TITANS WELCOME FANS, UNBEATEN STEELERS TO NISSAN STADIUM

Tennessee Titans (3-0) vs. Pittsburgh Steelers (3-0)

Sunday, Oct. 4, 2020 • Noon CDT • Nissan Stadium • Nashville, Tenn. • TV: CBS

NASHVILLE — The Tennessee Titans welcome fans back this week as they host the Pittsburgh Steelers in a battle of 3-0 teams. For the first time since Nissan Stadium opened in 1999, two undefeated teams after three or more weeks of a season will take the field. Kickoff is scheduled for noon CDT on Sunday, Oct. 4.

The Titans are off to their first 3-0 start to a season since 2008. With a win this week, the current Titans would match the 2008 squad as the only teams in franchise history to go 4-0.

Due to COVID-19 restrictions, the Titans played their first three games of the season without fans in the stands, which included two road games and one home date. For this week, ticket sales were limited to 10 percent of Nissan Stadium's capacity, or approximately 7,000 total seats, in the lower bowl and club-level seating areas. The number of fans will gradually increase over the course of the Titans' coming games with the potential to accommodate 21 percent of the venue's normal capacity under current Center for Disease Control guidelines. Detailed information on the team's Safe Stadium Plan can be found at tennesseetitans.com/safestadium.

THE BROADCAST

This week's game will be regionally televised on CBS, including Nashville affiliate WTVF NewsChannel 5. The broadcast team includes play-by-play announcer Kevin Harlan, analyst Trent Green and reporter Melanie Collins.

Fans can livestream the game on their mobile devices from the Titans Mobile App (iOS and Android) and on TennesseeTitans.com mobile web. Restrictions apply. For more information visit TennesseeTitans.com or NFL.com/ways-to-watch.

The Titans Radio Network, including Nashville flagship 104.5 The Zone, will carry the game across the Mid-South with the "Voice of the Titans" Mike Keith, analyst Dave McGinnis, sideline reporter Amie Wells, and gameday hosts Rhett Bryan and Jonathan Hutton.

Additionally, Sports USA will broadcast the game to a national radio audience. Play-by-play announcer Larry Kahn and analyst Doug Plank will have the call.

TITANS FINDING WAYS TO WIN

Last week at Minnesota, the Titans used a career-high six field goals by Stephen Gostkowski, including a game-winning 55-yarder, to defeat the Vikings by a final score of 31-30. The 36-year-old kicker became the first NFL player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger with a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of the season.

For the eighth time in Titans/Oilers history, the Titans had a 300-yard passer (321 by Ryan Tannehill), a 100-yard rusher (119 by Derrick Henry) and a 100-yard receiver (118 by Kalif Raymond). Tannehill notched his third straight game with a game-winning drive and his sixth game-winning drive since taking over as the starting quarterback in Week 7 of 2019.

Meanwhile, the defense forced three turnovers on interceptions by defensive backs Johnathan Joseph and Amani Hooker and a fumble recovery by linebacker Rashaan Evans. Their season turnover differential is plus-five, the best in the NFL through Sept. 27.

The Titans' three wins in 2020 are by a combined total of six points. They won their opener at Denver 16-14, followed by a 33-30 home victory over Jacksonville and last week's close call at Minnesota.

This is the first week of a three-game October homestand for the Titans. With a Week 7 bye added to the end of it, they will not play on the road until Nov. 1 at the Cincinnati Bengals.

THE STEELERS

The Steelers, who are 3-0 for the first time since 2010, began the season with a 26-16 win at the New York Giants and a 26-21 victory at Heinz Field over the Denver Broncos. Last week they hosted the Houston Texans and won 28-21.

Mike Tomlin is in his 14th season in Pittsburgh. He has led his club to six AFC North titles, most recently in 2017, and has guided the Steelers to the playoffs eight times, including two trips to the Super Bowl (XLIII and XLV).

Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger, a seven-time Pro Bowl selection and two-time Super Bowl winner, is in his 17th NFL season. In addition to holding virtually every major passing record in Steelers history, he has the eighth-most passing touchdowns in NFL history (370) and the seventh-most passing yards in NFL history (57,322). He was limited to two appearances in 2019 before landing on injured reserve for the remainder of the season.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR THIS WEEK

- For the first time since Nissan Stadium opened in 1999, two undefeated teams after three or more weeks of a season will play there.
- K Stephen Gostkowski can extend his streak to 29 consecutive games with a field goal. His current streak of 28 games is tied for fifth in NFL history.
- K Stephen Gostkowski enters this week with three consecutive games in which he kicked a game-winning field goal.
- RB Derrick Henry can notch his 16th career 100-yard rushing game, including regular season and playoffs.
- RB Derrick Henry can become the first player in franchise history to record 13 consecutive regular season games with at least 80 scrimmage yards, eclipsing Chris Johnson (12 from 2009 to 2010) as the only Titans/Oilers player to do so.
- RB Derrick Henry can become the first NFL player with at least 25 rushing attempts in five consecutive regular season games since Larry Johnson (eight) from Nov. 13, 2005 to Jan. 1, 2006.
- RB Derrick Henry can become the first NFL player since O.J. Simpson in 1975 with at least 25 rushing attempts in each of the first four games of a season.
- P Brett Kern (173 consecutive games with the Titans) can pass Gregg Bingham (173) for fifth place on the franchise's career games played list.
- TE Jonnu Smith (three touchdown receptions in 2020) needs one touchdown reception to set a career high for a season.
- QB Ryan Tannehill enters this week with three consecutive games in which he was credited with a game-winning drive.
- QB Ryan Tannehill can record his first back-to-back 300-yard passing performances since Sept. 18-25, 2016 as a member of the Miami Dolphins. The Titans have not had a back-to-back 300-yard passer since Matt Hasselbeck from Sept. 18-25, 2011.

SERIES HISTORY

There have been 78 combined regular season and postseason meetings between the Titans/Oilers and Steelers in a rivalry that dates back to 1970. The Steelers lead the series 46-32. There is no other team the Titans/Oilers have met in their history as often as the Steelers, with the Cincinnati Bengals being next most common opponent at 75 games.

In 1970, upon the merger of the American Football League and the National Football League, the Steelers and then-Oilers began play in the newly-formed AFC Central Division. For the next 32 years (1970-2001), they competed at least twice per season with the exception of 1982 (strike-shortened season) before the Titans moved to the AFC South and the Steelers to the AFC North in 2002.

The first meeting in 1970, a 19-7 Oilers win, was the first regular season game in Three Rivers Stadium, the Steelers' home until moving to Heinz Field in 2001.

The Steelers have won the two most recent matchups, including a Thursday primetime meeting at Heinz Field in Week 11 of the 2017 regular season. The Steelers defense produced four interceptions and five sacks, helping the hosts pull away in the fourth quarter for a 40-17 win.

The Steelers' most recent visit to Nissan Stadium was on Monday night, Nov. 17, 2014. Despite 263 passing yards from rookie quarterback Zach Mettenberger, the Titans were unable to overcome the Steelers, led by Le'Veon Bell's 204 rushing yards, and fell by a score of 27-24.

The last time the Titans beat the Steelers was in the 2013 season opener at Heinz Field. The Titans used five sacks from their defense and a ball-control offense to win 16-9, despite giving up an unusual safety on the opening kickoff.

There have been four postseason games played between the franchises, most recently a 34-31 overtime thriller in favor of the Titans in the 2002 Divisional Round. The first two playoff meetings were back-to-back AFC Championship Games following the 1978 and 1979 seasons, with Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" prevailing both times against the "Luv Ya Blue!" Oilers. The Oilers also lost a 1989 Wild Card Game in overtime against the Steelers.

GAME RECAP

In Week 11 of the 2017 season, the Titans traveled to Pittsburgh to face the Steelers in a primetime Thursday Night Football showdown and lost by a score of 40-17.

The Pittsburgh offense took a quick 7-0 lead as Steelers QB Ben Roethlisberger led his team on a 75-yard scoring drive capped off by a 41-yard touchdown pass to Steelers WR Antonio Brown. Tennessee took the field for its first offensive possession, but on the third play of the drive QB Marcus Mariota threw a 26-yard interception to Steelers CB Mike Hilton. Pittsburgh capitalized on the Titans turnover and tacked on a 41-yard field goal to increase their lead, 10-0. The Tennessee offense took the field again, and with the help of third down conversion receptions by WRs Rishard Matthews and Corey Davis, Mariota was able to find the endzone as he rushed in a seven-yard touchdown to cut Pittsburgh's lead to 10-7.

In the second quarter, Tennessee drove down the field into Pittsburgh territory but was forced to settle for a field goal attempt. However, K Ryan Succop's kick was blocked by Steelers LB T.J. Watt. As Mariota threw his second interception, Pittsburgh was able to tack on two more field goals in the second quarter on back-to-back possessions to end the first half up, 16-7.

On the first play of the third quarter, Mariota hit Matthews for a 75-yard touchdown to cut Pittsburgh's lead to 16-14. The Steelers responded as Roethlisberger connected with Brown for the second time on a five-yard touchdown pass to get ahead, 23-14. On the Titans' following possession, TE Delanie Walker helped get Tennessee in Pittsburgh territory with a 42-yard reception on second-and five. Succop converted a 44-yard field goal as the Titans inched closer to Pittsburgh, 23-17.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Roethlisberger capped a 12-play, 75-yard scoring drive with a one-yard touchdown pass to Steelers TE Jesse James. After a Titans punt, the Pittsburgh offense took the field again and Roethlisberger quickly connected with Brown for the third time in the contest, for a 10-yard touchdown reception as the Steelers increased the lead to 37-17. On the following Tennessee possession, Mariota threw his third interception of the day as Steelers S Robert Golden picked the ball. The opportunistic Steelers capitalized on another Titans mistake and added another field goal to go up, 40-17. Tennessee was unable to engineer a comeback and fell to the Steelers in Pittsburgh by a final score of 40-17.

Mike Tomlin was named the 16th head coach in Pittsburgh Steelers history on Jan. 22, 2007. Hired at the age of 34, Tomlin became only the third head coach hired by the Steelers since 1969.

Through his first 13 seasons, Tomlin set a number of team and league records. He reached 100 career wins in the fewest games (157) in team history, became the eighth head coach in NFL history to reach 100 regular-season wins in their first 10 seasons, and reached 125 career wins in the fewest games (192) in team history, tying him with Bud Grant for the fifth-fewest games by an NFL head coach to secure 125 regular season wins. Tomlin is the third head coach in NFL history with 133 or more regular-season wins in their first 13 seasons as a head coach, joining Tony Dungy (139) and Don Shula (138).

Tomlin also became the youngest head coach in NFL history to both coach in and win a Super Bowl when he led the Steelers to a 27-23 victory over the Arizona Cardinals in Super Bowl XLIII. By winning the Super Bowl in only his second season as a head coach, he also became the fastest to win a Super Bowl title in Steelers history.

In the last 13 years as head coach of the Steelers, Tomlin has led Pittsburgh to six AFC North titles and has guided the Steelers to the playoffs eight times, including two trips to the Super Bowl (XLIII and XLV).

Tomlin was the NFL's second-youngest head coach in 2007, and he became only the second Steelers' coach in team history to win at least 10 games during his first year at the helm. The Steelers posted a 7-1 record at home in 2007 and were 5-1 in the AFC North (3-0 at home).

Prior to becoming the Steelers head coach, Tomlin spent the 2006 season as the Minnesota Vikings' defensive coordinator. That season, the Vikings ranked eighth in the NFL in total defense and first against the run while not allowing a 100-yard rusher the entire season.

Tomlin was the defensive backs coach with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers from 2001-05. Before joining Tampa Bay's staff, Tomlin served two seasons as the defensive backs coach at the University of Cincinnati (1999-2000). Under Tomlin's direction in 2000, the Bearcats ranked eighth in the nation in interceptions as well as fourth nationally in total turnovers.

Prior to joining the Cincinnati staff, Tomlin had a short stint on the coaching staff at Tennessee-Martin and then spent two seasons at Arkansas State, coaching wide receivers in 1997 before switching to defensive backs in 1998. Tomlin spent the 1996 season as a graduate assistant at the University of Memphis. He began his coaching career in 1995 as wide receivers coach at Virginia Military Institute.

Tomlin was a three-year starter at wide receiver at William & Mary (1990-94) and finished his career with 101 receptions for 2,054 yards and 20 touchdown catches.

TITANS-STEELERS CONNECTIONS

FORMER TITANS

- Steelers linebacker Robert Spillane originally signed with the Titans as a rookie free agent following the 2018 NFL Draft. He appeared in two contests for Tennessee in 2018.

FORMER STEELERS

- Titans head coach Mike Vrabel played for the Steelers for four seasons. He was selected by Pittsburgh in the third round of the 1997 NFL Draft and went on to play in 51 games for the Steelers.
- Titans inside linebackers coach Jim Haslett served as the Steelers defensive coordinator while head coach Mike Vrabel played for Pittsburgh. The duo was together with the Steelers from 1997 through 1999.

STEELERS WITH TENNESSEE CONNECTIONS

- Pittsburgh Steelers head coach Mike Tomlin was a graduate assistant at the University of Memphis in 1996 and served as an assistant coach at Tennessee-Martin for Jim Marshall during the 1997 season.
- Steelers defensive coordinator Keith Butler played inside linebacker at the University of Memphis (1974-77), finishing his collegiate career with 384 tackles (226 solo), seven interceptions and one fumble recovery. The defensive captain was the franchise's all-time leading tackler when he retired. Butler was inducted into Memphis' M Club Hall of Fame in 1989. Butler returned to his alma mater as the linebackers coach from 1990-97 then added defensive ends and special teams duties for three more seasons in Memphis (1995-97).
- Steelers offensive coordinator Randy Fichtner coached at the University of Memphis from 1990-93 and then again from 2001-06. Fichtner's wife, Jennifer, is from Covington, Tenn.
- Steelers cornerback Cameron Sutton played four seasons at the University of Tennessee (2013-2016). He started all 45 games that he played in, totaling 127 tackles (110 solo). Sutton finished his career as Tennessee's all-time leader in passes defended with 37 (30 pass breakups, seven interceptions).

LAST WEEK VS. THE VIKINGS

Week 3: Titans 31, Vikings 30

Sunday, Sept. 27, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • U.S. Bank Stadium

In Week 3 of the 2020 season, the Titans traveled to Minnesota to face the Vikings and won by a score of 31-30. K Stephen Gostkowski was a career-best six-for-six on field goals and RB Derrick Henry added two rushing scores to propel the Titans to a 3-0 start.

Tennessee put up a 54-yard scoring drive on their opening possession. WR Kalif Raymond made a 44-yard catch to move the chains as Gostkowski converted a 39-yard field goal for an early 3-0 lead. Later in the first quarter, CB Johnathan Joseph forced Vikings RB Dalvin Cook to fumble the ball and LB Rashaan Evans recovered the fumble. Evans scooped the ball up and ran 25 yards to the Minnesota 20-yard line to set the Titans up in position for a 31-yard field goal. Tennessee moved ahead, 6-0. On the ensuing Minnesota possession, the Vikings put together a seven-play, 76-yard scoring drive. Vikings QB Kirk Cousins connected with Vikings WR Justin Jefferson for an 11-yard gain before Cook took off for a 39-yard rushing score. Minnesota took the lead, 7-6.

In the second quarter, QB Ryan Tannehill threw an interception in the end zone to Vikings S Harrison Smith. Minnesota capitalized on the turnover and produced an 88-yard scoring drive, which was capped with a 16-yard touchdown reception by Vikings WR Adam Thielen for a 14-6 Minnesota advantage. Each team tacked on a field goal in the second quarter to make it a 17-9 game heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, Tennessee inched closer to Minnesota with a 51-yard field goal to make it a 17-12 game. However, on the ensuing Vikings possession Cousins threw a 71-yard touchdown pass to Jefferson as Minnesota extended the lead, 24-12.

On the following Tennessee drive, WR Corey Davis contributed a 38-yard reception to give Tennessee a first down at the Minnesota eight-yard line. Ultimately, Henry ran into the end zone on a one-yard score to make it a 24-19 game. After forcing the Vikings to punt on their next possession, Tennessee put together another scoring drive. With a 61-yard catch contributed by Raymond, Henry again rushed for a one-yard score to give Tennessee the lead. The Titans were unsuccessful on a two-point conversion attempt and took the lead, 25-24.

The Vikings retook the lead with a 10-play, 75-yard scoring drive. Cousins connected with Vikings TE Kyle Rudolph for a three-yard touchdown, but Minnesota's two-point conversion attempt failed as the Vikings took a 30-25 advantage.

Trailing by five points, the Titans engineered a 10-play scoring drive on that saw Gostkowski nail a 54-yard field goal to make it a 30-28 game. After forcing the Vikings to punt, Tennessee added another field goal on its next possession as Gostkowski's 55-yard kick gave the Titans a 31-30 lead with just under two minutes left to play.

With Minnesota facing a fourth-and-24 from their own 26-yard line, and Tennessee looking to preserve a lead, Cousins threw a pass deep right and it was intercepted by DB Amani Hooker to seal a Titans victory.

NOTES FROM LAST WEEK'S GAME

TEAM NOTES

- The victory at Minnesota gave the Titans a 3-0 start for the first time since 2008 and for the third time in the team's "Titans era" (1999).
- The win was the Titans' first win against the Vikings since 2008 and their first win at Minnesota since Nov. 15, 1992.
- The Titans have scored at least three points in each of their last nine quarters, dating back to the fourth quarter at Denver on Sept. 14.
- For the eighth time in franchise history, the Titans had a 300-yard passer (321 by Ryan Tannehill), a 100-yard rusher (119 by Derrick Henry) and a 100-yard receiver (118 by Kalif Raymond).
- The Titans were plus-two in turnover differential—their third consecutive game to begin the season with a positive turnover differential. Against the Vikings, the defense tallied two interceptions and one fumble recovery, while the offense committed one interception. For the season, the Titans are plus-five in turnover differential with six takeaways and one giveaway.
- The Titans were flagged for four penalties, marking their third consecutive game to begin the season with no more than five flags.
- After a punt on their first offensive series of the second half, the Titans then produced five consecutive scoring drives before kneeling to end the game on their last series.
- The offense's eight total scoring drives were the most by the Titans since they had eight scoring drives against the Indianapolis Colts on Oct. 16, 2017. The Titans' eight scoring drives tied the Dallas Cowboys (Sept. 20 at Atlanta) for the most in the NFL in 2020 through the early afternoon games of Sept. 27.
- The Titans earned their 14th one-point win in franchise history and their first since a 16-15 win at Detroit on Sept. 18, 2016.
- The Titans won their third consecutive game by three points or less to begin the season. They have won their three games by a total of six points.
- In the 13 regular season games that quarterback Ryan Tannehill has started since taking over as the fulltime starter in Week 7 of 2019, five of the team's 10 wins have been decided by three points or less. They own the most such wins in that time period.

ILB JAYON BROWN

- Tied for the team lead with seven tackles and added a pass defensed.

WR COREY DAVIS

- Produced 69 receiving yards on five catches, the latter of which tied for the team lead.
- On his first reception, he extended his streak to 25 consecutive receptions resulting in a first down. The streak ended on his next catch. It was the longest active streak in the NFL at the time.
- Turned a pass from Ryan Tannehill into a 38-yard gain in the third quarter, leading to a Titans touchdown three plays later.

RB DARRYNTON EVANS

- Appeared in his first NFL game and totaled three rushing attempts for nine yards.
- Gained four yards on his first career rushing attempt in the first quarter.

ILB RASHAAN EVANS

- Recovered a fumble by Dalvin Cook in the first quarter and returned the ball 25 yards to help set up a field goal on the ensuing drive. It was his second career fumble recovery (first of 2020).
- Tied for the team lead with seven tackles.

CB KRISTIAN FULTON

- Registered two tackles, including his first career sack. In the fourth quarter, he blitzed and dropped quarterback Kirk Cousins for a seven-yard loss.

K STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

- Set a career high with six total field goals, including the game-winning field goal from 55 yards with 1 minute and 44 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. In his 15-year career, he previously made five total field goals on two occasions, most recently against Kansas City on Oct. 14, 2018. In addition to his game-winner, he also connected on field goals of 39 and 31 yards in the first quarter, 30 yards in the second quarter, 51 yards in the third quarter and 54 yards in the fourth quarter.
- His 55-yard field goal tied for the fourth-longest field goal in franchise history and the second-longest game-winning field goal in team annals behind Rob Bironas' 60-yarder to beat Indianapolis on Dec. 3, 2006. Gostkowski's 54-yarder at Minnesota is now tied for the eighth-longest field goal in team annals.
- Became the second player in franchise history to make at least six field goals in a game. The other is Rob Bironas, who set the team and NFL record with eight field goals at Houston on Oct. 21, 2007.
- Became the first player in franchise history to record game-winning field goals in three consecutive games.
- Became the first player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger to kick a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of the season.
- Hit three field goals of at least 50 yards in distance for the first time in his career. He became the first NFL player since Baltimore's Justin Tucker on Nov. 27, 2016 (vs. Cincinnati) to accomplish the feat.
- Extended his streak to 28 consecutive games with at least one field goal. It is the longest such streak of his career and tied for the fifth-longest streak in NFL history (Jim Turner, 1970-72; Chip Lohmiller, 1988-90).
- Became the first Titans player to hit at least four field goals in a game since Oct. 7, 2018, when Ryan Succop accomplished the feat.
- Registered his 18th career game in which he made at least four field goals.

NOTES FROM LAST WEEK'S GAME

RB DERRICK HENRY

- Rushed for 119 yards on 26 carries with two touchdowns, notching his 15th career 100-yard rushing game, including regular season and playoffs. He has two 100-yard rushing games through three games in 2020.
- Became the fifth player in NFL history to have 25 or more rushing attempts in each of his team's first three games of a season, joining Buffalo's O.J. Simpson (1975), Dallas' Emmitt Smith (1994), Indianapolis' Edgerrin James (2002) and Houston's Arian Foster (2012).
- Passed Lorenzo White (4,079 career rushing yards) for fourth place on the franchise's all-time rushing list. With 4,152 career rushing yards, Henry trails only Eddie George (10,009), Earl Campbell (8,574) and Chris Johnson (7,965) on the list.
- Scored his first touchdown of the season on a one-yard plunge in the third quarter and added another one-yard touchdown run on the following series.
- Talled his ninth career regular season game with at least two touchdown runs. It was his 11th career regular season game with at least two total touchdowns.
- Became the second player in franchise history to record 12 consecutive regular season games with at least 80 scrimmage yards, joining Chris Johnson (12 from 2009 to 2010) as the only Titans/Oilers to do so. The only active NFL streak as good as Henry's is owned by Carolina Panthers running back Christian McCaffrey, who is on injured reserve but who also has 12 consecutive games played with at least 80 scrimmage yards.
- Added 11 receiving yards on two catches to give him 130 total scrimmage yards. It was his 10th career regular season game with at least 130 scrimmage yards.
- Became the fourth player in franchise history to hit 40 career rushing touchdowns, joining Earl Campbell (73), Eddie George (64) and Chris Johnson (50).

DB AMANI HOOKER

- Clinched the victory with his first career interception. With 1 minute and 9 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter, the Minneapolis native intercepted a pass from Kirk Cousins to Adam Thielen on fourth down.

CB JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

- Tied for the team lead with seven tackles to go along with an interception and a forced fumble. It was the first time in his 15-year career that he produced an interception and a forced fumble in the same game.
- Credited with his eighth career forced fumble (first of 2020) in the first quarter on a run by Dalvin Cook. The ball was recovered by linebacker Rashaan Evans to set up a Titans field goal on the ensuing drive.
- Registered his first interception in a Titans uniform and the 32nd interception of his career in the third quarter, picking off a pass by Kirk Cousins. Joseph ranks second among all active players in career interceptions behind only Richard Sherman.

P BRETT KERN

- Tied Gregg Bingham (1973-84) for fifth place on the franchise games played list with his 173rd game.
- Booted three punts for a 47.7-yard average (41.0 net) with one punt inside the 20.

WR KALIF RAYMOND

- Led the team with a career-high 118 receiving yards on three receptions.

- Registered his first career 100-yard game.
- Recorded a 44-yard reception during the first series of the game and then posted a career-long 61-yard catch in the third quarter, leading to a Titans touchdown two plays later.
- Produced the most receiving yards by a Titans player on three or fewer receptions since Dec. 5, 2004, when Drew Bennett had 124 yards on three catches at Indianapolis.
- Added a 30-yard kickoff return and two punt returns for five yards.

DT JEFFERY SIMMONS

- Forced the Vikings to punt with a six-yard sack of Kirk Cousins on third down in the first quarter. It was Simmons' first sack of 2020 and the third sack of his two-year career.
- Produced five total tackles, including two tackles for loss.

TE JONNU SMITH

- Tied for the team lead with five receptions for a total of 61 yards.
- Went over the 1,000-yard career receiving mark with his 21-yard grab in the third quarter.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Completed 23 of 37 passes for 321 yards with one interception. He registered his 20th career 300-yard passing game and his first of 2020.
- Had three passes of more than 35 yards: a 44-yard completion to Kalif Raymond during the opening series, a 38-yard strike to Corey Davis in the third quarter and a 61-yard bomb to Raymond in the third quarter.
- Became the first NFL quarterback since Matt Ryan in 2015 with a game-winning drive in each of his team's first three games of a season.
- Logged his 19th career game-winning drive and his sixth as a member of the Titans.
- Led the offense to eight total scoring drives, including five scoring drives in the second half.

S KENNY VACCARO

- Appeared in his 100th NFL regular season game and posted six tackles.

Jon Robinson was hired as Titans general manager on Jan. 14, 2016 after spending two years as director of player personnel for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Nearly one year later, on Jan. 5, 2017, he was promoted to executive vice president/general manager.

In his first four years on the job, the Titans finished with four consecutive 9-7 seasons. It marked the first time the organization produced at least four consecutive winning seasons since a seven-year run of winning records from 1987–1993. The Titans were one of four NFL teams to accomplish the feat from 2016–2019, joining New England, Seattle and Kansas City.

Robinson became only the second general manager in franchise history whose first four teams finished above the .500 mark, joining Mike Holovak (1989-92).

Robinson's work helped the team go from three wins in the season prior to his arrival (2015) to a divisional round playoff finish following the 2017 campaign. He became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the playoffs within his first two full seasons.

Then, in 2019, the team he constructed advanced to the AFC Championship game. It was the organization's first appearance in the conference title game in 17 seasons (2002).

When the Titans took the field for the 2019 postseason, only seven players remained on the 53-man roster from prior to Robinson's arrival—a turnover rate of 87 percent. That included 23 free agents, 18 draft picks, four players acquired via trade and one waiver pickup. An additional six players he acquired (four free agents, one draft pick and one waiver claim) ended 2019 on injured reserve.

The 2020 NFL Draft was Robinson's fifth draft as general manager. In those five drafts, he selected 35 total players, and 21 of those players remained with the club at the beginning of training camp in 2020. During that same time period (as of July 28, 2020), he engineered 20 trades and made 11 waiver claims.

2020: Prior to the 2020 free agent signing period, the Titans reached an agreement on a multi-year contract to keep quarterback Ryan Tannehill in Tennessee. The Titans also re-signed tackle Dennis Kelly and outside linebacker Kamalei Correa, among others.

After initially placing the franchise tag on running back Derrick Henry, the Titans and Henry were able to come to an agreement on a multi-year contract extension in July 2020.

Robinson also led the acquisition of unrestricted free agent outside linebacker Vic Beasley from the Atlanta Falcons. The former first-round pick spent his first five NFL seasons (2015-19) in Atlanta, capping his tenure there with eight sacks in 2019. He led the NFL with 15.5 sacks in 2016, and from his rookie season through 2019, he ranked 16th in the NFL in sacks by edge rushers (outside linebackers and defensive ends).

Robinson patiently waited to add two more significant free agents just prior to the beginning of the 2020 regular season, picking up kicker Stephen Gostkowski and outside linebacker Jadeveon Clowney during the first week of September. Gostkowski earned four Pro Bowl berths and three Super Bowl rings during 14 seasons with the Patriots, becoming the team's all-time leading scorer (1,775 points). Through 2019, he was the NFL's fifth-most accurate kicker in history (374 of 428). Clowney, a three-time Pro Bowl selection, joined Aaron Donald and Chandler Jones as the only NFL players with at least 60 tackles for loss, eight forced fumbles and 150 quarterback pressures from 2016 through 2019.

In the 2020 NFL Draft, the Titans had six total picks. The first of those was Georgia tackle Isaiah Wilson (first round, 29th overall), followed by Louisiana State cornerback Kristian Fulton (second round, 61st overall) and Appalachian State running back Darrynton Evans (third round, 93rd overall) in the first three rounds.

2019: Near the beginning of the 2019 free agent signing period, Robinson worked quickly to add several veterans from other teams who played key roles in 2019: Buccaneers wide receiver Adam Humphries, Rams guard Rodger Saffold and Tannehill in a trade with the Dolphins. Robinson also worked to re-sign starting safety Kenny Vaccaro and punter Brett Kern.

Then, in the 2019 NFL Draft, Robinson directed the selection of six total players, including Mississippi State defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons in the first round (19th overall), Ole Miss wide receiver A.J. Brown in the second round (51st overall) and Charlotte offensive lineman Nate Davis in the third round (82nd overall).

Tannehill, who proved to be one of the NFL's top acquisitions of 2019, started every game after Week 6, leading the team into the playoffs. He led the NFL and set franchise records with a 117.5 passer rating and a 9.6-yard passing average. In addition to being named to his first Pro Bowl, he earned Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year honors.

As a rookie, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category. Among all rookies in 2019, he ranked first in receiving yards (1,051), tied for the rookie lead in touchdown receptions (eight) and placed fifth in receptions (52). Among all NFL players in 2019—rookies and veterans—Brown finished second in receiving average (20.2), behind only the Los Angeles Chargers' Mike Williams (20.4).

2018: The Titans' 2018 free agent class included Pro Bowl cornerback Malcolm Butler. In his first two seasons in Tennessee, Butler played in 25 games (20 starts) and totaled five interceptions. In early August, the Titans signed Vaccaro, who went on to start 13 games his first season in Tennessee and all 16 games in 2019.

Robinson's 2018 draft class was comprised of four players after he used multiple trades to go up and get his targets. It included first-round linebacker Rashaan Evans from Alabama (22nd overall pick) and second-round outside linebacker Harold Landry III from Boston College (41st overall). Evans started all 16 games in 2019 and led the team with 139 tackles. Landry appeared in 31 games (19 starts) in his first two seasons, and his 13.5 sacks from 2018–2019 (nine in 2019) ranked first on the team.

2017: During the 2017 offseason, Robinson used free agency to address needs on defense and special teams. Most notably, he spearheaded deals for cornerback Logan Ryan (New England) and special teams contributor and 2017 Pro Bowler Brynden Trawick (Oakland).

In the 2017 NFL Draft, Robinson spent first-round picks on wide receiver Corey Davis (fifth overall) and cornerback Adoree' Jackson (18th overall). It marked the first time the franchise had a pair of first-round draft selections since 1987. The Titans' 2017 draft haul also featured tight end Jonnu Smith in the third round and linebacker Jayon Brown in the fifth round.

The 2017 Titans advanced to the playoffs for the first time since 2008. Robinson became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the postseason within his first two full seasons.

2016: In his first year as an NFL general manager, Robinson's leadership and decision-making helped the Titans triple their win total from the previous season, finishing 9-7 in 2016 after a 3-13 finish in 2015. The six-win improvement tied for the most in franchise history (1967 and 1974) and doubled the previous club benchmark for the most wins in the first year under a new general manager (three by Bum Phillips in 1975).

Within the first four months at his post, Robinson pulled the trigger on several key personnel decisions. On March 9, 2016, he made his first major acquisition, swapping fourth-round draft picks with the Philadelphia Eagles in exchange for running back DeMarco Murray. The trade provided major dividends in 2016, as Murray led the AFC and ranked third in the NFL with 1,287 rushing yards.

Around the same time, Robinson began to work the free agent market. Center Ben Jones and wide receiver Rishard Matthews highlighted the haul, and both were instrumental in helping to transform the Titans offense into the 11th-ranked unit in the NFL.

On April 14, 2016, two weeks before the NFL Draft, Robinson and the Titans dealt the first overall pick to the Los Angeles Rams in one of the biggest trades in recent NFL history. The Titans gave up the No. 1 pick and a fourth-rounder in order to receive the 15th overall pick, two second-rounders and a third-rounder in 2016, plus the Rams' first- and third-round picks in 2017. From 1990–2015, there were seven trades involving the No. 1 overall pick, but this was the first since 2004, when the San Diego Chargers selected Eli Manning with the first pick and dealt his rights to the New York Giants.

The Titans had their hands at one point or another on 17 selections in the 2016 draft due to five different trades (including one trade in 2015), and in the end, they ended up with a class of 10 players, including four of the top 45 picks. Robinson swung a draft-day trade with the Cleveland Browns to move back up to the eighth slot to choose Michigan State tackle Jack Conklin.

All 10 members of Robinson's first draft class played in at least one game in 2016. They accumulated a total of 110 games played and 38 starts, including 16 starts at right tackle by Conklin. The eighth-overall pick capped his successful rookie campaign by being named first-team All-Pro by Associated Press.

Henry, a second-rounder in 2016, led the Titans in rushing every season from 2017 through 2019. In 2019, he won the NFL's rushing crown with 1,540 yards and tied for the NFL lead with 16 rushing touchdowns.

Third-round safety Kevin Byard earned first-team All-Pro honors in his second campaign. He led the NFL from 2017–2019 with 17 total interceptions also was named to the Pro Bowl in 2017.

PRIOR HISTORY: Robinson arrived in Tennessee with a wide range of experience from working his way up on the personnel side of the NFL. From 2014–2015, he served as director of player personnel for the Buccaneers and oversaw both college and pro departments as the team rebuilt its roster. The 2015 Buccaneers draft class made a significant impact, including four rookie starters: quarterback Jameis Winston, tackle Donovan Smith, guard Ali Marpet and linebacker Kwon Alexander.

Prior to joining Tampa Bay, Robinson spent 12 years with the New England Patriots, including his last five years (2009-13) as the director of college scouting. In the five years heading up their college scouting, the Patriots added a number of key components to their roster that won the Super Bowl in 2014, including wide receiver Julian Edelman, defensive back Devin McCourty, tight end Rob Gronkowski, tackle Nate Solder and defensive end Chandler Jones. He joined the Patriots as an area scout in 2002, a role he served for four seasons. Robinson then spent two years (2006-07) as a regional scout, before being promoted to assistant director of college scouting in 2008 and then director of college scouting in 2009. In his time scouting for the Patriots the team won 10 division titles, four conference titles and two Super Bowls (2003, 2004).

Robinson played three years at Southeast Missouri State as a defensive lineman after starting his college career at the Air Force Academy. Following his college career as a player, he spent one season (1998) coaching at his alma mater and three years (1999-2001) coaching at Nicholls State.

A native of Union City, Tenn., Robinson and his wife, Jaimie, have two daughters, Taylor and Bailey.

FOUR WINNING SEASONS

Jon Robinson constructed a roster that produced four consecutive winning seasons in Robinson's first four years on the job. The club went 9-7 in 2016, 2017, 2018 and 2019 with postseason berths following the 2017 and 2019 campaigns.

Robinson became only the second general manager in franchise history whose first four teams finished above the .500 mark, joining Mike Holovak (1989-92).

2020 TITANS DRAFT CLASS

OL ISAIAH WILSON | 6-6, 350, Georgia
1st round, 29th overall

College: Following a redshirt season, Wilson started 24 total games for the Bulldogs from 2018 to 2019. All of his starts came at right tackle. As a sophomore (2019), Wilson was named second-team Associated Press All-SEC and was the co-winner of the Offensive "Up Front" Award. Wilson was named to the Football Writers Association of America Freshman All-America team and the 2018 Coaches Freshman All-SEC Team his redshirt freshman year (2018).

CB KRISTIAN FULTON | 5-11, 197, Louisiana State
2nd round, 61st overall

College: In a three-year career at LSU (2016-19), Fulton appeared in 28 games and made 25 starts. He finished his career with 65 tackles, 25 passes defended, two interceptions, and one forced fumble. As a senior in 2019, Fulton started all 15 games and posted 38 tackles, one tackle for loss, 15 passes defended and one interception. He also earned second-team All-SEC recognition by the Associated Press. During his junior season (2018), Fulton started 10 games and tallied 25 tackles, one tackle for loss, 10 passes defended, one interception and one forced fumble.

RB DARRYNTON EVANS | 5-10, 203, Appalachian State
3rd round, 93rd overall

College: In three on-field seasons at Appalachian State (2016, 2018-19), Evans appeared in 39 games and made 22 starts. He was a two-time All-Sun Belt first-team selection and was the Sun Belt's Offensive Player of the Year in 2019. Evans was a two-time Sun Belt Championship Game MVP and MVP of the 2019 New Orleans Bowl. He finished his career with 2,884 rushing yards (ninth all-time at Appalachian State) despite being the primary running back for just 23 career games. Evans set school records for most career rushes without a fumble (482) and single-season rushes without a fumble (255 in 2019). Evans had 4,642 all-purpose yards, including 1,439 yards on kickoff returns and 319 yards as a receiver, plus 14 passing yards. Evans scored 34 total touchdowns with 25 rushing, six receiving and a program-record three as a kick returner. Evans totaled 11 runs of at least 50 yards in his final two seasons.

DL LARRELL MURCHISON | 6-2, 297, North Carolina State
5th round, 174th overall

College: During a two-year stint as a defensive tackle at North Carolina State, Murchison started all 25 contests. As a senior in 2019, Murchison started all 12 games at defensive tackle and registered 51 tackles. He led the Wolfpack with 12 tackles for loss and seven sacks. Murchison was named a second-team All-ACC choice by the league and an honorable mention All-ACC by Pro Football Focus. Murchison ranked sixth in the ACC in sacks with 0.58 per game. In 2018 as a redshirt junior, Murchison ranked second on the team with four sacks, earned the team's Cary Brewbaker Award for Defensive Lineman of the Year. He finished his Wolfpack career with 85 tackles, 11 sacks, 20 tackles for loss, five quarterback hits, an interception, three passes defended and three fumble recoveries. He started his collegiate career at Louisiana State and was named a NJCAA junior-college honorable mention All-American.

QB COLE MCDONALD | 6-3, 215, Hawaii
7th round, 224th overall

Currently not on the roster

College: After redshirting in 2016, McDonald was a reserve in 2017 before taking control as the starter in 2018. In 33 career games, including 24 starts, he completed 616 of 1,004 passes for 8,032 yards, 70 touchdowns and 24 interceptions. He added 880 yards and 12 touchdowns on 251 career rushing attempts. He finished in Hawaii's top five in nearly a dozen career statistical categories, including finishing fourth in all-time passing yards, attempts, completions, touchdowns and total offense (8,912).

DB CHRIS JACKSON | 5-10, 193, Marshall
7th round, 243th overall

College: During a four-year career at Marshall, started 48 games and posted 189 tackles, 6.5 tackles for loss, two sacks, seven interceptions with one returned for a touchdown, 45 passes defended and two fumble recoveries with one returned for a score on kickoff coverage for the Thundering Herd. Jackson's 45 passes defended rank first in Marshall history and his 48 career starts rank 14th in program history. He earned all-conference recognition in all four of his collegiate seasons.

Mike Vrabel enters his third season as head coach in 2020. He was named to the position on Jan. 20, 2018, becoming the 19th head coach in franchise history.

In Vrabel's first two years, he directed the Titans to a 20-15 record, including a 2-1 mark in the 2019 playoffs. His 20 wins made up the second-highest total in franchise history for a head coach's first two seasons, behind only Jack Pardee's 21 wins from 1990–1991.

Vrabel became the first head coach in the organization's history to win multiple playoff games within his first two seasons. The Titans won a pair of road games—at New England in the wild card round and at Baltimore in the divisional round—to advance to the 2019 AFC championship game, falling at Kansas City to the eventual Super Bowl champion Chiefs.

The Titans began the 2019 campaign with two wins in their first six games but rallied to win seven of their final 10 games in the regular season. From the time the NFL went to its current playoff format in 1990 through 2019, 345 teams went 2-4 or worse in their first six games of a season. From that group, the Titans became only the third team to advance to a conference championship game, joining the 2002 Titans (2-4) and the 1996 Jacksonville Jaguars (2-4).

The 2019 Titans ranked in the NFL's top 10 in scoring margin (eighth, +71), turnover margin (sixth, +6), offensive yards per play (fourth, 6.12), rushing offense (third, 138.9 yards per game), red zone efficiency (first, 75.6 percent), total touchdowns (tied for third, 54) and third-down defense (eighth, 36.3 percent).

From 2018–2019, Vrabel's Titans were the second-least penalized NFL team (181). Over the same period of time, they were the fourth-best rushing offense (129.2 yards per game), the fifth-best scoring defense (19.8 points allowed per game) and the seventh-best third-down defense (36.4 percent).

In his first season as head coach, Vrabel directed the Titans to a 9-7 record. His nine wins tied for the fourth-highest total in franchise history by a first-year head coach.

With only 82 penalties enforced against the Titans in 2018, Vrabel's team led the NFL and set a franchise record (16-game season) for fewest penalties in a season. The 2018 Titans also placed third in points allowed (18.9 per game), eighth in total defense (333.4 yards per game), sixth in passing defense (216.9), second in red zone defense (44.7 percent touchdown rate) and seventh in rushing offense (126.4) in the league rankings.

Vrabel arrived in Tennessee with 18 years of NFL experience, including four seasons as a coach and 14 seasons as a player. His distinguished playing career included three Super Bowl wins (2001, 2003 and 2004), one Pro Bowl selection (2007) and an All-Pro honor (2007). Vrabel played in 206 NFL games and totaled 57 sacks, 496 tackles, 11 interceptions, 20 forced fumbles, nine fumble recoveries and 10 touchdown receptions. Additionally, his teams advanced to the playoffs eight times (20 postseason games), with Vrabel recording eight postseason sacks and two postseason touchdown receptions.

Vrabel joined the Titans after four seasons with the Houston Texans, spending the first three seasons (2014-16) coaching linebackers and one year (2017) as the team's defensive coordinator. During his time in Houston, the Texans built one of the best defenses in the NFL and experienced tremendous success as a team – earning two division titles (2015, 2016).

Between 2014-16, the Texans defense ranked third in the NFL in yards allowed per game (319.9) and net passing yards (218.4). Houston also ranked first in third-down defense (33.6), fourth in opponent completion percentage (59.5) and sixth in points allowed per game (19.8). The 2016 defense ranked number one in the NFL, for the first time in franchise history, in yards allowed (301.3).

In 2017, his first year as a defensive coordinator, the Texans finished the campaign with 19 players on injured reserve. Despite the injuries, Vrabel led the defense to the fifth-best third-down percentage in the NFL and a franchise-record 3.97 yards per carry by opponents. Houston also

Mike Vrabel's Career Playing Ledger:

Years	Team	Position
2009-10	Kansas City Chiefs	Linebacker
2001-08	New England Patriots	Linebacker
1997-00	Pittsburgh Steelers	Linebacker

had 18 different players record at least half a sack last year and 26 players tally at least one tackle for loss.

Vrabel spent his career playing and coaching with accomplished leaders, including Bill Belichick, Bill Cowher, Romeo Crennel, Urban Meyer, Bill O'Brien and Todd Haley.

As the Texans linebackers coach from 2014-16, Vrabel developed several players into top-notch performers, including Jadeveon Clowney (Pro Bowl, 2016), Whitney Mercilus, Benardrick McKinney (second-team All-Pro, 2016) and Brian Cushing. The 2015 Texans defense had the top third-down defense in the NFL (28.5 percent), which was the lowest percentage in franchise history and the lowest by any NFL team since the 2003 Titans (27.7 percent). The 2015 defense also set a franchise mark for sacks in a season with 45 - 22.5 coming from Vrabel's linebacking corps.

Prior to joining the NFL coaching ranks, Vrabel transitioned immediately from an NFL player to college coach. He started as the linebacker coach at Ohio State in 2011 and coached the defensive line from 2012–2013. The 2012 Buckeyes finished the season undefeated at 12-0. He also was named Big Ten Recruiter of the Year by ESPN.com in 2012.

Vrabel was selected by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the third round (91st overall) of the 1997 NFL Draft, after his playing career at Ohio State, where he earned All-America honors and Big Ten Conference Defensive Lineman of the Year in both 1995 and 1996.

A native of Akron, Ohio, Vrabel attended Walsh Jesuit High School. He and his wife, Jennifer, have two sons: Tyler and Carter.

20 WINS IN FIRST TWO YEARS

Mike Vrabel won nine games as a rookie head coach in 2018. Of the 19 head coaches in the organization's history, beginning in 1960, Vrabel became the eighth to reach nine wins in his first full season as head coach.

Then, in 2019, Vrabel's team again went 9-7 in the regular season. The club earned a wild card playoff berth and won two postseason games before falling in the AFC title game.

Including regular season and postseason games, Vrabel's 20 wins from 2018–2019 give him the second-highest total in franchise history for a head coach's first two seasons (not including interim seasons). Only Jack Pardee's 21 wins from 1990–1991 rank better than Vrabel's total.

Most combined regular season and postseason wins in a head coaches first two seasons, franchise history*:

VRABEL LEADS TITANS TO AFC TITLE GAME

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel became the franchise's sixth head coach in franchise annals to have the team in the playoffs within his first two full seasons.

Vrabel is the fourth head coach in Titans/Oilers history to win at least one playoff game in his first two full seasons, joining Mike Mularkey (2017 playoff victory), Jack Pardee (1991) and Lou Rymkus (1960 and 1961). He is the first head coach in the team's history to win multiple playoff games within his first two seasons.

Titans/Oilers head coaches in the playoffs within their first two full seasons:

Head Coach	1st Full Season as Head Coach	Postseason Berths in 1st 2 Seasons	Playoff Wins in 1st 2 Seasons

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN 2020

WHAT TO LOOK FOR – TEAM

- The Titans need three wins at Nissan Stadium to reach 100 all-time wins there, including postseason. They entered 2020 with a combined regular season and postseason record at Nissan Stadium (opened in 1999) of 97-75.
- The Titans can record their fifth consecutive season with a winning record. It would be the second-longest such streak in franchise history trailing only the Oilers' seven consecutive winning records from 1987 through 1993. Entering 2020, the Titans own the fourth-longest active streak of winning seasons in the NFL behind only the New England Patriots (19), Seattle Seahawks (eight) and Kansas City Chiefs (seven).

WR A.J. BROWN

- Needs 1,000 receiving yards to become the 11th player to reach 1,000 receiving yards in each of his first two NFL seasons. He would be the first NFL player since Michael Thomas (2016-17) and the only player in Titans/Oilers history other than Bill Groman (1960-61) to accomplish the feat.
- Needs 1,000 receiving yards, 50 receptions and five receiving touchdowns to become the ninth player in NFL history to accomplish the feat in each of his first two seasons.
- Needs five 100-yard receiving games to become the ninth NFL player with 10 such games through his first two seasons.

S KEVIN BYARD

- Needs three interceptions in 2020 (17 interceptions entering the season) to become the 15th player in franchise history to reach 20 career interceptions. The most recent Titans player to do so was safety Michael Griffin.
- Can record four or more interceptions for the fourth consecutive season. He would join Darryll Lewis (1994-98) as the only players to do so in franchise history.
- Needs three interceptions and two sacks to become the sixth player with at least 20 interceptions and five sacks through his first five seasons in NFL history. He would join Kenny Easley, David Fulcher, Michael Downs, Erik McMillan and Greg Wesley.

RB DERRICK HENRY

- Can become the ninth player in NFL history to reach 1,000 rushing yards and 12 rushing touchdowns in three consecutive seasons. The most recent player to do so was LaDainian Tomlinson (2002-07).
- Passed Lorenzo White (4,079 rushing yards) for fourth place on the franchise's all-time rushing list. He trails only Eddie George (10,009), Earl Campbell (8,574) and Chris Johnson (7,965).
- Can become the fourth player in franchise history with three consecutive 1,000-yard rushing seasons, joining Earl Campbell (1978–1981), Eddie George (1996–2000) and Chris Johnson (2008–2013).
- Needs 13 rushing touchdowns in 2020 (38 entering the season) to pass Chris Johnson for third place on the franchise's all-time rushing touchdowns list. He would sit behind only Earl Campbell (73) and Eddie George (64).
- Needs 1,500 rushing yards and 15 rushing touchdowns to become the fourth player in NFL history to accomplish the feat in consecutive seasons. He would join Terrell Davis (1997-98), Shaun Alexander (2004-05) and Larry Johnson (2005-06).

- Needs two games with at least 200 rushing yards to become the third player in NFL history with four such games in his first five seasons. Only Earl Campbell and LaDainian Tomlinson have previously accomplished the feat.

CB JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

- Can record his eighth career season with at least one interception return for a touchdown to tie Charles Woodson and Rod Woodson for first place in NFL history.

P BRETT KERN

- Can record his seventh total season and fourth consecutive campaign with a net punting average of at least 40.0 yards. No other punter in franchise history has had one such season.
- Needs 23 punts in 2020 (839 punts with the Titans entering the season) to pass Craig Hentrich (861) for the most career punts in franchise history.
- Became the seventh player in franchise history to play 12 seasons for the organization, joining Bruce Matthews (1983–2001), Elvin Bethea (1968–1983), Brad Hopkins (1993–2005), Gregg Bingham (1973–1983), Mike Munchak (1982–1993) and Craig Hentrich (1998–2009). Kern is the first to accomplish the feat exclusively in the "Titans era" (1999–present).
- Needs four games in 2020 (170 career games with the Titans entering the season) to pass Gregg Bingham (173) for fifth place on the franchise's career games played list, and Kern needs eight games to pass Craig Hentrich for fourth place. He would trail only Bruce Matthews (296), Elvin Bethea (210) and Brad Hopkins (194).

GM JON ROBINSON

- Can become the only Titans/Oilers general manager other than Mike Holovak (1989–1993) to oversee five consecutive winning seasons in his first five years on the job. Only two general managers in franchise history have presided over five total winning seasons with the organization: Bum Phillips and Holovak.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Can produce his fifth career season with at least 3,000 passing yards and his third career season with at least 4,000 passing yards.
- Can become the first player in franchise history to produce consecutive seasons with a passer rating of at least 100.0 (117.5 in 2019).
- Entered 2020 with a current streak of seven consecutive regular season games with at least two touchdown passes and extended the streak to nine games, which is the best streak of his career (five in 2015) and the best streak in franchise history.
- Entered 2020 with a current streak of 10 consecutive regular season games with at least one touchdown pass and extended the streak to 12 games, the longest streak by a Titans quarterback since Steve McNair's franchise-record 23 straight games from 2001 to 2002.

- Mike Vrabel can become the second head coach in franchise history to produce winning seasons in each of his first three seasons as head coach, joining Jack Pardee (four seasons: 1990–1993).

NISSAN STADIUM

In 2015, the Titans and Nissan North America announced the formation of a 20-year, exclusive naming-rights partnership that rebranded Nashville's downtown stadium as Nissan Stadium.

Nissan Stadium hosts all Titans home football games, Tennessee State University football games, the Music City Bowl, the CMA Music Festival and numerous other events.

The procurement of naming rights to Nissan Stadium fit the automotive company's 'Fewer, Bigger, Better' marketing strategy, which has included ongoing sponsorships of NBC's 'The Voice,' the Heisman House college football program and a major advertising presence in this year's Super Bowl. Nissan is also now the official automotive partner of the Tennessee Titans.

Nissan's ever-growing footprint in Tennessee includes vehicle and powertrain manufacturing facilities in Smyrna and Decherd respectively, along with its North American headquarters in Franklin.

The Nissan Smyrna Plant began operations in 1983 and employs more than 8,400 people. In 2014, the Smyrna plant assembled more than 648,000 vehicles, making it the highest volume automotive assembly plant in North America. Nissan also has a major manufacturing presence in Canton, Miss., along with research and development groups in California, Arizona and Michigan. In total, the company employs more than 22,000 employees in the U.S.

One component of the Titans-Nissan partnership is assisting charitable organizations throughout Middle Tennessee in an array of community outreach programs. A centerpiece of this is the annual "Taste of Titans" charitable event, for which Nissan serves as presenting sponsor. During the course of a 20-year relationship, a total of more than $1 million resulting from these annual events is anticipated to be distributed to local non-profit organizations.

Nissan Stadium is a city-owned venue that has housed the Titans since 1999. The naming rights agreement includes the opportunity for Nissan branding on the exterior of the stadium, as well as stadium signage and other unique displays inside the stadium. LP Building Products held the naming rights to the stadium from 2006 until the Nissan partnership was established in 2015.

WINNING AT HOME

Since the midway point of the 2016 season, the Titans have been one of the NFL's most successful teams at home. In that time, the Titans have won 21 of their 29 games at Nissan Stadium.

In 2018, the Titans won six games and lost twice at Nissan Stadium. They followed that with a 4-4 home record in 2019.

Since the weekend of their 2016 home victory over the Jaguars (Oct. 27, 2016), the Titans' winning percentage in home games is one of the highest in the NFL.

Highest winning percentage in home games (regular season) since Week 8 of 2016 (Oct. 27, 2016):

Team	Wins	Losses	Ties	Win Pct
1. New England Patriots	25	5	0	.833

FANS RETURN TO NISSAN STADIUM

On Sept. 17, the Titans announced that Nissan Stadium will open at limited capacity beginning with the Oct. 4 Titans home game against the Pittsburgh Steelers. The three October home games will gradually increase in capacity with the goal of reaching a fixed capacity for the remaining games in November and December.

The Oct. 4 game will be open to season ticket members up to 10 percent of the stadium's capacity, which is roughly 7,000 fans in the lower bowl and club levels. The next October home game (Oct. 11) will allow 12.5 percent and the third (Oct. 18) 15 percent. For November until the end of the season, capacity could reach 21 percent, which is the maximum capacity the facility can accommodate under current CDC guidelines. Outside of the seating bowl, suites will operate at a limited capacity.

"We are thrilled to welcome fans back to Nissan Stadium and can't thank Mayor Cooper and the Metro Nashville Public Health Department enough for their collaboration in making this possible," said Titans President and CEO Burke Nihill. "The health and safety of our fans, players and staff remains our top priority and we felt like a gradual capacity plan was the right call, knowing that we may need to be flexible as time goes on. We feel confident that our Safe Stadium Plan will give everyone a safe and comfortable experience as they return to our gates."

Detailed information on the Safe Stadium Plan can be found at www.tennesseetitans.com/safestadium. Key components include:

- Socially-distant seating pods accommodating parties of one to a maximum of six people
- Mobile ticketing and parking, to eliminate physical contact while scanning passes
- Mandatory face coverings at all times, except when actively eating or drinking
- Over 300 hand sanitizing stations throughout the stadium
- Individually-wrapped food items at concession stands
- Elimination of all smoking and vaping areas in the facility
- Health screenings and personal protective equipment for all Nissan Stadium employees
- A comprehensive cleaning plan during events for bathrooms and near concession areas

Fans will be asked to arrive early and head straight to the gates after they arrive. After consulting with local and national health experts, there will be no tailgating or pregame activities allowed outside of the stadium. The stadium will have dedicated security crews throughout Nissan Stadium to enforce all Safe Stadium policies.

TITANS ROSTER BREAKDOWN

FOUR CONSECUTIVE WINNING SEASONS

In 2019, the Titans recorded their fourth season with a winning record in four seasons since Jon Robinson was hired as general manager.

In the "Titans era" (1999–present), it marks the first time the team has had as many as three consecutive winning campaigns.

With 9-7 records every season from 2016 through 2019, the Titans own the fourth-longest active streak of winning seasons in the NFL through 2019. Only the New England Patriots (19), Seattle Seahawks (eight) and Kansas City Chiefs (seven) have longer streaks.

Most current consecutive winning seasons (through 2019):

Team	Total	Seasons
1. New England Patriots	19	2001–2019

LEAST PENALIZED TEAMS FROM 2018–2020

Under head coach Mike Vrabel, who was named to his current post in 2018, the Titans have been one of the NFL's least penalized teams.

From 2018–19, the Titans were called for the second-fewest total penalties in the NFL—181 total penalties.

In 2018, the Titans were called for only 82 penalties, leading the NFL and setting a team record for the lowest number in a 16-game season (since 1978, excluding strike-shortened 1982 and 1987 seasons). They received no more than four penalties in nine of their 16 games. The previous franchise record for fewest penalties in a 16-game season was 84 by the 1983 Oilers.

Fewest total penalties from 2018–2020:

Team	Penalties
1. Tennessee Titans	194
New England Patriots	194
3. Carolina Panthers	196
4. Minnesota Vikings	202
5. Miami Dolphins	213
6. New York Giants	216
7. Indianapolis Colts	217
8. Philadelphia Eagles	219
9. Chicago Bears	221
10. Green Bay Packers	224

TURNOVER DIFFERENTIAL

The Titans currently lead the NFL with a plus-five turnover differential in 2020. They have a total of six takeaways and one giveaway.

Highest turnover differential in 2020:

Team	Takeaways	Giveaways	Turnover Differential
1. Tennessee Titans	6	1	+5
2. Seattle Seahawks	6	2	+4
3. Baltimore Ravens	5	1	+4
4. New England Patriots	7	3	+4

8. Green Bay Packers	3	0	+3
9. (five tied)			+2

WINNING CLOSE GAMES

The Titans won their first three games of 2020 by a total of six points—a 16-14 victory at Denver followed by a 33-30 win against the Jaguars and a 31-30 win at Minnesota.

In 2019, with Ryan Tannehill piloting the offense, they earned a pair of three-point wins: 23-20 over the Los Angeles Chargers (Oct. 20) and 35-32 against the Kansas City Chiefs (Nov. 10).

Their five total wins in games decided by three points or less since the start of 2019 ties them with Houston for the most in the NFL.

Most wins in games decided by three points or less, 2019–2020:

Team	Wins
1. Tennessee Titans	5
Houston Texans	5
3. Seattle Seahawks	4
4. Indianapolis Colts	3

New Orleans Saints	3
San Francisco 49ers	3

TITANS REBOUND AFTER 2-4 START

After winning their 2019 regular season opener at Cleveland (Sept. 8), the Titans dropped four of their next five games to begin the season with a 2-4 record. From that point forward, they won nine of their last 13 games, including playoffs.

Since the NFL went to its current playoff format in 1990, 345 teams have gone 2-4 or worse in their first six games of a season. From that group, the Titans became the 21st team to earn a postseason berth.

Their wild card victory over the Patriots made the Titans the 10th team to win a playoff game and the 11th team to advance to the divisional round after faring no better than 2-4 in their first six games.

A week later, the Titans became the third such team to advance to the conference championship, joining the 2002 Titans (2-4) and the 1996 Jacksonville Jaguars (2-4).

As a franchise, the Titans/Oilers have advanced to the divisional round or beyond three times following a 2-4 or worse start through six games. In addition to the 2019 squad and the 2002 club, the 1993 Oilers went to the divisional round with a first-round bye.

NFL teams that advanced to the divisional playoff round and beyond after going 2-4 or worse in their first six regular season games, 1990–2019:

Team	Season	First 6 Games	Final Reg. Season W-L	Advanced To (Round)

Quarterback Ryan Tannehill is in his ninth NFL season and his second campaign with the Titans in 2020. He received a multi-year contract extension during the 2020 offseason.

In 2019, Tannehill took control as the team's starting quarterback in Week 7 and subsequently led the Titans to the playoffs and an appearance in the AFC championship game. In his 13 starts, including the regular season and playoffs, the Titans went 9-4.

Tannehill set single-season franchise records and led the NFL with a 117.5 passer rating and a passing average of 9.6 yards per attempt. His passer rating was the fourth-highest figure in NFL history among qualifiers. Additionally, he set a club record and placed third in the NFL with a 70.3 completion percentage.

Tannehill was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2019 and was named to his first career Pro Bowl. He also won the Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year Award.

Originally a first-round selection (eighth overall) by the Miami Dolphins in the 2012 NFL Draft, Tannehill was acquired by the Titans in a trade with the Dolphins on March 15, 2019. The Titans sent a 2019 seventh-round pick and a 2020 fourth-round selection to Miami in exchange for Tannehill and a 2019 sixth-rounder.

Over his seven seasons in Miami, he started 88 games, threw for 20,434 yards and 123 touchdowns, and rushed for 1,210 yards and six scores. When he left Miami, he ranked second in franchise history behind Chad Pennington in both career completion percentage (62.8) and career passer rating (87.0). He authored 13 game-winning drives for the Dolphins.

During the first four seasons of his career (2012-15), Tannehill's passing yardage total—15,460 yards—was the third highest mark in NFL history, behind only Peyton Manning and Dan Marino. Tannehill's two 4,000-yard passing seasons (2015 and 2014) were the only ones recorded by a Dolphins quarterback other than Marino (six times). The Dolphins reached the playoffs in 2016, breaking an eight-year postseason drought.

A native of Big Spring, Texas, Tannehill attended Texas A&M, where he earned honorable mention All-America honors as a senior. He played both quarterback and wide receiver, passing for 5,450 yards and 42 touchdowns and adding 112 receptions for 1,596 yards and 10 scores.

➤ At Denver (9/14), opened the season on Monday Night Football with a 97.9 passer rating after completing 29 of 43 passes for 249 yards with two touchdowns and no interceptions. He also rushed for 14 yards on three attempts. He registered his 17th career game-winning drive and his fourth as a member of the Titans. On the team's final drive, which ended with the go-ahead 25-yard field goal by Stephen Gostkowski, Tannehill completed five of seven attempts for 40 yards. His two touchdown passes included a one-yard pass to tight end MyCole Pruitt in the second quarter and a one-yard touchdown toss to tight end Jonnu Smith in the fourth quarter. He extended his streak to 11 consecutive regular season games with at least one touchdown pass and extended his streak to eight consecutive regular season games with at least two touchdown passes. His 43 passing attempts were his most in a game since Sept. 18, 2016 (45 vs. New England).

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), registered his 100th career start in the regular season and recorded a 145.7 passer rating—the seventh best single-game passer rating in franchise history (minimum 20 attempts)—by completing 18 of 24 attempts for 239 yards with four touchdowns and no interceptions. It was the best passer rating for the club since Marcus Mariota's 149.8 against Green Bay on Nov. 13, 2016. It was Tannehill's second-highest career passer rating in a game with a minimum of 20 attempts, topped only by his 155.3 against the Oakland Raiders on Sept. 23, 2018. He tied his career high with four touchdown passes, becoming the first Titans quarterback with four or more touchdown passes in a game since Mariota's 2016 performance against Green Bay. Tannehill's four touchdown passes against the Jaguars included a 13-yard pass to tight end Jonnu Smith and a nine-yard strike to wide receiver Corey Davis in the first quarter, a four-yard touchdown to Smith in the second quarter, and finally an 18-yard toss to wide receiver Adam Humphries in the third quarter. He registered his 18th career game with three or more touchdown passes and reached 150 career touchdown passes on his third touchdown pass of the day. He extended his career-best streak and set a franchise record with his ninth consecutive regular season game with at least two touchdown passes. Marcus Mariota established the previous team record with eight consecutive games in 2016 with two touchdown passes. He also extended his streak to 12 consecutive regular season games with at least one touchdown pass, the longest streak by a Titans quarterback since Steve McNair set the franchise record from 2001 to 2002 with 23 consecutive games with a touchdown pass. He posted his NFL-high 10th game with at least two touchdown passes and no interceptions since he stepped into the starting lineup for the Titans in Week 7 of 2019, including the regular season and postseason. Tannehill owns 27 such games in his career. He registered his 18th career game-winning drive and his fifth as a member of the Titans.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), completed 23 of 37 passes for 321 yards with one interception. He registered his 20th career 300-yard passing game and his first of 2020. He had three passes of more than 35 yards: a 44-yard completion to Kalif Raymond during the opening series, a 38-yard strike to Corey Davis in the third quarter and a 61-yard bomb to Raymond in the third quarter. He became the first NFL quarterback since Matt Ryan in 2015 with a game-winning drive in each of his team's first three games of a season, logging his 19th career game-winning drive and his sixth as a member of the Titans. He led the offense to eight total scoring drives, including five scoring drives in the second half.

TEAM SINGLE-GAME PASSER RATING

On Sept. 20, 2020, Ryan Tannehill recorded a 145.7 passer rating against the Jacksonville Jaguars. It qualified as the seventh best single-game passer rating in franchise history (minimum 20 attempts). He completed 18 of 24 attempts for 239 yards with four touchdowns and no interceptions. It was Tannehill's second-highest career passer rating in a game with a minimum of 20 attempts, topped only by his 155.3 as a member of the Miami Dolphins against the Oakland Raiders on Sept. 23, 2018.

SEASON GAMES WITH A 130 RATING

Ryan Tannehill registered a total of six single-game passer ratings of 130 or greater in only 10 starts during the 2019 regular season. He tied Seattle's Russell Wilson with the most such performances in 2019 and also tied for the most by any NFL starting quarterback in any season since 1960. Green Bay's Aaron Rodgers (2011) and Dallas' Tony Romo (2014) are the only other quarterbacks to accomplish the feat.

In franchise history, former Oilers quarterback Chris Chandler previously had the most season games with a 130-plus passer rating, with four in 1995.

Most starts by a quarterback with a passer rating of 130.0 or greater, 1960–2019:

Player	Season	Team	Games
1. Ryan Tannehill	2019	Tennessee Titans	6

2 TD PASSES W/ LESS THAN 2 INTS

To end the 2019 regular season, Ryan Tannehill completed multiple touchdown passes for seven consecutive games, one game shy of Marcus Mariota's 2016 franchise record of eight consecutive games with multiple touchdown passes.

However, Tannehill did establish a franchise benchmark in his final seven contests for most consecutive games with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions. Over those seven games, he had two total interceptions—one each on Dec. 8 (at Oakland) and Dec. 15 (vs. Houston)—to go along with 19 touchdown passes and a 129.8 passer rating.

During Mariota's 2016 season, he registered the previous franchise-best streak of four straight games with at least two touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions.

Most consecutive games in a season in franchise history with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions:

Player	Season	Consec. Games
1. Ryan Tannehill	2019	7
2. Marcus Mariota	2016	4
Warren Moon	1990	4
4. Marcus Mariota	2016	3
Steve McNair	2001	3
Don Trull	1968	3
George Blanda	1963	3

Tannehill's streak was the best in the NFL in 2019. Drew Brees, Kirk Cousins and Jacoby Brissett had runs of four consecutive games with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions, tying for second.

Most consecutive games in 2019 with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions:

Player	Team	Consec. Games

BAUGH, MONTANA & TANNEHILL

During the 2019 season, Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill accomplished a statistical feat only reached previously by a pair of Pro Football Hall of Fame quarterbacks.

Tannehill's season statistics included a 70.3 completion percentage and an average of 9.6 yards per passing attempt.

In the history of the NFL, only two previous qualifying passers have enjoyed a season in which they completed at least 70.0 percent of their passes and averaged at least 9.0 yards per attempt: Sammy Baugh and Joe Montana.

Montana led the San Francisco 49ers to a Super Bowl XXIV title and won the NFL MVP award following a 1989 season in which he completed 70.2 percent of his passes (271 of 386) and averaged 9.1 yards per attempt (3,521 yards).

Baugh directed the Washington Redskins to the NFL Championship game in 1945, while completing 70.3 percent of his passes (128 of 182) and averaging 9.2 yards per attempt (1,669 yards).

Players in NFL history with a completion rate of at least 70.0 percent and a passing average of at least 9.0 yards per attempt (qualifiers only):

Player	Team	Year	Comp %	Yards/Att
Ryan Tannehill	Tennessee	2019	70.3	9.6
Joe Montana	San Francisco	1989	70.2	9.1
Sammy Baugh	Washington	1945	70.3	9.2

#22 - RB DERRICK HENRY

6-3, 247, 5th Year, Alabama

Running back Derrick Henry is in his fifth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 45th overall pick in the second round of the 2016 NFL Draft and received a multi-year contract extension in 2020.

In 2019, Henry was named to his first career Pro Bowl and added second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors after leading the NFL in rushing in 2019. In 15 games, he totaled 1,540 yards on 303 carries (5.1 avg.), joining Billy Cannon (AFL, 1961), Earl Campbell (1978-80) and Chris Johnson (2009) as the only running backs in franchise history to lead their respective leagues in rushing. Henry's single-season total ranked fourth in franchise annals behind Johnson's 2009 total (2,006) and Campbell's 1979 (1,697) and 1980 (1,934) performances. He was named the FedEx Ground Player of the Year.

With 16 rushing touchdowns in 2019, Henry tied for the NFL lead (Aaron Jones) and finished second in team history (19 by Campbell in 1979). Adding his two receiving touchdowns, his 18 total touchdowns were third in the NFL and tied for second in franchise annals (19 by Campbell in 1979; 18 by Bill Groman in 1961).

Henry's performance late in the 2019 season was instrumental in the team's run to the AFC championship game. Over the final six games of the regular season plus three playoff appearances, Henry registered seven 100-yard games. During a three-game stretch (Dec. 29 at Houston, Jan. 4 at New England and Jan. 11 at Baltimore), he became the first player in NFL history to rush for at least 180 yards in three consecutive regular season and/or postseason games.

Henry authored his first career 1,000-yard season in 2018 and the 28th 1,000-yard rushing season in franchise history, totaling 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns on 215 carries—all then-career highs.

His 2018 rushing yardage ranked second in the AFC to Joe Mixon's 1,168 yards, and he finished seventh in the NFL. Henry's 12 rushing touchdowns tied James Connor for third place in the NFL behind Todd Gurley (17) and Alvin Kamara (14).

Henry was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2018. His 625 rushing yards in the month were the most by any NFL player in any month during the season.

Against the Jacksonville Jaguars on Dec. 6, 2018, Henry recorded one of the greatest single games in franchise history in front of a national television audience. He broke Johnson's single-game franchise record (228) with 238 rushing yards, including a 99-yard touchdown run. He joined Tony Dorsett as the only two players in NFL history to rush for a 99-yard score.

In 2017, Henry shared time in the Titans backfield with DeMarco Murray. Henry led the team with 744 rushing yards on 176 carries, and he added 11 receptions for 136 yards and a touchdown. His five rushing touchdowns tied for second on the club.

As a rookie in 2016, Henry played in 15 games with one start, splitting reps in the backfield with Murray. He carried the ball 110 times for 490 yards and five touchdowns and added 137 yards on 13 receptions. Henry became the third rookie for the franchise in the "Titans era" to score at least five touchdowns in a season, joining Vince Young (seven rushing touchdowns in 2006) and Johnson (nine rushing and one receiving in 2008).

The Heisman Trophy winner played three seasons (2013–2015) at the University of Alabama, where he set numerous school and SEC records while helping his team win a National Championship in 2015. He played in 39 games and totaled 602 carries for 3,591 yards and 42 rushing touchdowns and added 285 yards on 17 career receptions with three receiving scores. During Alabama's victory over Clemson in the 2016 College Football Playoff National Championship, he broke Shaun Alexander's record for most career rushing yards in Alabama history.

In his final collegiate season, Henry rushed for an Alabama and Southeastern Conference record 2,219 yards, which led the nation and ranked fifth in FBS history. He recorded 100-yard rushing games 10 times and had four 200-yard games during the season. His 28 rushing touchdowns were a national best and an SEC record, snapping Tim Tebow and Tre Mason's old mark of 23. In addition to the Heisman, he also won the Doak Walker Award, Walter Camp Award and Maxwell Award, among a multitude of other honors.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), rushed for 116 yards on 31 carries on Monday Night Football to notch his 14th career 100-yard rushing game (regular season and playoffs). He extended his streak to 10 consecutive regular season games with at least 80 scrimmage yards. His 31 rushing attempts made up the third-highest total of his career in the regular season.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), rushed for 84 yards on 25 carries and became the fifth player in franchise history to reach the 4,000-yard career rushing mark (4,033). He registered his third consecutive regular season game with at least 25 carries, dating back Dec. 29, 2019.
- At Minnesota (9/27), rushed for 119 yards on 26 carries with two touchdowns, notching his 15th career 100-yard rushing game (regular season and playoffs). He became the fifth player in NFL history to have 25 or more rushing attempts in each of his team's first three games of a season, joining Buffalo's O.J. Simpson (1975), Dallas' Emmitt Smith (1994), Indianapolis' Edgerrin James (2002) and Houston's Arian Foster (2012). Henry passed Lorenzo White (4,079 career rushing yards) for fourth place on the franchise's all-time rushing list. He scored his first touchdown of the season on a one-yard plunge in the third quarter and added another one-yard touchdown run on the following series. He tallied his ninth career regular season game with at least two touchdown runs. It was his 11th career regular season game with at least two total touchdowns. He became the second player in franchise history to record 12 consecutive regular season games with at least 80 scrimmage yards, joining Chris Johnson (12 from 2009 to 2010) as the only Titans/Oilers to do so. Henry added 11 receiving yards on two catches to give him 130 total scrimmage yards, marking his 10th career regular season game with at least 130 scrimmage yards. He became the fourth player in franchise history to hit 40 career rushing touchdowns, joining Earl Campbell (73), Eddie George (64) and Chris Johnson (50).

RUSHING IN THE FOURTH QUARTER

Since 2017, running back Derrick Henry has accumulated more rushing yards in the fourth quarter than any other NFL running back.

In 2019, 328 of Henry's 1,540 rushing yards came in the fourth quarter, which ranked third in the NFL.

In 2017, Henry accumulated 390 of his 744 rushing yards in the fourth quarter. The only player with more rushing yards in the fourth quarter that season was Kansas City's league-leading rusher, Kareem Hunt.

FIVE CONSECUTIVE GAMES WITH RUSHING TD

Derrick Henry scored at least one rushing touchdown in five consecutive team games from Nov. 3-Dec. 8, 2019. His feat is tied for the longest such streak in franchise history. DeMarco Murray (2016) and Earl Campbell (twice—1979 and 1983) are the only other franchise players with five consecutive team games with a rushing touchdown.

Henry recorded four consecutive games with a rushing touchdown in 2018.

Most consecutive team games with a rushing touchdown, franchise history:

3 CONSEC. GAMES W/ 200 SCRIMMAGE YDS

From the final week of the 2019 regular season (Dec. 29 at Houston) through the Titans' first two playoff games (Jan. 4 at New England and Jan. 11 at Baltimore), Derrick Henry became the first player in NFL history to rush for at least 180 yards in three consecutive regular season or postseason games.

He also became only the third player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger to have 200 scrimmage yards in three consecutive games. The other two players to accomplish the feat were Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton (1977) and Pittsburgh Steelers running back Le'Veon Bell (2014).

During the 2019 regular season and playoffs, Henry and Carolina Panthers running back Christian McCaffrey (two) were the only two players with multiple 200-yard scrimmage games. Together they accounted for five of the 14 such individual performances.

Most consecutive games with at least 200 scrimmage yards in the regular season and/or postseason, 1970–present:

RUSHING YARDS IN A TITANS PLAYOFF GAME

On Jan. 4, 2020, Derrick Henry rushed for 182 yards and one touchdown on 34 attempts in a wild card playoff victory at New England. In doing so, he set a new franchise single-game postseason record for rushing yards in a game, surpassing Eddie George's 162 yards at Indianapolis on Jan. 16, 2000.

One week later, on Jan. 11, 2020, Henry broke his own record, going for 195 rushing yards on 30 carries at Baltimore.

Henry now owns two of the top three rushing games in franchise postseason history.

SCRIMMAGE YARDS IN A TITANS PLAYOFF GAME

Derrick Henry's 182 rushing yards and 22 receiving yards in the team's wild card playoff victory at New England on Jan. 4, 2020 gave him a franchise-record 204 scrimmage yards.

Henry broke his own record of 191 scrimmage yards in a wild card playoff contest at Kansas City on Jan. 6, 2018 (156 rushing, 35 receiving).

On Jan. 11, 2020, one week after establishing the current record, Henry had 202 scrimmage yards (195 rushing, seven receiving) at Baltimore, giving him the three biggest scrimmage yards totals in franchise postseason history.

Prior to Henry, the organization record stood for 57 years. It was set on Jan. 1, 1961, when Billy Cannon had 178 scrimmage yards against the Los Angeles Chargers.

RUSHING YARDS IN A SINGLE POSTSEASON

Derrick Henry accumulated 446 rushing yards during the 2019 playoffs. He had 182 yards on 34 carries in the wild card round at New England, followed by 195 yards on 30 attempts in the divisional round at Baltimore. In the AFC championship game, he had 69 yards on 19 rushing attempts.

Henry's average of 148.7 rushing yards per game ranked fourth in NFL history for players with at least two games played. Only a trio of Pro Football Hall of Fame members—Denver Broncos running back Terrell Davis (156.0 in 1998), Los Angeles Raiders running back Marcus Allen (155.3 in 1983) and Washington Redskins running back John Riggins (152.5 in 1982) have averaged more rushing yards in a single postseason than Henry.

In Titans/Oilers history, Eddie George established the previous record for average rushing yards in a single postseason during the 1999 playoffs. In four games, George carried the ball 108 times for 449 yards, or an average of 112.3 yards per contest.

Most rushing yards per game in a single NFL postseason (minimum two games):

Player	Team	Season	Games	Rush Yards	Per Game
1. Terrell Davis	Denver	1998	3	468	156.0
2. Marcus Allen	L.A. Raiders	1983	3	466	155.3

9. Brian Westbrook	Philadelphia	2006	2	257	128.5
10. Fred Taylor	Jacksonville	1998	2	248	124.0

George's 449 yards during the team's run to Super Bowl XXXIV also established the franchise benchmark for most total rushing yards in a single postseason. Henry came within three yards of the mark in one fewer game.

Most rushing yards in a single postseason, franchise history:

Player	Season	Games	Rush Yards
1. Eddie George	1999	4	449
2. Derrick Henry	2019	3	446
3. Earl Campbell	1978	3	264
4. Steve McNair	1999	4	209
5. Derrick Henry	2017	2	184

Henry's 2019 playoff rushing yardage total ranked sixth in NFL history. It was the most by any NFL player since George's 1999 postseason.

DECEMBER TO REMEMBER

In five games in the month of December 2018, Derrick Henry's rushing totals included 97 carries for 625 yards and eight touchdowns. His 625 yards were the most by any NFL player in any calendar month in 2018.

Additionally, Henry authored one of only four calendar months for the franchise since 1970 in which a player rushed for at least 600 yards. Chris Johnson (800 rushing yards in November 2009) and Earl Campbell (633 in October 1980; 662 in November 1980) were the organization's only other players to accomplish the feat in that timespan.

Henry's December rushing totals included 40 yards against the New York Jets (Dec. 2), a franchise-record 238 yards against the Jacksonville Jaguars (Dec. 6), 170 yards at the New York Giants (Dec. 16), 84 yards against the Washington Redskins (Dec. 22) and 93 yards against the Indianapolis Colts (Dec. 30).

For his efforts, Henry was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month.

Titans/Oilers with 500 rushing yards in any calendar month from 1970-2019 (includes playoffs):

10. Earl Campbell	1981	October	510

RUSHING YARDS IN A TWO-GAME SPAN

Following a franchise-record 238 rushing yards against the Jacksonville Jaguars on Dec. 6, 2018, Derrick Henry then totaled 170 rushing yards at the New York Giants on Dec. 16 to give him a franchise record of 408 rushing yards in a two-game span.

The previous record of 405 rushing yards in two games was set by Earl Campbell in 1980, when Campbell posted 203 yards against Tampa Bay (Oct. 19) and 202 yards against Cincinnati (Oct. 26).

Most total rushing yards in two consecutive games, franchise history:

Player	Game 1	Yds	Game 2	Yds	Total

RECORD-SETTING NIGHT

On Dec. 6, 2018, Derrick Henry had one of the most memorable rushing performances in NFL history on Thursday Night Football. He rushed for a team-record 238 yards and four touchdowns (tied), including a 99-yard touchdown run.

WATCH: Highlights from Derrick Henry's performance on 12/6/18

Henry's 238 rushing yards set a new franchise record, breaking Chris Johnson's mark of 228 yards against the Jaguars on Nov. 1, 2009. It was the highest single-game rushing total in the NFL in 2018 and the league's highest total since Doug Martin's 251 rushing yards for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers against the Oakland Raiders on Nov. 4, 2012.

Most rushing yards in a game, franchise history:

Player	Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards
1. Derrick Henry	12/6/18	Jacksonville	238
2. Chris Johnson	11/1/09	Jacksonville	228
3. Eddie George	8/31/97	Oakland	216

8. Eddie George	12/9/99	Oakland	199
Earl Campbell	11/20/78	Miami	199
10. Chris Johnson	9/20/09	Houston	197

In the second quarter, Henry took a handoff from Marcus Mariota inside his own one-yard line and raced 99 yards for a touchdown. It was the second 99-yard run in NFL history, tying Tony Dorsett's record-setting touchdown run for the Dallas Cowboys against the Minnesota Vikings on Jan. 3, 1983. It was also the team record, topping Johnson's 94-yard touchdown run against the New York Jets on Dec. 17, 2012. The only other runs in franchise history of at least 90 yards were Johnson's 91-yard rush against the Houston Texans on Sept. 20, 2009 and a 91-yarder by Sid Blanks against the Jets on Dec. 13, 1964.

Henry's 99-yard touchdown run tied for the longest scrimmage play in NFL history. It was the 15th such play, including his and Dorsett's runs and 13 passing plays. The last 99-yard scrimmage play before Henry's was New York Giants wide receiver Victor Cruz's 99-yard reception from Eli Manning against the New York Jets on Dec. 24, 2011.

Longest runs from scrimmage in NFL history:

Player	Team	Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards
1. Derrick Henry	Tennessee	12/6/18	Jacksonville	99t
Tony Dorsett	Dallas	1/3/83	Minnesota	99t
3. Ahman Green	Green Bay	12/28/03	Denver	98t

Andy Uram	Green Bay	10/8/39	Chi. Cardinals	97t
Bob Gage	Pittsburgh	12/4/49	Chi. Bears	97t

Henry scored on a three-yard run in the first quarter, a 99-yard run in the second quarter, a 16-yard run in the third quarter, and finally a 54-yard run in the third quarter. He tied the franchise record and became the third player in franchise history to rush for four touchdowns in a game, joining Earl Campbell (against Miami on Nov. 20, 1978) and Lorenzo White (against Cleveland on Dec. 9, 1990).

The only franchise player with more overall touchdowns in a game than Henry was Oilers running back Billy Cannon, who had five total touchdowns (three rushing, two receiving) at the New York Titans on Dec. 10, 1961. Henry became the first NFL player with four rushing touchdowns in a game since New England Patriots running back Jonas Gray at Indianapolis on Nov. 16, 2014.

Most rushing touchdowns in a game, franchise history:

Player	Date	Opponent	Rushing Touchdowns
1. Derrick Henry	12/6/18	Jacksonville	4
Lorenzo White	12/9/90	Cleveland	4
Earl Campbell	11/20/78	Miami	4
4. (several tied)			3

Additionally, Henry's rushing performance against the Jaguars accomplished the following:

- He became the ninth NFL player since 1975 with at least one 90-yard run and at least one 60-yard reception in his career. The others were Tony Dorsett, Garrison Hearst, Tiki Barber, Chris Johnson, Jamaal Charles, Herschel Walker, Warrick Dunn and Adrian Peterson.
- Henry became the seventh NFL player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with at least four rushing touchdowns and at least 200 rushing yards in a game, joining Clinton Portis, Barry Sanders, Doug Martin, Jonas Gray, Mike Anderson and Corey Dillon. Henry became the first to accomplish the feat in fewer than 20 carries (17).
- Henry recorded his NFL-high three rushing attempts of at least 70 yards since the beginning of the 2017. Leonard Fournette (two) was the only other player with more than one through 14 weeks of the 2018 campaign.
- He matched former Titans running back Chris Johnson as the only players in NFL history with a rushing touchdown of at least 90 yards and a rushing touchdown of at least 50 yards in the same game. Johnson accomplished the feat against the Houston Texans on Sept. 20, 2009.
- His 24 points tied for the fourth-highest single-game total in franchise history, trailing only Billy Cannon (30 on Dec. 10, 1961), Rob Bironas (26 on Oct. 21, 2007) and George Blanda (26 on Sept. 18, 1960). Earl Campbell (Nov. 20, 1978) and Lorenzo White (Dec. 9, 1990) also had 24 points on four touchdowns in a single game.
- His 238 rushing yards and four rushing touchdowns were each the most in any Thursday Night Football game in history.

MORE TITANS RUNNING BACKS

41 - RB/FB KHARI BLASINGAME 6-0, 233, 2nd Year, Vanderbilt

➤ Blasingame was signed by the Titans to their active roster from the Minnesota Vikings' practice squad on Nov. 13, 2019.

➤ In his rookie season (2019), he saw action in six games with three starts at fullback, catching four passes for 54 yards and collecting two special teams tackles, tying for the team lead in special teams tackles twice in 2019 (at IND, at NE).

➤ The former Vanderbilt product played in all three postseason contests with a start at fullback and notched two special teams tackles and a forced fumble on coverage units.

➤ Made his first career start in his NFL debut against Jacksonville (11/24/19).

➤ Amassed 997 rushing yards and 15 rushing scores as well as 35 catches for 380 yards and two receiving touchdowns during his collegiate career at Vanderbilt.

➤ The New Market, Ala., native was originally signed by the Minnesota Vikings as a rookie free agent on May 3, 2019.

32 - RB DARRYNTON EVANS5-10, 203, Rookie, Appalachian State

- The Oak Hill, Fla., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (93rd overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.
- In three on-field seasons at Appalachian State (2016, 2018-19), Evans appeared in 39 games and made 22 starts.
- He was a two-time All-Sun Belt first-team selection and was the Sun Belt's Offensive Player of the Year in 2019. Evans was a two-time Sun Belt Championship Game MVP and MVP of the 2019 New Orleans Bowl.
- He finished his career with 2,884 rushing yards (ninth all-time at Appalachian State) despite being the primary running back for just 23 career games. Set school records for most career rushes without a fumble (482) and single-season rushes without a fumble (255 in 2019). Had 4,642 all-purpose yards, including 1,439 yards on kickoff returns and 319 yards as a receiver, plus 14 passing yards on a forward-flipped jet sweep. Scored 34 total touchdowns with 25 rushing, six receiving and a program-record three as a kick returner. Totaled 11 runs of at least 50 yards in his final two seasons.

28 - RB JEREMY McNICHOLS*5-9, 205, 1st Year, Boise State

- The Long Beach, Calif. native was re-signed by the Titans on August 26, 2020. He previously spent time on the Titans practice squad in 2018 and played the 2019 preseason with Tennessee, rushing for 108 yards on 26 carries. He also scored a touchdown on a 15-yard completion.
 - Originally a fifth-round pick by Tampa Bay in the 2017 NFL Draft out of Boise State, McNichols has also spent time with the Jaguars, Bears, Broncos, Colts, and 49ers, playing in five games and registering four carries for eight yards.
 - His junior year at Boise State (2016), he finished with 1,709 rushing yards (third in Boise State single-season history) and 23 rushing touchdowns (fourth) on 314 attempts (second). McNichols also caught 37 passes for 474 yards and four touchdowns. His 27 total touchdowns ranked second in the nation and third all-time in a single season at Boise State, while his 2,255 all-purpose yards were the second-most in a season in Boise State history.
 - He set a Boise State record with 40 carries against Colorado State and posted just the fifth 100-100 game (100 rushing yards and 100 receiving yards) in Boise State history against BYU.
- 2020 Notes:
- Spent the first two weeks of the 2020 season on the practice squad but played in each of the first two games after being elevated to the active roster (standard elevation).
 - Signed to the 53-man roster from the practice squad on Sept. 23.

20 - RB SENORISE PERRY*6-0, 210, 6th Year, Louisville

- Perry was signed by the Titans as a free agent on April 30, 2020 after originally signing as a rookie free agent with the Chicago Bears in 2014 and later spending time with the Dolphins and Bills.
 - Prior to joining the Titans, his totals included 11 rushing attempts for 33 yards and three receptions for three yards in 59 career games. He also returned 23 career kickoffs for 456 yards (19.8 avg.).
 - In 2019, he appeared in 11 games for the Bills, totaling three carries for three yards. He added six special teams tackles, which ranked second on the team.
 - In four seasons (2010-13) at Louisville, he played in 46 games with six starts and posted 289 carries for 1,409 yards and 18 touchdowns to go along with 36 receptions for 359 yards and a score. Tallied 22 kickoff returns for 513 yards. Collected 30 tackles and a forced fumble on special teams.
- 2020 Notes:
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), totaled two carries for nine yards, including a six-yard run for a first down during a third-quarter touchdown drive. They were his first two rushing attempts with the Titans.
 - Placed on injured reserve on Sept. 23.

#81 - TE JONNU SMITH6-3, 248, 4th Year, Florida InternationalClick for complete bio

Tight end Jonnu Smith is in his fourth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the third round (100th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

In 2019, Smith returned from a serious knee injury in 2018 to play in all 16 games with a career-high 14 starts. He set career highs with 35 receptions and 439 receiving yards and tied his career high with three touchdown catches. In the playoffs, he started all three games and contributed six receptions for 59 yards and one touchdown. He was named the team's 2019 Ed Block Courage Award recipient.

Smith's 2018 campaign came to a premature end when he suffered a knee injury against the Jacksonville Jaguars on Dec. 6 and was subsequently placed on injured reserve on Dec. 11. Prior to the injury, he played in 13 games with 12 starts and achieved then-career highs with 20 receptions, 258 receiving yards and three touchdowns. He led the club's tight ends in all three categories at the time of his injury.

During the 2017 regular season, Smith was one of three rookie tight ends to appear in all 16 games (Gerald Everett and David Njoku) and one of two rookie tight ends with at least 13 starts (O.J. Howard). He caught 18 passes for 157 yards and two touchdowns, ranking fifth among all rookie tight end in receptions. He also caught three passes for 19 yards in two postseason games.

Smith concluded his four-year career at Florida International University's all-time leader among tight ends in receptions and receiving yards, totaling 178 receptions for 2,001 yards and 18 touchdowns. On the school's all-time receiving list, regardless of position, Smith finished fourth in receptions, fifth in receiving yards and third in receiving touchdowns.

Smith finished his collegiate career registering at least one reception in every game he played. The 43-game streak was the second-longest streak of its kind in school annals.

During his senior campaign, he started 11 games and earned second-team All-Conference USA honors. He registered 42 receptions for 506 yards and four touchdowns.

As a sophomore (2014), led all college tight ends with 61 receptions, 710 receiving yards and eight touchdown catches.

➤ At Denver (9/14), totaled four receptions for 36 yards, including a one-yard touchdown reception on a pass from Ryan Tannehill in the fourth quarter. It was his ninth career touchdown reception. He also recorded a 22-yard reception on a screen play in the first quarter.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), led the team with a career-high 84 receiving yards on four receptions, including a pair of touchdown catches. He set a career long with a 63-yard reception on the first play from scrimmage. His touchdowns included a 13-yard grab in the first quarter and a four-yard reception in the second quarter. It marked his first career game with multiple touchdowns. He improved his season total to three touchdown receptions after also posting a one-yard touchdown catch in the season opener at Denver, and it marked the third time in his career with at least one touchdown in back-to-back games. He improved his career total to 11 touchdown receptions. Additionally, he drew a 22-yard pass interference penalty in the second quarter on third down.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with five receptions for a total of 61 yards. He went over the 1,000-yard career receiving mark with his 21-yard grab in the third quarter.

#11 - WR A.J. BROWN

6-1, 226, 2nd Year, Mississippi

Wide receiver A.J. Brown is in his second NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the second round (51st overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

As a rookie, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category, totaling 52 catches for 1,051 yards and eight touchdowns. He added a 49-yard rushing touchdown. Among all rookies in franchise history, Brown ranked third in receiving yards and fifth in receptions, and he tied for the third-highest receiving touchdown total.

Brown led the 2019 NFL rookie class in receiving yards and total touchdowns, and he tied for the rookie lead in touchdown receptions. He also placed fifth among rookies in receptions. Among all NFL players in 2019—rookies and veterans—Brown finished second in receiving average (20.2), behind only the Los Angeles Chargers' Mike Williams (20.4).

During a three-year career at Mississippi (2016-18), Brown became the program's all-time leading receiver with 2,984 yards. He ranked third in school history with 189 receptions and fifth all-time with 19 touchdowns. Brown averaged 15.8 yards per catch and 82.9 yards per game, and he tallied the most 100-yard receiving games in Ole Miss history with 12. He became the only receiver in Ole Miss history to tally 60 or more receptions in back-to-back seasons.

In 2018, Brown started all 12 games and set Ole Miss' single-season receiving records in yards (1,320) and catches (85), leading the SEC in both categories. His 1,320 receiving yards ranked seventh in the nation. Brown caught six touchdowns, averaging 110.0 yards per game, and he topped the 100-yard receiving mark in six contests. He earned AP first-team All-SEC and third-team All-American honors for the second consecutive season.

Brown was selected in the 19th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball Draft by the San Diego Padres as a centerfielder and he participated in the team's extended spring training program each summer from 2016-18.

He is a native of Starkville, Miss.

2020 Notes:

➤ At Denver (9/14), posted five receptions for 39 yards. It was his 17th consecutive regular season game with at least one reception to begin his career. On the game-winning drive late in the fourth quarter, he drew a key 16-yard pass interference penalty.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20) and at Minnesota (9/27), he was inactive with a knee injury.

50 RECEPTIONS, 1,000 YARDS

A.J. Brown enjoyed one of the finest seasons in franchise history by a rookie wide receiver. His 2019 regular season totals included 52 receptions, 1,051 receiving yards and eight touchdown catches, and his 20.2-yard receiving average ranked second in the NFL.

Brown achieved a rare statistical combination matched by only three other NFL rookies since 1970. Since then, John Jefferson (1978), Bill Brooks (1986), Randy Moss (1998) and Brown are the league's only rookies to have a minimum of 50 receptions, 1,000 receiving yards and five receiving touchdowns while averaging at least 17.0 yards per catch.

NFL rookies since 1970 with 50 receptions, 1,000 receiving yards, five touchdown receptions and a 17.0-yard receiving average:

#84 ■ WR COREY DAVIS

6-3, 209, 4th Year, Western Michigan

Click for complete bio

Wide receiver Corey Davis is in his fourth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the fifth overall pick in the 2017 NFL Draft.

During his first three seasons, Davis led the Titans in total receptions (142), receiving yards (1,867) and receiving first downs (97), and his six touchdown catches tied for third place on the club.

Davis' 2019 statistics included 43 receptions for 601 yards and a pair of touchdowns in 15 games (11 starts). He added 68 yards and a touchdown on six receptions during the playoffs.

Davis led the Titans offense in 2018 with 65 receptions, 891 receiving yards and four touchdowns. His yardage total ranked ninth among all AFC wide receivers.

As a rookie, Davis totaled 34 receptions for 375 yards in 11 games (nine starts). He started both postseason contests and contributed nine receptions for 98 yards and a team-high two touchdowns.

In four seasons at Western Michigan (2013–2016), Davis played and started 50 games. He registered 332 career receptions for 5,285 yards and 52 touchdowns, setting the Mid-American Conference record in each category and becoming the only player in FBS history with 300 catches, 5,000 yards and 50 touchdowns. His 5,285 career receiving yards were the most in FBS history, and he ended his career ranked second all-time in FBS history with 52 career receiving touchdowns (60 by Jarett Dillard). Davis' 332 career receptions ranked fourth all-time in FBS annals.

As a senior, he set career highs with 97 receptions, 1,500 receiving yards and 19 touchdowns, ranking eighth, seventh and first (tied) in the FBS, respectively. He helped the Broncos win the MAC and go undefeated until suffering their first loss in the Cotton Bowl. Davis' record-setting, All-American campaign included five games of 100-plus yards and six games of two or more receiving touchdowns.

➤ At Denver (9/14), led the team on Monday Night Football with seven receptions and 101 receiving yards, including a long reception of 23 yards in the second quarter. His reception total tied for the second-highest number of his career, and his yardage total ranked third in his career. He contributed a nine-yard catch for a first down during the game-winning scoring drive late in the fourth quarter. It was the eighth 100-yard receiving game in franchise history by a player in a Week 1 road game, most recently by A.J. Brown at Cleveland in 2019.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), totaled three receptions for 36 yards, including a touchdown on a nine-yard pass from Ryan Tannehill in the first quarter. It was his first touchdown of 2020 and the seventh touchdown of his four-year career. He reached 150 career receptions on his nine-yard touchdown catch and reached the 2,000-yard career receiving mark on his 17-yard catch in the third quarter.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with five receptions for 69 receiving yards. On his first reception, he extended his streak to 25 consecutive receptions resulting in a first down. The streak ended on his next catch. It was the longest active streak in the NFL at the time. He turned a pass from Ryan Tannehill into a 38-yard gain in the third quarter, leading to a Titans touchdown three plays later.

PCT. OF RECEPTIONS FOR FIRST DOWNS

Since the beginning of the 2019 season, Corey Davis has been one of the NFL's most efficient receivers when it comes to catching passes for first downs. Of all players with at least 32 receptions during that time, only three players have a higher percentage of receptions for first downs.

Highest percentage of receptions for first downs from 2019–2020:

Player	Receptions	Receiving 1st Downs	Percentage
1. Alshon Jeffery	43	36	83.7
2. Mike Evans	77	62	80.5

10. Michael Gallup	77	59	76.6

CONVERTING THIRD DOWNS

Corey Davis led the team in overall receiving in 2018, and he also became a favorite target on third down.

Twenty-three of his 65 catches came on third down, and of those plays, 20 resulted in first downs. His 20 receptions to convert third downs tied for the eighth-highest total in the NFL and were the most by a Titans player since tight end Delanie Walker's 21 such catches in 2015.

Most third-down conversions on receptions in 2018:

100 RECEPTIONS IN 29 GAMES

Against Indianapolis on Sept. 15, 2019, Corey Davis reached 100 career receptions. In doing so, he became one of the franchise's fastest players to 100 receptions.

Since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger, only wide receivers Kendall Wright (22 games) and Ernest Givins (24) hit 100 receptions with the Titans/Oilers within their first 30 games prior to Davis.

Fewest career NFL games needed to reach 100 receptions with the franchise, 1970–2019:

Player	Pos	Games to Reach 100 Receptions
1. Kendall Wright	WR	22
2. Ernest Givins	WR	24
3. Corey Davis	WR	29
4. Kenny Britt	WR	31

AMONG FASTEST TO 1,000 REC YARDS

On Nov. 26, 2018 at Houston, Titans wide receiver Corey Davis hit the 1,000-yard career receiving mark in his 22nd NFL game.

Davis reached the 1,000-yard mark in fewer career games than all but two players for the franchise since 1970. In that time period, only Ernest Givins and Chris Sanders hit the mark in fewer games. Givins reached 1,000 receiving yards in his 14th career game in 1985, and Sanders took 21 games from 1995–1996 to reach the plateau. Davis tied Kendall Wright, who also hit 1,000 receiving yards in his 22nd game (2012–2013).

Titans/Oilers to reach 1,000 receiving yards in the fewest games at the beginning of a career, 1970–present:

Player	Season(s)	Games to 1,000 Rec Yards
1. Ernest Givins	1985	14

#10 - WR ADAM HUMPHRIES

5-11, 195, 6th Year, Clemson

Wide receiver Adam Humphries is in his sixth NFL season and his second campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed as an unrestricted free agent on March 15, 2019 after spending the first four years of his career (2015-18) with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Humphries appeared in the first 12 games of the regular season before suffering an ankle injury, which caused him to be inactive for the final four games in December. His regular season totals included 37 receptions for 374 yards and a pair of touchdowns. He returned for the AFC Championship Game and registered four catches for 25 yards.

In 60 career games with the Buccaneers (17 starts), Humphries totaled 219 receptions for 2,329 yards and nine touchdowns, increasing his reception and yardage totals every season. He also returned 51 punts for 425 yards.

In 2018, Humphries set career highs with 76 receptions, 816 receiving yards and five touchdowns. Aligned in the slot (per Sportradar and Next Gen Stats), he ranked first in the NFL in receiving first downs (42), tied for second in receptions (59), and finished second in total yards after catch (319).

A native of Spartanburg, S.C., Humphries played four seasons at Clemson, where he accumulated 127 catches for 1,097 yards and three touchdowns in 53 career games.

He entered the NFL by signing with the Buccaneers as an undrafted free agent on May 11, 2015.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), finished second on the team with six receptions and 47 receiving yards. He had two receptions for 14 yards during the game-winning drive in the fourth quarter. His six catches tied his high mark for number of receptions in a Titans uniform.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), posted a team-high five receptions for 48 yards and one touchdown. He scored on an 18-yard pass from Ryan Tannehill in the third quarter to register his first touchdown of 2020 and the 12th touchdown catch of his career.
- At Minnesota (9/27), recorded four receptions for 41 yards, including a 23-yard catch.

#60 - C BEN JONES

6-3, 303, 9th Year, Georgia

Click for complete bio

Center Ben Jones is in his ninth NFL season and his fifth campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed as an unrestricted free agent on March 10, 2016.

From 2012 through 2019, Jones appeared in 127 of 128 possible regular season games, including starts in all but one game during his first four seasons in Tennessee.

In 2019, Jones captained an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games en route to an AFC Championship Game appearance.

On Dec. 12, 2019, Jones was named the Titans nominee for the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award. Considered one of the league's most prestigious honors, the award recognizes an NFL player for outstanding community service activities off the field, as well as excellence on the field.

On Nov. 3, 2019, Jones' streak of 120 consecutive games played and 88 consecutive starts came to an end when he was deactivated with a concussion. At the time, Jones' consecutive games streak tied Kansas City's Mitchell Schwartz for the longest active streak in the NFL among offensive linemen, and his starting streak ranked first in the NFL among all centers.

Jones started all 16 games at center in 2018, registering a start in every contest for the fifth consecutive season, dating back to his third year in Houston (2014).

In his first year in Tennessee, Jones played a key role in an offensive turnaround. The veteran was a key cog in a line that helped the Titans finish 11th overall in offense, third in rushing and tied for seventh in fewest sacks allowed.

Jones was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft. Over the following four seasons, he started contests at center and both guard spots. He was a starter on two playoff teams in Houston (2012 and 2015).

In 2015, Jones started every game at center, extending his streak of consecutive regular season games played to 64, which was the second-longest active streak among NFL centers at the conclusion of the season.

A native of Centreville, Ala., Jones attended the University of Georgia, where his 49 total starts ranked third in school annals. He was a two-time All-SEC selection by the league's coaches and was named to Georgia's Team of the Decade. As a senior (2011), the team captain earned All-SEC first-team honors.

#71 ■ T DENNIS KELLY

6-8, 321, 9th Year, Purdue

Dennis Kelly is in his ninth NFL season and his fifth campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was acquired in a trade with the Philadelphia Eagles on Aug. 16, 2016. In exchange for Kelly, the Titans dealt wide receiver Dorial Green-Beckham to the Eagles.

Kelly appeared in 15 games during the 2019 regular season, including starts at left tackle in each of the team's first four games. He caught a touchdown pass against Jacksonville on Nov. 24 and added another touchdown catch in the AFC Championship Game at Kansas City on Jan. 19.

Kelly played in 11 games in 2018 with five starts at right tackle. It was the third-highest start total of his career.

Kelly played in all 16 games in both 2016 and 2017. During that time he had a regular role in the team's "heavy" personnel package and earned six total starts—six in 2016 and one in 2017. He helped the Titans rush for an average of 136.7 yards per game in 2016, which ranked third in the NFL.

Kelly entered the NFL as a fifth-round selection by the Eagles in the 2012 NFL Draft. In four seasons with the Eagles, he recorded 15 starts and 30 games played. He recorded nine starts with the Eagles at right tackle, four starts at right guard and two starts at left guard.

A native of Chicago Heights, Ill., Kelly was a team captain and a two-time offensive MVP at Purdue. He started his final three seasons at left tackle for the Boilermakers.

#77 ■ T TAYLOR LEWAN

6-7, 309, 7th Year, Michigan

Tackle Taylor Lewan is in his seventh NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 11th overall pick of the 2014 NFL Draft and received a multi-year contract extension in 2018.

In 2019, Lewan registered 12 starts during the regular season, anchoring an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games, including the AFC Championship Game.

Lewan was named to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive season in 2018. He played and started in 15 of the team's 16 games at left tackle, marking his fourth consecutive season with at least 15 starts.

In 2017, Lewan became the team's first offensive lineman to make multiple Pro Bowls since center Kevin Mawae from 2008–2009. Lewan started all 16 games for the second consecutive season in 2017 and added starts in both postseason contests.

In 2016, Lewan started all 16 games for the first time. The left tackle was the anchor a line that helped the Titans finish 11th overall in offense, third in rushing and tied for seventh in fewest sacks allowed.

In 2015, Lewan started the first 15 games of the season at left tackle before missing the finale with a concussion.

As a rookie in 2014, Lewan played in 11 games with six starts before suffering an ankle injury. He played as a reserve for the first five games and then started in six consecutive contests before the injury caused him to be inactive the final five weeks. For his efforts, Lewan was named to the Pro Football Writers of America All-Rookie Team.

In four seasons at Michigan, Lewan appeared in 50 games with 48 starts at left tackle. He started the final 41 games of his career and was named the Big Ten Conference Offensive Lineman of the Year in 2012 and 2013. As a senior in 2013, he started all 13 games at left tackle for the third consecutive season and was named second-team Associated Press All-American.

At the 2014 NFL Scouting Combine, he ran the 40-yard dash in 4.87 seconds, beating all other offensive linemen in his class and clocking the fourth-fastest time among offensive linemen in the last five years (2010-14). He also ranked among the top offensive linemen at the 2014 combine in the broad jump (first at nine feet, nine inches), vertical jump (tied for third at 30.5 inches) and three-cone drill (fourth at 7.39 seconds).

A native of Cave Creek, Ariz., Lewan became the first offensive tackle selected by the Titans/Oilers in the first round since tackle Brad Hopkins (13th overall) in 1993.

6-5, 325, 11th Year, Indiana

Guard Rodger Saffold III is in his 11th NFL season and his second campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent from the Los Angeles Rams on March 15, 2019.

In 2019, Saffold started all 16 games for the second consecutive season and for the fourth time in his career. He was a key member of an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games, including the AFC Championship Game.

During the first nine seasons of his career (2010-18), Saffold appeared in 114 regular season games with 111 starts. He also gained experience in the postseason, starting four career playoff games, including all three postseason contests on the Rams' run to Super Bowl LIII at the conclusion of 2018.

From 2017-18, Saffold played an integral role in one of the NFL's top-ranked offenses. According to STATS Inc., he allowed only two sacks during that time.

A native of Bedford, Ohio, he spent four seasons at Indiana University (2006-09), where he started 41 career games and earned All-Big Ten honors as a senior.

Saffold was originally selected by the Rams in the second round (33rd overall) of the 2010 NFL Draft.

#90 - DL DAQUAN JONES

6-4, 322, 7th Year, Penn State

Defensive lineman DaQuan Jones is in his seventh NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the fourth round (112th overall) of the 2014 NFL Draft.

In 2019, Jones started all 16 games for the fourth time in his career and for the second consecutive season. He achieved career highs with 21 quarterback pressures and three passes defended, and his totals also included 50 tackles, one sack and one tackle for loss.

In 2018, Jones started all 16 games and tallied 39 tackles on the season. He added 14 quarterback pressures, a career-high four tackles for loss and one pass defended.

Jones was placed on injured reserve on Dec. 4, 2017 due to a bicep injury he suffered the previous day against the Houston Texans. It concluded a season in which he totaled a career-high 3.5 sacks. The injury put an end to his streak of 45 consecutive starts.

Jones was one of two Titans who started every game from 2015–2016, holding down a spot at defensive end for consecutive seasons. Outside linebacker Brian Orakpo was the other member of the team to start every game in that time period.

As a rookie, Jones appeared in seven games with one start. He registered 13 tackles, a sack, three quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and a forced fumble.

A leader at Penn State during a time of turmoil, Jones started 23 of 46 college games, with all of his starting assignments coming during the last two seasons. Jones finished his career with 92 tackles, adding 4.5 sacks for minus 28 yards, 15.5 stops for losses totaling 55 yards, two fumble recoveries and a pass deflection.

As a senior in 2013, he started all 12 games at defensive tackle, finishing fifth on the team with a career-high 56 tackles (33 solos). His tackle total was the most for any interior defensive lineman in the Big Ten during the 2013 campaign. Jones was named first-team All-Big Ten by the league's coaches and second-team All-Conference by the media. He was named Penn State's Outstanding Senior Player and the recipient of the team's Reid-Robinson Award.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), registered two tackles on Monday Night Football.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), tallied four tackles.
- At Minnesota (9/27), collected a pair of tackles.

#98 - DT JEFFERY SIMMONS

6-4, 305, 2nd Year, Mississippi State

Click for complete bio

Defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons is in his second NFL season. He was selected by the Titans in the first round (19th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

Simmons began his rookie season on the non-football injury list due to a knee injury he suffered during training in February 2019. He missed the first six games of the season before joining the 53-man roster in Week 7.

His rookie totals included 40 tackles, two sacks, two tackles for loss, 14 quarterback pressures and one pass defended in nine games (seven starts). He added four tackles, three quarterback pressures and a fumble recovery in three playoff contests.

During a three-year career as a defensive tackle at Mississippi State, Simmons appeared in 38 contests with 28 starts. He finished his career ranked sixth in school history with 32.5 in tackles for loss. He also tied for sixth in MSU annals with five forced fumbles and tied for fourth with three blocked kicks. His totals also included 163 tackles, seven sacks, seven passes defended and two defensive touchdowns.

He was a first-team All-SEC selection as a sophomore and junior and was one of two players in the nation to be named a Bednarik Award Semifinalist in both 2017 and 2018.

As a junior in 2018, Simmons was named second-team All-American after totaling 63 tackles, 17 tackles for loss and two sacks. His 17 tackles for loss led the team, ranked fourth in the SEC and were the third-most in single-season school history.

During his sophomore season (2017), he set a career high with five sacks and added 12 tackles for loss. With three total blocked kicks and punts, he became the first SEC player since 2004 to lead the nation in the category.

Simmons is a native of Macon, Miss.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), tallied four tackles and a fumble recovery on Monday Night Football. He notched his first career fumble recovery in the second quarter on a reception by Melvin Gordon III (fumble forced by Kevin Byard). He recovered the ball at Denver's 23-yard line, and the offense scored a touchdown on the ensuing drive.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), helped clinch the victory by batting a pass at the line of scrimmage that was then picked off by outside linebacker Harold Landry III on the Jaguars' final possession. It was the second consecutive game in which Simmons was involved in a takeaway after recovering a fumble in the season opener at Denver. He added three tackles against the Jaguars.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), produced five total tackles, a sack and two tackles for loss. He forced the Vikings to punt with a six-yard sack of Kirk Cousins on third down in the first quarter. It was his first sack of 2020 and the third sack of his career.

#54 ■ ILB RASHAAN EVANS

6-2, 232, 3rd Year, Alabama

Linebacker Rashaan Evans is in his third NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 22nd pick in the first round of the 2018 NFL Draft. The Titans traded up from the 25th spot in order to take the former Alabama standout.

In 2019, Evans started all 16 games at inside linebacker and led the Titans with 139 tackles and 11 tackles for loss. He added 2.5 sacks, 11 quarterback pressures, one pass defended and one fumble return for a touchdown. He started all three postseason games and finished second on the squad with 22 tackles, including a team-high three tackles for loss.

During his rookie season, Evans overcame an injury that kept him out of the preseason. He played in 15 games with seven starts at inside linebacker and totaled 63 tackles, six quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and three passes defended.

In four seasons with the Crimson Tide (2014–2017), Evans appeared in 53 games with 14 starts and totaled 152 tackles, 15.0 sacks, 23.5 tackles for loss, five passes defended, 19 quarterback hurries, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. During his four years there, he appeared in three CFP National Championship contests with two victories.

As a senior in 2017, Evans started 12 games and tied for the team lead with 74 tackles. He led the Crimson Tide with 13 tackles for loss despite missing a pair of games due to injury and also posted seven quarterback hurries, six sacks, three passes defended, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery.

Following his senior campaign, he was named a first-team All-American by the AFCA, earned first-team All-SEC honors from Associated Press and second-team All-SEC honors from the conference coaches.

Evans is a native of Auburn, Ala.

2020 Notes:

- Against Jacksonville (9/20), totaled seven tackles.
- At Minnesota (9/27), recovered a fumble by Dalvin Cook in the first quarter and returned the ball 25 yards to help set up a field goal on the ensuing drive. It was his second career fumble recovery (first of 2020). He also tied for the team lead with seven tackles.

#99 - OLB JADEVEON CLOWNEY

6-5, 255, 7th Year, South Carolina

Click for complete bio

Jadeveon Clowney (first name pronounced juh-DEV-ee-on) is in his seventh NFL season and his first campaign with the Titans. He joined the Titans as an unrestricted free agent in September 2020.

Clowney played his first five NFL seasons with the Houston Texans after he was the first overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft. He was traded to the Seattle Seahawks in 2019.

In his first six NFL seasons, Clowney played in 75 games and tallied 236 tackles, 32 sacks, 71 tackles for loss, 14 passes defensed, nine forced fumbles and seven fumble recoveries. He also scored four total touchdowns—three on fumble recoveries and one on an interception return. Clowney was named to the Pro Bowl each season from 2016 through 2018, and he added second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors in 2016.

Over a four-season span from 2016 through 2019, Clowney was one of only three NFL players with at least 60 tackles for loss, eight forced fumbles and 150 quarterback pressures, per Sportradar. The others on the list were Aaron Donald and Chandler Jones. Clowney ranked fourth in the NFL over those four seasons with 60 tackles for loss.

In 2019, Clowney played for the Seattle Seahawks and tallied 31 tackles, three sacks, seven tackles for loss, a career-best four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries in 13 games.

Before being traded to the Seahawks just prior to the 2019 season kicking off, Clowney played five seasons (2014-18) for the Texans. His best statistical output came in 2017, when he started 16 games and recorded 9.5 sacks, 21 quarterback hits, 21 tackles for loss, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. He joined Jones as the only NFL players to register 20 or more tackles for loss and 20 or more quarterback hits.

A native of Rock Hill, S.C., Clowney had a three-year (2011-13) career at the University of South Carolina and became the third Gamecock to earn All-American honors twice during their career. His college career stats included 130 tackles, 24 sacks, 47 tackles for loss, a school-record nine forced fumbles and one fumble recovery in 36 games played.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), started in his Titans debut on Monday Night Football. He totaled three tackles, including a tackle for loss, and one quarterback pressure.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), tallied a pair of tackles and three quarterback pressures.
- At Minnesota (9/27), collected two tackles, one tackle for loss and one pass defended.

#21 - CB MALCOLM BUTLER

5-11, 190, 7th Year, West Alabama

Cornerback Malcolm Butler is in his seventh NFL season and his third campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 16, 2018.

Butler's 2019 season was cut short due to a wrist injury he suffered in the ninth game (Nov. 3 at Carolina). Until that point, he had 30 tackles, two interceptions, including one for a touchdown, and 10 passes defended.

In 2018, Butler led the Titans with 13 passes defended in his first season as a Titan and was second on the team with three interceptions, which included an interception return for a touchdown. He added 56 tackles, one sack, one quarterback pressure, three tackles for loss and one forced fumble in 16 games (11 starts).

Prior to his arrival in Tennessee, Butler spent the first four seasons of his career with the New England Patriots. During his time in New England, he appeared in 59 career regular season games with 48 starts and amassed 204 tackles, eight interceptions, 47 passes defended, four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries.

Butler appeared in 11 career playoff games with seven starts with the Patriots. He started all three postseason contests on the Patriots' run to the Super Bowl LI title in 2016 and made the crucial, game-winning interception at the goal line in New England's Super Bowl XLIX victory over the Seattle Seahawks to conclude the 2014 campaign.

In 2017, he played in all 16 games during the regular season with 15 starts and amassed 60 tackles, two interceptions, a sack, 12 passes defended and three forced fumbles. He saw action in all three postseason games (two starts) and posted four tackles.

In 2016, Butler earned his second consecutive Pro Bowl invitation and was named Associated Press second-team All-Pro after starting all 16 regular season games and recording 63 tackles, one sack, a career-high four interceptions and 17 passes defended.

As a rookie free agent in 2014, Butler was involved in one of the most memorable plays in Super Bowl history. With 26 seconds remaining against the Seattle Seahawks in Super Bowl XLIX, he intercepted a pass intended for Ricardo Lockette at the goal line, preventing a go-ahead touchdown by the Seahawks and sealing New England's championship victory.

#25 - CB ADOREE' JACKSON

5-11, 185, 4th Year, Southern California

Cornerback Adoree' Jackson is in his fourth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 18th overall pick in the first round of the 2017 NFL Draft.

Jackson played in 11 games with 10 starts in 2019 and totaled 40 tackles, two tackles for loss and seven passes defended. He missed five total contests due to injury, including the final four weeks of the regular season, and then returned to start all three postseason contests. His six passes defended during the playoffs led the squad.

In 2018, Jackson appeared in all 16 games for the second consecutive season with 13 starts. He set single-season career highs with 69 tackles and two interceptions. His 11 passes defended ranked second on the squad, and he added one quarterback pressure and three tackles for loss. He also handled the team's punt return duties, averaging 9.3 yards on 16 returns.

In 2017, Jackson was the first rookie cornerback for the team in the "Titans era" (1999–present) to record 16 starts. His 1,260 total plays (1,017 defensive snaps, 231 special teams snaps and 12 offensive snaps) ranked second in the NFL among all players behind only Arizona Cardinals safety Tyrann Mathieu (1,261).

Jackson's rookie defensive totals included a team-high 23 passes defended, 67 tackles, four tackles for loss, one quarterback pressures and three forced fumbles (tied for team lead). He ranked fifth in the NFL with 290 punt return yards (34 returns), ranked sixth in the NFL with a 23.1-yard kickoff return average (25 returns), and finished sixth with 868 combined kickoff return and punt return yards. He added 55 yards on five rushing attempts.

In three seasons at Southern California, Jackson appeared in 39 games with 36 starts. Although he was a starter at cornerback, he was a three-way threat, contributing as a returner and on offense. He scored 15 total touchdowns during his career in four different ways: via reception (6), interception (1), punt return (4) and kickoff return (4).

Jackson's career defensive totals with the Trojans included 139 tackles, 29 passes defended, six interceptions, six stops for loss, three fumble recoveries and two forced fumbles.

As a return specialist, Jackson notched 79 kickoff returns for 2,141 yards with four touchdowns and 46 punt returns for 578 yards with four touchdowns. He tied two NCAA records with his eight career touchdowns on kick/punt returns and nine touchdowns on all runbacks. He also set Southern California career records for kickoff returns and kickoff return yards.

As a junior in 2016, Jackson was awarded the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top defensive back. Additionally, he was a consensus All-American, the 2016 Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year, a team captain and the team MVP (the first Trojan to repeat as team MVP since 2004-05), and he earned first-team All-Pac-12 honors at two different positions (defensive back and return specialist). He started all 13 games at cornerback and led the team with five interceptions, 11 passes defended and two fumble recoveries. He scored twice on kickoff returns, twice on punt returns and once on offense.

A native of East St. Louis, Ill., Jackson also made his name as a world-class track athlete. He was a long jumper and sprinter on USC's track team in 2015 and 2016, winning the Pac-12 outdoor long jump title both years (and placing second in the Pac-12 100 meters in 2016) and earning All-American status both years after twice placing fifth in the NCAA long jump. He also placed 10th in the long jump in the U.S. Olympic Trials.

➤ Placed on injured reserve on Sept. 14 due to a knee injury.

#33 - CB JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

5-11, 186, 15th Year, South Carolina

Click for complete bio

Cornerback Johnathan Joseph is in his 15th NFL season and his first campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as a free agent on May 6, 2020.

A two-time Pro Bowl selection (2012-13), Joseph appeared in 200 total games for the Cincinnati Bengals (2006-10) and Houston Texans (2011-19) in 14 seasons prior to his arrival in Tennessee. His career totals during that time included 750 tackles, 31 interceptions, eight touchdown returns, seven forced fumbles and five fumble recoveries.

At the end of the 2019 campaign, Joseph ranked fourth among active NFL players with 31 career interceptions and led all active NFL cornerbacks with 750 career tackles. He also led all NFL players over a 20-year span (2000–2019) in passes defended (194).

In 2019, his final season with the Texans, he recorded 51 tackles and one interception in 14 games. It marked his 11th consecutive season with at least 11 starts.

The Rock Hill, S.C., native played two years (2004-05) at the University of South Carolina after starting his college career at Coffeyville (Kan.) Community College.

He was originally drafted by the Bengals in the first round (24th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), started in his Titans debut on Monday Night Football and posted two tackles.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), notched four tackles and one pass defended.
- At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with seven tackles to go along with an interception, a forced fumble and a tackle for loss. It was the first time in his 15-year career that he produced an interception and a forced fumble in the same game. He was credited with his eighth career forced fumble (first of 2020) in the first quarter on a run by Dalvin Cook. The ball was recovered by linebacker Rashaan Evans to set up a Titans field goal on the ensuing drive. Then, he registered his first interception in a Titans uniform and the 32nd interception of his career in the third quarter, picking off a pass by Kirk Cousins.

MORE TITANS CORNERBACKS

26 - CB KRISTIAN FULTON

5-11, 197, Rookie, Louisiana State

- The Titans selected Kristian Fulton with the 61st overall pick in the second round of the 2020 NFL Draft.
- The New Orleans, La., native was a two-year starter at Louisiana State. He appeared in 28 games with 25 starts and finished his career with 65 tackles, 25 passes defended and two interceptions.
- As a senior in 2019, he started all 15 games and posted 38 tackles, one tackle for loss, 15 passes defended and one interception. He was recognized with second-team All-SEC honors from the Associated Press.
- In his final collegiate game, Fulton helped LSU secure a National Championship victory over Clemson with a career-high six tackles and one pass defended.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), totaled four tackles in his NFL debut on Monday Night Football.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), recorded his first career interception in the first quarter on a pass by Gardner Minshew. The second-round pick returned the ball 44 yards to Jacksonville's 30-yard line to help set up a touchdown on the ensuing drive. He added three tackles in the contest.
- At Minnesota (9/27), registered two tackles, including his first career sack. In the fourth quarter, he blitzed and dropped quarterback Kirk Cousins for a seven-yard loss.

35 - DB CHRIS JACKSON

5-10, 193, Rookie, Marshall

- The Tallahassee, Fla., native was selected by the Titans in the seventh round (243rd overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.
- During a four-year career at Marshall, he started 48 games and posted 189 tackles, 6.5 tackles for loss, two sacks, seven interceptions with one returned for a touchdown, 45 passes defended and two fumble recoveries with one returned for a score for the Thundering Herd.
- Jackson's 45 passes defended rank first in Marshall history and his 48 career starts rank 14th in program history. He earned all-conference recognition in all four of his collegiate seasons.
- Jackson earned all-Conference USA recognition each year of his collegiate career, including first-team all-conference as a senior in 2019 after recording a team-high 11 passes defended.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), started and registered a tackle in his NFL debut on Monday Night Football. He became the franchise's first rookie drafted in the seventh round or later to start a Week 1 game since Sept. 10, 1989, when Oilers ninth-round rookie tight end Bob Mrosko started at Minnesota. In the seventh-round draft era (since 1994), only four players who were chosen later in the draft than Jackson (243rd) started the season opener (Marques Colston, Bill Nagy, Chris Carson and Will Whitticker). Among all NFL defensive backs drafted in the seventh round since 1994, Jackson became the third player to start his season opener (Marlon McCree and Jimmy Moreland).
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), registered six tackles.

30 - CB CHRIS MILTON

5-11, 190, 5th Year, Georgia Tech

- Milton was claimed by the Titans off waivers from the Colts on Sept. 2, 2019.
- The Folkstown, Ga., native excelled on special teams during his first four NFL campaigns.
- He was limited to six games during his first season in Tennessee (2019) due to injuries. He totaled five special teams tackles before being placed on injured reserve.
- The Georgia Tech product appeared in 35 games for the Colts from 2016-18 and notched 15 special teams tackles and two forced fumbles on coverage units.
- In 2018, Milton played in 15 games for the Colts and posted three tackles, seven special teams stops and one fumble recovery. He saw action in both postseason games and contributed on special teams with two tackles and one forced fumble.

- In 2017, Milton appeared in 14 games and recorded four tackles and one fumble recovery while adding five special teams tackles.
- Milton was originally signed by the Indianapolis Colts as a rookie free agent on May 3, 2016 and spent time on the practice squad and active roster.
- He played in 53 games with 33 starts at Georgia Tech and collected 96 tackles, three tackles for loss, a forced fumble, 14 passes defended and five interceptions with two returned for touchdowns. He finished his career with seven blocked kicks. Also recorded four kickoff returns for 44 yards and two punt returns for 39 yards.

#31 - S KEVIN BYARD

5-11, 212, 5th Year, Middle Tennessee State

Safety Kevin Byard is in his fifth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the third round (64th overall) of the 2016 NFL Draft.

From 2017 through 2019, no NFL player had more interceptions than Byard, who had 17. His 2019 totals included a team-leading five interceptions, 10 passes defended, 91 tackles, one quarterback pressure and two tackles for loss. He started all 16 regular season games for the third consecutive season. In three postseason games, he added 20 tackles and one interception.

In 2018, Byard finished with a team-leading four interceptions, 10 passes defended, 96 tackles and two sacks in 16 games (all starts). He also completed a touchdown pass on a memorable fake punt to help defeat the Houston Texans (Sept. 16).

Byard experienced a breakthrough second-year season in 2017. He was named to the Pro Bowl and earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors after tying Detroit's Darius Slay for the NFL lead with eight interceptions. He added a pair of fumble recoveries to pace the league with 10 total takeaways.

As a rookie in 2016, Byard played in every game, starting the final seven contests at free safety. His 63 tackles were the most by a Titans rookie safety since Tank Williams' 69 tackles in 2002. He also ranked second on the squad with 10 special teams tackles.

During a four-year career at Middle Tennessee State University, he appeared in 49 games and notched 46 starts at safety while becoming one of the most prolific defenders in school history. He set school records with 19 career interceptions, 377 interception return yards and four interception returns for touchdowns, and he finished sixth in MTSU history with 312 career tackles. In total, he had a hand in 25 turnovers (19 interceptions, five forced fumbles and one fumble recovery) during his career and added 17 career passes defended and five tackles for loss. He was twice named first-team All-Conference USA.

As a senior in 2015, Byard appeared in 12 games with nine starts as a permanent team captain and was named first-team All-Conference USA for the second consecutive year. He ranked fourth on the team with 66 tackles and led the squad with four interceptions and six additional pass breakups.

The Lithonia, Ga., native set a career high in college with six interceptions as a junior and forced to fumbles the same season.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), recorded his first career forced fumble in the second quarter on a reception by Melvin Gordon III. The ball was recovered at Denver's 23-yard line by defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons, and the offense scored a touchdown on the ensuing drive. Byard also led the defense with nine tackles and added a pass defended.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), posted three tackles.
- At Minnesota (9/27), totaled four tackles and one pass defended.

Safety Kenny Vaccaro is in his eighth NFL season and his third campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed as a free agent on Aug. 4, 2018.

In 2019, Vaccaro started all 16 regular season games for the second time in his career and for the first time since 2015. He ranked fourth on the Titans with 104 tackles and added one sack, one quarterback pressure, one tackle for loss, one interception, five passes defended and seven special teams tackles. He also started all three postseason games and tallied 19 tackles and an interception.

Vaccaro recorded 13 starts in 13 games during his first year in Tennessee. He finished with 70 tackles, two sacks, three quarterback pressures, four tackles for loss, one interception and five passes defended.

Vaccaro (6-0, 214) joined the Titans after five years as a starter with the New Orleans Saints. In 68 career games with 67 starts in New Orleans, he totaled 482 tackles, eight interceptions, 7.5 sacks, five forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries.

In 2017, Vaccaro started 12 games at strong safety and recorded three interceptions, seven passes defended, 60 tackles, 1.5 sacks and one fumble recovery. He tallied three total interceptions in a three-game stretch from Weeks 3-6. He missed four total games due to injury, including spending the final two weeks of the campaign on injured reserve.

In 2016, Vaccaro started 11 games at strong safety and totaled 80 tackles (56 solo), one sack, six passes defended, two forced fumbles, one fumble recovery, two interceptions and a special teams stop.

Vaccaro was named to the PFWA and Bleacher Report All-Rookie teams in 2013, and in 2014 he won the Jim Finks Good Guy Award for cooperation with the New Orleans media.

The Brownwood, Texas, native was selected by the Saints in the first round (15th overall) of the 2013 NFL Draft.

During his time at the University of Texas, Vaccaro appeared in 51 games with 32 starts and totaled 264 tackles and five interceptions. He earned first-team All-American honors as a senior and All-Big 12 first-team recognition from league coaches in each of his final two years. The versatile defender played four different positions including both safety spots for the Longhorns.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), finished second on the team with six tackles to go with one tackle for loss and one pass defended.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), notched his first sack of the season in the fourth quarter, dropping quarterback Gardner Minshew II for a four-yard loss. It gave Vaccaro 11.5 career sacks. He also tied for the team lead with 11 total tackles and added two tackles for loss, one quarterback pressure and two passes defended.
- At Minnesota (9/27), appeared in his 100th NFL regular season game and posted six tackles.

#3 ■ K STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

6-1, 215, 15th Year, Memphis

Kicker Stephen Gostkowski (pronounced gost-COW-ski) is in his 15th NFL season and his first campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as a free agent on Sept. 3, 2020.

After entering the NFL as a fourth-round pick by the New England Patriots in 2006, he spent the next 14 years with the club, earning four Pro Bowl selections (2008, 2013-15) and three Super Bowl championships (2014, 2016, 2018). He became the franchise's leading scorer with 1,775 career points over 204 games.

In his first 14 seasons, he made 374 of his 428 field goal attempts. At the end of the 2019 season, his 87.4 percent success rate on field goals made him the fifth-most accurate kicker in NFL history.

Gostkowski also scored 205 points in the postseason for the Patriots to rank second in NFL history in playoff scoring.

One of his finest statistical seasons came in 2017, when he scored 156 points, made 37 of 40 field goal attempts and made a career-long 62-yard field goal.

In 2019, he was limited to four games before being placed on injured reserve. He made seven of his eight field goal attempts in his final season in New England.

Gostkowski finished his collegiate career at the University of Memphis ranked 13th in NCAA Division 1-A history with 369 points and ranked 14th with 70 career field goals. He also played baseball at Memphis.

2020 Notes:

➤ At Denver (9/14), made his debut in a Titans uniform on Monday Night Football and connected on the game-winning 25-yard field goal with 17 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. It was his 10th career game-winning field goal (ninth in the regular season).

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), made a 51-yard field goal as time expired in the second quarter and the game-winning 49-yard field goal with 1 minute and 36 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. He added three extra points on four attempts. He hit a game-winning field goal for the second consecutive week, marking the second time in his career he made a game-winner in back-to-back games (Nov. 24-Dec. 1, 2013). His kick to beat the Jaguars was his 11th career game-winning field goal (10th in the regular season). He became the first kicker since Adam Vinatieri with New England in 1999 to make a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first two games of a season.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), set a career high with six total field goals, including the game-winning field goal from 55 yards with 1 minute and 44 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. In his 15-year career, he previously made five total field goals on two occasions, most recently against Kansas City on Oct. 14, 2018. In addition to his game-winner, he also connected on field goals of 39 and 31 yards in the first quarter, 30 yards in the second quarter, 51 yards in the third quarter and 54 yards in the fourth quarter. His 55-yard field goal tied for the fourth-longest field goal in franchise history and the second-longest game-winning field goal in team annals behind Rob Bironas' 60-yarder to beat Indianapolis on Dec. 3, 2006. His 54-yarder at Minnesota ranked as the eighth-longest field goal in team annals. He became the second player in franchise history to make at least six field goals in a game. The other is Rob Bironas, who set the team and NFL record with eight field goals at Houston on Oct. 21, 2007. Gostkowski became the first player in franchise history to record game-winning field goals in three consecutive games, as well as the first NFL player since the 1970 merger to kick a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of the season. He hit three field goals of at least 50 yards in distance for the first time in his career and was the first NFL player since Baltimore's Justin Tucker on Nov. 27, 2016 (vs. Cincinnati) to accomplish the feat. He extended his streak to a career-best 28 consecutive games with at least one field goal, which tied for the fifth-longest streak in NFL history (Jim Turner, 1970-72; Chip Lohmiller, 1988-90). He tied his career high with 19 total points in the contest.

#6 ■ P BRETT KERN

6-2, 214, 13th Year, Toledo

Punter Brett Kern is in his 13th NFL season and his 11th full campaign with the Titans in 2019. He was claimed off waivers by the Titans during the 2009 season.

During his time in Tennessee, Kern has placed his name at the top of most of the franchise's leaderboards at his position. At the end of the 2019 campaign, he ranked as the team's all-time career leader in gross punting average (45.9 yards), net punting average (40.8) and punts placed inside the 20 (333). He punted 839 times in a Titans uniform from 2009–2019, second all-time for the franchise behind Craig Hentrich's 861 punts. Kern owns the top eight net punting seasons in franchise history and six of the team's top eight gross punting seasons.

In 2019, Kern was named to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive season, and he earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors for the first time in his career. His 37 punts inside the 20 led the NFL, and his 43.1-yard net average ranked second in team history.

At the end of the 2019 campaign, Kern's 170 consecutive games played (regular season) ranked second in team history behind only Bruce Matthews (232). Kern's 170 career games ranked sixth in franchise annals and were the most in the organization's "Titans era" (1999–2019).

In 2018, his 47.1-yard gross average ranked fifth in team history, and his 41.7-yard net average ranked second in team annals. He set a franchise record and recorded a career high with 39 of his 74 punts inside the 20-yard line. He finished the season with a career-long streak of 16 consecutive punts placed inside the 20, including every punt in the final three games of the season.

In 2017, Kern had arguably one of the best seasons by a punter in NFL history and was named to his first career Pro Bowl in addition to earning second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors. He punted 75 times for 3,728 yards with 28 punts placed inside the 20-yard line. His 44.6-yard net average broke his own team record and finished second in NFL history behind only Johnny Hekker's 46.0-yard net average in 2016. Kern's 49.7-yard gross average also broke his team mark and finished eighth in NFL history.

In 2015, Kern continued his annual assault on the team's all-time punting records and accomplished a first-of-its-kind NFL feat, becoming the first punter in league history to record 80 or more punts, a net average of 40 yards, and one or zero touchbacks in a single season. His season totals included 88 punts (tied for fifth place in franchise history), a 47.4-yard gross average (second in franchise history), a 40.3 net average (third in franchise history), a career-high 34 punts inside the 20 (third in franchise history) and only one touchback (career low).

In 2014, Kern launched a career-high 88 total punts for a gross average of 46.8 yards and a net average of 40.8 yards, which broke his own single-season team record (40.4-yard net average in 2012).

Kern produced one of the best punting seasons in team history in 2012. He set then-franchise records with a gross punting average of 47.6 yards and a net punting average of 40.4 yards (he later broke both marks).

Kern was claimed by the Titans off waivers from the Denver Broncos on Oct. 27, 2009. He spent the entire 2008 season and the first six games of 2009 campaign in Denver, totaling 73 punts and a 46.5-yard average in 22 games with the Broncos.

