

RAVENS IN OUR COMMUNITY

2020 COMMUNITY QB AWARD

Supported by the Ravens Foundation, Inc., T. Rowe Price and the NFL Foundation, the annual Community Quarterback Award honors exceptional Maryland volunteers who exemplify leadership, dedication and commitment to improving the communities in which they live. Honorees were awarded with Ravens apparel, a commemorative trophy and a financial grant benefiting their respective nonprofit organization.

2020 WINNERS

The Baltimore Ravens have selected 10 honorees as recipients of the 2020 Community Quarterback Award. Lana Anderson (Small Things Matter), Aaron Augustine (Leukemia & Lymphoma Society), Linda Carney (LifeStyles of Maryland Foundation, Inc.), Tyde-Courtney Edwards (FORCE: Upsetting Rape Culture), Danny Farrar (Platoon 22), John Fry (Community Action Council of Howard County), Abdul Hadi Winder (Corner Team, Inc.), Dave Hall (The Image Center of MD), Bob Signor (Special Olympics MD), and Leo Zerhusen (HOPE For All) were selected as winners of the prestigious award. Honorees were spotlighted before the home game against Dallas on Dec. 3 during the Ravens' Pregame Live show. Each honoree serves the Maryland community, through service and dedication, with efforts that have continued and, in most cases, amplified, despite the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. The Ravens selected a wide variety of volunteers who support their local community through sport and mentorship, aiding underserved youth and families and supporting cancer patients, veterans and survivors of sexual and domestic assault.

"We always express to our survivors the most important thing you can ever do for someone is to make them feel seen and make them feel heard. Receiving this award does just that. It lets us know that every sacrifice made has not been in vain. People are watching the work being done, and above all, the community is able to directly benefit from the added exposure, allowing us to service more women in need."

- Tyde-Courtney Edwards, FORCE: Upsetting Rape Culture

"I can't put into words how honored I was to be nominated, and selected, to be a Ravens' Community QB Award recipient. What I appreciate even more is that the Ravens not only acknowledge the work of those striving to make Maryland better, but they also actively contribute financial assistance to help make those dreams a reality! Thank you so much!"

- Danny Farrar, Platoon 22
