS 2012-14

Rank	Player	Total Yards	Rush Yards	Rec. Yards	TDs

2.	Mike Tolbert	1,065	554	511	14
3.	Chris Ogbonnaya	850	320	530	3
4.	Bruce Miller	409	36	373	0

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Since 2009, FB Marcel Reece has been lethal out of the backfield when it comes to picking up big yards through the air. Reece, who is tied for the lead in the NFL during this time in average yards per reception among active RBs and FBs, averages 10.1 yards per catch.

RECEIVING AVERAGE LEADERS AMONG RBs/FBs (SINCE 2009)

Rank	Player	Avg.	Rec.	Yds.

4.	Danny Woodhead	9.4	181	1,708
5.	Darren Sproles	9.1	359	3,278

TOUCHDOWN MACHINE

San Jose-native WR James Jones joined the Raiders this past offseason, and since 2012, Jones has totaled 20 touchdown receptions, which is good for tied for 12th in the league over that time span. In 2012, Jones led the NFL in touchdown catches, posting 14. He got off to a quick start with Oakland in 2014, recording a touchdown reception in each of the first two games this year. Here is a look at where Jones ranks:

RECEIVING TDS (SINCE 2012)

12t.	Antonio Gates	20	1,887
12t.	Calvin Johnson	20	3,976

- Jones caught at least five touchdown passes in four consecutive seasons (2009-12).

RAIDERS RUSHING HISTORY

With 393 rushing yards in 2014, RB Darren McFadden continues to climb up the Raiders' all-time rushing list. Approaching the likes of Pete Banaszak and Marv Hubbard, "D-Mac" has a chance to leave his mark on the franchise's record book. McFadden moved into sixth place in 2013 and is not far off of the top five.

Raiders losing streak reaches 16

By Jerry McDonald

November 16, 2014

The maddening yin and yang of a lost season was in evidence Sunday as the Raiders played their best defensive game of the season but couldn't produce on offense in a 13-6 loss to the San Diego Chargers at Qualcomm Stadium.

The rematch was the reverse of the Oct. 12 meeting in Oakland, when the Raiders couldn't stop quarterback Philip Rivers and wasted a season-high four touchdowns in a 31-28 defeat.

This time, the Raiders (0-10) gave up only one touchdown, and it was set up on the first offensive snap of the game. With Derek Carr in a shotgun snap and stepping forward to survey the defense, Stefen Wisniewski snapped the ball. It bounced off Carr's hand, and San Diego linebacker Donald Butler recovered.

Two plays later, Rivers dropped back and threw a 22-yard strike to Malcom Floyd. The game was 53 seconds old, and neither team would score a touchdown the rest of the way.

"I went up to change the play and it just happened," Carr said.

"It was a miscommunication, and it shouldn't have happened," Wisniewski said. "If we don't turn over that ball early, maybe we're not even down because of how well (the defense) played."

For the remainder of the game, all the Chargers managed were field goals of 23 and 52 yards by Nick Novak as the Raiders kept Rivers and Co. at bay before 66,720 fans.

It was the lowest point total surrendered by the Raiders at any point during what is now a 16-game losing streak dating to last season, trailing only a 19-game losing streak in 1961-62 for the longest streak of futility in franchise history.

The Raiders, who were giving up third-down conversions at a record pace a few weeks back, held the Chargers to 4 of 15. San Diego had 300 yards of total offense and averaged just 4.4 yards per play, the second-best totals posted by the Raiders defense this season.

"I thought we played great all game," defensive end Justin Tuck said. "Our fight was there all game. The offense did not quit, it just didn't go their way today."

The Raiders finished with six three-and-outs on offense and gained only 233 yards. Carr was 16 of 34 for 172 yards, and the Raiders rushed for 71 yards on 19 carries -- two of them coming on back-to-back runs by Latavius Murray for 37 yards in the third quarter.

The only points came on field goals of 42 and 25 yards by Sebastian Janikowski and were set up by big plays, a 33-yard Carr-to-Mychal Rivera pass in the first quarter and a 35-yard pass from Carr to Kenbrell Thompkins in the fourth quarter.

By game's end, the Raiders had nine first downs, one fewer than their previous low the week before against Denver.

"We put ourselves in a bad position on the first play of the game," interim coach Tony Sparano said. "On offense, we just weren't able to string drives together."

The loss came one day before the anniversary of the Raiders' last win -- a 28-23 victory over the Houston Texans last Nov. 17. The Raiders have lost eight road games in a row and seven consecutively to AFC West teams.

San Diego, coming off a bye, improved to 6-4 and snapped a three-game losing streak, with its last win coming Oct. 12 in Oakland.

After Janikowski's second field goal, the Raiders were in need of a big defensive play and nearly got it. On third-and-3 at the San Diego 40, Rivers threw to his right toward Antonio Gates.

Free safety Charles Woodson had a line on the ball, but it somehow slipped through his hands and to Gates for a 15-yard completion. It gave the Chargers a fresh series of downs, and by the time the Raiders got the ball back at their own 12, only 1:05 remained.

The game ended on a deep incompleteness from Carr to James Jones from the Oakland 41-yard line.

Woodson, who finished with a game-high 14 tackles, had flashbacks to the previous week's missed tackle of C.J. Anderson that went for a 51-yard touchdown on a screen pass to permanently give Denver momentum.

"I should have made the tackle," Woodson said. "Today was a situation where I don't know how many times I've caught balls like that. For it to slip out of my hands, where we could have gotten the ball back or maybe I get some yards after the catch, that kills me. I had an opportunity and I failed the team. And that's kind of the way this season has gone."

Raiders' offense struggles in loss to Chargers

By Vic Tafur

November 16, 2014

The fans at Qualcomm Stadium knew they probably weren't going to see a great game, with the Raiders coming into Sunday 0-9 and the Chargers having lost three straight.

But the fans had no idea that they could have gone home after only 53 seconds. That's when San Diego scored a touchdown following Derek Carr's fumble on Oakland's first play.

Both offenses were brutal, with each managing two field goals the rest of the way in a 13-6 Chargers win. The loss is the Raiders 16th straight dating to last season; Monday marks the one-year anniversary of their last win.

Oakland cut the margin to seven with 4:06 left, but San Diego was able to run out most of the clock. The Raiders did get the ball back with 1:05 to go and Carr threw a 28-yard pass to James Jones to get 59 yards from the end zone with 11 seconds left.

But his Hail Mary on the next play hit the turf, and Oakland was officially eliminated from the playoff race.

The Raiders' defense does deserve some credit for stopping the Chargers, as Oakland's defensive line has continued its improved play of the past month. First-round pick Khalil Mack got his first sack of the season after numerous close calls and muggings by offensive linemen.

But the story of the day was the offense. And how offensive it was.

Interim head coach Tony Sparano might have to consider going to backup Matt Schaub at some point.

Carr wasn't ready for center Stefen Wisniewski's snap when he fumbled on the first play of the game, and the ball bounced off the quarterback's stomach. Two plays later, Philip Rivers hit Malcom Floyd with a 22-yard touchdown pass. Rookie cornerback TJ Carrie turned the wrong way and couldn't react when Rivers threw it high for Floyd.

Oakland could not answer that score.

On one play, guard Khalif Barnes got in the way and deflected a shovel pass to Darren McFadden. Receivers ran into each other on one route. Andre Holmes and McFadden were called for offensive pass interference on back-to-back plays.

There were some nice punts.

Barnes extension: Before the game, the Raiders signed Barnes to a one-year extension. Barnes started the season at right tackle but has moved over, subbing for injured left guard Gabe Jackson on Sunday.

The deal has a maximum value of $2 million, with a $970,000 base salary and the rest coming in bonuses and incentives.

Barnes, 32, signed with the Raiders as a free agent in 2009, and has come back each season since then on one-year deals. He has started 109 of 130 games played.

Instant Replay: Raiders topped by Chargers, fall to 0-10

By Scott Bair

November 16, 2014

The San Diego Chargers kicked a third quarter field goal to establish a 10-point lead. Might as well have been a 100.

The Raiders offense was that bad. The Raiders' attack couldn't do much of anything in a 13-6 loss to the Chargers on Sunday afternoon at Qualcomm Stadium, though a late fourth-quarter surge produced some drama. It was an effort made in vain, as the Raiders dropped to 0-10 this season.

It also marked the team's 16th straight loss, a full season's worth of sorrow spread out over two campaigns. The Raiders' last victory came on Nov. 17, 2013, meaning it'll be more than a year between victories.

That's a wide gap for a long-suffering fan base desperate for anything positive.

The Raiders offense floundered in a tough game to watch. They went 3-and-out with shocking regularity. The running game struggled, receivers failed to get consistent separation and quarterback Derek Carr looked out of sync. You could call that business as usual these days, but Sunday was somehow worse.

It also wasted possibly the team's best defensive effort this season. The Raiders were generally strong on third down, stout on interior runs, and created enough pressure to disrupt Philip Rivers' rhythm.

Antonio Smith and Charles Woodson were particularly effective. DJ Hayden was no slouch. Khalil Mack finally got his first sack.

The Raiders' only touchdown allowed came after Carr fumbled a snap he wasn't ready to receive. The Chargers scored a touchdown two plays later, but scored only field goals after that.

The offense showed some late life, per their custom. The Raiders first reached the red zone with a 35-yard reception by Kenbrell Thompson, which set up a Sebastian Janikowski field goal to make it 13-6.

The Chargers extended the ensuing drive long enough to eliminate a comeback attempt. The biggest play came on 3rd-and-2 with tight end Antonio Gates securing a first-down catch that Woodson nearly intercepted.

False start: The Raiders screwed up the game's first play. Quarterback Derek Carr tried to delay the snap to account for a late blitz, but center Stefen Wisniewski didn't get the message. He snapped the ball when Carr was approaching the line to call new signals. He clanked off Carr's hand and the Chargers recovered.

Rivers threw a 22-yard pass to Malcolm Floyd two plays later to put the Raiders in an early hole.

Three-and-out too often: The Raiders offense struggled yet again against the Chargers, with dismal showings in the first half especially. They went 3-and-out four times and had a turnover in the first half alone, when they amassed 90 yards and three first downs.

It didn't get much better in the second half. The Raiders had six 3-and-outs on the day.

Field position troubles: Chargers punter Mike Scifres put the Raiders in a bad spot all game long. The Raiders started inside their own 10-yard line four times, a real detriment to an offense sputtering to produce. Scifres also pinned the Raiders back to their own 12-yard line with a minute to go and the game on the line.

Murray sighting: Raiders running back Latavius Murray didn't get many opportunities to play through nine games. He got a few carries in the third quarter that sparked a moribund offense. He ran for 14 yards and then 23, the team's first 20-plus run by a running back this season.

All told, Murray had four carries for 43 yards. That was better than Darren McFadden and Maurice Jones-Drew combined, who had 12 rushes for 27 yards between them.

Sitting it out: The Raiders were happy to include cornerback TJ Carrie and defensive end Justin Tuck in the lineup.

They didn't have the services of quarterback Matt McGloin, cornerback Carlos Rogers, safety Jonathan Dowling, receiver Vincent Brown, guard Gabe Jackson, tight end David Ausberry and guard Tony Bergstrom, who were ruled inactive before Sunday's game.

What's next: The Raiders have no time to rest this week. They play the Kansas City Chiefs at home on Thursday night. The Chiefs are on a roll. They've won five straight, including a 24-20 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

Raiders' losing streak reaches 16 with 13-6 defeat

By Bernie Wilson

November 16, 2014

When the sun rises Monday, it will have been a year since the Oakland Raiders won a game.

The Raiders lost their 16th straight overall — the equivalent of a full season — when they were defeated 13-6 by the lackluster San Diego Chargers on Sunday.

Although Oakland's defense played decently against Philip Rivers and the Chargers offense, there still wasn't much to say.

"We did not get the win. It's all bad," safety Charles Woodson said.

Rivers threw a 22-yard touchdown pass to Malcom Floyd on the game's third play from scrimmage, and the Chargers held on to snap their three-game losing streak.

Oakland fell to 0-10. Monday is the one-year anniversary of its last win, 28-23 at Houston.

"It's tough, man," Woodson said. "It's hard. It's been a long time since this team has felt a victory. We are all feeling it. You try to keep a positive attitude and keep a smile on your face to keep from crying. It's the nature of the business. We are not the first team to be going through this, and we will find a way to get out of it somehow."

The Raiders had pulled within seven points late in the game when the Chargers came up with a huge play on third-and-3, with tight end Antonio Gates tipping a pass to himself between safeties Woodson and Brandian Ross for a 15-yard gain to the Oakland 45.

Woodson was in position to break it up or intercept it.

"That's a play I should have made," Woodson said. "I felt I let the team down. I don't know how many times I caught balls like that. ... That's how the season's going. It's been that close a lot of times."

A desperation pass by Raiders rookie Derek Carr fell incomplete short of the end zone as time expired.

Carr was 16 of 34 for 172 yards.

"Obviously there is a lot of anger," Carr said. "Obviously there is a lot of disappointment. But no one's giving up; no one is going to give up."

Rivers hurt his right leg midway through the third quarter but stayed in the game. Rivers also had the wind knocked out of him and was walking gingerly on the sideline in the fourth as backup Kellen Clemens warmed up.

Rivers went back in after Sebastian Janikowski kicked a 25-yard field goal to pull the Raiders within a touchdown with four minutes to play.

The Chargers (6-4) welcomed back Ryan Mathews, Manti Te'o and Melvin Ingram, who had been out since September.

Rivers was hurt after a 28-yard completion to Floyd was negated by a holding call against left tackle King Dunlap. The Chargers had to settle for Nick Novak's 52-yard field goal that made it 13-3.

Oakland got to the San Diego 7 with 4:10 left, but the drive stalled and Janikowski kicked his 25-yarder.

The Chargers were coming off their bye, which was preceded by a 37-0 loss at Miami on Nov. 2, their worst in 18 seasons.

Carr fumbled on the game's first play from scrimmage when he mishandled a shotgun snap, and San Diego linebacker Donald Butler recovered at the 22. Two plays later, Floyd leaped to catch a touchdown pass over T.J. Carrie.

Carr almost led the Raiders to an upset of the Chargers on Oct. 12 but was intercepted with 1:13 to play to preserve San Diego's 31-28 victory.

