TITANS HOST GIANTS IN OPENER; KICKOFF 3:25 PM SUNDAY ON FOX

Sunday, Sept. 11, 2022 • 3:25 p.m. CDT • Nissan Stadium • Nashville, Tenn. • TV: FOX (WZTV-17)

NASHVILLE — The Tennessee Titans (0-0) begin the 2022 regular season this week with a late afternoon home game against the New York Giants (0-0). Kickoff at Nissan Stadium (69,143) is scheduled for 3:25 p.m. CDT on Sunday, Sept. 11.

In 12 all-time meetings between the Titans and Giants, the series is tied 6-6, including a 2-1 edge for the Titans at Nissan Stadium. The Giants have not appeared at Nissan Stadium since recording a win in 2014. The last time the Titans and Giants clashed was Dec. 16, 2018, when the Titans recorded a 17-0 shutout at MetLife Stadium.

The Titans are 32-30 all-time in season openers, including one previous contest with the Giants, a loss at New York in 1973. More recently, Mike Vrabel is 2-2 as Titans head coach on Kickoff Weekend. Under Vrabel, the Titans have recorded season-opening victories in 2019 (at Cleveland) and 2020 (at Denver) and losses in 2018 (at Miami) and 2021 (against Arizona).

THE BROADCAST

Sunday's contest will be regionally televised on Fox, including Nashville affiliate WZTV Fox 17. The broadcast team includes play-by-play announcer Kevin Kugler, analyst Mark Sanchez and reporter Laura Okmin.

Fans in Nashville can stream live Titans games with the newly-launched NFL+ subscription service, which offers access to all local games and all primetime games on phones and tablets, live local and national audio for every NFL game, and more.

The Titans Radio Network and Nashville flagship 104.5 The Zone carry all Titans games across the Mid-South with the "Voice of the Titans" Mike Keith, analyst Dave McGinnis, sideline reporter Amie Wells and gameday host Rhett Bryan.

TITANS SEEK THIRD CONSECUTIVE DIVISION TITLE

Vrabel and Titans executive vice president/general manager Jon Robinson lead the team into the regular season seeking their third consecutive AFC South division title and a fourth straight playoff campaign. The Titans are joined by the Buffalo Bills, Kansas City Chiefs and Green Bay Packers as the only NFL clubs to clinch playoff berths in each of the last three years.

Only the Chiefs (2013–2021) have more consecutive winning seasons than the Titans entering 2022. The Titans have finished above the .500 mark in each of the six seasons since Robinson arrived in 2016.

This week several members of the Titans roster could see their first regular-season action in their new home. Eight of the club's nine 2022 draft picks are on the 53-man roster, including first-round wide receiver Treyton Burks and second-round cornerback Roger McCreary. The roster also includes veteran additions such as tight end Austin Hooper and wide receiver Robert Woods. A total of 21 newcomers on the roster (39.6 percent) have been added since last season ended (as of Sept. 5).

The new pieces supplement a returning nucleus that helped the Titans go 12-5 in 2021 and claim the top seed in the AFC playoffs. The group of carryovers includes Pro Bowl quarterback Ryan Tannehill, whose 30 wins are the most by a starting quarterback in franchise history during the player's first three years with the organization, and two-time NFL rushing champion Derrick Henry (2019 and 2020), who ranks fourth in team history with 6,797 career rushing yards. Through the first eight weeks of 2021, Henry ranked first in the NFL with 937 rushing yards but finished the regular season on injured reserve.

On defense, safety Kevin Byard and defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons return from Pro Bowl seasons in 2021, headlining a group that ranked second in the NFL in rushing defense (84.6 yards per game), sixth in third-down defense (36.7 percent), sixth in scoring defense (20.8 points per game) and tied for ninth in sacks (43).

THE GIANTS

The Giants launch a new era this week, as Brian Daboll begins his head-coaching tenure. The former Bills offensive coordinator joined the Giants early in the offseason, shortly after new general manager Joe Schoen likewise was hired away from the Bills. They look to rejuvenate a Giants team that finished 4-13 last year.

Giants quarterback Daniel Jones embarks upon his fourth NFL campaign. The sixth-overall selection in the 2019 draft passed for 8,398 yards, 44 touchdowns and 29 interceptions during his first three seasons. In 2021, Jones was limited to 11 starts, passing for 2,428 yards with 10 touchdowns and seven interceptions.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR THIS WEEK

S KEVIN BYARD

- With 23 career interceptions, he needs one interception (23 interceptions entering the season) to tie Zeke Moore (24) for 10th place on the all-time franchise interception list.
- Needs two interceptions to tie Michael Griffin and Ken Houston (25) for eighth place all-time for the franchise. He would tie Griffin for the most interceptions for the franchise during its "Titans era" (1999–present).

RB DERRICK HENRY

- Can record his 29th career 100-yard rushing game, including regular season and playoffs.
- Needs two touchdowns (68 career) to become the third player in franchise history with 70 total touchdowns, joining Eddie George (74) and Earl Campbell (73).

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Needs one start to break a tie with Steve McNair (43 consecutive starts from 2001 to 2003) for the most consecutive starts in franchise history by a quarterback. Tannehill has started each of the last 43 regular season games since taking over as the team's quarterback during the 2019 season.
- Can extend his career-best streak to 16 consecutive games with at least one passing or rushing touchdown.
- Can record his 25th career 300-yard passing game and his ninth such performance since joining the Titans in 2019. Nine 300-yard games with the Titans would put him ahead of Marcus Mariota (eight) for fourth place in franchise history.
- Needs one touchdown pass to reach 200 for his career.
- Needs one touchdown pass to take sole possession of fifth place on the franchise's passing touchdowns list. With 76 touchdown passes in a Titans uniform, he is tied with Marcus Mariota for fifth place behind Warren Moon (196), George Blanda (165), Steve McNair (156) and Dan Pastorini (96).

HEAD COACH MIKE VRABEL

- Needs one win to reach 44 career wins with the franchise, including playoffs. He would tie Jack Pardee (44-35) for the third-highest win total in franchise history behind only Jeff Fisher (147) and Bum Phillips (59).

WR ROBERT WOODS

- Scheduled to make his Titans debut and can extend his career-best streak of 34 consecutive individual games with at least two receptions.

SERIES HISTORY

This week's game marks the 13th meeting between the Titans and Giants. The series is tied 6-6, dating back to Sept. 16, 1973, when the Giants defeated the Houston Oilers 34-14 in the season opener at Yankee Stadium.

Of all opponents that have been in existence since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger, the Giants, Arizona Cardinals, Philadelphia Eagles and Washington Commanders have played the Oilers/Titans the fewest amount of times—12 games each.

After the Giants won the first five matchups between the franchises, the Titans/Oilers won the next five meetings. The streak included a 10-6 Oilers win in 1997, a 28-14 win in 2000, a 32-29 overtime victory in 2002, a come-from-behind 24-21 win in 2006 and a 29-10 decision in 2010.

The Giants took back the series momentum in 2014 with a 36-7 victory at Nissan Stadium. The Giants scored the game's first 30 points as Eli Manning passed for 260 yards and rookie Odell Beckham Jr. recorded 130 receiving yards.

The Titans and Giants have met twice at MetLife Stadium, most recently on Dec. 16, 2018. The Titans won 17-0 to record the franchise's first shutout since 2000 and only the fourth road shutout in team annals. Derrick Henry rushed for 170 yards and two touchdowns, while the Titans defense registered two turnovers and three sacks.

Despite their infrequent meetings, the Titans have enjoyed two of their most dramatic finishes since the team moved to Tennessee against the Giants. On a cold and windy day at the Meadowlands on Dec. 1, 2002, Steve McNair helped force overtime with a touchdown pass and a two-point conversion in the final seconds of regulation, and Joe Nedney sealed the win when he connected on a 38-yard field goal. Eddie George rushed for 64 yards to pass Earl Campbell as the all-time rushing leader in franchise history.

In 2006, rookie quarterback Vince Young led arguably one of the greatest comebacks in NFL history against the Giants. Down 21-0 with less than 10 minutes remaining in the fourth quarter, the Titans rallied to score touchdowns on three consecutive drives and then won the game on a 49-yard field goal by kicker Rob Bironas. It tied for the second-biggest comeback in NFL history with 10 minutes to go in the fourth quarter and was the largest comeback in NFL history (fourth quarter or otherwise) led by a rookie quarterback.

TITANS-GIANTS: THE LAST MEETING

2018 Week 15 • Titans 17, Giants 0
Sunday, Dec. 16, 2018 • 1:00 p.m. ET • MetLife Stadium

GAME RECAP

In Week 15 of the 2018 season, the Titans traveled to New York to take on the Giants and won by a score of 17-0. It marked the franchise's 16th shutout and first shutout since 2000.

Tennessee got on the board first as QB Marcus Mariota led the Titans on a 15-play, 75-yard scoring drive. Mariota rushed for an 11-yard first down, and tossed 11-yard and 17-yard first down strikes to WR Corey Davis to keep the chains moving. Additionally, RB Derrick Henry took a direct snap and passed a six-yard first down to WR Tajae Sharpe. Ultimately, Henry ran in a one-yard touchdown for an early 7-0 lead.

S Kevin Byard sacked Giants QB Eli Manning for a loss of 10 yards to end the first half, which marked the only New York possession of the first half that didn't result in a punt.

The Giants opened the second half with turnovers on consecutive possessions. On New York's opening drive of the second half, with the Giants driving, Byard picked off Manning in the red zone to give Tennessee possession of the ball at the Tennessee 15-yard line. On the ensuing New York possession, Manning was strip-sacked by OLB Kamalei Correa and the ball was recovered by DT Jurrell Casey at the Giants 14-yard line. The Titans were able to capitalize on the turnover, as Henry grinded into the end-zone for his second one-yard rushing touchdown of the day and a 14-0 lead.

In the fourth quarter, Tennessee tacked on a field goal to extend the lead to 17-0. The Giants couldn't mount a comeback, and the Titans defense sealed the shutout with a fourth-down stop at their own four-yard line.

Brian Daboll was named the 20th head coach of the New York Giants franchise on Jan. 29, 2022.

Daboll, 47, is a first-time head coach, and he rejoins Joe Schoen, who was hired as the Giants general manager a week before Daboll. Schoen was Buffalo's assistant general manager during Daboll's entire four-year tenure with the Bills. In that time, Daboll and the Bills went 40-25. He helped Buffalo finish in the top five in total yards per game twice and became the first non-Patriots team to win back-to-back AFC East division titles since the 1990-91 Bills did so.

In 2021, Daboll's offense finished third in the NFL with 28.4 points per game and fifth with 381.9 yards per game. Quarterback Josh Allen led Daboll's offense to finish sixth in the league with a franchise-record 409 completions, seventh with 36 touchdown passes and eighth with 4,407 yards. The Bills won their last four regular season games and routed New England in a wild card matchup before their season ended in Kansas City for the second consecutive season.

In 2020, Daboll was voted the Associated Press NFL Assistant Coach of the Year after the Bills finished 13-3 and ended the Patriots' streak of 11 consecutive division titles. Daboll helped lead the Bills offense to finish second in the NFL with 6,343 total yards. Allen finished second in the NFL's Most Valuable Player voting after setting Buffalo single-season franchise records with 4,544 yards, 37 touchdown passes, a 69.2 completion percentage and a 107.2 passer rating.

Daboll helped lead the University of Alabama to its 17th national championship in 2017 as the Crimson Tide's offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach. Daboll has 21 total years of NFL coaching experience. He spent 11 seasons with the New England Patriots (2000-06, 2013-16) in a variety of roles and helped the franchise win five Super Bowls (XXXVI, XXXVIII, XXXIX, XLIX and LI). Daboll began his coaching career at age 24 in 2000 - Bill Belichick's first year with the team - as a defensive coaching assistant. Prior to entering the NFL, Daboll spent one year (1997) as a volunteer assistant at the College of William & Mary, where he first met Sean McDermott, before serving two seasons (1998-99) as a graduate assistant for Nick Saban at Michigan State.

A 1997 graduate of the University of Rochester, Daboll was a two-year starter for the Yellow Jackets at safety. He is a native of West Seneca, N.Y.

LAST WEEK VS. THE CARDINALS

Preseason Week 3: Titans 26, Cardinals 23 Saturday, Aug. 27, 2022 • 6:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

The Titans closed out the 2022 preseason with a 26-23 win at home over the Arizona Cardinals. Tennessee's offense scored touchdowns on all three of its red zone possessions, and out-rushed Arizona 168 yards to 86 yards to conclude the preseason with a 2-1 record.

Arizona got on the board on their first offensive possession with an 89-yard touchdown drive. Aided by a 15-yard pass from Cardinals QB Trace McSorley to Cardinals WR Andy Isabella that set up a first-and-goal at the one-yard line, Cardinals RB Darrel Williams ran in a one-yard rushing score for a 7-0 lead.

The Titans strung together their first scoring drive of the contest in the second quarter. Beginning the drive at their own 47-yard line, QB Malik Willis took off and rushed for a 50-yard gain to flip field position and earn a first down at the Arizona three-yard line. RB Julius Chestnut was able to run in a three-yard rushing score, but the two-point conversion attempt failed, 7-6 Cardinals.

Later in the second quarter, Tennessee extended the lead with an eight-play scoring drive. Willis contributed a 15-yard rushing gain before connecting with WR Treylon Burks for a 14-yard touchdown, 13-7 Titans. However, Arizona responded with a scoring drive of their own. McSorley tossed two first-down passes for 31 yards to Cardinals WR Greg Dortch, but Arizona was forced to settle for a field goal as Cardinals K Matt Prater converted a 42-yard attempt to make it 13-10 Titans heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, Tennessee pulled ahead with a 27-yard scoring drive. Willis connected with WR Racey McMath for a 26-yard first down, before K Randy Bullock made a 51-yard field goal to make it a 16-10 contest. On the ensuing Arizona drive, Cardinals QB Jarrett Guarantano led his team on a 75-yard scoring drive that included a 74-yard pass to Isabella for a first down at the Tennessee two-yard line. Guarantano connected with Dortch for a two-yard touchdown, as Arizona took the lead back, 17-16. However, on the following Tennessee drive, Willis' pass was tipped at the line of scrimmage and intercepted by Cardinals S James Wiggins. Arizona capitalized on the turnover with a 53-yard field goal to extend their lead, 20-16.

On a fourth quarter punt return, Cardinals WR Victor Bolden Jr. muffed the ball and it was recovered by S Theo Jackson at the Arizona 35-yard line. Tennessee capitalized on the turnover as Bullock nailed a 50-yard field goal to close the gap in score, 20-19 Cardinals. However, on Arizona's next possession, the Cardinals responded with a field goal of their own as Prater converted a 42-yard attempt, 23-19 Arizona.

With less than four minutes remaining in the contest, Tennessee began a drive at their own 25-yard line. QB Logan Woodside guided the offense on a 12-play possession, including tossing first-down passes to RB Hassan Haskins and WR Dez Fitzpatrick. Facing a fourth down at the Arizona nine-yard line with one minute left in regulation, Woodside scrambled up the middle for a nine-yard touchdown to put Tennessee back on top and seal a 26-23 win.

KICKOFF WEEKEND

Since the NFL went to a 16-game schedule in 1978 (now a 17-game schedule as of 2021), the Titans have won their opener 22 times. In those seasons, they have made the playoffs 11 times (50.0%) and missed the playoffs 11 times (50.0%). The Titans have lost their opener 22 times since 1978, and in those seasons, they have made the playoffs nine times (40.9%) and missed the playoffs 13 times (59.1%).

This is the second all-time meeting between the Titans and Giants franchises on Kickoff Weekend. In 1973, the Oilers visited the Giants in Week 1 and fell by a final score of 34-14.

The Titans have won two of their four openers under head coach Mike Vrabel. In 2021, the Cardinals visited Nissan Stadium and handed the Titans a 38-13 defeat after Chandler Jones recorded five of Arizona's six sacks and Kyler Murray accounted for four passing touchdowns and one rushing touchdown. The loss for the Titans ended a two-game winning streak on Kickoff Weekend—road victories in 2019 over the Cleveland Browns and in 2020 over the Denver Broncos in a late Monday night game.

In 2018, Vrabel made his debut as head coach with the Titans in a 27-20 loss at Miami in what became an NFL-record setting affair of more than seven hours due to a pair of weather stoppages.

Vrabel was 9-5 on Kickoff Weekend in 14 seasons as an NFL player, and during his NFL assistant coaching tenure with the Houston Texans from 2014–2017, his teams went 2-2 in Week 1 games.

The Titans are 32-30 all-time as a franchise in Week 1, including a 5-6 Kickoff Weekend record at Nissan Stadium.

2022 SCHEDULE NOTES

SEASON NOTES

- PLAYOFF OPPONENTS: The Titans have seven total games against playoff teams from last season. They play five division champions from 2021, including home games against Cincinnati (Nov. 27) and Dallas (Dec. 29), while they go on the road to play Buffalo (Sept. 19), Kansas City (Nov. 6), and Green Bay (Nov. 17). The two contests against wild card qualifiers are a home date with Las Vegas (Sept. 25) and a road showdown at Philadelphia (Dec. 4). The seven games against playoff clubs is down from the total of eight such matchups the Titans had entering 2021.
- PRIMETIME APPEARANCES: The Titans are scheduled for four primetime appearances, the most on their initial schedule since 2009 (not including flexed or rescheduled primetime games). Three of their primetime games are on the road: at Buffalo on Monday Night Football (Sept. 19), at Kansas City on Sunday Night Football (Nov. 6) and at Green Bay on Thursday Night Football (Nov. 17). They host Dallas on Thursday Night Football (Dec. 29).
- PRIMETIME RECORD: The Titans have won five of their last seven primetime games, including all three of their primetime contests in 2021.
- TWO GAMES ON THURSDAY NIGHT: The Titans will play two Thursday night games for the first time in franchise history: Nov. 17 at Green Bay and Dec. 29 against Dallas. The only other season in franchise history that included two Thursday games was 1997, when one of their Thursday games was a Thanksgiving afternoon contest at Dallas.
- VARYING KICKOFF DAYS AND TIMES: Only eight of the Titans' games are currently scheduled for Sunday noon CT kickoffs. There are four primetime games, three late Sunday afternoon kickoffs, one Saturday contest and the Week 18 matchup at Jacksonville, which will receive a day (Jan. 7 or 8) and kickoff time later in the season.
- FIRST-PLACE SCHEDULE: Every NFL team has two intraconference games and one interconference matchup based on the previous season's standings. The Titans host the AFC North champion Bengals (Nov. 27), while they visit the AFC East champion Bills (Sept. 19) and NFC North champion Packers (Nov. 17) as a result of each team's first-place finish in 2020. Overall, the Titans' strength of schedule is .471 (136-153) based upon their opponents' combined 2021 record, which is tied for the 24th most difficult in the NFL.
- FACING TOP OFFENSES AND DEFENSES: The Titans face four of the NFL's top five offenses from last season: Dallas (Dec. 29, first-overall offense), Kansas City (Nov. 6, third), the Los Angeles Chargers (Dec. 19, fourth) and Buffalo (Sept. 19, fifth). They also will see the top overall defense from 2021 in the Bills.
- TITANS ON LONG REST: With a pair of Thursday night games in addition to their bye, the Titans will have three games in which they enjoy a long rest period between games. They host the Indianapolis Colts (Oct. 23) following their bye and the Cincinnati Bengals (Nov. 27) following a Thursday night game at Green Bay. In Week 18, they have a long week to prepare for their game at Jacksonville (Jan. 7/8) following a Thursday meeting with Dallas. Since Mike Vrabel was hired in 2018, the Titans are 4-0 following their bye and 4-0 following Thursday night games for a combined 8-0 record during the regular season. The Titans and Pittsburgh Steelers are the NFL's only undefeated teams during that period with nine or more rest days between games.
- CONSECUTIVE WINNING SEASONS: The Titans have had a winning record each season since general manager Jon Robinson arrived in 2016. After going 9-7 each year from 2016 to 2019, 11-5 in 2020, and 12-5 in 2021, a seventh consecutive season above .500 would set a franchise record. The only previous stretch in which the club achieved seven straight winning records was 1987 to 1993.
- VRABEL COULD ACHIEVE FRANCHISE FIRST: With a winning record in 2022, Mike Vrabel would become the only head coach in franchise history to begin his tenure with at least five consecutive winning campaigns. Vrabel, who arrived in 2018, tied Jack Pardee (1990-1993) as the only head coaches in team annals with four consecutive seasons over .500 to begin their careers.
- HEAD COACHING EXPERIENCE: There are 10 NFL head coaches who were hired by their teams this offseason, and the Titans will face half of them: the New York Giants' Brian Daboll (Sept. 11), Las Vegas' Josh McDaniels (Sept. 25), Houston's Lovie Smith (Oct. 30 and Dec. 24), Denver's Nathaniel Hackett (Nov. 13) and Jacksonville's Doug Pederson (Dec. 11 and Jan. 7/8). Titans head coach Mike Vrabel, who was hired in 2018, is tied for the ninth-longest tenure among current head coaches.
- AFC SOUTH COACHES AND QBs: Within the AFC South, the Titans are the only club without a new head coach and/or a projected new starting quarterback. The Jaguars are led by first-year head coach Doug Pederson, while Texans head coach Lovie Smith is in his first year at the helm. In Indianapolis, veteran quarterback Matt Ryan was acquired in a trade from the Atlanta Falcons.

- WINNING IN THE DIVISION: The Titans, who won the AFC South in 2020 and 2021, earned a 10-2 record within their division over the last two seasons (.833). They tied the New Orleans Saints (10-2 in the NFC South) for the second-best divisional winning percentage in the NFL behind the 11-1 Buffalo Bills (11-1 in the AFC East). The Titans went 5-1 in the division in 2020 and in 2021.
- 11-WIN SEASONS: With 11 or more wins in 2022, the Titans will secure their third consecutive season with at least 11 wins. It would be the first time in franchise history the team accomplished the feat. The Titans went 11-5 in 2020 and then 12-5 in 2021.

WEEK-BY-WEEK SCHEDULE NOTES

- WEEK 1 vs. NEW YORK GIANTS: The Titans open the regular season at home for the second consecutive season, welcoming the Giants to Nissan Stadium for the fourth time and for the first time since 2014. It will be the first game as Giants head coach for Brian Daboll, who was hired during the offseason after spending the previous four seasons as the offensive coordinator in Buffalo.
- WEEK 2 at BUFFALO: The Titans and Bills square off for the fifth consecutive season and for the third consecutive year in primetime. However, it is the first meeting in Buffalo since 2018. The Titans have won each of the last two matchups—a Tuesday night game in 2020 and a Monday night contest in 2021. The Titans-Bills matchup (6:15 p.m. CT, ESPN) is one of two featured contests in an ABC/ESPN side-by-side doubleheader, along with Eagles-Vikings (7:30 p.m. CT, ABC). In the franchise's "Titans era" (since 1999), the Titans are 14-7 on Monday night, including wins on eight of the last 10 occasions. Bills quarterback Josh Allen finished the 2021 campaign with 4,407 passing yards and 763 rushing yards, becoming the first player in NFL history with over 4,000 passing yards and 750 rushing yards in a season.
- WEEK 3 vs. LAS VEGAS: The Raiders travel to Nashville for the first time since 2017 and for the first time with former New England Patriots offensive coordinator Josh McDaniels, who was hired by Las Vegas as the club's head coach in 2022. McDaniels, who previously served as a head coach with the Broncos from 2009 to 2010, was an assistant in New England during the time Mike Vrabel played for the Patriots.
- WEEKS 4 & 7 vs. INDIANAPOLIS: Matt Ryan arrives in Indianapolis after spending his first 14 NFL seasons with the Atlanta Falcons. He passed for 59,735 yards and led the Falcons to six playoff appearances during his time in Atlanta. Mike Vrabel and Colts head coach Frank Reich are the two remaining head coaches among the seven that were hired by their respective clubs in 2018.
- WEEK 5 at WASHINGTON: The Titans visit FedEx Field for the fourth time and for the first time since 2014. The Commanders changed their team name during the 2022 offseason and also acquired veteran signal caller Carson Wentz from the Indianapolis Colts. Ron Rivera enters his third season as Washington's head coach.
- WEEK 6 (BYE): The Week 6 bye comes seven weeks earlier than the Week 13 bye the Titans had in 2021. Since Mike Vrabel became the team's head coach, the Titans are 4-0 in games following their bye week.
- WEEKS 8 & 16 vs. HOUSTON: Lovie Smith enters his first season as Texans head coach after previous head coaching stints with Chicago (2004-12) and Tampa Bay (2014-15). The Texans handed the Titans their only divisional loss in 2021, ending a three-game winning streak by the Titans in the series. When the Titans and Texans play at Nissan Stadium on Christmas Eve, the Titans will play on Saturday for the first time since they defeated Washington at home on Dec. 22, 2018.

- WEEK 9 at KANSAS CITY: The Titans travel to Kansas City for the first time since the 2019 AFC Championship game. It is their first primetime game at Arrowhead Stadium since 1995. In 2021, the Titans hosted the Chiefs and won by a final score of 27-3 to improve to 5-1 against Kansas City since the start of the 2014 season. Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes has more passing yards (18,707) and passing touchdowns (151) than any other NFL quarterback since 2018.
- WEEK 10 vs. DENVER: The Broncos visit Nissan Stadium for the first time since 2016. Denver launched a new era during the offseason, first naming former Packers offensive coordinator Nathaniel Hackett their new head coach. Then the Broncos acquired nine-time Pro Bowl quarterback Russell Wilson in a trade with the Seattle Seahawks. During his 10 years in Seattle, Wilson led the Seahawks to eight playoff appearances, two Super Bowl berths and a Super Bowl XLVIII win to conclude the 2013 season.
- WEEK 11 at GREEN BAY: The Titans play their first of two Thursday night games in a seven-week span, traveling to Lambeau Field, where they last fell to the Packers on a snowy Sunday night in 2020. Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers won the 2021 Associated Press Most Valuable Player award, securing the league's top honor for the fourth time in his career and for the second consecutive year. Only Peyton Manning (five) has more league MVP awards in NFL history than Rodgers. The Packers are led by head coach Matt LaFleur, who was hired to his current post after spending the 2018 season as Titans offensive coordinator.
- WEEK 12 vs. CINCINNATI: In a rematch of the 2021 divisional playoffs, the Bengals visit Nissan Stadium, where they defeated the Titans on Jan. 22. The Bengals went on to win the AFC championship game and advance to Super Bowl LVI before falling to the Los Angeles Rams. In the 63-year history of the Titans/Oilers, they have played the Bengals 77 times. Only one other NFL team—the Pittsburgh Steelers (80 games)—has faced the organization more frequently than the Bengals.
- WEEK 13 at PHILADELPHIA: The Titans visit Lincoln Financial Field for the third time in the regular season and for the first time since 2014. During the 2022 NFL Draft, the Titans and Eagles executed a trade that sent Titans wide receiver A.J. Brown to the Eagles in exchange for first- and third-round draft choices.
- WEEKS 14 & 18 vs. JACKSONVILLE: The Jaguars begin a new era in 2022 under new head coach Doug Pederson. Pederson most recently spent five seasons as the head coach (2016-20) of the Philadelphia Eagles, leading the Eagles to the postseason in three consecutive seasons (2017-19) and a Super Bowl LII title to conclude the 2017 campaign. Jaguars second-year quarterback Trevor Lawrence was the first-overall draft pick in 2021 and is joined by 2022 first-overall pick, former Georgia outside linebacker Travon Walker.
- WEEK 15 at LOS ANGELES CHARGERS: The Titans visit SoFi Stadium for the second consecutive season but for the first time to face the Chargers. In 2021, they defeated the L.A. Rams in a Sunday night game at the venue, which opened in 2020. The Titans have never faced Chargers quarterback Justin Herbert, the sixth-overall selection in the 2020 NFL Draft.
- WEEK 17 vs. DALLAS: The Cowboys make their fourth appearance at Nissan Stadium and their first since 2014. The Titans won the last meeting in Dallas in 2018 by a final score of 28-14. Since Titans running back Derrick Henry (6,797 career rushing yards) entered the NFL in 2016, the only player with more rushing yards than him is Cowboys running back Ezekiel Elliott (7,386). The Titans have won six of their past eight primetime games at Nissan Stadium.

Career receiving yards by Robert Woods, who ranks 11th among all active players entering training camp (players on NFL rosters as of July 25).

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN 2022

WHAT TO LOOK FOR – TEAM

- The Titans have had a winning record each season since 2016, when general manager Jon Robinson arrived in Tennessee. The Titans went 9-7 each year from 2016 to 2019, achieved an 11-5 finish in 2020, and then earned a 12-5 mark in 2021. A seventh consecutive season above .500 would tie the franchise's all-time best streak. The only previous stretch in which the club achieved seven straight winning records was 1987 to 1993.
- The Titans can earn their fourth consecutive playoff berth. It would be the organization's first time doing so since a franchise-record seven consecutive playoff appearances from 1987 to 1993.
- The Titans can earn their third consecutive division title. The only other three-year streak of division titles in franchise annals was when the Oilers won the AFL Eastern division each season from 1960 to 1962.
- A third consecutive season with 11 or more wins would mark the first time in franchise history the team has accomplished such a streak.
- The Titans can log their fourth consecutive season with at least five road victories, which would be the longest such streak in franchise history (1978–1980 and 1998–2000).
- Entering 2022 with a record of 107-78 in regular season games at Nissan Stadium, the Titans need six wins at home to match the 113 wins the franchise had in regular season contests at the Astrodome (113-103-2). Seven home wins would give the franchise more victories at Nissan Stadium (114) than any other single venue.

GM JON ROBINSON

- Can oversee a winning season for the seventh consecutive season since joining the Titans in 2016. He already is the only general manager in franchise history to oversee six total seasons above the .500 mark.
- Can join Mike Holovak (1989–1993) as the only two general managers in franchise history to oversee five or more playoff seasons.

- With a winning record in 2022, Mike Vrabel would become the only head coach in franchise history to begin his tenure with at least five consecutive winning seasons. Vrabel and Jack Pardee are the organization's only head coaches with as many as three such seasons to begin their tenures.
- Can join Jeff Fisher (six) and Jack Pardee (four) as the only head coaches to lead the franchise to at least four playoff appearances.

S KEVIN BYARD

- Needs one interception in 2022 (23 interceptions entering the season) to tie Zeke Moore (24) for 10th place on the all-time franchise interception list.
- Needs two interceptions to tie Michael Griffin and Ken Houston (25) for eighth place all-time for the franchise.
- Needs three interceptions to tie Mike Reinfeldt (26) for seventh all-time for the franchise and pass Michael Griffin (25) for the most interceptions for the franchise in its "Titans era" (1999–present).
- Can lead the team in interceptions for the fifth time, which would tie Darryll Lewis' franchise record (1994-98).
- Can become the first player to lead the team in tackles for three consecutive seasons since Keith Bulluck (2002-06).

RB DERRICK HENRY

- Needs 2,000 rushing yards to become the first player in NFL history to reach the mark in two different seasons.
- Needs 1,500 rushing yards and 15 rushing touchdowns to become the first player in NFL history to reach both marks in three different seasons.
- Needs a pair of 200-yard rushing games to give him seven for his career, which would set the NFL record. He would surpass O.J. Simpson and Adrian Peterson, who each have six such performances.
- With 65 career rushing touchdowns, he needs nine more to break Earl Campbell's career franchise record of 73 rushing touchdowns.
- With 68 total career touchdowns, he needs seven more to break Eddie George's career franchise record of 74 total touchdowns.
- Currently at 6,797 career rushing yards, he will pass Chris Johnson (7,965) for third place on the franchise's all-time career rushing list with 1,169 more rushing yards.
- Needs 10 rushing touchdowns to become the fifth running back in NFL history to reach the mark in five consecutive seasons, joining LaDainian Tomlinson (nine), Adrian Peterson (seven), Shaun Alexander (five) and Michael Turner (five).

DT JEFFERY SIMMONS

- Can become the team's only player since 2000 other than Keith Bulluck (2003-05) to record at least three sacks and five passes defended in three consecutive seasons.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Can produce his seventh career season with at least 3,000 passing yards and his third career season with at least 4,000 passing yards.
- Can join Warren Moon (1987–1993) as the only starting quarterbacks in franchise history to lead the club to the playoffs in four consecutive seasons.
- Enters 2022 with an active streak of 43 consecutive starts. With a start in the season opener, he will break a tie with Steve McNair (43 consecutive starts from 2001 to 2003) for the most consecutive starts in franchise history by a quarterback.
- Needs 3,500 passing yards to tie Warren Moon (1989–1991) for the most seasons in franchise history with at least 3,500 passing yards. Tannehill reached the mark in each of the past two campaigns.
- Can join Buffalo's Josh Allen (2018–2020) as the NFL's only quarterbacks since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with at least seven rushing touchdowns in three consecutive seasons. He became the first quarterback in franchise history with at least seven rushing touchdowns in back-to-back seasons from 2020 to 2021.
- Can join George Blanda (1960-63) as the only players in franchise history to throw at least 20 touchdown passes in four consecutive seasons.
- Can become the first player in franchise history with multiple career seasons with at least 30 touchdown passes.

WR ROBERT WOODS

- Can record his 10th consecutive season to begin his career with at least 40 receptions. He and DeAndre Hopkins are tied for the second-longest such active streak in the NFL with nine seasons, behind only Emmanuel Sanders (10).
- Needs five touchdown receptions to join Jerry Rice and Tyreek Hill as the NFL's only players since 1970 with at least 40 receiving touchdowns and five rushing touchdowns. Woods enters the campaign with 35 career touchdown catches to go along with five rushing touchdowns.

Jon Robinson was hired as Titans general manager on Jan. 14, 2016 after spending two years as director of player personnel for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Nearly one year later, on Jan. 5, 2017, he was promoted to executive vice president/general manager.

The Titans finished with a winning record in each of his first six seasons on the job. They had four consecutive 9-7 records from 2016 to 2019, followed by an 11-5 mark in 2020 and a 12-5 record in 2021. It was the first time the organization produced at least six consecutive winning seasons since a seven-year run of winning records from 1987–1993. The Titans and Kansas City Chiefs were the only NFL teams without a losing season from 2016 to 2021.

Robinson became the first general manager in franchise history with six seasons above the .500 mark, surpassing Bum Phillips (1975, 1977–1980) and Mike Holovak (1989-93). Robinson's winning records from 2016 to 2021 also eclipsed Holovak for the most consecutive winning seasons by a Titans/Oilers general manager.

The Titans went to the playoffs four times in Robinson's first six seasons with the club: 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2021. The four playoff appearances tied for the third-most in the league during that time, and only Kansas City (six) and the New England Patriots (five) had more. Robinson's four playoff campaigns already place him in the top three in team annals along with Holovak (five) and Floyd Reese (four).

Robinson's work helped the team go from three wins in the season prior to his arrival (2015) to a divisional round playoff finish following the 2017 campaign. He became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the playoffs within his first two full seasons.

Then, in 2019, the team he constructed advanced to the AFC championship game. It was the organization's first appearance in the conference title game in 17 seasons (2002).

In 2020, Robinson and the Titans clinched the 2020 AFC South title with an 11-5 record in the regular season, claiming their best record and first division title since going 13-3 in 2008. They did so while navigating the challenges associated with the COVID-19 pandemic.

In 2021, the Titans won their second consecutive AFC South crown with a 12-5 mark, celebrating the franchise's first back-to-back division championships since the Oilers took the first three AFL Eastern division titles from 1960 to 1962.

Robinson has overseen a nearly complete overhaul of the roster during his tenure. In seven drafts as general manager from 2016 to 2022, he selected 52 total players, and 27 of those players were still with the organization prior to the 2022 regular season (as of Sept. 4, 2022). The only member of the roster who predated Robinson at that time was tackle Taylor Lewan. During that same time period, he engineered 33 total trades.

2022: After the NFL's new league year began in March 2022, Robinson engineered a trade with the Rams to acquire veteran wide receiver Robert Woods, who totaled 570 receptions for 7,077 yards in nine previous seasons in Buffalo and Los Angeles.

Robinson then went to work in the free agent market, highlighted by the addition of two-time Pro Bowl tight end Austin Hooper, who played his first four seasons with the Atlanta Falcons before spending a pair of campaigns with the Cleveland Browns.

The Titans also were active in re-signing several of their own key free agents, including center Ben Jones and Pro Bowl outside linebacker Harold Landry III.

During the first round of the 2022 NFL Draft, the Titans acquired the 18th overall selection and an additional third-rounder from Philadelphia in a trade that sent wide receiver A.J. Brown to the Eagles. With the 18th pick, Robinson and the Titans grabbed Arkansas wide receiver Treyton Burks.

Robinson would execute two more trades during the draft to end up with nine total players, including Auburn cornerback Roger McCreary in the second round.

2021: In 2021, the Titans struck several deals with veterans in the initial days of free agency. The incoming players included Pittsburgh Steelers outside linebackers Bud Dupree and Ola Adeniyi, New Orleans Saints cornerback Jackrabbit Jenkins, Indianapolis Colts defensive lineman Denico Autry and Baltimore Ravens long snapper Morgan Cox. The Titans also re-signed several of their own free agents: tight ends Anthony Firkser and Geoff Swaim and inside linebacker Jayon Brown.

Autry proved to be a key addition for the defense. He appeared in every game in his first season with the club and finished second on the team with nine sacks. His sack total tied his career high, matching the nine sacks he had in 2018 as a member of the Indianapolis Colts.

During the 2021 NFL Draft, Robinson led the selection of eight total players, beginning with Virginia Tech cornerback Caleb Farley with the 22nd overall selection in the first round. In the second round, the Titans chose North Dakota State offensive lineman Dillon Radunz, followed by Georgia linebacker Monty Rice and Washington defensive back Elijah Molden in Round 3.

Late in the 2021 campaign, Robinson claimed inside linebacker Zach Cunningham off waivers from the division rival Houston Texans. Over three seasons from 2019 to 2021, Cunningham's 392 total tackles were more than every NFL player other than Seattle's Bobby Wagner (467) and Chicago's Roquan Smith (402).

2020: Early in 2020, the Titans reached an agreement on a multi-year contract to keep quarterback Ryan Tannehill in Tennessee. The Titans also re-signed tackle Dennis Kelly, who would go on to start all 16 games at right tackle.

After initially placing the franchise tag on running back Derrick Henry, the Titans and Henry were able to come to an agreement on a multi-year contract extension in July 2020.

Robinson acquired Tannehill for the Titans in a 2019 trade with the Miami Dolphins. In his first three seasons in Tennessee, Tannehill built a 30-13 record as a starting quarterback and became the franchise's first starting quarterback since Warren Moon (1987 to 1993) to direct his team to the playoffs in at least three consecutive seasons. He started every game from Week 7 of the 2019 campaign through the end of 2021, and during that time, Tannehill's 102.3 passer rating ranked sixth in the NFL. He became the only quarterback other than Moon (1989–1991) to record multiple seasons with at least 3,500 passing yards with the franchise. Also, Tannehill's 13 total game-winning drives in that span ranked second in the NFL behind only Raiders quarterback Derek Carr's 14. In 2019, Tannehill was named to his first Pro Bowl earned the 2019 Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year Award.

After securing his multi-year extension in 2020, Henry produced one of the greatest seasons in NFL history by a running back. He led the NFL in rushing for the second consecutive season with 2,027 rushing yards, which was only the eighth 2,000-yard rushing season in league annals, and also paced the league with 17 rushing touchdowns. He was recognized with the Associated Press Offensive Player of the Year Award.

Henry, a second-round pick by Robinson in 2016, led the Titans in rushing every season from 2017 through 2021, during which time he also led the NFL with 6,307 total rushing yards. In 2019, he won his first of two consecutive NFL rushing crowns with 1,540 yards and tied for the NFL lead with 16 rushing touchdowns.

In the 2020 NFL Draft, the Titans had six total picks, including Louisiana State cornerback Kristian Fulton in the second round (61st overall). Fulton emerged as a full-time starter in 2021 and tied for 11th place in the NFL with a team-high 14 passes defended.

2019: Near the beginning of the 2019 free agent signing period, Robinson worked quickly to add several veterans from other teams who played key roles, including Tannehill and former Rams guard Rodger Saffold. Robinson also worked to re-sign safety Kenny Vaccaro and punter Brett Kern.

Then, in the 2019 NFL Draft, Robinson directed the selection of six total players, including Mississippi State defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons in the first round (19th overall), Ole Miss wide receiver A.J. Brown in the second round (51st overall) and Charlotte offensive lineman Nate Davis in the third round (82nd overall).

In his first three seasons, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category, totaling 185 receptions, 2,995 receiving yards, a 16.2-yard receiving average and 24 touchdown catches. Since 1970, Brown was only the fourth NFL player to reach all of those numbers within his first three seasons, joining Randy Moss, Jerry Rice and John Jefferson. He was named to the Pro Bowl in 2020 after totaling 70 receptions for 1,075 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Simmons was named to the Pro Bowl in 2021 and added Associated Press second-team All-Pro honors. He ranked sixth in the NFL among defensive tackles with 8.5 sacks, and he set a franchise single-game postseason record with three sacks.

Saffold also earned his first career Pro Bowl berth in 2021, the third consecutive season since he arrived in Tennessee in which the team finished in the top five in rushing.

2018: The Titans' 2018 free agent class included Pro Bowl cornerback Malcolm Butler. In his three seasons in Tennessee, Butler played in 41 games (36 starts) and totaled nine interceptions. In early August 2018, the Titans signed Vaccaro, who went on to start 42 games over his three seasons with the club.

Robinson's 2018 draft class was comprised of four players after he used multiple trades to go up and get his targets. It included first-round linebacker Rashaan Evans from Alabama (22nd overall pick) and second-round outside linebacker Harold Landry III from Boston College (41st overall).

From the start of his rookie season through 2021, Landry's 31 total sacks led the Titans, and other than Jevon Kearse (37), it was the highest total by a Titans/Oilers player in his first four NFL seasons since individual sacks became an official NFL statistic in 1982. In 2021, Landry was named to his first Pro Bowl after his career-high 12 sacks ranked 10th in the NFL.

2017: During the 2017 offseason, Robinson used free agency to address needs on defense and special teams. Most notably, he spearheaded deals for cornerback Logan Ryan (New England) and special teams contributor and 2017 Pro Bowler Brynden Trawick (Oakland).

In the 2017 NFL Draft, Robinson spent first-round picks on wide receiver Corey Davis (fifth overall) and cornerback Adoree' Jackson (18th overall). It marked the first time the franchise had a pair of first-round draft selections since 1987. The Titans' 2017 draft haul also featured tight end Jonnu Smith in the third round and linebacker Jayon Brown in the fifth round.

The 2017 Titans advanced to the playoffs for the first time since 2008. Robinson became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the postseason within his first two full seasons.

2016: In his first year as an NFL general manager, Robinson's leadership and decision-making helped the Titans triple their win total from the previous season, finishing 9-7 in 2016 after a 3-13 finish in 2015. The six-win improvement tied for the most in franchise history (1967 and 1974) and doubled the previous club benchmark for the most wins in the first year under a new general manager (three by Bum Phillips in 1975).

Within the first four months at his post, Robinson pulled the trigger on several key personnel decisions. On March 9, 2016, he made his first major acquisition, swapping fourth-round draft picks with the Philadelphia Eagles in exchange for running back DeMarco Murray. The trade provided major dividends in 2016, as Murray led the AFC and ranked third in the NFL with 1,287 rushing yards.

Around the same time, Robinson began to work the free agent market. Center Ben Jones and wide receiver Rishard Matthews highlighted the haul, and both were instrumental in helping to transform the Titans offense into the 11th-ranked unit in the NFL.

Jones became a foundational member of the offensive line. From 2016 to 2021, he was one of only eight offensive linemen to start at least 96 of a possible 97 games. He finished the 2021 campaign with an active streak of 40 consecutive starts, ranking third among centers.

On April 14, 2016, two weeks before the NFL Draft, Robinson and the Titans dealt the first overall pick to the Los Angeles Rams in one of the biggest trades in recent NFL history. The Titans gave up the No. 1 pick and a fourth-rounder in order to receive the 15th overall pick, two second-rounders and a third-rounder in 2016, plus the Rams' first- and third-round picks in 2017. From 1990–2015, there were seven trades involving the No. 1 overall pick, but this was the first since 2004, when the San Diego Chargers selected Eli Manning with the first pick and dealt his rights to the New York Giants.

The Titans had their hands at one point or another on 17 selections in the 2016 draft due to five different trades (including one trade in 2015), and in the end, they ended up with a class of 10 players, including four of the top 45 picks. Robinson swung a draft-day trade with the Cleveland Browns to move back up to the eighth slot to choose Michigan State tackle Jack Conklin.

All 10 members of Robinson's first draft class played in at least one game in 2016. They accumulated a total of 110 games played and 38 starts, including 16 starts at right tackle by Conklin. The eighth-overall pick capped his successful rookie campaign by being named first-team All-Pro by Associated Press.

Third-round safety Kevin Byard has become one of the most successful players at his position in franchise history. He finished the 2021 campaign as a three-time team captain, two-time Pro Bowl selection and a two-time Associated Press first-team All-Pro. Over a five-year period from 2017 through 2021, Byard led all NFL safeties and ranked third in the NFL with 23 interceptions. His career interception total was 11th on the franchise's all-time list and sixth among all Titans/Oilers safeties.

PRIOR HISTORY: Robinson arrived in Tennessee with a wide range of experience from working his way up on the personnel side of the NFL. From 2014–2015, he served as director of player personnel for the Buccaneers and oversaw both college and pro departments as the team rebuilt its roster. The 2015 Buccaneers draft class made a significant impact, including four rookie starters: quarterback James Winston, tackle Donovan Smith, guard Ali Marpet and linebacker Kwon Alexander.

Prior to joining Tampa Bay, Robinson spent 12 years with the New England Patriots, including his last five years (2009–13) as the director of college scouting. In the five years heading up their college scouting, the Patriots added a number of key components to their roster that won the Super Bowl in 2014, including wide receiver Julian Edelman, defensive back Devin McCourty, tight end Rob Gronkowski, tackle Nate Solder and defensive end Chandler Jones. He joined the Patriots as an area scout in 2002, a role he served for four seasons. Robinson then spent two years (2006–07) as a regional scout, before being promoted to assistant director of college scouting in 2008 and then director of college scouting in 2009. In his time scouting for the Patriots the team won 10 division titles, four conference titles and two Super Bowls (2003, 2004).

Robinson played three years at Southeast Missouri State as a defensive lineman after starting his college career at the Air Force Academy. Following his college career as a player, he spent one season (1998) coaching at his alma mater and three years (1999-2001) coaching at Nicholls State.

A native of Union City, Tenn., Robinson and his wife, Jaimie, have two daughters, Taylor and Bailey.

WINNINGEST GMS IN FRANCHISE HISTORY

Jon Robinson constructed a roster that produced six consecutive winning seasons in Robinson's first six years on the job, including a 12-5 mark during the 2021 regular season. Prior to 2021, the club went 9-7 in 2016, 2017, 2018 and 2019 with postseason berths following the 2017 and 2019 campaigns. Then, in 2020, the Titans finished the regular season 11-5 and won the team's first division championship since 2008.

Robinson has the most winning seasons of any general manager in franchise history. His career win total ranks behind only Floyd Reese (111, including playoffs), and his four playoff seasons, including 2021, are tied with Reese for second place. Only Mike Holovak (five) oversaw more postseason qualifiers.

SIX CONSECUTIVE WINNING SEASONS

With a winning record secured during the 2021 regular season, the Titans recorded their sixth season with a winning record in six seasons since Jon Robinson was hired as general manager.

In the "Titans era" (1999–present), the team never before had as many as three consecutive winning campaigns.

With this year's record, plus their 2020 finish of 11-5 and their 9-7 marks every season from 2016 through 2019, the Titans have built the second-longest active streak of winning seasons in the NFL.

Most current consecutive winning seasons (through 2021):

Team	Total	Seasons
1. Kansas City Chiefs	9	2013–2021
2. Tennessee Titans	6	2016–2021
3. Los Angeles Rams	5	2017–2021
New Orleans Saints	5	2017–2021
5. Buffalo Bills	3	2019–2021

Mike Vrabel was named head coach of the Titans on Jan. 20, 2018, becoming the 19th head coach in franchise history.

In his first four seasons as head coach, Vrabel led the Titans to a 43-27 overall record and three postseason appearances. He joined Jack Pardee and Jerry Glanville as the only head coaches in team annals to preside over at least three playoff squads in their initial four seasons as head coach, and he tied Pardee (43-26) for the most total wins by a head coach in his first four seasons with the organization. The Titans won back-to-back AFC South titles in 2020 and 2021, marking the first time the organization accomplished the feat since the Oilers won the first three AFL Eastern division titles from 1960 to 1962.

Vrabel Honored as NFL's Top Coach in 2021

Vrabel was named the Associated Press NFL Coach of the Year in 2021 after directing the Titans to a 12-5 record during the regular season. The Titans won the AFC South, and they claimed the top seed in the AFC playoff field for the first time since 2008. They did so despite needing to use 91 total players during the season—the most in NFL history in a non-strike year. After the final preseason roster cuts through the end of the season, the team placed 26 different players on injured reserve and 21 different players on the reserve/COVID-19 list, plus additional practice squad players that received those designations.

The 2021 Titans ranked second in rushing defense (84.6 yards allowed per game), 12th in total defense (329.8), sixth on third down (36.7 percent), sixth in scoring defense (20.8 points per game) and ninth in sacks (43). Offensively, the Titans finished fifth in rushing (141.4 yards per game) despite missing Derrick Henry for nine games due to injury. The offense also ranked eighth on third down (43.6 percent), fifth in the red zone (63.9 percent) and first in goal-to-go efficiency (87.5 percent).

Situationally, Vrabel's teams fared well among the NFL leaders in his first four seasons as head coach. From 2018 to 2021, their .909 winning percentage (40-4) in regular season games in which they had a fourth-quarter lead ranked second in the NFL behind the New Orleans Saints (.939). In the same time period, the Titans had a .714 winning percentage in three-point games (15-6), which led the league. Vrabel's team was 5-1 in overtime games from 2018 through 2021, tying the Saints (5-1) for the most overtime wins.

From 2018 to 2021, the Titans had the NFL's second-best rushing offense, averaging 143.7 rushing yards per game. Only the Baltimore Ravens were better (173.6). On the other side of the ball, the Titans ranked seventh in rushing defense, allowing 106.2 rushing yards per contest. Also from 2018 to 2021, the Titans tied for eighth in scoring defense (22.0 opponent points per game) and tied for the eighth-best turnover margin (+13). The Titans were called for 370 penalties from 2018 through 2021, which was the sixth-fewest total in the NFL.

