

RAVENS IN OUR COMMUNITY

L.I.F.T. CONFERENCE

The Baltimore Ravens hosted their inaugural L.I.F.T. (Leading and Inspiring Females to Thrive) Conference in May at the Under Armour Performance Center in Owings Mills. Female student-athletes from all 24 Baltimore City public high schools were invited to attend. The event was designed to empower the next generation of female student-athletes by helping them succeed both on and off the playing field. The students learned about leadership principles from Ravens head coach John Harbaugh and Pam Herath, of SportsChallenge Leadership Academy based in Washington, D.C. The group then broke out into a workout session powered by Under Armour, designed to help the students discover how their on-field skills can be applied to their personal and professional lives.

RAVENS SCHOLARS

The Ravens organization continued its partnership with CollegeBound Foundation, an independent nonprofit designed to work exclusively with local students. Funded by the Ravens Foundation, Inc., the scholarship program enables local youth to continue their education on a collegiate level with a $5,000 renewable scholarship for each student. This year the Ravens hosted their inaugural luncheon dedicated to honoring all Ravens Scholars past and present (pictured below).

BEACH BASH

Ravenstown made its annual road trip to Ocean City, Md., the last weekend in May when fans joined players, cheerleaders and mascot Poe in celebration of the fourth-annual Ravens Beach Bash. DT Brandon Williams (pictured right) joined TE Crockett Gilmore, DB Anthony Levine and WR Steve Smith Sr. to participate in several activities over the course of the weekend. Events included beach volleyball and a parade down Coastal Highway, where players signed autographs and posed for pictures with fans.

WEBB'S CHARITY SOFTBALL GAME

Ravens CB/RS Lardarius Webb (pictured right) hosted his foundation's sixth-annual Charity Softball Game at M&T Bank stadium this past June. More than 10,000 people witnessed the defense get its first victory over the offense with all of the proceeds benefitting the Lardarius Webb Foundation. The foundation supports underprivileged Baltimore youth, specifically Boys and Girls Clubs throughout Maryland. Several past and present Ravens players participated including WR Marlon Brown, DE Chris Canty, WR Steve Smith Sr. and former teammates S Ed Reed and WR Torrey Smith.