In 2008, Kern ranked fifth in the league with a 46.7-yard punting average that marked the third-best season total by a Bronco in club history. At the time, his punting average was the best in NFL history by a rookie. He was named to the All-Rookie team by Pro Football Weekly/PFWA and The Sporting News.

The Grand Island, N.Y., native was originally signed by the Broncos as a rookie free agent on April 28, 2008, following four seasons at the University of Toledo.

➤ At Denver (9/14), punted four times for a 51.0-yard gross average and a 47.0-yard net average with two punts inside the 20, including a long punt of 66 yards to help pin the Broncos inside their 10-yard line in the second quarter. He became the seventh player in franchise history to play in 12 seasons with the organization, joining Bruce Matthews (1983–2001), Elvin Bethea (1968–1983), Brad Hopkins (1993–2005), Gregg Bingham (1973–1983), Mike Munchak (1982–1993) and Craig Hentrich (1998–2009). Kern became the first to accomplish the feat exclusively in the "Titans era" (1999–present).

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), averaged 40.7 yards on three punts with all three punts placed inside the 20. He pinned the Jaguars on their own six-yard line with a 34-yard punt in the second quarter.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), averaged 47.7 yards on three punts (41.0 net) with one punt inside the 20. He tied Gregg Bingham (1973-84) for fifth place on the franchise games played list with his 173rd game.

TITANS TIDBITS: THE BEST OF TITANS OFF-THE-FIELD NOTES

OLB VIC BEASLEY JR.

- Beasley Jr.'s late father, Victor, played football at Auburn from 1982-1984.
- Played running back in high school. During his senior year, he had 120 rushes for 828 yards and seven touchdowns. Also had seven punt returns for a 17.3-yard average and two touchdowns. In his only kickoff return, he took it 80 yards for a touchdown.
- Beasley was named all-county and all-area as a junior and senior while playing high school and AAU basketball. He averaged a double-double for the Georgia All-Stars.
- He graduated Aug. 8, 2014, before his final season at Clemson with a degree in sociology.

FB/RB KHARI BLASINGAME

- Blasingame enjoys playing the saxophone.
- He originally started his Vanderbilt career at linebacker before transitioning to running back as a sophomore in 2016.
- After his football career, Blasingame's goal is to become the CEO of a hospital or health care system. Once there, he wants to focus on improving health care outcomes for disadvantaged populations.
- He earned his undergraduate degree in medicine, health and society from Vanderbilt in 2017 and is working towards a master's degree in education, after playing his final collegiate season in 2018 as a graduate student.

C AARON BREWER

- The Dallas, Texas, native competed in throws for the track and field team in high school.

LS BEAU BRINKLEY

- Brinkley's father, Mike, was an All-American defensive end and long snapper at Missouri Valley College. He taught Beau the skill of long snapping when he was just seven years old. Beau's football idol growing up was Kansas City Chiefs long snapper Kendall Gammon.
- Brinkley raced four-wheelers in the Extreme Dirt Track Racing Series while growing up in Missouri. He traveled the country competing in both motor cross and flat track competitions and won a flat track regional title in 2005.
- As a true freshman at Missouri, he joined the team as a walk-on and improbably won the long-snapping job for both placekicks and punts in fall camp, despite his collegiate inexperience.

WR A.J. BROWN

- Brown was selected in the 19th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball Draft by the San Diego Padres as a centerfielder and he participated in the team's extended spring training program each summer from 2016-18.
- He has a dog, Bentley Juan Brown, and runs an Instagram account for him @bentleyjuan1.
- During a pre-draft visit to San Francisco, Brown was able to link up and work out with Hall of Fame NFL receiver and fellow Mississippian Jerry Rice. Rice took Brown on the horse trail at Edgewood Park in Redwood City, known as one of Rice's training sites, where the pair ran hills as part of their work out. Brown's hometown Starkville, Miss., and Rice's hometown Crawford, Miss., are a 30-minute drive apart.

LB JAYON BROWN

- Former Long Beach Poly and New England Patriots star Willie McGinest is a close friend of the Brown family.
- Brown's younger brother, Joshua, is a defensive end at the University of Arizona, and his two older brothers also played college football. Jason played linebacker at Idaho, while Juwuan was a defensive lineman at Southern Oregon.
- He likes spending as much time as possible with his dogs, "a mutt named Lou" and a Rottweiler named Kali. He also enjoys puzzles and watching movies.

CB MALCOLM BUTLER

- In February 2017, the production company Narrative Capital acquired the rights to the story of Butler for a film tentatively titled "The Secondary."
- Following Butler's crucial goal line interception to seal Super Bowl XLIX, Patriots quarterback Tom Brady, who received a 2015 Chevrolet Colorado as part of his Super Bowl XLIX MVP Award, requested Chevrolet award the truck directly to Butler.

- Prior to securing a rookie free agent tryout with the Patriots in 2014, Butler was operating the fryolator at a Popeye's restaurant.
- Every offseason since 2015, Butler has hosted free skills and multi-sport experience camps in his hometown of Vicksburg, Miss., for 500 boys and girls in first through 12th grades.

S KEVIN BYARD

- In July 2020, Byard was named the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville. His first order of business was to participate in the organization's virtual Stuff the Bus school supply drive.
- In May 2020, Byard was able to accomplish a goal of helping to purchase his mother, Artina Stanley, her "forever home."
- During the 2019 offseason, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. He plans to hold the camp - which was free - every year.
- The Titans had an inside track in their scouting of Byard. Titans general manager Jon Robinson received glowing reports on Byard from his friend and MTSU recruiting coordinator Steve Ellis. When Robinson was a linebackers coach at Nicholls State, Ellis was one of his pupils, and the two remained close through the years. Additionally, Patrick Callaway, college scout for the Titans, was Byard's high school teammate.
- Byard says his football role models are Ed Reed, Brian Dawkins and Troy Polamalu.

OLB JADEVEON CLOWNEY (first name pronounced juh-DEV-ee-on)

- Attended South Pointe High School in Rock Hill, S.C., where he was named South Carolina's 2010 Mr. Football and lettered for the school's basketball team.
- Majored in African-American studies at South Carolina.

LB WILL COMPTON

- Prior to his first training camp as a rookie free agent, Compton typed out five personal goals in his iPad that he wanted to accomplish over the next five years. Although he truly never imagined being able to achieve each of the goals, he checked off all the boxes. They included playing a vital role for Washington, earning a starting spot, being named a captain, reaching a specific financial goal by age 27 and doing at least three speaking engagements a year despite no prior experience.
- Compton is the co-founder of the popular podcast Bussin' With The Boys with teammate Taylor Lewan. The two friends host guests on an old Monte Carlo Budweiser bus and discuss any and everything.

OLB KAMALEI CORREA (pronounced KAH-mah-lay kor-AY-uh)

- In the 2020 offseason, Correa incorporated boxing into his workout regimen to improve his hand and footwork.
- Correa attended St. Louis School in Honolulu, Hawaii, where he played football for two seasons with former Titans teammate Marcus Mariota.
- Correa grew up a huge fan of the Green Bay Packers all the way from Honolulu, Hawaii.

DL JACK CRAWFORD

- Crawford was born in London, England and moved to the United States in 2005. He initially moved to the United States to pursue a career playing basketball.
- It wasn't until 2006 that Crawford joined the football team at St. Augustine Prep (N.J.), where he found immediate success. During his senior season, he emerged as a standout, being rated the No. 15 defensive end in the nation by Scout.com.

DB DANE CRUIKSHANK (pronounced CROOK-shank)

- Growing up a Southern California fan, his most memorable college football moment was playing the Trojans in the Coliseum. Cruikshank posted 10 tackles and one interception in the contest.
- Cruikshank's nickname is 'Smooove.' He wore jersey No. 2 in high school, earning the nickname '2 Smooove,' which was then shortened to Smooove.
- He lists owning his own business as a goal on his bucket list. He would one day like to open his own training facility.

WR COREY DAVIS

- Davis' brother, Titus, played football at Central Michigan and was signed by the Chargers as a rookie free agent in 2015. Titus also spent time with the Jets, Bills and Bears.

TITANS TIDBITS: THE BEST OF TITANS OFF-THE-FIELD NOTES

- One of Davis' favorite quotes is "Never die easy" by Walter Payton, who used the saying as the title to his autobiography.
- Davis studied special education at Western Michigan.

OL NATE DAVIS

- Growing up, Davis was 'always a pretty big kid.' He played on the offensive or defensive line during Pop Warner and estimates that in the fourth grade he weighed around 200 pounds.
- Davis was invited to the 2019 Senior Bowl, which he credits for helping him during the draft process. He went head-to-head with defensive linemen from larger conferences, and as an athlete from a smaller conference, he credits his performance at the Senior Bowl for helping put his name into the conversation ahead of the draft.
- Davis' father purchased him a fishing rod as a child and would take him to the pond near their home in Ashburn, Va., to fish and relax.
- Davis is a car enthusiast who has a knack for identifying the year, make and model of a car. He lists his dream car as a Rolls-Royce.

DE MATT DICKERSON

- Dickerson's father, Clarence, played college football at Henderson State (Ark.).
- Dickerson has a twin sister named Megan.
- Dickerson played football for the first time as a high school freshman.
- Dickerson majored in political science at UCLA.

G JAMIL DOUGLAS (first name pronounced juh-MILL)

- Douglas was on the New England Patriots practice squad when the team won Super Bowl LI.
- He graduated with a degree in in Criminal Justice and Criminology from Arizona State in 2013.
- Played tight end/H-back as a senior in high school after primarily being featured at left tackle during the early part of his high school career. He caught three passes for 79 yards and one touchdown and carried four times for 19 yards.

LB NICK DZUBNAR (pronounced duh-ZOOB-nar)

- Dzubnar feels he was better at hockey than football in high school. He participated as a Junior Anaheim Duck in his youth.
- His brother-in-law is former Chargers tackle Cory Lekkerkerker.
- Earned a degree in construction management from Cal Poly — San Luis Obispo.
- In high school, he was the senior class president and a four-year ASB member.

RB DARRYNTON EVANS

- At the NFL Scouting Combine in February, Evans raised money and brought awareness to ECANA (Endometrial Cancer Action Network for African- Americans) by getting pledges for every inch of his vertical leap. He raised more than $3,200 with a vertical of 37 inches.
- Evans grew up with and went to high school with San Francisco 49ers running back Raheem Mostert, Tampa Bay Buccaneers safety D'Cota Dixon and Washington linebacker Cole Holcolmb. Mostert, who led the NFC champion 49ers in rushing in 2019 and was among the first to reach out to Evans on social media during the draft, tweeting three simple words: "We built different!"
- Evans got a head start on the Titans' playbook during his final season at Appalachian State. Every year, the Mountaineer coaches' study one NFL offense and incorporate some of its principles into their own playbook. It just so happened that App State chose the Titans prior to the 2019 season.
- Evans earned a grade point average of 3.34 and was tabbed the Sun Belt's Top Scholar by Street & Smith magazine.
- Evans enjoys playing video games, particularly NBA2K, Call of Duty and Madden, solving Rubik's Cubes and producing music in his spare time.

LB RASHAAN EVANS

- Upon being drafted by Tennessee, Evans was reunited with former Crimson Tide teammate Derrick Henry. Henry phoned Evans immediately after he was selected with the 22nd pick to congratulate him.
- At Alabama, Evans shared the field with his brother, Alex, a member of the Crimson Tide spirit squad.
- Growing up in rural Alabama, Evans would chase wild horses to work on improving his speed and athleticism.

- Evans' father, Alan, was a star running back at Auburn. Evans' mother, Chenavis, received four degrees from Auburn, including her doctorate. Evans' older sister was a cheerleader at Auburn, and despite the family ties including his cousins attending Auburn, Evans stuck with his gut and instead chose Alabama.
- He has two pregame rituals. Evans prays before each game and pulls grass from the field early in pregame to get a feel for the turf.
- His nickname is 'Razor, because I cut up.'

TE ANTHONY FIRSKER (pronounced FERK-sir)

- Firkser grew up playing basketball and both roller and ice hockey at elite levels and didn't begin playing football until his sophomore year of high school.
- In the offseason, Firkser volunteers with his former high school football coach to help train and give advice to aspiring young football players in his hometown community of Manalapan, N.J.
- His brother, Josh, played football at Wagner College.

CB KRISTIAN FULTON

- Fulton's older brother, Keith Fulton, played wide receiver at LSU. Kristian and Keith were teammates in 2018.
- Fulton wears jersey No. 26 to fuel his competitive fire. "It just reminds me every day that I had eight corners selected before me," Fulton told the Official Titans Podcast. Two plus six equals eight, "So, if you add it up, it's a reminder for me every day."
- Graduated in December of 2019 with a degree in sports administration from LSU.

K STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI (pronounced gost-COW-ski)

- The Madison, Miss., native received an athletic scholarship to pitch for the University of Memphis baseball team coming out of high school. He also made the football team as a walk-on and finished his college career as the team's all-time leading scorer with 369 points.

RB DERRICK HENRY

- In high school, Henry broke the 51-year-old national high school rushing record with 12,124 yards after compiling 4,261 rushing yards as a senior.
- Henry sealed an Iron Bowl victory with an epic, career-best 271 rushing yards against the Tigers. He put the Crimson Tide on his back by carrying the ball a school-record 46 times. His 271 rushing yards were 11 more yards than Auburn had in total offense (260). He ended the game with 14 consecutive rushes to run out the clock.
- His late grandmother, Gladys Henry, helped raise him and played a key inspirational role in his development. In 2018, he fulfilled a promise to her and graduated from Alabama with his bachelor's degree. He has a portrait tattoo of her on his chest.
- Gladys Henry nicknamed him "Shocka" as a baby because he "shocked the whole family" when he was born.
- Henry has been growing out his hair since he was in elementary school.

DB AMANI HOOKER

- Hooker was named a finalist for Minnesota's Mr. Football in 2015, yet he had just two FBS scholarship offers. When the in-state university showed hesitancy after multiple workouts, Hooker knew he belonged at Iowa saying, "love who loves me."
- Amani's brother, Quinton, played basketball for North Dakota and helped take the team to the NCAA tournament his senior year. Quinton was Minnesota's Mr. Basketball in high school and currently plays basketball professionally in France.
- In February 2019, Hooker helped crowdfund about $1,200 for the Park Center high school football program through a Pledge-It campaign raising a dollar amount for every inch of his vertical jump at the NFL Scouting Combine. His 37-inch jump ranked fifth among safeties and equaled money for better equipment at his alma mater.

WR ADAM HUMPHRIES

- Humphries was originally a rookie tryout invitee with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers following the 2015 NFL Draft. Titans general manager Jon Robinson was a member of the Bucs player personnel department at the time and saw the 5-foot-11-inch wideout grind it out in practice and eventually earn a spot on the team's 53-man roster. "Humph came in as a tryout and won a spot on the 90-man roster," said Robinson. "He was a tough guy to cover all through training camp and he kept working and working and working. I've always had an affinity for him and liked his style. He's earned everything he's got."

➤ Clemson head football coach Dabo Swinney took a visit to Humphries' high school, Dorman, before the 2011 season to scout eventual signee Charone Peake during a basketball game. But once the game began, Swinney couldn't help but notice Dorman's 5-foot-11 point guard running the show. "I go watch a basketball game at Dorman High School to see Charone Peake, and I'm going, 'Dang, who's this point guard?'" Swinney said. "And I've got Coach (Dave) Gutshall going, 'Well that's the best football player I've got on the team.' And I'm like, 'Really? We need to watch this guy a little bit.' He played corner, he played receiver, he played running back, he played quarterback. He was the best football player on the team. Adam Humphries was his name. I don't think he had any offers. So we offer the guy, 'Well, we're only offering the guy to get Charone Peake. No, no, no. We want Humphries.'"

➤ Humphries maintains a friendship with former Clemson teammate DeAndre Hopkins.

➤ After going down with an injury in the 2019 season, Humphries adopted a shiba inu puppy, Gigi, to keep him company.

➤ An avid golfer, Humphries is around a 7 handicap.

➤ During the unique 2020 offseason, Humphries helped pass the time by playing video games. His main purpose was to connect with old friends from high school and college, and former teammates from the Buccaneers. He enjoys Fortnite and Rory McIlroy PGA Tour.

CB ADOREE' JACKSON

➤ Jackson was a long jumper and sprinter on USC's track team in the springs of 2015 and 2016, winning the Pac-12 outdoor long jump title both years (and placing second in the Pac-12 100 meters in 2016) and earning All-American status both years after twice placing fifth in the NCAA long jump. He also placed 10th in the long jump during the U.S. Olympic Trials.

➤ Vianca Jackson, a survivor of breast cancer, served as the team's Honorary 12th Titan prior to the team's 2017 Breast Cancer Awareness Game (Oct. 16).

➤ Jackson's father, Chris Jackson, is the ultimate grill master and can be found at Titans home games smoking turkey legs, Cornish hams, chicken, rabbits, alligator and frog legs for a pre-game tailgate among family and friends, as well as a post-game meal with players and coaches. He makes all of his own rubs and sauces and has been cooking since 1984.

➤ Jackson, business partner James Moore, and Jay Levine co-founded Kor Media Entertainment (KME), a Los Angeles-based entertainment agency under the Warner Brothers Digital umbrella. Their tagline is "Where Creatives Come to Play" and their goal is to create culture relevance for both creators and brands through interactive and labs which a focus on gaming and esports.

➤ Jackson is a Reese's Peanut Butter Cups enthusiast. He names creator Harry Burnett Reese as a historical person he would have loved to meet. "He's a genius. That's by far and away my favorite candy. I eat that like it ain't nothing."

➤ Jackson watched the movie "Space Jam" continuously as a child to the point he memorized most of the movie.

DB CHRIS JACKSON

➤ A two-time state track champion in high school, Jackson runs a 4.47 second 40-yard dash. "I still work out like a track athlete when I can," Jackson said. "I watch it a lot and keep up with it."

➤ He has a love of cars that he attributes to his father and uncle, the latter of which does competitive drag racing. Jackson lists his top three cars as a 1969 Camaro, a 1984 Buick Grand National and a Ferrari F40.

➤ Jackson was a two-time Florida state high school track champion in the 110-meter hurdles, and a runner-up in the 300 hurdles.

C BEN JONES

➤ Jones switched from jersey #61 to #60 prior to his senior season at Georgia, to honor his father, Steve, a former collegiate star, who was killed in a helicopter crash when he was 10 years old.

➤ Jones' pregame ritual consists of walking barefoot on the field "to get a feel for the turf." The routine began before one game with his brother in high school and after enjoying success that night, it has continued ever since.

➤ When he was 10 years old, Jones suffered a blow to the head with a baseball bat. The impact caused a blood clot to develop on his brain and fractured his skull. The injury kept him out of all athletic activity for a year.

➤ In 2017, Jones established The Jones Mission Fund at The Community Foundation to provide at-risk youth with opportunities they might otherwise not have.

➤ For the past three offseasons, Jones and his wife has hosted the annual Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot. The three events combined have raised more than $400,000 benefitting The Jones Mission Fund.

➤ Jones sponsors a trip to a Titans game each fall for the seniors of his high school's football team in Alabama. The experience includes round trip transportation from his hometown, tickets, a private tailgate, swag bags, and a meet-and-greet with a tour of the Titans practice facility after the game with Jones.

➤ Jones' brother, Clay, played baseball for the University of Alabama and then was drafted by the Detroit Tigers

DL DAQUAN JONES

➤ Jones has a reputation as an upbeat, positive influence. "I've always had that positive mindset, even when things weren't as good," he says. "The guys laugh at me sometimes because I'm always smiling ... It's not that I'm happy all the time, but I just feel like in today's world, if you let anything get you down, it will. The smallest thing will turn into the biggest problem if you let it, so I just try my best to keep a positive mindset."

➤ Jones majored in criminal justice at Penn State and spent a portion of his 2013 summer as an intern observing the Spring Township Police Department near State College.

➤ Jones entered the Penn State program after being rated the second-best offensive lineman in the nation during his playing days at Johnson City High School. He switched to the other side of the ball and made an immediate impact as a true freshman.

➤ Jones lists his father, Steve, as the most inspirational person in his life. Steve raised DaQuan as a single father and one of his father's greatest traits is that he works extremely hard in everything he does. Steve works as an executive chef at Cornell University.

➤ Jones is in the process of launching his own non-profit organization called "Create Your Legacy." In June 2019, he hosted the DaQuan Jones Create Your Legacy Football Camp for more than 100 kids ages 11-18 at Johnson City (N.Y.) High School.

CB JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

➤ Joseph established the Johnathan Joseph Foundation in December 2012 to create and support programs that emphasize character development, to promote academic excellence and to support and create initiatives for disadvantaged youth from single-parent homes.

➤ Joseph holds an annual football camp at Northwestern High School for youth in his hometown of Rock Hill, S.C.

➤ Joseph annually hosts "Operation Backpack" to offer students in Rock Hill, S.C. new backpacks for the upcoming school year.

➤ During the 2017 season, Joseph donated $5,000 per interception, $1,000 for every pass defensed and $250 per tackle to Habitat for Humanity in Houston for Hurricane Harvey relief.

➤ Joseph's father, John, worked at a cotton mill for over 30 years taking just one sick day over that timespan. He credits his father for molding him into the man he is today and instilling core values.

DB JOSHUA KALU (pronounced kuh-LOO)

➤ In the 2020 offseason during the COVID-19 pandemic, Kalu spent time giving back to his hometown of Houston, Texas. He partnered with local restaurants and hand-delivered free meals to healthcare workers fighting the pandemic.

➤ Kalu was heavily involved in the Lincoln community while at Nebraska. He was named to the Brook Berringer Citizenship Team and the Tom Osborne Citizenship Team as a sophomore, junior and senior for his work with Make-A-Wish, NFL Fuel Up to Play 60, the Souper Bowl of Caring, Husker Heroes and Husker Hotline, as well as local hospital and school outreach events.

➤ He earned his degree in child, youth and family studies in December of 2017, finishing his undergraduate work in 3 1/2 years.

T DENNIS KELLY

➤ Kelly went back to school during the 2014 offseason to earn his degree in organizational leadership from Purdue, and in May 2019, Kelly received his MBA from the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University.

➤ Kelly is an avid professional wrestling fan that does not let the opportunity pass him by whenever a live WWE show is in town. He lists the Undertaker as the one person in the world he would like to have dinner with.

➤ Kelly claims that the biggest influence on his life and career has been his entire family. "We're a Southside [Chicago] Irish family, so we share a really tight bond and they've inspired me to get to where I am today."

P BRETT KERN

➤ Kern's father, Cal, is a former professional soccer goalie.

➤ Kern is an avid golfer that sports a +1 handicap. He picked the game up late in his high school years and caddied for three summers at Inverness Golf Club while in college.

➤ Kern played basketball and was a long jumper and high hurdler in high school.

OLB HAROLD LANDRY III

➤ Landry could have entered the NFL Draft following his 16.5-sack junior season at Boston College. However, he chose to stay in school and received his degree in communications in December 2017.

➤ Landry's 26 career sacks at Boston College were exceeded in school history by only Mathias Kiwanuka (37.5 from 2002-05).

➤ In 2016, he set a Boston College record and led the nation with 16.5 sacks. His seven forced fumbles also ranked first nationally.

T TAYLOR LEWAN (pronounced leh-WAHN)

➤ Lewan is the co-founder of the popular podcast Bussin' With The Boys with teammate Will Compton. The two friends host guests on an old Monte Carlo Budweiser bus and discuss any and everything.

➤ Lewan owns a taxidermied beaver named Steve. The fedora-donning stuffed rodent, who was a gift from Lewan's wife, Taylin, makes appearances around the Titans locker room, often appearing at the locker of an unsuspecting rookie.

➤ Lewan chose to wear jersey number 77 at Michigan and then at the pro level because of the legacy of Wolverine tacklers who have donned the number, including Jake Long and Jon Jansen.

➤ One of Lewan's close friends is former Carolina Panthers defensive end Craig Roh. The two played together as high school seniors and then went to Michigan at the same time.

➤ At the 2014 NFL Scouting Combine, Lewan ran the 40-yard dash in 4.87 seconds, beating all other offensive linemen in his class and clocking the fourth-fastest time among offensive linemen from 2010-14. He also ranked among the top offensive linemen at the 2014 combine in the broad jump (first at nine feet, nine inches), vertical jump (tied for third at 30.5 inches) and three-cone drill (fourth at 7.39 seconds).

LB DAVID LONG JR.

➤ David's father, David Sr., is a former professional boxer who went 12-5-2 as a heavyweight. He once fought future world champ Deontay Wilder.

➤ During the offseason, Long still uses on-the-bell, three-minute-round boxing training to focus on his mental awareness. In 2018, Long Jr. went into the ring with headgear against his old man for the first time. They went for three 90-second rounds. "He busted up my lip, but it was fun," Long Jr. says. "He was really iffy that I knew how to throw my hands for real. It was just jabs, but it's grown-man strength."

➤ Long was a high school teammate of safety Mike Edwards, who was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the third round of the 2019 NFL Draft.

DT ISAIAH MACK

➤ Mack is extremely close with his mother, Sequoyah, who calls him 'D' because his middle name is Dwight.

➤ Mack's mother is a nurse and he initially majored in nursing at Chattanooga. He switched to criminal justice after taking a course in violence against women as a freshman.

➤ He lists his favorite hobby as 'going mudding' in his pickup truck, and also enjoys hunting, fishing and cooking

RB JEREMY MCNICHOLS

➤ McNichols was coached by hip-hop artist Snoop Dogg while playing youth football in the Snoop Youth Football League in Los Angeles, Calif. McNichols played both alongside and against numerous NFL players. The SYFL serves children between the ages of five and 13 years old, teaching them the values of teamwork, good sportsmanship, discipline, and self-respect, while also stressing the importance of academics.

CB CHRIS MILTON

➤ Milton is related to former NFL running back Tashard Choice, who played six seasons (2008-2013) in the NFL with the Dallas Cowboys, Washington, Buffalo Bills and Indianapolis Colts.

➤ Milton had the opportunity to learn from Pro Football Hall of Famer Champ Bailey. Their families were close, and when Milton was getting ready for the NFL, he reached out to Bailey for tips. They trained together during the weeks leading up to the draft. Now if he ever has questions, he still reaches out to the legendary cornerback.

➤ Milton enjoys fishing in his free time and when he is not playing or training for football he feels like a full-time fisherman on the water.

C DANIEL MUNYER

➤ As a senior at Colorado, Munyer was awarded the department of communication's Academic Leadership Award for his dedication to learning and strong positive presence in the classroom.

➤ He earned his degree in communication, with a certificate in digital media from Colorado in December 2014. He was named to the honorable mention Pac-12 All-Academic Team as a redshirt freshman, sophomore and junior.

DL LARRELL MURCHISON

➤ Murchison grew up working with his mother at her restaurant in Elizabethtown called Glenda's Just Desserts and Lunch Counter, which she has owned for 10 years. He would work doing whatever needed to be done – mopping floors, sweeping, waiting tables and taking orders. "Everything is good, but if you go, I'd say start with the fried pork chops, mac and cheese and cabbage."

➤ Murchison loves everything music and enjoys playing the drums. His dad played drums in the church when he was younger, and he just followed in his footsteps.

RB SENORISE PERRY (first name pronounce suh-nah-RISS)

➤ Perry wasn't among the rookie free agents signed in the days following the 2014 NFL Draft. He hit the tryout circuit and hoped to make an impression. Perry was one of two players signed by the Chicago Bears after a May tryout. He excelled on special teams in the preseason games and sealed his 53-man roster spot as an undrafted free agent.

➤ Perry excelled in track and field as a high school senior, winning the Georgia state titles in the 100 meters and long jump.

➤ Perry's hobbies include photography, and he has a desire to learn how to deep sea fish.

TE MYCOLE PRUITT

➤ The name MyCole has a unique origin. Pruitt's mother's name is Colette. Cole means "people's victory" in Greek baby names. She named him MyCole for My-Victory. MyCole is his mother's victory.

➤ Named best tight end in Missouri Valley Football Conference history as part of the MVFC's 30-year anniversary celebration.

➤ Pruitt graduated in December 2014 with a bachelor's degree in industrial technology from Southern Illinois.

TITANS TIDBITS: THE BEST OF TITANS OFF-THE-FIELD NOTES

➤ Pruitt attended the same high school as former NFL wide receiver Jeremy Maclin.

WR KALIF RAYMOND

➤ Raymond was a dual-sport collegiate athlete, competing in football as well as track and field during his senior season at Holy Cross. He placed second in the 100-meter dash at the 2015 New England Outdoor Championship with a time of 10.71 seconds.

➤ Raymond received little interest from college football programs when he was a student at Greater Atlanta Christian (Ga.) High School, partly due to a serious injury he suffered as a senior. Undeterred, he began sending emails to colleges with football programs with high academic standards. The only schools to respond were Lehigh, Georgetown and Holy Cross, and he chose the latter.

➤ In preparation for the 2016 NFL Draft, Raymond, who was not invited to the NFL Scouting Combine, was allowed to participate in Harvard's pro day since Holy Cross did not host a pro day.

OLB DERICK ROBERSON (pronounced ROW-ber-son)

➤ Roberson enjoys painting on and designing sneakers and cleats.

➤ Roberson is unsure how many tattoos he has at this point, but he has drawn and designed some of the ones he has inked on his body.

G RODGER SAFFOLD III

➤ Saffold is the owner of competitive "Call of Duty" and "Fortnite" teams called Rise Nation. He invested in the video game industry in April 2014.

➤ His father, Rodger II, played football at the University of Iowa in the mid-1970s.

➤ Rodger and his wife Asia grew up on the same street as eight-year olds in Ohio. The childhood friend's romance didn't begin until quite awhile later when the two re-connected on Facebook during Saffold's second-year with the Rams.

T TY SAMBRAILO

➤ Sambrailo is an avid skier who as a youth earned USSA titles in the slalom, giant slalom and super-G events for his age group.

➤ Sambrailo's dad, Mark, graduated from the University of Colorado, where he was a pole vaulter, his brother, Erik, also is a CU graduate and competed as a skier in the Junior Olympics, his sister, Kiersten, played volleyball at Oregon State, and his grandfather, Bill Sambrailo, played football at Santa Clara, helping the team to a berth in the Orange Bowl.

DT JEFFERY SIMMONS

➤ During college Simmons was a two-time member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll.

➤ Simmons' brother, Dylan Bradley, played football at Southern Miss and then spent time with the Minnesota Vikings. His uncle, Jason Hatcher, played 10 total seasons with the Dallas Cowboys and Washington.

➤ Away from football, Simmons enjoys fishing and spending time outdoors.

TE JONNU SMITH (first name pronounced JAH-new)

➤ Smith competed in weightlifting, finishing second in the county in the 219-pound weight class in high school at West Port.

➤ Smith credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself. "My mother is my rock. It was tough, but we always got what we needed—not necessarily what we wanted all the time—but what we needed. She was so strong all the time."

➤ Smith endured a lot of challenges as a youngster in Philadelphia and after his brother was arrested and one of his friends was killed on the streets, a decision needed to be made. His family didn't have the financial means to just uproot, so for his own safety Jonnu moved in with his mother's sister and brother-in-law, Darla and Mike Kirkland, in Ocala, Fla. He started playing high school football and even though he was far from a touted recruit, he earned a scholarship to Florida International where his play took off.

➤ Smith's best friend Willie "Quasim" Jefferson tragically died from a gun shot in October 2016. Jonnu gave his son the middle name Quasim in honor of him.

CB TYE SMITH

➤ In 2018, Smith began hosting the annual "Simple Greatness" youth football clinic at St. Augustine University in his hometown of Raleigh, N.C. Smith says Simple Greatness to him means, "It can't be measured. It means heart, dedication. It's all the intangibles that we as a society overlook because we look so much at things we can measure."

➤ Smith enjoys volunteering his free time in the community and he helped raise money for Habitat for Humanity in 2018 with a bowling event and kids field day activity in his hometown of Raleigh, N.C.

➤ He has his own website, www.simplegns.com.

TE GEOFF SWAIM

➤ Two-time member of the Big 12 Commissioner's Honor Roll.

➤ Brother, Mycal, also attended Butte College and then played safety at Eastern Michigan (2012-13) before signing as a free agent with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers following the 2014 NFL Draft.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

➤ Ryan founded the Tannehill's A.C.E.S. (Achieving Community Educations Success) program with wife, Lauren, which consisted of 17 sophomores from American Senior High School and is focused on awarding scholarships to the participating students who strive for good grades and took on an active role in their community by hosting monthly events to reward the students and help them give back to the community.

➤ Ryan's father, Tim, played wide receiver at Texas Tech from 1985-87.

S KENNY VACCARO

➤ Vaccaro traveled to Kenya during the 2016 offseason with former Texas and Saints teammate Alex Okafor and is involved in community and fundraising efforts to construct a school in the region.

➤ Vaccaro's uncle, A.J. Johnson, played for Washington (1989-94), helping them to Super Bowl XXVI win before spending a season with the San Diego Chargers (1995).

➤ Vaccaro founded the Kenny Vaccaro Foundation to provide economically challenged students with literacy and education resources so that they can achieve academic excellence, develop confident personal skills, and make positive decisions to avoid high risk behavior.

WR NICK WESTBROOK-IKHINE (pronounced uh-KEEN-UH)

➤ Westbrook-Ikhine attended Lake Mary (Fla.) High School where he set the program's career, single-season and single-game receiving yardage and touchdowns records.

➤ He also lettered in lacrosse and track and field in high school, participating in the 300-meter hurdles, long jump and triple jump.

➤ Graduated with a business marketing degree in December 2019 from Indiana's No. 10 ranked Kelley School of Business.

T ISAIAH WILSON

➤ Wilson enjoys watching cartoons, and he has a particular fondness for "SpongeBob SquarePants." "I can really dissect it deeply and learn a lot from it," he says.

➤ Wilson is comfortable working in the kitchen, dishing out everything from French toast to mac and cheese and collard greens to his family. He was employed at a summer camp for three summers in high school, spending much of that time in the camp kitchen.

➤ Wilson welcomed the opportunity to begin his career in Music City. He listens to a diverse range of music, listing Travis Scott, Brantley Gilbert, Aretha Franklin and Mötley Crüe as a sampling of his many favorites.

➤ Prior to being drafted by the Titans, Wilson, a video game enthusiast, would choose the Titans when he played Madden NFL because of Derrick Henry. "You can't stop him," Wilson says.

QB LOGAN WOODSIDE

➤ In his free time, Woodside enjoys playing golf and fishing in his home state of Kentucky.

➤ His hometown of Frankfort, Ky., is a three-hour drive from Nashville.

➤ During the 2019 offseason, Woodside played for the Alliance of American Football League's San Antonio Commanders. In seven AAF games, he completed 116 of 201 passes for 1,385 yards and seven touchdowns.

TITANS ALL ACCESS

The Titans' 30-minute, official magazine-style TV show returns for its 18th season in 2020. Mike Keith and Amie Wells co-host the show, joined by Titans general manager Jon Robinson.

Titans All Access features a variety of long-form stories every week. The show always reviews and previews Titans games, but also shares on-and-off-field stories about the players, coaches and their families. Other Titans All Access staples include one-on-one chats with players and exclusive insight from Robinson, plus Titans news from TennesseeTitans.com senior writer/editor Jim Wyatt.

Titans All Access is shown locally on Nashville's FOX 17 Saturdays at 11:30 a.m. and Sundays at 10:30 a.m. It also airs in Nashville on CW 58 and on MyTV 30.

Titans All Access also has affiliates in Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Jackson, Huntsville and Paducah.

HEAD COACH MIKE VRABEL PRESS CONFERENCE TRANSCRIPT

(on the importance of making clutch plays late in close games)

I think that it's much more valuable than then losing by one. But we have to be able to play better, to try to not be in those tight games, but I do think that our ability to function when the games are tight or maybe when we're behind or have to execute these situations, that can only help you. It's not what we want to rely on, but it's something that we feel like we gain confidence that the players don't panic, and we're able to execute the situations as they come up down the stretch.

(on if defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons' performance in Week Three was the best of his career)

I think it probably was. I think he's just getting a lot more comfortable. I think he's feeling better. He plays extremely hard. His technique is really improving. For so long – and again, in college I think Jeffery (Simmons) just relied on his natural ability which is very high, and now I think he's really started to improve and understand how his technique can help him affect the game and make plays for us and be disruptive.

(on the importance not pointing fingers when the team is going through adversity)

You try to coach it. You try to preach it and understand how valuable it is, that the games are long, that each unit and each player is pulling for each other, that when adversity hits we have the ability to get things fixed and go out and keep playing. I think that's a testament to the leaders on this team, to the players that we have and what we're trying to build.

(on if he picked up the team-first mindset at previous stops in his playing days)

You learn from every place that you've been, and those are great places. Even coaching at Ohio State and the ability to coach in Houston, you want to just try to remain as focused as you can on each and every play and not panic, and just remind the players that fix the issues and get back to work. I think that's the most important thing that you can do during the game.

(on when he found out outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen wasn't able to travel to Minnesota due to COVID-19 protocols and how the team contact traces)

To touch on Buck (Reising)'s question, Shane Bowen wasn't with us and is not currently with us as it stands today because of the COVID protocol that we have to follow. That would have been Saturday morning, early Saturday morning when we get those results back. Then we make plans and work through all those things, whether that be any sort of situation, that's our job is to be able to handle it and to function and move on and make sure that the team has everything it needs.

(on an injury update for tackle Taylor Lewan and how tackle Ty Sambrailo did when he stepped in for Taylor Lewan)

Not much to offer on Taylor (Lewan). But I would say that Ty (Sambrailo), other than a few plays in there did a really nice job. Was proud of the way that he stepped in there and played, which is not easy against a player like (Yannick) Ngakoue. He jumped right in there, was ready to go, knew what to do, and again had a couple plays that I'm sure he'd like to have back but then I thought he played pretty well.

(on outside linebacker Vic Beasley Jr. and running back Darrynton Evans making their debuts in Week Three)

It was good to get those guys out there. Got to continue to add on to what they're doing by working them in there in practice more and expanding their roles. But it was good to get those guys out there, and each and every week the more guys, the more players that we can have available, the better off we're going to be. We'll keep working those guys and we'll keep giving them opportunities to develop roles on our team.

(on who is taking over Shane Bowen's day-to-day responsibilities with the outside linebackers)

Matt Edwards has been helping with that group. I help with that group and Shane (Bowen) does. There's a couple of us that do that and so we'll continue along that process here in the near future.

(on what went wrong in run defense at Minnesota and how the team corrects that going forward)

We've got to practice it. We've got to execute it. Far too many X plays. Far too many missed tackles. You're going to play good players every week in this league, good backs, good receivers, good quarterbacks, and so it's good skill players. We have to do a better job. We can't have guys there and not execute or not fit things properly, and that has to get fixed.

(on how the coaching staff operated in the absence of Shane Bowen)

I think at that point in time I think Craig Aukerman takes on probably a little larger role if I'm over with the defense for an extended period of time, but for the most part, not much changed. I tried to still stay involved with the offense. If something would happen or we needed a timeout, Craig (Aukerman) had a headset and would be able to call timeout or challenge accordingly if I wasn't standing there. Normally the special teams coaches wouldn't wear a headset, but in this instance we felt like that was the best thing to do.

(on if the lack of a preseason is contributing to the missed tackles and what is causing the missed tackles)

There's a lot of things. We didn't tackle terrible in Jacksonville. We didn't have a double digit missed tackle game. We did yesterday. We'll have to do a better job of limiting space for talented players and not putting it all on one guy. A lot of times it's about space in this league with skill players.

(on if any coach on the defensive staff took on more responsibilities in Shane Bowen's absence)

Not more than what they normally would.

(on wanting to start the season strong and his excitement level with being 3-0)

We're happy to be 3-0. We're happy to have one. We have to play better. We have to coach better. Continue to improve, get into a rhythm, start taking advantage of the turnovers. There were things we didn't do yesterday – we got some turnovers, couldn't capitalize on the sudden change, gave up too many big plays, too many explosive plays. Hopefully we can continue to kick the football well, and then now start putting together all three phases of real, consistent football that complements each other.

(on if playing the Steelers in Week Four is a big game or just another game)

We get one opportunity a week, I think they're all big. I think that when you only have 16 games in a season, they're all important, and at the end of the season they all count just as much. This week's challenge is Pittsburgh. They bring a fantastic defense, number one in a lot of categories. The offense has been able to run the football. They've been very efficient throwing it. So, there's a lot of problems that they bring that we'll have to be ready for

(on how the team is contact tracing in line with COVID-19 protocols and Shane Bowen's timetable for return)

I'd say we've followed all the protocols as it relates to COVID. That's all I'll say about it, and then as everything else, we're not into timetables or returns to play or coach.

(on leading the league in turnover differential and what the players are doing right to earn that result)

We got good pressure on the interception yesterday, which forced it. We're swarming to the ball. I think that Dalvin (Cook)'s came out – we had a couple other guys that were punching for it. You have to look for opportunities. I know Malcolm (Butler) was around the out of bounds and punched at it, missed a tackle. I don't think we'd really want to see that, but I saw Jayon (Brown) hitting at one when he was making a tackle where the ball was on our sidelines and it came a little loose. It didn't come out, but I think you have to keep looking for opportunities. I think guys we're trying to match the quarterback's hand. We have to tip some more footballs and try to get it away from the quarterback when he's in the pocket. It's about an awareness of where the ball is on any given time during the play, who has it, and what you're really coached to do as far as trying to get it out, hammer, rake it, match the hand, reading the eyes of the quarterback or just making sure you're matching your guy in man coverage.

(on allowing defensive players the freedom to 'freelance' when they're playing)

To freelance? That's always going to go on. We have to improve it and makes sure that it's coordinated. When you start freelancing and, 'Hey, I'm just trying to make a play.' I hope we can try to make it a good one because what happens is then you open up something else, and then somebody else has to make up for you. We need to communicate better. We have to make sure that everybody's sound in what we're doing and then there's a certain element of going and making a play and being a football player. I hate to use the word freelance, but any of our players on our team have the ability to effectively do their job in a manner in which they need to do it, as long as it's sound and it's coordinated.

(on when the next round of COVID-19 test results come back)

I've said about all I'm going to say as it relates to our COVID-19 protocol other than we're following the hundred memos that they've sent out verbatim. We'll keep you updated on the roster as it relates to that and who has to be out and who doesn't. That's about all I'm going to say on the COVID topic.

(on if tackle Isaiah Wilson and cornerback Adoree' Jackson will be able to return this week)

It's a little early in the week but I think that we're hopeful that they could maybe practice. We'll see kind of where they're at. Would really like to see Isaiah (Wilson) and be able to continue to work with him, and get him to improve and evaluate him so hopefully that'll happen. I'll have some more, I think, maybe as the week goes on. It's just a little early here being Monday. But hopefully those are two good candidates to try to get back to practice.

(on what players received game balls for their efforts in Week Three)

I'd like to have the opportunity to talk to the team first. The way that the schedule is and the fact that we haven't met with the players is something that, just out of respect for them, just to be able to recognize those guys in front of the team. It was a great team win. There's a lot of a lot of players that contributed to the victory. Obviously, Stephen Gostkowski had a special day for us, we needed it. They played really well in the red zone, we did not. He had to kick a lot of field goals, had three over 50 yards. Really, I would say that the best player out on the field yesterday for us would have been our kicker.

(on what improvements he's seeing in outside linebacker Jadeveon Clowney from week to week)

I think so. He's had some disruptive plays and had some things where he's done a nice job. We'll hopefully be able to get some more sacks from everybody. But I did feel like there were some opportunities yesterday where we affected the quarterback and he might have just gotten it out or dumped it out of there or whatever he did. But I thought we did a better job, an improved job of affecting him and we just have to continue to do that. We were better on third and fourth down yesterday, but it's just the X plays, get that fixed and keep improving.

(on running back Derrick Henry being on pace for over 457 carries this season)

Is that a record? What's the record? We're just trying to do what we feel like gives us the best chance to win each and every week. That is a lot of carries if that is what it ends up being. But we'll be conscious. Joe Rexrode's chiming in here, Larry Johnson's got the record, 406. So it would be a record. That's not our goal. Our goal is to win. Actually, the records 416. But our goal is to win, and obviously make sure that everybody's ready to go each and every week. You saw the effectiveness that Derrick (Henry) had down the stretch for us, which was absolutely critical to our success. We'll keep working guys in there and we'll keep trying to stay balanced and do everything we can to keep winning.

(on when Adoree' Jackson will be available to come off injured reserve)

All right, Steve (Layman) was the math major or maybe he wasn't the math major. I don't know. Maybe it would be another week, we'll see. We'll find out when you can start practicing, and if he's healthy enough to practice we'll try to get him back out there. I'll have more of an answer for you on Wednesday, but right now, he still is on the short-term IR.

TITANS-BRONCOS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 1: Titans 16, Broncos 14

Monday, Sept. 14, 2020 • 8:20 p.m. MT • Empower Field at Mile High

GAME RECAP

In Week 1 of the 2020 NFL season, the Titans traveled to Denver to take on the Broncos on Monday Night Football. Tennessee won by a score of 16-14.

Denver got on the board first with a 10-play, 63-yard scoring drive. Broncos RB Melvin Gordon III and QB Drew Lock each rushed for a first down, and Lock tossed a 12-yard pass to Broncos WR Jerry Jeudy to help move the chains. Ultimately, Lock connected with Broncos TE Noah Fant for a nine-yard score and an early 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter at the Denver 21-yard line, Lock tossed a two-yard pass to Gordon III, but S Kevin Byard forced a fumble and the ball was recovered by DL Jeffery Simmons. Tennessee took possession and capitalized on the turnover. RB Derrick Henry contributed 13 yard on the ground as QB Ryan Tannehill hit TE MyCole Pruitt for a one-yard touchdown to tie the game, 7-7.

On the ensuing Denver drive, the Broncos drove into Titans territory but were denied a score. On first-and-goal at the Tennessee two-yard line, Broncos RB Phillip Lindsay gained one yard on the ground, but Denver was stopped on the following three downs. On fourth down, Lock tossed a shovel pass to Broncos TE Jake Butt, who was taken down by Simmons and DL DaQuan Jones for no gain to preserve the score.

In the second half, the Titans took the lead with a 15-play, 82-yard scoring drive. Tannehill completed two first-down passes to WR Corey Davis, one to WR Adam Humphries, and Henry added one rushing first down before Tannehill threw a one-yard touchdown pass to TE Jonnu Smith. The extra point attempt was no good as the Titans pulled ahead, 13-7. The Broncos responded on the ensuing possession with a scoring drive of their own. Gordon III rushed for a gain of 25, and Jeudy contributed a 21-yard reception before Gordon ran in a one-yard score as the Broncos retook the lead, 14-13.

Late in the fourth quarter, the Titans offense moved efficiently down the field for an 83-yard scoring drive that took 2:48 to complete. With 17 seconds remaining in regulation, K Stephen Gostkowski tacked on a 25-yard field goal to put the Titans ahead, 16-14. Tennessee's defense preserved the score and the Titans opened up the season with a primetime victory.

TITANS-JAGUARS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 2: Titans 33, Jaguars 30
Sunday, Sept. 20, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 2 of the 2020 season, the Titans hosted the Jacksonville Jaguars for their home opener and won by a score of 33-30. Tennessee advanced to 2-0 on the season for the first time since 2008.

The Titans opened up the game with a three-play scoring drive that elapsed 98 seconds. QB Ryan Tannehill's first pass of the game went 63 yards to TE Jonnu Smith, and two plays later Smith caught a 13-yard score for an early 7-0 Titans lead. On the following Jacksonville possession, rookie CB Kristian Fulton picked off Jaguars QB Gardner Minshew II and returned the ball 44 yards. Tennessee capitalized on the turnover as Tannehill threw a nine-yard touchdown to WR Corey Davis, 14-7 Titans. Jacksonville then responded with a touchdown drive of their own. Minshew II hit Jaguars WR DJ Chark Jr. for a 45-yard gain before ultimately tossing a 19-yard touchdown to Jaguars TE Tyler Eifert to cut the score in half, 14-7.

In the second quarter Tennessee extended its lead on another touchdown by Smith. Tannehill threw a four-yard score to Smith for a 21-7 advantage. Both teams successfully added a field goal each to make it 24-10 with the Titans ahead heading into halftime.

Jacksonville had the ball to begin the second half and quickly inched closer to the Titans with a 14-play scoring drive. Jaguars RB James Robinson scurried into the end zone on a 17-yard rush to make it a 24-17 game. On the ensuing Tennessee possession, RB Derrick Henry contributed a 14-yard gain and Davis caught a 17-yard pass to move the chains. Facing pressure and absorbing a hit as he threw the ball, Tannehill launched an 18-yard touchdown pass to WR Adam Humphries. The extra point was no good as Tennessee pulled out ahead, 30-17.

On the ensuing Jacksonville drive, Minshew II led his offense on a 75-yard scoring drive that resulted in a two-yard touchdown reception by Jaguars WR Keelan Cole Sr. Jacksonville's extra point attempt failed, 30-23 Titans.

In the fourth quarter, Jacksonville tied the game 30-30. After two catches for 32 yards contributed by Jaguars WR Chris Conley, Minshew was able to hit Jaguars RB Chris Thompson for a 14-yard touchdown to knot the score.

For the second consecutive week, Tannehill engineered a game-winning drive for Tennessee. Beginning at their own 40-yard line, the Titans moved down to the Jacksonville 31-yard line to allow K Stephen Gostkowski the opportunity to convert the go-ahead 49-yard field goal with 1:36 remaining in the game, 33-30. The Jaguars offense took the field with a minute and a half to go and DT Jeffery Simmons tipped a Minshew II seonc-down pass that was intercepted by outside linebacker Harold Landry III to preserve a Titans victory.

TITANS-VIKINGS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 3: Titans 31, Vikings 30
Sunday, Sept. 27, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • U.S. Bank Stadium

In Week 3 of the 2020 season, the Titans traveled to Minnesota to face the Vikings and won by a score of 31-30. K Stephen Gostkowski was a career-best six-for-six on field goals and RB Derrick Henry added two rushing scores to propel the Titans to a 3-0 start.

Tennessee put up a 54-yard scoring drive on their opening possession. WR Kalif Raymond made a 44-yard catch to move the chains as Gostkowski converted a 39-yard field goal for an early 3-0 lead. Later in the first quarter, CB Johnathan Joseph forced Vikings RB Dalvin Cook to fumble the ball and LB Rashaan Evans recovered the fumble. Evans scooped the ball up and ran 25 yards to the Minnesota 20-yard line to set the Titans up in position for a 31-yard field goal. Tennessee moved ahead, 6-0. On the ensuing Minnesota possession, the Vikings put together a seven-play, 76-yard scoring drive. Vikings QB Kirk Cousins connected with Vikings WR Justin Jefferson for an 11-yard gain before Cook took off for a 39-yard rushing score. Minnesota took the lead, 7-6.

In the second quarter, QB Ryan Tannehill threw an interception in the end zone to Vikings S Harrison Smith. Minnesota capitalized on the turnover and produced an 88-yard scoring drive, which was capped with a 16-yard touchdown reception by Vikings WR Adam Thielen for a 14-6 Minnesota advantage. Each team tacked on a field goal in the second quarter to make it a 17-9 game heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, Tennessee inched closer to Minnesota with a 51-yard field goal to make it a 17-12 game. However, on the ensuing Vikings possession Cousins threw a 71-yard touchdown pass to Jefferson as Minnesota extended the lead, 24-12.

On the following Tennessee drive, WR Corey Davis contributed a 38-yard reception to give Tennessee a first down at the Minnesota eight-yard line. Ultimately, Henry ran into the end zone on a one-yard score to make it a 24-19 game. After forcing the Vikings to punt on their next possession, Tennessee put together another scoring drive. With a 61-yard catch contributed by Raymond, Henry again rushed for a one-yard score to give Tennessee the lead. The Titans were unsuccessful on a two-point conversion attempt and took the lead, 25-24.

The Vikings retook the lead with a 10-play, 75-yard scoring drive. Cousins connected with Vikings TE Kyle Rudolph for a three-yard touchdown, but Minnesota's two-point conversion attempt failed as the Vikings took a 30-25 advantage.

Trailing by five points, the Titans engineered a 10-play scoring drive on that saw Gostkowski nail a 54-yard field goal to make it a 30-28 game. After forcing the Vikings to punt, Tennessee added another field goal on its next possession as Gostkowski's 55-yard kick gave the Titans a 31-30 lead with just under two minutes left to play.

With Minnesota facing a fourth-and-24 from their own 26-yard line, and Tennessee looking to preserve a lead, Cousins threw a pass deep right and it was intercepted by DB Amani Hooker to seal a Titans victory.

LAST WEEK'S GAME CLIPS

JEFFERSON'S BREAKOUT NOT ENOUGH, AS VIKINGS FALTER AT FINISH

BY DAVE CAMPBELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Justin Jefferson blew by the closest man in coverage to make a wide-open catch, sprinted parallel to the sideline and broke through two tackle attempts around the 20-yard line before veering toward the end zone.

The last part of Jefferson's first NFL touchdown was so easy he took the opportunity to slow down and tap dance across the goal line, giving the Minnesota Vikings a 12-point lead over Tennessee midway through the third quarter.

If only Jefferson and the Vikings found the end of the game so trouble-free.

Stephen Gostkowski made his career-high sixth field goal of game, a 55-yarder with 1:44 left that lifted the undefeated Titans to a 31-30 victory over the winless Vikings on Sunday.

"It doesn't really matter how many yards or catches or touchdowns I had, we still lost," said Jefferson, who had seven receptions for 175 yards. "We still have some things to fix."

Only two Vikings rookies have had more receiving yards in a game: Sammy White (210) against Detroit on Nov. 7, 1976, and Hall of Famer Randy Moss (190) on Oct. 5, 1998.

The Vikings, who were outscored 37-13 in the first half over their first two games, produced six drives of 50-plus yards and led for 32:07, including 30-25 with 10:17 remaining when Kirk Cousins hit Kyle Rudolph for a one-handed, toe-tapping touchdown.

The Titans responded with a field goal, and then all that good work by the offense over the first 55 minutes of the game was negated by an unraveling that left coach Mike Zimmer quite upset.

Tight end Irv Smith was called for an illegal block in the back penalty during a run by Dalvin Cook for no gain, pushing the ball back to the 29-yard line. Rookie cornerback Kristian Fulton delivered a sack on the next play, and the Vikings had to punt.

"Things like that that the good teams don't do," said Zimmer, who is 0-3 for the first time since he was hired in 2014.

After Gostkowski's last kick of the game put them behind, the Vikings caught a break when Cousins was hit late by Jeffery Simmons for a roughing-the-passer penalty that pushed the ball to their own 40-yard line with 1:41 remaining.

The Titans cranked up the pressure after that, though.

After a hurried Cousins threw incomplete to Cook, who had a career-high 182 rushing yards and a score, a wayward snap by center Garrett Bradbury when Cousins wasn't ready for it led to a 14-yard loss on the fumble. After another incompletion intended for Cook, Cousins had his desperation fourth-down heave picked off by Amani Hooker for Minnesota's third turnover. Cook lost a fumble in the first quarter, and Cousins was intercepted in the third quarter. Cousins has already matched his 2019 interception total with six.

"Those guys are all veteran guys, and I want them to take charge in those moments when we have the opportunity to go down and win the football game," Zimmer said. "Instead, it was chaos. We're going to have to get that squared away."

Said Cousins, who went 16 for 27 for 251 yards and three touchdowns: "You'd have to ask coach specifically what he meant, but we'll have to work on what didn't go well there."

Jefferson, the 22nd overall pick in the draft, ought to at least give the Vikings a spark to build off.

"He had a great game today. Really proud of the way he played," said Cousins, who threw only one pass to Jefferson that wasn't a completed, a well-placed throw into the end zone in the second quarter that cornerback Malcolm Butler broke up at the last second.

Chosen with the selection acquired in the trade that sent Stefon Diggs to Buffalo, Jefferson came with especially high expectations that he has not hidden from. Cousins and the Vikings will need him to continue producing like this, to take the attention away from star Adam Thielen in a season that's already on the brink.

"It boosted my confidence a lot, coming out here and having a game like that on a high level," Jefferson said. "More to come."

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Stephen Gostkowski made his career-high sixth field goal of game, a 55-yarder with 1:48 left that lifted undefeated Tennessee to a 31-30 victory over the Minnesota Vikings on Sunday after Derrick Henry and Ryan Tannehill carried the Titans on another comeback.

Henry rushed for 119 yards and two third-quarter touchdowns for the Titans, who improved to 3-0 for the first time since 2008 after trailing for most of the game. Tannehill passed for 321 yards, guiding the Titans on a go-ahead drive in the fourth quarter or overtime for the sixth time in 16 games since becoming the starter. The Titans are 12-4 behind Tannehill, including the playoffs, and they're 15-0 when Henry hits the 100-yard mark.

Dalvin Cook rushed for a career-high 181 yards and a score for the Vikings, who are 0-3 for the first time since 2013. Kirk Cousins threw for 251 yards and three touchdowns, hitting Kyle Rudolph for a one-handed, toe-tapping grab in the back of the end zone for a 30-25 lead with 10:22 left. The depleted Vikings defense didn't do enough to hold it, though, as Tannehill moved the Titans just close enough for Gostkowski to go to work. The last three of his makes were all from 50-plus yards.

Gostkowski, the longtime New England Patriots stalwart, missed three field goals in the 40 to 49-yard range and two extra points over his first two performances with the Titans. The 15-year veteran has three game-winning kicks with less than two minutes left in three games, though. The Titans have a net scoring margin of just six points.

The Vikings, who were outscored 37-13 in the first half over their first two games, had 464 yards by an offense that finally got going. Cousins was hit late by Jeffery Simmons for a roughing-the-passer penalty that gave Minnesota the ball at its 40-yard line with 1:41 remaining, but the Titans toughened up after that. Amani Hooker picked off a desperation fourth-down heave by Cousins, who has already matched his 2019 interception total with six.

INJURY REPORT

Titans: LT Taylor Lewan hurt his shoulder late in the first quarter and did not return, replaced by Ty Sambrailo. ... LB Vic Beasley Jr. played sparingly in his Titans debut after missing the first two games with a knee injury.

Vikings: With DE Danielle Hunter (neck) and LB Anthony Barr (pectoral) on injured reserve and CB Mike Hughes (neck) and CB Cameron Dantzler (rib) on the inactive list, the Vikings were missing four starters from their first-choice lineup.

UP NEXT

Titans: Host Pittsburgh on Oct. 4.

Vikings: Play at Houston on Oct. 4.

OFFENSE BAIL OUT

VIKINGS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The Tennessee Titans' offense came up big in a back-and-forth 31-30 shootout win over the Minnesota Vikings, but the biggest star was kicker Stephen Gostkowski. He made a 55-yard field goal with 1:58 remaining to give Tennessee the lead for good.

Gostkowski's six field goals tied a career-high. He is now 14-for-15 on potential go-ahead field goals in the fourth quarter for his career.

The Titans' defense allowed 464 total yards to Minnesota a week after the Jacksonville Jaguars finished with 480 yards against Tennessee.

Stephen Gostkowski was a career-high 6-for-6 on field goals and hit a 55-yard game winner.

Ryan Tannehill led the Titans to their seventh fourth-quarter comeback (an NFL high since he took over in Week 7 last season). After some early struggles, Tannehill came alive in the third quarter, starting with a 61-yard completion to Kalif Raymond that led to Tennessee's first lead of the day when Derrick Henry punched it in from the 1-yard line. Henry led a methodical rushing attack, finishing with 119 yards and two touchdowns.

The win gave the Titans their first 3-0 start since 2008.

Troubling trend: The Titans' run defense continued to struggle. After giving up 165 yards on the ground to the Jaguars last week, the Vikings gained 226 yards on the ground, including 181 yards by Dalvin Cook. Coach Mike Vrabel alluded to the need to "edge, wall, and swarm" when asked about the run defense last week. Tennessee needs to tackle better. That's been an issue for the Titans that showed up Sunday on the 39-yard touchdown run by Cook.

Pivotal play: After the Titans' defense got a much-needed three-and-out, coordinator Arthur Smith dialed up a play-action pass that resulted in the 61-yard toss from Tannehill to Raymond. The long completion set up a first-and-goal at the 4-yard line. Henry punched it in from the 1-yard line a few plays later to give the Titans a 25-24 lead.

Eye-popping NextGen stat: Cook gained more than 100 of his 181 rushing yards before contact, which is a career-high. The excessive yards after contact further emphasizes their tackling issues.

WHAT WE KNOW FOLLOWING THE 31-30 VICTORY OVER THE VIKINGS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

Things can change – and often do – from week to week in the NFL.

What we saw of the Tennessee Titans in their 31-30 victory at Minnesota on Sunday, however, will remain true until they show us something different.

With that in mind, here are some truths about the Titans as we know them three weeks into the 2020 NFL season

Signing Stephen Gostkowski is the best move Jon Robinson has made to date. The Titans invested many dollars in Ryan Tannehill and Derrick Henry and still had their eyes on Jadeveon Clowney, so it might have made sense to try to save money on a kicker. Instead, they signed veteran Stephen Gostkowski to a one-year, $2.75 million pact right at the end of the preseason.

After a rough start, Gostkowski has made 10 field goals, which is one more than four Tennessee kickers made all last season (playoffs included), and four of them are from 50 yards or more. Only once, has the 36-year-old made more than four from 50-plus in a single season, and that was 2013, which is also the only other time he made three game-winning kicks in a single year (they were not in consecutive weeks).

After last year's playoff run, it would have been easy to believe that the Titans would win a number of games comfortably this season. As it turns out, they might not have won at all to this point without Gostkowski.

Adoreé Jackson means more to the defense than most of us probably realized. The fourth-year cornerback is not what anyone would consider a shut-down pass defender. However, when he was placed on injured reserve prior to the opener against Denver, it created a ripple effect in the secondary that has caused veteran Johnathan Joseph and rookies Kristian Fulton and Chris Jackson to play bigger and different roles than anticipated (Jackson missed the Vikings game with an injury of his own).

Minnesota rookie Justin Jefferson took advantage with 175 yards on seven receptions. His 71-yard touchdown catch in the third quarter (he beat Joseph on the play) was the longest pass play allowed by the Titans since Oct. 21, 2018 against the Chargers in London. In all Jefferson had three catches of more than 30 yards.

A healthy Jackson is fast enough and physical enough that he likely would have been a better matchup while Malcolm Butler, on the other side, went one-on-one with the smaller, shifty Adam Thielen.

Derrick Henry is earning every bit of that big contract. The NFL's 2019 rushing champion has topped 100 yards rushing in consecutive games, and he is off to the best start of his career with 319 yards through three games.

However, he has needed 82 carries to get those yards (Henry had 110 carries his entire rookie season). That is an average of 3.9 per attempt. He had a 16-yard gain against the Vikings, which is his longest of the season to date, and it was his fifth of the season for more than 10 yards. Last season, Henry averaged 5.1 yards per carry and had at least one carry or more than 16 yards in 10 of the 15 games he played.

The four-year, $50 million contract extension he signed in the offseason made it perfectly clear how valuable he is to Tennessee's offense – and opponents are determined not to give him free yards this year.

Ryan Tannehill can be ordinary after all: The Titans' quarterback started the day with a franchise-record streak of nine straight regular-season games with two or more touchdown passes.

Against the Vikings, he did not throw any. That is the first time as Tennessee's starter that he did not have at least one touchdown pass. His 62.2 completion percentage (23-for-37) was his second lowest in a regular-season game and his 78.8 passer rating was his lowest since he replaced Marcus Mariota.

The good news for the Titans is that they can find ways to win if he is not at his best.

The blitz package remains a problem for opposing offenses. The Titans don't have a lot of sacks through the first three weeks of the season – four of them, to be exact. But half of those have come from defensive backs.

Fulton, the second-round pick out of LSU, became the second member of the secondary to get one when he dropped Kirk Cousins for a loss of seven yards on Minnesota's next-to-last offensive possession. Safety Kenny Vaccaro got one last week against Jacksonville.

Cornerback Logan Ryan, now with the New York Giants, was particularly effective at getting to the quarterback in recent years. Even without him, the Titans still have guys who can get there.

Start making plans for the playoffs. No, it is not guaranteed, but from 1980 through 2019 there have been 187 teams that started 3-0, and 141 of those (75.4 percent) made the playoffs. Last year, seven teams won at least their first three and five of them, including eventual champion Kansas City, made it to the postseason.

Since the start of the Titans era (1999), this is just the third time Tennessee has won three in a row at the start. The last time was 2008, when it finished with the NFL's best record (13-3). The other time was 1999, when it went 13-3 and eventually made it to the Super Bowl.

Tennessee Titans running back Derrick Henry surpassed Lorenzo White for fourth place on the Oilers/Titans all-time rushing list Sunday against the Minnesota Vikings.

Henry eclipsed White's 4,079-yard benchmark on a 7-yard run in the third quarter at U.S Bank Stadium.

He finished with 26 rushes for 119 yards and two touchdowns in a 31-30 win by the Titans (3-0).

White played for the Houston Oilers from 1988 to 1994 and made the Pro Bowl in 1992. The former Michigan State running back and first-round draft pick is member of the 2019 class of the College Football Hall of Fame.

Eddie George is atop the franchise's rushing list with 10,009 yards followed by Earl Campbell with 8,574 and Chris Johnson with 7,965.

Henry has 4,152 career rushing yards and topped 4,000 yards last Sunday in a 33-30 victory by the Titans at Nissan Stadium.

He marked career-highs in 2019 and led the NFL in carries, 303; rushing yards, 1,540; and rushing touchdowns, 16.

The Titans selected the 2015 Heisman Trophy winner at Alabama in the second round of the 2016 NFL Draft.

IF NOTHING ELSE,
TITANS ARE CLUTCH.
THEY KEEP PROVING IT
IN THESE WILD WINS |
ESTES

BY GENTRY ESTES
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

Perhaps we should get used to this with the Titans.

Maybe it's just going to be this way.

Maybe these Titans are one of those exciting, incomplete teams that'll keep taking your breath away, because they're never out of a game – while their opponents aren't, either.

But there's always another possession, another kick, another opportunity. And if you give the Titans any kind of a chance – which the Vikings did – you can no longer be surprised when it turns out the way it did again Sunday.

Titans 31, Vikings 30.

The Titans are somehow 3-0 by the narrowest of margins possible.

Sunday was more of the same in many ways, though the breaks the Titans had been getting for two weeks started to turn. They wasted far too many opportunities offensively. Troubling defensive glitches that popped up last week were confirmed Sunday as real problems.

Didn't matter in the end, thanks to 321 passing yards and more late heroics from Ryan Tannehill and six – yes, six – field goals from Stephen Gostkowski, including a 55-yard game-winner – the third week in a row he's won a game with his foot.

Are you kidding me?

Who are these Titans we've been watching?

This sudden transformation of this organization from a boring, controlled, methodical, run-first operation to this high-flying bunch that is playing – and winning – thrilling shootouts, it has been unexpected to say the least.

If you say nothing else about these Titans, man, they are unquestionably clutch. Week 1 looked like Week 2, which looked like Week 3 – a close game there for the taking in the final moments.

It's easier to excuse the clear problems that eventually are going to cost the Titans, because their games have been so fun to watch, and they keep finding ways to win.

"To come up here and win a game, we're happy," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "We're excited. We're going to enjoy it. We're going to improve, and we're going to get better."

Can't argue with a 3-0 record, I suppose, no matter how fortunate you were to get there.

And the Titans certainly have been lucky. This isn't how they are built to win games (see the "methodical" reference above), but these weeks have been filled with necessity. The offense has had to take the reins because the defense is bad.

Last week was troubling. Now it's a trend. Whether it's Dean Pees' retirement, Adoree' Jackson's injury, the offseason loss of Jurrell Casey and Logan Ryan or all of the above, the Titans' defense is a mess.

And it's not like one aspect of the defense can blame another for the poor performance. The Titans' defense isn't doing anything well. It can't stop the run or the pass.

The Vikings kept knocking Titans off the ball up front, securing blocks and creating huge holes for Dalvin Cook's 181 rushing yards. At the back, the Titans still have barely covered Justin Jefferson. So many coverage busts led to Jefferson's 175 receiving yards.

Perhaps this Titans defense looks like it lacks a defensive coordinator because it does. This season so far has been a worst-case result of Vrabel's decision to essentially take over the defense himself rather than replace Pees. The unit has obviously regressed in 2020.

On Sunday, the Titans helped turn a Vikings offense that could barely get a first down against the Colts into a balanced, unstoppable force.

The Titans trailed 24-12 in the third quarter and seemed well on their way to a first defeat, but then Derrick Henry got moving toward his 119 yards; the offense started finally reaching the end zone; and the Titans made a game of it.

Even the defense stepped up in the final stages: "They gave us stops when we had to have stops," Vrabel said.

And once again, the Titans found a way to win.

It's still not perfect, but it still counts.

"We would love to sit here and play blowouts and win them, but that's not the reality of it," Vrabel added. "... But I do think it ends up giving you confidence."

IT'S CLEAR NOW:
STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI
IS THE ANSWER TO TITANS' KICKING STRUGGLES

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS — With each made field goal, Stephen Gostkowski said, his confidence grew. The Titans kept sending him out for attempts Sunday – six in all – and by the time his last one split the uprights and sent the Titans to a 31-30 win over the Vikings, something became clear:

Gostkowski is the Titans' solution to what has been an absolute nightmare in kicking field goals over the past year.

That idea seemed preposterous just three weeks ago, when Gostkowski missed his first three kicks of Week 1. He wound up 1-for-4 in that game against the Broncos, his one make serving as the game-winner.

Gostkowski has since gone on a tear. He's made nine of his past nine, including his six makes in Minnesota. Three of those came from beyond 50 yards, including his game-winning 55-yarder.

"It's nice to be up here and not be in an embarrassed state," Gostkowski said Sunday, his first postgame interview since his debut performance that had coach Mike Vrabel fielding questions about whether the Titans should be looking for another kicker.

But Vrabel's confidence in the veteran kicker never wavered.

"I didn't give it much thought," Vrabel said of sticking with Gostkowski, who is a four-time Pro Bowler and three-time Super Bowl champ with the Patriots.

Gostkowski's experience is paying dividends for the Titans now. While other areas of the team continue to stumble – namely the defense – it's his clutch factor that has keyed their 3-0 start.

They literally wouldn't be here without him.

Gostkowski is the first kicker since 1970 with a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of a season.

That 0-for-3 start – the first time in his 15-year NFL career that he had missed three field goals in a single game – feels like forever ago.

"You play this game for a long time, you're going to have good and bad things happen," Gostkowski said. "Obviously I was rusty that first game. Didn't feel great, obviously, playing one of the worst games I've ever played. But the worst thing you could do is just try to change everything. You need to stick with (what) gets you there.

"I'm not worried about losing my job anymore. I've been blessed to play a long time in this league. It's a privilege, and if that gets taken away from me one day, I've been blessed, so I can't complain on that front."

Vrabel, for his part, tried to downplay his kicker's performance Sunday.

"He's just doing his job," the Titans coach said.

But for a team that was an NFL-worst 8-for-18 on field goals last season, Gostkowski has been nothing short of a savior.

"I've done this so many times, and kicking is like a love-hate relationship. When it's going good, it's really good, and when it's going bad, it's really tough. So (it's) just trying to find the fine line between not getting too high or too low."

TITANS 31, VIKINGS 30: FIVE OBSERVATIONS AS STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI SAVES TENNESSEE WITH HIS LEG

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS — It's official: The Titans in 2020 are living by the mantra, "A win is a win."

Because none of their three games to this point could be considered well-rounded – certainly not Sunday's 31-30 win over the Vikings at U.S. Bank Stadium.

Again, it was the Titans offense – and kicker Stephen Gostkowski – bailing out a defense that still hasn't figured things out, despite the addition of Jadeveon Clowney ahead of Week 1 and the debut on Sunday of offseason signee Vic Beasley.

Here are five observations as Gostkowski helped the Titans improve to 3-0:

Stephen Gostkowski is all the way back

The Titans kicking situation has resolved itself.

In fact, on Sunday, it saved them.

Gostkowski began his stint with the Titans by missing his first three field-goal attempts. But since those misses in Week 1, the veteran kicker is 9-for-9, including six makes in as many tries Sunday.

Gostkowski had three makes from beyond 50 yards, including a 54-yarder with 6:31 left that brought the Titans to within 30-28.

Then, with less than two minutes left, Gostkowski hit a 55-yarder that gave Tennessee a 31-30 lead.

It was Gostkowski's third game-winner in as many games to start the season.

Familiar defensive struggles

A week after Jaguars undrafted rookie James Robinson ran 16 times for 102 yards against the Titans in Week 2, Dalvin Cook had a field day Sunday, running 22 times for 181 yards.

The Vikings running back had two rushes of 39 yards, one of which went for a touchdown.

But it wasn't only the run defense. Rookie wide receiver Justin Jefferson lit up the Titans' secondary with seven catches for 175 yards and a touchdown.

A Vikings offense that looked abysmal and mustered just 11 points last week in a loss to the Colts posted 464 total yards of offense (to the Titans' 444) in nearly toppling them.

To the Titans defense's credit, it got a couple of clutch, late stops again. The unit forced a punt with about four minutes left to set up the winning score, and Amani Hooker's interception on the Vikings' final possession sealed the win.

Derrick Henry brings the Titans back

The Titans trailed 24-12 midway through the third quarter, but a couple of 1-yard scores by Derrick Henry changed the game in a hurry. With 3:53 left in the third, Henry's punch-in capped an eight-play, 75-yard drive. The Titans defense then got a three-and-out, which Henry capitalized on by leaping high for another touchdown – less than three minutes of game time after his previous score.

They were Henry's first two rushing touchdowns of the season. He finished with 26 carries for 119 yards. The Titans now are 10-0 (including the postseason) when he has at least 25 carries.

Unfamiliar offensive struggles

The Titans entered Sunday ranked first in the league in offensive red-zone percentage since Ryan Tannehill was named the team's starting quarterback in Week 7 of last season.

So their early struggles near the goal line were uncharacteristic.

In the first half, they were 0-for-2 in the red zone – after entering the game 6-for-7 this season. And that didn't include an interception that Minnesota had in the end zone, which was Tannehill's first pick of the season. It came with the Titans lined up at the 29-yard line.

Tennessee also struggled mightily on third down, finishing 3-of-13.

One thing that was working well for the pass game: The big-play connection between Tannehill and Kalif Raymond. The duo hooked up on completions of 44 yards and 61 yards. Both of those plays eventually led to points.

Tannehill, who notched his third-game winning drive of the season, completed 23 of 37 passes for 321 yards and an interception.

No fans

For the third straight time to start the season, the Titans played in an empty venue that was pumped with artificial crowd noise.

At U.S. Bank Stadium, cardboard cutouts of fans filled the stands behind one of the end zones, and about 250 friends and family members of Vikings players were on hand.

Other than that, empty purple seats.

The streak will come to an end next week at Nissan Stadium after Nashville Mayor John Cooper announced earlier this month that fans would be welcomed back to the venue at 10% capacity (about 7,000 fans).

Stephen Gostkowski has been a net positive for the Titans.

Imagine saying that about two weeks ago when the former Patriots kicker missed four kicks in a narrow Titans win at Denver in Week 1. Gostkowski did make the game-winning field goal, but it was a 25-yarder.

But Gostkowski had a solid day in Week 2 against Jacksonville, hitting a 51-yarder and then a 49-yard game-winning field goal late in the fourth quarter.

Gostkowski's effort on Sunday at Minnesota sealed his place and hardened any concerns about his ability. Gostkowski made all six field goal attempts, including three from 50 yards or more in the second half. The last was a 55-yard field goal with 1:44 left to give the Titans a 31-30 lead, a margin that stood up.

Take a breath, Titans fans. You have one of the best kickers in league history, and he's in pretty good form.

TITANS REPORT CARD: A-PLUS FOR STEPHEN
GOSTKOWSKI, F FOR RUN DEFENSE VS. VIKINGS

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS — Grading the Titans' 31-30 win over the Vikings on Sunday:

Passing offense: C-

A lot of what we saw from quarterback Ryan Tannehill and the Titans passing offense Sunday felt uncharacteristic. They struggled in the red zone and on third down, and Tannehill even threw his first interception of the season – while failing to throw a touchdown pass for the first time. What was familiar: Tannehill orchestrating his third game-winning drive of the season. Still, this was his worst performance of the three; he was 23-of-37 for 321 yards.

Rushing offense: B+

It's still short of the rushing offense that was bombarding opposing defenses at the end of last season, but it's still been highly productive. Derrick Henry ran 26 times for 119 times and two huge touchdowns that helped lift the Titans midway through the third quarter. His 4.6 yards per carry were a marked improvement from the 3.6 yards per carry he was averaging prior to Sunday.

Passing defense: D

There were a few positive moments sprinkled in, including a couple of nice breakups by cornerback Malcolm Butler in the end zone that forced the Vikings to settle for a field goal in the first half, and a game-sealing interception by safety Amani Hooker. But on the whole, it was another disappointing performance – this time against a Minnesota passing offense that looked terrible last week. Rookie wide receiver Justin Jefferson torched the Titans secondary with seven catches for 175 yards and a touchdown.

Rushing defense: F

New week, same story. After Jaguars undrafted rookie James Robinson piled up 102 yards on 16 carries in Week 2 against a porous Titans run defense, a similar nightmare unfolded Sunday. Vikings running back Dalvin Cook had a monster day with 22 carries for 181 yards and a touchdown. He had two 39-yard rushes, and Tennessee simply had no answer.

Special teams: A+

Stephen Gostkowski started his Titans stint by missing his first three field-goal attempts but has since made his past nine, including all six of his tries Sunday. He hit the game-winner from 55 yards out. The veteran kicker all of a sudden looks very much like the answer to the Titans' kicking struggles.

Coaching: B-

The Titans were down 24-12 in the second half but, like last week, found a way to win. Coach Mike Vrabel's faith in Gostkowski has been rewarded, and offensive coordinator Arthur Smith's commitment to the run – even when things have looked stagnant with the run game – has paid off.

GOSTKOWSKI'S CHANGE OF ROUTINE HELPS CHANGE TITANS FORTUNES

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITAN INSIDER
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

Stephen Gostkowski owes his newfound consistency to a sock.

Or to be more specific, the lack of one. And it is a big reason the Titans now find themselves 3-0 by the smallest of margins thus far.

Two weeks ago, most Titans fans were ready to run Gostkowski out of town after his three missed field goal (and an extra point) effort in Denver nearly cost Tennessee the game.

Gostkowski managed to salvage that game with a 25-yard field goal to win the Monday night affair, but still there was some doubt as to whether the 36-year-old was the right guy after his missed extra point last week in Jacksonville also put the Titans in a bit of jeopardy.

But Sunday with the Titans' offense spitting and sputtering for much of the day, and the defense a sieve for the second straight week, it was Gostkowski who came to the rescue. His sixth field goal of the day, and third in a row from beyond 50 yards on the day, lifted the Titans to an amazing 31-30 comeback win over the Vikings.

The secret to Gostkowski's success? Apparently at least some of it stems from the fact that he stopped wearing a sock inside his kicking shoe – something he had done for most of the off-season when he was practicing and awaiting being signed after his release by the Patriots.

Gostkowski had the sock on in Denver, and struggled with the misses before switching and going without it and making the winning kick there.

straight field goals, including three game-winners.

“I practiced all summer without them,” Gostkowski said. “It's a little like baseball. When you're in a slump you want to try something else and you get on a roll. I think my experience playing multiple sports kind of helps deal with a little bit of a bind. In a sport like baseball, you strike out or get embarrassed, you turn the page. ...We're only three games in and I've got a long way to go and I've a lot of work to do, but I'm excited to help the Titans be 3-0.”

The Titans needed every one of Gostkowski's kicks and his lucky lack of socks on Sunday get to 3-0 on the season by the narrowest of margins. Their victories have been by two, three and now one point over the Broncos, Jaguars and Vikings, who are a collective 1-8 themselves and not exactly beating a path to the door of the playoffs.

But the Titans, for all their imperfections that have surfaced on offense and defense through the first three weeks, are indeed 3-0 and leading the AFC South with a meatier portion of the schedule upcoming beginning with fellow AFC unbeaten Pittsburgh and Buffalo coming to Nissan Stadium in back-to-back weeks.

While the wins haven't exactly been picturesque, Coach Mike Vrabel says they can be character building.

“We would love to sit here and play blowouts and win, but that's not the reality of it,” Vrabel said. “I think it does end up giving you confidence. It's not something we want to rely on, but it's something we want to continue to build on.”

TITANS PULL OFF COMEBACK TO TOP VIKINGS, 31-30

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITAN INSIDER
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

The Titans offense, which sputtered through the first half, came to life and rescued a porous defense, and with the help of Stephen Gostkowski's sixth field goal of the game, rallied to defeat the Minnesota Vikings, 31-30 at U.S. Bank Stadium on Sunday.

The improbable victory pushes the Titans to 3-0 on the season, heading into a three-game home stretch that starts next Sunday with the unbeaten Pittsburgh Steelers coming to town.

Against Minnesota, the Titans appeared down many times, and even trailed 24-12 midway through the third quarter before rallying with 19 points in a quarter-and-a-half to pull out the victory.

"I think that's all about transferred energy and playing complementary football between each phase," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "These games, there's no crowd, so we're cheering for our own team and I think you're starting to see guys cheering for the other side of the ball and guys doing well on special teams, making kicks, and being excited.

"I know and they know that we have to play better and continue to improve, but they know how to find ways to win right now. That's a testament to them."

Sunday's win came from some of the usual sources, and some improbable ones as well. Derrick Henry rushed for 119 yards and two second-half touchdowns, and Ryan Tannehill shook off a first-half interception to complete 23 of 37 passes for 321 yards on Sunday.

There was also the first career 100-yard receiving day from Kalif Raymond, who had three catches on the day, including a 44-yarder and a 62-yarder, catches that set up 10 Titans points.

Gostkowski, who had missed three field goals and an extra point in the opener at Denver, rebounded by making all six of his kicks with three being beyond 50 yards, including the game-winner from 55 with 1:44 to play.

Truth is, the Titans needed every bit of it to pull out a one-point victory against the winless Vikings, who put up 464 yards of total offense, but came up just short. Tennessee's defense, which had been battered and bruised all game long, came up big on the final drive, with help of a botched snap, and sealed the win when Amani Hooker intercepted a tipped ball on a desperation heave from Kirk Cousins.

"It's very encouraging to be a part of a football team that's not a bunch of frontrunner that start complaining and pointing fingers when things don't go right, because they don't, especially in this league and in life," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "To come up here and win a game, we're excited. We're gonna get better in all three phases and in our coaching staff."

There was plenty that went wrong for the Titans, who settled for two Gostkowski field goals in the first quarter, one after Raymond's 44-yard catch set up a scoring chance, and another after Rashaan Evans' fumble recovery put the Titans back in position to score.

The Titans lost yet another first-quarter scoring chance when Tannehill's pass in the end zone for Nick Westbrook-Ikhine was picked off by Vikings safety Harrison Smith. As a result, Minnesota led 7-6 after the first quarter, thanks to Dalvin Cook's 39-yard TD run.

We didn't make the Plays and they were playing good defense.

"We were moving the ball effectively the whole game, but we were stalling out in the red zone. We're going to have to correct those things. It's important to us to score touchdowns when we get down there," Tannehill said.

The Vikings made it 14-6, capping a drive when Cousins hooked up with Adam Thielen for a score. The teams traded field goals and the Vikings led 17-9 at the half.

Things momentarily looked like they were swinging in the Titans' favor in the third quarter when Johnathan Joseph intercepted Cousins and scored. But the play was wiped out because of a blindside block on Jadeveon Clowney – a play where Vrabel said it was the right call.

"It starts with me continuing to explain the rules. That's what the rule is. It was the right call. I have to do a better job of coaching it," Vrabel said.

With the defensive scored wiped out, the Titans ended up punting.

On the next drive, they salvaged another Gostkowski field goal, this one from 51 yards, to cut the lead to 17-12.

But the Vikings roared back as Cousins found rookie Justin Jefferson, who had a big day with 175 yards on seven catches, for a 71-yard score, and things looked bleak for the Titans, who trailed 24-12 with 8:04 left in the third.

Somehow, the Titans got back into the game, scoring on back-to-back third-quarter drives with Henry finishing off both with 1-yard touchdown runs. That gave Tennessee a 25-24 edge with 1:22 to play.

Of course, the lead would not hold up, as the Vikings quickly took back the lead on Kyle Rudolph's acrobatic one-hand catch to make it 30-25.

Tennessee then got another Gostkowski field goal to pull within three.

After a rare defensive stop, the Titans got the football back with 3:42 left and drove into range before the drive stalled out at the Vikings' 37. From there, it was Gostkowski to the rescue again, as he made the eventual game winner.

"It was a tight game, but it really shouldn't have been so tight if we had executed like we should have down in the red zone. But I'm proud of our guys. They kept battling when things weren't going well," Tannehill said.

DERRICK HENRY KEEPS ROLLING, AND THE TITANS KEEP WINNING

BY JIM WYATT

SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS – Derrick Henry keeps rolling, and the Titans keep winning.

Henry, the NFL's leading rusher a year ago, turned in the 15th 100-yard game of his career on Sunday in the team's 31-30 come-from-behind win over the Vikings.

The Titans are now 15-0 in games when Henry goes for over 100.

"We trust in Arthur," Henry said of offensive coordinator Arthur Smith, "and we have to go out there and execute what is called."

Smith called 26 running plays for Henry on Sunday, and two of them produced touchdowns. Running back Darrynton Evans carried the ball three times for nine yards in his NFL debut.

In three games this season, Henry now has 319 yards, and he's ahead of his pace from his 1,540-yard season a year ago. Henry averaged 4.6 yards per carry on Sunday after averaging 3.6 yards over the first games.

One of Henry's touchdowns came on a dive over the top.

"I was just trying to get in the end zone -- I just made the decision to go up top, and get in," Henry said. "I do whatever I can to get it in there.

"(When we were down) we just have to answer. Go out there and answer back and give ourselves a chance. We pride ourselves in winning the fourth quarter, and we just wanted to give ourselves a chance. ... I'm happy to be 3-0 and we have to keep the momentum going."

Titans guard Rodger Saffold said he was proud of the Titans for gutting out the win.

The Titans stuck with the run even after trailing 24-12 in the third quarter, and it led to long, point producing drives. The Titans also played the second half without starting left tackle Taylor Lewan, who left the game with an injury. Ty Sambrailo finished the contest in place of Lewan.

"This team is going to have ups and downs, no matter what side of the ball or which phase. But at the end of the day we just keep lifting each other up," Saffold said.

"I think that when we had our backs against the wall, it was like, alright, let's bite down on the mouthguard, let's pound this thing out. No matter what we're going to keep fighting."

TITANS COME FROM BEHIND, PULL OUT 31-30 WIN OVER VIKINGS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS – The Titans did it again.

Another game, another close win, this time 31-30 over the Vikings here at U.S. Bank Stadium.

Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill completed 23-of-37 passes for 321 yards and running back Derrick Henry ran for 119 yards and two touchdowns.

Titans kicker Stephen Gostkowski kicked six field goals in the contest, from 30, 31, 39, 54 and 55 yards out. His final kick of the day, from 55 yards, gave the Titans the lead with 1:44 left.

Trailing 24-12 midway through the third quarter, the Titans put together an 8-play, 75-yard and capped it off with a one-yard touchdown run by Henry to cut the lead to 24-19.

Minutes later, the Titans took the lead 25-24 on another one-yard scoring run by Henry, which capped off a three-play, 65-yard drive that featured a 61-yard toss to receiver Kalif Raymond.

The Vikings reclaimed the lead 30-25 with 10:17 left in the contest on a one-handed catch by tight end Kyle Rudolph on a ball thrown by quarterback Kirk Cousins.

Gostkowski's 54-yard field goal with 6:31 left cut the lead to 30-28, and then came the game-winner late.

Safety Amani Hooker sealed it with a late interception, and the Titans improved to 3-0.

The Titans took a 3-0 early on a 39-yard field goal from Gostkowski, which capped a six-play, 54-yard drive on the team's opening possession. The drive was jumpstarted by a 44-yard completion from Tannehill to Raymond.

The Titans extended the lead to 6-0 on another Gostkowski field goal, this one from 31 yards. The kick was set up by a fumble recovery from linebacker Rashaan Evans that gave the Titans the ball at the Minnesota 20.

But the Vikings took their first lead of the game on a 39-yard touchdown run by Dalvin Cook, which made it 7-6 with 2:43 remaining in the first quarter.

After a Tannehill interception, the Vikings put together a long drive and scored again, this time on a 16-yard touchdown pass from Cousins to receiver Adam Thielen to make it 14-6.

The Titans put together a nice drive on their next possession, but it once again stalled in the red zone, and Gostkowski's 30-yard kick cut the lead to 14-9 with 3:18 left in the second quarter.

The Vikings stretched the lead to 17-9 on a 41-yard kick by Dan Bailey, and that was the score at halftime.

The Titans appeared to make a game-changing play right out of the gate to start the second half, as cornerback Johnathan Joseph intercepted Cousins and returned it for an apparent touchdown. But the touchdown was wiped out because of an illegal block called on linebacker Jadeveon Clowney. The Titans ended wasting the opportunity, as a quick possession ended with a punt.

Gostkowski kicked 51-yard field goal after another Titans drive stalled in Minnesota territory, and it was 17-12 Vikings with 8:57 left in the third quarter.

The Vikings then stretched the lead to 24-12 on a 71-yard touchdown pass from Cousins to receiver Justin Jefferson, which made it 24-12 with 8:04 left in the third quarter.

The Titans face the Steelers next Sunday at Nissan Stadium.

TITANS KICKER STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI KICKS GAME-WINNER FOR THIRD WEEK IN A ROW

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 27, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS – Titans kicker Stephen Gostkowski is doing what the Titans signed him to do – make field goals.

And the long-time NFL kicker made a lot of them here on Sunday to lift the Titans to a 31-30 win over the Vikings here at U.S. Bank Stadium.

Remember that shaky start for Gostkowski in Denver?

It's long been forgotten now, as Gostkowski has kicked game-winning field goals in each of the first three weeks of the season.

"You play this game for a long time, and you are going to have good and bad things happen," Gostkowski said after kicking the game-winner from 55 yards on Sunday. "Obviously I was rusty that first game – I didn't feel great, and obviously played one of the worst games I've ever played. But the worst thing you can do is change everything – you need to stick with what gets you there ... and focus up a little more.

"It's nice to be up here (today on a Zoom call) not in an embarrassed state and be excited for a victory. ... It's a lot more fun to be an asset than a liability."

Gostkowski kicked the game-winner with 1:44 remaining.

On Sunday, the former Patriots kicker also made kicks of 30, 31, 39 and 54 yards.

"He's just doing his job," Titans Coach Mike Vrabel said of Gostkowski, his former teammate in New England. "Stephen prepares and obviously we're very confident in him, and today we needed him to help the Titans win.

"Steve had a day today, we're appreciative of that, and we hung around just long enough to make the plays in the end."

In the opener at Denver, Gostkowski missed three field goals, and an extra point.

But after ditching the sock he'd been wearing on his right foot, he kicked the game-winning field goal from 25 yards out to lift the Titans to a 16-14 win. Gostkowski said he kicked without the sock during his offseason workouts, and remembered feeling comfortable, so he took it off.

Gostkowski kicked the game-winning field goal (from 49 yards out with 1:36 left) for the second week in a row last week in a win over the Jaguars. In doing so, he became the first kicker since Adam Vinatieri with New England to make a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first two games of the season.

Then came Sunday, when Gostkowski kicked the 12th game-winning kick of his career.

"It's nice to be 3-0," Gostkowski said. "You play for one team a long time, and then you join a team with a week to go in training camp going into the season and you start of the way I did. I had my back up against the wall, and it brought up emotions and feelings like I never had before. And to keep my head down and grind and have some good results, it means a lot."

Gostkowski, for the record, plans to keep kicking without the sock.

"It's a little bit like baseball, you do something when you are in a slump, and you try something else and you get on a roll," Gostkowski said. "I think my experience playing multiple sports kind of helps you be able to move on. A sport like baseball, you give up a home run, you strike out, and you're embarrassed. You just have to turn the page and that's what I did.

"I am only three games in. I have a long way to go, and a lot of work to do. I'll enjoy this one tonight, and I'm excited to help the Titans get to 3-0."

REXRODE: THE TITANS, GUTTY WINNERS OR OVERRATED AFC
IMPOSTERS? WELL ...
YES.

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

All is well in Nashville. The professional football team is unbeaten, 3-0, extending the franchise's best start since 2008. The running back's a star, the quarterback's awfully good, the kicker has gone in two weeks from looking like a goat to a G.O.A.T. And Titans fans would love it if NFL reporters would stop talking about a bad team hiring away offensive coordinator Arthur Smith in the offseason.

All is not well in Houston. The team that replaced the team that's currently in Nashville is 0-3, for the second time in three years. The running back is an unproductive salary cap albatross, the quarterback is great but not getting enough help, the star receiver is catching passes for the Arizona Cardinals. And Texans fans would love an NFL reporter to float any kind of hopeful rumor about another team wanting head coach/GM Bill O'Brien.

So now let's swap their schedules. Do you think the Titans would have any wins right now, any possibility of lining Stephen Gostkowski up for the three game-winning field goals he has nailed — including Sunday's 55-yard bomb to beat the Vikings 31-30 at U.S. Bank Stadium — if they had started at Kansas City, home vs. Baltimore and at Pittsburgh?

That's how Deshaun Watson and the Texans have started, which makes me wonder if Texans team chairman Cal McNair did something to offend Roger Goodell at a cocktail party. Maybe trading DeAndre Hopkins to the Cards caused the NFL scheduling computer to glitch. That's some Big Ten/Nebraska kind of punishment.

Imagine the Texans right now if they had played:

*A mediocre Denver team that had just lost pass-rushing star Von Miller and pass-catching star Courtland Sutton.

*The Jacksonville Jaguars, no further description required.

*A Vikings team coming off two embarrassing losses, gutted on defense by injuries and struggling to block anyone or find anyone open downfield.

The Titans can only play the schedule that's in front of them. They talked a lot about resilience Sunday afternoon after charging back from 24-12 down and calmly following Ryan Tannehill down the field on his third game-winning drive in as many weeks, and resilience they have. Poise, they have. A knack for winning the close games that define a league that is designed for close games and flawed teams, they have.

"It's very encouraging," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said, "to be part of a football team that is not a bunch of front-runners, that pack up and complain and start pointing fingers when things don't go right, because they don't."

True. This team isn't packing anything up. It also isn't very good right now. Not as good as it hoped to be this season. Not yet. Defensively, it's quite bad.

Gardner Minshew and undrafted rookie James Robinson touched that defense up last week in charging back from two touchdowns behind to nearly steal one at Nissan Stadium. On Sunday, Dalvin Cook had 22 carries for 181 of the Vikings' 226 rushing yards against a defense that has been one of the worst in the league against the run. The Titans found a nice balance Sunday, giving up 175 of Kirk Cousins' 251 passing yards to rookie receiver Justin Jefferson. He victimized Malcolm Butler often and posterized the entire Titans secondary on a 71-yard catch and run that created that 24-12 deficit in the third quarter.

"We've got to do a better job of tackling and not giving up big plays," Vrabel said. "That's the reoccurring theme here."

So is the Titans' collective resolve and ability to find clutch plays, which serves to soften the alarm bells. No one was more clutch than Gostkowski, perfect on six field-goal tries, three from beyond 50 in the final quarter and a half. This team made eight field goals all of last season, and now, it might have the best kicker going in the league. That's cause for excitement.

Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill (17) congratulates running back Derrick Henry after his touchdown in the third quarter against the Vikings at U.S. Bank Stadium.

Tannehill did his thing, mostly excellent play, though he did hang up his first pick of the season on a throw to the end zone and nearly threw a second one to lose it on the decisive drive. Derrick Henry did his thing, 26 carries for 119 yards and two second-half touchdowns, punishing the Vikings even when the Titans fell down by 12. Tennessee played without star left tackle Taylor Lewan (shoulder) for the final three quarters and continue to not have star receiver A.J. Brown (knee bruise). The production in spite of all that, aided by the first glimpse of Kalif Raymond (three catches, 118 yards) as a vertical threat, is cause for optimism.

"I think we have a lot of things to clean up," said Tannehill (23-for-37, 321 yards) of an offense that had 444 yards but just 3-of-13 success on third down and too many drives left to Gostkowski. "We've flashed at times, we've played really well at times. But it hasn't been consistent enough. But we're finding ways to win games, and at the end of the day, that's what it comes down to in the NFL. Finding ways to win, stacking wins together."

The real question here, the real concern, is a defense that looks leaky, to be kind. It also, again, made some late plays of its own to contribute to victory. It also, again, benefited from some good fortune — a dropped Jerry Jeudy pass in the opener, a tipped Minschew pass into Harold Landry's hands for a pick, a bad shotgun snap Sunday that got past Cousins and took the Vikings from second-and-10 at their 40 to third-and-24 at their 26. That was followed by an incompleteness and a desperation heave picked off by Amani Hooker.

The Titans haven't had cornerback Adoree' Jackson yet. He's eligible to come off injured reserve this week, but there's no word yet that his injured knee is healthy enough. Vic Beasley (knee) saw his first action of the season after a bizarre offseason that included not reporting to camp at first, and Jadeveon Clowney hasn't done much. Had the Titans lost Sunday, we'd be talking a ton about the correctly called crackback block on Clowney that took Johnathan Joseph's pick-six off the board.

There's still plenty of time and room for the Titans to become competent defensively. And they did get it done in the end Sunday. Bad snap aside, the first play of the final drive was a three-man rush with Jeffery Simmons bulling his way in a flash to Cousins before he could get a pass off. In another correct call that was purely bad luck for the impressive Simmons, he got hit for a 15-yard roughing penalty because his hand hit Cousins' helmet. On the ensuing first down, Clowney came through with a clutch rush, grabbed Cousins and forced an incompleteness.

Then the bad snap, then the failed final two plays with Landry, Simmons and Beasley all applying pressure.

Titans defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons pressures Vikings quarterback Kirk Cousins in the third quarter. (Brad Rempel / USA Today)

"This is a league that you take your wins and run with it," said Rashaan

Evans of a team with three wins by a total of six points.

Yes. But. A few plays and points the other way and we'd be having a totally different kind of discussion. We'd be revisiting GM Jon Robinson trading away Jurrell Casey, drafting offensive tackle Isaiah Wilson, and paying at least $22.5 million for Beasley and Clowney with very little return to date. And Vrabel not bringing in a defensive coordinator to replace the retired Dean Pees. For the first time in a long time, there are words other than flowery testimonials to say about Smith, too.

The guy has done a superb job in 22 games as Titans OC after Vrabel elevated him from tight ends coach. And he probably will be a head coach somewhere in 2021. But Sunday was his worst day on the job since Marcus Mariota was still the quarterback in the early, ugly days of 2019.

On the Titans' next-to-last possession, they were rolling with a first down at the Minnesota 36 when Smith called for a trick play, Adam Humphries taking a sweep and looking to pass. Humphries correctly read the coverage — he had no one open — and ate it. Tannehill then threw to Nick Westbrook-Ikhine, a guy who dropped a lot of passes in camp, and what do you suppose happened? Westbrook-Ikhine dropped the pass. He was targeted twice Sunday, the other being Tannehill's deep pick. Then it was third-and-10, pressure and nothing doing, and Gostkowski had to boot field goal No. 5.

Derrick Henry, anyone?

On the winning drive, Henry appeared to feel the frustration that Titans fans around the world felt. The near pick by Tannehill came on a play that should have gone to Henry. It would have forced the Vikings' last timeout. Then Tannehill completed a 1-yard pass to Humphries, luckily, to force that timeout. Then the Vikings blitzed and Tannehill had to heave it up for no one. Gostkowski and a botched final Vikings drive came to the rescue. But that was brutal. And Henry's expression and a lively discussion he and Smith were having on the sideline said he thought so too, though he dismissed the idea that he was "heated" in his news conference with reporters.

"You know, there's always gonna be things that we can do better, run the ball, throw the ball," Vrabel said when asked about Henry not getting it late. "Give them credit, they played us, we were expecting some pressure there as we crossed the 50. They didn't the one time and then they did on third down. So there's certainly a lot of things we're all going to be able to second-guess tomorrow and tonight, and that's what we'll have to do to improve. But you have to make a call and you have to live with it. And hopefully it's the right call and the players know it, they can execute it and you're confident in it, it's decisive and a quick call. There's gonna be a lot of those as we go through the season about, 'Man we should have done this' or 'Could we have?' or 'Would we have?' You have to reflect on it and try to improve on it."

And when you're looking to improve and you're undefeated, yes, that's a good place to be. Especially if you can actually improve in your areas of deficiency. The 3-0 Steelers, on their way to Nashville, will shed some light on that. The 3-0 Bills, coming to town a week later, will do the same. The Titans can only play the schedule in front of them. Ready or not, it's about to change.

WHERE WOULD THE TITANS BE IF THEY CUT STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI? NOT 3-0, FOR SURE

BY KYLE TUCKER
THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

It seems absurd now to suggest it was even possible, and maybe the franchise never actually considered a move that many fans would've surely supported at the time, but can you imagine if the Tennessee Titans had cut kicker Stephen Gostkowski after his Week 1 debacle in Denver?

Well, yes, of course you can imagine. Just rewind the tape to last season, when the Titans trotted out four kickers who combined to make only 8 of 18 field goals. But none of those guys was a three-time Super Bowl champion or a four-time Pro Bowl pick or the fifth-most accurate field-goal kicker in NFL history, like Gostkowski. Had he been almost anyone else, instead of the typically clutch 15-year veteran who played with Tennessee coach Mike Vrabel in New England, Gostkowski probably would've been toast after missing three field goals and an extra point in his Titans debut.

"Didn't give it much thought," Vrabel said of cutting his old friend.

In an alternate reality where they had, the Titans might be 1-2 right now. Instead, incredibly, Gostkowski has kicked this team across the finish line for the third consecutive week and Tennessee is 3-0 for the first time in a dozen years. His winner from 25 yards in Denver was technically redemption, but no one was especially relieved by that chip shot. His winner from 49 yards last week against Jacksonville was more encouraging, but he also doinked another extra-point attempt. On Sunday in Minnesota, when Gostkowski drilled the last of his six field goals in as many tries, a no-doubter from 55 yards for the lead with 1:48 to go, he was finally, fully redeemed.

The Titans, improbable 31-30 winners over the Vikings, made eight total field goals in 2019, it bears repeating. Gostkowski has now made nine straight since his early meltdown in the mountains, including some boomers: 49, 51, 51, 54 and 55 yards the last two weeks. He's gone from the worst game of his life to looking like the best and most clutch kicker in the NFL again, all in the span of 13 days. This is exactly why Tennessee signed him late in camp, just not exactly how anyone figured it would unfold.

So, what the heck happened?

"Having one week of practice might not be enough to get comfortable" as it turns out, Gostkowski conceded Sunday. What, the last-minute addition of a 36-year-old kicker coming off hip surgery makes for precarious preparation? "Obviously, I was rusty that first game, didn't feel great. Obviously played one of the worst games I've ever played. But the worst thing you can do is try to just change everything. You need to stick with what gets you there."

That includes socks. Or no socks, in his case. When Gostkowski ripped off the shoe and sock on his kicking foot and laced back up sockless in the middle of his nightmare game at Denver, it looked like a potential mental breakdown in progress. It was quite the opposite. He has not worn socks on game day since.

"I practiced all summer without them, and I don't know why I decided to put them on," Gostkowski said. "It's a little bit like baseball: If you do something and you're in a slump, you try something else and get on a roll."

He's rolling all right, and because of it, so is Tennessee. On a day when the Titans had 444 yards but managed only two touchdowns in nine possessions that reached Minnesota's 41-yard line or closer, they needed a guy who missed four kicks on opening night to be powerful and perfect.

"Steve had a day today. Appreciative of that," the always verbose Vrabel said. "Just doing his job. That's all we ask him to do."

Ho-hum, just another day at the office nailing 6 of 6 field-goal attempts in a white-knuckle comeback attempt on the road. But that's actually the secret — other than the socks — to Gostkowski's success. It's all about reducing those high-pressure situations to the intersection of mundane procedure and muscle memory. With no fans so far, that includes Gostkowski picking a spot high up in the stands that looks dead-center between the pipes and trying to kick it there.

"I just try to follow through my leg and my whole body down that path," he said. "You start seeing a few go in and they're going right where you're aiming, it's easy to walk out there with your head held high and go stroke another one. Don't let the situation get too big for you. You're still just going out there and making a kick."

Gostkowski has a love-hate relationship with his chosen trade, he said, and he definitely hated it after Denver. He said he was embarrassed, disappointed in himself. He was a reluctant hero, even after making the kick that delivered victory. It was relief that night, not pride. But then it was back to practice and the comfort of routine.

Most kickers get cut when they miss four tries in a single game, but Gostkowski isn't most kickers. He has a wisdom and a wealth of experience that Vrabel and the Titans trusted to — pun intended — kick in.

"It's just trying to find the fine line between not getting too high or too low," Gostkowski said. "I'll beat myself up for a few days, and then I'll move on. I just say, 'Screw it, I don't care anymore.' It's not going to do me or the team any good to just cower and just wilt away to nothing. So you just prove to yourself and prove to your teammates that you deserve to be there."

Mission accomplished on that front.

“He’s mentally strong. Kickers have to be in this league,” quarterback Ryan Tannehill said. “We never lost confidence in him. I know every time he steps on the field, I have a lot of confidence he’s going to make the kick.”

Gostkowski doesn’t know if he was close to getting canned after Week 1. He doesn’t seem to care. He’s enjoyed a long and successful career, and if today were his last in the NFL, he claims he’d be at peace with it. Not that he’s in a hurry to leave.

“It’s a lot more fun to be an asset than a liability,” he said after Sunday’s victory. “It’s nice not to be up here in an embarrassed state. I had my back up against the wall. It’s emotions and feelings I’ve never had before. To just keep my head down and grind and have some good results the last two weeks definitely means a lot.”

Where would the Titans be without him? They surely shudder at the thought. These have not been three aesthetically pleasing wins to open the season, but they are wins nevertheless — and 3-0 teams have gone on to make the playoffs about 75 percent of the time since 1980. In the AFC South, Tennessee leads Houston by three games, Jacksonville by two and Indianapolis by one. This is a team, and a kicker, who’ve stared down a slew of mistakes and risen above them.

“If you can find a way to win, the feeling is so much better the next day than finding a way to lose,” Gostkowski said. “And then if you’re in that situation again, whether it’s a tight game or you have to make a comeback or make a big play at the end of the game, now you’re like, ‘I’ve been here before. I know this feeling. I have confidence in this situation.’ It’s a snowball effect.”

And that, folks, is why you don’t cut this kicker, even after a four-miss day. He’s been there a bunch, and he delivered again Sunday.

GLENNON'S 10 TAKEAWAYS FROM TITANS' ONE-POINT WIN OVER VIKINGS

BY JOHN GLENNON
BROADWAY SPORTS MEDIA
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

Almost one quarter of the way through the Titans' 2020 season, it's hard to figure out exactly what to make of this team.

The bottom line, of course, is that the Titans are 3-0, off to their best start since 2008. Tennessee is one of only six undefeated teams left in the league following the Titans' 31-30 win at Minneapolis on Sunday.

But it's also fair to say there's still plenty of room for improvement, considering the Titans have beaten three teams with a combined record of 1-8 by a total of six points – and needed three game-winning drives to do so.

“We would love to play blow-outs and win them, but that's not the reality of it,” Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. “(Close victories) are not something we want to rely on, but it's something we want to continue to build on. We're excited and appreciative we're 3-0. We've found ways to win as opposed to finding ways to lose.”

The Titans trailed by double digits – 24-12 – in the second half against Minnesota. But that's not exactly uncharted territory for this team, which trailed in Week One and was tied late in the second half last week against Jacksonville. Through three weeks, the Titans have done what they absolutely had to do when they absolutely had to – whether that's meant driving for late scores or posting late defensive stops.

“It's very encouraging to be part of a football team that's not a bunch of front-runners that pack up and complain, start pointing fingers when things don't go right,” Vrabel said. “Because they don't, especially in this league and especially in life. To come here and win a game, we're happy, we're excited. We're going to enjoy it and improve and get better.”

Here are my 10 observations on the game:

Two-minute Titans — Titans quarterbacks coach Pat O'Hara said last week he believed the team's offense enjoyed the late-game challenges it's faced repeatedly over the last two seasons.

The Titans and quarterback Ryan Tannehill lived up to their billing again in Sunday's win, when they drove 44 yards in nine plays to set up Stephen Gostkowski's game-winning field goal from 55 yards. The Titans picked up three first downs on that drive, two on passes from Tannehill to tight end Jonnu Smith and one on a Derrick Henry run.

A couple of notes on the Titans' late-game successes:

It marked the third game-winning drive in as many weeks for Tannehill, who now has six game-winning drives for the Titans in his 13 starts over two seasons.

The score marked the fourth time in six halves of football the Titans have scored with less than two minutes left on the clock.

In Tannehill's 13 starts, he's steered the team to five wins in games decided by three or fewer points. The Titans lead the league in that category during that time period.

“We have a lot of confidence, being in that situation three weeks in a row,” Tannehill said. “We get a lot of reps at it in practice and now in games as well. Obviously we'd like to be able to put a lot more points up earlier in the game and not be in that situation. But proud of our guys and our focus, our attention to detail in those tight moments. We believe in each other and stick together.”

Disastrous to dead-eye — Titans fans were understandably beside themselves following Gostkowski's kicking debut with the team, when he missed three field goals (one was blocked) and an extra point in Denver. Had he missed a fourth field goal in that game, it's hard to imagine Gostkowski would have survived to see another contest in two-tone blue. Instead, Gostkowski connected on the game-winner against the Broncos, and he's been on a roll ever since.

Gostkowski has not only connected on three game-winning field goals in as many weeks for the Titans, but he's now hit his last nine field-goal attempts overall. We're not talking about a bundle of chip shots, either, as five of the nine attempts have come from 49 yards or beyond – including four from over 50 yards. In producing his career-best six-for-six day Sunday against the Vikings, Gostkowski connected on three attempts from better than 50 yards.

Those are pretty impressive numbers for any kicker, let alone a 36-year-old in his 15th season.

It's no fluke Gostkowski is knocking down one 50-yard field goal after another, either, as he's been successful from distance throughout that long career. Following his performance against the Vikings, Gostkowski is now 29-for-39 (74 percent) from 50 yards or beyond.

Gostkowski said his experience in the league helped him realize he didn't need to change everything after the rough first performance for the Titans. But he did ditch the pair of socks he wore during that Monday Night Football game – after kicking without socks for most of the offseason.

“It's a little bit like baseball, you do something when you are in a slump, and you try something else and you get on a roll,” Gostkowski said of tossing the sock aside. “I think my experience playing multiple sports kind of helps you be able to move on. A sport like baseball, you give up a home run, you strike out, and you're embarrassed. You just have to turn the page and that's what I did.”

Pumping up the production — Titans running back Derrick Henry didn't have much room to run in the first half against Minnesota, as he was held to 45 carries on 11 yards. Seven of Henry's 11 runs over the first two quarters were for two yards or less, one week after 13 of Henry's 25 carries against Jacksonville went for two yards or less.

But things got better for Henry and the run game in the second half, as the Titans' big back carried 15 times for 74 yards — averaging nearly five yards per carry. Henry was only held to two yards or less on four of those 15 second-half carries, but that total included a pair of one-yard touchdown runs. The TDs were the first two of the season for Henry, who finished tied for the NFL lead with 16 rushing touchdowns last season.

One of Henry's most impressive stretches came during a critical Titans drive, when the team had fallen behind 24-12 in the third quarter. Instead of panicking and throwing all kinds of passes, the Titans stuck with Henry on six of eight plays during their ensuing drive. Henry totaled 31 rushing yards on those six carries, including a one-yard touchdown plunge that pulled the Titans back to within 24-19.

"Just pushing forward, gaining yards, everybody kept doing their job, getting downfield and keeping momentum going when we had it," Henry said of the second-half surge.

Henry appeared to have a heated discussion with Titans offensive coordinator Arthur Smith, however, during the Titans' game-winning drive. The Titans had called three straight pass plays after reaching the Minnesota 38-yard line, resulting in just one yard gained. Tennessee was fortunate that Gostkowski connected from 55 yards for the victory.

"Just having a conversation about the team," Henry said. "That's all it was, just talking."

One last note on Henry: He moved past Lorenzo White into fourth place on the franchise's career rushing yardage list. Henry now has 4,152 career yards, trailing only Eddie George (10,009 yards), Earl Campbell (8,574 yards) and Chris Johnson (7,965 yards).

Red-zone concerns — Over the past two seasons, the Titans have been the NFL's best team when it comes to scoring touchdowns in the red zone. The Titans finished first in the NFL in that category last season, and they'd scored touchdowns on six-of-seven red-zone possessions in the first two weeks of 2020.

But the Titans were merely average against the Vikings in the red zone, scoring on just two of their four trips inside Minnesota's 20-yard line. One first-half drive stalled at the Minnesota 13-yard line when Tannehill threw a pair of back-to-back incompletions. Another first-half drive stalled at the 12, when an end around to Kalif Raymond lost yardage and Tannehill then completed a five-yard pass on third-and-11.

Two other Titans' drives stalled just before entering the red zone. Tennessee's first drive came to an end at Minnesota's 21, while Tannehill was picked off by Harrison Smith in the end zone after Tennessee drove to the Minnesota 29-yard line later in the first half.

"We didn't make some plays and they were playing good defense," Tannehill said. "I think we'll go back over this tape and have a lot of things to clean up. We were moving the ball pretty effectively the whole game, but we stalled multiple times either in the fringe or in the red zone. Moving forward, we're going to have to convert those things to touchdowns."

Tannehill didn't throw any touchdowns against Minnesota, bringing an end to his franchise-record streak of at least two touchdown passes in nine straight contests.

Bombs away — With wide receiver A.J. Brown out with a knee injury, the Titans had thrown very few deep passes in the first two weeks of the season. In fact, prior to Sunday's contest Tannehill had thrown just two passes deeper than 20 yards in the first two games.

The team's fastest receiver, Raymond, didn't have a catch through the first two weeks, and wasn't even targeted in Week 2 during his 28 snaps against Jacksonville.

But all those numbers changed Sunday against the Vikings, as Tannehill went way down the field to Raymond twice. Tannehill's first bomb to Raymond came on the game's second play, covered 44 yards and led to a Titans field goal. The second bomb to Raymond went for 61 yards and brought the ball down to the Minnesota 4-yard line, where Henry eventually scored to give the Titans a 25-24 lead.

Overall, Raymond caught three passes for a career-high 118 yards, giving the Titans' offense some much-needed big-chunk plays.

Rolled in the run game — The Titans entered Sunday's game ranked 23rd against the run and things only got worse against the Vikings. Running back Dalvin Cook ran 22 times for a career-best 181 yards, part of a Minnesota offense that amassed 226 yards on the ground — averaging a ridiculous 6.8 yards per carry.

The Vikings' gashing of the Titans' run defense came a week after Jacksonville did the same to Tennessee. Jaguars running back James Robinson totaled 102 rushing yards against the Titans, and the Jaguars as a team piled up 165 rushing yards in Week Two.

A year ago, the Titans ranked 12th in the league in rushing defense.

"Too many seams, not enough edges, not enough swarms, missed tackles," Vrabel said of the Titans' run defense against Minnesota. "Not good enough."

Please, no more — Only moments after the Titans escaped Minnesota with their 31-30 victory, Tennessee cornerback Kristian Fulton sent a tweet out to his old LSU teammate, Vikings wide receiver Justin Jefferson: “Say bruh, don’t do that again ... at least on us.”

It was hard to fault Fulton for that request, given how Jefferson had torched the Titans. The Vikings’ first-round pick, who had only totaled a combined five catches for 70 yards in his first two NFL games, exploded against Tennessee. Jefferson caught seven of the nine passes thrown his way, piling up 175 receiving yards – a total that was boosted nicely by a 71-yard touchdown catch.

Most of Jefferson’s damage came against Titans cornerback Malcolm Butler. But Jefferson blew right past 36 year-old Titans cornerback Johnathan Joseph on his touchdown catch, later eluding safety Kenny Vaccaro as he neared the end zone.

Getting the big stops — With seven minutes left in the fourth quarter, the Titans’ defense had only stopped Minnesota twice – once via Joseph’s interception and once via punt.

But when the Titans absolutely needed a couple of big defensive stops, they got them. The first came with just under four minutes remaining, as the Titans – trailing 30-28 – forced a Minnesota punt from the Vikings’ 37-yard line, thanks in part to a sack from Fulton.

One series later, with the Titans now ahead 31-30, Tennessee’s defense came up with another big stand, despite the fact defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons was called for an unfortunate roughing-the-passer penalty. Thanks in part to a fumbled snap that set the Vikings back 14 yards, the Titans stopped Minnesota for good when Amani Hooker made a fourth-down interception.

“The defense gave us some stops when we had to have stops,” Vrabel said. “When we got it in a two-minute situation, those guys rushed well ... We battled back from that 15-yard penalty and those guys rushed and we covered, and again, executed the situation when we had to ... They are resilient, they stuck together and they executed absolutely when they had to down the stretch.”

It was similar to last week, when the Titans struggled to stop Jacksonville for much of the contest, but produced two big stops at the end of the game.

Quiet start — Outside linebacker Vic Beasley made his much-awaited Titans debut on Sunday, after missing the previous two games with a knee injury. Beasley, of course, had made all sorts of headlines earlier this year, when he was an unexcused absence for 10 days at the start of the Titans’ training camp. When Beasley finally reported to camp, he went on the team’s non-football injury list immediately.

Beasley was noticeable on the Vikings’ first offensive series, as he arrived at the quarterback to help take down Minnesota quarterback Kirk Cousins. Jeffery Simmons was credited with the sack, though Beasley and Kevin Byard did help clean up on that play. Officially, however, Beasley didn’t record a single quarterback hit or tackle in his first Titans contest.

That brings up a larger issue: Through three games, the Titans don’t have any sacks from their edge rushers. Tennessee’s four sacks this season have come from Jack Crawford, Kenny Vaccaro, Jeffery Simmons and Fulton.

If the Titans had piled up a ton of sacks from other players, the lack of sacks from the edge guys – Harold Landry, Jadeveon Clowney, Kamalei Correa and Beasley – wouldn’t stand out as much. But the failure to get to the quarterback with any frequency remains a concern for this team. On the bright side, Landry and Clowney at least registered two quarterback hits each against the Vikings.

Big games at Nissan —The good news for the Titans on the schedule front is that the team plays its next three games at home. With a bye week following those contests, it means the Titans won’t play another road game until Nov. 1 at Cincinnati.

The challenging news is that the coming three-week stretch includes games against undefeated Pittsburgh and Buffalo, followed by a contest with AFC South rival Houston.

The Steelers have produced three 100-yard rushers in three weeks, with Benny Snell doing the trick in the opener and James Conner following with two straight games over 100. Buffalo, meanwhile, is ringing up passing yards and points through three games. Quarterback Josh Allen appears to have made massive strides from his rookie season, as he’s averaged 346 passing yards in the Bills’ three victories. Buffalo is averaging 31 points per game.

TITANS WRITE A LIST OF THINGS TO CORRECT, FIND A WAY TO WIN LATE AGAIN

BY PAUL KUHARSKY
PAULKUHARSKY.COM
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS – On a small, secondary ribbon board at U.S. Bank Stadium, the message spoke to the Titans.

“Progress is our purpose,” Land O’Lakes announced, in a slogan now 3-0 Tennessee could have commandeered as it overcame a third-quarter 12-point deficit to beat the host Vikings, 31-30.

In one on the NFL’s prized new venues, empty for all but a handful of player families I never noticed, a struggling defense was bailed out by a shoot-it-out offense, setting up a Sunday matchup of undefeated teams at Nissan Stadium when the Steelers visit and roughly 7,000 fans will get to watch.

The offense marched to a winning field goal in the waning minutes of a game for the third time in three chances this season and Stephen Gostkowski delivered again, this time from 55 yards with 1:58 on the clock.

“I think we have a calmness about us when we know it’s the drive to win the game so that we can be able to make plays,” Rodger Saffold said. “...This team is going to have ups and downs no matter which side of the ball or which phase. But at the end of the day, we just keep lifting each other up. So, I mean you’ve got to love to see that from a team.”

The Titans will need a better showing from the defense and less reliance on Gostkowski to beat Pittsburgh.

A team with a defensive head coach, still minus top cornerback Adoree’ Jackson, struggled against the run and the pass. Dalvin Cook ran for a career-high 181 yards with a 39-yard TD on just 18 carries while rookie receiver Justin Jefferson took seven catches for 175 yards including a 71-yard score at the end of which mocked the Titans’ inability to handle him.

Just two weeks after missing two field goals and an extra point while having a third field goal blocked in Denver, Gostkowski hit six of six attempts and two PATs.

Ryan Tannehill found two giant plays to Kalif Raymond, for 61- and 44-yard gains setting up one of the field goals and one of Derrick Henry’s two TDs. Henry added an aerial element to his repertoire, going up and over to score once and to convert a fourth down. But the offense converted third downs only at a three-for-13 clip, leaving it field-goal reliant and in dire straits at the end as the defense struggled so much.

(Raymond credited great throws from Tannehill, but also extra work at 6:30 a.m. last week catching balls from equipment man Matt Thompson.)

“That first half we were a little iffy, a little bit out of character,” Corey Davis said. “But second half we came out and we were us, nothing more, nothing less.”

It was not, however, that dramatic of a turnaround. The Titans certainly flipped the score with a 22-13 second half, but they only had three more first downs and 34 more yards than they did in the first 30 minutes -- hardly an outburst.

The Titans looked absolutely helpless and hapless when Kirk Cousins lofted a pass up the right sides that Jefferson easily ran under, well ahead of Jonathan Joseph. Kenny Vaccaro arrived to help but the two Titans defenders served to eliminate each other as the youngster cut back to the middle and pranced the rest of his 71 yards to put Tennessee in a 24-12 hole.

“Just better technique,” Joseph said. “Every play there is always something you can correct. Obviously once the guy makes the catch you’ve got to get him down. You can’t have big plays like that, one explosive play for a touchdown. Luckily we overcame that play.”

On the first play from scrimmage in the third quarter, Joseph should have had a pick-6.

Jayon Brown’s blitz put immediate pressure on Cousins and bothered his throw from his own 25-yard line short right for Jefferson. Joseph jumped it and waltzed in for a TD, but it was waved off because Jadeveon Clowney put a hit on Jefferson, who’s pursuit would have had zero bearing.

The illegal blindside block was not needed, Mike Vrabel was seen on the broadcast telling his new outside backer so and he told the media so after the game.

Put it on the list of mistakes the team will be correcting after a win, again.

For their second home game and first with some fans they really could use Jackson back, though indications have been the knee injury he suffered during the practice week before the opener could take him beyond a three-week IR stay.

A.J. Brown has now missed two games with what ESPN said is a bone bruise, though the offense is better equipped to function without the top receiver than the defense is to proceed without its top cover man.

Steadier play from Clowney can help. Vic Beasley didn’t make the stat sheet is his debut and his emergency could also be a factor.

The Titans may also have another offensive injury to sort through. As they left Minnesota, they were unsure about the status of Taylor Lewan, who left the game with a first-half shoulder injury.

"Every phase of our team has to improve and get better," Vrabel said. "But there is no panic. We needed to be better and try to help out and get some hard yards there for Stephen but that's how the situation turned out. He made a great kick and then the defense executed their part."

The Titans always talk about stopping the run. They came into the game as the NFL's 23rd-ranked rush defense and will be moving down after letting the Vikings turn 33 carries into 226 yards. Their defensive average shot from 5.1 per carry to 5.8, a big move in the wrong direction.

Steelers lead back James Connor averaged 6.1 in Sunday's win over Houston.

Vrabel's not happy with the tackling or the big plays allowed. Minnesota gained 213 yards on its five biggest plays combined.

"But they are resilient, they stuck together and they executed absolutely when they had to down the stretch," he said, "...We would love to sit here and play blowouts and win them, but that is not the reality of it. ...(Narrow wins are) not something that we want to rely on, but it's something that we want to continue to build on and be excited and appreciative that we are 3-0. We found ways to win as opposed to finding ways to lose."

QUOTES OF NOTE: WHAT THE VIKINGS SAID ABOUT LOSING TO TITANS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR

SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

They could not be farther apart in the standings.

Three weeks into the 2020 NFL season, the Tennessee Titans are 3-0 and the Minnesota Vikings are 0-3.

On the field and on the scoreboard, however, the difference between the teams looked much smaller. The Titans needed a 55-yard field goal from Stephen Gostkowski with 1:44 to play in order to beat the Vikings 31-30 and remain undefeated Sunday at U.S. Bank Stadium.

Here is some of what Minnesota's players and coach Mike Zimmer had to say about the Titans following that contest:

- Zimmer, on the difference in the game: "I think maybe we beat ourselves. ... This game, throughout most of the game, we gave ourselves an opportunity to compete, to fight, do all those things and with 10 minutes left in the fourth quarter, we're up by five. And that's one of the points of emphasis we always talk about – winning the last 10 minutes of the game."

- Linebacker Eric Kendricks, on blowing a fourth-quarter lead: "I felt we were into it. Obviously, they made a couple of pass plays but – yeah – their field goal kicker kicked a lot of solid kicks. We gave up three explosive plays that I can remember. ... We were very physical. We held them to field goals in the red zone, for the most part. It wasn't enough."

- Wide receiver Justin Jefferson, on his big game (seven catches for 175 yards and a touchdown): "It doesn't matter how many yards or catches or touchdowns I have. We still lost."

- Zimmer, on forcing the Titans to kick six field goals: "It's a little bit of a double-edged sword. ... They've got that big back [Derrick] Henry in there, so they ran a couple and had a couple play-actions, and we had to change coverages up and try to pressure them a little bit in different situations. Obviously, you don't want them to score anything. So that was – I don't know – it was a 55-yard field goal at the end."

- Kendricks, on Henry's performance (26 carries, 119 yards, 2 TDs): "I feel like we did good in the first half. In the second half, he had a couple of bigger runs, kind of a little bloody yardage. I feel like we were playing physical. We were being smart. But we got to do better."

- Jefferson, on allowing the Titans to come back from five down in the fourth quarter: "We played a great game at first and throughout the game. But those last two drives really killed us. We just made bad decisions [and] had some mistakes."

- Quarterback Kirk Cousins, on the result: "Really tough loss. ... We just weren't able to come away with the win, which is what matters. ... When you don't win the game, you tend to think about the plays you didn't make that could have made the difference. It was a back-and-forth game. We just came up a play or two short."

THREE GAMES, THREE GAME-WINNERS FOR GOSTKOWSKI

BY MIKE HOGAN
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

First impressions matter and Stephen Gostkowski's couldn't have been much worse. Not even if he tried.

It's a good thing the Tennessee Titans gave him a second chance.

Two weeks after the 15-year veteran missed a career-high three field goals and extra-point attempt in his Titans debut against the Denver Broncos, Gostkowski has more than proved his worth to his new teammates and coaches.

In Sunday's 31-30 victory over the Minnesota Vikings at US Bank Stadium, Gostkowski accounted for 19 of his team's points and made a career-high six field goals from 39, 31, 30, 51, 54 and 55 yards, respectively. His final field goal – with 1:44 to play – was the game-winner.

It was exactly what the Titans expected of Gostkowski when they signed him just before the start of the regular season.

"He's just doing his job," head coach Mike Vrabel said. "That's all we asked him to do. ... We're obviously very confident in him and today we needed him to help us win."

Gostkowski's consistency is something the Titans lacked last season.

Largely due to injuries and dreadful performances, they experimented with four different placekickers in 2019. Combined, those four made just nine total field goals (roughly 40 percent of attempts) over 19 games in the regular season and playoffs.

Gostkowski has made all nine of his attempts since his last miss in Denver, including four from 50 yards or more.

Other than playing without socks on, which he does often, Gostkowski said his ability to get back on track after his Week 1 performances is a product of staying true to himself and his routine.

"You play this game for a long time, you're going to have bad things happen," Gostkowski, who ranks among the top 10 in NFL history in field goal percentage, said. "Obviously I was rusty that first game. I didn't feel great and played one of the worst games I have ever played."

"But the worst thing you can do is change everything. You need to stick with what gets you there."

What has been most impressive about Gostkowski's bounce-back has been how well he has performed in crunch time.

Each of the Titans' three victories so far this season have come down to the final minutes, and a field goal from Gostkowski with little time remaining has made sure Tennessee came out on top each time. He is the first kicker in Oilers/Titans history to make three consecutive game-winning field goals. Joe Nedney (Oct. 14-21, 2001), Rob Bironas (Nov. 26-Dec. 3, 2006) and Ryan Succop (Sept. 16-23, 2018) are the only other kickers in franchise history to have made game-winning kicks in consecutive weeks.

Gostkowski, who spent his first 14 seasons with New England, has made 12 game-winning field goals over the course of his career. However, the only other time Gostkowski made three in a season was 2013 (Sept. 8, Nov. 24 and Dec. 11). He had just three total in his final six seasons with the Patriots.

"To keep my head down and grind and have some good results the last two weeks, it definitely means a lot," he said. "I just have to feed off of our guys. They are out there making plays and you want to be out there making plays too. I am happy

I was able to do that for the Titans today.

"...You just play the game. If you go out there and they call your number, you try to perform," he said. "...Whatever it takes."

Vrabel, though, said the thought of getting rid of Gostkowski, four-time Pro Bowler, after one bad performance never really crossed his mind.

The coach's one-time teammate has been at the top of his game for far too long to receive such treatment. His 205 total postseason points rank second in NFL history. In 28 career postseason games, including three Super Bowl victories, Gostkowski has made 39 of his 44 field goal attempts (88.6 percent). He has led the league in field goals three times in his career.

Vrabel knew Gostkowski would figure it out. Gostkowski did too.

"Kicking is like a love-hate relationship," Gostkowski said. "When it's going good it's really good. When it's bad, it's really tough. You just have to find the fine line between not getting too high or too low."

"I will beat myself up for a few days and I move on."

By all indications, Gostkowski's nightmare of a debut with the Titans can be considered as a fluke. The Titans have their kicker.

"It's not going to do me and the team any good to cower," Gostkowski said. "You have to prove to yourself and your teammates that you deserve to be there. ...I keep my head down and try to focus on what I need to do to help the team win."

TITANS DON'T LOOK - OR SOUND - LIKE A 3-0 TEAM (BUT THEY ARE) | ESTES

BY GENTRY ESTES
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

In listening to the Titans rehash Sunday's game, you would have thought they had lost to the Vikings.

The offense wasn't satisfied. The defense definitely wasn't, either. For the third postgame in a row, everyone seemed to be bemoaning a long list of ways they didn't play as well as they'd have liked.

Again, the Titans won, but they weren't over the moon about it.

"Every phase of our team has to improve and get better," coach Mike Vrabel said.

"We have a lot of things to clean up," quarterback Ryan Tannehill added. "We've flashed at times. We've played really well at times. But it hasn't been consistent enough."

How many NFL teams have sounded so underwhelmed by a 3-0 start?

Then again, how many have won those three games by only a combined six points? How many blew leads in the fourth quarter each time? How many were tied or trailing in the final moments before the kicker – himself a source of stress during this period – stepped up and coolly drilled a game-winner three times in a row at increasing distances?

Once was good enough. Twice seemed a bit lucky, sure, but why not?

Now the same thing a third time? Seems so improbable, but it happened, and it leaves me at a loss for definitive conclusions. What do you say?

They're winning, yes, but ...

I can't say these Titans are some unstoppable force – or even trending toward being a great team. I truly don't believe that's the case yet (and it doesn't sound like they do, either). The defense is as shaky as it has been in a while. Not much wrong with the offense, but the margins are so razor thin each week you figure the Titans are an injury at quarterback or running back away from disaster.

This upcoming week, like previous ones, caution still seems appropriate. The unbeaten Steelers are headed to Nissan Stadium on Sunday (noon, CBS), and I imagine we'll learn much about the Titans in that one. But I thought the same thing before this Vikings game. Instead, we saw a rerun of the first two weeks.

They nearly lost again, but ...

I can't say they are an easy out. I marvel at the determination of a group that keeps playing its best when it matters most. Whoever manages to beat this team is going to have to earn it with a sturdy knockout punch. For years, we've spoken about the cohesion in the Titans' locker room and a roster built with attitude and personality at the forefront. That has mattered in these narrow victories.

"It's very encouraging to be a part of a football team that's not a bunch of frontrunners that pack up and complain and start pointing fingers when things don't go right," Vrabel said. "Because they don't (go right), especially in this league."

Indeed, there is no quit in these Titans, only growing confidence that no matter what happens, they can find a way to win.

Those who haven't closely watched these balancing acts would be tempted to view the 3-0 record as a prerequisite for something hinted at in January – that the Titans deserve a seat among the NFL's elite and true Super Bowl contenders.

Those who have closely watched the past three weeks, however, know what they saw wasn't the kind of dominance that you can pack in a suitcase and take everywhere. The Titans haven't handled any foe convincingly. These have been fly-by-the-seat-of-your-pants survival acts.

Had any of them finished just a hair differently, we'd be dwelling on a struggling defense and an offense that reached Vikings territory in 10 of 12 possessions Sunday and managed to score only two touchdowns while kicking six field goals.

We'd be complaining about Jadeveon Clowney failing to make more of an impact and taking points off the board Sunday with an unnecessary penalty. We'd be wondering when the secondary might get Adoree' Jackson back, when the offense might get A.J. Brown back and whether Taylor Lewan is going to miss time on the O-line.

Winning doesn't necessarily cure problems. But so far this Titans season, it has obscured them to where you wonder whether they're even that pertinent.

They are.

On that, the Titans seem unified.

"But we're winning," running back Derrick Henry said. "As long as we keep winning, that's all that matters."

On that, he's not wrong.

DEEP BALLS, WHILE PASSING ON THE CREDIT

SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

MINNEAPOLIS – Titans receiver Kalif Raymond made two of the biggest plays of the game here on Sunday, but he pointed elsewhere for the credit.

Raymond, who caught two deep balls during a 100-yard plus day, credited quarterback Ryan Tannehill for putting the ball on the money. He praised the offensive line for giving Tannehill time to deliver it.

Raymond even shouted out Titans equipment manager Matt Thompson for working with him at all hours to help get him ready, including some 6:30 a.m. sessions this week when they played some pitch and catch at sun-up.

"You never know when your opportunity is going to come," Raymond said, "and the big thing is being able to capitalize on it. And a big part of the reason I was able to capitalize on it is Matt Thompson."

Kalif Raymond: It's a Testament to Character of Our Team

Raymond, of course, deserves some credit as well.

The 5-foot-8, 182-pound receiver from Holy Cross caught a 44-yard pass from Tannehill on the team's second offensive play to set up a Stephen Gostkowski field goal on the team's first drive.

Later in the contest, Raymond caught a 61-yard bomb from Tannehill to set up a one-yard touchdown run by Derrick Henry.

In the team's 31-30 win over the Vikings, Raymond caught three passes for a team-high 118 receiving yards.

And for the eighth time in franchise history, the Titans had a 300-yard passer (321 by Tannehill), a 100-yard rusher (119 by Henry) and a 100-yard receiver (Raymond).

"Those plays were huge," Tannehill said of Raymond. "Obviously the first one early in the game, double move on the outside, he ends up getting behind the corner and it was a huge play for us. That kind of got us going early, and then we needed something to get us going in the second half ... and we called his number again and he was able to win over the top.

"He came up big for us just like he has multiple times in his time here."

Raymond, of course, again credited Tannehill for the tosses.