Titans Take the AFC South in Year 3 Under Vrabel

The Titans won the 2020 AFC South title with an 11-5 record in the regular season, claiming their best record and first division title since going 13-3 in 2008. They finished with a 5-1 record within the division and a 6-2 mark in road games, all while navigating the challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Titans led the NFL in 2020 with a plus-11 turnover differential. Their 23 takeaways ranked seventh in the NFL, while their 12 turnovers were the second-fewest in the league in 2020 and tied for the ninth-lowest number since the NFL went to a 16-game schedule in 1978.

In 2020, the Titans tied for second place in total offense (396.4 yards per game) and ranked fourth in scoring offense (30.7 points per game). They became the first team in NFL history to generate at least 2,500 rushing yards (2,690) and 3,500 net passing yards (3,653) while surrendering 25 or fewer sacks (25). Their 6,343 total yards and 381 first downs established franchise records, while their 491 points amounted to the organization's second-best total.

The 2020 Titans joined the 1997 Detroit Lions as the only teams in NFL history to feature a 2,000-yard rusher, a 3,000-yard passer and a 1,000-yard receiver. Henry led the NFL in rushing for the second consecutive season, and his 2,027 rushing yards gave him the fifth-best total in league history. Meanwhile, Ryan Tannehill passed for 3,819 yards, and his 106.5 passer rating was the fifth-best number in the NFL. A.J. Brown was named to the Pro Bowl after recording his second consecutive 1,000-yard season (1,075) and tying for fifth place in the NFL with 11 touchdown catches.

Titans to AFC Championship Game in Vrabel's Second Season

In 2019, Vrabel became the first head coach in the organization's history to win multiple playoff games within his first two seasons. The Titans won a pair of road games—at New England in the wild card round and at Baltimore in the divisional round—to advance to the 2019 AFC championship game, falling at Kansas City to the eventual Super Bowl champion Chiefs.

The Titans began the 2019 campaign with two wins in their first six games but rallied to win seven of their final 10 games in the regular season. From the time the NFL went to its current playoff format in 1990 through 2019, 345 teams went 2-4 or worse in their first six games of a season. From that group, the Titans became only the third team to advance to a conference championship game, joining the 2002 Titans (2-4) and the 1996 Jacksonville Jaguars (2-4).

The 2019 Titans ranked in the NFL's top 10 in scoring margin (eighth, +71), turnover margin (sixth, +6), offensive yards per play (fourth, 6.12), rushing offense (third, 138.9 yards per game), red zone efficiency (first, 75.6 percent), total touchdowns (tied for third, 54) and third-down defense (eighth, 36.3 percent).

In his first season as head coach, Vrabel directed the Titans to a 9-7 record. His nine wins tied for the fourth-highest total in franchise history by a first-year head coach.

With only 82 penalties enforced against the Titans in 2018, Vrabel's team led the NFL and set a franchise record (16-game season) for fewest penalties in a season. The 2018 Titans also placed third in points allowed (18.9 per game), eighth in total defense (333.4 yards per game), sixth in passing defense (216.9), second in red zone defense (44.7 percent

Background as a Player and Coach

Vrabel arrived in Tennessee with 18 years of NFL experience, including four seasons as a coach and 14 seasons as a player. His distinguished playing career included three Super Bowl wins (2001, 2003 and 2004), one Pro Bowl selection (2007) and an All-Pro honor (2007). Vrabel played in 206 NFL games and totaled 57 sacks, 496 tackles, 11 interceptions, 20 forced fumbles, nine fumble recoveries and 10 touchdown receptions. Additionally, his teams advanced to the playoffs eight times (20 postseason games), with Vrabel recording eight postseason sacks and two postseason touchdown receptions.

Vrabel joined the Titans after four seasons with the Houston Texans, spending the first three seasons (2014-16) coaching linebackers and one year (2017) as the team's defensive coordinator. During his time in Houston, the Texans built one of the best defenses in the NFL and experienced tremendous success as a team – earning two division titles (2015, 2016).

Between 2014-16, the Texans defense ranked third in the NFL in yards allowed per game (319.9) and net passing yards (218.4). Houston also ranked first in third-down defense (33.6), fourth in opponent completion percentage (59.5) and sixth in points allowed per game (19.8). The 2016 defense ranked number one in the NFL, for the first time in franchise history, in yards allowed (301.3).

In 2017, his first year as a defensive coordinator, the Texans finished the campaign with 19 players on injured reserve. Despite the injuries, Vrabel led the defense to the fifth-best third-down percentage in the NFL and a franchise-record 3.97 yards per carry by opponents. Houston also had 18 different players record at least half a sack last year and 26 players tally at least one tackle for loss.

Vrabel spent his career playing and coaching with accomplished leaders, including Bill Belichick, Bill Cowher, Romeo Crennel, Urban Meyer, Bill O'Brien and Todd Haley.

As the Texans linebackers coach from 2014-16, Vrabel developed several players into top-notch performers, including Jadeveon Clowney (Pro Bowl, 2016), Whitney Mercilus, Benardrick McKinney (second-team All-Pro, 2016) and Brian Cushing. The 2015 Texans defense had the top third-down defense in the NFL (28.5 percent), which was the lowest percentage in franchise history and the lowest by any NFL team since the 2003 Titans (27.7 percent). The 2015 defense also set a franchise mark for sacks in a season with 45 - 22.5 coming from Vrabel's linebacking corps.

Prior to joining the NFL coaching ranks, Vrabel transitioned immediately from an NFL player to college coach. He started as the linebacker coach at Ohio State in 2011 and coached the defensive line from 2012-2013. The 2012 Buckeyes finished the season undefeated at 12-0. He also was named Big Ten Recruiter of the Year by ESPN.com in 2012.

Vrabel was selected by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the third round (91st overall) of the 1997 NFL Draft, after his playing career at Ohio State, where he earned All-America honors and Big Ten Conference Defensive Lineman of the Year in both 1995 and 1996.

A native of Akron, Ohio, Vrabel attended Walsh Jesuit High School. He and his wife, Jennifer, have two sons: Tyler and Carter.

NISSAN STADIUM

In 2015, the Titans and Nissan North America announced the formation of a 20-year, exclusive naming-rights partnership that rebranded Nashville's downtown stadium as Nissan Stadium.

Nissan Stadium hosts all Titans home football games, Tennessee State University football games, the Music City Bowl, the CMA Music Festival and numerous other events.

The procurement of naming rights to Nissan Stadium fit the automotive company's 'Fewer, Bigger, Better' marketing strategy, which has included ongoing sponsorships of NBC's 'The Voice,' the Heisman House college football program and a major advertising presence in this year's Super Bowl. Nissan is also now the official automotive partner of the Tennessee Titans.

Nissan's ever-growing footprint in Tennessee includes vehicle and powertrain manufacturing facilities in Smyrna and Decherd respectively, along with its North American headquarters in Franklin.

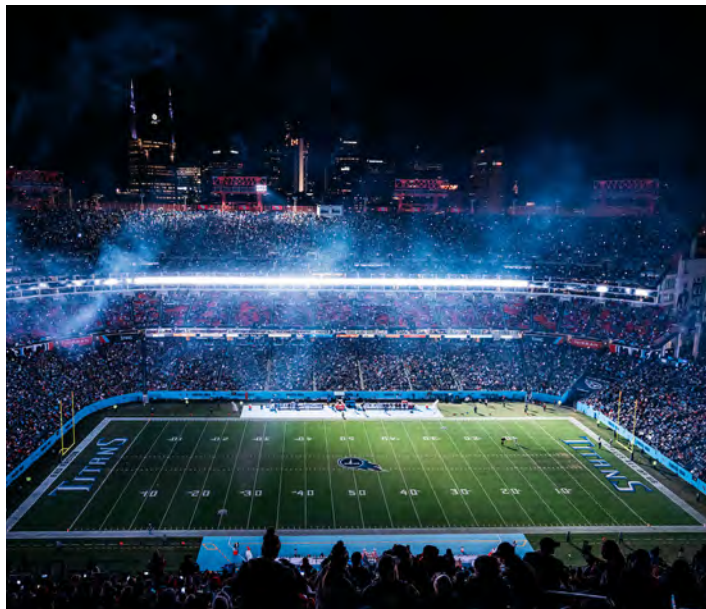

The Nissan Smyrna Plant began operations in 1983 and employs more than 8,400 people. In 2014, the Smyrna plant assembled more than 648,000 vehicles, making it the highest volume automotive assembly plant in North America. Nissan also has a major manufacturing presence in Canton, Miss., along with research and development groups in California, Arizona and Michigan. In total, the company employs more than 22,000 employees in the U.S.

One component of the Titans-Nissan partnership is assisting charitable organizations throughout Middle Tennessee in an array of community outreach programs. A centerpiece of this is the annual "Taste of Titans" charitable event, for which Nissan serves as presenting sponsor. During the course of a 20-year relationship, a total of more than $1 million resulting from these annual events is anticipated to be distributed to local non-profit organizations.

Nissan Stadium is a city-owned venue that has housed the Titans since 1999. The naming rights agreement includes the opportunity for Nissan branding on the exterior of the stadium, as well as stadium signage and other unique displays inside the stadium. LP Building Products held the naming rights to the stadium from 2006 until the Nissan partnership was established in 2015.

Quarterback Ryan Tannehill is in his 11th NFL season and his fourth campaign with the Titans in 2021.

In his first three seasons in Tennessee, Tannehill built a 30-13 record as a starting quarterback and led the team to the postseason three times, becoming the franchise's first starting quarterback since Warren Moon (1987 to 1993) to direct his team to the playoffs in at least three consecutive seasons. After appearing in the AFC championship game as a wild card team in 2019, the Titans won consecutive division titles in 2020 and 2021, a first for the franchise since the Oilers took the first three AFL Eastern Division titles from 1960 to 1962. Tannehill's 30 wins were the most by any starting quarterback in franchise history in the player's first three seasons with the organization, surpassing the 28 by George Blanda from 1960 to 1962.

Tannehill started every game from Week 7 of the 2019 campaign through the end of 2021. His 43 consecutive starts in the regular season tied Steve McNair (2001-03) for the most in franchise history by a starting quarterback. During that time, Tannehill's 102.3 passer rating ranked sixth in the NFL. Also, Tannehill's 13 total game-winning drives in that span ranked second in the NFL behind only Raiders quarterback Derek Carr's 14.

In 2021, he placed third on the franchise's single-season passing charts in attempts (531), completions (357) and completion percentage (67.2), and he ranked fourth with 3,734 passing yards. He became the only quarterback other than Moon (1989-1991) to record multiple seasons with at least 3,500 passing yards with the franchise. Additionally, he rushed for 270 yards, and his seven rushing touchdowns ranked second among NFL signal callers behind Jalen Hurts' 10. Tannehill was the first quarterback in franchise annals with at least seven rushing touchdowns in back-to-back seasons.

After receiving a multi-year contract extension during the 2020 offseason, Tannehill responded with 16 starts for the first time since 2015 and produced one of the best seasons of any quarterback in franchise history. A Titans team captain for the first time, his statistics finished in the top five of several of the organization's single-season record lists, including 40 total touchdowns (first), a 106.5 passer rating (second), 3,819 passing yards (third), 33 touchdown passes (tied for second), 65.5 completion percentage (fourth) and 7.9 yards per attempt (tied for fifth). Tannehill became the fourth player in NFL history with a passer rating of at least 106.0 in consecutive seasons, joining Drew Brees (2018-20), Russell Wilson (2018-19) and Aaron Rodgers (2011-12).

Also in 2020, Tannehill and Buffalo's Josh Allen became the fourth and fifth quarterbacks in NFL history with at least 3,800 passing yards, 33 passing touchdowns and seven rushing touchdowns in the same season. Only Cam Newton (2015), Daunte Culpepper (2000) and Steve Young (1994) had done so previously.

In 2019, Tannehill set single-season franchise records and led the NFL with a 117.5 passer rating and a passing average of 9.6 yards per attempt. His passer rating was the fourth-highest figure in NFL history among qualifiers. Additionally, he set a club record and placed third in the NFL with a 70.3 completion percentage.

Tannehill was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2019 and was named to his first career Pro Bowl. He also won the Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year Award.

Originally a first-round selection (eighth overall) by the Miami Dolphins in the 2012 NFL Draft, Tannehill was acquired by the Titans in a trade with the Dolphins on March 15, 2019. The Titans sent a 2019 seventh-round pick and a 2020 fourth-round selection to Miami in exchange for Tannehill and a 2019 sixth-rounder.

Over his seven seasons in Miami, he started 88 games, threw for 20,434 yards and 123 touchdowns, and rushed for 1,210 yards and six scores. When he left Miami, he ranked second in franchise history behind Chad Pennington in both career completion percentage (62.8) and career passer rating (87.0). He authored 13 game-winning drives for the Dolphins.

From 2012 through 2015, Tannehill's passing yardage total—15,460 yards—was the third highest mark in NFL history for a player's first four seasons, behind only Peyton Manning and Dan Marino. Tannehill's two 4,000-yard passing seasons (2015 and 2014) were the only ones recorded by a Dolphins quarterback other than Marino (six times). The Dolphins reached the playoffs in 2016, breaking an eight-year postseason drought.

A native of Big Spring, Texas, Tannehill attended Texas A&M, where he earned honorable mention All-America honors as a senior. He played both quarterback and wide receiver, passing for 5,450 yards and 42 touchdowns and adding 112 receptions for 1,596 yards and 10 scores.

QB WINS, FIRST THREE SEASONS

In leading the Titans to a 12-5 record during the 2021 regular season, Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill improved to 30-13 as a starter since he was traded from the Dolphins to the Titans in 2019. He started every game from Week 7 of his initial season in Tennessee through the 2021 finale.

Tannehill is off to one of the best beginnings to any quarterback's tenure in franchise history. He has more regular season wins—30—than any other starting signal caller in franchise history over the player's first three years with the club, surpassing George Blanda, who won 28 regular season starts for the Oilers from 1960 to 1962.

Tannehill moved past Marcus Mariota (29 wins) and into a tie with Vince Young (30) for fifth place on the team's all-time wins list for starting quarterbacks. He trails only Steve McNair (76), Warren Moon (70), Dan Pastorini (53) and Blanda (44).

Prior to the injury, he was leading the NFL with 937 rushing yards and 10 rushing touchdowns, numbers that still ranked ninth and tied for sixth, respectively, at the conclusion of the regular season. His rushing yardage total established a new franchise record and led the NFL. As the eighth player in NFL annals to hit the 2,000-yard mark, his 2,027 yards finished fifth on the all-time single-season rushing charts. He was recognized with his second consecutive Pro Bowl, named first-team Associated Press All-Pro, and won the FedEx Ground Player of the Year Award for the second consecutive year.

He started all 16 regular season games for the first time and became the first player since LaDainian Tomlinson (2006-07) to lead the NFL in rushing yards in consecutive years. He was the first player in more than 50 years to lead the league in rushing yards, attempts and rushing touchdowns in consecutive seasons and the fifth player ever to do so. The most recent prior to him was Cleveland's Leroy Kelly from 1967 to 1968.

He carried the ball 110 times for 490 yards and five touchdowns and added 137 yards on 13 receptions. Henry became the third rookie for the franchise in the "Titans era" to score at least five touchdowns in a season, joining Vince Young (seven rushing touchdowns in 2006) and Johnson (nine rushing and one receiving in 2008).

The Heisman Trophy winner played three seasons (2013–2015) at the University of Alabama, where he set numerous school and SEC records while helping his team win a National Championship in 2015. He played in 39 games and totaled 602 carries for 3,591 yards and 42 rushing touchdowns and added 285 yards on 17 career receptions with three receiving scores. #60 • C BEN JONES

6-3, 303, 11th Year, Georgia

Center Ben Jones is in his 11th NFL season and his seventh campaign with the Titans in 2022. He was signed as an unrestricted free agent on March 10, 2016.

From 2012 through 2021, Jones appeared in 160 of 161 possible regular season games, including starts in all but one game during his first six seasons in Tennessee. During those six seasons in Tennessee (2016-21), he was one of only eight offensive linemen to start at least 96 of a possible 97 games. He finished the 2021 campaign with an active streak of 40 consecutive starts, ranking third among centers.

Jones started all 17 games in 2021 and helped the Titans finish fifth in the NFL in rushing (141.4 rushing yards per game), marking the fifth time in his six seasons in Tennessee that he helped the offense rank in the top five in rushing.

From 2016 through 2021, the Titans averaged 137.7 rushing yards per game, posting the second-highest average in the NFL behind only the Baltimore Ravens (150.6). The Titans joined the Dallas Cowboys and Indianapolis Colts as the only teams in those six seasons to produce four individual 1,000-yard rushing seasons—three by Derrick Henry and one by DeMarco Murray.

In 2020, Jones started every game at center and was a part of an offense that tied for the second-overall ranking in the NFL (396.4 yards per game), finished second in rushing (168.1), and allowed the sixth-fewest sacks (25). He helped pave the way for Henry to produce the NFL's eighth all-time 2,000-yard rushing season (2,027).

In 2019, Jones captained an offensive line that helped Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games en route to an AFC Championship Game appearance.

On Dec. 12, 2019, Jones was named the Titans nominee for the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award. Considered one of the league's most prestigious honors, the award recognizes an NFL player for outstanding community service activities off the field, as well as excellence on the field.

On Nov. 3, 2019, Jones' streak of 120 consecutive games played and 88 consecutive starts came to an end when he was deactivated with a concussion. At the time, Jones' consecutive games streak tied Kansas City's Mitchell Schwartz for the longest active streak in the NFL among offensive linemen, and his starting streak ranked first in the NFL among all centers.

Jones started all 16 games at center in 2018, registering a start in every contest for the fifth consecutive season, dating back to his third year in Houston (2014).

In his first year in Tennessee, Jones played a key role in an offensive turnaround. He was a key cog in helping the Titans finish 11th overall in offense, third in rushing and tied for seventh in fewest sacks allowed.

Jones was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft. Over the following four seasons, he started contests at center and both guard spots. He was a starter on two playoff teams in Houston (2012 and 2015).

A native of Centreville, Ala., Jones attended the University of Georgia, where his 49 total starts ranked third in school annals. He was a two-time All-SEC selection by the league's coaches and was named to Georgia's Team of the Decade. As a senior (2011), the team captain earned All-SEC first-team honors.

Tackle Taylor Lewan is in his ninth NFL season in 2022. He was selected by the Titans with the 11th overall pick of the 2014 NFL Draft.

In 2021, Lewan returned from a season-ending injury in 2020 to start in 13 games. He helped the Titans finish fifth in the NFL in rushing (141.4 rushing yards per game), marking the fifth time during his career in Tennessee that the offense ranked in the top five in rushing.

During the franchise's "Titans era," beginning in 1999, Lewan's 98 starts at the conclusion of 2021 ranked ninth for the club. Among Titans offensive linemen, only Michael Roos (148), Benji Olson (139), David Stewart (116) and Brad Hopkins (101) had more starts than Lewan from 1999 through 2021.

Lewan's 2020 season was cut short after he was placed on injured reserve on Oct. 19, 2020, one day after suffering a knee injury against the Houston Texans. He started each of the team's first five games of the season.

In 2019, Lewan registered 12 starts during the regular season, anchoring an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games, including the AFC Championship Game.

Lewan was named to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive season in 2018. He played and started in 15 of the team's 16 games at left tackle, marking his fourth consecutive season with at least 15 starts.

In 2017, Lewan became the team's first offensive lineman to make multiple Pro Bowls since center Kevin Mawae from 2008–2009. Lewan started all 16 games for the second consecutive season in 2017 and added starts in both postseason contests.

In 2016, Lewan started all 16 games for the first time. The left tackle was the anchor a line that helped the Titans finish 11th overall in offense, third in rushing and tied for seventh in fewest sacks allowed.

In 2015, Lewan started the first 15 games of the season at left tackle before missing the finale with a concussion.

As a rookie in 2014, Lewan played in 11 games with six starts before suffering an ankle injury. He played as a reserve for the first five games and then started in six consecutive contests before the injury caused him to be inactive the final five weeks. For his efforts, Lewan was named to the Pro Football Writers of America All-Rookie Team.

In four seasons at Michigan, Lewan appeared in 50 games with 48 starts at left tackle. He started the final 41 games of his career and was named the Big Ten Conference Offensive Lineman of the Year in 2012 and 2013. As a senior in 2013, he started all 13 games at left tackle for the third consecutive season and was named second-team Associated Press All-American.

At the 2014 NFL Scouting Combine, he ran the 40-yard dash in 4.87 seconds, beating all other offensive linemen in his class and clocking the fourth-fastest time among offensive linemen in the last five years (2010-14). He also ranked among the top offensive linemen at the 2014 combine in the broad jump (first at nine feet, nine inches), vertical jump (tied for third at 30.5 inches) and three-cone drill (fourth at 7.39 seconds).

A native of Cave Creek, Ariz., Lewan became the first offensive tackle selected by the Titans/Oilers in the first round since tackle Brad Hopkins (13th overall) in 1993.

#31 • S KEVIN BYARD

5-11, 212, 7th Year, Middle Tennessee State

Click for complete bio

Safety Kevin Byard is in his seventh NFL season in 2022. He was selected by the Titans in the third round (64th overall) of the 2016 NFL Draft.

Byard is one of the team's most accomplished defenders and is among the NFL's most successful safeties in recent years. He finished the 2021 campaign as a three-time team captain, two-time Pro Bowl selection and a two-time Associated Press first-team All-Pro. Since entering the league, he has been a part of six consecutive winning seasons and four playoff berths.

Byard did not miss a game from 2016 through 2021, totaling 97 games in the regular season and seven postseason games. At the conclusion of 2021, his 88 consecutive starts in the regular season was the leading current streak among all Titans players, ranked first in the NFL among defenders, and was the sixth-longest active streak among all players.

Over a five-year period from 2017 through 2021, Byard led all safeties with 23 interceptions. The only players with more interceptions in that time were cornerbacks Xavien Howard (27) and J.C. Jackson (25). His interception total was 11th on the franchise's all-time list and sixth among all Titans/Oilers safeties.

In 2021, Byard was announced as a starter to his second career Pro Bowl and earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors for the second time in his career. He joined Bruce Matthews (1999–2000) and Albert Haynesworth (2007–2008) as the franchise's only players in its "Titans era" (since 1999) to earn multiple first-team AP All-Pro honors.

Byard led the Titans in 2021 with five interceptions and 88 tackles, becoming the franchise's first player to lead the team in tackles and interceptions in the same season since the team began tracking individual tackle statistics in 1974. It was his second consecutive season to lead the club in tackles and the fourth time in his career he was the interceptions leader. Additionally, his 13 passes defended ranked second on the team and made up the highest total among NFL safeties. He also was credited with one sack, two quarterback pressures, one tackle for loss, two forced fumbles, one fumble recovery and his first two career touchdowns—one on a fumble return and one on an interception return. He was the first Titans player with two defensive touchdowns in the same season since linebacker Zach Brown in 2012.

In 2020, Byard was a defensive team captain for the second consecutive season and the team's Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year nominee. His 111 tackles led the team and established a career high. Additionally, he registered one interception, seven passes defended, two quarterback pressures, one tackle for loss and one forced fumble. In one playoff game he produced five tackles, one pass defended and a quarterback pressure.

From 2017 through 2019, no NFL player had more interceptions than Byard, who had 17. His 2019 totals included a team-leading five interceptions, 10 passes defended, 91 tackles, one quarterback pressure and two tackles for loss. In three postseason games, he added 20 tackles and one interception.

In 2018, Byard finished with a team-leading four interceptions, 10 passes defended, 96 tackles and two sacks. He also completed a touchdown pass on a memorable fake punt to help defeat the Houston Texans (Sept. 16).

Byard experienced a breakthrough second-year season in 2017. He was named to the Pro Bowl and earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors after tying Detroit's Darius Slay for the NFL lead with eight interceptions. He added a pair of fumble recoveries to pace the league with 10 total takeaways.

As a rookie in 2016, Byard played in every game, starting the final seven contests at free safety. His 63 tackles were the most by a Titans rookie safety since Tank Williams' 69 tackles in 2002. He also ranked second on the squad with 10 special teams tackles.

During a four-year career at Middle Tennessee State University, he appeared in 49 games and notched 46 starts at safety while becoming one of the most prolific defenders in school history. He set school records with 19 career interceptions, 377 interception return yards and four interception returns for touchdowns, and he finished sixth in MTSU history with 312 career tackles. In total, he had a hand in 25 turnovers (19 interceptions, five forced fumbles and one fumble recovery) during his career and added 17 career passes defended and five tackles for loss. He was twice named first-team All-Conference USA.

As a senior in 2015, Byard appeared in 12 games with nine starts as a permanent team captain and was named first-team All-Conference USA for the second consecutive year. He ranked fourth on the team with 66 tackles and led the squad with four interceptions and six additional pass breakups.

HEAD COACH MIKE VRABEL PRESS CONFERENCE TRANSCRIPT
Monday, September 5, 2022

(on if having the ‘next man up’ mentality is an advantage after placing outside linebacker Harold Landry III on injured reserve)

We've done that since I've been a part of playing this game. It's unfortunate. It's disappointing. I feel terrible for Harold (Landry III), the work that he's put in, and his value to our football team, but we have to move on and get everybody ready to go in.

(on if losing Harold Landry III's versatility is the hardest thing to deal with)

We're looking for ways to try to get started here, continue with the preparation with the Giants, and on first and second down. We'll see if those are some of the same things that some of the guys can do. If not, we'll have to make adjustments.

(on how much of an opportunity the loss of Harold Landry III presents for outside linebacker Rashad Weaver)

He was going to find a role somehow. He was continuing to improve and had shown some really good things in the preseason. His ability to disrupt the football, get his hand on a football, sack the quarterback, and have some impactful plays. We'll see where Weav (Rashad Weaver) is and hopefully he can help us.

(on what the loss of Harold Landry III puts on outside linebacker Bud Dupree)

There are high expectations for a lot of those guys, certainly Bud (Dupree) would be a part of that. I don't think Bud is going to play any harder or try to be any more productive with an injury. I hope that they're all aiming to do that.

(on what he tells new when they arrive to the team such as outside linebacker Derrek Tuszka)

Try to pay attention and focus. There'll be some things that we do similar to places he's been, coming from Pittsburgh. There'll be some things that we'll do differently. I know he's been meeting a lot and trying to get caught up to speed. We'll see where he fits in defensively and on special teams.

(on what he likes about Derrek Tuszka and if he remembers playing against him last season)

We had evaluated him coming out and he gives us a little flexibility there with the body type and the skillset. Doing some different things than Weav (Rashad Weaver) or David (Long Jr.) has kind of done. We'll see what it looks like here in the next couple of days.

(on if wide receivers coach Rob Moore worked with wide receiver Josh Gordon over the weekend to bring him up to speed)

They have met. We are excited to add some of these guys to our roster here, Josh (Gordon) being one of those guys. I have had some great interactions with him so far. He's shown professionalism and he seems like he's excited to be here. We'll see where he is as we get to the end of the week.

(on how much he looked at Brian Daboll's Buffalo Bills film to prepare for the New York Giants and how different personnel changes his expectations)

There is a base. I'm sure there are things that Brian (Daboll) will want to do that has been brought with him from different places, Alabama, Buffalo, New England. The influence that Mike (Kafka)'s had being in Kansas City. These guys have been around good offenses and we'll have to be ready for everything. It's opening week.

(on how important the endorsements of guard/center Aaron Brewer were from Texas State when Brewer was entering the league)

That's a large part of it. We try to have a vision for the player to see where he could help us. Having Stretch (John Streicher) have been there with Everett (Withers) and those coaches that we knew. It was a no-brainer really for us, to try to add him to our roster after the draft.

(on how Aaron Brewer has improved)

He's got just a greater understanding of our system and what we're trying to do. His versatility is still there. The depth of what they were doing offensively wasn't probably the same here, as far as run game and scheme and things like that, which he has a very good understanding of.

(on how much availability is considered when adding Josh Gordon to the team)

Those are things that really are out of our control. We'll look at how he handles each day. I would anticipate him being available to us. But I wouldn't look at anything in the past. We're excited to work with him and see how he develops within our offense.

(on what he sees from Giants running back Saquon Barkley)

You look at the explosiveness, the speed, everybody's at the point of attack. We understand the strength at which he runs at. I hope that we don't have too many one-on-one tackles. I hope that there are some more guys at the football when he has it. They've got other guys that are good with the football. (Kadarius)Toney, (Wan'Dale) Robinson, the quarterback (Daniel Jones) is going to have it. They've run him in the past. He can run and he will run. Those are all guys that we're going to have to make sure tackling will be critical, like it is every week. But in this first week our fundamentals really show up.

(on what he has seen from cornerback Adoree' Jackson in his film study)

He's good in off coverage and he matches. Again, it's been a small sampling here in preseason.

(on how hard tackling is in Week One especially for players who have not played in a while)

That's why we practice. I hope that it isn't. Those are things that we're practicing all the time in training camp. That's what you do to get ready for the season.

(on what elements of Josh Gordon's game he likes)

He's big. He's got a great catch radius. He's shown athleticism.

(on if he takes anything from Week One last season to prepare for Week One this season)

Just hope that we can play and coach better. We turned the ball over and didn't do a very good job taking care of the football. We couldn't really stop them much. We got beat.

(on if player health affects the preparation this year going into Week One in comparison to last season)

We are healthier now. We'll see, this is just the first week. We kind of see who is there and then make decisions on the 48-man roster as we work through the week.

HEAD COACH MIKE VRABEL PRESS CONFERENCE TRANSCRIPT
Wednesday, August 31, 2022

(on defensive lineman Denico Autry's health and progress in training camp)

Good to see him back out there. He did some good things, and we'll get moving forward with him.

(on how the roster reduction to 53 players went)

We know it's a difficult time, having been through it as a player and a coach. It's not easy. We try to communicate and visit with each person. They put a lot into it. Some of them spent a lot of time with us. We also try to communicate with the ones that we do want back, that we have all intentions of continuing to work with them. We know how important the practice squad is and how critical it is to our season, not only to us and the games that we would have to use those guys in, and we have done that a lot, but also to their development.

(on if quarterback Malik Willis will help the scout team)

That's the backup quarterback's job. That's where they get their reps. We try to put it in our terminology, and we've talked a lot about that here in the last couple of days, when we started just using some cards. Whether we put the call on there for you or not, you should be able to look at the formation, look at the play and then translate that into our terms. If we don't have it for whatever reason then that's fine, then run the card. We're asking those guys to come out there and take control of the huddle, the cadence, the operation, make sure guys are lined up. That's where he's getting a lot of his reps. Those can be good reps.

(on if there will be anything different with Malik Willis at backup quarterback compared to other backup quarterbacks)

It will be how it would be with any backup quarterback. He is still preparing like he's going to be the starter, so is Logan (Woodside). He'll get some reps throughout the course of the day, but the majority of his work and every backup quarterback that I've been associated with, that's where their work is.

(on what impressed him in camp and preseason about running back Julius Chestnut and cornerback Tre Avery)

They came in and competed. Jon (Robinson) talked a lot about the roster I'm sure, so I'll just keep it to the Giants.

(on how quarterback Ryan Tannehill goes about leading the team)

He's had a very good camp. You hear him talking through things and explaining situations, whether we're in a group period or what we're working on. He's very conscious of being vocal and working through things with tight ends that are new or with receivers trying to figure out where each and every guy is going to be and then making sure that they're where he wants them to be.

(on what it is like preparing for a New York Giants team that has a lot of staff turnover from last season)

We've played against both coordinators. The head coach has been in Buffalo and the defensive coordinator has been in Baltimore. We try to learn the personnel the best that we can. We try to anticipate what we may see from them in all three phases. Most of the scheme stuff would probably come from somebody other than the Giants. You're watching the Giants for personnel, to see guys' skillset and how they play. Then you just try to get them prepared the best that you can for the things that you think you might see.

(on if he sees this week as an extension of training camp or as regular season preparation)

It's probably a little bit of both. We are trying to use the time that we have to get some work in, some competitive work, which we did today. Then also start to show the players stuff that we think we may see in the game.

(on if he sees offensive lineman Dennis Daley as more of a tackle or guard)

Offensive line. We will see where it works out. He's got flexibility.

(on how hard of a decision was the punting competition)

Jon (Robinson) touched on the roster. My conversation with Brett (Kern) was fantastic. Can't thank him enough for his professionalism. My time with him personally and the impact that he's made over the four years that I've been here with him in this community, this football team - I've watched his kids grow up. It was good to have Bryce (Kern) out here for training camp. It was really fun. I know that I will continue to have a good relationship with Brett moving forward. He is just a true professional.

(on what wide receiver Dez Fitzpatrick has to show him to work his way back onto the 53-man roster)

Same thing that hopefully all the receivers will. Being able to get open when we need him to. Being able to block when we need him to. Being able to make contested catches.

(on what tackle Taylor Lewan's leadership has meant for the team since Vrabel arrived)

We all know Taylor (Lewan)'s personality. That's something that has to be a strength for us, his energy, his vocalness. You hear him out there and he's had a good camp. He's been out there. He's improved. He's trying to work on some things. That's always a positive. He's never asked for a day off. He's never done that. We've tried to take care of him the best that we can, and I'm hopeful that leadership continues.

(on how offensive lineman Nicholas Petit-Frere has grown at his position and how he can continue to evolve)

There are just so many different things that he sees from looks and scheme from our defense or Tampa, Arizona and then now looking forward to the Giants. That's a lot of stuff. Each block or each play based on the front, there's a lot more to it than that. Sometimes in pass protection that's probably the easiest thing that they have because the tackle usually has the end unless there's pressure or something else happens. It's really just being good at the top of the pocket and using his length, using his size. He's adjusting to the different looks in the run game.

TITANS-RAVENS: GAME SUMMARY

Preseason Week 1: Titans 10, Ravens 23 Thursday, Aug. 11, 2022 • 7:30 p.m. ET • M&T Bank Stadium

In Week 1 of the 2022 preseason, Tennessee traveled to Baltimore to face the Ravens and fell by a score of 23-10. A significant number of Titans starters did not make the trip, allowing rookie QB Malik Willis the opportunity to start the contest, as he recorded 107 yards passing and added 38 rushing yards with one touchdown.

In the first quarter, RB Julius Chestnut fumbled the ball and it was recovered by Ravens S Kyle Hamilton at the Tennessee 22-yard line. Baltimore capitalized on the turnover, as Ravens RB Mike Davis ultimately found the end zone on a four-yard rushing score to put the home team on the board first, 7-0. Later in the first quarter, Willis led the Titans on a seven play, 72-yard scoring drive with first-down passes to Chestnut and RB Hassan Haskins. Chestnut added a 29-yard rush to move the sticks, as the drive culminated in a seven-yard rushing touchdown by Willis to tie the score, 7-7.

Later in the second quarter, the Titans took the lead with a 61-yard scoring drive. Willis connected with WR Racey McMath for a 48-yard gain to give the Titans a first down at the Baltimore 28-yard line. Haskins added two carries for eight yards, but Tennessee was forced to settle for a field goal as K Randy Bullock converted a 33-yard attempt, 10-7. However, Baltimore took the lead back before the first half concluded. Ravens QB Tyler Huntley connected with Ravens TE Isaiah Likely and Ravens WR Shemar Bridges for first-down passes, and Huntley added a 14-yard rushing gain before connecting with Bridges for a 14-yard touchdown and a 14-10 Ravens lead.

Baltimore began the second half with an 11-play scoring drive to extend their lead, aided by Ravens QB Anthony Brown connecting with Ravens WR Makai Polk for a 23-yard gain to move the chains. The drive culminated in a 47-yard field goal by Ravens K Justin Tucker, 17-10. Later in the third quarter, QB Logan Woodside's pass was intercepted in the red zone by Ravens CB Daryl Worley, halting Tennessee's momentum and giving Baltimore possession at their own two-yard line. The Ravens constructed a 91-yard scoring drive, taking advantage of the turnover with a 25-yard field goal to make

Later in the final stanza, Woodside was intercepted by Ravens S Geno Stone to give Baltimore possession at their own 48-yard line. The Ravens capitalized on the third Titans turnover, as Tucker converted a 47-yard field goal for a 23-10 Baltimore advantage. Tennessee was unable to construct a comeback and fell on the road in the preseason.

TITANS-BUCCANEERS: GAME SUMMARY

Preseason Week 2: Titans 13, Buccaneers 3 Saturday, Aug. 20, 2022 • 6:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

Following a week of joint practices in Nashville, the Titans hosted Tampa Bay at home during Week Two of the 2022 preseason and won by a score of 13-3. The Tennessee defense limited the Buccaneers to nine first downs, 81 passing yards and a combined two conversions on 15 attempts on third down (2-13) and fourth down (0-2).

After a scoreless first quarter, the Titans constructed three scoring drives in the second stanza to take a 13-0 lead. First, QB Malik Willis guided the offense on a 78-yard scoring drive that featured an 18-yard first-down reception by WR Dez Fitzpatrick, an 11-yard first-down catch by WR Kyle Philips, and two carries for 35 yards by Willis. Ultimately, Tennessee settled for a field goal as K Randy Bullock converted a 32-yard attempt, 3-0 Titans.

On the ensuing Tampa Bay drive, CB Lonnie Johnson Jr. forced Buccaneers RB Rachaad White to fumble the ball and it was recovered by OLB Rashad Weaver at the Tampa Bay 31-yard line to give Tennessee possession. The Titans capitalized on the turnover as Bullock made a 49-yard field goal, 6-0 Titans.

The Titans defense responded by forcing the Buccaneers to turn the ball over on a second consecutive drive. After a second-down sack of Buccaneers QB Kyle Trask by DE Da'Shawn Hand, Tampa Bay faced a third-and-18. Weaver impacted the pass attempt by making contact with Trask's arm during the throw, allowing LB Joe Jones to intercept the ball and return it 38 yards to the Tampa Bay 19-yard line. Tennessee took advantage of the turnover, as Willis engineered a four-play scoring drive that was capped off with a six-yard touchdown pass to TE Chig Okonkwo. The Titans took a 13-0 lead into halftime.

In the third quarter, Tampa Bay got on the scoreboard as Buccaneers K Ryan Succop converted a 52-yard field goal. The Tennessee defense kept the Buccaneers at bay, holding on to the lead and not surrendering any more points. The Titans sealed a home preseason win by a final score of 13-3.

TITANS-CARDINALS: GAME SUMMARY

Preseason Week 3: Titans 26, Cardinals 23 Saturday, Aug. 27, 2022 • 6:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

The Titans closed out the 2022 preseason with a 26-23 win at home over the Arizona Cardinals. Tennessee's offense scored touchdowns on all three of its red zone possessions, and out-rushed Arizona 168 yards to 86 yards to conclude the preseason with a 2-1 record.

Arizona got on the board on their first offensive possession with an 89-yard touchdown drive. Aided by a 15-yard pass from Cardinals QB Trace McSorley to Cardinals WR Andy Isabella that set up a first-and-goal at the one-yard line, Cardinals RB Darrel Williams ran in a one-yard rushing score for a 7-0 lead.

The Titans strung together their first scoring drive of the contest in the second quarter. Beginning the drive at their own 47-yard line, QB Malik Willis took off and rushed for a 50-yard gain to flip field position and earn a first down at the Arizona three-yard line. RB Julius Chestnut was able to run in a three-yard rushing score, but the two-point conversion attempt failed, 7-6 Cardinals.

Later in the second quarter, Tennessee extended the lead with an eight-play scoring drive. Willis contributed a 15-yard rushing gain before connecting with WR Treyton Burks for a 14-yard touchdown, 13-7 Titans. However, Arizona responded with a scoring drive of their own. McSorley tossed two first-down passes for 31 yards to Cardinals WR Greg Dortch, but Arizona was forced to settle for a field goal as Cardinals K Matt Prater converted a 42-yard attempt to make it 13-10 Titans heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, Tennessee pulled ahead with a 27-yard scoring drive. Willis connected with WR Racey McMath for a 26-yard first down, before K Randy Bullock made a 51-yard field goal to make it a 16-10 contest. On the ensuing Arizona drive, Cardinals QB Jarrett Guarantano led his team on a 75-yard scoring drive that included a 74-yard pass to Isabella for a first down at the Tennessee two-yard line. Guarantano connected with Dortch for a two-yard touchdown, as Arizona took the lead back, 17-16. However, on the following Tennessee drive, Willis' pass was tipped at the line of scrimmage and intercepted by Cardinals S James Wiggins. Arizona capitalized on the turnover with a 53-yard field goal to extend their lead, 20-16.

On a fourth quarter punt return, Cardinals WR Victor Bolden Jr. muffed the ball and it was recovered by S Theo Jackson at the Arizona 35-yard line. Tennessee capitalized on the turnover as Bullock nailed a 50-yard field goal to close the gap in score, 20-19 Cardinals. However, on Arizona's next possession, the Cardinals responded with a field goal of their own as Prater converted a 42-yard attempt, 23-19 Arizona.

With less than four minutes remaining in the contest, Tennessee began a drive at their own 25-yard line. QB Logan Woodside guided the offense on a 12-play possession, including tossing first-down passes to RB Hassan Haskins and WR Dez Fitzpatrick. Facing a fourth down at the Arizona nine-yard line with one minute left in regulation, Woodside scrambled to the middle for a nine-yard touchdown to put Tennessee back on top and seal a 26-23 win.

GAME CLIPS

SIX THINGS THAT STOOD OUT FOR THE TITANS IN SATURDAY NIGHTS PRESEASON WIN OVER THE CARDINALS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
AUGUST 27, 2022

NASHVILLE – The Titans rallied to beat the Cardinals 26-23 in the preseason finale on Saturday night at Nissan Stadium.

Here's a look at six things that stood out from the contest:

Malik Willis Strides

I get the sense Malik Willis is getting tired of talking about Malik Willis. Don't get me wrong: Willis is as polite as they come. Heck, during his post-game press conference on Saturday night he made sure a reporter wasn't offended by the tone of one of his answers after the game. Willis was good, of course. Willis played his best game to date on the field as well, as he threw for 131 yards and a score while running for 79 yards, including a 50-yard run. "I think it was probably like a B-minus," Willis said as he evaluated himself. The QB's teammates complimented him plenty, however, including back-up Logan Woodside. "Malik has earned the opportunity to go in there and play," Woodside said after the game. "He played a heck of a game tonight, and he got us in a position to go in there and win the game. I've seen a lot of growth and maturity out of him, and he has been a guy I've loved being around. I'll support him any way I can. He made some great throws, and he ran the heck out of ball tonight, too."

Woodside Deserves Props

Woodside deserves a lot of credit after Saturday night's win. Woodside was a spectator the first 56:07 of the game before entering the contest with the team trailing 23-19. But Woodside stepped in and completed 5-of-9 passes for 43 yards while engineering a 12-play,

75-yard drive, and then on fourth down he tucked the football and ran it for nine yards and a touchdown to give the Titans the win. "I thought it was fantastic," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Woodside. "I thought he was excited about going in there, and he has earned the right to go in there and win. Guys responded ... and he scrambled when it opened up." Woodside said he was excited about the opportunity. "It definitely didn't feel like a preseason game," Woodside said. "It was great to get out there, and credit to the guys. ... I just tried to get the playmakers the ball when I got the chance."

An Interesting Night for Burks

It was an interesting night for first-round pick Treyton Burks, who caught a pass from Willis on Tennessee's first offensive play, and then caught another on the team's next drive. Burks, however, left the field after his second catch, and headed into the locker room. The team announced his return as questionable because of a wrist injury, and as Burks stood on the sideline for a few series holding his helmet, it was easy to question whether he'd return. But, sure enough, Burks re-entered the game, and he even caught a 14-yard touchdown pass from Willis. Burks had a small brace on his right wrist in the locker room after the game. "It is always frustrating when you get hurt," Burks said. "But always believe in your teammates, coaches and God. ... I just want to make (my teammates and God) proud and make the fans proud and just keep doing what I'm doing."

Woods Makes Debut

Titans veteran Robert Woods has made great progress, one step at a time since joining the team back in March. On Saturday night, Woods did something he hadn't done previously: Suit up and play in a game. Woods started at receiver against the Cardinals, and he made one catch for three yards before trading his helmet in for a baseball cap. Woods said earlier in the week he doesn't think about his surgically repaired knee any more, and he's now cleared another hurdle leading up to the regular season. "We're just trying to do what is best for everybody to get them ready for the regular season," Vrabel said of Woods.

Ryan Stonehouse and Brett Kern

Titans punter Brett Kern has been one of the team's most popular players in the past decade, but in the locker room on Saturday night, he found himself facing questions about his future. Time will tell what happens at the punting position in the coming days. Kern said he feels he hit the ball well in camp while also complimenting Stonehouse. "I told (Ryan): I have been in the league a long time, and I've seen about three or four people my entire life hit a ball like he does." Stonehouse handled the punting duties on Saturday night, and it's safe to say he let it fly. Stonehouse punted seven times for a 49.4-yard average, including a pair of punts of 64 yards and three downed inside the 20. "I feel like each game I have improved," Stonehouse said, "and I think that's what I'm going to continue to do."

Ugo Amadi Returns to Nissan Stadium

It's been a whirlwind of a month for new Titans defensive back Ugo Amadi, who the team acquired in a trade just a few days ago. Nine days before that, Amadi had been traded to Philadelphia from Seattle, where he played his first three NFL seasons. But on Saturday night, Amadi found himself back at Nissan Stadium, where he played as a kid during his Pop Warner days. "When I played as a six-year-old, I was a lot smaller," a smiling Amadi said. "But as an adult, while I am young in my career, it was unbelievable. I couldn't believe I was out there (tonight) representing the city. It was a blessing." Amadi, who prepped at Nashville's John Overton High, was credited with two pass break-ups and a tackle. "I had a lot of family here," Amadi said, smiling bigger. "I kept seeing them on the Jumbotron during the game. I just couldn't believe that I am actually home, and everyone is out here

TITANS END PRESEASON WITH A 26-23 COMEBACK WIN OVER THE CARDINALS

BY JIM WYATT

AUGUST 27, 2022

NASHVILLE – In the preseason finale, a lot of Titans were decked out in baseball caps.

But in the team's final dress rehearsal for the regular season, the Titans who suited up did their best to end August on a positive note – and they did just that in comeback fashion on Saturday night.

"It was fun and electrifying, being up and then going down, and then coming out with a win," running back Julius Chestnut said with a big smile. "This team is about being a family, and it was fun to celebrate together."

The Titans had plenty to celebrate after rallying for a 26-23 preseason win over the Cardinals.

Malik Willis started at quarterback for the Titans for the third straight week, and he played most of the contest. Willis had some good moments, including a touchdown pass and a long run that set up another score.

Logan Woodside replaced Willis with 3:53 left in the contest, and he drove the Titans to the game-winning score and capped it off with a nine-yard touchdown run with 52 seconds left.

"I was hyped for him. I was turned up," a smiling Willis said of Woodside. "I was probably his biggest fan at that moment – he had me super-excited. That's my dawg there, and I was just turned for him."

Willis completed 15-of-23 passes for 131 yards, with a touchdown, and interception, and a passer rating of 76.5. His most electrifying play of the night was a 50-yard run, which set up Tennessee's first score. Willis finished the contest with 79 rushing yards on four carries, and he was sacked four times.

Willis connected with rookie receiver Treyton Burks for a 14-yard touchdown strike, which capped off another scoring drive.

Woodside completed 5-of-9 passes for 43 yards on the final drive, and his scoring run came on fourth down from the nine-yard line.

"It was great to be able to get in there and have a chance to win the game," said Woodside, who complimented Willis after the contest. "Malik has earned the opportunity to go in there and play. He played a heck of a game tonight, and he got us in a position to go in there and win the game. I've seen a lot of growth and maturity out of him, and he has been a guy I've loved being around. I'll support him any way I can. He made some great throws, and he ran the heck out of ball tonight, too."

With the win, the Titans wrapped up the preseason with a record of 2-1.

Now things get serious: All teams must be down to 53 players by Tuesday, the NFL's roster cutdown deadline.

Also, the Titans kick off the regular season on September 11 at Nissan Stadium against the New York Giants.

But first, more about Saturday night, when the majority of the team's starters didn't play, including quarterback Ryan Tannehill, running back Derrick Henry and most the front-liners on each side of the football.

Veteran receiver Robert Woods did suit up for the first time in the preseason for the Titans, and he caught a three-yard pass before trading in his helmet for a baseball cap.

Like Woods, Burks started the contest, and he had two catches in the first quarter. Burks left the field after making a 13-yard catch, and the team announced in-game that Burks suffered a wrist injury, making his return questionable at the time. Burks returned to the game in a few series later in the second quarter, and he ended that possession with his touchdown catch, which capped off an eight-play, 60-yard scoring drive and gave the Titans their first lead of the night. Burks didn't return after that play.

The Cardinals took a 7-0 on a one-yard touchdown run by running back Darrel Williams, and that was the score after the first quarter.

Then a 50-yard run by Willis, which set up a three-yard touchdown run by Chestnut. The team's two-point conversion try failed, and the Cardinals held a 7-6 lead.

After the 14-yard scoring toss from Willis to Burks to give the Titans a 13-7 lead, the Cardinals made it 13-10 at the half on a 42-yard field goal by kicker Matt Prater.

After the Titans extended their lead to 16-10 on a 51-yard field goal by kicker Randy Bullock with 6:29 remaining in the third quarter, the Cardinals reclaimed the lead at 17-16 on a two-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jarrett Guarantano to receiver Greg Dortch. Another Prater field goal, this one from 53 yards out, made it 20-16 Cardinals over the Titans with 1:22 left in the third quarter.

After another field goal by Bullock, this one from 50 yards, made it 20-19 early in the fourth quarter, Prater added another field goal to give the Cardinals a 23-19 lead with 3:53 left.

Woodside then entered the game, and he guided the Titans to the go-ahead touchdown.

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel will conduct a press conference on Sunday before the team returns to the practice field on Monday. The Titans will then make over two-dozen roster cuts as team begins to form its final roster for the regular season.

Vrabel said after the game the team has made progress in the preseason leading up to what's next.

"I think injury-wise, we'll see where we're at coming out of this game," Vrabel said. "There's still a lot of things we have left to do and we'll continue to improve. I'm excited about the week that we have to prepare and do some things against ourselves and start looking toward the Giants."

