TITANS TRAVEL TO BALTIMORE FOR SHOWDOWN WITH RAVENS

Tennessee Titans (6-3) at Baltimore Ravens (6-3)

Sunday, Nov. 22, 2020 • 1 p.m. EST/noon CST • M&T Bank Stadium • Baltimore, Md. • TV: CBS

NASHVILLE — The Tennessee Titans travel to Baltimore this week to face the Ravens in a battle of AFC playoff contenders with identical 6-3 records. Kickoff at M&T Bank Stadium is scheduled for 1 p.m. EST/noon CST on Sunday, Nov. 22.

The Ravens announced that they will not host fans for the game after consulting with government and public health officials.

The Titans last visited Baltimore only 11 months ago for a divisional playoff game. Derrick Henry's 195 rushing yards helped the sixth-seeded Titans defeat the top-seeded Ravens by a final score of 28-12. It knotted the all-time overall series between the rivals at 12-12, including two wins apiece in four playoff games.

THE BROADCAST

This week's contest will be regionally televised on CBS, including Nashville affiliate WTVF NewsChannel 5. The broadcast team includes play-by-play announcer Jim Nantz, analyst Tony Romo and reporter Tracy Wolfson.

Fans can livestream the broadcast on their mobile devices from the Titans Mobile App (iOS and Android) and on TennesseeTitans.com mobile web. Restrictions apply. For more information and additional options visit TennesseeTitans.com or NFL.com/ways-to-watch.

The Titans Radio Network, including Nashville flagship 104.5 The Zone, will carry the game across the Mid-South with the "Voice of the Titans" Mike Keith, analyst Dave McGinnis, sideline reporter Amie Wells, and gameday hosts Rhett Bryan and Jonathan Hutton.

Additionally, Sports USA will broadcast the game to a national radio audience. Play-by-play announcer John Ahlers and analyst Brandon Noble will have the call.

TITANS HAVE EXTRA TIME BEFORE FOR TOUGH ROAD TEST

The Titans hope to benefit from extra rest after hosting the Indianapolis Colts last week on Thursday Night Football. For the first time since beginning the season 2-0, they are no longer alone sitting atop the AFC South after losing 34-17. The Titans and Colts own identical 6-3 records, but for now the Colts hold the head-to-head tiebreaker with the rematch scheduled for Nov. 29 at Indianapolis.

Tennessee's matchup with Baltimore could have significant playoff implications later in the season. In a race that will include seven total AFC postseason berths, there currently are nine teams with at least six wins, and there are six teams at exactly 6-3.

Against the Colts, Derrick Henry rushed for 103 yards on 19 carries, registering his fifth 100-yard rushing game of 2020. Since the beginning of the 2019 campaign, he leads the NFL with 11 total 100-yard rushing games in the regular season. Henry also re-claimed the 2020 NFL rushing lead (through Sunday, Nov. 14) with 946 yards.

Meanwhile, quarterback Ryan Tannehill passed for 147 yards and one touchdown—his 20th of the season, which ranks second in franchise history by any player in the first nine games of a season (21 by George Blanda in 1960). Tannehill and Steve McNair (2003) are the only quarterbacks in team annals to start each of the team's first nine games of a season and to have three or fewer interceptions in those appearances.

THE RAVENS

The Ravens, who are in second place in the AFC North behind the 9-0 Pittsburgh Steelers, return home to host the Titans after traveling for their last two games. They won at Indianapolis two weeks ago, but last week they were victimized by the New England Patriots 23-17 on Sunday Night Football.

A season after winning the Associated Press NFL Most Valuable Player Award, Baltimore quarterback Lamar Jackson has passed for 1,762 yards and 14 touchdowns and rushed for an additional 524 yards and three scores.

Head coach John Harbaugh has led the Ravens to a playoff berth in eight of his 12 previous seasons at the helm, including four division titles. In 2020, Harbaugh's squad boasts the NFL's second-ranked rushing offense (164.0 yards per game) and the league's top-ranked scoring defense (18.3 points allowed per game).

WHAT TO LOOK FOR THIS WEEK

- WR A.J. Brown (six touchdown receptions in 2020) needs two touchdown catches to become the fourth player in franchise history with at least eight touchdown receptions in back-to-back seasons. He would join Bill Groman (1960-61), Charlie Hennigan (1961-64) and Drew Hill (1988-89).
- WR Corey Davis is scheduled to appear in his 50th career regular season game.
- RB Derrick Henry (49 total career touchdowns) needs one touchdown to be the fifth player in franchise history to score at least 50 career touchdowns of any kind.
- RB Derrick Henry (946 rushing yards in 2020) needs 54 rushing yards to record his third consecutive 1,000-yard rushing season. He would be the fourth player in franchise history to accomplish the feat, along with Earl Campbell (1978-1981), Eddie George (1996-2000) and Chris Johnson (2008-2013).
- RB Derrick Henry can notch his 19th career 100-yard rushing game (including regular season and playoffs) and his sixth 100-yard rushing game of 2020. It would be his 10th 100-yard game in his last 16 regular season appearances.
- DL DaQuan Jones can register his third consecutive game with at least 0.5 sacks. It would be the first such streak of his career.
- WR Adam Humphries (2,922 career receiving yards) needs 78 receiving yards to reach 3,000 for his career.
- TE Jonnu Smith (99 career receptions) needs one reception to reach 100 for his career. He would be the 12th tight end in franchise history to hit the mark.
- TE Jonnu Smith can establish his first career three-game streak with at least one touchdown in each contest (rushing or receiving).
- TE Jonnu Smith (six touchdown receptions in 2020) needs one touchdown reception to tie Delanie Walker (seven in 2016) for the most single-season touchdown receptions by a tight end in the franchise's "Titans era" (1999-present).
- QB Ryan Tannehill can record his third consecutive game without throwing an interception.
- QB Ryan Tannehill is scheduled to notch his 20th regular season start with the Titans.
- QB Ryan Tannehill (20 touchdown passes in 2020) needs three touchdown passes to eclipse his total from 2019 (22).

SERIES HISTORY

The Titans and the Ravens have developed a fierce rivalry over the course of 24 all-time meetings since the series originated in 1996, highlighted by four fiercely contested playoff matchups.

The series is tied 12-12 heading into this week. Of the 24 games the teams have played against each other, 12 have been decided by four points or less, with the Titans holding a 7-5 advantage in those meetings.

The series is also knotted at 2-2 in four playoff matchups.

The two teams played together in the AFC Central Division for six seasons after the Ravens relocated to Baltimore from Cleveland in 1996. Realignment in the league in 2002 took the Titans to the AFC South and the Ravens to the AFC North, ending their twice-yearly meetings. In the 11 games since realignment, the Titans lead 6-5.

This is the fourth consecutive season/postseason in which the Titans and Ravens have played. They met at Nissan Stadium in Week 9 of the 2017 campaign (Nov. 5), with the Titans prevailing 23-20 on the strength of two Marcus Mariota touchdown passes and two interceptions by safety Kevin Byard.

The Ravens visited Tennessee again on Oct. 14, 2018 and handed the Titans a 21-0 defeat. It marked the first and only time the Titans have been shutout at Nissan Stadium.

On Jan. 11, 2020, the Titans went to M&T Bank Stadium for a divisional playoff game and came away with a 28-12 victory over the No. 1 seed Ravens. Derrick Henry rushed for 195 yards in the contest.

The Titans controlled the majority of the outcomes for the first five years of the series, winning six out of their first nine games. Then, in 2000, the Ravens stole the momentum. Despite owning the NFL's best record at 13-3, the Titans lost to the Ravens at home in the regular season—the Titans' first-ever loss at Nissan Stadium—and then again in a divisional playoff game the same year. The playoff win launched the Ravens to their eventual Super Bowl XXXV Championship.

The Ravens went on to win a total of five consecutive games over the Titans until the 2003 playoffs, when the Titans won at Baltimore in a wild card playoff game on a 46-yard Gary Anderson field goal in the final minute of play.

Five years later at Nissan Stadium, the two clubs met again in the playoffs, this time in the 2008 divisional round. Matt Stover's 43-yard field goal with less than a minute on the clock provided the Ravens a 13-10 victory.

TITANS-RAVENS: THE LAST MEETING

2019 Divisional Round: Titans 28, Ravens 12
Saturday, Jan. 11, 2020 • 8:15 p.m. ET • M&T Bank Stadium

GAME RECAP

In the Divisional Round of the 2019 playoffs, the Titans traveled to Baltimore to face the top-seeded Ravens and won by a score of 28-12. The Titans' 217 rushing yards set a new franchise postseason mark, and the Tennessee defense notched four fourth-down stops and three takeaways.

Tennessee got on the board in the first quarter and never surrendered the lead. On the Ravens' opening possession, Baltimore posted its first turnover of the day as Ravens QB Lamar Jackson threw an interception to S Kevin Byard who returned the ball 31 yards. The Titans took over at the Baltimore 35-yard line. The offense capitalized with an eight-play scoring drive that was capped by a 12-yard touchdown pass from QB Ryan Tannehill to TE Jonnu Smith, and a 7-0 lead.

On the following possession, the Titans defense halted Jackson for no gain on fourth-and-one at Baltimore's 45-yard line. Tennessee's offense took the field, and Tannehill quickly tossed a 45-yard touchdown to WR Kalif Raymond. Tennessee took a 14-0 lead on an eight-second scoring drive.

In the second quarter, Baltimore got on the board as the Ravens added a pair of field goals. Ravens K Justin Tucker converted 49 and 22-yard attempts to make it a 14-6 game heading into halftime.

Baltimore opened the second half with possession of the ball. Facing a fourth-and-one in the red zone, Jackson was again stopped for no gain as the Titans defense stood their ground. Tennessee gained possession of the ball and put together an 81-yard scoring drive with help from a 66-yard rush by RB Derrick Henry. At the Baltimore three-yard line, Henry took a direct snap and threw a jump pass-style three-yard touchdown to WR Corey Davis for a 21-6 lead. On the first play of the following Ravens possession, Jackson was strip sacked by DT Jurrell Casey and the ball was recovered by DL Jeffery Simmons at the Baltimore 20-yard line. Henry accounted for 10 yards on the ground, and WR A.J. Brown caught a nine-yard pass, before Tannehill scrambled into the end zone on a one-yard touchdown rush. Tennessee increased the lead, 28-6.

In the fourth quarter, Baltimore tacked on a touchdown with a 10-play, 88-yard scoring drive. Jackson contributed a 27-yard rush to move the chains before connecting with Ravens

TE Hayden Hurst for a 15-yard touchdown. Baltimore's two-point conversion attempt failed, keeping the score at 28-12. The Titans preserved the lead and earned their first AFC Championship appearance since the 2002 playoffs.

John Harbaugh is in his 13th season as the Ravens head coach. He was named the franchise's third head coach on Jan. 19, 2008.

Over the last 12 years, Harbaugh has led the Ravens to a playoff berth in eight (2008-12, 2014, 2018-19) of his 12 seasons, and in 2012, he helped capture the franchise's second Super Bowl.

Harbaugh became the third head coach in NFL history to guide his team to the playoffs in each of his first five seasons (2008-12). He is the only head coach in NFL history (since 1970 merger) to win a playoff game in each of his first four and first five seasons. Baltimore owns a 10-7 postseason mark during his tenure and has appeared in three AFC Championship games (2008, 2011, 2012).

In 2019, Harbaugh was named the NFL Coach of the Year after leading the Ravens to an AFC North division title for the second straight season and finishing the year with an AFC-best 14-2 record.

In 2018, the Ravens won six of their last seven games, all with rookie quarterback Lamar Jackson as the starter, finishing 10-6, and capturing their first AFC North Division title since 2012, and fifth ever, earning a playoff berth for the seventh time during Harbaugh's 11-year tenure.

In 2014, the Ravens produced a 10-6 regular season record, earning their sixth playoff berth in seven seasons behind a then-single-season franchise record by scoring 409 points and producing 5,838 yards of offense.

The Ravens captured a second-consecutive AFC North title in 2012 with a 10-6 mark before sweeping four playoff games to win Super Bowl XLVII.

In 2011, the Ravens produced a second-straight 12-4 record and won the AFC North, sweeping the division for the first time in team history. In what was a franchise first, the Ravens also went unbeaten at home.

In 2010, Baltimore tied Pittsburgh for the best record in the division at 12-4. The 2010 campaign also marked the first time the Ravens ever earned the postseason three years in a row.

After posting a 9-7 record in 2009, the Ravens produced their sixth playoff team of the decade (2000-09) behind the NFL's ninth-ranked scoring offense (24.4 ppg) and a defense that finished third in total yards (300.5 ypg) and points allowed (16.3 ppg).

In Harbaugh's initial Baltimore season (2008), the Ravens produced an 11-5 record and advanced to the AFC Championship game. This first Harbaugh/Ravens team tied the NFL record (since 1978) for turnarounds by a head coach taking over a sub-.500 team with the 13 total victories.

Prior to coaching the Ravens, Harbaugh spent 1998-2007 as an assistant coach with the Philadelphia Eagles. Following the 2001 campaign, Harbaugh was voted the NFL's Special Teams Coach of the Year by his peers.

Harbaugh launched his coaching career in 1984 at the age of 21 as a graduate assistant for his father, Jack Harbaugh, at Western Michigan and had stops at the University of Pittsburgh (1987) and the University of Cincinnati (1989-1996).

LAST WEEK VS. THE COLTS

Week 10: Titans 17, Colts 34

Thursday, Nov. 12, 2020 • 7:20 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 10 of the 2020 season the Titans hosted Indianapolis for a Thursday Night Football matchup, the first of two meetings within a three-week span against the Colts. Tennessee lost the contest by a score of 34-17 and fell to 6-3 on the season.

The Titans opened with a touchdown on their first possession. WR Cameron Batson gave the offense good field position with a 35-yard kick return, and QB Ryan Tannehill threw first-down passes to FB/RB Khari Blasingame, WR A.J. Brown and WR Corey Davis. The drive culminated in a five-yard touchdown pass to RB D'Onta Foreman and an early 7-0 lead. As Indianapolis took over for their first series, Colts QB Philip Rivers guided his offense down into Tennessee territory. Facing a fourth-and-one at the Titans 29-yard line, Colts RB Jordan Wilkins took the handoff but was swiftly stuffed by CB Malcolm Butler and caused a turnover on downs.