"That man works," Raymond said of Tannehill. "I'll tell you what, I try to get in before him in the morning and leave later and I never win. That man, he put enough work to make those throws and I am just happy to be on the receiving end."

Raymond, who made some big plays for the Titans down the stretch last year, registered his first career 100-yard game on Sunday.

Raymond produced the most receiving yards by a Titans player on three or fewer receptions since Dec. 5, 2004, when Drew Bennett had 124 yards on three catches at Indianapolis. He also added a 30-yard kickoff return and two punt returns for five yards.

"What makes it so good is the fact that we won," Raymond said. "To go out there and contribute to a win, man, it makes the plane ride home a lot better. It is so good to contribute to the team, and to be a part of it. That's what I cherish the most."

UPDATED BIOS

13 CAMERON BATSON

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'8" • 175 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS TECH
 ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/3
 HOMETOWN: OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.
 GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 13/3 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans signed Cameron Batson as a rookie free agent following the 2018 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-8-inch, 180-pounder is a shifty route-runner with good burst and run-after-catch ability. The Texas Tech product also has experience in the return game having brought back both kickoffs and punts during his collegiate career. In four seasons with the Red Raiders, Batson collected 157 receptions for 1,499 yards and 14 touchdowns, while returning 22 kickoffs for 417 yards and 65 punts for 394 yards.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Batson made the Titans' active roster out of training camp as a rookie free agent. He appeared in 11 games with two starts at wide receiver and posted eight catches for 82 yards.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Batson was the valedictorian of his class at Millwood (Okla.) High School, and at Texas Tech, he graduated cum laude with his accounting degree in just over three years. His valedictorian speech – he had 52 in his graduating class – focused on his class, along with his past, and his journey.
- Batson wasn't necessarily expecting to make the team's 53-man roster as a rookie free agent in 2018. So when he walked into general manager Jon Robinson's office during cutdown day, he was expecting the worst. But things took a nice turn, and then something happened even the GM had never experienced before. Robinson told Batson he'd made the team's 53-man roster, and an impromptu prayer broke out. "I sat there and prayed," Batson said, "and Jon bowed his head with me. He said, "That's the first time anyone had ever done that.' ... I just wanted to give God the glory, with everything that is going on good or bad, because without Him nothing is possible."
- He has a dog named Kookie, and runs an Instagram account for her @ms.kookiemonster.
- Batson was roommates with Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes at Texas Tech.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Oklahoma City, Okla., native was signed by the Titans as an undrafted free agent on May 11, 2018.
- Waived by the Titans on Sept. 17, 2018 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Oct. 10, 2018.
- Waived by the Titans on Sept. 7, 2020 and signed to the team's practice squad two days later.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster standard elevation on Sept. 19, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (2/1):

- Against Jacksonville (9/20), returned to the lineup for the first time since 2018 and snared two passes for 26 yards. Rushed once for 11 yards on a jet sweep.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at wide receiver.

2019 (0/0, 0/0): Spent the entire season on injured reserve after getting injured during training camp.

2018 (11/2): Appeared in 11 games with two starts at wide receiver as a rookie and recorded eight receptions for 82 yards. Carried the ball once for one yard. Returned three punts for four yards. Collected a special teams tackle on coverage units. Was inactive for two games. Spent three weeks on the team's practice squad. Saw action in his first career NFL game against Baltimore (10/14/18). Made his first career reception at L.A. Chargers in London (10/21/18). Made his first career start at Indianapolis (11/18/18).

- Against Baltimore (10/14), made his NFL debut as a reserve on special teams and returned one punt for zero yards.
- At Los Angeles Chargers in London (10/21), played as a reserve at wide receiver and hauled in his first NFL reception for no gain.
- At Dallas (11/5), saw action as a reserve at wide receiver and hauled in two receptions for 21 yards. Kept the Titans' second touchdown drive alive with a 12-yard grab on third-and-seven in the second quarter.
- Against New England (11/11), played as a reserve at wide receiver and collected two receptions for 36 yards. Hauled in a 26-yard reception with a toe-drag catch along the sideline in the third quarter.
- At Indianapolis (11/18), made his first career start at wide receiver and caught one pass for five yards. Rushed once for one yard.
- At Houston (11/26), saw action as a reserve at wide receiver and hauled in one reception for 13 yards. Collected a special teams stop on coverage units.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/2), started at wide receiver and caught one pass for seven yards.

COLLEGE:

- Appeared in 50 games over four seasons at Texas Tech and totaled 157 receptions for 1,499 yards and 14 touchdowns. Also returned 22 kickoffs for 417 yards and returned 65 punts for 394 yards.
- As a senior (2017), saw action in all 13 games with nine starts. Set a single-season career-high with 924 all-purpose yards. Caught 59 passes for 487 yards and five touchdowns. Named a semifinalist for the Campbell Award given to the best football scholar-athlete in the nation and named first-team Academic All-Big 12.
- As a junior (2016), appeared in all 12 games with 10 starts and his 60 receptions ranked second on the team and his 644 receiving yards ranked fourth on the squad. Scored eight touchdowns on the season. Returned 13 kickoffs for 308 yards and 17 punts for 157 yards. Named first-team Academic All-Big 12.
- As a sophomore (2015), saw action in all 13 games and finished the season with 29 receptions for 327 yards and one touchdown. Returned 13 punts for 81 yards. Named Academic All-Big 12 first-team honoree.
- As a true freshman (2014), played in 12 games and tallied nine receptions for 41 yards. Returned 18 punts for 65 yards.
- Graduated cum laude with a degree in accounting in 2017 from Texas Tech.

PERSONAL:

- Attended Millwood (Okla.) High School where he was named the Oklahoma Gatorade State Player of the Year and The Oklahoman's first-team All-State selection.
- As a senior, passed for over 2,000 yards, rushed for over 1,200 yards and returned four punts for touchdowns. As a defensive back, tallied 48 tackles and 19 career interceptions, including five interceptions he returned for touchdowns.
- Helped guide his high school basketball team to a state championship as a junior.
- Son of Ericka Batson and Willie Batson III and has twin sisters, Caira and Carmen.

- Follow Batson on Twitter at @KillaCam_3_.
- Follow Batson on Instagram at @Camb_13.
- Born Cameron Malik Batson on Dec. 20, 1995 in Oklahoma City, Okla.

OUTSIDE LINEBACKER • 6'3" • 246 LBS • COLLEGE: CLEMSON
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (ATLANTA) - 2020
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 6/1 • HOMETOWN: ADAIRSVILLE, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 79/60 (PLAYOFFS: 5/4)

PRO: The Titans signed unrestricted free agent Vic Beasley Jr. in the 2020 offseason to bolster the team's depth and experience at outside linebacker. The 6-foot-3-inch, 246-pounder saw action in 78 games with 60 starts while totaling 156 tackles, 37.5 sacks, one interception, 36 tackles for loss, 11 forced fumbles, 12 passes defended, and 46 quarterback hits during his first five seasons (2015-19) with the Atlanta Falcons. The former 2015 first-round pick has shown incredible burst as a pass rusher as a pro and was named to his lone Pro Bowl in 2016 after leading the NFL with 15.5 sacks.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Beasley Jr. notched a career-best 42 tackles, including eight for a loss and eight sacks.
- In 2016, Beasley Jr. led the NFL with 15.5 sacks and added 39 tackles, 10 tackles for loss, six forced fumbles and 28 quarterback hurries. Named to his first Pro Bowl and earned AP All-Pro honors for his breakout performance in 2016.
- In 2015, Beasley Jr. started all 16 games and led the team with a club rookie record four sacks.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Beasley Jr.'s late father, Victor, played football at Auburn from 1982-1984.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Adairsville, Ga., native was selected by the Atlanta Falcons in the first round (eighth overall) of the 2015 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 31, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (1/0 - Tennessee):

- At Denver (9/14), was inactive.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), was inactive.
- At Minnesota (9/27), made his Titans debut as a reserve at outside linebacker.

2019 (16/15 - Atlanta): Played in all 16 games with 15 starts and recorded a career-high 42 tackles, including eight for a loss, eight sacks, 12 quarterback hits, two forced fumbles and two passes defended.

- At New Orleans (11/10), notched four tackles, including 1.5 sacks and two quarterback hits in the road victory.
- Against Carolina (12/8), recorded two strip-sacks, with one fumble recovered by Tyeler Davison that led to a 13-yard touchdown run by Devonta Freeman.
- At San Francisco (12/15), matched a season-high with five tackles, including a sack and a quarterback hit in a road win against the eventual NFC champions.

2018 (16/9 - Atlanta): Played in all 16 games with nine starts, recording 20 tackles, five sacks, three passes defended, a fumble recovery for a touchdown, seven tackles for loss and eight quarterback hits.

- Against Dallas (11/18), recorded his first double-sack game since 2016.
- Against Baltimore (12/2), recorded his second-career fumble recovery for a touchdown when he scooped up a loose ball and raced 74 yards for a score.

2017 (14/8, 2/2 - Atlanta): Saw action in 14 games with eight starts and recorded 29 tackles, seven tackles for loss, five quarterback hits, a pass defended, a forced fumble and five sacks. Was inactive for two games.

Started two postseason games and logged six tackles with a sack, a tackle for loss, a quarterback hit, and a pass defended.

- At Chicago (9/10), posted two tackles, including a sack and a stop for loss.
- Against Green Bay (9/17), collected two tackles, including a sack and a forced fumble. His strip-sack of Aaron Rodgers led to a 15-yard fumble return touchdown by Desmond Trufant in Week 2.
- At Carolina (11/5), registered five tackles, including a sack and two tackles for loss

2016 (16/12, 3/2 - Atlanta): Named to his first Pro Bowl and earned Associated Press All-Pro honors. Saw action in all 16 games with 12 starts and led the NFL with 15.5 sacks. Posted 39 tackles, 15 quarterback hits, 10 tackles for loss, six forced fumbles and 28 quarterback pressures. His 15.5 sacks were the second-most by a Falcon in a single season since sacks became an official statistic in 1982. Only John Abraham had more sacks with 16.5 in 2008.

- At Denver (10/9), had a breakout game, posting a career-best 3.5 sacks and eight total tackles to go along with a pair of forced fumbles. His 3.5 sacks tied for the fourth-most in a single game in franchise history (Chuck Smith/Claude Humphrey 5.0; Claude Humphrey 4.0; John Abraham 3.5) and were the most by a player in the 2016 season.
- Against San Diego (10/23), posted three tackles, including two sacks, a tackle for loss and a forced fumble.
- At Philadelphia (11/13), registered four tackles, including a pair of sacks, a stop for loss and a forced fumble.
- Against Kansas City (12/4), became the first Falcons player to record double-digit sacks in a single season since John Abraham (10) in 2012, dropping Alex Smith for a four-yard loss. Also tied Lester Archambeau for the second-most forced fumbles in a single season in club history with five.
- At L.A. Rams (12/11), recorded his fourth multi-sack game of the season and scored his first career touchdown. Forced his sixth fumble of the season and returned the ball 21 yards for a touchdown. Became the 10th player in NFL history to have three sacks and a fumble return for a touchdown in a game since sacks became an official statistic in 1982.
- Against New England (2/5), started at outside linebacker and notched a quarterback pressure and a pass defended in Super Bowl LI.

2015 (16/16 - Atlanta): Started all 16 games and led the team with four sacks to go along with 27 tackles, an interception, two forced fumbles, and two passes defended. His four sacks were a Falcons rookie record.

- Against Philadelphia (9/14), started his first NFL game and recorded three tackles while adding a quarterback hit and a pass defended.
- At N.Y. Giants (9/20), notched his first NFL sack dropping Eli Manning and forcing a fumble. Also added five tackles.
- At Dallas (9/27), started and posted his second sack. Dropped Brandon Weeden for a nine-yard loss on a key third-down play in the fourth quarter. Added two tackles in the come-from-behind win.
- At Carolina (12/13), notched his third sack of the season, dropping Cam Newton for a 13-yard loss.
- Against Carolina (12/27), posted four tackles, a pass defended, a forced fumble and his fourth sack of the season. Sealed the win with a 13-yard strip-sack of Cam Newton in the fourth quarter.

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: NEW MARKET, ALA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 9/4 (PLAYOFFS: 3/1)

PRO: The Titans signed fullback/running back Khari Blasingame off the Minnesota Vikings' practice squad during the 2019 season to provide depth in the backfield and on special teams. Blasingame originally signed with the Vikings as a rookie free agent following the 2019 NFL Draft and spent the first 10 weeks of his rookie campaign on the team's practice squad. The 6-foot, 233-pounder amassed 997 rushing yards and 15 rushing scores as well as 35 catches for 380 yards and two receiving touchdowns during his collegiate career at Vanderbilt.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Blasingame enjoys playing the saxophone.
- Blasingame originally started his Vanderbilt career at linebacker before transitioning to running back as a sophomore in 2016.
- After his football career, Blasingame's goal is to become the CEO of a hospital or health care system. Once there, he wants to focus on improving health care outcomes for disadvantaged populations. He earned his undergraduate degree in medicine, health and society from Vanderbilt in 2017 and is working towards master's degree in education, after playing his final collegiate season in 2018 as a graduate student.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The New Market, Ala., native was originally signed by the Minnesota Vikings as a rookie free agent on May 3, 2019.
- Waived by the Vikings on Aug. 31, 2019 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the Minnesota Vikings' practice squad on Nov. 13, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/1 - Tennessee):

- At Denver (9/14), saw action as a reserve at fullback and snared one catch for five yards.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at fullback and saw action on special teams.
- At Minnesota (9/27), played as a reserve at fullback and helped the Titans collect 134 yards on the ground.

2019 (6/3, 3/1 - Tennessee):

- Saw action in six games with three starts at fullback during his rookie campaign. Caught four passes for 54 yards and collected two special teams tackles. Played in all three postseason contests with a start at fullback and notched two special teams tackles and a forced fumble on coverage units. Spent the first 10 weeks of the season on the Minnesota Vikings' practice squad before being signed by the Titans to their active roster on Nov. 13, 2019. Tied for the team lead in special teams tackles twice in 2019 (at IND, at NE). Made his first career start in his NFL debut against Jacksonville (11/24/19).
- Against Jacksonville (11/24), started at fullback in his NFL debut. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- At Indianapolis (12/1), played as a reserve at fullback and on special teams. Tied for the team lead with a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- At Oakland (12/8), saw action as a reserve at fullback and snared two receptions for 47 yards. Helped open holes for Titans' rushers to gain 161 yards on the ground. Set up the Titans' opening score with his first career catch, a 24-yard reception, in the first quarter. Got the Titans offense some breathing room with a 23-yard catch to the Tennessee 34-yard line in the third quarter.
- Against Houston (12/15), played as a reserve at fullback and caught one

- pass for no gain.
- Against New Orleans (12/22), started at fullback and helped the Titans amass 149 rushing yards on 26 carries.
- At Houston (12/29), started at fullback and caught one pass for seven yards. Helped open holes for Titans' rushers to gain 245 yards on the ground.
- At New England (1/4), started at fullback in his first career postseason game and blocked for Derrick Henry to amass 182 rushing yards. Tied for the team lead with a special teams tackle and a forced fumble on coverage units.
- At Baltimore (1/11), played as a reserve at fullback and helped open holes for Derrick Henry to collect a franchise postseason record 195 yards on the ground. Played as a reserve on special teams and collected a tackle on coverage units.
- At Kansas City (1/19), saw action as a reserve at fullback and on special teams.

COLLEGE:

- Helped revitalize Vanderbilt's football program, advancing to Independence Bowl against N.C. State in 2016 and Texas Bowl against Baylor in 2018. Capped his collegiate career with CoSIDA Academic All-District honors in 2017 and 2018 and SEC Academic Honor Roll recognition from 2015-17.
- As a graduate student (2018), played in all 13 games with two starts and rushed for 401 yards and five touchdowns on 96 attempts, while adding 25 receptions for 320 yards and a score.
- As a junior (2017), participated in 11 games with one start at running back. As the top reserve to Commodores all-time leading rusher Ralph Webb, produced 147 yards on 45 carries.
- As a sophomore (2016), after moving from linebacker to running back in spring drills, played in all 13 games at running back and on special team return units. Finished the season second on the squad with 449 rushing yards and 10 rushing touchdowns on 97 carries. Also registered four receptions.
- As a redshirt freshman (2015), played in 11 games, contributing at inside linebacker and on special teams.
- In 2014, did not see action as a true freshman.
- Earned an undergraduate degree in medicine, health and society from Vanderbilt in May 2017, and is currently working toward a Master's of Education from Vanderbilt's Peabody College.

PERSONAL:

- Named second team All-State as a defensive back at Buckhorn (Huntsville, Ala.) High School.
- As a senior, posted 64 solo tackles and pair of interceptions as a safety. Also rushed for 966 yards and 10 touchdowns.
- Started at cornerback during junior and sophomore seasons.
- Played baseball and did sprints and jumps on the track and field squad at Buckhorn.
- Served as school ambassador and member of National Honor Society.
- Son of Stanley and Tara Blasingame and has an older sister, Camara.
- Born Khari Thomas Blasingame on July 1, 1996 in Huntsville, Ala.

48 BEAU BRINKLEY

LONG SNAPPER • 6'4" • 260 LBS • COLLEGE: MISSOURI
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2012 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/9
HOMETOWN: KEARNEY, MO.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 131/0 (PLAYOFFS: 5/0)

PRO: Beau Brinkley was signed by the Titans as an undrafted free agent following the 2012 NFL Draft and has handled all of the team's long snapping duties in every game since then. His consistency helped Brett Kern set the franchise records for both gross and net punting average in 2017 and helped Titans kickers make 82.1 percent of their field goals in Brinkley's first seven campaigns.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Brinkley was the team's long snapper for every punt, field goal and extra point attempt for his eighth consecutive season.
- In 2018, he played in his 100th career regular season game against Philadelphia (9/30/18).
- In 2014, Brinkley set a career high and tied for third on the squad with 10 special teams stops.
- As a rookie in 2012, Brinkley played in every game and contributed six special teams tackles.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Brinkley's father, Mike, was an All-American defensive end and long snapper at Missouri Valley College. He taught Beau the skill of long snapping when he was just seven years old. Beau's football idol growing up was Kansas City Chiefs long snapper Kendall Gammon.
- An avid golfer, Brinkley won the 2018 Pepsi Tournament C Flight Championship in Brookfield, Mo.
- Brinkley raced four-wheelers in the Extreme Dirt Track Racing Series while growing up in Missouri. He traveled the country competing in both motor cross and flat track competitions and won a flat track regional title in 2005.
- In June 2015, Brinkley participated in the Nashville Sports Council Golf Tournament at Gaylord Springs Golf Course. On the par-3 eighth hole, he sunk a hole-in-one to win a barrel of Jack Daniel's Tennessee whiskey.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Kearney, Mo., native was signed by the Titans as an undrafted free agent on May 4, 2012.

11 A.J. BROWN

WIDE RECEIVER • 6'1" • 226 LBS • COLLEGE: MISSISSIPPI
 ACQUIRED: 2ND ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
 HOMETOWN: STARKVILLE, MISS.
 GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 17/12 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans selected A.J. Brown in the second round (51st overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-1-inch, 226-pounder owns a complete skill set as a wide receiver, excelling in route-running, blocking, and the ability to get open and catch the ball. As a rookie in 2019, he led all NFL rookies in receiving yards (1,051) and total touchdowns (nine), while his 20.2-yard receiving average ranked second among all players behind only Los Angeles Chargers veteran Mike Williams (20.4).

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category, totaling 52 catches for 1,051 yards and eight touchdowns. Among all rookies in franchise history, he ranked third in receiving yards and fifth in receptions, and he tied for the third-highest receiving touchdown total.
- Brown led the 2019 NFL rookie class in receiving yards and total touchdowns, and he tied for the rookie lead in touchdown receptions. He also placed fifth among rookies in receptions. Among all NFL players in 2019—rookies and veterans—Brown finished second in receiving average (20.2), behind only the Los Angeles Chargers' Mike Williams (20.4).
- In his first NFL game at Cleveland on Sept. 8, 2019, he recorded three catches for 100 yards, becoming the franchise's first player with 100 receiving yards in his first career game since Sid Blanks on Sept. 12, 1964.
- In 2018, Brown started all 12 games in his final season at Ole Miss and set school single-season records in receiving yards (1,320) and catches (85). He led the SEC in both categories.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Brown was selected in the 19th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball Draft by the San Diego Padres as a centerfielder, and he participated in the team's extended spring training program each summer from 2016-18.
- He has a dog, Bentley Juan Brown, and runs an Instagram account for him @bentleyjuan1.
- During a pre-draft visit to San Francisco, Brown was able to link up and work out with Hall of Fame NFL receiver and fellow Mississippian Jerry Rice. Rice took Brown on the horse trail at Edgewood Park in Redwood City, known as one of Rice's training sites, where the pair ran hills as part of their work out. Brown's hometown Starkville, Miss., and Rice's hometown Crawford, Miss., are a 30-minute drive apart.
- In every sport Brown played growing up, he wore jersey No. 1.
- Brown names the 2017 Egg Bowl as his most memorable college football moment. "Playing against Mississippi State in my hometown," he says, "Everything was great. We won, and I had six catches for 167 yards and one touchdown." After reaching the end zone, Brown yelled to the crowd, "This is my city."
- Brown briefly stopped playing football during junior high and his freshman year of high school. He returned to the field his sophomore year after his high school coach suggested he play again.
- He enjoys shooting pool in his free time.
- His transition from college to the pros was made easier due to his older sister, Reva, already living in Nashville before he was drafted by the Titans.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Starkville, Miss., native was selected by the Titans in the second round (51st overall) the 2019 NFL Draft.

2019 (16/11, 3/3): Received all-rookie first team honors from the Pro Football Writers Association. Appeared in all 16 games with 11 starts at wide receiver. Led the team with 52 receptions, 1,051 receiving yards and eight receiving touchdowns. Led all NFL rookies with 1,051 receiving yards, ranked fifth among all rookies with 52 receptions and tied for first among all NFL rookies with eight touchdown receptions. Led all NFL rookies with five 100-yard receiving games in 2019. His 20.2-yard receiving average in 2019 ranked second among all qualifying NFL players. Also rushed three times for 60 yards with a rushing score. Started all three postseason contests and notched five catches for 64 yards to go along with one rush for nine yards. Led the team in receiving yards eight times (at CLE, at ATL, at CAR, vs. JAX, at IND, at OAK, vs. HOU, at HOU). Led or tied for the team lead in receptions six times (vs. LAC, vs. JAX, at IND, at OAK, vs. HOU, at HOU). Made his first career start in his NFL debut at Cleveland (9/8/19). Collected his first two receiving touchdowns at Atlanta (9/29/19). Became the first rookie in the "Titans era" (1999–present) to have five 100-yard receiving games. Became the first rookie in the "Titans era" (1999–present) with at least five touchdown receptions—he finished with eight. Ranked third in team history for receiving yards by a rookie, fifth in franchise history for receptions by a rookie and tied for third in franchise history for touchdown receptions by a rookie. Posted his fourth touchdown reception of the season of at least 50 yards at Houston (12/29/19), the first rookie to do so since Randy Moss (five in 1998). Named the AFC Offensive Rookie of the Month for December, after hauling in 21 receptions for 470 yards with four touchdowns.

- At Cleveland (9/8), started at wide receiver in his NFL debut and snared three catches for a team-best 100 yards. With his 100 receiving yards, he became the franchise's first player with 100 receiving yards in his first career game since Sid Blanks on Sept. 12, 1964. Got the Titans' opening scoring drive rolling with his first career reception, a 47-yard catch-and-run play, in the first quarter. Kickstarted the Titans' scoring drive early in the third quarter with a 51-yard reception over the middle.
- At Atlanta (9/29), led the team with 94 receiving yards on three catches, including a team-high two touchdowns. Became the first Titans rookie with two or more touchdown receptions in a game since Chris Sanders against the Denver Broncos on Nov. 26, 1995. Gave the Titans an early 7-0 lead with a 55-yard catch-and-run touchdown on the first play of the second possession. Made an acrobatic, toe-drag 11-yard touchdown reception in the corner of the end zone late in the first quarter.
- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), tied for the team lead with six catches for 64 yards. Totaled three receptions for 42 yards during the Titans' touchdown drive late in the second quarter.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), gave the Titans a 27-23 lead with an eight-yard touchdown grab on third-and-eight midway through the fourth quarter.
- At Carolina (11/3), led the team with 81 receiving yards on four catches. Extended the Titans' second touchdown drive with a beautiful over the shoulder catch on a 35-yard bomb.
- Against Jacksonville (11/24), led the team with four catches and a then career-high 135 receiving yards with a touchdown. Kickstarted the Titans' touchdown drive to open the second half with a 35-yard catch early in the third quarter. Increased the Titans lead to 35-3 with a career-long 65-yard catch-and-run touchdown in the third stanza.
- At Oakland (12/8), started at wide receiver and led the team with five catches, a career-high 153 receiving yards and two receiving scores. Gave the Titans a 14-7 advantage with a career-long 91-yard touchdown grab early in the second quarter. His 91-yard touchdown reception was the fourth-longest touchdown catch in franchise history and the longest since 1965. Increased the Titans lead to 21-14 with a physical 16-yard touchdown catch on third-and-13 in the second quarter.

- Against Houston (12/15), started at wide receiver and led the team with a career-high eight catches and 114 receiving yards with a touchdown. Got open deep and hauled in a 60-yard reception down the right sideline in the opening quarter. Extended the Titans' initial touchdown drive with a pair of third-down conversions: a nine-yard catch on third-and-five and an 11-yard reception on third-and-three in the third quarter. Evened the score at 14-14 with a five-yard touchdown grab early in the fourth quarter.
- Against New Orleans (12/22), started at wide receiver and hauled in a 34-yard catch to go along with a 49-yard rushing touchdown. Extended the Titans lead to 14-0 with a 49-yard touchdown jaunt on a reverse in the first quarter.
- At Houston (12/29), started at wide receiver and led the team with 124 receiving yards while tying for the team lead with four receptions and a receiving touchdown. Evened the score at 7-7 with a 51-yard catch-and-run touchdown down the right sideline on third-and-five in the opening quarter. Eclipsed 1,000 yards receiving for the season with a 24-yard grab from Marcus Mariota during the Titans' second touchdown drive. Set up the Titans' fourth touchdown with a 47-yard catch over double coverage down to the Houston one-yard line early in the fourth quarter.
- At New England (1/4), started at wide receiver in his first career postseason game and caught one pass for four yards.
- At Baltimore (1/11), started at wide receiver and hauled in one reception for nine yards.
- At Kansas City (1/19), started at wide receiver and grabbed three receptions for 51 yards. Kickstarted the Titans' first scoring drive with a 37-yard reception over the middle on the second play from scrimmage.

55 JAYON BROWN

LINEBACKER • 6'0" • 226 LBS • COLLEGE: UCLA

ACQUIRED: 5TH ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4

HOMETOWN: LONG BEACH, CALIF.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 49/26 (PLAYOFFS: 4/2)

PRO: The Titans selected Jayon Brown in the fifth round of the 2017 NFL Draft. He possesses tremendous speed for the position and excels at covering tight ends and running backs. The 6-foot, 226-pound defender has emerged as one of the Titans' top defensive playmakers, ranking third on the team with a career-high 117 tackles in 2019 and finishing second on the squad with 107 total tackles and six sacks in 2018.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Brown started a career-best 14 games and ranked third on the team with a career-high 117 tackles and fourth on squad with nine passes defended.
- In 2018, Brown finished second on the defense with 107 tackles and six sacks, and his 18 quarterback pressures tied for the second-highest total on the team. He was one of only six NFL linebackers with at least six sacks, one interception, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery during the season.
- Against Indianapolis on Dec. 30, 2018, Brown recorded his first career interception and returned the ball 22 yards for his first career touchdown. He later recorded a forced fumble and fumble recovery, and in doing so, he became the third NFL player in 2018 to record an interception for a touchdown, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery in the same game (Bobby Wagner, Khalil Mack). Brown became the first Titans player to accomplish the feat since at least 1993.
- As a rookie in 2017, Brown appeared in every game as the team's nickel linebacker. He registered 67 tackles, which tied for the 10th-highest total by a "Titans era" rookie (1999–present) and ranked fifth among the team's rookie linebackers in that span.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Brown went to the same California high school, Long Beach Poly, as former Titans great Jurrell Casey. Brown's older brother, Juwuan, was Jurrell's teammate there.
- He likes spending as much time as possible with his dogs, "a mutt named Lou" and a Rottweiler named Kali. He also enjoys puzzles and watching movies.
- Former Long Beach Poly and New England Patriots star Willie McGinest is a close friend of the Brown family.
- Brown's younger brother, Joshua, is a defensive end at the University of Arizona, and his two older brothers also played college football. Jason played linebacker at Idaho, while Juwuan was a defensive lineman at Southern Oregon.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Long Beach, Calif., native was selected by the Titans in the fifth round (155th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

Pro Bowl: 2015, 2016

PRO: The Titans entered the 2018 offseason looking to add more experience to their secondary. The club found just that when it signed two-time Super Bowl Champion and two-time Pro Bowler Malcolm Butler as an unrestricted free agent on March 16, 2018. The 5-foot-11-inch, 190-pounder arrived in Tennessee having collected nine total interceptions and 56 passes defended in four seasons (2014-17) with the New England Patriots. Butler originally entered the league as a rookie free agent out of West Alabama.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Butler is a two-time Super Bowl champion, having captured the title with the New England Patriots in 2014 and 2016.
- In 2019, he posted his fifth consecutive season with at least two interceptions, and his second consecutive season with an interception returned for a touchdown.
- In 2018, Butler led the Titans with 13 passes defended and was second on the team with three interceptions in his first season with the Titans.
- In 2016, Butler was named to his second career Pro Bowl and received Associated Press second-team All-Pro honors after notching a career-high four interceptions and 17 passes defended.
- In 2015, Butler made his first career Pro Bowl after posting 72 tackles, two interceptions and 15 passes defended.
- As a rookie free agent in 2014, Butler was involved in one of the most clutch plays in Super Bowl history. With 26 seconds left in Super Bowl XLIX, he intercepted a pass intended for Ricardo Lockette at the goal line, preventing a go-ahead touchdown by the Seattle Seahawks, and sealing the Patriots' championship victory.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Every offseason since 2015, Butler has hosted free skills and multi-sport experience camps in his hometown of Vicksburg, Miss., for 500 boys and girls in first through 12th grades.
- In February 2017, the production company Narrative Capital acquired the rights to the story of Butler for a film tentatively titled "The Secondary."
- Following Butler's crucial goal line interception to seal Super Bowl XLIX, Patriots quarterback Tom Brady, who received a 2015 Chevrolet Colorado as part of his Super Bowl XLIX MVP Award, requested Chevrolet award the truck directly to Butler.
- Prior to securing a rookie free agent tryout with the Patriots in 2014, Butler was operating the fryolator at a Popeye's restaurant.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Vicksburg, Miss., native was signed by the New England Patriots as a rookie free agent on May 19, 2014.
- Signed by the Titans as a unrestricted free agent on March 16, 2018.

- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), started at cornerback and posted five tackles and a pass defended. Combined with Wesley Woodyard to stuff Austin Ekeler for no gain on a rush off left end late in the opening quarter.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), started at cornerback and tallied a tackle and an interception. Intercepted a Jameis Winston pass intended for Chris Godwin and returned it 23 yards to the Tampa Bay six-yard line late in the first quarter.
- At Carolina (11/3), started at cornerback and produced two passes defended before leaving the game late in the second quarter with an injury.

2018 (16/11 - Tennessee): Played in all 16 games with 11 starts at cornerback in his first season with the Titans and led the team with 13 passes defended. Ranked second on the team with three interceptions. Collected 56 tackles, a sack, three stops for loss, a quarterback pressure and a forced fumble. Led or tied for the team lead in passes defended seven times (at MIA, vs. HOU, vs. BAL, at IND, vs. NYJ, vs. JAX, vs. IND). Tied for the team lead in sacks once (vs. PHI).

- At Miami (9/9), started at cornerback in his first game with the Titans and collected five tackles, an interception, a stop for loss and two passes defended. Stuffed Kenyan Drake for a one-yard loss on a short pass to the flat in the second quarter. Intercepted a Ryan Tannehill pass intended for Mike Gesicki in the end zone and returned it 34 yards in the third quarter. Batted down a pass intended for Albert Wilson late in the third stanza.
- Against Houston (9/16), started at cornerback and tallied six tackles and two passes defended. Broke up a pass intended for DeAndre Hopkins early in the first quarter. Batted down a pass intended for Hopkins during the Texans' final drive late in the fourth quarter.
- Against Philadelphia (9/30), started at cornerback and notched seven tackles, including a sack. Came off the edge on a blitz and dropped Carson Wentz for a nine-yard sack in the first quarter. Forced an Alshon Jeffery fumble that went out of bounds in the second quarter.
- Against Baltimore (10/14), played as a reserve at cornerback and amassed three tackles and two passes defended. Broke up a deep pass intended for Michael Crabtree late in the second quarter.
- At Indianapolis (11/18), started at cornerback and collected two tackles and a pass defended. Halted the Colts' opening drive by breaking up a third-and-nine pass intended for Ryan Grant in the first quarter.

- Against N.Y. Jets (12/2), started at cornerback and tallied six tackles, an interception and a stop for loss. Halted a Jets' drive by stonewalling Elijah McGuire for a four-yard loss on a short third-and-two swing pass in the fourth quarter. Sealed the victory by intercepting a Josh McCown pass intended for Chris Herndon late in the fourth quarter.
- Against Washington (12/22), started at cornerback and totaled three tackles, an interception returned for a score, a stop for loss and a quarterback pressure. Broke up a pass intended for Josh Doctson in the third quarter. Sealed the victory by intercepting a Josh Johnson pass and racing 56 yards as time expired in the game.
- Against Indianapolis (12/30), started at cornerback and registered six tackles and two passes defended. Batted down a pass intended for Dontrelle Inman in the second quarter. Broke up a pass intended for Eric Ebron in the third stanza.

2017 (16/15, 3/2 - New England): Played in all 16 games with 15 starts at cornerback and amassed 60 tackles, two interceptions, a sack, 12 passes defended and three forced fumbles. Saw action in all three postseason games with two starts and posted four tackles.

- Against Carolina (10/1), started at cornerback and led the team with eight tackles, while adding a pass defended and a first quarter interception of Cam Newton that led to the Patriots first touchdown drive.
- At N.Y. Jets (10/15), started at cornerback and was a key contributor with four tackles, three passes defended and an interception late in the second quarter that led to a Patriots touchdown to tie the game going into halftime. Also forced a fumble of Austin Seferian-Jenkins as he was going into the end zone for a fourth-quarter score which caused the fumble out of bounds to be ruled a touchback and returned possession to the Patriots.
- Against Atlanta (10/22), contributed with six tackles and a pass defended in a starting role at cornerback. The pass defended came on a third-and-one pass breakup of a Julio Jones fourth quarter target in the end zone which led to a fourth-down stop on the ensuing play for the Patriots.
- At Buffalo (12/3), made the start at cornerback and finished with a team-high eight tackles.
- At Pittsburgh (12/17), started at cornerback and finished with three tackles, including a key stop on the penultimate play of the game when he tackled Darrius Heyward-Bey inbounds to keep the clock running prior to Duron Harmon's game-sealing interception on the next play in the win.
- Against Buffalo (12/24), made the start at cornerback and finished with three tackles, a pass defended and a 13-yard sack of Tyrod Taylor in the fourth quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (1/21), started at cornerback and finished with six tackles total and added a pass defended in the AFC Championship victory.

2016 (16/16, 3/3 - New England): Earned his second career Pro Bowl invitation and named to the Associated Press All-Pro second team after starting all 16 regular season games and recording 63 tackles, one sack, and notched career-high four interceptions and 17 passes defended. Also forced one fumble and recovered two others. Started all three postseason contests and posted 11 tackles and one pass defended.

- Against Miami (9/18), led the team with eight tackles and one pass defended.
- At Pittsburgh (10/23), picked off Landry Jones in the end zone during the first quarter to end a Steelers scoring threat. Finished the game with six tackles and three passes defended.
- Against Seattle (11/13), led the defense with nine total tackles.
- At San Francisco (11/20), recorded his first ever NFL sack when he took down Colin Kaepernick. Added two tackles.
- At N.Y. Jets (11/27), forced and recovered a fumble to mark the first forced fumble and fumble recovery of his NFL career that led to a Patriots touchdown. Also added five total tackles.
- Against the Los Angeles Rams (12/4), picked off Jared Goff for seven yards. Added one total tackle and three passes defended.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/24), had his first career two-interception game in the win when he picked off Bryce Petty on third-and-11 in the first quarter and Ryan Fitzpatrick for a 21-yard gain at the end of the third stanza. Had three total takeaways in the game after adding a fumble recovery in the second quarter to mark the first time that a Patriots player has had three takeaways in the same game since Steve Gregory had three (one interception and two fumble recoveries at N.Y. Jets Nov. 22, 2012).

- Against Pittsburgh (1/22), recorded four tackles and a pass defended in the AFC Championship.

2015 (16/16, 2/2 - New England): Earned his first career Pro Bowl invitation after starting all 16 regular season contests and recording 72 tackles, two interceptions and 15 passes defended. Started both playoff games and posted 12 tackles and three passes defended.

- At Buffalo (9/20), recorded his first career regular season interception off a Tyrod Taylor pass. Also added six tackles and one pass defended.
- At Indianapolis (10/18), recorded a single-game career-high nine tackles and two passes defended.
- At N.Y. Giants (11/15), recorded two solo tackles and three passes defended. Butler's three passes defended came against Odell Beckham Jr., who Butler held to four receptions on 12 targets.
- Against Tennessee (12/20), recorded seven tackles, an interception and one pass defended.
- Against Kansas City (1/16), made his first postseason start and recorded five tackles and one pass defended in the playoff victory.
- At Denver (1/24), recorded a career playoff-high seven tackles and two passes defended in the AFC Championship Game.

2014 (11/1, 3/0 - New England): Made the team as a rookie free agent and appeared in 11 regular season games with one start and totaled 14 tackles, four passes defended and one special teams tackle. Was inactive for four games and did not play in another contest. Played as a reserve in all three playoff contests and made four tackles, one interception and three passes defended.

- At Miami (9/7), made his NFL debut on special teams and at cornerback and recorded two tackles.
- Against Denver (11/2), saw significant playing time as a fourth cornerback and finished with four tackles and one pass defended.
- Against Miami (12/14), made his first NFL start at defensive back and notched two tackles.
- Against Buffalo (12/28), posted four tackles and one special teams stop.
- Against Seattle (2/1), sealed the Patriots' 28-24 Super Bowl XLIX win by intercepting Russell Wilson's pass intended for Ricardo Lockette in the end zone with 26 seconds left to play. He undercut a slant route, picked off the pass and returned it to the two-yard line. It was his first career NFL interception. Two plays before the interception, Butler swatted a deep pass intended for Jermaine Kearse, but Kearse was able to gather the tipped ball before Butler pushed him out of bounds at the five-yard line. Butler led the team with a game-high three passes defended in just 18 defensive snaps and posted three tackles.

SAFETY • 5'11" • 212 LBS • COLLEGE: MIDDLE TENNESSEE STATE
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2016 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 5/5
HOMETOWN: LITHONIA, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 67/58 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

Captain: 2019, 2020

Pro Bowl: 2017

PRO: The Titans selected Kevin Byard with the first pick of the third round in the 2016 NFL Draft, and he is now considered one of the top safeties in the NFL. Following his second season, during which he tied for the NFL lead in interceptions (eight) and led the NFL in total takeaways (10), he was named first-team Associated Press All-Pro and earned his first Pro Bowl berth. From 2017 through 2019, no player had more interceptions than Byard, who totaled 17. The 5-foot-11-inch, 212-pound defender was named a team captain for the defense for the first time in 2019. A product of Middle Tennessee State University, Byard has a reputation as a sideline-to-sideline, ball-hawking safety who plays with tremendous intelligence and effort.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- From 2017 through 2019, Byard led the NFL with 17 interceptions.
- In 2019, Byard led the team in interceptions (five) for the third consecutive season, while starting every contest for the third consecutive season.
- In 2018, Byard led the team with four interceptions and ranked third on the team with 96 tackles and 10 passes defended.
- In 2017, Byard was named to the Pro Bowl and earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors after tying Detroit's Darius Slay for the NFL lead with eight interceptions. He added a pair of fumble recoveries to pace the league with 10 total takeaways.
- His eight interceptions in 2017 tied for seventh in franchise history and made up the highest total by any franchise player since Oilers cornerback Richard Johnson picked off eight passes in 1990.
- In 2016, Byard saw action in all 16 games with seven starts and compiled 63 tackles, a sack, five tackles for loss, three quarterback pressures, four passes defended and 10 special teams tackles. His seven starts were the most by a Titans rookie safety since Michael Griffin (10) in 2007.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In July 2020, Byard was named the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville. His first order of business was to participate in the organization's virtual Stuff the Bus school supply drive.
- Byard credits his mother, Artina Stanley, for much of his success. Following a divorce when Byard was in ninth grade, his mother moved with the children from Philadelphia to Atlanta. Although it was a financial struggle, Stanley worked long hours to make sure her children received what they needed. Byard claims he and his older brother "had to grow up really fast" as they helped their mother with taking care of the younger kids in the family. In May 2020, Byard was able to accomplish a goal of helping to purchase his mother her "forever home."
- During the 2019 offseason, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. He plans to hold the camp—which is free—every year.
- The Titans had an inside track in their scouting of Byard. Titans general manager Jon Robinson received glowing reports on Byard from his friend and MTSU recruiting coordinator Steve Ellis. When Robinson was a linebackers coach at Nicholls State, Ellis was one of his pupils, and the two remained close through the years. Additionally, Patrick Callaway, college scout for the Titans, was Byard's high school teammate.
- Byard says his football role models are Ed Reed, Brian Dawkins and Troy Polamalu.
- Byard has aspirations to travel the world, and his bucket list includes setting foot on every continent.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Lithonia, Ga., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (64th overall) of the 2016 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

99 JADEVEON CLOWNEY

OUTSIDE LINEBACKER • 6'5" • 255 LBS • COLLEGE: SOUTH CAROLINA
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/1
HOMETOWN: ROCK HILL, S.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 78/69 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

Pro Bowl: 2016, 2017, 2018

PRO: The Titans improved the versatility and explosiveness of their front seven with the addition of free agent Jadeveon Clowney prior to the start of the 2020 regular season. In his first six NFL seasons, Clowney played in 75 games and tallied 236 tackles, 32 sacks, 71 tackles for loss, 14 passes defended, nine forced fumbles and seven fumble recoveries. The 6-foot-5-inch, 255-pounder was named to the Pro Bowl each season from 2016 through 2018, and he added second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors in 2016. The South Carolina product played his first five NFL seasons with the Houston Texans after he was the first overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft. He was traded to the Seattle Seahawks in 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Over a four-season span from 2016 through 2019, Clowney was one of only three NFL players with at least 60 tackles for loss, eight forced fumbles and 150 quarterback pressures, per Sportradar. The others on the list were Aaron Donald and Chandler Jones. Clowney ranked fourth in the NFL over those four seasons with 60 tackles for loss.
- In 2019, Clowney's lone season with the Seattle Seahawks, he registered 31 tackles, three sacks, seven tackles for loss, a career-best four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries in 13 games.
- In 2017, the last time current Titans head coach Mike Vrabel was Clowney's defensive coordinator in Houston, he started all 16 games for the Texans and recorded 9.5 sacks, 21 quarterback hits, 21 tackles for loss, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. He joined Jones as the only NFL players to register 20 or more tackles for loss and 20 or more quarterback hits.
- Clowney has scored four total touchdowns in his NFL career—three on fumble recoveries and one on an interception return.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Clowney and Titans teammate Johnathan Joseph both grew up in Rock Hill, S.C., and played collegiately at South Carolina. Joseph has provided a big brother presence and been a strong mentor for Clowney during his NFL career.
- Clowney attended South Pointe High School in Rock Hill, S.C., where he was named South Carolina's 2010 Mr. Football and lettered for the school's basketball team.
- Clowney was on his high school's track & field team, where he competed as a sprinter, shot putter and discus thrower. He took ninth in the 100 meters at the 2011 York County Championships, with a career-best time of 11.43 seconds. He also ran the fourth leg on the 4x100 meter relay squad, helping them earn a third-place finish at 42.86 seconds.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Rock Hill, S.C., native was originally selected by the Houston Texans with the first overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft.
- Designated by the Houston Texans as the franchise player on March 4, 2019 and signed the franchise tender on Aug. 31, 2019.
- Traded by the Texans to the Seattle Seahawks on Sept. 1, 2019 in exchange for Barkevious Mingo, Jacob Martin and a 2020 third-round pick.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Sept. 8, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3 - Tennessee): Ranks second on the squad with six quarterback pressures. Has tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures twice in 2020 (vs. JAX, at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), started at outside linebacker in his Titans debut and collected three tackles, including a stop for loss and a quarterback pressure. Stuffed Phillip Lindsay for no gain on a rush off left guard in the first quarter.

- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at outside linebacker and posted two tackles and tied for the team lead with three quarterback pressures.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at outside linebacker and registered two tackles, including a stop for loss, two quarterback pressures and a pass defended. Dropped Alexander Mattison for a two-yard loss on a rush up the middle on the final play of the second quarter. Deflected a pass intended for Dalvin Cook late in the fourth quarter.

2019 (13/11, 2/2 - Seattle): Played in 13 games with 11 starts in his first season with the Seahawks. Collected 31 tackles, including three sacks, seven tackles for loss, an interception returned for a touchdown, a career-best four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries, including one returned for a score. Was inactive for three contests.

- At Arizona (9/29), corralled his first-career interception and returned it 27 yards for a touchdown. It was his third-career touchdown having returned two fumbles for scores.
- At Atlanta (10/27), notched three tackles, including a sack, four quarterback hits and a forced fumble.
- At San Francisco (11/11), earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week after notching a career-best five quarterback hits to go along with five solo tackles, a sack, a forced fumble and a 10-yard scoop and score following a Jarran Reed sack.
- At Green Bay (1/12), tied for team lead with seven tackles and split a sack.

2018 (15/14, 1/1 - Houston): Selected to his third-consecutive Pro Bowl. Played in 15 games with 14 starts and tallied 47 total tackles, nine sacks, 21 quarterback hits, 16 tackles for loss, one pass defended, one forced fumble and a career-high three fumble recoveries, including one returned for a touchdown. Was inactive for one contest.

- At Indianapolis (9/30), earned AFC Defensive Player of the Week honors for his performance. Recorded four solo tackles, four tackles for loss, two sacks and recovered an Andrew Luck fumble in the end zone for his second-career touchdown. Became the first player to record two sacks, four tackles for loss and one fumble recovery returned for a touchdown in multiple games since tackles for loss became an official NFL statistic.
- Against Dallas (10/7), registered three total tackles, a half sack, one tackle for loss and two quarterback hits. Split a five-yard sack of Dak Prescott with Benardrick McKinney to force fourth down late in the third quarter.
- At Jacksonville (10/21), recorded seven total tackles, two sacks, four quarterback hits and one fumble recovery. Joined Von Miller as the only players in the NFL to record at least seven total tackles, two sacks, four quarterback hits and one fumble recovery in a game this season.
- At Denver (11/4), recorded a solo tackle, a sack, two quarterback hits and a tackle for loss. Sacked Case Keenum for a loss of 10 yards on third-and-five in the fourth quarter.
- At Washington (11/18), tallied five total tackles, a sack, two tackles for loss and a quarterback hit.
- Against Tennessee (11/26), recorded three total tackles, a half sack and a quarterback hit.
- At N.Y. Jets (12/15), tallied three total tackles, a sack, two tackles for loss and two quarterback hits.
- At Philadelphia (12/23), posted eight total tackles, a sack, a tackle for loss, three quarterback hits, one pass defended, a forced fumble and one fumble recovery. Joined Khalil Mack, Bobby Wagner and Chandler Jones as the only players to record a sack, a forced fumble, a fumble recovery and a pass defended in a game in 2018.

2017 (16/16 - Houston): Named to the Pro Bowl for a second consecutive season. Set single-season career highs in sacks (9.5), tackles for loss (21), quarterback hits (21), forced fumbles (two), fumble recoveries (two), total tackles (59), sack yards (67), games played (16) and games started (16). Led the Texans in sacks, tackles for loss, quarterback hits and fumble recoveries, while finishing fifth on the team in total tackles and tied for first in fumbles forced. Recorded 21 tackles for loss and 20 quarterback hits. Was the only player in the AFC and one of two players in the NFL with 20-or-more tackles for loss and 20-or-more quarterback hits in 2017, joining Chandler Jones. His 45 quarterback hits and 48 tackles for loss rank third in team history.

- Against Jacksonville (9/10), started in the season opener and picked up his 100th career tackle.
- At Cincinnati (9/14), started his second-consecutive game and notched four total tackles, one tackle for loss, one pass defended and returned his first career fumble recovery 49 yards.
- At New England (9/24), tied career highs with two sacks and four tackles for loss, notched six solo tackles, had three quarterback hits and recovered his second career fumble and raced it back 22 yards for his first career touchdown.
- Against Tennessee (10/1), notched his third sack in two games and forced the third fumble of his career.
- At Seattle (10/29), made four solo stops and recorded a strip-sack of Russell Wilson.
- Against Indianapolis (11/5), started his eighth-straight game and tallied four tackles and a sack.
- At L.A. Rams (11/12), produced three solo tackles, one quarterback hit, a sack and three tackles for loss.
- Against Arizona (11/19), extended his sack-streak to a career-high four games with two sacks and added five total tackles, three quarterback hits and three tackles for loss.
- At Baltimore (11/27), finished with two solo tackles, a sack, two tackles for loss and two quarterback hits, extending his sack-streak to a career-high five games.
- Against San Francisco (12/10), tied a season best with six total tackles, recorded a single-game career-high four quarterback hits and notched two tackles for loss.
- At Indianapolis (12/31), started his 16th game of the season and posted a season-best seven total tackles and a half sack.

2016 (14/14, 2/2 - Houston): Named to his first Pro Bowl and recognized as an Associated Press second-team All-Pro. Also earned PFWA All-NFL and PFWA All-AFC honors. One of two players in the NFL with at least 50 total tackles, six sacks, 16 tackles for loss and two passes defended (Cameron Jordan). Finished tied for sixth in the NFL with 16 tackles for loss.

- Against Chicago (9/11), made his first career start at defensive end and totaled four tackles, including a sack, three quarterback hits and two tackles for loss.
- Against Tennessee (10/2), finished with two solo tackles, including a sack and two quarterback hits on Marcus Mariota.
- Against Detroit (10/30), sacked Matthew Stafford for a nine-yard loss in the second quarter and recorded his ninth tackle for loss of the year.
- At Oakland (11/21), finished second on the team with five tackles, including two for loss.
- At Indianapolis (12/11), finished with three total tackles, a strip-sack of Andrew Luck and a season-high three quarterback hits.
- Against Jacksonville (12/18), notched his fifth sack of the year when he brought down Blake Bortles for an eight-yard loss and finished with five total tackles and three tackles for loss.
- Against Cincinnati (12/24), recorded a sack in three straight games for the first time in his career when he brought down Andy Dalton.
- Against Oakland (1/7), played in his first career postseason game and became the second defensive lineman in Texans history (DE J.J. Watt) with a postseason interception. Finished with one tackle and two passes defended.

53 WILL COMPTON

LINEBACKER • 6'1" • 235 LBS • COLLEGE: NEBRASKA

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/2

HOMETOWN: BONNE TERRE, MO.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 81/39 (PLAYOFFS: 1/1)

PRO: The Titans brought back free agent Will Compton during 2020 training camp to add depth and competition to the linebacker unit. The 6-foot-1-inch, 235-pounder is a hard-nosed defender that has a reputation as an aggressive, sure-tackling inside linebacker. He spent part of 2019 campaign with the Oakland Raiders after playing in 12 games with the Titans in 2018. Prior to his initial arrival in Tennessee, the University of Nebraska product spent his first five seasons as a member of the Washington Football Team after entering the NFL as a rookie free agent in 2013. Compton provides veteran leadership having served as a team captain for Washington in 2016.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Compton led the Titans with 11 special teams tackles.
- In 2016, Compton registered 104 tackles, five passes defended, two fumble recoveries, one forced fumble and an interception.
- In 2015, Compton posted a career-best 122 tackles, a sack, an interception, six passes defended and a fumble recovery.
- In 2014, Compton ranked second on Washington with 18 special teams stops.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Prior to his first training camp as a rookie free agent, Compton typed out five personal goals in his iPad that he wanted to accomplish over the next five years. Although he truly never imagined being able to achieve each of the goals, he checked off all the boxes. They included playing a vital role on Washington, earning a starting spot, being named a captain, reaching a specific financial goal by age 27 and doing at least three speaking engagements a year despite no prior experience.
- Compton is the co-founder of the popular podcast Bussin' With The Boys with teammate Taylor Lewan. The two friends host guests on an old Monte Carlo Budweiser bus and discuss any and everything.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Bonne Terre, Mo., native was originally signed by the Washington Football Team as a rookie free agent on May 2, 2013.
- Waived by Washington on Aug. 31, 2013 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by Washington to their active roster from the practice squad on Dec. 24, 2013.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on April 6, 2018.
- Signed by the New Orleans Saints as a free agent on Aug. 21, 2019.
- Waived injured by the Saints on Aug. 30, 2019.
- Signed by the Oakland Raiders as a free agent on Oct. 30, 2019.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Aug. 27, 2020.

94 JACK CRAWFORD

DEFENSIVE LINE • 6'5" • 274 LBS • COLLEGE: PENN STATE
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (ATLANTA) - 2020
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/1 • HOMETOWN: LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 96/28 (PLAYOFFS: 1/0)

PRO: The Titans signed unrestricted free agent Jack Crawford in the 2020 offseason to strengthen the team's depth and experience on the defensive front. The 6-foot-5-inch, 274-pounder saw action in 93 games with 26 starts while totaling 132 tackles, 16 sacks and 30 quarterback hits during his first eight seasons with the Oakland Raiders (2012-13), Dallas Cowboys (2014-16) and the Atlanta Falcons (2017-19). A physically imposing player, Crawford was born in London, England and did not play football until his junior year of high school when he moved to the United States. His versatility will allow him to be a key component on the defensive line with the Titans, as he has experience playing both inside and at the end positions.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Crawford played in all 16 games with a career-best 11 starts for the Falcons and recorded career-bests with 35 tackles and six sacks.
- In 2016, Crawford saw action in all 16 games for the Cowboys and posted 27 tackles, 3.5 sacks, and 12 quarterback pressures.
- In 2015, Crawford played in all 16 games for the first time in his career and registered 18 tackles, four sacks which ranked fourth on the team, 10 quarterback pressures and three tackles for loss.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Crawford was born in London, England and moved to the United States in 2005. That year as a junior in high school marked his first year playing football. He initially moved to the United States to pursue a career playing basketball.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The London, United Kingdom, native was selected by the Oakland Raiders in the fifth round (158th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Released by the Raiders on Aug. 30, 2014.
- Signed by the Dallas Cowboys as a free agent on Sept. 2, 2014.
- Signed by the Atlanta Falcons as an unrestricted free agent on March 9, 2017.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on April 8, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

84 COREY DAVIS

WIDE RECEIVER • 6'3" • 209 LBS • COLLEGE: WESTERN MICHIGAN
ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4
HOMETOWN: WHEATON, ILL.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 45/39 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

PRO: The Titans selected Corey Davis with the fifth-overall pick in the 2017 NFL Draft, which was obtained in a 2016 trade with the Los Angeles Rams. During his first three seasons (2017-19), Davis led the Titans in total receptions (142), receiving yards (1,867) and receiving first downs (97), and his six touchdown catches tied for third place on the club. The 6-foot-3-inch, 209-pound wide receiver brings a complete skill set to his position, excelling in route running, making plays after the catch, and blocking. His 5,285 receiving yards at Western Michigan set an all-time FBS record, and he became the second player in FBS history to record 52 career receiving touchdowns. Davis became the highest drafted player from Western Michigan and the first first-rounder from the school since Jason Babin in 2004. The fifth pick was the highest selection ever used by the Titans/Oilers on a wide receiver by 11 slots, topping the 1998 choice of Kevin Dyson with the 16th pick.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Davis' 2019 statistics included 43 receptions for 601 yards and a pair of touchdowns in 15 games. He added 68 yards and a touchdown on six receptions during the playoffs.
- In 2018, Davis led the Titans with 65 receptions, 891 receiving yards and four touchdowns. His yardage total ranked ninth among all AFC wide receivers.
- In a playoff game at New England on Jan. 13, 2018, Davis caught two touchdown passes to tie the franchise single-game postseason record (five previous times). He became the first player to accomplish the feat in the postseason since wide receiver Haywood Jeffires did so at Buffalo on Jan. 3, 1993. Davis was the first NFL rookie with two touchdown receptions in a playoff game since Panthers receiver Kelvin Benjamin on Jan. 10, 2015.
- In Week 1 of the 2017 season, Davis caught six passes for 69 yards. This reception total ranks second among all rookies in Week 1 games in the "Titans era" (1999–present).
- During his time at Western Michigan, Davis set an FBS all-time record with 5,285 career receiving yards.
- Davis set Western Michigan records for single-season touchdown receptions (19), single-game receiving yards (272), touchdown receptions in a bowl game (three), career receptions (332), career touchdown receptions (52) and career receiving yards (5,285).

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Davis and his six siblings survived a tough economic upbringing in Wheaton, Ill. While he has always maintained a loving relationship with his parents, Olasheni Timson and Michelle Davis, he made the decision as a high school junior to move into the home of Robin and Dan Graham, who became his legal guardians. Dan, Corey Davis' youth football coach, was an offensive lineman for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. His son, Ryan Graham, played youth and high school football with Davis and currently plays quarterback at Northern Illinois.
- Davis' brother, Titus, played football at Central Michigan and was signed by the Chargers as a rookie free agent in 2015. Titus also spent time with the Jets, Bills and Bears.
- One of Davis' favorite quotes is "Never die easy" by Walter Payton, who used the saying as the title to his autobiography.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Wheaton, Ill., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (fifth overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

- At New England (1/13), started at wide receiver and grabbed five passes for 63 yards with his first two career touchdowns. Gave the Titans a 7-0 lead with an acrobatic, one-handed 15-yard touchdown catch with 1:14 left to play in the opening quarter. Kept the Titans' final touchdown drive alive with a 17-yard catch on fourth-and-11. Got open in the corner of the end zone and hauled in an 11-yard touchdown reception with 1:55 left to play in the fourth quarter.

COLLEGE:

- In four seasons at Western Michigan (2013-16), Davis played and started 50 games. He registered 332 career receptions for 5,285 yards and 52 touchdowns, setting the Mid-American Conference record in each category and becoming the only player in FBS history with 300 catches, 5,000 yards and 50 touchdowns. His 5,285 career receiving yards were the most in FBS history, and he ended his career ranked second all-time in FBS history with 52 career receiving touchdowns (60 by Jarett Dillard). Davis' 332 career receptions ranked fourth all-time in FBS annals.

- As a senior (2016), played and started 13 games and set career highs with 97 receptions, 1,500 receiving yards and 19 touchdowns. He helped his team win the MAC and go undefeated until a Cotton Bowl loss. He had five games of 100-plus yards and six games of two or more receiving touchdowns. His receiving yardage total ranked seventh in FBS, while his reception total was eighth. Named a Biletnikoff Award semifinalist and earned All-American honors from Associated Press (first-team), FWAA (first-team), Phil Steele (first-team), USA Today, Sporting News and Sports Illustrated. Named Mid-American Conference Offensive Player of the Year. At Ball State (11/1), posted 12 catches for a WMU-record 272 yards with three touchdowns and was named MAC Player of the Week.

- As a junior (2015), played and started 13 games and caught 90 passes for 1,436 yards and 12 touchdowns. Finished fifth in the nation and second in the MAC in receiving yards, and his 6.9 receptions per game ranked third in the league and 11th nationally. He ended the season with seven consecutive 100-yard games and nine total for the year and was named first-team All-MAC.

- As a sophomore (2014), finished with 78 receptions for 1,408 yards and 15 touchdowns in 12 games (all starts). Ranked seventh in the nation and first in the MAC in receiving yards. Named first-team All-MAC and Phil Steele first-team All-MAC. Went over 100 yards receiving in eight games.

- As a freshman (2013), played and started 11 games and set WMU freshman records for receiving yards (941), receptions (67) and 100-yard games (five). Named MAC Freshman of the Year, earned Freshman All-America honors from FWAA and College Football News, and was a second-team All-MAC selection.

- Majored in sports management at Western Michigan.

PERSONAL:

- Attended Wheaton-Warrenville (Ill.) High School, where he totaled 45 receptions and six receiving touchdowns as a senior. He added three touchdowns on returns and was named all-conference and all-area.

64 NATE DAVIS

OFFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'3" • 316 LBS • COLLEGE: CHARLOTTE
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: ASHBURN, VA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 16/15 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans selected Nate Davis in the third round (82nd overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-3-inch, 316-pounder brings quick feet and physicality to the trenches of the offensive line. The Ashburn, Va., native appeared in 13 games with 12 starts at right guard as a rookie, and also started all three postseason contests in 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a rookie in 2019, Davis appeared in 13 games with 12 starts at right guard, assuming starting duties in Week 5. Davis also started all three playoff games.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Growing up, Davis was 'always a pretty big kid.' He played on the offensive or defensive line during Pop Warner, and estimates that in the fourth grade he weighed around 200 pounds.
- Davis was invited to the 2019 Senior Bowl, which he credits for helping him during the draft process. He went head-to-head with defensive linemen from larger conferences, and as an athlete from a smaller conference, he credits his performance at the Senior Bowl for helping put his name into the conversation ahead of the draft.
- Davis' father purchased him a fishing rod as a child and would take him to the pond near their home in Ashburn, Va., to fish and relax.
- Davis is a car enthusiast who has a knack for identifying the year, make and model of a car. He lists his dream car as a Rolls-Royce.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Ashburn, Va., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (82nd overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3 - Tennessee):

- At Denver (9/14), started at right guard and was a part of an offensive front that allowed the Titans to amass 377 total yards. Member of a line that allowed just one sack on 43 pass attempts.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at right guard and helped the offense post 354 total yards.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at right guard and was a member of an offensive front that allowed the Titans to collect 134 yards on the ground.

2019 (13/12, 3/3): Played in 13 games with 12 starts at right guard and helped Derrick Henry lead the NFL with 1,540 rushing yards. Was inactive for the first three regular season contests. Started all three postseason contests at right guard. Appeared in his first career NFL contest at Atlanta (9/29/19). Made his first career NFL start against Buffalo (10/6/19).

- At Atlanta (9/29), made his NFL debut as a reserve at right guard. Was a part of an offensive front that did not allow a sack on 27 pass attempts, while opening holes for Titans' ball carriers to gain 138 yards on the ground.
- Against Buffalo (10/6), started his first career NFL contest at right guard.
- Against Kansas City (11/10), started at right guard and helped open holes for Titans' rushers to gain 225 yards on the ground.
- Against Jacksonville (11/24), started at right guard and blocked for Titans' ball carriers to gain 219 rushing yards.
- At Indianapolis (12/1), started at right guard and helped open holes for Derrick Henry to collect 149 rushing yards on 26 carries.
- At Oakland (12/8), started at right guard and was a part of an offensive front that blocked for Titans' ball carriers to gain 161 yards on the ground, while also not allowing a sack on 27 pass attempts.
- Against Houston (12/15), started at right guard and was a member of an offensive line that opened holes for Titans' rushers to gain 163 yards on the ground.

- Against New Orleans (12/22), started at right guard and helped the Titans amass 149 rushing yards on 26 carries.
- At Houston (12/29), started at right guard and was a part of an offensive front that blocked for Derrick Henry to amass 211 yards on the ground and become the NFL's leading rusher in 2019.
- At New England (1/4), started at right guard in his first career postseason game and was a member of an offensive front that opened holes for Derrick Henry to collect 182 yards on the ground.
- At Baltimore (1/11), started at right guard and was a part of an offensive line that blocked for Derrick Henry to collect a franchise postseason record 195 rushing yards.

COLLEGE:

- In four seasons at Charlotte (2015-18), Davis appeared in 41 career games with 37 starts. A four-year starter on the offensive line, Davis started at guard from 2015-17 before switching to right tackle for his senior season in 2018.
- As a senior (2018), appeared in eight games with seven starts at tackle. Blocked for the league's fifth-best rushing attack which averaged 159.9 yards per game. Helped create lanes for running back Benny LeMay to record a 1,000-yard season. Earned First Team All-C-USA recognition by Phil Steele and Second Team All-C-USA recognition by the league's coaches. Named Charlotte's Best Offensive Player for 2018 by SB Nation.
- As a junior (2017), started all 12 games at right guard. Helped the 49ers rushing offense rank eighth in C-USA, averaging 166.2 yards per game. Was part of an offensive line that ranked fifth in sacks allowed with 22. Earned Honorable Mention All-C-USA honors.
- As a sophomore (2016), saw action in nine games with eight starts at right guard and helped the 49ers run game rank sixth in C-USA averaging 176.2 yards per game. Earned Honorable Mention All-C-USA honors.
- As a freshman (2015), appeared in all 12 games with 10 starts at right guard.
- Redshirted in 2014.
- Majored in Africana studies and minored in American studies at Charlotte.

PERSONAL:

- Attended Stone Bridge (Va.) High School and was a first-team all-state and 5A North All-Region First Team lineman. Davis was a four-year letterman in high school.
- Helped lead the Bulldogs to a Liberty District Championship as a senior in 2014.
- In 2013, he was named team MVP, captain, and first-team All-Liberty conference en route to helping the Bulldogs win the Virginia AAA Div. 5 Championship.
- Has one older sister, Kimberley.
- Son of Ken and Natalie Davis.
- Follow Davis on Twitter at @Nate_Davis73.
- Follow Davis on Instagram at @Nate.Davis64.
- List of favorites: (TV show) "Black-ish"; (movie) "The Dark Knight"; (musician) Drake; (food) chicken wings; and (dessert) ice cream.

32 DARRYNTON EVANS

RUNNING BACK • 5'10" • 203 LBS • COLLEGE: APPALACHIAN STATE
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): ROOKIE HOMETOWN: OAK HILL, FLA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 1/0 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Darrynton Evans in the third round (93rd overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-10-inch, 203-pounder brings a complete skill set to the running back corps, excelling in rushing between the tackles, blocking, and the ability to catch the ball out of the backfield. The Appalachian State product has also shown big-play ability having posted 11 rushes of at least 50 yards in his final two seasons for the Mountaineers. As a junior in 2019, Evans scored 24 total touchdowns which ranked third nationally.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Evans was named the 2019 Sun Belt Offensive Player of the Year after posting 1,480 rushing yards and scoring 24 total touchdowns.
- In 2019, Evans joined Stanford's Christian McCaffrey (2015) and East Carolina's Chris Johnson (2007) as the only FBS players this millennium with at least 1,400 rushing yards, five touchdown receptions and a kickoff return for a score in the same season.
- In 2018, Evans was selected first-team All-Sun Belt after compiling a league-leading 1,187 rushing yards and nine total touchdowns. His 6.6-yards per carry was the third-best season average in Appalachian State history for a player with at least 150 attempts.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In 2019, Evans' mother, Evelyn, a retired probation officer for the Department of Corrections, was diagnosed with endometrial cancer. Luckily, doctors caught it early, but she couldn't come to his games for half of the season because of treatment and needing to be close to home. But once she was cleared to attend, she didn't miss another game. At the NFL Scouting Combine in February, Evans raised money and brought awareness to ECANA (Endometrial Cancer Action Network for African-Americans) by getting pledges for every inch of his vertical leap. He raised more than $3,200 with a vertical of 37 inches.
- Evans grew up with and went to high school with San Francisco 49ers running back Raheem Mostert, Tampa Bay Buccaneers safety D'Cota Dixon and Washington linebacker Cole Holcomb. Mostert, who led the NFC champion 49ers in rushing in 2019, was among the first to reach out to Evans on social media during the draft, tweeting three simple words: "We built different!"
- Evans got a headstart on the Titans' playbook during his final season at Appalachian State. Every year, the Mountaineer coaches study one NFL offense and incorporate some of its principles into their own playbook. It just so happened that App State chose the Titans prior to the 2019 season.
- Evans earned a grade point average of 3.34 and was tabbed the Sun Belt's Top Scholar by Street & Smith magazine.
- Evans enjoys playing video games, particularly NBA2K, Call of Duty and Madden, solving rubix cubes and producing music in his spare time.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Oak Hill, Fla., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (93rd overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (1/0): Made his NFL debut at Minnesota (9/27/20).

- At Denver (9/14), was inactive.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), was inactive.
- At Minnesota (9/27), played as a reserve at running back in his first NFL contest and carried the ball three times for nine yards.

COLLEGE:

- In three on-field seasons at Appalachian State (2016, 2018-19), Evans appeared in 39 games and made 22 starts. He was a two-time All-Sun Belt first-team selection and was the Sun Belt's Offensive Player of the Year in 2019. Evans was a two-time Sun Belt Championship Game MVP and MVP of the 2019 New Orleans Bowl. He finished his career with 2,884 rushing yards (ninth all-time at Appalachian State) despite being the primary running back for just 23 career games. Set school records for most career rushes without a fumble (482) and single-season rushes without a fumble (255 in 2019). Had 4,642 all-purpose yards, including 1,439 yards on kickoff returns and 319 yards as a receiver, plus 14 passing yards on a forward-flipped jet sweep. Scored 34 total touchdowns with 25 rushing, six receiving and a program-record three as a kick returner. Totaled 11 runs of at least 50 yards in his final two seasons.

AS A JUNIOR (2019), named Sun Belt Offensive Player of the Year after producing 2,064 all-purpose yards, including 1,480 rushing on 255 carries, 198 receiving yards on 21 catches and 386 yards on 16 kickoff returns. Scored 24 total touchdowns (18 rushing, five receiving, one on a kickoff return) to rank third nationally, tie the Sun Belt's single-season record and post the second-highest single-season total in Appalachian State history. Made watch lists for Maxwell, Doak Walker Award and Paul Hornung awards.

- Against Charlotte (9/7), became the first player this millennium to post at least 200 rushing yards (239), score three rushing touchdowns and have a kickoff return for a touchdown (45 yards) in the same game.
- At North Carolina (9/21), rushed for three touchdowns and 78 yards in the 34-31 win.
- Against Louisiana-Monroe (10/19), rushed 17 times for 136 yards with a touchdown and added three catches for 41 yards with another score.
- Against Texas State (11/23), carried the ball 21 times for 154 yards and completed one pass for 14 yards
- Against Louisiana (12/7), named MVP of the Sun Belt Championship Game after posting three touchdowns (one rushing, two on receptions) to help App State build a 21-0 lead in the first quarter.
- Against Alabama-Birmingham (12/21), selected as MVP of the New Orleans Bowl. Rushed 19 times for 157 yards with a touchdown.

AS A REDSHIRT SOPHOMORE (2018), named first-team All-Sun Belt after registering a league-leading 1,187 rushing yards on 179 attempts, even though he didn't become the team's primary running back until Game 5, following a season-ending injury to starter Jalin Moore. His 6.6-yards per carry was the third-best season average in Appalachian State history for a player with at least 150 attempts. His nine touchdowns included seven rushing, one receiving and one via a kickoff return. Caught 12 passes for 87 yards. Returned 15 kickoffs for 490 yards with a score. As the primary back over the final nine games, rushed for 1,060 yards for an average of 117.8 yards per game. Led the Sun Belt at 91.3 rushing yards per game and second at 135.7 all-purpose yards per game. Rushed for more than 100 yards in seven of the last nine games.

- At Penn State (9/1), posted a 100-yard kickoff return in the first quarter of an overtime loss in the season opener. It marked the second consecutive game with a kickoff return touchdown going back to the Camellia Bowl to end his true freshman season in 2016. The two scores occurred over a span of three returns.
- Against Louisiana (10/20), had a then career-high 183 rushing yards with a touchdown and added 20-yard touchdown catch in the regular season win.
- At Coastal Carolina (11/3), tallied 159 rushing yards on 27 carries with a score.

- Against Georgia State (11/17), rushed the ball 15 times for 127 yards with a touchdown.
- Against Louisiana (12/1), totaled 218 all-purpose yards to become the Sun Belt Championship MVP. Posted 111 rushing yards on 17 carries. Also had a 97-yard kickoff return to set up a short touchdown run.

AS A SOPHOMORE (2017), redshirted because of an injury.

AS A FRESHMAN (2016), played in the final 12 games of the season, contributing as a kickoff returner and as a backup running back. Rushed for 217 yards on 48 carries and hauled in six passes for 34 yards. Returned 25 kickoffs for 563 yards with a touchdown. Finished with 814 all-purpose yards.

- At Akron (9/24), carried the ball three times for 22 yards and caught one pass for 23 yards. Returned six kickoffs for 154 yards.
- Against Toledo (12/17), returned a kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown in the Camellia Bowl win.
- Graduated with a degree in communication studies with a minor in sports science and coaching from Appalachian State.

PERSONAL:

- Attended New Smyrna Beach (Fla.) High School and was named honorable-mention 6A All-State and first-team All-Area as a team captain and two-time team MVP.
- Rushed for more than 1,600 yards and 25 touchdowns over his final two high school seasons despite missing six games due to injury.
- As a senior (2105), recorded 940 rushing yards and nine touchdowns in just seven games. Participated in Central Florida East-West All-Star game.

- As a junior (2014), had a breakout campaign, rushing for nearly 700 yards and 16 touchdowns before suffering a broken thumb that forced him to miss the final three games of the season.
- Was an honor roll student and member of the National Honor Society.
- Also participated in track (100, long jump, 200, 4x100), and played basketball.
- Son of Darry and Evelyn Evans and has two older sisters, Kristen and Dasmine, and an older brother, Darryl II.
- Follow Evans on Twitter and Instagram at @ItzLiveee
- Born Darrynton L.A. Evans on July 9, 1998 in Daytona Beach, Fla.

54 RASHAAN EVANS

LINEBACKER • 6'2" • 232 LBS • COLLEGE: ALABAMA
ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/3
HOMETOWN: AUBURN, ALA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 34/26 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans traded up to select Rashaan Evans with the 22nd overall pick in the first round of the 2018 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-2 inch, 232-pound defender was identified as a playmaker that could quickly bolster the linebacking corps and develop into a leader on defense. He appeared in all but one game in his first two campaigns, including starts at inside linebacker in every game of 2019. He led the Titans defense with 139 tackles and 11 tackles for loss in his second season. At Alabama, Evans tied for a team-leading 74 tackles as a senior while helping the Crimson Tide capture a 2018 College Football Playoff National Championship title.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Evans started every game during the regular season and playoffs. He led the team with 139 tackles and 11 tackles for loss.
- As a rookie in 2018, Evans played in 15 games with seven starts at inside linebacker and totaled 63 tackles, six quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and three passes defended.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Upon being drafted by Tennessee, Evans was reunited with former Crimson Tide teammate Derrick Henry. Henry phoned Evans immediately after he was selected with the 22nd pick to congratulate him.
- He has two pregame rituals. Evans prays before each game and pulls grass from the field early in pregame to get a feel for the turf.
- His nickname is 'Razor, because I cut up.'
- At Alabama, Evans shared the field with his brother, Alex, a member of the Crimson Tide spirit squad.
- Two of his football role models are DeMarcus Ware and Lawrence Taylor. He met Ware, who also is from Auburn, Ala., at the 2018 NFL Draft. He later had a chance to meet Taylor during a trip to Miami and calls each experience an "amazing moment."
- Growing up in rural Alabama, Evans would chase wild horses to work on improving his speed and athleticism.
- Evans' father, Alan, was a star running back at Auburn. Evans' mother, Chenavis, received four degrees from Auburn, including her doctorate. Evans' older sister was a cheerleader at Auburn, and despite the family ties including his cousins attending Auburn, Evans stuck with his gut and instead chose Alabama.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Auburn, Ala., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (22nd overall) of the 2018 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

- 2020 (3/3): Has tied for the team lead in tackles once in 2020 (at MIN).
- At Denver (9/14), started at linebacker and collected a tackle before being ejected late in the first quarter.
 - Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at linebacker and posted seven tackles.
 - At Minnesota (9/27), started at linebacker and tied for the team lead with seven tackles and a fumble recovery. Recovered a Dalvin Cook fumble that was forced by Johnathan Joseph and returned it 25 yards to the Vikings' 20-yard line setting up a Titans' field goal in the opening quarter.

2019 (16/16, 3/3): Started all 16 games at linebacker and led the team with a career-best 139 tackles and 11 stops for loss. Also posted 2.5 sacks, 11 quarterback pressures, a pass defended and a fumble recovery he returned for a touchdown. Started all three postseason contests and recorded 22 tackles, two quarterback pressures and three stops for loss. Led the team in tackles seven times (at ATL, vs. BUF, at DEN, vs. LAC, vs. TB, at CAR, at NE). Tied for the team lead in sacks twice (vs. KC, vs. JAX).

Stopped Deonte Harris for no gain on a short pass in the fourth quarter. Teamed with Matt Dickerson to stonewall Latavius Murray for a one-yard loss on a rush off left guard in the final quarter.
- At New England (1/4), started at linebacker in his first career postseason game and led the team with 12 tackles, including a team-high three tackles for loss. Stuffed Rex Burkhead for a one-yard loss on a rush off left guard in the first quarter. Combined with Jayon Brown to stonewall Sony Michel for no gain on a rush off right tackle in the opening quarter. Stopped Michel for a one-yard loss on a first-and-goal rush off left tackle during the Titans' goal-line stand in the second quarter. Shot through the line and stuffed Michel for a two-yard loss on a third-and-goal rush during the Titans' goal-line stand in the second quarter.
- At Baltimore (1/11), recorded nine tackles and two quarterback pressures. Stopped Mark Ingram II for no gain on a rush off right guard in the opening quarter.
- At Kansas City (1/19), started at linebacker but was in and out of the lineup because of injury. Registered a tackle on defense.

2018 (15/7): Played in 15 games with seven starts at linebacker as a rookie. Collected 63 tackles, six quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and three passes defended. Was inactive for one contest. Led the team in tackles twice (vs. BAL, vs. NYJ). Tied for the team lead in passes defended once (vs. PHI). Saw action in his first career NFL game against Houston (9/16/18). Made his first career start at Jacksonville (9/23/18).

- Against Houston (9/16), made his NFL debut on special teams.
- At Jacksonville (9/23), made his first career start at linebacker and posted a tackle.
- Against Philadelphia (9/30), saw significant action as a reserve at linebacker and notched four tackles, a quarterback pressure and a pass defended.
- Against Baltimore (10/14), started at linebacker and led the team with nine tackles, including a stop for loss. Combined with Brian Orakpo to stuff Alex Collins for a one-yard loss on a rush off right end in the first quarter. Stopped Gus Edwards for no gain on a rush off right tackle late in the fourth quarter.
- Against New England (11/11), played as a reserve at linebacker and notched two tackles, two quarterback pressures and a pass defended. Combined with Austin Johnson to stop Sony Michel for no gain on a rush up the middle in the second quarter.
- At Houston (11/26), started at linebacker and recorded seven tackles and a quarterback pressure. Halted a Texans' drive by stuffing Alfred Blue for no gain on a third-and-one rush early in the fourth quarter.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/2), played as a reserve at linebacker and led the team with eight tackles. Stuffed Isaiah Crowell for no gain on a rush off right guard in the second quarter. Ended a Jets' drive by stonewalling Crowell for no gain on a run up the middle on third-and-two in the second stanza. Stopped Elijah McGuire for no gain on a rush off right tackle in the fourth quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (12/6), saw action as a reserve at linebacker and amassed five tackles and a quarterback pressure. Shot through the line and stonewalled Leonard Fournette for no gain on a fourth-and-goal rush from the one-yard line in the second quarter. Combined with Adoree' Jackson to stuff Carlos Hyde for a two-yard loss on a short pass in the second quarter.
- At N.Y. Giants (12/16), started at linebacker and posted five tackles, including a stop for loss and a quarterback pressure in the Titans' first shutout win since 2000. Stuffed Saquon Barkley for no gain on a rush up the middle late in the first quarter. Stonewalled Barkley for a four-yard loss on a rush off left end to begin the second half.
- Against Washington (12/22), played as a reserve at linebacker and totaled six tackles. Halted a drive by combining with Jayon Brown to stuff Adrian Peterson for no gain on a third-and-one rush off left guard in the first quarter.
- Against Indianapolis (12/30), saw action as a reserve at linebacker and registered three tackles and a pass defended. Broke up a third-and-10 pass intended for T.Y. Hilton late in the second quarter.

26 KRISTIAN FULTON

CORNERBACK • 5'11" • 197 LBS • COLLEGE: LOUISIANA STATE
ACQUIRED: 2ND ROUND - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE: ROOKIE HOMETOWN: NEW ORLEANS, LA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 3/0 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Kristian Fulton with the 61st overall pick in the second round of the 2020 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-11 inch, 197-pound defender displays excellent speed when defending vertical routes and has the versatility to play both outside and in the slot. The New Orleans, La., native helped guide the Tigers to a CFP National Championship title as a senior in 2019. A two-year starter at Louisiana State, Fulton appeared in 28 games with 25 starts and finished his career with 65 tackles, 25 passes defended and two interceptions.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a senior in 2019, Fulton helped LSU secure a National Championship victory over Clemson with a career-high six tackles and one pass defended. He earned second-team All-SEC honors as a senior.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Fulton's older brother, Keith Fulton, played wide receiver at LSU. Kristian and Keith were teammates in 2018.
- Fulton wears jersey No. 26 to fuel his competitive fire. "It just reminds me every day that I had eight corners selected before me," Fulton told the Official Titans Podcast. Two plus six equals eight, "So, if you add it up, it's a reminder for me every day."
- His grandfather, Louis Fulton, passed away from coronavirus complications on April 6, 2020, just 18 days before Fulton was drafted.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The New Orleans, La., native was selected by the Titans in the second round (61st overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/0): Made his NFL debut at Denver (9/14/20). Collected his first career interception against Jacksonville (9/20/20). Has tied for the team lead in sacks once in 2020 (at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), played as a reserve at cornerback in his first NFL contest and collected four tackles.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), saw action as a reserve at cornerback and posted three tackles and his first career NFL interception. Registered his first career interception off a deflected Gardner Minshew II pass and raced 44 yards to the Jaguars' 30-yard line setting up the Titans second touchdown.
- At Minnesota (9/27), played as a reserve at cornerback and registered two tackles, a sack and a quarterback pressure. Posted his first career sack by dropping Kirk Cousins for a seven-yard loss in the final quarter.

COLLEGE:

- During a three-year career at Louisiana State, played in 28 games with 25 starts and totaled 65 tackles, two tackles for loss, 25 passes defended, two interceptions and one forced fumble.

AS A SENIOR (2019), started all 15 games and posted 38 tackles, one tackle for loss, 15 passes defended and one interception. Earned second-team All-SEC recognition by the Associated Press.

- Against Florida (10/12), recorded three tackles and one pass defended.
- At Mississippi State (10/19), tallied three tackles, two passes defended and one interception. Allowed one reception on five targets.
- At Alabama (11/9), amassed two tackles and one pass defended. Allowed one reception on two targets.
- Against Georgia (12/7), posted one tackle and one pass defended in the SEC Championship. Allowed one reception on five targets.

- Against Clemson (1/13/20), notched a career-high six tackles, one tackle for loss and one pass defended en route to winning a National Championship.

AS A JUNIOR (2018), started 10 games and tallied 25 tackles, one tackle for loss, 10 passes defended, one interception and one forced fumble.

3 STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

KICKER • 6'1" • 215 LBS • COLLEGE: MEMPHIS

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 15/1

HOMETOWN: MADISON, MISS.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 207/0 (PLAYOFFS: 28/0)

Super Bowl: 2014, 2016, 2018

Pro Bowl: 2008, 2013, 2014, 2015

PRO: The Titans signed veteran kicker Stephen Gostkowski following training camp in early September 2020. After entering the NFL as a fourth-round pick of the New England Patriots in 2006, the 6-foot-1-inch, 215-pounder spent the next 14 years with the club, earning four Pro Bowl selections and three Super Bowl championships. He became the franchise's all-time leading scorer with 1,775 points over 204 regular season games and also added 205 points in the postseason to rank second in NFL history in playoff scoring. At the end of the 2019 campaign, his 87.4 percent success rate on field goals made him the fifth-most accurate kicker in NFL history.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Finished his Patriots' career as the franchise's all-time leader with 1,775 career points and 374 field goals. Enters 2020 in 12th place on the NFL's all-time scoring list and 15th in field goals.
- During his time in New England (2006-19), Gostkowski hit 374 of 428 career field goal attempts, and his 87.4 percent accuracy rate is the highest in Patriots history and is fifth-best in NFL history.
- Gostkowski has been selected to the Pro Bowl four times (2008, 13-15), named Associated Press All-Pro first team in 2008 and 2015 and AP All-Pro second team in 2014.
- With 151 points in 2015, Gostkowski became one of three players to lead the league in scoring for at least five seasons, and with 156 points in 2017, became the first player in NFL history with five separate 150-point seasons.
- In 2013, Gostkowski finished with a career-high and NFL-leading 158 points, surpassing Gino Cappelletti's Patriots record of 155 set in 1964. The 158 points tied for fifth-most in NFL history among kickers. Also broke his own Patriots single-season record and led the NFL with 38 successful field goals, tied for sixth-most in NFL history.
- Gostkowski became the first player in NFL history to reach the 1,000-point plateau in under 120 games (119).
- Gostkowski converted 478 consecutive extra points in the regular season from 2006-16, an NFL record.
- Gostkowski is tied for second all-time with 39 postseason field goals and second on the NFL postseason points list with 205.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Coming out of high school, Gostkowski received an athletic scholarship to pitch for the University of Memphis baseball team. He made the football team as a walk-on and finished his college career as the team's all-time leading scorer with 369 points.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Madison, Miss., native was originally selected by the New England Patriots in the fourth round (118th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Patriots as an unrestricted free agent on April 10, 2019.
- Released by the Patriots on March 23, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Sept. 3, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/0 - Tennessee): Has connected on 12 career game-winning field goals (including playoffs), including three in 2020 (at DEN, vs. JAX, at MIN). Became the first player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger to kick a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of the season.

- At Denver (9/14), made his Titans debut and connected on one of four field goals (25) and one of two extra point chances. Posted four touchbacks on four kickoffs. Gave the Titans a 16-14 victory by nailing a 25-yard field goal with 17 seconds remaining in the game.

- Against Jacksonville (9/20), nailed both field goals (51, 49) and three of four extra points. Posted five touchbacks on six kickoffs. Increased the Titans lead to 24-10 with a 51-yard field goal as time expired in the first half. Made good on a 49-yard game-winning field goal with 1:36 remaining in the game. Became the first kicker since Adam Vinatieri with New England in 1999 to make a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first two games of a season.
- At Minnesota (9/27), connected on a career-best six-of-six field goals (39, 31, 30, 51, 54, 55) and his lone extra point chance tying his career-high with 19 points. In his 15-year career, he previously made five total field goals on two occasions, most recently against Kansas City on Oct. 14, 2018. Hit three field goals of at least 50 yards in distance for the first time in his career. Gave the Titans an early 3-0 lead with a 39-yard field goal in the first quarter. Extended the Titans' lead to 6-0 with a 31-yard field goal in the opening stanza. Nailed a 30-yard field goal which cut the Vikings advantage to 14-9 in the second quarter. Made a 51-yard field goal midway through the third quarter to cut the Vikings' lead to 17-12. Trimmed the Minnesota lead to 30-28 with a 54-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. Made his third game-winning field goal in as many games with a 55-yard connection with 1:44 left to play in the final stanza.

2019 (4/0, 0/0 - New England): Played in four regular season contests and converted seven of eight field goal attempts and 11 of 15 extra points before being placed on injured reserve on Oct. 2.

- Against Pittsburgh (9/8), contributed to the season-opening victory by making all four of his field goal attempts and all three extra points.
- At Miami (9/15), made a 28-yard field goal and four extra points in the win.
- Against N.Y. Jets (9/22), converted three of four extra point attempts and a 37-yard field goal in the win. Registered seven touchbacks on nine kickoffs.

2018 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 regular season games and converted 27 of 32 field goal attempts and 49 of 50 extra points, good for fifth in the NFL with 130 points. Appeared in all three playoff contests and successfully converted five of six field goals and all 10 extra point attempts. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Month for October after converting 11 of 12 field goal attempts, 15 of 15 extra points and booting 17 touchbacks over a four-game span during the month.

- Against Kansas City (10/14), connected on all five of his field goal attempts to tie a career-high, including a game-winning 28-yard attempt as time expired to give the Patriots the win. Also converted a 50-yard field goal with three minutes remaining to push the Patriots lead to seven before Kansas City tied the game on the next possession, leading to the game-winning kick by Gostkowski on the ensuing possession. Also made all four of his extra point attempts. His 19 points tied a single-game career high.
- At N.Y. Jets (11/25), converted field goal attempts of 34 and 32 yards and all three extra point attempts in the victory.
- At Kansas City (1/20), made his lone field goal attempt of 47 yards and made all four extra point attempts in the AFC Championship victory.
- Against the L.A. Rams (2/3), nailed field goals of 42 and 41 yards, with the latter effectively icing the game with under two minutes left to play by extending the New England lead to two scores in the Super Bowl LIII victory. Also converted his lone extra point attempt.

2017 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 regular season games and converted 37 of 40 field goal attempts and 45 of 47 extra points, finishing second in the NFL in scoring with 156 points. Appeared in all three postseason contests and converted three-of-five field goals and 11-of-12 extra points.

- Against Carolina (10/1), converted all four field goal attempts including a then-franchise record 58-yard field goal at the end of the first half that was the longest field goal ever made at Gillette Stadium. Also made both extra point attempts.
- Against L.A. Chargers (10/29), made four of six field goal attempts, including a 26-yarder with 1:08 left in the fourth quarter that gave the Patriots an eight-point lead in their victory. Also converted his lone extra point attempt.
- At Oakland (11/19), named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week following his performance in the Week 11 win in Mexico City, in which he set a new franchise record by converting a 62-yard field goal. Converted all three extra point attempts and all four field goal attempts. Also converted a 51-yard attempt, marking the third time in his career he successfully converted two 50-yard attempts in a single game. His 15 total points moved him into the top-20 all-time in total points.

2016 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 regular season games and converted 27 of 32 field goals and 46 of 49 extra points. Appeared in all three postseason contests, converting all seven field goal attempts and seven of nine extra point attempts. His 28 points helped move him into third place on the all-time postseason scoring list with 160 points. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors following his performances in a Week 1 victory at Arizona and Week 13 win vs. Los Angeles.

- At Arizona (9/11), converted all three field goal attempts, including a 47-yarder, a 53-yarder and the game-winning 32-yarder, and connected on both extra point attempts in the season-opener. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors for his Week 1 performance.
- At Buffalo (10/30), finished the game with two successful field goal attempts, including a 51-yard field goal in the win. Was perfect on extra point attempts, converting all five tries.
- At N.Y. Jets (11/27), made good on three of four field goal attempts in the win, including a 41-yarder in the fourth quarter to pull within one point of the Jets in a 22-17 comeback victory. Also was successful on his lone extra point try.
- Against Los Angeles (12/4), converted all four field goal attempts and both extra points. Earned his second AFC Special Teams Player of the Week award of the season for his performance.
- At Denver (12/18), accounted for 10 of the Patriots 16 points in the win after making good on three of three field goal attempts and succeeding on the game's lone extra point attempt.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/24), became the 30th NFL player to reach 300 career field goals with a 29-yard field goal in the first quarter of the win. Finished the day two of two on field goal attempts and made good on all five extra point attempts.
- Against Houston (1/14), moved past Jerry Rice into sole possession of fourth place in most postseason points in NFL history after making good on two field goal attempts and four extra points to put up 10 total points in the Divisional Round victory. Also tied Adam Vinatieri with 26 field goals made in Patriots postseason history.
- Against Pittsburgh (1/22), became the Patriots' all-time leader in postseason field goals after his 31-yard field goal in the first quarter of the AFC Championship Game. Finished the day three of three on field goal attempts and three of four on extra point attempts.
- Against Atlanta (2/5), successfully converted field goals of 41 and 33 yards in Super Bowl LI and kickoff duty limited Atlanta's field position throughout the game, especially in the fourth quarter. Moved into fourth all-time in postseason field goals with 31, becoming one of only four players in NFL history with 30 postseason field goals.

2015 (16/0, 2/0 - New England): Selected to his fourth career Pro Bowl. Earned Associated Press All Pro first-team honors, named to the Sporting News All-Pro team and to the Pro Football Writers Association All-NFL team. Played in all 16 regular season games and led the NFL in scoring (151 points) for the fourth consecutive season and fifth time in his career. Became the first player in NFL history with four seasons of 150 or more points and entered 2016 with an NFL record 463 consecutive extra points made. Moved past Adam Vinatieri (263) to become the Patriots all-time leader with 276 field goals and set a new team record by converting 31 consecutive field goals. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Month honors for September and AFC Special Teams Player of the Week following his performances in Week 7 and Week 10. Appeared in both playoff games, converting three of four extra point attempts and all four field goal attempts.

- Against Jacksonville (9/27), converted all six extra points and all three field goals in the win.

- At Dallas (10/11), converted three of three field goals and all three extra point attempts in the win, including a career-long 57-yarder that tied Adam Vinatieri's record for the longest field goal in team history.
- At N.Y. Giants (11/15), connected on two of two field goals and three of three extra points in the win. Gostkowski's second field goal was from 54 yards with one second remaining in the game. The kick marked the seventh game-winning field goal of his career.
- At Denver (11/29), converted three of three extra points and a 47-yard field goal in the snow during the final seconds of the fourth quarter to send the game into overtime.
- Against Philadelphia (12/6), made all four extra point attempts and executed a successful onside kick in the fourth quarter, marking the third successful onside kick of his career.

2014 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Named to his third career Pro Bowl and earned Associated Press All-Pro second-team honors after leading the league in points (156) and field goals made (35). Also set a team record with his 94.6 field goal percentage (35-of-37).

- Against Cincinnati (10/5), connected on a career high five of five field goals and tacked on four of four extra points for a career-high 19 points in the win.
- At Buffalo (10/12), converted three of four field goals, including a season-long 53-yarder, and tacked on four extra points in the win.
- Against Detroit (11/23), passed Gino Cappelletti for second on the Patriots all-time scoring list after converting two-of-two field goals and tacking on four-of-four extra points in the win.
- Against Miami (12/14), became the Patriots all-time leading scorer (1,165 points) after converting two-of-two field goals and five-of-five extra points in the win.
- Against Baltimore (1/10), converted five of five extra points in the AFC Divisional win, becoming just the seventh player in NFL history with at least 100 kicking points in the postseason.
- Against Indianapolis (1/18), made a 21-yard field goal and tacked on six of six extra points in the AFC Championship Game win, becoming just the 11th player to make at least 20 career postseason field goals.
- Against Seattle (2/1), converted four-of-four extra points in the Super Bowl XLIX win to tie Adam Vinatieri (117) for most postseason kicking points in Patriots history and move into fourth place on the NFL's all-time postseason kicking points list. Kicked touchbacks on all five kickoff attempts in the Super Bowl, becoming the first kicker in NFL history to prevent a kickoff return in a Super Bowl in NFL history.

2013 (16/0, 2/0 - New England): Earned Pro Bowl honors for the second time in his career. Played in all 16 regular season games and finished first in the NFL with 158 total points, a single-season career high and a Patriots team record, surpassing the 155 total points scored by Gino Cappelletti in 1964. Became one of six players in NFL history to lead the league in scoring in three separate seasons. Converted 38 of 41 field goals, setting the franchise record for most field goals in a season. His 92.7 conversion rate was second-highest in team history. The 38 field goals tied for fifth-most in a single season in NFL history. Reached the 1,000 point mark in his 119th career game, the only player in NFL history to reach that mark in fewer than 120 games. Set a then career-high with 21 consecutive field goals made in 2013, falling just two games shy of Adam Vinatieri's franchise record. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Month honors for October. Played in both playoff games and converted all six extra points and the lone field goal he attempted.

- At Buffalo (9/8), nailed a game-winning 35-yard field goal with five seconds left to give the Patriots a 23-21 season-opening win.
- Against New Orleans (10/13), connected on all three field goal attempts, including a then career-long 54-yarder in the third quarter.
- At N.Y. Jets (10/20), successfully converted three extra points and two field goal attempts, including a 44-yard try with 16 seconds left to tie the score and send the game into overtime.
- Against Denver (11/24), hit his third career regular season game-winning field goal in overtime to cap a Patriots 34-31 comeback win. Also set a new team record by scoring in his 102nd straight game.
- At Houston (12/1), connected on a game-winning field goal for the second straight game and fourth time in his regular-season career. Ended his then career-long streak of 21 straight conversions when he missed a 55-yard attempt in the second quarter. It was the second-longest streak in a single season in team history.
- Against Cleveland (12/8), made his 200th career field goal and reached 30 field goals in a season for the second time after setting the franchise record with 36 in 2008. Squibbed the first onside kick recovered by the Patriots since 1995, and first that led to a win since 1964, with 1:01 left that led to the game-winning touchdown. Gostkowski's 50-yard field goal in the fourth quarter was his 13th in 2013 of 40 or more yards to set a new team mark.

- At Baltimore (12/22), became the third player in team history to reach 1,000 points after two extra points in the first quarter, joining Adam Vinatieri (1,158) and Gino Cappelletti (1,130).
- Against Indianapolis (1/11), converted all six extra point attempts in the Divisional Playoff and was forced into punting duties for the first time in his career after Ryan Allen left in the second quarter with a shoulder injury and did not return. Finished with five punts for 209 yards (41.8 avg), including two 50-plus yard kicks.

2012 (16/0, 2/0 - New England): Finished the regular season with an NFL-best and then-career-high 153 points, connecting on all 66 extra point attempts and 29 of 35 field goals.

- Against Arizona (9/16), hit four-of-five field goal attempts. Became the first player in Patriots history to connect on two 50-yard field goals in the same game when he drilled a 51-yarder in the third quarter and tied his career long with a 53-yarder in the fourth quarter.
- Against N.Y. Jets (10/21), converted two key field goals in the overtime win. The first was a 43-yard field goal to tie the game as time expired in regulation; the second was a 48-yarder in overtime to give the Patriots a 29-26 lead and the eventual victory.

2011 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 games and finished the regular season 59 for 59 on extra points and 28 for 33 on field goal attempts, scoring 143 points, fourth most in team history. Added six special teams tackles. Appeared in all three playoff games, kicking 10 extra points and successfully converting five field goal attempts.

- At N.Y. Jets (11/13), connected on field goals from 36, 37 and a season-long 50 yards, accounting for a season-high 13 points in the 37-16 win. Made two special teams tackles.
- Against Miami (12/24), made a touchdown-saving special teams tackle during the third quarter of the Patriots 17-point come-from-behind win.
- Against Baltimore (1/22), made all three field goal attempts from 29, 35 and 24 yards and both extra points in a three-point AFC Championship win.

2010 (8/0, 0/0 - New England): Played in the first eight games of the season, converting 10 of 13 field goal attempts and all 26 of his attempted extra points. Placed on injured reserve with a thigh injury on Nov. 10, 2010.

- Against Baltimore (10/17), nailed a game-winning 35-yard field goal with 1:56 remaining in overtime, marking his first career game-winning overtime field goal in his first career opportunity. Also made a 24-yard field goal to tie the game at 20 with 1:51 remaining in regulation and a 26-yard field goal in the first quarter.

2009 (16/0, 1/0 - New England): Kicked in all 16 games and connected on 26 of 31 field goals and 47 of 47 extra points for 125 total points. Finished the season with 513 career points to move into fourth place on the franchise scoring list.

- Against Buffalo (9/14), recovered a key fumble in the fourth quarter of the season-opener, diving on a Leodis McKelvin fumble on a kickoff return that was forced by Pierre Woods, giving the Patriots possession at the 31-yard line to help set up the go-ahead touchdown in a come-from-behind 25-24 Patriots win.
- Against Atlanta (9/27), passed Stanley Morgan (408 points) to move into fifth place on the Patriots all-time scoring list during the victory. Tied his career-high with four field goals in the win over the Falcons.
- At Denver (10/11), set a then-career-long with a 53-yard field goal, besting a 52-yard field goal he had vs. Chicago (11/26/06).
- Against Tennessee (10/18), tied a team record with eight extra points.
- Against Miami (11/8), named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week after tying his then-career-high with four field goals (30, 38, 34 and 40) in the Patriots 27-17 victory.
- Against Carolina (12/13), went over 100 points on the season with two field goals and two extra points. His 47-yard field goal was the 100th field goal of his career.

2008 (16/0 - New England): Selected to the Pro Bowl for the first time in his career and named to the Associated Press All-Pro first team. Set a Patriots single-season record and led the NFL with 36 field goals. Led the NFL with 148 points, the most by a Patriots player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger and the second highest total in team history (Gino Cappelletti, 155 in 1964). Connected on 90 percent of his field goal tries (36 of 40), tying the third highest single-season field goal percentage in team history. Also selected as an All-Pro by ESPN.com, SI.com, The Sporting News and Pro Football Weekly. Named AFC Special Teams Player of the Month for the month of October, when he made nine of 10 field goal attempts.

- At N.Y. Jets (9/14), tied a then single-game career high with four field goals attempted.
- Against Arizona (12/21), set a then-single-game career high with 17 points (five extra point attempts and four field goals) in a snowstorm.

2007 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Finished with a then-career-high 137 points for the season while successfully making 21 of 24 field goal attempts. Set a then-NFL record for extra point attempts while going a perfect 74 for 74.

- At Dallas (10/14), tallied a season-high 12 points while going six of six on extra point attempts and two of two on field goal attempts.
- At Buffalo (11/18), set career-highs in extra points made and extra points attempted with eight in the Patriots' dominating 56-10 win.
- At N.Y. Giants (12/29), tied a season-high with 12 points in the season finale, kicking a season-high three field goals and knocking in three extra points to finish the season a perfect 74 for 74 in extra point attempts.
- Against Jacksonville (1/12), connected on all four extra point attempts while making one-of-two field goal tries in the Patriots win in the AFC Divisional Playoff.

2006 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Saw action in all 16 regular season contests and three postseason games and made good on 20 of 26 field goals and 43 of 44 extra point opportunities in his rookie season. Made 18 of his last 21 field goal attempts in the regular season. Finished fifth in the AFC with 12 touchbacks. Connected on all eight of his field goal attempts in the 2006 postseason.

- Against Buffalo (9/10), connected on his first career NFL field goal from 32 yards out in the Patriots 19-17 victory.
- Against Houston (12/17), made on all four field goal attempts and all of his extra point opportunities.
- Against N.Y. Jets (1/7), made good on all three field goal attempts and all four extra point opportunities in the Wild Card game.
- At San Diego (1/14), gave the Patriots a 3-0 lead with a 50-yard field goal in the first quarter of the Divisional Playoff game. Then connected on his first career game-winning field goal from 31 yards out to give the Patriots a 24-21 lead with 1:10 remaining in the fourth quarter.
- At Indianapolis (1/21) in the AFC Championship Game, gave the Patriots a 31-28 lead with a 28-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. Nailed a 43-yard field goal with 3:49 left to play in the game, giving the Patriots a 34-31 lead.

22 DERRICK HENRY

RUNNING BACK • 6'3" • 247 LBS • COLLEGE: ALABAMA
ACQUIRED: 2ND ROUND - 2016 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 5/5
HOMETOWN: YULEE, FLA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 65/34 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

Pro Bowl: 2019

Captain: 2020

PRO: The Titans selected Heisman Trophy winner Derrick Henry in the second round of the 2016 NFL Draft out of the University of Alabama. The 6-foot-3-inch, 247-pounder is a powerful, downhill runner who displays tremendous speed and balance. In 2019, Henry was the NFL's leading rusher with 1,540 yards and 16 rushing scores. He racked up 3,833 rushing yards and scored 38 rushing touchdowns during his first four NFL seasons, including back-to-back 1,000-yard seasons in 2018 and 2019. At Alabama, the Heisman Trophy winner set numerous school and SEC records while leading his team to a National Championship in 2015.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Henry was the NFL's leading rusher with a career-best 1,540 rushing yards on a career-high 303 carries for a career-high 16 rushing touchdowns.
- In 2019, Henry received numerous awards and recognition, including the NFL's FedEx Ground Player of the Year, second-team All-Pro by the Associated Press and his first career Pro Bowl selection.
- In 2019, led the AFC, ranked third in the NFL, and led the team with a career-high 18 total touchdowns.
- Ranked second in the AFC and fourth in the NFL with a career-high 1,746 yards from scrimmage in 2019.
- In 2019, Henry recorded eight 100-yard rushing performances including the postseason.
- In 2019, moved into fifth place on the franchise's all-time rushing touchdowns list after passing Lorenzo White (29) against Kansas City (11/10/19). In the same game, Henry also became the ninth player in franchise history to reach 3,000 career rushing yards.
- In Week 17 of the 2019 season, he was named AFC Offensive Player of the Week after his performance at Houston (12/29/19), where he rushed a season-high 32 times for a season-best 211 yards with three touchdowns to secure the NFL's rushing title.
- In 2019, became the sixth player in franchise history with at least 12 touchdowns in two or more consecutive seasons.
- In 2019, joined Napoleon Kaufman (1997-99) and Robert Smith (1997-2000) as the only players in NFL history to record a rushing touchdown of at least 70 yards in three consecutive seasons.
- Passed Steve McNair (3,439 career rushing yards) for sixth place on the team's all-time rushing list, and later passed Hoyle Granger (3,514) for fifth place on the team's all-time rushing list in 2019.
- In 2019, Henry started all three of the team's playoff games and finished the postseason with 83 carries for a league-best 446 yards and two touchdowns, all of which set career-highs. His 446 rushing yards in the postseason ranked second in franchise playoff history behind Eddie George's 449 rushing yards during the 1999 playoffs.
- In 2019, during Wild Card Weekend at New England (1/4/20), Henry set a then-franchise playoff record with 182 rushing yards on 34 carries and a touchdown, which marked the second-most yards on the road in an NFL playoff game since 1950. The following week during the Divisional Round at Baltimore (1/11/20), set a franchise playoff record with 195 rushing yards on 30 carries.
- In 2018, Henry was named to the PFWA All-AFC team after setting then single-season career highs in carries (215), rushing yards (1,059), rushing long (99t), and touchdowns (12).
- 2018 marked Henry's first career 1,000-yard season. He finished sixth in the NFL in rushing yards.
- In 2018, named AFC Offensive Player of the Week for Week 13 after collecting a franchise-best 238 rushing yards with a franchise-tying four rushing touchdowns against Jacksonville on Thursday Night Football (12/6). In the same game, he scored four rushing touchdowns to tie the franchise's single-game record (Earl Campbell, Lorenzo White).

- In Week 13 of the 2018 season, recorded the second 99-yard touchdown run in NFL history (Tony Dorsett). The run also set the mark for the longest touchdown run in franchise history and tied for the longest scrimmage play in NFL history. He also became the second player in NFL history with a rushing touchdown of at least 90 yards and a rushing touchdown of at least 50 yards in the same game (Chris Johnson).
- In 2018, named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December after registering 97 carries for 625 yards and eight touchdowns.
- In 2018, became the seventh NFL player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with at least four rushing touchdowns and at least 200 rushing yards in a game (Clinton Portis, Barry Sanders, Doug Martin, Jonas Gray, Mike Anderson and Corey Dillon). Henry became the first to accomplish the feat in fewer than 20 carries (17).
- In 2017, Henry led the Titans with 744 rushing yards on 176 carries, and he rushed for five touchdowns for the second consecutive season.
- In the team's Wild Card playoff victory at Kansas City on Jan. 6, 2018, Henry recorded a franchise postseason record of 191 scrimmage yards (156 rushing, 35 receiving), breaking a 57-year-old postseason record set on Jan. 1, 1961, when Billy Cannon had 178 scrimmage yards against the Los Angeles Chargers. Henry's 156 rushing yards ranked second in franchise postseason history (162 by Eddie George on Jan. 16, 2000).
- In 2016, Henry rushed for 490 yards and five touchdowns to become the third rookie for the franchise in the "Titans era" to score at least five touchdowns in a season, joining Vince Young (seven rushing touchdowns in 2006) and Chris Johnson (nine rushing and one receiving in 2008).
- Despite playing just three seasons and not seeing extensive action in his first campaign at Alabama, Henry finished his career as the school's all-time rushing leader with 3,591 yards.
- As a senior in 2015, Henry claimed the Heisman Trophy and led his team to the College Football Playoff National Championship. He also won the Doak Walker and Maxwell Award and was selected as the Walter Camp Player of the Year after rushing for an Alabama and Southeastern Conference record 2,219 yards.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In high school, Henry broke the 51-year-old national high school rushing record with 12,124 yards after compiling 4,261 rushing yards as a senior.
- Henry sealed an Iron Bowl victory with an epic, career-best 271 rushing yards against the Tigers in 2015. He put the Crimson Tide on his back by carrying the ball a school-record 46 times. His 271 rushing yards were 11 more yards than Auburn had in total offense (260). He ended the game with 14 consecutive rushes to run out the clock.
- His late grandmother, Gladys Henry, helped raise him and played a key inspirational role in his development. In 2018, he fulfilled a promise to her and graduated from Alabama with his bachelor's degree. He has a portrait tattoo of her on his chest.
- Gladys Henry nicknamed him "Shocka" as a baby because he "shocked the whole family" when he was born.
- Henry has been growing out his hair since he was in elementary school.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Yulee, Fla., native was selected by the Titans in the second round (45th overall) the 2016 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3): Leads the NFL with 319 rushing yards. Has 15 career 100-yard rushing performances (including the playoffs), including two in 2020 (at DEN, at MIN). COLLEGE:

- In three seasons at Alabama (2013-15), Henry played in 39 games and totaled 602 carries for a school-record 3,591 yards and 42 rushing touchdowns and added 285 yards on 17 career receptions with three receiving scores. Henry won numerous awards including the Heisman Trophy, the Doak Walker Award, Walter Camp Award, and Maxwell Award. During Alabama's victory over Clemson in the 2016 College Football Playoff National Championship, he broke Shaun Alexander's record for most career rushing yards in Alabama history.
- As a junior (2015), claimed the Crimson Tide's second Heisman Trophy and led his team to the College Football Playoff National Championship. Also won the Doak Walker and Maxwell Award and was selected as the Walter Camp Player of the Year. Named a unanimous first team All-American and first team All-SEC by the league's coaches and the Associated Press. Selected as the SEC Offensive Player of the Year by both outlets. Rushed for a school- and Southeastern Conference record 2,219 yards, which led the nation and was the fifth most in a single-season by an FBS player in college football history. Averaged 147.9 yards per game, which was second in the country. His 28 rushing touchdowns were a national best and an SEC record, snapping Tim Tebow and Tre Mason's old mark of 23. Led the SEC in rushing in conference games with a 179.2 yards per game average, including 13 touchdowns. Had multiple rushing touchdowns in nine games and set the Alabama single-season record with 10 100-yard rushing games and four 200-yard games, which broke Bobby Humphrey's school record (3) set in 1986. Only the third running back in SEC history (Herschel Walker and Bo Jackson) to have four 200-yard games in a single season. Set the school record with 11 consecutive games with a rushing touchdown and finished his career 20 straight, which was the most in the SEC history. Caught 11 passes for 91 yards. Accounted for a team-high 109 first down rushes on a school-record 395 carries. Was a five-time SEC Offensive Player of the Week (Wisconsin, Georgia, Texas A&M, Mississippi State and Auburn).
- At Auburn (11/28/15), produced a Heisman-worthy performance as he rushed his way past the Tigers on the Plains to the tune of a career-high 271 yards on the ground on a school-record 46 carries. Scored a touchdown on his 46th and final carry on a 25-yard jaunt that capped 14 straight rushes to end the game. Earned Walter Camp National Player of the Week honors and SEC Player of the Week accolades.
- Against Clemson (1/11/16), rushed for 158 yards and three touchdowns as the Crimson Tide claimed a 45-40 victory to win the national championship. Carried 36 times, including a 50-yard touchdown scamper in the first quarter and then sealed the win with a one-yard plunge with 1:07 remaining in the game.
- As a sophomore (2014), finished the year with 990 rushing yards on 172 carries with 11 rushing touchdowns. Had five receptions for 133 yards and two receiving touchdowns. Played in all 14 games with two starts and had 21 explosive rushes of 12 yards or more while converting 47 first downs, including four on third down. Three of his five receptions were explosive, taking screen passes 29, 41 and 52 yards.

- As a freshman (2013), as a true freshman saw action in 12 games and totaled 382 rushing yards on 35 carries for a 10.9 yards per carry average. Rushed 10 times (28.6 percent) for 12 yards or more while converting 17 first downs. Took his one pass reception to the end zone for a 61-yard catch and run in the Sugar Bowl. Contributed three tackles on special teams. Registered two 100-yard game (111 vs. Arkansas and 100 vs. Oklahoma).
- Graduated from Alabama in May 2018 with a degree in communications.

37 AMANI HOOKER

DEFENSIVE BACK • 5'11" • 210 LBS • COLLEGE: IOWA
ACQUIRED: 4TH ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 19/0 (PLAYOFFS: 3/0)

PRO: The Titans traded up to select Amani Hooker with the 116th overall pick in the fourth round of the 2019 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-11-inch, 210-pound defender was coveted for his versatility, having played safety, and a hybrid linebacker/cornerback position at Iowa. As a rookie with the Titans, he played in all 16 games and collected 13 tackles, while ranking third on the team with eight special teams tackles.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Hooker played as a reserve safety in all 16 games as a rookie and collected 13 tackles while ranking third on the team with eight special teams tackles.
- As a junior in 2018, Hooker received the Tatum-Woodson award given to the best defensive back in the Big Ten.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Hooker was named a finalist for Minnesota's Mr. Football in 2015. Yet he had just two FBS scholarship offers. When the in-state university showed hesitancy after multiple workouts, Hooker knew he belonged at Iowa saying, "love who loves me."
- In February 2019, Hooker helped crowdfund about $1,200 for the Park Center high school football program through a Pledge-It campaign raising a dollar amount for every inch of his vertical jump at the NFL Scouting Combine. His 37-inch jump ranked fifth among safeties and equaled money for better equipment at his alma mater.
- Amani's brother, Quinton, played basketball for North Dakota and helped take the team to the NCAA tournament his senior year. Quinton was Minnesota's Mr. Basketball in high school and currently plays basketball professionally in France.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Minneapolis, Minn., native was selected by the Titans in the fourth round (116th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/0): Collected his first career interception at Minnesota (9/27/20).
• At Denver (9/14), tied for the team lead with a stop on special teams.
• Against Jacksonville (9/20), played as a reserve at safety and posted two tackles and a pass defended. Broke up a deep pass intended for Collin Johnson in the end zone late in the second quarter.
• At Minnesota (9/27), saw action as a reserve at safety and registered a tackle and his first career interception. Sealed the victory by intercepting a deep pass intended for Adam Thielen that was originally deflected by Kevin Byard late in the fourth quarter.

2019 (16/0, 3/0): Played as a reserve safety in all 16 games as a rookie and collected 13 tackles. Ranked third on the team with eight special teams tackles. Saw action as a reserve in all three postseason contests and notched three tackles on defense and a special teams stop on coverage units. Caught one pass for 28 yards on a fake punt. Tied for the team lead in special teams tackles five times in 2019 (at JAX, vs. BUF, vs. TB, at IND, at HOU). Appeared in his first career NFL contest at Cleveland (9/8/19).
• At Cleveland (9/8), made his NFL debut as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Notched a stop on special teams coverage units.
• At Jacksonville (9/19), saw action as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Tied for the team lead with a special teams stop.
• At Atlanta (9/29), played as a reserve at safety and registered four tackles.

- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), saw action as a reserve at safety and tallied a tackle. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- Against Kansas City (11/10), saw action as a reserve at safety and registered two tackles.
- Against Jacksonville (11/24), played as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Notched two tackles on special teams coverage units.
- At Indianapolis (12/1), saw action as a reserve at safety and posted two tackles. Tied for the team lead with a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- At Oakland (12/8), saw significant action as a reserve at safety and amassed three tackles.
- Against Houston (12/15), played as a reserve at safety and on special teams.
- At Houston (12/29), played as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Tied for the team lead with a special teams stop on coverage units.
- At New England (1/4), saw action as a reserve safety in his postseason debut and posted two tackles.
- At Kansas City (1/19), saw action as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Posted a special teams tackle on coverage units and hauled in his first career reception on a fake punt. Extended the Titans' final touchdown drive with a 28-yard reception from Brett Kern on a fake punt in the fourth quarter.

COLLEGE:

- During a three-year career at Iowa, played in 36 games with 19 starts and totaled 125 tackles, six interceptions, a sack, 3.5 tackles for loss and nine passes defended. Declared for the NFL Draft following his junior campaign.
- As a junior (2018), named Tatum-Woodson Defensive Back of the Year in the Big Ten. Selected second-team All-America by The Associated Press and USA Today and All-Big Ten by league coaches and media. Selected as Roy Carver Most Valuable Player for the Iowa defense. Started all 13 games and shared the team lead with four interceptions and seven pass break-ups, while ranking second with 65 tackles.
- As a sophomore (2017), saw action in 10 games with six starts and recorded 56 tackles, two interceptions with a touchdown return, and two passes defended. Named to Associated Press All-Bowl team following his performance in Pinstripe Bowl win over Boston College.
- As a freshman (2016), saw action in all 13 games, primarily on special teams, recording three solo tackles and one assist.
- Majored in sports and recreation management with a minor in entrepreneurship at Iowa.

PERSONAL:

- Attended Parker Center (Brooklyn Park, Minn.), High School where he played primarily safety and wide receiver, but also lined up as cornerback, running back, quarterback and linebacker.
- As a senior, was selected Conference MVP, named first-team All-State and was a finalist for "Mr. Football."
- In his final high school campaign, the team captain set the school record for interceptions in a season (11) and helped team post a 9-3 record, while reaching state playoffs.
- Named second-team All-State as a junior and third-team All-State as a sophomore and was selected first-team All-Conference for three straight seasons.
- Also played basketball.
- List of favorites: (TV show) "Naruto"; (movies) "Transformers" series;

(musician) Drake; (meal) My mom's chicken and rice; (dessert) My mom's brownies or her scotcheroos; (childhood sports team) Miami Heat because of Dwyane Wade and LeBron James; and (hidden talent) Fortnite.

10 ADAM HUMPHRIES

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'11" • 195 LBS • COLLEGE: CLEMSON
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (TB) - 2019
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 6/2 • HOMETOWN: SPARTANBURG, S.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 75/21 (PLAYOFFS: 1/0)

PRO: The Titans signed wide receiver Adam Humphries early in the 2019 free agency period. The 5-foot-11-inch, 195-pounder has the ability to line up both inside and outside at wide receiver as well as contribute in the return game. In his first season with the Titans in 2019, he finished third on the squad with 37 receptions for 374 yards with two touchdowns. After completing his four-year career at Clemson, Humphries signed a rookie free agent deal with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and spent his first four NFL campaigns with the club (2015-18), registering 219 receptions for 2,329 yards and nine touchdowns.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Humphries ranked third on the team with 37 receptions in his first season as a Titan.
- In 2018, Humphries set career highs in his final season in Tampa Bay with 76 receptions for 816 yards and five touchdowns.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Humphries was originally a rookie tryout invitee with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers following the 2015 NFL Draft. Titans general manager Jon Robinson was a member of the Bucs player personnel department at the time and saw the 5-foot-11-inch wideout grind it out in practice and eventually earn a spot on the team's 53-man roster. "Humph came in as a tryout and won a spot on the 90-man roster," said Robinson. "He was a tough guy to cover all through training camp and he kept working and working. I've always had an affinity for him and liked his style. He's earned everything he's got."
- Clemson head football coach Dabo Swinney took a visit to Humphries' high school, Dorman, before the 2011 season to scout eventual signee Charone Peake during a basketball game. But once the game began, Swinney couldn't help but notice Dorman's 5-foot-11 point guard running the show. "I go watch a basketball game at Dorman High School to see Charone Peake, and I'm going, 'Dang, who's this point guard?'" Swinney said. "And I've got Coach (Dave) Gutshall going, 'Well that's the best football player I've got on the team.' And I'm like, 'Really? We need to watch this guy a little bit.' He played corner, he played receiver, he played running back, he played quarterback. He was the best football player on the team. Adam Humphries was his name. I don't think he had any offers. So we offer the guy, 'Well, we're only offering the guy to get Charone Peake. No, no, no. We want Humphries.'"
- Humphries maintains a friendship with former Clemson teammate DeAndre Hopkins.
- After going down with an injury in the 2019 season, Humphries adopted a shiba inu puppy, Gigi, to keep him company. "Freaking love my dog."
- An avid golfer, Humphries is around a 7 handicap and has been working on his driving and short wedges to improve his game. He enjoys playing at Golf Club of Tennessee, Carolina Country Club, The Walker Course (Clemson University).
- During the unique 2020 offseason caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, Humphries helped pass the time by playing video games. His main purpose was to connect with old friends from high school and college, and former teammates from the Buccaneers. He enjoys Fortnite and Rory McIlroy PGA Tour.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- Signed by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers as a rookie free agent on May 11, 2015.
- Waived by the Buccaneers on Oct. 5, 2015 and signed to the team's practice squad two days later.

- Signed by the Buccaneers to their active roster from the practice squad on Oct. 28, 2015.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 15, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/1 - Tennessee): Tied for the team lead with 15 receptions. Ranks third on the squad with 136 receiving yards. Has led the team in receptions once in 2020 (vs. JAX).

- At Denver (9/14), played as a reserve at wide receiver and caught six passes for 47 yards. Extended the Titans' second touchdown with a seven-yard reception on third-and-five in the third quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), saw action as a reserve at wide receiver and led the team with five receptions for 48 yards with a touchdown. - Against Buffalo (10/6), played as a reserve at wide receiver and led the team with four catches for 30 yards. Returned two punts for two yards. Extended the Titans' touchdown drive by hauling in a nine-yard catch on third-and-six in the third quarter.
- At Denver (10/13), started at wide receiver and led the team with six receptions and 47 receiving yards.
- At Carolina (11/3), saw action as a reserve at wide receiver and snared four receptions for 65 yards. Returned one punt for 11 yards. Extended the Titans' second touchdown drive a 25-yard catch on third-and-two late in the third quarter.
- Against Kansas City (11/10), played as a reserve at wide receiver and hauled in the game-winning 23-yard touchdown. Gave the Titans the lead by hauling in a 23-yard pass and plunging into the end zone with 23 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter.
- At Kansas City (1/19), returned to the lineup and made his postseason debut as a reserve at wide receiver and caught four passes for 25 yards. Kept the Titans' first touchdown drive alive with a three-yard catch on fourth-and-two in the first stanza. Extended the Titans' second touchdown drive with a five-yard reception on third-and-two in the second quarter.

2018 (16/10 - Tampa Bay): Played in all 16 games with 10 starts and caught 76 passes for 816 yards and five touchdowns. His 76 receptions and 816 receiving yards are both career-highs and each established new single-season franchise records for an undrafted player.

- At Chicago (9/30), started at wide receiver and caught six passes for 36 yards.

- At Atlanta (10/14), led the team with 82 receiving yards, including a career-long 51-yard catch.
- At Cincinnati (10/28), caught a team-high seven passes for 76 yards.
- At Carolina (11/4), led the team in receptions (eight) and receiving yards (82) while recording his first career multi-touchdown day, catching two scores.
- At N.Y. Giants (11/18), had three catches for 60 yards – including a 39-yard reception on first-and-30 – to go along with a touchdown catch.
- Against San Francisco (11/25), caught six passes for 54 yards, including a 28-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter.
- Against Carolina (12/2), started at wide receiver and hauled in a team-high seven passes for 61 yards and a touchdown.
- At Dallas (12/23), tied a career high with 10 receptions for 79 yards.

2017 (16/3 - Tampa Bay): Saw action in all 16 games for the first time in his career and posted 54 receptions for 529 yards with one touchdown.

- At Minnesota (9/24), recorded six catches for 68 yards.
- Against the N.Y. Giants (10/1), led the Buccaneers with six receptions for 70 yards in a win.
- Against New England (10/5), caught three passes for 51 yards on Thursday Night Football.
- At Arizona (10/15), caught six passes for 51 yards, including the 100th catch of his career.
- Against Atlanta (12/18), caught five passes for 43 yards and a touchdown, while rushing once for six yards and returning two punts for 30 yards on Monday Night Football.
- At Carolina (12/24), notched three catches for 51 yards, including a 36-yard reception with under two minutes remaining in the first half, which help set up a Buccaneers field goal.
- Against New Orleans (12/31), started at wide receiver and caught seven passes for a career-high 102 yards, including a career-long 43-yard catch. Three of his receptions helped convert a third down.

2016 (15/4 - Tampa Bay): Saw action in 15 games with four starts and collected 55 receptions for 622 yards and two touchdowns. Returned 24 punt returns for 237 yards. Was inactive for one contest.

35 CHRIS JACKSON

DEFENSIVE BACK • 5'10" • 193 LBS • COLLEGE: MARSHALL
ACQUIRED: 7TH ROUND - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE: ROOKIE
HOMETOWN: TALLAHASSEE, FLA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 2/1 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Chris Jackson with the 243rd overall pick in the seventh round of the 2020 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-10 inch, 193-pounder was coveted for his versatility with experience at both corner and safety, as well as for his speed and ball disruption skills. The Tallahassee, Fla., native was a four-year starter at Marshall where his 45 passes defended rank first in program history. He started 48 games from 2016-19 and tallied 189 tackles, 6.5 tackles for loss, two sacks, seven interceptions with one returned for a touchdown, 45 passes defended, and two fumble recoveries with one returned for a score for the Thundering Herd.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Jackson's 45 passes defended rank first in Marshall history and his 48 career starts rank 14th in program history.
- Jackson earned all-conference recognition each year of his collegiate career: named to the Conference USA first team all-conference team after recording a team-high 11 passes defended as a senior in 2019, earned second team all-conference honors at defensive back as a junior in 2018, garnered all-conference team honorable mention recognition as a sophomore in 2017, and he was named to the Conference USA All-Freshman team in 2016.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- A two-time state track champion in high school, Jackson runs a 4.47 second 40-yard dash. 'I still work out like a track athlete when I can,' Jackson said. 'I watch it a lot and keep up with it.'
- Jackson lived with and was primarily raised by his paternal grandmother, Delores Madison, after his mother was killed by a home invader when Jackson was 10 years old.
- He has a love of cars that he attributes to his father and uncle, the latter of which does competitive drag racing. Jackson lists his top three cars as a 1969 Camaro, a 1984 Buick Grand National and a Ferrari F40.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Tallahassee, Fla., native was selected by the Titans in the seventh round (243rd overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (2/1): Made his NFL debut and his first career NFL start at Denver (9/14/20).

- At Denver (9/14), started at cornerback in his first career NFL contest and collected a tackle. Became the franchise's first rookie drafted in the seventh round or later to start a Week 1 game since Sept. 10, 1989, when Oilers ninth-round rookie tight end Bob Mrosko started at Minnesota.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), played as a reserve at cornerback and posted six tackles.
- At Minnesota (9/27), was inactive.

COLLEGE:

• During a four-year career at Marshall, started 48 games and posted 189 tackles, 6.5 tackles for loss, 2.0 sacks, seven interceptions with one returned for a touchdown, 45 passes defended and two fumble recoveries with one returned for a score on kickoff coverage for the Thundering Herd. Jackson's 45 passes defended rank first in Marshall history and his 48 career starts rank 14th in program history. He earned all-conference recognition in all four of his collegiate seasons.

AS A SENIOR (2019), started 11 games and recorded 25 tackles, one interception and a team-high 11 passes defended. Earned first team all-conference recognition.

- Against Cincinnati (9/28), had a season-high five tackles.
- At Charlotte (11/23), notched two tackles and one interception.
- Against Florida International (11/30), tallied three tackles and three passes defended.

AS A JUNIOR (2018), started all 13 games and posted 61 tackles, one interception, 15 passes defended and one fumble recovery. Earned second team all-conference honors at defensive back.

- At Old Dominion (10/13), tied a career-high with 10 tackles and posted a career-high four passes defended.
- Against Florida Atlantic (10/20), amassed six tackles, one interception and three passes defended.

AS A SOPHOMORE (2017), started 12 games and tallied 62 tackles, 2.5 tackles for loss, one half sack, a team-high three interceptions for 108 yards and one touchdown, a team-high 10 passes defended and recovered one fumble on kickoff coverage that he returned for a score. Named all-conference honorable mention.

- Against Miami (Ohio) (9/2), posted eight tackles, an interception which he returned 72 yards for a touchdown and one pass defended.
- Against Kent State (9/16), amassed six tackles, 0.5 tackle for loss, and a 32-yard interception.
- At Charlotte (10/7), notched five tackles, 0.5 tackle for loss, one interception and two passes defended.
- Against Old Dominion (10/14), recorded six tackles and one fumble recovery on special teams that he returned for a 15-yard touchdown.

AS A FRESHMAN (2016), started all 12 games as a true freshman and tallied 41 tackles, four tackles for loss, 1.5 sacks, two interceptions and nine passes defended. Named to the Conference USA All-Freshman team.

- Against Florida Atlantic (10/15), recorded five tackles, 1.5 tackles for loss, one half sack, one interception and one pass defended.
- Against Charlotte (10/22), posted a season-high eight tackles, two tackles for loss, one sack and one 31-yard interception.
- At Missouri (10/1), saw action in his first career game and posted one tackle.
- Graduated from Marshall in December 2019 with a degree in criminal justice.

PERSONAL:

- Attended FAMU Developmental Research (Tallahassee, Fla.) School where he was rated as a two-star prospect by Rivals.
- Named a Florida 2A All-State wide receiver as a senior in 2015. Also played safety.
- Jackson was a two-time Florida state high school track champion in the 110-meter hurdles and was a runner up in the 300-meter hurdles.
- Also played basketball.
- List of favorites: (TV show) "Spongebob Squarepants"; (movies) "Shrek," and "Coming to America"; (musician) Kanye West.
- Follow Jackson on Twitter @C3Jack and on Instagram @_3cjack.
- Son of D'Wayne Jackson and Tanesha Overstreet.
- Has two brothers and two sisters.
- Born Christopher D'Wayne Jackson on April 13, 1998 in Minneapolis, Minn.

60 BEN JONES

CENTER • 6'3" • 308 LBS • COLLEGE: GEORGIA
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (HOU) - 2016
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/5 • HOMETOWN: BRENT, ALA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 130/109 (PLAYOFFS: 8/8)

Captain: 2019

Community Man of the Year: 2019

PRO: The Titans signed Ben Jones early in the 2016 free agency period to bring veteran leadership and experience to the center position and he has provided just that during his tenure with the club. The 6-foot-3-inch, 308-pounder was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft. The University of Georgia product is a versatile player, having started contests at center and both guard spots in his first four seasons with the Texans.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Jones has started games at center, left guard and right guard during his NFL career and has opened holes for an 1,000-yard rusher in five different seasons.
- In 2019, Jones started 15 games at center and helped Derrick Henry lead the NFL with 1,540 rushing yards.
- In Week 9 of the 2019 season, Jones missed the first game of his eight-year NFL career when he was inactive due to injury. It ended his streak of 120 consecutive games played and 88 consecutive starts. At the time, Jones' consecutive games streak tied Kansas City's Mitchell Schwartz for the longest active streak in the NFL among offensive linemen, and his starting streak ranked first in the NFL among all centers.
- In Week 11 of the 2019 season, Jones returned to the lineup and started his 100th career game.
- Jones made a career-high three postseason starts in 2019.
- In 2018, Jones started all 16 games at center, registering five consecutive seasons with a start in every contest (2014-15 with Houston).
- Jones appeared in his 100th career game in Week 4 of the 2018 season.
- As of the completion of the 2018 season, among NFL offensive linemen listed as centers, Jones ranked first in the NFL with 80 consecutive games started. He had played in 112 consecutive games, which at this point tied for the longest active consecutive games streak among NFL offensive linemen.
- In 2016, Jones centered all 16 games in his first campaign with the Titans and was a part of an offensive front that blocked for the NFL's third-ranked rushing attack which averaged 136.7 rush yards per game.
- In 2015, Jones transitioned to his natural position of center and started all 16 games and the playoff contest for the Texans.
- In 2014, Jones started all 16 contests at left guard.
- As a rookie in 2012, Jones started the final 10 games of the season at right guard and was named the Texans Rookie of the Year.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Jones switched from jersey #61 to #60 prior to his senior season at Georgia, to honor his father, Steve, a former collegiate star, who was killed in a helicopter crash when he was 10 years old.
- Jones' pregame ritual consists of walking barefoot on the field "to get a feel for the turf." The routine began before one game with his brother in high school and after enjoying success that night, it has continued ever since.
- When he was 10 years old, Jones suffered a blow to the head with a baseball bat. The impact caused a blood clot to develop on his brain and fractured his skull. The injury kept him out of all athletic activity for a year, proving to be a challenging time for an active and athletic boy. Although it was a tough period in his life, Ben says this time turned him into the man he is today. As soon as he was cleared for activities, Jones threw himself into being the best athlete he could be.
- In 2017, Jones established The Jones Mission Fund at The Community Foundation to provide at-risk youth with opportunities they might otherwise not have through grants, additional resources and educational opportunities.

- For the past three offseasons, Jones and his wife has hosted the annual Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot. The three events combined have raised more than $400,000 benefitting The Jones Mission Fund.
- Jones hosts a free Friday Night Lights youth football camp in his native Alabama every June.
- Jones sponsors a trip to a Titans game each fall for the seniors of his high school's football team in Alabama. The experience includes round trip transportation from his hometown, tickets, a private tailgate, swag bags, and a meet-and-greet with a tour of the Titans practice facility after the game with Jones.
- Jones' brother, Clay, played baseball for the University of Alabama and then was drafted by the Detroit Tigers.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- A native of Brent, Ala., Jones was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 10, 2016.