RETURNS TO TENNESSEE

INJURY

AUGUST 27, 2022*

Tennessee Titans wide receiver Treylon Burks has returned to the team's preseason finale against the Arizona Cardinals on Saturday after suffering a wrist injury.

The team announced earlier that Burks was questionable to return.

Burks came out of the game during the team's second drive of the game at Nissan Stadium. Burks walked into the locker room with Titans medical staff but returned to the sideline in the second quarter and came back into the game with about three minutes left in the half.

Burks missed time during organized team activities in June, but came into training camp in better shape. The first round pick has had a solid camp, though he appears to be behind Robert Woods and Nick Westbrook-Ikhine in the receiving pecking order two weeks before the season opener against the Giants.

"But I was really encouraged by some of the things, especially without the football trying to block," Vrabel said about Burks after last week's win over Tampa Bay. "There were times that he was open, whether that be for a catch and run, and there were some other times that we'd like to see a better route."

Burks was the 18th overall pick in this year's draft, a selection acquired by the Titans from the Eagles in exchange for A.J. Brown, whose contract negotiations with Tennessee stalled out.

The Arkansas alum caught 66 passes for 1,104 yards and 11 touchdowns in his breakout 2021 season for the Razorbacks.

Malik Willis gave himself a passing grade, Tennessee Titans coach Mike Vrabel was even more complimentary and fellow backup quarterback Logan Woodside gushed about the way Willis played in the final preseason game Saturday night at Nissan Stadium.

Willis saved his best performance for his third start and set the stage for Woodside to come in and lift the Titans to a 26-23 win over the Arizona Cardinals with a 9-yard TD run.

Whether the tandem quarterback play from Saturday night will factor into deciding Ryan Tannehill's backup is still to be determined.

Vrabel would only say that he "loved" Willis' attitude and that Woodside was "fantastic" and had earned the right take some snaps with the game still on the line.

"I think it was probably like a B- for me," Willis said. "It was better than the first couple of preseason games as far as me just sitting in the pocket and taking what the defense gives me. You've got to take these opportunities as they come and continue to progress from each practice to each opportunity you get to go out there on the field."

Willis threw the ball well, completing 15 of 23 passes and hitting nine different receivers, including a 14-yard touchdown to first-round draft pick Treylon Burks.

He also was the game's leading rusher with 79 yards on four carries, including a 50-yard run to the Cardinals' 3 after he scrambled out of the pocket.

He left the game with under four minutes to go, and Woodside took over for the final possession. Woodside completed 5 of 9 passes for 43 yards, then ran nine yards for the winning touchdown.

"I thought it was fantastic," Vrabel said when asked about Woodside's late game heroics. "He was excited about going in there. He's earned a right to go in there and win and guys responded. He got us in the right checks and then threw a great ball to Dez (Fitzpatrick), who wasn't able to come down with it (in the end zone). Then he scrambled when it opened up and scored."

Woodside has spent extra time in practice, Vrabel said, concentrating on his play in the red zone and was prepared for the moment.

"He's done that in practice so I wasn't shocked," Vrabel said .

Woodside wasn't bothered by having to spend nearly the entire game on the sideline watching Willis play before finally taking a snap.

"Malik's earned the opportunity to go in there and he played a heck of a game tonight," Woodside said. "He got us in a position to be able to go in there and try to win the game. I've seen a lot of growth and maturity out of him and he's been a guy that I've loved being around. I'm going to support him anyway I can."

There is still work to do for Willis. He was sacked four times and intercepted once when one of his passes in the fourth quarter was deflected at the line of scrimmage.

But for the most part, Vrabel was pleased with his progress.

"There were some things we talked about him improving and we saw that," Vrabel said. "The communication between him and (offensive coordinator) Todd (Downing) during the game, his ability to get us to the line of scrimmage efficiently, his ability to keep his eyes downfield, numerous times sliding up in the pocket. He's always learning and I love his attitude."

WOODSIDE'S TD IN FINAL MINUTE LIFTS TITANS PAST CARDS 26-23

BY TERESA M. WALKER
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
AUGUST 27, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Titans have given rookie Malik Willis plenty of opportunities this preseason to show how quickly he can make the jump from Liberty to the NFL.

And it sure looks as if he might be veteran Ryan Tannehill's backup this season.

"He can beat you throwing in pocket, he can beat you outside the pocket throwing, he can extend plays and then he can also beat you by turning up and running," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Willis. "So there's a lot of guys that we're going to defend like that. And it's difficult."

Logan Woodside scrambled for a 9-yard touchdown on fourth-and-goal with 52 seconds left to rally the Titans past the Cardinals on Saturday night.

Woodside's rally likely won't be enough to remain Tannehill's backup for a third straight season despite helping the Titans (2-1) finish the preseason with a second straight home win. Woodside was 5 of 9 for 43 yards on his lone drive, but Willis turned in his best performance yet in his third preseason start.

Rookie Jarrett Guarantano tried to rally the Cardinals (1-2), but he was flagged for intentional grounding when being grabbed by Titans linebacker Rashad Weaver for a loss of down and a 10-second runoff. Sam Okuayinonu then sacked Guarantano to end the game.

Willis ran four times for a game-high 79 yards, including scampering 50 yards to set up a 3-yard TD run by Julius Chestnut. He also capped a drive just before halftime with a sidearm throw around Arizona linebacker Myjai Sanders to Treyton Burks across the middle. The first-round pick finished off a 14-yard TD for a 13-7 lead.

The quarterback drafted at No. 86 overall in the third round was sacked four times and was 15 of 23 for 131 yards despite being sacked twice in the first quarter by Cardinals rookie Cameron Thomas. Willis also was intercepted by James Wiggins on a pass deflected by Ben Niemann.

"It was probably like a B-minus," Willis said of how he rated his latest performance. "It was better than the first couple of preseason games just as far as me sitting in the pocket."

The Cardinals nearly pulled out the win with Matt Prater kicking three field goals, and Guarantano hit Greg Dortch for a 2-yard TD pass late in the third quarter.

Kyler Murray watched his third straight preseason game as Trace McSorley started by hitting his first seven passes for 71 yards to set up a 1-yard run by Darrel Williams on the opening drive. Then he hit a skid completing only 1 of 11 for 10 yards. Andy Isabella finished with five catches for a game-high 115 yards, including a 74-yard catch-and-run.

The Titans and Cardinals both went with protection for the regular season over needing to give most starters a last tune-up before the regular season.

Arizona coach Kliff Kingsbury said the Cardinals survived the game fairly well with injuries. With DeAndre Hopkins suspended the first six games of the season, Kingsbury liked what he saw from Isabella and Dortch.

"I thought they attacked this camp," Kingsbury said. "They didn't take a day off. They didn't take a rep off. Both of them, every day full speed. You see the results. I can't say enough good things about how they played this camp."

TENNESSEE JOBS' COMPETITION

Undrafted free agent Ryan Stonehouse punted for the Titans, and the rookie from Colorado State took a big step toward winning the job held by three-time Pro Bowler Brett Kern. Stonehouse boomed a 64-yarder with his impressive hangtime on a ball downed at the Arizona 7. He averaged a net of 41.9 yards on seven punts with three downed inside the Cardinals 20.

Kern is Tennessee's longest-tenured player and ranks third all time with 197 regular-season games played since being claimed off waivers from Denver in 2009. Kern said he knew once he saw Stonehouse punt in April that this would be a real competition that's now so close a coin flip could decide the winner.

"I told him, 'I've been in the league a long time, and I've seen three or four people my entire life hit a ball like he does,'" Kern said. "I knew it was going to be hard. I knew what he was really good at, and what he's really good at I'm probably not, and what I'm really good at, he just needs to work on it."

Rookie Nicholas Petit-Frere started at right tackle for the Titans. General manager Jon Robinson said during the telecast that the third-round pick out of Ohio State has won the job over Dillon Radunz, a second-round pick in 2021.

INJURIES

Burks went to the locker room with an injured right wrist late in the first quarter. He finished with his best game yet with three catches on three targets for 33 yards. Safety Lonnie Johnson, claimed off waivers Aug. 16, hurt a shoulder but returned.

Cardinals offensive tackle Rashaad Coward hurt his chest early in the second quarter and didn't return. Arizona safety Tae Daley went down but walked off after the Woodside TD run.

NICHOLAS PETIT-FRERE IS OFFICIALLY THE TITANS' RIGHT TACKLE

PAUL KUHARSKY
PAULKUHARSKY.COM
AUGUST 27, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – During the TV broadcast of the Cardinals-Titans game, Jon Robinson stated the obvious: Nicholas Petit-Frere is the Titans' starting right tackle.

NPF did well with his chances, but the inability of second-year, second-round pick Dillon Radunz to rise to the occasion and take the job he was drafted to fill was a part of it as well.

The Titans have now spent a first-, second- and third-round pick to replace Jack Conklin at right tackle.

Conklin understandably did not get his fifth-year option picked up in 2018 as he was recovering from a torn ACL. After his fourth season in 2019 he signed a big-dollar deal in Cleveland.

It's fine that the Titans' intention was to fill the job more inexpensively, but they've failed badly at identifying talent. Robinson's made two terrible picks since.

Isaiah Wilson was Robinson's choice as Conklin's successor, but he was a complete bust who played four snaps in his rookie season as the 29th pick in 2020 before the Titans dumped him for next to nothing to the Dolphins, who quickly cut him.

Robinson and Mike Vrabel said Wilson turned into a guy who was nothing like the one they scouted and drafted. They did very well at letting themselves off the hook for the error that's had giant ripple effects.

Radunz was the 53rd pick a year later and got the bulk of his work at guard after the Titans' second preseason game. He played at both guard spots against Arizona.

Petit-Frere was the 69th pick of the most recent draft. He's a strong run blocker who will need help in protecting Ryan Tannehill as he grows.

Radunz will be looked to as a versatile swing guy among weak depth.

Still, the Titans need to be combing the waiver wire Tuesday when teams trim their rosters to 53 in order to find better depth than the candidates they have including Radunz, center Corey Levin, the injured Jamarco Jones and guard Jordan Roos.

Aaron Brewer was one of a number of players who didn't play against the Cardinals, along with Taylor Lewan, Ben Jones and the injured Nate Davis.

Brewer faced no serious competition for the open left guard spot and is in line to replace Rodger Saffold there.

MALIK WILLIS SHINES FOR TENNESSEE TITANS BUT LOGAN WOODSIDE SCORES WINNING TD IN PRESEASON FINALE

BY MIKE ORGAN
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 27, 2022

In their final preseason game the Tennessee Titans rallied to beat the Arizona Cardinals 26-23.

The regular season kicks off Sept. 11 against the New York Giants at Nissan Stadium.

The Titans finished the preseason 2-1.

Here's what stood out for the Titans on Saturday:

Malik Willis continues to improve

Rookie quarterback Malik Willis showed off his versatility by consistently moving the offense.

He completed his first seven passes and was 12 of 16 for 88 yards.

As well as he threw the ball Willis was just as effective running it.

On the Titans' fourth possession Willis scrambled out of the pocket and ran 50 yards to the Arizona 3. That set up Tennessee's first touchdown which came two plays later when running back Julius Chestnut got the goal line and offensive guard Corey Levin pushed him into the end zone to trim Arizona's lead to 7-6.

Willis rushed for 79 yards on his first four carries.

He went back to the air in the second half on the Titans' first possession and hit Racey McMath with a 26-yard strike to the Arizona 40. That set up a Randy Bullock 51-yard field goal that put the Titans up 16-10.

Another highlight came when Willis tossed a 14-yard touchdown pass to Treyton Burks.

It wasn't all good for Willis. His pass late in the third quarter was tipped by defensive lineman Ben Niemann and intercepted by James Wiggins at the Titans 30.

He was also sacked four times.

Willis completed passes to nine different receivers.

He was 15 of 23 for 130 yards.

Woodside scores the game winner

Logan Woodside, who is trying to beat Willis out for the backup quarterback duties, did not get in until the final offensive possession with 3:53 left and made the best of it scoring the winning touchdown.

Woodside, with several of the offensive starters still on the field, completed 5 of 8 passes for 43 yards. He hit Dez Fitzpatrick in the hands in the end zone with a pass and Fitzpatrick dropped it, which could cost Fitzpatrick a roster spot.

Woodside then scrambled for a 9-yard touchdown run.

Breakout for Burks

Burks, the Titans' first-round draft pick, had a breakout game even after being injured in the first half.

The former Arkansas receiver came into the game with just two catches for eight yards in the first two preseason games.

He caught the first pass thrown by Willis and two more before halftime.

His third catch, which came after he went into the training room with a right wrist injury and was listed as questionable to return, was the touchdown from Willis after Burks got open across the middle.

Burks had three targets and three catches for 33 yards.

Defense started slow, caught up fast

Cardinals' quarterback Trace McSorley picked the Titans' defense apart on Arizona's first drive.

He was 7 of 7 for 71 yards and engineered a 12-play, 89-yard scoring drive.

Former Overton and Tennessee Vols safety Theo Jackson was involved in several plays on that drive, some good and some not so good. He made three tackles but got beat twice in coverage which resulted in 11- and 8-yard gains for the Cardinals.

The Titans defense got McSorley figured out after the opening drive.

He completed just one of his next 11 passes for 10 yards.

The Titans secondary made nice adjustments for the remainder of the first half.

Former Overton defensive back Ugo Amadi, acquired earlier in the week from Philadelphia, broke up McSorley's pass to Andy Isabella at the Arizona 28 to force a punt late in the first half.

Amadi deflected a pass thrown by Jarrett Guarantano in the third quarter which forced a field goal attempt.

Jackson, who had four tackles, also recovered a muffed punt return by Victor Bolden Jr. at the Cardinals 35. That set up a 50-yard field goal by Bullock.

Stonehouse makes strides

Ryan Stonehouse, who is battling veteran Brett Kern for the punter's position, rocketed a 64-yarder on his third punt.

It was downed at the Cardinals' 6.

His first punt went 38 yards and rolled dead at the Arizona 11. He landed a punt later in the first half at the Cardinals' 10.

The wrap on Stonehouse, known for being able to blast punts since his days at Colorado State, had been that he couldn't pin opponents deep in their own territory.

Stonehouse averaged 49.4 yards on seven punts.

Guarantano tosses touchdown

Guarantano, a former Tennessee Vols and Washington State quarterback, replaced McSorley in the third quarter and capped a 75-yard drive with a touchdown pass.

With the ball at the Titans 3-yard line Guarantano was tackled for no gain on a keeper. On the next play he threw a touchdown to Greg Dortch, which put Arizona up 17-16.

HOT TOPICS FROM TITANS HC MIKE VRABELS SUNDAY PRESSER

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
AUGUST 28, 2022

NASHVILLE – Titans head coach Mike Vrabel held a press conference on Sunday at Ascension Saint Thomas Sports Park, one day after his team's 26-23 preseason win over the Cardinals.

Here's a look at the hot topics from today's presser:

Upcoming cuts

All NFL teams must be down to 53 players by 3 p.m. on Tuesday, and after that teams can begin building a practice squad.

The Titans currently have 80 players.

"I would say it is never easy," Vrabel said of the upcoming decisions. "We put a lot of time in together, so I would never say that it is easy to have to move on from a player or anybody. I think we demand a lot of them, and I think they give us a lot. So, we'll treat everybody with respect, and we understand that they all can't be here."

Vrabel said he expects the process will be "pretty fluid."

"There will be guys that we potentially claim from somewhere else," Vrabel said, "and then we'll put a practice squad together."

Vrabel mentioned the possibility of the team dividing roster cuts between Monday and Tuesday.

Upcoming Practice Schedule

With so much movement, Vrabel said the team plans to stay as flexible as possible with the practice schedule as the team now begins to set its sights on the regular season opener.

The Titans face the Giants on September 11 at Nissan Stadium.

The Titans plan to practice on Monday through Thursday of this week before players get next weekend off.

"And then we'll get ready to buckle up and go on this ride," Vrabel said.

Back-Up QB Job

Vrabel was asked if he's seen enough to make a decision on the team's back-up QB job behind starter Ryan Tannehill.

Malik Willis started all three preseason contests, and he got better each time out. Logan Woodside played more sparingly, but he did guide a game-winning touchdown drive on Saturday night.

"I think we'll get to the roster probably later in the week," Vrabel said. "But I appreciate the quarterback play that we got from both guys last night. Malik did some things that were really encouraging, that we had talked about – his ability to step up on the pocket, kept his eyes downfield at times, also was able to have some explosive games running, which is exactly what we talked about. The operation was better. But then there's some things we'll have to improve."

"We had two two-minute drives that we scored on, one with Malik and then Logan came in and had a great drive and did a nice job helping us score a touchdown there late."

Burks Had "Good Play Speed"

Rookie receiver Treyton Burks caught three passes for 33 yards on Saturday night, including a 14-yard touchdown catch.

Vrabel said what Burks did in the game was good for coaches to see heading into the regular season.

"Him having some good play speed," Vrabel said of Burks, "and his willingness to block when he was in there and do his job. Those are all positive things."

Radunz Talk

As of now, it looks like Nicholas Petit-Frere has won the starting right tackle job for the Titans.

On Saturday night, the player he competed with during most of camp – Dillon Radunz – started at left guard.

"I thought he did some good things in there," Vrabel said of Radunz. "It wasn't perfect, but there were some good blocks. We had a couple of holding penalties, and he was one of them. ... I think all and all he was into it. There will be some corrections that has to be made, but I thought he did a nice job."

Ugo Looked Comfortable

Defensive back Ugo Amadi played 37 snaps on defense and 11 more on special teams on Saturday night after just joining the team a few days earlier via trade.

Vrabel said it was easy to tell Amadi had played nickel in the past.

"They kind of having a particular skill set," Vrabel said. "He blitzed and batted – had a good ball disruption. I thought he tackled, and I thought he tried to come in and support (in the run game), had some nice things in coverage. And then there was some separation at times in man coverage when the route got to the other side, which sometimes happened."

"But for just getting here, he was into it and had some good gunner reps. He did a nice job."

Praise for LB Joe Jones

Vrabel was quick to praise linebacker Joe Jones, who made a great hustle play late in the game when he ran down a Cardinals player racing toward the end zone.

A week earlier, Jones intercepted a pass against the Buccaneers.

Vrabel had more good things to say about Jones on Sunday.

"He has been out there every day," Vrabel said of Jones, who was credited with six tackles against the Cardinals. "He's been a leader on special teams. He has tried to improve at linebacker. I think his leadership to some of the younger guys on special teams has been really good to see. He's played a lot of special teams in his career. ... What was asked of him on special teams he did a good job, and obviously he hustle play that showed up on defense."

Injury Tidbits

Guard Nate Davis and Jamarco Jones didn't play on Saturday night after missing practices leading up to the game.

Both players have been missed a good chunk of practice time recently.

But Vrabel indicated he expects them back soon.

"Hopefully we can get Nate back working this week, and Jamarco back working," Vrabel said.

TENNESSEE TITANS GM
JON ROBINSON SAYS
PUNTER COMPETITION
MAKES FOR A TOUGH

BY NICK GRAY
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 28, 2022

Tennessee Titans general manager Jon Robinson has a roster decision to make at punter.

Veteran Brett Kern has been the team's punter for the past 13 seasons and is the longest tenured Titans player. Undrafted rookie Ryan Stonehouse, from Colorado State, has impressed during training camp and in the preseason.

Robinson, speaking to Dan Hellie and Charles Davis on the Titans television broadcast during Saturday's win over the Cardinals, acknowledged that the team has two quality punters, but for one roster spot.

"We know what Brett Kern means to this organization, what he's done for this organization. He's had a great camp, probably one of his better camps since I've been here," Robinson said. "Stonehouse has come in here and really hammered the ball and done a nice job tonight. They've both worked with (kicker Randy Bullock and long snapper Morgan Cox) on the holding."

"That's a tough decision that we've got moving forward, deciding what direction we want to go. Both of those guys have certainly earned the right to be on a 53-man roster and be a punter in this league."

Kern, 36, was signed by the Titans after being waived by the Denver Broncos in October 2009 and has been the team's punter since then. The Toledo alumnus is a two-time First Team AP All-Pro (2017 and 2019), but has missed six games over the past two seasons. Kern punted five times in the Titans' first two preseason games, averaging 49.6 yards per punt and putting five punts inside the opponents' 20-yard line.

This is the final year of Kern's four-year deal signed in 2019, and Kern took a pay cut after reworking his contract during the offseason. Tennessee would save $2.2 million by releasing or trading Kern.

Stonehouse, 23, was a First Team All-Mountain West punter from 2018-20 and Second Team All-Mountain West last season. He has stronger leg than Kern (punts of 60-plus yards in each preseason game) and improved on control and accuracy in pinning back opponents throughout the month of August. Stonehouse played in all three preseason games, punting 13 times for a 50.1-yard average with six punts inside the opponents' 20-yard line.

Teams have to cut rosters down to 53 players by 3 p.m. CT Tuesday.

EXPLAINING TENNESSEE TITANS' DECISION TO CUT PUNTER BRETT KERN IN FAVOR OF RYAN STONEHOUSE

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 29, 2022

Allow general manager Jon Robinson to explain the Tennessee Titans' decision to part ways with Brett Kern, the franchise's longest-tenured player and best punter in its history.

In February, during an interview with The Tennessean at the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala., Robinson outlined the philosophy of maintaining “staying power” in the NFL.

“You’re constantly looking at every position group,” Robinson said. “You’re trying to get younger, you’re trying to get less expensive, you’re trying to do all that. That’s no secret. Thirty-two teams are trying to do the same thing: trying to get as young and as cheap on the roster as you can because it gives you staying power in the National Football League.”

And so it explains why the Titans are cutting ties with Kern in favor of Ryan Stonehouse, a rocket-legged rookie out of Colorado state, after a tight battle in training camp to claim the team's starting punting job.

In the NFL, coin-flip scenarios such as this will always favor of the younger and cheaper player with more upside, never more than when team's try to set their 53-man rosters entering a season (3 p.m. Tuesday is the deadline).

At 23, Stonehouse is 13 years younger than Kern. He has a cannon of a leg. His 2022 cap charge is just $708,333, compared to Kern's $2.75 million, according to Overthecap.com. Releasing Kern saves the Titans $2.2 million in cap space, per SpoTrac.

Keeping Stonehouse was a no-brainer business decision for the future of the Titans.

But that doesn't make moving on from Kern easy.

He's Tennessee's all-time leader in career punts (923), gross punting average (45.9 yards), net punting average (40.8 yards) and punts downed inside the 20 (373). With 197 appearances with the Titans, Kern has also played the fourth-most games of any player in the franchise's Titans era (1999-present).

He's long been one of the team's most popular players.

“Brett embodies everything we look for in players for the Tennessee Titans,” Robinson told the team website Monday. “He has been at the top of his game for a long time in this league, has been an outstanding leader for us, and has been an excellent representation of the Titans in our community. I'm blessed to have worked with him, and on behalf of the entire organization.”

The feeling was mutual.

In a lengthy statement on Twitter, Kern said it was “an honor and a privilege” to be a Titan for the last 13 seasons.

“As I reflect on my time here, I think about the mountain top experiences and memories that I will never forget, to the challenges that molded me into becoming a better husband, father, teammate and friend,” Kern said, in part. “I am most thankful for the amazing people that I have met over the years. From coaches and general managers that have believed in me, to teammates, equipment staff, operation staff, trainers and everyone else that works in the building. You will forever have an impact on my life, and I hope and pray I did the same for you and your families. Thank you for your love, support and loyalty.”

“Love you all!”

So it goes in the NFL.

Out goes a locker room staple, who will undoubtedly be picked up by another NFL team (Ahem, Buffalo is on the schedule in Week 2).

In comes the next generation, with tantalizing power and seemingly unlimited upside after shining in three preseason games.

The Titans believe he can shine in the regular season, too.

TRADE

AUGUST 29, 2022

NASHVILLE – The Titans have acquired former Panthers offensive lineman Dennis Daley in a trade.

The Titans received Daley and a seventh-round pick in the 2024 NFL Draft from the Panthers in exchange for a fifth-round pick in the 2024 draft.

Daley, a sixth-round draft pick of the Panthers in the 2019 NFL Draft, has played in 34 career NFL games, with 21 starts, over the past three seasons at a number of positions (13 at LT, 7 at LG, 1 at RG).

Daley (6-6, 326) saw action in 15 games for the Panthers in 2021, including nine starts. Daley started five games at left guard and four games at left tackle a year ago.

In 2020, Daley played in five games, starting three at left guard, for the Panthers before landing on the reserve/injured list.

Daley played in 14 games, with nine starts, for Carolina in his rookie season in 2019 and was part of an offensive line that helped Christian McCaffrey become the third player in NFL history with over 1,000 yards rushing and 1,000 yards receiving.

Daley played 31 snaps at guard for the Panthers in the team's preseason finale against the Buffalo Bills on Friday night.

In college, Daley played two seasons at South Carolina after transferring from Georgia Military College. He started 23 of the last 24 games while playing left tackle in 2018 and second half of 2017 after beginning the season at guard.

TITANS PART WAYS WITH VETERAN PUNTER BRETT KERN

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
AUGUST 29, 2022

NASHVILLE – The Titans have informed veteran punter Brett Kern of the team's plans to release him.

A three-time Pro Bowler, Kern has been one of the team's most popular players since joining the organization back in 2009, when he began putting his name atop the franchise's leaderboards at his position.

"Brett embodies everything we look for in players for the Tennessee Titans," Titans GM Jon Robinson said in a statement. "He has been at the top of his game for a long time in this league, has been an outstanding leader for us, and has been an excellent representation of the Titans in our community. I'm blessed to have worked with him, and on behalf of the entire organization, we wish him all the best moving forward."

Kern is the organization's all-time leading punter, with 923 career punts.

He's also the team's all-time career leader in gross punting average (45.9 yards), net punting average (40.8) and punts placed inside the 20 (373). Kern owns the top nine net punting seasons in franchise history and six of the team's top eight gross punting seasons.

With 197 career games with the Titans, Kern ranks fourth in franchise history behind Bruce Matthews (296), Elvin Bethea (210) and Brad Hopkins (194). Kern's total is the most for any player during the franchise's "Titans era" (since 1999).

With 13 seasons played in a Titans uniform, Kern tied Brad Hopkins for the third-most in team history, trailing only Matthews (19) and Bethea (16). Kern is one of two players (Derrick Morgan) who has played for every head coach the Titans have had since the move to Tennessee.

Prior to Kern's arrival, no punter for the organization had averaged 40.0 net punting yards in a season. Kern produced seven such seasons with the Titans.

Since he entered the NFL with the Broncos in 2008, Kern's career statistics include 996 punts, a 45.9-yard average, a 40.5 net average and 395 punts placed inside the 20. Only Andy Lee (1,010) and Sam Koch (1,004) have recorded more punts than Kern during that span.

Kern served as a captain in each of the past two seasons.

The Titans plan to go with punter Ryan Stonehouse on the 53-man roster. Stonehouse, signed as an undrafted free agent out of Colorado State, averaged 50.2 yards, with a 41.3-yard net, on his 13 punts during the preseason while placing six of them inside the 20.

All NFL teams must be down to 53 players by Tuesday at 3 p.m.

THESE ARE THE BIGGEST TAKEAWAYS FROM TENNESSEE TITANS' INITIAL 53-MAN ROSTER FOR 2022 SEASON

THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 30, 2022

The Tennessee Titans' initial 53-man roster is set, but the personnel maneuvering will continue ahead of next week's season opener against the New York Giants. The waiver wire, street free agents and injuries could continue to shape the Titans in the coming days.

But what have we learned from Tennessee's first 53-man roster of the 2022 NFL season?

Here are the biggest takeaways, by position:

Quarterback

Kept (2): Ryan Tannehill, Malik Willis

Cut (1): Logan Woodside

Woodside, Tannehill's backup the last two seasons, became expendable after throwing three interceptions in the first two preseason games. He's a practice squad option if he clears waivers.

It's possible the Titans aren't sold on Willis as their sole backup – despite the strides he made throughout the summer – and will pursue another veteran to add to the quarterback room.

Running back

Kept (5): Derrick Henry, Dontrell Hilliard, Hassan Haskins, Tory Carter (FB), Julius Chestnut

Cut (1): Trenton Cannon

Chestnut making the initial 53 is a surprise, though he was the Titans' best preseason running back, posting 26 carries for 106 yards and a touchdown. He received praise from coach Mike Vrabel over the summer.

If he can stick around for the long haul, he'll provide depth in the backfield. Most importantly? He should have a role on special teams. Cannon – signed to a one-year deal in the offseason – was expected to contribute there, but never flashed in training camp or the preseason.

Wide receiver

Kept (5): Robert Woods, Treylon Burks, Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, Kyle Philips, Racey McMath

Cut (4): Reggie Roberson Jr., Mason Kinsey, Cody Hollister, Dez Fitzpatrick

Look for the Titans to add reinforcements with just five receivers. Fitzpatrick – a 2021 fourth-round pick – couldn't lock down a sixth spot after an underwhelming finish to the preseason, when he dropped a would-be game-winning touchdown Saturday against the Cardinals. Fitzpatrick has now been cut from Tennessee's initial 53-man roster in consecutive years.

Tight end

Kept (3): Austin Hooper, Geoff Swaim, Chig Okonkwo

Cut (3): Tommy Hudson (injured), Davis Wells, Thomas Odukoya

The Titans love their tight ends – they have multiple responsibilities in the offense – so it wouldn't be shocking for them to find a fourth for their active roster. Wells or Odukoya should be available for the practice squad.

Offensive line

Kept (9): Taylor Lewan, Aaron Brewer, Ben Jones, Nate Davis, Nicholas Petit Frere, Dillon Radunz, Corey Levin, Dennis Daley, Jamarco Jones

Cut (6): Jordan Roos, Xavier Newman-Johnson, Willie Wright, Hayden Howerton, Christian

DiLauro, Jalen McKenzie, Andrew Rucpich

Even with the addition of Dennis Daley via trade, the Titans may not be done adding to the offensive line, which has lingering depth concerns.

Defensive line

Kept (7): Jeffery Simmons, Denico Autry, Tear Tart, DeMarcus Walker, Naquan Jones, Da'Shawn Hand, Kevin Strong

Cut (4): Jayden Peevy, Kevin Strong, Larrell Murchison, Sam Okuyinonu

Keeping seven defensive linemen feels steep, but it's possible Autry's health played into that decision. He missed most of training camp.

Cut (1): David Anenih

Anenih, an undrafted rookie from Houston, is the most surprising name left off the initial 53. He starred for the Titans in the preseason, posting three sacks, three quarterback hits, two forced fumbles, two passes defended and a tackle for loss in three games. Him being left off speaks to the strength of this room.

Autry, who doubles as a defensive lineman, is also an option here.

Anenih should be on the practice squad if he clears waivers.

Inside linebacker

Kept (4): David Long Jr., Zach Cunningham, Chance Campbell, Dylan Cole

Cut (2): Joe Jones, Jack Gibbens

PUP (1): Monty Rice

Tennessee's depth behind Long and Cunningham is a concern, but reinforcements could be prioritized on the practice squad, which should include Jones and Gibbens – two of the team’s best performers in the preseason – if they clear waivers.

regular season) instead of waiving him as injured.

Kept (11): Kevin Byard, Amani Hooker, Kristian Fulton, Caleb Farley, Roger McCreary, Elijah Molden, Ugo Amadi, Joshua Kalu, A.J. Moore, Lonnie Johnson, Tre Avery

Cut (6): Theo Jackson, Greg Mabin, Tre Swilling, Chris Jackson, Adrian Colbert, Tyree Gillespie

Avery flashed some in the preseason, but he’s a surprise to make the initial 53-man roster, similar to Chestnut.

Amadi gives the Titans an experienced nickel with Molden’s health status unclear, Kalu was a big-time playmaker in the preseason who has background with Tennessee (2018-20), Moore received $2.5 million guaranteed in his free-agent deal and Johnson – a 2019 second-round pick – could fill the role Dane Cruikshank departed in dime packages.

Theo Jackson, the only rookie draft pick to get cut, missed time in training camp with an undisclosed injury and the team’s pursuit of defensive backs in recent weeks didn’t bode in his favor of him making the team.

Specialists

Kept (3): Randy Bullock (PK), Morgan Cox (LS), Ryan Stonehouse (P)

Cut (1): Brett Kern (PK)

PUP (1): Caleb Shudak (PK)

Bullock had a strong training camp and preseason (5 of 5 on field goals and 4 of 4 on extra points in exhibition play), but it became clear the Titans wanted to give Shudak a chance to compete by moving him to Reserve/PUP during training camp (where he’ll have to miss at least the first four games of the Tennessee Titans wide receiver Racey McMath is expected to be placed on injured reserve with a hip injury on Wednesday, league sources said.

McMath apparently sustained the injury in the preseason finale against Arizona. The wide receiver had been expected to play a bigger role in the Titans offense this season and be the team's primary deep threat and a possible kickoff returner. McMath, a second-year pro from LSU, has already been one of the team's primary gunners on special teams.

By NFL rules, the Titans have to carry McMath on the active roster for one day before placing him on injured reserve, in order to bring him back from the list after a minimum of four weeks. Players who are placed on injured reserve before the initial 53-man roster is established are not eligible to return.'

After roster cuts were made, the Titans had just four other receivers in addition to McMath - Robert Woods, Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, Treylon Burks and Kyle Philips.

On Tuesday, Tennessee waived Mason Kinsey, Reggie Roberson, Cody Hollister and last year's fourth-round pick Dez Fitzpatrick. It is possible that the Titans will resign one of them to the active roster to fill McMath's spot. Or the Titans could scour the waiver wire and sift through cuts made by other teams to replace McMath.

McMath was a sixth-round pick from LSU in 2021 and had had an increased role in training camp and preseason this year in the offense, earning praise from Mike Vrabel and the coaching staff.

TITANS GO WITH ROOKIE
TANNEHILL'S BACKUP QB

BY TERESA M. WALKER
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
AUGUST 30, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Rookie quarterback Malik Willis' quick learning curve made veteran Logan Woodside dispensable for Tennessee.

The Titans cut Woodside along with 27 other players waived or released Tuesday at the NFL deadline to trim the roster to 53. They also waived injured tight end Tommy Hudson before turning attention to their season opener Sept. 11 hosting the New York Giants.

Woodside was a seventh-round pick out of Toledo by Cincinnati in 2018. He joined the Titans' practice squad later that year and spent 2019 on the Titans' practice squad while injured. Then Woodside backed up veteran Ryan Tannehill the past two years.

His experience and knowledge of the Titans' offense couldn't beat out Willis' stronger arm and legs especially as the rookie showed weekly improvement since the start of the team's rookie minicamp in mid-May.

“He can beat you throwing in pocket, he can beat you outside the pocket throwing, he can extend plays and then he can also beat you by turning up and running,” Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Willis after their preseason finale last weekend. “So there’s a lot of guys that we’re going to defend like that. And it’s difficult.”

Tennessee traded up in the third round to make the 6-foot-1 Willis the third quarterback taken in this year's NFL draft at No. 86 overall. That was the highest draft pick Tennessee had used on a quarterback since taking Marcus Mariota at No. 2 overall in 2015.

The rookie started all three preseason games for the Titans and got rid of the ball more quickly each game.

Willis played all but one series in Tennessee's preseason finale, a 26-23 win over Arizona thanks to a rally led by Woodside. But Willis had a 50-yard scramble after first looking downfield for an open receiver, a run that wound up being the longest in the AFC this preseason.

The rookie also led the AFC with 159 yards rushing. Vrabel said Sunday that Willis showed the ability to step up in the pocket and keep looking downfield at times.

“He also was able to have some explosive gains running, which is exactly what we talked about,” Vrabel said. “The operation was better, but then there were some things that we have to improve.”

The Titans also made it official, releasing their longest-tenured player in three-time Pro Bowl punter Brett Kern, a move they announced was coming Monday.

NOTES: The Titans also sent a 2024 fifth-round pick to Carolina for OL Dennis Daley and a seventh-round pick in 2024. ... Also released: linebackers David Anenih, Jack Gibbens and Joe Jones; RB Trenton Cannon; offensive linemen Christian DiLauro, Hayden Howerton, Jalen McKenzie, Xavier Newman-Johnson, Jordan Roos, Andrew Rucich and Willie Wright; receivers Dez Fitzpatrick, Cody Hollister, Mason Kinsey and Reggie Roberson; safeties Adrian Colbert and Tyree Gillespie; tight ends Thomas Odukoya and David Wells; defensive linemen Larrell Murchison, Sam Okuayinonu and Jordan Peevy; and DBs Chris Jackson, Theo Jackson, Greg Mabin and Tre Swilling.

ANALYSIS OF THE TITANS' INITIAL 53-MAN ROSTER

BY PAUL KUHARSKY
PAULKUHARSKY.COM
AUGUST 30, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – The initial version of the Titans' 53-man roster includes surprises Julius Chestnut and Tre Avery and looks to be heavy on the defensive line and running back and light at tight end.

Da'Shawn Hand and Kevin Strong survived Tuesday but at least one of them could be gone soon as the Titans have seven defensive linemen, more than two times as many as will be on the field in their base defense, which they use less than nickel when they feature two.

Amani Hooker and Josh Kalu

Meanwhile, they have just three tight ends when their base offense features two.

A run-through of a roster that is sure to evolve.

QBs (2): Ryan Tannehill, Malik Willis

Logan Woodside was probably doomed as soon as the Titans drafted Willis in the third round. He's just got a higher ceiling if the Titans need an alternative to Tannehill and can be inserted for some gimmick plays. Woodside is unlikely to have much appeal to other teams and will likely end up on the practice squad unless the Titans can upgrade there, which they should look to do.

RBs (5): Derick Henry, Dontrell Hilliard, Hassan Haskins, Julius Chestnut, Tory Carter (FB)

Five is heavy. Even if Chestnut is a special teams' wonder. I'd suspect the longer they keep him, the more likely they can get him to their practice squad once they cut him.

WRs (5): Robert Woods, Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, Treyton Burks, Kyle Philips, Racey McMath

No one competing for the sixth slot was worthy so they didn't force it. Fitzpatrick is a huge disappointment and we see how much their big praise of him was BS. He's probably a practice squader. They need to add from the outside, preferably a guy with speed as McMath has been struggling lately.

TEs (3): Austin Hooper, Chig Okonkwo, Geoff Swaim

The top two are huge upgrades and at least Swaim returns to an appropriate level on the depth chart. At the very least they need a practice squad guy better than the guys they cut. Perhaps MyCole Pruitt is on his way back to the roster?

OL (9): Taylor Lewan, Aaron Brewer, Ben Jones, Nate Davis, Nicholas Petit-Frere, Dillon Radunz, Dennis Daley, Corey Levin, Jamarco Jones

Daley relieves some of the pressure, but Jones has been hurt and proved nothing and Radunz has shown he can't play tackle. So there are still major depth concerns here.

DL (7): Jeffery Simmons, Denico Autry, DeMarcus Walker, Teair Tart, Naquan Jones, Da'Shawn Hand, Kevin Strong

The strongest group on the roster throughout camp and the preseason and the Titans were not ready to start to disassemble it yet.

ILB (4): Zach Cunningham, David Long, Dylan Cole, Chance Campbell

OLB (4): Harold Landry, Bud Dupree, Ola Adeniyi, Rashad Weaver

A quality four-pack. David Anenih made a strong bid for a spot but came up short. Preseason sacks get attention, but I'm sure they are hoping he slides through waivers and lands on the practice squad for added depth.

S (6): Kevin Byard, Amani Hooker, Lonnie Johnson, Josh Kalu, A.J. Moore.

I don't think Moore is any good on defense. But they love their Houston connections and guys they are convinced are great special teamers. Johnson made a nice showing after late arrivals as Jon Robinson worked hard to get better people.

CB (5): Kristian Fulton, Roger McCreary, Caleb Farley, Elijah Molden, Ugo Amadi, Tre Avery

Congrats to Avery who made the most of his chance as an undrafted out of Rutgers, at least for now. Ugo Amadi is a nickel/safety.

SP (3): Randy Bullock, Ryan Stonehouse, Morgan Cox

Bullock has done well through camp and the preseason to limit concerns and Stonehouse was very strong in beating out Brett Kern.

QUICK HITS ON THE TITANS FROM WEDNESDAY

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
AUGUST 31, 2022

NASHVILLE – It was a busy day at Ascension Saint Thomas Sports Park.

One day after the Titans reduced the roster to 53 players, the team signed players to the practice squad.

Also on Wednesday, the locker room was open to media for the first time since the end of the 2019 season. (Interviews were done outside the past two seasons because of the pandemic).

Plus, Titans GM Jon Robinson and HC Mike Vrabel both held press conferences this afternoon.

Let's hit on the happenings of the day in a quick-hitting fashion:

-Titans defensive lineman Denico Autry was on the practice field for the first time in a long time, which was a pleasant sight for the team as the regular season approaches.

"Good to see him back out there," Vrabel said. "He did some good things, and we'll get moving forward with him."

-Robinson said the team plans to sign receiver Cody Hollister to the team's active roster to replace receiver Racey McMath, who is headed to Injured Reserve.

-Robinson neither confirmed nor denied the team's reported plans to host receiver Josh Gordon on a visit. The GM said the team will be working out a lot of players and he didn't want to talk about workout guys unless they make the team.

-The stretch and individual portion of practice was open to reporters, and several players weren't spotted. Among them: defensive back Elijah Molden, defensive back Ugo Amadi, outside linebacker Bud Dupree, guard Nate Davis, and defensive lineman Da'Shawn Hand.

-Linebacker Zach Cunningham and offensive lineman Dillon Radunz were decked out in yellow non-contact jerseys.

-The Titans traded for Dennis Daley earlier this week, and we got our first look at the former Carolina Panthers offensive lineman.

-Receiver Dez Fitzpatrick was among those waived on Tuesday, and back on the practice squad on Wednesday.

-Malik Willis is the only QB on the 53-man roster behind starter Ryan Tannehill, but he has no plans to relax now.

-Meanwhile, quarterback Logan Woodside was also signed to the team's practice squad.

-The Titans currently have five running backs on the team's 53-man roster, and undrafted rookie Julius Chestnut is among them.

-Linebacker Chance Campbell also made the initial 53-man roster.

The Titans aren't scheduled to practice tomorrow – they'll do meetings and conditioning only. The next media availability will be on Monday, as preparations for the season opener against the Giants get cranked up.

TENNESSEE TITANS GM
JON ROBINSON EXPLAINS
WHAT WENT WRONG
WITH 2020 NFL DRAFT CLASS

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 31, 2022

Tennessee Titans general manager Jon Robinson acknowledged Wednesday the difficulties that came with draft prep in 2020, which produced his worst draft class since becoming general manager in 2016.

Just one of the six players selected that year made the Titans' initial 53-man roster for 2022: Kristian Fulton, the team's top cornerback. Defensive lineman Larrell Murchison (fifth round) and defensive back Chris Jackson (seventh round), both of whom were reserves their first two years, were cut and added to the practice squad. Offensive tackle Isaiah Wilson (first round), running back Darrynton Evans (third round) and quarterback Cole McDonald (seventh round) are no longer in the organization.

While Evans is on the Chicago Bears' practice squad, Wilson and McDonald are not on NFL rosters.

Robinson said he wasn't able to go through his normal draft evaluation process in 2020.

"But I think that whole period of time was kind of weird for all of us, right?" Robinson said. "We were in this (COVID-19) pandemic, we were locked in our houses and we couldn't do anything. We tried to go through our process, but it was just different."

The Titans did, however, find undrafted gems in 2020. Wide receiver Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, nose tackle Teair Tart and left guard Aaron Brewer are starters.

"Those guys have taken the opportunity that we've given them here and really worked hard to improve," Robinson said. "They're much better football players than they were when they got here. That's a testament to those guys."

Tennessee's 2022 draft class has shown early signs of promise. Eight of the nine rookie draft picks are on the initial 53-man roster. Two undrafted rookies, running back Julius Chestnut and cornerback Tre Avery, also made the team.

As many as four rookies could be Week 1 starters: receivers Treyton Burks (first round) and Kyle Philips (fifth round), right tackle Nicholas Petit-Frere (third round) and cornerback Roger McCreary (second round).

"I was talking to Chic Ejiasi, our player development guy. He said, 'This is one of the better rookie classes from the standpoint of coming in here and being able to act like what we expect a pro football player to act like,'" Robinson said. "Which is a testament to them and the universities that they came from the and the commitment to us and to the process."

RUNNING BACK BEATS THE ODDS WITH ROSTER SPOT

BY JOHN GLENNON
SI.COM
AUGUST 31, 2022

NASHVILLE – It didn't take long for Julius Chestnut to make a positive impression.

With the clock winding down in the first half of the Tennessee Titans' preseason opener against the Baltimore Ravens, the 5-foot-11, 228-pound running back displayed of power and speed with a 27-yard run around right end.

Even after that big play, however, and even after Chestnut continued to produce in practices and games, it was easy to write him off as just another nice training camp story.

Who makes an NFL roster out of Sacred Heart University, after all? The Fairfield, Connecticut-based school has an FCS football program, one that plays its home games at Campus Field – capacity 3,334 fans.

Chestnut learned he'd beaten the odds on Tuesday, however, when he earned a spot on the Titans' initial 53-man roster. He joined two other undrafted rookies, cornerback Tre Avery and punter Ryan Stonehouse as survivors of the final cut of the preseason.

"I thought about the odds even before I got to the (Titans)," Chestnut said. "Because I was like, 'Wherever I go – drafted or undrafted – it's going to be a tough job for me, just because of where I come from and how it is.'

"That's why I always carry that chip on my shoulder. But yeah, I definitely thought about (the odds)."

A handful of Sacred Heart alums have spent time with NFL teams over the years, but only one has played regular-season games in the league, per Pro Football Reference. Defensive back Jon Corto spent three years with Buffalo (2008-2010) and appeared in 43 games for the Bills during that stretch.

Assuming Chestnut keeps his spot, he'll have a chance to become Sacred Heart's second NFL alum in fewer than two weeks.

"There's just very (few) out of Sacred Heart that (have been) on the 53-man rosters," Chestnut said. "So everybody there called me to congratulate me and things like that. It's truly like a high expectation that's held for me now."

Chestnut made a surprisingly smooth transition to the NFL with 26 carries for 106 yards and a touchdown in the preseason. The thick-bodied back posted a carry of at least 12 yards in each of the three contests. He added three catches for 22 yards.

He even helped his cause by contributing on special teams, playing 62 snaps in the kicking game against Baltimore, Tampa Bay and Arizona.

In the end, franchise officials had no choice but to keep Chestnut, despite the presence of Derrick Henry, Dontrell Hilliard, fellow rookie Hassan Haskins and fullback Tory Carter in the running backs room.

"With Julius, he ran hard, he ran tough," general manager Jon Robinson said. "He played good on special teams. He actually caught the ball better than I thought he would.

"And anything we asked him to do, he didn't have a whole lot of mental errors. We didn't know if we could get him through waivers, but he also earned the opportunity on the team."

Chestnut said it was a great feeling when the Titans called to let him know he'd made the initial 53-man roster, a reward for all the hard work he'd put in during training camp.

He was pretty happy to get a pat on the back from Henry as well.

"I definitely was," Chestnut said. "He told me congratulations, and just keep working."

TENNESSEE TITANS PLAN FOR DERRICK HENRY HAS DIFFERENT OFFSEASON APPROACH FOR STAR RB

ESPN
SEPTEMBER 1, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- As Tennessee Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill was running reps with the first-team offense, something was different.

He didn't have his star wideout since he became the starter in 2019, after A.J. Brown was traded in the offseason, but that wasn't it.

A lot of it had to do with his safety blanket being stuck in... a sandpit?

That's right, star running back Derrick Henry wasn't on the receiving end of Tannehill's handoffs like normal in the offseason, he was instead working in... a sandpit.

"It's real," Henry said of the sandpit with assistant strength and conditioning coach Brian Bell keeping a close watch on things. "I love it. It gets me in shape. It's just good work. It's good restricted running. You have to really dig, and it gets your legs burning."

Henry has found a new source of motivation from those who doubt he'll be himself after a Jones fracture of his right foot derailed his 2021 season, but the sandpit is one of the many ways that Henry goes about attacking each day in search of bouncing back.

He admitted to being fueled by the doubters and responded with "We gonna see" when asked about the rumblings that he was on the decline. As Henry ran through the sandpit, it became clear that his upper body was bigger. But he doesn't seem to have lost the breakaway speed that led to many big runs over his career.

But the questions are still there as Henry, who missed the final nine regular-season games in 2021, enters his seventh season.

New York Giants running back Saquon Barkley shared Henry's motto of daily improvement by attacking each day after Barkley missed six games last season because of an ankle injury and has also been earmarked for a decline after rushing for only 593 yards last season.

Like Henry, Barkley wants to show that he isn't on the decline, but he was more direct about it.

"I just want to kill, just go crazy," Barkley said. "I'm tired of the BS that is said about me or this team, and I want to go out there and prove to this organization that the player they drafted is still there."

Despite only playing in eight games, Henry finished in the top 10 in rushing yards (937) and rushing touchdowns (10) and tied for the second-most runs of 40 yards or more (two) last season.

Henry, who was leading the league in rushing at the time of his injury, was on pace for his third consecutive season with at least 300 carries. He was trending toward becoming the first player to rush for 2,000 or more yards in two seasons.

Neither Henry nor the Titans were ever concerned about Henry's workload. They had their eyes on the bigger picture: Winning.

"Getting Derrick the ball gives us a better chance to win," offensive coordinator Todd Downing said early last season. "The balance is wins and losses."

Added Henry, "Whatever I can do to help, I am always for it."

The Titans' physical style of play starts with giving Henry plenty of carries to set the tone on offense. Henry's 900 total carries over the last three seasons are more than any other back.

"Derrick's a volume guy," Titans general manager Jon Robinson said. "He wants the ball. He likes it when we give it to him. That's a balance that you have to, from a coaching standpoint with trainers, with the strength coaches, just figure out what's best for the football team. The most important thing is the availability of the player a lot of times, more so than the ability of the player."

Henry said it was good to get back for the divisional playoff game against the Cincinnati Bengals last January, despite the outcome. It allowed him to conquer most of the rehab process and offered a chance to see how the foot held up in live action.

Getting game action carried over into the offseason and allowed him to come back ready to go.

It's your league. Run it how you want.

Choose your league size, customize the scoring and set the rules you want to follow in order to create the fantasy football league you want to play in.

Create your custom league for free!

Once minicamp rolled around, it was clear that Henry put in the necessary work during the offseason. Titans coach Mike Vrabel, vice president of sports medicine Todd Toriscelli, head strength and conditioning coach Frank Piraino and Henry collectively came up with a program to manage Henry's workload during training camp.