Later in the first quarter, Indianapolis put together an 11-play scoring drive and was able to tack on a field goal to make it a 7-3 game.

Tennessee extended the lead in the second quarter with an eight-play scoring drive. RB Derrick Henry broke free for a 20-yard gain to move the sticks before TE Stephen Gostkowski converted a 50-yard field goal, 10-3 Titans. However, Indianapolis knotted the score on the ensuing possession. Rivers threw first-down passes to Colts RB Nyheim Hines, Colts WR Michael Pittman Jr., and to Colts RB Jonathan Taylor, before Hines caught a 13-yard touchdown pass to make it a 10-10 contest.

The Titans replied immediately and scored a touchdown to regain the lead. Henry rushed for two first downs and Davis added an 18-yard grab before TE Jonnu Smith ran in for a one-yard rushing score. Tennessee went ahead of Indianapolis, 17-10. The Colts regained possession and quickly constructed a scoring drive before the end of the first half. Facing a second-and-eight at the Tennessee nine-yard line with 16 seconds remaining, Rivers was sacked by DL DaQuan Jones for a loss of 11. Indianapolis was forced to settle for a field goal, making it a 17-13 game heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, the Titans defense registered a goal line stand but they suffered a three-and-out at their own 10-yard line. P Trevor Daniel shanked the punt and pushed the Colts back just 17 yards. Indianapolis took over at the Tennessee 27-yard line and quickly found the end zone as Hines ran for a two-yard touchdown. The Colts took the lead, 20-17. On the following Tennessee possession, the Titans again had a three-and-out at their own

26-yard line. Daniel's punt was blocked by Colts LB E.J. Speed and returned for a six-yard touchdown by Colts CB T.J. Carrie. Indianapolis took a 27-17 lead.

In the fourth quarter, Indianapolis recorded a four-play scoring drive. Pittman caught a 40-yard pass to flip field position as Colts QB Jacoby Brissett entered the game and rushed for a two-yard score. Indianapolis took a 34-17 lead. The Titans were unable to mount a comeback and fell to the Colts at home.

NOTES FROM LAST WEEK'S GAME

TEAM NOTES

- The Titans and Colts own identical 6-3 records atop the AFC South following the Colts' victory, giving them the head-to-head tiebreaker for the time being. The two teams play again at Indianapolis on Nov. 29.
- The Titans scored a touchdown on their opening drive for the third time this season and for the first time since Oct. 13 against the Buffalo Bills. It was the fourth time they scored points this season on the opening drive.
- The offense tied its season high by having nine different players catch at least one pass. The group also had nine pass catchers against Houston on Oct. 18.
- For the second consecutive week, the Titans defense made a fourth-down stop on the opposition's opening drive. On fourth-and-one against the Colts, running back Jordan Wilkins was stuffed by cornerback Malcolm Butler.
- The Titans defense produced a goal-line stand in the third quarter, when Jordan Wilkins was stopped for no gain on fourth-and-goal from the one-yard line.
- The Titans offense produced 25 first downs, registering its fifth game of the season with at least 25 first downs.
- The offense totaled 157 rushing yards on 32 attempts. It was the third time in 2020 and the third time in a five-game span totaling at least 150 rushing yards.
- The Titans did not commit any turnovers against the Colts, notching their second consecutive game without a turnover and their sixth contest in 2020 without a turnover.

WR CAMERON BATSON

- Began the game with a career-long 35-yard kickoff return on the opening kickoff.

WR A.J. BROWN

- Recorded a 21-yard reception in the first quarter.

S KEVIN BYARD

- Credited with a team-high 10 tackles against the Colts.

P TREVOR DANIEL

- Made his Titans debut after being elevated from the practice squad (standard elevation). He averaged 32.0 yards on two punts.

WR COREY DAVIS

- Led the team with five receptions and 67 receiving yards, including a 20-yard catch. It was his fifth game of 2020 with at least five receptions.
- Leads the Titans through the first nine games of 2020 with 34 receptions and ranks second (A.J. Brown) with 436 receiving yards.

RB D'ONTA FOREMAN

- Caught a five-yard touchdown pass from Ryan Tannehill in the first quarter. It was Foreman's second career touchdown reception (first of 2020).
- Totaled 18 yards on seven rushing attempts in addition to his touchdown catch.

K STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

- Made a 50-yard field goal in the second quarter to give him six field goals on seven attempts of 50-plus yards in 2020. His previous career high for 50-yard field goals in season was five in 2013 with the New England Patriots.

RB DERRICK HENRY

- Registered his fifth 100-yard rushing game of 2020 and his 18th career 100-yard rushing game (including regular season and playoffs). He totaled 103 yards on 19 rushing attempts and added a six-yard reception.
- Since the beginning of the 2019 campaign, he leads the NFL with 11 total 100-yard rushing games in the regular season.
- Reclaimed the NFL rushing lead in 2020 (through Sunday, Nov. 15) with 946 yards on 201 carries (4.7 avg.).
- Became the fifth NFL player since 1948 to have at least 18 rushing attempts in 18 consecutive games in the regular season and postseason. He tied James Wilder, Terrell Davis and DeMarco Murray for the NFL's second-longest such streak, which for Henry dates back to Nov. 10, 2019. Emmitt Smith established the record from 1995 to 1996 with 18 carries in 23 consecutive regular season and postseason games. The Titans' record when Henry gets 18 carries is now 23-6.

DE DaQUAN JONES

- Registered an 11-yard sack of Philip Rivers in the second quarter to give him 1.5 sacks over the past two games. It was his ninth career sack.

RB JEREMY McNICHOLS

- Rushed for 26 yards on three attempts, including a 16-yard run in the fourth quarter. He added an eight-yard reception.

TE JONNU SMITH

- Posted two receptions for 14 yards and also recorded his first career rushing touchdown on a one-yard run in the second quarter. He became the fourth NFL tight end with a rushing touchdown in 2020, joining Indianapolis' Trey Burton, the L.A. Rams' Gerald Everett and the N.Y. Giants' Evan Engram. Smith became the first Titans tight end with a rushing touchdown since Delanie Walker at Jacksonville on Sept. 17, 2017.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Completed 15 of 27 passes for 147 yards with one touchdown and no interceptions (83.4 passer rating). It was his 12th regular season performance in 19 total starts with the Titans in which he completed at least one touchdown pass without throwing an interception.
- Completed a five-yard touchdown pass to D'Onta Foreman in the first quarter. It was his 20th touchdown of 2020, which ranks second in franchise history by a quarterback in the first nine games of a season. The only Titans/Oilers quarterback with more touchdown passes in the season's first nine games was George Blanda, who completed 21 in the Oilers' inaugural 1960 campaign.
- Joined Steve McNair (2003) as the only quarterbacks in franchise history to start each of the team's first nine games of a season and to have three or fewer interceptions in those games.

(on what went wrong on the third quarter punts and the issue on the missed field goal)

We missed the field goal. It didn't go in. We didn't punt it well enough the one time and then didn't block well enough on the other. Certainly things that we'll have to improve quickly.

(on the frustration level of the defense and what needs to be changed)

I mean, there's a lot of things that need to be changed. When you don't play well, you don't coach well enough, you lose. They had some fourth-and-ones, so third down we were pretty decent and got some stops and long drives that we got the stop early, which, proud of the guys for that. But everything's going to have to change when you don't play well. You got to coach better and you got to play better. That's really what it is and that's what we'll have to do. We'll have to take a couple days off here, get healthy, take a good hard look at what we did and what we're doing and continue to try to improve. We got to play complementary football in all three phases and that doesn't happy for sixty minutes right now.

(on the decision to play punter Trevor Daniel over punter Ryan Allen)

The process is always what it looks like in practice and what we felt like was best for the team and those are all the things that we look at during practice, during the week of practice, and the evaluation of those guys kicking. That's the decision that we made.

(on how the punting errors shifted momentum in Indianapolis' favor)

I think it pretty much spoke for itself there. Being able to get the ball where they did, and I guess they got it in the 30-yard line maybe the one time and then they got it in the end zone the other.

(on if he's concerned about kicker Stephen Gostkowski)

I think we're going to have to evaluate everything that we do, how we're coaching, what we do in practice, the performance. So, we have to be better and I'll say that in all areas. So, we'll look at what we're doing and try to do what's best for the team like we always do, but we all have jobs to do and we have to try to do them better.

(on what the defense has to do better when the opposing quarterback is releasing the ball as quickly as Colts quarterback Philip Rivers was today)

I think try to get – we talked about trying to get into throwing lanes and be in tight coverage and then tight coverage and not getting picked and all that stuff. So, making sure that we're into the pocket, making sure our hands are up, making sure that we're contesting, getting in tight, being in tight coverage, and contesting them and challenging them.

I think that there's momentum changes in the game throughout, and I think that's the challenge that you have against a good football team, which the Colts are. That there's challenges to the ebbs and flows, and I think you have to stay the course and know that it's a long game. Guys know when they may have made a mistake. Everybody does that. It's just going to be tough to win not creating any turnovers and then obviously having those types of things happen that, again, are uncharacteristic and need to change. Those are like turnovers, and obviously when you give up scores on special teams that's not going to be easy to overcome.

(on if he has considered making a special teams coaching change)

No, I haven't thought – no. No, I've got a lot of confidence in Craig (Aukerman) and Ryan (Crow) and what they do. We have got to continue to hold people accountable and continue to improve. But no, I think that those guys, I'm fairly, I'm very confident that they know what they're doing. I know what they coach. I'm in those meetings. I'm there at practice. So, we just, we'll keep working and making sure that we start playing better in that area and performing better because we have.

(on if three holders in three weeks could be impacting Stephen Gostkowski)

I think that that would be a great question for Stephen (Gostkowski). I know what he's going to tell you because he's a professional, and he's going to say that should have no impact. But things happen. People get hurt. You're going to have to play with different people. So that's nothing new to the National Football League or any football, that you're going to have different guys in different spots just for different reasons.

(on if the offensive problems began once tackle Taylor Lewan was lost for the season due to injury)

I would tell you I don't think Tyler Sambrailo would be the first place that I would start to try to improve our offense and what we're doing. Tyler's a great player, but I just think that we all have to just play better and the timing, the consistency, you can see that when we did indeed have a rhythm, we went down there and scored, and then give them a lot of credit there in the second half for how they played, and some penalties that, untimely penalties that kind of cost us, and just again, it wasn't good enough. We didn't take advantage of our opportunities.

(on the timing and rhythm if the change is not due to the switch at left tackle)

There's a lot of places. But again, it's never going to be about one guy, not in football. So just being able to get some of these plays, and again, you look at it and then you say, 'Well, there's a lot of good things,' and then third down-wise we didn't give ourselves enough third-and-shorts. We were playing too many third-and-longs that again, that consistency early on in the series, just developing that rhythm of getting that first, first down, and we'll go back to work. That's what I told the team. We'll go back to work and we'll get away for a couple days and try to get healthy.

(on if something needs to change in the evaluation process of specialists)

Well, I mean, the evaluation process is when they make them or they kick well in practice, that you hope that leads to kicking well in the game. The operation needs to improve to help those guys. That's something that we harp on about protecting our punter and kicker. So, there's a lot of things that have to improve and I would imagine that the evaluation process that you alluded to is something that we can certainly look at as well.

(on if it was considered to have the defense press more with Philip Rivers getting the ball out so quickly)

Sure. Yeah. When they do, they threw one and they completed one down there and that's the battle that you wage, and we got picked a couple times and so we have to be better there. We can get up there and press them and then make sure that we're not getting picked and that we're conscious enough of what's going on there. But I thought, I mean, there were some great efforts down there on the goal line that I'm proud of. It can be better, but we'll certainly look at playing a lot of press coverage as we move forward.

(on wide receiver Corey Davis playing today despite suffering the loss of his brother Titus)

I mean, I think that I'm proud of not only Corey (Davis), but his teammates and it's – I'm proud of Corey. I'm proud of him and his ability to come out here, and again, our thoughts and prayers are with him and his family and I'm proud of his teammates for supporting him the way that they did.

QUARTERBACK RYAN TANNEHILL

(on what changed for the offense between the first and second halves)

We had some things early. We didn't come out and execute well in the second half. Had some opportunities, shot ourselves in the foot a few times. I think the pass I missed to Jonnu (Smith) wide open on the corner route, early opportunity there in the second half and just really couldn't get it going.

(on the frustration level and the mindset the team has to have going forward)

We have to clean up and start playing better. Plain and simple. Just inconsistent. We have done some good things. Defense has done some good things. We're just not consistent enough as a team playing complementary football, playing off of each other, and just not making enough plays. So we're going to have to clean that up, really get healthy this little extended week we have here, and be able to clear our minds and our heads and come back ready to go on Monday because we can't wait around any longer. We have to take it up a notch and be ready to play our best football every Sunday from here going forward. So the onus is on us to take a critical look at ourselves and do whatever it takes to clean it up and make the plays on Sundays.

SELECT TITANS POSTGAME QUOTES

(on if the offensive struggles can be attributed to the loss of tackle Taylor Lewan)

Yeah, no doubt Taylor's a good player and we miss him. Obviously have a ton of confidence in Ty (Sambrailo) and what he brings to the table. Yeah, I don't know, obviously we miss Taylor, but have confidence in Ty. We just have to get it done. There's really no excuses. We had, Rodger (Saffold III) was in and out. Ben (Jones) was in and out tonight. We're banged up a little bit. But we just have to be able to find a way to push through those tough situations. We have guys playing through some injuries and showing some toughness and laying it out there for the team, but on the whole, we just have to be able to execute better and make the plays that come up. There's opportunities there and we're just not making enough plays when we get those opportunities.

(on the reasoning behind receivers dropping passes)

Yeah, it's been all types of different things, whether it's a drop, whether it's a throw, a missed block. It's never one thing or one person. But when you add the things up, you're killing drives, you're stalling out, you're not scoring points. So that's what I'm talking about. We have to start making the plays and take advantage of the opportunities that are there, whether it's a throw, a catch, a block so we can hit a crease. A lot of times we're one guy away and there's too many almosts, whether they're, like I said, throw a catch, a block. Almost doesn't get it done. We have to be able to make it happen on the whole, 11 guys working together, and when we do that, we move the football and we make plays.