90 DAQUAN JONES

DEFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'4" • 322 LBS • COLLEGE: PENN STATE
ACQUIRED: 4TH ROUND - 2014 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/7
HOMETOWN: JOHNSON CITY, N.Y.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 86/80 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

Captain: 2020

PRO: Seeking a big, physical and versatile defensive lineman, the Titans selected Penn State's DaQuan Jones in the fourth round of the 2014 NFL Draft. Since then, he has become one of the mainstays of the Titans defensive lineup, appearing in all 16 games in four of his first six seasons, including every game in 2018 and 2019. Jones offers an impressive combination of size, athleticism, intelligence and power. The 6-foot-4-inch, 322-pounder earned a full-time role as a 3-4 defensive end by his second season but has the ability to play multiple spots on the line. He was signed to a new multi-year contract extension in 2018.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Jones started all 16 games for the fourth time in his career and for the second consecutive season. He achieved career highs with 21 quarterback pressures and three passes defended.
- In 2018, Jones started all 16 games for the third time in his career. His 39 tackles made up the second-highest total of his career and included a career-high four tackles for loss.
- In 2016, Jones joined Brian Orakpo as the only two Titans to start every game from 2015–2016.
- Against Houston in the 2016 season finale (1/1/17), recovered a Tom Savage fumble in the end zone for his first career touchdown.
- In 2015, Jones was one of four members of the team to start all 16 games, holding down a spot at defensive end for the duration of the campaign. He totaled 67 tackles, 15 quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and a fumble recovery.
- As a rookie in 2014, Jones played in seven games with one start. He posted his first career sack against Indianapolis on Dec. 28.
- As a senior at Penn State, Jones earned first-team All-Big Ten Conference honors and was named Penn State's Outstanding Senior Player and the recipient of the team's Reid-Robinson Award. He was one of the team's leaders who opted to stay with the program during a time of turmoil.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Jones has a reputation as an upbeat, positive influence. "I've always had that positive mindset, even when things weren't as good," he says. "The guys laugh at me sometimes because I'm always smiling ... It's not that I'm happy all the time, but I just feel like in today's world, if you let anything get you down, it will. The smallest thing will turn into the biggest problem if you let it, so I just try my best to keep a positive mindset."
- Jones majored in criminal justice at Penn State and spent a portion of his 2013 summer as an intern observing the Spring Township Police Department near State College.
- Jones entered the Penn State program after being rated the second-best offensive lineman in the nation during his playing days at Johnson City High School. He switched to the other side of the ball and made an immediate impact as a true freshman.
- Jones lists his father, Steve, as the most inspirational person in his life. Steve raised DaQuan as a single father and one of his father's greatest traits is that he works extremely hard in everything he does. Steve works as an executive chef at Cornell University.
- Jones is in the process of launching his own non-profit organization called "Create Your Legacy." In June 2019, he hosted the DaQuan Jones Create Your Legacy Football Camp for more than 100 kids ages 11-18 at Johnson City (N.Y.) High School.
- Jones has four dogs, one of which he named Titan.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Johnson City, N.Y., native was selected by the Titans in the fourth round (112th overall) of the 2014 NFL Draft.

33 JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

CORNERBACK • 5'11" • 186 LBS • COLLEGE: SOUTH CAROLINA
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 15/1
HOMETOWN: ROCK HILL, S.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 203/189 (PLAYOFFS: 10/9)

Pro Bowl: 2011, 2012

PRO: During the 2020 offseason, the Titans were looking to add veteran leadership and experience to the secondary. The club found just that when they signed Johnathan Joseph as a free agent in early May. The 5-foot-11-inch, 186-pounder arrived in Tennessee as a two-time Pro Bowl selection, having registered 31 career interceptions and 194 passes defended in 14 seasons with the Cincinnati Bengals (2006-10) and Houston Texans (2011-19). The University of South Carolina product originally entered the NFL as a first-round pick of the Bengals in 2006. Joseph has a knack for being around the football, having registered an NFL record 50 games with multiple passes defended and having scored eight career touchdowns on returns in his illustrious career.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Joseph leads the NFL since 2011 with a 118 passes defended.
- Joseph passed Terence Newman (183) for the sixth-most passes defended in NFL history. Joseph leads all active players and leads the NFL since he began his career in 2006 with 194 passes defended.
- Joseph has registered 50 games with multiple passes defended in his career, which is the most in NFL history.
- Joseph leads all active cornerbacks in the NFL with 750 career total tackles and owns 31 career interceptions, seven forced fumbles and six fumble recoveries.
- Joseph has scored on eight career touchdown returns (seven interceptions and one fumble recovery).
- In 2015, Joseph led the Texans and set a single-season career high with 22 passes defended, topping his previous best of 20 passes defended in 2006 and 2009 with Cincinnati.
- In 2012, Joseph was named to his second consecutive Pro Bowl after finishing the season with 66 tackles and two interceptions.
- In 2011, Joseph was selected to his first career Pro Bowl and named Associated Press second-team All-Pro after tying for the team lead with four interceptions and collecting a team-best 15 passes defended.
- In 2009, Joseph started all 16 games for the first time in his career for the Bengals and notched 69 tackles, a career-high six interceptions and 20 passes defended.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Joseph established the Johnathan Joseph Foundation in December 2012 to create and support programs that emphasize character development, to promote academic excellence and to support and create initiatives for disadvantaged youth from single-parent homes.
- Joseph holds an annual football camp at Northwestern High School for youth in his hometown of Rock Hill, S.C..
- Joseph annually hosts "Operation Backpack" to offer students in Rock Hill, S.C. new backpacks for the upcoming school year.
- During the 2017 season, Joseph donated $5,000 per interception, $1,000 for every pass defended and $250 per tackle to Habitat for Humanity in Houston for Hurricane Harvey relief.
- Joseph's father, John, worked at a cotton mill for over 30 years taking just one sick day over that timespan. He credits his father for molding him into the man he is today and instilling core values.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Rock Hill, S.C., native was originally drafted by the Cincinnati Bengals in the first round (24th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Houston Texans as an unrestricted free agent on July 29, 2011.

- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on May 6, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3 - Tennessee): Has tied for the team lead in tackles once in 2020 (at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), started at cornerback in his Titans debut and collected two tackles.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at cornerback and posted four tackles and a pass defended. Broke up a deep pass intended for Tyler Eifert on the Jaguars' first play from scrimmage.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at cornerback and tied for the team lead with seven tackles, including a stop for loss, an interception and a forced fumble. Forced a Dalvin Cook fumble that was scooped up by Rashawn Evans and returned 25 yards to the Vikings' 20-yard line setting up a Titans' field goal in the opening quarter. Intercepted a Kirk Cousins' pass intended for Justin Jefferson on the opening play of the third quarter. Stopped Dalvin Cook for a three-yard loss on a rush off right end in the third stanza.

2019 (14/11, 1/0 - Houston): Played in 14 games with 11 starts at cornerback in his 14th NFL season and totaled 51 tackles, one interception and 13 passes defended. Was inactive for two regular season games and the Wild Card playoff victory.

- At New Orleans (9/9), finished the season opener with seven total tackles and eclipsed 700 career total tackles over his 14-year career, which is the most among all active cornerbacks in the NFL.
- Against Jacksonville (9/15), finished with seven total tackles and two passes defended in the win.

PRO: The Titans originally signed Joshua Kalu as a rookie free agent following the 2018 NFL Draft. The 6-foot, 203-pounder is a versatile defensive back that can line up at safety or cornerback in the secondary. The University of Nebraska product spent the first 12 weeks of the 2018 season on the Titans' practice squad before being signed to the active roster on Dec. 1, 2018. He began 2019 on injured reserve before being activated and appearing in the final eight games and all three postseason contests as a reserve and on special teams. In four seasons with the Cornhuskers, Kalu saw action in 48 games and notched 27 passes defended, including seven interceptions.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In Week 10 of 2019 against Kansas City, Kalu secured the victory by coming off the edge and blocking Harrison Butker's potential game-tying 52-yard field goal as time expired.
- In 2018, made his NFL debut and appeared in five games during his rookie season.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In the 2019 offseason during the COVID-19 pandemic, Kalu spent time giving back to his hometown of Houston, Texas. He partnered with local restaurants and hand-delivered free meals to healthcare workers fighting the pandemic.
- Kalu was heavily involved in the Lincoln community while at Nebraska. He was named to the Brook Berringer Citizenship Team and the Tom Osborne Citizenship Team as a sophomore, junior and senior.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Houston, Texas, native was signed by the Titans as an undrafted free agent on May 11, 2018.

71 DENNIS KELLY

TACKLE/GUARD • 6'8" • 321 LBS • COLLEGE: PURDUE
ACQUIRED: TRADE (PHI) - 2016 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/5
HOMETOWN: CHICAGO HEIGHTS, ILL.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 91/34 (PLAYOFFS: 5/0)

PRO: The Titans acquired Dennis Kelly in a trade with the Philadelphia Eagles in 2016. The 6-foot-8-inch, 321-pounder provides quality experience and depth along the offensive front, having logged starts at right tackle, left tackle, right guard, left guard and tight end during his NFL career. In his first four seasons in Nashville, he appeared in 58 games with 16 starts. The 2012 fifth-round pick spent his first four NFL campaigns as a member of the Eagles and appeared in 30 games with 15 starts from 2012-15.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, he made his first career start at left tackle and finished the season with four starts at left tackle.
- In Week 12 of the 2019 season against Jacksonville, Kelly caught his first career touchdown on a one-yard reception as an extra tight end.
- In the 2019 AFC Championship at Kansas City, Kelly caught his first postseason touchdown and became the first offensive lineman to catch a touchdown pass in the NFL postseason since the 2014 playoffs.
- In 2018, Kelly saw action in 11 games and logged five starts at right tackle.
- In 2016, Kelly appeared in all 16 games for the first time in his career and recorded six starts in his first campaign in Tennessee.
- In 2012, he started 10 games as a rookie—three starts at right guard and seven starts at right tackle.

PRO: Since joining the Titans in 2009, Brett Kern has placed his name at the very top of most of the franchise's leaderboards at his position. At the end of the 2019 campaign, he ranked as the team's all-time career leader in gross punting average (45.9 yards), net punting average (40.8) and punts placed inside the 20 (333). He punted 839 times in a Titans uniform from 2009–2019, second all-time for the franchise (861 by Craig Hentrich). Kern owns the top eight net punting seasons in franchise history and six of the team's top eight gross punting seasons. His 170 consecutive games played (regular season) at the conclusion of 2019 ranked second in team history behind only Bruce Matthews' 232 consecutive contests, while his 170 total games ranked sixth in franchise annals and were the most in the organization's "Titans era" (1999–2019). He was named to three consecutive Pro Bowls (2017-19) and earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors for the first time in 2019. Kern also has served as the team's holder on field goal and extra point attempts for his entire tenure. The University of Toledo product was acquired by the Titans during the 2009 season when he was claimed off waivers from the Denver Broncos.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Kern was named to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive season, and he earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors for the first time in his career. His 37 punts inside the 20 led the NFL, and his 43.1-yard net average ranked second in team history.
- In 2018, Kern was named to the Pro Bowl for the second consecutive season. His 39 punts inside the 20-yard line on 74 attempts established a franchise record and a career high. He finished the season with a career-long streak of 16 consecutive punts placed inside the 20, including every punt in the final three games of the season.
- In 2017, Kern's gross punting average (49.7) ranked eighth in NFL history and was the highest of any player since 2012. His net punting average (44.6) ranked second in NFL history. He was named to his first career Pro Bowl and was selected second-team Associated Press All-Pro after leading the NFL with a career-high and franchise-best 49.7 gross average and a career-best and franchise-high 44.6 net average.
- In 2016, Kern placed 41.6 percent of his punts inside the opponent's 20-yard line (32 of 77), which at the time ranked second in his career (42.2 in 2009).
- In 2015, Kern launched a career-high tying 88 punts to become the second-leading punter (career punts) in franchise history. He placed a then-career-high 34 punts inside the 20 with only one touchback (career low). He also accomplished a first-of-its-kind feat, becoming the first punter in NFL history to record 80 or more punts, a net average of 40 yards, and one or zero touchbacks in a single season.
- In 2014, Kern booted 88 total punts for a gross average of 46.8 yards and a net average of 40.8 yards, which broke his own single-season team record (40.4-yard net average in 2012).
- In 2013, Kern established then-career benchmarks with 32 punts inside the 20-yard line and only two touchbacks.
- Kern arguably had his most productive season in 2012 when he ranked fifth in the AFC with what at the time was a franchise record and career-best 47.6 gross punt average. He also finished ninth in the AFC with a then-franchise record 40.4 net punting average.
- In 2009, Kern's combined average of 45.5 yards per punt with the Titans and Broncos ranked eighth in the NFL.
- In 2008, Kern ranked fifth in the league with a 46.7-yard punting average and was named to the All-Rookie team by Pro Football Weekly/PFWA and the Sporting News.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Kern's father, Cal, is a former professional soccer goalie.
- Kern is an avid golfer that sports a +1 handicap. He picked the game up late in his high school years and caddied for three summers at Inverness Golf Club while in college. The course is located in Toledo, Ohio, and has hosted PGA and NCAA Championships. In 2011, Kern competed in The Vinny, a local golf fundraising tournament hosted by singers Vince Gill and Amy Grant, and finished fourth in the event.

58 HAROLD LANDRY III

OUTSIDE LINEBACKER • 6'2" • 252 LBS • COLLEGE: BOSTON COLLEGE
ACQUIRED: 2ND ROUND - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/3
HOMETOWN: SPRING LAKE, N.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 34/22 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans traded up to select outside linebacker Harold Landry III with the 41st overall pick in the second round of the 2018 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-2-inch, 252-pound defender possesses a unique ability to bend the edge as a pass rusher and use his speed, athleticism and long arms to get to the quarterback. He finished his career at Boston College ranked second in school history with 26 career sacks.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Landry started all 16 games and led the team with a career-high nine sacks. He started all three postseason games in 2019 and tallied a team-best eight quarterback pressures.
- In 2018, made his NFL debut and appeared in 15 games on the season. His 4.5 sacks tied for third on the team and his 18 quarterback pressures tied for second.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Landry could have entered the NFL Draft following his 16.5-sack junior season at Boston College. However, he chose to stay in school and received his degree in communications in December 2017.
- Landry enjoys traveling. One of his favorite getaways is Destin, Fla.
- He and his son, Greyson, share the same June 5 birthday.
- Landry's 26 career sacks at Boston College were exceeded in school history by only Mathias Kiwanuka (37.5 from 2002-05).
- In 2016, he set a Boston College record and led the nation with 16.5 sacks. His seven forced fumbles also ranked first nationally.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Spring Lake, N.C., native was selected by the Titans in the second round (41st overall) of the 2018 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3): Leads the team with eight quarterback pressures. Has led or tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures three times in 2020 (at DEN, vs. JAX, at MIN). Has tied for the team lead in passes defended once in 2020 (vs. JAX).

ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2014 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/7
HOMETOWN: CAVE CREEK, ARIZ.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 88/83 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

Pro Bowl: 2016, 2017, 2018

PRO: With the 11th overall selection in the 2014 NFL Draft, the Titans selected former Michigan left tackle Taylor Lewan (pronounced leh-WAHN). The 6-foot-7-inch, 309-pound lineman is considered one of the top tackles in the NFL, evidenced by his Pro Bowl berths following the 2016, 2017 and 2018 campaigns. Lewan signed a long-term extension with the club during the 2018 training camp and will be anchor for the offensive front for years to come. An outgoing personality off the field, he is tenacious and aggressive on it. At Michigan, he was a four-year starter, anchoring the line at left tackle for 48 career starts. Lewan became the first offensive tackle selected by the Titans/Oilers in the first round since tackle Brad Hopkins (13th overall) in 1993.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Lewan helped open holes for Derrick Henry to lead the NFL with 1,540 rushing yards.
- In 2018, Lewan was selected to his third consecutive Pro Bowl after starting 15 games at left tackle.
- In 2017, Lewan was named to his second Pro Bowl after starting every game at left tackle for the second consecutive season. He became the team's first offensive lineman to make multiple Pro Bowls since center Kevin Mawae from 2008–2009.
- In 2016, Lewan was named to his first career Pro Bowl after starting all 16 games at left tackle and blocking for the NFL's third-ranked rushing attack which averaged 136.7 rush yards per game.
- Lewan was named the Big Ten Conference Offensive Lineman of the Year in 2012 and 2013.
- At the conclusion of the 2011 season, during which Lewan helped pave the way for a pair of 1,000-yard rushers (Denard Robinson and Fitzgerald Toussaint), the Wolverines scored an overtime victory over Virginia Tech in the Sugar Bowl.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Lewan is the co-founder of the popular podcast Bussin' With The Boys with teammate Will Compton. The two friends host guests on an old Monte Carlo Budweiser bus and discuss any and everything.
- Lewan was the originator of the 2018 Offseason Titan Games, inspired by the popular video game Fortnite. The entire 90-man roster engaged in a contest in which two-man teams could eliminate other players anywhere other than at Saint Thomas Sports Park using foam swords. The contest lasted several weeks, and eventually fellow offensive lineman John Theus was declared the winner.
- Lewan owns a taxidermied beaver named Steve. The fedora-donning stuffed rodent, who was a gift from Lewan's wife, Taylin, makes appearances around the Titans locker room, often appearing at the locker of an unsuspecting rookie.
- Lewan chose to wear jersey number 77 at Michigan and then at the pro level because of the legacy of Wolverine tackles who have donned the number, including Jake Long and Jon Jansen.
- Lewan has a mustache tattooed on his right index finger and a stick figure tattooed on the outside edge of his right hand that he calls his "right-hand man."
- One of Lewan's close friends is former Carolina Panthers defensive end Craig Roh. The two played together as high school seniors and then went to Michigan at the same time.
- At the 2014 NFL Scouting Combine, Lewan ran the 40-yard dash in 4.87 seconds, beating all other offensive linemen in his class and clocking the fourth-fastest time among offensive linemen from 2010-14. He also ranked among the top offensive linemen at the 2014 combine in the broad jump (first at nine feet, nine inches), vertical jump (tied for third at 30.5 inches) and three-cone drill (fourth at 7.39 seconds).

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- A native of Cave Creek, Ariz., Lewan was selected by the Titans in the first round (11th overall) of the 2014 NFL Draft.

51 DAVID LONG JR.

LINEBACKER • 5'11" • 227 LBS • COLLEGE: WEST VIRGINIA
ACQUIRED: 6TH ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: CINCINNATI, OHIO
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 17/0 (PLAYOFFS: 3/1)

PRO: The Titans selected David Long Jr. in the sixth round of the 2019 NFL Draft. As a rookie, he contributed on special teams and as a reserve at inside linebacker, recording his first career start during the playoffs. The 5-foot-11-inch, 227-pound defender possesses tremendous speed for the position, displays grit and toughness, and has a knack for finding the ball carrier. At West Virginia, he was a three-year starter and amassed 252 career tackles, 14 sacks and 40 tackles for loss. The 2018 Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year led the Mountaineers in tackles during his final collegiate campaign.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a rookie in 2019, Long appeared in 14 games during the regular season. He also played in all three playoff contests with one start.
- As a junior at West Virginia in 2018, he was selected Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year by the coaches and the Associated Press. He also received second-team All-America honors by the Associated Press and first-team All-Big 12 accolades by the Associated Press.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- David's father, David Sr., is a former professional boxer who went 12-5-2 as a heavyweight. He once fought future world champ Deontay Wilder.
- During the offseason, Long still uses on-the-bell, three-minute-round boxing training to focus on his mental awareness. In 2018, Long Jr. went into the ring with headgear against his old man for the first time. They went for three 90-second rounds. "He busted up my lip, but it was fun," Long Jr. says. "He was really iffy that I knew how to throw my hands for real. It was just jabs, but it's grown-man strength."
- Long was a high school teammate of safety Mike Edwards, who was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the third round of the 2019 NFL Draft.
- When Long was seven years old, he was on the back of a bike being pedaled by his older brother when he was hit by a car driven by someone who was not paying attention. He was treated at the hospital with head and arm injuries.

30 CHRIS MILTON

CORNERBACK • 5'11" • 190 LBS • COLLEGE: GEORGIA TECH
ACQUIRED: WAIVERS (IND) – 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/1
HOMETOWN: FOLKSTON, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 44/1 (PLAYOFFS: 2/0)

PRO: The Titans claimed Chris Milton off waivers from the Indianapolis Colts just prior to the start of the 2019 regular season. The 5-foot-11-inch, 190-pounder has excelled on special teams during his first four NFL campaigns. He was limited to six games during his first season in Tennessee due to injuries. The Georgia Tech product appeared in 35 games for the Colts from 2016-18 and notched 15 special teams tackles and two forced fumbles on coverage units.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Milton appeared in six contests as a reserve in his first season with the Titans and collected five special teams tackles before landing on injured reserve.
- In 2018, Milton played in 15 games for the Colts and posted three tackles, seven special teams stops and one fumble recovery. He saw action in both postseason games and contributed on special teams with two tackles and one forced fumble.
- In 2017, Milton appeared in 14 games and recorded four tackles and one fumble recovery while adding five special teams tackles.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Milton is related to former NFL running back Tashard Choice, who played six seasons (2008-2013) in the NFL with the Dallas Cowboys, Washington, Buffalo Bills and Indianapolis Colts.
- Milton had the opportunity to learn from one of the best cornerbacks to play this century. Milton and Pro Football Hall of Famer Champ Bailey's family were close and when Milton was getting ready for the NFL, he reached out to Bailey for tips. They trained together during the weeks leading up to the draft. Now if he ever has questions, he still reaches out to the legendary cornerback.
- Milton enjoys fishing in his free time and when he is not playing or training for football he feels like a full-time fisherman on the water.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Folkston, Ga., native was originally signed by the Indianapolis Colts as a rookie free agent on May 3, 2016.
- Waived by the Colts on Sept. 3, 2016 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Colts to their active roster from the practice squad on Nov. 19, 2016.
- Waived by the Colts on Sept. 1, 2019.
- Claimed by the Titans off waivers from the Colts on Sept. 2, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/0 - Tennessee): Has tied for the team lead in special teams tackles once in 2020 (at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), played as a reserve on special teams.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), saw action as a reserve on special teams. Pinned the Jaguars deep in their own territory by downing a Brett Kern 34-yard punt at the Jacksonville six-yard line early in the second quarter.
- At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with a special teams tackle on coverage units.

2019 (6/0 - Tennessee): Played in six games as a reserve and collected five special teams tackles in his first season with the Titans. Was inactive for five games. Placed on injured reserve on Nov. 26, 2019. Led or tied for the team lead in special teams tackles three times (vs. IND, at ATL, vs. KC).

- At Cleveland (9/8), made his Titans debut as a reserve on special teams.
- Against Indianapolis (9/15), tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles on coverage units.

- At Atlanta (9/29), saw action as a reserve on special teams and led the team with two special teams tackles. Stonewalled Kendall Sheffield at the Falcons' 15-yard line for just a 13-yard kickoff return in the first quarter.
- Against Buffalo (10/6), played as a reserve on special teams before leaving the game in the second quarter with an injury.
- Against Kansas City (11/10), returned to the lineup as a reserve on special teams and registered a tackle on coverage units.

2018 (15/0, 2/0 - Indianapolis): Played in 15 games and posted three tackles, seven special teams stops and one fumble recovery. Was inactive for one regular season contest. Played in two postseason games and contributed on special teams with two tackles and one forced fumble.

- At New England (10/4), registered two tackles.
- At Tennessee (12/30), recovered a fumble on special teams coverage units.
- At Kansas City (1/12), forced a fumble on special teams.

2017 (14/0 - Indianapolis): Appeared in 14 games as a reserve and recorded four tackles and one fumble recovery while adding five special teams tackles. Was inactive for one contest and did not play in another.

- Against Arizona (9/17), recovered a fumble on special teams.
- Against Tennessee (11/26), notched two tackles on special teams coverage units.
- Against Houston (12/31), posted two solo tackles.

2016 (6/1 - Indianapolis): Participated in six contests with one start as a rookie and notched six tackles, two passes defended and three special teams stops. Spent the first 10 games of the season on the Colts' practice squad.

- At Minnesota (12/18), collected three tackles, a pass defended and a special teams stop.
- Against Jacksonville (1/1), made his first career start at cornerback and tallied three tackles, a pass defended and a special teams tackle.

COLLEGE:

- Played in 53 games with 33 starts at Georgia Tech and collected 96 tackles, three tackles for loss, a forced fumble, 14 passes defended and five interceptions with two returned for touchdowns. Finished his career with seven blocked kicks. Also recorded four kickoff returns for 44 yards and two punt returns for 39 yards.
- As a senior (2015), started all 12 games and tallied 28 tackles, one interception, six passes defended and two blocked kicks. Was the FBS active career leader in blocked kicks during the 2015 season.
- As a junior (2014), started all 14 games and totaled 32 tackles, a tackle for loss, four passes defended and two interceptions. Returned one interception for a touchdown, blocked one field goal and one PAT.
- As a sophomore (2013), appeared in all 13 games with six starts at safety. Finished with 16 tackles, a tackle for loss, two passes defended, three blocked punts and two interceptions (one returned for a touchdown).
- As a redshirt freshman (2012), saw action in all 14 games (one start) and totaled 20 tackles (17 solo), two passes defended and one forced fumble. He was named Georgia Tech's special teams player of the game twice.
- As a freshman (2011), redshirted.
- Majored in business administration at Georgia Tech.

PERSONAL:

- Attended Charlton County (Folkston, Ga.) High School and was a four-year letter winner.

- Named an All-State choice in 2009 and 2010 and was rated as 19th-best prospect in the state by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution.
- Helped lead Charlton County to regional titles in 2007, 2008 and 2009.
- As a senior, played quarterback and running back and rushed for 975 yards. Was chosen to play in the GACA North-South All-Star Game.
- As a junior, threw for 2,600 yards and rushed for 1,100 yards while completing 57 percent of his pass attempts.
- Follow Milton on Twitter at @cmilt912.
- Follow Milton on Instagram at @cmilt_.
- Born Christopher Devon Milton on Sept. 15, 1992 in Waycross, Ga.

91 LARRELL MURCHISON

DEFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'2" • 297 LBS • COLLEGE: NORTH CAROLINA STATE
ACQUIRED: 5TH ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE: ROOKIE
HOMETOWN: ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 2/0 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Larrell Murchison in the fifth round of the 2020 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-2, 297-pound defensive lineman displays great power and quickness and has the ability to play multiple positions along the defensive front. He was an All-ACC performer as a senior at N.C. State and amassed 11 sacks and 20 tackles for loss in his two seasons with the Wolfpack.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Murchison was named second-team All-ACC after leading the Wolfpack with a 12 tackles for loss and seven sacks as a senior in 2019.
- After his debut season on the field in 2018, Murchison received N.C. State's Cary Brewbaker Award for Defensive Lineman of the Year, as well as the Alpha Wolf Rising Award, which is given to the Most Improved Player.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Larrell's fraternal brother, Farrell, who played running back at Winston Salem State, was diagnosed with testicular cancer in 2018. Larrell supported him through the treatment and recovery. "My role was to stay strong for him. We're extremely close, and it was hard. But we got through it, and he's now cancer free and about to graduate."
- Murchison grew up working with his mother at her restaurant in Elizabethtown called Glenda's Just Desserts and Lunch Counter, which she has owned for 10 years. He would work doing whatever needed to be done – mopping floors, sweeping, waiting tables and taking orders. "Everything is good, but if you go I'd say start with the fried pork chops, mac and cheese and cabbage."
- Murchison loves everything music and enjoys playing the drums. His dad played drums in the church when he was younger, and he just followed in his footsteps.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Elizabethtown, N.C., native was selected by the Titans in the fifth round (174th overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

14 KALIF RAYMOND

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'8" • 182 LBS • COLLEGE: HOLY CROSS
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/2
HOMETOWN: LAWRENCEVILLE, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 23/2 (PLAYOFFS: 2/0)

PRO: The Titans signed Kalif Raymond to the practice squad during Week 17 of the 2018 season to add speed to the receiving corps as well as return ability. In 2019, he was on the practice squad for six games before being elevated to the 53-man roster. He appeared in a total of eight games during the regular season as a reserve receiver and returner. In the postseason, he played in two games with one start. The 5-foot-8-inch, 182-pounder was originally signed by the Denver Broncos as an undrafted free agent following the 2016 NFL Draft and appeared in four games as a rookie. The Lawrenceville, Ga., native also spent Weeks 4-5 of the 2018 season on the Titans practice squad, and has spent time with the New York Jets and New York Giants.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Raymond saw action in eight games during the regular season and produced nine receptions for 170 yards and one touchdown, four punt returns for 45 yards (11.3 avg.) and 18 kickoff returns for 403 yards (22.4 avg.). Additionally, he appeared in two playoff games and recorded a 45-yard touchdown catch.
- In 2017, appeared in eight games for both the New York Jets (2), and New York Giants (6). He returned 18 punts for 99 yards, and returned 14 kickoffs for 271 yards on the season.
- In 2016, made his NFL debut with the Denver Broncos and appeared in four contests as a rookie. Returned 11 punts for 111 yards, as well as six kickoffs for 137 yards.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Raymond was a dual-sport collegiate athlete, competing in football as well as track and field during his senior season at Holy Cross. He placed second in the 100-meter dash at the 2015 New England Outdoor Championship with a time of 10.71 seconds.
- Raymond received little interest from college football programs when he was a student at Greater Atlanta Christian (Ga.) High School, partly due to a serious injury he suffered as a senior. Undeterred, he began sending emails to colleges with football programs and high academic standards. The only schools to respond were Lehigh, Georgetown and Holy Cross, and he chose the latter.
- In preparation for the 2016 NFL Draft, Raymond, who was not invited to the NFL Scouting Combine, was allowed to participate in Harvard's pro day since Holy Cross did not host a pro day.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

76 RODGER SAFFOLD III

GUARD • 6'5" • 325 LBS • COLLEGE: INDIANA

ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (LOS ANGELES RAMS) - 2019

NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 11/2 • HOMETOWN: BEDFORD, OHIO

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 133/130 (PLAYOFFS: 7/7)

PRO: The Titans signed Rodger Saffold III early in the 2019 free agency period to bring veteran leadership and experience to the interior of the offensive front. The 6-foot-5-inch, 325-pounder was originally selected by the St. Louis Rams in the second round (33rd overall) of the 2010 NFL Draft. The Indiana University product is a versatile player, having started contests at both guard and both tackle spots in his NFL career.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Saffold started all 16 games and all three postseason contests at left guard for the second consecutive season and in his first season with the Titans. Helped open holes for Derrick Henry to lead the NFL with 1,540 rushing yards in 2019.
- In 2018, Saffold started all 16 games for the Rams and all three postseason contests on L.A.'s march to Super Bowl LIII. He helped open holes for Todd Gurley II to gain 1,251 rushing yards and 17 touchdowns on the ground.
- In 2017, Saffold started 15 games at left guard and blocked for Todd Gurley's 1,305-yard rushing campaign that included 13 rushing scores.
- In 2010, Saffold was named All-Rookie by Pro Football Weekly and the Pro Football Writers of America after finishing the season as the only NFL rookie to start all of his team's games at left tackle.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Saffold is the owner of competitive "Call of Duty" and "Fortnite" teams called Rise Nation. He invested in the video game industry in April 2014.
- His father, Rodger II, played football at the University of Iowa in the mid-1970s.
- Rodger and his wife Asia grew up on the same street as eight-year olds in Ohio. The childhood friend's romance didn't begin until quite awhile later when the two re-connected on Facebook during Saffold's second-year with the Rams.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- A native of Bedford, Ohio, Saffold was selected by the St. Louis Rams in the second round (33rd overall) of the 2010 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 15, 2019.

COLLEGE:

- Started 41 of 42 games at Indiana. Never left the starting lineup after sliding in at left tackle midway through his true freshman campaign. While in the starting lineup the Hoosiers rushed over 100 yards in 29 games. In his last two seasons, registered 171 knockdowns and 20 touchdown-resulting blocks.

- As a senior (2009), named a team captain and started all 12 games at left tackle. Selected second team All-Big Ten by the conference coaches and named honorable mention by the league's media. Anchored an offensive line that allowed just 16 sacks on the season, a total that ranked second in the Big Ten and shared 28th nationally. The front five surrendered one sack per 27.5 pass attempts, which ranked second in the Big Ten. Saffold allowed just one sack on the year. Hoosiers rushed for over 180 yards on four occasions, including 197 yards at No. 23 Michigan and 196 yards against Purdue.

- As a junior (2008), started 10 games at left tackle. Battled a back injury the entire season and missed two games with a knee injury. The Hoosiers broke the 2,000-yard rushing mark (2,003) for the second straight year, the first time since 2000 and 2001 an Indiana team produced back-to-back 2,000-yard rushing seasons. Indiana averaged 4.5 yards per carry and posted 19 rushing scores, its best numbers since 2001. The team rushed for over 250 yards four times with a season-best 297 yards in the season-opening win over Western Kentucky.

- As a sophomore (2007), started all 13 games at left tackle. Helped the Hoosiers average 157.4 yards per game on the ground and 393.8 yards of total offense, the highest averages in each category since 2001. The Hoosiers also set a new school record with 412 points and finished second in school history averaging 31.7 points per game. A key component of an Indiana rushing attack that went over 100 yards nine times and over 200 yards five times.

- As a freshman (2006), played in seven games starting six times. Started at left tackle for six straight contests, beginning with the Hoosiers' game against Wisconsin. In those six starts, the Hoosier running game topped 100 yards five times and averaged 138.5 per contest.

- Graduated in May 2010 with a public affairs management degree from Indiana.

PRO: The Titans signed offensive lineman Ty Sambrailo during the 2020 offseason to add depth and experience to the offensive front. The 6-foot-5-inch, 311-pounder was originally drafted by the Denver Broncos in the second round (59th overall) of the 2015 NFL Draft. He appeared in 57 games with 13 starts during his first five NFL seasons with the Broncos (2015-16) and the Atlanta Falcons (2017-19). He has primarily lined up at tackle during his NFL career, but does have some experience inside at guard.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Sambrailo is an avid skier who as a youth earned USSA titles in the slalom, giant slalom and super-G events for his age group.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Watsonville, Calif., native was selected by the Denver Broncos in the second round (59th overall) of the 2015 NFL Draft.
- Traded by the Broncos to the Atlanta Falcons in exchange for a 2018 fifth-round draft pick on Sept. 1, 2017.
- Released by the Falcons on March 16, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on March 25, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/0 - Tennessee):

- At Denver (9/14), saw action as a reserve at left tackle after Taylor Lewan left the game briefly late in the third quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), played as a reserve on field goal protection units.
- At Minnesota (9/27), saw significant action as a reserve at left tackle after Taylor Lewan left the game in the first quarter with an injury. Was a member of an offensive front that allowed the Titans to collect 134 yards on the ground. Pounced on a Ryan Tannehill fumble in the third quarter.

2019 (13/0 - Atlanta): Played as a reserve in 13 games. Hauled in a 35-yard touchdown catch, the longest touchdown reception by an offensive lineman since 1970. Was inactive for two contests and did not play in another game.

- At Tampa Bay (12/29), sprinted down the seam and snared a 35-yard touchdown pass from Matt Ryan in the opening quarter. His 35-yard score is the longest touchdown reception by an offensive lineman since 1970.

2018 (16/4 - Atlanta): Saw action in all 16 games for the first time in his career with four starts. Started three games at right tackle and one contest at left guard.

- At Tampa Bay (12/30), made his first career start at left guard in the regular season finale.

2017 (15/2, 2/0 - Atlanta): Played in 15 games with two starts at right tackle in his first season with the Falcons. Was inactive for one contest. Saw action as a reserve in his first two career postseason games.

- Against Green Bay (9/17), saw action in relief of injured right tackle Ryan Schraeder.
- At Detroit (9/24), made his first start for the Falcons at right tackle.

2016 (10/4 - Denver): Saw action in 10 games with four starts at right tackle in his second season with the Broncos. Was inactive for five contests and did not play in another game.

2015 (3/3 - Denver): As a rookie started the first three games of the season at left tackle. Was inactive for four games before being placed on injured reserve on Nov. 3, 2015.

- Against Baltimore (9/13), made his NFL debut as a starter at left tackle.
- At Detroit (9/27), started at left tackle but left the game with an injury.

COLLEGE:

- Started 42 of 48 games during his career at Colorado State, seeing time at all five positions along the offensive line in four seasons with the Rams.
- As a senior (2014), voted first-team All-Mountain West Conference after starting all 11 games played at left tackle. Graded out to 90 percent or above in every game while adding more than 60 knockdown blocks.
- As a junior (2013), started all 14 games at left tackle en route to earning second-team All-Mountain West honors. Helped block for Kapri Bibbs' school- and conference-record 31 rushing touchdowns.
- As a sophomore (2012), played 12 games with 10 starts, including at left tackle, left guard, right tackle and right guard. Played all five positions over the course of the season.
- As a redshirt freshman (2011), appeared in 11 games with seven starts at tackle and as an extra tight end.
- As a freshman (2010), redshirted.

98 JEFFERY SIMMONS

DEFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'4" • 305 LBS • COLLEGE: MISSISSIPPI STATE
ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: MACON, MISS.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 12/10 (PLAYOFFS: 3/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Jeffery Simmons with the 19th overall pick in the 2019 NFL Draft. Simmons began his rookie season on the non-football injury list due to a serious knee injury he suffered during training in February 2019. He missed the first six games of the season but was added to the 53-man roster in Week 7. He played a total of nine games (three starts) during the regular season and all three games in the playoffs. The 6-foot-4, 305-pound defensive lineman provides a rare blend of size, power and quickness. He was a first-team All-SEC selection as a sophomore and junior, adding second-team All-American as a junior. Following his junior season, he declared for the NFL Draft.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a rookie in 2019, Simmons totaled 40 tackles, two sacks, two tackles for loss, 14 quarterback pressures and one pass defended in nine games (seven starts). He added four tackles, three quarterback pressures and a fumble recovery in three playoff contests.
- As a junior in 2018, Simmons was named first-team All-SEC and second-team All-American after totaling 63 tackles, 17 tackles for loss and two sacks. His 17 tackles for loss led the team, ranked fourth in the SEC and were the third-most in single-season school history.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- During college Simmons was a two-time member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll.
- Simmons' brother, Dylan Bradley, played football at Southern Miss and then spent time with the Minnesota Vikings. His uncle, Jason Hatcher, played 10 total seasons with the Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins.
- Away from football, Simmons enjoys fishing and spending time outdoors.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Macon, Miss., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (19th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3): Has tied for the team lead in sacks once in 2020 (at MIN). Has tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures once in 2020 (at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), started at defensive tackle and collected four tackles and a fumble recovery. Gave the Titans offense great field position by recovering a Melvin Gordon III fumble that was forced by Kevin Byard at the Broncos' 23-yard line early in the second quarter. Finished off the Titans' goal-line stand in the second quarter by stuffing Jake Butt for no gain on a short pass on fourth down.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at defensive tackle and posted three tackles and a pass defended. Sealed the victory by deflecting a Gardner Minshew II pass that was intercepted by Harold Landry III with 47 seconds remaining in the game.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at defensive tackle and registered five tackles, including a sack, two stops for loss and two quarterback pressures. Ended a Vikings' drive by dropping Kirk Cousins for a six-yard sack on third-and-eight in the first quarter.

2019 (9/7, 3/0): Played in nine games with seven starts during his rookie campaign and collected 40 tackles, two sacks, 14 quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and a pass defended. Spent the first six weeks of the season on the non-football injury list. Saw action in all three postseason contests and notched four tackles, three quarterback pressures and a fumble recovery. Led or tied for the team lead in sacks twice (vs. LAC, at OAK). Tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures once (at HOU). Saw action in his first career game and registered his first career sack against the L.A. Chargers (10/20/19). Made his first career start against Tampa Bay (10/27/19).

- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), made his NFL debut as a reserve at defensive end and posted six tackles, including a sack, a stop for loss and two quarterback pressures. Teamed with Harold Landry to stonewall Melvin Gordon for a one-yard loss on a rush off right tackle in the opening quarter. Collected his first career sack by dropping Philip Rivers for a three-yard loss in the third quarter. Combined with Rashaan Evans to stop Gordon for no gain on first-and-goal during the final goal-line stand.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), notched his first career NFL start at defensive end and tallied four tackles and two quarterback pressures. Stonewalled Peyton Barber for no gain on a first-and-goal rush off right guard in the first quarter.
- At Indianapolis (12/1), started at defensive end and posted five tackles and three quarterback pressures. Teamed with Kamalei Correa to stuff Jonathan Williams for a two-yard loss on a rush off left end in the opening quarter.
- At Oakland (12/8), started at defensive end and amassed five tackles, including a sack and a stop for loss. Stuffed DeAndré Washington for a two-yard loss on a rush off left end late in the first quarter. Halted a Raiders' drive by sacking Derek Carr for a four-yard loss on third-and-two in the third quarter.
- Against Houston (12/15), started at defensive end and totaled four tackles, two quarterback pressures and a pass defended. Halted a potential Texans' scoring drive by deflecting a Deshaun Watson pass at the line of scrimmage that was then intercepted by Jayon Brown in the end zone.
- At Houston (12/29), played as a reserve on the defensive front and recorded three tackles and three quarterback pressures.
- At New England (1/4), saw action as a reserve on the defensive front in his first career postseason contest and posted two tackles and a quarterback pressure.
- At Baltimore (1/11), played as a reserve at defensive end and recorded two tackles, a fumble recovery and two quarterback pressures. Set up the Titans' final touchdown by recovering a Lamar Jackson fumble after a Jurrell Casey strip-sack midway through the third quarter.

COLLEGE:

- During a three-year career as a defensive tackle at Mississippi State, Simmons appeared in 38 contests with 28 starts. He finished his career ranked sixth in school history with 32.5 in tackles for loss. He also tied for sixth in MSU annals with five forced fumbles and tied for fourth with three blocked kicks. His totals also included 163 tackles, seven sacks, seven passes defended and two defensive touchdowns. He was one of two players in the nation to be named a Bednarik Award Semifinalist in both 2017 and 2018.
- As a junior (2018), appeared in 13 games with 12 starts. Led the team and ranked fourth in the SEC with 17 tackles for loss, which made up the third-highest total in school history. Tied for second in the SEC among defensive linemen with 63 total tackles and added a pair of sacks, one forced a fumble and four passes defended. Collected two or more tackles for loss in six different games and had at least one in nine contests. Named a Bednarik Award Semifinalist and won the 2018 Conerly Trophy by the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame and Museum as the top player in Mississippi. 81 JONNU SMITH

TIGHT END • 6'3" • 248 LBS • COLLEGE: FLORIDA INTERNATIONAL
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4
HOMETOWN: OCALA, FLA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 48/42 (PLAYOFFS: 5/4)

PRO: The Titans selected Jonnu Smith in the third round (100th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-3-inch, 248-pound tight end participated in every game as a rookie and ranked fifth among rookie tight ends in receptions (18). In 2018, he set then single-season career highs in every receiving category before having his second season cut short due to a knee injury. Smith played a pivotal role in the Titans' playoff berth in 2019, amassing career-highs with 35 receptions and 439 receiving yards. The Florida International product possesses the ability to flash after the catch and has the speed to attack all three levels of the field. He is also known for his strength and willingness to block in the run game.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Smith ranked fourth on the team with a career-best 35 receptions, third on the squad with a career-high 439 receiving yards and tied a career-best with three receiving touchdowns.
- In 2018, Smith set then single-season career highs in receptions (20), receiving yards (258), receiving long (61t), and receiving touchdowns (3) despite missing the final three contests due to injury. His three receiving touchdowns ranked second on the squad.
- During the 2017 regular season, Smith was one of three rookie tight ends to appear in all 16 games (Gerald Everett and David Njoku) and one of two rookie tight ends with at least 13 starts (O.J. Howard). His 18 receptions, which resulted in 157 yards and two touchdowns, ranked fifth among all rookie tight ends.
- Smith finished his career as Florida International's all-time leader for tight ends in receptions and receiving yards. Smith ended his career ranking fourth on the school's career receptions list and fifth on the program's receiving yardage list. His 18 career receiving touchdowns rank third in school annals.
- As a sophomore (2014), led all college tight ends with 61 receptions, 710 receiving yards and eight touchdown catches.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Smith credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself. "My mother is my rock. It was tough, but we always got what we needed—not necessarily what we wanted all the time—but what we needed. She was so strong all the time."
- Smith endured a lot of challenges as a youngster in Philadelphia and after his brother was arrested and one of his friends was killed on the streets, a decision needed to be made. His family didn't have the financial means to just uproot, so for his own safety Jonnu moved in with his mother's sister and brother-in-law, Darla and Mike Kirkland, in Ocala, Fla. He started playing high school football and even though he was far from a touted recruit, he earned a scholarship to Florida International where his play took off.
- Smith's best friend Willie "Quasim" Jefferson tragically died from a gun shot in October 2016. Jonnu gave his son the middle name Quasim in honor of him.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Philadelphia, Pa., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (100th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3): Leads the team with three receiving touchdowns. Ranks second on the squad with 181 receiving yards and third on the club with 13 receptions. Has led the team in receiving yards once in 2020 (vs. JAX).

Has tied for the team lead in receptions once in 2020 (at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), started at tight end and snared four catches for 36 yards with a touchdown. Gave the Titans a 13-7 lead with a one-yard touchdown reception on fourth-and-goal early in the fourth quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at tight end and led the team with a career-best 84 receiving yards on four catches with a career-high two touchdowns. Opened the game with a career-long 63-yard catch off play action down the left sideline down to the Jaguars' 14-yard line on the first play from scrimmage. Gave the Titans an early 7-0 lead with a leaping 13-yard touchdown catch early in the first stanza. Drew a 22-yard pass interference penalty on third-and-four during the Titans' third touchdown drive. Got open over the middle and hauled in a four-yard touchdown reception on third-and-four late in the second quarter.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at tight end and tied for the team lead with five catches for 61 yards. Kickstarted the Titans' first scoring drive in the third quarter with a 21-yard catch over the middle. Eclipsed the 1,000-yard career receiving mark with his 21-yard grab in the third quarter. Hauled in two receptions for 25 yards during the Titans' game-winning scoring drive in the fourth quarter.

2019 (16/14, 3/3): Saw action in all 16 games with 14 starts at tight end and ranked fourth on the team with a career-best 35 receptions and third on the squad with a career-high 439 receiving yards. Notched three receiving touchdowns. Rushed four times for 78 yards. Started all three postseason contests and tied for the team lead with six catches for 59 yards with a touchdown. Led or tied for the team lead in receptions three times in 2019 (vs. TB, vs. KC, at BAL). Led the team in receiving yards twice in 2019 (vs. BUF, vs. TB).

- At Cleveland (9/8), started at tight end in his return to the lineup and snared one reception for seven yards. Recorded his first career rush for 10 yards.
- Against Buffalo (10/6), started at tight end and caught one pass for 57 yards. Snared a screen pass and sprinted 57 yards to the Buffalo 21-yard line late in the third quarter.
- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), started at tight end and caught three passes for a then career-best 64 receiving yards. Kickstarted the Titans' opening scoring drive with a 24-yard reception on the team's first play from scrimmage. Rumbled for a 35-yard gain on a short pass early in the third quarter.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), started at tight end and led the team with a career-high-tying six catches and a career-best 78 receiving yards with a touchdown. Gave the Titans a 7-3 lead with a five-yard touchdown grab in the first quarter. Kickstarted the Titans' second quarter scoring drive with a 26-yard catch over the middle.
- Against Kansas City (11/10), started at tight end and led the team with four catches for 30 yards.
- Against Jacksonville (11/24), started at tight end and rushed once for four yards. Set up the Titans' second touchdown by drawing a 16-yard pass interference penalty in the end zone on a pass from Derrick Henry in the third quarter.
- At Oakland (12/8), started at tight end and caught three passes for 29 yards with a touchdown. Made an acrobatic 17-yard touchdown catch in the back of the end zone for a 35-21 lead early in the fourth quarter.
- Against Houston (12/15), started at tight end and posted five catches for 60 yards to go along with a 57-yard rush which is the longest run by a tight end in the NFL since 1976. Set up the Titans' second touchdown with a 57-yard run off right end on the first play of the fourth quarter.
- Against New Orleans (12/22), played as a reserve at tight end and snared three passes for 63 yards with a touchdown. Got open over the middle and hauled in 41-yard touchdown pass giving the Titans a 7-0 lead in the first quarter. Tied his career high with his third touchdown reception of the season.

- At New England (1/4), started at tight end and caught one pass for nine yards.
- At Baltimore (1/11), started at tight end and tied for the team lead with two catches for 12 yards with a touchdown. Gave the Titans a 7-0 lead with an acrobatic 12-yard touchdown grab in the corner of the end zone on third-and-12 in the first quarter.
- At Kansas City (1/19), started at tight end and snared three receptions for 38 yards. Set up the Titans' first touchdown with a 22-yard reception down to the Chiefs' four-yard line in the first quarter.

2018 (13/12): Played in 13 games with 12 starts at tight end and snared 20 receptions for 258 yards. Finished second on the team with three receiving touchdowns. Placed on injured reserve on Dec. 11, 2018 and missed the final three games. Led the team in receptions once in 2018 (at IND). Tied for the team lead in receiving yards once in 2018 (at IND).

- At Miami (9/9), started at tight end and caught one pass for 12 yards. Extended the Titans' final scoring drive with a 12-yard catch on third-and-10 late in the fourth quarter.
- At Los Angeles Chargers in London (10/21), started at tight end and snared two passes for 11 yards.
- At Dallas (11/5), started at tight end and snared two receptions for 33 yards with a touchdown. Hauled in a 26-yard pass early in the third quarter. Gave the Titans a 21-14 lead with a seven-yard touchdown on a shovel pass in the third quarter.
- Against New England (11/11), started at tight end and collected three receptions for a career-best 45 yards with a touchdown. Gave the Titans an early 7-0 lead with a four-yard touchdown reception in the back of the end zone in the first quarter. Got the Titans' third scoring drive started with a 29-yard reception down the right sideline.
- At Indianapolis (11/18), started at tight end and led the team with a career-high six catches for a team-high-tying 44 receiving yards.
- At Houston (11/26), started at tight end and grabbed two receptions for 63 yards with a touchdown. Gave the Titans an early 10-0 lead with a 61-yard touchdown reception in the first quarter.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/2), played as a reserve at tight end and caught two passes for 29 yards.
- Against Jacksonville (12/6), started at tight end and left the game midway through the second quarter with an injury.

2017 (16/13, 2/1): Played in all 16 games with 13 starts at tight end in his rookie campaign and snared 18 receptions for 157 yards with a pair of touchdowns. Saw action in both postseason contests with one start and grabbed three passes for 19 yards. Led or tied for the team lead in receptions twice (at MIA, vs. JAX). Registered his first career receiving touchdown at Jacksonville (9/17/17). Appeared in his first career NFL game and made his first career start against Oakland (9/10/17).

- Against Oakland (9/10), started at tight end in his NFL debut.
- At Jacksonville (9/17), started at tight end and snared two receptions for 30 yards, including his first career receiving touchdown. Gave the Titans a 30-3 lead with a 32-yard touchdown on a screen pass with 9:57 remaining in the fourth quarter.
- Against Seattle (9/24), started at tight end and caught a 24-yard touchdown pass. Helped block for Titans' ball carriers to collect 195 rushing yards on 35 carries (5.6 avg.). Increased the Titans lead to 23-14 with a 24-yard touchdown catch on a wheel route with 3:50 left to play in the third quarter.
- At Miami (10/8), started at tight end and led the team with five catches for 21 yards.
- Against Jacksonville (12/31), started at tight end and tied for the team lead with three receptions for 12 yards.
- At Kansas City (1/6), started at tight end and grabbed two receptions for 15 yards in his first career postseason game. Converted a critical third down with a 10-yard catch on third-and-two during the Titans' game-winning touchdown drive in the fourth quarter.
- At New England (1/13), played as a reserve at tight end and notched one catch for four yards before leaving the game late in the third quarter with an injury.

COLLEGE:

- In four seasons at Florida International (2013-16), Smith appeared in 43 career games and tallied 178 receptions for 2,001 yards with 18 touchdowns.
- As a senior (2016), started in 11 games for the Panthers and was a second team, All-Conference USA honoree. Caught 42 passes for 506 yards and four touchdowns. Became the fifth player in Florida International history to register over 2,000 yards receiving during a career (2,001 yards). Finished his career registering at least one reception in every game he played (43-straight – second-most in school history).
- As a junior (2015), started eight games for the Panthers and recorded 36 catches for 397 yards and four touchdowns. Finished fourth on the team in receptions, third in receiving yards and second in receiving touchdowns. Missed the final four games of the season due to injury.
- As a sophomore (2014), appeared and started in all 12 games for the Panthers and earned first team All-Conference USA honors. Led Florida International with 710 yards on 61 catches and eight touchdowns. Also led all tight ends nationally in touchdowns, receiving yards and receptions. Set the school record for tight ends in receiving yards, touchdowns and receptions and his eight receiving touchdowns broke the previous school season-best of seven set by T.Y. Hilton (2008, 2011) and Cory McKinney (2002). The 710 receiving yards ranked seventh all-time at FIU for a season and his 61 catches were tied for fourth in a single year.
- As a freshman (2013), started all 12 games as a true freshman and earned All-Conference USA honorable mention honors as well as a spot on the league's All-Freshmen team. Led all Florida International players with 39 receptions for 388 yards and was the only FIU receiver to have a catch in all 12 games. Either led or tied for the team-lead in receptions or receiving yards in eight of 12 games. Was the first true freshman to lead the team in receptions and receiving yards since T.Y. Hilton in 2008.
- Majored in liberal studies at Florida International.

23 TYE SMITH

CORNERBACK • 6'0" • 195 LBS • COLLEGE: TOWSON

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 5/4

HOMETOWN: RALEIGH, N.C.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 31/4 (PLAYOFFS: 5/2)

PRO: The Titans added free agent cornerback Tye Smith to the roster during the 2017 offseason to provide competition and flexibility in the secondary. The 6-foot, 195-pounder made the Titans' roster out of training camp in 2017 and set then career-highs with 11 tackles, an interception and eight special teams tackles. He spent the entire 2018 campaign on injured reserve, but bounced back to make a career-best 24 tackles in 2019. Smith entered the league as the Seattle Seahawks fifth-round pick (170th overall) in the 2015 NFL Draft. He spent the 2016 season on the Seahawks and Washington practice squads.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Smith saw action in nine games and collected a career-best 24 tackles. He produced some big plays during the season, including a 63-yard touchdown return of a blocked field goal at Indianapolis and a forced fumble that was returned 47 yards by Jayon Brown at Oakland.
- In 2017, Smith played in a career-high 15 games in his first season with the Titans and posted 11 tackles, an interception and eight special teams stops.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In the spring of 2018, Smith hosted his first "Simple Greatness" youth football clinic at St. Augustine University in his hometown of Raleigh, N.C. Smith says Simple Greatness to him means, "It can't be measured. It means heart, dedication. It's all the intangibles that we as a society overlook because we look so much at things we can measure." Fellow NFL players Todd Gurley II, Jamison Crowder and Keith Marshall were special guest coaches.
- Smith enjoys volunteering his free time in the community and he helped raise money for Habitat for Humanity in 2018 with a bowling event and kids field day activity in his hometown of Raleigh, N.C.
- In May 2019, Smith held the second annual Simple Greatness Football Camp, hosting 300 kids for the free camp in Raleigh.
- He has his own website, www.simplegns.com.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Raleigh, N.C. native was selected by the Seattle Seahawks in the fifth round (170th overall) of the 2015 NFL Draft.
- Waived by the Seahawks on Sept. 3, 2016.
- Signed by the Seahawks to the team's practice squad on Sept. 8, 2016.
- Waived by the Seahawks on Sept. 20, 2016.
- Signed by Washington to the team's practice squad on Sept. 27, 2016.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Jan. 1, 2017.
- Re-signed by the Titans as a free agent on March 17, 2019.
- Waived by the Titans on Nov. 2, 2019 and re-signed by the Titans on Nov. 5, 2019.
- Re-signed by the Titans as a free agent on April 21, 2019.
- Released by the Titans on Sept. 5, 2020 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Sept. 14, 2020.

17 RYAN TANNEHILL

QUARTERBACK • 6'4" • 217 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS A&M
ACQUIRED: TRADE (MIA) - 2019
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/2 • HOMETOWN: BIG SPRING, TEXAS
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 103/101 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

Pro Bowl: 2019

Captain: 2020

PRO: The Titans traded for Ryan Tannehill in the 2019 offseason, bringing an experienced, veteran leader to the team. He took control as the team's starting quarterback by midseason and subsequently led the Titans to the playoffs and an AFC championship game appearance. In the process, he set single-season franchise records and led the NFL with a 117.5 passer rating and a passing average of 9.6 yards per attempt. His play led to his first career Pro Bowl appearance. He was rewarded with a multi-year contract extension in March 2020. Tannehill spent his first seven seasons as a member of the Miami Dolphins after being selected in the first round of the 2012 NFL Draft. He started 88 games over six seasons in South Florida and accumulated 20,434 passing yards and 123 touchdown passes. The Texas A&M product has also shown mobility as a signal caller, having rushed for 1,395 career yards and 10 touchdowns through 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In his first season in Tennessee, Tannehill led the Titans to a 9-4 combined record as a starter in the regular season and playoffs and won the NFL Comeback Player of the Year Award. He earned his first Pro Bowl invitation after leading the NFL in passer rating (117.5) and passing average (9.6 yards per attempt) and ranking third in completion percentage (70.3). He set club records in all three categories.
- He was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2019 after completing 90 of 132 passes for 1,322 yards with 12 touchdowns and two interceptions. His passer rating for the calendar month was 124.6, which led the AFC.
- Tannehill made his first career playoff appearance at the conclusion of the 2019 campaign and helped lead the Titans to a wild card win at New England and a divisional round victory at Baltimore.
- During his seven seasons (2012-18) in Miami, Tannehill passed for at least 3,000 yards four times and more than 4,000 yards twice. He totaled 16 career 300-yard passing games, which is the second-most in Dolphins history.
- Tannehill engineered 17 career fourth-quarter comebacks during the first eight seasons of his career.
- In 2015, Tannehill posted 4,208 passing yards with 24 touchdowns and set a then-NFL record with 25 consecutive completions. His 4,208 passing yards was the fifth-highest single-season total in Dolphins history and most by a Dolphins quarterback other than Dan Marino.
- In 2014, Tannehill passed for 4,045 yards with 27 touchdowns for a 92.8 passer rating. He registered a career-best 311 rushing yards with a touchdown. His 392 completions were the most in Dolphins history.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Ryan founded the Tannehill's A.C.E.S. (Achieving Community Educations Success) program with wife, Lauren, which consisted of 17 sophomores from American Senior High School and is focused on awarding scholarships to the participating students who strive for good grades and took on an active role in their community by hosting monthly events to reward the students and help them give back to the community.
- Ryan's father, Tim, played wide receiver at Texas Tech from 1985-87.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Big Spring, Texas, native was originally selected by the Miami Dolphins in the first round (eighth overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Traded by the Dolphins to the Titans along with a 2019 sixth-round pick for a 2019 seventh-round draft pick and a 2020 fourth-round draft choice on March 15, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/3 - Tennessee): Ranks fourth in the AFC with a 105.8 passer rating. Has engineered 19 career game-winning drives (including the playoffs), defined as when the team trailed or was tied in the fourth quarter or overtime, including three in 2020 (at DEN, vs. JAX, at MIN). Has posted 31 career games with a 100.0 or better passer rating, including one in 2020 (vs. JAX). Has registered 20 career games with at least 300 passing yards, including one in 2020 (at MIN). Has registered 18 career games with three or more touchdown passes, including one in 2020 (vs. JAX).

• Against Jacksonville (9/20), made his 100th career regular season start at quarterback and completed 18 of 24 passes for 239 yards with a career-high tying four touchdown passes for a 145.7 passer rating. Marked his second-highest career passer rating in a game with a minimum of 20 attempts. Rushed four times for 12 yards. Opened the game with a 63-yard play-action toss to Jonnu Smith down the left sideline on the first play from scrimmage. Gave the Titans an early 7-0 lead with a 13-yard touchdown pass to Smith early in the first stanza. Extended the Titans' second touchdown drive with a 14-yard strike to Anthony Firkser on third-and-six in the first quarter. Increased the lead to 14-0 with a nine-yard touchdown pass to Corey Davis in the first stanza. Kept the Titans' third touchdown drive alive with a five-yard toss to Adam Humphries on third-and-three. Found Smith for a four-yard touchdown connection on third-and-four late in the second quarter. Reached 150 career touchdown passes on his third touchdown pass of the day. Stood in the pocket and took a hit to deliver an 18-yard touchdown pass to Humphries on third-and-nine late in the third quarter.

• At Minnesota (9/27), started at quarterback and completed 23 of 37 passes for 321 yards with an interception. Rushed four times for nine yards. Set up the Titans' opening field goal with a 44-yard connection to Kalif Raymond down the left sideline in the first quarter. Found Corey Davis over the middle for a 38-yard gain setting up Derrick Henry's first touchdown in the third quarter. Set up Henry's second touchdown with a 61-yard bomb to Raymond down to the Vikings' four-yard line late in the third quarter. 24 KENNY VACCARO

SAFETY • 6'0" • 214 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 8/3

HOMETOWN: BROWNWOOD, TEXAS

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 100/99 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans signed free agent Kenny Vaccaro during the 2018 training camp after then-starter Johnathan Cyprien suffered a season-ending injury during practice, and re-signed him to a multi-year contract during the 2019 offseason. The former 2013 first-round pick arrived in Nashville after five years as a starter with the New Orleans Saints. In 97 career games with 96 starts during his first seven seasons, the University of Texas product totaled 656 tackles, 10 interceptions, 10.5 sacks, five forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries. The Brownwood, Texas, native has recorded three seasons with at least 100 tackles including 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, he recorded his third season with at least 100 tackles. His 104 tackles in 2019 marked the third-best total of his career, and ranked fourth on the team. Vaccaro made his postseason debut in 2019 and started all three games where he totaled 19 tackles and one interception.
- Vaccaro posted an interception in his first game as a Titan in 2018.
- In 2017, he registered a career-best three interceptions while with New Orleans.
- In 2015, Vaccaro started all 16 games for the first time and set career-highs with 136 tackles, three sacks, two forced fumbles and his first career fumble recovery.
- In 2014, he posted his first season with at least 100 tackles (113).
- In 2013, Vaccaro was named to the PFWA All-Rookie team after collecting 93 tackles, a sack, an interception, six passes defended and a forced fumble.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Vaccaro traveled to Kenya during the 2016 offseason with former Texas and Saints teammate Alex Okafor and is involved in community and fundraising efforts to construct a school in the region.
- Vaccaro's uncle, A.J. Johnson, played for the Washington Redskins (1989-94), helping them to Super Bowl XXVI win before spending a season with the San Diego Chargers (1995).
- Vaccaro founded the Kenny Vaccaro Foundation to provide economically-challenged students with literacy and education resources so that they can achieve academic excellence, develop confident personal skills, and make positive decisions to avoid high risk behavior.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Brownwood, Texas, native was originally selected by the New Orleans Saints in the first round (15th overall) of the 2013 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Aug. 4, 2018.

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

AMY ADAMS STRUNK BROUGHT HER FATHER'S TEAM BACK TO LIFE

BY BRUCE SCHOENFELD
ESPN W
NOVEMBER 5, 2018

SHE'S STUCK IN traffic, a side effect of the explosive growth that makes Nashville, Tennessee, an enticing place to own an NFL team. By the time Amy Adams Strunk arrives at Nissan Stadium, it's only an hour before kickoff, so she heads straight to the field.

Right away, it starts. "Miss Amy!"

A ruddy-complexioned man in his 30s, wearing a deep blue Tennessee Titans jersey and a lanyard around his neck, is waving like a traffic cop. One of several dozen season-ticket holders randomly chosen to spend the pregame on the Titans' sideline, he has spotted his team's owner and can't help shouting. It's like he already knew her, he'll say.

That's later, after the selfie with her arm around him and the embrace she gives his wife, two devoted Titans fans she'd never met. From there, she's on to another couple, and a 6-year-old boy she bends down to talk with eye to eye. "We love you," the wife says.

There's a man in the front row of the stands holding a sign claiming he has come all the way from France. She strides over to find out more. "Bonjour," she says. He looks at her with a quizzical expression, like, "Why is this woman talking to me?"

"That's the owner," someone tells him.

His eyes get wide. "Of the team?"

She's at the Titans' bench, visiting with Mike Vrabel, her head coach, when someone on the field shouts her name. It's kicker Ryan Succop, standing at the 50. When Succop pulls her close for a bear hug, she disappears for a moment.

From there, Adams Strunk walks toward the sideline to greet the Glazer brothers, Joel and Bryan. They own the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Tennessee's opponent on this August evening. And it seems that, like most NFL owners, they don't know quite what to make of her.

Really, who can blame them? Owners typically make a fortune, then buy a team. Or else they put in years working in football as the family business, which it has been across generations for Rooneys and Bidwills, Maras and McCaskeys, Browns and DeBartolos, and lately Irsays and Krafts and, indeed, Glazers.

Adams Strunk, instead, spent her early professional years as the owner of a few car dealerships and some oil interests that her father, former owner Bud Adams, had given her. She has a passion for horses and she's quite a tennis player. She has raised two girls and a boy, who seem like admirable people. But she hadn't worked a day in the sport when she gained control of the Titans in 2015.

"They look at me," says Adams Strunk, now 63, "and they're probably thinking, 'What does she know? She doesn't know anything. She doesn't have a business degree. She hasn't been in football. How is she going to make a go of this? We want our partners to have a certain background, and she definitely doesn't have it.'" She pauses. "I mean, I get that."

Unlike the Glazers, who apprenticed under their father, Malcolm, and inherited the Bucs when he died, Adams Strunk wrested control of this $2 billion franchise from her sister and brother-in-law because she was determined that it be run well. She did it because she felt obliged to protect the memory of Bud Adams -- even though he hadn't wanted her anywhere near his football team. Since then, the Titans have improved dramatically. From 2-14, they came within a game of the AFC Championship Game last season. Their ties to Nashville today run deeper than they ever have.

In just three years, Amy Adams Strunk rescued her father's legacy. And she did it by taking almost everything she watched him do as an owner and turning it upside down.

BUD ADAMS ISN'T in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, but he ought to be. When Lamar Hunt couldn't entice anyone to sell him an NFL team and instead started a competing league, Adams was his first call. "I'm in," said Adams, who was in the process of getting rich in oil. That was the AFL, which opened for business in 1960.

Before his Houston Oilers played a game, Adams wooed Billy Cannon, the reigning Heisman Trophy winner and best-known football player in America. After dinner at the family home, Adams sent his wife and three children to bed and got down to bidness. Pouring a drink, he asked Cannon what could convince him to spurn the NFL. "That sure is a nice car out there in the driveway," the halfback drawled. He meant the white Cadillac convertible Bud had given wife Nancy for her birthday just a few days before.

Sure enough, when Nancy came down in the morning to drive the kids to school, the car had vanished. "Billy wanted it," Adams shrugged, displaying in three words both his determination to succeed and his valuation of a woman's worth in the world.

Cannon was named MVP in each of the first two AFL title games. The Oilers, not incidentally, won both.

Those were the only championships they ever won. But the franchise grew exponentially, from a shoestring startup to a valuation of hundreds of millions of dollars. "Amy's daddy was a role model and a wannabe of mine, not just a great owner but a great businessman," says Jerry Jones of the Dallas Cowboys, who used to linger in the hallways outside AFL meetings, hoping to get a word with Adams.

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

Adams ran his franchise like a quarterback runs a huddle. He demanded to make every decision, not just whom to draft but whether to repair the fax machine. That level of control applied even to his son and heir apparent, Kenneth III. As for his two daughters, he wouldn't let them work for the team. "He thought that women were unable to reach a serious understanding of the game," says Steve Underwood, who worked under Adams as a lawyer and team executive for more than three decades. There was a reason, Adams believed, that every general manager in the NFL was a man. "Women could never be capable of understanding things like sizing up men to be head coaches," is how Underwood characterizes Adams' thinking. "How could a woman possibly be capable of that?"

That was fine with Amy. "I never saw myself in football," she says, sitting in her office under an oil painting of former Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini. "It wasn't the life I wanted. My dad could be very charming, and there were times he was a great father. But he was very hard. He wouldn't have brought me along, 'Someday I want you to run the team.' Nooooo. It would have been about control."

As the years passed, Adams found ways to thwart his son's progress. Ken yearned for his approval, but Adams mistrusted most those he knew best. Amy and her sister, Susie, would get on the phone and commiserate. "We'd say, 'Poor Ken.' We were just glad it wasn't us."

Still, Amy wasn't prepared for the call one June morning in 1987. Ken's wife had come through their garage door with the couple's 3-year-old and 7-month-old children and the dog. She found her husband, then 29, in a puddle of blood, a gun beside him. "He was crushed by the pressure," Amy says.

Ken's suicide hit her hard. She plunged into depression, talking about her brother every day for years, obsessing over whether she should have seen the signs. In 1990, she and her husband divorced.

Bud reacted differently. "He shut down," Amy says. "And after Ken died, his obsession with control ramped up."

Amy stepped away. Years passed. She met and married a cattle breeder named Tim Strunk, and gave her daughter and son a half-sister. Life seemed idyllic with Tim and the little ones until the morning in 1997 when he left to take a load of cattle to auction. He was struck by an 18-wheeler three miles from home and died at the scene.

This time, family sustained her. Her sister closed ranks. Her parents did what they could. And she found solace in football, losing herself in the passion of her team. "I was Superfan," she says.

But that was changing, too.

BY 1997, BUD ADAMS had abandoned Houston's decrepit Astrodome and moved the Oilers to Nashville. In his mind, though, the Titans remained the Oilers, with different uniforms and a new stadium just a quick flight away. He made no effort to meet fans or connect with the city. "He didn't want to spend his time doing that," Underwood says. "In his mind, he had people to do that."

That was fine while the Titans were winning. But as their fortunes faded following the Super Bowl season of 1999, what had never been a torrid love affair became a marriage of convenience. As Adams grew older, and then old, he became detached. By the time he died in 2013, the Titans were in disarray. "The team was a mess," Amy says. "My dad's later years, things kind of fell off the wagon."

The Titans hadn't won a playoff game in a decade. The facilities, once state-of-the-art, were showing wear. "Nobody knew what was going on," recalls Phil Bredesen, who helped bring the team to Nashville as the city's mayor and later served as Tennessee's governor. "There was just a sense of lots of stuff not getting done. The details of that don't leak out, but the effects of it do."

Worse, perhaps, the franchise had lost relevance. Folksy Nashville, with its spicy fried chicken and throwback Grand Ole Opry, had grown into one of America's most enticing destinations. The Predators were the hot ticket, along with the country acts that played Broadway each night. Conventioneers congregated. Tourism numbers soared. The Titans seemed shabby, dated, a vestige of the previous generation. "You'd see more Vols shirts than Titans shirts at Titans games," insists Nathan Followill, drummer for the Nashville-based band Kings of Leon and a season-ticket holder, referencing the state university's Tennessee Volunteers.

"When you have so many years of going downhill, it becomes less and less important to people," Underwood explains. "Amy saw that. She wanted to change direction."

But Amy wasn't in charge. Tommy Smith, Susie's husband, had worked for the team for years. Long before he died in October 2013, Adams had created a trust that allocated a third of his assets to Susie, a third to Amy, a third to his late son's family. Tommy would run the team with the others as silent partners. "We were all on board with it," says Kenneth Adams IV, Ken's son, who also had started working for the Titans.

Following in his father-in-law's footsteps, Tommy was Bud Lite. Ownership meant absolute control. As the losses accumulated during that 2014 season, Amy made suggestions. When they were rebuffed without consideration, she started to wonder if there might be a better way. "We weren't working it out as a family," she says. "It was just another dictatorship."

The team finished 2-14, the worst record in Titans history. "This was our chance to start fixing everything that had gone wrong during my father's last years," Amy says.

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

"Tommy wasn't doing that." The NFL is a league of constant adaptation, she believes. The Titans hadn't adapted. "The offenses, the defenses, the business part of it," she says. "If it ain't broke, sure, don't fix it. But if it is broke, you better get in there and figure out what to do."

That winter, Amy spent New Year's Eve at the family ranch in central Texas. Late at night, over a glass of wine that wasn't her first, she asked Barclay Adams, Kenneth IV's brother, if their family was satisfied with the way the team was being run. Barclay hesitated, and Amy wondered what she'd gotten herself into. Then Barclay said, "No, we aren't."

"Then we need to talk," Amy told him.

It turned out Kenneth had been having similar conversations with Tommy, with similar results. "We didn't see an end in sight," Kenneth says now. "You going to move off from that coach?" "No, I'm good with him." "You going to move off from that GM?" "No, we're good."

"I don't want this to be a mark on our names," Amy told him. Kenneth agreed. Together, they expressed their concern to Tommy and Susie. They asked if someone from one of the other two families could have a seat at the table. "We were talking for a month or six weeks," Amy says. "I was still hopeful that Susie, as controlling owner, would come around. If it's truly a family operation, why did the other two-thirds have no say? All the power had coalesced right there in Tommy and Susie. And that was proving not to be a good thing."

Together, Amy and Kenneth knew, their shares constituted a majority. "But I don't think it ever dawned on them," Amy says of Tommy and Susie. "It never occurred to them that we were unhappy enough to do anything. Or that I had a willingness to try to make it happen if they wouldn't."

By March, Amy and Kenneth had had enough. They decided to oust

Tommy as president. "I felt bad," Amy says. "But we'd given him 18 months. He'd had his opportunity." In a statement on the Titans' website, Tommy announced that he was leaving as president and CEO because juggling his family and professional duties had proved too difficult. Then he and Susie disappeared from sight.

Underwood was summoned out of retirement to run the team as president and CEO. And Amy went to work.

"YOU HAVE TO bring them along slowly," Adams Strunk explains. She's crouched in the dirt, dragging a metal bar just far enough from a jump so a horse can gauge where he needs to land. Moments later, here comes Rowan, who weighs as much as three linemen combined. He approaches the barricade and canters over. "That's g-o-o-o-d," she enthuses.

She'd returned home to Houston after college (a year at Pine Manor near Boston, the rest at the University of Texas in Austin) and worked as a travel agent. Soon enough, she abandoned city living for a 4,000-acre family ranch off a two-lane road on the edge of Harris County. She started training riders and grooming horses. Bud and Nancy told everyone she'd be back in a month. She's still there, except when she isn't. Lately that means extended time in Nashville, where she now owns a home with her husband, a retired airline pilot.

Horses and football have been the threads running through her life. She has ridden since childhood, competing until she fell off once too often. "At my age," Adams Strunk says, "you don't want to be doing that." She made businesses out of breeding and raising horses, stabling, even staging fox hunts in the wild. It wasn't running a major corporation or a hedge fund, but there were lessons to be learned there in the dirt. "When you do horses, at whatever level, you have an ownership view," says Debbie Phillips, the widow of the former Oilers coach Bum Phillips, who met

Adams Strunk while training cutting horses in the 1980s. "Bum was always surprised at how well I could assess the talent on the field. Amy does exactly the same thing. She has that ownership eye."

"I can't go back on my business experience like some owners -- you know, 'I've done it this way in the past,'" Adams Strunk says, sitting with a glass of water at a wood-block island the size of a flatbed truck in her kitchen. "But I can go back on my personal experience. Maybe it's a wild, crazy horse, and you just learn that if you work it enough, he'll come around. Whatever. What happened was, over all those years, I became confident that if something needed to be done, I could do it. I'm not afraid to make hard decisions."

It didn't take long before she needed to. When the Titans started poorly in 2015, she fired head coach Ken Whisenhunt and replaced him with assistant Mike Mularkey. "The offense was a great offense for Philip Rivers, but we just didn't have the players to make it work," she says. It wasn't the losing as much as the need to keep franchise QB Marcus Mariota ambulatory. "I approach things practically," she says. "And the practical part of this was, in that offense, Marcus was likely to get hurt."

She knew the firing might define her as an owner into the future. "If it doesn't work out," she said to herself, "this will be on you forever." Underwood cautioned against it. "You make a change like that in the middle of the season," he'd said, "most of the time it doesn't work out well." But she had spent her life watching football, and she understood what she was watching. "I just knew somehow," she says, "that it was the right thing to do."

After that 2015 season, Adams Strunk fired GM Ruston Webster. Around the league, it was assumed that she'd use a recruiting firm or consultant to find a replacement, a practice that has become common. Instead, Underwood and Kenneth Adams helped her compile a list of possibilities. Then she researched them online.

Jon Robinson had run college scouting for the New England Patriots. He seemed unconventional, especially when he sat down to a vegan lunch during his interview. He wasn't yet 40. And he was the most candid of the candidates, insisting that minor tweaks would not reverse the decline. "The system's broken," he said. "That's the reason you're not winning. It's broke and you need to fix it."

It was what Adams Strunk longed to hear. "Everything he was saying, Kenneth and I already knew," she says. "Now here was someone who wasn't afraid to say it. By the time he left the interview, I just knew that he was our guy."

Less than a year into her first job in football, she'd fired and hired both a coach and a GM. She wasn't sure why, but the path forward seemed clear. "I'm a big believer in osmosis," Jerry Jones explains. "If you're around an activity for as long as Amy has been, you're soaking it up. You develop instincts. That's what I see in Amy. I can tell from her logic, the way she approaches problems. She knows what she's doing."

IN TWO YEARS, Robinson ran off two-thirds of the team. The Titans improved to 9-7 in 2016, then repeated that last season. They won their playoff game at Kansas City in miraculous fashion 22-21.

That showed how far they'd come. Getting steamrolled by the Patriots the next week showed how far they had to go. It made another hard decision that much easier. "I just thought we'd reached the ceiling," says Adams Strunk, who fired Mularkey a week after the Titans' season ended. "In Nashville, people understood. Outside, it was probably like, 'She's nuts.'"

Change is the theme whenever a new coach is hired, but players often remain dubious. "If they walk into the same building," Robinson says, "if they sit down at the same locker and everything looks the same, they look around at each other and they're like, 'What's changed?'"

The Titans arrived at their training facility this summer and found new blue uniforms in their lockers. After years of wear, the turf beneath the practice bubble had been replaced. So had the bubble itself. The locker room had been reconfigured so the entire team can see each other. "When you walk in the building now, it resonates," Robinson says. "These ain't the same old Titans. It was very cool of her to write that check."

They ain't the same old Titans because Adams Strunk isn't the same owner. "I worked with her dad for many, many years in the league," says Amy Trask, the former Oakland Raiders CEO. "Amy's style is clearly different." Bud Adams had no problem signing players to huge contracts, but considered upgrading facilities a needless expense. If a building was two decades old, well, he figured it ought to last another eight. "That's not me," Adams Strunk says. "We needed to come out of the dark ages and adapt to how things work now."

The players noticed. "Actions speak louder than words," says Taylor Lewan, the left tackle. "She put vents in here so our pads cool down and don't get all gross and moldy. It shows that she really cares." Lewan was sure that once he reached the pros, he'd be little more than a number. "I'd already felt that in college," he says. "For her to come in and be excited to see me, to give me a hug when I'm all sweaty in my pads, it does something," he says.

But who'd guess that such warmth might pay off in tangible terms? A week into training camp, Lewan signed an $80 million contract, the largest ever for an offensive lineman. He could have cashed in most anywhere, but he decided to stay because he felt wanted. "It was the way Amy talks with my wife when she sees her," he says one afternoon after a weight-room session. "The way she takes time to show that she cares about me as a person. Every time she sees me, she'll ask, 'How's Taylin? How's Wynne?' our daughter."

He pauses and looks around the locker room. "The new facilities are great and all," he says. "But I'm a physical guy. I love to show affection. So she's the perfect owner for me."

And also, it appears, for Nashville, which appreciates connecting with an owner more than a larger market might. With the help of Adams Strunk's outreach, the Titans are hot again. A crowd of more than 30,000 attended the downtown party unveiling the new uniforms, a remarkable turnout that led the NFL to award the city its 2019 draft. For the first time, fans say, their hometown team is truly theirs.

None of it will mean much, Adams Strunk knows, if the team can't contend. "I'm warm, I like to show people how I feel, that's who I am," she says. "But I also have no problem doing whatever it takes to win. That is definitely my priority." For guidance, she consults with her inner circle: Kenneth Adams, Underwood and, increasingly, Robinson. Then she'll go outside it and hear as many relevant perspectives as she can get.

The options will be weighed by a committee of one. In that sense, at least, she is her father's daughter.

"The final decision," she says, "is mine."

HALL OF FAME QB WARREN MOON: TITANS OWNER AMY ADAMS STRUNK HAS MADE THE OILERS “FEEL LIKE THEY ARE PART OF SOMETHING”

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
FEBRUARY 20, 2019

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Amy Adams Strunk was an enthusiastic fan of the Houston Oilers when quarterback Warren Moon arrived with the franchise back in 1984.

The daughter of late Titans owner and founder Bud Adams, Strunk was fond of the team’s players, her heroes, and the success of the Oilers made her father happy. Led by Moon, the Oilers set a franchise record of reaching the playoffs seven consecutive seasons (1987-93) during the “Run and Shoot” era.

Thirty-five years later, the Oilers are a thing of the past, having left the city after the 1996 season. Strunk, however, is doing her part as the team’s controlling owner to keep their memory alive, and it’s something Moon appreciates.

“I really like the way she’s reached out to the former Oiler players, and tried to make them more welcome to the Tennessee Titans organization,” said Moon, who played from 1984-93 with the team. “The weird thing about the Oilers, more than other teams, is all those great players who played for the Oilers, it’s almost like they don’t have an identity any more. Every other former player has their team to look to, a team to identify with. I’ve played on other teams like the Seahawks, the Chiefs and the Vikings, and I can always go back to those alumni weekends and feel like I am a part of those teams.

“For a long time, the Oilers didn’t have that. Bud Adams wasn’t necessarily reaching out to the former players, and they had nowhere to go. Some might have been reached out to by the Houston Texans, but they weren’t Houston Texans – they were Houston Oilers. But that’s changed. I think it is great she has reached out and done that, and made guys feel like they a part of something again.”

Strunk organized an Oilers reunion last year in Houston, an event Moon attended. Over 60 players and many former coaches attended the reunion.

In addition to Moon, quarterback Dan Pastorini attended the event, along with former Oilers Bruce Matthews, Robert Brazile, Billy “White Shoes” Johnson, Kenny Burrough, Mike Renfro, Mike Barber, Gregg Bingham, David Carter, Ray Childress, Wade Phillips, Kevin Gilbride, Mike Rozier, Al Smith, Spencer Tillman, Lamar Lathon, Sean Jones, Vernon Perry, Zeke Moore, Cris Dishman, Bubba McDowell, Bo Eason, Keith Bostic, Jeff Donaldson, Lorenzo White and receivers Ernest Givins, Haywood Jeffires, Curtis Duncan. Smith has been a regular at Titans Homecoming events in Nashville.

“The guys felt like they were welcome again,” Moon said. “They felt like they were a part of something they didn’t feel like they were a part of for a long time.”

Last season, Brazile served as the Honorary 12th Titan for a game. He also received his Hall of Fame Ring of Excellence in a special ceremony at Nissan Stadium, and went into the team’s Ring of Honor, where his name is on display atop the stadium.

Strunk sent her private plane to pick up Brazile’s family in Mobile, Alabama, and brought them to Nashville. Strunk also threw a party for Brazile and his family in Canton, Ohio.

Strunk has said she wants the Oilers to feel like they have a home with the team.

“The guys in Houston, no fault of their own, kind of got left out – they kind of became NFL orphans, and it always bothered me,” Strunk said in October when Brazile was in town. “And it became important for me to include them, and have a reunion and start bridging whatever happened in the past to get them feeling like they are part of our family.”

Moon, who is on the Pro Football Hall of Fame Board of Trustees with Strunk, said he’s gotten to know her over the last few years.

A Hall of Famer who threw for 49,325 yards in 17 NFL seasons with the Oilers, Vikings, Seahawks and Chiefs, Moon said he feels like the organization is in good hands with Strunk. Moon made his comments leading up to Super Bowl LIII in Atlanta.

“I really like her,” Moon said of Strunk. “I really like how she seems to be really interested and focused on the football team, with the Titans, and she wants them to be a really good football team, you can tell. She is putting out the necessary money as far as upgrading the training facility and providing the team with what it needs to improve.

“As long as you are doing that and giving the football people the resources they need to be successful, the team is going to have a chance to be good. And she is doing that.”

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

CONTROLLING OWNER AMY ADAMS STRUNK CREDITED WITH CHANGING DIRECTION OF TITANS FRANCHISE

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
JUNE 19, 2019

NASHVILLE – When Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams first made plans to move his NFL franchise to Nashville, there was plenty of uncertainty surrounding how things might work out.

Among the curious was his daughter, Amy, who had never been to Tennessee.

“I knew it was a pretty city, and I knew that my dad would be drawn to a southern city, that’s just how he thought,” she said. “When we did come to visit – before the team ever moved here -- we came on the 4th of July and we saw the fireworks and did a few other things around town. I knew then this would be a great place.”

Fast-forward a few decades plus and now it’s Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk who has taken her late father’s vision and done her part to make it even grander. Today, the Titans are a team on the rise, with three straight winning seasons for the first time since the move.

And the city is in the NFL spotlight after hosting the most successful NFL Draft in league history.

Over the weekend, Strunk was recognized as the 2019 Tennessean of the Year by the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame, and she has plenty of folks singing her praises for her work in jump-starting a franchise that just five years ago had the worst record in the NFL.

“A lot of times, when you own a franchise, you often get taken for granted,” NFL Network analyst Charles Davis said of Strunk. “People think: ‘You’ve got money, and you can do this and you can do that.’ But what she has done in her time at the head of the Titans organization, pulling everything together, has been impressive, and that is because of her leadership and it is because of her guidance and because of her demanding accountability.

“I think this state is very fortunate to have her leading the Tennessee Titans.”

Jim Wyatt

In April, NFL commissioner Roger Goodell credited Strunk for her role in bringing the 2019 NFL Draft to the city. It came on the same day Strunk donated $100,000 to a pair of Nashville non-profits charged with fighting hunger in the community.

This year’s draft easily shattered records for attendance, as over 600,000 fans fill the streets of Nashville for the three-day event. This year’s NFL Draft generated a record $133 million in direct spending -- a 79 percent increase over the $74 million at the 2018 Dallas event. The economic impact was another record-breaker at $224 million, also a 79 percent increase over the $125 million in 2018.

“I’ve gotten to know Amy,” former University of Tennessee and long-time NFL quarterback Peyton Manning said of Strunk. “She has carried on her father’s legacy and done some things unique with her leadership style and has the Titans in a great place.

“Bringing the draft here tells you everything you need to know about how serious the NFL is about the Titans and their fan support here. ... Amy deserves a lot of credit.”

Jim Wyatt

Last week, when Strunk announced plans to retire the jersey numbers of Titans greats Eddie George and Steve McNair, George also praised the Titans owner, who took over as the team’s controlling owner in 2015. Back then, Ken Whisenhunt was the team’s head coach, and Ruston Webster was the general manager.

George said Strunk has taken the team’s ownership to another level on the field, and off.

“She’s an amazing woman, and she’s doing it the right way,” George said. “Bud had his ways, and he did it the way he wanted to do it and he was very successful. But what she is doing and how she is investing into the players and creating a culture here, and giving back to the community of Nashville, becoming a strong pillar in Nashville.

“Bringing in former players with open arms -- you don’t get that nowadays. Most owners and most organizations and most programs around the country, including college, are really standoffish. But to constantly pull us back in and ask our opinions on certain issues or to soak up knowledge. ... She is a gracious woman, a very successful businesswoman.”

Before thanking Tennesseans – from organizers to volunteers to fans – for doing their part to make the 2019 NFL Draft a success while accepting the TSHOF Tennessean of the Year award, Strunk smiled when asked about how much has changed over the years.

Strunk has not only made some big decisions on the football side – HC Mike Vrabel and GM Jon Robinson replaced former coaches and GMs – but she’s also changed the look inside the building at Saint Thomas Sports Park and at Nissan Stadium, with upgrades and additions. She even changed the team’s uniforms.

Along the way, she’s also restored the passion and the confidence in the team’s fan base.

“It just feels great,” she said. “I know when I took over four years ago, some people were probably like: Who is she? What is she going to bring to our team? Is she capable? I just decided I was going to put my head down and go to work and hopefully get things straightened out and all that would take care of itself.”

Needless to say, those questions have since been answered.

And the appreciation is on full display as Strunk is regularly swarmed by fans when she makes her way onto the field prior to games, or at team functions.

Strunk admits, however, she still navigates through the aisles at supermarkets in town, where she owns multiple homes, undetected on most days.

“Very few people recognize me,” she said with a smile. “I bet I’ve had two people ever in the grocery store recognize me, so I am still kind of incognito.

“I think if there’s anything to do with the football, I’m recognized right away. But when I’m just grabbing oranges, limes and lemons, I’m just there as a shopper, too.”

In the future, Strunk would like to bring something else to the city.

She’d love to see the Titans on center stage.

In February.

“Who would have ever thought 20 years ago this is what (Nashville) would look like?,” Strunk, thinking back to the success of the NFL Draft, said. “But I am so proud of it, and so happy to see the city of Nashville in the spotlight.

“This success will lead to bigger moments in the future,” she said while behind a podium over the weekend, “moments that hopefully include a Lombardi Trophy, and a championship parade sometime real soon.”

TITANS OWNER AMY ADAMS STRUNK DISTRIBUTES $450,000 IN GRANT FUNDING TO 10 LOCAL NON-PROFITS AS "WE STAND FOR" CAMPAIGN TAKES CENTER STAGE

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
JULY 31, 2019

NASHVILLE – A year ago, the Titans launched the “We Stand For” campaign, designed to bring the public’s attention to the causes that are important to the team’s players, coaches and executives.

On Tuesday, it was on full display - along with some big checks handed out by controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk.

Several of the team’s leaders, including general manager Jon Robinson, head coach Mike Vrabel and three players – tight end Delanie Walker, linebacker Wesley Woodyard, and defensive lineman Jurrell Casey – were on hand for a community engagement panel at Nissan Stadium, where they discussed the causes that are dear to them.

Then, Amy Adams Strunk handed out $450,000 in grant funding to 10 local non-profit organizations at the end of a luncheon.

“Mike said, “We’re all family,’ and what they stand for, we stand for,” Strunk said. “We want to be a part of the community and be a part of the change, and just be good Samaritans. (Our players) take their feelings about this community (seriously) – they’re so strong. And they just want to do what they can to make it a better place. Nashville is great, but we can always be better.

“Today was fun. It was a surprise (to the check recipients) and that made it even more fun. ... It just means so much that we have taken on different causes now that maybe we wouldn’t have thought about if our players hadn’t brought them to us. I think it’s a great thing.”

The grants handed out on Tuesday ranged from $25,000 to $100,000 and support non-profit organizations in the spaces of education, African American history and culture, social justice, diversionary and re-entry programs, immigrant outreach and domestic violence and sexual assault.

The $100,000 grant recipients:

- * National Museum of African American Music
- * NAACP Freedom Fund

The $50,000 grant recipients:

- * Community Achieves by Metro Nashville Public Schools
- * Nashville GRAD

The $25,000 grant recipients:

- * Project Return
- * Davidson County Drug Court Program (DC4)
- * Thistle Farms
- * Sexual Assault Center
- * Nashville International Center for Empowerment
- * Conexion Americas

“We Stand For” campaign takes center stage on Tuesday as HC, GM, players discuss causes dear to them on a day @Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk hands out $450,000 in grant funding to 10 non-profit organizations.

Grant recipients were selected not only on merit but also based on their affiliation with a cause identified as important to a player, coach or executive through the team’s “We Stand For” campaign.

The organization’s hope for the “We Stand For” campaign is to foster positive dialogue around the community work of its players and executives and raise awareness for the associated causes. The campaign was launched to give Titans players, coaches and front office a platform to better showcase causes and charities that are important to them, and to foster positive dialogue around their community and the work of their associated charities.

Along with his wife Ryann, the Caseys established the Casey Fund, a nonprofit dedicated to addressing the needs of at-risk youth as well as formerly incarcerated individuals by raising money for re-entry programs, inner-city youth programs, mentoring, and halfway houses.

Casey said the organization’s work in the community – and Strunk’s generosity – has inspired everyone to do more.

“It’s unbelievable,” said Casey, the 2018 Titans recipient of the Walter Payton Man of the Year award. “For you to have an owner and an organization to do something this incredible in the community, something we fight for all the time. ... For Amy to do something like this, I am baffled, I am speechless. She has done something so amazing it touches my heart down deep.”

TENNESSEE TITANS HELPING WITH TORNADO CLEANUP, TITANS FOUNDATION TO DONATE $1M TO DISASTER RECOVERY

BY MARIAH TIMMS AND JESSICA BLISS
THE TENNESSEAN
MARCH 5, 2020

Disaster recovery is a community effort. The Tennessee Titans are taking that to heart.

In support of those impacted by the tornado that swept through Nashville, Mt. Juliet, Cookeville and surrounding communities, the Titans Foundation announced a $1 million donation to The Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee to aid in recovery efforts.

The Community Foundation is handling most of the donations to cleanup and relief in the wake of the storm. With the gift, the total for the Middle Tennessee Emergency Response Fund at The Community Foundation has now exceeded $2,127,674.

The Foundation will disperse the donation from the Titans to nonprofits across the state, working to provide immediate and long-term relief response to victims and their families.

Those include volunteer support efforts by Hands On Nashville, as well as Westminster Home Connection, Family and Children's Service, the Community Resource Center, Crossroads Campus and many more.

In addition, The NFL Foundation will make a $250,000 contribution to the Community Foundation and work with local schools to assess needs for football field repair and equipment replacement.

"We are so encouraged about the amount of charity people have shown in the aftermath of Monday night's tragedy," Titans owner Amy Adams Strunk said in a statement.

"As leaders in the community, we want to lend our help to this cause of healing and rebuilding. Together we will help our neighbors through this long and difficult process. We are hopeful that others will join us in supporting this effort any way they can."

Titans players and their families plan to go out with Hands On Nashville on Friday to help with recovery needs in person.

"Everyone in these communities and throughout Tennessee should be eternally grateful to the Tennessee Titans for their tremendous efforts in helping the victims of the tornadoes," said Ellen Lehman, President of the Community Fund. "This is an extraordinary gift toward our ability to respond and restore the damage caused by these disastrous storms."

How to sign up to volunteer

If you want to volunteer to help with the tornado cleanup, there will be several chances to volunteer this weekend.

The mayor's office and Hands On Nashville are organizing all-day volunteer days Saturday and Sunday in the areas impacted by the tornado that devastated multiple neighborhoods in Middle Tennessee.

"We know that lots of you just want to do something," the Hands on Nashville wrote on its blog Tuesday. "We hear you. We love you. And what we're hearing from the mayor's office and our emergency responders is that it's not quite time to deploy citizen volunteers."

The post explained that the areas hardest hit are "very dangerous" with gas leaks, downed power lines and tree damage/debris in the streets, the post continued. "What emergency crews need is for us to stay clear so they can do their work."

Interested volunteers can sign up for the weekend cleanup effort at www.hon.org. Hands On Nashville said it will be in touch with more details on how to get involved.

Although sites and other specifics for these efforts have not been announced, organizers say there will be two workday shifts Saturday and Sunday for cleanup volunteers. The weekend shifts are from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and there will likely be other opportunities as the cleanup continues.

Meanwhile, the mayor's office and HON officials say that emergency response personnel are continuing to assess the situation and identify high-priority areas. Anyone interested in volunteering can sign up at HON.org.

How to donate

To donate money to tornado recovery efforts, contact the Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee at www.cfmt.org.

To donate items — in particular baby food, baby and toddler clothes, batteries, flashlights, formula, underwear, bras, gloves, trash bags, box cutters, bleach and personal hygiene items — drop off or mail to the Community Resource Center at 218 Omohundro Place, Nashville, Tennessee, 37210. Find more information about the Community Resource Center at www.crcnashville.org.

To donate food, see www.secondharvestmidtn.org. Second Harvest is coordinating with the Red Cross and the Office of Emergency Management to identify additional food resource needs at area shelters and at partner agencies, and to provide food and other services to those displaced by the storm.

To donate blood, find a Red Cross drive at www.redcrossblood.org. The Red Cross says there is an urgent need for blood.

CONTROLLING OWNER VOWS TO SUPPORT PLAYER PROTESTS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR

JUNE 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – Controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk vowed to support Tennessee Titans players in peaceful protests aimed to raise awareness of racial inequality in the United States and noted that “hearts, minds and institutions need to change throughout our country.”

Adams Strunk, a daughter of franchise founder K.S. “Bud” Adams, issued a statement Thursday after the team completed its virtual offseason program. In it, she revealed that the NFL franchise has created a fans resource guide to provide information on how to advance the conversation on race relations, provide facts and connect people to anti-racism resources.

Her comments followed those of coach Mike Vrabel and general manager Jon Robinson, each of whom delivered their thoughts on current events during video conferences with local media.

Amy Adams Strunk’s complete statement:

I want to add my voice and the voice of our organization to the calls for equality and reiterate our firm stance against all forms of racism.

Hearts, minds and institutions need to change throughout our country. Those who face racism need to be heard, and more importantly, understood by those who haven’t listened before.

Our organization and our players have dedicated time and resources to these issues through the ‘We Stand For’ campaign and we are making a difference in our own community, tackling issues like educational equity, judicial reform, policing policies and assistance for underserved areas. We are proud to support those efforts and we will continue to find ways to impact our region. As part of this, we are providing information to our fans through a resource guide (<https://www.tennesseetitans.com/community/we-stand-for/resource-center>) so others can join us in these steps to progress.

Hearing our players and coaches speak over the last two weeks has been constructive to this vital discussion. I support our players using peaceful protests and their platforms to advance us as a nation. I would encourage those who haven’t thought about these issues before to understand the pain, anger and frustration of the black community. Black lives matter. We should all agree on that.

TITANS GM JON ROBINSON FIGHTS HIS BIGGEST BATTLE AT HIS HOUSE

BY BRAD SCHMITT
THE TENNESSEAN
APRIL 19, 2018

After the Easter egg hunt a few years back, Taylor Robinson dove into a package of Peeps marshmallow candies and ate two before the 6-year-old girl bent over and announced she had a bellyache.

Her father, Titans GM Jon Robinson, was dubious.

“We thought she just wanted to skip church and eat candy all day,” he said.

Then again, Robinson thought, some other things had been bothering him and his wife, Jaimie, about their older daughter.

Taylor had been drinking a lot of water lately and using the bathroom a lot. And she’d lost six pounds in a month.

Robinson went online and put “excessive thirst,” “excessive urination” and “weight loss” into Web MD. And Google. And Yahoo.

All three websites came back with the same answer.

A few hours later, emergency room physicians confirmed the Robinsons’ fears: Taylor has type 1 diabetes. She likely would be taking insulin for the rest of her life.

The two parents stepped out into the hallway and cried.

“Here this is hitting me upside the face,” Jon Robinson said.

Scared, questions swirled around his mind – Will Taylor be able to live a normal life like any other kid? Will she be able to go to the ice cream shop? Will she be able to go to sleepovers? Will Taylor be accepted?

Since then, the Robinsons have learned how to manage the disease and – just as important – they’ve plugged into communities of families of children with diabetes.

They’re active with the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, and the Robinsons on Saturday (April 21) are hosting the first black-tie fundraiser on the field of Nissan Stadium.

While manageable, life with diabetes can be challenging and, sometimes, scary.

Robinson, 42, loves overseeing the Titans battle on the field, but his biggest fight is to find a cure for his daughter’s disease.

“She’s very comfortable with it, and it’s just a part of her now,” he said.

“But we all know what she deals with, and we’re not accepting of it. We’re trying to help her beat it.”

A bouquet of positive pregnancy test sticks

The family was built on football: Jon and Jaimie met in the late 1990s at sports bar Bubba’s II, in Thibodaux, La., where Jon was a football coach at Nicholls State University.

Several years after the couple got married in 2002, Jon found out his wife was pregnant. That happened when he came home from a scouting trip for the New England Patriots, and there were a dozen positive pregnancy test sticks in a basket.

“She knows me,” Jon said, smiling. “I’d have asked, ‘Did you take more than one?’”

This 2009 picture was taken at New England Patriots

A tough player and coach all his life, Jon expected to be the disciplinarian with his kids. Soon after Taylor was born, both parents realized Jon was the softie.

About five months before the diabetes diagnosis, the Robinsons started noticing Taylor asked to have water by her bed. They’d hear the toilet flush several times overnight, but didn’t think much of it.

“We were oblivious,” Jon said.

After doctors confirmed diabetes in 2012, Taylor cried during the first few insulin injections. Within weeks, though, she insisted on giving herself the shots.

The girl learned about food, sugars, portion size, controlling carbohydrates and taking care of herself. She learned how to use an app on her phone that lets her and her parents know at all times what her sugar level is.

Going back to school was, well, kinda cool for the first-grader.

“Our nurse came and talked to our class about what diabetes is and how it affects me,” Taylor said. “It felt good. I almost felt kind of proud of it because I was different.”

A year later, the tears flow

There were many sleepless nights at first, as Taylor and her parents obsessed about the numbers and the beeping alarms.

Jon was emotional at first, and he worked a lot. So Jaimie saw herself as the tough-minded caregiver who had to execute plans to keep their daughter healthy: “There was not time for tears.”

Until there was.

JON ROBINSON

About a year in, all the emotions of the ordeal caught up with Jaimie, and she found herself crying often, for nearly a month.

“It’s just hitting me now,” she told her husband then, “that Taylor has to deal with this her entire life.”

The most frightening moment happened in a parking lot of an outlet mall.

Taylor said she wasn’t feeling good, and she doubled up on the floor of the family SUV, in and out of consciousness.

Her parents shouted, “Taylor! Taylor!” and fed her Gatorade when she was awake enough to drink.

Eventually, the girl threw up and felt much better.

Taylor said her life is pretty normal, and yes, she has been able to go to sleepovers at friends’ houses.

She said she just keeps her blood sugar alarm under her pillow so it won’t wake her friends up if it goes off.

Jaimie agrees that things are pretty routine now with diabetes care.

“A lot of people feel sorry for us, but I’ll be honest, once you get the swing of it, it’s not hard,” she said.

“It’s difficult to tell her, ‘No, you can’t have that second cupcake,’ because her sugar would be through the roof. But she’s amazing. That’s what makes it easy for Jon and me.”

In fact, sometimes the Robinsons consider the disease a blessing.

It has given them purpose, to raise awareness and to raise money for research.

“Fate, call it whatever you want to call it,” Jon said. “God picked us because we now by his grace are financially in the position to where we have a bigger shovel to find a cure.”

WANT TO BE A SCOUT? TITANS GM JON ROBINSON ON WHAT HE WATCHES FOR AT THE COMBINE

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
FEBRUARY 19, 2020

In less than a week, more than 300 talented prospects will descend on Indianapolis for the NFL Scouting Combine, where they will try to sprint, backpedal, cut, leap, throw and catch their way into the hearts of league personnel.

America will get more of a chance than ever to watch the so-called Underwear Olympics this year, as the combine will make its way into prime time for the first time Feb. 27-29.

But what exactly are we watching? After all, not every drill or test fits every player. A 40-yard dash is much more important to a skill-position player than a big man, while a drop-and-flip drill might be an important indicator of a lineman's flexibility.

So The Athletic went to an expert.

Titans general manager Jon Robinson broke down what he looks for — generally speaking — in every position at the combine.

A few things to keep in mind:

- Robinson said good ol' game film is most important in scouting prospects, but the ability to collect measurables and watch players up close at the combine is important as well.
- The combine features six measurable tests that are open to all invited prospects: the 40-yard dash, the bench press, the vertical jump, the broad jump, the three-cone drill and the shuttle run. There are also numerous position-specific drills that are tailored toward revealing more particular strengths — or weaknesses.

Quarterback

Players drafted by Robinson: Luke Falk (sixth round, 2018)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: Footwork in position-specific drills, especially ones such as the pocket-movement drill and the seven-step rollouts to each side. Also, touch and accuracy on go routes, deep routes and corner routes.

Straight from the GM: "You're looking at their functional athleticism. They don't necessarily have to be the fastest, but do they have enough functional athleticism that, when put under pressure, are they going to be able to escape and keep the play alive? They do a lot of movement stuff with those guys, like bootlegs, moving in the pocket. So, you look at that.

"They're also throwing to a totally different cast of characters (at the combine). They've never thrown with these guys, most likely. So they don't really know how these guys are going to run the routes. They don't know how fast they are in and out of their breaks. So, (you watch) their ability to anticipate to players they've never thrown to. Can they anticipate the pace of the route and know when to let the ball go? And can they put it in a position where he can catch it and run with it?"

"Some of the deep-field target stuff also — their touch and accuracy. Do they throw it out of bounds or do they hold it on that red line and let (the receiver) fade into it, kind of along the boundary? And how do they handle themselves with their group? Do they have any leadership at all or are they just kind of a number out there, and they're waiting on their number to go get called to throw? Are they trying to develop some type of chemistry with the players they're throwing the ball to?"

Running back

Players drafted by Robinson: Khalfani Muhammad (seventh round, 2017), Derrick Henry (second round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: One test Robinson referenced is the three-cone drill, which challenges a prospect's ability to change directions at a high speed while weaving through three cones set up in an L-formation. There are also a couple of position-specific drills in which the running back is forced to make quick decisions following a handoff, based on which way the drill director tells him to move. It's important that the back can react very quickly.

Straight from the GM: "I think their ability to catch the football is important. How do they do in those drills? Certainly (among the measured-data tests), the three-cone is a pretty good drill. They're turning and changing direction. How quickly are they getting in and out of different situations and showing their ability to bend?"

"I like the cut drills where they kind of press the hole and they run, and then the coach moves the bag one way or the other. How reactive are they to the movement of a supposed linebacker, making the right cut and accelerating?"

"So, you're looking somewhat at movement, but you're relying more on the game film because you don't have anybody hitting you (at the combine). And those guys get hit every single play (in the NFL) unless they're untouched for a touchdown. You can't see at the combine their ability to take on contact on the field. Can they run through contact?"

Wide receiver

Players drafted by Robinson: A.J. Brown (second round, 2019), Corey Davis (first round, 2017), Taywan Taylor (third round, 2017), Tajae Sharpe (fifth round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: The 40-yard dash is obviously key, but not make-or-break. Performance in the shuttle runs shows body control, while the vertical jump is a good indicator of explosiveness off the snap. In the position-specific drills, look at how quickly wide receivers react in the over-the-shoulder drill, when the quarterback is yelling commands like “ball” during the route. That’s when wide receivers start looking back in order to track the ball before catching it.

Straight from the GM: “They all get open different. Every receiver comes in a different package. You’ve got the smaller, quicker guys who get open with their quickness, their shake. You’ve got the speed guys who may not be the strongest, but they can run and you’ve got to account for that. Then you’ve got the size guys who may be a little speed deficient, but they’re really strong at the top of the route. So, when you watch the film, they get open that way.

“I think you look at certainly their 40 time. How fast do they run? And you try to equate that to their game speed. Does it look similar? Do you need to go back and watch it again? (You watch) the shuttles, their body control in the shuttles, especially the slot receivers on the short shuttles. Their vertical jump — how explosive are they? Are they going to be able to go up and high-point a ball on a red zone throw or something?

“And then in the position drills, you’re looking for their ability to follow the directions that the receivers coach or whoever is showing them. Are they watching the guy in front of them run the route? Do they mess it up when they run it? All of the little things that, when they may not think we’re watching, we look at.

“And their ability to get in and out of their breaks. Do they catch the ball cleanly? Some of the routes are what they are. They’ve been doing the same routes forever. I’d like to see some different routes, but I don’t make the rules.”

Tight end

Players drafted by Robinson: Jonnu Smith (third round, 2017)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: If the prospect is an “F” tight end — whose strength is typically as a pass-catcher — then the short shuttles and three-cone tests are important to show how quickly he can get in and out of his route. If the prospect is a “Y” tight end — whose strength is more as a blocker — the multiple catch/gauntlet drill will help show whether he still has the ability to contribute in the passing game from time to time.

Straight from the GM: “First off, you have to look at: Is he really a pass-catcher? Is he more of a third-down or passing-target type of tight end or is he a ‘Y’ type, more of a blocker? Is the functionality of movement as a blocking tight end good enough to run a short underneath pass? Does he have the quickness to snap around and catch the football? You’re not going to ask that guy, if his strength is as a blocker, to really run a bunch of choice routes or stretch the field or anything like that.

“Do they have enough athleticism and/or size to create space between them and the defender if they’re covered in man? Then that’s what you’re looking for. And are they instinctive enough — this is really more watching the film — to find voids in the zone and know where their landmarks should be, knowing that they may have to adjust the route to give the quarterback an open target?

“Now the pass-catching types, the ‘F’ types, you’re going to look more at the athleticism. Can he drop his weight in and out of his breaks? How quick does he snap around at the top of the cone and work back down? The shuttle times are important for those guys, especially if they’re running those choice routes underneath. How quickly can they get through the shuttles, more so the short shuttles than the three-cone?

“And probably most importantly, how do they catch the football? Are they body catchers? Are they hands catchers, that kind of thing?”

Offensive line

Players drafted by Robinson: Nate Davis (third round, 2019), Corey Levin (sixth round, 2017), Brad Seaton (seventh round, 2017), Jack Conklin (first round, 2016), Sebastian Tretola (sixth round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: The 10-yard dash is not an official test, but times at 10 and 20 yards are recorded while players run the 40-yard dash. Those short distances are more valuable indicators of how big men move. Vertical jumps are a good indication of the ability to explode from a stance. And positioning is key for linemen, too, so the “drop-and-flip drill” — when a player starts in the middle of the field and backpedals per the coach’s direction, flipping his hips four times before sprinting upfield — is important.

Straight from the GM: “The (40-yard dash) is a number, but I think you’re looking more at the 10 time, how quickly can he get out of his stance and accelerate for 10 yards. The likelihood that an offensive lineman is really going to sprint 40 yards ... usually it’s out of celebration. So, you look at the 10 time, the explosiveness. You do look at the vertical jump. Can they move that amount of weight and mass upward? It’s a good measure and correlation of how explosive they are out of their hips.

“When you get to the actual on-field drills, (you watch) their ability to change direction in the (pulling) drills. How quickly can they get out of their stance, and can they get around the cone? Can they adjust to someone holding the bag? You’re not necessarily looking at how much they pop the bag or how much they move that person because I’d say that’s not really realistic to what they’re going to see in a game-type setting.

JON ROBINSON

“The drill where they have to flip their hips in a pass set ... I think it’s where they work straight back and flip their hips back and forth, you can see how loose their hips are, their lower-body fluidity.

“The (pass-protection) rush drill where the guy rushes around the edge, I don’t know how much merit there is in it. Because some of the (participating) defensive ends are really (down) linemen, but they’re acting as defensive ends. Some of them go fast. Some of them don’t run the (prescribed route). It’s just not really consistent.

“But when you’re watching movement, those drills that I’ve kind of alluded to at least can kind of clarify what you see on film or make you go back and look at it like, ‘These guys have a little looser hips than I thought. Let me go back and watch that tape.’

“The stuff where they’re trying to drive block somebody off ... most of these guys play against pretty good competition, so you’re going to rely more on the film rather than how well they hit a bag.”

Defensive line

Players drafted by Robinson: Jeffery Simmons (first round, 2019), Austin Johnson (second round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: Unusual as it might seem, vertical jump is an important test because it reveals how much explosion a big man can generate from a flat-footed stance. Often times, that translates to the player’s ability to uncoil from a stance and knock an offensive lineman backward.

Straight from the GM: “With those guys, it’s really change of direction. You can’t measure the power. I mean, they do a couple drills where they hit bags, but that’s basically useless. Can they play laterally? Do they have good footwork? Their 10 time is important, too, as is their vertical jump. I think the short shuttle is a good indication of their ability to change direction. Are they stiff in the hips? Can they bend? And can they accelerate out of a squatted position and get back going full speed?

“(You also watch) their kind of intensity about how they attack the drills. Are they going through the motions or are they really out there competing? I think you can get a measured amount of competitiveness from that group, and how they attack each drill.

“You can see the movement stuff, their ability to flip their hips if they’re pass-rushers. But if the guy is really a nose tackle, you’re going to watch the film on that guy, to see how much he posts up guys trying to double team him. And there’s not a drill that really measures that at the combine. So, with those guys, it’s really their functional movement, their ability to bend, their explosiveness, their quickness out of their stance.”

Linebacker

Important combine tests, drills to watch: The 40-yard dash is important because linebackers often have to track back on plays after a long run or completed pass. Another key test is the short shuttle because it can illustrate reaction time. In the short shuttle, the prospect starts in the three-point stance, explodes out 5 yards to his right and touches the line. He then goes back 10 yards to his left, touches the line with his left hand, pivots and finally turns to run 5 more yards before finishing.

Straight from the GM: “You’re looking for (10-yard dash) times here, also for 40s, their long speed, their ability to chase back side, the three-cone, their ability to change direction, bend the corner, accelerate, the pass-rush drill they do where they time that off the edge. That’s about getting off on the snap of the football and accelerating around the edge.

“Again, you can’t measure the hand use, the power and all that kind of stuff. But just their ability to change direction. For our defense, can (edge-rushers) transition and do some linebacker stuff? How are they in space? Are their hips fluid enough to be a curl dropper and maybe break to an in cut? Can they wall and carry a potential tight end up the seam if asked to do that? What about their ability to play a couple different spots, maybe on the line and off the ball as a linebacker?”

Defensive back

Players drafted by Robinson: Amani Hooker (fourth round, 2019), Dane Cruikshank (fifth round, 2018), Adoree’ Jackson (first round, 2017), Kevin Byard (third round, 2016), LeShaun Sims (fifth round, 2016), Kalan Reed (seventh round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: Much like at wide receiver, the 40-yard dash is clearly important, but not make-or-break. The same can be said for the vertical jump. As far as position-specific drills, reaction time for defensive backs is key, so drills like the “W” are effective indicators. In that drill, a player starts 5 yards away from the drill director and backpedals for 5 yards. The drill director will then indicate when it’s time for the player to execute a 45-degree break toward a cone. It is repeated twice more before the defensive back catches the football.

Straight from the GM: “It’s funny. When I talk to corners, I always ask them what they think is important for good corner play. They talk about speed. They talk about footwork, and all that stuff is important. I was like, ‘Let me simplify it for you: Don’t let your guy catch the ball, and tackle. Let’s start there.’

“But all those other little factors play into that. Certainly, their foot quickness. I mean, the 40 time is important. You don’t want slow guys. But is their play speed on tape competitive? Because a guy runs a 4.55, I wouldn’t say that kills him. You go back and look at the tape and you say, ‘Is speed really a detriment to him or is he a physical player who is competitive consistently at the catch-point?’

“Their change of direction (is important), their ability to put their foot in the ground and come out of a break. Or do they pump the pedals to try to get out of it? Vertical jump again (is important), short shuttle, stuff that shows their quickness, their explosion. All that, and then ball skills. Can they track the football? Can they catch the football? When you’re the only guy with all the eyes on you and the ball is up there, does it look like a marble or a beach ball? Some guys it looks like a marble and that shows pretty quickly.”

TITANS GM SAYS FORGET THE ANTHEM, FOCUS ON PLEDGE

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
JUNE 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – To those who ponder exactly how they might feel about if NFL players conduct silent protests during the national anthem again this fall, Tennessee Titans general manager Jon Robinson says consider the Pledge of Allegiance.

“A pledge is a solemn oath,” Robinson said Thursday. “It says, ‘One nation.’ Not a black nation or a white nation, it says, ‘one nation.’ It says, ‘indivisible,’ which means united, not able to be pulled apart, ‘with liberty,’ which means a state of being free from oppressive restrictions, and ‘justice,’ which is defined by equality of being fair and reasonable, ‘for all,’ which is for everyone, regardless of the color of your skin.

“So, I just think this pledge, this oath that we’ve all recited, if we can truly put that into action, we can work to change. We can work to change the hearts and minds of those that need to be changed. That liberty, that justice, that feeling of one nation, a nation of human beings, a nation of God’s children – I think that’s our charge.”

Robinson met with media who cover the Titans on Thursday in a video conference that followed the conclusion of the franchise’s virtual offseason program.

Before he took questions, he issued a statement related to current affairs, particularly the nationwide protests to raise awareness and accountability about racial equality in the United States. Now in his fifth year on the job and with nearly two decades of experience as an NFL staffer or executive, he classified this offseason has been as educational as any for him. He also provided assurances that franchise officials would support players who chose to protest, including during the season.

“I’ve been on web conference calls with others around the league,” Robinson said. “I’ve had several personal discussions with our players, with members of our staff, all of which have been extremely educational for me. Those conversations have been real. They have been empowering.

“Our players, especially, have been outstanding. They were open and they wanted assurance from the organization that when they do use their platforms, their voices, to speak for those whose voice may not be as loud or who don’t have a voice, when they use their voices to speak out against these injustices, that they have our support. And they do.”

Consider it his pledge.

“There shouldn’t be a standard for how to live as a black person in our country,” Robinson said. “... It’s been an extremely moving couple of weeks, and I want to be a part.”

HOW MIKE VRABEL WENT FROM TRASH- TALKING LINEBACKER TO TOUCHDOWN- CATCHING TIGHT END

BY TRAVIS HANEY
THE ATHLETIC
NOVEMBER 7, 2018

It's been more than a decade since Christian Fauria played for the Patriots, but there's no statute of limitations for ball-busting in the world of Boston sports radio. So the former tight end is more than fair game for his daily show on juggernaut WEEI.

A regular gag from callers: How did you let a linebacker steal all those touchdowns from you?

"It became this running joke back then," Fauria said. "And it's still going now, only with people who call our show."

The calls are about Mike Vrabel. We'll call him the Original Touchdown Vulture. He leached away scores from Fauria and other New England offensive players from 2002-08.

Vrabel caught 10 passes for 10 touchdowns in his time as a Patriot. He added two more scores with Kansas City from 2009-10, as his playing career wound down.

Now in his initial season as Tennessee's head coach, this week marks the first time that a Vrabel-led team will meet mentor Bill Belichick and the franchise with which he's most associated. Belichick on Monday even stumped for Vrabel to be in the Patriots Hall of Fame.

"He's one of the best we've ever had," Belichick said.

Touchdowns certainly help the legacy. Touchdowns on the biggest stage help even more. Scores in New England's wins in Super Bowl XXXVIII (vs. Panthers) and XXXIX (vs. Eagles) cemented the status of the creative formation, throwing a 250-pound linebacker in there for goal-line situations.

And then throwing to him.

"Had it not been in the Super Bowl," Vrabel said. "I don't know if it would have been what it became."

That includes people in Boston still talking about it, news that clearly delights Vrabel when he hears about it. Immediately, in a single Cheshire grin, it becomes obvious who Vrabel was as a player: He was equal parts dedicated student of the game — and notorious trash-talker.

He loved to needle anyone and everyone who came into his atmosphere, even that hooded curmudgeon in charge of the whole operation. No one was safe.

"He used to drive us crazy in practice," said former New England offensive coordinator Charlie Weis, adding that Vrabel and safety Rodney Harrison often practiced with the scout team. Weis said it allowed them to get full-speed reps against the first-team offense, keeping them sharper.

It also made the banter more lively, especially when it came to quarterback Tom Brady.

"They would talk trash to Brady the entire practice," Weis said. "They were always fired up."

Switching sides: Vrabel the 'traitor'

Ah, but that back and forth then made Fridays interesting. That's when Vrabel, at some point during practice, would migrate from the defensive side to the offensive huddle for the team's goal-line work. That made him something of a traitor to outspoken defenders such as Harrison, Willie McGinest and Tedy Bruschi.

He very suddenly became the target of the chatter. Instead of being in pursuit, he was being pursued.

"The worst part was when I'd have to go on the other side," Vrabel told The Athletic last week. "The defense would be like, 'We're going to freaking kill you.' It's Rodney and it's McGinest. It's Bruschi. They're just talking. They were trying to knock the shit out of me."

In those Friday practices, Vrabel essentially wound up on an island. Defenders were trying to hammer him; offensive players were rolling their eyes as this defector appeared in their midst.

"What's up, fellas?" he'd say as he arrived in the huddle, ear-to-ear smile on his face.

"He came to take away our touchdowns," Fauria said. "Look, it's not like they're handing those things out."

"He already had this big ego and he was already established. It was like, 'Great, now we have to hear about him scoring touchdowns? Now we've got to deal with this, too?'"

Belichick was establishing his wizardry. He'd later do the same thing on the goal line with a 6-6, 305-pound offensive lineman (Tom Ashworth) and a 6-6, 317-pound defensive lineman (Richard Seymour).

"I just thought, 'Bill's just fucking with us. This is part of his master plan to show he's a genius and we're getting screwed because of it,'" Fauria said. "He said, 'I can put a linebacker at tight end, or a receiver (Troy Brown) at defensive back.'"

Fauria then imitated a Belichick-ian evil-genius laugh.

Genesis of the formation

The beginnings of the move came not with Belichick or Brady, but the quarterback who preceded Brady. As a rookie, Vrabel and his family received invites to hang out at Drew Bledsoe's home. Bledsoe, like Vrabel, had young children. After the two became friends, Bledsoe then invited Vrabel to come out with him for pregame warmups.

MIKE VRABEL

Vrabel would run tight end routes in those pregames, just messing around.

But it caught Bledsoe's eye. Vrabel was actually quite good at it. Bledsoe passed along the recommendation to Weis.

Weis didn't recall Bledsoe's rec, but he did remember being shorthanded for a 2002 game in San Diego. He said there was a mini-tryout among defensive players for the role as the team's third tight end. Vrabel easily stood out, perhaps in part because of that pregame route-running.

Against the Chargers that day, Vrabel caught the first of his 12 career touchdowns.

"It was as if he'd been playing tight end all along," Weis said. "He was physical. He was athletic. He could really catch the ball. He wasn't a stiff out there. He wasn't some glorified lineman playing tight end. He was just the way he is with everything else, too: He was conscientious. Knowing what to do was important to him.

"We had confidence in him from when we first put him in there."

Still, there was some adjustment required, particularly when it came to the sanctity of Brady's offensive huddle.

The third day Vrabel practiced at tight end, he got open in the middle of the field. He turned into a Pop Warner player, waving his arms emphatically to get the quarterback's attention.

"Tommy! Tommy! Tommy!" Vrabel yelled.

The ball didn't go his way. Vrabel trekked back to the huddle, where Brady was there to meet him.

"Don't ever do that again if you want me to throw you the freaking ball," Brady told Vrabel.

"I thought I was open and that's what you did. I didn't know," Vrabel said sheepishly. "I saw Randy Moss do it. ... I learned the Brady etiquette, I guess."

Brady Lesson No. 2: Celebrate with the offense when you score.

As Vrabel began to score with regularity, beginning in 2004, he would sprint from the end zone to the sideline to celebrate with his defensive teammates.

"Tom would be like, 'If you ever run off the damn field again ...'" Vrabel said. "I was excited, you know? I would just start sprinting and go to the defense.

"Tom would say, 'Don't you ever run off.' I said, 'OK, I got you.'"

A natural receiver

Looking back, Vrabel thinks the best catch he had came in a 2006 game in Green Bay.

Officially, though, it didn't count; it was one of just four times in his career that he was targeted but he didn't make the catch. Brady was trying to throw the ball away in the back of the end zone, but Vrabel read his quarterback's eyes and broke toward the base of the goal post. He got one foot in, and then the other — but his elbow hit before he could get the second foot down.

It was an objectively outstanding play, regardless whether it counted.

"He really had to show some athletic ability," Fauria said. "I remember walking off the field and thinking, 'Damn, that was a good catch.' That was a pro catch. That wasn't a gimmick of some tackle being eligible."

The best official catch for Vrabel was a 2004 score in a win in St. Louis.

Current Titans tight end Luke Stocker watched a YouTube clip of that touchdown, nodding as Vrabel made a nimble grab in the back left corner of the end zone with a defender trailing him.

"The thing that impresses me is that he lines up his eyes and his hands; that's next-level for what you're taught as a receiver," Stocker said.

Stocker added that he hadn't seen much of Vrabel's pass-catching highlights, but the Titans roster has a certain awareness of who Vrabel was — a three-time Super Bowl champ — both defensively and offensively.

Vrabel was a first-team All-Pro selection in 2007. He finished his career as a linebacker with 740 tackles, 57 sacks, 19 forced fumbles and 11 interceptions.

"Guys know his pedigree and what he's been through, who he was in the league and where he's been," Stocker said. "He definitely has clout."

But he's remained playful as a coach, teasing players the same way he did his former teammates and coaches. He almost had a little-brother persona as a player.

Vrabel took particular delight in jabbing at Moss when the Hall of Fame receiver arrived in 2007. As Vrabel would trot in for goal-line situations, it often meant Moss was out of the game.

Vrabel would find Moss, mockingly pointing to the sideline.

"See ya, Moss," Vrabel would say, waving at Moss. "'You've got to go.'"

The cantankerous Moss responded about how you'd imagine.

The Patriots had first-round tight ends in Ben Watson (No. 32 overall pick in 2004) and Daniel Graham (No. 21 pick in 2002), and yet Vrabel would find a way to squeeze them.

"He was just snatching away our freaking reps," Fauria said. "It was such a Bill thing. One of those tight ends was coming off the field because Vrabel was going on the field."

MIKE VRABEL

The other linebackers were left somewhat jealous that Vrabel was the one who made the move. In the end, they'd live vicariously through him.

"All of us thought we could play tight end," said Matt Chatham, a Pats linebacker from 2000-05 and a current contributor for The Athletic. "Vrabel was really good at it, really good at framing it up."

"We were all going crazy on the sideline. We loved it. It's just funny that our guy was making plays from the linebacker group."

Transition from huddle to sideline

Weis and Vrabel's former teammates are not at all surprised to see him now as an NFL head coach. They're betting on the 43-year-old fast riser, too.

"He'll stick to a plan. He'll produce. He's smart, tough," Weis said. "He won't deviate from the plan. That's exactly what you're going to get. That's why you know he'll be successful."

Intelligence was a recurring theme from those discussing Vrabel's makeup. Vrabel often makes fun of himself about over-preparing.

"You knew Mike Vrabel was going to be a head coach somewhere in some form or fashion," said Kevin Faulk, a New England running back from 1999-2011. "He just had that coach's mentality as a player, and he used that to help himself out. He was just so smart and so intelligent. It's awesome to see."

Fauria compared Vrabel's ascent to that of Red Sox manager Alex Cora, the 43-year-old whose team just won the World Series.

"Mike has a really good personality that young guys tend to follow," Fauria said. "He's honest. He's direct. He has a lot of credibility. I think people respond to that. It was no surprise to me that he, one, became a coach and, two, rose as fast as he has."

Fauria can probably expect a few calls this week about Vrabel. He'll be ready.

"He was this snarky, condescending smartass, but he could back it up," Fauria said. "He was always backing it up."

HOW MIKE VRABEL BALANCES LIFE WITH A HEAD COACH'S RELENTLESS SCHEDULE

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
JULY 22, 2019

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Chinese takeout. That was what Tennessee Titans head coach Mike Vrabel said he was planning to eat for Thanksgiving dinner last year.

Of course, Vrabel would have liked to have joined his family for the holiday, but he had to stay at the office to prepare for a Week 12 game against the Houston Texans on Monday Night Football. That's NFL life.

Like most NFL coaches, Mike Vrabel keeps long hours even in the offseason.

Even the offseason is demanding. Here's a sample of what Vrabel's schedule looked like during minicamp:

4:30 a.m.: Leave for the office

Coaches fitness club. They pick different things to do -- sometimes they push the blocking sled. It's another bonding opportunity for them. Vrabel makes it a point to commit to finding 30 minutes for his own health. "This is a stressful environment. I have to remind myself to take care of myself mentally and physically."

Breakfast

Plan team meeting

Meet with coordinators

Meet with director of sports medicine Todd Toriscelli to talk about the health of the team

Sit in on different position meetings

Stop by the training room to talk to players

Practice

News conference

More meetings, review practice film

6 p.m.: Leave the office

In addition to his responsibilities at the facility, the Titans' community events in the evening can keep Vrabel out later.

"If there's something going on at night, I have to get some more work done during the day so that I can get out for that appearance or event," Vrabel said.

The second-year head coach always has football on his mind, continuously evaluating ways to improve his team. But he's also a family man who strives to stay involved with his wife, Jen, and two sons, Carter and Tyler. How does he balance the two?

In short, it's maintaining priorities despite numerous demands of the job.

Staying connected

Vrabel's oldest son, Tyler, is a 19-year-old redshirt freshman offensive lineman for Boston College. Sometimes Vrabel flies up to Massachusetts to check out Tyler's games if the Titans have a bye week or a Thursday night game.

BC Football

Great to have @tylervrabel_ and @CoachVrabel50 in the  for Tuesday's practice.#WeAreBC

His younger son, Carter, 17, is a pitcher on Father Ryan High School's baseball team in Nashville. Vrabel has no problem wrapping up his day at St. Thomas Sports Park to take in Carter's games, even if one of them starts at 4:30 p.m.

"You love what your family loves. There's a lot of baseball games. Carter loves baseball. When there is a baseball game, I am leaving," Vrabel said.

Since Carter is at games or practice a lot, Jen doesn't cook as much as she used to. But Vrabel said his favorite dish she makes is lemon chicken with pasta. Jen said she got the recipe from Heidi Bruschi, the wife of former New England Patriots teammate Tedy Bruschi.

"She made it the first time we went over to their house for dinner. I was like, 'I need this recipe!'" Jen said.

Staying connected with family is something Vrabel stresses to members of his staff, too, especially during the offseason.

"I tell our staff that we work too much during the season for any of our guys to miss something that their family has in the offseason. That's not healthy for their families," Vrabel said while sitting at his desk after a minicamp practice in June. "It's not healthy for them. They're not going to be productive here at work if they're thinking, 'Man, I wish I was at that game.' If their kid has a game or a dance recital, I need them to be involved in that."

Vrabel's assistants appreciate his work-life philosophy. Defensive coordinator Dean Pees was especially thankful to Vrabel for allowing him to go to Canton, Ohio, last year during training camp for former Baltimore Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis' Hall of Fame induction ceremony. Pees will be taking the trip once again this August when Ravens safety Ed Reed is inducted. Both players played for Pees in Baltimore.

"Coach Vrabel does a great job of giving coaches long weekends off during the offseason, along with several full weeks off during that same period," Pees said. "We have almost five weeks off in the summer. During the season, he is a head coach that doesn't watch the clock. It's get your work done and go home -- myself along with all the coaches truly appreciate that."

Navigating the season grind

MIKE VRABEL

Strangely, coaching in the NFL has afforded the Vrabels more time together than when he was a linebackers coach at Ohio State.

"Fridays are always our nights because we have a teenage son that doesn't want to hang out with Mom and Dad, so he goes to high school football games," Jen said. "It's fun. He's usually home earlier, and we grab dinner. When he coached in college, he really didn't have a night like that, so we cherish that night. It was the same when he played. Fridays were always the best. It became like a date night or family night."

But on other weekday nights during the season, Vrabel can get home from the facility as late as 11 p.m. He needs time to wind down before he can sleep -- that's when he has to fight poor eating habits. Vrabel shook his head at the thought of all the late-night snacks and leftover pizza he has put away.

Eating healthy in season can be tricky. Like most team employees, Vrabel mostly eats what is provided at the team facility. He loves the Buffalo chicken wraps.

"I've been hammering too many of those. They put them there, and every time you walk by, you're tempted to grab one," Vrabel said with a smile.

Despite the workaholic NFL culture, Mike Vrabel still manages to get away with his family, including his wife, Jen, and his sons Tyler, center, and Carter, right. Courtesy of Mike Vrabel

On weeks when the Titans have road games, Vrabel doesn't see his family much on Saturdays or Sundays. Vrabel and his wife primarily text each other to keep in contact. Back-to-back road games are the worst because there are times when the team returns to Nashville late at night so Vrabel might not see his family on consecutive weekends. Jen bought Mike an inflatable queen-sized mattress for the occasional nights when he has to crash at the office.

Sleeping at the facility is something Vrabel tries to avoid. But sometimes it's necessary to save time and get a jump on the next day.

Home games afford him a chance for more family time. Vrabel goes to the facility around 12:30 p.m. on Saturday but returns in time to chill with the family. "We like to sit around and watch college football," Jen said.

After a casual college football scouting session, Vrabel heads to the team hotel around 7 or 7:30 p.m. before a home game. The Sunday afternoon games allow him to get home earlier and see his family before going back to work Monday.

So what do the Vrabels do to get away from the grind? They planned an RV trip to Atlanta this summer. Vrabel laughed as he told the media that he did a good enough job on a similar trip last year to talk Jen into taking the journey again. Sitting behind the wheel on the four-hour trip gave him plenty of time to think. Although it's the offseason, the relentless pursuit of finding an edge over the opponent won't allow Vrabel to detach from football entirely, especially with training camp rapidly approaching.

"I think it all the time. You're always thinking about a play or a player throughout the course of your day or night or time off," Vrabel said.

TITANS HC MIKE VRABEL CALLS FOR "INCLUSION, DIVERSITY, EQUALITY, OPPORTUNITY"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 2, 2020

NASHVILLE – Mike Vrabel wasn't scheduled to be on a Zoom conference call with reporters on Tuesday.

But the Titans head coach jumped in ahead of his defensive assistants scheduled to speak so he could tackle a topic that's important to him and the players he coaches: social justice issues, and the need for unity in our society.

Vrabel admitted that he did not see the issue as clearly as he needed, and he challenged leaders everywhere to do better.

Vrabel said he's had a number of conversations with Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk and General Manager Jon Robinson in recent days in the wake of George Floyd's death in Minneapolis, and the protests that have followed across the country, including in Nashville.

And he's also had numerous talks with his players.

Mike Vrabel: Important to Respect Each Other to Make Positive Change

"There's just some things I would like to say: First, I'd like to first acknowledge my own personal privilege, one that is real," Vrabel said. "And I'd like to acknowledge a social blind spot that either I was unaware of or chose not to see. I've had the unbelievable opportunity to listen to our players the last two days in our team meetings. I listen to them with an open mind and hear and learn what they believe in and how they feel. Amy, Jon and myself have tried to put great people and great fathers and great husbands and great student-athletes onto our football team, and the majority of those men are African-American with a much different experience and background than I'll ever know. And by listening and understanding those thoughts and feelings, and how they feel, has helped me recognize what is important, and what is important is we find ways to respect each others' feelings, that we respect each others' beliefs, that we respect each others' efforts to make positive change in our community where we work, the communities where we live and the communities where we grew up."

Vrabel also talked about his upbringing, and about the definition of leadership, while also addressing the role race relations play in a sports locker room.

"Being an only child of a basketball coach, playing for the Ohio State Buckeyes, Pittsburgh Steelers, and New England Patriots and Kansas City Chiefs afforded me a great luxury of seeing how successful locker rooms are built and managed," Vrabel said. "They're built and managed on fair competition, love, loyalty, accountability, teamwork. What they're not built on is race, creed, color or money.

"I would say that in closing, leaders are prepared, leaders take decisive action and inspire a group of people towards a common goal. That common goal is inclusion, diversity, equality, opportunity. So, on behalf of the Tennessee Titans – our owner, our general manager, the head football coach, our staff – we want to support and will continue to help lead our players as we work towards that common goal."

TITANS BEING MOLDED IN MIKE VRABEL'S IMAGE

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITAN INSIDER
AUGUST 31, 2020

One of the underplayed reasons the Tennessee Titans might have an edge in this football season being played through a pandemic and being clouded by social unrest is the man leading the charge for them.

In Mike Vrabel's very first game as the Titans head coach, he was forced to navigate the team through two lightning delays that caused the game to last about eight hours. The Titans didn't win that day in Miami, but it showed signs that a rookie head coach in his first game could handle stressful situations.

Through two-plus years now, Vrabel has weathered a quarterback change and his fair share of play calls and decisions – some that worked and some that didn't and were called into question.

Adapting to change

Now as he prepares the Titans for a season that had no off-season and now is being further complicated by sports becoming intertwined with politics and social issues, it appears that Vrabel might just be the right man to navigate those choppy waters.

His coaches and players certainly seem to think so. Consider how he had their back and regrouped last Thursday when players decided not to practice and he turned the day into one of discussing issues that face both the players and the nation.

"Each day that we come in here we try not to be on a script. We have a schedule, and sometimes we reserve the right to change it just like we did today, and you go in a different direction," Vrabel said Thursday of the cancelled workout.

That decision did not seem to surprise anyone associated with the Titans that knows Vrabel as a man.

"He's extremely smart. I've been around a lot of coaches over my career and Mike is very thoughtful. He doesn't do anything or make any decisions without thinking about it," defensive line coach Terrell Williams said. "That's the thing I appreciate about him, compared to some of the other guys I've worked with in the past. He's extremely thoughtful. He cares about our players. He cares about all of us and our families. I don't think there's anybody more equipped to handle this unique situation that we're in right now."