"He's in a good spot," Vrabel said. "Derrick wants to be as involved as possible. We have open dialogue. He's been great, and he's been all for whatever it is that we decide and we think is best for him, and ultimately the team."

Henry participated in individual periods of practice and was in the backfield at times when they worked on inside runs to get some contact with defenders, but he was mostly on a different field when the Titans went to team periods and seven-on-seven, even in joint practices with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

In addition to the sandpit, Henry occasionally did wind sprints with coach Piraino while the offense had live reps against the defense. Other times he'd work on pass catching with running backs coach Tony Dews.

"I'm just looking to improve each and every day," Henry said. "Always working to be in shape. That's why coach Vrabel has me on this plan so when it's time to go, I'm ready and able to answer."

At 28 years old, Henry is inching closer to the dreaded age of 30 for running backs, an age where decline seems to happen quickly.

NFL Rushing Splits By RB's Age Since 2012

UNDER 30	30+	DIFF
Yds per rush 0.47	4.33	3.86
Pct rush 10+ yds 2%	11%	9%
Speed at LOS (MPH) 8.7	9.6	0.9

Note: 482 qualifying RBs under 30, 64 qualifying

RBs age 30+.

But that isn't something that Henry thinks about. His focus is on being available to help the team.

Henry can look to Adrian Peterson as an example of still being able to run the ball well despite getting long in the tooth. Peterson was 30 when he carried the ball 327 times for 1,485 yards.

"It's my mindset," Peterson said. "I don't get into the 30-year-old running back thing, that you're done at 30. I am getting stronger with age."

Ironically, Peterson was 36 years old when the Titans signed him after Henry's injury last season, making him the oldest active running back in the NFL.

Now Henry will look to make the type of return that Peterson had when he was 27 coming back from tearing his MCL and meniscus to rush for 2,097 yards.

The workload has started to ramp up over the past week with Henry taking part in more team periods.

"Coach Vrabel and our strength/coaching staff help me stay in shape," Henry said. "I usually get good work in right before the season starts. Coach Dews does a great job making sure that we're ready so we're seeing it and getting north and south when the time comes."

TITANS ROOKIE QB
MALIK WILLIS MADE STRIDES OVER THE PAST FOUR MONTHS, BUT WHAT'S NEXT?

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
SEPTEMBER 1, 2022

NASHVILLE – Right after the Titans picked quarterback Malik Willis in the NFL Draft, the team put him on a crash course to get up to speed as fast as possible.

Over the past four months, Willis spent extra time with coaches in the classroom and on the field, got extra reps in practices, and he started all three of the team's preseason contests.

Because Willis improved as much as he did, the team felt comfortable enough to keep just two quarterbacks on the initial 53-man roster – starter Ryan Tannehill, and Willis. On Wednesday, the team signed Logan Woodside to the practice squad after releasing him on Tuesday.

Willis, however, knows his work is far from over.

"The thought process hasn't changed," Willis said. "It's about going in and trying to work every day, still being that sponge, learning from Ryan and Logan and understanding: The job isn't finished. It's just beginning."

Willis, taken in the third round out of Liberty, completed 28-of-51 passes for 318 yards and two touchdowns in the preseason, with one interception. He also ran for 159 yards on 14 carries, with a touchdown run.

Titans General Manager Jon Robinson on Wednesday complimented Willis for his progress.

"He really improved,' Robinson said of Willis. "He certainly made some impressive plays in the preseason in the games, even at practice. The ball coming out of his hand a little quicker. Throwing with a little better anticipation, deciphering working through coverages. We just thought he was on the right track. He still has a long way to go, but certainly trending in the right direction."

So, what now?

Head coach Mike Vrabel on Wednesday discussed Willis and his potential role with the scout team.

"It will be how it would be with any backup quarterback," Vrabel said of Willis. "He is still preparing like he's going to be the starter, so is Logan (Woodside). He'll get some reps throughout the course of the day, but the majority of his work and every backup quarterback that I've been associated with, that's where their work is."

Willis knows he has to keep improving as he takes a backseat to Tannehill.

He's far from a finished product, not even close.

As Willis said himself, he's just getting started.

"It's about going out there and earning your keep," Willis said, "and earning your spot every day."

"There's no way for me to look at it like: "OK, I don't feel like I am going to be playing now because the preseason is over with, so I don't have to go as hard in practice, or I don't have to try and keep trying to progress," Willis said. "I have to truly continue that mindset of trying to get better every day and soaking up any information I can on and off the field, soaking up any interactions with my teammates, that may help me in the future and understanding what comes with it."

TENNESSEE TITANS
RESTRUCTURING
DERRICK HENRY'S CONTRACT, PUTTING HIM AHEAD OF EZEKIEL

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 1, 2022

The Tennessee Titans reworked star running back Derrick Henry's contract, a source with direct knowledge of the decision confirmed to The Tennessean on Thursday.

The source spoke on condition of anonymity because the Titans have not announced the deal. NFL Network first reported the news.

The restructured deal will give Henry a $2 million raise for 2022, the source said, and will make him the NFL's highest-paid running back by total cash for the coming season. Henry is set to make $14 million this season, putting him ahead of Ezekiel Elliott's $12.4 million, according to SpoTrac.

No additional years were added to Henry's contract, which ends after the 2023 season, the source added. He signed his current deal in July 2020.

The 28-year old Henry is a one-time All Pro, two-time Pro Bowler and one of eight players in NFL history to rush for 2,000 yards in a single season, a feat he accomplished in 2020. He led the league in carries, rushing yards and rushing touchdowns in 2019 and '20.

Henry missed nine games last season after suffering a foot fracture in Week 9 against the Indianapolis Colts. He had 219 carries for 937 yards and 10 touchdowns in eight games in 2021. He still finished ninth in rushing yards despite missing more than half of the season.

Henry was a second-round pick of the Titans in 2016.

FORMER ALL-PRO
RECEIVER JOSH GORDON TO PRACTICE SQUAD

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN

The Tennessee Titans signed former All-Pro receiver Josh Gordon to their practice squad, the team announced Thursday.

Gordon, 31, reportedly visited with the Titans on Wednesday. He led the NFL with 1,646 receiving yards in 2013 with the Cleveland Browns – his second NFL season – but multiple suspensions for violating the league's policy on performance-enhancing substances and substances of abuse derailed his promising career.

A one-time Pro Bowler, Gordon has been suspended by the league six times, including the entirety of the 2015 and '16 seasons.

He has 252 receptions for 4,284 yards and 25 touchdowns in seven seasons (75 career games) with the Browns (2012-14; 2017-18), New England Patriots (2018-19), Seattle Seahawks (2019) and Kansas City Chiefs (2021). The Chiefs cut him Tuesday as they reduced their roster to 53 players.

Gordon gives the Titans veteran receiver depth. They have just five receivers on their 53-man roster: Robert Woods, Treyton Burks, Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, Kyle Philips and Cody Hollister, who was signed to the active roster after Racey McMath's placement on injured reserve.

In addition to Gordon, Tennessee signed tight end Kevin Rader to the practice squad. Receiver Reggie Roberson and tight end David Wells were released to make room.

TENNESSEE TITANS
OUTSIDE LINEBACKER
HAROLD LANDRY TEARS
ACL IN PRACTICE

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 1, 2022

Tennessee Titans outside linebacker Harold Landry tore an ACL in practice Wednesday, according to a report Thursday from ESPN's Adam Schefter.

The injury, which hasn't been announced by the Titans, should force Landry to miss the 2022 season. The 26-year-old had signed a five-year, $87.5 million deal with Tennessee in March and played in the Pro Bowl as an alternate after posting a career-high 12 sacks.

The news marks a major loss for the Titans, who's biggest strength has been the front four. Landry and defensive linemen Jeffery Simmons and Denico Autry combined for 29.5 sacks last season. With outside linebacker Bud Dupree fully healthy, the expectations were even higher for 2022.

With Landry's injury, the Titans will need bigger contributions from second-year edge rusher Rashad Weaver and veteran Ola Adeniyi.

Weaver, who has flashed the past two preseasons, played just two games as a rookie after suffering a season-ending leg injury in Week 3 against the Indianapolis Colts. Expectations are high for him entering Year 2.

Adeniyi, a core special teamer throughout his NFL career, had a career-high 2.5 sacks for the Titans in 2021, his first year with the team. The 2.5 sacks came in the first three games of the season.

The Titans also have on the practice squad undrafted rookie outside linebacker David Anenih, who starred in the preseason, posting three sacks, three quarterback hits, two forced fumbles, two passes defended and a tackle for loss in three games. He could be called upon with edge depth now a concern.

Landry was a second-round pick in 2018, selected 41st overall by Tennessee. In four seasons (64 career games), he has 31 sacks, 66 quarterback hits, 41 tackles for loss, three forced fumbles and two interceptions.

HAROLD LANDRY IS A HUGE LOSS, BUT HEY, TENNESSEE TITANS HAVE BEEN THERE BEFORE

BY GENTRY ESTES
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 1, 2022

So here's the part, loyal readers and downcast Tennessee Titans fans, where I'm failing to find ways to lessen the pain of Thursday's news, awful as it was.

You've seen it by now, surely. Edge rusher Harold Landry – he of last season's 12 sacks and subsequent $87.5 million contract – reportedly tore his ACL in Wednesday's practice.

Done for the year.

In practice. In the preseason. Didn't make it to the first game.

Sigh.

I could try to spot a silver lining in that supercell.

I could point out how Bud Dupree is healthier than a year ago. Or that Rashad Weaver really did have an outstanding training camp and was going to be difficult to keep on the sideline anyway. Or that the Titans were successful in keeping David Anenih, a promising undrafted free agent, on the practice squad after this week's roster cuts.

All that matters more now than it did yesterday.

But it doesn't change the fact the Titans gave Landry all that money for good reason. He was such a critical cog in the defense's 2021 transformation from weakness to strength. Last season, Landry's stats finally matched his exceptional work rate and versatility. He rarely missed a defensive snap in games. He was simply too important to let go, even with Dupree making big bucks as well.

The Titans paid for the privilege of their 2022 edge rushers appearing to be the most formidable position group on the team. With Landry.

Without him?

Welp. I do realize that I'm probably not making you feel any better. Nor have I successfully fooled myself, in fact, into believing this injury won't leave a noticeable dent in the hopes of a team that had – actually – emerged from an auspicious training camp feeling pretty good about a new season.

The positive vibes of the Titans' August were tangible. And notable, too, given how much they'd contrasted with the gloomy stretch that followed their playoff loss to the Cincinnati Bengals. Remember when general manager Jon Robinson got emotional about it? Or when quarterback Ryan Tannehill talked about being in a "dark place" and how difficult it was to put that defeat past him?

Melancholy persisted for weeks and months. I wasn't sure the Titans would ever get over it. The past month, though, felt like good medicine.

And then September arrives and the bad-news bus rolls right back up to Saint Thomas Sports Park. If nothing else, the Titans are used to it. They are accustomed to adversity.

Which, now that I think about it, is the best I can tell you in the wake of a major setback before the season's first game week.

Odds are that this won't be a doomed Titans team. Last season was a doomed Titans team. And for all its injuries, that team still went 12-5, won the AFC South and claimed the conference's No. 1 playoff seed – a magic act that I don't think anyone has yet been able to wholly explain or understand.

As much as Landry will undoubtedly be missed, is it any more than star running back Derrick Henry was going to be missed when he broke his foot midway through last season?

This is a different team, but not much has changed in that building. Not really. I can already hear the "next man up" lines from players and coach Mike Vrabel about Landry's injury, and they'll be the same ones we heard last season. It's not meaningless, though, if you can back it up. And you've got to say this for the Vrabel-era Titans: As much as anyone, they've shown that attrition isn't an automatic deterrent to their success.

They'll lean on that confidence.

Even as they'd much rather have Harold Landry.

RASHAD WEAVER, OLA ADENIYI NEED TO STEP FORWARD FOR TITANS
AFTER HAROLD LANDRY INJURY

BY PAUL KUHARSKY
PAULKUHARSKY.COM
SEPTEMBER 1, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Last week, I wrote about how difficult it was going to be for Rashad Weaver to get snaps on defense despite his excellent training camp and preseason play.

Well, it's not going to be difficult anymore.

Harold Landry, fresh off a new five-year $87 million dollar contract with $35.25 million guaranteed, tore his ACL at practice Wednesday per Adam Schefter. That means he will be out for the season.

It's a big dent for the Titans' team strength, a front four that was expected to get to the quarterback regularly without help. Landry has gotten progressively better and finished his fourth season with 12 sacks and a Pro Bowl appearance.

The Titans have not frequently had good depth on the edge.

But Weaver showed well in his rookie camp a year ago as a fourth-rounder out of Pitt. But he broke his fibula in the Titans' third game and lost the remainder of his rookie season. Adeniyi was signed from Pittsburgh as a free agent as a special tamer, but he got chances on the edge while a fellow newcomer from the Steelers, Bud Dupree, recovered from his torn ACL.

Adeniyi made splashes in just 207 defensive snaps -- 20 percent -- with 2.5 sacks and eight quarterback hits.

But neither of them will be able to move around the way Landry does, playing as a stacked backer, dropping into coverage, rushing and doing some of everything. And if the Titans need to blitz more to get pressure that will change a lot.

Maybe the move with Derrick Henry that gave him more guaranteed money and lowered his cap number by over $5 million was made in part, to free up money to make a move to help replace Landry.

For now, Tennessee will now have to rely on that duo and may call up David Aneinih from the practice squad. The undrafted rookie out of Houston got to the quarterback three times in the preseason.

LANDRY TO TORN ACL

BY TURRON DAVENPORT

Tennessee Titans outside linebacker Harold Landry III tore an ACL during practice on Wednesday, a source told ESPN's Adam Schefter.

Landry led the Titans with a career-high 12 sacks last season, making him the first Titans pass-rusher with double-digit sacks since Brian Orakpo had 10.5 in 2015.

Seven of Landry's 12 sacks came on third down, which was third-best among all pass-rushers. Landry also finished with 49 quarterback pressures, 22 quarterback hits, 21 quarterback hurries and 14 tackles for loss.

Titans' Henry reworks deal, gets raise

The Titans and star running back Derrick Henry have agreed to a reworked contract that increases his pay to $14 million million this season, including $9 million in a signing bonus, a source told ESPN's Jeremy Fowler.

It represents a raise of $2 million as he was set to make $12 million this season before his contract was restructured. He is still scheduled to become a free agent after this season.

Landry's three sacks in the divisional round of the 2021 playoffs were a part of the Titans' postseason record-tying nine sacks in a single game. He was one of three Titans to be named to the Pro Bowl last season.

Landry has been one of the Titans' most durable players. He was on the field for 89.5% of the Titans' defensive snaps last season, according to Next Gen Stats.

In March, the Titans re-signed Landry to a five-year, $87.5 million contract that includes $52.5 million guaranteed.

Second-year outside linebacker Rashad Weaver and veteran edge defender Ola Adeniyi will be Tennessee's primary options to replace Landry in the starting lineup.

"He's been working really hard," Titans general manager Jon Robinson said of Weaver. "He has been in here constantly, and he is doing better and excited. I know he is chomping at the bit to get back out there.

Undrafted free agent David Anenih is a likely candidate to get signed from the practice squad to take Landry's spot on the 53-man roster.

TITANS CLAIM FORMER STEELERS OLB DERREK TUSZKA OFF WAIVERS

NASHVILLE – The Titans have been awarded former Steelers outside linebacker Derrek Tuszka off waivers.

Tuszka was waived by the Steelers on Thursday, and he was claimed by the Titans on Friday.

The move comes on the same day the team placed outside linebacker Harold Landry III on Injured Reserve.

Tuszka, who played in college at North Dakota State and was a seventh-round pick of the Broncos in the 2020 NFL Draft, appeared in 15 games with the Steelers in 2021.

Tuszka tallied 18 tackles and 2.0 sacks in 2021, along with a forced fumble, while playing 247 defensive snaps in 15 games. He also logged 194 snaps on special teams.

Tuszka (6-4, 251) played in nine games with the Broncos in 2020

At North Dakota State, Tuszka racked up 48 tackles, including 19 tackles for a loss, along with 13.5 sacks, one forced fumble and five passes defenses in his senior season in 2019. He was named an FCS first-team All-American as well as the Missouri Valley Football Conference's Defensive Player of the Year.

In his collegiate career, Tuszka compiled 133 tackles, 42 tackles for a loss, 29.5 sacks, three forced fumbles and six passes defended.

OLA ADENIYI

"MY MOM IS MY HERO": TITANS LB OLA ADENIYI CREDITS HIS MOTHER FOR LIFE-CHANGING SACRIFICES, AND LESSONS LEARNED

TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 7, 2021

NASHVILLE – When Olasunkanmi "Ola" Adeniyi made it to the NFL, his first thought wasn't to reward himself with shiny cars and jewelry.

His road to the NFL, which started on playgrounds in Nigeria, wasn't an easy one.

But Adeniyi, a linebacker who joined the Titans earlier this offseason, knew it was his mother who did the hard work.

And every day of his life, especially on Mother's Day weekend, Adeniyi can't help but think of how she changed his life by the sacrifices she made for her family. So he wants to reward her any time he gets a chance, and he's done so.

"At school, when the teacher says: Write about your hero," Adeniyi said. "Well, I am not writing about Superman. I am not writing about Batman. I am writing about my mom. My mom is my hero. To do what my mom has done for me and my brother, especially coming from a third world country, that is no easy task.

"Without her, I wouldn't have made it to where I am today. Not even close."

Adeniyi, headed into his fourth NFL season, signed with the Titans in March after playing the previous three seasons with the Pittsburgh Steelers. In Pittsburgh, Adeniyi played in 32 games, with one start. He's tallied 10 tackles, 14 special teams stop and three forced fumbles during his career.

At his new home in Tennessee, Adeniyi hopes to take an even bigger step in helping the Titans.

He's excited about his new opportunity.

And he's forever thankful for having a mother who helped change his life.

Born in Nigeria, Ola Adeniyi was around six years old when his mother, Esther, traveled to the United States in an effort to create a better life for her two boys. After spending time in the active military in Nigeria, she found work. She ultimately began a career in nursing, in Houston. Ola and his older brother stayed with a family member in Nigeria until their mother could create a stable home for the entire family in the U.S.

A few years later, the boys rejoined their her.

Ola, around eight years old at the time, remember his mom working long hours to provide for the boys while raising them by herself. It continued for years and years, and to this day she's still a nurse at Kindred Hospital Houston Medical Center.

"My mom," Adeniyi said, "she has always been that tough worker. She'd go to hell and back for me and my brother, just to make sure we were happy. She wanted to do everything she could to make our life better. It was hard on her I know, but she never showed it."

Esther was also a disciplinarian who wanted her sons to focus on academics, not athletics.

In fact, Adeniyi wasn't allowed to play football when he was in middle school, or in his early years in high school. It wasn't until his junior year in high school when his mother finally agreed to let him play – as long as he'd sign a contract. The contract stated he must make good grades, clean his room, and do other chores.

"One day at practice, my coach came up to me on the practice field and told me my mom called," Adeniyi recalled. "She told my coach my bed wasn't made. He said, 'You have to go home.' I was like, 'Are you serious?' I took my shoulder pads off and ran home, and she was waiting for me at the house. She was going to make me quit the team.

"From that day on, I learned my lesson."

Adeniyi went on to earn a scholarship at Toledo, where he developed into an NFL talent. His older brother, Olamide, meanwhile, went to Columbia University, and he's on course to be a doctor. Ola said his mother insisted on paying all of his brother's tuition because she didn't want him to stress.

"I'm telling you," Adeniyi said, "I wouldn't have made it to the point I am in my life without her toughness on me, and her staying on me. She changed my life, and my brother's life."

Earlier this year, Adeniyi bought his mother a Range Rover SUV, along with a Louis Vuitton bag.

Back in 2019, he bought his mother a new house.

On Mother's Day weekend, Adeniyi plans to celebrate his mother.

He'll thank her again and again.

"There's not a day that goes by where my mom doesn't ask me: 'Are you OK? Do you need anything?'," Adeniyi said. "Even while I am a grown man, she still wants to make sure we're well off, and she will do whatever it takes to make sure we're happy. She tells us every day, we're her pride and joy. And that sticks with me.

"The reality is she's my pride and joy. And I'll never be able to repay her for all she has done for me."

AS TENNESSEE TITANS' DENICO AUTRY RETURNS TO INDY, DON'T FORGET THE SMALL TOWN THAT MADE HIM

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
OCTOBER 29, 2021

Denico Autry made Patrick Mahomes feel him.

Facing a third-and-long deep in Tennessee Titans territory late in the third quarter last Sunday, and looking at a 24-point deficit, the Chiefs needed a touchdown to keep any hope of a comeback alive. But Autry ruined the chance. Mahomes dropped back and Autry, beating rookie right guard Trey Smith on the inside, wrapped him up for a sack before he could step up in the pocket.

Autry wasn't done, either.

In the fourth quarter, Kansas City was again deep in Tennessee territory, facing a third-and-long. And Autry again sacked Mahomes, wrapping him by the legs.

It was the punctuation to a thorough beating of the 2018 MVP by the Titans' pass rush.

At the heart of it was Autry.

"That was the number one key (against Kansas City), put pressure on the quarterback," Autry said postgame.

The 6-foot-5, 285-pound Autry, one of the Titans' marquee free-agent signings to fix a defense had been one of the league's worst, has been as advertised for Tennessee (5-2) entering its Week 8 showdown Sunday (noon CT, CBS) against Autry's former team: the rival Indianapolis Colts (3-4).

Autry leads the Titans in quarterback knockdowns (7) and ranks second in sacks (3.5), tackles for loss (5), hurries (8) and pressures (19).

DENICO AUTRY

He had his best game of the season in the signature victory over the Chiefs, with a team-leading two sacks and four quarterback hits.

"We're asking him to do some things and learn terminology and now you can see him kind of hit his comfort zone," said Titans defensive line coach Terrell Williams.

Autry's early years

Autry grew up an hour east of Charlotte in Albemarle, North Carolina, a small town of about 16,000 people. He lived in the neighborhood of Amhurst on the southeast part of town, a violent area during Autry's youth. There were drugs and gang violence. Gunshots were common at night.

Autry's mother, LaSonya, kept him off the streets. His football coaches at Albemarle High School and volunteer policemen who worked with the program kept an eye on him, too.

Anytime Autry – and his teammates – did anything outside of the house, they knew about it within 15 minutes. If Autry was hanging out on the corner at night, they'd pick him up and take him to get a burger. Whatever it took to keep him out of trouble.

"He probably had every opportunity in the world to go down the wrong road. And he ended up making right turns all the time," recalled Baxter Morris, Autry's football coach in high school. "You had to keep an eye because there was a lot of influence out there that they could fall victim to. He never did. He was always pretty much in the straight and narrow. He was never in trouble in school.

"He pulled back away from even some people that he always considered his friends in elementary school, middle school and stuff. He just didn't run with them in high school because some of them didn't make it. Some of them went the other way."

Sports kept Autry busy.

In addition to football, he played basketball and ran track all four years of high school. At 6-foot-5 and around 220 pounds, Autry did the 300-meter hurdles and 400-meter races in track. He had hands so big he could palm a basketball in both hands and wave them around. On the gridiron, he played defensive end, tight end, receiver and played on special teams.

"He could fly," recalled Morris. "He was a rocket ship."

Autry drew inspiration to commit to football from the Albemarle community.

"It's a big football town," said Autry. "Watching the guys before me coming up and seeing how they were doing things, where they were going to school. It made me want to be like those guys and go farther."

Versatility helps Autry

Autry's versatility translated as he climbed the football ranks.

Autry is officially listed as a defensive lineman for the Titans, but he plays outside linebacker too. He rushes inside and out. He can win with "multiple different moves," according to coach Mike Vrabel.

The 31-year-old veteran has averaged half a sack per game since 2018.

"It wasn't a hard decision for us to find a way for him to fit into our game," said outside linebackers coach Ryan Crow. "He showed up and we knew kind of knew what he was."

The Titans produced a stinker in their Week 4 loss to the Jets, but Autry gave them a chance to win in overtime, when he pushed Zach Wilson out of bounds on third-and-goal, forcing a field goal and giving the offense the ball back. In the Week 6 thriller against the Bills, it was Autry's hit on Josh Allen in the second quarter that led to a momentum-changing interception by safety Kevin Byard.

The Titans' four-man front of Autry, Jeffery Simmons, Harold Landry and a healthier Bud Dupree has flashed brilliance the last couple weeks.

"I think he's a big, long body in there who's able to get some push in the middle of the pocket," said defensive coordinator Shane Bowen. "You're not seeing quarterbacks being able to step up a lot. A lot of the sacks are happening pretty deep, right? So guys aren't really able to step up, which kind of bodes well for us.

"Then he's athletic for a big dude. He's quick, he's able to get on edges. He's got some quick twitch to him, where he's able to work side to side and find ways off of blockers late in the down to get to the quarterback."

Facing the Colts, his old team

Autry won't forget the Colts let him walk.

That's what he made clear at his Titans introductory press conference in March. The soft-spoken Autry recorded 20 sacks in three seasons with Indianapolis (2018-20), including a team-high nine in 2018.

"That makes it real personal," Autry said at the time. "They knew what they had. It is what it is."

Autry on Sunday will face the Colts for the second time this season, but for the first time Indianapolis, a critical game for the Titans to gain separation in the AFC South standings.

Vrabel acknowledged that players going up against their former team can be emotional games, but expressed confidence in Autry's ability to deliver.

"I trust that Denico and everybody else for that matter, I think everybody is going to be pretty tuned up whether they played for the Colts previously or not," said

Vrabel. "Denico has done everything we have asked him to do, and I am excited to watch him prepare this week and ultimately play on Sunday."

Perform is what he's always done.

Autry had poor grades coming out of high school, but he attended East Mississippi Community College, where he was an NJCAA All-American and helped lead the school to a state and national title at the JUCO level.

He went undrafted out of Mississippi State, but he's had a productive NFL career, with 34 sacks and 55 tackles for loss across seven seasons and counting with the Raiders, Colts and Titans.

Tennessee appreciates Autry's approach to the game.

"He's a business guy," said Crow. "He brings his lunch pail. Goes really, really hard. If he needs to lead, he'll lead."

"That's what guys look up to: guys who've done it and can lead by example, but also speak up when they have to."

AARON BREWER

AARON BREWER AIMS TO PROVE DOUBTERS WRONG ONCE AGAIN AS HE SETS SIGHT ON STARTING SPOT WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
JULY 11, 2022

NASHVILLE – Aaron Brewer was rated as a two-star recruit by Rivals coming out of Skyline (Texas) High School, when many wondered if he'd be able to hold up on the offensive line at the next level because of his size.

Brewer, heading into his third NFL season with the Titans, knows plenty doubted him then, just like he thinks some might be doing even now.

"I've heard that forever, from high school up to this point now," said Brewer, who is expected to compete for a starting spot on the team's offensive line in training camp. "But it didn't stop me then, and it's not going to stop me now."

Brewer, who has played in 24 games, with six starts, over the past two seasons in Tennessee after being signed as an undrafted free agent out of Texas State following the 2020 NFL Draft, has his sights set on a starting spot at left guard heading into the 2022 season.

A 6-foot-1, 290-pounder, Brewer – who was 275 pounds when he began the draft process coming out of college – knows he has work to do to earn the spot while in competition with several others, including offseason acquisition Jamarco Jones.

Titans offensive line coach Keith Carter said what Brewer lacks in size he makes up for in other areas.

If you don't believe it, you should see Brewer do backflips.

"Aaron is an unbelievable athlete," Carter said. "So, he has a really unbelievable way to recover when he gets stuck in some bad positions. For him, it's getting as big as he can, but not losing that part of his game. And then just being consistent from a technique standpoint. I think he's come a long way and I am excited to see where he goes."

Brewer, who appeared in 48 games with 47 consecutive starts over four seasons (2016-19) at Texas State, earned a roster spot and played 12 games with one start as a rookie in 2020, providing depth at guard and center.

In 2021, Brewer appeared in 12 games with the Titans, making five starts at guard.

"The kind of player I am, I am more smaller, quick twitch, explosive," Brewer said. "So, I just work with what I got. I know I am strong for my size, and I'm fast as well."

Brewer said he's changed his diet, which includes a lot of meal prep.

While his goal is to earn a starting spot, he's focused on just giving himself a chance to compete.

He's all-in on the team's identity.

"Going into this season, I just want to stay as healthy as possible and do everything I can do to compete and get that job," he said.

"Since my rookie I came in and played with effort and finish. That is the identity of the team, and I am buying in and listening to the vets. Buying into that culture has helped me get to where I am at now."

HOW FATHER'S DEATH PREPARED KICKER
RANDY BULLOCK TO SEIZE HIS TENNESSEE TITANS MOMENT

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 24, 2021

When Tennessee Titans kicker Randy Bullock jogged onto the field during overtime in Seattle, with the chance to lift his new team to a dramatic victory over the Seahawks, Rhett Bullock saw the look.

Watching the TV broadcast, Rhett noticed his younger brother had the demeanor he'd always shown in pressure moments: an emotionless expression with a calm disposition.

So when Randy drilled the winning 36-yard field goal in his Titans debut, capping Tennessee's improbable comeback and silencing a raucous Seahawks home crowd, Rhett wasn't surprised.

"He thrives in those situations," Rhett told The Tennessean. "If there's one thing you can count on with Randy, it's that he has a really high level of accountability and is going to make sure that he's prepared for those situations."

Randy Bullock was signed to the Titans' practice squad Sept. 11 and promoted to the active roster three days later.

In a week's time, and with the stakes highest, he became a hero for a franchise that has endured a kicking rollercoaster the past three seasons. For now, he's the kicker entering Sunday's AFC South showdown against the Colts (noon, CBS).

Father's death

There's no pressure on the football field that's too great for Bullock.

It's because of what he went through as a teenager.

In 2004, when Bullock was 14, he went on a hunting trip in South

RANDY BULLOCK

Texas with Rhett and their father, Richard. The brothers were separated from their dad on the hunt, and planned to catch up with him midday for lunch.

They never got that lunch. Richard died suddenly from a heart attack.

It was two days before Christmas.

"What I went through with my dad changed my perspective and outlook on a lot of things in life," Bullock told The Tennessean. "But most importantly, it taught me that I can handle and overcome anything the game of football or life could ever throw at me. I developed the ability to attack adversity head on."

Richard would shag balls for Bullock when he was young. Bullock had taken an interest in kicking, and so did his dad. They bonded on the practice field.

"It was kind of my way out, my way of drowning everything out and kind of trying to avoid the situation," Bullock said of kicking after his father's death. "I was so consumed in kicking and working that I was kind of able to live a somewhat normal life, I guess."

Richard pushed a sense of accountability into his sons, Rhett said, and that has carried over into Bullock's demeanor on the field.

Bullock is described as quiet and sincere, but he has intensity and self-discipline too. When he attended Klein High School outside Houston, he'd work on his kicking accuracy by placing the ball on the sideline, out of bounds, and try to kick it through the uprights at sharp angles. He'd go from the goal line every 5 yards up the 15-yard line, making a handful of attempts at each spot on both sides of the field.

At Texas A&M, where he won the Lou Groza Award in 2011 as the nation's top kicker, Bullock juggled a demanding football schedule with the school's top-rated petroleum engineering curriculum. Bullock's roommate in college for two years, Rhett wouldn't see his brother joke around when he got home in the evening. Bullock was diligent with his school work knowing he had 5 a.m. workouts the next morning.

"He was never acting silly or goofy as a high school kid," recalled Stan LaBay, who was Bullock's coach at Klein High School. "He was a serious kid all the time. He always had that little smile about him. He just had tremendous concentration. That's what I really liked about him. He was always focused; he was in the game; and he was consistent. You never had to worry about whether he was gonna be ready to play or not.

"I don't ever remember him not being prepared."

Titans' kicking carousel

The Titans have played nine placekickers since the start of 2019, including Bullock.

Sam Ficken was Tennessee's starting kicker to begin 2021, but he landed on injured reserve with a groin injury the day before the season opener. His replacement, Michael Badgley, missed a field goal and a PAT in the opener and was released the next day.

Next in line was the 31-year-old Bullock.

"Seeing that smile on his face after he makes the game-winning kick, just really happy for the guy because he's been through a lot," Titans special teams coach Craig Aukerman said.

There are no guarantees for Bullock, as is often the case for kickers in the NFL. Ficken can return from IR next week, and Aukerman said the team will go "day by day" in assessing the competition.

Bullock, a 2012 fifth-round pick out of Texas A&M, has kicked for five other teams in 10 NFL seasons: the Texans (2012-15), Jets (2015), Giants (2016), Steelers (2016) and Bengals (2017-20). He's made 83.1% of his field goals. He's set to kick for the Titans again Sunday against the Colts.

“It was just an awesome way of starting my career here,” Bullock said Sunday. “I’m really thankful for the opportunity, I’m glad that it ended the way it did, but more than anything we got a win.”

Similar to Seattle last week, Rhett recalled how his brother was thrown into a tough situation in Pittsburgh a few years ago. Bullock kicked for the Steelers in Week 12 of the 2016 season, one day after signing with the team. He made all three of his field goals and his lone extra point to help Pittsburgh to a victory over the Giants.

Bullock doesn’t just embrace those kinds of moments.

He loves them.

"It's part of the fun, part of the adrenaline rush," Bullock said. "If you're not looking forward to that moment, you probably shouldn't be in the game to begin with."

FIRST-ROUND PICK TREYLON BURKS GETS OUT OF THE STARTING
GATE IN STYLE ON DAY 1 OF TITANS CAMP

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
JULY 27, 2022

NASHVILLE — Treyton Burks knows it's a marathon, not a sprint.

But the first-round pick sure did get out of the starting gate well on the first day of Titans training camp.

On the second play of the initial 7-on-7 period, Burks raced past defensive back Kristian Fulton before making a diving catch on a deep ball thrown by quarterback Ryan Tannehill.

It was a nice start on a day Burks also finished in style.

"I feel a lot different, and I feel a lot healthier," Burks said after practice. "It just makes me feel good that I can come out here and play a role, and be a part of this team."

Burks, who was the subject of a lot of chatter this offseason because of issues with his asthma, and conditioning, said he's been working out and taking better care of his body since the end of the team's offseason program in June.

On Wednesday, he said he's probably lost 5-6 pounds in recent weeks.

Burks said he feels like the running he's done of late helped him with his conditioning, and his asthma.

"Putting myself in situations where I knew my asthma would flare up," Burks said, "and just be able to push through it. ... Honestly, I just (need to) keep conditioning where I don't feel it no more, making sure I am taking my inhaler before practice, after practice, just staying on top of everything."

Burks acknowledged he could have done a better job with handling some things after being selected by the Titans with the 18th overall pick.

Burks was limited in the OTAs, and then held out of the minicamp.

"I would say yes," Burks said. "That's just being accountable, and I should have taken a better attack on that. Now that I am, I can tell a big difference."

After his diving catch early, Burks caught two more passes Wednesday, one on a well-timed throw from Tannehill before a bullet in the middle of the field on a ball thrown by Logan Woodside.

"It's nice to have Treyton out there," Tannehill said. "He has a long way to go, but him making plays like (he did today) does a lot for building confidence for a quarterback, for myself, and just knowing what you are going to get over there. If he wins consistently and makes plays like that for me down the field, it gives you a lot of confidence to go his direction."

Burks, who is wearing his old college number (16) in Tennessee, caught 66 passes for 1,104 yards and 11 touchdowns for the Razorbacks in 2021 to earn first-team All-SEC honors.

In 2020, Burks led the Razorbacks with 51 catches, 820 yards (16.1 ypc) and seven touchdowns.

In the NFL, he wants to do his part with the Titans.

"I am just playing my role," Burks said. "I am just going to attack every opportunity that I get, and I am going to attack it to the best of my ability. There's still things that I can improve on. I just want to improve and make our team better as well."

KEVIN BYARD

MTSU TO RETIRE TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD'S JERSEY

*BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
AUGUST 4, 2022*

NASHVILLE – Titans safety Kevin Byard had a good day in Thursday's practice – he knocked away three balls in an early 1-on-1 period before later intercepting quarterback Ryan Tannehill.

Things got even better after practice.

After Byard wrapped up a press conference, MTSU officials surprised him by walking out of Ascension Saint Thomas Sports Park and announcing the team's plans to retire his No. 20 jersey at the school.

"Honestly, this jersey is fire," Byard said with a smile. "What an honor. Just going back to those days at MTSU. ... I played with a lot of great players at MTSU, a lot of great coaches. I couldn't have done it on my own. A lot of people I want to thank – all the coaches, players, staff, trainers, people in our student enhancement center that helped me. I am just honored, and I am so grateful. I'm really at a loss for words.

"I know my mother would be very proud of me in this moment right now."

Byard's jersey will be retired on Sept. 30 during a ceremony at the Blue Raiders' home game versus UTSA, President Sidney A. McPhee and Director of Athletics Chris Massaro announced on Thursday. MTSU coach Rick Stockstill gave Byard a big hug at the ceremony.

Byard will join Teddy Morris as the only other player in MTSU football history to have his number retired. Morris' No. 14 was retired in 1965.

"I want you to know that we are all very, very proud of you," McPhee told Byard. "You represent us well, and you represent this state well. Congratulations."

A four-year starter for the Blue Raiders from 2012-15, Byard ended his career as the program's all-time leader in interceptions (19), interception return yards (377), interception return touchdowns (4) and is one of just nine players in school history with 300 or more tackles. A team captain, Byard forced or gained 25 turnovers (19 INT, 5 FF, 1 FR) in 49 career games played.

Byard was selected in the third round in the 2016 NFL Draft by the Titans. He's coming off his second Pro Bowl season with the team. Byard was named the team's Walter Payton Man of the Year winner in 2020 for his work in the community.

"I remember I told Jon Robinson when they were evaluating Kevin before the draft," said Stockstill, referring to the Titans General Manager. "I told him: Kevin came in as a professional, and he did everything right off the field, and he had an incredible work ethic. He was extremely focused on his goals, what he wanted to accomplish not only as a student, not only as a football player, but as a man. He came in as a professional and he worked hard. ... I always appreciated how hard he worked."

'I KNOW SHE'S PROUD OF ME': TENNESSEE TITANS' KEVIN BYARD OPENS UP ABOUT LOSS OF MOTHER

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
JULY 27, 2022

Tennessee Titans All-Pro safety Kevin Byard acknowledged Wednesday that he still feels shock over the loss of his mother, Artina Stanley, during the offseason.

Byard left mandatory practices early last month to be with Stanley, who Byard said passed away the following week.

The star safety opened up about his emotions after the first day of training camp Wednesday, saying he's trying to approach every day with gratitude.

"Some days are good, some days are tough," Byard said. "But at the end of the day, I feel like what I've learned throughout this process is that you really never know. This thing came out from left field. Just trying to wake up every single morning with gratitude – gratitude that I have another day to come in this building and be around the guys. My routine has kind of helped me. I wouldn't say keep my mind off of it – during idle times is when it's really tough – but I have a great circle around me that has really kept me up. I've had a lot of people reach out – hundreds of people reach out – to me and just try to keep me up."

"You never know when it will be your day," Byard continued. "You never know when an injury may end everything or your life, period. It's crazy because I feel like everyone who's been through these situations will always tell you, 'really love on your loved ones. Make sure you're calling people every day to tell them you love them,' and that's just something I'm trying to preach and do for myself. Call my family. Check on my siblings. But like I said, it's definitely been tough just being vulnerable, but I feel like I'm in a good head space today, or just period, but it could be different (Thursday), honestly."

Byard said Stanley meant "everything" to him.

When Byard's parents divorced at 14, he moved from his native Philadelphia to Atlanta with his mother and six siblings.

"Just her work ethic every single day," Byard said. "Raising seven kids, (mostly) on her own, is tough for anyone, especially my mom. But she just took it in stride with the utmost character and everything and that's how I learned. Who I am today is because of her and I owe everything to her."

"One thing I understand too – just thinking spiritually – my mom is with me every single day," he continued. "It might sound weird, but I talk to my mom a lot and I can just hear her voice pretty much say, 'just keep your foot on the gas.' That's what I'm going to keep doing every single day."

Byard added that he's going to dedicate each day to Stanley.

"Dedicate this year (to her) because the life I've been able to build for myself and my family is the life that she wanted and the life that she wanted for herself," he said. "So I have to keep that in mind every single day because I know my mom was proud of me. ... Proud of her kids. All her kids are being successful and doing their own thing."

"That's something that I can take on for the rest of my life: that my mom was proud of me and that's obviously helped me throughout this whole process."

FOR KEVIN BYARD, THE TENNESSEE TITANS
WERE A LAUNCH PAD TO HIS TRUEST CALLING — CHANGING LIVES

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
OCTOBER 8, 2021

On the afternoon of Aug. 1, Tennessee Titans safety Kevin Byard stood in front of a small gathering of TV cameras and reporters.

Training camp had started, and it was his first day off after four straight days of practicing in the sweltering heat and humidity of Nashville's summer. It was time to relax. But he knew this day was coming. So he dashed over from Saint Thomas Sports Park, after off-day treatment and a morning workout.

Sporting a checkered blue button up with dark blue slacks, and flanked by his family — his wife, Clarke, and their two young children, Kevin IV and Eliana Rose — Byard spoke of unveiling a months-long project: the renovated Davidson County Department of Children's Safe Room, which is for reducing the trauma of children who've come into state custody through abuse and neglect. The Byards were holding a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the event. They renovated the South Nashville space through their non-profit, The Byard Family Legacy Fund.

This was a special moment for the NFL veteran. He had family members who'd been in the foster care system.

He knew what a semblance of security could do for a child.

"God has just extended so much grace to me and my wife and my family. We only feel right to try and do the same," Byard said on that August afternoon. "The thing we wanted to do is try and make these kids feel comfortable."

Byard has made giving back his mission. One of the Tennessee Titans' defensive leaders on the field, Byard's philanthropic endeavors have focused on the underprivileged — and he has gotten noticed for it. In July, he was awarded the key to the city of Murfreesboro. In August, he and his wife received a Certificate of Appreciation from Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee. The safe room they renovated was named after them.

He's a staple in the community of Nashville and Murfreesboro, where he attended Middle Tennessee State University. "I think the biggest thing you can do is get to the youth, talk to the kids and be around the kids because they have so much," Byard told The Tennessean. "That's the future. You can't change a lot of things, but talking to the youth can change the world."

'He's like your best friend' Jason Spray beamed talking about Byard. During a break at the Byard's second annual football camp in Murfreesboro, Spray pointed out the focus of the Titans safety. How he was sweating with the kids on that hot July afternoon, throwing the football during drills. How he hopped in a cart to make sure he hit every group of campers spread out on the field at Middle Tennessee Christian School. How he was wearing exactly what the kids were wearing — running shorts, a pair of tennis shoes and the camp T-shirt. How he bent low with smaller kids to give them eye-to-eye contact.

The morning before, it was Byard helping Spray unload heavy boxes filled with the camp supplies out of the back of a truck. Two years ago, during his first camp, it was the same deal. Him and Byard. "He's not wearing a Louis (Vuitton) bag or trying to be anything," said Spray, Byard's trainer and former strength coach at MTSU. "He's just being Kevin today. To me, that's important. And I think that's important to him. I think it's important (to) him for those kids to see him that way: 'I'm just a guy and I just work hard. I was you. You could do the same thing.' To me, that was always the appeal. He's not some superhuman guy."

Tiffany Andrus brought her two young boys to Byard's camp. Byard is the favorite player of one of her sons. During 2019, when the NFL draft was in Nashville, she took that son to a meet and greet with Byard. They got there on time. The line was stopped before they reached the front. They didn't get to meet Byard. The son cried.

Through Twitter, Byard found out what happened. He sent Andrus a direct message.

"Send me the jersey," he wrote.

The jersey was returned to her in the mail within a week, signed by Byard.

"I was shocked," said Andrus. "I thought it was fake."

"He gets (mentioned on Twitter) all the time. He could have ignored that."

Alonzo Rhodes, a Physical Education teacher at John Early Middle School, was working with Metro Parks & Recreation in 2019 when Byard picked his community center to give back to for an NFL draft party. The kids, many of whom came from single-parent households, received Dick's Sporting Goods gift cards. For the watch party, they went to the Chick-fil-A on Church Street, which provided food. There were Xbox consoles and PlayStations for each child. Other Titans players stopped by, too.

It was a "red carpet for the kids," Rhodes explained.

"He was doing this before people even started taking notice and bringing cameras out," said Rhodes, who attended Byard's backpack giveaway event in July. "His personality is genuine. He's like your best friend. You know that feeling you get when you know your best friend is looking out for you? He ain't gotta say nothing, he ain't gotta do nothing. But you know if you ever need him or anything like that, he would be there to support. That's the feeling I get when he's in the community. He's playing actively with the kids. He's engaging. He's speaking to the children. It's nothing doctored up.

KEVIN BYARD

"This is from the heart."

The Byard Family Legacy Fund

Byard has had nothing.

He lived in homes with no electricity. At 14, he had to be father figure to five younger siblings when his parents divorced and he moved from Philadelphia to Atlanta with his mother. Football was his source of security.

Byard knows generational-changing money, too. He's a millionaire in the NFL now, one of Titans' highest-paid players. He signed his five-year extension with Tennessee worth $70.5 million in 2019, making him – at the time – the highest-paid safety in league history.

He has seen both sides of the spectrum.

It's why he gives back.

"I'm obviously successful now, but at the same time, I feel like I gravitate toward people that aren't always in the best place in life," said Byard. "I understand that me speaking to them can do a lot for (those in need). Just having this platform, it's a powerful thing and I don't think a lot of people really realize that or recognize it."

From his platform, Byard has worked with "The Casey Fund," a foundation founded by ex-teammate, Titans great Jurrell Casey, that supports at-risk youth and formerly incarcerated individuals. He has worked with Rally on the Runway to support childhood cancer research. He has worked with Habitat for Humanity.

But in 2019, he was doing a meet-and-greet event in Nashville. He was taking pictures with kids. A parent talked to him, saying how much he appreciated the work he was doing in the community.

How can I get you some money? he was asked.

"First of all, I never just had anybody tell me they wanted to give me money out of nowhere," said Byard. "That kind of was a lightbulb that was like, 'Man, we might need to have to make something official.'"

Soon after, Byard and his wife founded the Byard Family Legacy Fund. Its mission: Providing second chances for families and individuals who need it. The fund has four core events: an annual Thanksgiving dinner, Christmas dinner, a back-to-school event and the football camp.

Kevin and Clarke split up responsibilities, with Clarke taking a more pronounced role during the NFL season. If Kevin can't speak at an event, he'll record videos around his Titans schedule.

The Byards renovated the Davidson County Department of Children's Safe Room through their foundation's "Gift of Grace" grant, which is awarded four times a year to individuals and/or organizations in need.

"We really want to reach out into the heart of the communities that we live in," said Clarke. "Sometimes, you just need that little mustard seed to continue to grow into who you're supposed to be. We're hoping to really impact people's lives in that way, just to make those little small changes to where that gives them a message to keep going and keep believing in themselves."

'It's going to change these kids' lives'

It's Aug. 1, and the ribbon of the renovated safe room has been cut.

The big unveiling was done. Shatina Marshall settled down in her new office.

An employee of the Tennessee Department of Children's Services, Marshall is one of the supervisors of the space. She's the one who reached out to the Byards through their foundation. It started with Byard speaking at the graduation celebration for the foster kids moving on from high school earlier in the year. He couldn't be there physically, but he sent in a pre-recorded video.

The relationship grew from there. The Byards wanted to impact the lives of children in a more intimate way. Marshall had the space for it. They collaborated in the months-long endeavor.

With the help of sponsors, the Byards gave the safe room new floors, fresh paint and a new kitchen, furniture and appliances. A teen space and a children's area was added. Functionality for the children, not just aesthetics, were central to the renovation.

It was Marshall's idea to rename the space after the Byards. She appreciated how approachable they were. How hands-on they were throughout the process.

"It's going to change these kids' lives," said Marshall. "I can't wait for tomorrow when I can open these doors to the kids and they can see what it's going to be now."

DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN'S SERVICES 'SAFE ROOM' DEDICATED TO TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD AND HIS WIFE ON SUNDAY

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 1, 2021

NASHVILLE – Titans safety Kevin Byard and his wife Clarke unveiled the renovated facility housing the Davidson County Department of Children's Services' Safe Room on Sunday.

The Safe Room is a dedicated space designed to help reduce the trauma for children who come into custody for child abuse and/or child neglect. Through a full cosmetic renovation this is now a safe space for the youth seeking refuge and gives them some sense of comfort.

"God has extended so much grace to me and my wife and my family," Byard said. "We only feel right to try and do the same. I give 100 percent credit to my wife. ... She ended up visiting this facility, and she had a vision, and wanted to be able to help out the community as much as possible. With me personally, I've had family that's been in the foster system, so this is near and dear to me as well."

The Davidson County Foster System is the recipient of the Byard Family Legacy Fund's annual "Gift of Grace" Grant.

"The Byard Family Legacy Fund actually has a grant called the "Grace Grant" and we model that after God's grace," Clarke Byard said. "We leave it open for individuals or for organizations ... that are in need of a little grace, a little extra help to push forward with what they are trying to accomplish."

The mission of the Byard Family Legacy Fund is not only to provide a sanctuary for families, but believes everyone deserves a second chance.

Byard, a father of two who is the second oldest of seven children, grew up without a father in his home. Byard has said his family worked hard to make ends meet growing up.

Byard, who played in college at MTSU, and his wife Clarke were on hand with their two children at Sunday's ribbon cutting.

"I want to give my personal thanks to Clarke and Kevin Byard for what they have done for the children in our custody," DCS Commissioner Jennifer Nichols said. "Kids are taken in at all times, day and night, and during that transition period, it's probably some of the most dramatic hours for them.

"The Byards have provided this home-like environment for them to stay in during those hours, and I can't imagine anything that is more important than the legacy this family is creating."

On Sunday, the Byards were presented a Certificate of Appreciation signed by Tennessee Governor Bill Lee.

Also, the Safe Room was dedicated the Byards, and the plaque will be hung inside the "Byard Family Safety Room."

"We all have a story – I have been through some rough times in my life as well," Byard said. "My path to where I am now definitely wasn't straight. ... The thing we wanted to do (with the Safe Room) is to make sure these kids feel comfortable."

