Ravens Host Military Group at Training Camp

On Tuesday (8/23), the Ravens showed their appreciation for the nation's service men and women by hosting the Warrior Transition Unit (WTU) from Ft. Belvoir at training camp. The group of men and women toured the facility and experienced the unique opportunity to stand on the sidelines at practice in Owings Mills, Md.

Upon arrival, the WTU was treated to a hearty brunch in the Ravens' cafe dining room. Each of the visitors received a Ravens lanyard, fan and hat as a memento of their trip to the Ravens training facility.

As practice ended, head coach John Harbaugh (left center) invited the group to be part of the team huddle. Some members of the group shared stories from their experiences in the military while other imparted words of encouragement with the team. In the end, the players, coaches and WTU came together for a unified cheer. Afterwards, players, including CB Lardarius Webb (bottom center), QB Joe Flacco and WR Lee Evans (bottom right) signed autographs and thanked the group for protecting our freedom.

Ravens Honor Hispanic Heritage Leader Award Recipient

Despite the stormy weather, the Ravens honored Luis Borunda (left) with the NFL Hispanic Heritage Leadership Award on Thursday (8/25). The inaugural award recognizes an individual who exhibits outstanding leadership characteristics and has a positive impact on the Hispanic community. As the founder and president of U.S. Hispanic Youth Entrepreneur Education, Borunda prepares, equips and motivates Hispanic youth during their high school to college transition. In addition to receiving tickets to the game, the honoree received a $2,000 donation to his nonprofit of choice.