(on the hit from Colts defensive end Justin Houston and having quarterback Logan Woodside step in to close the game out)

Yeah, obviously the hit hurt. It stung a little bit. Knocked my air out. Jonnu (Smith) made a good play, got us into a short-yardage situation there and Derrick (Henry) was able to convert on third down. So, yeah, the hit hurt, but I was able to get up and kind of shake it off. And then just being in that situation in the game, obviously you don't want to be out of striking distance at the end of the game. We need to play better earlier in the second half to put ourselves in position to win the game at the end. When you're down three scores at the end, obviously it's a sick feeling and not one I want to have again.

(on if the offense is pressing too hard to get back to the level it was playing at earlier in the season and if that could be why the performances aren't as smooth)

No, I don't think there's any pressing. I feel like we came out, we moved the ball early, we scored points early, did some really good things in the first half. And then in the second half, we didn't. We got to give credit to the defense. They did some good things. Made it tough on us. But we didn't execute well enough and move the football and make the plays that were there. When you play against a good team, a good defense, and you don't take advantage of the opportunities that are given to you, then you're going to stall out and have to punt and give the ball back to them.

(on opposing defenses speeding him up with pressure in recent weeks)

Yeah, I mean obviously there are certain situations where you're feeling the rush come in and the clock's going off, you want to get the ball out. Sacks kill drives. Don't want to be taking unnecessary sacks. So a lot of times you're feeling the pressure, feeling the rush, and trying to get it out before they get there.

(on what he said to wide receiver Corey Davis as Davis played one day after the death of his brother)

Yeah, just told Corey (Davis) I love him, support him, I'm here for him. Really just a really tough situation, a sick situation that you wouldn't wish upon anybody. He's so close to his brother, and his brother meant so much to him, so I can't even imagine what he's going through right now emotionally. But appreciate his effort and the way he battled through that and played for us tonight. He played a heck of a game, made some big plays for us, so he showed a lot of toughness. But it's tough, you know. The game's over but those feelings aren't gone. So definitely my heart goes out to Corey and David Long, as well. Just two terrible situations and I'm sick for them. I'm sick for him. I just want him to know that I love him, I care for him and want the best for him.

WIDE RECEIVER COREY DAVIS

(on honoring his brother on the field)

Definitely. It's definitely tough. As he was laying there all he kept telling my sister was to tell me to play, regardless of what happens. He just kept telling me to play, telling me to play throughout the whole process. That's my biggest fan. Since I was a little kid I was always chasing after him and trying to be like him. I wore his number every year to copy him. He thought it was annoying, but I looked up to him tremendously. That was my idol, my hero. I tried to honor him tonight.

(on being emotional at the start of the game and when he made his first catch)

It was heavy on my mind, every play. But I just kept thinking this is what he wanted me to do. He wouldn't want me to be sad and sulk and feel sorry for myself. I obviously miss him and wish he was here, but I know he's in a better place and that he was with me today.

RUNNING BACK DERRICK HENRY

(on having 19 carries tonight and if he would have liked to been able to carry the ball more)

Yeah, definitely would like for us to be in a better position to give ourselves a chance to win the game. They just played better than us in all three phases and hats off to them. We just got to take a couple days off and then get back to work. No excuses. Just we have to be better as a team. We know that. We need to fix the mistakes and do better this week coming up.

(on approaching the next few days with a mini-bye and then two important games)

Yeah, I think that guys just need to get their body back under them, time to rest, watch some film, and just really, just relax until we got to get back on Monday and get back to work. But this one definitely stings. They were the better team today. A lot of things we can learn from and improve on and we just have to be better.

(on if the team can take lessons learned from the improvement it made last season)

Yeah, we went on a pretty good run last year and can't really focus on what happened last year. Last year was last year. I think that we all just have to be better on all three phases and when we play like how we played today, against a team like that, then that would be the outcome. But no excuses, we just have to be better, play better, complementary football on all three phases and just go out there, finish drives, score points, get off the field and win the game.

SAFETY KEVIN BYARD

(on the difference of play from the first half to the second half today)

We just didn't play consistent enough in all three phases of the game. We got some big stops, some fourth-down stops that gave us some momentum, but we had a blocked kick, or a shank or whatever, and then we gave up a touchdown, and then we had the blocked punt for a touchdown and everything just went downhill from there. We just have to find a way to stay together and keep fighting and keep battling and prepare for Baltimore next week.

(on the goal line stop by the defense)

Absolutely, it was a big stop down there and something we really needed at that moment to get us off the field and give the offense some momentum. But when you get a stop on the goal line you aren't really putting the offense in a great position and they had to punt. I just think we didn't play consistently enough so we have to find a way to fix it ASAP.

(on having more preparation time for Baltimore after the short week)

First and foremost, some guys need to get healthy. We are going to have a nice little weekend for guys to get away, get some rest and get back. When we come back next week it's all about really preparing. We have a couple extra days so we need to use that and take advantage so we can go out there and try to win a tough game on the road.

CENTER BEN JONES

(on the rhythm of the offense in the first half)

Maintaining drives is key in the league and we were just trying to stay in rhythm. Things just didn't and we left some things out there in the second half that we wish we could have back. We just have to move on, and you have to have a short memory in this league.

(on not being able to get the push needed after being backed up after the goal line stand)

We get the first, first down and we're going for the next one. When we get there, we have third-and-one and we take a chance, but not all chances work out. We're trying to make plays every time. We're not a cautious offense. We try to make plays all the time and the Colts got us.

(on making mistakes on drives and how that can kill a drive)

You have to eliminate drive killers, penalties, false starts and anything like that. We have to be smart on those. You want to overcome those, but a lot of those are hard to overcome.

SAFETY KENNY VACCARO

(on what the issues defensively are)

Yeah, man, I think that some of the same things that kind of crept up in our game all year kind of came back to haunt us, whether it's really just the details, fundamentals, cutting guys loose. A lot of times we were shooting ourselves in the foot. Instead of actually making offenses beat us, we're beating ourselves. So, I mean obviously we get these three days off to kind of reflect. Everybody look at their selves in the mirror and try to figure out exactly what's going on because if you play like that in this league, you're not going to win very many games and we understand that. I'm eager to look at the film just to see exactly what happened in this particular game. But at the same time, I don't want to sound like a broken record. The communication, the details of each play are things we've got to get fixed because we're on the field way too long, like you said. We had some great fourth-down stops this game, but at the same time those inconsistencies keep you on the field and you give up points. So, we've got to get it figured out quick. We've got two great teams these next two weeks.

(on the momentum swing from a fourth-down stop followed by a shanked punt that put the defense immediately back on the field)

Yeah, it's huge. But at the same time, we've got to play complementary ball and once we get the fourth-down stop, score points, and then OK, we don't score points and we get back on field. Well, we've got to get a stop and put the offense in plus field position so they can score points. We've got to create turnovers so the offense will have more attempts at scoring. We've got to get more three-and-outs so the offense can get in a rhythm. So, we take that – we've got to do more on defense and that's just the way I want to put it.

(on if the defense was fatigued tonight)

No. No, it wasn't a fatigue thing. I think guys played hard every play. It's more of a, like I said, details and not executing the way we're coached. That's the problem. It's not fatigue, no.

(on if there is confidence that the defense can correct the issues at hand)

Yeah. I mean I think with the men in our locker room, the guys on our defense we can get it fixed, and we will. We'll figure out. We're at the halfway point now. We got like a little mini-bye week coming up. We will. I know we will, just with the guys in the locker room. The guys on the team on the defense, we'll get it figured out. We've got to hold each other accountable, and we've got to do it so we can win. I mean there's just no choice.

(on the frustration of producing stops but being unable to seize momentum and allowing the Colts to rally when it looked like the Titans were taking control)

It's frustrating, but at the same time, though, it is what it is. Whatever situation, whatever cards we get dealt on defense, we need to come out on top, whether we get fourth down stops, whether we get turnovers, we didn't do enough. That's just what it comes down to. We were on the field too long. Our offenses don't have as many opportunities to score. We got to figure out how to get the offense back on the field as many times as possible.

(on if the defense is playing more off coverage and allowing free releases because opposing quarterbacks are getting the ball out quickly)

Well, I think with (Philip) Rivers, too, he knows that, he's such a smart quarterback, he knows exactly where to go with the ball and where the weaknesses are. But at the same time, we've got to do a better job on defense of mixing our alignments up, showing press, going off, being off, coming up to press. I mean there's different things we can do. Just challenging guys. A lot of times if you get up and you challenge guys in their face, it discourages those quick throws. But it also encourages the offense to take deeper shots, so there's a little give-and-take there. But at the same time, like I said, Philip (Rivers) always got the ball out quick. He's very, very smart. He knows where to go with the ball. He doesn't really give you a chance to sack him. They're the least-sacked team in the league, or one of them, top three, and so I think he does a good job and a lot of good quarterbacks do that.

(on if lining up numerous yards off of the line of scrimmage is a coaching or player choice)

It just depends what the coverage is, whether it's quarters, whether it's man, single high, cover two, either way, like I said, regardless of what coverage we're running we have to do a better job of discouraging those quick throws by changing our alignments, showing press, coming off, being off, getting down and press. Like our coaches told us that before this week, 'Hey, we need to do a better job of changing it up.' So I don't know, I haven't watched the film so I don't know what to say on that.

(on the frustration level for the team and the mindset going forward)

I think we need to get away from ball these next three days. I usually can't so I'll probably watch the film tonight and kind of digest that. But come back, ready to go on a good stretch, ready to beat Baltimore, we're going to Baltimore. They're going to be, after what happened last year, they're going to be ready to roll, they're going to be ready to roll regardless because it's the next game. But being tough, I mean we have been through that, we have been through it last year, we have been through it, every game in this league's tough, I don't care if it's who knows who. So, it's not really about the next opponent, really for us and in general on defense we need to worry about what we're doing and how we execute and not so much who the next opponent is.

(on why the team didn't have these communication errors last year and why a group with almost identical personnel hasn't been able to correct it)

Honestly, I can't really, I mean, I can't really put my thumb on it exactly why we're having those issues this year. Like you said it's a lot of the same guys, but like I said, we're going to work to get it fixed and last year's last year. I'm focused on this year. I know right now we're in a better spot this year than we, a hell of a lot better spot this year than we were last year, we just need to make sure we take advantage of that.

LINEBACKER RASHAAN EVANS

(on if the loss tonight was especially tough with what was at stake)

Oh, no doubt, man. You want to try to win your division games because those really are your most important games. The good thing is we have another opportunity to be able to play these guys in about two more weeks, so for us, we've just got to go back to the drawing board and just get better.

(on what happened after the two-score lead that flipped the game in the second half)

I just feel like everything that we did, we just really hurt ourselves. So, I really do think it was too much of what Indianapolis did, but I think it's what we did to our own selves. Playing in this league when you make mistakes like that you will get beat.

(on what allowed Colts quarterback Philip Rivers to be so effective with quick throws)

Yeah, I feel like they just took advantage of that – doing the quick throws, not allowing our pass rushers to get to him as fast as we wanted to and that worked on their end. For us, we just couldn't get to the quarterback like we wanted to and that allowed them to be able to gain yardage.

Jon Robinson was hired as Titans general manager on Jan. 14, 2016 after spending two years as director of player personnel for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Nearly one year later, on Jan. 5, 2017, he was promoted to executive vice president/general manager.

In his first four years on the job, the Titans finished with four consecutive 9-7 seasons. It marked the first time the organization produced at least four consecutive winning seasons since a seven-year run of winning records from 1987–1993. The Titans were one of four NFL teams to accomplish the feat from 2016–2019, joining New England, Seattle and Kansas City.

Robinson became only the second general manager in franchise history whose first four teams finished above the .500 mark, joining Mike Holovak (1989-92).

Robinson's work helped the team go from three wins in the season prior to his arrival (2015) to a divisional round playoff finish following the 2017 campaign. He became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the playoffs within his first two full seasons.

Then, in 2019, the team he constructed advanced to the AFC Championship game. It was the organization's first appearance in the conference title game in 17 seasons (2002).

When the Titans took the field for the 2019 postseason, only seven players remained on the 53-man roster from prior to Robinson's arrival—a turnover rate of 87 percent. That included 23 free agents, 18 draft picks, four players acquired via trade and one waiver pickup. An additional six players he acquired (four free agents, one draft pick and one waiver claim) ended 2019 on injured reserve.

The 2020 NFL Draft was Robinson's fifth draft as general manager. In those five drafts, he selected 35 total players, and 21 of those players remained with the club at the beginning of training camp in 2020. During that same time period (as of July 28, 2020), he engineered 20 trades and made 11 waiver claims.

2020: Prior to the 2020 free agent signing period, the Titans reached an agreement on a multi-year contract to keep quarterback Ryan Tannehill in Tennessee. The Titans also re-signed tackle Dennis Kelly, among others.

After initially placing the franchise tag on running back Derrick Henry, the Titans and Henry were able to come to an agreement on a multi-year contract extension in July 2020.

Robinson patiently waited to add two more significant free agents just prior to the beginning of the 2020 regular season, picking up kicker

Stephen Gostkowski and outside linebacker Jadeveon Clowney during the first week of September. Gostkowski earned four Pro Bowl berths and three Super Bowl rings during 14 seasons with the Patriots, becoming the team's all-time leading scorer (1,775 points). Through 2019, he was the NFL's fifth-most accurate kicker in history (374 of 428). Clowney, a three-time Pro Bowl selection, joined Aaron Donald and Chandler Jones as the only NFL players with at least 60 tackles for loss, eight forced fumbles and 150 quarterback pressures from 2016 through 2019.

In the 2020 NFL Draft, the Titans had six total picks. The first of those was Georgia tackle Isaiah Wilson (first round, 29th overall), followed by Louisiana State cornerback Kristian Fulton (second round, 61st overall) and Appalachian State running back Darrynton Evans (third round, 93rd overall) in the first three rounds.