The Raiders crossed the 50-yard line only twice Sunday. They got to the San Diego 23 on their third drive before settling for Janikowski's 42-yard field goal.

DEREK CARR

ESPN THE MAGAZINE

Sins of the Brother

By Seth Wickersham

May 1, 2014

ON THE DAY his big brother's career as an NFL starter ended, Derek Carr threw the ball with David on a high school field outside of Houston. The Texans had just released the elder Carr, five years after making him the first pick in the 2002 draft. David needed to clear his head on this March afternoon, so he grabbed his youngest brother, and they went out to play catch. Derek was 15 years old and a star quarterback at Sugar Land's Clements High, and even then he burned to finish what his brother had started. He would choose to play at Fresno State, just like his brother. He would become a devout Christian and marry young, like his brother. By the end of his senior season, he would rack up similar passing numbers and begin to seduce NFL scouts with the same quick release that had sold them on his brother more than a decade earlier. In fact, teams might now consider Derek Carr the top quarterback in this year's draft, if not for one unshakable liability.

His brother.

ON ANOTHER WINDY March afternoon, seven years later, David and Derek are once again throwing the ball on a high school field. The stakes have changed. David, 34, has been out of the NFL since last August, when the Giants became the fourth team to release him. Derek, 23, is perhaps the most intriguing quarterback in the draft, often mentioned as a sleeper alternative to Johnny Manziel, Teddy Bridgewater and Blake Bortles. Derek is wearing a Fresno State hoodie and a pair of hideous silver, blue and fluorescent green and yellow cleats that he received at the combine. "I told him he has to get his entire suit for the draft that color," David says.

There are no yard lines on the field at Bakersfield Christian High in central California, where Derek spent his senior year after the family returned home following David's release. The Carr boys guesstimate 10 yards and begin to warm up. Both are tall and strong, and most of their combine numbers are indistinguishable -- David ran a 4.67 40-yard dash in 2002; Derek ran a 4.69 in February. Both have that beautiful lashing throwing motion, almost too fast to track. A lifetime of catch has synced their habits. "We're like an old married couple," David says.

A player who is a near duplicate of a former consensus No. 1 pick would ordinarily have an advantage on draft day. But GMs face a rare conundrum in this case, unsure of how to grapple with scouting reports on Derek. On one hand, his 50 touchdown passes and only eight interceptions last season suggests that he has all the tools to be a franchise quarterback; Browns coach Mike Pettine calls him the "best natural thrower in the draft." But then there are the issues: Below-average poise and toughness within the pocket; will anticipate pressure and look to protect his frame instead of sitting in and delivering the ball.

It's a valid rap. It's also arguably a fixable one. And given Carr's talent, it seems strange that pocket-pressure worries might drop him out of the first round. The problem is that his scouting report echoes what teams said about David -- after it became clear that his career was a bust. "It's an issue," says one NFC scout. "If their makeup is the same, then there is concern."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That's why Derek is grateful that someone is entirely committed to ensuring that his NFL career will not end up like David's.

That someone is his brother.

THE ONLY FAMILY that's produced as many gifted throwers as the Carrs is the Mannings, which is fitting because the only precedent for the beating that David Carr suffered in Texas is what Archie Manning endured in New Orleans. Surrounded by expansion-draft castoffs, David absorbed 249 sacks in his first five years. He never complained, even to family. But as years of hits set in, David began to look at the rush before he looked downfield, a quarterback's death spiral. "You try to rack your brain and ask, 'Why?'" he says now when asked about his career. "It was God's plan."

By 2007, David was considered such damaged goods that the Texans had no choice but to release him. After a season in Carolina, he had two stints with the Giants, playing behind Eli Manning. The first time David met Archie, the patriarch of football royalty gave him a hug and said, "I know what you went through, man."

"I'm glad to see you're walking," David responded.

David's time in New York provided a crash course on how an elite quarterback prepares. He watched Eli take ownership of the offense as if he were a coach, working late on Mondays and Tuesdays, most players' days off. He watched how game-planning sessions unfolded under quarterbacks coach Mike Sullivan, where questions flew and debates raged. It was everything David had been missing, and he realized that not knowing how to study had stunted his growth as much as leaky offensive lines did. Had he learned early on how to prepare, he says, "it would have been beneficial not only to myself but to the guys around me. Then you take more of an ownership of the team, and you're not just another guy in the locker room. You're a coach on the field. And that makes you a better player."

By the time he learned, it was too late. David wasn't signed after the Giants released him last August. Late in the season, he received an offer to be a backup -- at the exact moment he was at the doctor's office, where he learned that his 2-year-old daughter, Grace, had juvenile diabetes. He decided to be a dad, seemingly at peace with ending his career after 11 years, 65 touchdown passes, 71 interceptions and a 23-56 record as a starter. He spent fall weekends driving 110 familiar miles from Bakersfield to Fresno and watched from the sideline as Derek set 27 school records, breaking many of his own. He stayed up late with Derek after games, breaking down film. And when he began to hear the knocks on his brother -- the reports that ranked the quarterback with "the quickest release in the draft," in the words of one scout, as merely the fifth or sixth best at his position -- it became clear that Derek was paying for David's career.

After that, Derek's draft became David's cause. Derek moved into David's house in Bakersfield. David hired Sullivan, out of work after being let go by the Bucs, to coach his brother through the process. Driven by pride and regret and love, he put Derek in a cocoon -- lifting in the morning, throwing in the afternoon, film study at night. "If I had to take some bumps so he doesn't have to," David says, "so be it."

A FEW HOURS after the brothers' throwing session, David and Sullivan -- everyone calls him Sully -- sit at a Bakersfield Chipotle, going over the plan for tomorrow's practice, the first run-through of Derek's pro day. Usually, a college strength coach runs a pro day, but David asked Sully to plan Derek's, betting that an NFL mind will ensure that no GM leaves with questions. Each weeknight, Sullivan breaks down video with Derek, often until midnight. Sully provided Derek with a four-page work sheet to complete, the same one Eli uses. The questions -- Is the corner midpoint? Which safety is more aggressive? -- are intended to teach Derek how to watch film. David's role is almost that of a parent, a provider and protector who appreciates the instruction in a way his brother can't, all while wondering what if. "I never had any of this," he says.

While his coach and brother work, Derek sits at the other end of the table, telling funny stories about coaching David's 9-year-old son, Cooper, in flag football. (Yes, Cooper is a quarterback.) As affable as his brother is hardened, Derek carries himself with an easy command reminiscent of Tom Brady and Russell Wilson, as if doubt is a foreign concept. He's been riding a wave of underground buzz that began at the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

College all-star games are usually sand traps for quarterbacks, who are forced to spend all week throwing to unfamiliar receivers. But before the Senior Bowl on Jan. 25, the Carrs hatched an idea: Practice for the practice by gathering two of the receivers in New Orleans the week prior. It was the sort of tip Derek could receive only from someone who had been through it before, and it was a natural fit with the workaholic instincts that led him to arrive for film study at 6:30 a.m. many mornings last season. Derek was sharp in Mobile, and suddenly scouts began to argue that he was the draft's top quarterback: more mature than Manziel, stronger than Bridgewater, more consistent in his delivery than Bortles. Still, that one issue continued to dog him. "The problem," one NFC exec says, "is his genetics."

Of course, Derek considers it an honor to be compared with his brother. David is one of the most famous athletes to make it out of Bakersfield, one of those dust towns that seem to be surrounded by invisible walls. Yet David's pain has always been Derek's. As a kid, Derek would cry after his brother's losses and would join him in the film room to correct mistakes. He admires the way David was always "the same person" whether he was cheered or booed. "His career was not successful in the world's eyes," Derek says. "But to the people we listen to and respect, it was the most successful thing ever."

Derek has traced his brother's path consciously, as if to prove it wasn't the problem. He graduated high school early to get a jump at Fresno State. After partying too hard as a freshman, he rededicated his life to football and faith and was named the starter as a redshirt sophomore. He soon learned that he would be measured against his brother's real and perceived failures. In camp before his junior season, Derek suffered a sports hernia and hairline fracture in his pelvic bone. The coaches told him to avoid hits at all costs. So he unloaded at the first sign of pressure, often off his back foot. Derek still racked up 37 touchdowns against just seven interceptions -- the definition of toughness that scouts claim to crave. But some teams couldn't shake that familiar, familial skittishness in the pocket. "He took some undue criticism," says Fresno State coach Tim DeRuyter. "It was painful, and he never said a word."

And he internalized it all. During informal workouts before his senior year, Derek asked teammates to hit him after he threw. He never told the coaches. A few months later, against Boise State, Derek took a shot in the face as he released. The pass was caught. "The one question they had on me?" Derek says, leaning back at Chipotle and spreading his arms wide. "I answered it."

So he hopes. Until draft day, nobody truly knows how much the specter of David will affect Derek. Scouts swear that they evaluate each prospect on his own merit, but so much of quarterback evaluation is based on gut. So far, it's clear that -- unlike, say, Eli Manning -- Derek isn't getting the benefit of the doubt. At the combine, GMs and coaches asked Derek the ways in which he's similar to his brother. "We're both tough," Derek said. "And we believe that we can throw with anyone." They asked the ways in which he's not. "He's more quiet. I'll walk into a room and get to know eight people."

One coach asked, "What did you think of David's offensive lines in Houston?" Sensing a trap, Derek smiled. "They're all great guys."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

The coach chuckled, then tried again: "I didn't think they were very good."

Derek wouldn't bite. "That's your opinion," he said, and they laughed.

---

ALL OF THE questions carry the same message: Prove that we won't be burned twice. It has forced Derek to walk a line between self-preservation and loyalty. He makes it clear that "I'm not trying to be David -- I'm trying to be the very best Derek Carr I can be," and he adds that he patterns his game after Peyton Manning's. But Derek has always been haunted by the question that haunts his brother: What really happened in Houston? He wanted to learn for himself. Without telling anyone, he watched video of some of David's NFL games, analyzing them as a quarterback, not a brother. He saw a career killed in the crib, a victim of historically bad circumstances. "Man, can you get him some help?" Derek says. "I can promise you it wasn't No. 8's fault."

No. 8, of course, has tried to convince everyone that he has no regrets about his career, that he could be happy to live vicariously through Derek. But not even the most bruised quarterback of his era ever fully loses the itch to play. Working with Derek the past few months -- watching his younger brother benefit from his pain -- has "rekindled a little juice," David says. He has a career's worth of wisdom and is in the best shape of his life, an ideal backup. In February, David began to believe that maybe, just maybe, he could not only redeem his career through his brother but perhaps revive it. "Being out here and training and going through this process has shown me that I want to play, absolutely," David says.

---

THAT LEADS BOTH brothers to a Bakersfield gym on a March morning, carrying a sort of kinetic energy: We're gonna pull this off. Their agent has casually pitched them to teams as a package deal, even offering to stage a workout for David on Derek's pro day. David passed on that, not wanting to be a distraction. But he's motivated by the hope of one last chance, and he bolts into the gym in a sleeveless tee, ready to roll. A sleepy Derek is behind him, hoodie pulled over his face.

"How do you feel?" asks Eric Mahanke, their trainer.

"Like a million bucks!" David says.

They lie on foam rollers, ironing out soreness. Framed pictures of David's college and pro games surround them. David leans over to mess with his brother, whose legs ache. "Argh, not my quads," Derek says. "If you press them, I'll cry."

A Carr workout is not for everyone. They sometimes push David's 4x4 through the parking lot. They take pride in being tough after years of being accused otherwise. The other day, they heard commentators lament Derek's lack of pocket tolerance, so Derek downloaded a few plays of his getting leveled and hitting the pass, just to remind himself. "We laughed," Derek says, even if both of them knew that it wasn't really funny.

Back at the gym, Derek and David joke about splitting reps in this afternoon's practice. "If you pull one of those vet moves -- You throw, I'm too sore -- we'll fight," Derek says.

"I'll take the reps so that I can be the starter," David says, deadly serious. Then he shakes his head and smiles. "See, Derek's not ready."

A FEW HOURS later, they line up opposite each other on a high school field yet again. It's blustery. David brought his favorite ball, worn and molded at the laces to fit his grip. Derek has a few different footballs and doesn't care which one they use. Scouts would consider that a plus. As he throws, David looks to the sideline and smiles. "The Cobra has arrived!"

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

The Cobra is their father, Rodger, a fit and tan 61-year-old. He taught the boys how to throw, using Dan Marino as a template. He's running routes today, his usual role. Both of Rodger's thumbs are jacked up after years of fielding bullets. David is responsible for the left; Derek for the right. To catch, Rodger raises his forearm to absorb the blow, which earned him his nickname. The inside of his arm is black and blue. Sometimes it goes numb.

Sullivan asks the brothers to practice shuffling over bags and then firing to Rodger, about 20 yards away. David goes first. He is smooth and polished, his throws quick and hard. A season off has brought him a greater appreciation for a simple drill that he took for granted years ago, a palpable urgency. Derek is slower over the bags, but his release is higher than David's, his passes more catchable. "Nice!" Sully says to Derek. "Nice throw!"

Next is a blitz drill, in which they throw as fast as possible under duress. Nobody mentions the obvious: This is the Carr drill. David goes first again. Out here, on air, he is decisive and smooth and accurate. Derek is rougher -- "I'm heavy metal; he's jazz," he says -- but his arm is lively, too much on one throw for Rodger to catch. "Cobra!" David says, smiling. "Come on!"

Moments later they all stand at midfield, going over the plan for pro day. David is in coach mode, thinking through every worst-case scenario. Derek is not as worried, and there's an ineffable tension between David's desire to control the future and Derek's willingness to overcome the unknowable. After David mentions a concern about what to do if some of Derek's receivers are hurt on pro day, Derek says half-mockingly, "That's like going into a game and saying, 'What if everyone gets injured?'"

"You've got to be ready," David says with an edge in his voice, "because you'll get one shot."

Most legendary quarterbacks share one very specific trait: They not only collect scars, they learn from them. Derek has collected David's scars. That he seems to have accepted and grown from that inheritance is the immeasurable quality that, if years from now he is a success, scouts will lament that they missed. On the field, both brothers are swaying back and forth, itching to throw. Sullivan explains the final route of Derek's pro day, a deep corner. "And that's all she wrote," he says. "That's a full and sufficient workout." "That's how I want it," Derek says, sounding confident.

