

2026 OFFSEASON & TRAINING CAMP PRACTICE REPORTING POLICY

Tactical Information:

- Nothing can be reported from the practice facility that is of a tactical nature. This includes any information that can help opponents prepare to compete against the Ravens.

Photos/Video/Live Streaming:

- Interview availabilities, open practice sessions and/or other team activities that occur on club premises (Under Armour Performance Center/M&T Bank Stadium) cannot be live-streamed. This includes the use of social media applications such as X, Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat, TikTok, YouTube, Ustream, etc.
- Television stations looking to broadcast live from club premises or carry media availabilities on live TV must first gain clearance from a Ravens' communications representative.
- Still photography and videotaping are only allowed during individual position drills or when specified by a Ravens' communications staffer. No 11-on-11, seven-on-seven, formation or team sessions may be captured.

Electronic Devices:

- Aside from taking pictures and recording video during an open shooting period, cellphones may not be used to report from or communicate with when a reporter is standing close to the practice field sidelines.
- For those with iPads or similar tablet devices to take notes, these may be used, but only after receiving clearance from a Ravens' communications official.
- Meta Glasses – or other AI/filming glasses of any kind – are not permitted at practice, interview availabilities or during in-season open locker room media sessions.

Reporting/Media Viewing:

- During minicamps, OTAs and training camp, media may report non-injury information during the open shooting portion of practice (or immediately thereafter). Guidelines include, but are not limited to:
 - Media may report which players are practicing as well as those who are not.
 - Media may include non-strategy and non-game plan observations in their reporting.
 - Reference to plays run or game strategy cannot be reported.
 - No reporting of which players are practicing within individual units (e.g. goal line, trick plays, blitz packages, nickel defense, etc.).
 - Comments overheard between coaches, players and staff cannot be reported. This information may also not be included in reporting (social media or otherwise) at a later date.
- Injuries: As required by the NFL, injuries that occur during open practices can be reported – but only after the open practice or portion of that open practice has concluded.
 - Unless a player is injured during an open practice or is viewed during these open media sessions wearing protective or rehabilitative devices/equipment, such devices/equipment cannot be reported. (In other words, media can only report what they see on the practice field.)