Williams recounted a personal matter he went through this summer where Vrabel had his back.

"He's thoughtful. I went through a situation this summer, a personal situation, and he cares about me like he's part of my family, and I think that's what everybody needs right now in these different times," Williams said.

Tough love

That said, don't get the impression that Vrabel is a touchy-feely guy in any way. He cares about his players and coaches, but also fits that neatly within the framework of what helps the team win - always.

"As far as handling our football team, I think he's perfect for this football team. His coaching style is he's direct," Williams said. "If he has something to say to you as a coach or to you as a player, he isn't going to dance around. He's going to tell you what he needs to say and keep rolling on."

Quarterbacks coach Pat O'Hara said Vrabel's passion for both people and football permeates throughout the Titans' locker room.

"I think he's passionate about people, and he's passionate about this football team. There's nothing more important to him than this team other than his family. He's a tremendous leader, one of the best I've been around," O'Hara said. "Players respect him because he's done it. He holds everyone accountable. He encourages players to hold their teammates accountable. He's all about the team. He kind of reflects the outcomes that he wants to get. He wants guys to play hard - that love football. He played hard and he loves football. Guys that play here kind of share that same philosophy."

For the boys

For Vrabel, he said it is about sacrificing yourself for the team and making the team part of your family.

"I think one great theme of being a great teammate is that you care more about the people next to you than you do yourself, because you always are going to have to, somehow, put someone else's well-being before your own," Vrabel said.

Part of the Vrabel way is centered on what is best for the team, and knowing that the team comes first.

"I love Coach Vrabel. Me and him are very close. Some of the things he preaches, some of his core values, things he talks about at practice – just the values we have in football. He treats his players like brothers, he treats his staff – it's just a family feel," safety Kenny Vaccaro said. "He preaches to us all the time, 'There's no white, black, purple, green.' We're all in this together. I just wish everybody could experience the locker room. (Mike) Vrabel, he's a reflection of our leadership and our team. When you think of the Tennessee Titans, you think of Mike Vrabel and everything he believes in."

Veteran coach Jim Haslett, who once coached Vrabel as a player and now works for him, has been impressed since coming aboard this year.

"He's a guy that loves football. He's very knowledgeable in all aspects of the game. He loves coaching. He loves being around the players,"

MIKE VRABEL

Haslett said. “He’ll coach everybody and anybody. You can tell he loves football, and that’s the kind of players he wants – guys that love football and want to be around and work hard.”

Whether it is counseling players through difficult times or grabbing the blocking pad to help an outside linebacker with his pass rush technique, Vrabel’s approach is to be involved.

“From my perspective, Mike Vrabel is a hands-on head coach who is very detail oriented and is involved in all three aspects of the game. He wants to impress the same competitiveness on every single play, every single drive, every single game that he had when he played and put that into our team and make it the blueprint,” safety coach Scott Booker said.

And that blueprint starts with the pipeline between Vrabel and his players.

“For Mike, it’s about the players,” O’Hara said. “He believes that the players come first.”

ARTHUR SMITH

FROM QUALITY CONTROL TO OC IN THE NFL, ARTHUR SMITH WORKS HIS WAY UP

BY DON WADE
DAILY MEMPHIAN
FEBRUARY 10, 2019

Almost two decades earlier, Arthur Smith had been a football-crazy teenager hanging around the one-year wonder that was the Memphis Mad Dogs, a Canadian Football League team owned by his father, Frederick W. Smith, and coached by Pepper Rodgers.

Now it was Oct. 19, 2014, and the Tennessee Titans were playing in Washington at FedEx Field. Arthur Smith was on the Titans' sideline as assistant tight ends coach. His father, the founder, chairman and chief executive of FedEx, had come to the game with Rodgers, a former Redskins executive, and still a great friend who back in their Mad Dogs days used to play tennis with Fred at his East Memphis home.

"I went down on the field with Fred and I was as proud of Arthur as I would be one of my own," said Rodgers, now 87. "His dad wields a lot of power, but none of it has had anything to do with Arthur's football career. Arthur has worked and earned his way."

Most recently, Arthur Smith has worked his way into the title of Titans offensive coordinator. He succeeds Matt LaFleur, who left to become head coach of the Green Bay Packers. Smith, 36, will be the fifth play-caller in as many seasons for quarterback Marcus Mariota.

Smith's climb with the Titans started in 2011 when he was a defensive quality control coach. It was a rung-by-rung ascent. The next season he worked in offensive quality control and then in 2013 he coached the offensive line and was also a tight ends assistant coach. He focused just on coaching tight ends in 2014-15 and was officially promoted to the lead post for that position group for the 2016-18 seasons.

Smith, in an interview with The Daily Memphian, called the quality control positions "entry level jobs in the NFL," adding, "when you're a grad assistant in college, it's almost like you're a gopher. My number one job was to break down film and run scout team. And then as time goes on, you get more responsibilities."

He comes to the OC position having never been a play-caller. Which might be cause for some nervousness among the Titans fan base. But if Smith has any fear, doubt, uncertainty – whatever you want to say – it doesn't show.

"You've got to start somewhere," he said.

Loving the game, learning from the game

After graduating Yale University in 1966, Fred Smith served as an officer in the U.S. Marine Corps until 1970. The mindset never entirely left him.

Arthur says his dad was always a huge football fan, adding, "He didn't make us play, but he believed the discipline and life lessons in football made you tougher."

Just 36 years old, Arthur Smith will be one of the youngest OCs in the NFL. Titans head coach Mike Vrabel believes promoting Smith will help the Titans maintain an offensive cohesiveness. (Courtesy of Tennessee Titans)

In 1995, the lone year of the Memphis Mad Dogs' existence, Arthur was around the team a lot, around Rodgers enough that today he still calls him a "big influence."

Steve Ehrhart, who was general manager of the Mad Dogs and now serves as executive director of the AutoZone Liberty Bowl, remembers seeing Arthur working with younger brother Cannon, who would go on to play quarterback and safety at the University of Memphis.

"Arthur just has this wonderful way of guiding and leading," Ehrhart said. "I can remember thinking, 'He's going to be a coach.'"

Rodgers called young Arthur a "football aficionado" and older brother Richard Smith, who is an executive with FedEx, said the signs of Arthur's future success were evident early.

"He's got a tremendous work ethic. He has since he was a little kid," Richard said. "He's going to be another really bright, talented young coach moving up into those NFL play-calling ranks, which we saw most recently with Sean McVay of the Rams (who is 33). My brother's 36, so he enters that group of young play-callers.

"He's innovative, he's smart, he's strategic, he's hard-working, he's a player's coach. I'm thrilled, and not just because he's my brother."

Titans believe he's right fit at right time

Arthur Smith jumped into coaching after playing offensive line at North Carolina. One year as a grad assistant for the Tar Heels, then two years working defensive quality control for the Redskins, a stint at Ole Miss as defensive intern and administrative assistant, and on to the Titans in 2011.

Hired by head coach Mike Munchak, Smith stayed on under Ken Whisenhunt, and again when Whisenhunt was fired and then tight-ends coach Mike Mularkey was promoted to head coach. Mike Vrabel just finished his first season as head coach and it was his call to entrust the offense to Smith.

The modern NFL is first and foremost a quarterback's league, so the new OC had to be someone Vrabel believed would click with Mariota. Smith and the Titans' young QB, a player some believe still has real star potential, already have a good relationship.

ARTHUR SMITH

“It’s what’s best for Marcus and for a lot of guys,” Vrabel told reporters covering last month’s Senior Bowl. “The foundation (of the offense) is going to be the same. There’s going to be some things that we want to do differently.”

Vrabel envisions a smooth transition in part because terminology won’t change. But there is work to do. The Titans went 9-7 last season, just missing the playoffs, and ranked 25th in total offense – 7th in rushing and 29th in passing.

Running back Derrick Henry ran for 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns and he recently gave his personal thumbs-up to the Smith promotion.

“He has that physical mindset, which I love,” Henry said.

Smith, likewise, sees Henry as a 6-foot-3, 247-pound asset.

“He’s a home run hitter,” Smith said. “Derrick Henry’s going to be a big part of the offense.”

Opportunity earned, not guaranteed

So, Arthur Smith is getting his big chance. Call plays in the NFL at a time when nothing is off the table. If you can imagine it, you can try it, and maybe score with it.

For most of the season, the Rams and Kansas City Chiefs, fueled by league MVP quarterback Patrick Mahomes, made the numbers on stadium scoreboards dance. But as the season wore on, balance was somewhat restored.

“Kansas City and Los Angeles played wide open,” Smith said. “Early in the season, it felt like you were watching the Big 12. But as season gets later, you get a couple of injuries, and people dive so deep into film, they get an idea what you’re doing.”

The New England Patriots dived deep enough to beat the Rams 13-3 in the Super Bowl.

“You’ve got two weeks and arguably the greatest coach in Bill Belichick,” said Smith.

He may be a rookie play-caller, but Smith is under no illusions. A flashy offense that does not contribute to the bottom line might create some buzz, but won’t do anything for the greater mission or the longevity of the offensive coordinator.

“If you can look aesthetically pleasing, people like that in the short-term,” he said. “But at the end of the day, we have to win games, and it will always come down to that.”

To be sure, the NFL is not in the habit of handing out favors.

It’s something that Pepper Rodgers, who coached at Kansas, UCLA and Georgia Tech, and in the USFL with the Memphis Showboats before his time with the Mad Dogs and as a Redskins executive, knows well.

“They don’t give you stuff in coaching because your dad is a special man,” Rodgers said. “It doesn’t work that way.”

“Arthur’s gotten everything on his own and he wouldn’t want it any other way. Neither would Fred.”

'I JUST WANT TO BE JUDGED BY THE JOB I DO': TITANS OC ARTHUR SMITH OPENS UP ABOUT HIS FEDEX FAMILY, ROAD TO THE NEW ROLE

BY TRAVIS HANEY
THE ATHLETIC
JUNE 10, 2019

After just a few minutes of chatting, Arthur Smith wants to make something clear: The new Tennessee Titans offensive coordinator does not want a story written about him.

He wants to be helpful to reporters in doing their jobs — and he understands the coordinator role comes with added responsibilities — but, no, this is not something he'd choose to do of his own volition.

"I hope you guys (media) never take offense to it," Smith said last month, sitting at a conference table inside his office at Saint Thomas Sports Park. "Some of these coaches, there's a story about them every day or a rumor about them going here or doing this. I cringe when I see some of that. I don't think it comes off well for some people.

"Like, I just want to do a really good job and be judged by the job that I do."

Smith started with the Titans in 2011 as a defensive quality control assistant — an intern position, essentially. He survived three coaching changes to eventually find himself a year ago on Mike Vrabel's staff. Vrabel retained him as the team's tight ends coach.

When Matt LaFleur left the offensive coordinator position in early January to become Green Bay's head coach, Vrabel felt confident in promoting Smith to the play-calling role.

Smith, 37, has expressed interest in one day becoming an NFL head coach. But that doesn't mean he's comfortable with the corresponding spotlight that even a coordinator receives.

"Some of these guys, it's comical," Smith said. "They're so worried about their brand or whatever. They're so worried about trying to be a head coach that they're bad at the job they're hired to do. I could give a crap about that."

And that, in essence, defines the center of Smith's ethos. It's one he says he's adopted from his father, FedEx founder and CEO Fred Smith.

On a recent podcast with Titans left tackle Taylor Lewan, Arthur Smith said his dad — whose net worth was estimated in 2017 at $5.4 billion — has worn the same style of plain, gray suit for decades. He said Fred Smith drives a Ford Explorer.

That's the same relatively modest vehicle that tight end Delanie Walker believes Arthur Smith drives. Smith has worked with Walker and Tennessee's tight ends in some capacity since 2013 — which was also the year Walker arrived.

"I was thrown off a little bit," Walker said of the first time he heard about the link between his coach and FedEx. "I was shocked that he was working as an assistant coach. I was like, 'Yo, you're lying. Have you seen that dude?' He drives a Ford Explorer — an old one, too.

"He doesn't talk about that. He doesn't seem concerned about that. He says, 'Oh, that ain't my money. That's my pop's money.' To see what he's done and the hard work he's put in, you can't even tell. You wouldn't have any idea."

Added Titans GM Jon Robinson: "That's Arthur. He could probably very easily be sipping a mai tai in Maui right now. But he loves ball. He coaches his tail off. I'm proud he's on this staff, really proud he's on this staff."

Fairly regularly, Walker will retweet an account called "Billionaire Mindset" that shares a somewhat canned, straight-talk version of entrepreneurial wisdom.

Billionaire Mindset

Well, his longtime position coach and now coordinator, in fact, has a "billionaire mindset." Or at least he's been privy to it. It's an irony that makes Walker laugh when he's asked about it.

"That's real talk right there," Walker said, continuing to laugh.

But you learn, at least in Smith's case, that deflecting from the family's fame and money is how he has gotten where he is. That's the true "billionaire mindset" for the Smith family.

He'd rather be an anonymous Smith. He'd rather work.

Hal Hunter was Smith's offensive line coach the majority of his time at the University of North Carolina.

"Of all the guys I've coached, he is in the top five in terms of competitiveness and toughness," said Hunter, now the offensive line coach for the New York Giants. "And that includes guys I've coached in the NFL, All-Pro-level players. He practiced and played at such a high tempo. He played nasty. When he got on the field, it was a totally different level from him."

After a year as a grad assistant at UNC and then a couple of seasons with the Redskins, Smith came with Washington assistant Jerry Gray to Nashville. Dave McGinnis was Tennessee's defensive line coach when Smith joined the staff in 2011.

"He's the most egoless dude I've ever been around. In this business? That doesn't happen," said

ARTHUR SMITH

McGinnis, now the Titans Radio Network analyst. “There was no job that was too menial or time-consuming that he wouldn’t take on. Everything that he was ever asked to do, when I was here with him — he was to the nuts-and-bolts good. To the nth degree, he would do it.”

Smith’s father and family probably would have offered similar sentiments and anecdotes, but they proved reluctant to talk for the story because they didn’t want the focus to be taken away from Arthur’s accomplishments.

Months of requests through FedEx to speak with Fred Smith, or even just have questions answered via email, went unfulfilled. Each time, the FedEx PR team was polite and prompt with its replies. There were continued promises to help. It became clear, however, that the head man didn’t want to distract from his son’s story, even though Arthur is this way because of Fred and the rest of the Smiths.

Humility runs in the family, it seems.

“I’ve never been impressed with myself. That’s just the way I was raised,” Arthur Smith told me just after his introductory news conference in January. “There’s a lot of preconceived notions about a lot of people. I guess I’m thankful to my parents that they instilled some good lessons in me.”

In a 45-minute conversation in May, Smith provided a great deal of insight into his path to football and this new role with the Titans.

(Some of the responses have been edited for brevity and clarity.)

I’m sure that this has happened quite a bit in your life, especially as an adult and working around an NFL team, but is it a compliment to you when people say, ‘Oh, I would have never known ...’ when it comes to your family and the FedEx business?

Yeah, I take it as a compliment. It’s just how we were raised. We didn’t know any differently. I remember one time I agreed to do one of these stories. Maybe it was the Durham paper or Raleigh paper. The guy wrote the story “just one of the guys.” I mean, what did he think? That I was going to get dropped off wearing an ascot?

That’s just how we were raised. My mom’s from a big Catholic family. My dad’s essentially an only child and he was an old Marine. He didn’t want us growing up to be any of that. Whatever visions people have, they stereotype you. That’s why I’ve always been affected by that. I don’t put labels on people, either. For me, it’s never “you’re from here or you did this, so you must be this kind of guy.” I’ve always been very anti that.

I think that’s always helped me here (with the Titans) because I don’t judge guys who come in from different walks of life. You prove who you are first instead of saying, “Oh, I know exactly who that guy is.” Some people look at a résumé and think, “Oh, I know exactly what that guy is like.” You could be so far from it.

But, yeah, I take it as a compliment now. I didn’t know any different, you know? It’s more of a credit to my parents than it is me.

What was it like to be part of such a big family? (Smith is one of 10 children; he’s the fourth-youngest of the 10). Does that apply at all to a life in coaching?

Awesome. I feel like I know tons of people in Memphis because we were always the house where, for better or worse, everybody would come over. My mom would always get everybody food or entertain everyone. It was like a clubhouse. I was always around a ton of people. It was like living in chaos. It was awesome. Maybe that’s why this job, it doesn’t bother me when there’s a lot of things going on.

You’ve landed in coaching. I know your sister works in Hollywood. Were you all encouraged to take whatever path you wanted and not necessarily enter into business — or the family business?

He always encouraged us to go after your goals and find something you love to do. Maybe then you wouldn’t have to feel like it’s work.

Is it fair to say you’ve been driven by the idea of carving your own path, independent of your dad or your family’s success?

That’s why I like this profession. Hopefully, you ultimately get judged on what you do. You’re keeping score. That’s probably why I’ve always been attracted to athletics. It doesn’t matter where you’re from because you’re going to keep score.

Some people have it harder than others; don’t get me wrong. Maybe you’re from a small town or you played eight-man or seven-man football, and it was hard to get recruited. At the end of the day, when that game starts, it doesn’t matter where you’re from. They’re going to keep score and you’re going to be judged. I want that.

It definitely has motivated me quite a bit. I don’t want to say it’s proving people wrong, but you’re proving yourself through the competition of it. “Here I am. Let’s go. You give me your best shot, and I’ll give you mine.”

How did you start on a path toward sports and coaching?

Well, I fell into sports because it was probably something that gave me an identity. I started playing (football) when I was 9. We didn’t have it at the school; I was at a small Catholic school in Memphis. I wound up playing out in the county league. The county league in Memphis — it’s still going on, the Shelby Youth Sports.

You want to talk about an eclectic group. It was every walk of life in Memphis, playing in this county league. Looking back on it, there were some real beauties of coaches there. Out in the country, you’ve got everything. I made some awesome friends playing football. I became obsessed with it. When you're little, you try to find something you're good at. That's what I found. I just kind of stuck with it from there.

I believe you had a couple of brothers who played football? And your dad played, too, right? So it had kind of been thematic for the family?

Absolutely. He didn't have a dad growing up. His dad passed when he was 4, so he didn't have a dad. My grandmother remarried, but his high school coach had a huge impact on him. He thought it was a great game. He didn't push us toward it, but he definitely encouraged us if we wanted to play. It had such an impact on him.

When I spoke to Hal Hunter, your college offensive line coach, he talked about you dealing with a serious foot injury at UNC. He said you were almost forced to quit football. What happened?

I was determined I wasn't going to let it stop me. Going into my redshirt freshman year, I'd had a good camp. I was all fired up. Because of injuries, I wound up starting Week 1, and we got our butts kicked by Miami of Ohio. It was Ben Roethlisberger. We took a lot of heat for that (loss), because no one knew who he was at the time.

We came back the next week and played Syracuse. I get to make the start. I'm so geeked up that I jump offside on the first play of the game. It was a national TV game, an ESPN game, in the Carrier Dome. I mean, I was so geeked up. I remember some of the older guys in warmups telling me to calm down.

I may have given up a quarterback hit early, too. I finally settled down. We were rotating in, and I just didn't play very well. Come back, and I got pneumonia the next day. I don't know how. I missed a couple of practices. I came back too early and then something happened with my foot in practice. They tape me up, do an X-ray and say it's a mid-foot sprain. They tape it up.

During warmups — and I can't remember who we were playing, maybe Georgia Tech — Hal looks at me. I couldn't stop on my foot. I'd been practicing and was trying to play. He said, "You don't look right. I can't put you in the game." I had no power in my foot.

That doesn't sound like a sprained foot.

I went and got an MRI, finally, and realized I had a stress fracture in my foot. In hindsight, I should have had the surgery done right there. I didn't. I was a young guy and thought it'd just be 6-8 weeks and a boot. But it didn't heal. I came back from winter workouts. It didn't feel right. Did another MRI. The stress fracture had grown. They do the surgery there at (UNC). ... It was a pretty big surgery, but it just didn't feel right when I came back.

I'm sure that was frustrating. Were you close to quitting football at that point?

I mean, I'm sure they kicked around whether I was going to have to take a medical hardship.

The doctors felt like I was done at Carolina, but I finally went down to Robert Anderson in Charlotte. I'd gone to all these other doctors. Then Anderson comes in there, all calm, and says, "Oh, we'll fix you. You'll be fine." I thought, "OK, well, this is the first guy who's said that."

He just told me the screws were pressing down and causing inflammation. He fixes it. Six weeks later, I'm good to go. Never had a problem with it since.

Are there still screws in your foot?

Oh, yeah. I got it checked out two years ago. It's never bothered me since.

Sounds like battling through that ate up a lot of your time at UNC?

It was my sophomore year, and then I missed all of 2003. It was a long process to come back. By the time I did come back, they'd recruited a class and this and that. You go back to the bottom of the depth chart. They were probably skeptical, that I wouldn't be back.

That probably changed my perspective more than anything; it changed my perspective on the entire game. It had all been taken away from me, and I felt like I had a new chance at this thing. All that stuck in my mind was that Syracuse game. It kept eating at me and eating at me. I played like shit. I thought, 'Man, if I never play again, that would be an awful way to go out.' That motivated me for all those years, to come back.

Thankfully, Hal and those coaches didn't give up on me; a lot of coaches would have. They would have been like, "Hey, see you later" and take your scholarship and send you on down the road. You see that a ton in college football.

Was it gratifying to come back and go out the way that you did?

Very. Absolutely. I give Hal Hunter and John Bunting — I'm glad they stuck with me. I came back in that '04 season. I broke my hand and was just like, "No, you've got to tape this up." If it wasn't a wheel, I was going to play. I just kept going and kept going and worked my way back in there.

(Smith started a few games his final season with the Tar Heels. Hunter on Smith's return: "He was so respected by the locker room. They knew what he'd done, the effort he'd made to get healthy and play. I honestly think they were more excited to see him play than anything about themselves. They were so happy he got to play.")

Hunter told me that he remembered the Monday after your last game, he walked in his office and your dad was sitting there. He said he wanted to thank him for how he coached you, not treating you any differently.

He told me that story, too. I'm not sure. My dad always tried to stay away from any of the athletics, just because he didn't want to be the overbearing sports dad or whatever. He didn't want to do that.

Did you immediately want to get into coaching after graduation?

I was finishing up at the University of North Carolina. I wasn't really sure what I wanted to do. I almost took an internship in Hong Kong. I called a place there, trying to figure it out.

I knew I wasn't going to play in the pros. I'd talked to my head coach, John Bunting, about coaching. We'd had those conversations. He called me in February (2006) and said, "What are you doing?" I told him I had this job lined up, these interviews lined up, blah, blah, blah. He told me they had a spot in one of the GA roles. They'd had someone leave.

I took that job and I was so fired up. I was like, "Holy hell, here I am." I was getting a chance to do it. And then it was a miserable year. I think we got fired with like four games to go.

(Smith said he was working with the offensive line for coordinator Frank Cignetti, who now, coincidentally, is LaFleur's quarterbacks coach in Green Bay.)

I think UNC had won a bidding war with Ole Miss for Frank Cignetti, who was at Fresno. So, Frank comes across the country and he implements a new offense. This was his West Coast version. He was good buddies with Mike McCarthy. We ended up going through spring ball. They'd run a bunch of two-back stuff at Fresno, lead and power or bob or whatever they were calling it at the time.

He decided we were going to go full Alex Gibbs, because that's what they were doing in Green Bay. We changed after spring ball, to all this outside zone stuff. It was an ugly transition. We weren't very good. We lost the opener and it just didn't go well. We got blown out on Thursday night against Virginia and fired with like four games to go. It was just miserable, behind the scenes.

So that was your introduction to coaching, huh?

Yeah, I was like, "If this is coaching, this sucks." (Cignetti) was an early-morning guy and the head coach was a late-night guy. You're just trying to find your way. After that, I was like, "If this is coaching, I don't wanna do this." It was just bad.

Did you think that about just college coaching? Or any coaching?

Oh, any coaching. I thought, "If this is what the profession is, this is terrible."

It definitely can be. What did you do next?

So, I was able to go to Washington as a scouting intern, doing all the scouting stuff. I loved it. I thought it was the best job in the world. You go pick up guys from the airport. You go to the combine. You're a runner, doing the (draft) board and all that stuff. I thought it was awesome.

I went in there on Memorial Day (2007), and (Washington coach) Joe Gibbs says he wants to go talk to me. I'm thinking, "All right, he's going to give me the 'nice job with the draft,' blah, blah. I was leaving to go to Charlotte for the weekend and he tells me that he had to make a change on the defensive staff.

He said, "You know how to break games down?" I told him I did. "All right, we'll teach you the defensive stuff. Our linebackers coach, Kirk Olivadotti, he's done the job a long time. He'll help you out breaking the games down and running the scout team."

(Olivadotti is also on LaFleur's Green Bay staff now.)

I swear to you, I wanted to say no so bad. But I was looking at Joe Gibbs and just said, "Yes, sir." I walked out of there and thought, "What did I just commit myself to?"

Hard guy to say no to.

The whole summer, I was sweating bullets. I was breaking games down and trying to learn all that stuff. That staff was awesome. (Defensive coordinator) Gregg Williams was awesome to work for. Jerry Gray was on that staff ... Greg Blache, Steve Jackson, Kirk Olivadotti.

It was just such a different experience, a 180 from that experience in North Carolina. I thought then, "If this is what coaching is, then this is what I want to do."

What were the other kinds of jobs you considered before the UNC GA job?

I had kicked around ideas, just like anyone when you're done with college. I thought it'd be cool to go to Hong Kong. It was going to be an internship in the financial sector. I said, "All right, do I want to get into investment banking?" I thought that'd be pretty cool. I used a connection there.

The more I thought about it, it wasn't really what I wanted to do. I had that conversation with John Bunting, it was about February; it'd been about two months (since the season). I came back kind of quick.

But I'd kicked around a thousand ideas. I can't sit here and tell you I wanted to be this or that. I obviously ended up being a coach.

You mentioned to me after your introductory presser that you'd wanted to be a coach since you were a kid, since you were like 9 or 10. So that was always there for you, in your mind?

It was always there. I just thought since I'd just finished playing that maybe I'd do something different for a different life experience. I knew at some point I wanted to get back into coaching; it just happened quicker than I expected.

So you then almost gave up on coaching after the UNC experience?

ARTHUR SMITH

Oh, yeah. I just thought scouting might have been better. I thought it may have a little bit more stability than coaching.

Yeah, right. On that subject, you started on Mike Munchak's Titans staff, then Ken Whisenhunt's, then Mike Mularkey's and now Vrabel's. What's the secret to hanging on through coaching changes?

I mean, a lot of it's luck. It's the jobs you're in. If you're a quarterback coach or a coordinator, usually those guys don't get held over. If you're (quality control guy) or an assistant (position coach), you've got a much better shot.

Last year, when Vrabel took over, I'd been in the tight end role. I felt like I had a shot. Certain spots, you almost know those guys don't have a shot. Before that, I'd been in the QC role. Sometimes, (a new head coach) might have a guy. But sometimes if you're under contract, honestly, in the big picture, it's as simple as, "This guy's pretty competent, does a good job, keeps his head down. Do we really want to fire this guy and pay him his money and bring someone else in for 'this' amount of dollars?" I'm not sure that's what happened, but that helps guys a lot, too.

Still, it's unique to be able to climb to the OC role in the same organization and despite those changes.

I've been really fortunate. It's wild how it's worked out, when you step back and take a look at it. When I took this job in 2011, you always kind of look at it, like, "OK, awesome. Get a shot to be back in the NFL. Nashville's great," all that stuff. In your mind, though, you don't think you're going to be here that long. You hope you do a good job and someone gets a job somewhere and can move up, or whatever your goals are.

Stuff kept happening. Some of it was out of my control, when you have a transition. The difference from college, you can't leave if you're under contract unless they fire you or give you permission. That's worked in my favor, too.

That worked in my favor during the Whiz transition. I wasn't sure what was going to happen. He kind of put us in limbo. We had a conversation, me and a guy named John Gannon, who's now the secondary coach in Indy. Both of us were in those spots. We'd shared an office and he told us, 'Hey, we may keep you. You've got a chance.'

He didn't fire us that first day. We come back from Senior Bowl. John's contract was up and he had a chance to go to Minnesota. So he weighed both. He kind of wanted to stay, but it was a better deal and so he was able to go to Minnesota. I was under contract. Whiz was like, 'Hey, we're going to hold on to you.' But I couldn't have gone if I wanted to. So it's just worked out in my favor.

The word we've heard often with this staff, and particularly with the decision to promote you, is continuity. What do you think the value of that is, especially this time of the year in the spring and summer months? An outside hire would be installing a new offense right now.

It wasn't just blowing smoke. When we come in here and go through the installs, they're very familiar with how we call formations. What mattered to me was what the players knew. Most of these guys knew this, so (this spring) when we came in here we could focus on how to get better running these individual things.

We didn't go through all this stuff where you decide what you're calling a route, like a hook or a curl. For us, it was, "Here's what we're calling it; it's what we called it last year." It's sped up their improvement cycle. The whole four weeks isn't guys breaking the huddle and wondering the language.

Is there continuity value, too, in knowing this specific franchise? (Smith estimates he's one of 10 to 12 football employees who have been with the Titans since 2011.)

Since I've been here, I've seen a lot of change in the franchise. But there's a lot of familiarity. In talking to Matt (LaFleur), that was a tough job for Matt to take. I only say that because, when you're putting in a brand-new offense and you don't know the building; you're trying to move your family; you're trying to learn everybody's name in the building.

And every building is run differently between the personnel and the coaches. That's 32 different ways, the power dynamics from one building to the next. Then you're trying to get a feel for what these guys can do. At least I've been here. I've been with Delanie going on seven years ... Marcus (Mariota), since he's gotten here. It just makes the transition a lot easier. This job would be a lot harder if I had to move to a new city and I didn't know the team. There's no doubt about that.

I imagine a lot of this time (in early spring, before OTAs and mini-camp) is spent envisioning what you want this offense to look like and be. Do you feel like there's a higher ceiling than what we saw a year ago, when the offense was ranked in the 20s in most categories?

We have high standards, but if you start worrying too much about stats and the rankings — it's like listening to criticism. Some criticism you need. You need constructive criticism. But if you start playing to always appease everybody or you're playing for (statistical) rankings, that may not be the best way to play team football.

Last year was unusual. We had a lot of random things happen, going back to the Miami game. To Matt's credit, we go and win those next two games — we knew we were going to sacrifice some numbers. We went into those games knowing there was only one way we could win those. Obviously, we called the fake punt against Houston. We made a couple of plays on that fourth-quarter drive and made it as ugly as possible. We called 43 runs.

Are you a numbers guy, generally?

There's some good analytics out there. Don't get me wrong. The way the NFL's covered and loud, minority voices grow on Twitter, and you see, "Well, he went run-run." Well, that was the plan. That's what we had to do those two weeks.

We couldn't throw the football, for different reasons. Blaine (Gabbert) gets knocked out of the Jacksonville game, Marcus comes in there and he can't throw the ball down the field. So you're going to have to call the run. It wasn't because we disregarded some obvious tendencies. Yeah, pretty much everybody in the stadium knew we were going to run most of the time in Jacksonville.

(The Titans won 9-6 in Week 3 to get to 2-1 despite a rash of injuries.)

That game was ugly as hell. It wasn't aesthetically pleasing to the fans, but we did what we had to do, which ultimately set us up at the end of the year. The ones you want to have back are like the Buffalo game, where we turned it over a couple of times on the road. Missed some huge opportunities in that game. That game, to me, is, for sure, we deserve all the criticism in the world for that one.

To defend Matt a little bit, those two games (Houston and Jacksonville) can skew some of the end-of-year statistics. As the year went on, we had a run on injuries — we had tight end after tight end having to play. I don't think we — rarely did we ever go into the game with the same starting lineup at O-line. Blaine came in a decent number of times to finish games, started a couple. So, it was a very interesting year.

I say that in defense to Matt. You're right. I've seen some of the stuff; we were ranked in the high 20s. Now we've got this personnel and we should be a lot better.

The whole focus, what it boils down to, is whether we can get better as an offense. We'll see where those numbers are by the end of the year, but ultimately what matters is whether we can win enough games to win the division and get in the playoffs.

I remember Vrabel saying that you all had a conversation when he got here and you expressed your career goals to him. What do you remember about that meeting?

I remember it very well. I was down in Mobile at the Senior Bowl. (Special teams coach) Craig Aukerman and I drove down there to go interview with him. He asked me that question. I just answered him as honestly as possible.

He said, "What are your goals?" I told him I hoped to one day be a head coach. But I told him, "To get there, I've got to be a really good tight end coach and a really good offensive coach and play-caller." But long-term, being a head coach, that would be the goal.

Having said that, and I still feel the same way, I've got to do a damn good job at this job. I could give a crap about all the other stuff that comes along with it.

ARTHUR SMITH

TITANS OC ARTHUR SMITH AIMS TO BUILD ON SUCCESS IN YEAR 2

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 3, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans offensive coordinator Arthur Smith lifted the team's offense to great heights in his first year on the job in 2019.

Under Smith's direction, the Titans ranked first in the NFL in red zone efficiency (75.6%), third in rushing (138.9 yards per game), fourth in yards per play (6.12, which was the third best in franchise history) and 10th in points per game (402, 25.1 per game).

Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill led the NFL in passer rating (117.5) and running back Derrick Henry led the league in rushing with 1,540 yards. Along the way, rookie A.J. Brown blossomed into one of the league's top young talents.

With all of them returning, Year 2 should be a breeze, huh?

Not so fast, said Smith, who is taking nothing for granted coming off a trip to the AFC Championship Game.

The former tight ends coach wants to build on last year's success and knows the offense will need to come together leading up to the season following an offseason when virtual meetings have taken the place of OTAs and minicamps to this point.

A positive: He's more comfortable heading into his second season.

"It is certainly different going into Year 2, whether we are at the facility or not, for me in this role," Smith said on a Zoom conference call on Wednesday. "Any job you take for the first time, you try to plan for what's coming, and until you have experienced something. ... Now the fear of the unknown is gone.

"But I have a long way to go, and every season you have to start over.

We have to make more improvement, and certainly I am aware of that. But the unknown, after going through it for a year, you know what to expect."

In 2019, the Titans' red zone efficiency was the best in the NFL since 2013, and the third-highest percentage in the league since 1991. The team surpassed the 400-point total for a season for only the second time since 1990 (435 in 2003). Tannehill and Henry became only the fourth NFL duo (since 1973, when passer rating was established), and first in franchise history, to lead the league in rushing and passer rating in the same season.

And Brown, in his rookie season, finished the season with 1,051 yards and eight touchdowns.

"We have to evolve (as an offense)," Smith. "We don't want to get stale. We need to improve."

Arthur Smith: We Expect Our Passing Game to Take Another Step

During the 20-minute Zoom conference call with reporters on Wednesday, Smith tackled a number of questions.

A look at some of the hot topics...

-When asked about Henry's workload moving forward coming off a 2019 season when he carried the ball 367 times, including the postseason, Smith said "we'll see how the season evolves for him and see what happens with the other running back spot. But Derrick has done a great job the last couple of years, especially down the stretch. We'll have to see how it evolves during the season." Smith said Henry emerged as more of a leader last season, and he expects him to pick up where he left off. "We feel good about the run game and we'll continue to build off of that," Smith said.

-Smith said he anticipates quarterbacks Logan Woodside and Cole McDonald battling it out for the back-up spot behind Tannehill. Smith said Woodside did a great job behind the scenes last year while on Injured Reserve, "and I'm excited to see when we get on the field how much he's grown." Smith bounced out of a question on whether the team could potentially add a veteran QB, saying he wants to see Woodside and McDonald compete in the short term.

-In addition to praising Brown, Smith also raved about receiver Corey Davis, who caught 43 passes for 601 yards and two touchdowns last season. "We want to see their growth as well," Smith said. "We want to be the most explosive unit we can. ... Corey is a big part of our offense. And there were some huge explosive plays (last year) that Corey was the unsung hero to. ... He's a big part of this offense and I think he'll take another step. I feel very confident in Corey, A.J. and Adam (Humphries) and that group." After being asked about the competition at receiver behind Brown, Davis and Humphries, Smith named receivers Cody Hollister, Cam Batson and Rashard Davis while also complimenting Kalif Raymond for the job he did stepping up in 2019. "I think we're going to have great competition there."

-Smith complimented tight end Jonnu Smith while expressing how much he'll miss veteran Delanie Walker from a leadership standpoint. "He's come a long way," Smith said of Jonnu Smith. "That's a tough position to play ... and Jonnu does a great job. He does it all and hopefully he'll take the next step."

-Smith sounded excited about the potential of running back Darrynton Evans, the team's third-round pick in the NFL Draft out of Appalachian State. "When we get out there, we have to see what he can do," Smith said of Evans. "Obviously we are excited about the potential of what Darrynton can bring. He's a very smart player and had a ton of production at App. We feel like he can (help us). ... I can give you an answer after we see him practice a few weeks. We'll see what he can handle and how we bring him along.

ARTHUR SMITH

We hope he gives us another element."

-Smith said Tannehill did a great job after taking over as the starter last season. "He was decisive with the football, and he made some great plays," Smith said. "He is able to move, and he is good in the pocket. ... We are excited about Ryan and where we can go with the passing offense. I feel very confident in Ryan. We see the game very similar. I am excited about the leadership Ryan brings, too."

-In a recent Zoom call, left tackle Taylor Lewan said he'd like to take on more of a leadership role moving forward. Smith said he'd welcome that while indicating he views Lewan as a leader. "Taylor is going to lead in his own way, and it may be different from how Ryan leads," Smith said. "Like all of us, hopefully I've matured and evolved as a coach and the same thing he's done as a player. ... Taylor works hard and he leads by example."

ARTHUR SMITH

SMITH ON THE RISE AS A HEAD COACH CANDIDATE

*BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
SEPTEMBER 13, 2020*

Arthur Smith might not be at the top of anybody's list of NFL head coaching candidates right now.

But it might not be long.

Conor Orr, staff writer for SI.com and MMQB, put together a comprehensive list last week of those he expects will be mentioned and/or considered for head coach openings following the 2020 NFL season, which kicked off with Kansas City's victory over Houston on Thursday.

Orr's lineup consists of 25 coaches broken into three categories, the top candidates, second-chance candidates with upside and the young guns. Smith was included in the latter.

Orr's take:

Smith's modern interpretation of the throwback wide-zone rushing scheme powered the Titans and Derrick Henry deep into the playoffs last year. Smith's emergence, from Oh bumper we didn't get Ryan Day to rising head coaching candidate has been fast but well-deserved. Another strong showing from the Titans will earn Smith, who has been with the Titans in various capacities since 2011, some broader attention.

Smith has been with the Titans since 2011 and has worked under four different head coaches. He became offensive coordinator in 2019 after three seasons as tight ends coach, the first two under former coach Mike Mularkey and the third under current boss Mike Vrabel. He was assistant tight ends coach in 2014-15 under Ken Whisenhunt (he actually finished the 2015 season as tight ends coach after Whisenhunt was fired and Mularkey was named interim head coach).

He came to Tennessee as a defensive assistant/quality control in Mike Munchak's first season. The next year he was an offensive assistant/quality control and in 2013 he was an offensive line/tight end assistant.

That is six different jobs in nine seasons under four coaches, and now he is one step from the top of an organization.

"It's all about your mindset," Smith said last week about his professional philosophy. "I take kind of a neutral approach when you're in this thing. ... The way I look at it, win or lose you've got to take a neutral mindset. A lot of times when you win, it's not that everything went right for you either. You're just kind of building week to week."

"I think it's a very toxic mindset to have, [when] all of a sudden you think something is catastrophic. The season's too long. ... Things change week to week."

For him to change jobs again, he likely will have to change organizations.

TODD DOWNING

TITANS TIGHT ENDS COACH TODD DOWNING HELPING FIGHT FOR EQUALITY AS HIS TIGHT ENDS FIGHT FOR TOUCHDOWNS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 22, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans tight ends coach Todd Downing spends his time making his players better to help the team.

With their success, he wants to help make the world a better place in the process.

Downing, who joined the Titans in 2019 after 18 years of previous NFL coaching experience, started an initiative to raise money for 'The 100 Black Men of Middle Tennessee, Inc.', a non-profit organization providing resources to further the academic and social development of black male students in Nashville and surrounding Middle Tennessee.

With each touchdown by a Titans tight end this season, his family is donating $1,000 to help with the pursuit of equality.

The campaign is off to a good start.

"That really came out of some of the great conversations that I've been fortunate enough to have with my players in the tight end room, which have been steered by coach (Mike) Vrabel and (OC Arthur) Smith, just creating an environment where we can have an open dialogue and talk with one another," Downing said on Tuesday. "It was important to us to do something together, to show unity, to be able celebrate our on-the-field performance by incorporating a cause that we knew would help with some of the issues that our society has going on today."

Downing credits his wife, Julie, for doing a lot of research to find a non-profit organization that met the criteria on a checklist important to his players.

"The 100" strives to help black males in areas such as literacy, academic achievement, self-esteem and positive lifestyle choices.

Downing's mission is to "nurture and enhance the growth, development and opportunities" for young black males by pledging a donation for every touchdown by a Titans tight end this season.

"Our family wanted to kick it off by saying: 'We stand with you, and we support you,'" Downing said. "If those issue are important to you, they are important to us. A bunch of people have jumped behind it and it is off and running at a pretty good clip."

It's running at a pretty good clip, alright.

In two games, Titans tight ends have already score four touchdowns, led by three from tight end Jonnu Smith, with two coming in the team's win over the Jaguars. Tight end MyCole Pruitt also scored a touchdown in the opener at Denver. Tight end Anthony Firkser hasn't scored yet, but he has six catches for 50 yards in two games.

"I think I may have to revisit my son's college fund at this point," Downing said with a smile. "But we are appreciative to have everybody join in... I hope (the tight ends) score 100 touchdowns.

"We are excited to be a part of it, and I think it is a great initiative and we are fortunate to be in a place where we can support what is important to my players."

TITANS HOPEFUL PASS RUSHER VIC BEASLEY CAN "TAKE HIS GAME TO ANOTHER LEVEL" IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 18, 2020

NASHVILLE – The Titans didn't draft an edge rusher.

And so far, the team hasn't reeled in free agent defensive lineman Jadeveon Clowney, who remains a free agent with lofty contract expectations, and because of it, has an uncertain destination for 2020.

But the team did add to its pass rush earlier this offseason by signing former Falcons outside linebacker Vic Beasley.

So no matter what happens moving forward, the team feels like it will have even more of an edge on defense this fall because of it.

"We brought him in because he's got some ability to rush the passer off the edge," Titans General Manager Jon Robinson said of Beasley. "Watch him back through the tape, he's a guy that plays hard, he's fast, he's got good length, he's got some good snaps on tape.

"I think our head coach played 12, 13, 14, 15 years at that position, and he's got a wealth of knowledge at that position. I just think that he can work with Vic, along with (outside linebackers coach) Shane Bowen and really hopefully take his game to another level."

Beasley, a first-round pick (8th overall) of the Atlanta Falcons in the 2015 NFL Draft, has 37.5 career sacks. He joins the Titans after spending the past five seasons in Atlanta.

The 6-foot-3, 246-pound Beasley had eight sacks in 2019, and five sacks in 2018. He led the NFL with a whopping 15.5 sacks in 2016, when the Falcons advanced to the Super Bowl. Beasley was named to his first Pro Bowl and earned AP

All-Pro honors for his breakout performance in 2016.

Robinson believes Beasley should add more pop to the defense this fall, and the team thinks it can hone his skillset in Tennessee.

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel agrees.

Free Agency Hype: Edge Rusher Vic Beasley Joins Titans

"We're focused on moving forward with Vic," Vrabel said. "(He has) a skillset that we like, with a player that can run and have some speed, some explosiveness, some versatility we believe. That's what I'll do, that's what Shane will do, that's what (defensive assistant) Matt Edwards will do. There will be a lot of people involved in helping him still continue to develop, and try to find a role for us, and ultimately help us win."

Over the past five years, Beasley ranks 16th in the NFL in sacks by "edge" rushers (OLB's/DE's).

Beasley played in all 16 games, with 15 starts, for the Falcons in 2019, when he recorded 42 tackles (28 solo), including eight for a loss, eight sacks, 12 quarterback hits, two forced fumbles and two passes defended.

In his career, Beasley has played in 78 games, with 60 starts, while totaling 156 tackles (119 solo), 37.5 sacks, one interception, 36 tackles for loss, 11 forced fumbles, 12 passes defended, and 46 quarterback hits.

In 2019, outside linebacker Harold Landry led the team with nine sacks.

Kamalei Correa, who tallied five sacks in the regular season in 2019 and two more in the playoffs, also returns.

Off the edge, the team also has Reggie Gilbert, Derick Roberson, and DeAndre Walker, a fifth-round pick in the 2019 NFL Draft who spent last season in Injured Reserve. Outside linebackers Josh Smith and Jordan Williams will also be in the mix, competing for a roster spot in camp.

"We have some guys that have played and made plays in this league. I think there's some versatility," Vrabel said. "I think we have some young guys that we wanted to work with, and did work with that we'll have an opportunity to continue to work with, whether that's – Reggie Gilbert hasn't played a whole lot of plays for us but certainly has shown flashes of things that we like. Roberson showed flashes, and then obviously trying to get D'Andre Walker back healthy. Those are three younger bodies, two guys going into their second year, one guy going into his fourth year. But, then other guys who have played a lot of football for us. Harold has played a lot of football, Kamalei has played a lot of football for us.

"We'll have to get Vic up to speed as soon as we can, and as always with any player, as much as they can handle, that's what we'll give them. If they can handle that and they prove to be proficient in the things we ask them to do, then we'll look to give them some more."

KHARI BLASINGAME

BLASINGAME EAGER FOR OPPORTUNITY TO 'PLAY ON SUNDAY'

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
NOVEMBER 21, 2019

NASHVILLE – Khari Blasingame knows the difference.

The newest member of the Tennessee Titans, claimed off Minnesota's practice squad last week, has been in an NFL training camp. He has played in preseason games. He even has been in an NFL locker room and involved in daily meetings and practices during the regular season.

The undrafted rookie running back out of Vanderbilt has not, however, played in a regular season game. That could change Sunday when the Titans host the Jacksonville Jaguars in the first game following their bye.

“That’s big,” Blasingame said. “Preseason is different than regular season. There’s a lot more on the regular season. And that’s everybody’s dream to play on Sunday. So. I’m really excited.”

When the 6-foot, 233-pounder spent time with position coach Tony Dews last week, he did more than just familiarize himself with the playbook. He said they looked ahead to the game against the Jaguars and what Blasingame might be able to do to help.

“We got some stuff in – some gameplan stuff,” Blasingame said. “I’m really just trying to learn as fast as I can to see where I can get in.

As the Titans’ third running back, he is an option at tailback or at fullback and offers the potential to contribute on special teams. David Fluellen, Rod Smith and Dalyn Dawkins all have filled that role at times this season. Dawkins is the only one who has touched the ball (he has two carries for two yards) and Smith is the only one of the three who has recorded a special teams tackle (he has one).

Fluellen is now on injured reserve and Smith was waived last week, a day before Tennessee signed Blasingame. Dawkins is on the practice squad.

“It’s a guy that we scouted and looked at coming out of Vanderbilt,” coach Mike Vrabel said. Things didn’t work out the first time around (after) the draft, so we continued to monitor him, look, and try to see where he could help us. So, excited to get him some work.

“He’ll play fullback. He’ll play tailback. He’ll play on special teams. We’ll kind of see what role he carves out for himself.”

The Vikings had one of the NFL’s best rushing offenses led by Dalvin Cook, one of three NFL running backs who already have topped 1,000 yards rushing. He signed with them following the draft and spent the entire offseason and preseason with them. They added him to their practice squad at the start of the regular season and there he had stayed until the Titans called and offered the opportunity to be on the active roster.

With Tennessee, he joins a team that is 15 in the league in rushing offense and has two established veterans in Derrick Henry, the primary ball carrier, and Dion Lewis, a change-of-pace back who figures prominently in the passing game.

“Of course, I want to contribute on special teams. That’ll be huge,” Blasingame said. “And then on the offense, just finding a role, finding a lane where they need me. Fullback, tailback – whatever I can do – pass protection. I’d love to get in and do some things to help the team.

“... Minnesota, they invested a lot and helped develop me. I really had a good relationship with those coaches up there. At the end of the day, it’s a great opportunity back down in Nashville with a good team fighting for a playoff spot. So, I had to come and try to get active.

BEAU BRINKLEY

TITANS LONG SNAPPER BEAU BRINKLEY KEEPS THINGS LIGHT WHILE KEEPING SNAPS TIGHT

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
OCTOBER 4, 2018

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Many scores and seven years ago, the Titans were looking for a new long snapper.

Titans punter Brett Kern still remembers being called in by former special teams coach Alan Lowry to watch tape of a rookie by the name of Beau Brinkley, and then giving his endorsement.

Brinkley ended up being signed in May of 2012, and he's played in every game for the Titans over the past seven seasons. This past Sunday, Brinkley played in his 100th career regular season game.

Over the years he's been a teammate, a friend, a jokester, a golf partner, and a reliable pro in the eyes of Kern and Titans kicker Ryan Succop. In Brinkley's mind, the 100 games went by in a snap. He's had a ball, he said.

"It has definitely flown by," Brinkley said. "It seems like just yesterday when I came in. ... But it's been great. And I thank the good Lord for every time I get the opportunity to play this game. We all know that on any given play something could happen and it could all be over. So I try and take advantage of every game I get."

Brinkley, whose father, Mike, was an All-American defensive end and long snapper at Missouri Valley College, learned the skill of long snapping from his father at the age of seven. Growing up, he watched others at the position – his idol growing up was Chiefs long snapper Kendall Gammon.

After making Missouri's football team as a walk-on, Brinkley earned the job as long snapper. He appeared in 50 games at Missouri before arriving in the NFL, where he's started every game of his career. In addition to handling all of the team's long snapping duties, Brinkley has also been credited with 40 special teams tackles since 2012.

"Just watching him grow on and off the field and seeing how he's gotten better every year -- he's so consistent," Kern said of Brinkley. "I think he is the best long snapper in the league."

Brinkley's consistency helped Kern set franchise records for both gross and net punting average in 2017, and he helped the late Rob Bironas (2012-13) and Succop (2014-18) combine to make over 86 percent of their field goals. In addition to the 100 regular season games, Brinkley has also played in two playoff contests.

"He continues to get better and better on the field, which is hard to believe because he is already so good," Succop said. "I am super proud of him. ... I really believe he is the best long snapper in the league, and I have thought that for a while. He does everything so well."

Brinkley said he treasures his friendship with Kern and Succop, two guys he said are like brothers. He credits the veteran specialists for inspiring him, and making him better on the field and in life.

Brinkley, Kern and Succop are deeply religious, and regularly take time to pray on the sideline. They spend time with one another off the field. Kern took Brinkley on an all-expenses paid trip to the Pro Bowl last season in Orlando. Kern said his kids think it's a treat to FaceTime with Brinkley.

"Just being around them has made an impact on me," Brinkley said of Kern and Succop. "You see their families -- they are great husbands and great fathers and they are good around other people. They treat others with respect, and are very Christian based and I am happy to have been around them and learn from them and pick up what they do and put my own twist on things.

"They have brought me back on my Christian roots, and they've been really key people to me, really like older brothers to help me develop as a person on and off the field. I don't think I could ever repay Brett or Ryan for that."

Brinkley also credited Kern and Succop, both scratch golfers, for also helping him improve on the golf course, where he's gone from a "18 to 20" handicap to an "8 or 9."

Brinkley has bragging rights over Kern and Succop when it comes to hole-in-ones, however – he aced the par-3 eighth hole at Gaylord Springs Golf Course back in 2015 -- and he's not afraid to bring it up.

"Sometimes when we all go out there (on the field), he'll make a joke about how he's the only one who's gotten a hole-in-one," said Kern, shaking his head. "He won't let us forget about it."

Kern and Succop credit Brinkley for bringing humor to the group.

"He definitely keeps it light, even on game days," Succop said of Brinkley. "It is not unlike him at all to crack a joke or something, even as we are running on the field. That is just his personality, and it has been great for all of us. It helps take the pressure off."

Said Brinkley: "I guess I am kind of the goofball of the group."

One-hundred games into his NFL career, Brinkley said he feels blessed, for a number of reasons.

It's safe to say Kern, Succop and the Titans feel the same way.

"It has been cool to see Beau grow as a player, and grow in his faith," Succop said. "He has just improved in all areas of his life, in my opinion. He has grown in his faith, and he is a great teammate. And he continues to get better and better on the field, which is hard to believe because he is already so good.

"I am super proud of him."

TITANS WR A.J. BROWN ON HIS NEW HOME IN TENNESSEE, AND HIS NFL ASPIRATIONS

THE ROOKIE RECEIVER FROM OLE MISS,
SELECTED IN THE SECOND-ROUND OF THE
NFL DRAFT, IS ADJUSTING
WELL IN HIS FIRST SEASON

(AS TOLD TO BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE)
NOVEMBER 18, 2019

NASHVILLE – My new home in Tennessee really does feel like home.

Even before I was drafted by the Titans, I came to town on a pre-draft visit. I talked to coaches and other people with the team, and I got a good feel from them right out of the gate. From the start, I felt like this could be the place for me, even though I didn't know a whole lot about the Titans. I knew about Steve McNair since he's from Mississippi, but for the most part I didn't know a whole bunch about the team before then. Still, it just felt right.

So when the Titans ended up picking me, I was really happy because my new home was not far from where I grew up in Starkville, Mississippi, and where I played college ball at Ole Miss. And I knew from the start it was a blessing because my family would get to come watch me play.

Making things even better? My older sister, Reva, lives in Nashville, so that was huge for me. She's 28, several years older than me, so it was nice to have her here to help me get settled in. Really, that was huge for me. When you go to a new place, you want to be around your family and she would cook me home-cooked meals, and she just made me feel like I wasn't alone.

I was 21-years-old when I got drafted and going off to live on your own is an adjustment, different from college. Having my sister here helped, but I think me just being the way I am helped too. I am a homebody. Most 21-year-olds when they get drafted are probably in the streets, running around. But that's not who I am, and it will never be who I am. My dad, Arthur, he doesn't have to worry about me getting in trouble.

A.J. Brown with his father, Arthur, and sister, Reva (center photo) who lived in Nashville prior to the Titans selecting Brown in the 2nd Round of the 2019 NFL Draft.

I am all about football. I love the game, and I want to be great. I'm always working at it. When I take a break from the game, I like to watch movies, play video games. I am really good at shooting pool, so that's what I do when I have free time. It takes me away from the world and helps me get away. Sometimes I play some music and I shoot pool for hours.

But really, football is my life. I get really bored in the offseason. I mean really bored. Because you can work out all day, and work out a million times, but there is nothing like being in season and playing ball and doing what you love.

I was so excited to get started with the Titans. When I got drafted, I wanted to show what I was made of. I had a lot of expectations coming in, and I wanted to establish myself in training camp. Unfortunately, I couldn't because I suffered an injury, so I had to sit down and wait, and be patient. I knew when I came back I'd have to put myself in a position to be ready, so I got the mental part of the game down, and I leaned on my teammates.

My veteran teammates, they helped me out a lot. I wouldn't be where I am today without those guys. They helped me out with the plays and everything, kind of like big brothers.

When I finally got healthy and more comfortable, I started to feel like myself and I started playing ball and it was good to make some plays and good to start helping the team.

Ten games into my first NFL season, I think it's gone OK as far as my expectations go. Of course, there are some plays I would like to have back, but I feel like I've gotten better and the second half of the season I want to take it to another level.

A.J. Brown celebrates one of two TDs with teammates during the Titans-Falcons Week 4 game in Atlanta.

Along the way I feel like I've also grown up a lot, too, and I've seen the NFL is a serious business. All of us as players, we support one another and are in this together and we want to win. I've already seen players come and go, and I've seen changes.

Take quarterback Marcus Mariota, for instance. I've only been around him six months and I've grown to respect that guy so much. When we played the Broncos in Denver back in October and he was replaced in the lineup, I admit that was very hard for me. I got really emotional during the game, in fact. I think that's why I got a pass interference penalty called on me, because I was so frustrated. I ended up throwing the guy from the Broncos to the ground and I got a penalty. I admit, I was crying during the play. And after the game, I was still emotional because me spending time with Marcus and really getting to know him, he became a brother to me. To see something like that happen to a great person, it was tough to deal with. I always tell him he's such a pro in the way he handles himself, and I want to be like that myself.

But I understand why decisions have to be made, and as a team and as a player you have to do your job and focus on yourself and how you can do better. I have so much respect for Ryan Tannehill, too, and how he plays the game and he's done great. And I am going to do everything I can to be the best player I can be to help him, and to help the team.

I know I'm still just a rookie, and I know right now I am laying the groundwork for my career and I want to keep getting better and better. This is just the beginning.

I want my teammates to see me work, and I want them to know how important football is to me. I feel like I can be the best receiver in this league, I really do, and that's what I am striving for – to be the very best. And I really believe I can get there.

I mentioned my home earlier, and I know being where I am today, I have a great opportunity in the NFL. I mentioned my dad earlier, too, and he's the one who instilled in me to work hard at a young age. He's retired now, but he worked for the electric company and I remember his work ethic. He was a good athlete growing up. His sport was baseball, and he was really good at it. And he always pushed me to be the best I can be. I still remember him telling me at a very young age: If you are not trying to be the best, then you need to find something else to do. So I have to give my dad credit for giving me that competitive edge and pushing me, and now it is up to me.

I want to be successful in Tennessee. I want to prove the Titans made a smart move by picking me. I am trying to retire here. I know it is going to take a lot of work to reach my goals and to have the success I want to have, but without a doubt I am willing to work to make it happen. I am just getting started.

TITANS ROOKIE A.J. BROWN HAS ADMIRER IN FELLOW MISSISSIPPIAN JERRY RICE

BY TURRON DAVENPORT

(Editor's note: This story originally published on May 13, 2019.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- When Mississippi native A.J. Brown flew to the Bay Area before the draft, he didn't just meet with San Francisco 49ers brass -- he got to meet a Hall of Famer who grew up not far from Brown's hometown of Starkville.

Jerry Rice, the wide receiver who redefined the position as a perennial MVP candidate in the 1980s and '90s, is from Crawford, Mississippi. That's just a 30-minute drive from Starkville, where Brown -- the wide receiver the Tennessee Titans selected at No. 51 in the second round -- was a high school star.

Rookie WR A.J. Brown took advantage of a predraft trip to the Bay Area to meet Hall of Famer Jerry Rice. Courtesy of A.J. Brown

Brown often mentions current pro receivers such as Julio Jones as players he modeled his game after, but he has no hesitation pointing out that Rice is the greatest of all time.

"I watched Jerry Rice. I go on YouTube and watch his routes. Even though he played back then, he still offers things that I can put in my toolbox," Brown said after the Titans' second rookie minicamp practice. "We're from the same area, Oktibbeha County. We connected. That's the GOAT. My people got in touch with him, and he was down from there."

Rice took Brown on the infamous horse trail at Edgewood Park and Natural Preserve in Redwood City. The trail is known as one of Rice's primary training grounds.

"When I got drafted by San Francisco, I thought about Mississippi," Rice said during the run via a video on NFL.com. "I said if I have success in the NFL, that will open the door for so many other guys. Look at your opportunity right now. You're getting ready to live your dream."

In the video, Rice emphasized the endurance benefits he reaped from running the hill, crediting it for his ability to excel in the fourth quarter and function at his best despite being tired during his career.

If getting to work out with the greatest wide receiver ever wasn't enough, Brown even got the opportunity to wear Rice's Hall of Fame ring and his three Super Bowl rings.

Rice is proud to see another wideout make it to the NFL from the 662 area code.

"He's from my hometown and represents it the way I did," Rice said of Brown. "This kid has an amazing work ethic. I am so glad I got to spend time with him and can't wait to watch him do work," Rice said on Instagram after running the hill with Brown.

A.J. BROWN

BROWN REDEFINES WHAT'S POSSIBLE FOR TITANS ROOKIE RECEIVERS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
DECEMBER 9, 2019

With one catch, A.J. Brown raised two standards for Tennessee Titans rookie wide receivers.

The second-round pick out of Ole Miss became the most productive first-year receiver of the Titans era (1999-present) in terms of yards and touchdowns when he went 91 yards for a score in the second quarter Sunday against the Oakland Raiders.

With that one play, he blew past Kenny Britt, who had 701 receiving yards in his rookie season, and broke a tie with Kendall Wright, Dorial Green-Beckham, Justin Hunter and Tyrone Calico, all of who had four touchdown catches in their first NFL campaigns. It was a play-action pass on first down, and Brown caught the ball right at midfield, broke one tackle, outran another defender to the end zone and gave the Titans their first lead en route to a 42-21 victory.

"It was a play we talked about this week and then made an adjustment late in the week," quarterback Ryan Tannehill said of what also was the longest completion of his career. "To go out and execute it and have A.J. not only catch it but to finish it off was huge."

With three games still to play this season, Brown has 39 catches for 779 yards and six touchdowns after he caught five passes for 153 yards and two touchdowns against the Raiders. It was his third 100-yard receiving effort of the season and his second in the last three weeks.

"A.J. has shown time and time again that he's dangerous with the ball in his hands," Tannehill said. "He's big, strong and physical. ... He's come up big for us several times this season and that doesn't need to stop anytime soon. I love seeing it."

A rundown of the top Tennessee Titans rookie wide receivers, based on receiving yards in their rookie seasons:

Player | Drafted

Year | Yards | Receptions | TDs

A.J. Brown | Second round

2019 | 779 | 39 | 6

Kenny Britt | First round

2009 | 701 | 42 | 3

Kendall Wright | First round

2012 | 626 | 64 | 4

Dorial Green-Beckham | Second round

2015 | 549 | 32 | 4

Tajaé Sharpe | Fifth round

2016 | 522 | 41 | 2

Corey Davis | First round

2017 | 375 | 34 | 0

Brandon Jones | Third round

2005 | 299 | 23 | 2

Roydell Williams | Fourth round

2005 | 299 | 21 | 2

Courtney Roby | Third round

2005 | 289 | 21 | 1

By halftime, which ended in a 21-21 tie, Brown had four receptions for 141 yards and two touchdowns. He added one in the second half.

The long touchdown catch, though, was all he need to separate him from his current teammates on this day. It was all he needed to lead the team in receiving yards for the third straight game and the sixth time this season. Nine other Titans players caught at least one pass at Oakland but none finished with more than 47 receiving yards.

"He's got great play strength," coach Mike Vrabel said. "He plays strong through the catch. Ryan gave him a great ball he went up and got on the long one. ... There's going to be contested catches in this league. There's tight coverage. So, we'll just keep working."

“WHY NOT ME?”: TITANS WR A.J. BROWN HAS FOUND WAYS TO MAKE HIMSELF EVEN BETTER IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 10, 2020

NASHVILLE – A.J. Brown isn't about making preseason predictions.

The Titans receiver isn't about to sell himself short either.

When someone asks Brown if he can lead the NFL in receiving yards and touchdowns this fall, his answer is simple: "Why not me?"

"That's my approach with anything," Brown said. "Other guys do it, so, "Why not?"

Brown was a playmaker for the Titans in 2019, when he led all rookies with 1,051 receiving yards while also scoring eight touchdowns among his 52 catches.

Brown became the first rookie since Hall of Famer Randy Moss (1998) to have a minimum of 50 catches, 1,000 receiving yards and five touchdowns while averaging 17-plus yards per catch, plus four touchdown catches of 50-plus yards. He was the only NFL rookie since 1970 with 1,000-plus receiving yards and an average of 20-plus yards per reception, and he led the NFL with 605 receiving yards over his final six games of the regular season.

Brown said he's watched a lot of film on himself this offseason, and he's found ways to improve. He knows one challenge he'll face this year is everyone will be gunning for him.

"Julio Jones, Michael Thomas – everybody knows they're coming, but you still have to go out and play," Brown said of some of the NFL's best receivers. "That's my approach. Regardless of the film, whatever I did last year, nobody cares about that. You still have to come out and play every week, and that is what I learned last year, week in and week out."

Brown has also worked this offseason to get into the best shape of his playing career.

While watching film this offseason, he noticed he looked fatigued in the fourth quarter of games during his rookie season, and thinks he perhaps gave some things away as a result because of poor technique and giving hints to DBs about his routes.

"(I have to) make sure my pad level is the same all the way through the whole route," Brown said. "Just not putting on your turn signal before you turn."

"I have to be able to go through the entire game and make my routes look the same," Brown added. "I have to be well-conditioned, and that's what we preach with the Titans. It's a key thing with Coach (Mike) Vrabel. ... Looking back at some film, I left some plays out there because I was a little tired. I want to be all-around complete."

Brown, who finished third in the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year category a year ago, said he feels like a different player heading into training camp compared to last year, when he spent a good part of the offseason getting ready for the NFL Draft.

Earlier this offseason, Brown said part of his plan includes catching 1,000 footballs a day.

"I am definitely in a better place (physically), and I'm in a better shape mentally as well," Brown said. "Last year I was flying and going places, and I never could really sit still and put in the work."

"So I had time (this offseason) to get my feet up under me, and I really put in the work to get myself in the best shape possible coming into camp. It is only going to get tougher – we are going to Denver (in Week One), and the air is really thin up there."

During a video conference call on Monday, Brown said he's also following the best advice anyone has ever given him as a pro.

It came from future Hall of Fame quarterback Tom Brady during Titans-Patriots joint practices a year ago in Nashville.

"He told me: Work on the things you know you need improvement on, so you won't have no weakness," Brown recalled. "Everybody works hard, but everybody knows what their weakness is. Work on your weakness so you have no weakness."

JAYON BROWN

PROUD “UNCLE”: FORMER NFL GREAT WILLIE MCGINEST PROUD OF JAYON BROWN'S SUCCESS WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
FEBRUARY 21, 2019

NASHVILLE – Willie McGinest is able to say he knew Titans linebacker Jayon Brown way back when.

And because of it, he smiles when talking about Brown’s success.

“He has always had the mentality, and the work ethic, from youth football to high school, all the way up,” McGinest said of Brown. “He’s a guy who never gave up on himself. He always worked. He always walks around with a smile, but he will work his butt off. I’m really proud of Jayon.”

McGinest, an analyst with NFL Network, played from 1994-2005 with the Patriots before playing three more seasons with the Browns (2006-08). McGinest played in two Pro Bowls while in New England, and won three Super Bowls with the Patriots, where he was teammates with Titans coach Mike Vrabel. He’s in the New England Patriots Hall of Fame.

McGinest is also close with Brown, who just finished his second season with the Titans.

Brown said he wears No.55 because it’s the number McGinest wore during his playing days.

Like McGinest, Brown is from Long Beach, California, and he went to Long Beach Poly High School. McGinest has been close friends with Brown’s father, Jason, since they were youngsters.

“Willie has always been around my family growing up, so he’s pretty much my uncle,” Brown said. “He’s helped me out throughout my career, and even today we’ll go over film.

“He gives me tips when I need them, when I ask for them. Even when I don’t ask for them, he’ll give them to me,” Brown continued, smiling. “He’s a guy who has tried to help me throughout my career, and he’s helped me a lot.”

Brown, a fifth round draft pick from UCLA in the 2017 NFL Draft, made a big leap for the Titans in 2018.

He was second on the team with 107 tackles, and he also racked up six sacks and 18 quarterback pressures. He was one of the team’s most consistent players.”

In the team’s finale against the Colts, Brown was a one-man wrecking crew, returning an interception for a touchdown before forcing another fumble – and recovering it – a little later.

“He can be really good,” McGinest said of Brown. “He is still learning the game. They ask him to do a lot – he’s a cover guy, he can play the run, he can cover a tight end and a back if you need him to. He never has to come off the field, so he is still growing, and he is still learning. I think the sky is the limit.”

Seeing Brown excel has been fun for McGinest to watch.

Watching how he’s done it makes him even prouder.

McGinest and Brown both made their comments from Super Bowl LIII earlier this month.

“A lot of people always identify players just because of the football side of it,” McGinest said. “But this kid has a great personality. He has a great outlook on life, he’s happy, and he loves doing what he is doing. And he’ll grind - he’ll work. I think when you have special guys like that you know they are going to have a bright future, and I kind of knew that with him.

“He’s just a great kid, on and off the field.”

JAYON BROWN

LB JAYON BROWN MIGHT BE SMALL, BUT HE MORE THAN MEASURES UP FOR THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
MAY 3, 2019

NASHVILLE – Jayon Brown has made a name for himself in his first two seasons with the Titans, earning snaps and recognition along the way.

It's safe to say Brown is exceeding expectations for his work at linebacker, even if the first reaction he gets from most fans is about his size.

“When they do recognize me, the first thing I get is: ‘I thought you were bigger,’” Brown said with a smile while on the Titans Caravan this week. “They’ll say: ‘You’re kind of a slim guy.’ I’ll be like, ‘Yeah, I’m not the biggest. But I get the job done, though.’ Hey, I just laugh. I’ve been hearing that my whole life. It’s all good.”

Brown, who’s 6-foot, 226 pounds, has proven to be more than big enough in a league where small and speedy linebackers are becoming more and more common. In the NFL Draft, the Titans selected former West Virginia linebacker David Long, who’s 5-11, 227 pounds.

When Titans coach Mike Vrabel was asked about Long’s size, he brought up Brown, which is a good thing.

“The size of linebackers has really diminished over the past 10 years,” Vrabel said. “Most recently it is what is playing in college football. The more that offenses become spread out, the more that college defenses recruit athletic, quick, smaller (linebackers). We are very comfortable with where we are with Jayon Brown and his development as a linebacker. I would say that David would probably fit similar to Jayon’s size. As long as you give the guy, the player, enough tools in his tool box to play with his skillset and then try to develop some other things around it, I think that is always something that we are trying to do.”

Jim Wyatt

@jwyattsports

Brown has more than held his own with the Titans. In 2018, he was second on the team with 107 tackles, and he also racked up six sacks and 18 quarterback pressures.

He was one of the team’s most consistent players.

In the team’s finale against the Colts, Brown was a one-man wrecking crew, returning an interception for a touchdown before forcing another fumble – and recovering it – a little later.

Brown played 979 snaps in 2018, including 850 on defense (81.3 %), while also playing 129 more on special teams. He earned nearly a half-million additional dollars in addition to his regular salary as part of the NFL’s performance-based pay program, which rewards players based on playing time and salary levels.

Brown didn't hate getting the bump in pay. He was also happy about his jump in play, although he’s not too interested in talk about exceeding expectations already.

Heck, he's just two years into his career.

“I am just getting started,” Brown said. “It has only been two years of film, so to be back in Nashville again and be able to go into my third year, some guys haven’t made it this far. It is a blessing and I just want to keep improving my game and keep on contributing and help us win. But to be able to be on the field and contribute as much as I do as a late-round guy, it’s nice I guess.”

A fifth-round pick in the 2017 NFL Draft out of UCLA, Brown spent the early part of the offseason in California training with NFL players like Kenny Clark, Caleb Benenoch, Malik Jackson, Malcolm Smith, David Bakhtiari, and Lance Kendricks, in addition to Titans teammate Matt Dickerson, his former teammate at UCLA.

One of his missions is to improve his stamina, so he’ll be able to do even more.

“Just being able to just go hard and full speed every play when I am on the field,” Brown said. “It just gives me the ability to make more plays and keep longer focus.”

More than anything, Brown just wants to keep getting better.

He’s already looking forward to Year 3.

“I just want to keep getting better and improving on my skills and each and every weekend I want to help the defense,” he said. “I just want to keep doing me. Keep on doing what I do in this defense, and keep making plays and being a great teammate to my guys in the locker room.

“And hopefully we can keep winning games and this year get back in the playoffs.”

JAYON BROWN

NEW HAIRDO, BUT SAME MINDSET FOR TITANS LB JAYON BROWN: "I WANT TO BE THE BEST AT WHAT I DO"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 12, 2020

NASHVILLE – Jayon Brown has a new hairdo, courtesy of a European vacation earlier this offseason.

But his mindset with the Titans is the same.

"I hold myself to high standards," said Brown, who dyed his hair blue during a stop in Amsterdam. "I want to be the best at what I do."

A fifth-round pick in the 2017 NFL Draft, Brown is coming off another productive season as inside linebacker with the Titans.

In 2019, Brown finished with 117 tackles, seven quarterback pressures, a sack, and an interception, along with four tackles for a loss. He also picked up a fumble and returned it 47 yards for a touchdown in a win at Oakland.

In 2018, Brown racked up 107 tackles with six sacks and an interception, which he returned for a touchdown against the Colts.

In three NFL seasons, Brown has 291 tackles with 8.5 sacks, 31 QB pressures, two interceptions, two forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries, along with 12 tackles for a loss.

Aside from his European vacation in the pre-COVID-19 days, Brown said he spent most of his offseason training in Nashville, "getting faster, stronger, and working on my conditioning."

"Every year when I enter a new year, I want to improve on everything I did good on, and things I didn't do so good on, every year I want to become a more complete player for myself," Brown said. "I want to improve on everything across the board that I can improve on."

Brown, who began training camp on the team's Physically Unable to Perform list, is back on the active roster and working with his teammates.

And he's excited to be back on the field, preparing for the 2020 season.

"Any time when you step on the field with these guys, and the coaches, it just brings a normal feeling in here, and I just forget about everything that is going on in the outside world," Brown said. "It is a blessing to be able to play this game with my teammates and with these coaches, and to have football back."

As for the new hairstyle, Brown described the color as "turquoise at this point."

"It (started) off darker blue, and fades into this after a few washes," Brown said with a smile during a video conference call on Wednesday. "We'll see how long this lasts, but this is what it is right now."

TITANS CB MALCOLM BUTLER WENT FROM LONG SHOT TO BIG SHOT

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
MARCH 19, 2018

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Back in 2014, Titans cornerback Malcolm Butler didn't watch the first half of the NFL Draft.

He turned on the television the last day, but he didn't have high expectations. Not after flying under the radar at Division II West Alabama, and a less-than-stellar pro day performance.

"I was not expecting to get drafted," Butler said. "I thought there was a chance I could go last round, but I didn't really expect it."

After seeing a big wave of undrafted free agents signed by NFL clubs, Butler was still without a job. Then came a phone call from the New England Patriots, inviting him to town for a workout.

It was his shot. Most considered it a long shot.

"It was like 2-3 days after the draft and they brought in 40 guys," Butler recalled. "And I was one of the two out of 40 to make it.

"I went up there ran my 40 hard, and had a good time. I competed out there in 1-on-1s hard. I did a lot of great things the first day I was there, and that's what really put me ahead of a lot of guys and got the most attention."

Butler proved he was worth taking a chance on. The Patriots signed him as an undrafted free agent after he earned the respect of coach Bill Belichick and those around him.

"I kept excelling as the weeks went by, and as camp was going on. I was never going to give up, and I wanted to prove myself," Butler said. "I was making plays on the ball, picking off Tom Brady and picking off (Jimmy) Garoppolo, talking trash and competing on and off the field, in the classroom.

"I just needed an opportunity, and if I got that I wasn't coming back home."

The rest, as they say, is history. Butler made the team, and he played in 11 games as a rookie.

In his rookie season, he sealed New England's 28-24 Super Bowl XLIX win over Seattle in the closing seconds when he intercepted quarterback Russell Wilson's pass intended for Ricardo Lockette in the end zone. Butler undercut a slant route, picked off the pass and then managed to get to the two-yard line. It was his first career interception.

Butler started 47 of 48 for the Patriots over the past three seasons. He's recorded eight interceptions in his NFL career. He played 98 percent of the defensive snaps in the regular season in 2017, when he recorded 60 tackles and two interceptions.

Now, he's ready to help the Titans, who signed him in the first week of free agency.

"It just seems like it all went so fast," Butler said. "It seems like I was just in New England on a tryout yesterday, and it all goes so fast. I've worked so hard for this. It's been a long journey, but anything that is worth having doesn't come easy. You are going to have ups and downs."

In Tennessee, the 5-foot-11, 190-pounder will join veteran cornerback Logan Ryan, his former teammate in New England, and promising second-year cornerback Adoree' Jackson in a secondary that also includes Pro Bowl safety Kevin Byard and veteran safety Johnathan Cyprien.

Butler said he's ready to do his part.

"As long as I am here I am expecting to show what I am getting paid," Butler said. "I am going to being everything I've got. I have that undrafted mentality. I'm real aggressive, and I can't wait to get out there. I'm just ready to play ball."

LOOK WHO'S BACK: TIME AWAY MADE TITANS CB MALCOLM BUTLER APPRECIATE THE GAME EVEN MORE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 14, 2020

NASHVILLE – Forgive Malcolm Butler if he's a little extra psyched for the start of Titans camp.

Just understand he waited a little longer for this.

"I'm pretty sure all my teammates can tell just by when we went to walkthrough," Butler said with a smile on Friday. "I'm probably going a little fast, but I missed out on a whole half a season (last year) and I had to sit there and watch my team win. I'm all about winning, but I want to help win, too. I'm just excited to be back."

Butler broke his wrist in the team's November 3 game at Carolina in Week 9 and didn't play the rest of the year. He was placed on Injured Reserve on November 5 and spent the rest of the season rehabbing the injury -- and watching his teammates.

Butler traveled with the team for playoff contests, and the team's eventual trip to the AFC Championship Game in Kansas City, after wins at New England and Baltimore, inspired him even more.

And his time away made him appreciate the game even more.

"I used to be at practice like, 'Man, I'm ready for practice to be over with. It's hot out here. I'm sweating,' just the little things," Butler said. "But when I got hurt, I missed those little things. I miss not being perfect. I miss being out there making plays. So, you don't want to take anything for granted. You want to cherish each and everything. Go hard each and every play because you never know when it's your last play. It taught me a lot of things, be grateful for the good and bad. Embrace the good in the bad."

Malcolm Butler: I'm Excited to be Back

Butler ended up playing in nine games in 2019, and he finished the season with 30 tackles, two interceptions and 10 passes defended. It followed a year when he posted 56 stops and three interceptions in 2018, along with 13 passes defended.

During an offseason when players were banned from Saint Thomas Sports Park because of the coronavirus, Butler went old school with workouts.

He spent most of his offseason in Nashville, working out in his garage and getting treatments so his body would be ready for the season.

"Yes, sir," Butler said. "Bread and butter, hard work, small gym, something like Rocky. I go to the field or the sand, work on my footwork, but as long as I stay in shape and just focus on my technique. I was ready. I knew that once we got back, the coaches are going to work us hard so their work plus my work will lead to good quality."

Butler, who spent his first four NFL seasons with the Patriots, is ready to do his part in 2020.

Now in his 7th season, that includes showing some of the team's younger players the way.

"First of all, I have to come in and do my job and be a leader," Butler said. "You got to do hard work before you can be a leader and try to lead someone else. I just tell Kris (Kristian Fulton) come in, be hungry. He's got to want it. It doesn't matter if you got drafted or not. I was on a football team with a guy drafted and I came in undrafted. They let him go and they kept me. I just tell him it all starts over when we get to the NFL. We're just working together as a group and try and get better each and every day.

"Whatever they ask me to do, I'm here to do it. Outside, inside, safety, whatever it takes to help the team win, I'm here to do it. Wherever they plug me in, I'm ready to work."

KEVIN BYARD IS STILL THE NFL'S BEST-KEPT SECRET

BY ANDY BENOIT
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
MAY 28, 2019

NASHVILLE — Kevin Byard plays an often-overlooked position in a relatively small market and hails from a college program most casual football fans have never seen live. So it's fitting that the most famous moment of his career was when a prominent TV personality didn't know who he was.

A few months after Byard received his 2017 first-team All-Pro honor, he tweeted at NFL-legend-turned-TV-star Deion Sanders, questioning how Sanders could name Tyrann Mathieu the game's best safety and "not include the two first-team AP All Pro safeties" (the other 2017 All-Pro safety was Minnesota's Harrison Smith). Upon firing back, Sanders referred to Byard as "a fan," a past great failing to recognize one of football's current greats.

"[Byard is] probably the most complete safety I've played with," says fellow Titans safety Kenny Vaccaro, who quickly follows with an homage to a college teammate, "[future] Hall of Famer" Earl Thomas. "But Kevin Byard, as far as in the box, man coverage, ball skills back deep, he's probably the best I've played with."

Last season, Byard's numbers dipped from eight interceptions to four, 16 passes defensed to eight, and two fumble recoveries to none. He missed out on the 2018 All-Pro team. But the decline in numbers is further evidence that stats—especially for a safety—are finicky. Most football people, especially within the Titans building, believe Byard was better in 2018, and by a significant margin.

"He was," says Titans cornerback Logan Ryan. "You're not going to get eight interceptions every year ... Plus, when you go All-Pro, offenses then know who you are and they're going to try to find ways to factor you out. I talked to guys who played us this year, they said, 'We saw Byard back there [in centerfield], we were not throwing anything deep. We're going to go [to an empty formation] and throw quick game, you have too good a free safety.'"

Indianapolis Colts v Tennessee Titans

Taking Byard out of games is difficult because he's so much more than just a free safety. "Kevin, to me, is like a younger Eric Berry," Ryan says. "He's the best openfield tackler of our safeties, he covers man-to-man if we're facing the best tight ends. He has the most interceptions out of centerfield. And he's smart on a level that lets us communicate and change blitzes. And he is becoming a better blitzer. He was doing all that by Year 2 in his career."

Byard took it to another level in Year 3 when the Titans overhauled their defensive approach, replacing previous coordinator Dick LeBeau's system with a mix of new head coach Mike Vrabel's scheme from Houston and defensive coordinator Dean Pees's scheme from Baltimore—two of football's most complex schemes to begin with. Titans defensive backs are quick to point out that their secondary, in terms of coverages, disguises and especially blitzes, does more schematically than any in the league. There are two keys: 1) corners like Ryan, Malcolm Butler (expensive free agents), and Adoree' Jackson (first-round pick) who can each play man or zone and, 2) versatile safeties like Vaccaro and especially Byard.

"I pride myself on being able to play deep, being able to come in the box and play good run defense, being able to blitz," Byard says. "And having the versatility to play the slot and cover tight ends—that's one thing you don't see a lot of safeties do consistently."

Byard laughs when asked if he sent his agent, David Mulugheta, a gift basket back in March. Mulugheta also represents former Giant Landon Collins, who signed a six-year, $84 million deal ($44.5M guaranteed) in Washington, raising the high-water mark for guaranteed money in a safety's contract by a staggering 11.25 percent.

"Going into this offseason, I didn't know the safety market was going to jump up that high," Byard says. "So it's like, 'Ah man, that's super good'—especially for Landon, [new Raven] Earl Thomas, those boys deserve it. I was definitely excited."

His teammates leave no doubt as to whether they think Byard deserves it. "As far as being able to do everything, Kevin is the best safety in the league," Vaccaro reiterates, adding that Byard should be the highest-paid at his position. "And when you're paying Kevin, you're paying a leader, you're paying a good father, you're paying a great teammate."

Adds Ryan: "He's always thanking his teammates. He wants a new contract and that's going to probably have to wait, and I think he's handling that very well. He's here [in the offseason program], he's being a leader, he's even helping out potential replacements. His attitude is, 'Whatever man, at the end of the day I'm going to be a good teammate.' That's where we have a special group [in this secondary]. It's not built to last forever, obviously. Contract-wise, you can't keep paying everyone forever. But we're excited for this year, it's maybe our last run."

Indeed. Ryan himself is in the final year of his deal. And Malcolm Butler, one figures, could be on the outs in 2020 if he has another up and down season. (According to OverTheCap.com, the Titans can tear up his pricey contract for a $7.6M cap savings in 2020.) As for Byard? "I'm taking it day by day," he says. "I understand it's a business. It can go either way. They can pay this offseason, they can play this year out and try to franchise me—I try to just keep my mind off that stuff because I feel like it can almost drive you crazy.”

Watching film with Byard, it’s easy to understand how he has become such a versatile ball hawk. Besides strong playing speed and fluid change-of-direction prowess, he understands the game from a quarterback’s perspective.

In Week 1 against the Dolphins, he made one of last season’s most impressive pass breakups from centerfield, swatting away a deep shot to speed-receiver Jakeem Grant. “I wish I could have one-hand picked it,” he says with authentic ruefulness as the film rolls. “One thing I learned about playing [centerfield] is if the quarterback’s shoulders open, say to the right, then that quarterback is not getting back to the left. If the quarterback is going to throw to the left, at the top of his drop, his shoulders would be more squared. So I could immediately feel this throw, and as soon as I saw the QB take that hitch step, I just turned and went. It helped that I was already anticipating it, knowing that at that time of the game the Dolphins needed a big play, and that [Jakeem] Grant runs nothing except stop routes and Go balls.”

Watching his interception against Eli Manning in Week 15, he talked about the importance of a free defender in two-deep man coverage getting 22 yards from the line of scrimmage after the snap, which he says is the perfect landmark for defending any route. “Every third down in this game they kept throwing this ‘sail’ route concept, so I was already anticipating this one. As soon as I saw the receiver break out, I just took off because Eli Manning just kept throwing that ball. I don’t know why he threw this one, he definitely didn’t read it right.”

On another snap, Byard perfectly disguised a blitz, creating a sack opportunity for someone else—something, teammates note, he does regularly. “One thing that I learned more from Dean Pees is understanding how offensive lines block and make their calls,” Byard says. “That’s how we’d like to manipulate guys with our disguises.” Ryan raved about this with Byard, citing it as the biggest reason Titans had more sacks by defensive backs (9) than any team last year. “Stats and Pro Football Focus equate to what you do individually, but they don’t show what you sacrifice for your teammates,” he says.

Byard’s football IQ, you could say, launched his NFL career. Incredibly, he was not invited to the 2016 combine. A four-year starter at Middle Tennessee State (located just 30 minutes from Titans headquarters), he performed well at the Senior Bowl, the highlight being an interception against Jacoby Brissett in practice. But while fellow Senior Bowlers would talk about their combine invites, Byard was left out and baffled as to why. “I didn’t understand why I wasn’t getting an invite,” he says. “Nobody really gave me an answer. My college numbers were off the charts. I broke pretty much every school record: 19 interceptions, four pick-sixes, 300-plus tackles, a bunch of different stats. Maybe because I was a small-school guy, but I was still accomplished at a D-I program.”

Of course, Byard wasn’t going completely unnoticed. In the early 2000s, Titans general manager Jon Robinson coached at Nicholls State where one of his players was Steve Ellis, Middle Tennessee’s defensive coordinator while Byard was at MTSU. “Steve raved about Kevin,” Robinson says. Steve would text Robinson updates on Byard every few weeks, and eventually Robinson put on Byard’s film. “He was a willing tackler and extremely productive on the ball. I think he had 19 interceptions in college. You don’t just stumble into 19 picks, whether it’s college, pro, high school, whatever.”

Byard discovered a silver lining to his combine snub: More personal visits with teams. “I ended up taking, like, 12 visits. I was able to have some real personal time with those teams’ GMs. I was able to sit down with DB coaches and watch film, talk ball.”

Byard’s agent, Mulugheta, told him he was being talked about as, at best, a fourth-round pick and, at worst, a seventh-rounder. “That’s not that good,” Byard remembers thinking. “But after my first week of visits, my agent was like, ‘I don’t know what you’re doing on these visits man, but you’re starting to climb up draft boards.’”

That included the Titans’. And so days before the draft, their entire brass caravanned over to Middle Tennessee State. “It was three or four to a vehicle,” Robinson recalls. “I drove and, I think, Dick LeBeau drove. We got there and Kevin was sitting in the film room waiting for us. He had everything lined up and was ready to roll.”

They had no idea that Byard had to be coaxed into taking the meeting.

“I was taking my last visit, it was in Miami. On these visits they’re wining and dining you,” he says. “You’re eating steak almost every night. So I’m not really in good shape. I get a call down there in Miami from my agent. He said, ‘Listen, the Titans want to work you out.’ This was like a week before the draft, I’d been on the road for two straight weeks. I said, ‘I’m not doing any more workouts, I’m done.’”

Other than sending a defensive assistant coach to Middle Tennessee State’s pro day, the Titans had had no contact with Byard. But shortly after the call, Mulugheta phoned again telling his client he needed to do the workout because the Titans were sending all of their big wigs and pertinent defensive coaches.

The on-field portion lasted about 10 minutes; the rest of the session was spent in the film room and at the whiteboard. The Titans had Byard take them through MTSU’s game against Alabama, Byard narrating all the calls and assignments. The Titans also installed portions of their own defense and tested Byard’s comprehension. “He nailed every call, you could see that he was a very cerebral player,” Robinson says.

“I’ll never forget,” Byard says with a grin, “Dick LeBeau was like, ‘This is the best meeting I’ve had with any DB [in that year’s draft process].’” Byard had wowed coaches in other meetings. They’d ask him to draw his favorite coverages and defensive plays and when he did, he’d include all 11 defenders, clear down to what specific alignments the defensive linemen were in. He didn’t realize how unusual that was.

And so the Titans took Byard with the first pick in the third round after rejecting offers to trade down. After the pick, “I got a couple of calls from teams that were trying to trade up with us,” Robinson remembers. “And they said, ‘You just took the guy that we were going to take.’”

Robinson’s next decision on Byard will be even bigger. The franchise tag for a safety is projected to cost over $13 million. A long-term deal could cost in the realm of $50 million guaranteed. Fortunately for the Titans, Byard is content to play out the final year of his rookie deal, which pays just over $2 million—greener pastures await. In the meantime, did he ever hear again from Deion Sanders?

“No, of course not,” Byard says. “I wasn’t really expecting to, though. He’s a legend, he doesn’t really have to respond. If anything, he probably feels like, ‘Hey, I’m giving this kid clout by responding.’ I just left it alone. He probably just made an honest mistake, he probably really didn’t know [who I was]. We’re a small-market team, we don’t get a lot of prime-time TV games, so he might not know. But if you work at NFL Network you should probably know who the All-Pros are. But it’s TV, man, people pick their favorites.”

Byard continues: “If you look up Deion’s stats, he was the Truth. That’s why I kind of just looked at [his tweet] like, ‘Man, he’s OG, a legend, I’ll leave it up to him.’ I felt like it would have been manning-up if he had just reached out to me, but he doesn’t have to. I’m trying to get that gold jacket like he has—if I get that gold jacket, then I’ll be able to say something to him.”

KEVIN BYARD: SPORTS CAN HELP TEACH UNITY AND HARMONY

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITANINSIDER.COM
JUNE 10, 2020

Tennessee Titans safety Kevin Byard said that sports in general and the NFL in particular can be a great teacher for all people during the tumultuous times since the death of George Floyd in Minneapolis at the hands of a police officer.

Byard said that a football locker room is about coming together for a common goal, and that that can be something people in all walks of line and learn from and emulate as the nation works to improve race relations and heal from the divisiveness of the past.

“I think that’s the beauty of sports right there. I’ve never met a guy from my locker room that I felt like hated me because of the color of my skin or anything like that. That’s the beauty of the NFL. Right now, we have 90 guys on the team, or close to 90. We all come from different walks of life,” Byard said in Zoom conference call on Wednesday. “Everybody comes from a different part of the country, some people come from different parts of the world. I just feel like the beauty of it is the simple fact that we can all come together no matter our differences, things like that, to try to accomplish a common goal and work together within that. Honestly, I feel like the country can take a great lesson from sports and the unity of guys, and people coming from all different shades and colors and different things like that, and not really caring about it.

“When one guy scores a touchdown, the whole team is celebrating, it doesn’t matter what he looks like. I think that’s the beauty of sports and that’s kind of why I feel like especially the game of football is such a game of life and it teaches you so much, and I’ve appreciated all the lessons that I’ve learned just by playing ball, and all the people

I’ve met and all the times I’ve experienced.”

Byard said he attended an all-black high school and realized when he got to college at Middle Tennessee that people come from all different backgrounds and experiences. He said he appreciates those who will never know what it is like growing up as a black person in America working to empathize with things he and African Americans have faced.

“Honestly, since I’ve been in the NFL, and not even just the NFL, I went to an all-black high school, so by me coming to Middle Tennessee and me coming to the NFL, working in these different work environments with all types of different people, different races, I began to realize that everybody doesn’t necessarily know or have the experience growing up as a black person in America,” Byard said. “A lot of times you can’t expect everybody to understand that. For me personally, for (Mike) Vrabel and a lot of guys around the world that would sit there and say, ‘I haven’t experienced the black experience,’ or ‘I don’t know what it feels like for the kinds of struggles you’ve been through, but I’m trying to understand, I’m listening and I’m trying to show empathy.’ Honestly, that’s all I can really ask for from anybody. Everybody’s experience is different. I’ve met people from all different races that were some of the best people I’ve ever met. Honestly, all the conversation that we’ve had as a team, that I’ve had with a bunch of different people, it’s all about education. I would just say that for anybody that’s trying to understand what black people are going through or trying to figure out what they can do in this situation is just have empathy. Have empathy as human beings to understand that everybody goes through struggles, not just black people, everybody goes through struggles. Just understand to be more empathetic and be more humane.”

Quarterback Ryan Tannehill, who was also on a conference call, is one of those players that Byard said has stepped up in the wake of the Floyd tragedy.”

“It’s kind of like enough is enough, right? It’s something that my eyes have been opened to, the privilege I’ve lived with my whole life just because of the color of my skin. The situations my friends, my teammates, guys that I love, that they’ve been put in throughout their life purely because of the color of their skin, things they have to deal with which no man, no people should have to deal with, hearing stories,” Tannehill said. “I think when this first came around in 2016, I was on a team with Kenny Stills who was able to educate me about a lot of it. I’m really thankful for a lot of the conversations that we’ve had along the way. Just such an issue that affects millions of people that if you don’t – I think the unfortunate thing about it is, if you’re a white person you don’t have to deal with it on a daily basis and you’re not put in those situations.

“It’s easy to just go about your life and not recognize it and not realize how big of a deal it is, how many people it affects on a daily basis. I think with this push, I think more and more people are having an awakening to the reality of the situation and how deep it really is, how many layers of injustice there are to it with the court system, and policing, and just on a day-to-day basis. Like I said, there’s so many layers to it. I think that just this push was kind of like the straw that broke the camel’s back, right? It’s been happening for far too long and finally got to the point where enough is enough.”

For Byard, he sees Tannehill beyond just that, saying he had respect for the type of person the quarterback is from their first meeting.

“I respect Ryan to the fullest. I’ve always respected him since I first met him. That’s one thing about me, I don’t look at guys as race and all this stuff. Ryan and his family, his wife, has treated my family with nothing but love and I respect him just for the man he is,” Byard said.

KEVIN BYARD

“The fact that he’s speaking and using his voice to uplift others, black, white, or different, whatever, it speaks volumes for his character. I will always treat him based upon that. I always try to treat everybody with love and try not to hate anybody. Ryan Tannehill, he’s a great guy. I always feel comfortable around him and I feel like the entire team respects him in that way as well.”

In terms of what he might do to raise awareness like others have done by kneeling for the anthem, Byard said he has not thought about it, but said that whatever gesture is done will likely be through the team and will show team unification.

“Honestly, I really haven’t given any thought to it. I know a few years back when it was a question of teams kneeling, different things like that, I know us as a team, the Titans, we came together and we made a decision. I think we played Seattle that game and both teams decided not to come out. But it’s something I haven’t thought about at all,” he said. “I honestly feel like the fact that the conversation is being shifted a little bit toward how we’re going to protest and different things like that, it just shifts the conversation from what the issue (is) and the things we really need to focus on, which is the racial injustice and different things like that. No, honestly, I haven’t given any thought to it. I’m sure that when the time comes, us as a team, we’ll make a decision as a team.”

FROM A PIPE DREAM TO REALITY: TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD CALLS BUYING HIS MOM A HOUSE "ONE OF THE BIGGEST MILESTONES I'VE ACCOMPLISHED"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 18, 2020

NASHVILLE – Kevin Byard has played in a Pro Bowl, and he's been voted a team captain by his teammates.

The Titans safety, who has 17 interceptions over the past three seasons, is regarded one of the best in the game at his position.

But there's something else Byard is even more proud of – he bought his mother a house recently.

"That's probably one of the biggest milestones that I've accomplished in my playing career, for sure," Byard said. "To get drafted, and second to be able to buy my mom her forever home is something that means dearly to me, has meant something to me since I was younger.

"It's kind of been a pipe dream. Something that I never really – something I thought about doing, but I never really thought it was going to be possible. Just been a lot of hard work and dedication to be able to accomplish that goal."

Byard has credited his mother, Artina Stanley, for much of his success.

Following a divorce when Byard was in ninth grade, his mother moved with the children from Philadelphia to Atlanta. While the family dealt with financial struggles, Stanley worked long hours to make sure her children received what they needed. Byard has said he and his older brother "had to grow up really fast" as they helped their mother with taking care of the younger kids in the family.

In a social media post by Byard, he showed his mother in front of the house he purchased.

"When you come from where I come from, stuff like this is a pipe dream that only a few are able to accomplish," Byard wrote. "I hate that we couldn't be there but I'm more happy that everything worked itself out. I love you mom and enjoy your new forever home! ☐"

Byard, who played collegiately at MTSU, has made an effort to give back to the community.

Last May, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. At the time, he said he planned to hold the camp - which was free - every year.

In September, Byard partnered with UnitedHealthcare to distribute new shoes and socks to over 300 students at Robert Churchwell Elementary School in Nashville. Byard tossed the football with kids, and spoke to them about the importance of making good grades.

Byard joined Titans teammates, coaches, and other members of the organization for tornado clean-up efforts in Nashville in March.

Kevin Byard Taking One Day at a Time as Season Approaches

Byard has taken part in the Titans Caravan, and other off-field events in the Nashville area.

On the field, Byard said he wants to keep improving while being even more of a leader.

"We're all in this together," Byard said. "We're all in this to win a Super Bowl. I know for a fact every single day that I come into that building I come into that building to put in the work, and I come into the building to work hard and try to accomplish that goal. I feel like we all should be trying to accomplish the same.

"I'm going to try to hold my guys accountable if I feel like somebody is slacking off, or if I'm slacking off somebody should hold me accountable. I think that's just the relationship that we all need to have in the building, and not be too concerned with emotions and different things like that. It's all about the goal of trying to win a Super Bowl."

TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD TO SERVE AS UNITED WAY OF GREATER NASHVILLE OFFICIAL SPOKESPERSON

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JULY 1, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans safety Kevin Byard has been selected as the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville.

Byard plans to use the platform to influence others while making an impact in the community, starting with the virtual 2020 Stuff the Bus school supply drive.

"I'm honored and excited to team up with United Way of Greater Nashville," Byard said in a statement. "We both share a passion for impacting those in need in our community and striving to give everyone the resources needed to be successful. I'm looking forward to building our community and launching our work together with Stuff the Bus."

Byard, who played collegiately at MTSU, has made a great effort over the years to give back to the community.

Last May, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. At the time, he said he planned to hold the camp - which was free - every year.

In September, Byard partnered with UnitedHealthcare to distribute new shoes and socks to over 300 students at Robert Churchwell Elementary School in Nashville. Byard tossed the football with kids, and spoke to them about the importance of making good grades.

In 2019, Byard also teamed up with Academy Sports to provide new shoes and coats for the children of The Boys and Girls club in Smyrna, Tenn.

Byard joined Titans teammates, coaches, and other members of the organization for tornado clean-up efforts in Nashville in March.

Byard began The Byard Family Legacy Fund in 2019 because he wanted to make a difference in the lives of his neighbors. Byard has said the purpose of his foundation is to provide the community with hope.

"We're incredibly lucky to have Kevin on our side," said Brian Hassett, United Way of Greater Nashville's president and CEO. "United Way has partnered with the Tennessee Titans for more than 20 years. Our partnership is so strong because of our shared interest in increasing public awareness about the issues facing our community, and how we can work together to better serve our neighbors."

Here's how individuals, groups and workplaces can contribute now through July 10:

-- Run a drive. Visit roonga.com/uwgnstuffthebus2020 to set up a team for a workplace or group. Create a team profile, set a goal for your supply drive and share a personalized team link with colleagues and friends to start collecting.

-- Support students by purchasing supply kits or individual items directly from an online store. The items will be delivered to local elementary school students in need.

--Individuals can make a credit card donation in any amount which will be used to buy more supplies.

TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD NAMED NFLPA COMMUNITY MVP

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans safety Kevin Byard has been named the NFLPA Community MVP for the week leading up to NFL Kickoff Weekend.

The NFLPA recognized Byard after he hosted two back-to-school events that benefited more than 100 disadvantaged families in the metropolitan Nashville area.

In partnership with United Healthcare, Stuff the Bus, United Way and Academy Sports, Byard packed and distributed more than 300 distance learning kits to those in need. The kits included school supplies, essential hygiene items, backpacks, gift cards and sporting goods.

"It's an honor and a blessing to be highlighted as NFLPA Community MVP," Byard said. "I'm grateful to give back to my city and ensure I'm truly making a difference to those in need."

Earlier this offseason, Byard was also selected as the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville.

Byard said he wanted to lend a helping hand to families who have lost jobs and may not have the resources available to transition to a new style of living and learning. According to the NFLPA release, Byard divided his efforts into two portions earlier this summer – one in person, where he went from door-to-door delivering the back-to-school kits while wearing a mask; and the other virtually, where he reminded the youth to stay strong, focus on their education and that hope is on the horizon.

Byard, who played collegiately at MTSU, has made a great effort over the years to give back to the community.

Last May, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. At the time, he said he planned to hold the camp - which was free - every year.

Last September, Byard partnered with UnitedHealthcare to distribute new shoes and socks to over 300 students at Robert Churchwell Elementary School in Nashville. Byard tossed the football with kids, and spoke to them about the importance of making good grades.

In 2019, Byard also teamed up with Academy Sports to provide new shoes and coats for the children of The Boys and Girls club in Smyrna, Tenn.

Byard joined Titans teammates, coaches, and other members of the organization for tornado clean-up efforts in Nashville in March.

Byard began The Byard Family Legacy Fund in 2019 because he wanted to make a difference in the lives of his neighbors. Byard has said the purpose of his foundation is to provide the community with hope.

Byard also volunteered on Giving Tuesday with local high school football teams to create care packages for the homeless and taking the lead as an instrument for change during the recent social justice protests.

Through his Byard Family Legacy Fund, which he launched in 2019, the fifth-year NFL veteran has held free annual football camps for 200-plus students, hosted Thanksgiving food distributions and provided new shoes, socks and coats for local youth. In just the past year, Byard has impacted more than 5,000 individuals in need in the greater Nashville community.

In honor of Byard being named this week's Community MVP, the NFLPA will make a $10,000 contribution to his foundation or charity of choice. The NFLPA will also work with Byard to set up a virtual visit to a school or hospital in his community as a way of honoring and inspiring those who are impacted by the ongoing pandemic. Finally, our supporting partner Pledge It has set up a crowdfunding campaign to support the Byard Family Legacy Fund. Supporters can make a flat donation at the following website: pledgeit.org/kevin-byard.

Byard is eligible for this year's Alan Page Community Award, which is the highest honor that the NFLPA can bestow upon a player.

The NFLPA Community MVP program recognizes NFL players who are making a positive impact in their team cities and hometowns. Each week during the regular season, the NFLPA will celebrate one NFL player who has demonstrated a commitment to giving back to his community. SUPER DAD: TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD EXPLAINS HOW HE DELIVERED HIS OWN SON AT FAMILY'S HOME

BY JIM WYATT

TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – Kevin Byard has made some clutch plays during the course of his playing career.

In the season opener at Denver, in fact, his forced fumble led to an early Titans touchdown.

But the 27-year-old made the play of his life last month when he delivered his own son, Kevin Leon Byard IV.

Yes, it's true. And on Wednesday, Byard went into great detail about how it happened while on a video conference call with reporters.

"It's one of those deals where we just couldn't make it to the hospital," Byard started off. "Obviously we weren't planning on having the baby at the house."

Byard said his wife, Clarke, started having mild contractions on the evening of August 23. Around 10:30 p.m., Byard's wife woke up and things escalated quickly. Then, she started having more severe contractions while on the bathroom floor. The child was due on August 24th.

"I kind of got up, I wasn't really panicking, but I scrambling to get some clothes on, helping her try to get dressed," Byard recalled. "Her mom was downstairs, so I called her up."

Byard then got the car ready, as Clarke Byard started moving around. Byard called the doula and said, "meet us at the hospital." But with things changing, it became, "meet us at the house."

With the doula on the speakerphone, the Byards provided updates. With the doula being 30 minutes away from the Byard's home, she provided instructions. The first: "Let's try and get her in the bathtub."

But by this time, Byard said his son's "head was already poking out." At this point, Byard said his wife was on her hands and knees.

"The (doula) said, "Tell her to start pushing, the baby is coming," Byard recalled. "His face was pointing upward, so I could see his face was real purple. I was nervous about that, so the doula told me to support his head."

About 10 or 15 minutes later, there was serious action.

"Once he got his head out, his shoulders and everything just kind of slipped out," Byard said. "And I kind of caught him in my arms. He waited about five seconds, he coughed about two or three times, and started crying."

Byard's wife remained on the floor, and an ambulance was called.

"We ended up getting the placenta out, cut the umbilical cord, and we headed to the hospital," Byard said. "All of this happened from 10:30 to 11:05. It was like a 30-minute period. Things kind of went fast."

Byard and his wife also have a one-year-old daughter, Eliana.

A former MTSU star and team captain who has recorded 17 interceptions in his NFL career, Byard knows he has a moment he'll never forget.

"That was probably the most memorable thing me and my wife have ever been through in our relationship other than getting married," Byard said. "That's a story I am going to tell my son for the rest of our days."

VRABEL KNOWS BETTER THAN ANYONE WHAT CLOWNEY CAN DO

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
APRIL 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – If there is anyone in the NFL with reason to believe he can get the best out of Jadeveon Clowney, it is Tennessee Titans coach Mike Vrabel.

After all, he has done it.

Vrabel's one season as Houston Texans defensive coordinator (2017) was also Clowney's best, statistically speaking. Or at least his best to date. And it happened at a time when a number of things could not have gone worse.

Two of Houston's most prominent players on defense at the time – J.J. Watt and Whitney Mercilus – played just five games apiece because of injury. Vrabel's unit finished last in the NFL in points allowed, 29 in yards per play allowed and were in the bottom sixth for red zone and goal-to-go defense.

As it turned out, that also was the one time in his six-year career that Clowney played all 16 games. Never, though, has he played so many positions.

“We did a lot with him,” Vrabel said this week. “We had a lot of injuries (and) we put him in a lot of different places to try to help us affect the game. ... We asked him to do a lot, and he did do a lot for us.”

That season Clowney set career-highs for sacks (9.5), tackles for loss (21), quarterback hits (21), forced fumbles (two), fumble recoveries (two) and tackles (59). He was the only AFC player with at least 20 tackles-for-loss (21) and 20 quarterback hits (20).

It is as close as he has come to meeting the expectations that were set when the Texans drafted him first overall in 2014.

Vrabel and general manager Jon Robinson confirmed the Titans' interest in Clowney, arguably the top free agent still available this season, but there is no indication that a deal to bring him to Tennessee is at hand. Cleveland, which has the most available salary cap space, reportedly has made a push to get him. And Seattle, the team for which he played last season, would very much welcome his return, as evidenced by quarterback Russell Wilson's recent social media plea.

Clowney has been to three Pro Bowls, including in 2017, and for three straight years – beginning in 2017 – he has made the list of the NFL's top 100 players (he has been as high as No. 32).

There have been those, however, who have questioned his work ethic and desire, even as far back as the days and weeks before he was drafted. Then again, Clowney is just 27 years old (his birthday was in February) so there is reason to think that maybe his best is yet to come.

If nothing else, Vrabel has a clear idea of just how good he can be.

“I know that when I coached JD [Clowney], JD was prepared,” he said. “He played extremely hard. ... I never had an issue with any of JD's effort on the field.”

REXRODE: TITANS WERE IN FOR JADEVEON CLOWNEY ALL ALONG, NOW THEY'RE UP FOR A RUN

THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 6, 2020

Now that Jadeveon Clowney is going to be part of the Tennessee Titans' 2020 defense, imagine it without him.

The scheming wizard, Dean Pees, is gone. So is Jurrell Casey, who seeks retribution when the Titans visit him in Denver for the Monday Night Football opener. So is Pees' best blitzer, cornerback Logan Ryan, who had 4 ½ sacks, more than 10 percent of the team's total of 43. Of course, that's also 50 percent more than Clowney's 2019 total of three in Seattle, which is the primary argument against signing Clowney and ignores everything else he does and how close the Titans are to being a complete team. And how one area in particular was setting up to hold them back.

This offense, also known as TanneHenry, is going to score a lot of points. The defense was going to be solid. What Jon Robinson has done, finally, is eliminate the idea that he didn't do everything possible to make it better than that.

Clowney represents completion. Of a pursuit that was rather obvious when the Titans dealt Casey to the Broncos for a seventh-round pick and more so when they didn't draft to address the position. Of a saga that has been odd and stayed odd until the end, conflicting reports on Clowney agreeing to sign until ESPN finally confirmed it. Of a statement acquisition for a franchise that is accumulating NFL respect under controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk, Robinson and coach Mike Vrabel.

Clowney doesn't guarantee anything. But imagine this defense without him. It has excellent inside linebackers and safeties, good corners, high hopes for Jeffery Simmons, who made Casey and his $11.8 million cap hit (and $26 million due in the next two seasons) redundant. Between Vrabel and outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen, it has a collective plan to replace Pees. It has everything but a good feeling about affecting quarterbacks with four pass rushers at a time, which you have to do in this league.

Imagine the playoffs, which this team could have reached without Clowney. Another shot at Kansas City, which this team could have earned without Clowney. It's still only getting there with an offense that lives up to its billing, and the Titans aren't beating the Chiefs without a whole bunch of points. But maybe there's one Clowney sack in there, or forced fumble, or commanded double team that allows someone else to make a play, that gives the Titans one stop they wouldn't have gotten otherwise.

Whatever they did in 2020 without Clowney, anything but winning the Super Bowl would have been greeted with this question more than any other: "What if they would have signed Clowney?"

That's just how this thing has gone, and it's how this team is built. It was going to be Harold Landry, who had nine sacks in his second season, looking at a lot of attention. It was going to be Kamalei Correa on the other side, a nice story, but not a Clowney when Clowney is right. Not a guy who was going to take eyes off Landry. It was going to be Vic Beasley, Robinson's top free-agent signing (one year, $9.5 million) before this reported one-year, $12 million deal with incentives up to $15 million for Clowney. Beasley just passed a physical Saturday after not initially reporting to camp, and before all that there were questions about his love for football and downward trajectory since leading the league with 15 ½ sacks in 2016. It was going to be reserve Derick Roberson, a former undrafted free agent who has demonstrated some ability. That was it.

It was going to be a team with 25 returning sacks from 2019 among front-seven players. Only Landry and Correa (five) had more than three. This is how average opposing quarterbacks can be made to look better than they are. This is how a really good Titans secondary can be made to look average. You can't rely on exotic scheming all the time, especially with Pees gone. You can count on Clowney making it more likely, consistently, that the Titans will bother quarterbacks without having to blitz.

He had just three sacks last season, yes, and he had a core injury that required offseason surgery. He's also had significant knee, wrist and elbow injuries in his past. That's the biggest concern. The "doesn't play hard" tag is a twisting of the very real "doesn't like camp" tag, and if effort issues are real, do you think Vra-Rob goes to all this trouble to get him to Nashville?

The three-sack criticism ignores the fact that Clowney had two touchdowns last season, one returning a fumble and one an interception. It doesn't account for the way he blew up San Francisco's offense in a big Seattle win there, with one of those touchdowns, a forced fumble, a sack and five quarterback hits. An every-down inability to block him, and ripple effects in favor of Seattle, were on display. It totally blows off Clowney as a run defender, and the fact that the Titans' rush defense has been good but not great the past couple seasons. He'll help it.

No, Clowney has never been a pure pass rusher. His career high was the 9 ½ sacks he had in 2017, with Vrabel as his defensive coordinator in Houston. But he also had 21 tackles for loss and 21 quarterback hits that season. And when he's healthy, when he's right, offenses have to account for him.

Consider what that could mean for Landry. Landry should be ecstatic today. Consider what that could mean for Simmons. Imagine Clowney coming up the middle, as

JADEVEON CLOWNEY

Vrabel liked to do with him in some passing situations in Houston, flanked by Landry and by a Beasley who is healthy and right. And with Simmons providing interior push. This is where it's easier to imagine the extra stop or two against a Kansas City, or a Baltimore, or a Houston, to win the Titans a very important game.

There's no argument against doing this for a one-year deal, especially at that price (Clowney reportedly wanted $20 million or more initially, which is outrageous). The Titans have a chance to make a run this year. They have the money to pay him this year. Yes, the cap is going down in 2021, so more money to roll over would be useful as the Titans try to retain Jonnu Smith and Jayon Brown. Robinson has operated with a long-term approach.

But when you're this close, and the Titans are, you go for it. Robinson has recognized this all along, has been pursuing Clowney all along, though that meant weeks at a time of waiting for Clowney to get serious and more reasonable in his demands. Now there will be no more questions about why Robinson dealt Casey and then didn't come with a corresponding addition. There will be no questions about why he didn't do all he could do to take advantage of this one-year window.

If Clowney isn't healthy, isn't right, doesn't fortify the defense as hoped, it was still worth a shot. If he is and does those things? TanneHenry better make way for LandaClowney.

WILL COMPTON

LB WILL COMPTON HAPPY TO BE BACK WITH THE TITANS, AND HE FEELS THE LOVE FROM FAN BASE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 1, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans linebacker Will Compton is one of the boys in Tennessee once again, and he's fired up about it.

He's also been pleasantly surprised at the celebration he's seen from the team's fan base on social media.

"I only played here one year, and it's not like I was some superstar," Compton said on a video conference call on Tuesday morning. "And then when I went to Oakland (last year), it was like I was some hometown kid leaving to go somewhere. So yeah, it's definitely surprising, but it definitely makes you feel loved."

The Titans re-signed Compton, who played in 12 games for the Titans in 2018, last week.

A seven-year NFL veteran, Compton played with the Raiders in 2019.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel said during a video conference call on Tuesday Compton has a great personality, so he fit back in locker room quickly because the guys like him.

Compton, who'd been working out in Nashville hoping to get a call, recalled the text he got from Vrabel prior to working out for the team. Compton said all the episodes of his popular "Bussin' With the Boys" podcast with teammate Taylor Lewan were recorded earlier in the offseason, which allows him to focus on football.

"When Vrabel texted, I think it was a Sunday morning, if I was in shape," Compton said, "I was like, Oh, st, this is about to happen. I immediately got excited."

Will Compton: I'm Excited to be Back with the Titans

In 12 games for the Titans in 2018, Compton was credited with 11 tackles and a pass defensed that season, along with a team-high 11 stops on special teams.

Titans outside linebacker coach Shane Bowen said he's been pleasantly surprised by what he's seen from Compton in practices so far.

"I have been pleased with Will," Bowen said. "I think he is moving around pretty good, playing better than I expected him to, to be honest – don't tell him that. He has been good. He has always been a smart player; he was a smart player before. He hasn't had any issues in terms of learning – Has (ILBs Coach Jim Haslett) has thrown him into the fire, and he has done well. I have been pleased with Will up to this point."

"I'll take any compliment I can get," a smiling Compton said when told of Bowen's assessment. "I feel great moving around right now, and it's just about getting acclimated to being back in the defense and getting all the verbiage down and back into the swing of things. But I feel healthy and I feel good."

Compton spent his first five NFL seasons with the Redskins, where he played in 57 games over five seasons (2013-2017). With the Raiders last season, Compton was credited 38 tackles while appearing in nine games.

In his NFL career, Compton has 78 games of NFL experience, including 39 starts. Compton has 339 career tackles, three interceptions, and a sack.

Compton hopes to make his second stint with the Titans special. He was optimistic about being signed for 2020 even when he wasn't on a roster at the start of camp, and is glad things worked out in Tennessee.

"You initially think your chapter and stuff is over," Compton said of his days in Tennessee. "I was always prepared (and thinking) I'll probably have to be in a different city this year, so it has all worked out and I am excited to be here."

LOOKING TO ADD MORE PUNCH IN 2020, TITANS OLB KAMALEI CORREA HAS ADDED BOXING TO HIS WORKOUT ROUTINE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 27, 2020

NASHVILLE – Kamalei Correa has a tendency to beat himself up.

The Titans outside linebacker ended the 2019 season with momentum, recording sacks in six of the team's last eight games. But when he watched himself on film after the season, he didn't necessarily like what he saw.

"I wasn't too impressed with myself," Correa said.

His fiancé has told him he needs to ease up on the self-criticism, but he can't help it.

Correa is hoping that boxing – part his new training routine this offseason -- will allow him to beat up others on the football field this fall.

"There's a saying in the NFL, and it's that you're only as good as your last game," Correa said. "What I did last year, it doesn't matter now. We haven't played a game in a while.

"I am always going to be my toughest critic. I was trained to always keep pushing, always keep striving, always try to be better because the moment you settle is the moment you get beat. So, I'm always thinking: How can I do better? How can I keep improving? It is a fresh start now, and a new season is coming up. This is year five for me, and I am going to do everything I can to be better so I can help the team."

Correa, who re-signed with the team this offseason, has incorporated boxing into his workout regimen with the hopes it will make him an even better player.

Acquired in a trade with the Ravens prior to the 2018 season, Correa had the best season of his career in 2019 when he recorded 37 tackles, five sacks and seven quarterback pressures. Correa added sacks of Baltimore's Lamar Jackson and Kansas City's Patrick Mahomes in the playoffs.

While training in San Diego this offseason, Correa said he found a boxing coach, Hakan Yildiz, and he's been working with him three to four times a week in addition to other training.

It came after he consulted with outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen on ways he could improve.

"(Boxing) is helping me with my cardio and my hands and footwork," Correa said. "(Yildiz) is also a strength coach that does functional movement training along with boxing. A lot of the things I needed to improve on were my hands and feet working together, and kind of turning my body and moving my body in a certain way.

"I am really trying to focus on my pass rush this year. I felt like there was a lot of improvement I could make in that area. Boxing helps you move your feet and body and hands in a way for speed and reaction, which is just like when you're coming off the edge as an edge rusher, you have to read and react to get past an offensive linemen. So, I think that is helping me out in a huge way."

The Titans are counting on Correa picking up where he left off last season.

He'll have some familiar faces, and some new ones, around him as well.

Harold Landry, who led the Titans in sacks last year with nine, returns, along with outside linebackers Reggie Gilbert and Derick Roberson. D'Andre Walker, a fifth-round draft pick from 2019 who spent the season on Injured Reserve, will also be in the mix, hoping to earn a roster spot and snaps. The same goes for outside linebackers Josh Smith and Jordan Williams.

The team's biggest offseason acquisition – former Falcons edge rusher Vic Beasley Jr. – is also expected to be a difference maker this fall. A first-round pick (8th overall) of the Falcons in the 2015 NFL Draft, Beasley has 37.5 career sacks. He joins the Titans after spending the past five seasons in Atlanta.

Correa said he likes his teammates, and he's excited about the possibilities.

"I think we have a solid group," he said. "It's a young group and I think we have a lot of juice in the room. I think we have a lot of movement and ability to kind of scheme some things up on the edges where they don't really know who is doing what out there because we all do the same thing and we are all very similar with our game.

"I am really excited for these guys. In these Zoom meetings, we talk football, but I can tell these guys are training and they are working their tails off. I am looking forward to getting after it with these guys."

JACK CRAWFORD

JACK CRAWFORD IS ACCLIMATING TO THE TITANS. THE TITANS ARE ACCLIMATING TO HIS BRITISH ACCENT.

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 24, 2020

Jack Crawford's accent is caught in a weird middleground. When he goes back to his native London, "everyone says I sound American," Crawford said. But when he's meeting new Titans teammates in Nashville, they quickly determine through his accent that he's not from around here.

"Sometimes people will catch on to some words I say, and they'll be like, 'What? 'What'd you say?' and they won't understand what I'm saying, and I'll have to kind of almost adjust my accent so they understand what I'm saying better," said Crawford, whom the Titans signed in April. "It's always been an issue for me."

But it's more of a minor issue as Crawford acclimates to a new team during an unprecedented offseason that already has thrown a significant challenge at the 6-foot-5, 274-pound defensive lineman.

On Aug. 7, the Titans placed Crawford on the COVID-19/Reserve list, which is for players who test positive or who have been around someone who has tested positive. Almost two weeks later, on Aug. 20, the team removed him from the list.

But that was a long time to be away from his new team.

"I don't think I'm caught up yet," the 31-year-old Crawford said Sunday. "I think that it's tough because I came into a new system with a new playbook, new culture, everything. To have to go into a quarantine after just arriving here, I felt like I was falling further behind than I already was.

"I felt like the past couple of days have been good for me in terms of just trying to catch up, and trying to go into putting in extra time whether it (is) studying the playbook or walking through certain plays."

More:5 observations from Titans training camp: Khari Blasingame getting carries

Crawford, who played the past three seasons for the Falcons, provides a veteran presence for a relatively young defensive line group that is led by second-year tackle Jeffery Simmons. Crawford has 16 career sacks over his eight seasons in the NFL, including six in 2018. He's made 26 starts in the NFL.

"He's a veteran player," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Crawford, "and what has stood out to me has been the effort that he's been able to show since he's gotten back off that COVID/Reserve list."

He certainly has a strong argument for being the most interesting Titans defensive lineman.

For example, Crawford used to be classmates with Daniel Radcliffe, the actor who played Harry Potter.

"He was always absent," Crawford said of Radcliffe, "so he wasn't really there that much."

Crawford moved to the United States when he was 16 to play basketball. His junior year of high school marked his first time playing football.

"I grew up playing rugby a little bit," Crawford said, "so I felt like the contact wasn't a problem for me. I just had to learn the rules, to be honest."

He's really big into mixed martial arts, though his training on that front has been halted amid the pandemic.

"That's my favorite sport," Crawford said of MMA. "A lot of my close friends are in the sport. I love training in that area. I think it relates to defensive line and offensive line so closely. I think that everybody who plays in the trenches can benefit from it."

And, of course, he's got an accent that is wholly unique at Saint Thomas Sports Park, although Crawford insists it's not as thick as it once was.

"When I came to the (United States) my accent was a lot stronger, and then over time it kind of faded a little bit," Crawford said. "My accent got caught in (the) middle. I go to London, I'm American. I come over here, people say I sound funny. It's stuck in a weird place. I'm just trying to hold onto what little bit of accent I got left."

COREY DAVIS

HEADING INTO A CONTRACT YEAR, TITANS' COREY DAVIS AIMS TO 'DO NUMBERS'

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
SEPTEMBER 5, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The Tennessee Titans were down by three points with 5 seconds left on the clock in overtime when Corey Davis stepped up.

In that 2018 Week 4 game against the Philadelphia Eagles, quarterback Marcus Mariota lined up in shotgun, looked to his left and saw the matchup that he wanted, then lofted the ball into the end zone. Davis jumped and outmuscled Eagles rookie Avonte Maddox for the game-winning touchdown.

The fans at Nissan Stadium went wild. This was what they were expecting from Davis, the No. 5 pick in the 2017 draft. It capped a career day for Davis, who finished with nine receptions for 161 yards.

Three seasons ago, Davis was viewed as an integral part of the Titans becoming an explosive passing offense. Now, he's entering a critical year that could potentially be his last in Tennessee after the team declined to pick up his fifth-year option. Davis made it clear that he is looking for a big season in 2020.

"I'm trying to do numbers this year," Davis said. "Definitely a lot more hungry."

Statistically, Davis hasn't posted the numbers that match his draft status. But the Titans staff know the talent is there.

"You look at his size, his play strength, his toughness. He's willing to play in high-traffic areas," Titans wide receivers coach Rob Moore said. "You can do a lot of different things with Corey because of his size and ability to run. He brings a lot of attributes to the table."

Davis' best season was 2018 -- the only year when he played all 16 games -- when he had 65 catches for 891 yards and four touchdowns. The top example of Davis' playmaking ability came during Week 9 of that season against the New England Patriots, when Davis posted seven receptions for 125 yards and a touchdown despite being guarded primarily by one of the NFL's best cover corners, Stephon Gilmore.

Corey Davis could be playing his last season with the Titans after they declined to pick up his fifth-year option.

So, what gives -- why hasn't Davis produced more? The biggest area where Davis needs to improve is consistency, which manifests itself in a variety of ways. There's a lot that goes into it, and coaches are always preaching about it.

Coach Mike Vrabel takes time to work on specific things with each player. Here's how he described what he worked on with Davis recently during what he called a "ball disruption period" in practice:

We try to coach and teach the fundamentals of the game, going out and attacking the football. When you do that, you bring it in. Those DBs are practicing trying to disrupt it and punch it out. The focal point was making sure that when we catch the ball out in front of our body, but also being strong to the tuck, so it's not over until we've secured it, just continuing to understand the details.

When the question is how Davis can become a more consistent player, the answer is frequently "details."

"The route running, specifically at the end of the game. That's something that we've tried to work on," Davis said. "Just being great when you're tired and try to fight through that fatigue. There were certain plays where I let fatigue get the best of me."

Added Vrabel: "I think for Corey [Davis] and a lot of players and even coaches, it's understanding the detail of the play that's going to change each snap based on what the other team does and their coverage. Is it man? Is it zone? How do we want to convert routes and continue to understand how the quarterback is thinking in those situations?"

The Titans scored 16.3 points per game (ranked 28th) in the six games Mariota started last season. In the other 10, under Ryan Tannehill, the Titans scored 30.4 PPG (ranked third). However, Davis scored only one touchdown on a pass from Tannehill in that 10-game stretch.

Tannehill admittedly didn't connect with Davis enough last season. He plans to do so more in 2020.

"I definitely think my chemistry will grow with Corey this year. I think that he's such a talented guy and has so much to bring to the table," Tannehill said.

The mental part of the game is equally important. Davis is adopting a different outlook in training camp this year.

He doesn't want to "beat himself up over the last play." Davis acknowledged that he was too hard on himself at times, struggling to let a bad play stay in the past. Carrying a bad rep over to the next play is never good, but for a player who averaged only 5.7 targets per regular-season game over a three-year career, it's particularly bad.

The emergence of 2019 rookie A.J. Brown (52 receptions, 1,051 yards, 8 TDs) likely cut into Davis' targets. But Davis' approach is to make the most of whatever targets come his way.

"A.J. is going to get a lot of attention with the year he had last year, so whenever my number is called, I've got to go make it happen," Davis said.

After having offseason surgery to repair a turf-toe injury that limited him last year, Davis is looking forward to staying healthy and being more productive than ever. Being vocal about wanting to "do numbers" is a change from the typical "take it as it goes" approach that Davis used to point to when asked about his production. There is plenty on the line for him.

"I'm not really focusing on the contracts, nothing," Davis said. "I'm just going to go out there and play football and handle my business, and everything will take care of itself."

TITANS GUARD NATE
DAVIS STRONGER, MORE CONFIDENT, HEADING INTO YEAR TWO

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 20, 2020

NASHVILLE – Nate Davis won't lie.

In his first NFL training camp a year ago, the Titans offensive guard had his share of struggles while adjusting to the next level. He missed time with an injury, and when the regular season started, he then found himself among the team's inactives for the first three games as he worked his way back.

On Thursday, Davis admitted there were times when he felt like he was just "hanging on." It wasn't until the back half of the season until he settled down and started feeling comfortable, he said.

"Last year, it was more like, just hanging on," Davis said with a smile on Thursday. "There were a lot of things going on, head spinning, and just trying to get the plays down and all that stuff."

Davis found himself, and the Titans realized they'd found themselves a good one in the third-round pick from the 2019 NFL Draft.

Davis played in his first NFL game in Week 4 in Atlanta before taking over as the team's starter at right guard in Week 5 against the Bills. Davis ended up starting the final 12 games of the regular season, and all three of the team's playoff contests.

He was part of an offensive line that paved the way for running back Derrick Henry's 1,540-yard season, while also protecting quarterback Ryan Tannehill during a year when he led the NFL in passer rating, and the team to victories.

Looking back, Davis feels like a different person in this year's camp. He's confident, and comfortable, as he heads into Year 2.

"My confidence has definitely shot up, that's for sure," Davis said. "That was probably the biggest thing from last year, just understanding that I belong. Really, the sky is the limit for me."

"This year, it is just focusing on the little things. I have the plays down for the most part, it is just playing faster and understanding what our offense is and doing everything I can to help this team."

Davis, who played collegiately at Charlotte, said he's also a lot sturdier. Getting stronger was one of his top priorities in his second year and he spent the offseason in Nashville and back in Charlotte working to improve his game.

While he's still in the 310-pound range, the 6-foot-3 guard said his core strength has improved where he can anchor down and keep the pocket clean in practices, and game days.

"I feel like I got bounced around a little bit last year, so I just wanted to bulk up a little bit and hone in on the little details with our technique and stuff like that," Davis said. "I feel stronger on the field, and everything is starting to slow down."

"So far, I feel good. Just learning some of the details and getting comfortable with the guys. I feel a lot quicker on the field, that's for sure."

NICK DZUBNAR

JOINING TITANS WORTH THE WAIT FOR SPECIAL TEAMS ACE NICK DZUBNAR

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – When linebacker Nick Dzubnar signed with the Titans back in March, he could hardly wait to join his new team, and continue his NFL career.

He ended up waiting a long time, because the coronavirus pandemic wrecked Dzubnar's plans – and everyone else's, for that matter.

"Everything this year has been so interesting," said Dzubnar, a special teams ace with the Chargers who was signed by the Titans in free agency. "I had five good years with the Chargers, but I was so excited to sign with the Titans. Then it's like, all the excitement, and then you're stuck hanging out, meeting guys on Zoom for the offseason.

"The first two weeks being here, finally actually seeing guys' faces, getting to know these guys on a more personal level and just starting to vibe with the team. ... You can already tell it's obviously a great organization and a good group of guys. It's been pretty easy for me to fit in and it's pretty good."

The 6-foot-1, 240-pound Dzubnar, who has played in 65 career games since entering the NFL in 2015, reported to training camp at the end of July and he's been working with his new teammates during the last few weeks.

Dzubnar played in all 16 games during the 2015, 2016 and 2019 seasons. In 2019, Dzubnar recorded 12 special teams tackles for the Chargers. He ranked first or second in special teams tackles in four of his five years with the Chargers. He had a team-best 21 special teams stops in 2017.

In Tennessee, Dzubnar plans to keep playing like a wild man on special teams.

"I feel like that's why the Tennessee Titans brought me here," he said. "I can't tell you if there's a certain trick, all I know is to go 100 miles an hour with my hair on fire -- 100% effort, nonstop, nonstop, nonstop until I get to the ball carrier or whatever it is, whoever is returning. I think it's more of a mindset and attitude that I had, growing up, playing sports.

"That's helped me excel especially in special teams, because special teams to me is a dogfight every single one. Whether it's punt, punt return, kickoff, kickoff return, it's just a straight fight. If it's a one-on-one battle, it's you against the other guy. I don't like to lose. I look forward to good competition with other good special teams guys, and like I said, it's a battle. It's a fight. I like to think that I can come out on top."

Dzubnar played collegiately at Cal Poly – San Luis Obispo, where he earned All-America honors as a linebacker and was the second-leading tackler in school history with 414 stops, four sacks, seven forced fumbles and five interceptions.

With the Titans, he'll add depth at linebacker while playing under veteran inside linebackers coach Jim Haslett.

Dzubnar is also excited about being reunited with Titans special teams coach Craig Aukerman, his special teams coach for two seasons with the Chargers.

"Just from being here you can tell everyone is always excited -- it's a great organization," Dzubnar said. "The tempo is very fast, but there's a lot of excitement. Auk brings a lot of really good energy. It's go, go, go, go go, which obviously fuels everyone else and that's the way we should play. So, energy is really high, but it's great. It's exciting. Everyone's excited to be out here playing football because we've been off for so long. There's really good energy. A lot of guys are working hard. We're trying to make everyone better. So far we're doing really well.

"... Auk is great. I have so much respect for him, and what he does, and the way he does it. I'm really happy to be reunited with Auk and I think it's going to be good pairing for us."

Chances are, on Sundays this fall, you'll see Dzubnar sprinting down the field like a heat-seeking missile on special teams.

He'll be decked out in No.49.

If you say his name, well ...

"I've heard it said every single way," he said with a smile. "Announcers used to just call my name like, 'Oh, number 41 or number 48, Nick,' and then they'd stop at the last name. The correct way is (duh-ZOOB-nar). A lot of people think there's a silent 'D' or a silent 'Z.' Anyone that says something with a 'Z' I look back at that, because I don't hold anyone accountable for trying to get it right the first time."

OAK HILL TO THE NFL: ROOKIE DARRYNTON EVANS IS A BIG TALENT FROM A SMALL TOWN

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 13, 2020

Editor's note: This is the third in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. John Glennon's story on Isaiah Wilson and Joe Rexrode's story on Kristian Fulton were published earlier this week.

Situated between Daytona and Cocoa Beach on Florida's Atlantic Coast, Darrynton Evans' hometown of Oak Hill doesn't carry quite the marquee name of the Sunshine State's hot spots.

It's so under-the-radar, in fact, that the town is one of very few on Florida's east coast without its own exit on Interstate 95.

You really want to get to Oak Hill? Take the exit to one of its big neighbors — Edgewater or Titusville — and start working your way through the back roads. But don't blink. Oak Hill's population stood at 1,792 as of the last census, and if you're not careful, you'll blow through town before you know it.

"It's, umm, really small," Evans said. "We have one blinking light, one Dollar General store, one gas station and then a flea market."

Those who know football, however, are becoming increasingly familiar with the little town, which — just in case you were wondering — also marks the end of Florida's 156-mile "River of Lakes Heritage Corridor." Evans will be one of two NFL players from Oak Hill in 2020, joining safety D'Cota Dixon, who spent last season, his first in the league, on injured reserve with the Buccaneers.

Evans and Dixon attended New Smyrna High School, which has also recently produced Raheem

Mostert, who led the NFC champion 49ers in rushing last season, and linebacker Cole Holcomb, who piled up 105 tackles as a Washington Redskins rookie.

Mostert, who played for five teams in his first two seasons in the league, has found a home in San Francisco. He was among the first to reach out to Evans on social media during the draft, tweeting three simple words: "We built different!" It was a message that celebrated the New Smyrna talent pipeline, and — perhaps — served to acknowledge that Evans may turn out to be the best of the bunch.

"You guys in Tennessee got a great pick in Darrynton, and you're in for a real treat," said Mostert, who ran for 220 yards and four touchdowns in last season's NFC Championship Game victory.

"He's got that same underdog mentality as I do, always having that chip on his shoulder and wanting to go out and prove himself when people doubt him. He's really something special, and I can't wait to see him take off."

"We had our fingers crossed"

Justin Watts knows the way to Oak Hill.

As the recruiting coordinator at Appalachian State, Watts is tasked with discovering those hidden gems who have managed to elude the Power 5 conferences for one reason or another.

Watts first met Evans at New Smyrna High in 2015. He expected to find a back who was a little too small to excite the bigger programs. He was pleasantly surprised when he first spotted Evans in the weight room.

"At our level, you kind of expect to see a slighter-built athlete, but Darrynton was built a lot better and was a lot more powerful looking than I expected," Watts said. "Then you start watching a little film of him, and you see what speed he had and how explosive he was."

What Watts also saw were intangibles such as effort and determination, a possible byproduct of a little-brother syndrome. Evans and Eugene Mostert, Raheem's younger brother, competed for years with their big brothers despite an age difference of about half a decade.