Now it's time for a run-through. The first pass is a simple slant. David steps up eagerly. Back in 2002, he threw it better than anyone. But before David can fire, he catches himself. Suddenly it seems to hit him that it would be best if he stepped aside. "I can get my throws in anytime," he says, turning away. David kneels to snap the ball to his brother, who fills the void by throwing perfect spirals into the wind.

Raiders rookie Derek Carr has faced bigger tests

By Daniel Brown

September 6, 2014

BAKERSFIELD -- Derek Carr, who Sunday will become the first rookie quarterback to start a season for the Raiders, owes so much of his football philosophy to Gotham City that he used to wear a Batman shirt underneath his jersey.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

His general philosophy is to be Bruce Wayne -- boring, methodical, buttoned-up. But a few times a game, when the Bat-Signal goes up, he'll throw on his cape and try to do something super.

Carr, 23, can be that way in real life, too.

There was that night last year in the neonatal intensive care unit, when Carr's newborn son was critically ill and his wife was on the verge of a breakdown. That was definitely a cape moment.

Dallas Mason Carr was born at 3:32 p.m. on Aug. 5, 2013, to Derek and his wife, Heather. They met as students at Fresno State, and when the quarterback decided to stay for his senior season rather than enter the NFL draft, they decided to get married and start a family.

On the day Dallas arrived, they were over the moon. But in the wee hours that night, Derek called his mom from the Clovis Community Hospital in a panic. The baby kept throwing up.

"That's OK, babies do that," Sheryl Carr assured him.

"No, mom, this is different. This is green. Something is not normal."

"Call me back if he doesn't stop and go see what the doctor says."

When the phone rang again at 2 a.m., Sheryl didn't need to pick up to know the situation was dire. "I answer the phone and he's just bawling," she recalled. Sheryl and her husband, Rodger, ran out of the house, hopped in the car and headed for the hospital.

Doctors and nurses had discovered that Dallas' intestines were twisted, cutting off the baby's blood flow. Intestinal malrotation, as it is called, requires surgery -- and the baby was being whisked by ambulance from Clovis to Children's Hospital Central California in Madera. One doctor told Derek that his son might not make it.

'WHO IS THAT MAN?'

Sheryl recounted this story Thursday in the kitchen of the family home in Bakersfield. With her Rodger at her side, most of this two-hour visit was filled with rollicking tales about raising three boys, two of whom grew up to be NFL quarterbacks.

But Sheryl tells this story to explain Derek's strength and maturity. More than once, she wipes away tears.

The first surgery didn't fix Dallas' problem, and the baby was barely into the recovery room when he was summoned back for a second operation. Sheryl was watching the scene unfold when doctors came to take the newborn away from Heather -- for the second time.

"She's in a wheelchair. She's kind of in shock. She just had a baby. And when the doctor says we have to do more surgery, she says, 'I don't understand.' She starts panicking," Sheryl said.

Her voice catches. There's a pause.

"I was getting ready to console them. You'd think that a young man who has never had a child, at that moment of critical terror, would just fall apart. You're there to catch them.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"But Derek just grabbed Heather by the arms and said, 'We're going to go talk to the doctor and we're going to do what he says. Stop crying. He's our baby and we're going to take care of him. It's going to be all right.' And off they went.

"I was like, 'Who is that man?'"

Dallas Carr would require a third surgery, one that lasted more than five hours, but the kid ultimately pulled off his first comeback. The family recently celebrated his first birthday. His weight is in the 90th percentile for his age. The only hint that anything was ever wrong is the rapidly fading scar under his belly button.

ROOKIE TESTED QUICKLY

The ordeal helps explain Carr's response this week when reporters asked him about the pressure of starting in New York. The second-round pick is the only NFL rookie passer scheduled to start in Week 1.

It's a shocking ascension for a player taken in the second round, 36th overall. He was supposed to serve an apprenticeship behind veteran Matt Schaub, who came with a $4.5 million fully guaranteed salary and a $3.5 million signing bonus that was paid in March.

But Carr wrested away the job with a strong exhibition season, including completing 11 of 13 passes for 143 yards and three touchdowns against the Seattle Seahawks in the final game.

He has given the Raiders a spark not seen since the Rich Gannon days.

But pressure? Hardly.

"Everything that we went through in our lives in my family ... whatever happens in football it's just a game," he replied. "It doesn't matter if I go out and throw three touchdowns or I go out and throw eight picks. I'm going to be the same person.

"Obviously, as a competitor, I'll be mad. But I'm going to be the same person, because football is never going to define who I am."

Here, in the family home in Bakersfield, his parents understand too well how football tries to define people. David Carr, who is 12 years older than his little brother, was the No. 1 overall pick of the 2002 draft. It did not go well.

Hindered by a questionable supporting cast, David Carr was sacked an NFL-record 76 times as a rookie with the expansion Houston Texans. He also led the NFL in getting sacked in 2004 (49) and 2005 (68).

"The hardest part was after the games. We'd go to his house," Rodger Carr, 62, said. "It looked like he just went through 15 rounds with Mike Tyson. I could see it. He was just beat up. I remember near the end, he said, 'Dad, I don't know if I can do this anymore.' "

David Carr played in the NFL through 2012 but never started after 2007. He finished his career with 65 touchdown passes against 71 interceptions.

In 94 career games, he was sacked 267 times. By comparison, Peyton Manning has been sacked just three more times -- but has played in 240 career games.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

A talent evaluator recently told ESPN the Magazine that David Carr's struggles were so deep that they hurt his brother's draft stock by association. "It's an issue," the NFC scout told the magazine. "If their makeup is the same, then there is concern."

A PERFECT MENTOR

The Carrs see it the other way: David's pain will be Derek's gain. The eldest boy is teaching his brother how to avoid his mistakes -- as well as how to train, how to practice, how to lead, how to think. It took until late in his career, but David Carr eventually saw what a winning team was supposed look like. He served as Eli Manning's backup for the Super Bowl XLVI champion New York Giants.

These lessons are now Derek Carr's hand-me-downs.

"Derek may be 23, but he has Dave's 34-year-old brain in his head," Rodger Carr said. "I always say that David only had me to a certain point. The reason Derek is so far ahead is that he had his older brother. It's made a big difference."

Because the mentorship began early, the stories of Derek Carr's childhood sound far more Batman than Bruce Wayne.

Nate Thiessen, the assistant head coach during Carr's time at Bakersfield Christian High, tells one from Carr's first practice at the school. The family had just moved back to Bakersfield from Houston, and Carr was a senior looking to make an impression.

Thiessen was filling in for the vacationing head coach that day when Carr approached him with a proposal. "He's standing on the 45-yard line and he says, 'I'm going to throw five balls. If three of them hit the crossbar, you let me out of sprints tomorrow,' " Thiessen recalled.

The bet was on. But Carr needed only the first three throws -- boom, boom, boom! They all hit the crossbar. Later that day, the head coach called from his Hawaii vacation wondering how that new quarterback from Houston looked. "Is he the real deal?" the coach asked.

"If you just saw what I saw," Thiessen told him, "you'd know we're going to be fine."

The punch line came the next day. Carr ran every sprint anyway. He led the team in 100-yard gassers under the sweltering summer sun.

Raiders rookie Carr has high expectations for himself

By Vic Tafur

September 6, 2014

Mike Sullivan, the former NFL offensive coordinator, popped in the NFL game film to show Derek Carr something. It was back in March, when Derek's older brother, former No. 1 overall pick David Carr, had hired Sullivan to help prepare his brother for the NFL draft.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I was showing him an interception, what the quarterback had done wrong, and he noticed that the quarterback didn't get involved in the pursuit of the player," Sullivan said. "Derek starts yelling, 'You gotta get that guy! Make him pay!' "

Sullivan said Derek Carr has a "real fighter's mentality, more like a mixed martial arts fighter than a quarterback," and is looking forward to seeing the rookie make his first start for the Raiders against the Jets on Sunday.

"I tell him to scale it back, but he'll probably head-butt a lineman or something on Sunday," Sullivan said. "He's almost too intense at times, but who doesn't want a vocal, intense, smart leader at quarterback?"

One who can throw. Like his brother, Derek Carr has the great arm and the quick release. But he's wired a little differently, probably because he watched all of the 249 sacks that his brother endured in five seasons with the Houston Texans. And he heard all the criticism as David Carr was proclaimed a bust.

It's one of the reasons that the Raiders are not as worried about starting a rookie quarterback on the road as they probably should be.

"He's been around the game a long time," Oakland offensive coordinator Greg Olson said. "He's had the experience of watching his brother and even watching some of the adversity that his brother went through. I just think he's a mature kid, and I think he'll be fine."

Big brother

Sullivan coached David Carr in 2011, when he was the quarterbacks coach of the New York Giants and Carr was backing up Eli Manning.

He says that stylistically, David is more jazz to Derek's heavy metal.

Sullivan said he could tell that David thought he had not gotten the level of film analysis and game-planning in Houston that he was receiving in New York, and that it was probably too late for him. So he poured that knowledge into his brother.

Derek had already grown up watching NFL game film with his brother, but he cranked it up. Then David hired Sullivan to be Derek's quarterback coach after the younger sibling finished playing at Fresno State.

"Our first day, they were both throwing, and David looked tremendous," Sullivan said. "It was all the time he spent working out with and coaching his brother. ... It's been such a great resource for Derek, and why he's always been ahead of the curve.

"He was ahead of the curve going into the draft, and he was ahead of the curve going into an NFL training camp. It's why I wasn't really surprised that he won the starting job."

Derek quickly called David when he heard that he had beaten out Matt Schaub for the starting job.

"He was fired up," Derek Carr said. "He was excited for me. The whole family was excited, obviously, but at the same time it's just football. It was an excitement, 'Hey, congrats,' and then we went about our lives. In our family, football is not everything."

Bigger concerns

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Derek and his wife, Heather, have a son, Dallas, who recently celebrated his first birthday. He is fine now, and won't know until his parents tell him some day that he almost didn't make it the night he was born.

Dallas' intestines were twisted when he was born, cutting off blood flow. He needed three surgeries to repair the intestinal malrotation but is healthy now.

"Everything that we went through in our lives in my family ... whatever happens in football, it's just a game," Derek Carr. "It doesn't matter if I go out and throw three touchdowns or I go out and throw eight picks. I'm going to be the same person.

"Obviously, as a competitor, I'll be mad. But I'm going to be the same person, because football is never going to define who I am."

Dallas smiles a lot, seemingly just as happy in life as his dad is to be playing quarterback for a living.

"That kid in you, when you're finally a starting quarterback, one of 32 people in the world doing this job, it's really cool," Carr said. "Don't get me wrong about me saying it's just football. I love what I do, and that's why I am so passionate."

Big letdown

Derek was disappointed that he didn't get selected in the first round, but he grew up a Raiders fan in Bakersfield.

"Every college kid wants to go in the first round growing up, but some people didn't see it that way," he said. "I'm glad they didn't because I ended up in a great spot, the exact spot that I wanted to be."

He was brought in to be Oakland's quarterback of the future, with Schaub manning the controls of an experienced team this season. But Schaub didn't play well, Carr did ... and the future arrived early.

In the preseason Carr had a 67 percent completion percentage with four touchdown passes, including a very pretty back-shoulder toss to Denarius Moore in a three-TD game against Seattle. Schaub completed only 51 percent of his pass attempts and did not throw for a touchdown.

"I like Derek Carr a lot," NFL Films producer and quarterback savant Greg Cosell said. "I think he is greatly improved in the preseason. The things I thought he needed improvement in, I saw, which tells me he is being coached well and is receptive to it."

Olson and quarterbacks coach John DeFilippo spent a lot of time on his footwork, widening Carr's throwing base and getting rid of a hitch. Sullivan texted Carr after the Seattle game to tell him how good he looked stepping up and sliding over in the pocket.

Big arm, too

The arm is still getting rave reviews.

"The quickness of his delivery, at times, reminded me of Aaron Rodgers," Cosell said. "I was an idiot when I first said that. Then James Jones said it last week. ... The back-shoulder throw in the Seattle game was about as good as it gets."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Carr was the fourth quarterback taken in the draft, but the only one starting this week. And he's the first Raiders rookie to ever start the opener at quarterback.

And he is the first Fresno State quarterback to start Week 1 in his rookie season since David started for the Texans in 2002. David completed only 53 percent of his passes that season, being intercepted 15 times and being sacked an NFL-record 76 times.

But that was then, and this Carr is new and improved.

"I called my brother because he's played the Jets seven times," Derek Carr said. "So we talked. I picked his brain, took notes ... picked Schaub's brain, picked the coaches' brains.

"I expect a lot."

Raiders envision bright future with Derek Carr

By Phil Barber

May 11, 2014

When they took linebacker Khalil Mack with the fourth pick in the 2014 NFL draft, the Raiders explained that this league is all about affecting the quarterback. The team took the principle one step further on Friday, selecting Fresno State quarterback Derek Carr early in the second round.

One round later, they got their future franchise quarterback a little protection and drafted massive guard, Gabe Jackson of Mississippi State.

The Raiders were said to be interested in Carr for weeks. That sort of rumor rarely translates into draft-day action, but general manager Reggie McKenzie pounced on Carr when he was still available with the 36th pick. He was the fourth quarterback taken in the draft, after Central Florida's Blake Bortles, Texas A&M's Johnny Manziel and Louisville's Teddy Bridgewater.

"I think we were pretty excited," said director of player personnel Joey Clinkscales, standing in for McKenzie. "At the point in time of the draft, Derek was the highest-rated guy on the board. We were pretty comfortable at that pick taking him."

Clinkscales said the Raiders fielded several calls from teams who wanted the pick, and entertained the thought of moving down in the second round, though they never considered moving up.

Asked whether the team envisions Carr as its quarterback of the future, he said: "We took him in the second round. We would like to think so."