2019: Near the beginning of the 2019 free agent signing period, Robinson worked quickly to add several veterans from other teams who played key roles in 2019: Buccaneers wide receiver Adam Humphries, Rams guard Rodger Saffold and Tannehill in a trade with the Dolphins. Robinson also worked to re-sign starting safety Kenny Vaccaro and punter Brett Kern.

Then, in the 2019 NFL Draft, Robinson directed the selection of six total players, including Mississippi State defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons in the first round (19th overall), Ole Miss wide receiver A.J. Brown in the second round (51st overall) and Charlotte offensive lineman Nate Davis in the third round (82nd overall).

Tannehill, who proved to be one of the NFL's top acquisitions of 2019, started every game after Week 6, leading the team into the playoffs. He led the NFL and set franchise records with a 117.5 passer rating and a 9.6-yard passing average. In addition to being named to his first Pro Bowl, he earned Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year honors.

As a rookie, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category. Among all rookies in 2019, he ranked first in receiving yards (1,051), tied for the rookie lead in touchdown receptions (eight) and placed fifth in receptions (52). Among all NFL players in 2019—rookies and veterans—Brown finished second in receiving average (20.2), behind only the Los Angeles Chargers' Mike Williams (20.4).

2018: The Titans' 2018 free agent class included Pro Bowl cornerback Malcolm Butler. In his first two seasons in Tennessee, Butler played in 25 games (20 starts) and totaled five interceptions. In early August, the Titans signed Vaccaro, who went on to start 13 games his first season in Tennessee and all 16 games in 2019.

Robinson's 2018 draft class was comprised of four players after he used multiple trades to go up and get his targets. It included first-round linebacker Rashaan Evans from Alabama (22nd overall pick) and second-round outside linebacker Harold Landry III from Boston College (41st overall). Evans started all 16 games in 2019 and led the team with 139 tackles. Landry appeared in 31 games (19 starts) in his first two seasons, and his 13.5 sacks from 2018–2019 (nine in 2019) ranked first on the team.

2017: During the 2017 offseason, Robinson used free agency to address needs on defense and special teams. Most notably, he spearheaded deals for cornerback Logan Ryan (New England) and special teams contributor and 2017 Pro Bowler Brynden Trawick (Oakland).

In the 2017 NFL Draft, Robinson spent first-round picks on wide receiver Corey Davis (fifth overall) and cornerback Adoree' Jackson (18th overall). It marked the first time the franchise had a pair of first-round draft selections since 1987. The Titans' 2017 draft haul also featured tight end Jonn Smith in the third round and linebacker Jayon Brown in the fifth round.

The 2017 Titans advanced to the playoffs for the first time since 2008. Robinson became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the postseason within his first two full seasons.

2016: In his first year as an NFL general manager, Robinson's leadership and decision-making helped the Titans triple their win total from the previous season, finishing 9-7 in 2016 after a 3-13 finish in 2015. The six-win improvement tied for the most in franchise history (1967 and 1974) and doubled the previous club benchmark for the most wins in the first year under a new general manager (three by Bum Phillips in 1975).

Within the first four months at his post, Robinson pulled the trigger on several key personnel decisions. On March 9, 2016, he made his first major acquisition, swapping fourth-round draft picks with the Philadelphia Eagles in exchange for running back DeMarco Murray. The trade provided major dividends in 2016, as Murray led the AFC and ranked third in the NFL with

Around the same time, Robinson began to work the free agent market. Center Ben Jones and wide receiver Rishard Matthews highlighted the haul, and both were instrumental in helping to transform the Titans offense into the 11th-ranked unit in the NFL.

On April 14, 2016, two weeks before the NFL Draft, Robinson and the Titans dealt the first overall pick to the Los Angeles Rams in one of the biggest trades in recent NFL history. The Titans gave up the No. 1 pick and a fourth-rounder in order to receive the 15th overall pick, two second-rounders and a third-rounder in 2016, plus the Rams' first- and third-round picks in 2017. From 1990–2015, there were seven trades involving the No. 1 overall pick, but this was the first since 2004, when the San Diego Chargers selected Eli Manning with the first pick and dealt his rights to the New York Giants.

The Titans had their hands at one point or another on 17 selections in the 2016 draft due to five different trades (including one trade in 2015), and in the end, they ended up with a class of 10 players, including four of the top 45 picks. Robinson swung a draft-day trade with the Cleveland Browns to move back up to the eighth slot to choose Michigan State tackle Jack Conklin.

All 10 members of Robinson's first draft class played in at least one game in 2016. They accumulated a total of 110 games played and 38 starts, including 16 starts at right tackle by Conklin. The eighth-overall pick capped his successful rookie campaign by being named first-team All-Pro by Associated Press.

Henry, a second-rounder in 2016, led the Titans in rushing every season from 2017 through 2019. In 2019, he won the NFL's rushing crown with 1,540 yards and tied for the NFL lead with 16 rushing touchdowns.

Third-round safety Kevin Byard earned first-team All-Pro honors in his second campaign. He led the NFL from 2017–2019 with 17 total interceptions also was named to the Pro Bowl in 2017.

PRIOR HISTORY: Robinson arrived in Tennessee with a wide range of experience from working his way up on the personnel side of the NFL. From 2014–2015, he served as director of player personnel for the Buccaneers and oversaw both college and pro departments as the team rebuilt its roster. The 2015 Buccaneers draft class made a significant impact, including four rookie starters: quarterback James Winston, tackle Donovan Smith, guard Ali Marpet and linebacker Kwon Alexander.

Prior to joining Tampa Bay, Robinson spent 12 years with the New England Patriots, including his last five years (2009-13) as the director of college scouting. In the five years heading up their college scouting, the Patriots added a number of key components to their roster that won the Super Bowl in 2014, including wide receiver Julian Edelman, defensive back Devin McCourty, tight end Rob Gronkowski, tackle Nate Solder and defensive end Chandler Jones. He joined the Patriots as an area scout in 2002, a role he served for four seasons. Robinson then spent two years (2006-07) as a regional scout, before being promoted to assistant director of college scouting in 2008 and then director of college scouting in 2009. In his time scouting for the Patriots the team won 10 division titles, four conference titles and two Super Bowls (2003, 2004).

Robinson played three years at Southeast Missouri State as a defensive lineman after starting his college career at the Air Force Academy. Following his college career as a player, he spent one season (1998) coaching at his alma mater and three years (1999-2001) coaching at Nicholls State.

A native of Union City, Tenn., Robinson and his wife, Jaimie, have two daughters, Taylor and Bailey.

FOUR WINNING SEASONS

Jon Robinson constructed a roster that produced four consecutive winning seasons in Robinson's first four years on the job. The club went 9-7 in 2016, 2017, 2018 and 2019 with postseason berths following the 2017 and 2019 campaigns.

Robinson became only the second general manager in franchise history whose first four teams finished above the .500 mark, joining Mike Holovak (1989-92).

ROBINSON TO THE PLAYOFFS IN YEAR 2

In January 2016, Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk hired general manager Jon Robinson, who helped turn the Titans into a playoff team by his second season.

Robinson became the fifth general manager in franchise history to have the team in the playoffs within his first two full seasons.

2020 TITANS DRAFT CLASS

OL ISAIAH WILSON | 6-6, 350, Georgia
1st round, 29th overall

College: Following a redshirt season, Wilson started 24 total games for the Bulldogs from 2018 to 2019. All of his starts came at right tackle. As a sophomore (2019), Wilson was named second-team Associated Press All-SEC and was the co-winner of the Offensive "Up Front" Award. Wilson was named to the Football Writers Association of America Freshman All-America team and the 2018 Coaches Freshman All-SEC Team his redshirt freshman year (2018).

CB KRISTIAN FULTON | 5-11, 197, Louisiana State
2nd round, 61st overall

College: In a three-year career at LSU (2016-19), Fulton appeared in 28 games and made 25 starts. He finished his career with 65 tackles, 25 passes defended, two interceptions, and one forced fumble. As a senior in 2019, Fulton started all 15 games and posted 38 tackles, one tackle for loss, 15 passes defended and one interception. He also earned second-team All-SEC recognition by the Associated Press. During his junior season (2018), Fulton started 10 games and tallied 25 tackles, one tackle for loss, 10 passes defended, one interception and one forced fumble.

RB DARRYNTON EVANS | 5-10, 203, Appalachian State
3rd round, 93rd overall

College: In three on-field seasons at Appalachian State (2016, 2018-19), Evans appeared in 39 games and made 22 starts. He was a two-time All-Sun Belt first-team selection and was the Sun Belt's Offensive Player of the Year in 2019. Evans was a two-time Sun Belt Championship Game MVP and MVP of the 2019 New Orleans Bowl. He finished his career with 2,884 rushing yards (ninth all-time at Appalachian State) despite being the primary running back for just 23 career games. Evans set school records for most career rushes without a fumble (482) and single-season rushes without a fumble (255 in 2019). Evans had 4,642 all-purpose yards, including 1,439 yards on kickoff returns and 319 yards as a receiver, plus 14 passing yards. Evans scored 34 total touchdowns with 25 rushing, six receiving and a program-record three as a kick returner. Evans totaled 11 runs of at least 50 yards in his final two seasons.

DL LARRELL MURCHISON | 6-2, 297, North Carolina State
5th round, 174th overall

College: During a two-year stint as a defensive tackle at North Carolina State, Murchison started all 25 contests. As a senior in 2019, Murchison started all 12 games at defensive tackle and registered 51 tackles. He led the Wolfpack with 12 tackles for loss and seven sacks. Murchison was named a second-team All-ACC choice by the league and an honorable mention All-ACC by Pro Football Focus. Murchison ranked sixth in the ACC in sacks with 0.58 per game. In 2018 as a redshirt junior, Murchison ranked second on the team with four sacks, earned the team's Cary Brewbaker Award for Defensive Lineman of the Year. He finished his Wolfpack career with 85 tackles, 11 sacks, 20 tackles for loss, five quarterback hits, an interception, three passes defended and three fumble recoveries. He started his collegiate career at Louisiana State and was named a NJCAA junior-college honorable mention All-American.

QB COLE MCDONALD | 6-3, 215, Hawaii
7th round, 224th overall

Currently not on the roster

College: After redshirting in 2016, McDonald was a reserve in 2017 before taking control as the starter in 2018. In 33 career games, including 24 starts, he completed 616 of 1,004 passes for 8,032 yards, 70 touchdowns and 24 interceptions. He added 880 yards and 12 touchdowns on 251 career rushing attempts. He finished in Hawaii's top five in nearly a dozen career statistical categories, including finishing fourth in all-time passing yards, attempts, completions, touchdowns and total offense (8,912).

DB CHRIS JACKSON | 5-10, 193, Marshall
7th round, 243th overall

College: During a four-year career at Marshall, started 48 games and posted 189 tackles, 6.5 tackles for loss, two sacks, seven interceptions with one returned for a touchdown, 45 passes defended and two fumble recoveries with one returned for a score on kickoff coverage for the Thundering Herd. Jackson's 45 passes defended rank first in Marshall history and his 48 career starts rank 14th in program history. He earned all-conference recognition in all four of his collegiate seasons.

Mike Vrabel enters his third season as head coach in 2020. He was named to the position on Jan. 20, 2018, becoming the 19th head coach in franchise history.

In Vrabel's first two years, he directed the Titans to a 20-15 record, including a 2-1 mark in the 2019 playoffs. His 20 wins made up the second-highest total in franchise history for a head coach's first two seasons, behind only Jack Pardee's 21 wins from 1990–1991.

Vrabel became the first head coach in the organization's history to win multiple playoff games within his first two seasons. The Titans won a pair of road games—at New England in the wild card round and at Baltimore in the divisional round—to advance to the 2019 AFC championship game, falling at Kansas City to the eventual Super Bowl champion Chiefs.

The Titans began the 2019 campaign with two wins in their first six games but rallied to win seven of their final 10 games in the regular season. From the time the NFL went to its current playoff format in 1990 through 2019, 345 teams went 2-4 or worse in their first six games of a season. From that group, the Titans became only the third team to advance to a conference championship game, joining the 2002 Titans (2-4) and the 1996 Jacksonville Jaguars (2-4).

The 2019 Titans ranked in the NFL's top 10 in scoring margin (eighth, +71), turnover margin (sixth, +6), offensive yards per play (fourth, 6.12), rushing offense (third, 138.9 yards per game), red zone efficiency (first, 75.6 percent), total touchdowns (tied for third, 54) and third-down defense (eighth, 36.3 percent).

From 2018–2019, Vrabel's Titans were the second-least penalized NFL team (181). Over the same period of time, they were the fourth-best rushing offense (129.2 yards per game), the fifth-best scoring defense (19.8 points allowed per game) and the seventh-best third-down defense (36.4 percent).

In his first season as head coach, Vrabel directed the Titans to a 9-7 record. His nine wins tied for the fourth-highest total in franchise history by a first-year head coach.

With only 82 penalties enforced against the Titans in 2018, Vrabel's team led the NFL and set a franchise record (16-game season) for fewest penalties in a season. The 2018 Titans also placed third in points allowed (18.9 per game), eighth in total defense (333.4 yards per game), sixth in passing defense (216.9), second in red zone defense (44.7 percent touchdown rate) and seventh in rushing offense (126.4) in the league rankings.

Vrabel arrived in Tennessee with 18 years of NFL experience, including four seasons as a coach and 14 seasons as a player. His distinguished playing career included three Super Bowl wins (2001, 2003 and 2004), one Pro Bowl selection (2007) and an All-Pro honor (2007). Vrabel played in 206 NFL games and totaled 57 sacks, 496 tackles, 11 interceptions, 20 forced fumbles, nine fumble recoveries and 10 touchdown receptions. Additionally, his teams advanced to the playoffs eight times (20 postseason games), with Vrabel recording eight postseason sacks and two postseason touchdown receptions.

Vrabel joined the Titans after four seasons with the Houston Texans, spending the first three seasons (2014-16) coaching linebackers and one year (2017) as the team's defensive coordinator. During his time in Houston, the Texans built one of the best defenses in the NFL and experienced tremendous success as a team – earning two division titles (2015, 2016).