BYARD NAMED TITANS' WALTER PAYTON MAN OF THE YEAR

FORMER BLUE RAIDER RECOGNIZED FOR SOCIAL ACTIVISM, COMMUNITY WORK

BY MICHAEL GALLAGHER
NASHVILLE POST
OCTOBER 30, 2020

Middle Tennessee sports fans have long known what kind of player and person Tennessee Titans safety Kevin Byard is.

On Thursday, Titans head coach Mike Vrabel was as close to giddy as local reporters have probably ever seen him when the third-year coach announced Byard as the Titans 2020 Walter Payton Man of the Year.

"I wanted to tell everybody how happy I was to tell the team about Kevin Byard being the Walter Payton recipient for the Titans," he said. "That is a special honor. That's something that I know that our guys hold in high regard just to the service that they do and the care for others, so just excited to be able to tell the team that and then honor Kevin (Byard) in front of the team. So, I wanted to share that with you guys as well."

Byard is one of 32 finalists for the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year award, which is given annually to recognize an NFL player for "commitment to philanthropy and community impact."

Byard was recognized by the NFL Players Association back in September as the first Community MVP of the season after he hosted a pair of events where he helped pack and distribute over 300 kits to distribute that included backpacks of school supplies and other various items for distance learning kids.

Additionally, the 27-year-old All Pro has been one of the Titans' biggest catalysts for speaking out on racism, social justice and police brutality this year. Byard was also one of many Titans players out on the streets in March helping the city of Nashville with its tornado relief efforts.

"This honor is no shock to anyone around Middle Tennessee," said Rick Stockstill, Byard's former MTSU head coach. "Kevin is a great man, a great husband, and a great player who always works hard in the community helping others. There's not a better leader or teammate than Kevin Byard. We love him dearly and wish him nothing but success."

Byard helped deliver his son back in August at his home in Nashville and also recently bought his mother a house back in May, stating it was "a pipe dream that only few are able to accomplish."

As the Titans nomination, Byard will receive up to $50,000 donated to a charity of his choice by the NFL Foundation and Nationwide. Should he win the NFL award, he will receive $250,000 donated to a charity of his choice. The winner will be announced during the Super Bowl in February 2021.

No member of the Titans has ever won the award and quarterback Warren Moon is the only player in franchise history to ever win, doing so in 1989. Baltimore Ravens defensive end Calais Campbell won the award last year when he was with the Jacksonville Jaguars.

"I think that's the total package that we're striving for, that all of us are striving for, to have some balance in our families, in our personal life, in our professional life, and then also what we're able to do to impact other people around the community and I know that's something that Kevin has done a lot of," Vrabel added.

SUPER DAD: TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD EXPLAINS HOW HE DELIVERED HIS OWN SON AT FAMILY'S HOME

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – Kevin Byard has made some clutch plays during the course of his playing career.

In the season opener at Denver, in fact, his forced fumble led to an early Titans touchdown.

But the 27-year-old made the play of his life last month when he delivered his own son, Kevin Leon Byard IV.

Yes, it's true. And on Wednesday, Byard went into great detail about how it happened while on a video conference call with reporters.

"It's one of those deals where we just couldn't make it to the hospital," Byard started off. "Obviously we weren't planning on having the baby at the house."

Byard said his wife, Clarke, started having mild contractions on the evening of August 23. Around 10:30 p.m., Byard's wife woke up and things escalated quickly. Then, she started having more severe contractions while on the bathroom floor. The child was due on August 24th.

"I kind of got up, I wasn't really panicking, but I scrambling to get some clothes on, helping her try to get dressed," Byard recalled. "Her mom was downstairs, so I called her up."

Byard then got the car ready, as Clarke Byard started moving around. Byard called the doula and said, "meet us at the hospital." But with things changing, it became, "meet us at the house."

With the doula on the speakerphone, the Byards provided updates. With the doula being 30 minutes away from the Byard's home, she provided instructions. The first: "Let's try and get her in the bathtub."

But by this time, Byard said his son's "head was already poking out." At this point, Byard said his wife was on her hands and knees.

"The (doula) said, "Tell her to start pushing, the baby is coming," Byard recalled. "His face was pointing upward, so I could see his face was real purple. I was nervous about that, so the doula told me to support his head."

About 10 or 15 minutes later, there was serious action.

"Once he got his head out, his shoulders and everything just kind of slipped out," Byard said. "And I kind of caught him in my arms. He waited about five seconds, he coughed about two or three times, and started crying."

Byard's wife remained on the floor, and an ambulance was called.

"We ended up getting the placenta out, cut the umbilical cord, and we headed to the hospital," Byard said. "All of this happened from 10:30 to 11:05. It was like a 30-minute period. Things kind of went fast."

Byard and his wife also have a one-year-old daughter, Eliana.

A former MTSU star and team captain who has recorded 17 interceptions in his NFL career, Byard knows he has a moment he'll never forget.

"That was probably the most memorable thing me and my wife have ever been through in our relationship other than getting married," Byard said. "That's a story I am going to tell my son for the rest of our days."

KEVIN BYARD

BEING PICKED BY TITANS A "DREAM COME TRUE" FOR S KEVIN BYARD

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
APRIL 30, 2016

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Kevin Byard already had the Titans hat.

And he could hardly wait to put in on. In the third round of Friday's NFL Draft, the Middle Tennessee State star got his chance as his NFL dream was realized in a big way.

"I kind of had it planned already," Byard said with a smile while speaking to reports on a conference call. "As soon as I hung up, I said, 'Give me my Titans hat. Titan up.'

"It's the greatest feeling in the world," Byard, who played 30 minutes down the road at MTSU, continued. "As soon as I heard the general manager's voice, it was just a whirlwind of madness from me. It is a dream come true. Just a few years ago I never thought I would be in this position. I just have to think the man upstairs."

Byard earned his draft position, Titans general manager Jon Robinson said.

Byard (5-11, 216) was an interception machine at MTSU, racking up 19 interceptions in four seasons. He displayed smarts on the field and off, something the Titans found out when they spent two hours with him on the MTSU campus recently.

It's why the team picked him 64th overall in the third round.

"Outstanding ball skills," Robinson said of Byard. "I think 19 interceptions speaks for itself, and he had 370-plus tackles as well. So he's a really productive football player, and he's a great guy. He is a captain, he is a (team-first guy). He embodies all the traits we are looking for. We think he can play free and strong, and he can play in the kicking game. He is really good with the ball in his hands when he picks it off."

Over the phone, Robinson could sense Byard's excitement.

"He is walking over now," Robinson said with a smile.

Byard racked up 66 tackles and four interceptions in 2015. With the Titans, he'll have a chance to compete for playing time, and potentially a starting spot, as a rookie.

Coach Mike Mularkey said the addition of Byard adds competition at the position, which he welcomes.

"This is what we want," Mularkey said. "Those guys that want to buy in and compete and do the things we are doing, those guys will be the players we're going to do our best to keep around here."

Byard watched the draft with his family. He was hoping the Titans would pick him. He said he watched Titans games every Sunday from the locker room while at MTSU. When he was selected, he said he got 100 text messages and "probably 30 missed calls."

"When they picked me, it was almost surreal," Byard said. "I am going to go in there and work as hard as anybody coming in. I am going to go in there and make an immediate impact on special teams, and I am going to go in there and try and fight for a starting job, that is my plan.

"I am glad the Titans picked me, and they made the best decision of the draft by picking me. I am excited and ready to go to work."

MORGAN COX

THE UPSIDE-DOWN LIFE OF THE TENNESSEE TITANS' ALL-PRO LONG-SNAPPER

BY DAVID FLEMING
ESPN

JANUARY 20, 2022

LONG-SNAPPING HAS been described as the most specialized, and most ignored, position in all of sports. And in the strange, upside-down world of the long-snapper, the better you are at your job, the more anonymous you become. Case in point: Although they are a critical component in punting, extra points and field goals in a league where field position and scoring is at an all-time premium (especially during the playoffs), long-snappers didn't have their own official spot on the All-Pro team until last year. That inaugural All-Pro honor went to the Tennessee Titans' Morgan Cox. After 11 years, four Pro Bowls and several historic field goals in Baltimore, the Tennessee native joined the Titans in 2021 as a free agent. Not that it upped his Q rating at all. "The motto with long-snapping is you want to go unnoticed, otherwise you're not doing your job correctly," says Cox. "I want people to forget my name because I've done my job so well, the ball's just there and they just expect that it's just going to be there all the time. So I take pride in going unnoticed. I've always said that I could probably walk through the stadium concourse in my helmet and jersey and pads and everybody would be like, 'Why are you wearing number 46?'"

Still, few people in the history of the game have better insight into this weird but fascinating position and all the extreme mental and physical challenges that come with it. (For starters: they're, um, inverted.) Which is why, leading up to the No. 1-seeded Titans divisional-round playoff game against the Bengals, ESPN Daily sat down with Cox to learn, well, everything, about the strange art and science of long-snapping.

HAVING A MOMENT: Few of us had any clue about how uniquely skilled and valuable these players were until Covid-19 sidelined a handful of starting long-snappers and the Colts, Cowboys, Bucs, Bengals and others had to scramble to find qualified replacements. Heck, this season, even the uber tight-lipped Bill Belichick gave an eloquent and passionate nine-minute answer when asked during a press conference about the importance and evolution of long-snappers. (Nine minutes!) A few years ago, Belichick confessed that securing a backup long-snapper was what allowed him to sleep well at night. The love of long-snapping runs in the family, apparently. Bill's son Steve, a defensive coach with the Patriots, was a walk-on long-snapper at Rutgers.

No one appreciates long-snappers more than backup long-snappers, though. In 2010, Cox blew out his ACL against the Browns but decided to stay in the game to snap, especially after seeing how petrified Ravens running back Willis McGahee was at the prospect of filling in for him. "After I hurt my knee, he came up to me on the sideline and he was like, 'Hey man, are you good? Are you good? Are you going to be able to snap?'" says Cox, who tore his other ACL in 2014. "He was freaking out that he might have to go in and snap." The premium on scoring and the shrinking margin of victory in the NFL (this season the Titans outscored opponents by an average of only 3.8 points per game) has made extra points and field goals, and thus, long-snappers, even more like lawyers and umbrellas: no one really appreciates them until they don't have one.

IN GOOD HANDS: Cox is so obsessed with his hands and his grip that even during the off-season he doesn't like to use hand moisturizer. Seriously. "I can't really use a hand lotion because I hate the feeling of not being like ready to snap a ball at any given time," he says. "Even if it's like, you know, March or April and I know there's no game, for whatever reason I have to get my hands back to where I could snap a ball, like right away. It's just like a mental oddity that I have that I need to be ready to snap at all times." Likewise, Cox is very particular about his grip on the ball and before the game will even let the referee know how he wants the ball placed so the inflation valve will be in the center of his right palm. Much like a quarterback, Cox's ring finger always goes across the second seam. He uses his left hand mostly as a guide, but just his fingertips and with his palm well off the ball, "almost like the way you'd hold a waiter's tray."

Cox thinks of his snapping motion as a pendulum, because the most simplified, streamlined kinetic movements are the easiest to replicate under the most stressful situations. "At the bottom of the pendulum is the fastest, most efficient time to let go of the ball," he says. "And I'm always trying to think of the nose of the ball, because wherever I point the nose of the ball is where the ball is going to go." And like a great free throw shooter, for Cox the follow-through is critical to good form. When a snap goes well, his thumbs will be pointing straight up in the air and the backs of his hands will almost be touching.

THERE WILL BE MATH: After 12 years in the NFL, Cox has long-snapping down to a science. On field goals he only has 0.7 to 0.75 seconds to get the ball into the holder's hands. (A human eye blink takes 0.4 seconds.) And when the ball arrives the laces need to be at 12 o'clock, which is long-snapper lingo for straight up in the air so that when the ball is placed on the ground the seams are directly toward the goal posts. (Laces at 6 o'clock, pointing back at the kicker, are "a disaster," Cox says, because if they catch on a kicker's foot it drastically changes the direction of the ball.) In all, the field goal unit has between 1.2 and 1.3 seconds to get the kick off. So, to get the ball to the holder on time and in the right position, Cox knows that he must snap it at 35 mph with exactly 3½ rotations and with no target deviation. (Even having to reach a little for the snap can push the timing well past 1.3 seconds.)

Because weather, humidity and altitude affect the spin of the ball, pre-snap Cox slightly adjusts the distance between himself and the holder to ensure 3.5 rotations. (This must be what Cox's former coach, John Harbaugh, meant when he said the long-snapper has "relentless attention to detail.") So it makes sense that Cox isn't a believer in the cliché that playoff football is a game of inches. "It's more like millimeters," he says, "a blade of grass, that's the difference in games a lot of times, that little amount of space."

THE UPSIDE-DOWN WORLD: George Malcom Stratton was an American psychologist who pioneered the study of perception in the early 20th century by outfitting subjects with special glasses that turned everything they saw upside down. Stratton found that after some initial disorientation, in time the subjects' brain and vision adjusted to everything being upside down and they were able to function normally while theoretically upside down. Essentially, that's what happens with NFL long-snappers: like astronauts, gymnasts and Shaun White, they've been inverted so long it becomes normal.

"I've never thought about it, to be honest with you," says Cox. "Like, why is my holder hanging off the side of the Earth? It's just one of those things you get used to over the years." The only thing Cox worries about is being inverted too long, which is why he always waits to get the cue from his holder before starting his snap sequence. "You don't want all the blood to rush to your head," he says. "If I go down too early and grab the ball, I can literally feel my head filling with blood. I've been down there for 20 or 30 seconds before and I'm still able to snap it, but it's not ideal. You're thinking more about: 'How long have I been upside down?' Rather than, 'This is where the ball needs to go.'"

K BALLS: As if long-snapping wasn't hard enough, teams use specially prepared "K balls" that are extremely slick and typically inflated to the max (13.5 PSI) for added distance. NFL rules allow teams 45 minutes before games to prepare kicking balls in order to smooth out the tacky bumps in the leather of the regular game balls that quarterbacks and other playmakers prefer because of the added grip. It's usually done by a member of the equipment staff using a wet towel and a brush with coarse horsehair bristles and then marking the ball with a "K." With a smoother surface the balls are better for kickers but considerably harder for long-snappers and holders to handle, especially in bad weather. (Just ask Tony Romo.)

"Talk about getting into the weeds on stuff," says Cox. "Quarterback balls typically have all these dimples that are much more raised and even pronounced. Kicker balls are almost the exact opposite. And there's a certain technique on how teams prep kicker balls. They'll basically grind down all of those dimples. You talk about an art form. There's guys that are really well known for being able to work a kicking ball in. But what it does, it doesn't exactly lend itself to throwing the ball."

FOOTBALL FIDGIT SPINNERS: Even during a busy game, Cox is likely to go 20 minutes or more between snaps. In the playoffs, that's a long time to be standing in the freezing cold thinking about how there are up to 100 million people watching as you put the team's fate in your hands. Think of it this way: While leading the Chiefs to a win in Super Bowl LIV, Patrick Mahomes threw two interceptions and no one batted an eye. But if the Chiefs' long-snapper had two wild snaps in the Super Bowl he'd be a meme right now.

In long-snapping, being able to handle that kind of pressure is almost as important as technique and training. That's why so many long-snappers become great at ball tricks. Cox can spin it like a basketball on his finger, bounce it off the ground and back into his hand and he's been working on the Aaron Rodgers' classic arm flip and catch. "It's just about passing the time and doing something with my hands, rather than just sitting with my thoughts," says Cox. "The most you can stay out of your head the better. When I was in college, the snapper ahead of me told me that I could never be a long-snapper if I couldn't learn to spin the ball on my hand."

OH YEAH, YOU ALSO HAVE TO TACKLE: As if performing one of football's most specialized and thankless tasks weren't enough -- again, inverted and with zero room for error -- long-snappers are also expected to contribute downfield on punt coverage. The first punt Cox covered in college (at Tennessee) was a touchdown return by Cal's DeSean Jackson. "I didn't get within 10 yards of him," Cox admits. Over the course of his pro career, though, Cox has averaged about one tackle a year, which is downright respectable.

Cox is something of a legend among long-snappers for his 2012 posterization of Cleveland All-Pro kick returner Josh Cribbs, a picture-perfect, open-field tackle that appeared to knock the ball and Cribbs' helmet loose. There's just one tiny catch. "The way everything funneled, I just happened to be in the alley where he was running through," Cox says. "And, just like you practice in Pop Warner, I duck my shoulder and wrapped him up. I get up and I see that his helmet is knocked off, the ball's loose and we had jumped on it. And I'm like, 'Wow, but there's no way I did that.'" Indeed. Cox hit Cribbs low and didn't realize that at the exact same time his teammate, Ravens linebacker Dannell Ellerbe, delivered the hit up high that removed both the ball and the helmet from Cribbs' possession. "But in the newspaper the next day, the front page of the sports was me tackling Josh Cribbs and his helmet starting to fly off," says Cox. "Someday I'm going to show my grandkids that picture and be like,

MORGAN COX

'Look what the old man used to do back in the day.'"

MORGAN COX

NEW TITANS LONG SNAPPER MORGAN COX, A FOUR-TIME PRO BOWLER, EXCITED ABOUT RETURN TO TENNESSEE

TENNESSEE TITANS
MARCH 18, 2021

NASHVILLE – Morgan Cox is coming back to Tennessee, to join the Titans.

Cox, who played 11 seasons as the long snapper for the Baltimore Ravens, on Thursday agreed to terms on a one-year deal with the Titans.

A Collierville native who played at Evangelical Christian School and the University of Tennessee, Cox is regarded as one of the best long snappers in the NFL.

"It was a huge attraction for me," Cox said of returning to the state. "Getting to play high school ball in Memphis and college ball in Knoxville, it just seems fitting for me to come here. I am really excited. My phone has been blowing up ever since the news hit. I have been invested in the Titans for many years now – I remember when they came to town and they were playing in the Liberty Bowl back in the day and I came to games when I was in high school.

"I love this organization. This was an easy "yes" for me. As soon as I learned that they were interested, I was ecstatic just on that. And to get the news that we had finalized it was beyond. ... I am joining a great team already, and I am excited to see how I can help improve it."

Cox is a four-time Pro Bowler, and when the league added long snapper to this year's All-Pro ballot, Cox became the first honoree.

Cox, 34, joined the Ravens in 2010 as an undrafted rookie from Tennessee. He was released by the team earlier this offseason.

Cox has played in 165 games in his NFL career. Cox was a walk-on at the University of Tennessee before earning a scholarship prior to the 2008 season. He was the starting long snapper for Tennessee for the 2007, 2008, and 2009 seasons and he earned Academic All-SEC honors from 2006–2009.

With the Titans, he'll snap to Titans punter Brett Kern on punts, but the team's kicker for 2021 remains unclear.

Cox and Kern talked on FaceTime after Cox agreed to the deal, and they've already made plans to work on their chemistry together. Cox made the drive from Memphis to Nashville on Thursday to sign his new deal.

"I am excited to work with Brett," Cox said. "I've worked with him at the Pro Bowl, and I have already planned it out in my mind and stuff. So, I am excited to get together and get to work ... and I am excited about being in Tennessee and where we could go. I think the sky is the limit."

ZACH CUNNINGHAM

AS ZACH CUNNINGHAM EMBARKS ON HIS TENNESSEE TITANS CAREER, WHAT HIS HIGH SCHOOL COACH WANTS YOU TO KNOW

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
DECEMBER 24, 2021

Matt Glover remembers the play that sent Zach Cunningham's recruiting into the stratosphere.

It was Week 8 of the Tennessee Titans linebacker's senior year at Pinson Valley High School in Alabama. The other team ran the triple option out of the I-formation.

It tried to, at least.

Cunningham tackled the fullback, the quarterback and the pitch man. All on the same play.

Tennessee offered him at halftime of the game. Most of the SEC followed suit. Other Power 5 programs like Miami and Oregon hoped in the fray, too.

Cunningham had entered his senior year with just one offer, from UAB.

"He blew up," Glover, Cunningham's high school coach, recalled. "It was like overnight."

As Cunningham embarks on his career with the Titans, Glover spoke to The Tennessean about what he remembers about the NFL's 2020 tackles leader from his high school days.

Glover's responses have been shortened and edited for clarity:

The Tennessean: What first comes to your mind when you think about Zach Cunningham?

Glover: "Quiet. He was always quiet in high school. Never talked much. Just did his job.

"We ran a 3-4 (defense) and the linebacker beside him was the vocal guy. ... He had to make all the calls because Zach just wouldn't talk."

The Tennessean: Was he a four-year varsity player for you?

Glover: "Yes. ... I use Zach all the time as an example to kids about (how) you never know as a freshman what a kid is gonna turn out to (be). ... If you told me Zach Cunningham would've been playing college football and then play in the NFL as a freshman (in high school), I would've called you a liar. He grew and got taller and just got a lot better.

"He was actually a running back when I got him as a freshman. He was tall and lanky, so we moved him to linebacker."

The Tennessean: Why would you have been shocked if someone told you he was going to end up in the NFL?

Glover: "I think he wanted to be a running back. And I think he really didn't want to be a linebacker, so I don't know if he really bought into the change in positions because he'd always been a running back.

"I think he played a little bit of running back as a freshman. And then when he got to his sophomore year, that's when we really moved him to linebacker. We started him at outside linebacker. He played outside linebacker his 10th grade year and then teams started running away from him, so we moved him to our inside linebacker (position) his junior year and senior year, that way he could go sideline to sideline."

The Tennessean: How would you describe what his game was like in his early days as a linebacker?

Glover: "Zach is very explosive. He's got a very good gift. He's long and he's a lot faster than you thought he was because he saw he was so long. ... He was just a football player. Sometimes, you put a football player in any position and they're gonna thrive in it. And that's kind of what Zach was.

"He was pretty much I think the star running back in junior high and then he got to ninth grade and he wasn't really that guy. Moved to a different position and he just thrived there. He probably could've played safety, tight end. Any place and he would have been just as good."

The Tennessean: Zach is leaner than your prototypical NFL inside linebacker. Has he always been that way?

Glover: "I remember his junior year, Coach (Nick) Saban coming in. We had a receiver that everybody was looking at. He was a top receiver in the nation type. I kept telling (Saban), 'I got a kid here. He's skinny, but he's got (six) brothers and sisters. He can't eat like he needs to, but I think he's going to be really, really good.' So he looked at him ... (his recruiter) was like, 'Coach, the only thing about Zach, we just don't know if he can put weight on his frame.' They didn't think he could put the weight on. I want to say when he graduated high school, he didn't weigh 165 pounds or 170 pounds.

"UAB offered him going into his senior year. ... He did not get another offer until Week 8 of his senior year. And then he absolutely blew up.

"We were playing a team that ran an I-formation triple option. Zach, on one play, tackled the fullback, quarterback and the pitch (man) for about a four-yard (loss). So he tackled all three of them. Once he did that, he blew up, man. It was like overnight.

"I think his final (schools) were Auburn, Oregon and Vanderbilt. At that time, Auburn was actually going through a coaching change. (Gene) Chizik just got fired and (Gus) Malzahn was coming in. They offered Zach, and I think Zach liked Auburn. ... Right there at the end, Coach Malzahn called and said they were holding the last linebacker scholarship for another kid. Zach's scholarship offer wasn't valid until that kid didn't come. And that's when he signed with Vanderbilt, which was a good decision.

“But he’s always been skinny. Always.”

The Tennessean: So Zach started blowing up after the massive tackle on the triple-option play?

Glover: “I remember Coach (Derrick) Ansley at halftime walking by. He looked at me. He said, ‘Tell (Cunningham) he’s got an offer (from Tennessee). I’ll be back Monday.’”

“I knew the kid could play. Everyone knew he could play. It was just, you look at him and he’s a 6-3, 6-4, 165-pound MIKE linebacker. If you catch him between the lines, he was going to tackle you. He could run, was long, had great length. He had great power and explosion. He knew leverage real well. I think that’s what makes him such a great tackler.

“I mean, every high school coach we played against (talked about him). They still talk about Zach being the best defensive football player they’ve ever coached against. ... He was just a tackling machine and people finally started noticing. Once they started noticing, it was crazy. It was just one after another after another after another. They just kept coming in and coming in.

“I remember being on the phone with a coach from Miami and they were flying up; I think it was the last day before the dead period to see Zach. I said, ‘Coach, he’s committed to Vandy. He’s pretty solid.’ He says, ‘Coach, we’re flying up anyway. We got to have him.’ It was really crazy.”

The Tennessean: Anything else?

Glover: “Going into his senior year, his cleats were messed up for practice one day. They tore up. We had a contract with Nike. So I asked him, ‘Zach, what size shoe do you wear, son? I’m gonna send (the torn up shoes) in and get you a new pair of shoes. He said, ‘Coach, I wear 14.’

“I get his shoes. I call the Nike rep. I say, ‘I need a pair of 14s.’ I send (the old ones) in. So I look at them, put them in the box in the back. I looked and they were a size 12. So he played his whole junior year in a size 12 shoe when he wore size 14.

“He didn’t complain. He never said anything. It’s just the way he was. He just did his job.”

BUD DUPREE

TENNESSEE TITANS' NFL FREE-AGENT SIGNINGS 2021: BUD DUPREE SHOULD HELP PASS RUSH

*BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM*

MARCH 15, 2021

NFL free agency is off and running, and we're keeping track of every major signing, trade and release of the 2021 offseason, with analysis from our NFL Nation reporters and grades from our experts. The new league year begins March 17 at 4 p.m. ET, which means free-agent signings can be made official after that. The first round of the 2021 NFL draft begins April 29 on ESPN.

The Titans have multiple roster needs that have to be addressed. Finding an impact pass-rusher tops the Titans' defensive needs list. Adding a game-changing defensive end/outside linebacker will likely take up most of their cap space that Tennessee has to work with.

The Titans could also use some help at the cornerback position, specifically at nickel. Wide receiver and tight end are the biggest needs for the Titans' offense. They'll need to find a kicker as well. Filling out the roster with limited cap space and 20 players that are set to become free agents won't be an easy task.

Here's a breakdown of every 2021 NFL free-agent signing by the Tennessee Titans, and how each will impact the upcoming season:

Bud Dupree, linebacker

The Titans have agreed to a deal with linebacker Bud Dupree, the former Steeler told ESPN's Jeremy Fowler on Monday. The deal will pay Dupree more than $16 million per year.

What it means: The Titans get much-needed pass-rush help by signing Dupree who had eight sacks in 11 games last season. Dupree had 11.5 sacks in 2019. The 6-foot-4, 269-pound outside linebacker complement's Harold Landry who is more of a speed rusher coming from the opposite side. Dupree's 24 tackles for loss over the last two seasons show he's capable of making plays behind the line of scrimmage which should help set up more third-and-long situations to allow the pass rush to go after the quarterback. The Titans allowed opposing offenses to convert on 51.8% of their third-down opportunities. That should change this season.

What's the risk: Dupree is coming off a torn ACL that occurred in Week 12 against the Baltimore Ravens. He told Fowler in early March he plans to be a full participant in an NFL training camp based on positive feedback from his doctors. The injury is a reason to be concerned, especially for a player that relies on his explosiveness to get a jump on the snap and rush the passer. The other thing to consider is whether or not Dupree will be successful without T.J. Watt on the opposite side. Dupree only posted 4.5 sacks in 2016 before Watt arrived.

Veteran Denico Autry has 30.5 sacks and 202 tackles in 96 games over seven seasons. Jeffrey Brown/Icon Sportswire

Denico Autry, defensive lineman

Autry agreed to a three-year deal with the Titans.

What it means: The Titans needed to add to their pass rush after struggling to sack the quarterback last season (19 sacks, ranked 30th). Titans GM Jon Robinson found a disruptive interior defender in Autry, who had 7.5 sacks last season with the Colts as a complement to DeForrest Buckner (9.5 sacks). Tennessee hopes to create a similarly disruptive tandem with Autry and third-year defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons. Autry created an additional five sacks last season and was double-teamed on 57.8% of his interior pass rushes.

Now that the Titans have the interior rush solidified, they can turn their attention to an impact defender who can rush the passer off the edge.

What's the risk: There really aren't any risks. At 30 years old, Autry had his second-best season last year with the Colts and that was next to Buckner. The Titans are banking on Autry's ability to be successful without Buckner as his running mate. It's not out of the question as Autry led the Colts with nine sacks in 2018. He finished with 3.5 sacks the year before Buckner arrived in Indianapolis. Autry will be 33 years old by the time his contract with the Titans expires.

Kendall Lamm, offensive tackle

What it means: Lamm gives the Titans a reserve tackle that can back up starters Taylor Lewan and Dennis Kelly. Tennessee will likely lose veteran tackle Ty Sambrailo to free agency so signing Lamm who is a year younger is a good move. Lamm comes to the Titans from the Browns who employ a similar zone-blocking scheme. Just for good measure, Lamm caught a one-yard pass for a touchdown for the Browns in their Week 13 win over the Titans last season. Under Mike Vrabel, the Titans have used numerous tackle-eligible plays that have resulted in offensive linemen catching touchdowns. Lamm could follow in the lines of Kelly and reserve tackle David Quessenberry.

What's the risk: There really aren't any risks to this deal. At 28-years-old, Lamm is a veteran tackle that can fill in if called upon. His $8.5 million salary over two years is a bargain for a reserve offensive lineman.

BUD DUPREE

EDGE RUSHER BUD DUPREE ALL SMILES AFTER FIRST PRACTICE WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 6, 2021

NASHVILLE – In the grand scheme of things, it was just one practice.

But for Titans edge rusher Bud Dupree, it was a start.

"Everybody said: Welcome back," Dupree said after his first practice with the Titans on Friday. "(My teammates are) excited, just like I am excited. I haven't played football since December, so it is exciting for me just to be able to do the things I am doing right now. It is fun. I love this game, and I am excited to be on the Titans."

Dupree, signed back in March, practiced for the first time – on the team's eighth practice of training camp – after being taken off the team's Physically Unable to Perform list earlier in the day.

Decked out in No.48, with red socks, red gloves, and a red sleeve on his right arm, Dupree went through individual drills, and he worked in other periods as well. Dupree said coaches and trainers are deciding on how much he does as he works his way back from the torn ACL he suffered last season while with the Steelers.

It was a different look for Dupree, who wore black and gold with the Steelers since being drafted in the first round of the 2015 NFL Draft.

"It' different, but it's fun," said Dupree, who started 66 games and he posted 39.5 sacks, 231 tackles, 54 tackles for loss, an interception return for a touchdown and 65 quarterback hits in six seasons in Pittsburgh. "Change of color doesn't mean anything. You just have to go out there and embrace your new atmosphere, embrace your new team and put everything else behind you."

Dupree, 28, recorded eight sacks in 11 games in 2020 before suffering the season-ending knee injury and he also posted 31 tackles, 8 tackles for loss and 15 quarterback hits.

Dupree posted a career-high 11.5 sacks in 2019 with 17 quarterback hits and 16 tackles for loss. Dupree's 19.5 sacks over the past two seasons rank eighth and his six strip sacks rank fourth in the NFL since 2019.

During the offseason, Dupree rehabbed in both Arizona and Atlanta, and also in Nashville. The Titans placed him on PUP at the start of camp, and he's spent the past 10 days working inside and outside at Saint Thomas Sports Park with trainers, while attending meetings.

As Dupree edges closer to being 100 percent, he knows the biggest question centering him now is: Will he be ready for Week 1?

"God willing, I am," Dupree said with a smile. "I am working hard to be able to be in a position to play whenever they need me to play. If they want me to play Week 1, if they want me to play Week 2, if they want me to play Week 3, 4, or 5, it doesn't matter. But I know mentally and physically I am going to be ready."

"So I am just going to put everything on them to allow me to know when I'll be suiting up."

CALEB FARLEY

FROM TEARS TO A SMILE: HOW CB CALEB FARLEY KEPT THE FAITH, AND PUT HIMSELF IN A GOOD SPOT WITH THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
JULY 28, 2022

NASHVILLE – Caleb Farley remembers the night he had to start all over again.

The Titans cornerback remembers it too well, in fact.

It came during the second quarter of the team's October 18 against the Bills last season. Farley had recorded a pair of tackles before suffering a torn ACL, which began his rehab process all over again.

"It was dramatic for me," Farley said after Thursday's practice. "I was teary-eyed, I was crying. It was just a huge emotional blow. It was something unexpected. I didn't understand things. I knew the process that was to come. I knew where I was. It's something that really tried to keep me down and defeat me mentally.

"But that's not what I chose to agree with. I just chose to work to get back."

Fast-forward to today.

Nine months later, Farley is back on the practice field for training camp.

His knee brace is gone, and his spirts are up as he attempts to win a starting job with the Titans in 2022.

But right now, Farley said his focus is on getting better, and giving himself a chance.

"Just coming back out here (is a blessing)," Farley said. "Learning how to walk again can mess with you mentally, so just being able to run around and catch footballs and play football is rewarding.

"Definitely my faith (helped). I am a big faith guy, a spiritual guy. Without God, without my savior Jesus Christ, I wouldn't be here talking to you guys. I wouldn't still be trying to chase my dreams."

Selected 22nd overall in the 2021 NFL Draft out of Virginia Tech, Farley played in just three games in 2021 before suffering the season-ending knee injury. He was credited with two tackles and a pass defended against Jacksonville before starting against Buffalo the following week.

Then came the injury on October 18 against the Bills. Farley also tore his ACL in college, when he dealt with back issues as well.

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel and General Manager Jon Robinson have both praised Farley this offseason, saying he's made great strides during his rehabilitation and on the field since being placed on Injured Reserve last year.

In fact, Vrabel said earlier this week Farley recorded a pair of interception after reporting to training camp at the end of last week with some of the team's players recovering from injuries.

Farley knows his work must continue in the coming days, weeks and months. He said he ditched the "clunky" and "heavy" brace he'd been wearing a while back, a sign of his progress.

"Physically, mentally, emotionally – every aspect in my life I have improved," Farley said. "It just takes time to kind of slow the game down for you, and it doesn't ever stop truly. You have to continue to improve.

"It has been a journey, and hopefully it pays off and I get to the season healthy. I feel great, and I am confident. I just want to consider stacking the days. The job is never finished."

CALEB FARLEY

AFTER LOSING HIS MOM TO CANCER, TITANS' CALEB FARLEY LEANED ON FAITH TO HELP REALIZE HIS NFL DREAM

ESPN.COM
MAY 14, 2021

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Robert Farley was sitting at a card table playing spades when his phone rang. His son Caleb was on the other end and burst into tears as he began to explain that he just tore the ACL in his knee.

Caleb was then a freshman wide receiver at Virginia Tech and thought his playing career was in jeopardy.

"OK, it's all right," Robert said, recalling that 2017 conversation. "No, baby, the advancement with medicine and everything they have going now, they'll have you back in no time. You still have your career ahead of you."

Robert was right. Caleb, who developed into a top cornerback prospect, was taken by the Tennessee Titans at No. 22 in the 2021 NFL draft.

The knee injury turned out to be a blessing in disguise. Not playing afforded Caleb opportunities to travel back to Maiden, North Carolina, to spend time with his mother, Robin. She was being treated for a second bout with cancer. She was first diagnosed with breast cancer when Caleb was in junior high, but it went into remission after two years of treatment.

But the cancer returned and this time it was too much -- Robin died when she was just 53 years old. But what Caleb learned from his mother's struggles with cancer ultimately strengthened his faith and prepared him to deal with his own health challenges that laid ahead before he could realize his NFL dream.

According to Robert, his wife never asked why God allowed her, a faithful person, to get sick. Despite the bad days that came from chemotherapy treatments, Robin made sure it wasn't obvious how much she was struggling.

Robin's strength and steadfastness to her faith while enduring such a trying fight left an impression on Caleb, underscoring the importance of having a close relationship with God.

"I can say that was the start of me maturing in my faith," Caleb said. "I've always been built up in the scriptures and known what you should and shouldn't do. It wasn't as intimate or as pure of a relationship as it could have been.

"When I saw my mother go through that and believe that she could be healed and then I saw it come back and kill her, it hurt my faith in the beginning. But I believe you have to serve the Lord when it's good and bad. I made the decision that I was going to trust God. I would be lost without him."

Working through the loss of his mother was a test, but Caleb knew his mother would want him to press onward toward his goal of being a professional football player -- something he wanted to do since he was little.

Like many young kids, Caleb was told his NFL goals weren't realistic. But his mother was always the one telling him he could do whatever he put his mind to doing.

"My mother had a crazy belief in me and things that I could do," Caleb said

Robert added: "It was all about his little will. He was so determined at such a young age."

Caleb was a star quarterback at Maiden High School, passing for 1,776 yards and 21 touchdowns and rushing for 2,574 yards and 37 touchdowns as a senior. But after enrolling at Virginia Tech, he became a wide receiver. Then came the knee injury that ended his freshman season.

That will Robert noticed in Caleb at an early age was put to the test when he changed positions again, this time converting to cornerback before the 2018 season.

But Caleb quickly found success. He notched two interceptions and a sack against Florida State in his first start at corner. Then in 2019, Caleb established himself as one of the best cornerbacks in the country when he posted four interceptions, one of which he returned for a touchdown, along with 12 passes defended.

Then adversity struck again.

Caleb suffered a herniated L5 disk and bulged S1 joint while doing a deadlift exercise. The injury caused him to miss the final two games of the 2019 season. He had a discectomy performed on the L5 in February 2020 and was advised to let the bulged S1 heal on its own.

Next came another curveball: The COVID-19 pandemic, which complicated things even more because of the uncertainty surrounding the college football season. Caleb understood how much another year of experience would bolster his draft stock.

Robert thought another season would solidify Caleb as the best corner in the 2021 draft class.

"I knew that if he came out of college playing another year, he was going to grow by leaps and bounds," Robert said. "I knew if he played another year, it would be without question that he was something special, something you don't see often."

But Caleb's mind was on his family. Having lost his mother already, he was not about to put his father at risk by exposing him to COVID. He wasn't comfortable with how procedures were being followed at Virginia Tech. In July, he made a decision to opt out of the 2020 season.

Here is former Virginia Tech CB Caleb Farley's announcement that he is opting out of the college football season to train and turn pro, sent to ESPN: pic.twitter.com/5j4FmQvGKy

— Adam Schefter (@AdamSchefter) July 29, 2020

"My faith taught me to be smart and cautious," Caleb said. "I had to identify and target what was disturbing my peace. With everything going on with my living arrangements, I couldn't see me playing being the best decision. I had to be cautious and protect my father."

Robert wanted Caleb to play, but understood his reasoning. He didn't want Caleb to carry that weight on his shoulders, so he supported the decision.

Caleb was still widely projected to be top-10 draft pick, but adversity found its way back into the picture.

The bulged S1 was still causing Caleb discomfort when training for his pro day. He elected to have a microdiscectomy in March, which kept him from being able to perform at his pro day, where he could have showcased his speed and athleticism for NFL personnel executives and scouts.

Suddenly a player who was a likely top-10 pick was projected to go in the latter half of the first round. But Caleb remained positive and maintained his faith that everything would work out. This was what all of the other obstacles he faced prepared him for.

"For him to have endured that and went through that adversity, there could not have been any bigger adversity that he could have faced," Robert said. "He faced that and moved past it. The rest of it is just small matters."

But there was one more twist in store for Caleb: The NFL invited him to Cleveland for the draft, but he was unable to attend when he tested positive for COVID.

pic.twitter.com/TCLWNde6lx

— Caleb 🏆 (@IamCalebFarley) April 28, 2021

Instead of traveling to Cleveland to celebrate, the Farleys spent the day at Robert's home. Caleb tested negative the morning of the draft, but the family celebrated in separate rooms to be safe. Caleb was in his father's living room by himself while everyone else was in the garage.

Caleb says he views what happened to him over the past year as a chance to prove his faith and not take anything for granted.

"This whole situation has been eye-opening," Caleb said. "I've gotten closer to my family and to God. I am just thankful to wake up every day and breathe air and still have football and carry out my dreams."

He remains confident he will be ready to play when the Titans report for training camp and says he's felt great since the day he had the surgery in March. Caleb laughed as he reflected on how he woke up from surgery and walked out a day later to jump on a flight from Los Angeles to Virginia to attend the Hokies' pro day.

Caleb knows that in due time he will fulfill his dream of being an NFL player with his mother proudly looking down from above. He is dedicating this season to his mother.

Added Caleb, "If she were here, I would be talking trash to her about what I'm about to do to everybody and she'd be telling me, 'Yeah, baby, that's what you're going to do.'"

FARLEY HONORS GRANDMOTHER WITH EXTRAVAGANT GIFT

“For me, I leaned on my faith, which was extremely helpful to me,” Farley said on draft day. “I trust in God. I trust in Jesus Christ. Lord willing, I knew I was going to be playing football this year.”

Caleb Farley brought his grandmother to tears Saturday.

The Tennessee Titans’ first-round pick in the 2021 NFL Draft made what he said was one of his “childhood dreams” come true when he presented her with a car. Farley surprised her with the SUV that was parked in front of her house with a bow on top and a sign in front that read “Love You Granny Coco.” Another sign said “Faith” and included a cross.

“Keep checking off these childhood dreams,” Farley wrote on Instagram, where he posted a photo and a video of the moment. “My (grandma) kept me covered in prayer since a baby! Love my family, she about made me cry.”

Tears did fill his grandmother’s eyes as she hugged Farley and offered praise to God. Farley was dressed in a Titans T-shirt and cap.

The 22nd overall selection in this year’s draft, Farley signed a four-year, $13.495 million contract in May. The deal, which is fully guaranteed, included a signing bonus of just less than $7.2 million.

The cornerback out of Virginia Tech has not played football since 2019. He opted out of the 2020 college football season to prepare for the draft and underwent two back surgeries in less than a year, which created questions about whether he will be ready for the start of training camp and/or the regular season and caused him to drop down the draft board.

He did not participate in practices during last month’s organized team activities (OTAs) and mandatory minicamp but has maintained his belief that he will be a contributor this season.

TITANS CORNERBACK KRISTIAN FULTON FULFILLS NFL DREAM JUST 2 WEEKS AFTER GRANDFATHER DIES DUE TO COVID-19

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
APRIL 25, 2020

Kristian Fulton was surrounded by family at his New Orleans home Friday night when he finally heard his name called in the 2020 NFL Draft.

One of his biggest fans, though, was missing as the Titans selected the former LSU cornerback in the second round.

Louis Fulton Jr., Fulton's grandfather, died two weeks ago because of COVID-19. So while Fulton saw his NFL dreams come to fruition Friday, it wasn't easy.

"Definitely was (difficult)," Fulton said on a conference call with reporters after being drafted. "There's a lot going on right now, just dealing with everything that's going on.

"It's crazy. I had just talked to him a few days before and he was telling me how he was still watching some of my old games that was coming on TV, and he was always watching and was always excited just to see me succeed. It definitely was tough for me."

Fulton, a 6-foot, 197-pounder, gives the Titans secondary a much-needed jolt. Known for his penchant for disrupting passes, the sticky cornerback was a second-team All-SEC performer in 2019. He had a red flag on his resume — Fulton was suspended for the 2017 season after tampering with an NCAA drug test — but a thorough vetting process left the Titans with no doubt that he had matured from the experience and was a high-character prospect.

Titans general manager Jon Robinson said he felt fortunate that Fulton was still available when the Titans were on the clock with the 61st overall pick.

When the Titans finally swiped him off the draft board, Fulton said he felt his grandfather's support.

"I know he was looking tonight and he's going to be with me along the way," Fulton said. "Me and my family, we're getting through, it's tough getting through it."

FOOTBALL FASHION AND FOOTWEAR HOW TITANS KRISTIAN FULTON BUILT A BRAND IN NASHVILLE

ESPN
JULY 16, 2021*

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Although Tennessee Titans defensive back Kristian Fulton is entering his second season in the NFL, he is facing a different kind of rookie season this year. Kristian, 22, and his older brother Keith, 25, recently opened an urban wear boutique in Nashville called The Trenches.

"We came up with ideas and our goals, so when we had the opportunity we could make something happen. Once I knew I was going to the NFL and got the chance to make some money, that's really when it started to come about," Kristian said.

Kristian was drafted in the second round of the 2020 NFL draft (61st overall) and signed his four-year, $5.3 million rookie contract soon after. He played sporadically as a rookie, but finished with an interception and a sack. His season was limited due to a knee injury and being placed in COVID-19 protocol. He figures to be a key part of the secondary this season at right corner and as the nickel corner.

Kristian was destined to play in the NFL from his days at Archbishop Rummel High School in Metairie, Louisiana, where he was named New Orleans Defensive Player of the Year as a junior. The Fulton brothers played on the same high school team and shared dreams of playing in the pros.

"I expected to play football when I was younger. We played on the same high school team and won two championships. I played running back in college at four schools, chasing the dream of getting to that next level," Keith said.

Keith started with a scholarship to Mississippi College. He transferred to Southeastern Louisiana, then to Grossmont College before finishing his final two years at LSU.

While at LSU, as it became clear his NFL dreams wouldn't be realized, Keith made the decision to shift his focus to the management side of sports. He also developed a love for art, which would eventually grow into an idea for the layout of the boutique. Keith was intrigued by the prices he saw collectors paying for art. Being from New Orleans, a place where artists abound, made his interest even stronger.

Now that interest is on display, by way of the featured artists whose works rotate on a monthly basis inside the boutique. The decision to showcase artists offered the opportunity to become an investor while helping those who might otherwise not have a chance to sell their paintings.

"I see a lot of galleries here in Nashville, but not everyone is able to get into them. I thought it would be cool to showcase local artists and Black artists around the country. It was cool to give them a shot to sell their product," Keith said.

The Trenches features a unique blend of fashion, footwear and art.

"It all comes together. Clothes, music, art, it's layered," Keith added. "We tied it all together into one."

"There were a lot of [local brands] that we thought could do it big if they had the opportunity. Now, we want to give them a chance," says Kristian Fulton. Felice Brightman II

Their mother, Michelle Fulton, had similar business aspirations and is happy to see her sons make it a reality.

"I tell them how proud I am of them, because back when I was in college, my dream was to own my own business. A dream of mine has become a dream come true for them and it makes my heart full."

None of the clothing brands in The Trenches are mainstream names. Instead, the boutique features rising designers from New Orleans and other cities across the country.

"Everybody falls into the trend of high-end luxury brands. Growing up, we couldn't afford that, so we supported the local brands. There were a lot of them that we thought could do it big if they had the opportunity. Now, we want to give them a chance," Kristian noted.

There are typically four or five different brands featured in the store on a rolling basis. Kristian mentioned the "Fulton County" clothing line as one of his favorites.

"That's a smooth design to come up with. Fulton County, that's like a jail. That's how I'm going to lock everybody up," Kristian said, referring to his coverage skills on the football field.

The sneakers make up another part of the boutique's unique formula; the Fulton brothers didn't always have access to the latest and greatest sneaker releases. Keith recalled a time when he wanted to get the LeBron James Galaxy 9 sneakers, but couldn't get his hands on them.

"That's really the main thing. Giving other people the opportunity to have the chance to get some kicks they might not be able to get at the main stores," Kristian said.

According to Keith, it's really difficult to get a hold of new sneaker releases because of hoarders who buy up the supply. But the connections that he has developed and the doors that have opened because Kristian is an NFL player help the brothers get access to rare sneakers, like Nike's Kobe Mambas, various Jordans and more.

When it comes to the Fulton brothers' passion for shoes, the apple didn't fall too far from the tree.

"I am a shoe fanatic," Michelle said, "I start with the shoes and then I'll find the clothes to match. In their late-high-school to early college days, I began to notice their style take shape. It started with lots of different style tennis shoes. I'd tell them they reminded me of myself. I'd say to them, 'You are definitely my child,' because when they pack for a trip they have a separate suitcase for their shoes."

The Trenches isn't just a boutique for the Fulton brothers. It's a way to connect to the community.

As Kristian's business manager, Keith traveled to Nashville right after Kristian was selected in the draft, so he could network.

"I was thinking of different ways where he [Kristian] could introduce himself to the community in Nashville as a businessman, not just an athlete. I thought about the idea as a way that we can give back to the community," Keith said. "There's a lot of intimate but also family-oriented spots in New Orleans that we would go hang out at. There weren't too many places that had those spots that we are used to. We wanted to bring that here."

They've been able to bring the New Orleans vibe to Nashville through free seafood boils and other events that were hosted at the boutique, which is located on historic Buchanan Street in North Nashville.

The location is not a coincidence. They initially looked at storefronts downtown near the Broadway strip, only to find that they were too expensive. That's when Keith turned his attention to Buchanan Street.

"It's been a very popular area in the Black community in Nashville. We learned that quickly when we got here with the Black-owned businesses they have. We felt like it was the perfect location for us to keep it in the trenches, close to the community," Keith said.

The Fulton brothers' passions for fashion and art come through in the store's selection and layout. Felice Brightman II

The storefront sits directly on Buchanan Street next to a thriving

Black-owned kitchen and lounge, and across the street from a flourishing Black-owned pizza shop. Naming the boutique "The Trenches" goes perfectly with the culture they came from.

"We feel like everybody is either actually from the trenches or they want to be from the trenches. It's a popular thing in our generation coming up. That's how we gravitated to the name. It's relatable," Kristian said.

For Kristian, a big part of being relatable is actually being present in the store. He wants his customers to have access to him to talk about fashion, football, footwear or anything else that will help provide a unique shopping experience.

Opening The Trenches wasn't easy, especially during the coronavirus pandemic. Despite being a sports management major at LSU, Keith didn't have any business experience. He had to rely on his research and some help from mentors.

They opened the boutique on Saturday, March 20 of this year only to close the following Wednesday because they sold all of their products. Now the shelves are always stocked and the boutique is prospering.

"Our saying is, 'The real always prevail.' There was a lot that we went through and there's a lot that people go through, too," Keith explained. "I feel like everybody -- well, most people -- can feel our story, where we came from and what we are trying to do. For us to make it out, we want to inspire everybody."

TENNESSEE TITANS' KRISTIAN FULTON IS CHANGING HIS DIET AND DOING PILATES — ALL TO GAIN A COMPETITIVE EDGE

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
MAY 12, 2022

Tennessee Titans cornerback Kristian Fulton said he has changed his diet this offseason.

The former second-round pick has talked to several standout defensive backs across the NFL – fellow LSU alums and All-Pros Patrick Peterson, Tyrann Mathieu and Tre'Davious White among them – and his college position coach, Corey Raymond, for tips on getting through a 17-game season.

He has also taken up Pilates.

After an injury-riddled rookie season, Fulton became a productive starter, with 40 tackles, 14 passes defended and two interceptions in 2021. But he missed four games last season due to injury after being limited to six games in 2020.