The only passers taken higher by the Raiders since the 1970 merger were Marc Wilson (No. 15 in 1980), Todd Marinovich (No. 24 in 1991) and JaMarcus Russell (No. 1 in 2007). And yes, you are forgiven if that list causes you to either tremble or double over in laughter.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Carr, who lives in Bakersfield (where he spent his senior year of high school), is practically an NFL lifer. He joined his older brother on stage at Radio City Music Hall at the age of 11 when the Houston Texans made David the first pick in franchise history in 2002, and was studying film with his sibling at 12. What's more, his uncle Lon Boyett was briefly with the Raiders in the late 1970s.

Derek followed David to Fresno State, and thrived. As a senior, he became the fourth quarterback in Division I history to throw for more than 5,000 yards and 50 touchdowns in a season, at one point attempting 305 consecutive passes without an interception. Carr finished eighth in Heisman Trophy voting.

Scouts loved his arm and his attitude, but questioned the system in which he played. The Bulldogs' offense ran almost exclusively from a shotgun formation, and Carr survived on short throws off one-step drops.

He helped dispel a lot of the suspicion with a strong performance at the Senior Bowl in late January. The consensus said he outplayed every quarterback at the event, which included Eastern Illinois' Jimmy Garoppolo and San Jose State's David Fales.

The Texans traded for Matt Schaub in 2007 to replace David Carr, who never developed into the franchise quarterback they were looking for. Now comes the possibility that the Raiders will groom Derek Carr to take over for Schaub, the expected 2014 starter whom they traded for in March.

Many Raiders fans, dubious of Schaub's ability to turn around a career that went off the rails last season, will be rooting for Derek Carr to assume the starting job right away. That's not the plan.

"He's a young quarterback," Clinkscales said of Carr. "We aren't expecting him to walk in the door and be the starter. We have a starter."

Carr sounded fine with that.

"If I'm the backup, my role, it doesn't change," he said. "I'm still gonna help the team win. How can I help Schaub during the game? ... Can I watch the safety? Can I watch the corners? Can I tell him when they were in this front, when they played this coverage, when we were in this formation they ran this coverage, brought this blitz on this down and distance? What can I do to help? All I'm here to do in Oakland is help that team win."

Jackson, who started 52 games at left guard at Mississippi State, is billed as a powerful and nimble-footed interior lineman who worked hard but occasionally lost focus in games. He joins a replenished pool of offensive linemen that includes free-agent signees Kevin Boothe, Donald Penn and Austin Howard.

The Raiders traded down in the third-round, snagged Jackson at No. 81 and gained a fourth rounder from Miami, No. 116. They have plenty of needs to address today. All in all, though, these guys seem to love how the draft is playing out.

"The Raiders need a little luck like everyone else," Clinkscales said. "We're excited about that."

Raiders rookie TJ Carrie making good impression

By Vic Tafur

August 10, 2014

The first preseason game is a bigger deal than most people realize. It's the first time rookies put on their official jersey and take an NFL field.

Raiders cornerback TJ Carrie actually tried on his jersey a couple of times before he went to the game at Minnesota's TCF Bank Stadium on Friday night.

And then ... when warming up before the game he would ...

"I kept going back to the mirror to see how I looked," Carrie said. "And feel that experience again. Then I would leave and ... 'Man, I gotta check it again' ... 'Oh, we're taking the field, let me check it one more time.'

"It was an awesome experience, and I enjoyed it."

The Antioch native has definitely looked the part of an NFL player. The seventh-round draft pick has jumped to fourth on the Raiders' depth chart at cornerback, is one of the team's three punt-return candidates and he could be a gunner on punt coverage.

He had four tackles against the Vikings, and head coach Dennis Allen said that Carrie played well.

Carrie (6-foot, 204 pounds) had an injury-marred career at Ohio University, and Oakland general manager Reggie McKenzie said that's the reason Carrie was still on the board in the seventh round.

Carrie caught Allen's eye right away this summer with his penchant for being around the ball and making plays. Allen compared him to an undrafted player, Chris Harris, whom Allen had when he was the Broncos' defensive coordinator three years ago.

Harris made the 2011 All-Rookie team and has 27 starts and six interceptions the past two seasons.

"Nobody really knew anything about (Harris), and then every day you watch him practice and every day he's making a play that kind of catches your eye," Allen said. "We thought TJ had some ability, but I think he's more mature than maybe I would have known from a rookie DB coming in from Ohio.

"I've been very impressed with his knowledge of the game."

Carrie has had some help, as he knew teammates Taiwan Jones and Maurice Jones-Drew from growing up in Antioch and playing at De La Salle High. Jones-Drew has shown him how to take notes in meetings and helped him become a pro quickly.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"In order to be a pro, you have to come in and get acclimated to the system pretty fast, and that's from the mental, the physical part of it, and really understanding all the aspects and keys of the game," Carrie said. "So the adjustment is based on how you approach the situation, and I think I definitely have tried to approach it in a pro manner."

Carrie is looking forward to the team's trip to Oxnard (Ventura County) for practices against the Dallas Cowboys on Tuesday and Wednesday. And he will tell himself the same thing he told himself Friday, between peeks at the mirror.

"Remain calm, remain confident in the ability that I put on the field in the offseason workouts, minicamp and training camp," he said.

ANDRE HOLMES

Andre Holmes becoming big-play threat for Raiders

By Josh Dubow

October 16, 2014

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Andre Holmes is settling into his role as Oakland's big-play wide receiver.

With two long catches last week, including a 77-yard score on the first possession of the game, the former undrafted player from tiny Hillsdale College in Michigan has become a crucial part of the Raiders' offense.

After showing flashes at times in his first season in Oakland in 2013, the key for Holmes now is to show the consistency that has been lacking at times over his two seasons with the Raiders.

"You just have to build off of it," Holmes said Thursday. "That's where my mindset is at. It's one good game this season. I just have to go against the Cardinals and get another good one."

After a strong finish to last season when he had 22 catches for 366 yards and a touchdown in the final five games, Holmes was being counted on as a key contributor on Oakland's offense this season.

But he was up-and-down during training camp and the preseason and got passed up for a starting spot because he sometimes has a harder time making the easy catches than the highlight-reel ones.

"That's something that I know Andre is working on right now," interim coach Tony Sparano said. "He spends an awful lot of time out there on the jugs and doing those types of things, trying to catch those kind of balls. He spends a lot of time at it, works hard."

Holmes played only two offensive snaps in the season opener against the New York Jets and was on the field only about half the time the following two weeks. But after Rod Streater was sidelined by a broken foot, Holmes moved back into the starting lineup against Miami last month and has made the most of his opportunity.

Holmes had five catches for 74 yards and a touchdown in the loss to the Dolphins and followed that up with an even bigger performance against San Diego.

He got behind the defense on the third play from scrimmage to score on a 77-yard catch that was the longest scoring throw for Oakland in five years.

He added a 30-yard catch with a leaping grab near the sideline to set up a score in the second quarter and gave Oakland the lead in the fourth with his 6-yard TD catch. Holmes finished with four catches for 121 yards and two touchdowns — becoming just the third Oakland player to top 100 yards receiving with two TD catches in a game in the past nine seasons.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I definitely trust him, no doubt," quarterback Derek Carr said. "I like the size of our receivers also, the ones that play outside. I love giving them chances to go get balls. When they do, it puts it in the back of my head like, 'He caught the last one, let's go at it again.' So I definitely like giving those guys chances, especially when I know that they'll come down with it."

With his 6-foot-4 frame, good jumping ability and 4.45 speed in the 40-yard dash, Holmes has had a knack for big plays in his short time with Oakland. Of his 40 catches, 14 have gone for at least 20 yards — the most on the Raiders the past two seasons.

Sparano compares Holmes' attributes to Brandon Marshall, a player he coached in Miami.

"You like to have those kind of players," Sparano said. "The catches that he's made since he's been here have been those kinds of catches, contested catches, down the field, ball is in the air and he's jumping over somebody, he's making the really hard catch. So, that's been good to see and it's a comfort for the quarterback when he feels like he can throw it that way and that guy is going to come down with it."

SEBASTIAN JANIKOWSKI

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Raiders kicker Sebastian Janikowski works to improve

By Scott Ostler

July 20, 2014

The Raiders might be an improved team in 2014 - they're certainly due for an uptick - but it seems unlikely that they will blow out a lot of opponents.

So as training camp looms, forget about the quarterback situation, forget about all the new players. How's Seabass doing?

Well, kicker Sebastian Janikowski looks good and he says he's ready to rip. I caught up with him at Lake Tahoe, where he was playing in the American Century Championship.

His golf game could use some polish (it's already got plenty of Polish). Janikowski finished 47th in the field of 86 actors, athletes and assorted famous folk.

Because he's a big, powerful man who kicks footballs a mile, people expect Janikowski to hit golf balls straight and long.

"Yeah, that's not going to happen," said the man who has kicked a 63-yard field goal and once attempted a 76-yarder. Janikowski doesn't even use a driver. On the long holes he hits a three-hybrid, whatever that is.

Fortunately for the Raiders, Janikowski is still more serious about his kicking than he is about his golf. He said he normally stays home in Florida until it's time for training camp, but this year he came West two months early to work with long snapper John Condo and holder (and punter) Marquette King.

When Janikowski's effectiveness fell off dramatically last season, head coach Dennis Allen kept saying it was an 11-man problem. Yeah, not really.

It was more like a Janikowski and King problem. After 13 seasons of kicking out of the hold of his good pal Shane Lechler, who went to Houston as a free agent, Janikowski was breaking in a rookie holder.

When Janikowski missed two field-goal tries in a four-point loss to Tennessee, he indicated to sideline reporter Lincoln Kennedy that King's hold was the problem.

It was a momentary lapse by Janikowski, normally not a finger pointer. After that, he took great pains to accept blame for his low percentage (70, down from 91.2 the previous season) and all those misses (nine, up from three in '12).

"I'm not finishing," Janikowski would say. Or, "I just pushed it," or, "I'm too wide" with his step.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

There's no question that the three-man team had some rough moments, and Janikowski's offseason work with Condo and King is an indication that they know what we know.

"With Shane, we knew each other so well, that's a trust issue right there," Janikowski said. "He knew if I'm pushing the ball, he would tilt the ball in the different direction. So now I'm working with Marquette, and it's improving a lot."

It has to. The Raiders can't afford another 21-for-30 season from their kicker. Not acceptable, especially for the highest-paid leg in the game, and someone who has done this for 14 seasons.

Advanced age has been ruled out as a factor in last year's slump. Janikowski is 36, but says he compensates by working harder, doing more running and stretching, more work on weights on the stationary bike, and lots and lots of kicking.

"I don't think I've lost any distance," he said. "The power has always been there. My final step is so powerful, I've always had the power, since high school. ... I feel that I'm as strong as I was eight, 10 years ago."

He said he's also more stable, as in more mature. As a young player, Janikowski had a few scrapes with the authorities, was known to party a bit. Now, he's a team leader. Said he tries to lead by example, doing his work, getting to meetings early. It wasn't always that way.

"It's like (I'm telling younger teammates), 'Don't make the same mistakes I did,' " he said, "because obviously everybody knows, I made some mistakes."

He said when he was a young player, then-quarterback Rich Gannon pulled him aside and let him know he was falling short of Gannon's only acceptable level: perfection.

What was Gannon's exact message?

"We agreed to keep it private," Janikowski said with a smile. "It wasn't nice."

Janikowski is married; he and his wife have twin girls, 22 months old. That cuts into your golf time.

"But in my life, they cut in in a good way," he said. "I needed that. ... I've changed over the years. I'm more stable, fatherhood, work and stuff like that. Everybody goes through a process. You learn from it. What can I say?"

Janikowski said he appreciates his job more than he ever did, and sees no reason he can't kick effectively for another decade or more.

But to get that far, he'll have to get to get through this season. A big test, right?

"Every year is a test."

JAMES JONES

BAY AREA NEWS GROUP (OAKLAND TRIBUNE, CC TIMES, SJ MERCURY NEWS)

Raiders' James Jones: Once-homeless receiver returns home to give back

By Daniel Brown

August 8, 2014

SAN JOSE -- Judy Vargas was among the first defenders to cover James Jones. It did not go well.

The longtime worker at a San Jose homeless shelter used to chase the future NFL receiver around the corridors when play time was over. "That was me," Jones said, "always trying to run the other way when someone said, 'Come here.' She was one of the main people I was running from."

Vargas has it easier these days. Jones is back at the shelter, having made it clear he's never going away.

Jones signed a three-year, $11.3 million contract with the Raiders during the offseason. And though he'd always kept a connection to this shelter and to others who helped him escape the poverty of his youth, he had done so from afar. The former San Jose State star spent the first seven seasons of his NFL career with the Green Bay Packers.

The Raiders, of course, signed him not for his giving but for his receiving. Jones is coming off career highs in catches (59) and yards (817), despite playing through nagging injuries last season. A year before that, he led the NFL with 14 touchdown catches.

Jones, 30, has spent training camp in Napa angling for a spot on a depth chart that also includes Rod Streater, Andre Holmes, Greg Little and Denarius Moore.

On the night before camp opened, shortly after 5 p.m. on a Tuesday evening in July, the San Jose native went home -- or at least as close as he could get. The San Jose Family Homeless Shelter, where Jones and his mother, Janet, once spent several months has relocated down the road to here, on North King Road.

In anticipation of Jones' arrival, the cafeteria is speckled with residents wearing Raiders gear. Jones and his family, including his mother, spend the evening dishing out chicken, ribs, baked beans, cornbread, macaroni and cheese, salad and banana pudding catered by Famous Dave's Bar-B-Que. Jones wears plastic gloves and an apron to shield himself from the sauce.

People come back for seconds, which is the highlight of Jones' night. One of the things he remembers most about being homeless is that the food could be lousy.

"I've been in their shoes, where a lot of the meals daily are not that good. A lot of the meals still leave you hungry," he said. "(Tonight) you see the little kids coming back for seconds with a smile on their faces. One kid came up and said, 'This is real cornbread. The cornbread is so good.' That's why we come."

Vargas, in her 19th year on the staff, dines at a corner table. She is asked what it means to have Jones back, this time as an honorary co-worker. "I think he means inspiration," she said. "I think he means success. I think he means that if he can do it, then it's up them to succeed also."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Vargas' eyes scan the room.

"This can be just a pit stop," she said.