Between 2014-16, the Texans defense ranked third in the NFL in yards allowed per game (319.9) and net passing yards (218.4). Houston also ranked first in third-down defense (33.6), fourth in opponent completion percentage (59.5) and sixth in points allowed per game (19.8). The 2016 defense ranked number one in the NFL, for the first time in franchise history, in yards allowed (301.3).

In 2017, his first year as a defensive coordinator, the Texans finished the campaign with 19 players on injured reserve. Despite the injuries, Vrabel led the defense to the fifth-best third-down percentage in the NFL and a franchise-record 3.97 yards per carry by opponents. Houston also had 18 different players record at least half a sack last year and 26 players tally at least one tackle for loss.

Vrabel spent his career playing and coaching with accomplished leaders, including Bill Belichick, Bill Cowher, Romeo Crennel, Urban Meyer, Bill O'Brien and Todd Haley.

As the Texans linebackers coach from 2014-16, Vrabel developed several players into top-notch performers, including Jadeveon Clowney (Pro Bowl, 2016), Whitney Mercilus, Benardrick McKinney (second-team All-Pro, 2016) and Brian Cushing. The 2015 Texans defense had the top third-down defense in the NFL (28.5 percent), which was the lowest percentage in franchise history and the lowest by any NFL team since the 2003 Titans (27.7 percent). The 2015 defense also set a franchise mark for sacks in a season with 45 - 22.5 coming from Vrabel's linebacking corps.

Prior to joining the NFL coaching ranks, Vrabel transitioned immediately from an NFL player to college coach. He started as the linebacker coach at Ohio State in 2011 and coached the defensive line from 2012-2013. The 2012 Buckeyes finished the season undefeated at 12-0. He also was named Big Ten Recruiter of the Year by ESPN.com in 2012.

Vrabel was selected by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the third round (91st overall) of the 1997 NFL Draft, after his playing career at Ohio State, where he earned All-America honors and Big Ten Conference Defensive Lineman of the Year in both 1995 and 1996.

A native of Akron, Ohio, Vrabel attended Walsh Jesuit High School. He and his wife, Jennifer, have two sons: Tyler and Carter.

FASTEST TO 25 WINS

With the Titans' Oct. 18 overtime win against the Houston Texans, Titans head coach Mike Vrabel recorded his 25th win with the franchise, including playoffs.

Vrabel tied Jack Pardee as the fastest head coach in franchise history to 25 wins, reaching the number in only his 40th game since being hired in 2018.

The Titans went 9-7 in Vrabel's first two regular seasons, followed by a 2-1 record in the 2019 postseason.

Most wins in a head coach's first 40 games with the Titans/Oilers (regular season and playoffs):

Head Coach	Seasons	Wins	Losses	Ties	Win Pct

VRABEL LEADS TITANS TO AFC TITLE GAME

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel became the franchise's sixth head coach in franchise annals to have the team in the playoffs within his first two full seasons.

Vrabel is the fourth head coach in Titans/Oilers history to win at least one playoff game in his first two full seasons, joining Mike Mularkey (2017 playoff victory), Jack Pardee (1991) and Lou Rymkus (1960 and 1961). He is the first head coach in the team's history to win multiple playoff games within his first two seasons.

Titans/Oilers head coaches in the playoffs within their first two full seasons:

Head Coach	1st Full Season as Head Coach	Postseason Berths in 1st 2 Seasons	Playoff Wins in 1st 2 Seasons

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN 2020

WHAT TO LOOK FOR – TEAM

- With their third win of the season at Nissan Stadium (Oct. 18 vs. Houston), the Titans reached 100 all-time wins there, including postseason. They entered 2020 with a combined regular season and postseason record at Nissan Stadium (opened in 1999) of 97-75.
- The Titans can record their fifth consecutive season with a winning record. It would be the second-longest such streak in franchise history trailing only the Oilers' seven consecutive winning records from 1987 through 1993. Entering 2020, the Titans own the fourth-longest active streak of winning seasons in the NFL behind only the New England Patriots (19), Seattle Seahawks (eight) and Kansas City Chiefs (seven).

WR A.J. BROWN

- Needs 1,000 receiving yards to become the 11th player to reach 1,000 receiving yards in each of his first two NFL seasons. He would be the first NFL player since Michael Thomas (2016-17) and the only player in Titans/Oilers history other than Bill Groman (1960-61) to accomplish the feat.
- Needs 1,000 receiving yards, 50 receptions and five receiving touchdowns to become the ninth player in NFL history to accomplish the feat in each of his first two seasons.
- Needs five 100-yard receiving games to become the ninth NFL player with 10 such games through his first two seasons.

S KEVIN BYARD

- Needs three interceptions in 2020 (17 interceptions entering the season) to become the 15th player in franchise history to reach 20 career interceptions. The most recent Titans player to do so was safety Michael Griffin.
- Can record four or more interceptions for the fourth consecutive season. He would join Darryll Lewis (1994-98) as the only players to do so in franchise history.
- Needs three interceptions and two sacks to become the sixth player with at least 20 interceptions and five sacks through his first five seasons in NFL history. He would join Kenny Easley, David Fulcher, Michael Downs, Erik McMillan and Greg Wesley.

RB DERRICK HENRY

- Can become the ninth player in NFL history to reach 1,000 rushing yards and 12 rushing touchdowns in three consecutive seasons. The most recent player to do so was LaDainian Tomlinson (2002-07).
- Passed Lorenzo White (4,079 rushing yards) for fourth place on the franchise's all-time rushing list. He trails only Eddie George (10,009), Earl Campbell (8,574) and Chris Johnson (7,965).
- Can become the fourth player in franchise history with three consecutive 1,000-yard rushing seasons, joining Earl Campbell (1978–1981), Eddie George (1996–2000) and Chris Johnson (2008–2013).
- Needs 13 rushing touchdowns in 2020 (38 entering the season) to pass Chris Johnson (50) for third place on the franchise's all-time rushing touchdowns list. He would sit behind only Earl Campbell (73) and Eddie George (64).

- Needs 1,500 rushing yards and 15 rushing touchdowns to become the fourth player in NFL history to accomplish the feat in consecutive seasons. He would join Terrell Davis (1997-98), Shaun Alexander (2004-05) and Larry Johnson (2005-06).
- Needs two games with at least 200 rushing yards to become the third player in NFL history with four such games in his first five seasons. Only Earl Campbell and LaDainian Tomlinson have previously accomplished the feat.

P BRETT KERN

- Can record his seventh total season and fourth consecutive campaign with a net punting average of at least 40.0 yards. No other punter in franchise history has had one such season.
- Needs 23 punts in 2020 (839 punts with the Titans entering the season) to pass Craig Hentrich (861) for the most career punts in franchise history.
- Became the seventh player in franchise history to play 12 seasons for the organization, joining Bruce Matthews (1983–2001), Elvin Bethea (1968–1983), Brad Hopkins (1993–2005), Gregg Bingham (1973–1983), Mike Munchak (1982–1993) and Craig Hentrich (1998–2009). Kern is the first to accomplish the feat exclusively in the "Titans era" (1999–present).
- Passed Gregg Bingham (173) for fifth place on the franchise's career games played list. He needs eight total games in 2020 to pass Craig Hentrich (177) for fourth place. He would trail only Bruce Matthews (296), Elvin Bethea (210) and Brad Hopkins (194).

GM JON ROBINSON

- Can become the only Titans/Oilers general manager other than Mike Holovak (1989–1993) to oversee five consecutive winning seasons in his first five years on the job. Only two general managers in franchise history have presided over five total winning seasons with the organization: Bum Phillips and Holovak.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Can produce his fifth career season with at least 3,000 passing yards and his third career season with at least 4,000 passing yards.
- Can become the first player in franchise history to produce consecutive seasons with a passer rating of at least 100.0 (117.5 in 2019).
- Entered 2020 with a current streak of seven consecutive regular season games with at least two touchdown passes and extended the streak to nine games, which is the best streak of his career (five in 2015) and the best streak in franchise history.
- Entered 2020 with a current streak of 10 consecutive regular season games with at least one touchdown pass and extended the streak to 12 games, the longest streak by a Titans quarterback since Steve McNair's franchise-record 23 straight games from 2001 to 2002.

- Mike Vrabel can become the second head coach in franchise history to produce winning seasons in each of his first three seasons as head coach, joining Jack Pardee (four seasons: 1990–1993).

NISSAN STADIUM

In 2015, the Titans and Nissan North America announced the formation of a 20-year, exclusive naming-rights partnership that rebranded Nashville's downtown stadium as Nissan Stadium.

Nissan Stadium hosts all Titans home football games, Tennessee State University football games, the Music City Bowl, the CMA Music Festival and numerous other events.

The procurement of naming rights to Nissan Stadium fit the automotive company's 'Fewer, Bigger, Better' marketing strategy, which has included ongoing sponsorships of NBC's 'The Voice,' the Heisman House college football program and a major advertising presence in this year's Super Bowl. Nissan is also now the official automotive partner of the Tennessee Titans.

Nissan's ever-growing footprint in Tennessee includes vehicle and powertrain manufacturing facilities in Smyrna and Decherd respectively, along with its North American headquarters in Franklin.

The Nissan Smyrna Plant began operations in 1983 and employs more than 8,400 people. In 2014, the Smyrna plant assembled more than 648,000 vehicles, making it the highest volume automotive assembly plant in North America. Nissan also has a major manufacturing presence in Canton, Miss., along with research and development groups in California, Arizona and Michigan. In total, the company employs more than 22,000 employees in the U.S.

One component of the Titans-Nissan partnership is assisting charitable organizations throughout Middle Tennessee in an array of community outreach programs. A centerpiece of this is the annual "Taste of Titans" charitable event, for which Nissan serves as presenting sponsor. During the course of a 20-year relationship, a total of more than $1 million resulting from these annual events is anticipated to be distributed to local non-profit organizations.

Nissan Stadium is a city-owned venue that has housed the Titans since 1999. The naming rights agreement includes the opportunity for Nissan branding on the exterior of the stadium, as well as stadium signage and other unique displays inside the stadium. LP Building Products held the naming rights to the stadium from 2006 until the Nissan partnership was established in 2015.

WINNING AT HOME

Since the midway point of the 2016 season, the Titans have been one of the NFL's most successful teams at home. In that time, the Titans have won 24 of their 34 games at Nissan Stadium.

In 2018, the Titans won six games and lost twice at Nissan Stadium. They followed that with a 4-4 home record in 2019.

Since the weekend of their 2016 home victory over the Jaguars (Oct. 27, 2016), the Titans' winning percentage in home games is one of the highest in the NFL.

Highest winning percentage in home games (regular season) since Week 8 of 2016 (Oct. 27, 2016):

FANS RETURN TO NISSAN STADIUM

On Sept. 17, the Titans announced that Nissan Stadium will open at limited capacity beginning with the Oct. 4 Titans home game against the Pittsburgh Steelers. The three October home games will gradually increase in capacity with the goal of reaching a fixed capacity for the remaining games in November and December.

The Oct. 4 game will be open to season ticket members up to 10 percent of the stadium's capacity, which is roughly 7,000 fans in the lower bowl and club levels. The next October home game (Oct. 11) will allow 12.5 percent and the third (Oct. 18) 15 percent. For November until the end of the season, capacity could reach 21 percent, which is the maximum capacity the facility can accommodate under current CDC guidelines. Outside of the seating bowl, suites will operate at a limited capacity.

"We are thrilled to welcome fans back to Nissan Stadium and can't thank Mayor Cooper and the Metro Nashville Public Health Department enough for their collaboration in making this possible," said Titans President and CEO Burke Nihill. "The health and safety of our fans, players and staff remains our top priority and we felt like a gradual capacity plan was the right call, knowing that we may need to be flexible as time goes on. We feel confident that our Safe Stadium Plan will give everyone a safe and comfortable experience as they return to our gates."

Detailed information on the Safe Stadium Plan can be found at www.tennesseetitans.com/safestadium. Key components include:

- Socially-distant seating pods accommodating parties of one to a maximum of six people
- Mobile ticketing and parking, to eliminate physical contact while scanning passes
- Mandatory face coverings at all times, except when actively eating or drinking
- Over 300 hand sanitizing stations throughout the stadium
- Individually-wrapped food items at concession stands
- Elimination of all smoking and vaping areas in the facility
- Health screenings and personal protective equipment for all Nissan Stadium employees
- A comprehensive cleaning plan during events for bathrooms and near concession areas

Fans will be asked to arrive early and head straight to the gates after they arrive. After consulting with local and national health experts, there will be no tailgating or pregame activities allowed outside of the stadium. The stadium will have dedicated security crews throughout Nissan Stadium to enforce all Safe Stadium policies.

FOUR CONSECUTIVE WINNING SEASONS

In 2019, the Titans recorded their fourth season with a winning record in four seasons since Jon Robinson was hired as general manager.

In the "Titans era" (1999–present), it marks the first time the team has had as many as three consecutive winning campaigns.

With 9-7 records every season from 2016 through 2019, the Titans own the fourth-longest active streak of winning seasons in the NFL through 2019. Only the New England Patriots (19), Seattle Seahawks (eight) and Kansas City Chiefs (seven) have longer streaks.

Most current consecutive winning seasons (through 2019):

Team	Total	Seasons
1. New England Patriots	19	2001–2019
2. Seattle Seahawks	8	2012–2019
3. Kansas City Chiefs	7	2013–2019

Quarterback Ryan Tannehill is in his ninth NFL season and his second campaign with the Titans in 2020. He received a multi-year contract extension during the 2020 offseason.

In 2019, Tannehill took control as the team's starting quarterback in Week 7 and subsequently led the Titans to the playoffs and an appearance in the AFC championship game. In his 13 starts, including the regular season and playoffs, the Titans went 9-4.

Tannehill set single-season franchise records and led the NFL with a 117.5 passer rating and a passing average of 9.6 yards per attempt. His passer rating was the fourth-highest figure in NFL history among qualifiers. Additionally, he set a club record and placed third in the NFL with a 70.3 completion percentage.

Tannehill was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2019 and was named to his first career Pro Bowl. He also won the Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year Award.

Originally a first-round selection (eighth overall) by the Miami Dolphins in the 2012 NFL Draft, Tannehill was acquired by the Titans in a trade with the Dolphins on March 15, 2019. The Titans sent a 2019 seventh-round pick and a 2020 fourth-round selection to Miami in exchange for Tannehill and a 2019 sixth-rounder.