“Can’t eat ribs,” Fulton said last week of his diet. “Basically, pork, I’m trying to cut that out. Having meal prep. Having someone make my meals for me instead of just going to buy food every day of the week. Stuff like that. I’m still learning on it. (I) just got a nutritionist, so I’ll talk with him.”

Fulton added that he hopes that Titans coaches trust him to shadow top receivers more in 2022.

With Jackrabbit Jenkins no longer on the roster, Fulton will enter next season as Tennessee’s No. 1 cornerback.

“Playing smarter, playing faster, being more physical,” Fulton said of what’s next for him in Year 3. “I want to be around the ball more all year, however I can do that.”

Fulton also shared his thoughts on Roger McCreary, whom the Titans selected 35th overall in last month’s draft. The former Auburn star adds competitive depth to a cornerback room that features three other players selected in the first three rounds since 2020: Fulton, Caleb Farley and Elijah Molden.

“I like his skillset,” Fulton said of McCreary. “I like the way he plays the game. I feel like he’s got good feet at the line. He’s patient, makes a lot of plays on the ball. I’m excited to see what he can do for our secondary to make us better.”

NASHVILLE – The Titans selected Michigan running back Hassan Haskins in the fourth round of Saturday's NFL Draft.

Haskins was taken with the 131st overall pick.

"I just feel like I am a powerful back, but I have everything in the tool bag," Haskins said. "I run angry. I am just a powerful, aggressive runner."

In 2021, Haskins ran for 1,327 yards and 20 touchdowns for the Wolverines. He racked up a career-best 169 rushing yards on 28 carries and tied a Michigan record with five rushing TDs against Ohio State (Nov.27).

During his career at Michigan, Haskins (6-1, 220) appeared in 37 career and carried the ball 452 times for 2,324 yards and scored 30 rushing touchdowns. He only had only 26 negative rushing yards his entire career. He also had 10 career 100-yard rushing games and did not fumble in 452 rushing attempts.

Haskins became the 24th running back in school history to surpass 2,000 rushing yards. He also caught 24 passes for 171 yards in his career.

He led all running backs at the NFL Combine with 27 bench press reps.

Haskins said he's looking forward to working with Titans running back Derrick Henry.

"It is a blessing," Haskins said. "He is one of the best. I am going to learn, and get better with him. I feel like it's going to be a good combination."

HENRY JOINS MLS OWNERSHIP GROUP

NASHVILLE – Derrick Henry is ready to tackle another form of football – from a completely different perspective.

The Tennessee Titans running back was one of three high-profile individuals who became minority owners in Nashville SC, that team announced Tuesday. Nashville SC is a Major League Soccer franchise that began play in 2020.

Henry joined actor/producer Reese Witherspoon and technology investor Jim Toth as part of the ownership group. According to the team, the two-time rushing champion is the fourth NFL player involved in ownership of an MLS franchise.

“As a kid growing up in Florida, I imagined being a professional sports owner and the opportunity to do that with a Major League Soccer club is truly a dream come true,” Henry said via a release from the team. “My investment in Nashville SC is way more than financial, it’s truly an investment in the city of Nashville. The chance to be part of a club like Nashville SC, especially after seeing what they are accomplishing in the community, was an opportunity I did not want to miss.”

In its first two seasons, Nashville SC shared Nissan Stadium with the Titans while construction of its own soccer-specific venue was built. That facility, Geodis Park, opens Sunday when Nashville SC hosts the Philadelphia Union. All 30,000 seats for that game have been sold.

Nashville played its first eight matches of the current season on the road and went 3-3-2, good for eighth place in the Western Conference. Philadelphia (5-1-2) is currently in first place in the Eastern Conference.

“We meant it when we said we were doing this in Nashville, with Nashville and for Nashville,” principal owner John Ingram said. “Having Derrick, Reese and Jim join our group signals our commitment to being a club that is going to do things at the highest level and with the best Nashville has to offer.”

NASHVILLE – Back in high school, Titans running back Derrick Henry once rushed for 502 yards in a single game, setting a record many probably thought would never be broken.

This past Friday night, however, Baker High School (Fla.) junior running back Kayleb Wagner broke Henry's single-game rushing record by totaling 535 yards and six touchdowns.

In the process, he earned props from Henry.

"I think it is incredible," Henry said on Thursday. "I thought it was really cool. I got to talk to him a little bit on Instagram and hopefully he breaks some more. That was really cool, definitely an inspiration to me and I am sure he is an inspiration to his team and everybody over there in that community. It was definitely cool to see and hopefully I can do something for him these upcoming weeks. I love to see it."

Making Wagner's record-breaking performance even more impressive is the fact he was born without a left hand.

On Thursday, Henry said he gave Wagner words of encouragement.

"I just told him to keep going, keep working hard, keep God first, break some more records," Henry said. "I have been trying to talk to him to see what I can do for him. It is a cool situation. He was outrunning guys, guys weren't touching him, it was really cool. Records are meant to be broken and I hope he breaks some more."

Henry, who played at Yulee High just outside of Jacksonville, broke the 51-year-old national high school rushing record with 12,124 yards after compiling 4,261 rushing yards as a senior.

Henry a Heisman Trophy winner at Alabama who has led the NFL in rushing the past two seasons, said he wasn't shocked his single-game record was broken.

"Florida boys are different," Henry said with a smile, "so I knew somebody would come around and break it eventually."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Tennessee Titans running back Derrick Henry last season became the eighth player in NFL history to reach the 2,000-yard mark, finishing with 2,027 yards -- the fifth-highest total.

While Henry's feat has been recognized -- winning the 2021 Offensive Player of the Year award -- the fifth-year running back won't hesitate to give credit to his offensive line. That's why King Henry gave each offensive lineman a gold rope chain with a medallion that includes a crown at the top along with "2K" in diamonds.

The medallion also has each player's name engraved on the back with Henry's rushing total.

The jewelry is the latest in a line of gestures Henry has made to show his appreciation for the guys up front. Henry gifted each of his offensive linemen a Rolex of their choice after they helped him clinch the NFL's rushing title in 2019.

Then, Henry made sure they were taken care of at Christmas when he had arcade-style Pac-Man games sent to each lineman. In Henry's mind, it's only right to take care of his linemen because they take care of him.

"Like we always say, block longer than the guy with the ball, and those guys did a great job. I just had to go out there and do my job and those guys are physical," Henry said of the offensive linemen after rushing for 250 yards in the regular-season finale against the Houston Texans.

THE TITANS RUNNING BACK BECOMES THE EIGHTH PLAYER IN NFL HISTORY TO REACH THE MILESTONE.

BY MICHAEL HOGAN

JANUARY 3, 2021

A few weeks ago, a 2,000-yard season was just a possibility for Derrick Henry. In fact, he was a little behind pace.

But for the Tennessee Titans running back, nothing should come as a surprise. Certainly not another massive performance against a team he has dominated in recent seasons, the Houston Texans.

To become the eighth player in league history to reach 2,000 rushing yards in a single season Sunday, Henry needed 223 yards. And he got every last one of them and then some.

Henry entered one of the most exclusive clubs in football and all of sports, the 2,000-yard club, with a six-yard run on his 28th carry of the contest. It came with 7:46 to play.

Henry finished with 250 yards on 34 carries (both career-highs) as the Titans outlasted the Texans 41-38 to finish first in the AFC South for the first time since 2008. His final total of 2,027 yards is the fifth-highest single-season total in NFL history.

"I am very thankful for those guys [on the offensive line]," Henry said. "I told those guys in the locker room, every single one of them, how thankful I was for them. I wouldn't want anybody else blocking for me. I couldn't do it without them."

Henry makes the Titans the first NFL franchise to have two 2,000-yard rushers. Chris Johnson earned his 'CJ2K' nickname when he rushed for 2,006 yards in 2009.

Johnson gave his reaction on Twitter, saying "2 2k's!!!!"

The 2015 Heisman Trophy winner at Alabama becomes the first running back to reach the milestone since Adrian Peterson did it with the Minnesota Vikings in 2012.

"I keep saying it's a really cool moment, a really cool thing," right tackle Dennis Kelly said. "That's something when you're older, when you're done playing, you're able to talk to your kids, that's something you can look back and be like, 'I did that.' Instantly, there's this bond that we all accomplished this together."

"It's going to be pretty impossible to forget."

From the start of Sunday's contest, the two-time rushing champion had the looks of a man on a mission. Henry had more than 100 yards rushing by halftime, including a 52-yard touchdown run in the second quarter. He added a six-yard touchdown in the third quarter. He surpassed 200 rushing yards for the game on the Titans' second offensive series of the third quarter. At the start of the fourth quarter, he was 18 yards away from 2,000.

Henry said that he knew somebody had been keeping track of his progress toward 2,000 yards throughout the game. Quarterback Ryan Tannehill, who had the greatest statistical season of any Titans quarterback, said he didn't have much of a clue about how close Henry was getting. He is happy to have been a part of it, though.

"I enjoy, like I said, every opportunity I get to go out and play on Sundays or Saturdays," Tannehill said of the day. "You know, it's something that when you go through what I went through over the past couple years, you appreciate it a little bit more. So, to be able to get into the playoffs for a second time, win the division, it's definitely a moment I'll look back on and really appreciate."

In the process of gaining the final yards to reach 2,000, Henry had one mistake that clearly did just enough to bother him to the point where he was not all smiles after a massive performance in a memorable victory.

He lost his second fumble of the season late in the third quarter -- a rare mishap from a player who almost never coughs up the football. The Texans scored a touchdown plays to close the Titans' lead to three, 31-28.

"You know, after rushing 2,000 yards, but I'm serious, right now I'm just pissed off at myself for the mishaps that I had," he said.

While Henry wouldn't acknowledge much about his season, it has been historic.

He is the 10th player since 1953 to be the league's rushing champion in consecutive seasons, and the other nine are members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Four of the previous 2,000-yard rushers also have a spot in Canton, Ohio.

In leading the league this season, Henry had seven 100-yard performances and three others with more than 200 yards. He is the first player to have three 200-yard rushing performances in a season since 2016 and fifth overall since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger. Only a handful of running backs have had one 200-yard rushing game since 2018.

Henry now has five career 200-yard rushing performances, and three of them have come in his last three games against Houston. He is the first player in league history to have that many against a single opponent.

A player who notoriously takes zero credit for his accolades and commends his teammates for just about everything he accomplishes, Henry might as well start writing his Hall of Fame speech.

He will have a lot of people to thank.

DERRICK HENRY

“I’m just thankful for my teammates,” he said. “Thankful for all of them, you know, week in and week out, you know, them doing their job. Just the unselfishness that they have for my success, I’m very thankful.”

But for now, reflection is something that will have to wait until this season is actually over.

“Regardless of if I got it, I did it or I didn’t,” he said. “I wasn’t pressing for it. I just wanted to be able to win the game as a team and make it to the playoffs in the division.”

TITANS RB DERRICK HENRY DONATES $10,000 TO NASHVILLE FIREFIGHTER WHO LOST HOME IN FIRE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MARCH 1, 2021

NASHVILLE – His 2020 season over, Derrick Henry was in already offseason workout mode a few weeks back, preparing for what's ahead.

But the Titans running back stopped in his tracks when he saw a heartbreaking story on his Twitter feed, and he wanted to do something to help.

The beneficiary: Nashville firefighter Jeremy Taylor, a Titans season ticket member and father of four daughters who lost his new home to a large fire recently.

Taylor was surprised at his fire station last week with $15,000 donation -- $10,000 from Henry's 'Two All' Foundation, along with a $5,000 contribution from Campbell's Chunky Soup.

The good deed was prompted by Henry, who took a screenshot of the Twitter post on the story and asked a member of the Titans organization how he could help.

"I saw the tweet and I was just touched by it, losing a home is such a tragic occurrence," Henry said. "Not only did I see the tweet but I saw that he was a Titans fan and also a first responder. Nashville has been through so much as a community – the tornado, the pandemic going on, and then the Christmas bombing. I just wanted to be able to help someone in need and someone who has been helping everyone else throughout this pandemic."

Taylor and his family were not in their new home at the time of the early morning explosion and fire on January 30, but they'd moved all their belonging into the White Bluff residence and were preparing to move in after finishing a checklist at the home they'd recently sold.

Taylor, his wife Lauren and their daughters, ages 13, 12, 11, and 8, lost everything in the fire.

"I thank God we weren't home, and nobody got hurt," Taylor said.

Taylor said it's been an emotional time. He's been buoyed by the support of friends, and fellow firefighters.

Then came the act of kindness from Henry, and Campbell's.

When Taylor got to work last Wednesday, he got a big surprise. After watching a video message from Henry, who explained why he wanted to help, Taylor also received a signed No.22 jersey from the NFL's Offensive Player of the Year in 2020. Titans cheerleaders and others from the organization were on hand for the check presentation.

"I am blessed, very blessed," Taylor said. "(This) has definitely been a blessing to my family. I am very overwhelmed. I don't know what to say."

Henry said he was more than willing to help.

"I was just touched by what I had seen about Jeremy and his family on Twitter, and just wanted to do anything I could to help them," Henry said. "I'm very thankful to be able to have Campbell's come in as well to try to help Jeremy and his family. Just touched by his family and wanted to help Jeremy in his own time of need."

Derrick Henry continues to raise the bar with his travel attire, but his outfit this time was much more than a fashion statement.

Henry on Sunday honored victims of racial injustice by wearing their names on his suit. As the Titans arrived in Denver ahead of Titans-Broncos on "Monday Night Football" (9:20 p.m., ESPN), Henry exited the team plane wearing the suit. The Titans posted photos of it on their official Twitter handle with the caption: "It takes all of us."

Henry led the league in rushing last season with 1,540 yards and was a first-time Pro Bowler. In July, the team re-signed him to a four-year, $50 million deal.

The Titans were one of a handful of NFL teams to cancel practice on Aug. 27 in the wake of the police shooting of Jacob Blake in Kenosha, Wisconsin, which occurred a few days earlier.

It remains to be seen whether Titans players will peacefully protest during Monday night's national anthem, as several NFL players around the league did Sunday. Titans coach Mike Vrabel said that any protests would come as a decision by his players. Defensive lineman and team captain DaQuan Jones said Friday that the team was still discussing what they might do ahead of Monday night's kickoff.

NASHVILLE – Dontrell Hilliard didn't arrive with a lot of fanfare in 2021, and when he re-signed with the team earlier this offseason, it didn't create lot of buzz either.

But the Titans running back, who provided a valuable boost in Derrick Henry's absence the second half of last year, has gone about his business quietly this offseason while getting a lot of chances to improve.

And in 2022, Hilliard hopes he can help the team again.

"I just want to be me, and carve out my role," Hilliard said after an OTA this week. "I want to show the team that I can be that guy that they can depend on and trust and leave it all up to the coaches and the team."

Hilliard, who initially joined the Titans in October 2021, re-signed with the team earlier this offseason and he's taken part in all of the team's offseason program.

With Henry not present at the voluntary workouts, Hilliard has gotten a lot of work in the team's OTAs alongside veterans running backs Jordan Wilkins and Trenton Cannon, and rookies Hassan Haskins and Julius Chestnut.

"Every day we come out and fight," Hilliard said, "and come out and show that love and competitiveness to make us better."

In 2021, Hilliard impressed with his opportunities while working in tandem with D'Onta Foreman, who signed with the Panthers earlier this offseason.

In eight games for the Titans in 2021, Hilliard carried the ball 56 times for 350 yards (6.3-yard average) and two touchdowns. Hilliard also had 19 catches for 87 yards, with a long of 28 yards.

Hilliard's best game in 2021 came against the Patriots, when he carried the ball 12 times for 131 yards, including a 68-yard touchdown run.

Hilliard, who played in college at Tulane, spent time with the Browns (2018-2020) and Texans (2020) before joining the Titans.

Over his career, Hilliard has accounted for 447 rushing yards and four touchdowns on 78 carries, also registering 41 receptions for 286 yards. As a returner, he has a 23.0-yard average on 43 kickoff returns.

Now, he's working to find a role once again.

"It's a lot of time, and you have to go out and take advantage of it," Hilliard said of the offseason program. "I feel blessed to have the opportunity, and by having the time you get more chances and more opportunities to go out and learn the playbook and the details that you need to perform your best."

AMANI HOOKER

BYARD SAYS HOOKER HAS FOLLOWED PROPER PATH TO LEADERSHIP

*BY MICHAEL HOGAN
SI.COM
JUNE 3, 2021*

Amani Hooker figures to make a bigger impact in more than one way this season.

First, the Tennessee Titans safety figures to be a full-time starter for the first time in his career after the team released veteran Kenny Vaccaro as part of a secondary overhaul in March.

He also hopes to be more of a leader for the defensive unit.

And nobody knows how to properly establish leadership than the man he will be playing beside in the defensive backfield this season, Kevin Byard, who has been a team captain in each of the past two seasons.

In order to become a good leader, Byard said, one must first be a good follower. And Hooker has done that well over his first two NFL seasons.

“I think Amani has been a great follower since he’s been here,” Byard said. “Watching me and (Vaccaro), or just watching any of the veteran guys and learning from them, learning how to be a pro.”

A third-round pick out of Middle Tennessee State in 2016, that’s exactly how Byard became one of the Titans’ most prominent voices in the locker room, for both on and off-field matters.

The Pro Bowler and All-Pro observed and learned from the likes of defensive back Jason McCourty and linebacker Brian Orapko.

Not only would Byard listen to what veterans had to say on a daily basis, but he paid close attention to the smallest of details. In the NFL, of course, doing the “little things” matters most.

“One thing that I did when I first got into the league was I looked at the parking lot,” Byard said. “When I got there in the morning, I was looking at cars ... what car is here early in the morning? Okay, this guy here. I was asking Jason, ‘Hey, what time are you getting here in the morning? Why are you coming here so early?’ They were getting rehab or doing the little things.”

A fourth-round pick out of Iowa in 2019, Hooker’s ascension to a more significant role on the defense started last season. His snaps with the defense increased, and when Vaccaro missed three games due to a lingering concussion, Hooker was called upon to start.

He finished tied for the team lead in interceptions with four and second in passes defended eight while also making 51 total tackles. All of those marks are career-highs.

Entering the 2021 season, Hooker is in a position to evolve as a leader for many reasons. Many younger players will fill the secondary after numerous moves in free agency and the NFL Draft.

But most importantly, he’s taken after many veterans over his first two seasons, including Byard.

“He’s into that role where he’s out there playing, he’s out there being more vocal, making calls and checks. That’s the start of it,” Byard said. “Going out there being sure of yourself, knowing what you need to do. When you assure yourself and know what you need to do, you can coach another guy up. I think he’s been doing pretty great at that.

“I think we’re going to be pretty good running mates this year.”

AUSTIN HOOPER

SIX THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT TE AUSTIN HOOPER, WHO HAS AGREED TO TERMS ON A ONE-YEAR DEAL WITH THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
MARCH 21, 2022

NASHVILLE – The Titans on Monday officially agreed to terms on a one-year deal with former Browns tight end Austin Hooper.

Here's a look at six things to know about Hooper and the Titans:

(1)- Hooper was a third-round pick (81st overall) of the Atlanta Falcons in the 2016 NFL Draft. With the Falcons, Hooper was named to the Pro Bowl in 2018 and 2019. He had his best season in 2019, when he caught 75 passes for 787 yards and six touchdowns. In 2018 and 2019, Hooper combined for 146 receptions over the two seasons, a total that ranked fourth among NFL tight ends during that span.

(2)- Hooper became a free agent in 2020, and he signed with the Browns. Hooper caught 46 passes for 435 yards and four touchdowns with the Browns in 2020, and he caught 38 passes for 345 yards and three touchdowns in 2020. Hooper was released by the Browns earlier this month, which made him a free agent.

(3)- In five NFL seasons, Hooper has played in 88 games, and he's tallied 298 catches for 3,024 yards (10.2-yard average), with 23 touchdowns. He has 31 catches of 20-plus yards in his career, along with four catches of 40-plus yads.

(4)- With the Titans, Hooper joins veteran tight end Geoff Swaim, who was signed earlier this month in free agency, on the roster. The Titans also have tight ends Tommy Hudson, Austin Fort, Ryan Izzo and Briley Moore on the roster. Meanwhile, tight ends Anthony Firkser and MyCole Pruitt are unrestricted free agents.

(5)- Hooper played collegiately at Stanford. Hooper played in all 13 games as a redshirt freshman in 2014, and he finished season with 40 receptions for 499 yards and two touchdowns. In 2015, Hooper had 34 receptions for 438 yards for six touchdowns. He was a finalist for the John Mackey Award and a first-team All-Pac-12 selection.

(6)- Hooper, who went to De La Salle High School in Concord, California, helped the school win three state titles from 2012-12. His father played football at San Diego State, and his uncle played at Stanford. Also, Hooper's brother, Justin, played baseball at UCLA and was selected by the Royals in the 14th round of the 2019 MLB Draft.

WHAT TIGHT END AUSTIN HOOPER SAID ABOUT FINDING HIS ROLE IN THE TENNESSEE TITANS' OFFENSE

BY EMMA HEALY
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 2, 2022

Tennessee Titans tight end Austin Hooper has NFL experience lining up both in the slot and out wide, as well as in a three-point stance.

After signing a one-year, $6 million contract in March, he's bringing that versatility to a Titans offense that likes to employ multiple tight ends.

"I'm just trying to find my role in this team, whatever it is," Hooper said after the sixth day of training camp on Tuesday. "I'm just going to go out there and play tight end in whatever spot they ask me to.

"My job is to study every position we have, so if they need me, I can be put in any position."

Hooper played the last two seasons with the Cleveland Browns, where around 25% of his snaps came out wide or in the slot. Before that, he played four seasons with the Atlanta Falcons, becoming a two-time Pro Bowler. There, Hooper lined up in the slot or out wide half the time.

"I've proven I can do whatever is asked of me," Hooper said. "My job is just to be a tight end, earn my role here to the best of my ability and be a good teammate."

As part of his role as a veteran in the tight end room, Hooper has helped get rookie Chig Okonkwo adjusted to the NFL. Okonkwo's willingness to work hard during training camp has stood out to Hooper.

"He's a really athletic, hungry, young player," Hooper said. "It's not lost on me that a part of my role here is to help him out to the best of my ability, and that's something I embrace."

Despite six NFL seasons, Hooper is still adjusting to a new quarterback and to the Titans' offense, so he's taking as many reps as possible in training camp.

Even when he's not involved in a drill, Hooper is often off to the side, catching extra passes and observing quarterback Ryan Tannehill's mechanics from afar.

"Chemistry is just repetitions over time," Hooper said.

BEN JONES

CENTER BEN JONES DOESN'T CAMOUFLAGE HIS FEELINGS – HE'S HAPPY TO BE BACK WITH THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
MARCH 18, 2022

NASHVILLE – Titans center Ben Jones signed a lucrative new contract on Friday before strolling down the hallways at Saint Thomas Sports Park for an afternoon press conference.

His attire for the special occasion? A camouflage jacket with a "Burkes Mechanical & Electrical" patch on the front, and a ball cap.

It was perfect.

"It's actually where my brother works – it's a Christmas gift," a smiling Jones said of the jacket. "My uncle owns the company (in Bibb County, Ala.). I don't like spending money.

"Free, free, free," Jones, smiling even bigger, said as he pointed to the clothing on his body, from his hat to his jacket to his shoes. "I don't spend money on clothes."

The Titans awarded Jones with a nice multi-year contract earlier this week, ensuring he'll remain in the middle of the line for the team in 2022, and potentially beyond.

On Friday, Jones discussed why it was so important to remain with the team.

"I am very excited," Jones said. "I want to finish my career here. ... The guys, the coaches, the people in this building, from equipment guys to trainers to coaches and staff, everybody treats you a certain way – (people) are amazing. ... I have been here, I love it. I am ready to finish it here and go win a championship."

A 10-year veteran, Jones has spent the past six seasons with the Titans.

Jones said he received some interest from other teams, but he wanted to stay in Tennessee.

It's where he's been since 2016. Jones knows plenty has changed since he first arrived.

In 2017, Ben and his wife, Alex, established The Jones Mission Fund at The Community Foundation, which supports at-risk youth by providing grant funding, educational opportunities and additional resources to area nonprofits working to enhance the lives of children in Middle Tennessee and beyond.

"When I came here, it was just me and my wife, and now we have two kids," Jones said. "You are raising a family, looking at schools and everything like that. We love Nashville, we love the city. We are happy to be here.

"... We are so blessed to get this contract, and this contract is for us to help other people with it. It's not about us and our family, it's how many lives we can help here in Nashville and back in my hometown. We are going to try and do as much as possible for other people with this (contract)."

One thing that hasn't changed – and won't – is the center's toughness.

Jones has missed just one start for the Titans since arriving in 2016, after playing his first four NFL seasons with the Texans. Jones has started 96 of a possible 97 games since joining the Titans.

From 2012 through 2021, the University of Georgia product appeared in 160 of 161 possible regular season games, including starts in all but one contest. During his six seasons with the Titans (2016- 21), he was one of only eight offensive linemen to start at least 96 of a possible 97 games. He finished the 2021 campaign with an active streak of 40 consecutive starts, ranking third among centers.

Jones, whose father was killed in a helicopter crash when Ben was just 10 years old, said his mother instilled toughness in him at a young age not only as his mother, but as his coach in sports.

"I love playing the game," Jones said. "It's not just about the money or anything like that. I love winning, and I want to be out there with my teammates. If I am not out there, I feel like I am letting them down. So if I can play, if I can go out there and get up, I am going to play."

HOW BIBB COUNTY FOOTBALL GOT $10,000 FROM BEN JONES AND TENNESSEE TITANS

BY BECKY HOPF
THE TUSCALOOSA NEWS
DECEMBER 24, 2021

They boarded a chartered bus in the small Alabama town of Centreville on Dec. 12 and headed to the big city: Nashville, Tennessee.

It was going to be an exciting but sentimental journey, a last moment together for the seniors and coaches on the Bibb County football team, a trip to an NFL game, complements of the Tennessee Titans and starting center, former Choctaws star Ben Jones.

“We love the trip. It’s something our seniors and the coaches look forward to each year,” said Choctaws coach Matt Geohagan. “Ben and the Titans take such good care of us.”

COVID-19 canceled last year’s trip. The 2021 trip, because of continued pandemic safety precautions, canceled some of the things previous seniors enjoyed. Still, the day was going to be memorable: special guests of the Titans, a pre-game meal inside the stadium, Titans’ swag like sunglasses, ear warmers, key chains, flags and towels — and, the highlight, meeting up with Jones after the game.

All that was pre-planned. What wasn’t expected was what they took back home.

Jones and the Titans Foundation surprised the team with a check for $10,000.

“We had no idea that that was going to happen. Ben and the Titans Foundation totally surprised us with that,” Geohagan said. “When I got here, Ben stepped in and helped with funding for buying things like helmets and cleats for the kids. He pours back into our community. This donation will really help us.

We have a lot of equipment needs that we have to do every year, whether it’s practice gear, shoulder pads, helmets. I have to replace some jerseys every year. There are so many things that you have to pay for every year just to keep the program running and to make sure the kids have the best and the safest equipment.”

Before COVID, the trip included going on the sidelines pregame and a tour, led by Jones, of the Titans’ facility.

“I’ve known Ben my whole life. We went to the same church,” said Choctaws defensive back Steven Cash. “He’s just a great family guy. He loves family. Loves people. Loves God. All the seniors look forward to this every year.”

Cash had been to two NFL games before. Offensive lineman Preston Young had also attended an NFL game, an Atlanta Falcons game about eight years ago. But this game, a 20-0 win by Tennessee against Jacksonville, was different.

“It was fun just being with the seniors and the coaches again,” Cash said.

“It’s fun getting to watch and see all the different types of fans, being around Ben,” Young said. “Ben is like a cousin to me. I’ve known him since like seventh grade when he came for a football camp and I was helping with it. He’s a very laid back guy He loves family. He’s very easy to get along with. Ben shows us that no matter where you’re from you can do big things.”

Jones was team captain and an all-state two-way lineman at Bibb County. He went on to start at center, beginning as a freshman, at Georgia and earned All-SEC honors. He was an ESPN All-American his senior year in 2011.

Jones was drafted by Houston in the fourth round of the 2012 NFL Draft and has been a starter for the Titans since 2016.

Each summer he hosts a free football camp at Bibb County, bringing in some of his NFL player friends. Bibb County’s players have grown up either attending camp or helping out.

Tennessee Titans center Ben Jones lines up during an NFL game against the Cleveland Browns. Jones, a former Bibb County High School player, will be in Centreville in June to conduct a free football camp for kids age 8-14. [Associated Press]

“Anytime he’s home for a break, he makes a point to come by the field house,” Geohagan said. “Ben’s very easy to approach. Our players have a whole lot of respect for him. They realize how great a player he is and how hard he works. Our whole community feels that way about Ben. He’s a phenomenal person. He truly pours back into our community, especially our football program.”

Geohagan said Jones has not only been a positive influence on the young men who come through Bibb County’s program but some have even adapted a pre-game ritual Jones started in high school. He walks barefoot on the field before each game.

“I don’t know where Ben got that, but it is true that he does that. Last year I used to see Baylor Hughey, who graduated, walk the field barefoot. This year I’ve seen Bo Burkes do the same thing,” said Geohagan.

“This trip is really special, to see the opportunities that our kids are afforded, to be able to do this. Preston and Steven have been able to go to an NFL game before but there are many of our kids who have never been to an NFL game and may never get the opportunity again. It’s really special for all of us.”

BEN JONES

TITANS CENTER BEN JONES OVERCAME TRAUMATIC CHILDHOOD

TITANS ONLINE
JUNE 22, 2016

In just three months, center Ben Jones has established himself as one of the livelier personalities on the Titans.

He's shared shocking stories about eating cockroaches and, yes, drinking his own urine on dares by previous NFL teammates, not to mention one about ripping the dreadlocks off a college opponent and tying them to his ceiling fan.

It's easy to believe the affable Alabama native, who's been known to break up monotonous practices with a joke as he and teammates are lining up for a play, hasn't suffered much in his 26 years.

But that's far from the case.

Jones' childhood and formative years were marked by a near-death experience, as well as the unexpected deaths of his father and a close friend. The combination of the events made Jones wonder why he'd been singled out to suffer, and caused him to question his own faith as well.

"Especially when you're young, you're like, 'Why is all this happening to me? What is going on?' " the 6-foot-3, 308-pounder said during Titans minicamp.

Mom was 'a real rock'

A tortuous stretch of months for Jones began just a few months after his 10th birthday in 1999, when his father, Steve, died in a helicopter crash.

Steve Jones did timber work of all kinds, everything from planting trees to helping them grow and eventually cutting them down. He was aboard a helicopter that was spraying pesticide on Alabama pines when the chopper's fuel system malfunctioned. The crash killed Jones and the pilot.

Since then, Ben Jones has worn the No. 60 when it was available. It was the number his father wore playing high school football in Thomasville, Ga.

But it was Jones' mother, Vickie Jones, who became a bigger part of her son's life, even stepping into the role of Little League coach her husband had held.

"It was tough because I really relied on my Dad," Ben Jones said. "But my mom just stepped in and was a real rock. She was the discipline in the house. If I didn't do my running throughout the year, she'd wake me up at night and be like, 'Hey, run to the mailbox and back,' and that's about a mile and a half on the farm.

"She stayed on us just like my Dad was doing. She pushed me to be who I am today."

'I still have screws in my head'

Only months after the passing of his father, Jones was battling for his own life.

Attending a high school baseball game, Jones was walking from his seat behind home plate toward the outfield seats, where his mother was watching the contest. But as he came around the corner of the dugout, Jones ran straight into the warm-up swing of a player, the bat thumping his uncovered skull.

Jones passed a doctor's concussion test afterward, so it looked like he might be OK. But his condition spiraled downward.

"I started throwing up because there was a blood clot was pressing on my brain, making me sick," Jones said. "It was very bad. I had to have emergency surgery to get rid of the blood clot on the brain. They went ahead and opened my head up and drained the blood clots out."

Jones remained in intensive care for a couple of days before leaving the hospital with some everlasting mementos.

"I still have screws in my head," he said, "so I guess you could say I might have a couple screws loose."

In order to make sure he didn't suffer any more damage, Jones had to wear a batting helmet to school for a year.

"I was the kid in class with the helmet on, the kid going to (recreation) with a helmet on," Jones said. "Fortunately, I was a pretty big kid, so nobody was going to say much to me."

'I just didn't understand'

Jones had to sit out a season of youth football because of the brain surgery, but by the time high school rolled around, he was back on the field, playing on the same team with his older brother, Clay.

But tragedy sought Jones out again during his junior year, when one of his best friends was killed in a four-wheeler accident. Jones was not present when it occurred.

Faith had been important to Jones growing up, but he found it hard to reconcile it with the events of his life to that point.

"I just didn't understand," he said. "Why is this all getting taken from me at such a young age? But stuff happens and at some point you realize, 'Hey, there's more in life like this.' So you have to grow up early."

The older brother of Jones' friend, a youth minister, spoke at the funeral and delivered a message that resonated.

"He said there's a reason (this death) happened, and I want somebody to get saved because of it," Jones said. "I feel like it helped a lot of people really turn their life around."

Since getting drafted by the Texans in 2012, Jones said he and his wife regularly attend religious retreats with other professional athletes, many of whom have lost parents, children or friends. He said they have all come to rely on team chaplains, spouses and family members to help them deal with hard times.

But Jones said his mother, who still works the 300-acre farm the family has had since he was young, has had the greatest influence.

“Everything is a learning point and you reach out to different people,” Jones said. “But my mom, really, she never cracked. Just seeing a God-fearing woman like her showed us an example every day on how to live that Christian life.”

TITANS CENTER BEN JONES' POWER IS STILL OUT, SO RYAN TANNEHILL IS LENDING A HAND

THE TENNESSEAN
MAY 7, 2020

As of Thursday morning, 7,000 Nashville Electric Service customers were still without power after a damaging wind storm Sunday evening caused widespread outages.

Ben Jones was one of them.

The Titans center, like thousands of other Nashvillians, had been "roughing it out" for three days before his quarterback, Ryan Tannehill, lended a hand.

"I have a great teammate who is not staying in Nashville right now, so we are staying at his house," Jones said on a Zoom call with reporters on Thursday. "Tannehill came in clutch for us because it got a little cold (Wednesday)."

More than 130,000 customers in the Nashville area had their electricity knocked out by the storms, which brought straight-line winds up to 70 miles per hour. Decosta Jenkins, the president and CEO of Nashville Electric Service, said the storms "caused the largest number of power outages in my 29-year career at NES."

Jones said he felt fortunate to have a teammate like Tannehill, who is riding out the COVID-19 pandemic with his family in South Florida, where he spent his first six NFL seasons as a member of the Miami Dolphins.

Earlier this offseason, Tannehill signed a four-year, $118 million extension with the Titans after a career year in 2019 in which he was named to his first Pro Bowl and led the Titans to the AFC title game.

For Jones, it's one more unusual obstacle in an offseason full of them.

With team facilities closed due to the pandemic, the NFL offseason has gone entirely virtual. Jones is adjusting accordingly.

"I do a Zoom workout every morning at 5:30 — I try to get in (the weight room and work out before our kids get up," he said. "We have four guys in there, with a trainer in there, so I'm going through a program. And mainly I'm trying to be innovative with how to run, because you don't have a field like you normally have. So, I have a Peloton bike that I use a couple of times a week. I bought a sled that I am pushing in the yard. I am running sprints on the driveway, through the neighborhood. I try to get up early and do it so I don't have a whole bunch of people out there watching me."

TAYLOR LEWAN

LEWAN: 'I NEEDED THIS'

BY DAVID BOCLAIR

SI.COM

SEPTEMBER 26, 2021

NASHVILLE — Taylor Lewan called it a step in the right direction.

The Tennessee Titans left tackle was optimistic that he turned around a terrible start to the 2021 NFL season when he played from start to finish in his team's 25-16 victory over the Indianapolis Colts on Sunday at Nissan Stadium.

The 30-year-old had a relatively uneventful day as part of an offensive line that helped Derrick Henry rush for 113 yards on 28 carries, allowed quarterback Ryan Tannehill to be sacked once and helped the offense hold the ball for more than 34 of the contest's 60 minutes.

That, in its own right, was eventful. After all, Lewan looked overmatched at times in a Week 1 loss to Arizona and did not make it out of pre-game warmups in Week 2 at Seattle due to an issue with his right knee that prompted the club's medical staff to scratch him.

"I felt like my old self mentally," Lewan said after the game. "I was moving a lot better. My pad level was a whole lot better. I was definitely more explosive and stronger.

"... I needed this more, I think, than the team needed this. I needed (Sunday). I needed to see that I could go do it, be left on an island again and be able to block and go do those things, run left and be able to sustain a block and get movement. (Sunday) was a great day."

The Arizona game was his first (outside of a brief preseason appearance) since Oct. 18, 2020 when he sustained a torn knee ligament that ended his season after just five games. It was, by his account, the first serious injury of his life and the subsequent reconstructive surgery was — by far — the most significant medical procedure he had experienced. From there, he embarked on the long road to recovery.

Throughout the offseason, Lewan talked often about how he seized the opportunity to not just work on his knee but on his entire body. He asserted that he was in peak physical condition, a claim he admitted Sunday was an attempt to try to speak something into reality.

"(Sunday) was the first day, like man, I feel like myself again," he said. "... When I got into trouble in Week 1, when I watched the film, I was doing a lot of things that were very uncharacteristic of myself.

"... It's been a really, really hard journey. A lot harder than I thought it was going to be."

To make matters worse, he took a mental beating when fans at Nissan Stadium booed him in Week 1 as he returned to action after having missed a couple second-half series to deal with cramps.

"I'm coming back from the ACL, 10 months, a physical process and — yeah — I wasn't playing well," Lewan said. "That was a really hard game to get over emotionally, mentally. ... I really wish I could articulate just how difficult that was. It was hard to hear the fans after seven or eight years, with as much as I've tried to do for the city, boo when I came back out there.

"... I was like, 'Damn, that's crazy how fast they turn.'"

Then whatever doubts he carried with him into Week 2 were compounded when he could not make it through the warmup. He said that he hyperextended his knee, the same one on which he had surgery, and heard a pop.

Doctors pulled him from the lineup because they did not have enough information about what happened, he said. When preparations began for the game with Indianapolis, he had been cleared and made it through the practice week without incident.

Lewan is not ready to say that he is back to the form that earned him three straight Pro Bowl invitations from 2016-18. But he did not feel any pain in his knee against the Colts, and he did feel the love from the fans who watched the Titans win a home game against their chief division rival for the first time since 2017.

"It's going to be a cool process because I'm just going to get better every single week," Lewan said. "Not only mentally, but physically I'm going to get better too."

It's not as if things could have gotten much worse.

TITANS DRAFT PICK TAYLOR LEWAN THE FAMILY DAREDEVIL

BY DAVE BIRKETT
DETROIT FREE PRESS
MAY 9, 2014

NEW YORK — Before he grew into his 6-foot-7, 309-pound body and became one of the best offensive linemen in the country, Taylor Lewan fashioned himself as a future X Games star.

Lewan, the Michigan offensive tackle who's expected to be a high first-round pick in today's NFL draft, spent part of his youth growing up in Cave Creek, Ariz., riding dirt bikes on his family's 12-acre ranch and at an amateur motocross track in the desert the locals call The Watering Hole.

"Taylor, actually, believe it or not, was an unbelievable dirt bike rider," said Bryce Lewan, Taylor's 19-year-old brother. "My dad actually made him quit because of football 'cause he didn't want him to get injured or anything like that. That was actually his passion before anything else. Riding dirt bikes and being a country boy."

Lewan said he started riding dirt bikes as a 5-year-old when his grandfather got him a Yamaha PW50.

The Tennessean's Titans Insider talks about the team's first-round draft pick, Michigan tackle Taylor Lewan. The Tennessean

By the time he was 16, he had three bikes and he spent most of his downtime tooling around the desert, riding trails and navigating step-ups — changes in elevation — that sent him soaring 100 feet or more in the air.

"There's something about taking off just riding, going 125 feet and everyone's just like, 'Oh my god, you're in the air and you're a couple stories up.'" Lewan said. "That's crazy. I love it."

The family daredevil, Lewan said he mastered a few basic tricks as a teenager, including jumping off and getting back on his bike in the air.

"I never could backflip or anything like that, but I thought I was pretty damn good," he said. "They had some pretty crazy jumps out there. I broke my wrist once, I had all these scars on my chin from it, a couple separated shoulders once in a while, but you always come back. It's great. Puked blood a couple times. It's exciting."

These days, Lewan doesn't ride bikes anymore, though he said he wants to again after his playing days are done, and gets on a motorcycle only when his good friend Nick Bennett, one of two buddies he brought to New York for the draft, lets him ride his Harley around the block.

Lewan, who started 48 games at left tackle for the Wolverines and took predraft visits to the Lions, Rams, Giants, Falcons and Cardinals, said his fun-loving nature shouldn't be confused with a wandering eye from football.

"I mean, if you watch me play football, I'm so determined to be successful, I'm so determined to be that No. 1 guy," he said. "Those are the things I care about. I'm sitting here maybe being the first, second or third tackle taken off the board right now and personally that (ticks) me off."

"I'd rather be the worst tackle in the draft than the second best just 'cause I hate it when you're that close and somebody has to say, this guy's better than you. This one guy's better or this two guys (are) better than you. And that's not to take away from them because they are phenomenal guys. Everything about them are great. It's just one of those things."

Lewan is rated the second- or third-best offensive lineman by most draft analysts, behind Auburn's Greg Robinson and Texas A&M's Jake Matthews.

Both Robinson, a mauling run blocker, and Matthews, a polished pass protector and the son of Hall of Fame lineman Bruce Matthews, are in the mix to go second overall to the Rams.

NFL Network analyst Mike Mayock said Lewan is a "finesse" player, but projects him to go sixth overall to the Falcons.

"He's a great athlete," Mayock said. "He tested as well or better than any other tackle at the draft. I'd like to see him be able to finish a little bit more in the run game, but what I like about him is his athletic ability."

Lewan said he doesn't just want to test better than his fellow tackles, he wants to be better than them when all is said and done.

"I would never sit here and tell anybody that I think I'm second best at anything I do just 'cause that's the competitive nature of everybody here," Lewan said. "Off the field, am I fun loving guy? I love to be around all my friends and do certain things. Yeah, it's great. It's awesome. Always have a smile on my face."

"But as soon as I step between the lines it's not like that. When I watch film, it's not like that. When I go to practice, it's not like that."

TAYLOR LEWAN

TITANS 'HYPED UP' TO GET TAYLOR LEWAN'S BIG PERSONALITY BACK

ESPN

AUGUST 14, 2021

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The 2020 season turned out to be another strong one for the Tennessee Titans' offensive line, but that doesn't mean the team was the same without left tackle Taylor Lewan.

The three-time Pro Bowler made it through four games in 2020 before suffering a torn ACL in the Titans' 42-36 win over the Houston Texans in Week 6. Lewan went down in the second quarter and was out for the rest of the season.

"He's a big personality, the life of the party so to speak," offensive line coach Keith Carter said. "From an energy and juice standpoint, that's really important. You need that. He's a big help getting over those hump days."

The Titans pressed on in 2020 without Lewan, winning the AFC South division title, fueled by running back Derrick Henry becoming the eighth NFL player to rush for more than 2,000 yards. Accomplishing such big things hardly meant Lewan's impact wasn't missed.

"Taylor is a large part of what we are doing here," coach Mike Vrabel said. "He does have some energy and excitement. He has been locked in, and he has done everything that we have asked him to do in his return."

They say "absence makes the heart grow fonder." That was exactly the case for Lewan and his relationship with football.

"I have a newfound appreciation for the game," Lewan said. "I've never been excited in my life just to practice. I'm just really happy with where I'm at and fortunate to be as healthy as I am."

Lewan was so eager to put the work in that his legs were sore after reporting to camp early to help out some of the younger offensive linemen.

"It's nice to feel the pains of football. I missed it all," Lewan added.

According to Lewan, there were points when he wondered if he'd be the same player on the field again or if he would be strong enough to play. He had no idea how the recovery process was going to be because it was his first time requiring surgery after an injury.

Lewan says he attacked each day like it was a new opportunity to get better, even the days when he didn't want to get out of bed because he was hurting. Lewan said he kept a journal where he'd log what he wanted to accomplish every day. That helped him reset and get through some of the down periods.

As the Titans enter their third week of camp, Lewan says he feels like the same person he was before the knee injury. A lot of that comes from what he calls "an amazing" team that he put together to help him through the rehab process.

His workload has steadily increased to the point where he's taking reps in the team period and going full tilt. Initially, Lewan's reps would conclude on contact. Now it's all the way through the whistle.

Having missed so much time, Lewan is eager to get back on the field. But he has trust in the coaching and training staff to bring him along at the correct pace so he can be ready to go for the season opener against the Arizona Cardinals. There was a time when perhaps things wouldn't have gone so smoothly.

Carter and Lewan didn't exactly hit it off when the two started working together in 2018. Carter admits he came in full of "piss and vinegar" to set a tone with the group. Lewan said there was some resistance, but ultimately Carter has helped elevate his game to another level.

"You go from a guy like [former Titans O-line coach] Russ Grimm, who's a relaxed guy, the type that maybe would have a beer in the morning," Lewan said. "Keith is a high-strung dude. It's a big change. I've never done a good job with authority, and he's definitely an authority figure, so that was a hard thing for me to handle. But I really appreciate Keith and what he's done for this team, especially this offensive line."

Now Lewan and Carter have an excellent relationship to the point where the veteran tackle is a player the coach relies upon to reinforce executing specific techniques and bringing energy to practice.

Lewan can be heard cheering on players and talking trash with the defense. There's a different emotional level when Lewan is on the field.

That stems from when Lewan was in high school playing nose tackle. He posted a video on YouTube of himself playing, thinking it would get him a scholarship. Instead, it brought criticism from a teammate, who said he goes hard only every once in a while.

Lewan vowed to never have his effort questioned again. He wants his energy to rub off on his teammates.

"It's juice, man," Lewan said. "You have millions of people watching, and you have an opportunity to put something on film that everyone around the league is going to judge you for. I love playing football and taking a guy and throwing him to our sidelines and dudes get hyped up."

LEWAN DONATES $10K TO HIS ARIZONA HIGH SCHOOL

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
NASHVILLE POST
OCTOBER 18, 2017

Taylor Lewan's first Pro Bowl appearance was worth something for his high school. Thousands of dollars, in fact.

Cactus Shadows High School (Cave Creek, Az.) announced this week that it received a $10,000 donation from the Tennessee Titans left tackle. The money will be used for athletics upgrades, including "new banners for the stadium, an industrial washer and dryer as well as other miscellaneous equipment."

Members of the winning team at last year's Pro Bowl (the AFC beat the NFC 20-13) received grants from the NFL Foundation, which could be directed to their high school or youth football programs.

"During our meeting Taylor was an absolute gentleman and really enjoyed the changes to our campus," Jim Swetter, assistant principal of operations and athletics, said in a prepared statement, according to the Scottsdale Independent. "He said he was going to donate the $10,000 to us because Cave Creek is home. We are very grateful for his generosity and his desire to help Cactus Shadows."

Lewan, one of five Titans players named to the 2016 Pro Bowl, was an all-state football player at Cactus Shadows. As a senior, he helped his team reach the state championship game.

"When students bond with their school, their desire to come back and give back drastically increases," Dr. Steve Bigbee, the school's principal, said. "We are so happy that Taylor felt that bond while he was here as student/athlete and we are grateful that he chose Cactus Shadows to be the recipient of his gratitude."

TAYLOR LEWAN

TITANS MAKE TAYLOR LEWAN RICHEST OL IN NFL HISTORY, GIVE HIM $80M, FIVE-YEAR EXTENSION

BY WILL BRINSON
CBSSPORTS.COM
JULY 27, 2018

The offensive tackle won't be holding out now, that's for sure

One of the concerns for the Tennessee Titans this offseason was making sure offensive lineman Taylor Lewan got into camp, paid, happy and not holding out. Lewan's been a stud since he was drafted in the first round of the 2014 NFL Draft, the anchor for the Titans physical running game. And he's being rewarded with a monster deal that will make him the richest offensive lineman in NFL history.

The Titans announced the extension on Friday morning.

And per Adam Schefter of ESPN, the contract is a whopper, worth a total of $80 million over five years. That's a very stout $16 million per year to protect Marcus Mariota's blindside, which easily eclipses the top tackle valuation on the market right now (Nate Solder got $15.5 million per year and $62.5 million total from the Giants this offseason).

Per Ian Rapoport of NFL Media, there are $50 million "in guarantees" with the deal. Flash the giant red siren for verbiage purposes: that does not mean $50 million guaranteed. But you can bet there's a substantial amount of guaranteed money built into this deal.

It isn't a no-brainer move for the Titans, but it's pretty close. Lewan made the Pro Bowl the last two seasons and is the tone-setter for a pretty close-knit group of offensive lineman in Tennessee. He's a nasty, physical presence in the run game, and with the addition of Dion Lewis alongside Derrick Henry, you can bet the Titans want to be aggressive in the run game.

HEAVYWEIGHT BOXING DAYS

The Titans capped their 2019 NFL Draft by selecting David Long in the sixth round (188th overall).

Here are three things two to know about the inside linebacker out of West Virginia:

Undersized, but that hasn't stopped him yet

With a 5-foot-11, 227-pound frame, Long has had his size questioned more than once.

AP All-Big 12 Team Football

"I'm going to give it to you straight — I've been hearing that since I've been playing football, and I've always came out on the upper end of that situation," Long said on a conference call Saturday. "So I feel like hearing that or going up against that, that gives me a little fire. So that's why I play bigger than what's on paper."

Titans coach Mike Vrabel said Long's size wasn't at all a deterrent, even citing Jayon Brown's frame — 6-foot, 226 pounds — as proof that you don't need to be huge to be a successful inside linebacker.

"The guy is an instinctive football player," Vrabel said of Long. "He loves football. He has proved to be a good special teams player. The size of linebackers has really diminished over the past 10 years. Most recently it is what is playing in college football. The more that offenses become spread out, the more that college defenses recruit athletic, quick, smaller backs. We are very comfortable with where we are with Jayon Brown and his development as a linebacker. I would say that David would probably fit similar to Jayon's size. As long as you give the guy, the player, enough tools in his tool box to play with his skillset and then try to develop some other things around it, I think that is always something that we are trying to do."

Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year

Long was the Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year as a junior this past season. He started all 12 games and led WVU with 111 tackles, 19 for loss, seven sacks, four pass breakups and forced one fumble.

"Just a really productive player," Titans general manager Jon Robinson said.

He was also prolific as an underclassman, racking up 141 tackles, 21 tackles for a loss and six sacks between his freshman and sophomore seasons.

Father was a heavyweight boxer

Where'd Long get his toughness from?

"I would say how I was raised," Long said. "My mom and pops never took no bull from their kids. They always wanted us to be better than average."

David Long Sr. was a former pro boxer who went 15-5-2 as a heavyweight. He got in the ring with Deontay Wilder before being knocked out by the future world champ.

"I was around probably in his later years. I don't remember his prime," Long said. "I was probably a little baby still, but the fights I do remember, he was getting a little older. I definitely was around when he was roughing up a few guys."

Long said he considered boxing when he was younger, but "I just had more love for football and basketball," he said. "But that was my offseason training. I did a lot of that boxing because it's a lot of work, full-body workouts and stuff."

DAVID LONG JR.

TITANS LB DAVID LONG JR. PLANS TO BE MORE OF A VOCAL LEADER IN YEAR 4

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
JUNE 8, 2022

NASHVILLE – Titans linebacker David Long Jr. likes to let his play speak for him.

And, over the past three seasons, he's made more noise each year in the NFL.

Heading into Year 4, Long wants to be more of a vocal leader as well.

"It's really not my nature," Long said. "As far as talking goes, I am more on the quiet side. But you can't be quiet on the field, especially as a linebacker, as a leader on the defense. So that's a step in my game I am trying to improve in, whether it's on the sideline talking to the rookies or on the field, knowing what everybody's job is and trying to communicate."

Being around for all of the team's offseason program – including all six OTAs so far – has allowed Long to establish himself even more.

It's one of the reasons he loves working out with the team during the voluntary offseason program.

"This time right here is where we build relationships, especially with the rookies or any new guys that we've picked up. This is the grind right here," Long said. "The rookies come in and learn what we're about. I'm here, and I've been here, so I can give the pointers that I have. Right now, it's about stacking the days and getting better each day."

Long has been stacking some good seasons since arriving with the Titans as a sixth-round draft pick out of West Virginia in the 2019 NFL Draft.

In 2021, Long finished third on the Titans with 75 tackles despite missing seven games.

It followed up his 2020 season when he played in 14 games, with five starts, and totaled 50 tackles. Long primarily played on special teams in 2019, but he earned the trust of the coaching staff to earn significant playing time in the team's three playoff games that season, including a start at Baltimore in the Divisional Round.

Now, Long wants to take the next step.

"I feel like I am still growing into the player I want to be," Long said. "I think I have gotten better every year since I've been here. ... I am more of a vet now in the room, so it was important for me to be here to show that I am grinding."

"Now I know a lot (more than I did as a young player). It's about fine-tuning the fundamentals, and what else I can involve in my craft, whether it's blitzes or whatever that might be. Finding ways to get better, or finding ways to rally my teammates to do the same thing."

A 5-foot-11, 227-pounder, Long said he's working on every part of his game.

In addition to wanting to communicate better, he wants to be a better in every facet of his game, from blitzing to tackling to covering to how he drops in coverage and more.

He has an answer for anyone who might sell him short.

"I've been hearing the undersized stuff since high school, but it never changed the way I played," Long said. "It really revved me up, as far as that dog mentality. It is like, 'I am going to show you how big, or how little, you think I am.' That is just being me."

ROGER MCCREARY

TENNESSEE TITANS ARE GUSHING ABOUT ROGER MCCREARY - AND I DON'T BLAME THEM

*BY GENTRY ESTES
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 20, 2022*

Tennessee Titans receiver Kyle Philips has seen enough of cornerback Roger McCreary in training camp to use veteran words like “technician” and “physical” when asked about him. Heck, he even called him “great.”

“You wouldn’t guess he’s a rookie,” Philips said.

Fellow cornerback Caleb Farley used the “G” word, too, as in McCreary is “a great corner.” Farley marveled at McCreary’s quick feet.

You can tell coach Mike Vrabel respects McCreary, too. He has continued to praise the cornerback's competitiveness and coachability, two terms of endearment for someone in Vrabel’s shoes.

“They may catch a couple on him,” Vrabel said, “but he’s going to keep competing.”

However the cornerback rotation shakes out for the Titans this season, it’s becoming a safer bet that McCreary is going to be part of it.

During Saturday’s preseason victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, McCreary played multiple positions in the secondary, as has been the case in practices. He was a top-two cornerback opposite Kristian Fulton. Then when the Titans went to three DBs to match the offense, Farley came in to play the boundary and McCreary shifted to the slot.

Thus the Titans are trusting the former Auburn standout to learn two positions in a complicated defense in order to shift between them on a snap-by-snap basis.

Not bad for a rookie who hadn’t experienced NFL game action until Saturday.

“It is a little difficult,” said McCreary, who missed the Titans’ first preseason game with a minor injury. “It’s something different for me, but it’s something that I love. I love that I’m getting challenged. I love that this is new for me. This is great. Whatever position they want me to play, I’m there to help.”

Entering training camp, cornerback was one of the largest question marks on the Titans’ roster. While that is still the case, McCreary’s capable arrival has helped ease concerns – helping change the perception of a position group that is full of young talent.

The Titans worked up to that. They rebuilt their cornerback room the old-fashioned way – through the first two days of the draft. You’ve got a recent first-round pick in Farley, a recent second-rounder in Kristian Fulton and a recent third-rounder in Elijah Molden.

That trio was in place heading into this year’s draft, but general manager Jon Robinson added McCreary, using a high second-round pick that was a byproduct of the A.J. Brown trade. It’s still early, but early reviews ... well ... you saw them above. They’re great.

McCreary appears to have been a solid decision, even as he was a little bit of a leap of faith at the time.

For all the kind words about McCreary during an impressive first training camp in the NFL, you won’t hear him described as a prototypical cornerback for pro ball.

That’s because he’s not. He is 5-foot-11.

“He’s got short arms,” said McCreary, repeating a line he has clearly heard before. “I’m sticky, though. I’ll be in situations, and I’ll be tight on my receivers. That’s exactly how I was in college. That’s exactly what I’m trying to do now in the league.”

McCreary hasn’t looked overwhelmed in the NFL. He hasn’t sounded overwhelmed.

And if you ask him, he’ll tell you that he hasn’t been overwhelmed by the transition from Auburn. Because the Tigers play in the SEC.

“I wouldn’t say it’s a huge leap,” McCreary said. “It’s really how the SEC is. It’s just a different mindset in the league now. ... In the league, everybody is great. How can you separate yourself? You really have to pay attention to small details in the league, because everybody is talented. It’s crazy.”

“I’m not scared,” he added. “I’m ready for the challenge no matter what.”

As Philips said, you wouldn’t guess he’s a rookie.

AUBURN CORNERBACK
ROGER MCCREARY
BRINGS TO THE
TENNESSEE TITANS

BY DAVID UBBEN
THE ATHLETIC
APRIL 29, 2022

Roger McCreary had plenty of options when Auburn elected to move on from Gus Malzahn and hired Bryan Harsin to replace him.

McCreary could have moved on, too. He was a first-year starter who proved he could compete in college football's toughest conference. But he stayed. And he did a lot more than compete. He closed the season as an All-American.

Last season, opposing offenses targeted him 75 times but only completed 34 passes in 13 games against him, according to Pro Football Focus.

He arrived at Auburn as a three-star recruit, barely inside the top 1,000 prospects in the Class of 2018. He left Auburn as the player the Tigers turned to when they needed to lock down opposing receivers like Ja'Marr Chase, Devonta Smith and John Metchie III.

McCreary went from overlooked to indispensable. Auburn named him the team's defensive MVP after the season.

"I just wanted to prove everybody wrong. That was my mindset — just prove everybody wrong and dominate the No. 1 receiver," McCreary said. "That was my mindset the whole time with a chip on my shoulder."

Nobody will be overlooking him anymore.

McCreary allowed catches on just 45.3 percent of targets in 2021. Among the 147 cornerbacks who faced at least 50 targets last season, that was the eighth-lowest rate in the FBS. Opposing quarterbacks also had a passing efficiency of just 93.9

when targeting McCreary. That was the seventh-lowest mark in the FBS in 2021.

Dane Brugler on Roger McCreary (No. 7 cornerback, No. 55 overall prospect in The Beast)

McCreary lacks ideal length, but he is a quick-reaction athlete with the ball skills and competitive mentality to face off against NFL receivers. He offers inside/outside versatility and should compete for a starting role as an NFL rookie.

Superlative

Don't test McCreary in man press coverage. No one is more disruptive. He's built to thrive in a scheme that will use him there most often. Last year, he forced 14 incompletions in press coverage. No other cornerback in the country had more than nine.

Best moment

McCreary has one of the shortest sets of arms of any cornerback in this draft at 28-7/8", but he is able to overcome that. Check out this one:

What you may have missed

He has a game weekend ritual that ended up becoming one of Auburn's pregame traditions. The night before every game, he eats a family recipe for baked beans topped with sugar. He even had some waiting for him at home after his pro day.

But it became so ingrained as his pregame custom that Auburn began serving that at every Friday night team meal before games. His teammate, Smoke Monday, managed to capture the ritual on film and posted it on TikTok.

ELIJAH MOLDEN

TITANS ROOKIE ELIJAH MOLDEN'S GOAL? PROVE HIS NFL VETERAN DAD'S HARD WORK PAID OFF

TURRON DAVENPORT
JUNE 20, 2021

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Elijah Molden was still in high school when then-University of Washington defensive coordinator Jimmy Lake started teaching him the Huskies' scheme. Lake received a call from Molden's mother, Christin, saying the young defensive back had sketched out pictures of the defense he had learned and covered his bedroom wall with them like posters.

"This guy means business," Lake thought to himself.

That's the impression Elijah, who was taken by the Tennessee Titans in the third round of the 2021 NFL draft, often leaves on those when talking about football. After all, playing cornerback is the family business. His father, Alex, was selected by the New Orleans Saints with the 11th pick in the 1996 draft and went on to play eight seasons with the San Diego Chargers and Detroit Lions.

"It wasn't like, 'You're going to get to the NFL or else.' But it was kind of just assumed that I would get here," Elijah said.

Elijah's path to the NFL was created in part by a great understanding of football passed along from his dad, who spent countless hours breaking down film and coaching his son from a young age.

Growing up Molden

Elijah is the second oldest of Alex and Christin's eight children. Each of them was given a development plan. It started with gymnastics to learn balance. Then they transitioned to soccer to work on foot quickness and changing speeds.

After that, the Molden kids were allowed to play whatever they wanted -- not just football.

"Just because Daddy played doesn't mean you have to," Alex told his children. "But if you do, I got the playbook."

Elijah's love for football was sparked early when he was able to go into the Chargers' locker room with his dad. He got to hang out with greats such as running back LaDainian Tomlinson, linebacker Junior Seau and safety Rodney Harrison.

Watching his father run out of the tunnel before games to blaring hype music made Elijah want to follow in Alex's footsteps.

"There wasn't a day where I woke up and didn't want to be a football player," Elijah said.

He started asking detailed questions about football in the fourth grade. Alex wasn't surprised because he could see Elijah's passion and competitive spirit growing.

The next year, Alex and Christin allowed Elijah to play tackle football a year earlier than they had planned because Elijah needed that physical aspect of the game. His speed and strength stood out.

"I would get giddy," Alex said. "[Elijah] was using stiff-arms, blowing kids up. He was having so much fun. When he put on the pads, it was just like me when I played. It gave him so much freedom."

Breaking down film with Dad

Elijah initially wanted to play running back because he loved Adrian Peterson. But Alex encouraged him to play defensive back once he got to the eighth grade, knowing he could begin to share his knowledge and experience.

"I had to approach him," Elijah said of Alex. "He'd never just show me. He was hands-off until I showed him I wanted to know."

Alex wanted his son to think like an eight-year NFL veteran rather than an eighth-grader. Unlike typical fans, the two didn't take in a football game in a few hours. Watching games turned into a four- or five-hour session.

"I would pause it after a big play and ask him if he knew why it happened," Alex said of their film study. "I'd explain to him what the DB's read was. You have to learn the reads and the keys. I would break things down like route patterns.

"When [opposing offenses] get to the 50-yard line, what are you thinking? I'm telling him, 'They're going to take their shot.' When you get 3-on-1, what are you thinking depending on what receiver is on the field side? They're trying to isolate. That really helped with football IQ, having him watch film and break down what the receiver or offensive coordinator was thinking. It's all about tendencies."

This is where the foundation of Elijah's football knowledge was built, which impressed the Titans in pre-draft interviews.

"I think he's been raised well. He was just really intelligent," GM Jon Robinson said after the Titans selected Elijah in the draft. "He knew about our football team. He had prepared for the interview by watching our football team. He spoke highly of how we played and the effort and the finish with which we play."

How Elijah ended up in Lake's hands

Alex got to coach Elijah as his position coach at West Linn High School in Oregon. One of his proudest memories came when Elijah was only 14 and locked down an opposing team's wide receiver who had been offered a scholarship to Arizona. When Elijah was a freshman, he got his own scholarship offer from Oregon, his father's alma mater, after attending one of the school's football camps.

ELIJAH MOLDEN

Other offers followed.

When he was a junior, Elijah was offered a chance to visit the University of Washington and watch spring ball on an unofficial visit. Alex didn't think the long drive to the Seattle area was worth it -- especially since the school was a Pac-12 rival of Oregon's. So Elijah and his mother took the three-hour drive without him.

They were blown away by the campus and the program, so they arranged another visit, with Alex this time. Everything changed for Alex after he met Lake. Suddenly, the idea of turning over the keys to Elijah's success to his alma mater's rival wasn't such a bad idea.

"[Lake] broke down film, and the attention to detail was on another level," Alex said. "Also, the success he had with defensive backs made me realize this was the perfect breeding ground. He coached in the NFL. That set off bells with me. Yeah, I would have loved for [Elijah] to be a Duck, but it was a perfect scenario for him to go there."

Lake, who coached defensive backs in the NFL for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (2006-07, 2010-11) and Detroit (2008), sold them on Washington's track record with defensive backs, such as NFL first-rounders Kevin King and Desmond Trufant.

"There was already proof in how we developed those guys, how they moved on and were successful in the NFL," Lake said. "Alex knew a lot of the guys that I had coached in the NFL and those guys being All-Pros, one of which was a future Hall of Famer in Ronde Barber, so he respected the process."

Lake, who's now the head coach at Washington, said Elijah was one of his favorite recruits to watch on film. He loved Elijah's physical ability and leadership, noting how the team would "sway with however Elijah was playing."

Elijah's inquisitive side came out as well. He asked detailed questions about the Huskies' techniques and scheme. Lake was impressed that Elijah wanted to know what everyone around him was doing in addition to what his own duties were.

"He prides himself on learning every detail of the defense," Lake said. "You could see that he was a football junkie. When you got him on the phone, you could tell that he had a passion for playing."

Another Molden's NFL journey begins

Elijah developed into a top NFL prospect, finishing with 153 tackles (seven for a loss), five interceptions, 19 passes defended and four forced fumbles in 36 games at Washington.

"With what I taught him and what Coach Lake taught him at UW, he was seeing things at a totally different rate of speed," Alex said.

NFL scouts saw Elijah as one of the best nickel defenders in the 2021 draft class.

ESPN NFL analyst Louis Riddick jokingly referred to Elijah as the "Jedi of the slot" because of how well he played the nickel position.

"It's Luke Skywalker-type stuff. He can see all of these things, but there's never any panic," Riddick said. "There's a lot of chaos around him, but he's in control. That to me signifies a guy who's really dialed in to the game at another level. He comes from great bloodlines, and that stuff transfers. He'll quickly adapt to the pro game."

Making it to the NFL was always Elijah's goal, but the rookie said he isn't satisfied. For him, it's time to make sure all of the hard work his father poured into him pays off.

Elijah's message to his dad for Father's Day shows how much all of the lessons mean to him.

"Thank you for letting me live out my dreams and always giving me advice, keeping things in perspective," Elijah said. "When I step on the field, I can do what I do because of you, and when I'm off the field too. I appreciate that, and I love you!"

Titans rookie cornerback Elijah Molden frequently talks to his father, Alex, a first-round pick by New Orleans in the 1996 draft, about football for advice.

When it comes to making a trip to a new stadium on the road like Gillette Stadium in Foxborough on Sunday, that's not the type of scouting information the rookie wants from his father.

"I mean, there's really only a handful of teams where he didn't play," Molden said.

His father played 98 games over seven seasons, the first five in New Orleans, two in San Diego and two games his final season with Detroit. His son did notice his father playing against the Patriots on TV recently.

"I think we were watching, you know, Tom Brady's new documentary, and I saw 25 for the Chargers on that," the rookie cornerback said. "They were getting torched. But yeah, I think that he's played almost everywhere."

Elijah Molden, the 100th pick overall in April out of Washington, has started four of his 11 games this season. He also has a pick-6 in Tennessee's win over Indianapolis.

CHIG OKONKWO'S CREW: TITANS REMIND HIM OF HOME, REFLECT NFL'S AFRICA PUSH

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
AUGUST 22, 2022

Titans rookie tight end Chigoziem Okonkwo got the football bug in second grade, his first year of playing and the first year he realized he could make some money off it.

So obsessed was young Okonkwo with the sport that he made sure it was on any TV he was around in his hometown of Powder Springs, Ga. He read whatever he could read, memorized every stat, every player, every bit of analysis he could find. He so impressed his classmates at the lunch table that he started charging them $1 apiece — or an ice cream cup, their choice — for his commentary. They paid it, until the principal found out, halted the operation and called Okonkwo's parents.

"I told (the principal) it would never happen again," Okonkwo's mother, Isioma, recalled of a conversation from 15 years ago. "But I was so proud of that boy. He came home and thought he was in trouble, but I said, 'That's a very, very good thought, that is our culture, and maybe some time in the future you can bring that out. For now, allow your friends to come listen to you talk about the football for free.'"

Entrepreneurship is a staple of the Igbo people of Nigeria, Isioma said, and that's the first thing that came to mind for her and her husband, Charlton, when they heard of their youngest child's exploits. Nigerian culture is something they talked about throughout the raising of Okonkwo and his two older sisters. It is something Okonkwo became more aware of at 15 when his father tragically passed away of a heart attack while out to dinner with his mother. And it is something he celebrates daily now.

Saturday, a night that saw Okonkwo catch a touchdown pass from Malik Willis in a 13-3 preseason win over Tampa Bay at Nissan Stadium, could be the last time a group of Titans who have bonded over their shared heritage are all in uniform together. Tuesday is another roster cut day, to get it down to 80. The Titans waived four players Monday, so one more must go. Okonkwo and four Nigerian teammates have very different stories and football trajectories.

Okonkwo, a promising fourth-round tight end out of Maryland, will be on the team and potentially a handy addition to the passing game. Ola Adeniyi, born in Nigeria, raised mostly in Houston and a Nashville revelation last season, should again provide quality outside linebacker depth. David Anenih, born in Dallas to parents who had recently moved from Nigeria, has been a pass-rushing standout in two preseason games, and the rookie looks like a practice squad candidate at least. Rookie tight end Thomas Odukoya, born in Amsterdam to a Dutch mother and Nigerian father, can occupy that practice squad without costing the Titans a spot — that's the advantage of the NFL's International Player Pathway program, which got Odukoya to Nashville.

"But I feel like I've got to come out every day and prove I deserve that spot," said the 6-foot-6, 253-pound Odukoya, who dominated club football in the Netherlands, sent highlight tapes to coaches all over the United States, played for two junior colleges and finally found success at Eastern Michigan.

The guy to watch Tuesday is defensive tackle Sam Okuayinonu. "Sam O.," as they call him around Titans camp, is a popular figure around the team. He's close with Okonkwo, his Maryland teammate, and that relationship is part of why Okuayinonu signed with the Titans after going undrafted. He was a captain at Maryland and he's doing all he can to add his name to an NFL trend and pursuit — the league is pouring resources into outreach efforts in Africa. Last season it reported more than 100 players on active rosters who were either born in Africa or whose parents were born in Africa.

Okuayinonu also is quite undersized for an NFL defensive tackle at 6-1, 269, and based on his opportunities and play in camp he's an active roster long shot, a practice squad hopeful and a Tuesday cut candidate. Ask Okonkwo about Okuayinonu and he'll tell you he's "an inspiration to me" and someone who shouldn't be underestimated. He's certainly been through more than most, seeing things as a young child that no one should have to see.

Born in Monrovia, Liberia, to a Liberian mother and Nigerian father, Okuayinonu was raised there by his mother, Clara, and was attending her college graduation party as a 5-year-old in 2003 when gunfire turned the celebration into chaos. The Second Liberian Civil War, which had been raging since 1999, had reached the doorstep of Monrovia. He ended up separated from his mother, fleeing with his aunt and cousin.

"The gunfire was so heavy, we couldn't turn around," said Okuayinonu, who ended up south of a primary bridge near the city, hiding in an uncle's house, protected from becoming a child soldier but not from seeing dead bodies floating in the water or starving people resorting to cannibalism.

He found out his mother was still alive when her first shipment of food — delivered by clandestine kayak — arrived. They could not speak or communicate for months, until the August 2003 ceasefire resulted in the reopening of the bridge and thousands of people streaming across to find their loved ones. That's a memory seared into Okuayinonu's brain.

"An incredible moment, a blessing," he said. "My mom's my everything. I got to reunite with her, and a lot of kids didn't get that privilege."

CHIG OKONKWO

They moved together a few years later to Lowell, Mass., where some of their family members had already relocated. That's where he fell in love with American football. That's how it usually goes for kids from other parts of the world with a sport that dominates American culture but does not have the global pull of sports such as soccer or basketball, and that's what the NFL wants to change. That's how it went for Chic Ejiasi, too.

Ejiasi was born in Houston to parents who had recently emigrated from Nigeria. The family moved a few years later to Iowa, where Ejiasi's parents worked as nurses and he became an Iowa Hawkeyes enthusiast. He eventually walked on to Kirk Ferentz's program, lettering all four seasons as a defensive back and contributing to Big Ten championship teams in 2002 and 2004. He graduated with a health and sports studies degree in 2005, tried coaching briefly but ultimately returned as the program's first director of player development — helping players transition from high school to college, helping them excel in college, helping them find internships and employment.

The Titans hired him away from Iowa in 2016 to be their director of player engagement. He has been with the franchise since and he and his wife, Ellie, have a 2-year-old son named Obi — officially Miles Obioma, Obioma translating to “kind hearted.” Ejiasi's job is much the same, helping Titans transition to this life. He loves serving and seeing young professionals benefit from and give to their community. He might be having as much fun during this preseason camp as he's had in this job.

“Taking over the league,” Ejiasi said with a smile of the increase of African players in the league and with the Titans, which has meant in recent weeks a lot of sharing of stories, conversations about culture and even discovering others on the team with African heritage — such as receiver Nick Westbrook-Ikhine and safety Josh Kalu.

“It's like we kind of all have that understanding of how we grew up,” Ejiasi said, and they all have strong feelings on how that culture led them here.

Ejiasi: “For me it was, we were very academically focused in our family. All about giving our best and trying and being the best we could be, especially academically.”

Anenih: “I would say it's a pretty big difference from American culture. In terms of how to live, maturity. Like my parents, they've done a really good job of teaching me how to live and good habits to have. ... Respect. Respect for your elders, that's probably the biggest thing I would say.”

Adeniyi: “We see our elderly, we respect them. We respect everybody we come around. Coaches, custodians, cafeteria ladies. That's what it is.”

Okuayinonu: “To me it's like there's a little bit more pressure to go harder, knowing the sacrifices my mom made to make this possible for me.”

Odukoya: “Obviously there's the genetic component of being big and strong, and I'm proud of that, but I also think Nigerians are known for their hard work and work ethic, which you need in the NFL. That shared culture, we definitely take pride in that.”

Okonkwo: “Relentless hard work. That's the only way you're going to get anything in life.”

Okonkwo also realized he had misperceptions of Nigeria until he visited for the first time. This was in 2017, three years after the tragic passing of his father, to visit extended family and celebrate the life of his father with them.

“People obviously have a negative perception of Africa. They think it's like dirt, everything is poor. That's not the case. It's literally like anywhere else,” Okonkwo said. “If you see my uncles' houses over there, they're bigger than multi-million dollar houses here. That's a big thing I took away, the perception and reality. Everything isn't dirt and poverty.”

Okonkwo would like to go back soon to get involved in outreach efforts, NFL-devised or otherwise. Adeniyi is committed to doing so next offseason, as part of NFL Africa. Former Giants star defensive end Osi Umenyiora, who was born in London to Nigerian parents, brought the idea to NFL commissioner Roger Goodell years ago and led in June in Ghana an event called NFL Africa: The Touchdown.

It included a combine-like development camp, a flag football clinic and fan events. The idea is to find and develop talent but also to increase international exposure to the game. The Philadelphia Eagles, for example, are marketing in Ghana as part of an effort to create regional fandom for various teams in different parts of the continent. This had to make business sense for the league to happen. The NFL reports 85 foreign-born players took at least one snap in the 2021 season — compared with 62 in 2014 — and that Nigeria, Canada and Australia are driving the growth.

But for Umenyiora and others with African roots who took part and will continue to take part, it's personal and about providing opportunities. The NFL isn't the only pathway for football to change a life. College football can open many more doors for kids with ability. Foreign-born FBS players more than doubled from 2014 to 2020, from 162 to 325. Roman Oben, the NFL's vice president of football development and the first Cameroon-born player drafted into the NFL, said he got emotional on the trip to Ghana.

“The school kids, the genuine passion and excitement they had, the appreciation, it takes you back,” said Oben, a 12-year offensive tackle who won a Super Bowl with the Bucs. “It makes you think about where you came from.”

CHIG OKONKWO

And sometimes that's best explained with a story. Second-grade Okonkwo was surprised that day he came home from school and his parents weren't mad about his entrepreneurial efforts. A couple years later, he came home proudly showing them a 93 he got on a math test.

"A 93?" Isioma Okonkwo said to her son. "Did somebody get 100? Why weren't you the one who got 100?"

NICHOLAS PETIT-FRERE

NICHOLAS PETIT-FRERE'S BETTER PUNCH A KEY TO HIS PROGRESS FOR TITANS

BY PAUL KUHARSKY
PAULKUHARSKY.COM
AUGUST 8, 2022

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – When the Titans landed third-round target Nicholas Petit-Frere on schedule, 69th overall, the reviews said he came into the league with great feet but in need of work on his hands.

Petit FrereThe well-spoken, 6-foot-5, 319-pound offensive tackle has made great gains in that department. He's now three practices into his turn as the starting right tackle after watching 2021 second-rounder Dillon Radunz start off at the front of the line.

NPF got off to a rousing start Friday in a 2-minute drill, handling Harold Landry a few times and DeMarcus Walker in another chance in very physical fashion.

He said he's made a great deal of progress with his hands since he arrived in Nashville.

"That's something that coach (Mike) Vrabel and coach (Keith) Carter have talked about, that we need to have great violence in our punches, that's what we teach here," Petit-Frere said. "So that's something I don't just work on on the field, I work on that off the field and in the weight room as well. Hopefully, that's been paying off, hopefully that's been showing and I can keep improving."

Inside, Petit-Frere and plenty of players work on The Difference.

"While coaching at Ohio State, you only got to work with the guys so much with whatever the rules were back in 2010 or 2011," Vrabel said. "So, we tried to come up with something – Anthony Schlegel came up with something that you could put on a weight room rack for blow delivery. It's been a product that we've used since he came up with it.

"We talked about trying to put something together and he's really made it a passion to try to promote that. We think it's important. It's just an apparatus they can use in a weight room with a pad and a spring-loaded device that allows players to punch, use their hands, make sure that they're inside, and that they're tight."

"We work on our strikes and punches and it shows us how good our speed and accuracy are," Petit-Frere said. "Outside I do the same thing, work on punches, the speed and accuracy of them, try to get to my landmarks and things like that."

Carter has been pleased with his rookie's progress.

Taylor Lewan has been complimentary of the team's newest tackle, pointing to the Dustin Hoffman character "Rainman" as a reference point.

"He's super intellectual, he does kind of give off that vibe," Lewan said. "Smart, he keeps to himself, he asks good questions, he knows the playbook pretty well for a rookie. From a maturity standpoint, he seems much more developed than I was at that point, but the same goes for Dillon."

While NPF has flipped with Radunz at right tackle, Aaron Brewer remains in place as the starter at left guard, where Jamarco Jones was slated to be his top competition.

One running theory among media watching practice is that perhaps if Petit-Frere can pull away and the Titans think Radunz may be one of their best five linemen, he can be moved into a left guard competition with Brewer.

The team has been awfully high on Brewer, however. So we'll see. There are three games and still over a month before the season opener. I won't dismiss any possibility yet.

"It's about getting as many reps as you can, as many competitive reps as you can, because that's when you build great habits," Petit-Frere said.

As for the Rainman reference... NFP said he'd never watched the movie so he wouldn't say anything to it but that he might queue it up and get back to us.

"Every single one of us is intellectual, there is a reason why we are here," he said. "There is a reason why Vrabel thought we'd be great people here, great players. You need to be smart to be on this offensive line, You also need to be violent and physical."

HOW TITANS ROOKIE WR EARNED THE NICKNAME 'THE PROFESSOR'

THE NASHVILLE POST
AUGUST 15, 2022

Thirteen practices into his rookie season, and Tennessee Titans receiver Kyle Philips has already earned a reputation for being deceptively difficult to cover.

But Philips' uncanny ability to seemingly always have the right answer during team meetings has also earned him a nickname from the Titans coaching staff.

"He's a bit of a know-it-all, but that's why I call him 'The Professor' because there's nothing he doesn't know," Titans wide receivers coach Rob Moore said on Monday. "His passion for the game shows up a lot. When you talk to him about it, he really does have a good mind for the game. You can make adjustments [for him] in a quick moment, and he can adjust to it."

Added Philips: "It definitely makes me feel good. But it also puts a little bit of a target on my back. He'll throw some trick questions out there to try and catch me. When he does, he doesn't let me live it down. So, it goes both ways."

From terminology to route running, Philips spends most of his free time breaking down film — of himself, of his teammates and of any receiver who happens to have a highlight reel on YouTube.

"I started [studying receivers] in middle school," Philips admitted, adding he will watch a video on YouTube and say to himself, "I want to try and add that to my game."

Although Tennessee's WR group is relatively young and inexperienced, Robert Woods notwithstanding, Philips disclosed there is plenty to learn from the group of fellow pass catchers.

The Titans have a solid mix of physical, speed and possession receivers. That eclectic mix of size, quickness, strength, route running and elusiveness is what Philips credits for helping him round out his skillset.

"I study every receiver I can," Philips said. "Just being out here, I'd say [I study] a lot of Robert Woods, Mason Kinsey and Nick Westbrook-Ikhine. I like to take an aspect of every little bit of their game — with Robert just how good he is with his hands, Nick his releases, and Mason just how explosive he is in and out of his cuts."

PHILIPS FITS IN, STANDS OUT AS SLOT RECEIVER

BY JOHN GLENNON
SI.COM
AUGUST 19, 2022

NASHVILLE – It was over in the blink of an eye.

In a one-on-one drill that started at the 5-yard line, Tennessee Titans slot receiver Kyle Philips faked right and cut left. With Tampa Bay safety Logan Ryan on his back in coverage, Philips then executed a two-step, 180-degree turn. The quickness of the move left Ryan sliding to the turf as he tried to mirror, leaving Philips wide open for a touchdown catch.

It's never wise to make too much of one practice moment. One-on-one drills, after all, do favor the receivers. In addition, the 31-year-old Ryan is entering his 10th season in the league.

Still, Philips' wicked reverse pivot against Ryan was just one of many highlight moments for the 2022 fifth-round draft pick in Thursday's practice against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

He was especially noticeable during the one-on-one and two-on-two sessions in the red zone, consistently finding ways to get open – despite the limited space available when plays began at the 5-yard line.

“I feel like that's Kyle's game,” Titans wide receiver Robert Woods said. “He wants to have you close, work in tight spaces. He's real shifty and quick. I think almost like the less space for Kyle, the better it is.”

Philips stood out in one of the two-minute drills as well.

Quarterback Ryan Tannehill targeted the former UCLA standout with three straight passes. The first was complete near the right sideline and the second at the left sideline – the latter pass stopping the clock with 24 seconds remaining. On the following play, Tannehill went deeper downfield to Philips, who failed to make a contested catch.

Coach Mike Vrabel was impressed enough by Philips' ability to get open that he offered some unique praise.

“He's quick, man,” Vrabel said. “He goes rabbit hunting with a hammer. He certainly just is able to get in and out of cuts, man coverage. (Tannehill) trusts him. He's able to change speeds and then put his foot in the ground and redirect.”

Philips could help fill a big hole in the Titans' offense if he is able to produce early this year.

The Titans parted ways with their two most targeted slot receivers from the 2021 season. A.J. Brown caught 27-of-42 passes when lined up in the slot, for 317 yards and a touchdown, per Pro Football Focus. Chester Rogers caught 27-of-36 passes when lined up in the slot, for 246 yards and a touchdown.

Nick Westbrook-Ikhine was very efficient working from the slot last season, catching 20-of-26 targets for 266 yards and a touchdown.

Both Westbrook-Ikhine and Woods can play that spot, but both are more likely to line up outside – especially if it takes a while for rookie receiver Treyton Burks to be fully incorporated into the offense.

Hence the opportunity for Philips.

What's his secret for consistently getting open, especially in tight quarters? Philips was quick Thursday to credit those around him.

“I would say I have a lot of good teammates,” Philips said. “Our players work together in order for me to get open. Other receivers have to do their job, and they couldn't have executed more perfectly. So I mean, really, they got me open. It wasn't too much of me.”

Still, Philips acknowledged the challenge of creating separation near the goal line – and the importance of doing it when the quarterback is ready to throw.

“There's not a whole lot of space, so you've just got to be physical,” Philips said. “And it's all about timing with your quarterback. You've got to get open at the right time. You can't get open early because next thing you know, that hole kind of closes up.”

DILLON RADUNZ

TITANS DRAFT PICK DILLON RADUNZ FINDS MOTIVATION IN MEMORIES OF LATE FATHER, FOOTBALL COACH

BROADWAY SPORTS MEDIA
MAY 26, 2021

The tears began to flow within seconds of the Titans' call to Dillon Radunz on draft night.

In that sense, it mirrored the experience of top NFL prospects and their families all across the country, where pent-up joy and relief poured out when the big moment arrived.

But mixed in with the elation at the Radunz household in Becker, Minn., was also a sadness, an understanding there was a hole in the family gathering. This was not new, of course, as Jeff Radunz – Dillon's father – had died following a battle with alcoholism more than a decade ago.

Still, how could his presence not be felt at a time like this?

It was Jeff Radunz, a former college player himself, who moved the family to Becker when his kids were young, in large part because he wanted his boys – Dillon and younger brother Nick – to grow up in a strong, tight-knit football community.

It was Jeff Radunz who coached Dillon's sixth-grade football team, a video of Jeff beaming following his son's big pancake block still a part of family legend.

And of course, it was Jeff Radunz whose death inspired the tattoos on Dillon's right arm, a pair of angel wings to represent his father, along with the serenity prayer commonly associated with Alcoholics Anonymous.

So, yes, the announcement that Dillon Radunz had taken a giant step forward in his football career – chosen in the second round by the Titans with the 53rd overall pick – broke the tenuous hold the family had managed to keep on its feelings.

"There were tears across the board for everybody," said Dillon's mother, Kathy Radunz, her voice breaking as she recalled the moment. "Dillon and his brother have formed a bond since their dad died that is literally unbreakable. So to watch those two crying and talking about their dad within moments of receiving the phone call was just, uh, it was really hard. It was really hard.

"But Dillon always said his dad has the best seat in the house now. He gets to watch everything."

I'll make you proud

The relationship the family – which also includes Dillon's older sister, Danielle — shared with Jeff Radunz was a complicated one, as is almost always the case when dealing with those suffering from addiction.

He was always a big supporter of the kids and their athletic endeavors, but Radunz said his late father was an alcoholic "as far back as I can remember." What might have made matters even more challenging is that Radunz described Jeff as "a functional alcoholic," meaning the outside world didn't often see the symptoms his family did.

"We still did everything together and all that kind of stuff," Radunz said. "So it wasn't too crippling. He did go to rehab a few times."

Kathy Radunz, however, said the situation was especially stressful on her kids at a young age, as the family tried to support Jeff – living through a lot of emotional ups and downs. She noted that Dillon was old enough to understand the significance of the problem.

"There's not a lot of gray area with Dillon," Kathy Radunz said. "If he believes something's right, it's right, and if he believes something's wrong, it's wrong. Not to say he can't change his mind.

"But with his father, it was like, 'This is not right. This is not how you should be doing this. This is not what a father should be doing.' So that caused some struggles."

Kathy Radunz is thankful, though, that through some frank and difficult conversations, father and oldest son better understood one another before Jeff's death.

"They were able to talk about it and really work through some things," Kathy Radunz said. "I thank the Lord every single day for that. But it was tough."

Jeff Radunz passed on Aug. 10, 2010, the cause of death "an alcohol-related injury" that didn't involve a car crash, per the family. One month later, 12 year-old Dillon signed the online guestbook next to his father's obituary:

"Thank you for the gifts u gave 😊 I'll make u proud."

Imagining him there helping me

The loss of a parent at a young age can send a child spinning in all kinds of directions, but Kathy Radunz was determined not to let Dillon falter.

As the oldest son, he felt he should in some ways take on his father's role, serving as a source of strength and protection for the family. Kathy Radunz kept it simple for her seventh-grader, telling Dillon just to focus on maintaining his good grades and competing in three sports – football, basketball and track.

"I hope I did a good job of making sure he knew he didn't have to take on that role," Kathy Radunz said, "and allowed him to – after a while – just be a kid again."

Added Dillon: "She was kind of the rock to it all ... So as a kid, I was kind of like, I'm just going to try to have fun and try to see where I can go with this, use it as a motivation tool instead of something to bring me down.”

It wouldn't be long before other father figures stepped up to help the young Radunz.

One was Jeff Radunz's brother, Uncle Mike to Dillon. Another was Dillon's Becker High math teacher, who also happened to coach him in basketball and track. A third was legendary Becker football coach Dwight Lundeen, who's earned a reputation of churning out quality young men as well as title after title during his 53-year tenure.

Lundeen found himself equally impressed with the emotional make-up and the tremendous athleticism of Radunz, who started on both sides of the ball – a 6-6, 270-pound offensive tackle and defensive end – on back-to-back state championship teams during his junior and senior seasons.

“It was a situation where he could have been angry at the world and frustrated with taking on so much responsibility so early,” Lundeen said. “But he was just a very mature young man. He was very grounded in his family. He balanced his academics and his life extremely well, stayed on top of everything.”

It was also clear to Lundeen that Radunz's late father was still very much on the son's mind, an invisible presence Dillon sought to please.

“There's no doubt it was difficult for a young man not to have that father image there,” Lundeen said. “But he would always say, ‘Dad is watching.’ We said, ‘You bet he is. He was a great Becker football fan.’ He just felt like he was honoring his father, and I think that helped him to focus and to play well.”

It was in Radunz's sophomore season that he first taped a picture of his father inside his football helmet. Somehow the image stayed intact for three years, defeating the forces of sweat and weather.

Radunz also began a pre-game ritual he's continued ever since, taking a knee – and a moment to himself – to connect with Jeff.

“I just try to picture him up in the stands,” Radunz said. “I've got an old video of him coaching me. So I'm just imagining him being able to be there helping me. It's just something that reminds me of my roots, where I came from.”

Helping people with addictions

Radunz's football career at North Dakota State didn't gain immediate traction, as he took a redshirt year in 2016 and then tore his ACL just 15 snaps into the 2017 season.

The unfortunate circumstances did allow Radunz more time to spend on his academics, a significant silver lining since he had chosen a challenging path of studies: Industrial engineering and management.

About a year-and-a-half into that major, Radunz considered switching to Psychology, telling his mother he wanted “to be able to help people who've gone through stuff like we've gone through.” Radunz ultimately stuck with his first choice, but the urge to use his own personal experiences to benefit others remained a strong one.

In fact, Radunz recently helped initiate a $1,000-per-year scholarship fund at Becker High, the only requirement that entrants would be limited to students who'd lost a parent or guardian – as he lost his father to alcoholism.

“That's something I'm super passionate about – just helping people with addictions, being able to talk to people through it,” Radunz said. “Because I grew up with it.”

Once Radunz eventually got on the field, meanwhile, he quickly made an impact at North Dakota State, whether it was protecting quarterback Trey Lance – the third overall pick of the 2021 draft – or blocking for a Bison running game that totaled a school-record 4,601 yards in 2019. North Dakota State won three straight Football Championship Subdivision championships from 2017-19.

And despite Radunz's lesser-known FCS profile, he was the first player extended an invite to play in the 2021 Senior Bowl.

“One of the mottos at North Dakota State is ‘Raise to Maturity,’ and I think Dillon had that maturity as a young kid,” said Vanderbilt offensive line coach A.J. Blazek, who held the same position at North Dakota State during Dillon's last two seasons.

“He does talk about his dad. That's a driving force for him. He knows that's a motivator. It's really important to make his dad proud in what he does.”

Remembering my dad

Only three days after playing in North Dakota State's only football game last year – the Bison's season cut short by COVID-19 – Radunz packed a suitcase or two and flew to California, where he spent months training under former NFL Pro Bowl tackle Joe Staley.

Preparing for the Senior Bowl was especially important for a prospect like Radunz, who had to show NFL scouts – as well as himself – he had what it took to compete with high-level players from Football Bowl Subdivision powers.

“We're all human, so, yeah, there was some nervousness there, especially when people tell you constantly, repeatedly that you're not from that level so it's going to be a change,” Radunz said. “But I knew there was a plan in place. I knew I had enough confidence in my game to just go out there and do what I did.”

Things couldn't have gone much better for Radunz, who was named the Senior Bowl's practice player of the week. He not only led his National team to victory in the game, but celebrated by dumping a water container – full of Reese's peanut-butter cups – on Miami

Dolphins coach Brian Flores afterward.

Radunz's performance in Mobile, Ala., sealed his value in the eyes of NFL teams like the Titans, setting the stage for the NFL Draft.

On night two of the big event, Radunz gathered family and friends in Becker, awaiting the phone call that would change his life. Among those present of course was Uncle Mike, the man who'd done so much to fill the void in Radunz's life over the years. In Jeff Radunz's absence, it was Uncle Mike who often served as Radunz's coach, took him hunting, taught him the lessons he needed to learn.

So it didn't take long after announcing his destination that Radunz turned to his Uncle Mike, the two reveling in the news – wishing Jeff Radunz was there to enjoy it with them, but confident he was still somewhere watching with a smile.

“Between us, we hugged it out,” Radunz said. “(My uncle) was crying, and he's not normally a guy who cries a lot. So it was just a special moment that we shared together.

“We were remembering my dad – and his brother. Just being able to share that was an awesome thing.”

IT'S BIGGER THAN FOOTBALL': TITANS' JEFFERY SIMMONS SPENDS WEEK GIVING BACK IN MISSISSIPPI

THE TENNESSEAN -
MISSISSIPPI CLARION

JULY 9, 2022

STARKVILLE – Before he was an All-Pro and All-SEC defensive tackle, Tennessee Titans star Jeffery Simmons was a manager for his high school football team.

Simmons was in middle school but served as a varsity football manager when he walked through the weight room at Noxubee County High School and saw the rusty weights and bent bars.

It's a sight that stuck with him, particularly as he saw opponents such as West Point with better equipment to help build a "winning culture."

So Simmons made a promise. He wasn't a 6-foot-4, 300-pound menace yet, but his potential had always been apparent as a five-star prospect. Once he made it to the NFL, Simmons said, he'd ensure future Noxubee County athletes had access to better equipment.

The former Mississippi State standout fulfilled the promise Thursday as he stood outside newly named and renovated Jeffery B. Simmons Field House. The only thing more eye-popping than the shiny oversized scissors used in the ribbon cutting was his neon yellow shorts suit.

"I cannot really show my appreciation for Noxubee County enough," Simmons said.

Simmons' time in high school wasn't always as successful as his football career. As a senior in 2016, he was found guilty of malicious mischief and pleaded no contest to a simple assault charge. It came after he was helping break up a fight between his sister and another woman. Simmons was shown on video striking the woman before walking away.

Simmons said the donations and work he does for his high school are not an attempt to cover up for what happened.

"I moved on from all that," Simmons said. "I don't even talk about it anymore. I don't live in the past. My thing is, what I'm doing now is to make sure my name, my brand — the Jeffery Simmons brand — will leave a legacy not just for me but for my kids and their future.

"That's my biggest thing. I have nephews, nieces. What can I do to make sure they're good in their future and make sure they don't have to live off that — live off something that happened 20 years ago, 30 years ago."

NCHS athletics director Karen Dixon — who has known Simmons since he was in her fourth-grade class — says once the school was informed of Simmons' plan with the weight room, it was their idea to name the field house after him.

The unveiling in Macon, Mississippi, was only the start of an eventful week back home for Simmons. He made the short trek Friday to Starkville, where he signed a $75,000 check for Starkville Parks and Recreation toward a new turf field at the Starkville Sportsplex.

The field was also named in his honor and was used through the weekend for his third annual youth camp.

"It's bigger than football," Simmons said Saturday. "It's not all about just these young kids seeing us play on Thursdays, Monday nights and Sundays. These kids matter. The town of Starkville matters. The town of Macon matters."

Tennessee Titans defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons reacts after a play in the first half against the Cincinnati Bengals at Nissan Stadium.

Simmons was joined at his camp by NFL players Elgton Jenkins, Tyre Phillips, J.T. Gray and Gerri Green, among others. The group remains tight-knit as their careers have shifted away from Mississippi, and Simmons says there is never hesitation when they ask each other to help with events such as youth camps.

Mississippi State quarterback Will Rogers also received an invitation from Simmons. He remembers the angst of being a kid at a youth camp with successful football players around. Now he notes the commitment that comes with being on the adult side.

"They're pros, for sure," Rogers said. "The way they conduct themselves — not only on the field but also coming back and doing things like this for the community. Helping people that don't have as much ... It's humbling to see and definitely something I'm going to learn from."

SIMMONS GOES HOME TO GIVE BACK

BY MICHAEL HOGAN

Much like everybody else, a rare burst of winter weather that put a vast majority of southern states on pause two weeks ago took Jeffery Simmons by surprise.

Snowy and icy storms created much work remained for first responders, electric workers and others. In Noxubee County, Mississippi, where the Tennessee Titans defensive tackle starred in high school, those essential employees worked long days to restore services to the communities impacted.

Simmons, who has been doing offseason training in Dallas, Texas, did not hesitate to return to an area that still means so much to him. Last Friday at the Noxubee County Civic Center in Macon, Simmons provided meals and signed T-shirts to law enforcement and electric workers.

"I'm just grateful to be in a position to be able to show my appreciation to these guys," Simmons told The Dispatch, a newspaper that serves Starkville and Columbus, Mississippi, areas. "...Their job's as important as anybody else's job. I just wanted these guys to see that and feel that I really appreciate them and care about them and the job they're doing."

A first-round pick by the Titans in the 2019, Simmons said he still has two aunts who live in the Macon area. Their power, however, remained throughout the storms. Just because he has family in the area, though, is not why he returned.

Simmons wanted to show community members that no matter how much fame he achieves, he will always remember where he came from. That mission was accomplished.

Jaron Andrews, an electric worker in the Noxubee area, brought his 17-year-old daughter, Anna Beth, to Simmons' event. The two became fans during Simmons' three-year career at Mississippi State University. His presence and generosity so clearly had a positive impact on them and many others.

"It's good to see somebody come in here and re-invest their time in the community," Jaron Andrews told the paper. "I like to see that as a parent of children who are growing up in the community."

Now a leader on the Titans' defense and in the locker room overall, Simmons has played 24 games with 22 starts over the course of his two seasons with the Titans. He has registered five sacks, 81 tackles, seven tackles for a loss of yards and three fumble recoveries in all.

Many things, though, are bigger than football.

"I take pride in doing this. I take pride in just being able to show people that I don't have a 'hot head' as people say," Simmons said. "I just want to show people that no matter how far in life I go, I'm always going to remember Noxubee County. I'm always going to give back."

SIMMONS 'ADDICTED' TO DISRUPTIVE PLAYS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR

NOVEMBER 11, 2021

NASHVILLE – As rave reviews poured in for his performance in Sunday’s game against the Los Angeles Rams, Jeffery Simmons spoke to an uncle who asked a question.

“Are you addicted or are you hungover,” Simmons recalled Thursday.

The point of the query was clear. Either his play in Week 9 was a one-time thing that is not likely to be repeated often or it raised the standard for what is expected of the Tennessee Titans’ third-year defensive lineman. And make no mistake, much already was expected of a player selected in the first-round of the 2019 NFL Draft who made an impact in the first game he played.

With a career-high three sacks and four quarterback pressures Sunday, Simmons played arguably the best game of his NFL career to date. He became the first Tennessee player since 2008 with at least three sacks in a game, and he got them all in the first half, when Tennessee built a 21-3 lead. He also forced an interception when he nearly sacked Rams quarterback Matthew Stafford near the goal line.

The 6-foot-4, 305-pound defensive tackle did all of that in a prime-time contest against a team many analysts considered the league’s best through the first eight weeks of the season. And he did it as Tennessee’s offense adjusted to the fact that it did not – and will not for some time – have its best player, running back Derrick Henry. Tennessee ultimately dispatched Los Angeles 28-16.

“(Simmons) will always raise the standards or expectations,” coach Mike Vrabel said Monday. “He is such a great guy to be around. Love seeing him every morning. We would miss him if we came to work, and he wasn’t here one day. Just his attitude, his demeanor, his leadership and obviously the production.”

Simmons currently leads the Titans with 40 quarterback pressures, is second with five and a half sacks and is third with 11 quarterback hits. He already has set personal single-season bests for sacks, quarterback pressures and tackles for loss (seven). He also is on pace a career-high in tackles.

Only three other interior defensive linemen across the NFL have more than five sacks.

“You see the technique and things, like it’s visible, it’s on film,” defensive coordinator Shane Bowen said. “Showing him, ‘Dude, you’re tough to handle. If you play with technique, it’s going to be hard for anyone to block you.’ It’s just continuing to build that consistency with the technique play in and play out.