A few weeks earlier, Jones had given the residents food for thought. He gave a talk about his own life story, and how he had changed the plot line. Jones pulled himself up from his bootstraps and eventually strapped on cleats at the Super Bowl.

"He believes in hand up, not a handout," said his wife, Tamika, who met Jones while they were both students at San Jose State. "So anybody who can help them get on their feet, that's what he's interested in. It's not a sad time. It's a joyous time. It's a time to say, 'I know you're here, but this isn't the end.'"

Jones lived in and out of shelters from ages 8 to 14. His father, also named James, wasn't in the picture at that time. His mother, Janet, took James and his sister Desiree to a friend or relative's place on some nights and cheap hotels on others. When there was no money left, they went to homeless shelters like this one.

Jones wound up going to seven elementary schools. Packing never took long. His only two prized possessions were a backpack and a basketball.

"The worst part about being homeless is not knowing what your next step is, not knowing where you're going to lay your head next," he said, shortly after serving up the last plate of the night. "You only get a certain amount of time you can stay here. And once those three months are up, that's the scary time. Because now where are you going to go?"

Jones' life stabilized when he reached high school. He was 15 when he decided he could leave his mother's side and went to live with his paternal grandmother, Bernice Calhoun, who ran a strict home. Janet Jones, who had struggled to hold down employment, found a job and an apartment and came to all of James' games.

Jones thrived at Gunderson High, averaging 18.2 points on the basketball court, jumping 6 feet, 8 inches in the high jump during track season and starring as a quarterback, receiver and safety on the football team.

When he got to San Jose State, he and Tamika found each other through mutual friends. But it took many years before his future wife fully understood about his life to that point.

"Believe it or not, no. A lot of his friends from high school, and even in middle school, never knew he was homeless," Tamika said. "If somebody wanted to go to his house to play. He would just say, 'Oh, no. Not today. My mom said I can't have company.'"

Tamika found out many of the gritty details only after the Packers selected Jones in the third round of the 2007 draft. News stories detailed his odyssey of homelessness, and with each one Jones slowly felt more comfortable about opening up.

These days, Jones wants everyone to know his tale, especially those who are in his shoes. He started his own foundation, Love Jones 4 Kids, and became so active in the Green Bay charity scene that "I think the whole community cried when he left," said Mary Deckert, a board member of the Freedom House Family Live Advancement Center in Green Bay.

"Not just because he was a good football player, even if the was that, too, but just because he was a great guy. He was always humbled and never forgot where he came from."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Deckert recalled how Jones would help with annual community service announcements, pitch in with fundraising and stop by in person. He said that more than once he made friendships with the residents that continued long after he left.

"For him to come to the shelter and look somebody in the eye, somebody who feels totally worthless because they can't take care of their family, and say, 'You can turn this around' -- that means something to them," Deckert said. "If I say that, they just say, 'Yeah, yeah, yeah.'"

"What he does, it's priceless. You can't quantify the value of that to somebody in need."

Jones said he is continuing his connection to his Green Bay charities, even from his new East Bay address. He doesn't want to leave them in the lurch. But he concedes that it's extra special to be doing his charity work from the Bay Area.

"It's changed because I'm really giving back to my town, to my people," he said.

Desiree Lopez, who fled domestic violence to live in the shelter, was among those enjoying the Jones dinner. Lopez and her 9-month-old son were both wearing Raiders gear. "For someone like that to do something like this is just amazing to me," she said. "You don't see too many famous people coming and giving back."

She said she recently found a permanent home in Nevada and hopes to become a registered nurse.

Jones said that he still gets emotional on nights like this when he reflects on all he's been through. He even remembered the way Judy Vargas used to chase him around and tried to wrap him up, just like NFL defensive backs do these days.

"She wasn't as good as they are now," Jones said, "but she definitely got me ready."

Raiders' Khalil Mack a dream, former coaches say

By Jerry McDonald

May 16, 2014

University at Buffalo defensive coordinator Lou Teppa cringed when a local police officer told him he'd had an encounter with one of his players a couple months back.

"You hear that, you start to twitch a little bit," Teppa said.

Dennis Gilbert, a cop who is also the football coach at St. Joe's High in Buffalo, recognized Khalil Mack immediately. Mack approached Gilbert holding a small white purse he'd found in a snow bank.

"He wanted to know if we could find the owner," Gilbert said.

A fellow officer opened the purse to find an iPhone, credit cards, cash and jewelry. A short time later, the purse and its contents were returned to the grateful owner who had been retracing her steps a block away, frantic and losing hope for its return.

"You always hear the stories about kids who do the wrong things," Gilbert said. "Here's a good kid, doing the right thing, making the right decisions."

Even with the background checks necessitated for a top-10 pick, the Raiders hadn't heard of Mack's act of integrity. Even without it, they were convinced Mack was worthy of being the face of their defense for the next decade in making him the fifth pick of the NFL draft.

The Raiders rookie draft class, plus undrafted free agents and some players on a tryout basis, convened at the club's rookie camp starting Friday. Mack reportedly signed his rookie deal Thursday and was ready to go.

Mack, according to those who know him best, is described as earnest and hardworking, driven to be the best. It's only between the white lines where he shows an edge.

DIFFERENT MAN ON FIELD

"Off the field, he's the nicest, most humble, sweetest kid you could ever meet in your life," said Waides Ashmon, Mack's coach at Westwood High in Port St. Lucie, Florida. "On the field, he plays mad, with a chip on his shoulder, and that's exciting to watch."

Ashmon had been at Westwood for a month when an assistant told him about Mack, a junior basketball player who had recovered from a torn patellar tendon and hadn't played football since his freshman year.

"In the spring, my coach came into my classroom, picked me out of class and I have been playing football ever since," Mack said.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

As the two stood in the hallway, Ashmon saw a 6-foot-1, 215-pound physical specimen "with the muscles coming through his clothes" and asked Mack, "What do I need to do to get you on the football field?"

"He said, 'Coach, I would love to play. You've just got to talk with my dad,' " Ashmon said.

Ashmon pulled out his cell phone on the spot and made his pitch to Sandy Mack.

"I've never done this before, but I told him if you allow Khalil to come play for me, I promise he will go to college for free," Ashmon said.

Mack led Westwood with 140 tackles on a 10-2 team, but with only one year of varsity football in a talent-laden state, only Liberty University of Lynchburg, Virginia, was interested. However, when a Liberty assistant accepted a job at Buffalo, it helped land Mack a full scholarship.

"He just got overlooked," Ashmon said. "Coaches would come in and say he looks the part, but they didn't have enough film on him. I'd tell them, I don't care what y'all say, the kid's going to be a first-round draft pick in five years."

Tepper, the Buffalo defensive coordinator since 2012, has coached at nine schools since 1967 and put 20 linebackers on NFL rosters. At Illinois in 1996, when Tepper was the head coach, the Illini had linebackers Kevin Hardy and Simeon Rice taken with the Nos. 2 and 3 selections in the NFL draft.

"I've only had a few players who were what I call complete linebackers, that could play anywhere in a 3-4 or a 4-3 defense," Tepper said. "Oakland is getting someone with the talent to be a star at any of those positions."

'HE KNOWS HOW TO WORK'

Now 6-2, 251, Mack's ability to range sideline-to-sideline, rush the passer (28 1/2 career sacks) and strip the ball (16 forced fumbles) is enhanced by a will to prepare as well as to win.

"When he gets a tip sheet every day, he's got a highlighter out and works on it," Tepper said. "He knows how to work. He learns from written material, he learns from briefing material, he learns from walking through, and when the ball is snapped he'll play fast."

Mack finds motivation from perceived slights. He was so insulted by an EA sports video game that gave him a mediocre ranking of 46 that he made it his uniform number at Buffalo.

When an Ohio State assistant coach assessed Mack as "just a guy" going into the 2014 season opener, Tepper called Mack "JAG" all week. Mack responded with 2 1/2 sacks, a 45-yard interception return and nine tackles against the Buckeyes.

Buffalo head coach Jeff Quinn said Mack's drive reminds him of Joe Staley, the 49ers tackle whom he coached at Eastern Michigan.

"He's as gifted a player as I've ever coached," Quinn said of Mack. "He lives it and loves it."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Raiders general manager Reggie McKenzie said Mack "plays the game the way it's supposed to be played. He plays hard, he plays physical, he goes from snap to whistle. You might call it a chip on his shoulder, or you can just call it being a football player."

Mack's mother, Yolanda, an elementary school teacher, said of her son, "We all have something where we're a '10.' Khalil was always athletic, always competitive in that way. Even at 5 he was doing push-ups. He had these muscles."

Outgoing and team oriented, Mack entertained Buffalo teammates occasionally by singing and playing the guitar. His personality is in stark contrast to the last linebacker the Raiders took in the first round, the aloof and perpetually disinterested Rolando McClain at No. 8 in 2010.

Ashmon, who was with the Mack family in New York at the draft, laughed as he recounted the post-draft scene.

"He'll probably kill me for telling this story, but we were up in his hotel room that night, he strips off his shirt, and he's jumping around, saying, 'Let's play right now!,' " Ashmon said.

Raiders' Darren McFadden hoping to outrun the labels

By Scott Ostler

July 30, 2014

The first week of training camp must seem to Darren McFadden like the movie "Groundhog Day." For seven years, McFadden has arrived in Napa ready to rock and roll - eager, healthy and seemingly destined to take his place as one of football's elite running backs.

Then stuff happens. Injuries. Coaches fired. Scheme changes and raggedy surrounding talent, rendering McFadden's skills null and void. Flashes of brilliance, but mostly frustration and disappointment.

Maybe a better movie analogy would be "Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events."

Well, this time could be different. Stop rolling your eyes, Debbie Downer fans.

It's possible that this is the season it all will come together for McFadden, and the Raiders.

If you're skeptical, you're not alone. McFadden said other teams showed interest in signing him, but he came back to the Raiders for a bargain-basement $1.65 million contract, only $100,000 guaranteed.

And unlike past seasons, when the Raiders counted on McFadden to be their bell cow (to borrow a 49ers term), he's merely in the mix this time. The Raiders signed Maurice Jones-Drew to compete for the starting job. Fullback Marcel Reece dropped 17 pounds in the offseason.

It's a different scene for McFadden, for so long the golden guy. Now he's being asked to return kickoffs, which he hasn't done since college. Until now, he was too valuable, and maybe too fragile, for such risky duty.

It appears that the change of status has not dented McFadden's optimism and enthusiasm. He's never been a grumbler or slacker, and he seems to be attacking his new situation with the same old zest.

"I feel great," McFadden said after Wednesday's practice. "I feel like a rookie coming in. Training camp is just like being a rookie all over again. You're excited being out there."

Does he see this as a last chance?

"It's a new beginning," McFadden said, "but at the same time, I feel like it's all or nothing, so I'm going to have to go out there and perform and stay healthy on the field."

It can be done. Lest we paint his career to date as a total failure, remember the shining 2010 season. McFadden missed three games but still gained 1,157 yards on 5.2 per carry, flashing speed and power. He made people miss. He was dangerous.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

That was what the Raiders had in mind when they drafted him No. 4 overall in 2008 from Arkansas. Was 2010 an aberration, or proof that McFadden can produce fireworks if you block for him properly and he's healthy?

The Raiders might be crazy to keep trying to tap McFadden's talent, but the temptation is strong. In his second NFL game, against the Chiefs, McFadden carried 21 times for 164 yards.

Then he injured a toe and missed three games, and when he returned, Tom Cable had replaced Lane Kiffin as head coach. Cable pretty much iced McFadden.

It's not all about coaching. Two seasons ago, some blamed McFadden's average of 3.3 yards on Dennis Allen's zone-blocking scheme. Last season, no more zone, but another season of 3.3 yards per carry.

If McFadden doesn't realize his potential this season, it won't be because he's damaged goods. He said he's 100 percent healthy and still jet quick.

"I'm going to run a 4.3 'til I'm 50," McFadden said. "As far as the exact (40-yard dash) time, I'm still a 4.3 guy. I don't feel that I've lost a step at all."

In six seasons, he has missed an average of almost five games per season to injuries. Seriously, that could be a good thing.

"I'm just now getting ready to turn 27," McFadden said, "so I feel like I still have a lot of football in me. I guess that's one of the bright sides of me being injured, you know? Less games took a lot of wear and tear off my body, so I still have a lot of years of football left in me."

Maybe. It would be great for the Raiders if it works out that way. McFadden would be the late Al Davis' last contribution.

For McFadden, this shouldn't be about money. He earned $60 million on his first contract. He probably could walk away from the game with his head up, write off the hard times to circumstances beyond his control.

But he has unfinished business, personally and with the Raiders.

"I had other offers," McFadden said, "but I wanted to come back here and be a part of Raider Nation. We've had some rough years here; I wanted to come here and be part of the turnaround."

Oakland Raiders Mychal Rivera setting his sights high

By Jerry McDonald

August 2, 2014

After finishing fifth in receptions among all NFL rookie tight ends last season, the last thing on the mind of the Raiders' Mychal Rivera was to enjoy the fruits of his labors.

"I really looked in the mirror at myself," Rivera said Saturday after the Raiders completed a controlled scrimmage. "I knew I could do a lot better than I did last year, even though people were surprised at what I did. I have high expectations of myself."

In his second year out of Tennessee, Rivera has his sights on a won-loss record far better than 4-12, and significantly better statistics than 38 catches for 407 yards and four touchdowns.

One of the highlights Saturday was the sight of Rivera splitting a seam between veteran cornerbacks Tarell Brown and Carlos Rogers and hauling in a pass inside the 5-yard line from second-string quarterback Derek Carr.

Rivera later caught a pass from Matt Schaub in the end zone.

"One of the guys that has shown the most improvement from a year ago is Mike Rivera," offensive coordinator Greg Olson said. "He looks more athletic. He's stronger. He's more confident. I said to him the other day and we said it in our meeting, there's a little bit of swagger to him this season."

At 6-foot-3 245 pounds, Rivera is a tight end in name only. He can line up in the backfield, split out wide and go in motion. Only occasionally does he line up as a conventional tight end.

"I tell people all the time I play four or five different positions," Rivera said. "I go through the playbook as an offensive lineman, I go through the playbook as a receiver and as a fullback," Rivera said. "Then you've got to look at the quarterback's eyes and see how he's going to play it. You've got to stay in your playbook all the time."