"(Darrynton) was definitely one of those kids that wanted to play with the big boys," Mostert recalled. "He felt like he was too advanced to play with the smaller kids, and he wanted to get better by playing with us. I was the same way growing up. I wanted to prove myself against the big dogs. That's the mindset you had to have down there."

Watts was confident he'd found a talent in Evans. But he had to sweat out the next several months, hoping Evans wouldn't attract too much attention and earn an offer from a Power 5 school. The palms of the Appalachian State coaching staff grew especially sweaty when Evans turned in a strong performance at the University of North Carolina's camp. But the Tar Heels were looking for backs with more size than Evans, who weighed about only 170 pounds at the time.

"The way he competed at that (North Carolina) camp with the so-called bigger names and bigger stars, we thought he outshined all of them," Appalachian State head coach Shawn Clark said. "We thought he was the best one in camp that day. So we had our fingers crossed hoping North Carolina wouldn't offer. When they didn't, we went full speed ahead."

Conquering the Cube

Appalachian State's coaches were at first uncertain where to use Evans, who had experience as a running back and wide receiver. At the time, the Mountaineers were loaded in the backfield with Marcus Cox, the school's all-time leading rusher, and future NFL player Jalin Moore.

But Clark, who was then the team's offensive coordinator, knew he had to find some way to get Evans involved. That much was clear when Evans was running conditioning sprints after practice — and finishing 5 to 10 yards ahead of nearly everyone else.

“I still remember on day one of fall camp when (Evans) was a freshman. I saw him take a little bubble screen and go about 80 yards for a touchdown,” Clark said. “I mentioned to (former Appalachian State head coach) Scott Satterfield, ‘I don’t care where he plays, just get the ball to him, especially at running back. Because he can make an offensive line look very good.’”

It wasn’t just Evans’ skills as an athlete, however, that impressed the coaching staff in the early going. An honor roll student in high school, Evans threw himself into the mental side of the game as well. He didn’t just play the game — he studied it.

“He wasn’t the usual kind of freshman, coming in and trying to find his way through,” Clark said. “He was picking the brains of coaches. I was coaching the offensive line, and we’d sit down and talk about protection schemes, the run game, where you want the ball to hit.”

That sounds like the inquisitive nature of a youngster who made quick work of the Rubik’s Cube in high school. True story: Inspired by a member of the swim team who solved it, Evans and five of his New Smyrna teammates bought their own cubes and set up a competition — with a tasty reward for the victor.

“We decided whoever could solve it the fastest gets a meal from every other person,” Evans said. “So I ended up getting it done about two or 2 1/2 days later. I had free meals for a week, basically. It was nice.”

‘Lit up like a Christmas tree’

Most of Evans’ contributions as a freshman came on special teams — he returned 25 kicks, one for a touchdown — and he redshirted the following season because of an injury. By 2018, Evans was shredding Sun Belt defenses, averaging 6.6 yards per carry on the way to a conference-best 1,187 rushing yards.

It was just before the 2019 season, Evans’ final year at Appalachian State, that he found himself flooded by a family concern. His mother, Evelyn, was diagnosed in July with stage 1 endometrial cancer, a form of the disease that begins in the uterus. The same jovial and enthusiastic mom, who’d been in the stands for nearly every game of his career, would be forced to undergo surgery to remove the cancer.

“It hit me hard,” Evans said. “But at the same time, my mom and the rest of the family were so positive about it. She just gave it to God and that helped me. Really, she wasn’t too concerned about herself. She was more concerned about not being there for my games.”

On Oct. 31, Evelyn, only months removed from successful surgery, was back cheering for her youngest son. The retired Florida Department of Corrections probation officer, along with her husband, Darry, made the 600-mile trek up from Oak Hill, supporting Darrynton on a snowy Halloween night in Boone, N.C.

“He just lit up like a Christmas tree,” Clark said of Evans, “and it was a beautiful thing to watch.”

By season’s end, Evans had piled up 1,480 rushing yards and 18 touchdowns on the ground, adding five touchdown catches on just 21 receptions. One of the more impressive stats the 5-foot-10, 203-pound Evans compiled: Over the course of his final two seasons, he totaled 11 runs of 50 yards or more.

Where did Evans develop the kind of speed that enabled him to run a 4.4 40-yard dash at the NFL Scouting Combine? In little Oak Hill, of course, playing with the big boys.

“I was always playing with those older guys from Pop Warner through high school, and I had to find some kind of advantage to help me keep pace and play with everyone,” Evans said. “I had to find my niche and what I could do, where I could get on the field and produce. So speed has been there. I would say I just did it in college on a bigger stage.”

‘Those guys couldn’t cover him’

So now Evans must prepare himself for the NFL, the biggest stage of all.

And, thanks to the Appalachian State staff, he got a head start last fall. Every year, the Mountaineer coaches study one NFL offense and incorporate some of its principles into their own playbook. It just so happened that App State chose the Titans prior to the 2019 season.

“I don’t think there will be much teaching because he understands it,” Clark said. “I think that should make it an easy transition for him.”

While hulking Derrick Henry is still expected to get the bulk of the Titans’ carries this season, the team’s hope is that Evans can provide a change-up — a blazer who can fly past defenses that get accustomed to Henry’s power. In addition, Evans is likely to have plenty of opportunities as a third-down receiver. Sure, he only caught 21 passes in the Mountaineers’ ground-based attack last year, but Evans does show promise as a pass catcher.

“We could have him in the backfield, shift to empty and put him on a linebacker,” Clark said. “It didn’t matter whether it was Penn State, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina or Coastal Carolina. It was the same result. Those guys couldn’t cover him in space.

“He’s just a guy that does a great job understanding what you’re trying to get done on offense, whether it’s the run or pass protections. He saved us many times on protections because he just knew where the hot guy was coming from. He took a hit off the quarterback. It was just very impressive to watch him do that.”

DARRYNTON EVANS

We'll let Mostert, Evans' fellow New Smyrna alum, offer up a final juicy NFL scouting report.

"He brings a lot of unique ability in the passing game," Mostert said. "He's more like Alvin Kamara coming out of the backfield, able to catch and also take jet sweeps and do all that type of stuff. He's not just one-dimensional. He can definitely do multiple things."

High praise and high expectations?
Correct on both counts.

But who knows? If Evans can live up to those kinds of standards, he might just earn Oak Hill an exit all its own one day.

TITANS LB RASHAAN EVANS READY TO DO EVEN MORE IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 17, 2020

NASHVILLE – Rashaan Evans played like a man possessed in 2019.

The Titans linebacker led the team in tackles with 139, posting double-digit tackles in half of the team's contest. He recorded sacks, made tackles in the backfield, scored a touchdown, and in the team's playoff win at New England, was a force at the goal-line in a critical series of plays.

So, what did he do when the season ended?

Well, he acted like a man obsessed.

"I haven't stopped training since the (AFC Championship Game)," Evans said. "I took maybe a week off to kind of heal up, but ever since then I've been rolling. To be honest with you, I'm ready to play. I'm ready to go.

"Just the simple fact of just as a team we got so close to the Super Bowl game. By me having that first experience being in the NFL and having that opportunity to get to that last game, I think it definitely gave me even a bigger motivation because I know how to get there now."

Rashaan Evans: I am Ready to Play, Ready to Go

Evans, the team's first-round pick in the 2018 NFL Draft out of Alabama, in 2019 doubled his tackle numbers from his rookie season, when he tallied 63.

Playing alongside fellow inside linebacker Jayon Brown, Evans was a difference maker all season. His fumble recovery and return for touchdown in the team's regular season win over the Chiefs was his most memorable play of the year, but his two stops in the goal-line stand at Foxborough also provided more signs about what's ahead. Evans had 12 tackles in the win at New England.

Evans said he learned a lot about himself in his second year in the NFL, and it has him even more excited about his third NFL season.

"Being able to fight through anything, whether it's injuries, whether it's anything that may be trying to cause me to not be at the best of my game," Evans said. "Just my perseverance and being able to just adapt. Any situation that you get put in in the NFL is something that you can't train for, it's something that just happens out of the blue, but being able to adapt, being able to do it on the run, I think that's the main thing that I've been really proud of myself for. Then, just really as far as me, just continue to keep doing what I've been doing. Being a leader, doing all of the things as far as being in the locker room and encouraging younger guys to be the best players they can possibly be, continue to level up in that aspect, continue to do more and more and more while I'm there just to impact and help out as many people as I can and that I come across."

New Titans inside linebackers coach Jim Haslett can hardly wait to coach Evans on the field, and help him grow. Up until this point, they've only been allowed to work in the virtual offseason program.

"Rashaan was an outside linebacker at Alabama who's moved inside, so obviously he's got pass rush ability," Haslett said. "He can cover a lot of ground, he's strong, he's got power in his play and he plays hard. He plays like his hair is on fire."

Evans said he wants to be even more of a leader in 2020.

And he wants to go to the Super Bowl after coming so close last season.

He knows taking his game to another level would help the cause.

"I just feel like for any player including myself, just having your own personal goals I feel like it just helps the team collectively because if every person is striving for their own individual goals, it just makes everybody else good," Evans said. "For me personally ... (striving to be) All-Pro, Pro Bowl, being the leading tackler, all those other things are definitely something I definitely strive for, to just be the best at the things that I do.

"I feel like with the leadership thing, I think that's something that's natural. It has to be earned. It's something that you don't obtain overnight. For me, right now I'm still pursuing the journey of trying to be a guy that guys can count on. Be a guy that when a play needs to be made, they're looking for me or if they're looking for some type of person, at least be vocal in a situation like that. Not only just on the field, but off the field as well. I know I keep myself to a high standard as far as those things because I know just from the things that I do off the field, I feel like it should definitely match on the field as well. Just with the leadership thing, I think as I'm getting older, maturing, learning more and more about this organization and about this city. I think when you get those types of understanding it comes with greater responsibility for yourself to pass some of the same things you experienced and the knowledge you obtained to guys that are coming in. I think that's where that leadership role comes in and plays a big part."

FORMER ALABAMA LINEBACKER DONATES GEAR TO LOACHAPOKA HIGH SCHOOL

BY HAILEY SUTTON
WSFA 12 NEWS
AUGUST 16, 2020

LOACHAPOKA, Ala. (WSFA) - "When you go to sleep at night, if your dreams are not big enough to where you just want to jump out of your bed in the middle of the night, they're not big enough."

That was the message shared with the Loachapoka football team Friday morning as they gathered outside for a "special surprise. Thanks to Tennessee Titans linebacker Rashaan Evans, the program feels like they are a little bit closer to achieving those dreams.

"Today was a great day," said Loachapoka head coach Frederick Newton. "To see my kids smile the way they did, especially during this pandemic and what's going on, it just brings my heart up."

The Indians were gifted two different pairs of cleats to wear during games this season, along with gloves and other important equipment.

Evans and his foundation, the Razor Foundation, donated more than $40,000 worth of equipment to the players, a gift that some of them have never received.

"Nobody has ever given us nothing like this before, so it feels good to get something for the community," said senior linebacker and running back Brandon Bedgood. "Me and my teammates - some of us have never had stuff like this, so it feels good to get this stuff."

For them to come out and do that for us when they didn't have to, it was just great to see that," added Newton. "If you saw those kids over there looking at the shoes and everything, like I told someone earlier, it's like Christmas in August."

Rashaan was unable to be at the high school because of coronavirus restrictions, but even 280 miles away, he was still overwhelmed at the impact his donation made.

"It means everything. That's the biggest thing about doing what I do and the things that I live by, is trying to inspire as many people as I come across, and change as many lives as I can," said Rashaan. "I can only being in that situation where some of these guys have nothing. They have no shirt on their own backs, so to be able to have the opportunity to give shoes and some of the other gear, it definitely was a good thing for me to do."

His father, Alan, who helps out with the Razor Foundation echoed those sentiments; and is proud that his son is finding ways to make an impact in local communities.

"Him having the opportunity to play in the NFL, and make the kind of money he makes, and then to be able to give back some of what he has earned, it makes me feel good as a father because he could be doing a lot of other things with his money," said Alan. "He could be buying a Ferrari, or he could be doing something else with it, but he decided he wanted to give a portion of the proceeds of his earnings back to the community."

"I think it was a beautiful thing from some of the pictures I've seen, which really made me feel good because at the end of the day, you play football, you get all these accolades and achievements, but the number one thing is what have you done at the end of the day for other people, and I feel like this opportunity is one that was given to me, especially to do it for some kids and a community who needed it," added Rashaan.

No matter how uncertain the 2020 football season is, the Evans family hopes their donation will inspire more players to have their dreams keep them up at night.

"It motivates me a lot because we play the same position, so I feel like if he can do it, I can do it, too if I put in the same work," said Bedgood.

"To see [The Evans family], hopefully when I go in and speak to [the team] about what this meant to us, and get their opinion on what this meant to them, this hopefully will open up dreaming to them also," said Newton. "So they can be the next Rashaan Evans."

The Razor Foundation also donated gear to the Loachapoka boys and girls basketball teams last November.

DO THE MATH: LONGSHOT PLUS HARVARD EDUCATION EQUALS BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR TITANS TIGHT END ANTHONY FIRKSER

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 13, 2018

When he takes the field Sunday during the Titans' home opener, tight end Anthony Firkser will be going where few of his kind have gone in the past.

But he'll also be heading down an increasingly well-traveled path.

If those statements sound as if they cancel one another out, let the story of Firkser — an undrafted free agent from Harvard with a penchant for problem-solving — help clear up things.

But first, his relevance:

Firkser and fellow tight ends Jonnu Smith, Luke Stocker and MyCole Pruitt have all been shoved into the spotlight over the past few days, tasked with helping to fill the gaping void left when Pro Bowler Delanie Walker was lost — likely for the season — in the Titans' opener.

Quarterback Marcus Mariota needs new targets, and the Titans — who use two tight ends in their base offense — can't completely overhaul the team's offensive scheme overnight.

"If somebody goes down in front of you, that means that the next gets more opportunity," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said.

It's the fact that Firkser may be one of those next men up, however, that's still an eye-opener, given his status as a longshot to make the team's 53-man roster only weeks ago.

How unlikely was he to stick?

In the long history of the Oilers/Titans franchise, dating all the way back to 1960, only one Harvard alum — current Tampa Bay quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick — has ever taken a regular-season snap for this team.

"We've never been known as a football factory," Firkser said with a smile.

But perhaps it's high time we all started paying more attention to Harvard's players, the school's tight ends in particular.

The last five to play the position for the Crimson are all on NFL rosters, meaning Firkser will be the latest in a lineage that reflects well on Harvard coach Tim Murphy's system.

"I tell our (tight ends) like Anthony in the very first meeting that you kids are like the Navy SEALs of our football team," Murphy said. "By that, I mean they have to have the versatility to play multiple positions, and they have to be able to physically and mentally handle it. They get into the idea that they're kind of an elite group, and they take that challenge on. It's obviously worked out very well."

The perfect learning lab

Growing up in Manalapan, New Jersey, some of Firkser's early interests might have offered a glimpse of the Ivy League path he one day would follow.

"I was a more reserved kid growing up, so I loved drawing art when I was younger," Firkser said. "Puzzles always interested me, too, problem-solving and stuff like that. Maybe that's my math background — doing problems and drawing out equations, like Geometry."

But Firkser was a heck of an athlete as well, one whose first loves were hockey and basketball.

In fact, even though Firkser went to Harvard as a football recruit, his intent was to earn a spot on the Crimson basketball team — having passed on some small-college basketball scholarship offers as a shooting guard.

"I really wanted to give it a shot to play college ball there, so (Murphy) gave me that option and let me try out," Firkser said. "But ultimately, it just wasn't worth splitting time with that. So I just figured it was a better opportunity to play football for (Murphy)."

It proved a wise move for at least a couple of reasons.

One, Firkser joined a Harvard tight end group that included the likes of current NFLers Cameron Brate (Tampa Bay) and Kyle Juszczyk (San Francisco).

"We had a lot of older guys in the room to learn from and to help be leaders," Firkser said. "You embrace that role as you get older and you try to help the younger guys, so it's definitely a good environment to be in."

In addition, Murphy doubled as the team's tight ends/H-backs coach, helping install the kind of flexibility at the position that would work on the NFL level as well. The Crimson utilize a two-tight end attack, one that puts some of the team's best athletes to work at multiple spots — including wide receiver and fullback.

"That way, you can play an up-tempo style of offense like we do," Murphy explained, "without having to substitute or being predictable."

Added Firkser: "The tight ends were kind of like the Swiss Army knife position. We were asked to do a lot of stuff, whether it was online blocking as a wide receiver, moving out in the slot or playing in the backfield as a fullback. I think that definitely helps with your transition to (the NFL)."

‘We know he’s a smart dude’

The 23-year-old Firkser didn’t crack the 53-man roster in stints with the New York Jets and Kansas City last season, his first year out of college.

But he’s found a home so far in Nashville.

Sure, Firkser’s academic background — at this point — is still more impressive than his football resume.

He holds a Harvard degree in applied mathematics, and he’s gone so far as to take actuarial exams in pursuit of a potential post-football career. Some of Firkser’s teammates are even turning to him as an authority on questions that happen to arise in the locker room.

“We know he’s a smart dude, even though he doesn’t talk about it,” Smith said. “But we like to give him a hard time. So if we’re looking for an answer on something, we’re always like, ‘Hey, confirm that with Firk. Hey, Firk, is that right?’”

But it will be interesting to see whether he eventually contributes on the field as well.

The 6-2, 246-pound Firkser caught the eye of the Titans when he led the team with 10 preseason catches, hauling in five passes including a touchdown against Pittsburgh in the traditional Week 3 “dress-rehearsal” contest.

“I think he can do a number of things, whether it’s a vertical threat or catching the ball down the field — I thought he did a good job blocking-wise as a tight end,” Mariota said. “So he’s very versatile and I think if we can help him out, make him feel comfortable, he’ll execute that much more.”

Murphy said Firkser reminds him of former Indianapolis tight end Dallas Clark, a lightly recruited high-school player — and somewhat undersized for his position — who would eventually catch over 500 passes during his NFL career.

“I’m not saying that Anthony Firkser is going to the Hall of Fame,” Murphy said, “but I think his skill set, his body type and his potential is similar to a guy like (Clark).

“Anthony’s just a great kid, a class kid, a high-character kid. He was somebody that was always going to find a way to reach his full potential. That’s ultimately how he got to the NFL.”

A TRUSTWORTHY TARGET TITANS TE ANTHONY FIRKSER HEADS INTO 2020 WITH ADDED CONFIDENCE AFTER BIG POSTSEASON

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 25, 2020

NASHVILLE – Holding a tenuous 14-13 lead over the defending Super Bowl champions in last year's AFC Wild Card playoff game against the Patriots, the Titans faced a critical 3rd and 8 from their own 15-yard line.

Just over two minutes remained, and the Titans desperately needed a play. Punting the ball back to future Hall of Fame quarterback Tom Brady was the last thing anyone on the Tennessee sideline wanted to do.

Someone needed to step up big for the Titans, and that someone ended up being ... tight end Anthony Firkser.

Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill found Firkser open on the sideline for an 11-yard completion and a first down. The play enabled the Titans to run the clock down to just 25 seconds before punting it away. Then, the Titans sealed the win with a pick-six, and their playoff run was just beginning.

For Firkser, who caught a 12-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter of that contest, it was a moment to treasure.

Because family and friends from Boston and New Jersey gathered in the stands at Gillette Stadium in Foxborough that night – a group of roughly 30 people – it was even more special.

"It was a cool experience," Firkser said.

It was also a big step in Firkser building even more confidence with Tannehill, his coaches and teammates. Firkser caught two touchdowns in the postseason a year ago, including a 22-yard touchdown in the team's AFC Championship Game loss to the Chiefs. In three postseason games, Firkser had three catches for 45 yards and the two scores.

"That play (vs the Patriots), and all the postseason stuff helped build my confidence heading into (this) year," Firkser said. "But there are still things I need to keep improving on, and we need to keep building that trust in the passing game. And I need to keep building as an all-around tight end and being involved in first and second down more. I am excited to get started and see where this offense goes. I plan to keep working so I can do whatever is needed to help the team win."

Tannehill, who also connected with Firkser for a nine-yard touchdown catch against the Chiefs in the regular season, said he believes in the tight end.

"I have a ton of confidence in Firk, just seeing what he did last year," Tannehill said. "I saw some tape from the year before. The progress he was able to make last year with big plays in big games, I know I have a ton of confidence any time he's on the field. He's definitely a weapon for us and I'm excited that we can incorporate him this year."

Firkser, a Harvard graduate who initially entered the NFL as an undrafted free agent with the Jets in 2017, has paid his dues in the NFL. His stint with the Jets was a short one, and he then joined the Chiefs. But that experience didn't last long either.

Firkser spent time in meetings as a fullback, and he spent time on practice squads.

He joined the Titans in May of 2018 following a rookie minicamp tryout, and after being waived, he spent time on the team's practice squad. Firkser ended up joining Tennessee's roster in 2018, and it was his first real chance.

Firkser played in 12 games with the Titans in 2018, and he caught 19 passes for 225 yards and a score. In 2019, Firkser played in 15 games during the regular season, making one start. He caught 14 passes for 204 yards, with a touchdown.

Heading into 2020, Firkser is ready for what's ahead.

"Being in the system for two years already and going on a third, I feel pretty comfortable with understanding the offense," he said. "I am just trying to keep learning even more details and watching old film that we have just to keep learning and improving. There's adjustments that we've been making that (offensive coordinator) Arthur (Smith) is putting in, and different schemes we're running and concepts, so just making sure we're on point with all those. And just trying to help younger guys that are around and get them up to speed as quickly as possible."

Firkser spent most of his offseason in Nashville, working with quarterback Logan Woodside and other teammates in town.

He watched a lot of film, and he tried to identify ways he needed to improve.

Looking back at his path to the NFL, and to the Titans, Firkser is glad to be in the position he's in.

A high school basketball star who had offers from Monmouth College and New Hampshire, with interest from Dartmouth and Yale for his ability as a hoopster, Firkser is looking to make more of an impact moving forward.

He's in a tight ends group with veterans Jonnu Smith and MyCole Pruitt, and others.

"I am excited that we have guys like Jonnu and MyCole back," Firkser said. "It was tough to see Delanie (Walker) go – he was a great role model and a great person to have in the locker room and on the team. We are going to miss him a lot. But with Jonnu and MyCole back, we have a good group."

ANTHONY FIRSKER

"As for myself, I am just focused on being the best player I can be to help the team. Every rep, there is something that you can do better. Always having a growth mindset is something Arthur stresses, so we are never satisfied as an offense. Every rep there is something I can improve on for sure. I have been trying to improve and get better every year, and that's my focus heading into this year, too."

REXRODE: KRISTIAN FULTON REPRESENTS THE TITANS' BIGGEST GAMBLE OF 2020

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 12, 2020

Editor's note: This is the second in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. Click here for John Glennon's story on first-round pick Isaiah Wilson. John's story on third-round pick Darrynton Evans will run on Wednesday.

The Fulton family was gathered in a meeting room in a plush high-rise on 26th Street in New York City, listening to a pitch from representatives of Roc Nation Sports, when the door to the room opened and a familiar face appeared.

"Oh shit," Keith Fulton recalls now of his reaction at the time. "Excuse my language, but that's exactly what it was at the time. 'Oh shit.' My mom gave me a look."

Soon enough, all eyes and ears were attuned to Jay-Z — hip-hop legend, billionaire and founder of Roc Nation — who happened to be in the building on that January day and popped in to chat with Keith, potential client Kristian and their parents. Does Jay-Z happening to be in the building and popping in to chat sound like something that might be a regular thing around the Roc Nation offices when a potential client is visiting? Yes. Yes it does. Still, the conversation went beyond surface pleasantries and sales pitch.

"We chopped it up. He gave us some knowledge, some great knowledge," said Keith, Kristian's older brother by two years and his former teammate at LSU. "He was talking about Kristian's brand and how we have to be able to push his brand, get his name out there in the world. And he was stressing ownership, how big it is for African-Americans in this country to have ownership of their situation, to have that power and understand you have that power. He was preaching. I started typing some of it up on my phone as he was talking."

The idea of taking advantage of the opportunity at hand was especially appealing to the brothers because they have talked about the same thing often. Keith, a former LSU walk-on running back who graduated in 2019, has started a talent management company. Kristian is his partner and first client. They have sought the advice of several prior draftees of an NFL full of LSU Tigers. And if they needed to be reminded anymore that football is fleeting, they can just look at the jersey number Kristian will wear with the Titans.

No. 26 used to belong to the guy who was arguably the team's best defensive player in 2019. All Logan Ryan did was collect a team-leading 113 tackles, 18 passes defended and four forced fumbles, to go with 4 ½ sacks and the game-cementing pick six in the playoffs at New England, to go with one of the most mature, intelligent and commanding voices in the locker room. But he was all of 28 years old. He got exposed a few times when he had to move outside and match up with serious speed. And he made $10 million.

So he's out, still looking for a team. Ryan declined comment but said recently on the podcast of Jason and Devin McCourty that the Titans never tried to retain him, even when he said he'd be willing to sign for one season at the same salary.

Fulton is in, the No. 61 overall pick in the second round, representative of both the circle of pro football life — go younger and cheaper where you can, especially if you are paying a quarterback, says NFL roster law — and of the Titans' biggest gamble. Ryan and Jurrell Casey were pillars of this defense, and the Titans traded Casey as a salary dump and let Ryan walk in the same offseason that saw defensive coordinator Dean Pees retire and defensive backs coach Kerry Coombs take over as DC at Ohio State. The Titans are cheaper, and weaker, on defense after coming up one good half of football short of a Super Bowl because they ran out of stops against Patrick Mahomes and the Chiefs.

They are cheaper no more, and potentially stronger, if they can sign free agent Jadeveon Clowney. That would be a gamble paying off. Until his situation is resolved, assessing this team is difficult. But whether Clowney is in a Titans uniform or not, there will be pressure on Fulton to be ready right away to start and compensate in his own way for the loss of the previous No. 26.

"Those guys have already let me know about the high standard in the DB room that they have, and I've let them know that whatever they need from me, they're gonna get it," Fulton said of a group that will be led by Pro Bowl safety Kevin Byard and still includes Malcolm Butler, Adoree' Jackson and Kenny Vaccaro.

"I've spoken to the coaches about how they feel about him. They definitely feel highly about what he can do and what he can bring to the defense," Byard said of Fulton. "So I feel good about that. As far as him replacing Logan and different things like that, listen, Logan was a great player for us for three years. Last year, he had one of the best years a DB has probably had in a long time. So, to say to replace him, I wouldn't necessarily say we're replacing him because I don't think you can necessarily replace that production. If you look at his stats from last year, I think it's a stretch for anybody to replace that production. But, with what I think (Fulton) can bring as a player, be able to cover inside and outside, having him, Adoree' and Malcolm, it's pretty much pick your matchup. I think that will be good for all of us as a team. I think any time you can have versatile guys that can do both — which I feel like Logan was as well, but I feel like I don't think it's going to be a major drop-off."

The upgrade is in speed, and there's no question the Titans need more of that to contend with the Chiefs, not to mention the Ravens, Colts, Texans and whoever else may emerge in an imagined postseason push. The 5-foot-11, 197-pound Fulton ran a 4.46 in the 40 at the NFL Scouting Combine, but for a better gauge of what he brings, check out video of LSU's 2019 win at Alabama and the coverage he provided on Jerry Jeudy and Henry Ruggs III. Or check out Pro Football Focus, which ranked him the No. 2 cornerback in the draft and put him down for 11 targets, three catches, 39 yards and no touchdowns allowed with three pass break-ups in his matchups with Jeudy, Ruggs and Clemson star Tee Higgins. It probably helps that Fulton saw Justin Jefferson and Ja'Marr Chase — a teammate at Archbishop Rummel High just outside New Orleans — in practice with No. 1 overall pick Joe Burrow throwing to them.

"The best of the best, every day," said Fulton, one of a record-tying 14 LSU players to go in the draft last month.

That sounds like a value at No. 61. GM Jon Robinson said the Titans were "fortunate" they were able to stick at 61 and get a guy some projected as a first-round pick. The Titans also added a less-expensive veteran presence, 36-year-old Johnathan Joseph, whose long-term friendship with Clowney is notable. Drafting a corner was going to be a priority either way, and the addition of Fulton is only a risk if you believe a costly mistake he made in college speaks to a character issue.

The Titans did their homework, as all teams do, and don't buy that. Fulton's high school coach, Nick Monica, said: "There's nothing bad you can really say about the kid. Great kid, great student, very humble about himself. He never carried himself like a big-time recruit. You never would have known he was a five-star recruit. I can't say enough good things about him."

To hear Keith and Kristian Fulton tell it, the attempt to pass a drug test with someone else's urine ended up being a catalyst for growth. Kristian said he was worried about testing positive for marijuana, though it was a test for performance-enhancing drugs. It happened in February 2017, after a freshman season at LSU that was limited to three games because of a finger fracture. The NCAA suspended Kristian for two years.

"I don't think I'd be the person I am today if that didn't happen," Kristian said.

"Just think about it, you're the No. 1 recruit in Louisiana, you have a great career at your dream school just starting and boom, you're suspended two years," Keith said. "I feel like a lot of 18-year-old kids don't get through that. That took something away from him that he didn't realize was so important to him until then. You could just see his maturity level shooting through the roof. It taught him a lot about accountability. I think that's the best thing that ever happened to him. That and being picked in the second round — it all puts a chip on his shoulder."

The suspension was eventually reduced by a year, allowing Kristian to return to the field in 2018, or he may have ended up at a junior college or even in the Canadian Football League.

"Some teams might have dropped me for this, but I know this didn't hurt me personally," Kristian said. "It made me grow a lot. Accountability, being a leader, being a smarter player. I had a lot of time on my hands to study the game when I wasn't playing it."

It helped that Keith was with him at the time, serving as a sounding board and giver of frank advice, a relationship that goes back to Kristian following Keith around their New Orleans neighborhood. It will continue in the future. They have grieved together after losing grandfather Louis Fulton Jr., who passed away last month from COVID-19 complications. They got to visit with him shortly before that, a blessing amid the craziness of going through the draft process together.

One of the memorable moments was that conversation with Jay-Z, who addressed the one question Kristian knew he would get from every team that interviewed him.

"The most helpful thing he told me was to just tell the truth," Kristian said of Jay-Z. "Don't try too hard to impress anyone. These teams are gonna research everything about you and know everything. So just be truthful, be yourself, and the right fit will come to you."

The Titans ended up being the team, perhaps later in the draft than if Fulton had never had an issue. And Chafie Fields of Wasserman Media Group ended up being the agent. That's no negative reflection on Jay-Z and his agency, Keith said. It was just a matter of finding a place "with a family-oriented feel, with people who have a vision for after football and will be there for it."

Kristian Fulton knows how fleeting it can be, and how important it is to take ownership of your situation.

"At the end of the day," he said, "we made a business decision."

STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

5 THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT NEW TENNESSEE TITANS KICKER STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

BY PRINCE ROBINSON
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 3, 2020

The Tennessee Titans agreed to terms with 14-year veteran kicker Stephen Gostkowski, the team announced Thursday.

The 36-year-old will reunite with former New England Patriots teammate, and Titans coach, Mike Vrabel.

Gostkowski worked out for the Titans earlier this week. He recently bought a home in the Nashville area.

Here are five things about Gostkowski:

He's a Madison Central grad

In 2002, Gostkowski graduated from Madison Central High School in Madison, Mississippi.

He won four varsity letters each in football and soccer, and three in baseball. He was an all-state honoree in all three sports.

Gostkowski holds the school record for longest field goal, a 55-yard kick.

Former University of Memphis great Stephen Gostkowski attends the Tigers' game against University of Connecticut in East Hartford, Conn., Friday, October 6, 2017.

Memphis roots

Gostkowski received a scholarship to play baseball for Memphis and was a walk-on for the football team. He majored in exercise and sports science.

He finished his college career with a total of 369 points, a school record, and 13th overall in FBS history by converting 70 of 92 field goals and 159 of 165 extra points.

Gostkowski was selected by the Patriots as a fourth-round pick (118th overall) in the 2006 NFL Draft.

Stellar pro career

Gostkowski holds the NFL record for consecutive extra points made with 479. For his career, he's 374-428 (87.4%) on field goal attempts, and he's scored 1,775 points.

His longest field goal was 62 yards, and he's accounted for 523 touchbacks for his career. He is only the second player in NFL history to score 500 points in his first four seasons in the league, and the first to score 1,000 points in his first eight seasons.

He has three Super Bowl rings, all with the Patriots. He is a four-time Pro Bowl selection, two-time first-team All-Pro and one time second-team All-Pro selection.

Gostkowski is a member of the NFL 2010s All-Decade team.

Consistent pedigree

There are only three players who have played in more playoff games than Gostkowski: Tom Brady, Adam Vinatieri and Jerry Rice.

Gostkowski has played in 204 career games in the NFL and has played in all 16 regular-season games 10 times. He's played in 28 playoff games, as well.

A couple hiccups

Gostkowski missed a couple game-altering kicks in the postseason. He most notably missed an extra-point attempt in the AFC title game loss against the Denver Broncos in January 2016.

He also missed a field goal and an extra point in the Patriots' Super Bowl loss to Philadelphia in February 2018. The Eagles won 41-33.

DERRICK HENRY

DERRICK HENRY ON TITANS LEGEND EDDIE GEORGE: “HE IS LIKE A BROTHER TO ME”

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
SEPTEMBER 13, 2019

NASHVILLE – Time flies when you’re with Titans legend Eddie George.

Current Titans running back Derrick Henry found that out over the summer on a cross-country flight from Los Angeles to Nashville after the Heisman Trophy winners shot a commercial together.

“Eddie, he is a friend, really more like a big brother to me,” Henry said of George. “That flight from L.A. to Nashville, it was like a 3 ½ hour plane ride. I am not a long plane ride type of guy, but it was great. I enjoyed it. It was great because me and Eddie were in first class and we talked the whole flight, for 3 ½ or 4 hours.

“We talked about everything, and I was able to find out so much more about him. I can talk to Eddie about anything. He really is like a brother to me.”

George, who ran for 10,009 yards while playing from 1996-2003 with the Titans, will have his No.27 retired at halftime of Sunday’s game against the Indianapolis Colts at Nissan Stadium.

Henry, of course, will be busy. The fourth-year running back from Alabama has turned into a real workhorse for the Titans, like George was during his playing days with the team.

Henry said George has never been too busy for him.

In fact, George texted Henry after his big game on Sunday against the Browns, when he scored two touchdowns, including one on a 75-yard touchdown catch.

Henry said George has always been supportive. Last season, if you remember, Henry credited George for lighting a fire under him with a midseason pep talk, which jumpstarted his season. Henry finished last season with 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns.

“When we talk, he is always positive,” Henry said of George. “He is always giving me knowledge. He takes time to do those things. I definitely appreciate it, because he has a lot of things going on. It is always cool for me.”

Henry said he grew up an Eddie George fan in Yulee, Florida.

Not long after he got to Tennessee, he asked the team’s video staff for some of George’s game film.

“I try to watch him,” Henry said. “But I’ve been watching Eddie since I was a kid. He was big and physical, and he used that to his advantage. He could catch the ball, and he was fast. He was just a nasty player in all aspects of his game. Not many come around like that. The Hall of Fame is just waiting for him to get there.”

On Thursday, George was listed among the 122 modern-era nominees for the Pro Football Hall of Fame’s 2020 class.

In addition to George’s No.27, the Titans will also retire Steve McNair’s No. 9 jersey on Sunday.

“9 and 27,” Henry said. “Those are two legends right there. It’s well-deserved.”

LESSONS TAUGHT BY HIS GRANDMOTHER STILL PUSH DERRICK HENRY TODAY

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
JANUARY 3, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- In his fourth season, Derrick Henry put it all together. The NFL's leading rusher is physically gifted -- at 6-foot-3, 247 pounds, he's bigger than most running backs, yet he has the speed to break a long run -- but that isn't what sets the Tennessee Titans' star apart.

Conditioning, stamina, work ethic - that's why Henry continues to run strong late in games and deep into the season. His 997 second-half rushing yards are the fourth-most in the past 30 seasons, according to the Elias Sports Bureau. Slowing him down will certainly be a priority for the New England Patriots on Saturday (8:15 p.m. ET, CBS).

"It's never going to be perfect, but you're shooting for it," said Henry, who finished the regular season with 1,540 rushing yards. "You're just trying to be the best at what you do. That's just how I always think. Man, you can have all of the talent in the world, but the hard work overrules that. When you work hard, it's definitely going to show. That's why with any athlete, we have struggles, and we have adversity, but as long as you work hard and keep your head down, you will always prevail."

That drive isn't necessarily something Henry was born with. He was taught by his family at a young age.

2009	Chris Johnson	1,004
2019	Derrick Henry	997
2012	Adrian Peterson	984

"There's always going to be adversity in life," Henry said. "I saw it growing up."

Henry looks back on his life and sees that his family never gave up when times were hard. That's where his intense work ethic comes from. He flashed a smile when he mentioned his relationship with his grandmother, Gladys Henry, who helped raise him along with his grandfather. She gave him his nickname, "Shocka," because his parents had him when they were young. Henry's dad was the youngest of 14 children.

Growing up, Henry did everything with his grandmother.

"We had a special relationship," Henry said. "I couldn't do anything without her, and she couldn't do anything without me."

His grandfather died in 2000, and then it was up to his grandmother to make ends meet. Her drive to provide was an example for Henry as he worked his way through the football ranks.

"She had to continue to work and provide for us as a family," Henry said. "Watching her get up when she didn't want to, she worked at the Holiday Inn cleaning the hotels, so we had food on our table, clothes on our back and a roof over our head. That's what I will always remember. It's what she instilled in me. Always work hard. Always keep God first. Prayer is powerful. That's what I believe in, and it's what I will one day teach my kids."

Titans running backs coach Tony Dews said Henry is his own worst critic. Dews said the fourth-year back came to him in the offseason with areas in which he wanted to improve. Dews studied tape of running backs to find ways Henry could improve.

"Derrick is really conscientious about everything," Dews said. "He wants to be the absolute best at everything. He and Dion [Lewis] are very competitive with each other. Dion has done a really solid job over the past couple of years in pass protection, so they share things, and obviously, Derrick doesn't want to be outdone by Dion, so it becomes a competitive thing."

"The biggest thing about Derrick is when he watches himself and sees something he doesn't like, he wants to correct it. I would say that is what motivates him -- watching himself as much as anybody else."

Henry has gotten better as a receiving option out of the backfield. His 18 receptions for 206 yards and two touchdowns during the regular season were close to his receiving numbers from the previous two seasons combined (25 receptions, 235 yards, one TD).

✓ @TDavenport_NFL

Derrick Henry reflected the everyone must improve their game mantra. Feels he has to improve on each and everything. #Titans Tennessee's passing game, fueled by quarterback Ryan Tannehill and rookie wideout A.J. Brown, has been a big part of the Titans' success. But Henry's 549 yards and six touchdowns in December have been arguably as important. His coaches and teammates have the utmost respect for the work Henry puts in during the week.

"The one thing that I tried to figure out a few years ago was that I don't think I have to motivate him," coach Mike Vrabel said.

Added center Ben Jones: "Seeing him in person and how hard he works, he's grinding every day. He wants to be the best guy on the field, and you want to block for a guy like him. He's just a physical specimen out there. He's a monster."

DERRICK HENRY

Opposing coaches have noticed, too. Despite the sore hamstring, Henry gained 103 yards on 18 carries and scored two touchdowns last month in a pivotal victory over the Oakland Raiders.

"This man will not get tired," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said via conference call. "He won't do it. I'd like to see the GPS numbers on this guy. I mean, he can run fast for a long time. He can run hard for a long time. There's no tag-team wrestling. He doesn't have to reach over and get another back to get him out of there. He can go and go hard. He's a great back with incredible stamina. The more you give it to him, the longer the game goes, the better he plays. He reminds me of Eddie George that way."

It's not just self-reflection and hard work that get Henry hyped before he takes the field. Music plays a role, too. He listens to a song by Meek Mill called "King" before every game, something that has become a tradition for him. The title of the song fits Henry, who goes by the name "KingHenry_2" on Twitter and "last_king_2" on Instagram.

The name of the song also fits the king's ransom Henry is likely to receive after his contract expires after this season.

"I ain't worried about that," Henry said to a reporter in May about money. "Next question. No concern for me. This is football. I fell in love with it before the money. I love this game."

DERRICK HENRY

THE NORMAL RULES OF FOOTBALL ANALYTICS DON'T APPLY TO DERRICK HENRY

BY RODGER SHERMAN
THE RINGER
JANUARY 10, 2020

The scientific formula for momentum is mass times velocity. It's the Derrick Henry equation.

Henry taught his equation to the Patriots over and over again on Saturday, powering the Titans to a 20-13 win and handing New England its earliest playoff loss in a decade. He ran for 182 yards on 34 carries—more carries than any player had recorded in a game this season, more rushing yards than any player had tallied in a playoff game since 2008, and more rushing yards than the Pats had allowed to a single player in a playoff game in franchise history.

New England entered the wild-card round with the league's no. 1 scoring defense, a unit that intercepted more passes and allowed fewer touchdowns than anyone. Behind Henry, the Titans simply waltzed around the obstacles that group presented, attempting just 16 passes for 71 yards. No team had won a game with so few passing yards this season, and no team had won a playoff game with so few passing yards since 2010.

For most of Henry's first four seasons in the NFL, the Heisman Trophy winner was largely considered an afterthought. In 2016 and 2017, he was the backup to an aging DeMarco Murray. In 2018, he became the Titans' starter, but still split carries with the less productive Dion Lewis. Henry even started out weakly in 2019. For the first 56 games of his NFL career, Henry rushed for 100 yards just five times. He was talked about among fantasy owners really only when they were looking for a mid-tier RB2.

Since Week 10 of this season, though, Henry has hit the 100-yard mark in six of the seven games he's played. He rattled off four consecutive 100-yard performances—all in Tennessee wins—before racking up 211 yards and three touchdowns in a playoff-clinching Week 17 victory over the Texans.

After Week 9, Henry was 10th on the NFL's rushing list, 250 yards behind Minnesota's Dalvin Cook. On the strength of his 211-yard Week 17 outing, Henry took the title of league rushing champ. But he did more than just elevate his stats. Entering Week 10, the Titans seemed dead in the water after a 4-5 start. They're 6-2 since, and have now knocked off the greatest dynasty in football history. Much of the credit for that turnaround has gone to Ryan Tannehill, the quarterback who took charge of the offense in Week 6 and finished as the NFL's leader in passer rating. But Tennessee's 2019 turnaround more closely coincides with Henry's transformation from just another running back into an unstoppable force of nature.

If Henry is the player he was down the stretch, he's the best running back in the league. That might not sound like much in an era when efficient passing has replaced power running, but Henry uses his pure brawn to devastating effect. He makes the case that an offense based on bulldozing defenders can work—so long as your running back is Derrick Henry.

Henry runs in the way that Jeeps drive in commercials. We see a Jeep in some treacherous terrain—mountains, blockfields, deserts, icy wastelands, Mordor. The four-wheel drive kicks into gear and the vehicle powers over some rock that would tear my Prius asunder. Normally people drive with a purpose—to get from Point A to Point B. Not in Jeep commercials. It's not clear why the Jeep needs to cross these craggy plains of death. But whoever is driving would be unhappy cruising down regular, boulderless roads. Or maybe the car would itself be unhappy.

Derrick Henry is similar. He could run through a wide-open hole created by Tennessee's brilliant offensive line. But it's not about getting from Point A to Point B. The first downs and touchdowns are incidental. Henry seems happiest when he's powering over defenders who are standing in his path.

At 6-foot-3 and 247 pounds, Henry is the biggest running back in the NFL, in terms of both height and weight. (If you want to split hairs, a few fullbacks are heavier. That said, the majority of NFL fullbacks are lighter than Henry is.) Dating back to 2000, there has been only one running back taller than Henry to attend the NFL combine: the 6-foot-4 Brandon Jacobs.

But Henry is not just a giant; this truck also goes from zero to 60 in virtually no time. There has been only one NFL running back heavier than Henry to post a faster 40-yard dash time (former Atlanta Falcons back T.J. Duckett). And Duckett, at 6 feet even, is 3 inches shorter than Henry. Saying that Henry is one of a kind is not an exaggeration. There has never been an NFL running back this tall, this big, and this fast.

You'd expect a massive hunk of a running back to be good at running through contact, and Henry is. This season he led the NFL in yards after contact (973), was second in yards after contact per attempt (3.2), and was third in broken tackles (29). But what makes Henry so distinctive is that he's not just a mountain of muscle bursting into a pile. While other big backs have been short-yardage specialists, Henry is more of a long-gain specialist. Since entering the league in 2016, he has seven rushing touchdowns of more than 50 yards. No other running back even has seven of 30-plus yards. In 2018, Henry had a 99-yard rushing score, which, as logic dictates, is tied for the longest in football history. Henry is one of the few players who can power past linemen and linebackers at the line of scrimmage and then outrun defensive backs chasing him in the open field.

Henry holds the national career high school rushing record, breaking a mark set by Ken Hall, a single-wing quarterback from Texas, in the 1950s. National career high school records are notoriously difficult to break, for obvious reasons. Do you remember being in ninth grade? Did you ever try to beat up seniors? Probably not. They were like a different species.

To set the national career high school rushing record, you not only have to play varsity football as an underclassman, but you also have to dominate. Well, here is Henry as a high school sophomore. (He's the big guy.)

Henry may have looked 28 when he was in his teens, but his dominance had room to grow. In his senior year at Yulee High School in Florida, he rushed for 4,261 yards and 55 touchdowns. He ran for a minimum of 189 yards in every game, topping out with a 45-carry, 510-yard, six-touchdown outing against Jacksonville's Andrew Jackson High. Here is a highlight video from his senior season. It's nine minutes long, and in it Henry gets tackled a total of seven times.

Yulee ran 630 offensive plays in the 2012 season; 462 were carries by Henry. Normally, I'd be furious at a high school coach for exposing a young athlete to so many possibilities for injury. But watching the tape, I have a different question: Why did the Hornets throw the ball 86 times?

As NFL fans, we're used to looking out on a field and seeing the running back as the smallest guy. Offensive linemen are often small planets; wide receivers are regularly tall sprinters; linebackers are 250-pound balls of muscle; even quarterbacks are sometimes 6-foot-6. Running backs are regular-sized speedsters who can weave between the big boys. On Henry's high school tape, though, he's the biggest player on the field. It looks like Nintendo made a football sequel to Mario Tennis and Mario Golf. And in this version Henry is Bowser.

The domination continued at Alabama. As a freshman, Henry was third on the depth chart behind T.J. Yeldon and Kenyan Drake, but averaged 10.9 yards per carry in the limited times he touched the ball. In that season's Sugar Bowl against Oklahoma, he took a screen pass for a 61-yard touchdown, breaking through a pack of Sooners around the line of scrimmage and outrunning the safeties into the end zone. Pablo Viruega, who announces college football games for ESPN Deportes, shouted out "¡El Tractorcito!" as Henry burst into the end zone. Henry has never needed another nickname: Calling Henry a human-sized tractor remains the best way to summarize him.

As a junior, Henry rushed for at least 200 yards in four games, and fewer than 100 yards in five games—three of which were nonconference contests in which Henry was subbed out early. He had 271 yards in the all-important Iron Bowl against Auburn, 189 yards in the SEC title game against Florida, and 158 yards with three touchdowns in the national championship against Clemson. Before that Clemson game, former Bama running back and fellow Heisman winner Mark Ingram joined the Crimson Tide on the field for the coin toss. Ingram looked like a high-schooler; Henry looked like a pro.

In high school, Henry was a god. In college, Henry was a god. Then in the pros, Henry was overlooked. He was the second running back off the board in the 2016 draft, which in the past could have made him a top-five pick. In 2016, however, he went 45th, 41 spots behind Ezekiel Elliott. The Titans didn't really make Henry their feature back until this season.

And I kind of get it. I believe in analytics, which suggest that passing is significantly more valuable than running—and that, contrary to traditional football wisdom, you don't need to establish the run to set up passing plays. Teams can execute play-action effectively regardless of how often they run or how good they are at it. And Henry is a minus in the passing game. While many of this era's most valuable backs can contribute as receivers (Alvin Kamara, Christian McCaffrey, Saquon Barkley, etc.), Henry has never been adept at running routes or catching footballs. In high school, he had 1,397 career carries and eight career receptions. In college, he had 602 carries and 17 receptions. This season, he had just 18 receptions, 45th among running backs. In his career, Henry has 57 catches and seven drops, meaning he's dropped over 10 percent of catchable balls thrown his way. (And the throws to backs typically aren't finger breakers.) In Tennessee, Henry has always been paired with a more adept pass-catching option.

So when Henry comes into the game, defenses know they can home in on the run more than usual. In Henry's rookie year, he faced defenses with eight men in the box on 52.7 percent of his carries—more than any player in any season since NFL's NextGenStats began tracking defensive alignments. In 2017, Henry faced eight men in the box on 50 percent of his carries. This season, there were eight men in the box on 35.1 percent, fifth most in the league. Most of the players ahead of him are run-first backups.

But Henry is unique in that the amount of defenders cued up to drill him doesn't matter. Henry is the only player in the NextGenStats database to face eight men in the box on more than 50 percent of his carries and still average at least 4.0 yards per carry—and he did that twice, in 2016 and 2017. In 2019, Henry averaged 5.1 yards per attempt, fifth in the league, while also leading the league in carries and facing more stacked boxes than any starting back. He takes the contact and keeps on moving.

The Titans seem to be a genuine rebuke to the premise that there is no value in running to set up the pass. While I believe that establishing the run is an antiquated piece of football logic not backed up by data, it's hard to look at Tannehill's transformation from nobody into superstar and believe that it's not related to Henry's presence. In Tannehill's final season with the Dolphins in 2018, his running backs were Kenyan Drake and Frank Gore, whom defenses didn't need to respect. Drake drew an eight-man box on only 10 percent of his carries, fourth fewest in the league; Gore drew an eight-man box on 12.2 percent of his carries, 10th fewest.

Now Tannehill is facing defenses that are, first and foremost, terrified of getting trucked by El Tractorcito. Look at how easy the following play is for the Titans. Tennessee comes out in the I-formation like it's 1985, and the defense commits to stopping the run. A simple play fake draws all three linebackers toward the line of scrimmage; Tannehill pops out and throws a slant to A.J. Brown; and Brown races past the remaining defenders for an easy touchdown. Henry opens everything up by making the best athletes in the NFL look like 5-foot-10 North Florida high-schoolers unfortunate enough to draw the Yulee Hornets on their schedule.

The analytics movement does not project a running back to dominate the most important games of the season. But when you watch Henry bound over defenders like Jeeps over boulders, it feels like there's only one equation that matters: mass times volume.

DERRICK HENRY

AS DERRICK HENRY RUNS PAST AND THROUGH OPPONENTS, IT BEGS THE QUESTION: ARE WE SEEING THE MAKINGS OF AN ALL-TIME GREAT?

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
JANUARY 15, 2020

When the Titans lined up on third-and-1 at their own 28 midway through the third quarter last Saturday, Baltimore's M&T Bank Stadium rocked in anticipation.

The Ravens, trailing just 14-6 at the time, stood one big stop away from seizing momentum in the divisional playoff games.

That's when Titans running back Derrick Henry took a hand-off, flattened 260-pound linebacker Matthew Judon two yards behind the line of scrimmage, swerved past cornerback Brandon Carr and roared 66 yards down the field, finally getting hauled down at the 6-yard line. The crowd fell silent. The Titans scored a touchdown three plays later. The Ravens never threatened again.

Henry's run, his biggest on a night when he carried 30 times for 195 yards, was the latest example of dominance for a back whose exploits are fast becoming the stuff of legend.

Seriously.

When Henry finished off the 2018 season with a four-game run of 87 carries for 585 yards and seven touchdowns, it was impressive. Very impressive. But what he has done during the 2019 season, especially over the last couple of months, is sheer madness.

According to the NFL Network, Henry's total of 1,273 rushing yards in the past eight games is the best for any back in an eight-game span in the history of the league.

Which gives rise to at least one question: Are we watching something truly unique unfold before us in the 6-3, 247-pound Henry, who is both powerful enough to lead the NFL in yards after contact this season and fast enough to have scored the most touchdowns of 65-plus yards (seven) over the past three years?

Sure, Henry's career is just four seasons old, and — incredible as it seems now — he started just three games in his first two years. But he just became the first player in the Super Bowl era to top 180 yards in three straight games, and — even more impressive — his career yards-per-carry average of 4.8 now leads all active NFL running backs. Is it possible we could be witnessing the early to middle stages of one of the league's all-time greats?

"I definitely believe that," says NFL on CBS analyst Trent Green, a quarterback for 15 years in the league. "Those numbers you're talking about, those are historic-type numbers. When you think about the history of the league, you're talking about guys like Jim Brown or Walter Payton or Barry Sanders or Thurman Thomas, Emmitt Smith, guys like that. That's some pretty impressive stuff."

This is Earl Campbell-esque

It's Henry's combination of power, size and speed that makes him such a rarity, so fascinating to watch.

His speed is perhaps the most surprising element, since he looks more like an outside linebacker than he does a running back. But when Ravens cornerback Marcus Peters tackled Henry just short of the goal line on his 66-yard jaunt last Saturday, it marked one of the few times we've seen Henry get caught from behind on a longer run. Henry leads the league in 60-plus yard runs (6) over the past four seasons, ranks second in 50-plus yard runs (8) and is tied for second in 40-plus yard runs (8).

* BREAKAWAY BIG BACK

Player	Team	Size	+	60
runs			+ 60 TDs

Derrick Henry	Titans	6-3, 247
6	5
Saquon Barkley	Giants	6-0, 233
5	4
Leonard Fournette	Jaguars
6-0, 228	5	2
Isaiah Crowell	Raiders	5-11, 225
4	3

* Since 2016 including regular season and postseason

Those aren't traditional "big-back" numbers.

"I played with Eric Dickerson, and he had world-class speed, but that's what (Henry) has, too," says the NFL Network's Brian Baldinger, who spent 11 years in the league as an offensive lineman. "It's not like the explosive speed of some backs. It's a slow build. But by the time he gets 10 yards down the field, and he starts opening up that stride ... that's when he basically separates himself. That's basically how he won the rushing title, based off a lot of long runs that chewed up a lot of long yardage."

As for the power, one can measure it in a couple of ways: Numerically, Henry led the league in yards after contact, posting 1,268 of his 1,540 yards (more than 80 percent) after first contact, per Pro Football Focus. Visually, just rewatch his 66-yard run against the Ravens, when Henry hammers Judon to the ground with a shoulder before taking off toward the end zone. That was his 14th attempt of the game, on a night he'd wind up carrying the ball 30 times for 195 yards.

"Derrick's durability — his ability to eat carries, then come back the next week and eat carries, then come back the next week and eat carries, I mean, this is Earl Campbell-esque," says Charles Davis, football analyst for FOX NFL and the NFL Network. "This is what Earl did his entire career until his body just couldn't take it anymore."

Then there's the Henry wild card: the stiff arm. It was on full display against the Ravens when he spun Baltimore safety Earl Thomas — the same Earl Thomas who questioned the Patriots’ desire to tackle Henry the previous week — around with a pair of lefthanders on a key 27-yard pick-up. But it was even more memorable last season, when Henry delivered a handful of righthanders en route to a legendary 99-yard touchdown run against Jacksonville.

DERRICK HENRY

“Physically, he’s just literally different than everybody else,” Baldinger says. “You can’t get to his body. With that stiff-arm and the way he runs ... guys are trying to get to his body, but when he puts his arm out, you physically can’t get to his legs or mid-section.”

Added Green: “With his size, he’s so much bigger than the average defensive back. It’s like the big kid and little kid on the playground. He puts his hands out and you can’t get to him.”

Who’s Henry like?

So who are the best NFL stars — of today or yesteryear — when it comes to evaluating Henry’s talent?

A couple of names came to mind for Davis. In terms of power, Davis recalled Kansas City’s former hulk of a running back, 6-1 and 253-pound Christian Okoye (1987-92), known as “the Nigerian nightmare” in reference to his native country. But Henry’s all-round talent also pointed to Campbell, the 5-11, 232-pound battering ram and former Houston Oilers’ star. He’s in the Pro Football Hall of Fame after piling up more than 9,400 rushing yards in just eight seasons.

“This run (Henry’s) on right now, he’s Earl Campbell with a little less speed,” Davis says. “Earl Campbell could flat-out go, but everything else, you’re seeing very similar things, like people deciding whether they really want to tackle this guy or not. That was Earl. I think Earl could get to the perimeter and turn upfield and lead you a little better than Derrick Henry. But we’re kind of quibbling a little on that one.”

Baldinger again referenced his former Indianapolis teammate, the 6-3, 220-pound Dickerson, as a comparison in at least one category. On his way to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Dickerson racked up nearly 3,000 carries — posting more than 300 attempts in five seasons. Henry carried 303 times during the regular season this year, and has since added 64 carries in two playoff contests.

“(Dickerson) could give you 30 carries a game and not look tired, just the way Derrick does,” Baldinger says. “From that standpoint, there are very few backs that have the physical make-up that can take the pounding, deliver the pounding, have all those carries and never get worn down.

“Emmitt Smith was another one of those backs. But we just don’t see backs that can deliver that punishment and handle the punishment for a long time now.”

* POWER AND PRODUCTION

Player	Team	Attempts	Yards	YPC
Derrick Henry	Titans	804	3,833	4.8
Adrian Peterson	Redskins		3,036	14,216 4.7
Ezekiel Elliott	Cowboys		1,169	5,405 4.6
Mark Ingram	Ravens	1,523	7,025	4.6
LeSean McCoy	Chiefs	2,447	11,071	4.5

* Leader in yards per carry among active RBs with at least 750 carries

But both Baldinger and Green tossed out one name for comparison — Eddie George — that’s very familiar to Titans fans. The 6-3, 235-pound George hammered and thumped his way to 10,441 yards in nine seasons (1996-2004), eight with the Oilers/Titans.

“I remember watching Eddie at Ohio State and seeing the power and speed, and thinking there’s no way (George) could continue that style of running in the NFL,” Green says. “But he did. You remember those classic battles between he and the Ravens’ defense. Those were some of the most physical football games I can remember watching. But he also had the ability to take it the distance.”

The numbers show Henry is more of a breakaway threat, though, as George only posted four career runs of 40-or-more yards, just one after his rookie season.

“Eddie had a great career and he was a great runner,” Baldinger says. “That’s a good comp, but Eddie didn’t have the speed, the breakaway speed, that Derrick does. Derrick’s ahead of Eddie there.”

So who comes to mind for you when it comes to Henry’s mix of power, speed and production? Some other names that should perhaps be in consideration — players who combined power and speed in their game — include Adrian Peterson, Marshawn Lynch, Bo Jackson, Jerome Bettis, Jamal Lewis and Corey Dillon.

Then again, perhaps Henry is well on his way to carving out his own name and identity. On Saturday, he’ll be shooting for his fourth career playoff game with 150 or more rushing yards, which would tie Terrell Davis for the most in the NFL’s Super Bowl era.

Not bad for a second-round pick who had a total of four 100-yard games in his first three seasons in the NFL.

“I’ll be interested in seeing how it all comes down for him as we go down the road,” Davis says. “But boy, it’s fun to watch since I don’t have to tackle him.”

DERRICK HENRY

DERRICK HENRY'S MASSIVE SUCCESS HAS COME THANKS TO GROWTH AND HUMILITY

BY LUKE WORSHAM
ATOZSPORTS.COM
JANUARY 17, 2020

Derrick Henry is an invaluable asset to the Tennessee Titans. He's been the primary driving force behind the team's impressive run to the AFC Championship.

His success is all the more impressive when you take a second to remember that Henry's NFL career hasn't always been blue skies and rainbows.

It was just last September when Henry evaluated his performance to start the 2018 season by saying, "It's been trash play, and it's unacceptable as far as me and my position." January of 2018 saw Henry criticize himself for being "soft" in his first career start.

The Titans' behemoth running back has come a long way over the last few seasons—trekking a journey of growth that required selflessness and plenty of looks in the mirror.

BEGINNING AS A BACKUP

It was on the heels of a trade for Pro Bowl RB DeMarco Murray that the Titans drafted Henry in the second round of the 2016 NFL Draft. The Alabama product took a backseat to Murray, who led the AFC in rushing during Henry's rookie season.

Henry did get plenty of opportunities, despite Murray being firmly entrenched ahead of him on the depth chart. The Titans ran the ball a lot that year, so Henry saw 110 carries, and he racked up over 500 yards from scrimmage.

The future looked bright for Henry, especially since Murray was nearing the age of 30—often a death sentence for a running back's career.

YEAR-TWO WOES

However, in 2017, it was Henry who declined.

Murray struggled with injuries throughout the season, which gave Henry a good amount of opportunities. He was not able to take advantage.

In nine games out of the eighteen the Titans played in the 2017 season, Henry's yards-per-carry average was fewer than 3.25. In six of those games, his average was fewer than 2.5.

Henry made his first-career start in Week 17 and posted a major dud, carrying the ball 28 times in the game and posting a mere 51 rushing yards. That gave him a pitiful average of 1.82 yards per carry.

It was after that game that Henry made the aforementioned comment about being "soft."

"I didn't run like myself," he added. "I wasn't really happy."

Henry rebounded the next week in the Titans' playoff win over the Chiefs, showing glimpses of his abilities in an impressive performance.

Just one week later, though, against the Patriots, "soft" Henry was back. In that game, he carried the ball 12 times for just 28 yards, a 2.33 YPC average.

BLOWING HIS OPPORTUNITY

The following offseason, Murray retired, paving the way for Henry to be the Titans starter.

When the team signed veteran RB Dion Lewis to a pricey contract in free agency, it was clear that his role would be as a compliment, not as competition, to Henry.

In his new role as the Titans' undisputed bell-cow, Henry continued to struggle.

Instead of plowing forward with the football, he often was too patient. If there wasn't a clearly visible hole between the tackles, he would resort to bouncing the play outside, often leading to him being pushed out of bounds by a cornerback.

He looked almost as if he is trying to defend himself against being tackled, rather than trying to be the aggressor that he now has the reputation of being.

Henry surpassed 3.2 yards per carry just once in the Titans' first seven games of the 2018 season. As he continued to struggle, he saw fewer opportunities.

Lewis' role increased, and the Titans even resorted to getting career-reserve player David Fluellen involved.

Simply put: Henry's third season was going about as poorly as could have been imagined.

"It's been trash play, and it's unacceptable as far as me and my position," Henry told the Titans' official website at the end of September.

"The position I play, I have to be more physical, and I have to make more explosive runs. I have to help this offense in a big way that I've always talked about that I want to do."

GETTING IT FIXED

That's when Henry had his famed-telephone conversation with legendary Titans running back and Heisman-winner Eddie George, who gave Henry some hard truths.

"He shot me straight," Henry said, via ESPN. "It was what I needed to hear. He told me I needed to be more physical and finish runs, make the defense pay. He told me I could play better, and I wasn't playing to my potential. It gave me a different outlook."

Just a few weeks later, Henry posted one of the greatest single-game performances by a running back in NFL history. That's far from hyperbole.

The once replacement-level back carried the ball 17 times for 238 yards and four touchdowns, including his now-iconic 99-yarder.

“I had a front-row seat to it, it was pretty awesome,” QB Marcus Mariota said after the game. “It’s hard to put it into words. I think he is more than deserving of it, he was kind of due for one of those. Some of those runs were pretty incredible.”

Since then, Henry has been one of the NFL’s premier backs. He’s become a living, breathing tour de force for the Titans offense.

“He’s able to, I would say, run multiple schemes, whether it be gap schemes, zone schemes, wide zone,” Vrabel said. “That’s something I feel like he’s improved at.”

“He’s learned to run behind his pads,” George said. “The game has slowed down for him.”

WHERE HENRY IS NOW

Henry once struggled to be more efficient than his backups. Now, he’s putting up ridiculous stat totals and, along with help from QB Ryan Tannehill, he has carried the Titans to the AFC Championship.

He’s run for over 180 yards in back-to-back playoff games, he ran for more yards against a Bill Belichick-coached Patriots team than anyone ever has in the postseason and his 1,273 rushing yards over his last eight games are the most in a stretch of that length in NFL history.

To get from where Henry was to where he is now, it took more than just a phone call on with George. It took character.

Luckily for the Titans, Henry has plenty of that. He is extraordinarily selfless, self-critical, and he always puts his teammates first.

If he shows excitement because of his individual success, it’s only because of the fact that it helps the team as a whole.

Those same attitudes applied during Henry’s struggles.

“I look at it as adversity. Everybody has adversity in their life, and I’ve had plenty of adversity within this sport. I just had to look at myself in the mirror and, you know, be a man about it and just overcome it.”

By any estimation, Henry did indeed handle his adversity like a man. As a result, he’s the man that no NFL defense wants to see as the postseason concludes.

TRAINING DERRICK HENRY: AN INSIDE LOOK AT THE RUSHING CHAMPION'S INTENSE WORK-OUT REGIMEN

BY JOHN GLENNON
BROADWAY SPORTS

AUGUST 19, 2020

Only a few moments after the Titans trudged off the field following their season-ending playoff loss to Kansas City, Melvin Sanders' cellphone began buzzing.

The Dallas-based professional trainer looked at it first in disbelief, then realized he probably shouldn't be so shocked after all.

On the other end of the line was Titans running back Derrick Henry, who was FaceTiming Sanders from the locker room in Arrowhead Stadium. Henry's message to Sanders, delivered with the sights and sounds of frustrated Titans teammates in the background, was succinct and simple:

"He just said, 'It's time to get back to work,'" Sanders said. "I said, 'Dude, you just finished the season. Let your body recover first.' But he didn't want to hear any of that. I'm just like, 'You know what? This kid's different.'"

Said Henry by way of explanation: "After that game, I was definitely motivated, so I was just ready to get back at it. That's what I like about Melvin. Anytime I hit him, he's ready to work. That's the type of mindset he has – me and him both."

"He's just a freak, really ... To be that good and still work that hard, it goes without saying, is unreal."

Melvin Sanders on Derrick Henry

The post-playoff loss phone call was but another example of a strong player-trainer bond that started to form more than three years ago, a relationship that's since proven very beneficial to both Henry – and by extension – the Titans.

But Sanders' offseason training skills – combined with Henry's insatiable appetite for work – have helped to craft a truly spectacular physical specimen. Want some visual evidence? Check out some of the eye-opening Internet clips featuring Henry's work with Sanders, a former NBA player who's now the Founder/Director of SandersFit Performance Center in Dallas.

In one, Henry, the NFL's leading rusher last season, alternates between lifting almost 500 pounds on a trap bar and making dynamic box leaps to the top of a 42-inch platform. In another, a shirtless Henry is charging up a Dallas hill repeatedly, beginning the ascent with quick-footwork drills and then turning to catch a medicine ball a few steps later. Did we mention Henry can bench-press close to 400 pounds? And that he squats more than 500 pounds?

"He's just a freak, really," Sanders said. "But honestly, I think it's a mental-first thing with him. He's got such a strong mental capacity to be pushed. Physically, his legs are super strong, obviously. His upper body is strong. I can't pick one thing where I'd say, 'Hey, he needs to work on this.' I give him a hard time and tell him he's slow, but he's fast as hell. I just have to give him a hard time about something because he does everything so well in the weight room."

Henry is every bit as complimentary toward Sanders, who trains a number of professional athletes including Dallas Cowboys quarterback Dak Prescott and running back Ezekiel Elliott. The Titans running back met Sanders prior to his second season in Tennessee, during an offseason trip to Dallas. Henry's girlfriend had friends who recommended Sanders' facility, and after just one workout there, Henry said "the rest was history," as he's been going there ever since during the offseason.

Henry appreciates the fact that Sanders, a fellow pro, understands what he's looking for in terms of a long, durable and productive career. The 26 year-old Henry also likes the way the 39 year-old Sanders motivates him, refusing to let complacency set in despite the Pro Bowlers's physical feats on the football field.

"Melvin is like a big brother," Henry said. "I love him because he always pushes me. There's never a limit with him. It's always above and beyond, always working. Even on days where I might be like, 'Man, I don't want to go today,' he pushes me.

"And he works out hard as well. So you've got to try to outwork him and what he's doing. I just love the intensity he brings every day, him pushing me and everybody in that gym."

In truth, of course, Henry doesn't need much in the way of pushing. Sanders calls Henry a one-percenter, which he defines as "a person that brings it every day, challenges himself to get better without anyone having to push him." The relentless pursuit of perfection and the desire to be the greatest, Sanders said, is the best way to describe Henry's offseason mindset.

"I've got to do these for my stiff-arms, when I push people off me."

-Derrick Henry

If anything, Sanders has to be careful not to let Henry overwork himself during the offseason, especially after seasons like 2019, when the fourth-year running back led the NFL with 303 regular-season rushing attempts. Henry took his share of lumps and bumps, gaining 1,268 of his 1,539 yards after contact, per Pro Football Focus.

So for the first few weeks, Sanders concentrates on flexibility and mobility work, which involves all types of stretching – dynamic, active and static. Light strength training – higher reps and lower weight – comes in the next phase, followed at last by heavier weights, when Henry starts doing things like sled pushes and dead lifts. He eventually tapers his workout back down as training camp nears.

DERRICK HENRY

Running the hills? That's just an added bit of fun.

"You don't see many guys out there running those hills, but Derrick loves it," Sanders said. "To be that good and still work that hard, it goes without saying, is unreal. But the uphill work is just something that builds more speed and more power.

"A lot of times you hear guys talk about guys talk about running downhill, right? Derrick seems like he's constantly uphill because he's constantly pushing people off. So we work a lot of that kind of thing in there, keeping it fun and letting him know, 'Hey, we do pay attention to what you do on the field.'"

Henry visits his workout facility five or six times per week, said Sanders, compared to three or four times per week for many of the other elite athletes. Vacations? Henry doesn't take many, preferring to stick with Sanders and the strict workout schedule.

"I think me just working with (Sanders) and him wanting me to get better (is why I'm such a regular)," Henry said. "It's me seeing him want me to get better and be the best that I can be. It really motivates me and I just love being motivated, love staying in shape, love working out. When I'm not, it bothers me, and I think he's the same way.

"That's just a mindset me and him have. Don't take too many off days if you don't have to. Just keep working and getting better."

Sanders said he gets a chuckle out of the way Henry finishes up a lot of the offseason workouts.

No how matter how intense the exercises, no matter how much weight has been lifted, Henry often manages to find enough strength to power through a few sets of shoulder shrugs at the end. Why add more to the plate, Sanders asked Henry?

"He told me, 'I've got to do these for my stiff-arms, when I push people off me,'" Sanders said. "I was like, 'Well, I can't argue that. You go do as many shoulder shrugs as you want.'"

'THEY DON'T HAVE A CHANCE': WHY DERRICK HENRY'S STIFF-ARM IS SO EFFECTIVE FOR TITANS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN

SEPTEMBER 18, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Derrick Henry takes a bully approach to running the ball. When he's on the field, he's like Deebo from the movie "Friday" -- terrorizing anyone who crosses his path.

"My aiming point is the head because I want to be disrespectful," the Tennessee Titans running back said. "I want to throw them to the ground. If you get them good on the head and push them down, they don't have a chance."

Most of Henry's explosive runs include one common denominator: the stiff-arm. Henry's rare blend of size (6-foot-3, 247 pounds), speed and strength make life difficult for opposing defenses.

"He's like a defensive end playing running back," former Titans running back Chris Johnson said. "He's so big and his arms are so long, it's hard to get into his body and get a good tackle on him. I don't think a lot of people understand how hard it is to tackle a guy that has a good stiff-arm."

Derrick Henry stiff-armed A.J. Bouye and other Jaguars on his historic 99-yard run.

Using the stiff-arm came naturally to Henry because of his long arms. It was one of the ways Henry first started breaking tackles when he played Pop Warner football.

The stiff-arm remained in Henry's toolbox as he worked his way up the ranks through Yulee High School, then to the University of Alabama, where he won the Heisman Trophy -- which fittingly includes a statue of former pro running back Ed Smith using a stiff-arm.

Henry had decent numbers during his first two NFL seasons, but he became a bona fide punisher during the 2018 season after a meeting with former Titans great Eddie George, who implored him to "impose his will" on defenders.

"When I talked to Eddie, it was mind over matter. It's either going to be you or me and it ain't going to be me," Henry said of his conversation with George.

Henry responded by rushing for 625 yards in December 2018, two months after talking to George. His record-tying 99-yard run in Week 14 against the Jacksonville Jaguars featured at least four stiff-arms and a close call with teammate Corey Davis, who was trying to get a downfield block on the play.

"He was about to stiff-arm me! Derrick was in attack mode," Davis said.

The franchise-record 238 rushing yards Henry gained against the Jaguars put him on the map as one of the hardest players to bring down. Now Henry's stiff-arm is known across the NFL, with defensive players strategizing how to overcome it.

"Definitely one of the best, if not the best, in the league," Denver Broncos safety Justin Simmons said of Henry. "He's such a big guy so when you get out into open space, he's athletic enough to just kind of leap over you or use his long arms. He's able to extend his arm before you can even make contact with his body. It's tough."

The Titans use a helmet on a stick during individual periods in practice to help Henry practice his stiff-arm while Vrabel tries to punch the ball out.

"The best way to defend it is to get multiple guys to the football, trying to eliminate as many one-on-ones as you can, try and meet him in the hole before he kind of gets a head of steam and can break out to the second level."

Indianapolis Colts linebacker Darius Leonard has to face Henry twice a year, so he's no stranger to the 2019 NFL rushing king's stiff-arm.

"You gotta prep yourself mentally and physically to say how you're going to attack him and get him down," Leonard said. "You have to be smart. You know he has a nasty stiff-arm. If he has an angle to the sideline, I know he's gonna hit me with a stiff-arm so I get ready to try to break the stiff-arm down then squeeze, wrap and roll."

Of all the stiff-arms Henry has dished out, his favorite came in Tennessee's 28-12 divisional playoff win over the Baltimore Ravens last season, when Henry stonewalled safety Earl Thomas twice on a 27-yard run. The Titans like to utilize stretch plays to get Henry into the alley where he can use his long arms to ward off linebackers and defensive backs as he squares his numbers up and gets downhill.

It's a sound strategy, but it doesn't work every time. When asked who's the toughest player to stiff-arm, Henry mentioned a former division rival-turned-teammate.

"I tried to do it on [Jadeveon] Clowney once. He's long and he's lengthy, so that didn't really work on him," Henry said.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel was watching clips of a Titans game against the Dallas Cowboys and noticed defensive players started to go low on Henry to avoid his stiff-arm. Vrabel decided it was time to add a new wrinkle to practice, a helmet on a stick.

"It was something that I had seen on TV," Vrabel said of the helmet on a stick used in drills. "I said, 'Hey we should probably get a couple of these.' It's similar to maybe a defensive player being cut blocked by an offensive player, that if you don't take your eyes and your hands down to the target, they're going to get into your legs, so you really have to focus on that helmet area. That's where we saw people attacking Derrick [Henry] and try to tackle him that way."

This year, they are working on another addition in which Henry fakes a stiff-arm to get the defender off balance, then he recoils and strikes him to the ground.

Added Henry, "I love using a stiff-arm, so they brought that [helmet on a stick] in to help me practice throughout the week. This is what it's all about, getting better at the things that I'm good at."

TITANS SAFETY AMANI HOOKER AIMS TO PLAY FASTER IN HIS SECOND NFL SEASON

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 26, 2020

NASHVILLE – Life comes at you fast in the NFL, and that's something Titans safety Amani Hooker found out as a rookie last year.

Heading into his second season, Hooker wants to be faster.

In fact, he made it one of his goals this offseason after watching film from his rookie season.

"For me, I just felt like I could be faster, so I lost some weight," Hooker said on a video conference call on Tuesday. "I'm feeling good right now, being able to make some plays. Not just doing my job, now it's try to make some plays while I'm out there. So, definitely getting faster and just being able to, like I said, just make plays."

A fourth-round pick out of Iowa in the 2019 NFL Draft, Hooker played in all 19 of the team's games last season – 16 during the regular season, and three in the postseason.

Hooker totaled 16 tackles in the games combined (13 during the regular season and three in the postseason), and he also contributed on special teams.

With a season under his belt, Hooker said he feels more prepared to take on what's asked of him this fall.

"It's a big difference for me," Hooker said. "I feel more comfortable (this year in camp). I feel closer with the guys having been here a year. Then just from my experience last year, we went to the AFC Championship game and that's just an experience in itself. Being around these guys, being around veterans, hearing how they act, hearing how they communicate on the field, and how I can just bring that same mentality this year coming into the second season."

Hooker, who said he lost roughly seven to 10 pounds, said he feels better from a movement standpoint in practices.

Learning from veteran safeties Kevin Byard and Kenny Vaccaro has helped Hooker, who was a playmaker at Iowa, where he totaled 125 tackles, six interceptions, a sack and 3.5 tackles for a loss in his three-year career.

With the Titans, he said he's prepared to play wherever the team needs him. In 2020, Hooker could have a bigger role in situational packages on defense, in addition to his work on special teams.

"For me, I don't like to put myself in a box so I like to be able to do multiple things," Hooker said. "I don't just want to be able to be one-dimensional. I always pride myself on being able to do multiple things, whether that was rushing, or whether that was just covering, or just playing different positions. So, for myself, hopefully I could be able to do multiple things that help out the team."

SLOT MACHINE: HOW NEW TITAN ADAM HUMPHRIES WENT FROM OVERLOOKED RECRUIT TO ONE OF THE NFL'S MOST COVETED WRs

BY TRAVIS HANEY
THE ATHLETIC
JUNE 3, 2019

As Adam Humphries plunged this past winter into the deep end of the NFL free agency pool, his agents threw him a life preserver.

The value of a slot receiver had risen significantly, his reps at MGC Sports told him. Humphries, who had proven himself in four seasons with Tampa Bay, could be looking at upward of $10 million a year on the open market.

The Clemson product went undrafted in 2015 and improbably made the Buccaneers' roster after a rookie mini-camp tryout. His odds of sticking were so minuscule that Tampa had included his return flight as part of the initial invite.

A few years later, and he was looking at the possibility of an eight-figure check? For one season?

"I thought, 'Dude, that's ridiculous,'" Humphries told The Athletic in May. "I never thought there was a chance I could make that much. It was kind of mind-blowing, to go from making minimum wage in the NFL to this."

It wasn't just about the money; it was the statement behind it. The South Carolina native had spent his entire football career laboring for visibility and opportunity. In a reversal, being an NFL team's priority in free agency would show just how badly he was wanted.

There would be a fight for a player who'd spent his life in the sport undersized and overlooked.

Fending off the Patriots, Saints and others, the Titans on March 14 signed the 25-year-old Humphries to a four-year, $36 million deal.

"It's a testament to him and how he's worked," Tennessee GM Jon Robinson said.

It's not a future that he could have ever imagined when he was at Dorman High, just outside Spartanburg, S.C.

Well, no one could have.

"He just wasn't a guy you'd look at and say, 'OK, this guy will be a millionaire in the NFL,'" longtime Dorman coach David Gutshall said. "Nobody would have bought that."

For one thing, Humphries only occasionally played receiver; he was the team's best defensive back. And he was perhaps best known at Dorman for his role as the star point guard on the basketball team.

The way he had it figured, he'd most likely follow his father's path. Bill Humphries was a standout basketball player at USC Upstate (then USC Spartanburg).

"I was planning on trying to get a scholarship for basketball. Get a scholarship. Go to school. Get a degree. Maybe coach. Get a normal job," Adam Humphries said. "I never really had aspirations to play football at the highest level, because I didn't really think that was even possible."

In fact, he nearly quit football after his sophomore season in high school to focus on hoops. Coaches and friends talked him into continuing to play both.

"I realized, 'Why not try to make the most of football right now? I'm not going to get to play it the rest of my life,'" Humphries said. "I could go play pickup basketball the rest of my life and get competitive juices from that."

Now entering his fifth NFL season, and his first in Nashville, Humphries' rec league basketball career is still on hold.

Dave Gutshall was reduced to begging.

Colleges from all over the country were coming to see uber receiver prospect Charone Peake at Dorman. When they'd stop by, Gutshall, the school's head coach since 1993, would tell them about Humphries.

Humphries appeared strong and athletic. He was versatile, too, capable of playing four or five different positions.

But he was 5 foot 10. He failed recruiters' eye test.

"When you tell somebody you've got a skill kid, that's not what they're looking for," Gutshall said inside his office, across from Dorman's palatial weight room. "I guess they've got this person in their mind, like it's got to be Dez Bryant or Calvin Johnson or something like that. All of a sudden, there's Adam Humphries."

"I used to tell Adam that his biggest problem was that he was a little white boy."

The seeming lack of interest didn't stop Gutshall's efforts to shine a light on Humphries.

"It was killing me, because I knew he belonged and could play at that level," Gutshall said. "I've never worked any harder with one of my players to get a scholarship than I did Adam. I mean every time someone would talk to me, I was pushing him, telling people about him."

"I felt like he was going to get left behind."

One time, a Penn State assistant coach was watching Humphries during a basketball practice. Humphries was knocking down 3 after 3.

"The Penn State coach turned to me and said, 'Oh, well, we've got all kinds of kids like this in Pennsylvania,'" Gutshall said.

As the Penn State coach left, Humphries threw down a couple of thunderous dunks. Despite his height, or lack thereof, he can dunk flat-flooded.

“I called him over and said, ‘Adam, when there’s a college scout here looking at you, don’t be shooting 3’s. They need to see what kind of athlete you are,’” Gutshall said.

Asked about that, Humphries laughed and said he didn’t really want to go to Penn State. Too far away, he said.

One school far closer, Clemson, had always been aware of Humphries — because Gutshall never missed a chance to sell him on Dabo Swinney and his staff.

Clemson receivers coach Jeff Scott said he’d recruited Humphries’ teammate, Peake, since the ninth grade, often traveling the hour-plus to see a Dorman basketball or football game. Each time Scott was there, he heard about the “other kid” he should be recruiting.

“Their coaches were adamant that Adam could play at our level,” Scott said. “I mean, we get that a lot on the recruiting trail. Every coach has a kid that they like and maybe they don’t translate to the college level based on their size and speed. We definitely take those comments, but we have to see it for ourselves.”

What schools mostly saw was Humphries excelling on defense.

There was the time Dorman took a 7-on-7 team to Nashville. Playing against a talented team from Arkansas, Gutshall was standing near a Vanderbilt coach as the scrimmage wound down.

“We’re up by four with three seconds left to go in the game,” Gutshall remembered. “(The Vandy coach) walks over to me and points and says, ‘They’re going to go to that receiver over there. They’re going to just throw the jump ball to him.’ I looked out there at corner to see who was covering him. It was Adam.

“I kind of looked at him and said, ‘Well, they picked the wrong corner.’ And Adam intercepted it. I’m sure they looked out there and their guy was 6-4 and they said, ‘Well, that’s the one to go after.’ Nobody understood what an athlete he was.”

Humphries had a similar, acrobatic interception to seal the 2009 state title against Byrnes High, a team that included future South Carolina star Marcus Lattimore at running back.

“We were playing against a team that, if they beat us, might have not only won the state championship but the national championship,” Gutshall said. “They threw at the wrong guy. Humphries, he looked like he was at least 11 feet in the air — at least.”

There was also the time Humphries was selected for the Shrine Bowl, the annual postseason exhibition between high school stars from North Carolina and South Carolina. The South Carolina staff told Gutshall they planned to play Humphries at safety.

Gutshall asked why they wouldn’t play him at corner.

“Well, he’s not as athletic as we want our corners to be in this game,” the coach told Gutshall. “We need our corners to be a little more athletic.”

Gutshall attended a practice the following week. Humphries was lined up at corner.

“They looked at me and said, ‘He’s the best damn corner we’ve got,’” Gutshall said with a laugh.

Eventually, Gutshall had to figure out a way to show colleges what Humphries could do offensively.

He estimates that 40 schools came to Dorman’s spring game prior to Humphries’ senior year. Most of them were there to see Peake.

“I told Charone, ‘Every one of these colleges in this stadium has offered you. Adam has no offers. Understand that tonight’s going to be the Adam Humphries Show,’” Gutshall remembered.

Scott, the Clemson assistant, thinks Humphries touched the ball on the first 11 plays of the spring game. He was sensational, electric as he broke tackles and made moves in the open field. Humphries was essentially putting together a live highlight tape for all of those college recruiters.

After one of those early, game-breaking plays, Gutshall turned around from the sideline and made eye contact with Scott.

“You seen enough or do I need to keep giving it to him?” Gutshall asked Scott.

Scott laughed.

“No, Coach,” he said. “I’m good.”

Scott fished the phone from his pocket and called Swinney. The scholarship offer — the only one Humphries would ever receive from an FBS-level school — came later that day.

Humphries committed to Clemson a few weeks later. Peake, the reason Clemson ever saw Humphries, also committed to be a Tiger.

The decision still didn’t create a sense of certainty about Humphries’ future, however.

Later that year, Scott and Swinney were visiting Dorman for a basketball game. Bill Humphries, Adam’s dad, pulled Scott aside.

“Coach Scott, I need to ask you a question,” Scott remembered. “Do you truly believe that Adam can play football at Clemson?”

“Absolutely, I do,” Scott told Humphries’ dad. “We wouldn’t have offered him if we didn’t think he could.”

Humphries first turned Swinney’s head at a basketball game, months before the scholarship offer was extended.

“When I saw him play basketball, I thought, ‘This guy’s got something to him,’” Swinney said. “He’s just a winner. He’s just one of those guys. He’s going to be the best. He’s the guy who, on the playground, somebody’s picking him first — because they know they’ll win with him on their team.”

Clemson saw Humphries as a possible replacement for slot receiver Tyler Grisham, who went on to play a couple of seasons in the NFL. He’s now back at Clemson as an offensive assistant coach.

Between Grisham, Humphries and the most recent slot standout, new Oakland Raider Hunter Renfrow, the Tigers have started a New England-esque trend on the college level of unearthing unheralded talent at the position.

Perhaps by no coincidence, Swinney was a walk-on receiver at Alabama.

“I think Dabo feels for those guys,” Gutshall said. “He knows that they can play. He’s willing to take a chance on them.”

Furthering the point, Scott said Clemson is one of the only schools he knows that doesn’t do any testing at its summer camps for high school prospects.

“It’s not all about how fast you run, how big you are,” Scott said. “Within our program, the best players are going to play. We’re not going to get caught up in all the measurables.”

Humphries arrived as the lowest-rated recruit in the 2011 class. Some assistant coaches in the room even wondered why the Tigers were taking this smallish 2-star instead of a stud from elsewhere. Scott and Swinney asked for some faith.

The presumption was that Humphries would redshirt, especially considering the receiver room included future NFL players

Grisham, Sammy Watkins and Martavis Bryant.

But Scott saw enough from Humphries in that initial preseason camp to call him into his office before the season began. He told him that he would play as a true freshman.

Humphries was shocked.

“Do you really think I’m ready to play?” Humphries asked Scott.

“Absolutely,” Scott said. “Not only are you going to play but you’re going to help us this year.”

Humphries caught just 15 passes his first year, but he played in all 14 of the team’s games. The coaches saw his potential — not just for his time at Clemson, but beyond the college game.

After the season, he was riding in a golf cart with Chad Morris, Clemson’s offensive coordinator at the time.

Morris told Humphries that he’d play 10 years in the NFL.

Humphries laughed.

“I thought, ‘There’s no way. I had like 12 catches last year. I’m just happy to be on the field at Clemson,’” Humphries said.

Morris repeated it. He said he’d have every bit the pro career that the team’s star receiver, Watkins, would.

“I would just tell him, ‘Man, you’re going to play longer than all of them. Just trust me,’” said Morris, now the head coach at Arkansas.

Playing with that talented receiver group, one that eventually also included DeAndre Hopkins, served as a confidence-builder for Humphries.

“I think just being around them, that’s what helped me the most,” he said. “I was learning from the best dudes to do it. We were close and we helped each other grow and worked together. It gave me the confidence and the swagger to know that I could perform at that level and contribute.”

Clemson’s wide receivers from 2012. Six of them have gone on to play in the NFL. In the top row, No. 19 is Charone Peake (Jets), No. 18 is Jaron Brown (Seahawks), No. 2 is Sammy Watkins (Chiefs), No. 1 is Martavis Bryant (Raiders) and No. 6 is DeAndre Hopkins (Texans). Humphries is No. 16 in the bottom row. (Mark Cramer)

At the time, Humphries set the record for number of games played by a Clemson receiver (52). He caught 112 passes his final three seasons, also returning punts.

“He was dependable,” Hopkins said last fall. “You had Sammy and myself, but he was one of those guys who got slept on in the slot, and he made a lot of plays for us. He was consistent. He’d go back to catch a punt and might return it for a touchdown.

“It was about hard work, and he was a good route runner, studied hard. He knew every position, so if somebody went down, he could play that spot. It was hard to keep him off the field.”

During Humphries’ sophomore year, the Clemson staff even tried him at cornerback, just in case the team needed an emergency defensive back.

He had two tackles in 11 snaps at corner in a game at Wake Forest.

“You think about all the receivers we had there,” Morris said, “but there was no job too big or too small for Adam Humphries.”

Despite proving himself capable and versatile in helping Clemson ascend to the power it is now, Humphries’ phone didn’t ring during the 2015 draft. He did not get an undrafted rookie deal, either.

If his football career was to continue, it would come down to a rookie tryout. He had two invites:

ADAM HUMPHRIES

One was in Detroit, the other in Tampa. They coincided, so had to be forced to choose one.

His agents felt as if the situation with the Bucs might be a bit more suited for Humphries, so he flew to Tampa. And, yes, the invite did come with the return flight home already booked.

“They were expecting to send me home,” Humphries said. “I was like, ‘Well, OK, that’s cool.’ That just kind of added to a little chip on the shoulder. It’s fun proving people wrong.”

During the two-day tryout, a Bucs staffer came over and encouraged Humphries. It was Jon Robinson, then an assistant GM in Tampa.

“In my mind, I didn’t think I was doing very good at all,” Humphries said. “I didn’t know the plays. I guess I ran a couple of good routes, had some good one-on-ones.”

Following the rookie mini-camp, Tampa’s front office huddled. GM Jason Licht told the scouting staff to pick two of the tryout players for an extended look.

Humphries was one of them.

He went on to catch nine passes for 139 yards and a touchdown in the team’s preseason games, hauling in a touchdown in the final one, to earn a roster spot. He played in Tampa’s opener against the Titans, his debut coinciding with the first games for both Jameis Winston and Marcus Mariota.

He had two receptions against Tennessee, but was then held without the catch the following three weeks. The Bucs actually cut him at that point. He cleared waivers and was assigned to the practice squad.

Three weeks later, though, Humphries was promoted back to the active roster. After 25 catches in the final 10 games for Tampa, he never looked back.

With an evolving rapport with Winston, Humphries saw his production increase each of his four seasons with the Bucs.

ADAM HUMPHRIES IN THE NFL

YEAR	Targets YPC	Rec YPG	Yards TD
2015	40 9.6	27 20.0	260 1
2016	83 11.3	55 41.5	622 2
2017	83 10.3	61 39.4	631 1
2018	105 10.7	76 51.0	816 5

“He’s where he is because he became a master of the details,” Scott said. “It’s his commitment to doing the little things.”

He showed toughness, too. Last season, Humphries had 423 yards after the catch — 11th-most among NFL receivers.

“As his position coach, I could turn my back when he was in the game,” Scott said. “I could focus on coaching someone else and not watch the play because I knew he was going to do it exactly right. There’s been very few of those guys in that category. He graded out at like 97 percent on a consistent basis. That’s really who Adam was, and still is.”

Flourishing last season also allowed Humphries leverage in free agency. Teams were lining up to add his services.

He’d always liked Nashville and he recognized the Titans’ need for a proven slot receiver. That made Tennessee an instant contender for him.

Robinson was perhaps what separated the Titans most. After all, he was part of a front office that believed in Humphries when no one else did.

“The thing about free agency is the uncertainty of where you’re going,” Humphries said. “That can add to the pressure of your decisions. ‘They’re going to do this with you. They’re going to use you like this. You’re going to lead the NFL in third-down receptions.’”

“You hear all that from teams, but you don’t know the guys. You’ve never met them. You don’t know anything about them. So, knowing Jon and knowing that he knew exactly what I was capable of doing, being with me for a full season in Tampa, knowing how I approached every day of practice and game days, there was some comfort there.

“I knew I wasn’t going to a place where someone had watched my highlight tape and they think I can do whatever. (Robinson) knows everything about how I prepare and what I do and all that. That was definitely an extra, added level of comfort in making the decision.”

The Titans had one final test, though.

Humphries had agreed to come to Nashville when New England called. The Patriots — coming off their sixth Super Bowl win since 2001 — were making a push to add another slot receiver, a valued position in their storied run.

Gutshall had long joked around Dorman High that Humphries would be the NFL’s leading receiver if Tom Brady were throwing to him. But it wasn’t a joke any longer; it was a real possibility.

“Obviously, he’s the G.O.A.T. That’s that simple,” Humphries said of Brady. “But there’s so much that factors into a decision. It was a four-year deal. Who knows how many (years) he’s got left? There’s a lot that goes into it.

“Obviously the chance to play with him would have been awesome, but a lot of things factor into that decision. Ultimately, I thought this was coming here to a team that was on the rise and with young talent on the offense and a really good defense. They'd had a taste of the playoffs. I felt like my need at the slot position was great. I felt like I could really contribute and start something new here."

Still, Humphries admits it was a tricky day or two. He wanted to remain true to his commitment to Robinson. But, well, the Patriots are the Patriots. They'd made stars of once-overlooked slot guys such as Wes Welker (undrafted) and Julian Edelman (seventh-round pick).

"There were a ton of pros and not a lot of cons," Humphries said. "You have to look at both situations and a quality of life and where you're living, state taxes. A lot of things go into it when you're talking with your agents and families and stuff about it. At the end of the day, my heart wanted to be in Tennessee. I was happy to finally have that all over with and have a team I could commit to and try my best for them.

"I felt like my talents would be used best here. And New England was the same way. That would have worked, too, but at the end of the day, it was a good decision to come here."

His family being able to drive to home games in Tennessee was also a factor. It's a little more than five hours from Spartanburg to Nashville. The Humphries crew wasn't exactly going to be able to make weekend road trips to Massachusetts.

In the end, the decision was sort of like making — and sticking to — a commitment to a college.

"A little bit. You make a verbal commitment," Humphries said. "Everyone's excited for you. Parents are buying shirts online and all that. I already had my mind made up to come here. I felt like I had to honor my word.

"I didn't feel like I had to, I guess, but as a man, you want to honor what you believed in originally and stick to it. I'm glad I did."

It would only be natural if Humphries experienced self-doubt — or self-pity, at least — as he encountered roadblocks in trying to continue his football career in college and then the NFL.

Instead, he maintained an air of positivity amid what even he describes as "shitty situations."

"I always thought if I just had one more play, that meant I had a chance to make something happen," he said. "I thought maybe another school would come in and offer. Even as a tryout guy, I thought 'I've got two days to make the most of it.' I wasn't really worried at all. I had an opportunity, so I thought I might as well not hold back and make the most of it."

When no one expects anything from you, he said it has a way of actually minimizing pressure.

"The way I calculate it in my mind is there's nothing to lose," Humphries said. "I'm blessed to have a family that loves me and cares about me and friends who are the same way.

"I mean, if nothing worked out for me, I'd be fine. I'd go back home and be surrounded by people who support me. I could definitely make the most of it doing something else. ... I was going to do my best and that was all I could ask for."

For now, his football career continues to trend upward. The salary just made a huge jump, sure. But so did expectations.

"It's not a big deal," Humphries said. "I know where I came from, how I got here. Not going to change anything now."

Swinney said Humphries will always be one of his favorite recruiting stories — and the story's just getting better.

"So he goes from the little guy at Dorman High School that no one wanted to making, what, $9 or $10 million a year? Yeah, I'd say that's a pretty good story," Swinney said.

"It's kind of cool to see him earn his way to this place. That's what he's done. So many guys get somewhere based on potential. He's where he is based on performance."

ADAM HUMPHRIES

WR ADAM HUMPHRIES SEES PLENTY OF REASONS FOR OPTIMISM AS HE BEGINS SECOND SEASON WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 6, 2020

NASHVILLE – Plenty has changed since receiver Adam Humphries signed with the Titans last March.

Humphries, if you remember, picked the Titans over the Patriots in free agency. When he joined the Titans, Marcus Mariota was the team's quarterback, and Tom Brady was in New England.

Today, Ryan Tannehill is the quarterback of the future for the Titans. After stepping in for Mariota in Week 6, he guided the Titans into the AFC Championship, and earned himself a lucrative new contract in March. Mariota, meanwhile, is now in Las Vegas, and in a wild game of musical chairs, Brady is in Tampa Bay – Humphries' old team.

"Crazy, huh?," Humphries said.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Humphries is glad to be in Tennessee.

He's coming off a season that left him encouraged because of the chemistry he began building with Tannehill and the offense in 2019, in his first year with the team. An ankle injury halted his progress last fall, but it didn't sour his memory.

"Obviously coming into a new team, you're not sure what your role is going to be and how you are going to play a part in the team's success," Humphries said. "But slowly I started to feel comfortable in the offense, with the way (OC) Arthur (Smith) was calling plays, and what they expected of me day in and day out. And the consistency at quarterback with Tannehill, too – the communication with him was great.

"I am excited to continue to build on that communication and that relationship with him over the next few seasons. I am optimistic coming out of the season. Obviously, we had great team success, and personally I felt more comfortable in the offense as the season progressed."

After playing his first four NFL seasons with the Buccaneers, Humphries caught 37 passes for 374 yards and two touchdowns with the Titans in 2019.

Humphries had his best game of the season in Week 3, when he caught six passes for 93 yards against the Jaguars.

He made one of the biggest catches of the season – a 23-yard touchdown reception – in the closing moments of a come-from behind win over the Chiefs in Week 10.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Humphries put a string of games together in the middle of the season when he caught at least four passes in five games, but the ankle injury caused him to miss a six-game stretch, including two playoff games. Humphries returned for the AFC title game in Kansas City.

"It was unfortunate to have that (injury), but everything happens for a reason," Humphries said. "And now I am excited to build that relationship with Tannehill, and we have a great group of receivers, too."

Humphries, who reported to training camp at the end of last month, spent part of his offseason in Nashville, where he worked some with quarterback Logan Woodside and others. He also spent a good chunk of his time back in South Carolina, where he worked with his trainer on his speed, agility and strength training.

In his off time, he found golf courses. Humphries, who touts an 8.3 handicap, has a pretty nice game. He still agonizes over a near hole-in-one during a charity golf tournament in Charleston, S.C., a few years back.

"I was five inches away from the cup," Humphries said, "and the prize was $50,000. Now that would have been a fun story."

A fun story this fall for Humphries would be to build on last season -- and make an even bigger impact this fall.

Humphries, who played collegiately at Clemson, bought his own place in Nashville after sharing an apartment with two teammates all four years in Tampa. He's comfortable in the city, and on the team.

"It was a cool season to grow personally, and as a player," Humphries said. "I am excited to be a Nashville resident."

He's fired up about Tannehill being in town with him.

"I was super excited when we signed Ryan back, because I know the value of working with the same quarterback year after year," Humphries said. "Just building that camaraderie, that relationship, that trust with your quarterback and knowing if he needs an outlet he has a guy in me who can be that guy, or just a tight coverage throw, he'll trust me to make the play or A.J. (Brown) to make the play. You build that over time.

"So, bringing Ryan back, I was excited. He's been impressive in meetings and how quickly he has picked up on our offense. He has a really good grasp of it, so we can just continue to add things as we continue to go. I am excited to have him as our QB."

Overall, Humphries said he has high expectations for the Titans and the offense, especially at the receiver position, where he shares a room with Brown, Corey Davis, Kalif Raymond and others.

The group will be on the field for training camp practices next week.

Humphries is fired up about it.

ADAM HUMPHRIES

"I love our guys," Humphries said. "It's a competitive group from top to bottom, which is what you want. We all push each other, and we all expect greatness out of each other. A.J., obviously he had a great rookie season and we expect him to build on that and he has that hunger and he knows what it takes to be successful. And Corey is a guy who can do everything and has all the talent in the world."

"Those two guys, and all the guys in the room are just incredible competitors and fun guys to be around in the locker room. Overall, I am so excited about this season and what's ahead."

ADOREE' JACKSON

MUST-SEE TV: TITANS CB ADOREE' JACKSON HAS DESIGNS THAT GO BEYOND THE NFL

BY MIKE JONES
USA TODAY
SEPTEMBER 20, 2019

NASHVILLE — Perched atop the back of his white leather couch, Adoree' Jackson trains his gaze on his iPad. The Tennessee Titans' cornerback appears oblivious to all that swirls about him.

A small crew has transformed the living room of his condominium into a studio. Cameras, spotlights, lighting balance screens and audio recording equipment litter the area.

They're preparing to shoot a scene for the sizzle reel that Jackson and his business partner James Moore will pitch to HGTV for a television show that features the home redecoration projects of young professional athletes.

"OK, I think we're ready now," Moore says upon receiving the thumbs up from the crew.

But Jackson's focus remains on his iPad for another minute or two. Eventually, he hits pause on the game film of the Indianapolis Colts, who the Titans will face just two days later.

He then makes an effortless transition to the present.

Multitasking is nothing new for Jackson. He's always managed to juggle — whether it was football, basketball and track in high school while maintaining A's and B's, or playing on defense, offense and special teams and running track at Southern California while pursuing a major in mass communications and a minor in real estate.

Now the former first-round pick continues his balancing act in the NFL.

With two seasons of playing experience and steady improvements as a cornerback and a return man under his belt, and two offseasons' worth of internships at Warner Bros. to deepen his understanding of the TV industry, Jackson eyes a significant leap in both realms.

He wants to join the ranks of the NFL's elite defensive backs while helping the Titans reach the playoffs in Year 2 under Mike Vrabel. Jackson also aims to begin making his mark in the entertainment industry.

"Success isn't owned. It's rented, and the rent is due every day," Jackson told USA TODAY Sports, using a mantra passed along by Titans defensive backs coach Kerry Coombs. "That's true. No matter how successful you are, nobody is going to give it to you. They're not going to lay down. You've got to go take it."

Quiet determination

Nothing about Jackson is overstated — not his personality or style, his on-field persona or even his social media presence.

Those close to him describe him as quiet and laid back, smooth and humble.

From a young age, he has carried himself with a quiet determination.

When he was 3 and his mother, Vianca, brought home a VHS copy of "Space Jam," Jackson fell in love with basketball. He played it exclusively until he was 12. Then, realizing his son wasn't going to be very tall, Chris Jackson signed him up for football. The first time he ever touched the ball, Jackson scored on a long touchdown run.

"He scored and heard the way that crowd reacted, and he ain't put the ball down since," his father chuckled.

Jackson showed some potential at Belleville East High in Illinois, but following his freshman year, his family moved to Gardena, California, where over the next three years, Jackson continued to surprise both fans and foes, including former rival-turned-teammate JuJu Smith-Schuster.

"In high school, we were running track, and obviously, I was the anchor for my team, and Adoree' was the anchor for his team," the Steelers' wide receiver recounted in a telephone interview. "I had the lead and was winning by, like, 50 yards, and next thing you know, this guy comes up, catches me, smokes me, beats me really bad, and I'm like, 'Yo, who is this guy?'" Found out it was Adoree' Jackson, who was going to USC. We both went there, and every day, it was like, 'Wow, he is really the guy.'"

After helping USC win the Rose Bowl in the 2016 season, Smith-Schuster and Jackson entered the NFL draft together. Jackson was selected 18th overall by the Titans while Smith-Schuster went 62nd to Pittsburgh. In the offseasons, they return to California and team up for charity and youth outreaches.

Man with a plan

The Jacksons never wanted their son to be just an athlete.

Vianca was a phlebotomist for the health departments in Illinois and California, and Chris, as a senior mason, built bridges and highways across the Mississippi River.

One of 14 children, Chris knew all about sacrifice and hard work. He preached the same to his son daily, as did Vianca.

"I've been talking to him about college and what he was going to do with his life since he was in the third grade," Vianca said. "He would say 'Play sports, Ma.' Middle school, 'Play sports, Ma.' Then high school, I said, 'Now, you can play sports. But you need A, B, C, D, E, F, G — the whole alphabet to fall back on — because what if, God forbid, you get hurt? You need something that's going to take you to another level.' He said, 'Yes, Ma.'"

ADOREE' JACKSON

Jackson settled on a major in mass communications due to his love of sports. The real estate minor stemmed from an idea conceived as a child.

“Growing up, I stayed in a duplex, so I had a landlord,” Jackson said. “I never knew what they did for work, but I knew we paid them money, so I wanted to be in a position where I could have some land. And so that’s when I talked about getting my mom a house with some land next to it, so if they wanted to do something with it, and sell it or rent it out, they could do whatever they wanted because they had that land on the other side of it and have two spots. So, as a kid, thinking, ‘Man, how can I make money like that?’ and learning the development of stuff, what’s going to bang, what’s not, and that’s why I went to USC, because I knew it would connect me. ... I knew I could meet a lot of good people and that would open doors.”

Connections at USC led to Jackson’s relationship with Moore, who co-founded Kor Media Entertainment, a Los Angeles-based entertainment agency. The Warner Bros. internship also stemmed from Trojans ties.

“I think he had the plan the minute he knew he was coming out to Cali,” Moore said of Jackson. “He knew he was going to make that jump to the league, but as far as USC, he went there because of the relationships, and that move has paid off today. He’s very methodical and everything is thought out.”

Explaining his mind-set, Jackson said, “It’s about hustle, going and getting it. My dad taught me about the world. He didn’t sugarcoat it. It was explaining the real world and what’s out there and helped me understand that nothing’s going to be handed to me. I’ve got to go get it. Being athletic was cool, but being a people person took me a long way, so it’s just having those two different mentalities and going about my business.”

Pulling back the curtain

For his first home as a pro athlete, Jackson didn’t want a big house. For himself and his high school sweetheart, Veronica Parada, he settled on a two-bedroom, 2,000-square-foot luxury condo, which is housed on the fourth story of a renovated factory in the heart of Germantown, not far from Titans headquarters. The place has both a modern and rustic feel with exposed brick and marble, wood floors, floor-to-ceiling windows and a 1,000-square-foot wrap-around balcony.

The decor remains incomplete, but already there are signs of his creative and artistic mind. He’s proud of the white leather couch, inspired by the one that Tony Montana owned in "Scarface." He’s also fond of the white, shag carpet, which he had to have because he loved Frank Lucas’ in "American Gangster."

But otherwise, the place needs some more special touches. Why not pull back the curtain and take his fans along for the journey, he and Moore figured.

It’s not quite "MTV Cribs," as most of the athletes Jackson’s series will feature are on their first contracts and have to practice a degree of frugality. But the show’s design team will still help them find ways to outfit the homes in luxury while adhering to a budget, Moore says.

Jackson said the goal is “for athletes being able to express themselves. People just see us as athletes with our helmets on, but to see them more as a person and what they like, getting their first home and decorating and designing it, getting something for their parents ... just having that aspect for people to dive in deeper to them as a person.”

After longing for close interactions with his sports idols growing up, Jackson is always looking for ways to connect with fans. That’s why he communicates with them on social media platforms and obliges autograph requests. He paid for and spoke at the funeral of Jaylon McKenzie, an eighth-grade football player from St. Louis who was killed by a stray bullet, in May.

“Watching him, and working with him, seeing how he carries himself,” Moore said, “it gives me hope that there are some guys still out there that are going to carry on and do some things that are great for the next generation. That’s what drives him. Anything that he does, he’s thinking about who it impacts and who it can help.”

Making them proud

It’s 9:30 a.m. on game day when Jackson’s white, 2018 Mercedes-Benz S-Class pulls into the players lot at Nissan Stadium. He starts scanning for his father’s truck and soon spots it. The black GMC Sierra Denali 2500 is backed up to the far right corner of the lot, a giant black smoker on wheels hitched to the back of it. Smoke curls out of the double stacks that extend from the top of the converted oil tank.

Chris has been grilling, smoking meat and making his own barbecue sauces and rubs since 1984. He has smoked feasts for his son following every home game dating back to Adoree's Pop Warner days.

Now, Chris makes the four-hour drive from his home in Belleville to Nashville, smoker in tow, to tailgate with fans and feed his son and other Titans players after games.

Upon seeing his mother in the passenger seat, Jackson goes over for a hug and a kiss. She hands him a container full of homemade brownies and a birthday card because Sept. 18 is just days away. Chris takes a break from the smoker to hand his son a jar of sauce and canned pickles.

The pork chops, ribs, chicken wings, jerk chicken legs, turkey wings and turkey ribs already smell amazing, but they won’t be done until after the game.

Jackson brags on his dad’s cooking, then heads into the stadium where he will turn his attention to his most important business venture while fueled by his greatest source of motivation.

“When I moved from East Illinois to California, my whole mind-set was I didn’t want to let my family down. I had that fear. I wanted to always do well and excel,” Jackson said. “I think that’s how I was able to balance everything. I think I knew if my mom saw something bad about me in the news, it’s only going to make her sad and hurt her. But if she sees something good about me, then it’ll make them proud. So wanting to see my parents proud of me always motivated me and that fear of making them sad about something I wasn’t going to be always drove me.”

ADOREE' JACKSON EMBRACES POSSIBILITY OF NEW ROLE FOR TITANS

*BY TURRON DAVENPORT

JUNE 4, 2020*

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Entering his fourth season, Tennessee Titans defensive back Adoree' Jackson could assume a different role in the secondary, which will likely involve extensive snaps as the nickel. New defensive backs coach Anthony Midget said the coaching staff expects great things from Jackson, who was drafted No. 18 overall in 2017.

Jackson used to return punts, but his special-teams snaps fell to just 12 in 2019 while logging 537 snaps in 11 regular-season games on defense -- primarily at left cornerback. He doesn't know if he will be asked to be the primary nickelback when the Titans eventually report for training camp, but he embraces the chance to expand his game. He is preparing for the additional set of responsibilities that would come with that role by asking questions during virtual meetings.

Where Adoree' Jackson Played In 2019

	SNAPS	PCT OF SNAPS
CB wide left	405	75%
CB wide right	45	9%
CB slot left	38	7%
CB slot right	16	3%
All others<<	33	6%

>>Combination of safety & LB positions

"Being able to go in these virtual meetings and listen in and see the picture, and the virtual classroom and things that we do is good to help get a better understanding and knowledge of the role and position just in case I'm needed," Jackson said via a virtual news conference last week.

"If I'm going to be playing more inside at nickel, and the difference is it's more about being more aware of your surroundings for what the safeties may have, or the linebackers and everything, because you all play on one accord. When you're playing corner you pretty much have to worry about yourself in those aspects, and playing the nickel is a lot of different assignments and alignments and techniques that come into play."

Jackson's speed and versatility make him a prime candidate to match up against the NFL's top receivers. Teams move their top pass-catchers around within the formation, including in the slot, to create favorable situations.

"I think a lot of times teams are looking at matchups and they're putting their No. 1 guy in the slot for a big percentage of the game," safety Kenny Vaccaro said. "Somebody like Michael Thomas will go to the slot sometimes. Davante Adams, you'll see him in the slot. You see guys try to take advantage of that matchup."

Throughout the 2020 season, Jackson might be asked to travel with a variety of receivers, including Adams, T.Y. Hilton from the Indianapolis Colts, Buffalo Bills WR Stefon Diggs, and Odell Beckham Jr. of the Cleveland Browns. At 5-foot-11, 185 pounds, Jackson has a low base, allowing him to change direction with ease to stay with crafty route runners. His leaping ability and ball skills make him able to defend against bigger wide receivers.

Titans GM Jon Robinson complimented Jackson's ability to "match quickness and ability to mirror," which is critical when working in the slot against quicker receivers who can employ their shiftiness to get open.

Gone are the days where only shorter, quicker receivers played in the slot. While players such as Julian Edelman are still impactful, offensive coordinators have started to put bigger, more physical receivers inside to create a size advantage over smaller cornerbacks who traditionally play there.

"There's always going to be changes in the game. You might see a smaller, faster guy outside, and a bigger guy inside with what they might like matchup-wise," Jackson said. "It depends on what team you're playing. You go against Atlanta, you might see Julio [Jones] in the slot. You go against Kansas City, you see Tyreek [Hill], he may be outside or he may be inside. So, it just all has to do with what the coaches are looking for and what they use their guys for."

There's more to playing nickel than just coverage. Logan Ryan, the Titans' primary nickel corner last season, was asked to help out in run support, blitz the quarterback and more.

"That nickel guy has to be able to cover, he has to be able to blitz, he has to be able to fit in the run game, he has to be smart and he has to be able to do multiple things," Midget said. "So, it's not just a guy that you put in the slot just to cover a guy. He has to be a guy that can go in there and mix it up versus the run and the pass, and handle everything we'll give to that position mentally."

The Titans showed their confidence in Jackson by picking up his fifth-year option for the 2021 season, which included a $10.2 million price tag. Jackson didn't make an interception last season, but he played well down the stretch, including five passes defended in Tennessee's two playoff wins.

Despite not having OTAs due to the COVID-19 epidemic, Jackson vowed to find a way to get better every day. The expectations and potential for a player with Jackson's talent are extremely high, but his teammates believe he's up for the challenge.

"I know Adoree'. I know he's motivated," Vaccaro said. "He loves football, he cares. I love playing with him, I love playing next to him. He's a really smart player. I know he's smart enough to do it. I know the nickel position takes a lot of football IQ, a lot of intelligence, and I know he has that. It's on the coaches, whether they want to do that with him."

REXRODE: TITANS
ROOKIE CHRIS JACKSON
HAD TO BE TOUGHER THAN ANY KID SHOULD

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 16, 2020

Editor's note: This is the sixth in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. Stories on Isaiah Wilson, Kristian Fulton, Darrynton Evans, Larrell Murchison and Cole McDonald were published earlier this week.

Time stretches and contracts, a trait clearer to all in a global pandemic, and it can blur memories — altering, eliminating and even exaggerating details of a moment.

Some remain vivid. Ira Reynolds says he can still see the play that made him realize he had something special in the Tennessee Titans' most recent draft pick. Chris Jackson was a freshman at FAMU Developmental Research School in Tallahassee, Fla., and a small one at that, maybe 100 pounds. But he was fast and hungry and persistent — “it was yap yap yap like a little dog at your ankles until you finally say, ‘OK fine,’” Reynolds said — and the coach got him on the field in a varsity game to serve as a decoy on a play that was supposed to go to the running back on a wheel route.

Reynolds can see Jackson carrying out his downfield route. He can see his quarterback, for some reason, lofting a pass to Jackson. He can see the linebacker and safety converging on Jackson and combining on the type of hit that might convince a 100-pound ninth-grader to try debate team.

“Out cold,” Reynolds said of Jackson, lying on the field after the hit. “But he didn't drop the ball. And then when he came to, he was begging to go back out there.”

This set the stage for Jackson to become a standout receiver and safety at FAMU-DRS, a leader with enough confidence to tell the waitstaff at a restaurant during a team dinner that it was Reynolds' birthday so they would sing to him (they did, but it wasn't). He would go on to graduate early and choose Marshall over suitors such as Kent State and Troy, though Ivy League schools also inquired because of his near-perfect academic record. He had no interest from hometown Florida State and that ilk. Jackson started four years at cornerback for the Thundering Herd, setting the school record for pass break-ups (45) and getting his 5-foot-10, 193-pound self drafted in the seventh round by the Titans. Plenty of guys from Florida State and that ilk did not go in any round. And now Jackson is a 22-year-old pro with a criminal justice degree and corner/safety versatility that Titans coach Mike Vrabel said made drafting him an “easy” choice.

Jackson has a chance to make an NFL team, just eight years after that first, stinging taste of varsity football. Which came just two years after the completion — the legal completion anyway — of a tragic journey no one should have to experience and no one would want to remember.

That's what Jackson was asked to do in a Tallahassee courtroom at 12 years old. He was asked to recount the details of the murder of his mother, as her killer sat a few feet away from him.

“I got probably three minutes in,” Jackson said. “And then I just broke down and couldn't do it anymore.”

He can do it now. He has done it many times since. It became a motivational staple inside the Marshall program. The story of Chris Jackson is also the story of figuring out what to take and what to leave behind from the life and death of Tanesha Overstreet.

Reynolds coached Dwayne Jackson at FAMU-DRS, too. He was a similar kind of player. Aggressive, smart, fast and undersized. Dwayne was set to play for Florida A&M in college. A blown knee, which meant a lot more in the early 1990s than it does today, ended that. Dwayne moved to Minneapolis for a job and met Tanesha, who grew up in Chicago but moved with her family as a teenager and graduated early from Minneapolis North Community High. They welcomed Chris to the world on April 13, 1998, moved to Chicago to be near her family, then to Tallahassee to be near his. Soon, much of her family joined them.

“Everybody thinks their family is the loudest but no — my family was the loudest,” said Jessica Overstreet, Tanesha's younger sister. “And Tanesha was the leader of the family. She was so giving. She had three younger siblings living with her in their house, and my mom, and she loved it. I was like, ‘Don't you want some privacy?’ Nope. She was happiest around her family.”

Tanesha never got to college as she had planned, but she pushed Jessica to keep going after high school graduation.

“She said, ‘The sky's the limit, now you've got to go to college,’” said Jessica, who graduated from Florida A&M and is now a school social worker in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. “I'll never forget that. It was like she was living through our accomplishments. She called me her pumpkin.”

Chris remembers his mother as a combination of tough and fun. She was the one who first put him in football. Sitting around at home wasn't an option. Doing the dishes and other chores was expected, as was eating healthy. Chris hated eggs, so Tanesha bargained with him: Eat your eggs every day and you get a dollar. Pretty soon he had enough for a dirt bike.

“Work for everything you get, that was a big thing with my mom,” Chris said. “And tell the truth. I always told her the truth.”

Dwayne took Chris fishing often on the Ochlockonee River, and that remains a passion for Chris, who wants to be a game warden when football ends. But Dwayne's presence was spotty. Chris said he was “in and out of jail” during his childhood for “drug-related offenses.” After the Titans drafted Chris, Dwayne called him from jail. They talk almost every day, Chris said, and Dwayne is supposed to be out in June. As a kid, Chris had another father figure in Terrell Thomas, Tanesha’s long-term boyfriend after she and Dwayne broke up. Tanesha and Terrell had a daughter on the way in the summer of 2008.

CHRIS JACKSON

Tanesha, Chris and Jessica went to a routine baby check-up on Aug. 14, 2008, but doctors told Tanesha she would need an emergency cesarean section because there wasn’t enough fluid around the baby. She was not due for a couple of more months. She ended up delivering vaginally, and 2-pound Taylor Thomas ended up fully healthy and crying with a strong voice upon arrival. She still needed time in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

Two days later, Tanesha came home against doctor’s orders. Taylor remained in the hospital. Early in the morning of Aug. 17, 2008, Chris was asleep in the back bedroom of their house along with Terrell’s 16-year-old son, Breon, and his 12-year-old cousin Richard Footman. Terrell was not in the house. The children were awakened by yelling. They heard Tanesha sobbing and begging for her life, telling a male intruder that she had just given birth to a child. They heard him demanding her to give him whatever she had. They backed away from the cracked bedroom door and pretended to be sleeping as the intruder came down the hall and closed the door.

They heard the explosion of a 12-gauge shotgun. They heard the water in the kitchen sink turn on as the 35-year-old intruder, William Yawn, washed his hands. They heard a door open and close. They ran out to Tanesha, bleeding on the ground and fighting for breath. Breon called 911. Chris grabbed Tanesha’s hand.

“I think she was trying to tell him that she loved him,” Footman testified two years later in Yawn’s trial, according to WCTV-TV. “But she kind of like couldn’t get it all out.”

Jessica Overstreet didn’t really grieve her sister until a couple of years ago, she said. She has a family of her own, a job she loves working with at-risk kids at Fort Lauderdale’s Rock Island Elementary School. And for years the focus was on getting Chris through the trauma.

“Can you imagine a 10-year-old boy at a funeral walking up to a casket and trying to wake his mother up?” Jessica said. “Like she was sleeping. It was a lot. You talk about strength and resilience, he had to have so much of it.”

Chris’ maternal grandmother, Renee Jones-Johnson, was originally supposed to take him in, but her anguish was too intense in the wake of her daughter’s death. He moved in with his paternal grandmother, Delores Madison, and that’s where he continues to live until he gets the all-clear to move to Nashville.

“When you find a kid who supersedes challenges like that, who goes through that and comes out a tremendous student, a tremendous kid, you’ve got the right dude,” said Chuck Heater, who recruited Chris at the time as the defensive coordinator at Marshall. “And the bottom line is, his grandmother is just a sensational person.”

She did not do it alone.

“I spent months and months doing nothing, just crying every day,” Chris said. “I went a whole year without going to school. But my grandmothers, Auntie Jessica, Auntie Caprice, it was like they all jelled together to become my mom.”

Jessica would take Chris and Taylor each weekend, so the siblings could have time with each other as well. Running water was a trigger for Chris then, causing him to “have an emotional breakdown or get really angry,” he said. He could not get the sound of the water Yawn left running in his house out of his head. When he needed to shower at Jessica’s house, she would sit on the toilet and talk him through it.

She would tell stories of Tanesha, too. By the time Taylor was old enough to understand, Chris was stronger, back in school, playing football and basketball, singing in the church choir.

“My sister’s kind of like my favorite person in the world,” Chris said of Taylor, who is coming up on her 12th birthday. “She didn’t get to experience my mother, but we tell her stories, show her pictures. And then growing up not living together, I couldn’t see her all the time like a normal family would. So I’ve spoiled her whenever I could to make up for it.”

And he has reached the point where he can remember what he loved about his mother and talk about her death without reliving the trauma. He told the story at Marshall more than once during team-building exercises, and he became the example coaches would use when trying to motivate others. Not that this is as simple as another “athlete overcomes adversity” story. Not that this has been easy or free of setbacks.

Chris had a significant one when he had to testify more than two years after the murder at the trial of Yawn, an admitted drug addict who said he broke into the house that night looking for cocaine. Jessica spoke on behalf of the family on the day of Yawn’s sentencing. Chris was not in the courtroom that day to hear him receive three life sentences in prison.

“I honestly don’t even remember what I thought about that at the time,” Chris said. “I kind of just don’t think about him.”

BEN JONES

TITANS, FORMER BIBB COUNTY PLAYER HOLDING FREE FOOTBALL CAMP

*BY EDWIN STANTON TUSCALOOSA NEWS
MAY 30, 2019*

Ben Jones knows what it's like to have support.

The Tennessee Titans center had an entire community come to his aid when he was a kid growing up in Centreville.

When Jones was 10 years old, his dad died in a helicopter crash. His mom was always a big part of his life, but losing his dad at such a young age was tough. Fortunately, Jones had a support system of extended family and friends in the community to help him.

"Where I am today, I wouldn't be here if it wasn't for my hometown and my whole community," Jones said.

It's a big reason that Jones is heavily involved in charity work. On June 7 at Bibb County High School, Jones and a few of his NFL and college football friends will conduct a free football camp for kids 8-14. The camp is supported through a grant from the NFL Foundation.

"I'm trying to give back to my hometown an opportunity for kids who don't usually get a chance to attend football camp and be around guys who played in college," Jones said. "I'm also bringing some guys from the Titans with me."

Jones has been a part of several other charitable deeds during his time in Nashville, including the Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot, which benefitted programs that deal with at-risk kids.

"We have a fund in Nashville and we've given around 400 thousand over past three years combined," Jones said. "It helps with after-school programs, mentor programs, sending kids to camps, grief counseling. We want to give them the next step in life that not everyone is able to help them with. So if we can help them in any way that's been our mission."

Jones plans on bringing Titans teammates Ryan Succop (kicker), David Quessenberry (OL), Beau Brinkley (LS) and a few more. Also, Jones' former Bibb County teammate and former NFL player Zac Stacy will attend, as will former Alabama football player Brad Smelley.

Jones grew up just a short drive from Tuscaloosa, but chose the University of Georgia over Alabama. He was a four-year starter with the Bulldogs and was drafted in the fourth round by the Houston Texans in 2012, where he played left guard before moving to center in 2015. He was traded to the Titans in 2016 and has started every game.

The Titans missed the playoffs last season but Jones has reason to be confident for the 2019 season.

"Last year we had a new head coach (Mike Vrabel) and we were trying to learn a new offense and a new defense and we actually had a pretty good year," Jones said. "Now we are trying to take the next step and go from good to great.

"Every game comes down to a couple of plays and we are trying to find those details so that we know the ins and outs of the offense and defense. So when it comes down to those couple of plays we are able to execute and make the playoffs. That's the mission – just get in. Anything can happen after that."

A big piece of the Titans' offense is running back Derrick Henry, the 2015 Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Alabama. The former Crimson Tide back had a career night during a game last season against the Jacksonville Jaguars, rushing for 238 yards with four touchdowns, including an NFL record-tying 99-yard run.

"Derrick is one of my closest friends. We talk just about every day, even during the offseason," Jones said. "He's the first guy to come in and say 'Roll Dawgs' every day because he was committed to Georgia for a while. But he bleeds crimson through and through. We have that relationship that we want each other to do well. When it comes down to that last game of the year we just say anything that week.

"He's a heck of a guy, tough player, good team guy. If you have a guy like that you can really lay it on. It wears a defense out and as an offensive line we really love blocking for a guy like that."

It was the Crimson Tide that handed Jones' alma mater two of the most devastating losses in the program's history – last year's SEC title game and the 2017 national championship game. Fortunately for Jones, he didn't have to witness the defeat in Atlanta.

"Last year, I missed the game because of meetings," Jones said. "I went into meetings and we were up like 20-7, and I got out and we had lost the game, so I was like, 'Oh my goodness.'"

"I'm happy they turned it around and hopefully they can take the next step."

BEN JONES

BEN JONES NAMED TITANS WALTER PAYTON MAN OF THE YEAR NOMINEE

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
DECEMBER 12, 2019

NASHVILLE – When Titans center Ben Jones entered the NFL with the Texans back in 2012, he worked to establish himself on the football field with veteran players around him.

Jones was also paying attention to his teammates off the field. And he saw how involved many of them were in the Houston community, from Matt Schaub to Owen Daniels to Chris Myers.

“I wanted to be able to raise a family like them,” Jones said, “and I wanted to do something to help others with the platform that we have – those guys really opened my eyes.”

After spending his first four NFL seasons with the Texans, Jones arrived in Tennessee in 2016, and he got to work. And in 2017, Jones and his wife, Alex, established The Jones Mission to provide at-risk youth with opportunities they might otherwise not have through grants, additional resources and educational opportunities.

In the past three years, Jones has made a big difference – and his work hasn’t gone unnoticed.

Jones is the 2019 Titans recipient of the Walter Payton Man of the Year award.

Jones is now a finalist for the league-wide 2019 Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award that will be awarded during the upcoming Super Bowl week. This prestigious NFL award has been in existence since 1970 and it honors players who demonstrate outstanding balance in their lives between civic and professional responsibilities. In 1999, the NFL renamed the award after the late Walter Payton as a tribute to his greatness, both on and off the field.

“It is something that is definitely appreciated,” Jones said of the award. “But the reason you give back is to help people out and to see the impact you can make on kids, and to see the joy you bring them when you take them to games, bring them to practices, and you are able to help their facilities. It means a lot. I get so much joy by seeing how happy they are and how much they benefit from all the guys on our team that are caring and supporting our foundation.”

During each of the past three offseasons, Jones and his wife have hosted the annual Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot, a skeet shooting tournament, to raise money for local youth-serving non-profit organizations. The three events combined have raised more than $400,000 benefitting The Jones Mission Fund.

Through The Jones Mission Fund, Jones said they’ve been able to serve more kids each year in after-school programs. As a result of the 2019 clay shoot, The Jones Mission was able to donate $40,000 to Endure Athletics and $45,000 to Preston Taylor Ministries. With their grant, Preston Taylor Ministries was able to open a new location for after school programs.

“We’ve done counselors for homeless kids who are in after-school programs,” Jones said. “We’ve done things with the church to bring kids and their mentor to a Titans game. If it’s from an after-school program, if it’s sending them to camps, if it’s bringing them to football games, if it’s getting them the skill they need outside, a tutor.

“The more time they are able to be around positive role models and getting to have an experience and knowing they can get out of where they are. I want to give kids something to look forward to. I just want to give kids a chance. We’re just trying to give a kid that needs a little extra help a shot.”

Here’s a deeper look at Jones, and his work in the community:

- Ben’s childhood adversity – his father was killed in a helicopter crash just a few months after his 10th birthday – planted the seeds of a strong and still-growing passion for helping kids in need, and he strives daily to be a role model and show children experiencing hardship that anything is possible through hard work, determination, and prayer.

- Renovations to the Nashville Ronald McDonald House kitchen and dining room were completed this summer, courtesy of a $88,000 grant from the 2017 clay shoot. The 2017 event also allowed Ben and Alex to expand and remodel the computer lab at Youth Encouragement Services. The computer lab was also unveiled over the summer.

- In 2018, the event raised $33,000 for Endure Athletics, $22,000 for Backfield in Motion and $33,000 for Alive Hospice.

- Every year, Ben sponsors a trip to a Titans game for the seniors on the football team at his high school (Bibb County HS) in Centreville, Alabama. The experience includes round-trip transportation from his hometown, tickets, a private tailgate, swag bags plus a meet-and-greet with Ben and tour of the Titans practice facility after the game.

- Ben also hosts a “Friday Night Lights” free youth football camp in Centreville every June for kids ages 8 through 14.

- The Jones Mission is also very active during the holidays as Ben sponsors Christmas shopping events for families in his hometown in Alabama and locally in Nashville.

- In addition to his work with his own Foundation, Ben is also actively involved in team-organized community events and programs, appearing on behalf of the team at local schools, hospitals, fundraising events, 5K races and more.

Jones credited all the sponsors, and everyone who has supported his events over the years.

And he gave thanks to his wife, Alex.

“She backs it all up,” Jones said. “She is the busy bee behind everything, checking every box and making sure it flows right. It wouldn’t get done if it wasn’t for her.”

All 32 nominees will receive a donation of up to $50,000 in their name to their charity of choice. The winner of the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year award will receive a $250,000 donation to the charity of their choice. All donations are courtesy of the NFL Foundation and Nationwide.

As a nominee, Jones will wear a Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year helmet decal through the end of the season in recognition of his accomplishments on and off the field.

Jones said because the Titans organization, and locker room, has such a giving culture, it makes the award special for everyone. Titans defensive lineman Jurrell Casey’s was the team’s Walter Payton Man of the Year recipient in 2016 and 2018. Titans linebacker Wesley Woodyard was the team’s recipient in 2017.

“We have multiple guys that are coming to my event, going to other events. It is a family, and you want to support each other,” Jones said. “Logan (Ryan) is always there, Jurrell is always there, Delanie (Walker) is always there. So many guys are always there to support me, and we support each other.

“All those guys are just as worthy as me, and they have foundations and are doing everything they can, putting in the extra hours to help the community as well. So many guys are just as worthy. Really, all of us just want to do our part to help and make a difference in the lives of others.”

DaQUAN JONES

Q FACTOR: TITANS D-LINEMAN DAQUAN JONES BUILT FOR MORE SUCCESS IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 10, 2020

NASHVILLE – DaQuan Jones has seen plenty of change during his NFL career.

A fourth-round pick in the 2014 NFL Draft, the big defensive lineman has played under three head coaches and three defensive coordinators in Tennessee, and he's seen a lot of Titans teammates come and go inside the locker room. Jones has played on teams that finished 2-14 and 3-13, and he's played on four straight 9-7 teams, in five playoff games, and in an AFC Championship Game.

He's the longest tenured Titan on defense.

Through it all, Jones has put his head down, and worked. He's been one of the team's most under-the-radar players, while also being among the most dependable.

So, it's no surprise Jones thrived during an NFL offseason rocked by the coronavirus. With facilities across the NFL closed to players, Jones took it upon himself to get ready for the 2020 season.

The result:

"I think I had one of my better offseasons this year," Jones said on Friday. "I feel very ready, just did a lot of different type of training, cross-fit training. I feel ready to go."

When the 2019 season ended, Jones couldn't have predicted how this offseason would play out.

Instead of working with the team's strength and conditioning coach and staff, he began using his wife's trainer, Kevin Andres of K Squared Fitness, when he'd come by the house to work with his wife. Katie Andres, a certified nutrition coach and health/ fitness guru, also came by to work with Jones and his wife, Alexis.

The 6-foot-4, 322-pounder changed his training approach as a result, adding a lot of high-intensity cardio with his work lifting weights.

"I decided to one day take part and I kind of fell in love with it," Jones said. "(Kevin) does a lot of HIIT training and cross-fit type stuff and ... it really helped transform my body going into the season. Big shout out to Kevin for doing that for me."

In 2020, Jones wants to keep doing his part to help the Titans on defense.

In 2019, Jones started all 16 games for the fourth time in his career, and for the second consecutive season. He achieved career highs with 21 quarterback pressures and three passes defensed while also posting 50 tackles, and one tackle for a loss. According to Pro Football Focus, Jones also played in 799 snaps without being called for a penalty.

"(I want to be) dependable and making sure I can be accounted for by my teammates," he said.

In 2018, Jones started 16 games and racked up 39 tackles with 14 quarterback pressures and a career-high four tackles for a loss. His 2017 season was cut short because of a bicep injury, which ended his streak of 45 consecutive starts. Jones had a career-high 3.5 sacks before the Dec. 4 injury.

On a defensive line that featured five-time Pro Bowler Jurrell Casey, oftentimes Jones was shorted praise for his efforts, even though coaches and teammates sure appreciated his contributions. In 2018, Jones was rewarded with a contract extension that's now set to expire after the 2020 season.

With the addition of first-round pick Jeffery Simmons in last year's draft, Jones has already found himself among those answering questions about the potential of the 19th overall pick. It's all good with Jones, because the two are good friends. In fact, Simmons joined Jones for some of those in-house workouts this offseason.

Jones said he wants to help Simmons achieve greatness.

"I mean, I thought we all got a glimpse of that last year when he came in and wrecked shop," Jones said of Simmons. "I'm just excited for him to come out there fully healthy and do what he does best, be a big, dominant player."

"With Big Jeff, (I) like just helping him in any way I can. ... So just taking on more of a leadership role and helping the young guys learn."

Jones, of course, plans to wreak some havoc himself, alongside his teammates.

He said he's also happy to be on a contender, knowing he was a part of the culture change in Tennessee. He made it clear he'd like to stick around for years to come.

"I just come to work every day, put my head down and plow away," he said. "Really, that's all I do. It's crazy to think that I'm the only guy here from even when we went 2-14. It's a blessing at the end of the day, but I'm a guy that comes in with my head down to work. I'm just thankful."

"It's way different (than my early year here). I mean, the vibe in here is crazy. I know how it feels to go through a 2-14 season. It's not fun, at all. I mean, the joy is not in it. ... So for me to ... be on a team like this is a blessing."

VETERAN CB
JOHNATHAN JOSEPH
READY TO MAKE HIS MARK WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – Veteran cornerback Johnathan Joseph was a first-round pick in the 2006 NFL Draft – the same year the Titans picked quarterback Vince Young.

It's also the same year Isaiah Wilson, the team's first-round pick this year, turned seven years old.

So yeah, it's been a while.

Yet Joseph is still playing – after signing with the Titans earlier this month, he's set to begin his 15th NFL season.

And he's motivated to prove he can still perform at a high level, while showing the younger guys the way.