Over his seven seasons in Miami, he started 88 games, threw for 20,434 yards and 123 touchdowns, and rushed for 1,210 yards and six scores. When he left Miami, he ranked second in franchise history behind Chad Pennington in both career completion percentage (62.8) and career passer rating (87.0). He authored 13 game-winning drives for the Dolphins.

During the first four seasons of his career (2012-15), Tannehill's passing yardage total—15,460 yards—was the third highest mark in NFL history, behind only Peyton Manning and Dan Marino. Tannehill's two 4,000-yard passing seasons (2015 and 2014) were the only ones recorded by a Dolphins quarterback other than Marino (six times). The Dolphins reached the playoffs in 2016, breaking an eight-year postseason drought.

A native of Big Spring, Texas, Tannehill attended Texas A&M, where he earned honorable mention All-America honors as a senior. He played both quarterback and wide receiver, passing for 5,450 yards and 42 touchdowns and adding 112 receptions for 1,596 yards and 10 scores.

➤ At Denver (9/14), opened the season on Monday Night Football with a 97.9 passer rating after completing 29 of 43 passes for 249 yards with two touchdowns and no interceptions. He also rushed for 14 yards on three attempts. He registered his 17th career game-winning drive and his fourth as a member of the Titans. On the team's final drive, which ended with the go-ahead 25-yard field goal by Stephen Gostkowski, Tannehill completed five of seven attempts for 40 yards. His two touchdown passes included a one-yard pass to tight end MyCole Pruitt in the second quarter and a one-yard touchdown toss to tight end Jonnu Smith in the fourth quarter. He extended his streak to 11 consecutive regular season games with at least one touchdown pass and extended his streak to eight consecutive regular season games with at least two touchdown passes. His 43 passing attempts were his most in a game since Sept. 18, 2016 (45 vs. New England).

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), registered his 100th career start in the regular season and recorded a 145.7 passer rating—the seventh best single-game passer rating in franchise history (minimum 20 attempts)—by completing 18 of 24 attempts for 239 yards with four touchdowns and no interceptions. It was the best passer rating for the club since Marcus Mariota's 149.8 against Green Bay on Nov. 13, 2016. It was Tannehill's second-highest career passer rating in a game with a minimum of 20 attempts, topped only by his 155.3 against the Oakland Raiders on Sept. 23, 2018. He tied his career high with four touchdown passes, becoming the first Titans quarterback with four or more touchdown passes in a game since Mariota's 2016 performance against Green Bay. Tannehill's four touchdown passes against the Jaguars included a 13-yard pass to tight end Jonnu Smith and a nine-yard strike to wide receiver Corey Davis in the first quarter, a four-yard touchdown to Smith in the second quarter, and finally an 18-yard toss to wide receiver Adam Humphries in the third quarter. He registered his 18th career game with three or more touchdown passes and reached 150 career touchdown passes on his third touchdown pass of the day. He extended his career-best streak and set a franchise record with his ninth consecutive regular season game with at least two touchdown passes. Marcus Mariota established the previous team record with eight consecutive games in 2016 with two touchdown passes. He also extended his streak to 12 consecutive regular season games with at least one touchdown pass, the longest streak by a Titans quarterback since Steve McNair set the franchise record from 2001 to 2002 with 23 consecutive games with a touchdown pass. He posted his NFL-high 10th game with at least two touchdown passes and no interceptions since he stepped into the starting lineup for the Titans in Week 7 of 2019, including the regular season and postseason. Tannehill owns 27 such games in his career. He registered his 18th career game-winning drive and his fifth as a member of the Titans.

➤ Against Buffalo (10/13), completed 21 of 28 passes (75.0 percent) for 195 yards with three touchdowns and no interceptions. His passer rating of 129.3 was the ninth-best single-game mark of his career (minimum 20 attempts). He added 42 rushing yards, including a 10-yard rushing touchdown in the second quarter and a 23-yard run for a first down in the fourth quarter. He recorded the second game of his career with at least three passing touchdowns and at least one rushing touchdown, matching what he achieved as a member of the Miami Dolphins against the Denver Broncos on Nov. 23, 2014. His three touchdown passes included a 16-yard pass to A.J. Brown on his first attempt of the game, a four-yard touchdown pass to Jonnu Smith in the third quarter and a seven-yard toss to Smith in the fourth quarter.

➤ Against Houston (10/18), completed 30 of 41 passes for 366 yards with four touchdowns and one interception for a passer rating of 122.6. His yardage total was the fifth-highest number of his career and his second-highest figure in a Titans uniform. His four touchdown passes tied a career high and included a seven-yard pass to tight end Anthony Firkser and a six-yard strike to wide receiver A.J. Brown in the first quarter, a 22-yard touchdown to wide receiver Adam Humphries in the second quarter, and finally a seven-yard toss to Brown in the fourth quarter. He helped lead the Titans back from a late deficit with his second touchdown pass to A.J. Brown with four seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. The extra point tied the score at 36-36. During the game-tying two-minute drive, he completed eight of nine attempts for 76 yards. The Titans' overtime scoring drive registered as his 20th career game-winning drive and his seventh in a Titans uniform. It was his fourth game-winning drive of 2020. He completed his final 10 passes of the game in the fourth quarter and overtime. His 13 touchdown passes through five games tied for the second-highest total in franchise history through the first five games of a season, trailing only George Blanda, who holds the top spot for the franchise with 14 in 1962 and also had 13 in 1966. Tannehill's 364 passing yards ranked 11th for the franchise in its "Titans era" (since 1999). He registered his third career game with three touchdown passes in the first half. He was named FedEx Air Player of the Week for his performance.

➤ Against Pittsburgh (10/25), completed 18 of 30 passes for 220 yards with two touchdowns and no interceptions for a passer rating of 104.9. His two touchdown passes included a five-yarder to Corey Davis in the second quarter and a 73-yarder to A.J. Brown in the third quarter. The latter tied for his fourth-longest career pass and his second-longest pass in a Titans uniform. It was his third consecutive game with multiple touchdown passes and his fifth such outing in six contests in 2020. He made his 16th regular season start with the Titans since first appearing in the starting lineup against the Los Angeles Chargers on Oct. 20, 2019. In that span of time, he was 327-of-473 passing (69.1 percent) for 4,188 yards, 37 touchdowns, seven interceptions and a NFL-best passer rating of 116.5. His 116.5 passer rating was the best in NFL history by a player in his first 16 starts with a team (starts only), topping the 111.8 passer rating by Kansas City's Patrick Mahomes in his first 16 starts from 2017-18. He reached 160 career touchdown passes against Pittsburgh.

➤ At Cincinnati (11/1), completed 18 of 30 passes for 233 yards and two touchdowns with one interception for a passer rating of 92.8. He recorded his fourth consecutive game with at least two touchdown passes and his sixth two-touchdown performance in 2020. His touchdowns included a nine-yard pass to A.J. Brown and a 12-yarder to Corey Davis. He matched his career high with two touchdown passes in the fourth quarter, achieving the feat for the second time as a Titans starter. He had four completions of more than 20 yards, including passes of 27, 24 and 23 yards to Corey Davis and 26 yards to Anthony Firkser. He added a pair of rushing first downs, including a 15-yard run on third-and-five.

➤ Against Chicago (11/8), completed 10 of 21 passes for 158 yards and a pair of touchdowns for a passer rating of 104.9. He registered his fifth game of 2020 with a passer rating at or above 100.0. He reached the 25,000-yard career passing mark during the first quarter. In the first quarter, he found A.J. Brown for a 38-yard gain and found Brown again for a 40-yard touchdown in the second quarter. With a two-yard touchdown pass to Jonnu Smith, he notched his fifth consecutive game with at least two touchdown passes and his seventh two-touchdown performance in 2020. It was his 15th game passing for at least two touchdowns in 18 career starts with the Titans.

➤ Against Indianapolis (11/12), completed 15 of 27 passes for 147 yards with one touchdown and no interceptions (83.4 passer rating). It was his 12th regular season performance in 19 total starts with the Titans in which he completed at least one touchdown pass without throwing an interception. He tossed a five-yard touchdown pass to D'Onta Foreman in the first quarter for his 20th touchdown of 2020, which ranked second in franchise history by a quarterback in the first nine games of a season. The only Titans/Oilers quarterback with more touchdown passes in the season's first nine games was George Blanda, who completed 21 in the Oilers' inaugural 1960 campaign. Tannehill joined Steve McNair (2003) as the only quarterbacks in franchise history to start each of the team's first nine games of a season and to have three or fewer interceptions in those games.

SEASON GAMES WITH A 130 RATING

Ryan Tannehill registered a total of six single-game passer ratings of 130 or greater in only 10 starts during the 2019 regular season. He tied Seattle's Russell Wilson with the most such performances in 2019 and also tied for the most by any NFL starting quarterback in any season since 1960. Green Bay's Aaron Rodgers (2011) and Dallas' Tony Romo (2014) are the only other quarterbacks to accomplish the feat.

In franchise history, former Oilers quarterback Chris Chandler previously had the most season games with a 130-plus passer rating, with four in 1995.

Most starts by a quarterback with a passer rating of 130.0 or greater, 1960–2019:

Player	Season	Team	Games
1. Ryan Tannehill	2019	Tennessee Titans	6
Russell Wilson	2019	Seattle Seahawks	6

LEADING VETERAN QBS ON NEW TEAMS

In 2019, Ryan Tannehill set a new standard for veteran quarterbacks in their first year with a new team. Tannehill, who was acquired in a trade after seven years with the Miami Dolphins, had a passer rating of 117.5. No quarterback has ever finished with a passer rating that high in his first season with a new team after playing at least one year with another team.

Brett Favre held the distinction until 2019. In 2009, Favre's 107.2 passer rating with the Minnesota Vikings became the best figure in league annals by a veteran in his first campaign with a new club.

Highest passer rating in a veteran's first season with a new team:

2 TD PASSES W/ LESS THAN 2 INTS

To end the 2019 regular season, Ryan Tannehill completed multiple touchdown passes for seven consecutive games, one game shy of Marcus Mariota's 2016 franchise record of eight consecutive games with multiple touchdown passes.

However, Tannehill did establish a franchise benchmark in his final seven contests for most consecutive games with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions. Over those seven games, he had two total interceptions—one each on Dec. 8 (at Oakland) and Dec. 15 (vs. Houston)—to go along with 19 touchdown passes and a 129.8 passer rating.

During Mariota's 2016 season, he registered the previous franchise-best streak of four straight games with at least two touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions.

Most consecutive games in a season in franchise history with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions:

Player	Season	Consec. Games
1. Ryan Tannehill	2019	7
2. Marcus Mariota	2016	4
Warren Moon	1990	4
4. Marcus Mariota	2016	3
Steve McNair	2001	3
Don Trull	1968	3
George Blanda	1963	3

Tannehill's streak was the best in the NFL in 2019. Drew Brees, Kirk Cousins and Jacoby Brissett had runs of four consecutive games with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions, tying for second.

Most consecutive games in 2019 with multiple touchdown passes and fewer than two interceptions:

Player	Team	Consec. Games
1. Ryan Tannehill	Tennessee Titans	7
2. Drew Brees	New Orleans Saints	4
Kirk Cousins	Minnesota Vikings	4
Jacoby Brissett	Indianapolis Colts	4
5. (several tied)		3

TEAM SINGLE-GAME PASSER RATING

On Sept. 20, 2020, Ryan Tannehill recorded a 145.7 passer rating against the Jacksonville Jaguars. It qualified as the seventh best single-game passer rating in franchise history (minimum 20 attempts). He completed 18 of 24 attempts for 239 yards with four touchdowns and no interceptions. It was Tannehill's second-highest career passer rating in a game with a minimum of 20 attempts, topped only by his 155.3 as a member of the Miami Dolphins against the Raiders on Sept. 23, 2018.

Highest single-game passer ratings in franchise history (min. 20 attempts):

BAUGH, MONTANA & TANNEHILL

During the 2019 season, Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill accomplished a statistical feat only reached previously by a pair of Pro Football Hall of Fame quarterbacks.

Tannehill's season statistics included a 70.3 completion percentage and an average of 9.6 yards per passing attempt.

In the history of the NFL, only two previous qualifying passers have enjoyed a season in which they completed at least 70.0 percent of their passes and averaged at least 9.0 yards per attempt: Sammy Baugh and Joe Montana.

Montana led the San Francisco 49ers to a Super Bowl XXIV title and won the NFL MVP award following a 1989 season in which he completed 70.2 percent of his passes (271 of 386) and averaged 9.1 yards per attempt (3,521 yards).

Baugh directed the Washington Redskins to the NFL Championship game in 1945, while completing 70.3 percent of his passes (128 of 182) and averaging 9.2 yards per attempt (1,669 yards).

Players in NFL history with a completion rate of at least 70.0 percent and a passing average of at least 9.0 yards per attempt (qualifiers only):

Player	Team	Year	Comp %	Yards/Att
Ryan Tannehill	Tennessee	2019	70.3	9.6
Joe Montana	San Francisco	1989	70.2	9.1
Sammy Baugh	Washington	1945	70.3	9.2

MORE TITANS QUARTERBACKS

5 - QB LOGAN WOODSIDE

6-1, 213, 1st Year, Toledo

➤ Logan Woodside was re-signed by the Titans as a free agent on April 8, 2019 after spending three weeks on the Titans practice squad during the 2018 season.

➤ Prior to rejoining the Titans during the 2019 offseason, he had a stint with the Alliance of American Football League's San Antonio Commanders. In seven AAF games, he completed 116-of-201 passes for 1,385 yards and seven touchdowns.

➤ Woodside was originally selected by the Cincinnati Bengals in the seventh round (249th overall) of the 2018 NFL Draft.

➤ A native of Frankfort, Ky., he established program records at Toledo in passing yards (10,514), touchdowns (93), passing efficiency (162.87) and 300-yard games (17) during a four-year career. His 93 touchdown passes ranks fifth all-time in MAC history.