A sixth-round draft pick, Rivera displayed a knack for finding open areas almost immediately. Some of it is from preparation, most of it from instinct.

"I think he does an outstanding job with his feel in the passing game," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "He's able to make plays in a contested environment. Sometimes, with limited separation, he's still able to come out and make the play."

Rivera said his "swagger" comes from an offseason of hard work as well as self-confidence.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I worked out every day, I kept my mind on football every day," Rivera said. "I used the 4-12 record as a motivating factor. I want to win in this league, and I want to be one of the best tight ends in this league. I see that as attainable. I can get that."

New sack specialist Antonio Smith's Ninja Assassin persona wins fans

By Vic Tafur

September 13, 2014

The Ninja Assassin may be confused for a second on Sunday afternoon.

Friend has become foe, and there will be a lot of people — in the stands — wearing masks at O.co Coliseum. But once he gets his bearings, Raiders fans can hope to see what the Ninja Assassin has been training for his whole life:

Attacking the quarterback and the running back and helping his football team win.

"I am looking forward to bringing him out," Raiders defensive tackle Antonio Smith said of his Ninja Assassin alter ego. "He and his defensive brothers can do what they were bred to do."

Making his home debut for Oakland, Smith will take off his pregame mask and go against his old Texans teammates of the past five years. He is looking forward to it.

"All masters always worry about how the progress of their young Padawans is doing," Smith said. "I'm looking forward to see how they've reached masterhood since I left them."

Smith had 18½ sacks the past three seasons. Just as he helped all-world defensive end J.J. Watt in Houston, Smith is occupying offensive linemen inside to help free up pass rushers Justin Tuck, Khalil Mack and LaMarr Woodley on the outside for Oakland.

Smith, 32, is not just a fun-loving guy with a gimmick who owns a couple of swords.

"Antonio Smith brings a presence to the defense," defensive coordinator Jason Tarversaid. "He plays every play as hard as he can. He had a good game (last week). He had tackles for loss. He pushed the pocket. He did well. I'm very glad he's here."

Tarver and safety Charles Woodson said Smith has one of the fastest get-offs on the team.

"He is as quick as anybody coming off that ball," Woodson said.

The Ninja Assassin didn't come to his mastery of unorthodox arts of war willy-nilly. He put in a lot of blood, sweat and tears, being cut twice by the Arizona Cardinals in 2004 and 2005 and playing for the Hamburg Sea Devils in NFL Europe in the spring of 2005.

"I thought it was a punishment, going over there, but the Cardinals told me it was so I could get reps at being the No.1 guy. ... I was naive back then," Smith said. "It ended up being one of the best experiences that I had, because it built up the character that I needed in this game."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Four or five defensive linemen went down — “I’m not lying, it took four or five,” he said — before Smith got his chance for Arizona. The first two sacks of his career came in a Dec. 18, 2005, game at Houston — against David Carr, Raiders quarterback Derek Carr’s brother — and Smith never looked back.

He started in the Super Bowl for the Cardinals in 2008 and then signed a five-year, $35million deal with the Texans. It was with Houston that he and teammate Mario Williams came up with the Ninja Assassin Slash of Death sack dance. After sacking the quarterback, Smith shows off his sword work and then fires off some ninja stars ... just in case.

Smith studied tae kwon do for seven years as a kid in northwest Oklahoma City, because he couldn’t play football. His mom wouldn’t let him.

“My mom kept me on lockdown,” Smith said. “I was a troubled child. She kept me in the house and said I couldn’t play football.”

How did he finally get out to start playing at 16?

“She got tired of me messing up the house,” Smith said.

Smith has also studied some Wing Chun and judo on his journey. Which brings him to the Coliseum on Sunday for what the O-1 Raiders hope is a winning showcase of ninjitsu.

“I can’t wait to see his celebration after a sack,” Woodson said. “I love having that guy around. Not only can he play, but just in the locker room, he is a bright spot. He keeps everybody light.”

TONY SPARANO

BAY AREA NEWS GROUP (OAKLAND TRIBUNE, CC TIMES, SJ MERCURY NEWS)

Raiders' Sparano brings no-nonsense attitude to interim gig

By Daniel Brown

October 9, 2014

ALAMEDA -- This is Tony Sparano, OK? And this is what he stands for, all right? The Raiders' new interim head coach is so adamantly straightforward that you wind up feeling like you're losing an argument you didn't know you were having. Speaking rapidly and with what The New York Times once described as "the thick accent of a Queens cabdriver," Sparano has no desire to swerve from the obstacles that he's up against in Oakland.

This is how he responded at his first news conference this week, when asked if he needed to light a fire in the locker room in advance of Sunday's home game against the San Diego Chargers (4-1).

"Let's be completely honest, OK? I said this the other day and it didn't get written, so I'm going to say it again, OK?" Sparano said. "We were all part of the problem, every single one of us -- quite honestly, every single one of us in this building, OK? We were all part of the problem, all right?"

To the Raiders (0-4), such straight talk probably sounds like sweet music after years of meandering under Dennis Allen, who was fired after the team's lifeless 38-14 loss to the Miami Dolphins in London in Week 4.

His Oakland debut will represent Sparano's second gig as a head coach, following a decidedly mixed 29-33 reign with the Dolphins from 2008-11.

He finished with a losing record in each of his final three seasons there, but his claim to fame is engineering one of the greatest turnarounds in NFL history. Sparano inherited a team that went 1-15 in 2007 and led it to an 11-5 finish and an AFC East title.

"It was about practicing up-tempo, not letting people slide, not letting people be satisfied," Arizona Cardinals defensive coordinator Todd Bowles, who coached with Sparano for seven seasons, recalled.

BURYING THE PAST

Now Sparano is trying to turn around a Raiders team that hasn't made the playoffs since 2002, and perhaps revive his reputation as a viable head coach.

He started by burying a football.

That took place on the Raiders practice field in Alameda this week, when the new coach asked his players to gather around a hole that had been dug behind the goal post.

Sparano held a football in his right hand and delivered a tearless eulogy to the pigskin.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"What this ball represents and what this hole represents are the first four games of the season," he said. "This ball, to me, goes in the hole, OK. It's four-games' worth, all right. It goes in the hole and I'm going to put the first piece of dirt on it."

Sparano dumped a layer of dirt on the ball.

Then he offered his players the shovel.

"We're about ready to go to work," Sparano said. "Everybody understand that?"

Improving the Raiders by more than symbolic rituals will be the hard part. They've been outscored 103-51 this season.

But defensive tackle Antonio Smith said the team's vibe changed as soon as they heard Sparano's first words. Yes, the new coach has been blunt about the team's problems -- "He'll shoot it to you blood raw," Smith said -- but he's also been straight about what the Raiders are good at, such as red zone defense, and is urging players to focus on their strengths.

"I think that that's a good technique. It's a powerful Jedi mind trick that Obi-Wan Kenobi used to use," Smith said. "I think it's something this team actually needs, to believe in itself. As of yet, I haven't seen a full belief in what we can be, who we are."

Sparano, who turned 53 on Tuesday, is a native of West Haven, Connecticut. He spent his early life on football's back roads, as a four-year letterman at the University of New Haven, a Division II school, where he played center then stuck around to coach offensive linemen from 1984-87.

His first gig as an offensive coordinator was with Boston University, where his signature victory was a Division I-AA playoff triumph over a Northern Iowa team led by a star quarterback named Kurt Warner.

Boston University ran a no-huddle offense that season that averaged 465 yards and 36 points per game.

"Tony was very, very, disciplined and demanding," Robert Dougherty, the quarterback for that BU team, said in a phone interview this week. "He wanted things done right, and he didn't want excuses. ... If you can't work your ass off, you can't play for Tony. But once you understood that, guys wanted to play for him."

Dougherty, now the athletic director at Seabury Hall, a private school in Makawao, Hawaii, also got to see Sparano's lighter side. That came when the city-slicker coach made a home recruiting visit to Dougherty's farmhouse in Visalia.

The quarterback's dad played a prank by turning the family's potbellied pig loose in the house.

"I'm a city guy, so I'd never seen one before," Sparano said. "I just about jumped through the roof."

MOVING UP THE RANKS

Sparano's first NFL job was as an offensive quality control coach with the Cleveland Browns in 1999, but he was fired as part of staff house cleanings in three of his first four stops in the NFL.

But along the way, he saw how some notable coaches -- Bill Parcells, Marty Schottenheimer, Tom Coughlin -- navigated teams out of choppy waters by demanding winning habits, even during lousy seasons.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Raiders offensive lineman Kevin Boothe, who won two Super Bowl rings under Coughlin with the New York Giants, said he can see similarities.

"Things are black and white, no-nonsense. 'This is what I want and this is how it needs to be done,' " Boothe said.

What did Parcells see in Sparano to make him the rare first-time NFL coach who had never even been a coordinator in the league?

"He has own way of doing things," Parcells once said. "He's not fearful. This guy is not looking for trouble. He goes by what he sees. He's not overbearing. He picks his spots."

NO MORE EXCUSES

Sparano said the biggest thing he learned from Parcells was the mantra that, "If you don't beat yourself, you've got a chance to win the football game." And right now, he sees the Raiders defeated before they even take the field.

"There are plenty of excuses out there right now, a lot of them. I say this with all due respect: You (reporters) will have them lined up a mile long," Sparano said at his introductory news conference. "We're not going to use those excuses.

"As soon as we taste -- and we will taste -- what it feels like to win, that's how change happens."

Some of the changes are already under way. As he did in Miami, Sparano started by shaking up the routines. Players stalls were reorganized in the locker rooms. The practice schedule was changed, incorporating a faster tempo early in the week with a more dramatic taper for Thursdays and Fridays.

How will it look on game days? Expect to see a heavier dose of running backs Maurice Jones-Drew and Darren McFadden.

In his first season in Miami, Sparano created a brief stir by utilizing a wildcat offense featuring a direct snap to a running back. Sparano unleashed 93 wildcat plays that season, according to Pro Football Focus, with 88 snaps to Ronnie Brown and five to Ricky Williams.

Things ended badly in Miami after Sparano's hot start. When the 2011 season began, he was on borrowed time -- made clear when owner Stephen Ross and general manager Jeff Ireland embarked on a public courtship of Jim Harbaugh, then at Stanford, the previous offseason.

Sparano was fired after a 4-9 start, despite the support of his players. The Raiders, though, sound happy to be giving him a second chance.

"When you don't embrace any change, all you're doing is helping you to stay the same you were," Smith said. "And where we were wasn't that damn good."

Raiders, Tony Sparano seek something they never had with Dennis Allen

By Jerry McDonald

October 11, 2014

OAKLAND -- Tony Sparano can achieve in a single afternoon the kind of bottom-line credibility that eluded Dennis Allen for two-plus seasons.

Should the winless Raiders upset the San Diego Chargers on Sunday, Sparano will have beaten a team with a winning record. The last time the Raiders managed that was Nov. 27, 2011, a 25-20 victory under Hue Jackson against a 7-3 Chicago Bears team.

Nine times the Raiders under Allen played a team with a record over .500. Nine times they lost. Some were close. Most were not.

A sold-out home crowd will be watching closely for signs of a heartbeat from an 0-4 team on a 10-game losing streak. San Diego (4-1) has won four straight and owns a convincing win over the defending Super Bowl champion Seattle Seahawks.

With quarterback Philip Rivers completing 70.2 percent of his passes with 12 touchdowns and two interceptions and the Chargers owning the NFL's third-ranked defense, no rational person is giving the Raiders much of a chance.

Since being named interim coach Sept. 30 after Allen was fired following a 38-14 loss to the Miami Dolphins in London, Sparano changed the schedule, rearranged stalls in the locker room and concentrated on what the Raiders do rather than worry about the quality of opposition.

"It's not about me," Sparano said. "The message I've given our team is that this is about us. All due respect to the opponent, they're a very good team, but we need to worry about us right now."

The self-scouting process during the bye week concentrated on problem areas, with the goal of enhancing what works and discarding what doesn't. It's a strategy that gets the approval of cornerback Tarell Brown, who was part of the 49ers' rebuilding process under Jim Harbaugh.

"It's always about playing to the players' strengths," Brown said. "It's not always about X's and O's, it's always about playing to what the players like and what the players are comfortable doing. Once we get to that point, I look forward to it."

Identifying the strengths of an 0-4 team will take some creativity. Sparano's history is rooted in controlling a game with the run, keeping things close and then winning the fourth quarter.

The Raiders are ranked 32nd in rushing and have been hurt by large deficits, which makes it impossible to be persistent. With Miami, Sparano's use of the option-oriented wildcat formation with running backs Ronnie Brown and Ricky Williams was a key part of their attack.

With Darren McFadden having run the wildcat and Maurice Jones-Drew back to full health, San Diego could get a healthy dose of it.

"We've only run three snaps of it," Sparano said. "We've been efficient, it's been good to us ... we could see anything right now."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Defensively, the Raiders' philosophy under Allen and Jason Tarver of being multiple in terms of rush and coverage could be streamlined with Sparano's mandate of focusing on schemes that suit the talent on the field.

San Diego coach Mike McCoy acknowledged there could be some changes with the Raiders but noted their systems have been intact since training camp. Chargers outside linebacker Dwight Freeney isn't dwelling on what changes could be in store for the Raiders with a new coach.

"Who's to say they really wanted the change? That decision was made by upper management," Freeney said in a conference call. "I don't know how they feel, but I know this -- they're going to be playing the San Diego Chargers and they'll play hard regardless of who's coaching and who's not."

One area the Raiders hope to exploit is center, where Chris Watt is the fourth starter in five games because of injuries.

"Any time there's a scenario with someone handling the football it's something you pay attention to," Sparano said. "We need to make sure we pay attention to that and we test it."

Defensive tackle Antonio Smith, starved for a win after being on a Houston team that lost its final 14 games last season and now 0-4 with the Raiders, took one of Sparano's main themes to heart.

"He said he just wants to see us smile after a win on Sunday," Smith said. "You can't do nothing but respect that, because that is a wonderful thing in this game."