"I think (it's) just a love of the game," Joseph said. "Obviously, we drafted some guys, and I think it's my job to show those guys the ropes. Fifteen years ago I was a first-round pick, sitting in a lot of those guys' shoes, a rookie, not understanding the playbook, just catching up with the day-to-day life of the NFL, and just the rigors of the schedule compared to being in college. Just having that part, I'm able to help those guys along the way. Anything that can help those guys play better I'm here for."

But make no mistake, Joseph was added to the roster to make an impact on the field, something he's done during the course of his career.

The 36-year-old Joseph, most recently with the Texans, was drafted in 2006 by the Bengals. He played from 2006-2010 with the Bengals before joining the Texans, where he's played the past nine seasons.

Joseph ranks fourth among active NFL players for career interceptions

(31) and leads all active NFL cornerbacks in career tackles (750). Joseph also leads all NFL players over the last 20 seasons for passes defended (194) and can become the first NFL player to reach 200 passes defended since the statistic became tracked (2000).

In Tennessee, he joins a secondary that includes veteran cornerbacks Malcolm Butler and Adorree' Jackson, along with second-round pick Kristian Fulton from LSU. The Titans also have cornerbacks Tye Smith, Chris Milton, Kenneth Durden, and Kareem Orr in the fold. Veteran Logan Ryan won't return.

"(My role) is to kind of fit in where need be," Joseph said. "But at the same time, just be myself. I'm not coming in here to look to replace anybody, or do anything, or be the savior, or none of that. I'm just coming in here to do whatever my job is, whatever my role is, do that to the utmost. I think, obviously, Logan (Ryan) was a great player for those guys. I don't want to get into comparisons. When I see somewhere that I need to speak up, or give some input, or help guys here or there, that will always be me at any point of my life. So, I think that's just natural for me. Any time I'm there to give information back and be helpful it's only right."

Joseph has familiarity with the city of Nashville, and the coaching staff with the Titans.

His wife, Delaina, attended Hillsboro High School and then Tennessee State University. The couple ended up meeting in Cincinnati, during his rookie season.

While in Houston, Joseph played under Titans head coach Mike Vrabel and secondary coach Anthony Midget, who joined the Titans earlier this offseason after coaching with the Texans.

"I think both of those guys have the same mentality and want to play winning football and bring that mentality each and every day to the classroom and the football field, obviously," Joseph said of Midget and Vrabel.

"I think just having a history with him, knowing his mentality, knowing his expectations," Joseph continued when speaking of Vrabel. "Obviously, been playing against the Titans in the division. I know what they bring as a football team, they made a great push last year and have a lot of great players on this team. I think he's doing a great job of managing that. That's his biggest skillset, I think, that I remember about him. Being around him, the way that he manages guys. But at the same time, he has a high expectation level for you to do your job at the highest level, and be a professional at all times, and I think that's what's great about him and I think that's what makes him a great coach."

With the Titans, Joseph is ready to make his mark.

The 5-foot-11, 186-pounder has been named to two Pro Bowls in his career – in 2011 and 2012. He's been a consistent starter and performer during his 14-year NFL career, and has 31 career interceptions, 754 tackles, 195 passes defended, seven forced fumbles, and five fumble recoveries to show for it. He has scored eight touchdowns in his career.

Joseph played in 14 games for the Texans in 2019, when he racked up 51 tackles while also recording an interception.

His work preparing for 2020 has already started.

"This league is always about getting young. I think you have to do more the older you get, some people think it's the opposite way, but I think it's the more you do, you have to stay ahead of the curve," he said. "I think just being able to go out and just compete with the younger guys, whether it's in your training session, your preparation, whatever it may be. Just always having that mentality. Any time you have a chance to be out there and wear the

JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

NFL shield it's a privilege, don't take it for granted.

"I take a lot of pride in (still being able to play at a high level) just because it's a blessing. At the same time, anything at this point in this stage in my career is not a given. You have to work for it and still go out and put in the work, and I enjoy it. That's the best part about football is the grind. When you get out there and play in the games on Sunday and all that, that's fun."

MANIC MONDAY: FUN- LOVING DEFENSIVE BACK JOSHUA KALU A POPULAR GUY AFTER FIELD GOAL BLOCK SAVES TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
NOVEMBER 11, 2019

NASHVILLE – Joshua Kalu has done some pretty special things in his life, but what happened on Sunday was a game-changer in more ways than one.

Kalu's blocked field goal on the final play of the game preserved the Titans' 35-32 victory over the Chiefs, and it caused his phone to blow up, too.

"Everybody is still texting me, calling me," a smiling Kalu said on Monday. "This is probably the biggest reaction that I have gotten for anything in life – birthdays, graduation, you name it. I guess the game went nationwide so people and friends from New York to California to Miami have reached out. I have some people I know from London who have hit me up, congratulating me. It is an amazing feeling.

"My Instagram followers went up, the Twitter followers and messages are booming," Kalu said. "I am just glad we got the win and I'm glad I was able to do my part."

Just another Manic Monday, right?

Kalu, in his second season with the Titans after signing as an undrafted free agent last May, sprinted off the edge from the left side to get his left hand on a 52-yard field goal try by Chiefs kicker Harrison Butker, a play that ended the game, and sparked a wild celebration.

Kalu ran around after blocking the kick, before eventually being swarmed by teammates, and head coach Mike Vrabel.

From the hundreds of people who've contacted him since

Sunday's game, Kalu said the one that might've meant the most came from his Pop Warner coach back home in Texas. Kalu's relationship with his first football coaches dates back to when he was in fifth grade.

Titans teammates said they're genuinely happy for Kalu, a defensive back who is popular in the locker room.

"He is happy every day," teammate Logan Ryan said of Kalu, a colorful dresser with a colorful personality. "He has a good spirit about him. Kalu, he's the class clown of the group. He keeps it light. I think me and (Kevin Byard) can be pretty serious a lot of times and demanding as leaders in the DB room, but I think you need a Josh Kalu, a class clown to keep it light. That's who he is every day --he is always smiling, making jokes. He knows when to work, but he keeps it light all the time."

Kalu, who played collegiately at Nebraska, played five games for the Titans in 2018, and he'd suited up just once this season before Sunday's game. Kalu spent the first half of the season on Injured Reserve. He's played primarily on special teams in the NFL, but he played in the defense on at least one play on Sunday.

Byard agreed Kalu is a jokester, but he also pointed to his work ethic. Kalu is also known for being heavily involved in the community back home in Texas, and also in Lincoln, Nebraska. Kalu was named to the Brook Berringer Citizenship Team and the Tom Osborne Citizenship Team as a sophomore, junior and senior while at Nebraska, where he played in 48 games and tallied 215 tackles, two sacks and seven interceptions in his collegiate career.

When Kalu joined the Titans last May, Byard said it didn't take him long to make his presence felt with his jokes and light-hearted disposition. In fact, they had to check the young buck.

"It's funny, when Kalu got here last year he was always making jokes and we kind of had to remind him, 'Hey, you're a rookie! You're a rookie!'," Byard said with a smile. "He actually tried to break down the group one day in training camp last year and I kind of shot him down, 'Hey, you're a rookie. You don't get that.' But he walks around with that confidence, and that attitude that he wants to be great, and wants to do great things."

Joshua Kalu's (@BluesKalus) blocked field goal today for @Titans made No.8 on @SportsCenter's top 10 list. 🏈

Kalu chuckles when he hears the comments from his teammates. It's not unexpected.

After making the biggest play of his NFL career, Kalu said he'll continue working while also keeping it light.

When he got home after the game Sunday night he didn't spend the evening Googling himself or checking his mentions on social media. He still hasn't seen himself on SportsCenter's Top 10 list.

"I hopped on Call of Duty for a little bit," Kalu said. "I did watch that play over and over again, though. The biggest thing for me was watching everybody else's reaction around me, from coaches to players to fans to everybody. I was happy to make the play and happy it caused so many people to get excited."

JOSHUA KALU

TITANS DB JOSHUA KALU WORKING TO PROVIDE MEALS TO NURSES DURING CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 9, 2020

NASHVILLE – As a player in the National Football League, Titans defensive back Joshua Kalu knows his job comes with risks.

But Kalu signed up for it, and he loves it.

The same can be said for his two sisters – nurses who are currently working on the front lines of the COVID-19 pandemic.

And today, Kalu is doing his part to show them how much he appreciates them, along with all the nurses who are working long hours during the global health crisis.

"When you're a nurse, you know what risks come with it, too – whether that's getting infected with any type of disease, or just seeing and dealing with people you know might pass away," Kalu said. "They signed up for it, and I am proud of them because when the going got tough, they stepped up to the plate and are not backing down. They are dealing with chaos and stress on a daily basis."

JOSHUA KALU

@BluesKalus

COVID-19 has impacted all of us directly or indirectly. My sisters (both nurses on the frontline) have shared their firsthand experiences with working extended hours and managing chaos on a daily basis. As a leader, I wanted to do my part to keep our healthcare workers going.

Kalu, who initially joined the Titans as an undrafted free agent in 2018, has played in 16 games over the past two seasons. He made one of the biggest plays of the 2019 regular season with a blocked field goal against the Chiefs on the final play of the game, which secured the win.

Earlier this offseason, Kalu traveled with a contingent of former and current NFL players with the group American Football Without Barriers to Budapest, Hungary, where he helped spread the word about American football, and his love for the game.

In recent weeks, in his hometown of Houston, Kalu has stepped up during the coronavirus pandemic for nurses. One of Kalu's sisters is a nurse at a hospital in Houston, the other at a hospital in the Bronx in New York. Kalu's mother is also a nurse.

Kalu has worked to provide meals to nurses at hospitals in Houston, using local restaurants. It started with roughly 30 meals delivered to the COVID-19 unit at from Mezza Grille, and then grew to 40 meals from Lotus Seafood. He's part of a group that is also helping nurses at other hospitals in the area.

On Mother's Day weekend, Kalu will join with others, including long-time friend Ogbonnia Okoronkwo, a linebacker with the Rams, to deliver 250 meals from the Turkey Leg Hut in Houston.

Kalu and others, including his trainer Justin Allen, are all working for the cause. And he's encouraging others to help the group. (Here's a link where donations are being accepted to contribute to the cause, through Allen's Foundation: CLICK HERE.)

"It's Mother's Day, and it's also Nurses Appreciation Week, so it's perfect," Kalu said. "This isn't about me -- I just hope people see my video or hear about this they'll want to contribute to it or donate any way to help. It's all about giving back because these nurses are doing amazing work to help people. I want to let them know they are appreciated.

"Our nurses are fighting long hours, and they're fighting for us. That's my inspiration. I want to help the real heroes who are fighting for us. I'm just trying to do my part."

DENNIS KELLY

KELLY CATCHES A PIECE OF PLAYOFF HISTORY

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM

JANUARY 20, 2020

Dennis Kelly set an NFL record Sunday when he caught his second pass of the season.

The reserve tackle gave the Tennessee Titans a 17-7 lead over the Kansas City Chiefs when he caught a 1-yard touchdown pass from Ryan Tannehill with 6:39 to play in the first half.

That made him – at 321 pounds – the heaviest man to score a touchdown in a playoff game.

That moment was as good as it got for the Titans. Kansas City scored the next 28 points, and Tennessee's improbable run through the postseason ended one game short of the Super Bowl with a 35-24 defeat.

Kelly, who is 6-foot-7, was one of two Tennessee offensive linemen to catch a touchdown pass during the regular season. He scored on a 1-yard reception at Jacksonville on Nov. 24. David Quessenberry did the same Sept. 15 against Indianapolis.

The touchdown pass was Tannehill's fourth of the postseason. Only one was to a wide receiver (Kalif Raymond). The other two went to tight ends, Jonnu Smith and Anthony Firkser, who added a fourth-quarter score against the Chiefs and became the only Tennessee player with multiple touchdown catches in the postseason.

Acquired in a trade with Philadelphia in 2016, Kelly routinely has lined up as an extra tight end over the past four seasons and even has been credited with seven starts in that role. He has done so under three different head coaches (Ken Whisenhunt, Mike Mularkey and Mike Vrabel) but never had a pass thrown in his direction before this season.

His brother, Tim Kelly, is the offensive coordinator for the Houston Texans. So, he presumably has a little more offensive insight than most offensive linemen.

Kelly was one of 10 different Titans to catch a pass in the AFC Championship and one of 12 with at least one reception in the playoffs.

DENNIS THE MENACE: GIANT TACKLE DENNIS KELLY ENFORCING HEALTH AND SAFETY PROTOCOLS WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – The Titans are taking every precaution necessary to stay safe while playing football during a pandemic.

Players and team personnel have been tested daily for COVID-19. Meetings are being held in the team's spacious indoor practice facility so players and coaches can spread out more, there's a limit to the number of players in the weight room and other areas at the same time, and the cafeteria is now grab-and-go style.

If somebody slacks off with social distancing or mask wearing, well, the Titans have a 6-foot-8, 321-pounder ready to enforce the rules.

Dennis Kelly, aka "The Undertaker" gave teammate Taylor Lewan the "What in the name of Dr. Fauci?" look the other day for not wearing his mask properly.

"I think Dennis would be an unbelievable dictator in any country, as the way he's been handling the mask thing," Lewan said with a smile on Monday. "And so, although it's been very annoying, he's doing a good job, and I hate even saying that out loud. Dennis is a really good friend of mine, so I hate doing the boy compliments, but Dennis and I actually got into it today about me and my mask was below my nose so he made sure and told me the protocols of what to do. And so, he's been doing a good job. He's definitely not worried about being annoying in that sense, which is good."

No one is upset with Kelly, the team's NFLPA player rep, for his enforcement.

As an organization, the Titans have proven to be on the same page with COVID-19 safety protocols at the start of training camp.

"Dennis is definitely doing his thing, making sure that we stay safe, keeping the health of the team first, keeping the health of everyone in this organization first," tight end Jonnu Smith said. "He's definitely been patrolling on his thing. We just got to kind of follow Dennis' lead when it comes to safety protocols."

"He's really been anal about it," safety Kevin Byard said of Kelly. "We're all getting used to these new rules, and protocols, and wearing a mask, and stuff like that. I think it's good. I think it's good for Jon (Robinson) the coaches, everybody's trying to make sure that everybody's wearing masks. At the end of the day, the safest teams and the healthiest team this year is going to be the one that's going to be playing in January and February. We can only control what we can control. Different sports whether it's basketball, NHL, baseball, they all have different ways of going about things, but as far as us as a team, we're trying to do our best."

BRETT KERN

WHEN YOU HAVE BRETT KERN — A PRO BOWL PUNTER AND A PRETTY GOOD ATHLETE — YOU TAKE SOME CHANCES

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
DECEMBER 17, 2019

The play call itself? Debatable.

When the Titans — in punt formation near the end of the first half Sunday — sent Amani Hooker in motion toward the right sideline, it appeared to all but wave a flag in the face of the Texans, alerting them that a fake might be in the works.

What special-teams unit, after all, would simply ignore the fact that two players were flanked wide to the right instead of the usual single gunner?

“(The Texans) definitely thought something was up,” Titans gunner Dane Cruikshank said. “That’s why they backed off their coverage.”

So go ahead and critique the design if you choose, but let’s show a little appreciation here for punter Brett Kern, whose 47-yard spiral downfield still nearly turned the fake into a success, his pass tipped away from Cruikshank at the last second by Texans defensive back Lonnie Johnson.

“I mean, it’s really a perfect throw,” exclaimed CBS Sports analyst Tony Romo, who knows a thing or two about slinging the football.

It’s been an out-of-the-ordinary season for the 33-year-old Kern, a 12-year veteran who may be headed to his third consecutive Pro Bowl after finishing first among punters in fan voting. He’s punting to his usual strong standards, fifth in the NFL in average (47.5 yards per attempt) and tied for third in net average (43.6 yards per attempt).

Kern’s arms and legs, however, have been even more entertaining than his foot.

Heading into Monday night’s game, Kern was the only punter in the NFL this season who had both run once and thrown at least two passes, plays that have resulted — at various times — in Kern’s near decapitation as well as in game-changing moments.

Who says punters live a life of leisure?

“Hey, whatever works,” Kern said Monday. “If there are certain looks or certain ways we can help the field position, help with trying to get first downs here or there, and take advantage of something the punt-return team does, then I’m all for it.”

Just why is it that Kern, who’d never thrown a single regular-season pass before this year, has been assigned a few more opportunities this season?

Maybe it’s as simple as a former NFL player — Titans coach Mike Vrabel — wanting to see his specialists sweat a little harder during practices that aren’t exactly exhausting.

“They’ve got a lot of time on their hands,” a half-serious Vrabel said. “They kick for about 10 minutes, then they snap and hold, then they probably throw passes and do some stuff.”

Kern won’t argue with that. When he punted collegiately at Toledo, Kern had enough spare time on his hands during practice that he took up holding for the team’s kicker. It turned out to be a pretty smart decision on Kern’s part, as he’s doubled as the Titans’ holder since arriving in Nashville.

So these days, Kern uses some of his extra moments to craft fakes, working alongside special-teams coach Craig Aukerman and assistant Matt Edwards.

“We just try to find out what’s realistic and what’s not, what’s a throw I could make and feel comfortable making it,” Kern said. “You just toss around the ideas of what would work and what wouldn’t, and then you go from there.”

Still, Vrabel wouldn’t be handing out extra responsibility — running and passing the football — in key situations to Kern unless he trusted his decision-making and athleticism. Considering Kern’s background includes long-jumping, high-hurdling, playing basketball (he has some nasty dunks on tape) and owning a one-handicap in golf, it’s a pretty safe bet he’s not going to trip over his own two feet while attempting a fake.

“I guess you never really know about the term ‘athletic,’ what it means to be an athlete,” Kern said. “That’s always a debate in our locker room, as far as what it is to really be an athlete.

“Shooting hoops out here definitely helps me. Playing golf helps. Being able to throw the football a little bit helps, too.”

When it works as planned, everyone looks like a genius.

That was the case earlier this season against the Los Angeles Chargers, when Kern connected on a perfect 11-yard strike to Kevin Byard, producing a first down on fourth-and-8. That completion led to the Titans’ first score of the game and a 3-0 lead.

But all the extra practice hours and all the surprising athleticism in the world don’t always result in success. No one knows that more than Kern, who’s been part of two special-teams failures this season.

The first oops was especially memorable to everyone, with the possible exception of Kern, who still may be fuzzy about the fake field-goal attempt against Tampa Bay. Kern took the deep snap from center on that play, then stood up and headed around left end in search of a first down. But Buccaneers linebacker Devin White read the play perfectly and delivered a frightening, flattening hit on Kern.

BRETT KERN

“I heard (the hit) and I thought, ‘Oh my God,’” Taylor Lewan said following that contest. “I thought he was dead.”

Kern managed to survive quite well, thank you, to the point he was back at it last Sunday, throwing long to Cruikshank with the Titans facing fourth-and-10 at Houston’s 37-yard line.

Should Vrabel have simply stuck with the offense in that situation, especially considering Ryan Tannehill’s success at converting third-and-long plays since becoming the starter? One could certainly make an argument that going a more traditional route would have offered a better chance at success than having a punter throw a Hail Mary.

Still, hats off to Kern for making an on-the-money toss halfway down the field.

It was simply the latest lively moment in a season that’s offered Kern more than his usual share.

Who knows when the Titans will once again call on his arm — or legs — to complement that rocket of a right foot?

BRETT KERN

TITANS PUNTER BRETT KERN'S STOCK KEEPS GOING UP AS HE HEADS INTO 13TH NFL SEASON

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 2, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans punter Brett Kern is a numbers guy, and a family guy.

When a season ends, Kern looks back at every punt he charted. If there's a certain direction from a certain hashmark he needs to improve on, he works on it leading up to the next season.

With net averages and gross averages listed next to his name, and yard lines to aim for, it's understandable.

It also explains why he's a three-time Pro Bowler.

This offseason, when he had to punt his normal offseason routine because of the coronavirus pandemic, Kern crunched some other numbers while spending a lot of extra time with his family.

Kern and his wife, Tiffany, became full-time teachers to their three children at home.

Kern taught his 10-year-old son Bryce about the stock market, of course.

"He is getting there," Kern said. "I am not sure if he understands what drives the stock market, but as far as the numbers are concerned, and how you can gain and lose in the market, and what that does to your portfolio, he understands that. I also taught him how to balance a checkbook, some of the stuff he'll need when he gets older. I would say (during the extra time at home) I definitely learned a lot more about my kids, as far as how they learn and what they respond to and what they don't."

But it's back to football now.

Kern, named first-team All-Pro by the Associated Press in 2019 in addition to being named to his third straight Pro Bowl, is set to begin his 13th NFL season – his 12th with the Titans.

In 2019, Kern led the NFL with 37 kicks placed inside the 20-yard line, and he led the AFC with a 47.1 gross average. Kern registered 39 punts of 50 or more yards in 2019, and he tied an NFL record with eight punts placed inside the 20 in a game at Denver.

Kern, of course, aims to keep getting better.

"I'm a perfectionist," he said. "I'm probably my toughest critic. I'm really hard on myself, so when I go back and look at film it's not very hard for me to find stuff that I know I need to get better at. I obviously watch the film, I'll look at last year, even the year before, maybe go three years back and just look at different games in the same stadium, really just try to dissect. I don't want to create a pattern where if I'm in a certain situation, I know I'm going to hit a certain punt. So, try to mix it up a little bit and then like I said, obviously working on punts that I felt like I maybe wasn't as consistent as I should be, and work on those. Going into year 13, I have past offseasons that I've learned from -- what's worked, what hasn't worked. There's always something I can get better at.

"And, of course, Coach (Mike) Vrabel and (special teams) coach (Craig) Aukerman hold me to a higher standard to try and get inside the 10s, so just working on placement, hitting target points on those kinds of punts. Consistency is always my main goal, any time I go out there and kick I set different goals for myself, just to be as consistent as possible."

Kern has been a dependable pro since joining the Titans during the 2009 season, after being waived by the Broncos, where he spent the 2008 season and the early portion of 2009.

Kern is the franchise's all-time career leader in both gross punting average (45.9) and net punting average (40.8), and he ranks second in team annals in career punts (839), behind only Craig Hentrich (861).

Kern owns the top eight net punting seasons in franchise history, and nine of the team's top 11 net punting seasons.

As Kern prepares for the start of the 2020 season – and another trip to Denver, where his career started – he's excited about what's ahead.

And he's thankful for what he's accomplished so far.

"Early on in your career it is almost like you're trying to survive at times, and now my thought process is just to have fun and do everything I can to help our team win," Kern said.

"Obviously I am on the back half of my career, so I'm also just trying to enjoy the relationships that I make, the guys that I am around in the locker room, the camaraderie, because I know that won't always be there. So, building relationships, making new friends, and experiencing everything the NFL has to offer and understanding how it has blessed my family immensely. I just want to keep plugging along, take it game by game, and try to do my job the best that I can each game."

HAROLD LANDRY'S SECRET WEAPON IN BREAKOUT SEASON FOR TITANS? CONFIDENCE

*BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
DECEMBER 6, 2019*

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Entering his second NFL season, Harold Landry had a goal: Be disruptive, making as many plays and turnovers as he could.

Through 12 games, the Tennessee Titans outside linebacker has done just that, leading the team with nine sacks to go with an interception and a forced fumble.

Landry is delivering for a team desperately in need of an impact player off the edge. The secret sauce for Landry's success might simply be a heightened level of confidence.

"This year, I am just cutting it loose and going out there playing as fast as I can," Landry said. "I am much more relaxed, flying off the ball, and it's much more reactionary."

Defensive coordinator Dean Pees sees the confidence growing in Landry, too.

"Half the battle in any football player is once the guy is playing with confidence, they start playing faster. ... They feel much more comfortable, and they're not thinking as much," Pees said. "They are just playing. That's exactly where [Landry] is. The more he gets sacks and things like that, the more confident he becomes."

With one more sack, Landry will be the first Titans player to reach double digits since Brian Orakpo had 10.5 in 2016. Landry has had at least one sack in eight games this season and has registered a sack in five consecutive games, the second-longest streak this season, according to ESPN Stats & Information.

Landry's pass-rushing production isn't showing up just in sacks. His 18 quarterback pressures on third down are the second-most in the NFL. Only the Los Angeles Chargers' Joey Bosa (21) has more. One of Landry's pressures against the Colts forced Jacoby Brissett to make a careless throw that was intercepted by safety Kevin Byard. That set up Ryan Succop's game-tying 31-yard field goal.

How did Landry get so confident? The 6-foot-2, 252-pounder worked on adding pass-rushing moves during the offseason. He spent time watching film of pass-rushers such as Dee Ford, Khalil Mack and Von Miller and put hours in at the weight room with teammate DaQuan Jones so he could add more muscle. The greater strength, combined with the new pass-rush moves, have led to Landry's growing belief that he can whip the man across from him.

Outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen credited Landry for learning to tweak his attack during the game as he experiences how offensive linemen are trying to block him. Bowen is up in the booth during game day, but they discuss adjustments throughout the game. The different moves and techniques that Bowen, defensive assistant Ryan Crow and head coach Mike Vrabel are teaching Landry in practice are starting to surface on game day.

"The biggest thing with him is his confidence going into the game right now," Bowen said. "I think any time you're dealing with a young guy, it takes time for that stuff to carry over. When the lights come on, you start looking around, and your focus might go away from some of that stuff. He's locking in ... everything is slowing down for him now, so he can focus on doing those little things that we talk about when we're on the practice field."

Landry is taking it to a new level this year by studying what is working against opposing offensive linemen and replicating it throughout the game. He stopped short of calling it a pass-rushing plan, but he said he caters his attack to different linemen.

"When I am preparing for a game and see a guy that's a low-puncher, that's good for a chop," Landry said during training camp. "When I see a high puncher, that's good for a dip so I can get under him. I want to go into a game and be able to use more than one move that I know will work. It might not be the best time to go to a dip and corner on him. I might have to stab him or do something else. Building my overall repertoire of moves helps me go against the tackles or tight ends."

Another area of emphasis was playing better in space. Landry had been more of a "see ball, get ball" player at Boston College, but now he's asked to do more. He said he's getting more comfortable dropping back into coverage, reading plays and doing more of the things that Dean Pees requires players to do in his defense.

Oakland Raiders coach Jon Gruden says Landry is a player who stands out as his team prepares to face the Titans. Although Gruden called Landry a great edge rusher, the concern is not just because of the sacks.

"You have to be careful with him. He can hurt you off the edge. He does a lot. He drops into coverage, has great range. We will know where 58 is," Gruden said of Landry via conference call.

Landry has enjoyed success this season, but he's ready to keep ascending.

"I love making plays and getting hype with the other guys," he said. "That's when it's the most fun: when we are all out there making plays and feeding off each other's energy. It's awesome."

"I feel like there's another level that I can take. I am just trying to finish these last games strong and get into the playoffs, then take it from there."

MORE BANG FOR THE BUCK? TITANS PLAN TO WATCH OLB HAROLD LANDRY'S SNAP COUNT CLOSER IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 8, 2020

NASHVILLE – The Titans want to get even more bang for their buck in 2020 as it relates to outside linebacker Harold Landry III.

One of the ways to do it? Watching his snap count closer.

A second-round pick in the 2018 NFL Draft out of Boston College, Landry led the Titans with nine sacks in 2019, and he added another in the postseason. He finished second on the team with 28 quarterback pressures.

But Landry recorded all nine of his regular sacks in the first 12 games, and he went the final four games of December without one.

Looking back, the Titans think Landry played too many snaps. According to Pro Football Reference, Landry played in 85.84 percent of the team's defensive snaps in 2019 – a total of 952 snaps. He played another 25 snaps on special teams.

"He played a lot of plays for us and he did, probably, too much -- that's on me," outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen said on a Zoom conference call last week. "But we've got to find ways to get some other guys that can take some stuff off of him too, and I've got to get those guys developed where we are trusting them, putting them in the game, where we feel like they can make plays for us. I've got to do a better job of not putting so much on him in terms of play count."

Despite not tallying a sack in the final four games of the regular season, Landry was still around the quarterback – he was credited with eight quarterback pressures in the final four games combined.

In the postseason, Landry added a sack of Ravens quarterback Lamar Jackson, and he was credited with eight quarterback pressures in the three postseason games combined despite playing in 98 percent of the team's snaps. Landry played in a whopping 95 of the team's 97 defensive snaps in the team's playoff win at Baltimore.

Landry played in all 19 games, including three postseason contests, in 2019. He finished the year with 89 tackles, and 36 pressures in addition to his sacks, while also tallying five tackles for a loss, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery.

Near the end of the season, Landry said he felt like he was making solid progress after recording 4.5 sacks in his rookie season.

In 2019, Landry became the team's first player with a four-game sack streak since 2016, when outside linebackers Brian Orakpo (five games) and Derrick Morgan (four) each accomplished the feat. Landry ended up with a five-game sack streak.

"(I'm) way more developed in using my hands compared to a year ago," he said. "I feel like there is definitely another level I can take. I've left some opportunities out there on the field, but that is part of the game."

The addition of veteran outside linebacker Vic Beasley should help the pass rush off the edge, and the Titans are banking on Kamalei Correa picking up where he left off last season as well. Outside linebackers Derick Roberson, D'Andre Walker, and Reggie Gilbert will also be among those looking to create havoc while taking the pressure off of Landry.

"I think (Harold) is still adamant about developing his body, his strength, his stamina, all of those things," Bowen said. "But in my mind, he played too many plays. I've got to do a better job of not putting so much on him in terms of play count. Hopefully we get him at his best when we need him at his best down the stretch."

TITANS OLB HAROLD LANDRY PLANS TO BE A CONSISTENT FORCE IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 3, 2020

NASHVILLE – Harold Landry isn't making excuses for his quieter ending to the 2019 season.

The Titans outside linebacker, who led the team in sacks last fall, said he would like to be a consistent force sacking quarterbacks from beginning to the end in 2020, however.

And he has a plan to make it happen.

"I feel tremendous, and I'm ready to go," Landry said. "I feel great, and I am ready to take that next step.

"My goal when I came into the league was to be a better player every single year. I feel like I took a step from year one to year two and now it is time to take a step from year two to year three. I think I'm ready to do that. I have put in a lot of work, and I am excited for this season."

During a video conference call with reporters on Monday, Landry also said he's working to master several pass-rush moves instead of focusing on adding a bunch of new ones.

"I am not necessarily looking to have, like 1,000 moves in my repertoire," Landry said. "I am just looking to have two or three and being able to make those the best rush (moves) possible.

"And another thing is being versatile – being able to rush not just on the edge, but wherever they want me to rush from, depending on the call. That's what I feel like I need to do to take the next step."

Harold Landry Sacks Jameis Winston, Recovers Fumble

Earlier this offseason, Titans outside linebacker coach Shane Bowen took the blame for Landry's sack totals slowing down at the end of 2019 – he thinks he played too many snaps.

According to Pro Football Reference, Landry played in 85.84 percent of the team's defensive snaps in 2019 – a total of 952 snaps. He played another 25 snaps on special teams.

"He played a lot of plays for us and he did, probably, too much -- that's on me," Bowen said of Landry. "I've got to do a better job of not putting so much on him in terms of play count."

It's all good, said Landry, a second-round pick in the 2018 NFL Draft out of Boston College who led the Titans with nine sacks in 2019, and he added another in the postseason. He finished second on the team with 28 quarterback pressures.

Landry recorded all nine of his regular sacks in the first 12 games, and he went the final four games of December without one. Despite not tallying a sack in the final four games of the regular season, Landry was still around the quarterback – he was credited with eight quarterback pressures in the final four games combined.

In the postseason, Landry added a sack of Ravens quarterback Lamar Jackson, and he was credited with eight quarterback pressures in the three postseason games combined despite playing in 98 percent of the team's snaps. Landry played in a whopping 95 of the team's 97 defensive snaps in the team's playoff win at Baltimore.

Landry said he felt like his preparation was the same throughout the season, "but I just had like a cold spurt. You hate to see it, but it happens."

"I hold myself to a high standard, so I feel like whenever he wants me out there, I should be able to perform at a high level," Landry said. "So that's on me. I just need to be able to perform at my best, full-go, every single play and I think it has more to do with me than (Bowen), but I appreciate him having my back."

Landry said he built a home gym during a house renovation this offseason and spent most of his offseason working in Tennessee.

Landry played in all 19 games, including three postseason contests, in 2019. He finished the year with 89 tackles, and 36 pressures in addition to his sacks, while also tallying five tackles for a loss, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery.

In 2019, Landry became the team's first player with a four-game sack streak since 2016, when outside linebackers Brian Orakpo (five games) and Derrick Morgan (four) each accomplished the feat. Landry ended up with a five-game sack streak.

"I want to be a player, that when I go out on the field, all of my boys I am out there with, they can count on me," Landry said. "I want to make impactful plays, and just cut it loose and be relentless every single snap."

RACING IN HIS BOXERS AND SITTING IN SANTA'S LAP: TITANS WELCOME BACK THE ENTIRE TAYLOR LEWAN PERSONA THIS WEEK

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
OCTOBER 2, 2019

Halfway through his senior season at Chaparral High in Arizona, Taylor Lewan produced a series of events memorable enough that his head coach still recalls it more than a decade later.

The liveliness began when Lewan, in his first year as an offensive lineman, drove an opponent about 60 yards down the field, the scene reminiscent of what Michael Oher did to a defender in “The Blind Side.”

“He basically put the poor kid on roller skates,” said Charlie Ragle, now special teams coordinator at the University of California.

So why was an official throwing a flag at the end of the play? That’s what Ragle wanted to know, arguing his team was trying to build a culture of finishing through the echo of the whistle. What was so wrong with that?

“I’m not throwing the flag on him for blocking like that,” the official explained to Ragle. “I’m throwing it because he was talking shit to the kid all the way down the field.”

It didn’t help that Lewan injected himself into the conversation right about the same time, offering his own question to the official — “Who’s paying you?” — and earning another penalty flag in the process.

“I’m like, ‘Oh, my gosh, get your ass on the bench and shut the bleep up,’” Ragle said with a laugh.

It needs to be noted that Ragle loves Lewan as a player and person, still stays in touch with him regularly and even has plans to out-beer-chug the Titans’ big left tackle on a future edition of Lewan’s podcast, “Bussin’ with the Boys.”

“He’s very dear to me, and not just because of his abilities,” Ragle said. “He understands the relationships and the loyalty of what we do, and it’s for guys like (Lewan) that we do this job.”

Nonetheless, that unforgettable high school moment of 2008 has proved a pretty good precursor of what the football world could expect of Lewan on every level.

The 11th overall pick of the 2014 NFL Draft, who returns this week following a four-game NFL suspension for taking a performance-enhancing substance, is a complicated character.

He’s without question one of the game’s best tackles, a three-time Pro Bowler listed as the 77th-best player in the league at any position in the NFL Network’s most recent “Top 100 Players” ranking. Lewan should provide a significant boost to a Titans offensive line that, outside of last Sunday, has struggled to protect quarterback Marcus Mariota.

But there’s more to the package, just as there was back in Lewan’s days in Arizona.

Part of it is Lewan’s huge personality, which features an off-the-charts extrovert level, a razor-sharp wit, a sense of humor worthy of stand-up comedy and an ability to inspire those around him.

Part of it, too, however, is a tendency to make errors in judgment on and off the field, as well as a penchant for running his mouth.

The Titans will welcome the entire Lewan persona back to the locker room this week, hoping the spotlight for the rest of the season stays focused on Lewan’s accomplishments that help the team, as opposed to missteps that hurt it.

“As a player, he’s everything you’re looking for,” said Charles Davis, an analyst for Fox NFL and The NFL Network. “And I do think that as he’s gotten older, he’s started to mature — less of the penalties, less of the extracurriculars, that kind of stuff.

“In some ways, though, Taylor’s really indescribable, and I mean that in the most positive way. Because to try to box Taylor in, I think, is folly. If you’re trying to put a definition on him, forget it. It’s just — what’s the old expression? — you just have to let Taylor be Taylor.”

When he first met Lewan, Titans right tackle Jack Conklin, the team’s first-round draft pick in 2016, recalls the Michigan alum talking a little friendly trash to him, since Conklin played for an archrival Michigan State team that got the better of the Wolverines during the players’ respective tenures.

It wasn’t long, though, before the 6-foot-6, 308-pound Conklin and the 6-7, 309-pound Lewan became good friends, leading to a memorable Christmas shopping excursion with each other at Nashville’s Mall at Green Hills.

Lewan, as Conklin recalls it, was insistent — no, adamant — that the two hulking linemen get their picture taken with Santa Claus.

“Taylor actually sat on his lap,” Conklin said. “Santa was not at all prepared for all the energy that was coming at him at that moment. Taylor was giving him his whole rundown of what he wanted for Christmas. But the funniest thing was just that he was sitting on Santa’s lap — it was just goofy.”

It’s Ragle, who, in his second year as head coach at Chaparral High, gets credit for flipping Lewan from the defensive to the offensive line.

He recognized that with Lewan’s combination of athleticism, footwork, length and aggressive mindset — the ability to “flip the switch” while on the football field — Lewan would likely make an ideal left tackle. It didn’t hurt that the high school’s new offensive line coach, Rod Humenuik, had recently retired after a couple of decades as an offensive line coach in the NFL.

TAYLOR LEWAN

“You talk about timing and being at the right place at the right time,” Ragle said. “To get in there and get coached by a guy like Rod, it was unique, and obviously it paid dividends.”

Sure enough, in no time at all, Lewan was attracting a string of offers as a four-star recruit, ultimately committing to Michigan.

But Lewan had one more highly entertaining moment left in him before heading to Big Ten country.

It happened in the summer of 2008 when Lewan’s old teammates at Chaparral began training for their upcoming season. Word was getting around that the left tackle who’d backed up Lewan the previous year — he stood 6-6 and was pretty talented — might be even more athletic than Lewan.

That didn’t sit well with Lewan, so, naturally, he pulled up to the high school practice at about 6 in the morning and walked straight onto the field.

“I hear ya’ll been talking shit!” Lewan shouted. “I hear ya’ll said Jacob (the former backup) could even beat me in a race. Well, get him on the line right now.”

Lewan then proceeded to strip down to his boxers, lined up next to his former teammate and — without the benefit of stretching — beat him in a 40-yard dash.

“That’s what I effin’ thought,” Ragle recalled Lewan saying after the race. “So then he puts his stuff back on, walks off into his car and yells, ‘See you guys in December.’ That’s why you love him.”

Titans left guard Rodger Saffold and Lewan were communicating via social media even before Saffold signed last March, but Saffold didn’t actually meet Lewan until attending his first offensive lineman’s dinner.

A flashy dresser, Saffold was decked out in what he calls his “swaggy clothes” for the meal at Jeff Ruby’s Steakhouse, an upscale restaurant on Nashville’s 4th Avenue North.

So he was a little surprised to see Lewan roll in wearing a T-shirt, shorts and flip-flops.

But the real kicker came after dinner when Lewan turned to his linemate and said, “Bro, have you ever gone turbo?”

Sure enough, a slightly nervous Saffold was soon stepping into the front seat of Lewan’s Tesla, with the words of former Titans lineman Corey Levin — “Rog, you better watch out” — still echoing through his mind.

“I was like, ‘Oh, man, this is a nice little ride,’” Saffold recalled thinking as the vehicle took off. “Then I happened to notice that his (baby’s) car seat was still in the car. For some reason, I just thought that was pretty hilarious.”

Veteran Titans linebacker Wesley Woodyard remembers watching Lewan as a rookie in some of his earliest practices in 2014. Lewan wasn’t even starting at the time — Oher and Michael Roos were the two starting tackles — but Woodyard knew talent when he saw it.

“I walked up to him, and I was like, ‘Man, I don’t know what you’ve been told, but I think you can be one of the best left tackles to ever play this game,’” Woodyard said. “I just kept mentioning that to him. I don’t know if it meant anything to him, but ... he’s been dominant ever since.”

Lewan stepped into the starting lineup seven games into that rookie year, following an injury to Roos, and has been a cornerstone of the team for the past half-decade.

He was named to his first Pro Bowl after the 2016 season and has returned in each of the past two seasons. His high-quality play prompted the Titans to drop a monster contract extension on Lewan last summer, as his five-year, $80 million deal made him the highest-paid lineman in NFL history at the time. Lewan backed up the contract by allowing just two sacks in 2018, per Pro Football Reference, tied for the second-fewest among all tackles who played at least 15 games.

“Player-wise, he’s one of the best left tackles in the game,” Davis said. “People around the league get that. And he plays with that edge, too. He has a defensive lineman’s mentality, and he plays to the echo of the whistle.”

But Lewan has had his share of negatives since arriving in Music City, mostly due to the number of penalties he’s totaled and to some questionable decision-making.

Lewan has led the Titans in penalties in each of his past four seasons as a starter, flagged 10 times in 2015, 14 times in 2016, 10 times in 2017 and nine times in 2018. He was responsible for 10.98 percent of the Titans’ penalty yardage last season, the eighth-highest figure of any player in the league.

Granted, Lewan plays a challenging position, often matched up against the best pass-rushers in the league as they roar toward the quarterback’s blind side. But one of his challenges is to trim a penalty total that’s included too many holds, face-masks and even an ejection (in 2016 when he made contact with an official following a scuffle).

Then there have been episodes that played well with some of the Titans’ fan base on Twitter but didn’t necessarily reflect well on the organization. For instance, in one month’s time last December, Lewan ...

TAYLOR LEWAN

delivered an obscenity-filled rant at officials following the Titans' narrow win over the New York Jets, telling them they'd tried to ruin the team's chances.

played an "air violin" over Jacksonville cornerback Jalen Ramsey, who had just flopped after a head-butt from Lewan in hopes of drawing a penalty.

gave the middle finger to an NBC Skycam camera during that same Jacksonville game as he lay injured on the field.

walked across the field following the Titans' win over Washington and shot an imaginary bow-and-arrow at Redskins cornerback Josh Norman, simulating Norman's signature move. An angry Norman threw his helmet at Lewan and began shoving him before the players were separated.

Taylor Lewan and Jalen Ramsey. (Christopher Hanewinckel / USA Today)

Former Titans offensive lineman Brad Hopkins, 49, notes that today's players exist in a different era and are motivated differently than players of yesteryear. But he still doesn't agree with the tactics Lewan has taken at times.

"You can call me old-school, you can call me curmudgeon, whatever, but I come from the Bruce Matthews-Mike Munchak cut of cloth," said Hopkins, who is now a Sirius XM radio host as well as a Northwestern Mutual financial agent. "We didn't bring a lot of attention to ourselves. I'm from that old-school group of 'Put your hand in the dirt, knock somebody in the mouth and let that speak for itself.'

"But to each his own. If that's what inspires you to be the best on the field you can be, then I'm not going to tell you otherwise. ... If he can back it up on the field, more power to him."

Lewan has left his mark on the Titans' locker room in many unusual ways.

In 2016, he introduced a large stuffed beaver — one that wore a hat and stood on its hind feet — to his corner of the room, letting all those who asked know the creature's name was "Steve the Beav."

A year or two later, Lewan gifted Conklin with a stuffed owl named Officer Cornwall, which is still perched at Conklin's locker, wearing a British police hat when he is "on duty."

"Taylor should probably be medicated," Conklin said with a smile. "But it's always fun to have Taylor in the room. He brings a lot of energy and keeps everybody's spirits high."

Lewan is also not shy when it comes to parading around the locker room sans clothing upon returning from the shower. Sometimes he'll wear a towel and then — going for full shock value — pulls the front side open in front of teammates.

"We miss his pranks, playing, joking, just the ability to move a room with his attitude," Woodyard said. "We do miss that. We even miss him trotting around, going to the showers and the cold tub with the towel wrapped around just his derriere."

So you can call Lewan many things: talented, intelligent, comedic, loud, impulsive and irritating. But also make sure to call him missed by the Titans, whether it's on the field or in the locker room.

In fact, a number of Titans made sure to point out they want the exact same Lewan this Sunday following his suspension, not a more mild-mannered version of Lewan intent on toeing the line with his behavior.

Tight end Delanie Walker, for instance, refers to Lewan as a wolf, the kind that will lead the team's pack of offensive linemen.

"I need him to be the bad Taylor," Walker said. "That's why he's a wolf — know what I mean? I need him to be that creep. That's what he is, and that's how he plays the game. I like that. I like that grit."

Walker also compared Lewan to a bouncer because of the security he brings to teammates, knowing that the big man — who sometimes goes by the nickname "Dad" — is there to handle any nasty business that pops up in the trenches.

Woodyard agrees, recalling the many times he's watched Lewan pulling defenders off ball carriers downfield after plays.

"Taylor gets a bad rep throughout the league," Woodyard said. "But he's definitely a guy that loves his teammates. That's why he's usually so passionate and fired up. He doesn't want anybody to touch his offensive line, his running back, his quarterback or his receivers."

And if that aggressive attitude sometimes results in costly penalties?

"If he gets a penalty, I just look at it as (the defense) has to do more," Woodyard said. "Obviously, we don't want to get personal fouls.

"But we need Lewan to come back and be Lewan. He's a riled-up, physical guy who loves to get in your face. That's who he is. We definitely want him to come back and just be the guy he was before he left."

In all the forms and fashions that takes.

TITANS LT TAYLOR LEWAN: "I OWE IT TO THIS TEAM TO BE A BETTER LEADER"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 28, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans left tackle Taylor Lewan spent the first part of a Zoom call on Thursday being critical of himself, talking about how his early season absence because of a four-game suspension in 2019 caused a disruption in chemistry.

It bothered Lewan, who said he learned from letting those around him down.

He vowed to be better from the start in 2020, when he plans to be a better leader.

"If I was the coaches right now, I think I'd be pretty pissed off that I haven't taken on the leadership role yet," Lewan said. "I've done a poor job of stepping up as a leader and that's been by choice and a little more by fear than anything else because of how I have been bit in the past thinking, 'I don't want to be something I'm not'.

"And now, realizing who I am and realizing what I can bring to the team is really important. I owe it to this team to be a better leader."

During his career, he's played in 85 regular season games, with 80 starts. He's played in three Pro Bowls.

Lewan was named a captain at the start of the 2015 season, but when Mike Mularkey replaced Ken Whisenhunt as the team's head coach during the middle of that season, he was replaced.

A trip to the AFC Championship Game last season made Lewan realize how precious success is "and how short this career can really be and how much you need to make the most of it."

"If I can be a better leader for this team, it's going to help," Lewan said. "This is my seventh year – I have made Pro Bowls, I have had a certain amount of success in this league that can help out a lot of other guys. For a while I think I shied away (from being a leader) a little bit. When I was at Michigan I was a captain and there was a piece of me that I lost, trying to be that All-American guy. Then I come in here and Ken makes me a captain here and I was trying to be what I think people needed me to be and Mularkey came and stripped the "C" (patch) away. Whether that was right or wrong it doesn't really matter. I think I was just trying to be something that I wasn't.

"Now that I am more grounded and know who I am as a person and know what I can give to this team and in this whole career of mine, it is important for me to take on a bigger leadership role – that is important. It is going to help the team and that is the most important thing. ... I look forward to being a good leader for this team."

LEWAN HAPPY TO BE A VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

BY MIKE HOGAN

AUGUST 23, 2020

Whether it happened at the beginning of training camp or earlier this offseason, Tennessee Titans left tackle Taylor Lewan approached first-round draft pick Isaiah Wilson and let him know that the door was open.

Any advice or mentorship the rookie right tackle needs, Lewan said he will be there for Wilson as much as he needs him to be.

For a rookie -- especially a first-round draft pick -- figuring out when, how and who to take advice from can be a challenge. Lewan explained that in many ways, it can feel overwhelming.

"... There's a lot of people trying to help you," Lewan said on Friday. "There's a lot of people trying to tell you what to do, and vets from all over the place are going to be like, 'Hey, try this or that.' It kind of goes all over the place.

"So for me, I went up to Isaiah, and I said, 'Hey man, I'm here for you as much as you want me to be. If you need any help with anything, I'm there for you,' and he and I have talked a lot. There's been some growth there for sure and I think he's working towards getting to where he needs to be."

Lewan also was a highly touted first-round draft pick. Drafted 11th overall by the Titans in 2014, he said he didn't know which way was up that season.

The reasons for that seem obvious now.

In 2014, the Titans were going through a coaching change. Ken Whisenhunt, who was the team's head coach for a season and a half (2014, part of 2015), took over for Mike Munchak and implemented his own offensive scheme. For rookies and veterans alike, much was brand new.

"It was all over the place," Lewan said. "It was a different building back then. It was very difficult. Guys were learning a new offense. I was coming into a team that was learning a new offense."

On top of it all, Lewan was thrust into a leadership role as he continued to acclimate himself in the NFL. After the Titans went 2-14 in Lewan's rookie season, Whisenhunt named the left tackle a captain for 2015. After one win in the first seven contests, Whisenhunt was fired and Mike Mularkey was named interim head coach. In turn, Mularkey stripped Lewan of the captain's 'C.'

While his time in a leadership position was a short-lived experience, Lewan in the spring that he was trying to be someone that he wasn't.

"I think I have done a poor job of stepping up as a leader," he said in May. "That's been by choice, and a little more by fear. Realizing who I am and what I can bring to the table is really important. I owe it to this team to be a better leader."

As the senior member of the offense on a contending team and more comfortable with his abilities now, the 29-year-old expressed his desire to assume a leadership position once again in the near future as he enters his seventh season with the Titans.

In 2020 or some time down the road, Lewan's approach to mentoring rookies at this stage of his career, which now includes 80 starts at left tackle, could be a step toward just that.

"It's fun to be in a position to help people," he said. "...This is my third year in the same offense, essentially. It's good. "It's fun. You start to know things. You start to learn little details here and there which makes it much easier to help guys out. Long answer of it all is it's been half and half. I'll go to them a lot and they'll also come to me, so it's been really awesome."

PACKING A PUNCH: TITANS LB DAVID LONG
JR. HEADS INTO SECOND SEASON WITH ADDED CONFIDENCE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – David Long Jr. paid his dues during his rookie season with the Titans, doing the dirty work on special teams while waiting for his turn to take on a bigger role on defense.

When the opportunity came, Long, the son of a former professional heavyweight boxer, came out swinging.

Long started at inside linebacker in the team's playoff win at Baltimore, and he played well. It helped cap off a year Long finished in fine fashion.

Looking back, Long said the experience gave him added confidence heading into Year 2 in Tennessee. Long played 54 total snaps against Baltimore.

"It helped it a lot," Long said after Sunday's practice. "I just know as much time I got to be out there, to see how the game goes and as far as how I play with my teammates and communication, as long as I was in there and feeling it, I felt like as the season went on, it got better. At the end, I feel like with opportunities presented, I made the best of those. Coming into year two, I just know what to work on and with a new (inside linebackers) coach, Jim (Haslett), that's my guy. I've been learning a lot from him to take my game to the next level."

A sixth-round pick of the Titans in the 2019 NFL Draft out of West Virginia, Long tallied eight tackles, including two tackles for a loss, in 14 games during the regular season in 2019.

While filling in for an injured Jayon Brown against the Ravens, Long racked up eight stops, including five solos. In the team's three playoff games, Long had 16 stops and two tackles for a loss, which came in the AFC Championship Game at Kansas City.

Long will provide depth and competition behind starting inside linebackers Rashaan Evans and Brown in 2020, and he'll also have a chance to work in certain packages on the defense, along a role on special teams.

Evans, for one, has been impressed by Long, a 5-foot-11, 227-pounder who amassed 252 tackles, 14 sacks and 40 tackles for a loss at West Virginia. Long's father, David Long Sr., by the way, went 12-5-2 as a heavyweight boxer and he once fought future world champ Deontay Wilder.

"I think David Long is one of those guys, you tell him to do something and he's going to do exactly that," Evans said. "I just remember him taking that even bigger step in his game in those playoff games. I saw him really grow in a matter of a game. How he came from the regular season to the playoffs when Jayon got hurt, I saw him take a totally different step in his game. Just for me, seeing that, I know that he can be as good as he wants to be.

"What I've learned, too, in the NFL you don't have to be the biggest and strongest guy in the NFL to be able to be successful. If you understand the game, if you know where things are going, if you know when things are going to happen, you can be up there with those elites. He's a guy that's very intellectual to be able to understand some of the things that we're throwing at him during the season, because it was a lot of stuff, definitely a lot of stuff. For him to be able to do that on a big stage the way he did it, for me, I'm proud. I never had that situation where I was a rookie where you go into the playoffs and it's a totally different type of atmosphere. It's a totally different level of intensity. He held his own for a fact."

Haslett, a veteran coach who is in his first year with the Titans, has already been impressed by his pupil

"I think David is a good football player," Haslett said. "He did a good job when he played, he's very instinctive, he's got short-area quickness. There's some things that he can get better at. I think we can improve everybody in certain areas."

Long spent most the offseason in Nashville, working on his game, his conditioning, and his diet.

He's eating fewer carbs, and after working with some of his teammates, he believes he's much better prepared mentally and physically at the start of his second NFL camp.

When he watched tape, he found areas he wanted to improve, from being better in coverage to just developing a better understanding of the defense.

"I feel like a lot of the stuff I was doing out there (last year) was just kind of second nature, see ball, get ball," he said. "But as far as now, I just want to put a lot of stuff together and just be way better than I was last year."

Long plans to keep watching teammates Evans and Brown.

And when he gets opportunities again in 2020, he wants to take advantage of them once again.

Along the way, Long said the inside backers are also looking out for one another.

"Of course, Rashaan and JB (Jayon Brown) are a lot more vocal," Long said. "I try to get (help others) in there, but I'm still learning myself. I feel like (Rashaan and Jayon) have done a nice job of getting rookies adjusted. Nick (Dzubnar) comes here, he's been in the game a long time, so he can get his one, two here and there, so I feel like everybody's doing a great job just coaching up each other. Not only worried about ourselves, but also making sure the guy next to us is getting better every day, too."

ISAIAH MACK SHOULDN'T BE HERE, BUT HE HAS TRUCKED HIS WAY INTO THE TITANS' PLANS

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
AUGUST 30, 2019

CHICAGO — His left testicle was gone and any more football could put his right testicle in jeopardy, and though that moment for Isaiah Mack — hearing from a doctor in a hospital that he would have to give up the game — was just eight years ago, it may as well have been a million years and a million miles from Thursday night at Soldier Field.

This time, Mack not playing was football good news. Or so it seems. The 6-foot-1, 299-pound surprise of the Tennessee Titans' preseason sat out a 19-15 win over the Chicago Bears, along with most of both teams' key players. Considering the former Tennessee-Chattanooga star's body of work leading up to Thursday, that's an apparent indication that he will be on the 53-man roster that must be finalized Saturday. There's nothing certain yet, and general manager Jon Robinson has decisions ahead. A third quarterback, Logan Woodside? A fourth running back, Jeremy McNichols? Keeping Mack likely would mean a surplus of defensive linemen for a team with a 3-4 defense, or it would mean a surprise release of someone supposedly ahead of Mack on the defensive line pecking order. Three players who fit that bill — Austin Johnson, Matt Dickerson and Brent Urban — started Thursday.

If he could do it, Robinson might send Mack directly to the Titans' practice squad for a year of developing and helping the Tennessee offense prepare for games each week. But a player who is cut from an active roster must clear waivers before he can be signed to a practice squad, and it would be a major gamble at this point to leave Mack exposed. He has played too well, looked too physical and athletic, at a premium position in this league to trust that another team wouldn't sign him to its active roster. More likely than the Titans flirting with a Mack heist is the Titans getting something out of Mack on the field in 2019.

They may have found themselves a gem here. They've definitely found a self-proclaimed "country boy" and "Mama's boy" from tiny Tunnel Hill, Ga., whose favorite hobby is going "mudding" in his pickup truck with his pickup-truck-loving buddies, who hunts and fishes and cooks and is admittedly obsessed with pedicures — he can get them more often now that the Titans are paying him more than $1,000 a week in the preseason. They've found an undrafted, 23-year-old honors student with a criminal justice degree from UTC whose intent the moment football ends is to work as a police officer in his hometown and perhaps go from there to the FBI or DEA. They've found a competitor who was so upset after a senior-year loss to his high school rival, he slept in a car all night rather than endure being around people. They've found a big kid who, during the in-home visit that got him to Chattanooga, sat in his mother's lap the entire time.

"Boy, get out of your mama's lap," Marcus West, then UTC's defensive line coach, joked near the end of a four-person conversation that included Charlotte head coach Will Healy, who was UTC's recruiting coordinator at the time. "I can tell we're gonna have to break this up."

Actually, he could tell there was no way. And that the 25-mile distance between the Macks' home and Chattanooga was going to be a major recruiting advantage. Sequoyah Mack and her two sons are tight. And a terrifying night in 2011 strengthened that bond and put her oldest son on the path that has him on the cusp of a full-time NFL job today.

Sequoyah made Sloppy Joes that night for Isaiah and his younger brother, Rashaun. The boys shared a room, and when Rashaun came into Sequoyah's room to tell her Isaiah's stomach was bothering him, she wondered if something had gone wrong with the meat.

"But then when he started projectile vomiting," she said, "I knew something else was going on."

Sequoyah is an oncology nurse and works at an HIV clinic, but this was a new one for her. Soon after racing Isaiah to the hospital, the Macks learned he had testicular torsion. This happens when the spermatic cord, which provides blood to the testicle, gets twisted. The blood supply stops and the pain and swelling are intense. It's most common among teenagers, and the Macks never found out what caused it. But the twisting had gone on too long to save Isaiah's left testicle, and he had it removed in an emergency surgery. Doctors then told him his right testicle was now in greater jeopardy and that he would have to give up football.

That's when he realized how much he cared about this game, which had done so much already to embolden him socially.

"He told me football was a part of him, that if he couldn't play he didn't want to go to school," Sequoyah said. "Obviously that wasn't an option. The No. 1 objective has always been education. But I made a deal with him that if he would make that the priority, I would do everything I could do to help him keep playing football."

Isaiah Mack and his mother, Sequoyah (Courtesy of Isaiah Mack)

They met with a urologist. They took all possible protective measures. They prayed. They never encountered another issue. Mack still has regular check-ups and has his testosterone closely monitored, but the risk has plummeted now that he's in his 20s.

"It was really tough, a rough time, but she got me through it," Mack said of Sequoyah. “It made me better.”

ISAIAH MACK

Better as a student. Better as a player. Healy and West, who is now Healy’s assistant head coach and co-defensive coordinator at Charlotte, knew bigger programs were missing on Mack. Georgia State, Arkansas State and Central Arkansas were the main competitors for Mack, even though he was becoming a force — nicknamed “IMack” — under coach Josh Robinson at Northwest Whitfield High.

“It’s just not a place people go to recruit much,” Healy said of Tunnel Hill, which according to U.S. Census data has a population of 1,168 and is more than 90 percent white. “The thing I remember most is that he just had a world of potential. Honestly, none of the success he’s having right now surprises me at all.”

West said the only thing that surprised him about Mack’s NFL situation is that he wasn’t drafted. Mack is “twitching out there right now,” West said of his quickness and explosion. And it’s hard for West to imagine an NFL coach or executive meeting with Mack and not being instantly impressed. Quirks aside, of course. Mack has a few.

“He’s country, country, country, and he’s just a different bird,” West said. “We still have the most meaningful, meaningless conversations ever. Those conversations mean the world to me, but a lot of times I’ll hang up the phone and say, ‘What the hell did we just talk about?’”

Mack made an impact right away at UTC under head coach Russ Huesman, though he redshirted in 2014 for a team that had future NFL pass rushers in Davis Tull and Keionta Davis, along with current Titans offensive lineman Corey Levin. He was a terror for the scout team, so much so that offensive linemen often got angry and delivered some extra shots after whistles had blown.

“We didn’t like having to block him,” Levin said.

“The older guys would get so pissed off at him because honestly he’d whoop their tail, man,” West said. “They’d always give him that extra shove after the whistle. I said, ‘Mack if I ever see them shove you again and you don’t do anything about it, I’m gonna jump down your throat so hard.’ So one day I see him after practice and he’s just sitting on a knee, in tears. I say ‘What’s wrong with you?’ He said, ‘Coach, every day since you told me I have to fight, I’ve been in a fight every single day. They push me, push them, I fight one and then I’m fighting them all. I said, ‘Mack, I promise you, you keep fighting every single day and they’ll eventually get tired of fighting you.’”

The next summer, Mack was living with those linemen, in the basement of Levin’s house, cooking ribs and Cajun pasta for the whole bunch. He was a quick success in college, but home was never far. Sequoyah would come over to his apartment on Monday nights during football season for his cooking. When he had breaks, he would get with his high school buddies for what remains his favorite pastime — big trucks with lights and lifts, loud speakers and one of several choice mud pits in the Tunnel Hill/Dalton area.

“We just have a good ol’ time,” said Mack, who has a Ford F-150. “Growing up, all my boys had big trucks and I wasn’t quite able to afford one, so now that’s the goal. A Ford F-250. But I love my truck now, it’s always dirty and muddy. It’s funny seeing people react when I’m the one who gets out of it. But that’s just me, I’m strange and I’m different, just somebody you can’t pinpoint. I don’t like being labeled as this or that.”

Mack went to college intent on a nursing career, to be like Sequoyah and perhaps to work with her. But he took a criminal justice class as a freshman on violence against women. He changed his major to criminal justice the next semester.

Though the two most important people in his life are women — Sequoyah and her mother, Sheenequa Mack — he had never seen women in this way.

“I saw a different view of how women go through life, the things they have to deal with,” Mack said. “Things I never thought about before that, just walking around campus, the trials and tribulations, things that men don’t have to think about. It really opened my eyes.”

The switch did not surprise Sequoyah.

“He’s this big brawny man, but he’s just a teddy bear,” she said of the son she calls “D” because his middle name is Dwight. “He’s for the underdog. When he was in high school I would often have to tell him, ‘You can’t save everybody. You can try but you can’t save everybody, because that’s not always for you to do.’ He would have a hard time seeing somebody mess with somebody who was less fortunate or smaller. He had a hard time seeing a bully. Then he’d become the aggressor. And I think that’s what he likes about football, he can let that anger spew all over the field.”

The hardest part of Mack’s college came when Healy got the Austin Peay job in 2016 and took West with him. Mack was certain at first that he wanted to transfer. The longest and most serious phone conversation he had with West came as Mack was sitting in the woods, near the Walnut Street Bridge in Chattanooga. That’s where he goes to think. West convinced Mack the right thing to do was to stay and keep playing for Huesman. Besides, how would he be able to handle being more than three hours away from home?

Mack stayed, and stayed again after Huesman left for Richmond and Tom Arth took over the program. Mack was named Southern Conference Defensive Player of the Year and an Associated Press All-American as a senior, collecting 78 tackles and 8½ sacks. He had become an NFL prospect. After the past month with the Titans, it is clear he is a player.

Sequoyah saw that for herself in Philadelphia, when her son asserted himself in the Titans' first preseason game.

"It's surreal, it gives you a peace, seeing your child work so hard to accomplish something and then getting there," said Sequoyah, who despite her busy schedule gets to her sons' big moments — Rashaun is a Georgia State student and aspiring lawyer — whenever possible.

So it was tough for her to miss Thursday's game. She was back home working. She does all she can to be there when he plays. As it turns out, she didn't miss a thing.

Titans brass won't talk roster until the roster must be discussed. Mike Vrabel said after Thursday's game that he has "enjoyed working with" Mack, but he wouldn't get into the decision to sit him. Mack said he didn't know what it meant, but he may have let a grin slip in briefly as he dressed. It looks like he's made it. The NFL rookie minimum salary is $495,000 which means, though careful investing will be the emphasis, a souped-up F-250 would be in order. That and even more pampering for those feet that helped get Mack here.

"I get my feet done an obnoxious amount of times," Mack said. "It might go up a little bit more if I make the team. But hey, Mom always told me to take care of my feet. And I do whatever she says, she's the boss. She's my person."

TITANS ROOKIE ‘BIG MURCH’ FOUND HIS NFL RECIPE IN THE FAMILY RESTAURANT

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 14, 2020

Editor’s note: This is the fourth in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans’ 2020 NFL Draft picks. Stories on Isaiah Wilson, Kristian Fulton and Darrynton Evans were published earlier this week.

Farrell and Larrell could have been Milton and Hilton. Milton and Glenda Murchison were having twin boys, bringing them to a final tally of five children, and the one thing Glenda knew was that she wanted their names to rhyme.

The firstborn would be Milton Jr. That was a lock.

“I would have been tickled to death if Farrell was named Milton Jr.,” Milton said of the child born 15 minutes earlier than his brother on April 24, 1997, in Elizabethtown, N.C. “I just wasn’t too fond of the Hilton part.”

Really, imagine the Tennessee Titans drafting a guy named Hilton. “Hilton Murchison” sounds more like an insurance adjuster than a defensive lineman. Luckily, a neighbor came through with a suggestion. Farrell and Larrell it would be. They arrived. Twenty-three years and one day later, tension turned to elation in the Murchison household when a call came to Larrell’s phone.

“Big Murch!” Titans GM Jon Robinson said to Larrell, a 6-foot-3, 297-pound defensive tackle whose tremendous senior season at NC State helped convince Robinson to draft him in the fifth round.

That was part of it, anyway. The Titans have been consistently solid on the field in four years with Robinson at the helm, with consistently solid people. There’s a connection. Talent rules in the NFL.

Everyone talks about character. Some manage to find it and supply their locker rooms with it. The locker room in Nashville needs replenishing with Logan Ryan, Jurrell Casey, Delanie Walker, Wesley Woodyard and Jack Conklin moving on.

As Robinson and coach Mike Vrabel talked about Larrell’s football attributes — length, power, hips and so on — little things that break ties between prospects snuck out. Robinson mentioned a “great conversation” on FaceTime with Larrell and that “Big T,” also known as defensive line coach Terrell Williams, had “spent a lot of time with him.”

There’s only so much two people can talk about when it comes to gaps, stunts and twists.

“The longer the process went out,” Vrabel said, “the more we all started to like Larrell and his willingness to learn our defense and build a relationship.”

Here is Larrell’s football profile: Seven sacks and 12 tackles for loss as a senior, 29 reps on the bench, a 5.05 in the 40, a 79 and 3/8-inch wingspan and a week full of impressive drilling before the Senior Bowl.

Here is Larrell’s character profile: Lumber, macaroni, cancer, junior college, recruiting promises broken and team captain status as an NC State senior — a rarity for juco transfers.

“He’s a country boy, one of those guys who doesn’t need a whole lot and appreciates everything he gets,” NC State director of strength and conditioning Dantonio “Thunder” Barnette said of Larrell. “His parents just did a phenomenal job of raising him the right way, and he’s a guy who gives you an opportunity to say to your team, ‘Hey, guys, if you put the work in, look what can happen for you.’”

It goes back to the room Larrell was sitting in at his parents’ house in Elizabethtown (population: 3,800)

when he got the call from Robinson. The entire Murchison family is close, but the four who have reunited as housemates during the COVID-19 pandemic share the achievement of Glenda’s Just Desserts and Lunch Counter as well. Glenda’s dream of a soul food restaurant, with a rotating menu featuring porked chops and chicken, seafood on Fridays and desserts made fresh and selling out every day, came true when the twins were in eighth grade.

She was a hospital administrator before jumping into the restaurant full time. Milton has been a saw filer at a lumber mill for 31 years, and he has supplemented that with a lawn-care business for the past 15 years. Helping Glenda get the restaurant going became job No. 3, and Farrell and Larrell were put to work. That included Saturday mornings after starring the night before for East Bladen High. They’d sweep, clean and cook — the things they had clearance to cook, at least.

“My go-to favorite thing on the menu is her mac and cheese — that’s No. 1,” Farrell said. “The cheese, there’s some secret formula she’s got, some Krabby Patty formula. She won’t even teach it to me.”

Said Glenda: “I’d tell him and then I’d have to kill him.”

The twins have their secrets, too. As twins tend to do, they developed a language only they can understand. They claim to have used it to set up a surprise party for Glenda once, though she insists she was on to them. They made up their own words, like “thrax” for “extreme swagger.” As in, per Farrell: “Odell Beckham Jr., he’s got that thrax.”

They are fraternal twins, not identical, and a difference in personality was apparent early as well.

“Larrell has always been quiet,” Glenda said. “Farrell, the opposite. I used to call him ‘Mouth Almighty’ and ‘Tongue Everlasting.’ There’s no such thing as a stranger to him. I told him, ‘With that mouth, you need to go to college and become a lawyer.’ Larrell, he’d come into a room and say hello and wouldn’t say another word if you didn’t talk to him. But he’s become more of a conversationalist.”

(Interviews with the Murchisons confirm this verbosity profile — Farrell came in at 1,168 words, Milton at 928, Glenda at 907 and Larrell at 698).

Football became and continues to be an expression outlet for Larrell.

“I love it because, shoot, it’s opened so many doors for me to meet people,” Larrell said. “I can be aggressive; everything in the outside world can be put aside because I’m playing football and I can be locked in. And football allows me to bring people together. Even in my hometown, people who wouldn’t normally talk to each other talk all the time because of football.”

In the early days, true to their personalities, Farrell was much better than Larrell. He was bigger, too. Farrell was “Big Murch” and Larrell was “Little Murch” back then.

Here’s a re-creation of a conversation that took place more than once in the early 21st century around the Murchison home:

Larrell: “Mama, everybody keeps picking Farrell before they pick me.”

Glenda: “Just wait until you get to high school; you’ll pass him.”

Farrell: “Don’t say that.”

Glenda (quietly to Farrell): “I’m just saying that to make him feel better.”

But it was true. Larrell came back from a Junior ROTC camp before the twins were juniors and had spurted past Farrell. He played at about 6-foot-2, 250 pounds that season, a defensive end and crushing fullback who cleared the way for a 6-foot-0, 215-pound

Farrell to roll up big yardage on the ground. They were resolved to play college ball together at nearby Winston-Salem State, but Larrell’s standardized test score didn’t make the cut. So Farrell decided to go with him to Louisburg College, two hours north, to play junior college ball and grow together into major-college prospects.

Farrell was the team’s offensive player of the year as a freshman, rushing for 691 yards in eight games. Larrell made big gains in two years, to the point that Texas, Ole Miss and Georgia flew in him and his family for visits after a junior college All-America season in 2016. He thought he was signing with Georgia. But then the scholarship disappeared. He had quietly loved what NC State was offering him all along. And NC State was interested in both of the twins. But the scholarship for Farrell didn’t materialize. He had a chance for a full ride at his original choice, WSSU, and he took it. In the fall of 2017, for the first time in the twins’ lives, they were separated.

The Rams put Farrell right to work, and he rushed for 542 yards. The Wolfpack put Larrell in the lab. He needed a redshirt season to excel at the Power 5 level. And this program, which would see four defensive linemen selected in the 2018 NFL Draft — including No. 5 overall pick Bradley Chubb — knows something about developing them. Murchison packed on about 30 pounds to get into the 290s and focused on working inside.

“I’ll stand on a table and tell you this is one of the hardest-working kids we’ve had in our program,” Barnette said of Larrell. “As a player, he reminds me of (L.A. Chargers defensive tackle) Justin Jones a lot. He got so good at using his hands, it almost looks like he’s doing karate out there. That’s the player he reminds me of, but he has that Bradley Chubb work ethic.”

Larrell was ready to make a difference on the field as the 2018 season approached. And then football’s importance receded.

Farrell had gone to the doctor twice for a lump in his testicles and was first told it was a pulled muscle and then epididymitis. Glenda was with him after a third visit in July 2018 that included an ultrasound, and she broke down when they were told Farrell had Stage 2 testicular cancer.

The good news was it was discovered relatively early and has a high recovery rate. The scary news was this type of cancer can spread quickly. After surgery, Farrell would need extensive chemotherapy at Duke Cancer Center, five days a week until the end of October. Farrell’s fight for survival would coincide with Larrell’s major-college football arrival.

“I kind of underestimated how hard it would be,” Farrell said of the loss of appetite and sense of smell, the exhaustion, the spinning room when he tried to sleep and the nausea that resulted in an extended vomiting episode when he finally came home for good from treatment.

“Farrell doesn’t have bad moments, you know?” Milton said. “But he wouldn’t eat. He and his mother fought about it every day, and one day she got the belt out and said, ‘I’m gonna whip you if you don’t eat.’”

“It was draining,” Larrell said. “I called him every day, but a lot of times he just didn’t have the energy to talk. And then he’d get his energy back by the end of a weekend and have to go back in for another treatment.”

Larrell’s performance on the field helped. He was a breakout performer for NC State, named defensive lineman of the year and most improved player. Glenda remembers the real-time improvement in Farrell’s spirits as he sat up in his bed and watched Larrell wreck Virginia with three sacks in a Wolfpack win. It was similar to Larrell’s reaction in the stands the following fall as Farrell — cancer gone, scans clean, weight back on and football pads too — rushed for 109 yards against UNC Pembroke.

LARRELL MURCHISON

“It was a great year,” Farrell said of the final college season for both. “We’d basically try to outdo each other. I’d tell him how many sacks I need in this game, and he’d tell me how many yards he needs. And just to see how he played and the opportunity he has now — honestly, Larrell is living proof of trusting the process. He did everything by the book, and look at him. Honest to God, he’s my hero.”

Funny, Larrell said the same thing about Farrell. They shared top billing as grand marshals of the Elizabethtown Christmas parade. And now they’re getting one more extended, unexpected dose of living under the same roof during the COVID-19 pandemic. Glenda is home, too, having closed the restaurant until it is safe to open it again. She decided not to keep it open for takeout purposes, though she’s had many requests to make cakes and sell them out of her home.

“I’m busy enough cooking for these two — eating me out of house and home,” she said.

Farrell is still holding out hope for some kind of NFL tryout after rushing for 635 yards as a senior. If not, he’s thinking about breaking into coaching and might have an opportunity at Louisburg. He’s also thought about extending the family restaurant empire someday and opening a barbecue place. “Little Murch” has the edge on “Big Murch” there. Farrell recently tried again to get Glenda to give up the mac and cheese recipe.

“I’ll just make you some,” she said. “How about that?”

MyCOLE PRUITT

TE MYCOLE PRUITT PROVIDES VALUABLE VERSATILITY FOR THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – When former Titans tight end Delanie Walker went down with a gruesome ankle injury in the season opener at Miami in 2018, the impact was felt all the way in Houston.

Walker's injury resulted in an address change for another tight end, MyCole Pruitt. Because the day after Walker's season-ending injury, the Titans signed Pruitt off of Houston's practice squad.

And ever since, Pruitt has made the most of the opportunity in Tennessee.

Pruitt, who is headed into his fifth NFL season, has carved out a nice role for himself with the Titans. After signing a contract extension with the Titans this offseason, Pruitt is expected to provide versatility for the team again during the 2020 season alongside fellow tight ends Jonnu Smith and Anthony Firkser.

"I feel like this is a great fit for me, ever since the first day I came in it was a family atmosphere. I felt welcome, I felt like I could carve out a role and I have done that," Pruitt said. "I want to just get better at that as we go into this year.

"In the NFL it is all about finding the right situation, and I feel like I found that here. There's a lot of things that were able to line up for me, and when I came here, I had to find that niche and carve that niche and get better at that. I pride myself in being versatile and being able to do many different things, and whatever I am called upon to do I am going to execute that to the best of my ability."

A 6-foot-2, 245-pounder, Pruitt played in all 19 games, with 11 starts, for the Titans in 2019, including the team's three playoff contests. During the regular season, Pruitt caught just six passes for 90 yards and a touchdown, but he was a big contributor in the running game as a blocker.

Proof of that can be found in a photo taken the day running back Derrick Henry clinched the NFL's single-season rushing mark for the 2019 season in Houston, Pruitt's old stomping grounds.

"MyCole has a level of versatility, he's one of those players that we talk about that plays more than one position," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Pruitt. "He plays on the line as a tight end, he plays off, we've had him in the backfield, he helps us on special teams, and so, to be able to do that, that fills a lot of jobs and he's got a good understanding of what we're asking him to do on offense and on first and second-down offense."

Drafted in the fifth-round of the 2015 NFL Draft by the Vikings, Pruitt played in 16 games in Minnesota during his rookie season. In 2016, after being waived by Minnesota late in the season and signed back to the team's practice squad, the Bears came calling, and signed him to their 53-man roster.

Pruitt was waived by the Bears at the start of the 2017 season, and he then joined the Bills for a short stint. Then it was on to Houston, and eventually Tennessee.

Pruitt, who has 27 catches for 294 yards and two touchdowns during his career, said it meant a lot to him to be re-signed by the Titans this offseason.

"It just shows that hard work doesn't go unnoticed around here," he said. "Coach Vrabel always says: 'We're going to treat you how you treat your team', and I felt like that extension shows that is a fact, and that's something we do around here, and that's something we believe in around here."

Now Pruitt is ready to go out and do what's asked of him in 2020.

He's excited about the team, and the group of tight ends around him, led by tight ends coach Todd Downing.

"We try to teach our mentality out there (on the practice field every day): We believe that we should be the best run-blocking group out there, as well as the best pass-catching tight end group out there. We pride ourselves in our versatility and being able to do it all on the field," Pruitt said.

"(As a group), we are very versatile, and we can get things done."

KALIF RAYMOND

TENNESSEE TITANS: KALIF RAYMOND'S JOURNEY TO THE NFL CENTERED ON UNCERTAINTY, THRIFTINESS AND OVERCOMING THE ODDS

BY LUKE WORSHAM
ATOZSPORTS.COM
DECEMBER 5, 2019

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — To call Tennessee Titans receiver Kalif Raymond's journey to the NFL "off-schedule" would be somewhat inaccurate. A truer claim would be that, in his journey, there wasn't much of a schedule at all.

"It was hard," Raymond recalled of his long, winding path to the NFL. "You were kind of going in there thinking, 'I'm just going to do whatever I can to get a shot.' There were no steps, there was no process."

Over the last month, Raymond has become a key contributor for the Titans. He is now their primary kickoff returner, and his 40-yard receiving touchdown in the fourth quarter on Sunday iced a crucial win for the Titans against the Colts.

The path to Raymond getting where he is now was filled with plenty of uncertainty, a bit of thriftiness, loads of diligence and constantly overcoming the odds.

PREP DAYS IN ATLANTA

For high school, Raymond attended the academically rigorous Greater Atlanta Christian School where he caught just 30 passes for 511 yards over his career.

Following a serious injury toward the end of his senior year, it seemed to Raymond and his family—he and his seven siblings remain very close to this day—that collegiate athletics would not be a legitimate possibility.

But Raymond did something that, probably, very few players currently in the NFL did to get a college scholarship offer. Raymond began sending cold emails to various schools that had football programs but were mostly known for academics.

"It was a long process," he said. "I broke my ankle my senior year of high school right before the end of the season. I had to send out emails to a bunch of schools for me to get an opportunity."

Only three schools responded to Raymond's emails with interest in the tiny speedster: Georgetown University, Lehigh University and College of the Holy Cross. Raymond settled on the latter.

TO HOLY CROSS

At Holy Cross, Kalif Raymond was a dual-sport athlete, playing football and running track. In football, he established a reputation as a do-it-all player, returning punts and kickoffs in addition to playing receiver.

When Raymond's college career came to an end, his future was unclear. He was not invited to the NFL Scouting Combine, and Holy Cross had never put on a Pro Day to showcase its graduating players to pro scouts.

Still, Raymond knew he wanted to play in the NFL.

"I think I just told myself, 'look, I know I want to play in the NFL,'" Raymond said. "'I don't know how it's going to happen, I don't know how to make it happen, but if I get a shot, be as prepared as possible.'"

To make himself "as prepared as possible," Raymond started by securing a spot at another school's Pro Day. He was allowed to participate in drills at Harvard University, which is roughly an hour's drive east from Holy Cross.

"THERE WASN'T ANYONE TO CALL."

But when that opportunity was lined up for Raymond, another obstacle arose.

He got confused about the time at which the drills were set to begin, leading to him nearly being late. The biggest factor behind that gaffe was Raymond's, and Holy Cross's, general lack of knowledge on the pre-draft process.

There was no real roadmap for Raymond to follow.

"There wasn't anyone to call at Holy Cross and ask, 'hey, what's this going to be like?'" Raymond said. "I got the times wrong so I ended up getting there just before it started, and I was third in all the lineups. Everything was just so new at the time."

Raymond was relatively successful at Harvard's Pro Day, running an impressive 4.34-second 40-yard dash. He failed, however, to catch the eyes of any of the NFL scouts who were in attendance.

BUMPY START IN THE PROS

As a result, Raymond was not selected in the 2016 NFL Draft. When the draft ended, only two teams were interested in Raymond, at all, as an undrafted free agent: Arizona and Denver.

Thanks to an impressive phone call with then-special teams coordinator Joe DeCamillis, Raymond chose the Broncos.

"We had a lengthy conversation," Raymond said. "He was very truthful, very honest with me. Hearing his voice, hearing him talk to me, I knew that was where I wanted to go."

Raymond's career in the NFL began exactly how one would expect the career of an undrafted and mostly unsought after Holy Cross-alumnus to start: being cut several times.

The Broncos waived Raymond as a part of their final cuts during the last week of the 2016 preseason. He then spent most of the season on Denver's practice squad before being called up to the team's active roster for a few games in December.

KALIF RAYMOND

After being waived again by the Broncos during final cuts in 2017, Raymond found a temporary home with the Jets, who waived him from their active roster and, subsequently, their practice squad by the end of September.

Since that 2016 phone call with DeCamillis, Raymond has been waived a total of nine times by four different teams.

The Titans are one of them. After Raymond initially made their 53-man roster after 2019 Training Camp, the Titans waived him after just one game and added him to the practice squad.

CARVING OUT A ROLE WITH THE TITANS

It was on the Titans' practice squad, as a member of the scout team, that Raymond began to carve out a role for himself, a first for him in the NFL.

Often in early-season practices, Raymond switched out his number 14 for the jersey number of a receiver the Titans' secondary was getting set to face. In Week One, he played the role of the Browns' Odell Beckham, Jr. Week Two saw Raymond portraying T.Y. Hilton of the Colts.

It was a job that Raymond enjoyed and one that he took seriously.

"It's a good feeling if you go out there and give the defense a good look as that player, and then they go and shut him down during the week," Raymond said. "It means I did my job."

Members of the Titans' secondary, one of the NFL's most productive units in 2019, knew they were seeing something special in their early-season practice matchups against Raymond.

"When I went out there, I would tell him to go 100%, even if it was a walkthrough," corner Adoree' Jackson said.

"Give me some releases, give me something.' I appreciated that level of competition from him. He was out there going hard as he battled us."

"From a veteran guy, he has my utmost respect because I see how he works day in and day out," corner Logan Ryan said.

"I want him to do well. He's tough to cover, let me tell you that. I think people are starting to see that."

BACK TO THE ACTIVE ROSTER

Raymond's role with the Titans switched, again, just one day ahead of the team's Week Eight matchup with Tampa Bay when the Titans elevated him from the practice squad to the active roster.

Darius Jennings, the Titans' kickoff returner for the first seven games of 2019, was struggling to make things happen in the return game. So, the team waived him and gave Raymond a shot.

To no one's surprise, he took full advantage of the opportunity.

Since returning to the active roster, Raymond has produced numerous chunk gains on kickoff returns, becoming an integral part of an extremely effective Titans special-teams unit.

"He's taken full responsibility for that kick returning job, and he's done a great job gaining yards and making the right calls," said safety Dane Cruikshank, another key special teams player for the Titans.

Raymond's biggest contribution to the Titans since coming back to the active roster, however, came in the fourth quarter of the team's Week 13 win over the Colts.

The Titans offense faced a third-and-6 with a 24-17 lead and 3:11 left in the game. Instead of opting to run the ball with star tailback Derrick Henry to keep the clock moving, the team put its trust into Raymond's hands.

QB Ryan Tannehill faked a give outside to Henry, stepped up into the pocket and fired a shot downfield for Raymond, who tracked the ball over his shoulder and dove into the end zone for a game-clinching, 40-yard touchdown.

It was the first receiving touchdown of Raymond's four-year NFL career.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR KALIF RAYMOND?

Raymond's football career continues to defy odds and convention. The 5-8 receiver from a Catholic college with just over 3,000 students has managed to solidify a key role on an NFL team with more-than-realistic hopes of winning its division.

The only rhyme or reason behind Raymond getting to the point he's currently at has been a refusal to give up or quit.

"It doesn't matter where you went to college, it doesn't matter how you got here, it matters what you do when you're here," said head coach Mike Vrabel, who called Raymond's game-winner against the Colts offensive coordinator Arthur Smith's "best call" of the season.

"Kalif has taken advantage of every opportunity. When he comes in, he's prepared. He studies. He has a great attitude, he's tough. I'm happy for him."

In the midst of his recent success, Kalif Raymond's focus, as it always has, remains on the present.

"One of the mental things I've learned is, 'if you look too far into the future, you lose today.' I try to take advantage of every day, every minute, every hour. That way, if I do well during the day, I won't have to worry about my future."

FORMER HOLY CROSS WR KALIF RAYMONDS MINDFULNESS HELPING HIM EXCEL WITH TITANS

BY JENNIFER TOLAND
THE TELEGRAM
SEPTEMBER 3, 2020

Tennessee Titans wide receiver Kalif Raymond begins every day the same way he ends it — with 10-20 minutes of meditation.

“Discipline and consistency are all part of being a professional,” Raymond, the former Holy Cross star, said during a phone interview earlier this week. “The goal is for me to (meditate) every day. If there’s something I want to work on or being able to let go or staying present, or maybe there’s something deep down in my mind that I want to work through, I kind of have a particular intent every time I meditate.”

As the 26-year-old Raymond prepares for the upcoming season, he feels he has progressed greatly, both physically and mentally, since entering the NFL as an undrafted free agent with the Denver Broncos in 2016.

“There are different parts of the game you can always improve on,” Raymond said. “As you go from year to year, if there isn’t something you’re learning from the year before, I don’t think you’re doing a great job looking at yourself and seeing where you can get better. That’s the name of the game — being able to continuously improve your game. There is always something to work on.”

After being promoted from the Titans’ practice squad to the active roster last Oct. 26, Raymond made nine catches for 170 yards in eight games, and scored his first career touchdown in a win over the Indianapolis Colts. He also averaged 22.4 yards on 18 kickoff returns. Raymond, who graduated from Holy Cross in 2016, ranks fifth all time at HC in all-purpose yards and second in kick return yards.

The 5-foot-8, 182-pound speedster emerged as a dependable deep threat for Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill last season. That first career TD was a 40-yard grab.

In the Titans’ upset win over the Baltimore Ravens in the AFC divisional round, Raymond hauled in a 45-yard TD reception and became the first HC graduate to score a touchdown in an NFL playoff game since Bill Osmanski of the Chicago Bears in the 1940 NFL Championship Game.

In this year’s training camp, Raymond has worked on becoming a more well-rounded receiver, running more short and intermediate routes, while also continuing to field kickoffs and punts.

“He had some big plays for us last year down the field,” Titans coach Mike Vrabel said earlier in camp. “Ryan has confidence in him. I think he’s improved his route running. He’s not the biggest guy, so he’s going to have to run really good routes against press coverage or bigger-type players that may want to get their hands on him or create some contact. I think he understands that, and he’s worked really hard.”

Raymond is projected as the Titans’ No. 4 receiver, but the humble and hardworking Georgia native, who shuttled on and off the practice squads and active rosters of four teams the last four years, is taking nothing for granted.

“I don’t feel at liberty to think that way and I don’t want to,” Raymond said, “because I think at that point you kind of become content, you become stagnant. I’m always pushing. We have guys in the receiver room that you get to see grind and every day we’re constantly pushing each other.”

Raymond made his NFL debut for the Broncos late in the 2016 season and appeared in four games as a kickoff and punt returner.

Denver waived Raymond the next September, and he had stints with the Jets and Giants. He spent a short time on the Titans’ practice squad in 2018 before being released and joining the Giants’ practice squad for just two days.

On Dec. 24, 2018, Raymond returned to the Titans’ practice squad and later signed a reserve/future contract with the team. He began the 2019 season on Tennessee’s practice squad and was elevated to the active roster in October.

“Just learning to be a professional,” Raymond said, “that’s what the whole journey has been about. Learning ways to constantly improve from one practice to the next, from one game to the next. Also, finding the best way to be prepared. That’s one of the things that helped me a lot, just being prepared for those moments, for those catches, for those opportunities. That’s what gave me my best shot to go and succeed.”

Raymond said the mental side of the game is the biggest difference between his rookie year and now. “By far,” he said.

“I didn’t know how much of an effect it had on you,” he added. “You go home, you lift, you train, you run, but being able to work on my composure, my stress level, reading, meditating, staying off my phone, it helps me create a lot of mental and emotional stability. I think that makes a huge difference going into games, not adding extra stress and weight and stuff like that.”

Raymond said his former Broncos teammate, wide receiver Bennie Fowler, introduced him to meditation.

“He was the first person I talked to about it,” Raymond said. “He was very instrumental. He gave me insight and also a lot of understanding and tools and resources to be able to go forward with that. I’m definitely very appreciative of Bennie for that.”

Raymond spent the offseason at home in Atlanta with his family, and took some time to let his mind and body heal before beginning at-home workouts. NFL OTAs and minicamps were canceled this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

With many protocols in place, Raymond said camp is a little different, “but once you finally get to practice you just go out there and play football.”

Raymond played for former coach Tom Gilmore at Holy Cross, but he remains in close contact with the program through current coach Bob Chesney.

“Coach Chesney texts me a lot,” Raymond said, “sends me a lot of uplifting messages. He does a very good job of contacting former players.”

Gaining comfort in the offense, making some big plays and helping the Titans come within one game of last year’s Super Bowl gave Raymond some confidence heading into this season.

“Definitely it has,” he said. “When it comes down to constantly improving, you always shift to what you’re working toward, but it gives me a lot of confidence knowing the team trusts me and that’s what makes me feel the strongest. When I’m at my best, it’s knowing that I’m with the team and those guys trust me because I’m going to do everything I can for them. So it’s definitely a confidence booster.”

The Titans, who signed former Patriots kicker Stephen Gostkowski on Thursday, open the season Sept. 14 at Denver and with high expectations for 2020.

“We have a great group of guys inside the locker room,” Raymond said, “high-character guys who all want to fight for each other and I think that’s what pushes teams far.”

TITANS HOPING FOR EVEN MORE FLASH FROM OLB DERICK ROBERSON IN YEAR TWO

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 10, 2020

NASHVILLE – Derick Roberson got a taste of the NFL during his rookie season in 2019, and the Titans got a further peek into his potential.

Despite playing in just three regular season games – and 29 defensive snaps – the undrafted rookie edge rusher got himself noticed.

In the team's Week 16 contest against the Saints, Roberson twice sacked quarterback Drew Brees. In doing so, he became the first Titans rookie with two or more sacks in a game since linebacker Avery Williamson accomplished the feat as a rookie against the Pittsburgh Steelers in 2014.

Roberson, who spent 10 weeks on the practice squad earlier in the year and three more weeks as an inactive on Sundays, followed that up with a sack the following week at Houston.

His final stat line: three sacks in three regular season games. Not bad, huh?

Now the Titans hope they can get even more out of Sam Houston State product moving forward.

"Roby from the gate flashed some ability to rush the passer," Titans outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen said. "I think the main thing with him right now ... (is) consistency, and ultimately just development. Being a first-, second-down player, the run game, some of that type of stuff, taking the next step there has been what's held him back a little bit in terms of that playtime, but he definitely has value on third down in passing situations."

Derick Roberson Sneaks Up on Drew Brees for Huge Third-Down Sack

The Titans added veteran Vic Beasley at the position this offseason, while re-signing Kamalei Correa. The team returns its top pass rusher from a year ago in Harold Landry, who led the team with nine sacks. Outside backers D'Andre Walker, Reggie Gilbert will be joined in the competition by Josh Smith and Jordan Williams in training camp.

Roberson, who played in all three of the team's postseason contests, hopes to earn more playing time and opportunities in 2020.

Plenty hinges on his development this offseason, but so far, Bowen has liked what he's seen from afar. Bowen regrets not having the opportunity to work with Roberson more. The Titans continue to work in Zoom meetings instead of on the field in OTAs and minicamps.

Roberson appeared in 32 games with 20 starts over three seasons at Sam Houston State, where he totaled 123 tackles, 23 sacks, eight passes defensed, one interception and seven forced fumbles.

"I think the first, second down stuff in terms of scheme, understanding, and the technique – which he's come a long way," Bowen said. "He really has, and he's bought in, and he's dialed in this offseason."

"That's kind of one of the more disappointing things about not having this offseason, like Year 1 to Year 2, like you saw with Harold and some of these guys, that offseason is huge for development," Bowen said. "That's where we're going to have to strive to hopefully get caught back up. Hopefully these guys are doing what they say they're doing in terms of working out and all the drills, and all that type of stuff. That's going to be a challenge for us and that's something that we're going to have to continue to stress, probably more so even going into the season than what we normally do in terms of time allotment just because of this, not being able to do it this offseason."

RODGER SAFFOLD III

TITANS VETERAN LINEMAN RODGER SAFFOLD HUNGRY FOR SUPER BOWL RING AFTER TWO CLOSE CALLS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 29, 2020

NASHVILLE – Rodger Saffold had options when he became a free agent after the 2018 season.

The veteran offensive lineman had just played in a Super Bowl with the Los Angeles Rams, and part of his mission was to find a good match with a contender.

He ended up signing with the Titans, and he still remembers the reaction from some.

"People thought I was crazy for coming to the Titans," he said, before adding: "But look at us now."

Heading into his 11th NFL season, Saffold is as hungry as ever.

After his Rams lost in Super Bowl LIII to the Patriots, during his first season in Tennessee Saffold was part of playoff wins at New England and Baltimore before experiencing an AFC Championship loss at Kansas City. As a result, the Titans finished one win short of making it to the Super Bowl in Miami.

Saffold started all 19 games at left guard in 2019, including the three playoff contests.

He has a Super Bowl-or-bust mindset heading into 2020.

"My passion for that is through the roof," Saffold said during a Zoom call on Thursday. "After going to the Super Bowl and then realizing that we were one game from getting into the (Super Bowl) with the Titans, I was really driven. My entire focus was driven to getting back to the Super Bowl. Total complete confidence in myself and my teammates, and basically what can I do to get us there again. This time we know having a slow start won't help us at all.

"We really had to gut-wrench through the season to get everything back the right way. For us now, I think that now that we know our capabilities, having that fast start is always in the back of our minds. But we're not putting any pressure on us. We know that hard work is what got us there. For me, I constantly – even the day after our loss in the Super Bowl, all I thought about was getting back. People thought I was crazy for coming to the Titans, but look at us now. I have nothing but confidence in my team and I can't wait to get back in that position again."

Rodger Saffold Looking Forward to Getting Back to Work with Teammates

Saffold struggled at the start in 2019.

In fact, following a Week 5 loss to the Bills, he stood at his locker and beat himself up after allowing multiple sacks in multiple games early last season. He blamed poor technique, and a new scheme, for his issues in Tennessee after playing his first nine NFL seasons with the Rams.

"I feel like I am letting my team down at this point," Saffold said at the time. "I am not used to having this type of frustration. ... I am not going to blame anybody on my team – my players, my coaches. I am just going to have to find a way to get connected with this team and be able to get in rhythm with the team.

"At the end of the day, even though we all make mistakes, we always talk about how you have to be critical of yourself and that is one thing that I definitely take to heart. The only thing that I can do is come in here and try to be the same guy without being too down."

Saffold ending up settling down, and settling in.

He was part of an offensive line that paved the way for running back

Derrick Henry to lead the NFL in rushing with 1,509 yards, and while the group allowed too many sacks of quarterbacks Marcus Mariota and Ryan Tannehill, it showed improvement in the second half of the season, and during the playoffs.

Tannehill made it to the Pro Bowl as he led the NFL in passer rating.

And Saffold found his footing.

"There was definitely an adjustment last season just with everything being new," Saffold said. "I think that just having that perseverance to just keep working through it and then start meshing with the offensive line, it allowed us a lot of success toward the end of the year. I really like the mentality, the direction that we're kind of going into next year. I think that we should expect to be on the same plane. Just continue from last season, but always challenging ourselves to be better than before.

"As far as for myself, (I now have a better understanding of the) kind of the concepts that the coaches are looking for. Kind of the way that they want us to handle certain types of protections, the techniques. We started to figure that out better and better as the season went on and now it's kind of second nature. The fact that they can tell me something and I can regurgitate that back to them the way that they see it is really helpful. Kind of understanding plays and understanding technique. Now I have a better grasp of that, so it's going to help me in the future, especially in the future."

HOW TITANS' RODGER SAFFOLD BECAME AN ESPORTS OWNER AND WHAT'S NEXT

*BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
AUGUST 17, 2020*

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- It all started with trips to Blockbuster to rent video games.

That's how Tennessee Titans offensive lineman Rodger Saffold III and his business partner, Kahreem Horsley, were first exposed to the world of online gaming.

Saffold and Horsley have known each other for around 15 years. Gears of War was one game they played together early on.

Horsley became a pro in 2008 playing Call of Duty 4: Modern Warfare. He joined a series of small online leagues and played in weekly Major League Gaming 2K tournaments. He was building a following, so he and Saffold started streaming games on Twitch, an online platform for gamers. As their audience grew, Horsley and Saffold started thinking of founding a team of their own. Fast-forward to 2014 and Saffold, who was the No. 33 overall pick of the 2010 draft by the Rams, became one of the first active professional athletes to own an esports team.

Rodger Saffold, left, founded his own esports team with business partner Kahreem Horsley in 2014. Courtesy of Kahreem Horsley

"You start to get into conversations with people [about esports ownership] and they look at you like, 'What the hell are you talking about?'" Saffold said. "At the end of the day, they still look at video games as a child's game. You have to tell them, 'No, this is a very profitable business.' This is a business that you want to get in as early as you can because the price keeps going up. You see all of these people and realize it's really a huge deal. These franchises keep getting more and more expensive over time."

Now Saffold and Horsley have even bigger plans for their esports future after announcing last week they're expanding to include a team for VALORANT, a first-person shooter game released in June.

Building a team

Competing in tournaments opened Horsley's eyes to how more money was being earned on the competitive scene. Global esports revenue exceeded $1 billion in 2019, according to a report from Forbes.

Saffold and Horsley looked into starting a gaming organization that housed competitive esports gamers, with a goal of eventually selling merchandise. It wasn't expensive -- all they had to pay for initially was setting up a limited liability company (LLC) and traveling to tournaments. They came up with the name Rise Nation, which was recently shortened to Rise.

Rise's ascension started during its rookie year. Horsley lost a tournament but turned his attention to the players who beat him -- Jonathan "Pac Man" Tucker, Jamal "Whea7s" Lee, Daniel "Loony" Loza and Damod "F3ars" Abney.

Back then it wasn't common for players to be under contract as they are now. Horsley reached out to them via Twitter and had contracts drawn up. Six months later, that team competed for the 2014 Call of Duty Championship.

It placed seventh and won $35,000.

Making a name for themselves

Rise began competing in the Call of Duty World League. In 2018, its last year in the league, it finished first in three open events in Atlanta, Seattle and Anaheim, California. It won six major championships in Call of Duty.

And it has been able to expand into other games such as Gears of War and Street Fighter, where in its first year Rise won a $250,000 prize for winning the Capcom Cup. The key was adding a player from the Dominican Republic -- Saul "MenaRD" Mena -- whom, Horsley said, no one had ever heard of.

Tennessee Titans lineman Rodger Saffold, center, saw his Rise team soar to success during the Call of Duty World League season in 2018. MLG Rise has 32 total employees, including 15 pro gamers. Before bringing a player aboard, it does a background check and scours a prospective player's social media for signs of trouble.

"It's a regular process like you would do at any other place," Horsley said.

Being on the scene as a respected gamer helps Horsley find new talent.

"You have to play yourself up through the ranks and get that respect level," Horsley said. "Once you get to a certain point of competition, guys will contact you to get scrimmages because you only practice with those that you respect. They respect me so it's very easy to navigate these scenes."

Added Saffold, "We are very beloved in this space. A lot of people have respect for us and enjoy playing with us."

Expanding to new games

That respect helped Rise form its new VALORANT team.

"Rise was a huge name in Call of Duty, winning major titles. And winning Capcom Cup for Street Fighter 5 was a giant milestone, cementing their name as an organization," VALORANT team leader Todd "Anger" Williams said.

"Adam 'Spirit' Wills, who is on the current VALORANT roster, competed in Overwatch for them and instantly gave us the blessing when we were scouting who to play for."

Although Rise doesn't compete on the Madden platform, Saffold has become somewhat of an esports ambassador to his NFL teammates. A lot of them play Call of Duty, FIFA, Madden and more, but until speaking with Saffold, they don't realize how much money can be made from the games.

"Every time I talk to them they are like, 'Really?' Now guys are like, 'Hey, can I invest?' I have talked to several people on the Rams and Titans about it and they're surprised now," Saffold said.

Running back Marshawn Lynch and former defensive end Michael Strahan are some of the high-profile investors in NRG Esports. Rams owner Stan Kroenke and Patriots owner Robert Kraft both own teams in the Overwatch League.

Having been in the NFL for 10 years, Saffold is familiar with the results-driven aspects of the game. He strives to keep his esports players motivated to play the games the way they need to play to win.

"I'm all about the process and I'm all about the work," Saffold said. "As long as I've got players that grind continually on the game, making sure they have some experience, making sure that they're practicing, playing the game instead of playing a bunch of other games, I'm usually in a good mood."

Unlike many other industries, online gaming has seen an upswing during the COVID-19 pandemic, with more people staying at home and looking for things to do.

"It's definitely helped my business," Saffold said in May. "One of the biggest expenses that you have as an esports owner is having your players travel to different cities. With there not being any travel and most things being online, it's really cut down the cost of a lot of expenses going to and from events. Expenses are going down, viewership is going up. You get more eyes on marketing, those types of situations. You'll definitely see yourself in the green after this."

Rise recently underwent a rebranding process for the first time since it hit the scene in 2014. It redesigned its jerseys and hosted a $50,000 charity Call of Duty: Warzone event in June, with proceeds going to the Equal Justice Initiative. They also have aspirations toward potential participation in the Call of Duty League.

Ideally, Saffold would like to merge his Rise fans and Titans fans.

"I want this to go hand in hand. I want the gamers to support the Titans and the Titans fans to support my off-the-field hobbies."

TITANS GUARD RODGER SAFFOLD TREASURES LESSONS, SUPPORT AND LOVE FROM HIS LATE FATHER

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 9, 2020

NASHVILLE – As a youngster growing up in Ohio, Titans guard Rodger Saffold III knew from an early age he wanted to play football.

His father, Rodger Saffold II, showed him the way with love and support.

"My dad played football, so we had a football home," Saffold said of his father, who played at the University of Iowa in the mid-1970s. "I used to watch high school, college, and professional football games at a very young age. I decided I wanted to play football when I was nine, and my dad helped me figure out what I was going to do."

Rodger Saffold II helped his son pick his position, and he steered him toward his dreams.

Saffold said his father drove him to workouts, and supported him every step of the way, through his playing days at Bedford High (Ohio), and into his collegiate days at Indiana University, where he became a dominant performer, and a team captain. Saffold said his father used to send him tapes of players to watch when he was in college, and it helped him turn into an NFL-caliber talent. Saffold was drafted in the second round of the 2010 NFL Draft by the Rams.

"He was always there, very supportive," Saffold said of his father. "During games in high school he would give (me) a thumbs up and thumbs down after drives (when I came off the field) to see how well I did. Thankfully, it was always a thumbs up."

Along the way, Rodger Saffold II also learned how to be a man, thanks to his father's steady guidance.

"He basically taught me about having the values of good character, and a leadership role and all those things and to match that with being in love with the hard work and the grind and that has carried me through this whole time," Saffold said. "I have been playing over 20 years now and he was a big part of that."

Rodger Saffold III, an 11-year NFL veteran who is set to begin his second season with the Titans, lost his father at the end of August. Funeral services for Rodger Saffold II were on Wednesday, September 2.

Saffold left the Titans briefly to support his family, but he returned to be with his teammates, who have done their best to keep his mind off the loss of his dear father. Practices, and a game plan for the opener, have allowed him the opportunity to turn his attention away from his sorrow.

When Rodger Saffold II discussed his father during a video conference call last week, he bragged about the man who was "a huge support system for me all my life." The two talked before every single game, and after every game.

On Monday, before the Titans face the Broncos in the season opener, Rodger Saffold won't be able to pick up the phone in the hours leading up to kickoff to talk to his father, something he's done since he first started playing football 20 years ago.

But he knows his father will be with him in spirit.

"I am still going to talk to him," Saffold said. "One of my rituals is going to be praying (before games), so I am still going to be talking to my father through that form. And I am just going to continue to play how I know how to play."

"This has raised a lot of motivation for me, just wanting to get out and do what I can for myself and my family. So, motivation is not going to be a problem for me this year. So I just think taking all of (the heartbreak) and putting it in the right direction and being productive for this team is what's going to be best for me and for my family."

AS JEFFERY SIMMONS' IMPACT ON THE FIELD GROWS, DOCTORS ASSESS AND MARVEL AT HIS ACL RECOVERY

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
OCTOBER 31, 2019

It's been seven years since Adrian Peterson returned from a torn anterior cruciate ligament, but the running back's comeback is still considered something of a medical marvel.

Peterson was playing NFL games less than nine months after suffering his severe knee injury, a timetable many consider miraculous when it comes to recovering from ACL surgery. He not only stepped back into Minnesota's opening lineup in 2012, but went on to win the league's MVP after rushing for more than 2,000 yards.

It's with Peterson's return as a backdrop that the comeback of Titans rookie defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons is looking more and more impressive.

The 6-4, 305-pound Simmons played his first NFL game two weekends ago, a mere eight months after undergoing ACL surgery in February. He's been wreaking havoc on opponents' offensive lines since, totaling a combined 10 tackles, four quarterback pressures, one sack and one tackle for loss.

So just how does Simmons' ACL recovery compare with that of Peterson?

In the opinion of one former NFL team physician, Dr. David Chao, Simmons' speedy return is more mind-boggling than that of the future Pro Football Hall of Fame running back.

"Everyone makes the Adrian Peterson, nine-month return the gold standard," said Chao, a practicing orthopedic surgeon who also serves as a medical analyst for Sirius XM and ProFootballDoc.com.

"But I would say (Simmons) is more impressive for several reasons. No. 1, it's less time, only eight months. No. 2, Peterson was returning to the same level of competition he'd played in, but Simmons is jumping a level of competition.

"Third, as a defensive player, it's harder because you're reacting on the playing field, rather than dictating. And fourth, as a guy playing on the line, he's not just running in free space but engaging other players."

An extraordinary athlete

Timetables vary from person to person when it comes to returning from surgery to the ACL, which is one of the key ligaments that help stabilize the knee, connecting the thighbone (femur) to the shinbone (tibia).

Chao said the most impressive ACL recovery he's witnessed was by one of his own patients, former U.S. women's soccer player Shannon MacMillan. Just four months and a week after undergoing ACL surgery, MacMillan played in the 2003 women's World Cup.

Doctor Michael Pagnani, a physician at Nashville Knee & Shoulder, said that in his practice, an average patient heals in about six months. But he notes there's a significant difference between healing and returning to play a professional sport at top strength.

The Mayo Clinic estimates eight to 12 months or more before athletes can return to their sports following ACL surgery.

"If your goal is to be back as close to your pre-performance level as possible, it probably takes a year," said Pagnani, a previous team physician for the Dolphins and Nashville Predators. "And in a sport where one percent might be the difference between an All-Pro and a practice squad player, that can be a big difference in terms of when they return."

Pagnani says Simmons' ability to return to the playing field at eight months is "a good recovery. I don't know if it's unheard of."

But perhaps what's more impressive to Pagnani is Simmons' level of play, as the big man has made a significant impact in his first two games. Simmons was in the trenches, for example, against the Chargers in the closing seconds, when the Titans stopped running back Melvin Gordon twice from the one-yard line.

"Playing at that level so soon after your ACL, and playing that well against that competition, is definitely remarkable," Pagnani said. "He might just be an extraordinarily great rehabber and an extraordinary athlete to be able to come back and play at that level. I'd say you've got give it a few more weeks, to see if fatigue and more reps affect him. But it sure looks promising so far."

Let's attack this rehab

Simmons suffered the torn ACL in the midst of a lateral-drill exercise, while working out in Boca Raton, Fla., two months before the 2019 NFL Draft.

Having never suffered a knee injury, Simmons had no idea how severe the problem was. But after getting diagnosed, Simmons' first fear, naturally, was how far his draft stock would fall. Predicted by many to be a top-10 overall selection, the former Mississippi State star wondered whether teams would now shy away from him.

Simmons underwent surgery about a week later, with Mississippi State's team orthopedist, Dr. Rusty Linton, repairing the knee. That led straight to one of the more challenging stretches in ACL recovery, the first few weeks following the procedure.

"The operation hurts, so the first couple of weeks are just hard to get going,” Pagnani said. “Most people are taking pain medicine for a couple of weeks, and they’re wondering, ‘Am I ever going to get through this?’”

The goal for most patients is to get their range of motion back in the knee in six weeks. If there’s stiffness — or if the patient can’t completely straighten the knee — the rehab can become that much more difficult.

“But if they can get their range of motion back by six weeks,” Pagnani said, “then it’s really just a grind after that.”

Grinding through rehabilitation wasn’t a problem for Simmons, chosen 19th overall by the Titans in April. He attacked his recovery the same way Simmons dominated opposing offensive lines in college, racking up 163 tackles — 32.5 for loss — in three seasons at Mississippi State.

“Every day I woke up, and every day I walked into the building to do my rehab, it was just like, ‘You’ve got to be better than what you did yesterday. Do more than what you did yesterday. Try to go a little harder,’” Simmons said. “I just wanted to keep getting better. That was my mindset. Every day I woke up thinking: ‘Let’s attack this rehab.’”

Jeffery Simmons (Christopher Hanewinkel / USA Today)

God sprinkled extra dust on Jeff

When Simmons talked to Nashville media in June, four months after the surgery, he still didn’t even know when he’d be ready to jog again. But his work in the weight room, where Simmons was doing all he could to re-build muscle strength around the injured knee, was catching the eye of teammates.

“Every day, he was in here for multiple hours just rehabbing,” Titans defensive lineman DaQuan Jones said. “And then I remember him after rehab, going in there for hours with (Titans strength coach Frank Piraino) one-on-one, and doing even more.”

By July, as the Titans readied for training camp, Simmons took another big step in the right direction, as he was able to run in a straight line for the first time since suffering the injury. In time, Simmons’ rapid progress allowed him to start simulating football moves, even those that required him to move from side to side — testing the strength of the knee.

“When you’re coming off an ACL injury, the biggest thing is you’ve got to work on your lateral movement,” Simmons said. “That’s why I think they did a great job making sure they hit on every angle, every football drill they knew I was going to be put in (while) playing defensive line.”

Many NFL analysts had figured Simmons wouldn’t play at all in his rookie year, or that if he did, it wouldn’t be until November or December. But only a few weeks into the season, Simmons began working out with Titans coach Mike Vrabel in one-on-one sessions, the two men looking like grown bears wrestling as they pushed one another around the practice field.

How could Simmons already have come so far so fast?

“God sprinkled a little extra dust on Jeff — that’s just how it goes,” Vrabel said. “Genetics plays a large part into your makeup, your size, how you recover from injury, your durability. So, we kind of figured that going (into the draft), it was probably going to be a little shorter than a little longer. If you were betting, you’d probably bet the under (on his recovery time).”

In early October, less than eight months after the ACL surgery, Simmons received full medical clearance to play once more. Vrabel and the team’s training staff put the decision to return in the hands of Simmons, who thought long and hard about it prior to the Titans’ Week 7 game against the Chargers.

Simmons said he prayed on the matter first, then sought the advice of an uncle who’s always been close and reliable.

“I told him I felt healthy and ready to roll,” Simmons said. “He was like, ‘Are you sure?’ And I’m like, ‘Yeah, I’m ready to go.’ So we just went from there.”

Going to get even better

In watching Simmons play his first two games, Chao marveled at what he was able to do, but also noticed — not surprisingly — that the injury was still impacting him.

“He’s a strong guy, so I didn’t see him getting pushed off the line,” Chao said. “But it was more in the open field and in his quicker movements, the change of directions and the ability to really stick that leg in the ground. Then there was one time I noticed he didn’t have the same deceleration, in terms of change of direction. It’s relatively subtle.”

Chao, like Pagnani, said Simmons won’t be at 100 percent until next season, noting that recovery from an ACL tear — like most injuries — is “like a slow sunrise rather a light switch ... It creeps along, especially in the later stages.”

But in its own way, that’s great news for Simmons and Titans fans.

If Simmons was good enough to be Pro Football Focus’ top-ranked Titans defender in his first game back, and fit enough to play 34 snaps in just his second game, think ahead to what Simmons’ second season might be like.

“He’s exceeded expectations in (returning this early),” Chao said. “He seemed effective. What this means is that an 85 percent Jeffery Simmons is pretty darn good. They have a bargain on their hands.

“It doesn’t mean he’s Superman yet. There were plays I saw in his first game back when I said, ‘Oh, he’s still favoring that a little bit.’ But

JEFFERY SIMMONS

I'm not saying the Titans are doing the wrong thing by playing him.

"I'm just saying, 'Good news, Titans fans. He's going to get even better than this.'"

JEFFERY SIMMONS

TITANS' JEFFERY SIMMONS NOT PREOCCUPIED WITH BEING THE NEXT JURRELL CASEY

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
SEPTEMBER 11, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- When veteran Jurrell Casey was traded to the Denver Broncos for a seventh-round pick this offseason, the Tennessee Titans experienced a passing of the torch. It cleared the path for second-year defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons to show he could be a cornerstone on defense.

Take a walk outside of Nissan Stadium and you'll see Simmons along with safety Kenny Vaccaro and tight end Jonnu Smith on one of the four newly hung banners. Simmons' first test comes on Monday Night Football against Casey's Broncos (10:10 p.m. ET, ESPN).

But before moving on to his new role as a leader in the defensive line room, Simmons sent Casey a text thanking the nine-season veteran for taking him under his wing during his rookie season, especially when they found themselves on the PUP list together at the start of training camp last year. Simmons was working his way back from a torn ACL.

"I told him I appreciate him for everything he did for me coming in as a rookie," Simmons said. "Jurrell was rehabbing while I was rehabbing. When we were doing drills, trying to work to get back on the field, he stepped up and was like, 'This is how you do this. This is how you do that,'" Simmons said.

Jeffery Simmons is growing into a larger role on the Titans' defensive line in his second year.

Casey's departure spawned some reference to a "no name" Titans defensive line -- something Simmons didn't take kindly to.

"I think a lot of guys have a chip on their shoulder to show that no matter if we lost Jurrell Casey, we have guys in that room that can stand up and stop the run and rush the passer," Casey said.

Simmons has some big shoes to fill, but he's not looking to be the next Jurrell Casey. He wants to be the "best Jeffery Simmons" he can be.

The lighter, healthier Simmons

Becoming the best Jeffrey Simmons started with cutting down on fatty foods so he could slim down from last year's playing weight (around 320 pounds) to where he checks in now at 308 pounds.

During the offseason, Simmons was able to spend plenty of time at the team facility despite the pandemic because he was still considered to be in the rehab process from the ACL tear he suffered in February 2019. The work he put in -- along with his changed diet -- has him feeling closer to the player who was a force at Mississippi State.

If this banner outside Nissan Stadium is any indication, the Titans are expecting big things from Jeffery Simmons.

"I feel like my change in direction is way better than what it was last year," said Simmons, who was drafted No. 19 overall in 2019. "Just being able to bend that left knee that was hurt. Just to be able to bend more and change direction, all that just feels more fluid to me. The bounce in my knee, everything is just feeling great right now. It's kind of one of those deals, if you didn't know you were hurt you're not thinking about it, and that's how it is right now."

Defensive line coach Terrell Williams let out a belly laugh when asked about Simmons' weight loss. He said Simmons "looks leaner while his body fat is great." Williams added that Simmons runs to the ball and attacks the line of scrimmage so much better now that he isn't wearing the bulky knee brace he wore a year ago.

After finishing with 32 tackles (four for loss), two sacks and four QB hits in nine games as a rookie, outside linebackers coach (and likely defensive playcaller) Shane Bowen identified Simmons as one of the players who will be relied upon to set the tone on defense. Simmons said the plan is for him to line up in multiple spots along the line.

Combining Simmons' versatility with newly signed edge defender Jadeveon Clowney should create a disruptive tandem for Tennessee.

"Adding Clowney helps Jeffery Simmons," safety Kevin Byard said. "If you have a guy like Simmons creating pressure and getting sacks on the inside, then guys like Clowney and Harold Landry getting sacks from the outside, you're going to cause a lot of havoc."

The Titans will rely on Simmons to generate the interior pass rush that makes it harder for quarterbacks to step into throws or escape the outside pressure. The same goes when defending the running game. Simmons can destroy running plays by getting immediate penetration or merely causing congestion at the line of scrimmage.

"It's time to go take over," Simmons said.

'Outwork the next man'

The takeover starts in practice, where Simmons has made it a goal to raise the level of intensity every day.

Every drill that Simmons does is executed with the intention of dominating whatever is in front of him. The Titans use trackers to keep count of player performance during practice. According to coach Mike Vrabel, Simmons was clocked at 18 mph while chasing down a running back on a screen play during practice.

"No matter what, I'm trying to outwork the next man," Simmons said. "We always compete with each other out there on the field right now, so it's just like I'm trying to win every drill. Every snap that I get out there on the field, I want to go full tilt and be the best that I can be."

JEFFERY SIMMONS

That competitiveness stands out, especially to rookie defensive lineman Larrell Murchison.

"It's his attitude to the game," Murchison said. "No matter what, he's always into it. I really see his passion."

"He brings energy every day, no matter what type of mood it is," teammate DaQuan Jones added.

The Titans' team captains will have a different look with Casey gone. Although Simmons isn't among the newly named captains, Vrabel is impressed with the leadership that Simmons has shown.

"It's his maturity level is in all phases of our program," Vrabel said. "I really think he's been a great leader for that room and the effort in which he's practiced with. I think that his effort has been outstanding."

MY STORY: TITANS TE JONNU SMITH ON FAITH, PERSEVERANCE, AND LIVING HIS DREAM

THE THIRD-YEAR PRO HAS DEALT WITH PLENTY OF ADVERSITY IN HIS LIFE,
BUT IT'S ALL MADE HIM
THE MAN HE IS TODAY
AS TOLD TO

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
NOVEMBER 15, 2019

As the Titans Bye Week begins, many of the team's digital and social channels will be taken over all week with content influenced and made by the players.

NASHVILLE – Life in the NFL isn't easy. As a player, you have to fight through adversity, and you have to work hard to be successful. And you have to keep grinding through all the ups and downs.

But life itself isn't easy.

The way I get through it all is by relying on my faith. It's the foundation of everything I do, and I am so thankful for the way I was raised because I lean on the things I learned as a kid today as a grown man. I've dealt with some tough times in my life, but it's all made me stronger.

I give credit to the household I grew up in. My entire family was raised on faith, and it's the way I am going to raise my children. As I get older, I learn even more things on my own, and try to become as close to Christ as I can because I've learned that's how you get through the tough times.

It started with my mother, Karen Smith.

My father was a Jehovah's Witness, and he was a man of faith. But he passed when I was just four years old in a tow truck accident. It was hard on my family, but my mom was strong, and she became my rock at an early age. My mom was a Christian, and when my father passed our faith had to take over and keep us going. That's just how I grew up, and from the time I was young I had to lean on my faith. I'm one of six kids. I still remember us praying as a family at night. I look back now and I know as a kid, going to church isn't always No.1 on your list because when you're young, you'd rather be doing other things, like hanging out with your friends, or just do things kids do. But my mom made us going to church, and she made us pray together as a family. When you are younger you don't appreciate that probably as much, but as you get older you can understand why that's important and I'm so thankful for the path those days put me on. I realize now just how much love that spread in my family and how much peace and joy it gave me during tough times. And it is faith that gets you through things that sometimes aren't easy.

Jonnu Smith (wearing an Eddie George Titans jersey as a child in a photo above) credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself.

Jonnu Smith (wearing an Eddie George Titans jersey as a child in a photo above) credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself.

One of those times came when I was in high school. I love my mom, and she loves me. But after my freshman year in high school, my mom sent me away to live with her sister. It couldn't have been easy, but she knew that's what was best for me.

I grew up in Philadelphia, but things were tough. The neighborhood I grew up in wasn't the best. It was inner-city Philadelphia, and there were some bad influences. I was surrounded by a lot of violence, and negativity. It was a harsh environment to grow up in. We weren't financially fortunate, and she was afraid I would get lured into some things that could mess up my life and send me down the wrong path.

"My mother is my rock. It was tough, but we always got what we needed—not necessarily what we wanted all the time—but what we needed. She was so strong all the time."

- Jonnu Smith

So, my mom wanted a better future for me, and she wanted me to have a chance to follow my dreams. I was the youngest of six, and I was the last boy. She sent me to Ocala, Florida, and it was one of the best decisions she ever made as a mother. I was 14, and it was a big change. But I got through it because of my faith, and because I knew it was a great opportunity for me to not only have a better life, but to play the game of football, a game that I knew I loved even back then. You see, I couldn't play football when I was in Philly. My mom wanted me to focus on education, so the school I went to there didn't even have a football team. When she talked about sending me away, I knew I'd get a chance to play football in Ocala, and that got me excited. I knew I'd have a chance there. Playing football in Florida? Are you kidding me? I knew even then that was the hotbed for high school football. Florida, Texas and California, those are the schools that produce the most pros in the world and even then, I knew what I wanted to do, and this was my chance to pursue my dream. So even though I would be uprooted, I was able to find the positives from it and I think that's because of the way my mom raised me.

I still think a lot about my childhood. Growing up, you don't really realize how harsh it is, because you think as a young kid, 'This is life, and this is how it is supposed to be.' But when you go to a different place, a place like Ocala, Florida, a small suburban town after being in Philadelphia, it is a culture shock.

JONNU SMITH

I think about what would have happened to me if I'd stayed back home and not moved. I still think one way or the other I would have made it, I really do. Like I said, I am a man of faith, and I am a man of God and I truly believe that everything is ordained for a purpose. I still think I would have made it, it just would have been a different path.

But I can't help but think about what my life would have been like had I stayed in Philly. I know what is back there, and I know what my friends deal with every day that I grew up with. My best friend, Willie 'Quasim' Jefferson, was killed on the streets of Philadelphia in October 2016, maybe a block away from the house he grew up in. We were friends from the time we were five years old, and we stayed in touch. He would come and see me when I was in college at Florida International, and he'd stay for months at a time with me because Philadelphia was so bad. The last time he went back, he was killed. I still remember getting a call after we'd played a game and I was told my best friend, my lifelong friend, was just killed. That hurt me, and it was tough to get through. I think about Willie all the time. And when I think about my life and my path and my opportunities, it makes me realize even more I was more fortunate. And it also makes me keep my buddies back home in my prayers. I try to encourage them and lead them in the right direction because I understand what they are going through. You just have to lean on your faith to get you through everything.

I lean on my faith all the time. As a football player, it helped get me started in the NFL when I first got to Tennessee. And I leaned on it on December 6, 2018, and the months that followed. Everyone remembers that day – it's the day when running back Derrick Henry ran for 238 yards and four touchdowns against the Jaguars. He had that 99-yard touchdown run that will go down in team and NFL history. It was a great day, and a great moment, but it was a different day for me. When I think about the 99-yard run, it was bittersweet. I heard the crowd going wild, but I was on the ground, holding my knee as I was on the ground. Some people might not remember, but I suffered a serious knee injury on that play and had to be helped off the field. As everyone was celebrating, coach Mike Vrabel came over to me when I was on the ground and told me: 'Jonnu, we just took that thing 99 yards for you.' I was happy, but I also knew what was ahead because my knee was messed up. I had suffered an ACL injury before, so I knew the recovery is a long process. I just started praying, and I started getting mentally prepared for what I knew I'd be faced with. I ended up having surgery a few weeks later, and the road to recovery was a long one. I just had to keep the faith and be positive to get through it. And the way I see it is if I had to pick a play to go down, I would pick a play like that. You just have to keep the faith, and I knew whatever circumstances I would be faced with, I would have to deal with them. It wasn't easy, but I had to stay positive through it all, and I am back now and it's great to be back.

And now more than ever, I don't take anything for granted.

I'm not sure people have noticed, but before every game I take a knee, say a prayer and I point up to the sky. I actually pray before every play, for many reasons. I realize each play could be your last play, so I always want to thank God for the opportunity to give me another snap and thank him for letting me play at this level and for blessing me in so many ways. I don't take any play for granted, and I give God thanks.

When I look back at my path, and where I came from, I know I am fortunate to be here, playing in the NFL, playing a game I love. Everyone grew up in different circumstances and I always like to say my story could be a fairy tale to some people because I understand people have gone through far more treacherous things than I have. But my story could also be a horror story to some people, because that is just the world that we live in. I just appreciate the journey that I took because I believe it made me the man I am today. I am grateful to be where I am today.

In my mind, I am living my dream, and I thank God every day for it. I truly don't take anything for granted and I am trying to get everything I can out of it. I know I can't play this game forever – I know I can't live forever – but I am going to cherish every second of it all.

JONNU SMITH

TITANS' RYAN TANNEHILL, JONNU SMITH WORKING TOGETHER IN FLORIDA WILL BE 'GREAT ADVANTAGE'

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
MAY 20, 2020

A completely virtual NFL offseason to this point has meant no organized team activities, no in-person chemistry building, no opportunity to connect on the field.

Well, at least for most.

But for a few, like Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill and tight end Jonnu Smith, the coronavirus-related tweaks to the NFL schedule have created a different kind of opportunity. While players are spread out across the country, Tannehill and Smith are both in South Florida.

"I'm down here, Jonnu is down here, so I go throw with Jonnu a couple days a week," Tannehill said last month.

The two are working out together at a local park. Since beginning their sessions together about two months ago, Smith said last week the duo had not missed a week.

So while others are relying on virtual team meetings and individual workouts, Tannehill and Smith are getting in some valuable one-on-one time.

"I'm sure it will give us a great advantage," Smith said. "Just learning my speed, learning his speed. Feeling the football come out of his hands and just catching the football, knowing the spin on that thing. I'm only learning him more and he's only learning me more, so I'm sure it will be a great advantage."

Titans coach Mike Vrabel said he's "sure guys are getting together, but I'm not monitoring and I'm not tracking it" during a voluntary phase of the offseason. Still, he's encouraged that Tannehill and Smith are building their rapport.

"I'm sure Ryan is enjoying building a relationship with Jonnu outside of the meetings," Vrabel said. "Again, at the end of the day, quarterbacks, they want to know guys are going to be in the right spots. ... Hopefully they're able to work on some of those things, and Ryan and Jonnu can stay in shape and motivated like the rest of our football team."

The Titans cut Delanie Walker earlier this offseason, shifting Smith to the top of the depth chart. He'll lead a group that also includes Anthony Firkser and MyCole Pruitt.

"I'm tight end 1 now," he said.

With that comes some added responsibility.

"Yeah, but it's no extra pressure on me or anything," Smith said. "We've got a lot of great guys in that room and I'm sure the thing about it is we can all look to each other. ... I'm not going to put any extra pressure on myself just because I am the No. 1 guy, but that does require a leadership role and I'm definitely ready to take on that role."

Smith, drafted in the third round in 2017, had 35 catches for 439 yards and three touchdowns last season while playing in all 16 games, including 14 starts.

The goal, Smith said, is to build on that in 2020, and it begins at a park in South Florida.

"Ryan is making me better, I'm making him better, and we're just building that chemistry," Smith said. "We're getting all the work in that we can, just pretty much everything that I do on Sundays. I'm just trying to perfect that. ... We've been able to maximize the most of our opportunity. I love doing it and I love working with him."

JONNU SMITH

TE JONNU SMITH SELECTED AS TITANS' 2019 ED BLOCK COURAGE AWARD RECIPIENT

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – As Titans fans everywhere celebrated running back Derrick Henry's 99-yard touchdown run against the Jaguars back on December 6, 2018, tight end Jonnu Smith had a different perspective on the play.

Smith went to the ground after making a pair of key blocks on the historic run. He had to be helped off the field after suffering a torn ACL.

"It was a great day, and a great moment," Smith said of the play, "but it was a different day for me. I was happy (Derrick scored), but I also knew what was ahead because my knee was messed up."

Smith kept the faith. And after a lengthy rehabilitation process following surgery, he was able to return in time for the start of the 2019 season.

Smith had the best season of his three-year NFL career in 2019, when he caught 35 passes for 439 yards and three touchdowns. Smith made an acrobatic touchdown catch in the team's playoff win at Baltimore.

Smith's road back, and his performance that ensued, led his teammates to vote him as the Titans' Ed Block Courage Award recipient.

The Ed Block Courage Award is given to a player on each of the NFL's 32 teams who represents a commitment to sportsmanship, courage, professionalism, and are considered to be role models in their community.

Named in memory of Ed Block, a humanitarian and athletic trainer for the Baltimore Colts, the award is administered by the Ed Block Courage Award Foundation.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel has raved about Smith many times in the past.

"Jonnu is one of my favorite players on this team," Vrabel said during the 2019 season. "I don't have 'favorites', but he is one of my favorite players on this team. I just love him to death. I love the way he works, I love his attitude."

In an interview last month, Smith said he's excited about what's next.

Smith has been working out in a one-on-one setting with quarterback Ryan Tannehill, and he'll head into the season as the team's No.1 tight end.

"As a professional, you just want to continue to improve, and continue to build off any momentum that you had (from the previous season) just to get better," Smith said. "I am focused on getting better and better and improving and improving. Because if you are not in it to maximize your abilities, then I feel like you are in the wrong business."

"So, I am just trying to improve and get better and work on my craft, and I am having fun doing it. ... I am trying to be the best player I can be to help this team win as many games and win championships. For me, I'm tight end 1 now, and I'm just going to take advantage of the opportunity I have in front of me and continue to be a workhorse and do what is expected of me."

RYAN TANNEHILL IS LEADING A TRUE AMERICAN COMEBACK STORY

BY NAT COOMBS
ESPN.COM
FEBRUARY 19, 2020

America loves a comeback story.

Long forgotten movie stars are resurrected after years in the wilderness cast in the role of a lifetime propelling them to Oscar glory as if they'd never left.

Musical artists out of vogue for years, are picked out for a collaboration by some bright young thing and discovered by a whole new generation; and sporting stars who looked washed up, somehow navigate an improbable return to prime time, restoring their careers, their reputation, and their legacy.

Ryan Tannehill may not have ever been an elite player -- he may never be -- but he was, in the grand scheme of things, a top-tier NFL talent who for various reasons had started this season in the has-been column after a move to the Tennessee Titans to be backup quarterback. It was less a chance for a new beginning, more a gig to grab with both hands.

Injury, coupled with a Dolphins team in decline and a fractious environment presided over by a somewhat volatile head coach, had meant the eighth overall pick in the 2012 draft, who had taken Miami to their first playoff game for almost 10 years, had fallen to the Titans. A team that no longer wanted him and a distinct lack of options forced his hand to sign a one-year, $2 million deal to be the No. 2 in a so-so franchise. Nice work if you can get it, but $30 million less than the annual salary of the highest-paid in his position (in 2019: Russell Wilson, Ben Roethlisberger and Jared Goff).

Just over four months after Tannehill was thrown into the mix during a dismal 16-0 loss to struggling Denver, sending the Titans to a 2-4 start, his transformation, and that of his team has been remarkable. This Sunday, he will start for Tennessee once again having retained the role since that relief stint against the Broncos, just one win away from the Super Bowl.

While Derrick Henry is understandably the focal point of the Titans, and will remain its most potent talent and the best chance of Tennessee upsetting the odds once again this season and beating Kansas City to book their spot in Miami for Super Bowl LIV, it's Tannehill who is perhaps the most representative of this resurgent franchise.

Underrated, dismissed as also-rans, (through much of the season including the start of the playoffs) Tennessee has built up some serious self-belief over the past five weeks, surging into the postseason in some style. Their offense averaged more than 30 points per game in December and is driven by Henry's immense productivity, but marshalled by Tannehill with his dependability and football smarts and his undoubted ability to land a big play.

Tannehill is not a dynamic QB in the same vein as his opposite number on Sunday, Patrick Mahomes, but his all-round game is undervalued by some. During the regular season, he posted 22 touchdowns to just six interceptions, reinforcing his strongest asset: composure.

Whichever way the player is cut, if you ask all 32 NFL coaches about the importance of ball protection in a quarterback's makeup, they'll all fire back in perfect harmony. It's vital. Jameis Winston may be thrilling to watch, but Tampa Bay isn't getting anywhere near a Super Bowl until he curbs those interceptions.

But Tannehill is far more than a game manager. ESPN had the former Texas A&M quarterback in the top 10 for QBR based on the regular season. His completion percentage of over 70% placed him in the top three and he was ranked No. 1 in yards per completion. He may not freewheel himself out of multiple tackles and then sidearm a no-look 30-yarder, but he can fire in ruthlessly accurate passes on a dime, reading coverage and making the right calls again and again.

Sure, he benefits from the presence of Henry, which establishes both the play-action pass effectively and typically forces the opposition to load the box, giving him more flexibility to carve up the defensive backfield.

Not that he's had to in the Titans two sensational road wins in the playoffs against the defending champions New England Patriots and the No. 1 seed Baltimore Ravens. Tannehill threw for less than 100 yards in each game. But particularly with his 45-yard touchdown throw to Kalif Raymond against the Ravens, he showed that when he needs to turn it on, he can. Check out his clutch third-down completion against the Patriots in the final few minutes - it was less showy but critically important play.

"I think if Tannehill tries to pass on us, I don't think that'll go in their favor," the great Earl Thomas said prior to the Ravens' defeat to Tennessee. And while it did, to some degree, come back to haunt him, Thomas was making a valid point by emphasising the Titans' focus on the run -- deployed to an even stronger degree in their two postseason wins. Tannehill has only attempted 25 passes combined in these victories and over two thirds of their offensive snaps have been runs in their last three games.

Some experts feel that the Titans will adapt their plan against Kansas City -- partly out of choice and partly necessity if they end up in a shoot-out, which is probable. They certainly aired it out more in their 35-32 win over the Chiefs back in November -- relatively speaking anyway, with Tannehill finding seven different receivers, going 13/19, for 181 yards and two touchdowns. As with that game,

RYAN TANNEHILL

Mahomes will almost certainly put down bigger numbers than his counterpart, but Tannehill may well have the last laugh again.

ESPN's Dan Orlovsky called his move to the Titans "the most impactful trade to have happened in the NFL this year" and it's hard to argue against such a statement.

When the ride ends, whether that's on Sunday in Missouri or in a fortnight in Miami, it's been a sensational return to the higher levels of the NFL for this fading star. What happens next may be equally compelling.

RYAN TANNEHILL

"ESCAPEE KIDS" PROVIDE EXTRA CHALLENGE FOR TITANS QB RYAN TANNEHILL DURING VIRTUAL OFFSEASON PROGRAM

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 14, 2020

NASHVILLE – Standing in the pocket on the football field, Ryan Tannehill has dealt with ferocious defensive linemen and blitzing linebackers.

When he's taken off, he's had hard-hitting safeties ready to deliver the boom.

During the days of the coronavirus pandemic, when virtual meetings have ruled the NFL workday, the Titans quarterback has had to deal with something else in his South Florida home:

Kids on the loose.

"It can be tough – thankfully our meeting time overlaps with their nap time a little bit," a smiling Tannehill said of his two young children on Wednesday. "I kind of lock myself in a guest bedroom and separate myself from them. My wife does a great job of keeping them away.

