

RAVENS IN OUR COMMUNITY

TRAINING CAMP VISITORS

Head Coach John Harbaugh and Tyler Guzman

Training camp provides the Ravens an opportunity to invite special guests and community groups to watch the players practice at the Under Armour Performance Center in Owings Mills, MD. Honorary visitors included Erika Brannock, a local preschool teacher and Boston Marathon bombing survivor, and Tyler Guzman, a teenager battling cancer who was a part of the Ravens' 2012 playoff run. Non-profit organizations that have attended training camp thus far include Special Olympics Maryland, Athletes Serving Athletes, children of the Police Athletic League, My Sister's Circle, the Wounded Warrior Project and Casey Cares Foundation. Following practice, players take the time to meet and sign autographs for the special attendees.

WR Torrey Smith, Erika Brannock and QB Joe Flacco

ILB Arthur Brown

NAVAL ACADEMY OPEN PRACTICE

For the second-consecutive year, the Baltimore Ravens journeyed to Annapolis, MD, to hold a training camp practice at the Naval Academy's Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium. The practice, which was open to the public, gave fans the opportunity to watch the 2013 Ravens battle it out up close and personal. Concession stands provided food and beverages, and various sections were randomly chosen to receive free Ravens t-shirts. Towards the conclusion of practice, children ages 6-14 were invited to the lower rows of the seating bowl to obtain player autographs. The practice also offered the players their first opportunity to play as a group in front of a crowd of nearly 20,000 spirited fans.

FB Vonta Leach

OLB Elvis Dumervil