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Hope springs anew with Tony Sparano in charge of Raiders

By Vic Tafur

October 11, 2014

If not optimism, there at least will be some anticipation and excitement among the tailgaters at O.co Coliseum on Sunday morning. The fans who have been coming out for the Raiders' home games have pretty much packed away happiness with the leftover hot dog buns and chips when they walk in to see the games the past year.

Oakland has been abysmal, dropping 10 games overall in a row, and it has been even worse at home. The Raiders have lost six straight home games (the most recent was in London), by an average of 20 points. The Nick Foles seven-touchdown game and Jamaal Charles five-TD game were both in Oakland and sent fans to therapy.

But that was then and this is now, and the 0-4 Raiders hope firing head coach Dennis Allen and hiring interim coach Tony Sparano sparks something.

"We're hoping (the fans are) loud and they're excited because we're excited," Sparano said.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Sparano and the Raiders have a tough test, as quarterback Philip Rivers and the Chargers (4-1) might be the hottest team in the NFL. Rivers has a passer rating of at least 120 in four straight games, tied with Kurt Warner and Johnny Unitas for the longest such streak in NFL history.

Sparano has changed the practice tempo and schedule, moved players' lockers and even symbolically buried a football with the team as part of a new start. He plans to run the ball more, but he not only hasn't told reporters (obviously) but he also has held back from players, too, all the changes he plans to implement in his first game.

"I haven't let all my secrets out there with them yet," Sparano said. "I like keeping them, as I told them, a little uncomfortable sometimes. Comfortable is not good. Uncomfortable sometimes is not a bad thing."

He's tried to focus on what the Raiders have done well in the first four games (pass blocking, red-zone defense), but hasn't shied away from direct criticism when warranted.

"We're all renters here, and you have to pay your dues and do the right thing all the time," running back Maurice Jones-Drew said, when asked what Sparano's message was.

Sparano, 53, has been waiting for this moment since his first stint as a head coach ended in 2011 after he went 29-33 with the Dolphins. It started well, as Sparano inherited a team that went 1-15 in 2007 and led it to an 11-5 finish and an AFC East title. But then Miami had three straight losing seasons, and he was fired, serving as the Jets' offensive coordinator in 2012 and the Raiders' offensive line coach in 2013 and the first four games this season.

"I look back on that (Miami) experience quite often, particularly now," Sparano said. "I didn't come into this league to do anything other than, honestly, to be a head coach."

"You look at yourself and you say, 'How could I have done it better? What could I have done differently?' For me to give you one example, I really couldn't give you one example."

Sparano is a Bill Parcells disciple and said the biggest thing he learned from the Super Bowl-winning coach definitely applies in Oakland.

"If you don't beat yourself, you've got a chance to win the football game..., " Sparano said. "There are plenty of excuses out there right now, a lot of them. We're not going to use those excuses."

The Raiders are dead last in the league in rushing, but that doesn't mean they can't run the ball. Sparano went as far as saying he plans to "ride" running backs Darren McFadden and Jones-Drew (11 carries for 12 yards). Heck, he might get them both on the field at the same time, something he did in Miami with the option-oriented wildcat formation.

"We could see anything right now," Sparano said.

The players and the fans are hungry for something new.

"When you don't embrace any change, all you're doing is helping you to stay the same as you were," defensive tackle Antonio Smith said. "And where we were wasn't that damn good."

Would McCoy have turned around Raiders?

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Back in early 2012, the Raiders received permission from the Denver Broncos to interview both defensive coordinator Dennis Allen and offensive coordinator Mike McCoy for their head-coaching vacancy. McCoy wound up canceling a scheduled interview so he could have a second visit with the Miami Dolphins, who would hire Joe Philbin.

Oakland general manager Reggie McKenzie wound up hiring Allen and McCoy returned to the Broncos for another year before becoming the head coach of the San Diego Chargers.

Allen was fired last week after going 8-28, while McCoy is 13-8 in San Diego. The two have vacationed together, and McCoy said he and Allen talked this week. McCoy was asked his reaction to Allen being fired.

"That's all part of the business," he said. "We're doing our thing here, and it's all part of the business. We all understand that when we get into it, it's part of the process."

Allen, who will get paid $2 million this season and next, has turned down interview requests. McCoy expects him to land on his feet quickly.

"Dennis will be fine," McCoy said.

ALAMEDA -- Tony Sparano has seen the enemy, and it's wearing silver and black.

"One of the things that I believe is that you've got to look at reasons how Oakland is beating Oakland right now, never mind our opponents," Sparano said Monday after his first full practice as interim head coach of the Raiders.

Toward that end, Sparano wasted no time in shaking things up. He spent time over the weekend talking with Mike Holmgren, who came in at the behest of general manager Reggie McKenzie, with whom Holmgren worked with the Green Bay Packers.

Holmgren told KJR-AM in Seattle no jobs were discussed.

"I enjoyed getting a chance to visit with him," Sparano said. "It's good to get a different set of eyes, another perspective."

When the Raiders arrived Monday morning, they learned a handful of players had been relocated to different areas of the locker room. Sparano increased the practice tempo, added sessions to work on fundamentals and altered the schedule that had been set by predecessor Dennis Allen.

The Raiders take Tuesday off before beginning preparations in earnest for Sunday's game against the San Diego Chargers at O.co Coliseum.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I think right now there's a fire lit in that locker room," Sparano said. "They see change. We were all part of the problem, every single one of us. ... They've got a lot of pride, and I'm proud of the way they came out there today and practiced."

Sparano, a disciple of Bill Parcells, arrived with the reputation of a straight shooter and did not disappoint.

"The moment he got up on the stage, he brought that commanding presence of what it's going to be, what he expects of us, what he sees out of us, even the bad," defensive tackle Antonio Smith said. "When he tells you the bad, he shoots it to you blood raw. It ain't sugarcoated."

Sparano stressed the good as well as the bad with his team, noting its solid standing in terms of red zone defense and creating negative plays and an offense that has struggled but protected the quarterback and had few plays that lost yardage.

"We got a chance to show the kids what they've done well and what they haven't done well and why," Sparano said.

Rather than explain himself to the team, Sparano simply instituted changes and wasn't interested in dialogue.

"I haven't let all my secrets out there with them yet," Sparano said. "I like keeping them, as I told them, a little uncomfortable sometimes. Comfortable is not good. Uncomfortable sometimes is not a bad thing."

Sparano said that he, secondary coach Marcus Robertson and defensive end Lamarr Woodley had been a part of teams that enjoyed dramatic turnarounds, and he used it as an example to tell the team what is possible.

"It's just something he brought up, but it wasn't discussed," Woodley said. "I think everybody in this locker room knows what we need to do. Me going out there and telling my story is not really important. What's important is what's ahead of us."

Running back Maurice Jones-Drew said Sparano's message was direct and to the point.

"We're all renters here, and you have to pay your dues and do the right thing all the time," Jones-Drew said. "That's what we did today. We came in, watched the tape of the four games, studied ourselves and after that got out to practice, and we're now on to San Diego."

JUSTIN TUCK

Justin Tuck taking Raiders youngsters under his wing

By Jerry McDonald

September 4, 2014

ALAMEDA -- Khalil Mack knows the look.

It could be a problem with the rookie linebacker's footwork, or that he didn't use his hands properly to disengage from a blocker. It's at that point that Raiders defensive end Justin Tuck will step in, the same way Michael Strahan did for Tuck nine seasons ago.

Mack, the No. 5 pick in May's NFL draft, drinks it all in.

"He'll give me that nod, and it's like, 'OK, what did I do this time?,' " Mack said. "J.T. is one of the best in the game and a cool person to be around. You learn a lot just by being around him."

Tuck, 31, is an avid reader who promotes literacy for school children, but it goes beyond a fondness for books. He reads people, reads situations and is fascinated to see how a story unfolds.

The tale started in Kellyton, Alabama, (population 217), continued with big-time college football at Notre Dame and eventually led to starring role in the Big Apple where Tuck became a two-time Super Bowl champion with the New York Giants.

Tuck will be back at MetLife Stadium on Sunday when the Raiders open the regular season against the New York Jets.

"There will be some history, some memories, but we're playing the Jets and not the Giants, so it's just an away game for me," Tuck said.

A self-professed "old soul," Tuck gravitated toward veterans as a young player with the Giants and understands that younger players are now gravitating toward him.

"I can see it, and it's humbling to know that," Tuck said. "I still remember walking into the locker room my rookie year and watching Michael Strahan as a person of influence and watching how he handled things.

"For someone like Khalil Mack, I want to make sure I do my due diligence to make sure he understands what this game can do for him and he gets the best of this game the way Strahan did for me."

Raiders defensive tackle Stacy McGee, in his second season out of Oklahoma, has paid close attention.

"You're playing alongside one of the greats of the game, learning about tendencies and all the things he's seen," McGee said. "He's got so much to share with us, and not just about football, but about life. And he's very humble and approachable."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Middle linebacker Nick Roach said, "Justin has such a strong influence he can pull other players along with him.'

As detailed in an E:60 feature on ESPN, Tuck ended up at Notre Dame purely by accident. Two recruiters in the area to scout another player ended up at a gas station after taking a wrong turn. When told the recruiters were in town to look at a linebacker, the attendant assumed they were talking about Tuck and directed them to Central Coosa County High.

Tuck, a tight end, defensive end and linebacker, had a big game and was offered a scholarship that night.

After starring at Notre Dame and leaving as the all-time leader in sacks with 241/2, Tuck lasted until the third round because of a persistent knee injury. His nine seasons with the Giants included 601/2 sacks and coming up huge in Super Bowl wins over the New England Patriots after the 2007 and 2011 seasons with two sacks in each game.

Despite 11 sacks last season, the Giants made no serious effort to sign Tuck for a 10th season, and the Raiders reeled him in with a two-year deal worth $11 million.

"You've been in one place nine years, and you know what to expect," Tuck said. "Now I don't know what to expect. We're going into our first game. I don't know how certain guys will respond to adversities or successes. It's all fresh. It keeps you on your toes and it's exciting."

Tuck has instituted MMA training with his usual fitness regimen and firmly believes that "age is a number." Coach Dennis Allen said, "He can still play at a high level and is primed for a very good year."

In New York, Tuck and his wife, Luran, founded RUSH to Literacy (Read, Understand, Succeed, Hope) to promote literacy among school children. Tuck made personal appearances at schools in New York, New Jersey and Alabama and donated more than 50,000 books.

The program is being continued in Oakland, with Tuck finalizing plans for his first appearance at a local school.

In 2011, Tuck authored a children's book called "Home Field Advantage" that included humorous accounts of his youth in Kellyton, growing up as the youngest of seven children -- including five older sisters.

Tuck said he's working on a second book that in a way mirrors his NFL career.

"I've written most of it, but I'm not finished with it yet," Tuck said.

MENELIK WATSON

BAY AREA NEWS GROUP (OAKLAND TRIBUNE, CC TIMES, SJ MERCURY NEWS)

Jolly ol' homecoming for Raiders' Menlik Watson

By Jerry McDonald

September 24, 2014

BAGSHOT, England -- Growing up poor in working-class Manchester, Menelik Watson would let his mind wander as countless other pre-teens did growing up in the United Kingdom.

"Playing in the FA Cup at Wembley was something you always dreamed of as a kid," Watson said of soccer's grand stage after the Raiders completed their first practice session on a rugby pitch Wednesday. "It's like a dream, really."

Watson's return to his homeland Sunday against the Miami Dolphins won't be the perfect dream -- not because he'll be playing the wrong kind of football. Only that he won't be hearing his number called as the offensive line starter he expected to be for the Raiders.

The second-year player, who had never played American football until 2011, understands his is already a remarkable story -- even if he must settle for snaps as a blocking tight end until he wins the right tackle job.

"It's folklore," Kyle Long, a Chicago Bears tackle and son of Raiders Hall of Fame defensive end Howie Long, told Yahoo Sports in 2013. "It's almost a tall tale."

Manchester is more than 200 miles north of London but may as well be a world away. Watson's father left when he was 9, and Menelik lived with his mother in a steadily deteriorating neighborhood rife with drugs and crime. Two older brothers ended up in prison.

Watson broke his leg so badly in a pick-up soccer game at age 12 that doctors wondered if he'd ever walk again without a limp. He eventually turned to basketball and at age 18 was spotted by Rob Orellana, an AAU coach who convinced Watson to attend his academy in the Canary Islands.

In the ensuing years, Watson became a father, played basketball at Marist College in upstate New York, left school, dabbled in boxing and then ended up giving football a try at Saddleback Community College in Southern California.

With nothing but raw skill and no idea how to put on shoulder pads or a helmet, Watson got a crash course. But he was soon doing damage as a right tackle, with Kyle Long on the left side.

Long, once a star pitcher at Florida State, had also changed sports.

Howie Long, who is in England and watched the Raiders practice Wednesday, smiled in recounting that single season at Saddleback.

"Kyle walks in the office one day and says, 'Hi, I'm Kyle Long and I would like to to try out for your team,' " he said. "And then Menelik Watson walks in and says, 'Hi, I'm Menelik,' and the two tackles, there they are."

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Howie Long remembers helping teach Watson blocking technique in parking lots at 10 p.m. following Saddleback games. Watson was a quick study and earned a scholarship to Florida State, where he played a single season before declaring for the NFL draft and becoming a second-round pick by the Raiders.

Howie Long calls Watson "our adopted son." Another son, Howie Long Jr., is working in the Raiders personnel office. Watson considers the Long sons "like brothers" and Howie Long Sr. an uncle.

"He told me from the first day he met me about my ability and told me to stay working, constantly improving and to stay patient," Watson said. "That's something he told me on the field just now. I value everything he says because nobody did it like Howie did it."

Raiders coach Dennis Allen said Watson, 26, is still in the learning stages of a sport he took up so late.

"I'm not in any way disappointed as far as where he's at," Allen said. "He's still relatively young to the game. He's just got some development to do, some growing up to do."

Watson has enjoyed being an NFL ambassador in his home country but not as much as being reunited with his daughter. Orellana, now 6 and named after the man who guided Watson through basketball and into football, lives with her mother in England.

"I got to pick her up from school and give her a hug and a kiss," Watson said. "It was her birthday Saturday, so I took her into town and spoiled her a bit. She got a little emotional when I was leaving. But I get to see her this weekend, so it's not that bad."