➤ As a senior for the Rockets in 2017, he led the MAC in completion percentage (64.2), passing efficiency (162.2), touchdowns (28), passing yards (3,882), yards per completion (14.7), and yards per attempt (9.45). He was named the MAC Offensive Player of the Year.

➤ Woodside attended Franklin County High School (Frankfort, Ky.) where he completed 138-of-212 passes for 2,951 yards and a school-record 41 touchdowns as a senior.

2020 Notes:

➤ Against Indianapolis (11/12), made his NFL debut late in the fourth quarter but did not attempt a pass.

#22 - RB DERRICK HENRY

6-3, 247, 5th Year, Alabama

Running back Derrick Henry is in his fifth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 45th overall pick in the second round of the 2016 NFL Draft and received a multi-year contract extension in 2020.

In 2019, Henry was named to his first career Pro Bowl and added second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors after leading the NFL in rushing in 2019. In 15 games, he totaled 1,540 yards on 303 carries (5.1 avg.), joining Billy Cannon (AFL, 1961), Earl Campbell (1978-80) and Chris Johnson (2009) as the only running backs in franchise history to lead their respective leagues in rushing. Henry's single-season total ranked fourth in franchise annals behind Johnson's 2009 total (2,006) and Campbell's 1979 (1,697) and 1980 (1,934) performances. He was named the FedEx Ground Player of the Year.

With 16 rushing touchdowns in 2019, Henry tied for the NFL lead (Aaron Jones) and finished second in team history (19 by Campbell in 1979). Adding his two receiving touchdowns, his 18 total touchdowns were third in the NFL and tied for second in franchise annals (19 by Campbell in 1979; 18 by Bill Groman in 1961).

Henry's performance late in the 2019 season was instrumental in the team's run to the AFC championship game. Over the final six games of the regular season plus three playoff appearances, Henry registered seven 100-yard games. During a three-game stretch (Dec. 29 at Houston, Jan. 4 at New England and Jan. 11 at Baltimore), he became the first player in NFL history to rush for at least 180 yards in three consecutive regular season and/or postseason games.

Henry authored his first career 1,000-yard season in 2018 and the 28th 1,000-yard rushing season in franchise history, totaling 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns on 215 carries—all then-career highs.

His 2018 rushing yardage ranked second in the AFC to Joe Mixon's 1,168 yards, and he finished seventh in the NFL. Henry's 12 rushing touchdowns tied James Connor for third place in the NFL behind Todd Gurley (17) and Alvin Kamara (14).

Henry was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2018. His 625 rushing yards in the month were the most by any NFL player in any month during the season.

Against the Jacksonville Jaguars on Dec. 6, 2018, Henry recorded one of the greatest single games in franchise history in front of a national television audience. He broke Johnson's single-game franchise record (228) with 238 rushing yards, including a 99-yard touchdown run. He joined Tony Dorsett as the only two players in NFL history to rush for a 99-yard score.

In 2017, Henry shared time in the Titans backfield with DeMarco Murray. Henry led the team with 744 rushing yards on 176 carries, and he added 11 receptions for 136 yards and a touchdown. His five rushing touchdowns tied for second on the club.

As a rookie in 2016, Henry played in 15 games with one start, splitting reps in the backfield with Murray. He carried the ball 110 times for 490 yards and five touchdowns and added 137 yards on 13 receptions. Henry became the third rookie for the franchise in the "Titans era" to score at least five touchdowns in a season, joining Vince Young (seven rushing touchdowns in 2006) and Johnson (nine rushing and one receiving in 2008).

The Heisman Trophy winner played three seasons (2013–2015) at the University of Alabama, where he set numerous school and SEC records while helping his team win a National Championship in 2015. He played in 39 games and totaled 602 carries for 3,591 yards and 42 rushing touchdowns and added 285 yards on 17 career receptions with three receiving scores. During Alabama's victory over Clemson in the 2016 College Football Playoff National Championship, he broke Shaun Alexander's record for most career rushing yards in Alabama history.

In his final collegiate season, Henry rushed for an Alabama and Southeastern Conference record 2,219 yards, which led the nation and ranked fifth in FBS history. He recorded 100-yard rushing games 10 times and had four 200-yard games during the season. His 28 rushing touchdowns were a national best and an SEC record, snapping Tim Tebow and Tre Mason's old mark of 23. In addition to the Heisman, he also won the Doak Walker Award, Walter Camp Award and Maxwell Award, among a multitude of other honors.

➤ At Denver (9/14), rushed for 116 yards on 31 carries on Monday Night Football to notch his 14th career 100-yard rushing game (regular season and playoffs). He extended his streak to 10 consecutive regular season games with at least 80 scrimmage yards. His 31 rushing attempts made up the third-highest total of his career in the regular season.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), rushed for 84 yards on 25 carries and became the fifth player in franchise history to reach the 4,000-yard career rushing mark (4,033). He registered his third consecutive regular season game with at least 25 carries, dating back Dec. 29, 2019.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), rushed for 119 yards on 26 carries with two touchdowns, notching his 15th career 100-yard rushing game (regular season and playoffs). He became the fifth player in NFL history to have 25 or more rushing attempts in each of his team's first three games of a season, joining Buffalo's O.J. Simpson (1975), Dallas' Emmitt Smith (1994), Indianapolis' Edgerrin James (2002) and Houston's Arian Foster (2012). Henry passed Lorenzo White (4,079 career rushing yards) for fourth place on the franchise's all-time rushing list. He scored his first touchdown of the season on a one-yard plunge in the third quarter and added another one-yard touchdown run on the following series. He tallied his ninth career regular season game with at least two touchdown runs. It was his 11th career regular season game with at least two total touchdowns. He became the second player in franchise history to record 12 consecutive regular season games with at least 80 scrimmage yards, joining Chris Johnson (12 from 2009 to 2010) as the only Titans/Oilers to do so. Henry added 11 receiving yards on two catches to give him 130 total scrimmage yards, marking his 10th career regular season game with at least 130 scrimmage yards. He became the fourth player in franchise history to hit 40 career rushing touchdowns, joining Earl Campbell (73), Eddie George (64) and Chris Johnson (50).

➤ Against Buffalo (10/13), rushed for 57 yards and two touchdowns on 19 attempts. It was his 10th career game with at least two rushing touchdowns. He registered a one-yard touchdown run in the second quarter and added a nine-yard score in the fourth quarter. He rushed for two touchdowns in consecutive games for the third time in his career.

➤ Against Houston (10/18), totaled 22 carries for 212 yards and two touchdowns, recording his third career 200-yard rushing game. It was his second-highest rushing total for a single game (238). His 212 rushing yards were fifth in franchise history and put him in ownership of three of the top six single-game rushing performances in team annals. He scored the game-winning touchdown in overtime on a five-yard run out of the Wildcat formation, registering the second "walk-off" overtime touchdown run in franchise history and the first since Vince Young's 39-yard run to win in overtime at Houston on Dec. 10, 2006. Henry added 52 receiving yards, including a 53-yard reception—the third-longest catch of his career—in overtime, to give him 264 scrimmage yards. The scrimmage yardage total placed fourth in franchise history, and it was the most scrimmage yards by a Titans player in a game since Chris Johnson's 284 on Sept. 20, 2009. Henry's total of 264 scrimmage yards was the most by any NFL player since the New York Giants' Saquon Barkley had 279 at Washington on Dec. 22, 2019. Henry scored on a 94-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter, tying Chris Johnson for the second-longest run in franchise history behind Henry's own 99-yard touchdown run (Dec. 6, 2018 vs. Jacksonville). Henry became the fifth NFL player to record two career rushing touchdowns of 90 or more yards, joining Bo Jackson, Ahman Green, Chris Johnson and Lamar Miller. Henry joined Miller (two 97-yard touchdown runs) as the only players to ever record multiple touchdown runs of at least 94 yards. With five 70-yard (or longer) career rushing touchdowns, Henry tied Barry Sanders (five) and O.J. Simpson (five) for the third-most in NFL history behind only Chris Johnson (seven) and Adrian Peterson (seven). Henry became the first player in NFL history to record a game with 200-plus rushing yards in three consecutive seasons. He previously accomplished the feat against Jacksonville on Dec. 6, 2018 (238) and at Houston on Dec. 29, 2019 (211). He became the NFL's 15th player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to record at least three career 200-yard rushing games and the first to reach the mark since Jay Ajayi had his third 200-yard rushing game in 2016. Henry joined Chris Johnson (Sept. 20, 2009 vs. Houston) as the only NFL players since 1975 with a rushing attempt of at least 90 yards and a reception of at least 50 yards in a game. He notched his 16th career 100-yard rushing game, including regular season and playoffs, and his third of 2020. He recorded his third consecutive game with at least two rushing touchdowns, joining Earl Campbell (1980) and Chris Johnson (2009) as the franchise's only players to do so. Henry joined Eddie George (1996–2003) as the franchise's only players to begin their careers with at least five rushing touchdowns in five consecutive seasons. He was named the AFC Offensive Player of the Week and the FedEx Ground Player of the Week for his performance.

➤ Against Pittsburgh (10/25), totaled 20 rushing attempts for 75 yards and one touchdown. He scored on a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter, reaching the end zone for the seventh time in 2020. It was his fourth consecutive game with at least one rushing touchdown. Reached 75 rushing yards for the fifth time in 2020 and for the 13th time in his last 15 games.

➤ At Cincinnati (11/1), totaled 112 yards and one touchdown on 18 rushing attempts, notching his fourth 100-yard rushing game of 2020 and his 17th career 100-yard rushing game (including regular season and playoff games). He scored his eighth rushing touchdown of the campaign on a three-yard run in the second quarter. On the scoring drive, he carried the ball seven times for 46 yards. It was his fifth consecutive game with at least one rushing touchdown. It marks the fifth such streak in franchise history, matching a feat he achieved in 2019 to tie Earl Campbell (1979) and DeMarco Murray (2016) for the second-longest streak in team annals.

➤ Against Chicago (11/8), led the team with 21 rushing attempts for 68 yards, including a 26-yard run on a touchdown drive in the fourth quarter.

➤ Against Indianapolis (11/12), totaled 103 yards on 19 rushing attempts and added a six-yard reception. He registered his fifth 100-yard rushing game of 2020 and his 18th career 100-yard rushing game (including regular season and playoffs). He became the fifth NFL player since 1948 to have at least 18 rushing attempts in 18 consecutive games in the regular season and postseason. He tied James Wilder, Terrell Davis and DeMarco Murray for the NFL's second-longest such streak behind only Emmitt Smith, who established the record from 1995 to 1996 with 18 carries in 23 consecutive regular season and postseason games.

3 CONSEC. GAMES W/ 200 SCRIMMAGE YDS

From the final week of the 2019 regular season (Dec. 29 at Houston) through the Titans' first two playoff games (Jan. 4 at New England and Jan. 11 at Baltimore), Derrick Henry became the first player in NFL history to rush for at least 180 yards in three consecutive regular season or postseason games.

He also became only the third player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger to have 200 scrimmage yards in three consecutive games. The other two players to accomplish the feat were Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton (1977) and Pittsburgh Steelers running back Le'Veon Bell (2014).

During the 2019 regular season and playoffs, Henry and Carolina Panthers running back Christian McCaffrey (two) were the only two players with multiple 200-yard scrimmage games. Together they accounted for five of the 14 such individual performances.

Most consecutive games with at least 200 scrimmage yards in the regular season and/or postseason, 1970–present:

RUSHING YARDS IN A SINGLE POSTSEASON

Derrick Henry accumulated 446 rushing yards during the 2019 playoffs. He had 182 yards on 34 carries in the wild card round at New England, followed by 195 yards on 30 attempts in the divisional round at Baltimore. In the AFC championship game, he had 69 yards on 19 rushing attempts.

Henry's average of 148.7 rushing yards per game ranked fourth in NFL history for players with at least two games played. Only a trio of Pro Football Hall of Fame members—Denver Broncos running back Terrell Davis (156.0 in 1998), Los Angeles Raiders running back Marcus Allen (155.3 in 1983) and Washington Redskins running back John Riggins (152.5 in 1982) have averaged more rushing yards in a single postseason than Henry.

In Titans/Oilers history, Eddie George established the previous record for average rushing yards in a single postseason during the 1999 playoffs. In four games, George carried the ball 108 times for 449 yards, or an average of 112.3 yards per contest.

Most rushing yards per game in a single NFL postseason (minimum two games):

Player	Team	Season	Games	Rush Yards	Per Game
1. Terrell Davis	Denver	1998	3	468	156.0
2. Marcus Allen	L.A. Raiders	1983	3	466	155.3

RUSHING YARDS IN A TWO-GAME SPAN

Following a franchise-record 238 rushing yards against the Jacksonville Jaguars on Dec. 6, 2018, Derrick Henry then totaled 170 rushing yards at the New York Giants on Dec. 16 to give him a franchise record of 408 rushing yards in a two-game span.

The previous record of 405 rushing yards in two games was set by Earl Campbell in 1980, when Campbell posted 203 yards against Tampa Bay (Oct. 19) and 202 yards against Cincinnati (Oct. 26).

Most total rushing yards in two consecutive games, franchise history:

Player	Game 1	Yds	Game 2	Yds	Total
Derrick Henry	12/6/18 vs. Jax	238	12/16/18 at NYG	170	408
Earl Campbell	10/19/80 vs. TB	203	10/26/80 vs. Cin	202	405

RECORD-SETTING NIGHT

On Dec. 6, 2018, Derrick Henry had one of the most memorable rushing performances in NFL history on Thursday Night Football. He rushed for a team-record 238 yards and four touchdowns (tied), including a 99-yard touchdown run.

Henry's 238 rushing yards set a new franchise record, breaking Chris Johnson's mark of 228 yards against the Jaguars on Nov. 1, 2009. It was the highest single-game rushing total in the NFL in 2018 and the league's highest total since Doug Martin's 251 rushing yards for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers against the Oakland Raiders on Nov. 4, 2012.

