The Baltimore Ravens welcomed family, friends and fans back to the Under Armour Performance Center as they prepared for the 2023 season. Over the course of 19 open practices, the Ravens were also joined by a record-breaking 108 different community groups that had a front row seat to the magic of training camp. Some local community groups included Special Olympics, Boys and Girls Clubs, TAPS, Level 82, Athletes Serving Athletes, League for People with Disabilities, 53 Families Foundation, Girl Scouts, NIH Children's Hospital and Kennedy Krieger Institute. Additional training camp highlights included Military/First Responders Day, Youth Football Day and two joint practices with the Washington Commanders. The energy from this year's training camp has radiated into the surrounding Baltimore community, and the Ravens Flock is ready to take on the 2023 season!