"But there's been a few times when there's been an escapee kid and they come barging in or they try to distract me from the outside. But it's all good. I think that's one thing the guys have done a really good job on is being able to focus in and try to eliminate the outside distractions, where you're not getting all kinds of outside noise and background noise and things like that. It's really been professional and we're getting a lot out of it."

Overall, however, Tannehill said the virtual offseason program has gone well.

In meetings, he said players have been engaged in quizzes during the week, and offensive coordinator Arthur Smith's work on the white board has led to productive discussions.

Players and coaches currently aren't allowed in facilities, and it's unclear when that might be permitted. On Wednesday, the NFL extended virtual workouts until May 29.

"They've been good," Tannehill said on Wednesday during the Official Titans Podcast (OTP). "Obviously, coming in, I didn't really know what to expect, how things were going to go, just had some discussions with Arthur beforehand, just trying to figure out how this thing was going to go and the best way to go about it. But I feel like guys have been really engaged and done a great job of getting the most we can out of these meetings. Honestly, it's not a whole lot different than being in these meeting rooms together. We are communicating, guys are speaking up, questions are being asked and we're just trying to grow together and grow on the same page. ... I've really been proud of the guys and the way they've embraced it.

"This is the situation that we're in. We didn't really want to be in this situation but there are times in life when adversity comes your way ... and it's about what you do with it."

Tannehill was named the NFL's Comeback Player of the Year in 2019 after leading the NFL with a 117.5 rating in 2019, his first season with the Titans. He guided the Titans to a pair of playoff wins – at New England and Baltimore – and into the AFC Championship Game, where the Titans lost to the Chiefs.

During the regular season, Tannehill threw for 2,742 yards with 22 touchdowns and six interceptions. He's guided the Titans to a 9-4 mark, including playoffs, since taking over as the team's starter in Week 7.

In his appearance on the OTP, Tannehill talked more about training with tight end Jonnu Smith while he's been in South Florida. As he looked ahead to the 2020 season, he believes the work while away from the facility should help the team.

"It's been great," he said "I'm thankful to have Jonnu down here in South Florida. I wish I was with all the guys getting ready for some OTAs but having Jonnu down here – we've been working for a couple of months now – we've been throwing. Seeing him and having a familiar face and getting in the same page with Jonnu has been really good. I think he is dynamic weapon."

As a team, Tannehill said he'd like to see the Titans be more efficient on offense in 2020 compared to last season.

"One of our keys this year is just being more efficient in everything we do," he said. "Whether it's a single route or where the ball goes in a concept. Being more efficient and getting the most we can out of every single play, and with that comes consistency. The more you can be consistent with every position that's on the field, the better you're going to be."

REXRODE: RYAN TANNEHILL SHOWS HIMSELF TO BE AN NFL LEADER IN MORE THAN QB RATING

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
JUNE 11, 2020

Ryan Tannehill talks and two notions cross the mind, first that there can't be many quarterbacks in the NFL talking about racism in America like this, and second that Tannehill must be elevating himself as a leader in the Tennessee Titans locker room.

Oh, and a third: Where's this guy when we ask about football?

They're all artificial and miss the point, of course. We don't need to rank NFL quarterback social commentary, though it is nice to hear declarations stronger than "I stand with my teammates" in this time. Leadership is a day-to-day thing that Tannehill demonstrated deftly last season — even with Marcus Mariota still in the room — and yes, reactions from some of his teammates indicate his voice is appreciated. But this dwarfs that. And Tannehill has earned the right to an eyeroll-free press corps every time he utters "control what we can control" or "it's about improving every day in practice" during the 2020 season because of the way he has stepped up to the 2020 story.

This is the white, professional quarterback in Nashville, Tennessee, and he has the ability to reach a lot of people and the conviction to try even though he knows he'll lose some.

"I think the unfortunate thing about it is, if you're a white person you don't have to deal with (racism) on a daily basis and you're not put in those situations," Tannehill said in a Zoom call Wednesday with reporters, the first scheduled interviews with Titans players since the May 25 death of George Floyd at the hands of a Minneapolis Police officer inspired worldwide protests.

"It's easy to just go about your life and not recognize it and not realize how big of a deal it is, how many people it affects on a daily basis. I think with this push, I think more and more people are having an awakening to the reality of the situation and how deep it really is, how many layers of injustice there are to it with the court system, and policing, and just on a day-to-day basis. Like I said, there's so many layers to it. I think that just this push was kind of like the straw that broke the camel's back, right? It's been happening for far too long and finally got to the point where enough is enough."

And as for those who don't like what he has to say: "If there's people that want to push back and go the other direction, that's on them. I'm going to fight for what I believe is right and whatever else happens, happens."

And as for Roger Goodell's improved response to the powerful "Black Lives Matter" video involving several NFL stars and some NFL employees: "I don't know. We'll see where it really goes once this fall starts and things are a little bit different. I hope to think that things are different this time, that guys are going to be heard, that the movement is going to be continued and supported and helped out, but only time will tell."

And as for the league's history on this matter: "Just going back to (2016), the league tried to shut it down because it's trying to protect itself. I think it's to the point where, this time there's so much support that they couldn't do anything from it. The fact that they weren't proactive is disappointing, that they didn't jump on board initially is disappointing, just because, like I said, it's a universal thing that so many guys are affected by. Seems to be there's so much momentum going that millions of people want change and want it now. A little disappointing that it took that, but I guess better late than never, and hopefully that it can continue when games kick off."

OK, so Tannehill's still polite in ripping the league. But how many guys with his job are doing that at all? These aren't "let's stick together while I dodge discomfort as much as possible" responses. These are things Tannehill would not have said a few years ago. He admitted that Wednesday, too.

"I feel like if I would have known now what I knew back then, I probably would have been more vocal and supportive back then," he said. "Do I feel great about that, that I didn't jump fully on board and support initially? No. Do I wish I would have known more and been more supportive back in 2016? Yes, 100 percent, but we all make mistakes. We all have to live and learn and experience to grow, and I feel like I've done a lot of growing over the past four or five years."

So let's go back there, to 2016. Colin Kaepernick is in San Francisco, creating a movement and the backlash that will push him out of the NFL by kneeling during the national anthem to protest social injustice and police brutality. Tannehill is in Miami, throwing to Kenny Stills. Talking to him, too. These are conversations that someone like, say ... let's pick a random NFL quarterback ... Drew Brees may have benefited from having.

Stills, now with the Texans, has been living this, outspoken about it, though he's the son of a retired Marine who asked him not to protest. He told The Undeclared of kneeling in 2016 and through the Donald Trump-inflamed 2017 responses and beyond: "I decided if the league has an issue with us speaking up for our people, it's not a brand I want to be a part of. I had conversations with my agents that said I should wait (to protest). I said if I can't express myself, then I'm OK with not playing."

Here's what should happen before games in 2020: Players who feel compelled to protest should do so, and people should respect it, and the NFL should back off and live with angry fans and consider the possibility of new ones, and the discussion around all of it from media and others should not overshadow the issues that inspired the protests. The only thing we can count on is that Stills will kneel. He's also likely to continue serving extensively in the community, going on police ride-alongs and educating white teammates who seek him. Tannehill said Stills told him of an incident in which Stills and his father were pulled over by police and had "everything stripped out of the car for no reason" and strewn along the road.

"I can't imagine being put in that situation and having to deal with that," Tannehill said. "You hear stories like that and then (Stills) gave me a bunch of resources, books that were written, "(The) New Jim Crow," systematic oppression, systematic injustices. Then I just started digging more and more into it as time went on. You go from kind of being naïve to the situation because of the privilege, and my eyes kind of got opened to it. It was really kind of a shock for me. ... A protest has to be able to get attention, spark conversation and inspire change. I had to get past the fact that it wasn't about the flag, it wasn't about the anthem, it wasn't about our country. It was about the injustice and raising awareness and getting people's attention."

He got there. Maybe he can help get others there. It's good to see more white athletes stepping out on this. It's also worth pointing out, not that it should be necessary, that black athletes don't all relish participation at the same level.

The Titans made Kevin Byard and Rashaan Evans available Wednesday as well, and Byard said he supports the protests; doesn't want the message hijacked by more obsession with kneeling; looks forward to a conversation some day with his daughter and hopes "whether it's police brutality or just growing up being black in America, that conversation is a lot better than what it is right now."

Byard also said he's "not trying to run for office, just playing football" when asked about Goodell's response and future decisions, and when he was asked about Tannehill's willingness to speak out, he said: "I've always respected him since I first met him. That's one thing about me, I don't look at guys as race and all that stuff. ... The fact that he's speaking and using his voice to uplift others, black, white or different, whatever, it speaks volumes for his character."

Byard talked about empathy and education, too, and the melting pot "beauty of sports." At the core of this conversation, there's right and there's wrong, but everyone doesn't have to have the same tone or say the exact same things. Tannehill and Byard shared realness Wednesday, and that's as important as anything when you're trying to lead 50 people or maybe a whole bunch more than that.

RYAN TANNEHILL

AT LAST, RYAN TANNEHILL CAN APPRECIATE HOW MUCH THE TIDES HAVE TURNED

BY DAN POMPEI
THE ATHLETIC
JULY 28, 2020

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: somewhere near the Gulf Stream in the Atlantic on his boat, Going Deep.

He escapes here, where it's easy to forget what should be forgotten. When he walks into his home, he will be carrying a cooler full of mahi-mahis on ice, and not a worry or care.

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: throwing a football in the back of his South Florida house with his daughter, Stella, who will be 2 in September. She wants her father all the time, and yells "daddy" anytime she sees a football. And now he's with his son, Steel, 4, explaining why he couldn't take him spearfishing because it's too dangerous. Steel is upset because he wants to be with his dad whenever he can.

"Our kids adore him," says his wife, Lauren, whose girl-next-door sweetness made her one of the bright lights of HBO's "Hard Knocks" during her husband's rookie season.

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: back at his Nashville home unpacking and preparing for an NFL season. After Tannehill was traded to the Titans in 2019, he and his wife bought a house here after being taken by the city's trendy food, Music City culture, southern hospitality and gentle seasonal changes.

Years ago, before Lauren ever set foot in Tennessee, she told her husband she knew one day they would live in Nashville. But even she didn't envision what would happen in 2019.

Tannehill came off the bench to lead his team to a storybook season. He played in his first Pro Bowl and walked away from NFL Honors with the Comeback Player of the Year award.

Then the Titans chose to re-sign Tannehill instead of pursuing Tom Brady, even though Brady once was a teammate of Titans head coach Mike Vrabel.

Tannehill's contract calls for him to be paid $37.5 million in 2020, which would make him the fourth highest-paid player in the NFL.

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: king of his world.

But it wasn't always like this.

On April 26, 2012, the Dolphins chose Tannehill with the eighth pick of the draft. That's when it started to get difficult for Tannehill in Miami.

Expectations for the eighth pick in the draft are high. Expectations are higher for a quarterback than any other player. And they are higher still when it's Miami.

"When you're in Miami, every first-round draft pick gets compared to one guy," said Adam Gase, Tannehill's head coach from 2016-18. "And guess what? Dan Marino ain't walking out there."

Tannehill was the first quarterback the Dolphins selected in the first round since the great Marino 29 years earlier. Through his time there, Tannehill did some impressive things in Miami, like throwing for 4,208 yards in 2015. Only one quarterback in Dolphins history threw for more. The great Marino, however, did it four times, and that was before passing records started falling like autumn leaves.

As the passage of time would have it, the great Marino became a symbol of a better time, a boulevard and a bronze statue.

The great Marino's shadow followed Tannehill everywhere except on his boat. "On the outside, they could have had high expectations that would have been hard to meet," Tannehill says. "You're aware. People say things to you. But I didn't think about it much."

In his first three seasons, the Dolphins didn't make the playoffs. Tannehill was signed to a contract extension going into his fourth year, which ended with a 6-10 record and the firing of head coach Joe Philbin.

For Tannehill, the change to Gase was invigorating. But the Dolphins lost three of their first four in 2016, and in their next game, a loss to the Titans, Dolphins fans turned on him, furiously booing in the hopes of a change to Matt Moore.

Gase kept believing in his quarterback, and Tannehill subsequently picked it up. The Dolphins won six straight and nine of their last 12 to make the playoffs for the first time in eight years.

The booing, however, left a mark. "It broke my heart," says Lauren, who was sitting in the stands at Hard Rock Stadium that day.

"It toughened me to a point to realize that you can't get confidence from other people," Tannehill says. "Whether they think it's good or bad, don't put too much into what people are saying about you. It definitely hardened me."

In the third quarter of a December game in 2016, Cardinals defensive end Calais Campbell hit Tannehill's plant leg as he threw to DeVante Parker. Tannehill's left knee bent inward, a way in which a knee is not intended to bend.

The ACL was partially torn and Tannehill missed the rest of the season, but no doctor he saw thought surgery was necessary. Through the offseason, Tannehill tested the knee by playing basketball and tennis, and with change-of-direction drills. He never felt instability.

In training camp, he had full confidence in the knee. Ten days in,

RYAN TANNEHILL

Tannehill scrambled to his right. When he cut to avoid a defender, he felt a click, and his knee gave out. “As soon as it happened, I knew exactly what it was,” he says.

There would be no avoiding surgery for the ACL tear.

He would miss the season, which was unfathomable to him because he had not missed so much as a game since he had an ankle sprain as a college freshman.

“I had some dark times,” Tannehill says of that season. “The hardest thing was not being one of the guys, so to speak. ... I was around the building, in meetings, but I didn’t feel I was fully in. I wasn’t sweating with those guys on the practice field. I wasn’t in the huddle. There is a unity, a relationship that’s built when you are sacrificing together, going through the adversity together. That’s one of the things I love about the game, the relationships you get to build. Being removed from that was the hardest thing about 2017.”

Tannehill came back strong the following season. In the fifth game of the year, he was pressured to his left while trying to set up a deep throw to Jakeem Grant on an outside move. He flipped his hips and threw as hard as he could. After he released the ball, a defender grabbed his arm. He kept playing. The next week, he wasn’t even listed on the injury report.

But five days later, something changed. “He practiced at the beginning of the week and was throwing fine,” Gase says. “All of a sudden, he couldn’t throw the ball on Friday. That was the first we knew anything about it. He had no velocity. It was strange.”

Ryan Tannehill and his wife, Lauren, daughter, Stella, and son, Steel, on their boat, Going Deep. (Courtesy of Ryan Tannehill)

It eventually was diagnosed as a torn capsule in his shoulder — not a common football injury. Doctors couldn’t say how much time he would have to miss.

When he tried to practice after missing three games, he couldn’t throw more than 10 yards. “It was scary for me,” he says. “I didn’t know how much longer it would be. I finally got to a point where I was training my throwing motion again. I started playing (after missing one more game). I definitely wasn’t 100 percent. But it was enough to play.”

The injuries didn’t change the way Tannehill played. But they changed the way he thought.

“I was able to see things from a removed perspective for the first time,” he says. “It was an outside viewpoint, seeing the ins and outs of what was going on, how certain guys handle things that happen throughout the year. I felt I grew in that aspect, being able to know and relate to guys, from watching as a third party on the wall.”

After the 2018 season, it became apparent Tannehill would not return for a seventh year with the Dolphins. A trade was coming.

All he needed was a team that needed a starting quarterback. There were a few of them. Then the Broncos traded for Joe Flacco, the Redskins dealt for Case Keenum and the Jaguars agreed with free agent Nick Foles.

Tannehill watched and wondered, trying not to worry. “I didn’t have any control,” he says. “I could have driven myself crazy trying to figure it out. But I had to believe God’s plan was the right one.”

On March 15, Tannehill’s phone rang. His caller ID showed it was Dolphins general manager Chris Grier. Tannehill had been traded to the Titans to be the backup for Marcus Mariota — not what he was hoping for.

“Going there as the backup was hard,” he says. “It was something I don’t think you’re ever really prepared for. It sucked honestly. It sucked losing the position you worked really hard to get.”

In the spring practices on the fields at Saint Thomas Sports Park, Mariota went first, was given the most reps, and threw to the best receivers.

Then Tannehill fed on the scraps.

In meetings, Tannehill wasn’t quite sure how much to say or when to speak. It wasn’t his meeting room, as it had been all those years in Miami.

“He and I talked a couple times in the spring,” Titans offensive coordinator Arthur Smith says. “There were a couple of things he wanted to say (in front of teammates), but he felt it wasn’t his place. He admitted to me it was different for him, but he wasn’t combative about it.”

He never experienced anything like it. When he was beaten out by Jerrod Johnson as a freshman at Texas A&M, he volunteered to move to wide receiver. He excelled at the position before getting his first start at quarterback in the seventh game of his junior year. One way or another, he had always been a starter.

He was conflicted, understandably. It takes balls to be a good starting quarterback. It takes grace to be an understudy.

Tannehill couldn’t even be sure if it was the bridge to becoming a starter again or the beginning of how it was going to be from here on out.

In training camp, Tannehill had the typical struggles learning an offense that most of his teammates already were comfortable with. By the end of camp, though, he was performing with a degree of confidence and decisiveness.

Then the season started, and he was relegated mostly to running the scout team for the Titans’ defense. Practicing like that was difficult, but not as difficult as game day, standing on the sideline with neither adrenaline nor purpose.

“I had to bite my tongue and adjust to a different role,” Tannehill says. “I tried to stay true to who I am and what I believe in, working extremely hard, caring about the people around me, building relationships with the guys around me and preparing to take advantage of an opportunity if I was going to get one.”

Tannehill couldn't control his opportunity. But he could control his attitude and his interactions with teammates.

When Tannehill was a younger player, some teammates didn't always want to follow where he was trying to lead. Wide receiver Jarvis Landry admitted he didn't click with Tannehill when they played together on the Dolphins. Others weren't convinced he had what it took.

He bonded easily with wide receiver Kenny Stills, and in 2016, Tannehill asked Stills why he felt so strongly about kneeling during the national anthem. That led to many conversations between them about social justice. Tannehill read some of Stills' book recommendations. He also started talking to other teammates about it.

“I probably was naive to it before, or didn't think about it, didn't understand it,” Tannehill says. “My eyes were opened up to things that were going on for a long, long time. Once your eyes are opened up to it, you see things playing out, and it changes your viewpoint.”

In spring 2019, Tannehill accompanied Stills on a social justice road tour. They traveled around Tennessee in an RV, meeting with organizations and learning about their work, the history of repression and the criminal reform system.

After the killing of George Floyd, Tannehill spoke out on social media. He also appeared in a team video that called for action against racism, quoting Martin Luther King Jr., Barak Obama and Eldridge Cleaver.

Tannehill didn't do any of that because he wanted better relationships with teammates, but better relationships were a byproduct. “Do some relationships probably deepen, and are you having more in-depth conversations with teammates?” he says. “Yeah. But it's about doing the right thing.”

Nothing speaks louder in an NFL locker room than toughness. Tannehill hangs in the pocket like he's wearing a blindfold. He never used a knee brace after his ACL injury. And when he's carrying the football, he goes at defenders like a bighorn ram.

On a third-and-10 against the Chiefs in November, Tannehill took the snap in the shotgun. His receivers were covered, and he took off. When he got near the first down marker, cornerback Rashad Fenton was waiting for him. Tannehill put his shoulder into Fenton and dragged him 6 yards for a 12-yard gain.

“He's got great leadership skills because he walks it,” Smith says. “He's a tough dude. He'll put it on the line. The guys respect that.”

There is a time to try to bowl somebody over and there is a time to stand down. Smith praises Tannehill for being supportive of Mariota when Mariota was the starter. “That thing could have gone south,” Smith says. “I've been around rooms where that can become toxic, one guy thinks he's playing better than the other one. He handled it well.”

Tannehill hit the town with running back Derrick Henry, carpooled with center Ben Jones and partnered with tight end Jonnu Smith for offseason workouts.

Over time, he learned to treat teammates differently based on who they are. “Is he a tough love kind of guy?” Tannehill says. “Is he a guy you have to pull to the side and have a quiet conversation with? Is he a guy you want to get on in front of the whole team? I feel my ability to read those situations and learn about people has grown. I've been through a lot now, a lot of ups and downs. I have a lot of experience good and bad that allows me to see things from several perspectives and understand what guys could possibly be going through.”

Through his own struggles, Tannehill became more sensitive to the struggles of others.

After Mariota performed ineffectively in the first six games of the season, Tannehill was given a chance.

Before the first play of his first start in Tennessee, he pulled Jonnu Smith to the side and told him that if the defensive coverage aligned like he expected, Smith would get the ball on his back shoulder. The Chargers played as he suspected, and Tannehill hit Smith on a crossing route for a 24-yard gain.

But according to Arthur Smith, Tannehill started driving the team without “jerking the wheel.” He methodically integrated himself into a system that had already been established. Arthur Smith, meanwhile, molded the offense to use more concepts Tannehill was comfortable with.

Every Friday afternoon after the Titans finished practicing for the week, Tannehill met with Arthur Smith in his office for two to three hours, going over every play and every possibility in the game plan. They looked at contingencies and considered last-minute adjustments.

The point was to make sure Tannehill was thinking like his coach, and it wasn't long before there was an invisible string between them.

RYAN TANNEHILL

Tannehill impelled the Titans to seven victories in their last 10 regular-season games and led wins over the Patriots and Ravens in the playoffs. His 117.5 passer rating and 9.6 average yards per attempt were the best in the NFL. His 70.3 completion percentage was the highest of his career.

It wasn't that he was doing anything different from previous seasons. His footwork, his release, his method of reading — all the same. And the reality is he had stretches earlier in his career when he played as efficiently as he did in 2019. But he never played so well for so long.

The quarterback-friendly system helped. The play-action game was a killer because Henry was the best running back, because Tannehill could throw long and because his receivers were reliable and dangerous with the ball in their hands. Rookie wide receiver A.J. Brown led the NFL with an average after-the-catch gain of 8.8 yards.

Everything came together the way he kept hoping it would in each of the previous six seasons. "I watched him work super hard and not get much back from his labor (in past years)," says Lauren, who married Tannehill in January 2012. "It wasn't like he did anything different. But it was like a dream. I kept telling him, 'Pinch me.' We'd win a playoff game, and I'd pick him up at the airport at 2 in the morning or whenever, and we'd be on the way home, and I'd start crying I was so happy for him."

Tears had to be a part of this — tears of discouragement, tears of redemption.

Tannehill couldn't have gotten to where he is without feeling those deep boos vibrating in his sternum, without failing to become the next great Marino.

He couldn't have had the perspective to become a better leader without feeling like an outsider on his own team.

He couldn't have grown the way he has without being given up on by the team that drafted him, and then being embraced by a different group of teammates.

"Am I thankful for the lessons learned and growth that happened because of the hard times?" Tannehill says. "Yes. It's not an all-bad thing. ... Every experience, good or bad, is a learning experience. You aren't able to control a lot of situations you end up in. But how you handle it, how you push through adversity, how you grow, learn, improve, those things are under your control."

Spoken like the 32-year old he is.

Of course, everything is different now. Whereas little was expected in 2019, much is expected in 2020.

The doubters remain, but believers are signing his paychecks. And what else could matter?

"There is always pressure to perform," he says. "I don't feel like it's specific to the contract. The NFL is based on what have you done for me lately, so you need to perform every year, get better every game."

Those hours on Going Deep, with nothing but blue around him, helped put it all in perspective.

"I don't want to say he has more love for the game now, because he's always loved it," Lauren says. "But maybe more appreciation. I think he has more appreciation for things."

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: appreciative of where he is, and appreciative of where he's been.

RYAN TANNEHILL

A YEAR LATER, EVERYTHING HAS CHANGED FOR QB RYAN TANNEHILL AT THE START OF TITANS TRAINING CAMP

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JULY 30, 2020

NASHVILLE – At the start of training camp last year, Ryan Tannehill was a back-up quarterback set to play on a one-year deal in Tennessee.

Tannehill had been traded to the Titans – from the Dolphins -- a few months earlier, and he was living in a new city with an uncertain future. Some thought his career might be headed toward a quiet ending.

Fast-forward to today.

Tannehill earned a new lucrative new contract earlier this offseason after guiding the Titans to an AFC Championship Game appearance in January, and now he's one of the leaders on a team trying to take the next step. Marcus Mariota, the quarterback he deferred to this time a year ago, is now on a new team.

Instead of fading out, Tannehill's career is taking off, and he wants to take the Titans with him.

"It is kind of wild how much things have changed in a year," Tannehill said on a video conference call on Thursday. "But I am really excited about the opportunity that we have as a team. I am really excited about the guys that we have on this team, the guys that we have in the locker room, and the opportunity that we have in front of us.

"It's a new year, but we're bringing back a lot of familiar faces. I am excited about hopefully taking the next step as a group in 2020."

Tannehill was named AP Comeback Player of the Year following last season, when he played in his first Pro Bowl.

Tannehill led the NFL with a 117.5 rating in 2019, and he guided the Titans to a pair of playoff wins – at New England and Baltimore – and into the AFC Championship Game, where the Titans lost to the Chiefs.

During the regular season, Tannehill threw for 2,742 yards with 22 touchdowns and six interceptions. He's guided the Titans to a 9-4 mark, including playoffs, since taking over as the team's starter in Week 7.

Tannehill and many of his Titans teammates are back in the building, adjusting to a different feel and lead up compared to camp practices in previous years because of COVID-19.

But the mission this season is the same, and he's optimistic with so many familiar faces returning.

Running back Derrick Henry is back on a long-term deal of his own, the team's top three receivers – Corey Davis, A.J. Brown and Adam Humphries – all return, along with tight ends Jonnu Smith, Anthony Firkser and MyCole Pruitt. Four of five starters return on the offensive line.

Offensive coordinator Arthur Smith is set to begin his second season as offensive coordinator.

Ryan Tannehill Talks Training Camp, 2020 Season

"Any time you have continuity from year to year it helps a lot," Tannehill said. "The league, your team usually changes a whole lot from year to year and we do have change. But bringing back a lot of familiar faces is a good thing. We are jumping back into the same offense, with some minor adjustments, and we're able to lock into some small details that we never really got to last year. If we can do that this year and keep pushing forward, it is really going to help us. And when you have that familiarity with the guy that is beside you, the guy you are throwing to, the guy who is handing you the ball, hopefully it will help us.

"I am excited about the opportunity that we have, and the guys on this football team. I feel like we have a lot of things working for us, and it could really be a good year for us."

The goals, Tannehill said, are clear.

"Last year, we came up two wins shy of what our ultimate goal is – every year you set out to win the division, and ultimately win the Super Bowl," Tannehill said. "All the work we put in is to win. So obviously that is the ultimate goal.

"But you can't think about that. You think about the daily process of what you need to accomplish and taking the next step in the offense. Our defense will take the next step in the defense and ... we just need to do a better job consistently throughout the whole year. Last year we got off to a slow start, and it took a while for us to find our stride. We need to come off to a better start this year and be able to not have to back ourselves in a corner to fight out. It would be nice to come out and play well early in the year."

RYAN TANNEHILL

RYAN TANNEHILL KICKS OFF YEAR 2 AS UNQUESTIONED LEADER OF THE TITANS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
SEPTEMBER 14, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- When quarterback Ryan Tannehill faces the Denver Broncos on Monday night (10:10 ET, ESPN), he'll return to the scene where his career got a second chance.

A six-year starter for the Miami Dolphins, Tannehill came to the Tennessee Titans in 2019 as a backup. But after starting quarterback Marcus Mariota threw his second interception early in the third quarter of a Week 6 game in Denver, coach Mike Vrabel turned to Tannehill to give him a chance.

Although the Titans didn't win that game, Tannehill never let go of the starting job.

"Ryan was an elite QB in this league not longer than a year ago," former Titans tight end Delanie Walker said last October. "He can take over a team. He can make plays."

With Tannehill at quarterback in 2019, the Titans scored 20 or more points in every game for the rest of the regular season. Their red zone percentage catapulted from 53.3% (19th) to tops in the NFL at 77.3% over that stretch. The Titans rode Tannehill's hot hand -- and some punishing running from Derrick Henry -- all the way to the AFC Championship Game.

After leading the Titans on a deep playoff run, teammates' belief in Ryan Tannehill grew.

Becoming the starting quarterback didn't mean Tannehill was just handed the leadership role. That had to be earned over time. Going into his second season in Tennessee, Tannehill has grown into the role of unquestioned leader of the offense.

"Ryan worked his way in there and played well," Vrabel said. "And then as that comfort level began to grow, he really expanded his leadership and then took off in the offseason. I'd say it's better now than what it was last year. They respond to him."

Learn first, lead later

Tannehill entered the NFL as the No. 8 overall selection by the Dolphins in the 2012 draft. He won the starting job as a rookie and started 88 games for Miami over six seasons. But after signing a six-year, $96 million contract extension in 2015, Tannehill missed 24 games over the next three seasons with knee and shoulder injuries.

The Dolphins ran out of patience and traded Tannehill along with a 2019 sixth-round pick in exchange for Tennessee's 2019 seventh-round pick and a 2020 fourth-round pick. They even picked up $5 million of Tannehill's guaranteed $7 million -- in essence, paying a king's ransom for Tannehill to leave.

The unfamiliar territory of being the backup was an adjustment.

"When you're the starter, there's certain things you're able to do as far as leading," Tannehill said during minicamp last year. "Taking a step back in a leadership role has been probably the toughest role for me."

Tannehill laid low and bit his tongue at times in an effort to "know his role." He observed his teammates so he could uncover the best way to lead them if he got the chance.

"I kind of got to take a backseat, and watch interactions, watch how the guys work, and now have a better idea how to lead them," Tannehill said before starting his first game for the Titans.

Making Tannehill the starter in Week 7 last year was Vrabel's attempt to "get a little spark" for an offense that scored a total of seven points in the two previous games.

Ryan Tannehill celebrated the Titans' come-from-behind win over the Chiefs during the 2019 regular season.

The galvanizing moment for Tannehill came in Week 10 when he approached the huddle with the Titans down by five points at their 39-yard line with 1:21 left to play.

"Let's go win it!" Tannehill said before scrambling for 18 yards to start the drive.

"When we stepped into the huddle, Ryan gave us a call," tight end Anthony Firkser said. "... Ryan was being a great leader keeping everyone poised."

A pinpoint pass to Adam Humphries resulted in a 23-yard touchdown that put the Titans ahead for good. Tannehill ran over a Kansas City Chiefs defensive back to complete the 2-point conversion in the win.

Tannehill showed his leadership through toughness in Week 14 when one of his passes got tipped at the line of scrimmage and intercepted by Raiders defensive lineman Maurice Hurst. Some quarterbacks take cover after an interception to avoid a big hit. Tannehill fought off a block by Raiders defender Dion Jordan and delivered a hard hit on Hurst, a 6-foot-2, 295-pounder, to prevent him from scoring a touchdown.

"He's physically tough. The way he played, he was able to solidify himself as more of a voice," quarterbacks coach Pat O'Hara said of how Tannehill became a leader on the Titans. "The leadership has been excellent. His approach every day is the same guy every day. When you're the same guy every day with how you approach things, not just on the field, you build trust that way."

Leaning on experience to help teammates

The coronavirus pandemic made the usual offseason workouts a challenge, but Tannehill arranged to conduct throwing sessions with tight end Jonnu Smith while they were in South Florida. Tannehill also put together throwing sessions with wide receivers when he got to Nashville before camp started. The workouts offered an opportunity to get on the same page.

Tannehill played receiver for two seasons at Texas A&M before switching to quarterback his junior year. He finished with 55 receptions for 844 yards and five touchdowns as a redshirt freshman.

It's safe to say he knows a thing or two about route running.

"You learn throughout your career - some routes, they're going to have more freedom to put their own flavor on it and find a way to get open, and then some routes are more timing routes," Tannehill said. "We've got to be precise. It's just a matter of communicating with those guys and knowing when they have some freedom to put their own flavor on it, get open."

Often after a play, Tannehill will go to the receiver and discuss being more decisive or getting depth on a route.

"He's always talking to receivers, whether it's in meetings or right after the play," Firkser said.

A.J. Brown jokingly said if the receivers aren't where Tannehill wants them to be, he's not throwing them the ball. Tannehill has been a steadying presence for Brown entering his second NFL season.

"He's definitely a leader on the field. He demands what he wants," Brown said during training camp. "You got to be in his right spot and he's going to deliver a good ball. I would also definitely say it's the influence off the field. How he talks to me off the field, in the locker room. Telling me to be a pro because there's a lot of guys looking at me. He's a great leader."

Humphries recalled a time after practice during camp when Tannehill actually demonstrated how a route needed to be run against a particular coverage. The trust that receivers have in Tannehill allows them to welcome his input.

"He does a great job communicating what he wants in the details of our routes," Humphries said. "As soon as the play is over, he wants to talk about it. Knowing how to approach us and talk is awesome."

"He played the receiver position so he knows the techniques at the top of the route that can create separation. He can relate to us. Having him with that knowledge, being a former receiver, it makes it a lot easier to communicate with him and be on the same page."

New season, new respect

The Titans signed Tannehill to a new four-year, $118 million deal in March. It capped a remarkable turnaround for a player who was essentially paid to go away by the Dolphins just a year before.

In a powerful example of how strongly the players felt about him, Tannehill was one of the players chosen to talk to the media when the Titans decided not to practice on Aug. 27 because they wanted to draw attention to systemic racism and social injustice.

He was also named one of the team captains by his teammates earlier this week. Now the ninth-year veteran gets the chance to reward his teammates' faith in the same place where his ascent began on Monday night.

"We're going to push each other and try to get our best out of each other," Tannehill said. "I try to hold guys accountable, try to push our guys, push the offense. ... It all works together, and it's my job as a quarterback, as a leader, to push these guys and try to get our best."

KENNY VACCARO

TITANS SAFETY KENNY VACCARO BECAME A FAN FAVORITE IN NASHVILLE

*BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
MARCH 22, 2019*

In the sewers of the Twitterverse, haters and criticizers and doubters run rampant. Anonymity has a way of bringing out the ugliest in people, and Kenny Vaccaro is well aware of it.

But that's precisely why Vaccaro was a bit taken aback these past few months, after the Titans' 2018 season ended and the issue of re-signing the Titans safety was a popular discussion topic among Titans fans. On Twitter, Vaccaro's own supporters-versus-haters ratio was off the charts... in a good way.

"Usually you're going to get at least a couple trolls in there like, 'You suck.' But there wasn't," Vaccaro said on March 14, three days after the team re-signed him to a four-year deal worth $26 million (with $11.5 million guaranteed). "Titans fans were great. I couldn't find too many trolls."

So Vaccaro's Twitter feed became a running testament to the phenomenon. He'd retweet all the positive sentiments thrown at him by fans. He also said he was prepared to do the same for any negative jabs taken at him – he just couldn't find any.

"It really wasn't a campaign," Vaccaro said, "like, 'Sign me, sign me, sign me.' I was really like, this is me just retweeting everything I'm getting. There was just no negativity in the tweets."

It was a marvel on a social medium that serves as a home for trolls. But really, it was no wonder Vaccaro emerged as a fan favorite, and no wonder he had throngs of fans clamoring for his re-signing.

There was the crushing hit Vaccaro laid on James White for a loss of three yards on the New England Patriots' opening play from scrimmage on Nov. 11, a tone-setter of sorts in the Titans' 34-10 pummeling of the Super Bowl champs.

There was the time when Giants tight end Rhett Ellison laid an impact block on Vaccaro on Dec. 16, causing the safety to lose his helmet but failing to stop him from helping gang tackle running back Saquon Barkley in the Titans' first shutout in 18 years.

There were a ton of those types of instances scattered throughout the 2018 season, when Vaccaro's physicality played a key part in a big defensive play. They added up, and by the time 2019 hit, fans wanted No. 24 back.

The feeling was mutual.

"I wanted to be back, I'll say that," Vaccaro said with a smile during his press conference last week. "It was always an easy decision for me."

Vaccaro first was brought to Nashville on a one-year deal in August. After Johnathan Cyprien went down with an ACL tear in training camp, Titans general manager Jon Robinson brought in Vaccaro as a replacement.

A season later, it's easy to call the move a success.

"I appreciate it. I'm thankful for the opportunity," Vaccaro said. "I want to give a shout out to Cyp, too. He text me yesterday. I'm going to get emotional. Him getting hurt ... He's just a good dude."

Vaccaro stumbled through that unprompted shout out to Cyprien. He clearly wanted to say more, but emotions prevented him from doing so until he was asked again about the player he replaced.

"Him kind of welcoming me with opening arms, being the stand-up class act he is, it's tough," Vaccaro said. "Because he kind of knew. The writing was on the wall after the season, but (at) the same time he's just a great dude. I appreciate the way he handled the situation. (With) a lot of people there's going to be jealousy. There's going to be praying for somebody's downfall almost. But I never felt that (from him). I just appreciate him."

Yet another instance of Vaccaro giving Titans fans a reason to have his back.

"I saw the clip where he kind of got a little choked up yesterday and thought that was really cool," Robinson said. "Kind of speaks to his passion for football and the camaraderie in that room. Kenny's a real passionate football player. We were fortunate that he was available last August when Cyp went down. He did a great job coming in and acclimating himself to our football program and earned it."

KENNY VACCARO

TITANS SAFETY KENNY VACCARO WANTS TO MAKE IMPACT ON AND OFF THE FIELD

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 28, 2020

NASHVILLE – On the football field, Titans safety Kenny Vaccaro lets his pads – and helmet – do the talking.

Off the field, he wants to spend his time talking about something more important than a game.

Vaccaro, in his eight NFL season, started off his video conference call with reporters on Friday by saying he doesn't want to talk about football with media this season.

Instead, Vaccaro wants to use his voice to discuss social injustice, systemic oppression, racism and police brutality following the recent events in our country, from the recent shooting of Jacob Blake by police in Kenosha, Wisconsin to George Floyd's murder by a Minneapolis policeman back in May.

"With all due respect, I'm really not going to talk football when I come into these meetings in light of recent events that have been happening around the country. I just think for me and my platform, my duty is to speak on the things that are happening and that's just my stance. I'm just not going to talk football this year," Vaccaro said.

"I just think football is not the most important thing right now – it is family, it is your brothers in the locker room, it is the systematic oppression, the racial injustices going on. It is bigger than ball."

Kenny Vaccaro: The Next Step is Taking Action

On Thursday, the Titans canceled practice and the team spent the day discussing matters as a team. Vaccaro said he wants to join others on the team in making a positive change in the Nashville community, and across the country.

In emotional pleas on Thursday, Titans safety Kevin Byard and quarterback Ryan Tannehill stood with their teammates to address the subjects of social injustice, racism and police brutality, while vowing to stand together as a team.

"For me, the next step is taking action, getting in the communities and being a shining light, an example," Vaccaro said. "The leaders of the team got together, and we talked about different things we can do, maybe on our off days to show action, to show that we really want change and we are not just talking about it.

"Canceling a practice, we didn't do that because we didn't want to ball out. We did that because we felt it was right to talk about all the different emotions everybody was going through as a team, make sure that we respected everybody and let everybody know that we are a family, and our football team needs to be a shining light to the outside world, and how it needs to be done, how people need to be treated.

Titans Players Stand in Unity on Social Injustice Issues

"I don't think sitting out a practice is going to stop police from killing Black men," Vaccaro continued. "I think sitting out of practice allowed us to get together and talk about a plan with our team and put that plan to action and not just skip practice and go home and just miss a day because of things that happened. We spent hours upon hours talking about different ideas and things we can do."

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel on Thursday mentioned the team's plan to "Zoom With a Titan," a way the organization can teach children. Vrabel said he wants to recreate the atmosphere in schools so it's like it is in the building at Saint Thomas Sports Park, one that consists of love, hard work, compassion, equality and accountability.

Vaccaro said he's looking forward to that endeavor, and he's also looking forward to finding other ways the team can make a difference outside of football.

Vaccaro, the father of two young sons, said it's important to influence the youth to make it a better place. Vaccaro said he teared up in a team meeting on Thursday when discussing difficult topics as it relates to social injustices, and his kids.

ISAIAH WILSON

ISAIAH WILSON: A BIG MAN WITH A BIG FUTURE ON THE TITANS OFFENSIVE LINE

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 11, 2020

Editor's note: This is the first in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. Joe Rexrode's story on second-round pick Kristian Fulton, a cornerback from LSU, will be published tomorrow.

The car was already packed and ready to roll when Isaiah Wilson, clad in his Poly Prep Country Day School cap and gown, squeezed his diploma and took the first few steps toward his future.

Why wait?

Sure, it had been important to Wilson that he graduate from the prestigious Brooklyn, N.Y., high school. But there would be no time for all-night parties with classmates, no hours spent in joyful reminiscence. Not with offseason football workouts at the University of Georgia, Wilson's college destination, already underway.

So with the temperature sitting at about 60 degrees that early June night in 2017, Wilson and his parents headed south — way south — finishing a journey of more than 800 miles when they rolled into Athens, Ga., at 4 in the morning. The phone calls began three or four hours later. It started with one from an assistant coach, then from a player or two, and finally it was head coach Kirby Smart on the line.

"Hey, we're having a team run," Wilson recalls Smart saying. "We don't expect you to come in and kill it, but we'd like to have you here."

Eager to make a good first impression, the 6-foot-6 Wilson — who weighed more than 380 pounds at the time — pulled on his compression leggings, shorts and T-shirt and stepped into the heat of a 90-degree day in the Deep South.

His first order of business? Joining new Bulldog teammates in running "110s," the dreaded length-of-the-field sprints used to condition players or, perhaps more accurately, determine what condition players are in. Needless to say, plenty of eyes were focused on the massive Wilson, ranked the No. 5 tackle prospect in the country that year by the 247Sports Composite.

"I remember watching him walk out to join us, and he was huge at that time, just huge," Andrew Thomas, the No. 4 pick in the 2020 draft by the Giants and Wilson's former Georgia teammate, said. "But he comes out there wearing sweatpants or something like that. That was like his 'Welcome to the Georgia heat!' moment. He wasn't used to it, coming from up north."

To his credit, Wilson made the first trip down the field, sweat already pouring off the big man's body. He tried to run a second sprint, too, but it did not go well. In a matter of moments, Wilson walked to the sideline, huffing, puffing and panting in the humid air.

So this is what college football was going to be like?

"To be honest, I was a little nervous he was going to go back home with his parents," recalls Sam Pittman, Georgia's former offensive line coach and now the head coach at Arkansas.

'Sacrifice is an understatement'

This wasn't the first time football had turned Wilson's life upside down.

A few years earlier, Wilson had paid a visit to Poly Prep, where he was charmed by the academics, the athletics and some personal time with Ray Marten, an older Poly Prep student who would go on to play tight end for Boston College.

It was everything Wilson, then in eighth grade, could hope for in a high school, but he knew he'd have to make changes to attend. One was the hour-long commute he would make from his Canarsie neighborhood in southeastern Brooklyn, which would mean a wake-up call before 6 a.m. He'd also be wearing a mandated uniform every day, a first for Wilson.

But Wilson wasn't the only one sacrificing. There was the matter of school tuition — about $40,000 per year at the time — that had to be covered. A good chunk would be picked up by Wilson's need-based scholarship. But the remainder meant extra hours of work for Wilson's mother, Sharese, who manages care for at-risk students in New York, and his father, Merrell, who works in construction.

"Sacrifice is an understatement for what they did — just different things all over the place," Wilson said. "Things like that you get to see as a kid, and you understand what they're doing for you. You appreciate it."

It took just one look at Wilson for the Poly Prep football coaches to realize they had a special prospect on their hands. Current head coach Kevin Fountaine, then an assistant, had never seen any high schooler as big as Wilson, which is saying something considering the school had produced its share of big-time football prospects. Fountaine used Wilson on both sides of the line and sometimes — just for fun — he let the big guy carry the football into the end zone on short-yardage situations.

"Even though it's hard at 300-something pounds to have a high motor on every single play, you can see when you watch some of the offensive cutups that he was just wrecking defenses," Fountaine said. "He wrestled his freshman year, too, before he got too big and didn't have a weight class. If you're going to wrestle, it shows you're a tough guy to get on the mat. He didn't have to do that. He chose to."

SpongeBob and the elves

ISAIAH WILSON

College coaches began flocking to Brooklyn to see Wilson during his junior year. Pittman recalled his first visit to Poly Prep, which occurred at a time when recruiters could only talk to high school coaches, not the prospects themselves. Pittman, however, did not need a formal introduction to identify Wilson.

“I don’t know if I’d ever seen anybody look like that,” Pittman said. “So I was thinking to myself, ‘Well, we’re on the right guy.’”

Wilson never let all the attention overwhelm him, however, as the fun-loving side of his personality remained intact. Through much of high school, the physically imposing Wilson hauled around a SpongeBob SquarePants bookbag, which eventually earned so much notoriety that The New Yorker magazine included it as No. 37 in its annual feature, “Reasons to Love New York.”

“‘SpongeBob’ is definitely still my favorite show,” Wilson said. “It’s just really funny. And there’s a lot of life lessons in it, so it could never get old. I love cartoons in general. They keep you young, keep you playful, keep you joyous.”

And when it came time to make his college selection — choosing from among a final three of Alabama, Georgia and Michigan — Wilson did so in typically unconventional fashion. Instead of holding his own news conference, he announced his decision as part of his high school’s Christmas performance assembly. More than 10,000 people were viewing the live Facebook feed, waiting on Wilson, who ended the suspense when a pair of students — dressed as elves — brought him a Georgia baseball cap to wear.

“That is his personality — he’s been that way as long as I can remember,” Sharese Wilson said. “He’s pretty much been the one (of my sons) that’s the friendliest, most fun-loving. He just keeps everyone smiling.”

‘I think he’s very tough’

It was months later that Wilson found himself on the sideline of a Georgia practice field, gasping for air after a single 110-yard sprint with his new teammates.

“I was overheating, tired, out of breath, whatever you want to call it,” Wilson recalled with a chuckle. “I think I almost died out there. Really, though, it was a funny experience, a fun memory.”

The fact Wilson struggled wasn’t much of a surprise given the circumstances: a few hours of sleep after an all-night drive from New York, the intense Georgia heat and too many pounds of baby fat still on his massive frame.

Still, it proved to be one indication that Wilson, despite his lofty recruiting rankings, might not be ready for SEC football. So with Georgia loaded with talent on the offensive line, the decision was made that he would redshirt. It was a gut-punch at the time for Wilson, who’d been so dominant during his high school days in New York. But he rebounded quickly, realizing the move was probably best for his long-term development.

“When Coach told him, it took him about a week just to get his mind right,” Thomas said. “But then he came back, put his head down and understood he had a learning curve and you work hard to get over it. He didn’t pout. He was on the sideline pumping up the team, excited to see his brothers doing well.”

The redshirt year paid clear dividends. He transformed his body, dropping 43 pounds to a more suitable 340. He improved his technique and his pad level, the kind of things he didn’t have to worry about while overpowering much smaller opponents in high school. He adjusted through practice to the speed of SEC football, the closest competition to NFL.

By Wilson’s redshirt freshman season in 2018, he was the starting right tackle. By year’s end, he’d earned the offense’s co-most improved player award. By the end of the 2019 season, Wilson had taken another step forward, earning second-team All-SEC honors by the Associated Press. Not too shabby considering the conference’s two first-teamers — Thomas and Alabama’s Jeddrick Wills Jr. — were top-10 overall picks last month.

“You knew he was going to get better because he was so talented and so big,” Pittman said. “His technique got better, and so did his body positioning and his hands. All those things will still continue to improve.”

“But there are two things I really like about him. I think he’s very tough. He’ll play beat up a little bit. The other thing is that he works extremely hard. Those two things will benefit him as his career continues.”

Viral draft moment

Which brings us to draft night, when the Titans chose Wilson with the 29th overall selection, intent on adding a rough, tough mauler at right tackle to eventually replace former All-Pro Jack Conklin.

But the reason many will long remember the pick? The reaction in the Wilson household — and the reaction to the reaction.

When his name was announced on ESPN, an emotional Wilson pulled a Titans cap down over his face and started to cry. His fiancée, Grace, already sitting in his lap, leaned over top of Wilson, put her arms around his neck and hugged him, effectively blocking the ESPN cameras that were trained on him.

That didn’t go over well with Sharese Wilson, who at first tapped Grace on the shoulder, then physically lifted her off of Wilson’s lap. Sharese Wilson’s hand can be seen moving up and down afterward, as if she might have been lecturing Grace. Needless to say, the moment turned into a viral video.

“I did get quite a few calls from friends on that,” Sharese Wilson said with a laugh. “It’s funny because that little clip, we couldn't see it at all (while it was happening) because we were kind of following along with ESPN.

"But in our minds, we were just like, 'The cameras are rolling, so let's get everybody out of the way' so that Isaiah — we knew they would pan to Isaiah — would talk about his reaction or they're going to catch him crying or whatever it is. What ended up happening is they were rolling when we were trying to clear out."

Wilson says he finds the video funny in retrospect but believes it received extra attention because nothing else was going on in the sports world at the time.

"At the end of the day, the draft was the biggest spectacle of the quarantine," Wilson said. "Everyone was tuned in, waiting to get something to harp on to put on social media because people are bored."

"It is what it is. Everyone is in the house; nobody can do anything. People were bored and jumped at some funny content. I mean, my family is doing great. We're all smiles over here."

Added Sharese Wilson: "Yeah, I think that's quarantine. There's not enough to talk about, so maybe some folks had to create a little something because they don't have anything else to talk about right now."

'A really high ceiling'

Now, a few weeks later, Wilson is preparing for his transition to the NFL.

Just when he'll be able to take the field for his first practice is anyone's guess due to the COVID-19 restrictions. But the prospect of the 6-foot-6, 350-pound Wilson mowing down defenders in front of Derrick Henry has to be tantalizing for Titans fans and teammates. And keep in mind: Wilson played only two seasons of college football, turning pro after his redshirt sophomore year, and has yet to reach his full potential. Most scouting reports noted that Wilson's game is still a bit raw, something that should change in time.

"I think that's fair to say, and I think he'll tell you that," Pittman said. "But he's got a great willingness to work. He has the talent to do that, and he'll be coached up and all those things. So I think his future is very, very bright."

Added Thomas, his former linemate: "I know Tennessee runs the ball really well there, and that's kind of what our offense was built on at Georgia. So it's a really good spot for him. He's definitely built for running the ball and that zone scheme. I think he has a really high ceiling. The more he plays, the better he's going to get."

Wilson is looking forward to joining his new Titans teammates and is eager to learn from veterans such as Rodger Saffold, Taylor Lewan, Dennis Kelly and, of course, fellow Georgia alum Ben Jones. He wants to soak in their experience, the nuances of the game, such as where the vets place their hands in pass protection and how they gain leverage on defenders during running plays.

"A few of them have already reached out to me, just kind of extending the hand," Wilson said, "just telling me this is a brotherhood and if you need anything once you get here or if you need a place to work out, do it with me. I definitely appreciated it, and when I get to Nashville, they're probably going to regret those texts because I'm going to be blowing up their phones all the time."

But that's not to say anyone should be worried about Wilson as he prepares for the pros.

That overwhelmed youngster who not all that long ago couldn't even make a second sprint down the field at his first workout? He's a far different person these days, in body and spirit.

"I think mentally I'm kind of locked into what I am now, what I like to do, how I like to play, what I'm good at, things like that," Wilson said. "That's kind of how I hold myself, and on being tough, being comfortable while being uncomfortable."

"I figured a lot of things out about myself and what drives me. So you learn how to be OK after two hours of running when you're thinking, 'I don't know if I can run another sprint.' But you have to run another sprint. So you do it."

TITANS TOP PICK: 'I AM GEORGE FLOYD'

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
JUNE 2, 2020

At 6-foot-7, 340 pounds, Isaiah Wilson is someone who stands out in a crowd.

In a thoughtful and poignant social media post Sunday, however, the 21-year-old Tennessee Titans first-round draft pick, expressed the feeling that he is as anonymous as another African American when viewed through the lens of racism.

Wilson joined many other professional athletes in the U.S. and across the world with a public reaction to the death of George Floyd last week in Minneapolis and the protests – peaceful and violent – that have taken place across the country in recent days. Floyd died while in police custody, and videos recorded by bystanders showed one of the arresting officers knelt on the back of his neck for nine minutes while Floyd complained of difficulty breathing.

“My heart hurts because I am George Floyd,” Wilson wrote. “When I take off the uniform and I’m no longer on the field I am George Floyd. My family is George Floyd. My friends are George Floyd. If you don’t understand the sentiment practice empathy and think about if your family/friends didn’t survive a police encounter for drinking a beer too young. (I’m) not political. (I’m) for humans. A balanced equilibrium where we are all the same. Please be safe during this trying time.”

Wilson was raised in Brooklyn, N.Y. and spent the past three years at the University of Georgia. The Titans selected him with the 29th pick in the 2020 NFL Draft with the idea that he will be their starting right tackle for years, possibly as soon as this fall.

“I want to become most polished player that I possibly can,” he said on draft day. “I think I have a lot of physical gifts and I’ve put a lot of things on tape, and if I refine those things and polish those things, I can be a great player for this organization. That’s my goal.”

Based on his latest comments, he has a chance to be a team spokesman as well.

BATTLING IS IN LOGAN WOODSIDES BLOOD THE TITANS BACKUP QB WONT GO AWAY

BY KYLE TUCKER
THE ATHLETIC
AUGUST 27, 2020

NASHVILLE — Pat O'Hara laughed like a guy who has had both a nagging dermatological irritation and worked with Logan Woodside for parts of the last three seasons. The Tennessee Titans' quarterbacks coach let out a cackle that suggested the analogy was spot-on when he heard how Woodside's high school coach described the 25-year-old QB.

"He's like a bad rash," said Chris Tracy, who coached Woodside at Franklin County (Ky.) High. "He just won't go away."

Both Tracy and O'Hara mean that as a genuine compliment about a guy without a single regular-season NFL snap to his credit who is still somehow heading into his third consecutive September with the Titans. It's always kind of been this way with Woodside and football. At every level, he's been the second (or third) choice initially, the guy who was supposed to just give it up, but refused to accept that.

"It's made him really mentally tough, which is a trait you have to have when you play quarterback in the NFL," O'Hara said. "There's a lot of different things that come at you and it's a critical position that is criticized. He's really battled and earned everything he's gotten over the years, and all of those things make him who he is now, which is a tough, competitive guy who works extremely hard and now he's put himself in position to compete to be our backup."

Woodside's bio doesn't really read like that of an underdog. He threw for 5,511 yards, ran for 845 yards and totaled 86 touchdowns in two seasons at Franklin County. He was Mid-American Conference Offensive Player of the Year in 2017, became Toledo's career record-holder for passing yards (10,514), touchdowns (93) and quarterback efficiency rating. He was an NFL Draft pick in 2018, starting AAF quarterback in 2019 and the Titans' clear No. 2 QB entering camp this summer.

But look closer. His first high school coach moved him to running back, so he transferred into Tracy's program — and still had to fight off a returning senior starter to win his first quarterback competition. After struggling to get Power 5 schools to notice the 6-foot-1 QB, he was finally in line to be the man at Toledo before Phillip Ely transferred in from mighty Alabama and beat him out in preseason — twice. The euphoria of being selected in the seventh round by the Cincinnati Bengals, a franchise 80 miles from where he grew up in Frankfort, Ky., vanished when he was arrested for DUI, struggled on the field and was cut in the preseason.

He wasn't even the first quarterback the San Antonio Commanders selected in the AAF draft. Or the second. He was the third choice at his position for a start-up minor league franchise. But it could've been worse. For about a month between the Bengals and Commanders gigs, he worked at an L.A. Fitness in Cincinnati, allegedly selling memberships but mostly trying not to be recognized by anyone and "figuring out how to get myself back playing football somewhere, anywhere," Woodside said. "I realized that working a regular job was not something I wanted to do for the rest of my life. I was about as miserable as you could be. I had such an unbelievable opportunity, and I didn't take full advantage of it. That's something I look back on now as a big mistake, but one that I've really learned and grown from."

For once in his football-playing life, Woodside had allowed himself to believe he'd arrived once he got drafted. Tracy said his former pupil was back home that summer bragging about which flashy car and other extravagant things he planned to buy with his NFL riches. For just a moment, he let go of the scratch-and-claw mentality that had gotten him there, and it almost cost him a shot at professional football.

"I prayed for him quite a bit during that time — and I told him that," Tracy said. "You're a 21-year-old kid and people are telling you how good you are and you just got drafted and you're dreaming about all the ways you're going to spend all that money. And I can't tell him, 'No, you're not. That's not how it's going to work.' Because I'm just another dumb old guy if I say that. But he wasn't focused. He was worried about the other stuff too much. It makes you realize, because Logan has a great family and great network of support, how hard it must be for kids who don't have that behind them when people start throwing money at them and telling them how great they are. I saw Logan after the Bengals cut him and told him my prayer for him: That he get his mind right so his ability can take over and he can show everybody what he can do."

The AAF afforded a refocused Woodside exactly that opportunity. He beat out the other two QBs, including former North Carolina star Marquise Williams, and completed 58 percent of his passes for 1,385 yards, with 10 touchdowns/2-point conversions and eight interceptions in eight games before the league folded. He approached that season like an extended NFL preseason, a chance to put something on film and prove he can run an offense against other pros if asked. He got a chance to back that up in actual NFL games last fall, when the Titans, who'd signed him to their practice squad briefly in 2018, brought him to camp.

Woodside rose to the occasion again, completing 60.5 percent of his passes for 539 yards, four touchdowns and no picks in four exhibitions. With both Ryan Tannehill and Marcus Mariota on the roster, though, he was relegated to the practice squad. There, after suffering a season-ending injury, is actually where Woodside impressed his coaches and teammates most. He stuck around the facility, stayed in meetings, refused to disconnect from the offense and tried to learn all he could while rehabilitating his throwing arm. Offensive coordinator Arthur Smith noted that Woodside is “consumed by” preparation.

“He’s very inquisitive. Last year, he asked a lot of great questions and I feel like he grew a lot, even though he wasn’t out there practicing with us,” said Tannehill, a freshly minted $100 million man, fresh off an AFC title game appearance and secure in his starting job. “I felt like he really got a lot out of last year and so far he’s carrying that into 2020. He loves the game, he loves preparing, he loves everything about it. I love playing with guys like that, who enjoy the grind, the daily grind, the preparation, the hard work.”

That’s all the stuff that saw Woodside enter camp this year as the obvious favorite to be Tannehill’s backup. He and rookie seventh-round pick Cole McDonald were the only other quarterbacks on the roster after Mariota moved on to the Raiders. And while Woodside didn’t necessarily look sharp in early practices, he looked easily sharper than the new guy. But then Tennessee sent the new guy packing last week and brought in veteran Trevor Siemian, who owns 25 career starts and ran a similar offense to the Titans’ while in Denver. Just like that, making his first 53-man roster became a much taller order for Woodside.

He did not blink, of course, because this is exactly how it’s always been.

“We’ve challenged him in a lot of ways and he’s always responded well,” O’Hara said. “It doesn’t faze Logan. That’s not his makeup. I’m not concerned about when you bring another guy in how he’s going to react. I don’t think it affected him at all.”

In fact, Woodside has been the sharper of the two in their first week of competition. Siemian is still acclimating to his new team, to be fair, but Woodside’s throws have been more accurate and more on time — especially on Monday when most of the veterans got a day off from practice and coaches took a long look at their second and third strings. Siemian threw one ugly interception and should’ve had another, while Woodside slung several strikes and had no catastrophic errors. He looks like a guy who has complete grasp of the offense now and can command the huddle.

“Doesn’t surprise me one bit,” Toledo coach Jason Candle said. “The competitive spirit of that young man has always been at the forefront, very obvious to anyone who has ever interacted with him. We had to tell that guy twice here that he wouldn’t be the starting quarterback. A lot of people would bail on you in that situation, transfer and leave. We told him there were still a couple things he needed to work on to achieve the career he wanted, and he could’ve pouted about that, but instead he took the coaching and made use of his time to steadily improve. By the time he left, he might’ve been the best ever to play here.”

Woodside first lost his job to Ely, the former Crimson Tide QB, before the 2014 season. When Ely tore his ACL in Week 2, Woodside stepped right in and led the Rockets to eight wins as a sophomore. The next summer, though, he lost the job again to Ely and decided to take a redshirt season. During that year “off,” he did something that stuck with his coach.

“If the starter gets hurt, you have to play because you give us the best chance to play. But if he doesn’t, you’re redshirting. So it’s a tough spot. You really need to know the offense, so you really need to be working with the first- and second-team offense in practice,” Candle said. “But he wanted to go compete and work with the scout team so that he could get our defense better for games. He thought that was how he could help us the most. We agreed to let him do that if he agreed to come in on his own time and prepare for the game plan to run our offense if we needed him. So really, he might’ve done more work than anyone on our team that year. He found a way to lead us even when he wasn’t in the main spotlight.”

And now here he is again, the guy who just won’t go away. Another new challenger to this dream that absolutely has an expiration date.

He figures he was down to his last chance before shining in the 2019 preseason. Titans coach Mike Vrabel said “these guys all know you’re only going to get so many shots in this league and you’ve got to take advantage of it before it passes you up.” Woodside realizes that even a bad rash eventually disappears. Until then, he hopes to just keep scratching where Tennessee itches.

“I never wanted anything to be easy for me, and it definitely hasn’t been,” Woodside said. “I think I’ve gained their trust, that I’m somebody who can come in the building every day on time and ready to work, just buying into what they’ve set (as the culture) for this franchise, and when called upon, go out and execute. One thing I’ve learned in this league is if you’re not coming in each and every day ready, then you’re going to be gone.”

It says everything you need to know about Woodside, then, that he’s still here.

FRANCHISE PRO FOOTBALL HALL OF FAMERS

GEORGE BLANDA

QUARTERBACK/KICKER • 6'2" • 215 lbs • COLLEGE: KENTUCKY
NFL SEASONS: 26 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 7 (1960-66)
HOMETOWN: YOUNGWOOD, PA. • BORN: SEPT. 27, 1927
GAMES PLAYED: 340 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1981

George Blanda, who came out of retirement with the emergence of the American Football League in 1960, was the offensive catalyst for the explosive Oiler squads of the early 1960s. He played quarterback and handled the placekicking chores in Columbia blue for seven of his NFL-record 26 seasons in the league. Blanda was the team's leading passer and scorer in each of those seven seasons and still owns franchise records for most extra points (299), most touchdown passes in a season (36) and most touchdown passes in a game (7). He is also third in points scored with 596. The 36 scoring tosses stood as an NFL record for an astounding 23 years. Blanda's NFL career records included most games (340), most points (2,002) and most extra points (943). He also passed for 236 touchdowns. Blanda captained the Oilers to two consecutive AFL titles in 1960 and 1961, earning AFL Player of the Year honors in 1961. Blanda's career was divided into three distinct parts, 10 years with the Chicago Bears, seven seasons with the Houston Oilers and nine years with the Oakland Raiders. In 1970, he became the oldest quarterback to play in a title game. He was just a month shy of his 49th birthday when he retired before the 1976 season. Blanda passed away at age 83 on Sept. 27, 2010.

KEN HOUSTON

SAFETY • 6'3" • 197 lbs • COLLEGE: PRAIRIE VIEW A&M
NFL SEASONS: 14 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 6 (1967-72)
HOMETOWN: LUFKIN, TEXAS • BORN: NOV. 12, 1944
GAMES PLAYED: 196 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1986

Considered one of the best safeties in football history, Ken Houston picked off 49 passes (898 yards), recovered 21 fumbles and scored 12 touchdowns over his 14-season NFL career, earning Pro Bowl honors 12 consecutive times (1968-69 AFL, 1970-79 NFL). Houston returned an NFL-record nine interceptions for a touchdown in his six seasons as an Oiler. Four of those scores came in 1971, tying an NFL record. He returned two in one game against San Diego in the 1971 season finale, which also ties an NFL mark. His other three touchdowns came on a punt return, a fumble return and a blocked field goal return. Houston also holds the Oilers record for most career interception return yards with 650. With a long, fluid stride, Houston had excellent speed and quickness. His 6-3, 197-pound frame made him an ideal pass defender. Yet his lean, muscular body helped him to become a punishing tackler. Originally a ninth-round draft choice out of Prairie View A&M, Houston earned a starter's role by the third game of his rookie season. Two weeks later in a game against the New York Jets, he scored two touchdowns, one on a 71-yard blocked field goal attempt, and the other on a 43-yard interception return. After excelling for six years with the Oilers, Ken was traded to the Redskins for five veteran players in 1973. The Redskins once referred to Houston as "pro football's most underrated superstar," but his capabilities were widely recognized. He won all-league acclaim with the Oilers in 1969 and 1971, and then was either All-Pro or All-NFC with the Redskins every year from 1973 to 1979. He was selected for either the AFL All-Star game or the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl 12 straight seasons from 1968 through 1979. He played in 183 consecutive games before suffering a broken arm against the New York Giants Nov. 25, 1979.

EARL CAMPBELL

RUNNING BACK • 5'11" • 232 lbs • COLLEGE: TEXAS
NFL SEASONS: 8 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 7 (1978-84)
HOMETOWN: TYLER, TEXAS • BORN: MARCH 29, 1955
GAMES PLAYED: 115 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1991

Earl Campbell, a 5-11, 232-pound ball-carrying dynamo from the University of Texas, joined the Houston Oilers as the first player taken in the 1978 National Football League Draft. The first player to earn All-Southwest Conference honors four years, Campbell was a consensus All-America and the Heisman Trophy winner in 1977. Campbell took the NFL by storm from the outset. In 1978, he was named the NFL's Most Valuable Player, All-Pro, and Rookie of the Year. He won the league rushing championship with a club-record 1,450 yards and was named to the AFC Pro Bowl squad. It was more of the same the next two years with NFL rushing titles, MVP honors, and consensus All-Pro acclaim each season. He followed his rookie campaign with 1,697 yards in 1979, but his finest year came in 1980 when he rushed for 1,934 yards, which at the time was second only to O. J. Simpson's 2,003 yards gained in 1973. That year, Campbell gained over 200 yards in four games. In 1981, he won his fourth straight AFC rushing title with 1,376 yards. A sensational runner, Campbell was picked for the Pro Bowl five of his first six NFL seasons (1978-81, 1983). In his eight-year career, which finished in New Orleans, Campbell rushed 2,187 times for 9,407 yards, and 74 touchdowns, retiring as the NFL's seventh all-time leading rusher. He also gained 806 yards on 121 receptions to bring his career combined net yards total to 10,213. He set Oilers records for most career yards (8,574), most career attempts (1,979), most touchdown runs (73) and most consecutive games with a rushing touchdown (5). His most famous performance came in a Monday night game against Miami in his rookie season. That night, he rushed for 199 yards and four touchdowns to lead the Oilers to a spectacular 35-30 victory. In spite of the constant pounding he took from opposing defenders, Earl missed only six games out of 115 because of injuries. Midway into his seventh season, he was traded by the Oilers to the New Orleans Saints for a first-round draft pick. He played a season and a half with the Saints before retiring after the 1985 campaign. Campbell is one of just four people officially designated a Texas Legend by the Texas State Legislature. The others are Davy Crockett, Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin. Campbell was the only designee of the 20th century.

CHARLIE JOINER

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'11" • 188 lbs • COLLEGE: GRAMBLING
NFL SEASONS: 18 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 4 (1969-72)
HOMETOWN: MANY, LA. • BORN: OCT. 14, 1947
GAMES PLAYED: 239 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1996

Charlie Joiner played 18 seasons in the NFL, including his first four with the Houston Oilers. One of the league's most prolific receivers, he amassed 750 career receptions for 12,146 yards and 65 touchdowns, ranking as the league's leading receiver of all-time when he retired at the age of 39 in 1986. His 18 seasons played were longer than any other wide receiver in history at the time of his retirement. The Oilers originally targeted Joiner for the defensive backfield when they picked the 5-11, 180-pounder from Grambling in the fourth round of the 1969 AFL-NFL Draft. Joiner played briefly on defense and the kickoff return team but soon became established as a premier pass catcher. Joiner caught 82 of his 750 career passes as an Oiler, totaling 1,480 yards and 12 touchdowns. He paced the squad with 681 yards and seven touchdown grabs in 1971. In his fourth season in 1972, Houston sent him to the Cincinnati Bengals in a four-player swap. Four years later in 1976, he was traded to San Diego. With the Chargers, Joiner blossomed into super-stardom. He and quarterback Dan Fouts formed a lethal pass-catch team that accounted for the preponderance of his 586 receptions as a Charger. During his 11 years in San Diego, Joiner caught 50 or more passes seven times and had 70 or more receptions three seasons. Injuries cut into his playing time at the beginning, but in a 193-game span over his final 13 seasons, Joiner missed only one game. He was an All-NFL pick in 1980 and a Pro Bowl choice three times. In the 1980 AFC title game, he led the Chargers with six receptions for 130 yards and two touchdowns. Blessed with excellent speed and tantalizing moves, Joiner averaged 16.2 yards per catch and accounted for 12,146 yards and 65 touchdowns. When he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1996, Joiner ranked fifth in receptions and sixth in receiving yardage on the NFL's all-time list. Joiner was once described by San Francisco 49ers coaching great Bill Walsh as "the most intelligent, the smartest, the most calculating receiver the game has ever known."

MIKE MUNCHAK

GUARD • 6'3" • 281 lbs • COLLEGE: PENN STATE
 NFL SEASONS: 12 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 12 (1982-93)
 HOMETOWN: SCRANTON, PA. • BORN: MARCH 5, 1960
 GAMES PLAYED: 159 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2001

Mike Munchak was the eighth player overall and the first offensive lineman chosen in the 1982 National Football League draft. Selected by the Oilers, the former Penn State standout was an immediate success with the Houston club, earning the starting left guard spot in his first training camp. The 6-3, 281-pound lineman wasted little time establishing himself as one of the premier guards in the NFL. In 1984, in just his third year in the league, he was named to the first of seven All-AFC teams. That same year he received the first of nine Pro Bowl invitations. Not coincidentally, the Oilers' on-the-field successes increased as Munchak's development and experience increased. From their dismal 1-8 record in the strike-shortened 1982 season, the Oilers improved nearly every year that Munchak played. Along the way, the team advanced to the playoffs seven consecutive years (1987-1993) and captured the 1991 and 1993 AFC Central Divisional crowns. Munchak was a devastating blocker and considered the key to an offensive line that kept the Oilers at or near the top of the NFL's offensive statistical categories. In 1988 he led the Oilers' offensive line that gave up just 24 quarterback sacks which was third in the NFL. It was also the fewest sacks allowed by the team in 10 seasons. The following season the offensive line held opponents to no sacks in six games. In 1991, the Oilers offensive line finished second in the AFC and fourth in the NFL in the fewest quarterback sacks allowed. Behind the Munchak-led line, Houston led the NFL in total offense in 1990 and passing offense in 1990 and 1991. The Oilers finished second in points scored in 1990 and second in total offense in 1991. Equally effective as a run blocker, Munchak led the Oilers offensive charge in 1993 as the team finished fourth in the NFL in both average gain per rushing play (4.4) and average gain per offensive play (5.3). Although he suffered from chronic knee problems, Munchak played in 159 regular season games. His 12 seasons with the Oilers tied him for second longest in the franchise's history at the time of his retirement. He became the first player inducted into the Hall of Fame who played his entire career with the Oilers. Long-time teammate Bruce Matthews presented Munchak for induction.

ELVIN BETHEA

DEFENSIVE END • 6'2" • 260 lbs • COLLEGE: NORTH CAROLINA A&T
 NFL SEASONS: 16 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 16 (1968-83)
 HOMETOWN: TRENTON, N.J. • BORN: MARCH 1, 1946
 GAMES PLAYED: 210 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2003

Defensive end Elvin Bethea, an eight-time Pro Bowl selection during his outstanding career with the Houston Oilers, was named to the five-man class of the 2003 Pro Football Hall of Fame that included running back Marcus Allen, guard Joe DeLamielleure, wide receiver James Lofton, and coach Hank Stram. A third-round draft pick in 1968 (77th player overall) Bethea played in 210 games over 16 seasons, never missing a game until breaking his arm on Nov. 13, 1977. He was considered a "steal" in a draft class that produced three future Hall of Fame players in Larry Csonka, Art Shell, and Ron Yary. When he retired, he held three team records relating to career service: most seasons (16), most career regular season games played (210), and most consecutive regular season games played (135). Having led the team in sacks in six seasons, Bethea's unofficial 105-career sack total still ranks first in franchise history, including his team-best 17 sacks in 1973. He recorded four sacks and a fumble recovery in his best single game performance against San Diego in 1976. He played in eight playoff games and posted 691 career tackles. Bethea also played in eight Pro Bowls (1970, 1972-1976, 1979, 1980) and earned All-Pro second-team honors in 1973, 1975, 1978, and 1979. More than just a pass rusher, Bethea was also effective against the run. Eventhough 1974 was the first year such statistics were compiled by the Oilers, his 691 career tackles, are still among the best in franchise history, even excluding the first six years of his career. "When people ask me who the best guy I ever played against was I always tell them Elvin Bethea and Lyle Alzado because both of them were complete ballplayers," said Art Shell, Hall of Fame member of the Oakland Raiders. "Elvin was one of the quickest guys I've ever been around. We always had to double-team him. There were times when I was supposed to block him when he would get by me so quick. And then Gene Upshaw was supposed to pick him up and he also got by him so quick that we would get back to the huddle and Upshaw would say, 'Did you see that?' and I'd say, 'Yeah, I saw that. He just beat the heck out of me too!' Elvin was just a great player."

WARREN MOON

QUARTERBACK • 6'3" • 212 lbs • COLLEGE: WASHINGTON
 NFL SEASONS: 17 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 10 (1984-93)
 HOMETOWN: LOS ANGELES, CALIF. • BORN: NOVEMBER 18, 1956
 GAMES PLAYED: 208 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2006

Warren Moon, the fourth leading passer in NFL history, was inducted into the 2006 class of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Moon played 10 years (1984-93) with the Oilers/Titans organization and holds the franchise records for passing yards (33,685) and touchdowns (196), while leading the Oilers to seven consecutive playoff appearances from 1987-93. During a 17-year NFL career, Moon played for the Houston Oilers, Minnesota Vikings, Seattle Seahawks and Kansas City Chiefs and amassed 49,325 passing yards, 291 touchdowns and 102 wins. He earned nine Pro Bowl invitations (tied for the most by a quarterback with John Elway and Dan Marino), posted nine 3,000 yard seasons, 49 300-yard games and led his team to nine playoff appearances. His eight consecutive playoff berths matched a feat accomplished by Terry Bradshaw and Joe Montana. At the time of his retirement, he held the single-season passing yardage record for three different franchises: Oilers (4,367 in 1991), Vikings (4,364 in 1994) and Seahawks (3,678 in 1997). Moon tallied many accomplishments during his Oiler career. His finest season came in 1990, throwing for 4,689 yards (363 for 584) and 33 touchdowns in only 15 games. He earned AP NFL Offensive Player of the Year for his efforts and his third of nine Pro Bowl invitations. Against Kansas City in 1990, Moon threw for 527 yards, which ranks as the second highest single-game total in NFL history (Norm Van Brocklin, 554 yards in 1951). In 1991, he surpassed the previous season's yardage total with 4,690 yards and became just the third player (Marino, Fouts) in NFL history to produce consecutive 4,000 yard passing seasons. Moon joined the Oilers and the NFL in 1984, after six seasons in the Canadian Football League, where he led his team to five Grey Cups (League Champions). In the CFL, Moon threw for 21,228 yards and 144 touchdowns. Moon was driven to play in the CFL after drawing little interest from the NFL as a starting quarterback following his senior season at the University of Washington. Moon became the first African-American quarterback to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame and his legacy as a minority quarterback cannot be underestimated. At the time of his arrival in the NFL only two black quarterbacks had been significant starters for their NFL teams (Shack Harris, Rams; Doug Williams, Tampa Bay).

BRUCE MATTHEWS

GUARD/TACKLE/CENTER • 6'5" • 305 lbs • COLLEGE: USC
 NFL SEASONS: 19 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 19 (1983-2001)
 HOMETOWN: ARCADIA, CALIF. • BORN: AUGUST 8, 1961
 GAMES PLAYED: 296 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2007

Arguably one of the best offensive linemen to ever play the game, Bruce Matthews became the first Tennessee Titan to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. At the time of his retirement, Matthews played in more NFL games (296) than any non-kicker in the league's history. Longevity and durability were his hallmarks, but that coupled with his unparalleled play, earning a league record 14 consecutive Pro Bowl (9 at guard and 6 at center) selections (tied with Merlin Olsen) and seven times named AP All-Pro, made him one of the all-time greats. He rose to the challenges presented to him in starting at every position on the offensive line during his NFL career (87 C, 99 LG, 67 RG, 22 RT, 17 LT). He becomes the first Hall of Fame offensive lineman to play significant time at all five offensive line positions. A constant for the Oilers/Titans franchise, Matthews started in a team record 229 consecutive games (streak started at Indianapolis, Nov. 29, 1987) and never missed a game because of injury. His 19 seasons also are a team record and he ranks second in NFL history for years with one team behind Jackie Slater, who spent 20 seasons with the Rams. Matthews and G Randall McDaniel (Vikings) were the only two NFL players to play in every game during the decade of the 90's. Matthews was a part of nearly one-half of the franchise's first 42-years of history and helped the team win 146 games, make the playoffs nine times, earn the only three AFC Central titles in team history, earn an AFC Championship and the franchise's only Super Bowl appearance. He blocked for 15 quarterbacks and 27 running backs, including five different 1,000-yard rushers (Earl Campbell, Mike Rozier, Lorenzo White, Gary Brown and Eddie George). During his career, he played in offenses that produced nine 1,000-yard rushing seasons and eight 3,000-yard passers. Additionally, he played in 42 different stadiums during his NFL career. During his career, Matthews blocked on a line that helped produce 65 100-yard rushing performances and 48 300-yard passing performances. Originally drafted by the Houston Oilers in the first round (ninth overall) of the 1983 NFL Draft, Matthews earned All-America honors at the University of Southern California. Matthews and his brother, Clay, each played 19 NFL seasons and the duo set an NFL record for games played by a pair of brothers with 574 games. Clay Matthews played in 278 games during his NFL career. Matthews had his number 74 jersey retired by the team and was inducted into the organization's Hall of Fame during a December, 2002 ceremony. Matthews joined a 2007 Hall of Fame class that included Dallas Cowboys WR Michael Irvin, Buffalo Bills RB Thurman Thomas, Detroit Lions TE Charlie Sanders, Cleveland Browns G Gene Hickerson, and St. Louis CB Roger Wehrli.

CURLY CULP

DEFENSIVE TACKLE • 6'2" • 265 lbs • COLLEGE: ARIZONA STATE
NFL SEASONS: 14 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 7 (1974-1980)
HOMETOWN: YUMA, ARIZ. • BORN: MARCH 10, 1946
GAMES PLAYED: 179 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2013

Curley Culp was voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2013. A six-time Pro Bowl selection, Culp played in 179 games during his NFL career with the Kansas City Chiefs (1968-1974), Houston Oilers (1974-1980) and Detroit Lions (1980-81). He was considered the prototypical nose tackle and helped pioneer the 3-4 defense. Hailing from Arizona State, where he was an All-American in both football and wrestling, Culp was selected in the second round of the 1968 NFL Draft by the Denver Broncos, who intended to use him as an offensive guard. However, his brief stint in Denver ended when he was traded to the Chiefs, who inserted him permanently on the defensive side. In 1969, the Chiefs won Super Bowl IV, and Culp was an instrumental member of one of the league's top defenses. He helped the Chiefs defeat the Oakland Raiders in the AFL Championship Game and the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl. In 1974, during his seventh campaign in Kansas City, Culp was traded to the Oilers along with a first-round draft pick (used to select Robert Brazile) in exchange for John Matuszak. The move paid almost immediate dividends for the Oilers, who previously suffered through 1-13 records in both 1972 and 1973. In 1975, Culp's first full season in Houston, he helped the Oilers to a record of 10-4, the first winning mark for the club in eight years. With Culp anchoring the defense, the Oilers finished with the AFC's top-ranked run defense (third in the NFL). Individually, Culp produced arguably the finest season of his career, recording 11.5 sacks and earning NFL Defensive Player honors by the Newspaper Enterprise Association. Culp continued as a leader of the Oilers defense that culminated in back-to-back appearances in the AFC championship games in 1978 and 1979. He was named to one AFL All-Star Game and five Pro Bowls during his career. Culp also was picked as a first-team All-Pro in 1975 and a second-team selection in 1971, 1977, 1978, and 1979. He was selected first- or second-team All-AFC five times. "Curley Culp was perhaps the strongest man I ever lined up against," said Raiders Hall of Fame center Jim Otto. Culp used his strong wrestling background to create havoc for opposing guards and centers. He was the 1968 NCAA heavyweight wrestling champion and was named to the U.S.

Olympic wrestling team that year. Culp joined a 2013 Hall of Fame class that included offensive linemen Larry Allen and Jonathan Ogden, wide receiver Cris Carter, coach Bill Parcells, linebacker Dave Robinson and defensive lineman Warren Sapp.

ROBERT BRAZILE

LINEBACKER • 6'4" • 241 lbs • COLLEGE: JACKSON STATE
NFL SEASONS: 10 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 10 (1975-84)
HOMETOWN: MOBILE, ALA. • BORN: FEB. 7, 1953
GAMES PLAYED: 147 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2018

Robert Brazile was voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2018. As a rookie in 1975, he made an instant impact as he helped Houston notch the franchise's first winning season in eight years with a 10-4 record. He went on to win Defensive Rookie of the Year in 1975. With his speed, strength, tackling and coverage ability, Brazile helped revolutionize the outside linebacker position in a 3-4 defense. Nicknamed 'Dr. Doom,' Brazile started all 147 regular season games during his career and made seven postseason starts, including back-to-back AFC Championship Games (1978-79). He recorded nine tackles and one fumble recovery in the 1978 AFC Championship game. He was elected to seven career Pro Bowls and named All-Pro for five consecutive seasons (1976-80). Brazile registered a career-best 185 tackles in 1978 on his way to helping the Oilers secure three consecutive 10-win seasons and three consecutive playoff berths (1987-80). His career statistics include 13 interceptions, 14 fumble recoveries and 6.5 sacks in both 1976 and 1980. Brazile was named to the NFL's All-Decade Team of the 1970s.

KEVIN MAWAE

CENTER • 6'4" • 289 lbs • COLLEGE: LOUISIANA STATE
NFL SEASONS: 16 • YEARS WITH TITANS: 4 (2005-09)
HOMETOWN: LEEVILLE, LA. • BORN: JAN. 23, 1971
GAMES PLAYED: 241 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2019

Kevin Mawae was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame Class of 2019 and became the first established Titan without connections to the Houston Oilers to receive the honor. He played four seasons (2006-09) in Tennessee. Mawae entered the NFL as a second-round pick of the Seattle Seahawks in the 1994 NFL Draft. He began his career at right guard before being moved to center at the start of the 1996 season and remained at that position for the rest of his NFL career. After four seasons (1994-97) in the Northwest, the Louisiana State product signed a free agent deal with the New York Jets in 1998. In his first season in New York, Mawae helped running back Curtis Martin rush for a Jets franchise record eight 100-yard rushing games en route to 1,287-yard season. In 1999, he was named to his first of eight Pro Bowls and paved the way for Martin's then franchise-record 1,464 rushing yards. The 6-foot-4-inch, 289-pounder played in an astounding 177 consecutive games before a serious triceps injury ended his 2005 campaign after six games. Mawae signed a free agent deal with the Titans in 2006. In his first season with Tennessee, he made an immediate impact and was a part of an offense that ranked third in the AFC and fifth in the NFL in rushing with 2,214 yards. Three seasons later, he helped Chris Johnson amass a franchise-best 2,006 rushing yards, becoming just the sixth player all-time to accomplish the feat. In 241 career games over 16 seasons, Mawae was extremely durable and known for his toughness in the trenches. He was a first-team, all-decade center for the 2000s and blocked for a 1,000-yard rusher in 13 of his 16 seasons. Running backs Chris Warren (1,545 yards in 1994), Martin (1,697 in 2004), LenDale White (1,110 in 2007) and Johnson (2,006 in 2009) had the highest season rushing totals of their careers with Mawae on the line. He played 90 games in which there was a 100-yard rusher, the most by any offensive lineman in NFL history.

RETIRED JERSEY NUMBERS

In the history of the Oilers/Titans franchise, only eight players have had the distinction of having their jersey number retired — Jim Norton (No. 43), Elvin Bethea (No. 65), Earl Campbell (No. 34), Mike Munchak (No. 63), Bruce Matthews (No. 74), Warren Moon (No. 1), Eddie George (No. 27) and Steve McNair (No. 9).

Jim Norton played nine seasons for the Oilers (1960-68) as a safety and as a punter, establishing team records at both positions. As a rookie from the University of Idaho, Norton was a member of the Oilers' 1960 AFL Championship team. A four-time league all-star, he holds the club record for most interceptions in a career with 45. Also an accomplished punter, Norton was tops in club history with 519 career punts for a 42.3-yard career average and a long kick of 79 yards (11/22/64 vs. Kansas City).

Elvin Bethea joined the Oilers in 1968 after an outstanding career at North Carolina A&T. He started at defensive end in the 1968 season opener and didn't miss a game until breaking his arm in November 1977. That streak of 135 consecutive games played stands third in team history. An eight-time Pro Bowler (1970, 1972-76, 1978-80), Bethea ranks second for most seasons played (16, 1968-83), while his 210 games played (1968-83) also stands second behind Bruce Matthews. Bethea led the team in sacks six times, including a career-best mark of 17 in 1973. The Oilers honored him with an "Elvin Bethea Appreciation Night" on Aug. 4, 1983. He became the sixth player in franchise history to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame on Aug. 3, 2003.

Earl Campbell, the franchise's second leading rusher and a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, was honored by having his number retired at ceremonies on Aug. 13, 1987. He set a single-season club record with a league-leading 1,450 yards his rookie season. Campbell followed that performance with 1,697 yards in 1979 and an astounding 1,934 yards in 1980. Both those totals led the NFL and the latter was second only to O.J. Simpson's 2,003 yards in 1973. Campbell was selected to five Pro Bowls (1978-81, 1983) and retired as the NFL's seventh all-time leading rusher (9,407). He ranks second in franchise history in career rushing yards (8,574) and attempts (1,979), first in touchdown runs (73) and first in most consecutive games with a rushing touchdown (5).

Mike Munchak joined the Oilers as a first-round draft pick in 1982 out of Penn State. He was the first offensive lineman selected in the draft and the eighth overall selection. Munchak won the starting left guard position as a rookie and went on to play in 12 campaigns (1982-93) and 159 games (156 starts) for the Oilers. He is tied for third on the team's all-time list for seasons played and ranks fifth in games played. Munchak became a fixture on an offensive line that helped the Oilers to seven consecutive playoff appearances (1987-93). One of the premier guards in the National Football League, Munchak was selected to NFL's "Team of the Decade" for the 1980s and was chosen in 1989 to Oilers' 30th Anniversary "Dream Team." He ranks second in club annals with nine Pro Bowl selections, seven as a starter. Munchak announced his retirement on July 21, 1994, and on the same day, K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., announced that jersey No. 63 would be retired on "Mike Munchak Appreciation Day" on Nov. 6, 1994.

Bruce Matthews played in more games (296) than any non-kicker in NFL history. Longevity and durability were his hallmark. And that, coupled with his unparalleled play, in which he tied a league record with 14 Pro Bowl selections (tied with Merlin Olsen) and earned All-Pro honors six times, made him one of the all-time greats. He rose to the challenges presented to him in playing every position on the offensive line during his NFL career (87 at center, 99 at left guard, 67 at right guard, 22 at right tackle, and 17 at left tackle). His number was retired during a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Dec. 8, 2002.

Warren Moon, the fourth leading passer in NFL history at the time his number was retired, played 10 years (1984-93) with the organization and holds the franchise records for passing yards (33,685) and touchdowns (196), while leading the Oilers to seven consecutive playoff appearances from 1987-93. Moon's finest season came in 1990, throwing for 4,689 yards (363-for-584) and 33 touchdowns in only 15 games and becoming the third player in NFL history to produce consecutive 4,000-yard passing seasons. He earned AP NFL Offensive Player of the Year for his efforts and his third Pro Bowl berth. His jersey was retired in a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Oct. 1, 2006.

Eddie George became the organization's all-time leading rusher as well as its all-time scrimmage yards leader in eight seasons with the team. His 10,009 rushing yards from 1996–2003 ranked second in the NFL (Curtis Martin), while his 12,153 scrimmage yards in the same time frame were third (Marshall Faulk, Martin). His accolades included four Pro Bowl selections (1997–2000), AP All-Pro honors (2000) and the AP Rookie of the Year Award (1996). George also set franchise standards for career rushing attempts (2,733), career touchdowns (74), 1,000-yard rushing seasons (seven), seasons as the team's leading rusher (eight) and career playoff rushing yards (776). During his time with the Titans he amassed 36 100-yard rushing performances (second to Earl Campbell's 39), resulting in a 30-6 record in those contests. He established an NFL mark with 130 consecutive starts by a running back to begin a career—a total which ranked second in NFL history for consecutive starts by a running back at any point. His jersey was retired in a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Sept. 15, 2019.

Steve McNair played 11 seasons with the organization (1995–2005), becoming its second all-time leading passer (27,141 yards) and recording the most wins as a starting quarterback (76). At the time his jersey was retired, he trailed only Warren Moon on the franchise's all-time passing yards list and also ranked second for the organization in completions (2,305), completion percentage (59.5) and passer rating (83.3). He ranked third in touchdown passes (156). His 3,439 rushing yards and 36 touchdown runs were the most in team history by a quarterback. McNair earned three of his four career Pro Bowl berths with the Titans (2000, 2003 and 2005), and in 2003, he shared Associated Press NFL Most Valuable Player honors with Peyton Manning after leading the league with a 100.4 rating. He became the first African-American quarterback to win MVP honors. McNair was the third player in the history of the NFL to pass for 30,000 yards and rushed for 3,500 yards, along with Fran Tarkenton and Steve Young. Only Brett Favre and Manning started more combined NFL regular season and postseason games than McNair (134) from the time he became a full-time starter in 1997 through 2005. He was selected with the third overall draft pick in 1995. His jersey was retired in a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Sept. 15, 2019.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

THE "FOOLISH CLUB"

In 1959, after numerous failed attempts to enter the NFL as owners through expansion or purchase (Chicago Cardinals), Lamar Hunt and K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. agree that forming a new league is a viable option to NFL ownership. They would recruit a number of other future owners, who like themselves were looking to enter the world of football ownership, but had been rebuffed. The eight original teams, which would later be dubbed the "Foolish Club" for taking on the NFL were: Dallas (Hunt), Houston (Adams), Denver (Bob Howsam), New York (Harry Wismer), Los Angeles (Barron Hilton), Buffalo (Ralph Wilson), Boston (William Sullivan) and Oakland (Wayne Valley). Minneapolis was set to become one of the original AFL teams, but they were replaced by Oakland when the NFL awarded an expansion franchise to the Minneapolis market in 1960.

All eight teams agreed to contribute $25,000 to create a league office, which was headed by the first AFL commissioner, Joe Foss. The AFL held their first draft on Nov. 22, 1959 and began play in the fall of 1960 with games televised on ABC.

1959

August 3 – K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., announces Houston's entry into the American Football League.

August 15 – AFL formally organized with six cities: Los Angeles, New York, Denver, Dallas, Houston and Minneapolis-St Paul.

October 31 – Adams names the team "Oilers" — "for sentimental and social reasons."

November 22 – AFL conducts first player draft. Oilers select Heisman Trophy winner Billy Cannon of LSU.

December 8 – Oilers sign first players, Don Hitt and Tony Banfield, both of Oklahoma State.

1960

January 1 – Oilers sign their first draft choice in LSU's Billy Cannon.

January 3 – Oilers name former Cleveland great Lou Rymkus as first head coach.

February 20 – Oilers sign veteran pro quarterback George Blanda.

March 8 – Houston School Board approves lease of Jeppesen Stadium to K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., and gives permission to increase seating capacity from 22,000 to 36,000.

June 21 – Court rules that Billy Cannon will play with the Houston Oilers.

July 15 – Houston opens first training camp at the University of Houston with daily practices to be held at Busch Field during season.

August 6 – Oilers lose 27-10 to Dallas Texans in first preseason game at Tulsa.

August 20 – Oilers defeat Denver 42-3 before 18,500 in home debut at Jeppesen.

September 11 – Oilers win first regular season contest 37-22 over Oakland at San Francisco. Charles Hennigan scores first Oiler TD on a 43-yard pass from George Blanda. Dave Smith scores first Oiler rushing TD on eight-yard run.

December 11 – Oilers clinch AFL Eastern Division title with 31-23 win over Buffalo at Houston.

December 29 – Lou Rymkus named AFL's first Coach of the Year.

1961

January 1 – Oilers win first AFL Championship by defeating Los Angeles Chargers 24-16 before 32,000 fans at Jeppesen Stadium. Billy Cannon is named game's MVP; Blanda completes 16 of 32 passes for 301 yards and three TDs. Winning players share: $1,016.42.

September 9 – Oilers open regular season with a 55-0 rout of Oakland at Jeppesen despite threats from Hurricane Carla.

October 16 – Wally Lemm replaces Lou Rymkus as head coach after Oilers open with 1-3-1 record.

October 22 – Oilers defeat Dallas Texans 38-7 in first outing under Wally Lemm. George Blanda comes off the bench to throw three TD passes, make a 53-yard field goal, and kick three PAT's.

EARLY DOMINANCE & AFL SUPREMACY

With a mix of cast-off players from other professional leagues (QB George Blanda, C Bob Schmidt, T Al Jamison), pro football rookies (RB Billy Cannon, G Bob Talamini) and local college players who never entered the NFL (WR Charles Hennigan, DT Orville Trask), the Oilers quickly became the dominant team in the newly formed American Football League. In each of the league's first three years, the Oilers advanced to the AFL title game, winning the first two league championships (1960 and 1961). Amazingly, the Oilers reached each of those title games under three different coaches: Lou Rymkus (1960), Wally Lemm (1961) and Frank "Pop" Ivy (1962).

The fiery Rymkus led the inaugural Oilers to the Eastern Division title with a 10-4 mark. They met the Western Division winner Los Angeles Chargers at Jeppesen Stadium in Houston to crown the first AFL champion. The two teams split their two matchups during the regular season. The Oilers took a one-point lead into the fourth quarter and then Blanda hit Cannon for an 88-yard score early in the fourth quarter to end the scoring, 24-16. Blanda tallied 301 passing yards and three touchdowns in the game.

After the Oilers opened the 1961 season 1-3-1, head coach Lou Rymkus was replaced by Wally Lemm, who had been on the 1960 staff but left for private business prior to the 1961 season. The Oilers would win nine consecutive games under Lemm to end the regular season with a 10-3-1 mark and first place in the Eastern Division. The 1961 AFL Championship game was a defensive struggle as the Oilers defeated the San Diego Chargers 10-3 in San Diego.

After leading the Oilers to a second title, the St. Louis Cardinals hired Wally Lemm as their head coach for the 1962 season. The Oilers tabbed Frank "Pop" Ivy to lead the team in 1962. The team again won the Eastern Division with an 11-3 record and faced the Dallas Texans at Jeppesen Stadium for the 1962 AFL title. Dallas raced out to a 17-0 halftime lead, but the Oilers mounted a second half rally to knot the score at 17 with five minutes remaining in the game. The game would go to overtime and was eventually decided in double overtime (6th quarter) with a Dallas 25-yard field goal.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

OILERS' AFL SUMMARY

In the 10-year history of the AFL from 1960-69, the Oilers amassed a 70-66-5 record, reached the AFL title game four times (1960, '61, '62, '67) and won two AFL titles (1960 and 1961). They had some of the greats of the game, including QB George Blanda, WR Charlie Hennigan, G Bob Talamini, CB Ken Houston and DE Elvin Bethea. Four decades removed from their playing days, these names still sit atop several categories throughout the franchise record book: Blanda threw a franchise-best 36 touchdowns in 1961, Hennigan caught a franchise-best 101 balls in 1964, Houston returned nine interceptions for touchdowns during his Oilers career, and Bethea (unofficially) totaled 105 sacks during his career. The Oilers also saw profound popularity growth as they averaged 20,000 fans in their inaugural 1960 season at Jeppesen Stadium all the way to moving into the Astrodome in 1968, and averaging 44,000 fans in their final AFL campaign.

BUM PHILLIPS

If ever there was a coach made for a team and a team that embodied their coach, it was the marriage between O.A. "Bum" Phillips and the Houston Oilers. A native of Orange, Texas, Phillips spent the majority of his first 15 years in coaching in the Texas high school ranks before moving up the ladder as a defensive coordinator in the college and pro level. He would join the Oilers as a defensive coordinator in 1974 and was named head coach in 1975, where he would remain through the 1980 season. Known for strolling the sidelines in his cowboy hat and boots, he was the face of the Oilers for six seasons (59-38 record) and saw the birth of the "Luv Ya Blue" era. In 1978, he led the Oilers back to the playoffs for the first time in 11 years with their march to the AFC Championship. The Oilers would again reach the AFC Championship game in 1979 and wild card round in 1980. Phillips was let go by the Oilers following the 1980 season.

LUV YA BLUE!

With Oiler fever in full bloom following the march to the AFC Championship game in the 1978 season, the team looked to tap into the frenzy with a marketing campaign that captured that team spirit. The result was the "Luv Ya Blue!" phrase that would sweep the area and be forever remembered with the 1979 and 1980 seasons. The phrase was trademarked by the team and became as popular as regular Oilers merchandise. The campaign included a song which was written and sung by Mack Hayes, a local musician and was performed before each game at the Astrodome during those seasons.

1975

January 25 – O.A. "Bum" Phillips named Oiler head coach by Sid Gillman, who says he will remain in single role as general manager.

February 14 – Sid Gillman leaves Oilers as general manager by mutual consent with owner "Bud" Adams. Bum Phillips adds title of general manager to head coaching duties.

November 26 – Earl Campbell gains 100 yards rushing vs. Cincinnati before home crowd to tie NFL record for most 100-yard games by a rookie – 7 (ties Franco Harris and Don Woods). Also breaks Oiler single season records for most yards rushing (Hoyle Granger, 1,194 yards in 1967) and most rushing attempts (Charlie Tolar, 224 yards in 1962).

December 10 – Houston captures 17-12 decision over New Orleans Saints

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

EARL CAMPBELL

Tabbed the "Tyler Rose", Earl Campbell was a Texas high school legend who would go on to the University of Texas and earn the 1977 Heisman Trophy. The Oilers pulled off a draft blockbuster to acquire Campbell, trading four picks and TE Jimmie Giles to acquire the first pick in the 1978 draft from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Campbell made an immediate impact as a rookie, gaining 1,450 yards and scoring 13 touchdowns in his initial campaign and earning NFL Rookie of the Year and NFL Offensive Player of the Year honors. In one of the most famous performances in Monday Night Football history, Campbell gained 199 yards and scored four touchdowns on 28 carries against the Miami Dolphins in November of 1978. From 1978 to 1984 Campbell led the Oilers to three playoff appearances, gained 8,547 yards and earned five Pro Bowl invitations. During the 1984 season, Campbell was traded to New Orleans to be reunited with Bum Phillips for a first round draft choice. He was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1991.

Club rushing record for single game is 216 yards by Billy Cannon (Dec. 10, 1961 vs. New York Titans).

October 26 – Earl Campbell ties NFL record for most consecutive 200-yard games rushing (two) with 202 yards vs. Cincinnati in the Astrodome. Campbell now shares record with O.J. Simpson (Buffalo, 1973, 1976). Oilers defeat Bengals 23-3.

December 4 – Houston's defense shuts out the Pittsburgh Steelers 6-0. Toni Fritsch provides all the points the Oilers need with two field goals. This marked the third evening prime-time win of the season for the Oilers as the game was played in the Astrodome before a sellout crowd and a national television audience. It marked the first shutout registered by the Oilers since a 47-0 win over the Chicago Bears. (November 6, 1977).

December 21 – Oilers clinch third playoff spot in as many years with 20-16 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in the Astrodome. Earl Campbell sets NFL record by rushing for over 200 yards in single game four times in one season. He finishes season with 1,934 yards, second highest total in NFL history behind O.J. Simpson's 2,003 yards in 1973. The Oilers must wait until the final game of the season to see who their playoff opponent will be, as their 11-5 record equals that of division foe Cleveland, but Oilers become Wild Card participant due to tie-breaker procedures.

December 28 – Oilers season comes to an end with disappointing AFC Wild Card loss at the hands of the eventual Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders. The loss marks the third consecutive year that the Oilers have been eliminated from the playoff picture by the eventual Super Bowl champions (Pittsburgh Steelers in both 1978 and 1979).

February 2 – G Mike Munchak starts for the AFC in the annual Pro Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii.

April 29 – The Oilers select Purdue QB Jim Everett with their first selection in the 1986 NFL Draft. The team follows by selecting Louisville WR Ernest Givins in the second round and RB Allen Pinkett of Notre Dame in the third round.

September 18 – The Oilers trade QB Jim Everett, the third player selected in the 1986 draft, to the Los Angeles Rams in exchange for G Kent Hill, DE William Fuller, the Rams' number one draft choices in 1987 and '88 and L.A.'s fifth rounder in 1987.

December 21 – Houston concludes the 1986 season on a positive note, defeating the Buffalo Bills 16-7. WR Drew Hill catches five passes for 114 yards giving him 1,112 yards for the season as he joins rookie Ernest Givins (1,062 yards) to form the 19th tandem in NFL history to each surpass the 1,000-yard receiving mark. In addition, QB Warren Moon throws for 208 yards to finish the year with 3,489 yards and break his own single-season club record. PK Tony Zendejas connects on all three of his field goal attempts and his 22 three-pointers establishes a new Oiler high.

July 1 – The Oilers announce plans to retire the No. 34 jersey of former RB Earl Campbell, the leading rusher in club history. The ceremony is scheduled for August 13.

October 4 – The Oilers win their first "replacement" game in Denver 40-10 as QB Brent Pease throws for 260 yards and a TD and LB Eugene Seale returns an interception 73 yards for a touchdown.

October 25 – With the players' strike over, the Oiler "regulars" return to action with a 37-33 win over the Falcons as RB Mike Rozier rushes for 144 yards while rookie WR Curtis Duncan catches two TD passes including the game-winner.

October 28 – First-round draftee FB Alonzo Highsmith ends his holdout by agreeing to a multi-year contract.

November 3 – The Oilers acquire veteran T Bruce Davis from the Raiders for what later becomes a 1988 second-round draft choice.

November 4 – T/G Bruce Matthews ends his holdout by agreeing to terms with the Oilers.

December 15 – Along with several prominent Houston business leaders, K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., holds a press conference to announce that the goal of marketing 75% of the new Columbia Suites by December 15 has been met.

December 23 – The Oilers place three players on the AFC Pro Bowl roster, their largest contingent since 1981. Chosen to play in the Honolulu all-star game are S Keith Bostic, G Mike Munchak and RB Mike Rozier.

December 27 – The Oilers clinch their first playoff berth since 1980 as they defeat the Bengals 21-17 before an SRO crowd at the Astrodome. Rookie FB Alonzo Highsmith scores two TDs and QB Warren Moon throws his 21st scoring pass of the season. That marks the most TD passes by an Oiler since George Blanda tossed 24 in 1963.

1988

January 3 – In an AFC Wild Card Playoff, the Oilers defeat the Seahawks 23-20 in overtime on Tony Zendejas' 42-yard field goal.

January 10 – The Oilers' season ends as the Broncos defeat them 34-10 in an AFC Divisional Playoff before 75,968 fans in Mile High Stadium.

April 21 – The Oilers acquire DE Sean Jones from Raiders along with L.A.'s second-round draft choice. Houston gives up one of its first-round draft picks, a fourth-round selection and changes places with Raiders in the third round.

May 6 – The Oilers announce that they will hold training camp at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. SWTSU thus becomes the Oilers' eighth training camp site since the team's inception in 1960.

May 17 – Oilers re-assign Mike Holovak as Assistant to the General Manager.

November 7 – The Oilers appear on Monday Night Football for the first time since 1982 and defeat the Cleveland Browns 24-17.

December 14 – The rosters for the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl are released and feature eight Oilers: DE Ray Childress, WR Drew Hill, G Bruce Matthews, QB Warren Moon, G Mike Munchak and RB Mike Rozier.

December 24 – The Oilers beat the Cleveland Browns 24-23 in an AFC Wild Card Playoff Game as RB Allen Pinkett scores two touchdowns.

1989

January 1 – In an AFC Divisional Playoff Game, the Oilers drop a 17-10 decision to the Bills before 79,532 fans at Rich Stadium in Buffalo.

February 1 – Executive Vice-President/General Manager Ladd K. Herzeg announces his resignation.

February 2 – The Oilers announce the promotion of Mike Holovak to General Manager, replacing Ladd Herzeg. Also, under NFL's new "Plan B" free agency, 21 Oilers are left unprotected while 37 are protected.

February 22 – The Oilers name Kevin Gilbride to the post of Quarterbacks Coach. He joins the club after serving as Offensive Coordinator at East Carolina.

April 1 – The Oilers end up losing 15 players and signing seven under the NFL's first "Plan B" free agency system.

April 7 – The Oilers sign QB Warren Moon to a new long-term contract.

September 24 – Despite a sellout crowd in the first game in the newly-expanded Astrodome, the Oilers lose to the Buffalo Bills, 47-41 in OT.

October 1 – The Oilers defeat the Miami Dolphins 39-7 as QB Warren Moon completes a career-best 82.6% of his passes (19/23). In addition, Houston's defense holds Dolphin QB Dan Marino to his worst game as a starter (11/29, 103 yds.).

October 22 – The Oilers record the ninth shutout in club history and their first in nine years (spanning 132 games) with a 27-0 whitewash of the Pittsburgh Steelers. Pittsburgh manages just 132 total yards, the fewest yards allowed by Houston in 12 seasons.

December 3 – The Oilers win at Pittsburgh 23-16 despite a blizzard and windchill temperatures of -20 degrees. RB Lorenzo White's one-yard run with 21 seconds remaining wins it as the Oilers claim sole possession of first place after the season's 13th game, the latest the team has been in first place in a season since 1967.

December 10 – The Oilers honor their 30th Anniversary "Dream Team" while defeating the T.B. Buccaneers 20-17.

December 20 – G Bruce Matthews, QB Warren Moon and G Mike Munchak are named starters for the February 4 Pro Bowl.

December 23 – In a regular season finale battle for the AFC Central Division title, the Oilers lose to the Cleveland Browns 24-20 on RB Kevin Mack's TD with 39 seconds left. The Oilers fall short after battling back from a 17-0 deficit as QB Warren Moon establishes personal bests for attempts (51), completions (32) and yards (414, most since George Blanda's 418 in 1961). Oilers set all-time single season attendance record with 451,027 fans, eclipsing 411,652 in 1978.

December 31 – In an AFC Wild Card playoff game, the Oilers lose a 26-23 OT decision to the Pittsburgh Steelers as PK Gary Anderson kicks a 50-yard field goal. Houston WR Ernest Givins catches 11 passes for 136 yards and two TDs.

MOON ERA

In February of 1984, the Oilers won a recruiting battle for a five-time Canadian Football League champion quarterback named Warren Moon and by doing so, changed the future of the franchise. Houston had a leg up on the competition with the hiring of Hugh Campbell, who coached Moon for five seasons in Canada, just a month earlier. Moon would play 10 seasons for the Oilers and lead them to the playoffs in each of his final seven seasons (1987-93) with the team and earn six Pro Bowl invitations. Moon established many of the franchise's passing records, including career passing yards (33,685), career touchdowns (196), single season passing yards (4,690 in 1991), passing yards in a game (527 at KC in 1990) and career 300-yard passing games (38). His quick release, decision-making and mobility made him a perfect fit for the Oilers high-octane passing offense. Moon's reign at quarterback for the Oilers came to end with the advent of the salary cap prior to the 1994 season. Most of the Oilers' high-priced talent was released or traded away to comply with the new NFL structure, including Moon, who was traded to Minnesota in April 1994. In 2006, Moon became the first African-American quarterback to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

1990

January 6 – Jerry Glanville leaves his position as Oilers' head coach by "mutual agreement."

January 9 – Jack Pardee signs a five-year contract to become the 14th head coach in Houston Oiler history. Pardee joins the Oilers after enjoying a successful three seasons as the head coach at the University of Houston.

January 30 – The Oilers extend the contract of Executive Vice President/General Manager Mike Holovak. In addition, the team names former LBs Coach Floyd Reese to the newly-created position of Assistant General Manager and promotes Quarterbacks Coach Kevin Gilbride to Offensive Coordinator. Also, the team announces the signing of a multi-year contract that allows KTRH-AM/KLOL-FM to broadcast all Oiler football games beginning in 1990.

September 23 – The Oilers win their 1990 home opener 24-10 over the Indianapolis Colts as QB Warren Moon becomes the all-time leading passer in club history. Moon throws for 308 yards (plus three TDs) to surpass George Blanda's team record of 19,149 yards. The record fell on a third quarter seven-yard pass to WR Haywood Jeffires. WR Drew Hill catches ten passes for 123 yards to help key the victory.

October 14 – QB Warren Moon passes for 369 yards and a career-best five TDs as the Oilers hammer the Cincinnati Bengals 48-17. Moon thus becomes the first player in pro football history to throw for over 20,000 yards in two different leagues (21,228 in Canadian Football League).

December 9 – The Oilers shatter several team records while drubbing Cleveland 58-14. Included among the records set are most points in a game, in a quarter (31) and in a half (45). RB Lorenzo White ties a club mark with four rushing touchdowns, the first time that has been accomplished in the NFL in two years.

December 16 – The Oilers win a key road game, beating Kansas City 27-10 at Arrowhead Stadium. QB Warren Moon again supplies the big news, completing 27-of-45 passes for 527 yards. That represents the second-best single-game passing performance in NFL history. The record belongs to the Rams' Norm Van Brocklin, who threw for 554 yards against the New York Yanks on September 28, 1951. Moon had an opportunity to break the record but declined to do so based on the Oilers' comfortable lead. Almost overshadowed by Moon's effort was WR Haywood Jeffires catching nine balls for 245 yards (including an 87-yard TD), which marked the second best receiving day in Oiler history. Charles Hennigan had 272 receiving yards versus the Patriots on October 13, 1961.

December 19 – Six Oilers are named to the AFC squad for the Feb. 3 Pro Bowl. The six include starters G Bruce Matthews, QB Warren Moon and G Mike Munchak, plus reserves DT Ray Childress, WR Ernest Givins and WR Drew Hill.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

RUN 'N SHOOT

Born in the 1970's under the offensive master "Mouse" Davis, the "Run 'N Shoot" offense and its concepts started to enter the NFL in the late 1980's. The Houston Oilers were one of the first teams to run the pass oriented offense that featured one running back and four wide receivers. The Oilers hired June Jones, a Mouse Davis disciple, in 1987 as quarterback coach and he integrated some of the "Run 'N Shoot" concepts into offense. Jones left following the 1988 season to join Wayne Fontes in Detroit. Kevin Gilbride, who also had worked with Davis, took over in 1989 and continued to mold the offense. With Jack Pardee's arrival as head coach in 1990, the Oilers offense became a full-time "Run 'N Shoot" offense, where in previous years it was only used in passing situations. During a three-year stretch (1990-92), the Oilers ranked first in the NFL in passing yards (avg. 4,485 passing yards per season) and second in total yards (avg. 5,954 yards per season). They set a then-franchise record for points scored in 1990 with 405. Warren Moon drove the offense and under his leadership the offense took flight and his receiving corps of Drew Hill, Haywood Jeffires, Ernest Givens and Curtis Duncan totaled unbelievable numbers as they tortured NFL defenses. Head coach Jack Pardee was relieved of his duties 10 games into the 1994 season and with that came the death of the "Run 'N Shoot" offense. New head coach Jeff Fisher moved the offense back to a conventional approach in 1995.

December 30 – Led by backup QB Cody Carlson, who played for the injured Warren Moon (dislocated thumb), the Oilers earn a Wild Card playoff berth by defeating the Pittsburgh Steelers 34-14 in the Astrodome. Carlson completes 22 of 29 passes for 247 yards and three TDs. With the victory, the Oilers end up in a three-way tie for first place with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh in the AFC Central.

1991

January 6 – The Oilers' 1990 season comes to a close as they are eliminated from the playoffs by the Cincinnati Bengals. Houston loses at Riverfront Stadium 41-14 in an AFC Wild Card game.

January 26 – It is announced that Earl Campbell has been voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The announcement is made in Tampa, Florida. Campbell is to be enshrined on July 27.

May 17 – The Oilers and the City of San Antonio formally sign six-year contract which will allow the Oilers to hold training camp there. Trinity University is chosen as the host school.

September 16 – In a pre-game ceremony, Earl Campbell receives his Hall of Fame ring from Hall Executive Director Pete Elliott. In the game that follows, the Oilers defeat Kansas City 17-7 to signal the first 3-0 start in franchise history.

October 13 – In a 23-20 victory over the Jets at Giants Stadium, WR Haywood Jeffires ties Charlie Hennigan's 30-year-old team record for receptions in a game with 13 (186 yards). QB Warren Moon completes 35-of-50 passes for 423 yards, which is the fifth-best total in team annals. Also, WR Drew Hill surpasses Hennigan's 410 catches to become the all-time leading receiver in Oiler history.

November 3 – Despite a 16-13 OT loss at Washington, WR Drew Hill moves past WR Ken Burrough's 6,907 receiving yards to become the Oilers' all-time leader in that category.

November 10 – QB Warren Moon establishes career highs for completions (41) and attempts (56) as he throws for 432 yards, which is fourth best in team history, in Oilers' 26-23 OT victory over Dallas. Moon also passes Fran Tarkenton's 47,003 yards and moves into second place behind Ron Lancaster on all-time professional passing yards chart.

December 8 – The Oilers defeat the Steelers 31-6 in the Astrodome as Houston captures its first-ever undisputed AFC Central Division championship. QB Warren Moon throws for 254 yards and becomes just the third QB in NFL history (Miami's Dan Marino, San Diego's Dan Fouts) to have back-to-back 4,000-yard seasons.

December 15 – QB Warren Moon surpasses Dan Marino's NFL record

(378 in 1986) for completions in a season as the Oilers beat the Browns 17-14.

December 18 – Eight Oilers (tied NFL-best), including a league-high six starters are named to the AFC team for the February 2 Pro Bowl. The six starters include CB Cris Dishman, DE William Fuller, WR Haywood Jeffires, C Bruce Matthews, G Mike Munchak and LB Al Smith. DT Ray Childress and QB Warren Moon are also named to the squad although Childress was eventually unable to play because of a back/rib injury.

December 21 – WR Haywood Jeffires becomes just the fifth player in NFL history to record 100 receptions in a single season despite the Oilers' 24-20 road loss to the Giants. Coupled with Drew Hill's 90 catches, that pair's 190 represents the most receptions by two teammates in one season in league annals. In addition, QB Warren Moon eclipses Dan Marino's NFL record (623 in 1986) for attempts in a season. DE William Fuller registers his 15th sack of the season and thus becomes the first Oiler ever to lead the conference in that category.

December 29 – The Oilers defeat the New York Jets 17-10 in an AFC Wild Card playoff game before 61,485 fans in the Astrodome. S Bubba McDowell intercepts two key passes inside the Oiler five-yard line to preserve the win.

1992

January 4 – After leading for most of the game, the Oilers end up losing a 26-24 decision to the Denver Broncos in an AFC Divisional Playoff game in front of 75,301 fans at Mile High Stadium. PK David Treadwell's 28-yard field goal with 16 seconds left in the game proves to be the deciding points. The loss mars a great performance by Oiler QB Warren Moon, who completes 75% of his passes (27 of 36) for 325 yards and three touchdowns.

March 6 – The Oilers name Steve Underwood as General Counsel. Underwood joins the Oilers from the Houston firm of Caldwell and Hurst where he has handled most of the team's legal work since 1977.

August 1 – The Oilers defeat the Dallas Cowboys 34-23 in the American Bowl in Tokyo, Japan, which marks Houston's first game outside of the United States.

August 31 – The Oilers and QB Warren Moon reach agreement on a new multi-year contract that includes a settlement of a controversial escalator clause.

September 29 – The Oilers sign free agent WR Webster Slaughter to a two-year contract. Slaughter had been one of four players who were declared free agents by a Minneapolis judge on September 24.

October 11 – In a 38-24 win at Cincinnati, QB Warren Moon ties a personal best with five TD passes to eclipse George Blanda's team record for career touchdown passes (165, Moon now has 169). Also, WR Haywood Jeffires catches three TD passes to tie the franchise record, and RB Lorenzo White rushes for a career-best 149 yards.

October 18 – QB Warren Moon becomes the leading passer in professional football history by surpassing Ron Lancaster's 50,535 yards (in 19 years). After the Oilers' heartbreaking 27-21 loss at Denver, Moon now has 50,589 yards. Moon's total, accumulated in less than 15 seasons, includes 21,228 yards in the CFL and 29,361 yards in the NFL.

November 15 – In Houston's 17-13 win at Minnesota, QB Warren Moon suffers a fractured upper left arm on a fourth quarter hit by Viking S Vencie Glenn and misses the next five games. Despite the injury, Moon becomes just the 14th NFL QB to surpass 30,000 passing yards as he accomplishes that faster (125 games) than any player in league history except for Miami's Dan Marino (114 games).

November 26 – Subbing for the injured Warren Moon, QB Cody Carlson throws for a career-high 338 yards as the Oilers defeat the Lions 24-21 on Thanksgiving Day in Detroit.

December 11 – After being diagnosed with kidney cancer, Offensive Coordinator Kevin Gilbride undergoes surgery for the removal of his cancerous kidney. He misses two games as Receivers Coach Chris Palmer and injured QB Warren Moon help to handle Gilbride's game day responsibilities.

December 23 – An NFL-best nine Oilers earn Pro Bowl honors with four players designated as starters for the February 7 game. The starters include WR Haywood Jeffires, C Bruce Matthews, G Mike Munchak and LB Al Smith. The Houston reserves feature DT Ray Childress, WR Curtis Duncan, WR Ernest Givins, QB Warren Moon and RB Lorenzo White. The inclusion of Jeffires, Givins and Duncan represents the first time ever that three receivers from the same team have been designated as Pro Bowlers. December 20 – Shortly after their exciting, come-from-behind 17-14 win at Cleveland, the Oilers learn that they have clinched a playoff berth for the sixth straight season. That represents the longest current post-season streak in the NFL.

December 27 – As Houston routs Buffalo 27-3 in the regular season finale, WR Haywood Jeffires catches six passes to finish with 90 receptions. He thus leads the AFC in that category for the third straight season, becoming only the second player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to accomplish that feat.

1993

January 3 – The Oilers lose a 41-38 OT decision at Buffalo in an AFC Wild Card playoff game. QB Warren Moon completes 36 of 50 passes for 371 yards and four first-half touchdowns.

January 29 – The Oilers name Buddy Ryan as the team's defensive coordinator.

July 2 – NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue rules in a dispute between the Oilers and Washington. Tagliabue completes a trade which sends Washington LB Wilber Marshall to Houston in exchange for the Oilers' third-round draft choice in 1994 and their fifth-round selection in 1995.

November 21 – RB Gary Brown explodes for 194 rushing yards to lead Houston to its fifth consecutive win, a 27-20 victory at Cleveland. Brown's rushing total is the highest by any AFC back in three years and the most by an Oiler in 13 years. His back-to-back running sum of 360 yards is also the team's best in 13 seasons. Brown becomes the first NFL back in ten years to gain over 100 yards in his first two career starts.

November 28 – In the Oilers' 23-3 Astrodome victory over the Steelers, WR Ernest Givins passes Drew Hill's 480 catches to become Houston's all-time leading receiver.

December 5 – As Houston captures its seventh straight win with a 33-17 home decision over Atlanta, the Oilers' defense forces seven turnovers (including a team record-tying six interceptions) for its highest such total in 16 years.

December 14 – Oilers DT Jeff Alm commits suicide following the death of his best friend in a traffic accident. The Oilers hold a memorial service for their teammate the following day.

December 19 – The Oilers clinch their second outright AFC Central Division championship with a 26-17 win over the Steelers at Three Rivers Stadium. Houston thus cements a playoff berth for the seventh consecutive season, the longest current streak in the NFL. The Oilers also become just the second team since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to go undefeated within the AFC's Central Division (also 1975 Steelers). Against Pittsburgh, PK Al Del Greco surpasses the team record of 115 points in a single season.

December 28 – G Mike Munchak establishes an Oiler record by being named to the Pro Bowl for the ninth time (Elvin Bethea had eight appearances).

January 2 – The Oilers close the regular season with their club record 11th consecutive win, a 24-0 shutout of the Jets in the Astrodome. The winning streak is the longest in the NFL in nine years as the Oilers become just the fifth team in league history to close a season with 11 straight victories. The Oilers also set a franchise record with 12 wins for the season and go undefeated in both November and December for just the third time ever. Amazingly, RB Gary Brown finished with 1,002 yards in just eight starts.

January 27 – The Oilers promote Assistant General Manager Floyd Reese to the position of Executive Vice-President/General Manager. Reese succeeds Mike Holovak, who assumes the title of Vice-President/Player Personnel and Scouting.

February 9 – Houston names Jeff Fisher as its new Defensive Coordinator, replacing Buddy Ryan, who left the Oilers to become General Manager/Head Coach of the Arizona Cardinals.

April 13 – The Minnesota Vikings announce that they have reached an agreement to acquire QB Warren Moon from the Oilers in exchange for draft choices.

August 15 – The Oilers defeat the Dallas Cowboys 6-0 before 112,376 fans at Azteca Stadium in Mexico City. The in-house attendance is the largest ever for an NFL game.

September 4 – WR Ernest Givins becomes Oilers' all-time receiving yardage leader, surpassing Drew Hill's mark of 7,477. Givins would end the season with 7,935 yards on 542 career receptions.

November 6 – G Mike Munchak, who announced his retirement on July 21, 1994 to join the Oilers under the title of Assistant to Football Operations, is honored by Oiler Owner/President K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., by having his No. 63 jersey retired at halftime ceremonies of Oilers-Steelers game.

November 14 – After a 1-9 start, Head Coach Jack Pardee and Assistant Head Coach/Offense Kevin Gilbride are relieved of their duties. Jeff Fisher is elevated to title of Head Coach/Defensive Coordinator.

December 24 – Houston closes out season with 24-10 victory over the N.Y. Jets for Fisher's first win as a head coach.

1995

January 5 – Oilers announce that Jeff Fisher will remain as head coach, officially becoming the 15th head coach in franchise history.

January 17 – As his first hire, Fisher brings in Jerry Rhome under the title of Offensive Coordinator.

March 3 – The Oilers jump into the free-agent pool and sign the NFL's all-time leading kickoff returner, Mel Gray. Gray joins the Oilers after successful stints with the Detroit Lions and New Orleans Saints.

March 7 – The team announces five-year contract with KHTV/Channel 39 to broadcast Oilers' preseason games. The pact reunites the team and KHTV, which carried Oilers preseason action in '89.

March 23 – Houston lures in one of the most coveted unrestricted free agents by signing C Mark Stepnoski from the Dallas Cowboys.

March 28 – The Oilers sign veteran QB Chris Chandler from the Rams.

April 22 – With the third overall choice in the draft, Houston selects Alcorn State QB Steve McNair.

July 25 – QB Steve McNair signs contract at press conference held at Oilers' training camp.

August 11 – Tennessee newspaper reports that Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen is meeting with Oiler officials. Nashville is willing to build new stadium if it will attract a professional team. K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and Bredesen execute an agreement that gives the City of Nashville a 70-day exclusive negotiating period with the Houston Oilers to build a stadium and relocate the team.

August 19 – Oilers-Chargers preseason game is canceled by NFL after field is deemed unplayable for safety reasons.

September 3 – The Oilers travel to Jacksonville and defeat the Jaguars 10-3 in the expansion team's inaugural game.

September 24 – QB Chris Chandler connects on 23 of 26 passes for 352 yards and four touchdowns, leading Oilers to a 38-28 win over the Bengals at Riverfront Stadium. Chandler's 88.46 completion percentage misses the NFL record by one completion. Chandler, who hooked up with rookie WR Chris Sanders on touchdown passes of 58 and 46 yards, is named AFC Offensive Player of the Week.

November 2 – Oilers' long-time equipment assistant Bill "Mojo" Lackey passes away after a massive stroke.

November 5 – Oilers win 37-10 over Browns and dedicate game to "Mojo" and his family. The win marks the Oilers' largest margin of victory at Cleveland since a 40-10 decision on Oct. 12, 1975.

November 12 – K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and the Oilers announce the establishment of the Bill "Mojo" Lackey Memorial Award, which would be given to the player, coach or front office staff member that best exemplifies the qualities of the former equipment assistant. A $10,000 check is given to the winner to be awarded to charity in his or her name.

November 16 – K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen sign a relocation agreement to move the Oilers to Tennessee.

December 14 – G Bruce Matthews, S Blaine Bishop, CB Darryll Lewis and C Mark Stepnoski are selected to the Pro Bowl. Matthews sets the Oiler mark for consecutive selections with his eighth consecutive Pro Bowl honor.

December 17 – Paul "Hoss" Noska, equipment assistant, is honored with the first Bill "Mojo" Lackey Memorial Award.

1996

March 26 – Oilers sign veteran WR Willie Davis from the Kansas City Chiefs.

April 20 – After trading down in the first round (from 9th to 17th) to acquire extra picks from Oakland, General Manager Floyd Reese and Head Coach

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

McNAIR AND GEORGE

First round draft picks in consecutive years, QB Steve McNair (drafted in 1995) and RB Eddie George (drafted in 1996) became the centerpieces of a team that advanced to the playoffs in four of five years (1999, 2000, 2002, 2003). From 1997, McNair's first season as a starter, until Eddie George's final season as a Titan in 2003, the two combined to pull the franchise to new heights, including the team's first Super Bowl appearance (XXXIV).

The duo started in the same backfield 107 times during their seven seasons together and posted a 67-40 record (.626 winning percentage) in those games, and 5-4 in postseason. The 2003 season would be memorable for both as McNair was named Co-MVP of the NFL, becoming only the franchise's second player to garner the honor (Campbell in 1979) and George became the franchise's all-time leading rusher, passing Earl Campbell and becoming only the 17th running back to reach 10,000 career rushing yards.

Each player personified toughness with legendary stories told of McNair returning from injuries to lead his team to victory and George never missing a start in his eight year franchise career - 128 games - which represented the most consecutive starts in NFL history for a running back to start a career.

On June 12, 2019, Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk announced that McNair's No. 9 jersey and George's No. 27 jersey would be retired by the club.

Jeff Fisher execute a trade with the Seattle Seahawks to move back up to the 14th spot in the 1996 draft to select Heisman Trophy winner Eddie George from Ohio State. Sent to the Seahawks in the trade was DT Glenn Montgomery.

April 30 – The National Football League approves the team's relocation to Nashville in a special owners' meeting held in Atlanta, Ga.

May 3 – Adding more weapons to the offense, the Oilers agree to terms with RB Ronnie Harmon from the San Diego Chargers.

May 7 – Voters of Davidson County in Nashville, Tenn., overwhelmingly approve a referendum held to decide on the use of public funding for a new downtown stadium.

October 20 – With a 22-yard field goal, K Al Del Greco sets the club record for most career field goals, surpassing K Tony Zendejas (117).

October 27 – Del Greco kicks the longest field goal in team history with a 56-yarder at the end of the first half versus the 49ers.

November 17 – In a clash with the Miami Dolphins, G Bruce Matthews becomes the Oilers' all-time leader in games played with his 211th contest, breaking Elvin Bethea's mark of 210. Matthews would go on to also set the team marks for most consecutive games played and started.

December 12 – G Bruce Matthews, S Blaine Bishop, C Mark Stepanoski and ST player John Henry Mills are selected to the Pro Bowl. Matthews extends the Oiler mark for consecutive selections (9) and ties G Mike Munchak for most overall selections (9).

December 15 – Oilers play their final game in Houston with a 21-13 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals in the Astrodome.

December 22 – RB Eddie George finishes the 1996 season with 1,368 yards rushing en route to Rookie of the Year accolades. In addition, George's ground totals were only 82 yards shy of RB Earl Campbell's rookie record of 1,450. On this day, George would also help the Oilers to a 24-21 win over the Baltimore Ravens for a franchise-best 6-2 road record.

1997

January 1 – The team promotes linebackers coach Gregg Williams to defensive coordinator.

January 3 – After relieving Jerry Rhome of his duties, the Oilers make wide receivers coach Les Steckel the team's offensive coordinator/quarterbacks coach.

HOUSTON OILERS TO TENNESSEE TITANS

After trying unsuccessfully for many years to construct a deal with the city of Houston for a new football or multi-use stadium, Oilers owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. decided that moving his franchise to another city might be the only solution left to keep the team financially competitive. In the spring of 1995, research was completed and several cities were identified as desirable for relocation and at the top of the list was Nashville, Tenn.

In the summer of 1995, Adams contacted Nashville's mayor, Phil Bredesen, to see if the city would be interested in having the team relocate to the region. A 70-day exclusive negotiating period was agreed to and in November the two had signed a relocation agreement that would bring the Oilers to Nashville. In April of 1996, the NFL approved the team's relocation and on May 7th, the voters of Davidson County approved a referendum on using public funding for the new downtown stadium.

Dec. 15, 1996 would mark the Oilers final home game at the Astrodome in Houston – a 21-13 loss to Cincinnati in front of 15,131 fans. In May of 1997, the team reached a settlement with the Astrodome that let them escape the final year of the contract and allowing the team to play the 1997 season in Tennessee.

With the new stadium in Nashville still two years from completion, the team decided to play at Memphis' Liberty Bowl until the stadium was complete. The Tennessee Oilers opened their inaugural season in the state of Tennessee with a 24-21 overtime win over the Oakland Raiders at the Liberty Bowl in front only 30,000 fans.

The Oilers struggled with low attendance throughout the 1997 season and by March of 1998, the Oilers reached an agreement to play the 1998 season at Vanderbilt Stadium in Nashville. Crowds at Vanderbilt Stadium were an improvement from the previous year, but the team could only muster a 3-5 home mark. During the 1998 season, Adams announced the Oilers name would be retired and the team would be renamed the Titans as they entered their new stadium for the 1999 season.

In April of 1999, the team unveiled their new Titans uniforms and in August the team played its first game at Nissan Stadium (named Adelphia Coliseum at the time). The 1999 season ended with the franchise's first Super Bowl berth in the team's 40-year history. A total of 20 players endured the entire odyssey of playing in Houston in 1996, Memphis in 1997, Vanderbilt in 1998 and LP Field in 1999.

HOME SWEET HOME

The newly-named Tennessee Titans opened their new stadium, Adelphia Coliseum (eventually to be named Nissan Stadium) with the regular season opener on Sept. 12, 1999 against the Cincinnati Bengals. The back and forth game would end with the Titans hanging on for a 36-35 win. The win would start a historic streak of 12 consecutive wins to open the new stadium. The 12 consecutive wins were the most in the modern era for a new stadium (Texas Stadium, 9 wins in 1971) and one short of the all-time record by the Buffalo Americans in 1920. The Titans first loss in their new home would come against the Baltimore Ravens on Nov. 12, 2000. The winning streak actually began in the spring of 1998, when a devastating tornado ripped through Nashville, but only gave a glancing blow to the under construction stadium and sparing it from destruction.

May 18 – Stadium sod is laid down.

July 8 – Adelphia Coliseum name and logo are unveiled at a downtown ceremony.

July 23 – Titans name former Minnesota Senior Vice President Jeff Diamond President and Chief Operating Officer, and agree to terms with former Pittsburgh Pro Bowl quarterback Neil O'Donnell.

July 27 – The Titans sign their first-round draft selection, Florida DE Jevon Kearse, to a multi-year contract.

August 15 – The Tennessee franchise plays its first preseason game under the name Titans, a 22-20 loss at Kansas City. The game is the first in franchise history played in a uniform other than the Oilers.

August 27 – Titans defeat Atlanta, 17-3, in the first preseason game at Adelphia Coliseum.

September 2 – Owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and his wife, Nancy, announce the creation of the Tennessee Titans Foundation, an organization established to serve the charitable interests of the state of Tennessee by providing financial support and other resources to non-profit organizations, enriching and strengthening communities throughout the state. Adams donates $500,000 to start the foundation.

Faith Hill sings at inaugural game of the new stadium.

September 5 – Cornerback Darryll Lewis, the team leader in interceptions in each of the past five seasons, is released.

September 12 – Al Del Greco kicks a 33-yard field goal to lift the Titans to a 36-35 win over Cincinnati in the first regular season game and victory at Adelphia Coliseum. The win, in front of 65,272 fans, is the team's first as the Titans, and quarterback Steve McNair passes for a career-high 341 yards in the victory.

September 26 – The team wins its first road contest as the Titans, a 20-19 victory at Jacksonville sealed by a Samari Rolle interception in the end zone with under a minute remaining.

October 31 – Steve McNair returns after missing five games because of a back injury to lead the Titans to defeat the previously-unbeaten St. Louis Rams, 24-21 at Adelphia Coliseum. McNair is named Miller Lite NFL Player of the Week for his performance in the victory.

December 19 – Tennessee clinches the franchise's first playoff berth since 1993 with a 30-17 win over Atlanta at Adelphia Coliseum.

December 22 – G Bruce Matthews, RB Eddie George, DE Jevon Kearse and TE Frank Wycheck are named to the AFC team for the Pro Bowl. Matthews extends his franchise records for consecutive and overall selections (12), and Kearse becomes the first rookie defensive end selected to the Pro Bowl in AFC history and the first in the NFL since 1978. December 26 – Tennessee defeats Jacksonville for the fourth consecutive time, a 41-14 victory in which Steve McNair throws five touchdown passes. McNair earns his first AFC Offensive Player of the Week and his second Miller Lite NFL Player of the Week honor this season for his efforts. The win completes the first unbeaten home regular season in club history.

2000

January 8 – In a play known as the "Music City Miracle," Kevin Dyson returns a Frank Wycheck lateral on a kickoff return 75 yards for a touchdown, lifting the Titans to a 22-16 victory in the AFC Wild Card playoff game over the Buffalo Bills. The improbable play, which occurred with just 16 seconds remaining in the game, gives the franchise its first playoff win in Tennessee in addition to its first since 1993.

January 16 – Eddie George rushes for 162 yards, including a 68-yard touchdown run, as the Titans defeat the Indianapolis Colts, 19-16, in an AFC Divisional Playoff game at the RCA Dome.

January 23 – The Titans beat Jacksonville for the third time of the season and fifth consecutive time, using 23 second-half points en route to a 33-14 win at Alltel Stadium in Jacksonville. Steve McNair runs for two touchdowns and Derrick Mason returns a kickoff 80 yards in the win. The win sends Tennessee to its first Super Bowl in franchise history and its first AFC/AFL Championship since 1961.

January 30 – The Titans fall short in their quest to win Super Bowl XXXIV, as Kevin Dyson is stopped one yard short of the end zone on the final play of the game in a 23-16 St. Louis Rams victory.

GAME-WINNING FIELD GOALS

The franchise has totaled 49 game-winning field goals since 1960, including three playoff game winners. Rob Bironas leads the franchise with 11 game-winning field goals, followed by the 10 by former Oiler/Titan Al Del Greco (1991-00). Bironas' 60-yard field goal vs. Indianapolis (12/3/06) ranks as the longest game-winning field goal in franchise history. A game-winning field goal is defined as one that was the final score of the game and gave the kicker's team the lead at any time in the fourth quarter or overtime.