Raiders' lineman Menelik Watson returns to his Manchester roots

By Vic Tafur

September 24, 2014

BAGSHOT, England — Menelik Watson had a news conference in London on Wednesday, 200 miles south of where the Raiders tackle grew up and dreamed of being someone who would one day have a news conference.

One day when he was a kid in Manchester, Watson was picturing himself as a Manchester City soccer player when the stomach growlings became too much to bear and he went off looking for food. The kid whose single mom was busy working to support five kids found a cafeteria, but he had no money.

So he ate all the packets of ketchup he could find. It happened more than once.

"I had a tough childhood at times, but I wouldn't change a thing," Watson said. "I love my family and my city, and they made me who I am today."

Watson turned to sports to escape a life of gangs and drugs in Manchester that swallowed up two of his older brothers and sent them to jail. He played soccer until he was 12, when he broke his leg so badly, "the word amputate came up for a second," Watson said.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Doctors were convinced he wouldn't be able to walk again without a serious limp, but Watson pushed on, trying to find his ticket out of the "tough, working man's town," as he called it. He tried basketball, boxing and then football.

Basketball got him to the United States, and American football got him back to England, as a member of one of the two NFL teams playing at Wembley Stadium on Sunday.

"As a kid, we all had dreams to play in the Premier League and stuff. Playing in the FA Cup in Wembley was always something you dreamed of as a kid. American football wise, no. Not even after I got drafted.

"I watched the Steelers out here last year versus Minnesota and then I didn't really think until the schedule came out. It's like a dream, really."

Monday, Watson drove to Manchester to see his daughter, Orellana, who lives with her mother and just turned 6.

"I got to pick her up from school and give her a hug and a kiss," Watson said. "It was her birthday Saturday, so I took her into town and spoiled her a bit. She got a little emotional when I was leaving. But I get to see her this weekend, so it's not that bad."

Orellana is named after Rob Orellana, who noticed the now-6-foot-5 Watson as kid and recruited him to his play for his basketball academy team in Spain. That was Watson's ticket out of Manchester, and from there he punched another one with a basketball scholarship offer from Marist College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

But basketball didn't take. And after a brief flirtation with boxing, Watson went to live with Orellana and his family in Southern California. When he said he wanted to try football, Orellana called Saddleback College coach Mark McElroy and asked him if he wanted to try out a 6-5, 300-pound lineman.

Guess what the answer was.

Watson's raw ability was enough to win the job at right tackle, and a former pitcher was at left tackle. That was Kyle Long, current Chicago Bears guard and the son of Raiders Hall of Famer Howie Long.

Howie Long was at Raiders practice Wednesday watching Watson.

"Kyle is a brother to me and Howie is like an uncle," Watson said. "He told me from the first day he met me about my ability and just told me to stay working, constantly improving and to be patient.

"That's something he just told me out there on the field just now. I value everything he says because nobody did it like Howie did it."

With his power, fast hands and feet, Watson moved through the ranks quickly. He played one year at Saddleback and then one year at Florida State before the Raiders drafted him in the second round last year.

"Football was my last option or I would have to go back to England," Watson said. "It was my last opportunity to make something of myself, and I threw all of my eggs into one basket. You don't want your eggs to break, so you do everything you can to make sure they're fine."

Watson was the starting right tackle for Oakland throughout the preseason, until veteran Khalif Barnes beat him out at the last minute.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"I'm not in any way disappointed as far as where he's at," Raiders coach Dennis Allen said. "He's still relatively young to the game. He's just got some development to do."

Watson is disappointed that he is not starting, but he will play a little bit and will enjoy what the applause Sunday means for him and for kids in this country like him.

"It brings a lot of attention to England and eventually it will open more doors for kids," Watson said. "I have been blessed with so many opportunities, and maybe a kid will see one that he hadn't thought of."

Watson: Homecoming, reunion with daughter "will be special"

By Scott Bair

September 23, 2014

LONDON – Menelik Watson is in demand this week. The Raiders offensive lineman has a press conference scheduled for Wednesday, when the British media circus will descend on one of the NFL's only Englishmen.

If a summer press tour promoting Sunday's game between his Raiders and the Miami Dolphins is any indication, his countrymen will pull him in a thousand directions.

There's one thing Watson really looks forward to. His daughter Orellana turned six on Saturday, and there's a belated birthday celebration in the works.

"I'm sad I'm going to miss the actual day, but we'll celebrate as soon as I can go home and go see her," Watson told CSN Bay Area last week, in the calm before the media storm. "We're going to go out to eat and we're going to find her something nice for her birthday."

Watson rarely gets the chance. He's missed far too many birthdays for his taste, stuck across the pond following a dream and a business venture. He couldn't afford to come home as a collegian bouncing around the country, trying to find a place to stick.

He played basketball at Marist College, then football at Saddleback JC in Orange County, then a year at Florida State before being selected in the second round of the 2013 NFL draft.

"I've been on this road for a long time now," Watson said. "I'm used to the routine and I'm used to being away from home. You miss it, but a lot of times you have to be cold and not let it weigh on your mood. But the time I do get to spend there is precious, and I value every second."

That's why Watson feels like he's stealing something this week. He was ecstatic when the schedule was released and a London stop was on the agenda. It remains a business trip and his focus will fix on football, but the free time spent with Orellana will be precious.

The offseason schedule keeps Watson stateside most of the time, with roughly a month reserved for Manchester. That's where Watson grew up, poor but loved in a working class town. There were opportunities to take the wrong path, to make a quick buck with huge, huge risk.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

Some friends and family got caught, and ended up paying an unwelcome debt to society. Athletics was his way out of that life, but celebrity wasn't the ultimate goal. He wanted to do something special, be better than what was expected.

"I come from simple beginnings and I had simple dreams," Watson said. "I never wished for fame and fortune. All I wanted was a family.

"The area I was growing up in started getting worse and we were struggling. That's when I decided I was going to do different. I wanted to do something great with my life. I knew I had athletic gifts, but I had to put in time and effort to turn it into something."

Watson did, and it has brought him to a big stage in his homeland. He isn't starting as he and the Raiders thought he would this offseason, but he'll be a player in jumbo packages and will see his share of playing time on Sunday.

He'll have more than 50 close friends and family in attendance, and plenty of fans rooting for him at Wembley. As always, Orellana is the one he wants to impress.

"This is a chance for her to see what her dad does, and hopefully she better understands why I'm not there every day," Watson said. "Hopefully Sunday will be special for her. I know it will be special for me."

CHARLES WOODSON

BAY AREA NEWS GROUP (OAKLAND TRIBUNE, CC TIMES, SJ MERCURY NEWS)

NFL preview: Raiders' Charles Woodson right at home in wine country

By Daniel Brown

September 4, 2014

Even as the superstar face of his own wine label, Charles Woodson likes to mix things up with the vineyard's special-teamers. He and a Raiders strength coach once arrived for harvest time at 5 a.m. on the team's day off, each of them wielding shears and snipping grapes off the vine.

"We're just plugging away one bunch at a time, and all of a sudden you see this wave of guys -- whoosh! -- blowing through this vineyard," the eight-time Pro Bowl selection recalled. "We might have gotten three bunches off the vine by the time they finished the whole row."

Woodson tells this story with a glass of the finished product in his left hand, a 2008 cabernet sauvignon. This is his wine, his wine bar, his way of winding down. The defensive back sits in a corner booth of the Cult Following in downtown Napa so freshly removed from the Raiders practice field that he still is dressed in shorts and a silver-and-black Windbreaker.

TwentyFour wines, named in honor of Woodson's jersey number in Oakland, originated in 2001. It is an unusual pairing, the kid from small-town Ohio and the masters of the Napa Valley, but Woodson has found his niche with a well-reviewed cab that sells for $112 a bottle.

"He's really well thought of up here in the wine country," said Carmen Policy, a former 49ers executive who has his own acclaimed Casa Piena label. "A lot of people around here really roll their eyes, 'Oh, great, another celebrity who wants to put their name on the label.' But Charles is serious about wanting to produce a quality wine and about understanding the process."

Woodson, 37, enters this season on a one-year contract with the Raiders and, though he has said he has no plans to retire, it's easy to speculate that 2014 will put the cork in his Hall of Fame career. Woodson is two years removed from his last Pro Bowl selection and is one of only three players still active from the 1998 draft (Peyton Manning and Matt Hasselbeck are the others).

Whenever he does decide to hang 'em up, retirement sure looks inviting. He strolled into Cult Following about 20 minutes after practice, found a comfortable chair and a server who, without being asked, handed him a glass of the 2008 -- always the 2008.

The vineyard is down the road, about 25 miles on the St. Helena Highway, to Calistoga. From those 12 acres, Woodson expects to produce 1,200 cases of cabernet and 1,000 cases of sauvignon blanc this year.

The patch of land sits below the towering spectacle of Sterling Vineyards -- all 1,200 acres of it -- and the shadow serves as a reminder that Woodson is still just a role player here.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"You know that little cap on your bicycle that keeps the air in? That's how small we are compared to the rest of the wineries in the world," said Rick Ruiz, the director of operations for TwentyFour Wines.

Ruiz, a convivial Napa native who learned his craft at the Robert Mondavi Winery, keeps an eye on the reds and whites while Woodson is busy with football.

The two agree on everything about wine -- except for how they met. Woodson said it was through a promotional event at Raiders camp; Ruiz said it was in the tasting room at Mondavi, after he spotted the Heisman Trophy winner drinking a bottle he had worked on.

Woodson concedes the tiebreaker when Ruiz argues that he is much more likely to remember the day he met Charles Woodson than the other way around.

Either way, the friendship began in 2001, when Woodson was in his fourth season in the NFL -- and still a fledgling rookie when it came to wine. He lacked versatility.

"When I started trying wine, I started drinking merlot, and that's all I had," Woodson said. "I would go to dinner, and I'd see people drinking wine, and if I ordered anything, it would just be a merlot."

"Merlot. Merlot. Merlot," Ruiz said, still exasperated. "It got to the point where I told him, 'Charles, you're missing some of the best things in the world by only drinking merlot.' "

It took about six months of pestering, but Woodson eventually expanded his game. That was a turning point. Soon, Woodson wanted to know everything about the process -- from the agriculture to the economics to the marketing -- and started to impress Ruiz, 44, with his knack for pairing the right wines with any dish.

"Initially what drew me to it was that it seems to be a culture here in the valley, and there always seems to be a family atmosphere around wine," Woodson said. "People are truly into it. They come to the restaurant, they have their own bottle. They bring it in as a conversation piece.

"It was a culture. And I was interested in the whole deal. What is this all about?"

For kicks, they made a single barrel for charity -- merlot, of course -- starting in 2004. But a funny thing happened on the way to the glass: It was delicious.

"That's when we realized that we should start getting serious," Ruiz said.

With Gustavo A. Gonzalez, who also began his career at Mondavi, aboard as the winemaker, TwentyFour Wines had its release party in 2009, when they shared their '05, '06 and '07 vintages.

Among the early converts was Scott Lewis, the proprietor at V Wine Cellar, who said that Woodson's creation now ranks among the best cabs from the region, a conversation that includes Outpost, Melka Wines and Policy's Casa Piena.

"Sometimes, with these vanity projects, people don't always put in the time and effort into making something great," Lewis said. "But Charles is like Carmen in that he put in his due diligence when it came to getting something to his liking. He's not a flash in the pan."

Woodson's beloved '08, for example, offers brier notes and black fruits. The oak is integrated but not overdone, as with so many luxury Napa reds. It's a big wine with firm tannins, but not saddled with the uber-ripe fruit that has become the industry standard.

Oakland Raiders Feature Clips

"What I'm trying to do as a winemaker is reflect Charles' taste, what he wants," Gonzalez said. "The reason we picked the vineyard we did is because it was the one most capable of producing his style."

***

In creating his own label, Woodson joined a deep roster of other sports figures that have made a name in the wine business, such as Tom Seaver, Dick Vermeil, Rich Aurilia, Jeff Gordon and Ernie Els.

All along, Woodson has retained the charity element. With every bottle sold, Woodson donates $10 to the C.S. Mott Children's Hospital at his alma mater, the University of Michigan.

At the time of the original release party, Woodson was in Green Bay, where he spent seven seasons monitoring his vineyard via text messages and emails back home. Ruiz also made frequent visits to Packers country, and the two delighted in converting cheeseheads into wine snobs. The wine events had fun with food pairings. (Handy tip: A bratwurst goes best with a red.)

Ruiz recounted those ambassador trips while standing amid the rows at TwentyFour vineyards on a soft summer morning. He plucked from a vine and held a single grape in the palm of his hand.

"This thing right here has built us a friendship with people for life. We have so many friends in the Midwest," Ruiz says. "So now our thing is, we're trying to get those kinds of friendships with the Bay Area people. One Raider fan at a time, we want to come toward them."

When Woodson returned to Oakland last season, he resumed trying to pair his reds and whites with the Silver & Black. TwentyFour Wines set up a tent in the parking lot on game days in an attempt to make Woodson's wine the drink of choice at tailgate parties -- the Raiders Libation.

At first, nobody bothered to look up.

"Even the cops looked at us like we were from Mars," Ruiz said. "And by the third home game, everybody was our new best friend. People started to realize that you can drink a Coors Light every day of the week. It's not very often you can taste a 2007 Calistoga Cabernet from Charles Woodson's vineyard, especially because we were limited in our production."

There is no winery to visit, but the public can meet at the vineyard by appointment. For now, Woodson steers people toward Cult Following, the wine bar on First Street in downtown Napa.

Next up are tentative plans for a Woodson wine tasting room to open in September, another place to toast one of the greatest careers ever put together by a defensive back. Woodson enters this season needing one more interception return for a touchdown to tie Rod Woodson's NFL record of 12. (Charles and Rod Woodson are not related.)

Charles Woodson's 909 career interception return yards also rank second among active players, behind Ed Reed's (1,590).

Once he is done picking off passes, Woodson can really focus on picking off those grapes. He will savor retirement soon, but he sees no reason to wait for the good life.

"I like to call my wines 'anytime wines,' " he said. "You just want to sit and open up a bottle and watch 'The Blacklist' on a Monday night? Open it up, and it's very easy. It's very approachable."
