Ravens Host Youth Group at Training Camp

On Tuesday (8/16), the Ravens hosted children from Baltimore's Goodnow Police Athletic League at training camp in Owings Mills, Md. The group of 20 children had the unique opportunity to attend practice and see what it is like to be a Ravens player.

Upon arrival, the group received Ravens lanyards, fans and hats to help them boast their team spirit and stay cool. At the beginning of practice, the young fans sat eagerly on the edge of their seats as head coach John Harbaugh (top center) and owner Steve Bisciotti (bottom left) walked to the bleachers to welcome the group. During practice, the children were able to cheer on the players and participate in a variety of football drills.

As practice ended, players, including RB Ray Rice (bottom center) and WR Anquan Boldin (bottom right), hustled to the sidelines to meet the group and sign autographs.

Ravens Kick Off Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Event

For 2011, the Ravens have partnered with the American Cancer Society in their efforts to save lives, celebrate more birthdays and end breast cancer forever. On Wednesday (8/17), Ravens cheerleaders joined ACS state vice-president Gloria Jetter (left), volunteers and breast cancer survivors at a sponsor breakfast to kick off the Making Strides Against Breast Cancer event. This year, the Ravens hope to assist the American Cancer Society in honoring breast cancer survivors, remembering people we have lost, and raising funds and awareness to help end this disease.