“He can go without technique, and he survives, and he finds ways.”

That was apparent right from the start.

The Titans, of course, famously selected Simmons with the 19th overall pick in 2019 even though he had reconstructive knee surgery roughly two months earlier to repair an injury sustained during pre-draft training. He was not healthy enough to play until late October of his rookie year but jumped into the lineup without the benefit of any offseason, training camp or preseason work and only a modicum on practice time.

In his debut, against the Los Angeles Chargers, Simmons made six tackles, had one sack and was a significant contributor to a game-saving goal-line stand in the fourth quarter. In 2020, he tied for the NFL lead with three fumble recoveries and was in the conversation for a Pro Bowl berth.

“I want to keep climbing that ladder to be the best player I can be,”

Simmons said. “I want to be one of the greats to play this game. So, each and every day, each and every game, each and every practice I want to keep improving.

“I’m going to try – not to be perfect but dang near – to keep having disruptive games.”

It’s almost as if it is becoming an obsession ... or something else.

“How can I keep stacking these plays?” Simmons said. “How can I be addicted to making more big plays and keep having big games and just help my team win games?”

“I told (my uncle) I want to be addicted to it.”

JEFFERY SIMMONS WIPES AWAY TEARS AFTER SUPPORTIVE WORDS FROM TITANS OWNER

BY ERIC HE YAHOO!SPORTS.COM
APRIL 26, 2019

The Tennessee Titans knew two things about Jeffery Simmons before they took him 19th overall in the 2019 NFL draft on Thursday: that he was coming off surgery to repair a torn ACL in February and, more importantly, an arrest in high school for simple assault — an incident in which he was caught on video hitting a woman, who Simmons claimed was fighting his sister.

Simmons pleaded no contest in 2016 to the simple assault charge and was found guilty on one count of malicious mischief.

But the Titans took a gamble on the defensive lineman, and that had a lot to do with a leap of faith by owner Amy Adams Strunk. At Simmons' introductory press conference on Friday, Strunk spoke passionately about why the Titans chose Simmons while he wiped away tears.

"We are getting a great football player, that goes without saying, but we are getting a great man," Strunk said. "We are a nation that gives second chances, and this young man, Jeffery Simmons, he deserved that second chance."

Strunk said that she and the Titans brass watched the video of the incident and discussed it. But she made the final call, and decided to draft Simmons.

"It didn't take me long to see that this young man had an incident in high school," Strunk said. "We all can look back on our lives in high school and wish we had done things differently."

Simmons, who went to Mississippi State, fell in draft boards this week due to the injury and the past misconduct. But he was appreciative of Strunk's support, especially "coming from a woman."

Multiple teams viewed new Titans' DT Jeffrey Simmons as a top-5 pick, even though he went at No. 19. One even called him "the best player in this draft." Of course there are well-documented disturbing issues with him.

"I made a mistake, and I regret it," Simmons said. "The key word she said was trust. And I'll tell her in front of you guys that she can trust me. I won't let her down. I won't let either one of these guys and down. I am grateful."

SLIMMER, HEALTHY SIMMONS COULD ELEVATE TITANS D-LINE

SECOND-YEAR DT DROPPED 15 POUNDS DURING OFFSEASON TRAINING

NASHVILLE POST
AUGUST 12, 2020

The Tennessee Titans didn't have 2019 first-round pick Jeffery Simmons for seven games last year.

Now, the 23-year-old defensive tackle is one year removed from ACL surgery and finally fully healthy, which could make all the difference for the Titans defensive line heading into the new season.

"[With] an ACL injury or meniscus injury, it's a lot to get back to," Simmons said. "Some people say they're not themselves for a year or two. But when I went back and watched film, I knew that wasn't me. I know what type of guy I am... There was a lot of stuff that I didn't see on film that I know I could do, especially this upcoming year. Stuff that I've been working on.

"I had an injury for sure, but at the same time that's the whole point of this year here — to see how much I can grow from that this past year. [The coaches] are going to put me in a great position to see how much I can get better from last year."

Simmons was a solid contributor last season in the nine games he played. He finished his rookie season with 32 tackles, four tackles for loss, two sacks, two quarterback hits and a pass defended.

His stats weren't too far off from those of Pro Bowl defensive tackle Jurrell Casey, who was traded to the Denver Broncos during the offseason. Casey had 44 tackles, five tackles for loss, five sacks and 10 QB hits last year. Had the Titans been able to keep both in 2020, they would have presumably had one of the top interior line groups in the NFL.

Now, Simmons is being relied on to replace Casey's production while allowing a younger player such as DaQuan Jones, Jack Crawford and rookie Larrell Murchison an opportunity to make an instant impact this year.

"Of course, Jurrell was a big loss for us," Simmons said. "He was a great leader on and off the field, especially in the community. When he came to the building, he was just a first-class leader. But at the same time, I don't feel like it's any pressure on me, personally. I'm a leader myself. I like to lead.

Added HC Mike Vrabel: "We're excited about the group that we have moving forward... I think they're well-coached. I think Big T (Terrell Williams) does a great job coaching them and Zak (Kuhr) has helped him out."

Simmons has been using the unconventional offseason to shed some weight with the goal to be a leaner, quicker version of himself during training camp.

The 6-foot-4 second-year lineman is currently listed at 304 pounds on the Titans official website. He played much of last year around 320 and has really emphasized easing the amount of weight his surgically repaired knee has to carry.

"My goal was to especially cut down the fat on my body," Simmons said. "I'm not sure exactly where I was at first, but I feel like I've made a big change with my body weight. My knee made a lot of progression from when I first started playing to the end of the season. But at the end, I knew that I needed to do a little more strengthening and just maintenance stuff after the end of the season. Still now, I'm trying to stay on top of it, make sure that I'm just ready to have this team win games. So my body is feeling great; my knee is feeling great."

toward improving his health for helping him drop the 15 pounds he's already lost.

"When you're trying to lose fat, ... you have to be in the right mental (state) to be able to be disciplined in what you eat. At one point, I was cutting off what time I ate at night. Take a lot of responsibility of yourself in trying to maintain a routine that you have. Of course, I changed up my diet a little bit."

A slimmer, quicker Simmons may be just what the Titans need to elevate their defensive line from good to great.

TITANS AGREE TO TERMS WITH TE GEOFF SWAIM ON ONE-YEAR DEAL

BY JIM WYATT

MARCH 14, 2022

NASHVILLE – The Titans have agreed to terms with tight end Geoff Swaim on a one-year contract extension.

A durable and rugged veteran, Swaim started 16 regular season games for the Titans in 2021, when he recorded a career-high 31 catches for 210 yards and three touchdowns.

Since joining the Titans in 2020, Swaim has totaled 40 catches for 293 yards and four scores in 26 games, with 24 starts.

Swaim played his first four seasons with the Cowboys (2015-2018) before playing a season with the Jaguars (2019).

In seven NFL seasons, Swaim has played in 69 games, with 44 starts, and he's recorded 88 catches for 694 yards and five touchdowns.

Two other tight ends on the team's roster in 2021 – Anthony Firkser and MyCole Pruitt – are scheduled to become free agents when the new league year begins on Wednesday.

RYAN TANNEHILL

HAS TENNESSEE TITANS' RYAN TANNEHILL FINALLY FOUND HIS MOJO? 'I FEEL LIKE I NEVER LOST IT'

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
JANUARY 12, 2022

There has been an uptick in Tennessee Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill's production the last few games.

Does he have his mojo back?

"Contrary to popular belief, I feel like I never lost it," Tannehill said Wednesday.

After turnover struggles for most of 2021, Tannehill's play was significantly cleaner and more effective the final few weeks of the regular season. He completed at least 71% of his passes in each of the last four games, a span he threw seven touchdowns to just one interception. His passer rating has been well over 100 in the Titans' three-game winning streak: 106.8 vs. the 49ers; 127.1 vs. the Dolphins; and a season-high 138.9 vs. the Texans.

In last Sunday's victory at Houston, which clinched the AFC's No. 1 seed and a first-round playoff bye for the Titans (12-5), Tannehill tied a career high with four touchdown passes and had one of his most spectacular plays of the season: escaping a sack in the final period to fire a 36-yard pass to receiver Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, which spurred the game-clinching scoring drive.

Tannehill's play the last few weeks has offered a reminder of his play from 2019-20, when he was one of the league's most efficient passers. In 2019, when he was named AP Comeback Player of the Year, he led the league in yards gained per pass attempt, yards gained per pass completion and passer rating.

"I felt good all season and I think we've done some good things here the last few weeks to catch our stride a little bit," Tannehill said. "Excited about the momentum we've kind of gained over the past few weeks. Hopefully, we can build on it as we move forward."

The Titans quarterback has benefited the health and improvement of the offensive supporting cast.

Star receivers A.J. Brown and Julio Jones, who have played just eight games together this season, have played in two of the last three. Tight end Anthony Firkser, who had a disappointing start to the season, has become a bigger part of the passing game. And the offensive line has pass protected better, giving Tannehill more time in the pocket. Tannehill was sacked 47 times, but just twice in the last two games. Sunday's game vs. the Texans marked the first game all season Tennessee had five starting offensive linemen play 100% of the snaps.

"We've been fighting that the whole year, just having guys in and out of the lineup," Tannehill said. "Finally, we've started to get some guys healthy. Get some guys back. Get some consistency with guys playing multiple games in a row, kind of finding our groove there. It's been huge for us as we've come down this stretch and I believe we're going to take advantage of it this week to have some time to continue to get healthy and get ready to go for next week."

Amid Tannehill's struggles to start the season, Titans coaches and players praised his leadership and steadiness. It's why they've never lost confidence in him.

"I've definitely never doubted him, nor will I," offensive coordinator Todd Downing said Tuesday. "I think Ryan has been just a great example of just staying steady in his business-like approach to things. We believe that will pay off and continue to propel us where we want to go."

Quarterbacks are viewed historically by their performance in the playoffs. For the Titans, that journey will begin in the divisional round Jan. 22 or 23.

Will Tannehill's success late into the season be carried over into the postseason?

"You want to play your best football late in the season and into the playoffs," Tannehill said. "The reason we play this game is to go win a championship. It's the reason I play. I'm chasing after it, year after year, day after day. Trying to do everything I can to not skip steps in getting there.

"We have an opportunity here and we don't want to look past it, don't want to miss any steps along the way and do everything we can to go win it."

RYAN TANNEHILL

DON'T LET THE SMILE FOOL YOU, TANNEHILL A SERIOUS COMPETITOR

BY IAN KAYANJA
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
JANUARY 5, 2021

Don't be fooled by quarterback Ryan Tannehill's even-keeled demeanor.

He's one of the fiercest competitors on any football field. Or so says his position coach.

"Make no mistake, he is ultra-competitive," Tennessee Titans quarterback coach Pat O'Hara said Tuesday. "Don't ever excuse his calm demeanor on the outside from being a fierce competitor. That is something about him that is very evident to me and his teammates."

Tannehill's competitive streak was on full display Sunday against the Houston Texans. With a division title at stake, he threw for 216 yards and tallied three touchdowns, two rushing and one passing.

With the game on the line, he connected with wide receiver A.J. Brown on a 51-yard pass that set up Sam Sloman's game-winning field goal as time expired.

"(It's) his calm demeanor on the outside and being a fierce competitor," O'Hara said. "He maintains that even-keel demeanor and that helps him in pressure situations like (Sunday)."

Tannehill is no stranger to the big moment. The events of this season leading up to the matchup with the Texans prepared him for his latest fourth-quarter flurry.

In the just-completed regular season, he led the NFL with five fourth-quarter comebacks and six game-winning drives in the fourth-quarter or overtime. In games decided by one possession, the Titans went 7-2.

The only Tennessee quarterback who has approached that level of late-game production was Vince Young. As a rookie in 2006, he led four fourth-quarter comebacks and five game-winning drives, both of which led the NFL that season.

Dating back to when Tannehill first took over as the starter, the Titans are 11-3 in games decided by one possession.

He's a closer. And much like a star relief pitcher in baseball, Tannehill looks forward to the high stakes moment where he can get his team out of a tight jam.

"I think it's fun," Tannehill said. "I get to do what I dreamed of doing as a kid. I love going out there on a Sunday and competing with guys that I love playing with. I love the competition of it

"... I love the game, all of it."

Tannehill's success can be attributed to his ability to avoid the emotional roller coaster that some ride throughout a game. He remains focused on the current task at hand, staying competitive.

And because of that, the Titans found ways to win in close games, in which the outcomes could have varied drastically.

"At the end of games, it's maintaining that calm demeanor, while also being ultra-competitive," O'Hara said.

With Tannehill under center last year, the Titans offense found a new life.

That unit went from being shut out by the Denver Broncos on Oct. 13, 2019 to scoring at least 20 points in the next 10 games and more than 30 in five of the final seven. That momentum carried over into the 2020 NFL season, which saw Tannehill throw for 3,819 yards and a career-high 33 touchdowns.

Tannehill and the Titans finished second in the NFL in average yards per game (396.4) and fourth in points per game average (30.7).

He's found freedom within Arthur Smith's system, and he's been seen smiling more on the field because of it.

"I've loved playing the game," Tannehill said. "I think about what I went through (with) injury, and then through what I went last year, I think I've grown a bigger appreciation for enjoying the moment."

A quarterback who isn't afraid of the big moments is a tremendous advantage in the NFL playoffs. Tannehill's late-game record proves that he can rise to the occasion, courtesy of an outsized competitive streak.

TANNEHILL'S EYES OPENED TO SOCIAL INJUSTICE THROUGH FORMER TEAMMATE

BY MICHAEL GALLAGHER
NASHVILLE POST
JUNE 11, 2020

Tennessee Titans safety Kevin Byard said last week that one of the biggest solutions to helping fix the racial divide and social injustice in society is through education.

Byard's teammate, quarterback Ryan Tannehill, took his words to heart, using his platform to speak out against social injustice and point to the importance of education as a tool to battle racial intolerance.

"Education is a big part of it," Tannehill said. "Educating people, white people, who don't deal with it [and] to the reality of the situation. Just leveling the playing field. There's a lot of legislature that's going to have to get changed."

"I think the first step is awareness and education ... on the systematic injustices that have been going on for a long, long time. Once we can have that education, the awareness, then we can all kind of work together toward finding that equality that I'd hope we all want."

Tannehill made a post on his Twitter account on May 27 addressing the murder of George Floyd, stating everyone deserves to feel safe and protected in their communities.

Tannehill also said that he wished he would have taken the Black Lives Matter movement more seriously a lot sooner, but his eyes were opened a lot through former 49ers quarterback Colin Kaepernick taking a knee during the national anthem and several conversations with former Miami Dolphins teammate Kenny Stills.

"Do I wish I would have known more and been more supportive back in 2016? Yes, 100 percent, but we all make mistakes," Tannehill continued. "We all have to live and learn and experience to grow, and I feel like I've done a lot of growing over the past four or five years...I hope to use what I've learned, just continue to educate myself, continue to learn and continue to try to push for change and make a difference.

"I think my conversations with Kenny (Stills) and just coming to realize what he's gone through in his life — getting ripped out of a car with his dad and everything stripped out of the car for no reason, weren't even speeding, left on the side of the road, they were traveling, all their clothes and everything, bags strung out on the side of the road. Things like that where it's like, I can't imagine being put in that situation and having to deal with that. You hear stories like that and then he gave me a bunch of resources, books that were written...Then I just started digging more and more into it as time went on. You go from kind of being naïve to the situation because of the [white] privilege, and my eyes kind of got opened to it. It was really kind of a shock for me...I think my views have definitely changed."

While the NFL and the greater society still have a long way to go in addressing racial equality, Tannehill's openness to have the difficult discussions and willingness to take the time to educate himself on such issues have earned him even more respect from his teammates.

"I respect Ryan (Tannehill) to the fullest," Byard said. "That's one thing about me, I don't look at guys as race. Ryan and his family, his wife, have treated my family with nothing but love and I respect him just for the man he is. The fact that he's speaking and using his voice to uplift others, black, white, or different ... it speaks volumes for his character. I will always treat him based upon that."

BENGALS COACH HELPED TANNEHILL BECOME THE PLAYER HE IS TODAY

BY MIKE HOGAN
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
OCTOBER 31, 2020

Familiarity is a storyline every week in the NFL. Some, however, are bigger stories than others.

That is the case for Tennessee Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill and Cincinnati Bengals head coach Zac Taylor this week.

The veteran quarterback and the second-year head coach have eight years of experience together, and it all started when both were just trying to find their way in 2008. Tannehill was Texas A&M's backup quarterback. Taylor, a former quarterback who had a short-lived NFL career, was just starting his coaching career as an offensive assistant of Texas A&M.

The pair spent four years together in College Station followed by four more years with the Miami Dolphins (2012-2015).

Sunday, they will square off against each other for the first time.

"I learned a ton of football from Zac [Taylor]," Tannehill said. "I have so much respect for him, the way he coaches the game, his work ethic, and just how he puts so much time and effort into preparing me each and every week. I definitely learned a lot of football from (Taylor) and am appreciative of all he did for me."

When the Dolphins drafted Tannehill with the eighth overall pick in 2012, so much was familiar for Tannehill. Taylor was his assistant quarterbacks coach, and former Texas A&M head coach Mike Sherman was then the Dolphins' offensive coordinator.

Taylor said it helped Tannehill transition smoothly to life as a starting quarterback in the NFL.

"Certainly, for a rookie to come in and already know everything about the offense from day one helped him right away," Taylor said on Thursday. "He very well may have won the job anyway had it been a new offense, but of course his familiarity with the offense from day one helped him instruct some of the veteran players on some of the nuances of the offense."

Tannehill had a mostly up-and-down stint in Miami. The Dolphins were nothing more than a mediocre football team, and the quarterback dealt with a handful of injuries that held him back.

However, he had his best statistical seasons in Miami in 2015, when Taylor was on the offensive staff as a quarterbacks coach and as the interim offensive coordinator for five games. Tannehill threw for more than 4,000 yards twice (2014, 2015) and at least 20 touchdowns while completing more than 60 percent of his passes in three of those four seasons.

The Dolphins decided to revamp their coaching staff at the conclusion of the 2015 campaign. In a way, that also marked the beginning of the end for Tannehill's time in Miami. He started the 2016 season out hot but sustained a torn ACL in Week 14 and missed the remainder of that season and the Dolphins' Wild Card playoff game. He again tore his ACL in training camp before the 2017 season and missed the entire season.

He appeared in just 11 games in 2018, and the Dolphins traded him to the Tennessee Titans in exchange for draft picks.

With the Titans, of course, Tannehill has revived his career. After taking over as starter in Week 6 of the 2019 season, Tannehill led the Titans to seven wins in 10 games en route to the postseason and the AFC Championship game against the Kansas City Chiefs.

He earned his first trip to the Pro Bowl, was named Comeback Player of the Year honors and then in the offseason signed a four-year contract extension.

Tannehill's success story has spilled over into this season. Through the first six games, Tannehill has been one of the top quarterbacks in the league, completing 139 passes on 203 attempts for 1,590 yards and 15 touchdowns, which is tied for second among all quarterbacks.

None of what has transpired has surprised Taylor, who said Tannehill is "the perfect quarterback for the Tennessee Titans."

"Very happy for him. He's a great human being, great teammate, very coachable, very hard on himself," Taylor said. "There is not a lot of weakness to his game. He's got a lot of strength, and you can just see his confidence right now. The team really believes in him."

And on Sunday, Taylor will try to defeat the player he has built such a strong relationship with for the first time in his career.

"He poses a very difficult challenge for us," Taylor said. "Not only do they have a great running game, great receivers, but they have a quarterback who is playing at one of the highest levels in the league right now. He's really impressive."

DEMARCUS WALKER

WORK ETHIC HAS D-LINEMAN SAILING THROUGH CAMP

BY JOHN GLENNON
SI.COM
AUGUST 2, 2022

NASHVILLE – DeMarcus Walker says he gets his work ethic from his father, a longshoreman in Jacksonville, Fla.,

Dale Walker is what's known as a ship-chaser, according to his son, someone who helps load and unload the huge boats carrying cargo – like cars and military equipment -- to and from the busy port city on the the Atlantic Ocean.

“Everyone always talked to me about how he was the hardest worker there,” Walker said Tuesday. “Then when I lived with him for six years (from age 12 to 18), I saw it with my own two eyes and observed it.”

What he learned then might help explain the strong impression Walker has made in less than three months.

The 6-foot-4, 280-pound defensive lineman signed with the Tennessee Titans on May 12. Though he spent less time in the offseason program most of his teammates, Walker was named an offseason award winner along with fullback Tory Carter, cornerback Caleb Farley, wide receiver Dez Fitzpatrick, safety Amani Hooker and right tackle Dillon Radunz.

“He worked hard, brought energy, got here early and stayed late,” coach Mike Vrabel said. “Sometimes after practice or running, the (weightlifting) isn't intense. He was able to bring an intensity level to that ... He showed the effort and daily consistency and improved in the techniques that we were coaching each day with.”

Said Walker: “I was shocked. I was definitely shocked ... But I'm a hard worker. I get that from my dad.”

A second-round pick of the Denver Broncos in 2017, Walker has a more impressive pedigree than many of the depth linemen the Titans added during the offseason.

Over the last three seasons – the first two in Denver, last year in Houston – Walker has totaled 10.5 sacks, 12 tackles for loss and 17 quarterback hits. He played 456 defensive snaps for the Texans in 2021, posting a career-high 31 tackles in 13 games.

Those kinds of numbers made Walker an interesting, under-the-radar free-agent target for Indianapolis. Tennessee and general manager Jon Robinson eventually won him over.

“It was a thought process,” Walker said of his decision, “and I got to give J-Rob his props because J-Rob was definitely like ‘Hey, call me.’ We stayed on the phone and talked, and I was flat-ass honest with him, and he was honest with me back. He did a few things and just took a leap of faith to get me here.”

The intrigue surrounding Walker has only grown since the start of training camp last week.

He's earned reps high in the depth chart, for instance, an opportunity to show what he can do against some of the Titans' top offensive linemen.

“You've got to capitalize and respond (to those chances),” Walker said. “I'm just thankful they believe in me, and I've got to get better every single day, fine-tuning my craft and feeding off everyone's energy.”

Added defensive coordinator Shane Bowen: “I've been very pleased with him. He's a pro. He comes in here and works ... I think he has a pass-rush ability for us, and he can do some different things across the line of scrimmage in base defense.”

It also seems noteworthy that during parts of individual drills, Walker and Pro Bowler Jeffery Simmons have worked with one another, locking up as they practice their pass-rush moves.

“His effort, that's what we build our team around,” Simmons said. “The way he runs to the ball, the way he carries himself, especially when it's time for team period. ... He's one of the guys I know we'll be able to count on when it's time.”

Then there are the extra reps Walker takes both before and after practice, even with the hot Nashville sun beating down at St. Thomas Sports Park.

Sometimes he works on power moves. Sometimes on his finesse game. After Tuesday's practice, in which Walker's defensive unit stayed on the field for eight straight plays during one drill, he still felt the need to do some extra conditioning afterward.

“With my calling and being a football player, I'm so blessed, and why not put all my energy into it?” Walker said. “Being the first one on the field and the last one off is not just something for show. It's just that I really love my job. I really have high goals for myself and high aspirations. That's something that I pride myself on.”

It won't be long, Walker said, before his father joins him Nashville.

That will mark quite a change from Dale Walker's younger days around Jacksonville, when he survived a rough upbringing. One of his brothers was killed, and two others have also passed away.

“With his upbringing and being in the streets,” Walker said of his father, “he definitely beat all the odds.”

When Dale Walker eventually watches his son practice and play for the Titans, he won't need a specific jersey number to identify him.

The work ethic will make him stand out – as it already has.

DEMARCUS WALKER

VERSATILE DL DEMARCUS WALKER EMBRACING HIS OPPORTUNITY WITH THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
JUNE 6, 2022

NASHVILLE – Veteran defensive lineman DeMarcus Walker admitted he was getting a little antsy.

In early May, Walker found himself still looking for his next team.

His landing spot eventually came in Tennessee, with the Titans.

"My patience was definitely tested," Walker said with a smile after a recent OTA. "But I just kept working. For the last four or five years I've been working my tail off every year, putting in more details and more time and more sacrifices. This time, even though it took a little more time than normal, when you put in the work and are doing the small things, (you) don't worry about everything else."

A second-round draft pick of the Broncos in 2017 who played in 13 games with the Texans in 2021, Walker visited the Colts earlier this offseason before making a visit to the Titans.

Walker gave credit to Titans General Manager Jon Robinson for closing the deal in Tennessee. He officially signed with the Titans on May 16 and has been taking part in the team's offseason work since.

"It was definitely a conversation, and J. Rob reached out to me himself and we had a talk on the phone," said Walker, who recorded 31 tackles, four tackles for loss, two sacks, and seven quarterback hits in 2021. "Through prayer and through faith, it landed me here."

Coach Mike Vrabel said the Titans are happy to have Walker, a 6-foot-4, 280-pounder who played in college at Florida State.

"I think (his potential) role is he's shown versatility throughout his career," Vrabel said. "I liked him all the way back to Florida State when I was in Houston. (We're) trying to figure out where he may fit, whether that be standing up – he's played multiple positions across the front on the edge, inside. He plays with great effort, which I appreciated."

"He wanted to be here, and it's been really good so far."

Walker played in 36 games with five starts during his four seasons in Denver, and he recorded 51 tackles, 10.5 sacks, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery.

In his NFL career, Walker has played in 49 career games and he's totaled 82 tackles, 12.5 sacks, and two forced fumbles.

In Tennessee, Walker is part of a defensive line group that includes Jeffery Simmons, Denico Autry, Teair Tart, Naquan Jones, Larrell Murchison, Da'Shawn Hand, Kevin Strong, Haskell Garrett, Sam Okuayinonu and Jayden Peevy.

Walker likes the fit, and the culture, in Tennessee.

"Coach, he makes sure everyone knows everybody's name, you get to know the guy beside you, the person giving you water," he said. "It is just being a professional, and having that, you see why their having success around here. Keep chopping every day to the ultimate goal."

"Whatever I can do to help, and to make the team win. They took a big step (last year), and my goal is to help them take another step. ... I just have to be myself, bringing my chemistry and charisma to the team and embracing the team and play where coach Vrabel wants me to play."

RASHAD WEAVER

TITANS' RASHAD WEAVER SAYS HIS MOM WON'T PAY HIS PHONE BILL ANYMORE: 'I FEEL BETRAYED'

DANIELLA MEDINA
THE TENNESSEAN
JULY 2, 2021

Are you still on your family's cell phone plan?

Tennessee Titans' defensive end Rashad Weaver was. Up until Wednesday.

Weaver's mother, Autumn DeLaPorte, told him he would need to pay for his phone bill since he's in the NFL now, Weaver tweeted.

"My mom decided today, on her birthday she wanted to break 23 years of trust and bond we had built...." Weaver tweeted. "By telling me I'm in the NFL and I need to pay for my own phone bill.

"I feel betrayed," he said.

Weaver, 23, was drafted by the Titans in the fourth round with the No. 135 overall pick in the 2021 NFL Draft. The former Pitt standout missed the entire 2019 season with a knee injury, but bounced back in 2020 and earned honors including All-America and first-team ACC.

According to Spotrac, an online sports team and player contract resource, Weaver signed a four-year $4,139,664 contract with the Titans. His average salary is $1,034,916.

One day before the NFL Draft, the Fort Lauderdale native was charged with misdemeanor assault in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, court records show.

Weaver was among the draft picks to participate at rookie minicamp, Titans coach Mike Vrabel said in May.

"Everything I've seen from Rashad here in person, he's been one who's been attentive and wants to try to be a good teammate and is taking coaching," Vrabel told reporters when asked if he feels Weaver fits the team's culture. "We understand the severity of the accusations. We take them very seriously, but we're also going to allow the legal process to play its part and run its course."

Weaver is due in court for a preliminary hearing on the charge in October.

RASHAD WEAVER

WHY RASHAD WEAVER COULD BE TITANS' ULTIMATE X-FACTOR

BY MICHAEL GALLAGHER
THE NASHVILLE POST
AUGUST 23, 2022

Tennessee Titans edge rusher Rashad Weaver is no stranger to being called a preseason darling.

After all, Weaver was a standout of the 2021 preseason and was expected to be a factor in Tennessee's revamped pass rush before breaking his fibula last September.

But in Saturday's 13-3 preseason win over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, in which Weaver finished with two quarterback hits, a sack, a tackle for loss, a pass defended and a fumble recovery, the 24-year-old outside linebacker showed more of the same promise that he did this time last year.

"It was good to be back at Nissan, good to do that in front of the fans," Weaver said. "It was my first game at Nissan since getting hurt, so it was something I was looking forward to and just going out there, playing how I play, making things happen and doing what the defense asks of me."

Arguably Weaver's best play came on a 2nd-and-9 play late in the first half. Exploding off the edge, he pushed Tampa right tackle Fred Johnson back a good five yards before turning the corner and bringing down QB Kyle Trask. Even more impressive was that Johnson was holding Weaver the whole time but couldn't slow him down.

"Nothing comes easy in football, starting from college all the way to the NFL," Weaver continued. "As an outside linebacker/defensive end, you've thought about making sacks and rushing the passer. Most guys don't get that home run pass rush move where they just get a clean sack. You know, it's about being relentless and continuing to run after the ball."

Weaver made another heads up play in the final two minutes of the first half when he again blew past Johnson and hit Trask's arm mid-throw. The result was a batted ball that fell right into the hands of Titans' linebacker Joe Jones, who returned the interception 38 yards and helped set up Tennessee's only touchdown drive of the game.

"He started working in some new moves," Titans head coach Mike Vrabel said. "Some new pass rush moves and trying to do some things off of what he was doing earlier. It was good to see that it's not just the same move over and over again."

Led by Harold Landry (12 sacks), Denico Autry (9 sacks) and Jeffery Simmons (8.5 sacks), the Titans finished tied for the ninth-best pass rush last season. The team's 43 sacks were more than double the 19 they had in 2020.

Now, Tennessee has the added benefit of rotating in a healthy Bud Dupree, who was limited to 11 games with three sacks in 2021 while recovering from a torn ACL, and Weaver, who played just 12 defensive snaps as a rookie.

If Weaver, a 2020 consensus All-American at Pittsburgh, can match the kind of production he had in college — 109 tackles, 34 tackles for loss, 17 sacks, five forced fumbles, four fumble recoveries in three seasons — the Titans could potentially have a top-five pass rush unit in 2022.

"It's preseason, so you always know the competition will be stiffer once you get into the regular season," Weaver added. "But it was a good showing [Saturday], and we'll keep building off of it."

NICK WESTBROOK-IKHINE

THIS RECEIVER TOOK A DIFFERENT ROUTE

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
JANUARY 19, 2022

NASHVILLE – Nick Westbrook-Ikhine readily admits it. He had a Plan B.

His first choice was to play football for a living, but he was not convinced it would happen. It did not help that he was not selected in the 2020 NFL Draft following a productive career at Indiana University.

“There was a time I was interviewing for jobs while finishing up my senior year at IU where [I thought] I just have to have that backup,” he said. “You never know what is going to happen. But I knew I was going to have an opportunity and just figured I would make the best of what I have. That’s really all I could ask for – to have this opportunity.”

To say that he has made the most of it would be an understatement.

There were 35 wide receivers selected in the 2020 NFL Draft, and the Titans did not take any of them. Instead, franchise officials covered their bases with four undrafted players at that spot (they did not sign more than two at any other position). Krisitian Wilkerson (Southeast Missouri State) has appeared in four games with the New England Patriots, and Mason Kinsey (Berry College) made his NFL debut with the Titans this season but has not seen the field since. Kyle Williams (Arizona State) has never played in a game.

Westbrook-Ikhine, on the other hand, has played 30 out of a possible 33 games and has progressed from a special teams performer to a role player on offense to his current role as a significant contributor in the passing game. He was the Titans’ second-leading receiver this season with 38 receptions for 476 yards and four touchdowns. In the three games A.J. Brown spent on injured reserve, it was Westbrook-Ikhine who played more snaps than any of the team’s other wide receivers.

Only 19 of wide receivers drafted in 2020 have caught more passes through their first two seasons than Westbrook-Ikhine, who has 41 for 509 yards and four touchdowns. Just 14 have more touchdown passes.

“There’s definitely times I’m sitting at the house and I kind of realize the position I’m at and the blessing I have to be on this team (and) have a role – a solid role – on this team,” Westbrook-Ikhine said. “Yeah, I’m definitely proud of what I’ve been able to accomplish.”

That road from obscurity to importance makes Westbrook-Ikhine the exception Saturday when the Titans host the Cincinnati Bengals in a matchup that features a handful of sure-things – or as close to it as you can get.

Combined, the offenses include two wide receivers who were top 10 overall picks – Tennessee’s Julio Jones (sixth, 2011) and Cincinnati’s Ja’Marr Chase (fifth, 2021) – and three others who were second-round selections – Tennessee’s A.J. Brown (2019) and Cincinnati’s Tee Higgins (2020) and Tyler Boyd (2016).

All of them have lived up to expectations. Jones, Brown and Boyd have multiple 1,000-yard seasons to their credit, and Jones is one of the NFL’s all-time leading receivers. Higgins topped 1,000 receiving yards for the first time this year, and Chase set an NFL rookie record with 1,455 this season.

Westbrook-Ikhine won’t be mentioned in the same breath as any of them anytime soon, but – in the most literal sense – he absolutely is in their league.

“We have always had confidence in (Westbrook-Ikhine),” coach Mike Vrabel said. “I think he has developed. ... He blocks for us. He plays on special teams. He knows multiple positions. Those types of players are very valuable to a team.”

Even if they are not obvious choices from the outset.

Or, if they question whether they belong every now and then. Westbrook-Ikhine, for example, admits to occasional insecurity about his career choice.

“I feel like that’s just a natural human thing,” he said. “Doubt creeps in at times. I feel like it kind of shows its head when you play poorly because there’s doubt in your mind. I just have to kind of roll with those punches and realize what God put me on this earth to do – this gift and talent he gave me – and try to use it to the best of my ability.”

NICK WESTBROOK-IKHINE

AFTER MAKING STRIDES IN 2021, TITANS WR NICK WESTBROOK-IKHINE WORKING TO BE EVEN BETTER IN 2022

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEETITANS.COM
MAY 4, 2022

NASHVILLE – Nick Westbrook-Ikhine's 2021 season was one of growth.

The Titans receiver became more comfortable as a route runner and a pass catcher, and he was more productive than he'd ever been. Surrounded by veterans, he learned the game even more, and it showed on Sundays.

Heading into 2022, Westbrook-Ikhine wants to do even more.

And, based on all the changes around him, he may need to do more.

"It is going to be different," Westbrook-Ikhine said on Tuesday. "I feel like I was very much still in a learning role the last couple of years, and now I am going to embrace this new opportunity."

Earlier this offseason, the Titans released veteran Julio Jones, and to date the team hasn't re-signed veteran Chester Rogers. Then last week, the team traded receiver A.J. Brown to the Eagles.

Needless to say, the room looks a lot different now.

Among the new additions: Veteran Robert Woods, formerly of the Rams, signed with the team in free agency, and over the weekend the team drafted receivers Treyton Burns (Arkansas) and Kyle Phillips (UCLA).

Westbrook-Ikhine said he's already learned a few things from Woods, and he's more than willing to help the newcomers.

His biggest focus, of course, is improving his own game.

"Being consistent, but being more explosive, working on getting yards after catch, making contested catches, getting separation," Westbrook-Ikhine said of what he's working on this offseason. "Just being a complete receiver overall and most importantly continuing to gain that trust with Ryan (Tannehill) going into the season."

Westbrook-Ikhine, who joined the team as an undrafted free agent from Indiana in 2020, caught 38 passes in 2021, which ranked second on the team behind only Brown (63). He was also second on the team in receiving yards (476), and he finished second on the team in touchdown catches (4) as well.

Westbrook-Ikhine had two touchdown grabs in two games against the Colts, one touchdown against the Patriots, and another against the Texans. He had a 100-yard game in November against Houston.

Yet when he looks back at 2021, he recalled what he needs to do to get better. In 2020, Westbrook-Ikhine had just three catches for 33 yards, so his production took a big leap in Year 2.

"Being a more complete receiver, making those big-time plays that we need," Westbrook-Ikhine said of his mission for 2022. "I can look back (at last year) and think of a couple of plays that come to mind where if I make that play, the game has a totally different outcome. The first one that comes to mind is the Steelers game, catch that go ball and run under it and don't trip and fall and go score and that's a whole different ball game. Having that mentality of understanding what's needed and what I want to bring to the table this year."

On Tuesday, Westbrook-Ikhine recalled past times during his football career when he was in a position similar to the scenario he's now in with the Titans.

And, once again, he's ready to step up.

"I feel like I have been in this situation before," he said. "It's kind of funny, this kind of same cycle happened before in high school where I didn't really do much my freshman year, we had a dog at receiver my sophomore year, and then he transferred and it was like, 'Alright, you have you step up.' In college it was a similar thing, I didn't really play much my freshman year, sophomore year we had a dude, he got hurt, and I had to step up.

"So I have been in that situation before so I kind of embrace it now, knowing I have done it before and it gives me that extra confidence."

TENNESSEE TITANS' RYAN TANNEHILL: NICK WESTBROOK-IKHINE HAS BEEN 'CRUCIAL' TO OFFENSE THIS SEASON

BY BEN ARTHUR
THE TENNESSEAN
OCTOBER 20, 2021

Tennessee Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill said wide receiver Nick Westbrook-Ikhine has been "crucial" on offense this season.

"Nick has been huge for us several times this year," Tannehill said Wednesday.

With star Julio Jones sidelined late in the fourth quarter of Monday's victory against the Bills with a hamstring injury, it was Westbrook-Ikhine delivering for the Titans on their game-winning drive. He had three catches for 27 yards on the touchdown series, including two for first downs.

Westbrook-Ikhine, primarily a special teams contributor as a rookie last season, has been praised for stepping up in the Titans' wide receiver room amid injuries that have slowed down the team's top two receivers, Jones and A.J. Brown.

In Week 3 against the Colts, with Brown and Jones unable to finish the game with hamstring issues, Westbrook-Ikhine was the team's leading receiver with four receptions for 53 yards and a touchdown.

One of the most appreciated aspects of Westbrook-Ikhine's game? His versatility.

"He's a multi-tool," Tannehill said. "He can play every position in the wide receiver room. Knows what to do. Someone goes down, he has the ability to step in and fill that role. He's tough. He's physical. ... The long run Derrick had (Monday), he had a nice block right at the point of attack and kind of sprung that run.

"It's kind of uncommon for a guy just to be able to insert. This play he's at this position. The next play he's at a different position. It's tough to do, right? You're stressed mentally to be able to, 'OK, it's not only the play, but it's also the formation. Where am I lining up if I'm this position or if I'm this position?' There's a lot that goes into it and it's not easy.

"Definitely something that he should get credit for."

Westbrook-Ikhine has 12 catches for 125 yards and a TD through six games entering Sunday's showdown against the Chiefs (noon CT, CBS).

The former Indiana standout said thinking big picture in the Titans' scheme has helped him learn the different wide receiver positions.

"Yeah, it can be tough," Westbrook-Ikhine said. "We have a lot on our plate and that's expected of us at receiver and in the NFL in general. I don't take it lightly. I try to do my best to be able to step up and play fast whatever position it may be."

MALIK WILLIS

WHAT TO KNOW ABOUT MALIK WILLIS, TENNESSEE TITANS QB PICK IN 2022 NFL DRAFT

*BY MIKEY DILULLO
THE TENNESSEAN
APRIL 29, 2022*

The Tennessee Titans may have their quarterback of the future after selecting Liberty's Malik Willis in the third round with the No. 86 overall pick Friday in the 2022 NFL Draft.

Willis once was projected to be a first-round pick.

Here's what to know about Malik Willis:

Transfer from Auburn

Coming out of high school, Willis signed with Auburn to play college football. However, he played sparingly in two seasons for the Tigers, leading to his decision to transfer to Liberty.

Rushing prowess

Willis was able to succeed with both his arm and his legs. During his first season at Liberty in 2020, he rushed for 944 yards and 14 touchdowns, and followed that up with 878 yards and 13 TDs rushing in 2021.

Big-game performances

At Liberty, Willis led the Flames to two bowl wins. The first came in the 2020 Cure Bowl when he won MVP in a 37-34 win over Coastal Carolina. One year later, he led Liberty to a win over Eastern Michigan in the LendingTree Bowl, 56-20. He was named MVP of that bowl as well.

WITH A BIG SMILE, TITANS ROOKIE QB MALIK WILLIS DOING HIS BEST TO TACKLE NFL CHALLENGES ONE DAY AT A TIME

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESEETITANS.COM
AUGUST 21, 2022

NASHVILLE – Malik Willis flashes a smile as fast as he slings the football.

The Titans rookie quarterback, who has started the team's first two preseason games, is all about having a good time.

"It's always fun when we get to play football," Willis said on Saturday night. "It's always fun."

Willis, drafted in the third round of the 2022 NFL Draft, is doing his best to convince the team's decision-makers he's worthy of the No.2 job behind starter Ryan Tannehill.

Along the way, Willis is tackling a lot of firsts – first start, first touchdown run, first touchdown pass.

Willis knows he's been far from perfect, but he's doing his best not to stress about it all.

"At this point, I just wake up every day and thank God that I get to do what I do," Willis said after the team's win over the Buccaneers. "I'm just super excited to go to work tomorrow. Go work out and watch the film, correct it. ... I get to watch it with Coach (Vrabel). We can talk about the good, the bad, and it's just focusing on how we can fix it. It's over with now. It's in the books."

In two preseason games, Willis has completed 13-of-28 passes for 187 yards and a touchdown. His completion percentage is 46.4, his passer rating 80.5. Willis has been sacked five times while playing just over a half in each game. He's also racked up 80 rushing yards and a touchdown on 10 carries.

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel said he's seen improvement from Willis, who has been guilty of being impatient at times because of his willingness to leave the pocket and run.

Willis, who has been quick to criticize himself, knows it's something he must improve.

"It's not about feeling comfortable," Willis said. "It's about making it a big point to stay in the pocket when I can. And not just because I'm athletic or I can get out when I want to, just to get out sometimes. And it is understanding when not to. And that's the biggest thing. That's why I'm a little disappointed in myself for, I think I got out a little bit too much. But it's a growing process. It's my second preseason game. I'm not going to be too hard on myself in that regard. So, I'm just excited and blessed that I get opportunity next week."

Next week for Willis and the Titans is work against the Arizona Cardinals.

The two teams are scheduled to hold joint practices on Wednesday and Thursday of this week before preseason game No.3 on Saturday at Nissan Stadium.

Willis knows he's improved, but he's far from satisfied.

"Thinking about it, I think (Week 2 was) a little bit better than Week One. I got a few checkdowns that I got and I stayed in there and just got it out quickly, but not by much," he said. "I think this is something I just need to focus on and continue to just find that in between from when I need to play, make a play, don't just climb in the pocket and help my O-line out.

"When I have a clean pocket, when people are open downfield, I need to make that throw. I need to stay in there and do whatever I need to do in order to just not ask so much of protection and also save my body more than anything. And those times when I did, I do need to make a play when nobody's open, when there's pressure in the pocket and it's right now and just being able to react. It's just finding the balance between those two."

Willis said he's receiving constant encouragement from those around him, even if he's received some tough love.

Everyone is aware he's just getting started.

"I'm probably a little bit more critical than my coaches, but they always balance me out," Willis said. "So I'm not overly critical because at the end of the day, nobody's perfect. Everybody's going to make mistakes. And especially being young, they try to help me see the glass half full.

"(Coach told me) 'Don't worry about being perfect,' because that's what I was doing. 'Don't worry about being perfect, just go out there and let it rip and have fun. You've been blessed with a lot of ability, so just go have fun and continue to learn."

WHY ROBERT WOODS IS THE DIFFERENCE MAKER THE TITANS OFFENSE NEEDS

MICHAEL GALLAGHER
THE NASHVILLE POST
AUGUST 19, 2022

When the Tennessee Titans traded for Robert Woods in March, it was expected that the 30-year-old wideout would play Robin to AJ Brown's Batman in the Titans' passing offense this season.

Fast forward one month; Brown is in Philadelphia, the place he reportedly wanted to be all along, while Woods, who's working his way back from a torn ACL, is Tennessee's new No. 1 receiver by default.

Presumably learning from Taylor Lewan and Bud Dupree, the Titans have brought Woods along leisurely. In fact, Woods even admitted in May that he thought Tennessee's trainers were holding him back.

But as the Titans held joint practices with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Wednesday and Thursday at Saint Thomas Sports Park, Woods appeared to be running without restriction and participating in 1-on-1 and team drills without any difficulty.

"He comes in and has a presence about him," Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill said. "He's done it for a long time, I respect him and he's a really good dude. As we grow our relationship on the field, just getting used to what he does well and he's so smooth. That's one thing I noticed almost immediately is he's so smooth. He's able to transition really well and it looks like he's going 100 percent but he's not. For a quarterback, that makes it easy to throw the ball to him."

Added Woods: "I feel good. It feels natural going out there running routes. Really, I just feel like I'm playing pass-and-catch with Ryan out there right now.

ROBERT WOODS

"... I'm starting to get going and find my matchups and really just work my technique in those situations, go in there, going against a different [team], so just trying to be a little bit faster, a little bit more quicker when I get those chances."

If Woods is close to or at his best by Week 1, the Titans' passing attack may not suffer as big of a drop-off as many have predicted.

Prior to Woods' injury last season, he excelled as a focal point of the Los Angeles Rams offense. He put up back-to-back 1,000-yard seasons in 2018 and 2019 and ranked in the top 17 among all receivers in targets, receptions and yards both years. He had three straight seasons with 86 or more receptions from 2018-2020, and he ranked 13th and 15th in receptions and targets, respectively, in 2020.

Woods also adds value in areas that don't typically show up on the stat sheet.

He's as sure-handed as they come with a drop rate of just 2.9 percent over the last four years. For comparison, Tennessee's top three leading receivers have had a drop rate of 3.1 percent or higher each of the last two seasons.

Woods is also one of the top red-zone threats in the NFL. He's had double-digit red-zone targets every year since 2016, and despite playing in just 9 games, Woods still tied for 29th in red-zone targets and 26th in red-zone receptions last season. Since 2017, Woods has caught 37 of his 53 red-zone targets (70 percent) for 232 yards and 17 touchdowns.

However, Woods' value to the Titans can't be measured simply with pure statistics.

He's the Titans' only receiver over the age of 28, and just the second WR over the age of 25. Rookies Treyton Burks (22), Kyle Philips (23) and Reggie Roberson (23), plus Cody Hollister (28), Nick Westbrook-Ikhine (25), Terry Godwin (25), Dez Fitzpatrick (24), Racey McMath (23) and Mason Kinsey (23), have just 58 receptions, 656 yards and five touchdowns between them.

Woods is only receiver on Tennessee's roster with more than 42 career receptions and at least one 1,000-yard season, and he adds leadership and a veteran presence to one of the youngest and least experienced receiver rooms in the NFL.

"[Woods'] leadership has been great," Vrabel said. "His consistency each and every day, being able to work through things, talk through things, provide [receivers coach] Rob [Moore] with an extension of a coach. It's been great to have him."

TITANS WR ROBERT WOODS ALREADY HAS SEVERAL REASONS TO SMILE

NASHVILLE – Robert Woods was born and raised in Los Angeles, in the middle of the hustle and bustle of one of the country's biggest cities.

After playing in college at USC, he spent four seasons in Buffalo, only to return to his hometown to join the Rams.

Now, at his third NFL stop, Woods finds himself in Nashville, with the Titans.

And so far, things have been better than he expected in more ways than one.

"Nashville is way better than I expected," Woods said with a smile. "I thought I was really going to a country town that was not going to have anything. But it really has a lot to offer, whether it's food, entertainment, obviously a lot of music. I know I am from L.A., but I love experiencing different cultures, having a different experience than fast-pace living, L.A. lifestyle.

"So, I have been loving Nashville, getting acclimated with it, the guys. Everybody has been welcoming, not just the team but really around in public."

Woods has also been a pleasant surprise on the field in OTAs, taking part in on-field workouts – albeit limited and with a brace – roughly six months after tearing his left ACL.

In some periods, Woods slides a yellow pullover jersey over his No.2 Titans jersey, signifying he's not all the way back.

But Woods said it's all part of a process, and he's keeping the big picture in mind.

"Obviously, we want to do everything that is correct to make sure no injuries come back," Woods said. "But now it is more: Let's get back to the elite level of playing.

"Really, I am just trying to get back to playing at a high level. Being able to be out here and do what I am doing is really impressing me, being able to run on the side and seeing certain speeds that I am hitting, being able to trust my knee with some cuts. ... I think I am really good, on pace. Being able to do some training on my own (is good), and really just being confident with where I'm at and being prepared and being ready. Obviously, we don't know how long it is going to take and what could come up, but I'll say right now we're all on pace and doing good to be ready. I am just trying to be my best me and be ready when I can and whenever they need me on the field, being able to be at my best when I'm out there."

A two-time captain with the Rams who totaled 367 receptions for 4,626 yards and 23 touchdowns in 68 games in five seasons in Los Angeles, Woods is also learning a new quarterback, and teammates.

He said his chemistry with Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill is building.

"Ryan is a really good leader, being able to talk not only out here on the football field, but talk in the meetings rooms, in between plays," Woods said. "I think that is one of the biggest things you expect from a quarterback and a leader – (Ryan) is always leading ... and he is throwing in his two cents on what he expects from his receivers and what he sees and how he wants to throw the ball. So being able to pick his brain and have that conversation in between plays, in between reps, in between meetings, I think that is really good because the more you know about him, the more you know what he is thinking, and you are able to play fast and have that anticipation on the field."

Acquired in a trade with the Rams earlier this offseason, Woods is expected to play a big role for the Titans in 2022.

In his NFL career, Woods has played in 125 career games, with 115 starts, in nine NFL seasons with the Rams (2017-2021) and Bills (2013-2016). He's recorded 570 catches for 7,077 yards and 35 touchdowns in his playing career and he also has 74 career rushing attempts for 507 yards and five touchdowns.

As Woods builds confidence with his health and the team in the offseason work, he knows things will only improve.

"It feels good to be out there with the guys, learning this offense and building chemistry with Ryan, our other receivers, and really just everybody in the huddle," Woods said. "Just to be back playing football again, I guess easing back into it. It feels good to be on the grass and to be out there with the guys."