Most rushing yards in a game, franchise history:

Player	Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards
1. Derrick Henry	12/6/18	Jacksonville	238
2. Chris Johnson	11/1/09	Jacksonville	228
3. Eddie George	8/31/97	Oakland	216
Billy Cannon	12/10/61	at New York	216
5. Derrick Henry	10/18/20	Houston	212
6. Derrick Henry	12/29/19	at Houston	211
7. Earl Campbell	11/16/80	at Chicago	203
Earl Campbell	10/19/80	Tampa Bay	203
9. Earl Campbell	10/26/80	Cincinnati	202
10. Eddie George	12/9/99	Oakland	199
Earl Campbell	11/20/78	Miami	199

In the second quarter, Henry took a handoff from Marcus Mariota inside his own one-yard line and raced 99 yards for a touchdown. It was the second 99-yard run in NFL history, tying Tony Dorsett's record-setting touchdown run for the Dallas Cowboys against the Minnesota Vikings on Jan. 3, 1983. It was also the team record, topping Johnson's 94-yard touchdown run against the New York Jets on Dec. 17, 2012. The only other runs in franchise history of at least 90 yards were Johnson's 91-yard rush against the Houston Texans on Sept. 20, 2009 and a 91-yarder by Sid Blanks against the Jets on Dec. 13, 1964.

Henry's 99-yard touchdown run tied for the longest scrimmage play in NFL history. It was the 15th such play, including his and Dorsett's runs and 13 passing plays. The last 99-yard scrimmage play before Henry's was New York Giants wide receiver Victor Cruz's 99-yard reception from Eli Manning against the New York Jets on Dec. 24, 2011.

Longest runs from scrimmage in NFL history:

Player	Team	Date	Opponent	Rushing Yards
1. Derrick Henry	Tennessee	12/6/18	Jacksonville	99t
Tony Dorsett	Dallas	1/3/83	Minnesota	99t
3. Ahman Green	Green Bay	12/28/03	Denver	98t
4. Lamar Miller	Houston	11/26/18	Tennessee	97t
Lamar Miller	Miami	12/28/14	N.Y. Jets	97t
Andy Uram	Green Bay	10/8/39	Chi. Cardinals	97t
Bob Gage	Pittsburgh	12/4/49	Chi. Bears	97t

Henry scored on a three-yard run in the first quarter, a 99-yard run in the second quarter, a 16-yard run in the third quarter, and finally a 54-yard run in the third quarter. He tied the franchise record and became the third player in franchise history to rush for four touchdowns in a game, joining Earl Campbell (against Miami on Nov. 20, 1978) and Lorenzo White (against Cleveland on Dec. 9, 1990).

The only franchise player with more overall touchdowns in a game than Henry was Oilers running back Billy Cannon, who had five total touchdowns (three rushing, two receiving) at the New York Titans on Dec. 10, 1961. Henry became the first NFL player with four rushing touchdowns in a game since New England Patriots running back Jonas Gray at Indianapolis on Nov. 16, 2014.

Most rushing touchdowns in a game, franchise history:

Player	Date	Opponent	Rushing Touchdowns
1. Derrick Henry	12/6/18	Jacksonville	4
Lorenzo White	12/9/90	Cleveland	4
Earl Campbell	11/20/78	Miami	4
4. (several tied)			3

Additionally, Henry's rushing performance against the Jaguars accomplished the following:

- He became the ninth NFL player since 1975 with at least one 90-yard run and at least one 60-yard reception in his career. The others were Tony Dorsett, Garrison Hearst, Tiki Barber, Chris Johnson, Jamaal Charles, Herschel Walker, Warrick Dunn and Adrian Peterson.
- Henry became the seventh NFL player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with at least four rushing touchdowns and at least 200 rushing yards in a game, joining Clinton Portis, Barry Sanders, Doug Martin, Jonas Gray, Mike Anderson and Corey Dillon. Henry became the first to accomplish the feat in fewer than 20 carries (17).
- Henry recorded his NFL-high three rushing attempts of at least 70 yards since the beginning of the 2017. Leonard Fournette (two) was the only other player with more than one through 14 weeks of the 2018 campaign.
- He matched former Titans running back Chris Johnson as the only players in NFL history with a rushing touchdown of at least 90 yards and a rushing touchdown of at least 50 yards in the same game. Johnson accomplished the feat against the Houston Texans on Sept. 20, 2009.
- His 24 points tied for the fourth-highest single-game total in franchise history, trailing only Billy Cannon (30 on Dec. 10, 1961), Rob Bironas (26 on Oct. 21, 2007) and George Blanda (26 on Sept. 18, 1960). Earl Campbell (Nov. 20, 1978) and Lorenzo White (Dec. 9, 1990) also had 24 points on four touchdowns in a single game.
- His 238 rushing yards and four rushing touchdowns were each the most in any Thursday Night Football game in history.

#81 - TE JONNU SMITH6-3, 248, 4th Year, Florida InternationalClick for complete bio

Tight end Jonnu Smith is in his fourth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the third round (100th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

In 2019, Smith returned from a serious knee injury in 2018 to play in all 16 games with a career-high 14 starts. He set career highs with 35 receptions and 439 receiving yards and tied his career high with three touchdown catches. In the playoffs, he started all three games and contributed six receptions for 59 yards and one touchdown. He was named the team's 2019 Ed Block Courage Award recipient.

Smith's 2018 campaign came to a premature end when he suffered a knee injury against the Jacksonville Jaguars on Dec. 6 and was subsequently placed on injured reserve on Dec. 11. Prior to the injury, he played in 13 games with 12 starts and achieved then-career highs with 20 receptions, 258 receiving yards and three touchdowns. He led the club's tight ends in all three categories at the time of his injury.

During the 2017 regular season, Smith was one of three rookie tight ends to appear in all 16 games (Gerald Everett and David Njoku) and one of two rookie tight ends with at least 13 starts (O.J. Howard). He caught 18 passes for 157 yards and two touchdowns, ranking fifth among all rookie tight end in receptions. He also caught three passes for 19 yards in two postseason games.

Smith concluded his four-year career at Florida International University's all-time leader among tight ends in receptions and receiving yards, totaling 178 receptions for 2,001 yards and 18 touchdowns. On the school's all-time receiving list, regardless of position, Smith finished fifth in receptions, fifth in receiving yards and third in receiving touchdowns.

Smith finished his collegiate career registering at least one reception in every game he played. The 43-game streak was the second-longest streak of its kind in school annals.

During his senior campaign, he started 11 games and earned second-team All-Conference USA honors. He registered 42 receptions for 506 yards and four touchdowns.

As a sophomore (2014), led all college tight ends with 61 receptions, 710 receiving yards and eight touchdown catches.

➤ At Denver (9/14), totaled four receptions for 36 yards, including a one-yard touchdown reception on a pass from Ryan Tannehill in the fourth quarter. It was his ninth career touchdown reception. He also recorded a 22-yard reception on a screen play in the first quarter.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), led the team with a career-high 84 receiving yards on four receptions, including a pair of touchdown catches. He set a career long with a 63-yard reception on the first play from scrimmage. His touchdowns included a 13-yard grab in the first quarter and a four-yard reception in the second quarter. It marked his first career game with multiple touchdowns. He improved his season total to three touchdown receptions after also posting a one-yard touchdown catch in the season opener at Denver, and it marked the third time in his career with at least one touchdown in back-to-back games. He improved his career total to 11 touchdown receptions. Additionally, he drew a 22-yard pass interference penalty in the second quarter on third down.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with five receptions for a total of 61 yards. He went over the 1,000-yard career receiving mark with his 21-yard grab in the third quarter.

➤ Against Buffalo (10/13), registered five receptions for 40 yards and a team-high two touchdowns. His two touchdowns tied his career high, established two games earlier against Jacksonville (Sept. 20). His touchdown grabs against the Bills included a four-yard catch in the third quarter and a seven-yarder in the fourth quarter. He surpassed his previous career high for a season of three touchdown catches (2018 and 2019).

➤ Against Houston (10/18), logged his 50th career regular season game and recorded one reception for 13 yards before leaving the game with an injury.

➤ Against Chicago (11/8), caught two passes for 32 yards and a touchdown. He helped extend the Titans' lead in the fourth quarter with a 30-yard reception and a two-yard touchdown catch on the next play. It gave him six touchdown receptions in 2020 to extend his career high, and it made him the first Titans tight end with at least six touchdown receptions in a season since Delanie Walker (seven) in 2016.

➤ Against Indianapolis (11/12), posted two receptions for 14 yards and also recorded his first career rushing touchdown on a one-yard run in the second quarter. He became the fourth NFL tight end with a rushing touchdown in 2020, joining Indianapolis' Trey Burton, the L.A. Rams' Gerald Everett and the N.Y. Giants' Evan Engram. Smith became the first Titans tight end with a rushing touchdown since Delanie Walker at Jacksonville on Sept. 17, 2017.

#11 ■ WR A.J. BROWN

6-1, 226, 2nd Year, Mississippi

Wide receiver A.J. Brown is in his second NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the second round (51st overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

As a rookie, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category, totaling 52 catches for 1,051 yards and eight touchdowns. He added a 49-yard rushing touchdown. Among all rookies in franchise history, Brown ranked third in receiving yards and fifth in receptions, and he tied for the third-highest receiving touchdown total.

Brown led the 2019 NFL rookie class in receiving yards and total touchdowns, and he tied for the rookie lead in touchdown receptions. He also placed fifth among rookies in receptions. Among all NFL players in 2019—rookies and veterans—Brown finished second in receiving average (20.2), behind only the Los Angeles Chargers' Mike Williams (20.4).

During a three-year career at Mississippi (2016-18), Brown became the program's all-time leading receiver with 2,984 yards. He ranked third in school history with 189 receptions and fifth all-time with 19 touchdowns. Brown averaged 15.8 yards per catch and 82.9 yards per game, and he tallied the most 100-yard receiving games in Ole Miss history with 12. He became the only receiver in Ole Miss history to tally 60 or more receptions in back-to-back seasons.

In 2018, Brown started all 12 games and set Ole Miss' single-season receiving records in yards (1,320) and catches (85), leading the SEC in both categories. His 1,320 receiving yards ranked seventh in the nation. Brown caught six touchdowns, averaging 110.0 yards per game, and he topped the 100-yard receiving mark in six contests. He earned AP first-team All-SEC and third-team All-American honors for the second consecutive season.

Brown was selected in the 19th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball Draft by the San Diego Padres as a centerfielder and he participated in the team's extended spring training program each summer from 2016-18.

He is a native of Starkville, Miss.

2020 Notes:

➤ At Denver (9/14), posted five receptions for 39 yards. It was his 17th consecutive regular season game with at least one reception to begin his career. On the game-winning drive late in the fourth quarter, he drew a key 16-yard pass interference penalty.

➤ Against Buffalo (10/13), returned to the lineup and led the team with seven receptions and 82 receiving yards, including a touchdown reception. It was the second-highest reception total of his career (eight vs. Houston on Dec. 15, 2019) and his seventh-highest receiving yardage total. He recorded his first touchdown of the season and the ninth touchdown reception of his career on a 16-yard pass from Ryan Tannehill in the first quarter.

➤ Against Houston (10/18), totaled five receptions for 58 yards and two touchdowns. He scored on a six-yard grab in the first quarter and a seven-yard reception late in the fourth quarter. His two touchdown receptions tied his career high, matching a feat he most recently accomplished at Oakland on Dec. 8, 2019. He registered the 10th and 11th touchdown receptions of his 19-game career, and in doing so, he became the franchise's first player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to reach 10 career touchdown receptions in less than 20 career games. Former wide receiver Chris Sanders held the previous franchise mark since 1970 with nine touchdown receptions in his first 20 games. With four seconds remaining in the fourth quarter, his seven-yard touchdown reception on a pass from Ryan Tannehill gave the Titans a chance to tie the score at 36-36 with the extra point and eventually win the game in overtime.

➤ Against Pittsburgh (10/25), led the team and tied his career high with 153 receiving yards on six receptions with one touchdown. He matched the 153 yards he posted at Oakland on Dec. 8, 2019. He recorded a 73-yard touchdown reception in the third quarter to notch the second-longest reception of his career (91 yards at Oakland on Dec. 8, 2019). The play gave him four touchdown receptions in 2020 and 12 career touchdown catches. He joined Robby Anderson (two) as the only NFL players with multiple touchdown receptions of at least 73 yards since the start of the 2019 season, and he joined Kenny Britt (two) and Nate Washington (two) as the only players in the franchise's "Titans era" (since 1999) with multiple career touchdown receptions of at least 73 yards. Brown became the first Titans player with a streak of three consecutive games catching a touchdown pass since Rishard Matthews accomplished the feat in 2016. His 153 receiving yards tied for the 10th-highest total by a player in the franchise's "Titans era" (since 1999). He recorded his sixth career game with at least 100 receiving yards (first of 2020), going over the 100-yard mark on a 20-yard grab in the fourth quarter.

➤ At Cincinnati (11/1), totaled four receptions for 24 yards and one touchdown, giving him his fourth consecutive game with at least one touchdown reception. He became the team's first player to do so since Kenny Britt's four-game streak from 2010 to 2011 and the team's first player to do so in a single season since Britt had a separate five-game streak in 2010.

50 RECEPTIONS, 1,000 YARDS

A.J. Brown enjoyed one of the finest seasons in franchise history by a rookie wide receiver. His 2019 regular season totals included 52 receptions, 1,051 receiving yards and eight touchdown catches, and his 20.2-yard receiving average ranked second in the NFL.

Brown achieved a rare statistical combination matched by only three other NFL rookies since 1970. Since then, John Jefferson (1978), Bill Brooks (1986), Randy Moss (1998) and Brown are the league's only rookies to have a minimum of 50 receptions, 1,000 receiving yards and five receiving touchdowns while averaging at least 17.0 yards per catch.

#84 ■ WR COREY DAVIS

6-3, 209, 4th Year, Western Michigan
Click for complete bio

Wide receiver Corey Davis is in his fourth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the fifth overall pick in the 2017 NFL Draft.

During his first three seasons, Davis led the Titans in total receptions (142), receiving yards (1,867) and receiving first downs (97), and his six touchdown catches tied for third place on the club.

Davis' 2019 statistics included 43 receptions for 601 yards and a pair of touchdowns in 15 games (11 starts). He added 68 yards and a touchdown on six receptions during the playoffs.

Davis led the Titans offense in 2018 with 65 receptions, 891 receiving yards and four touchdowns. His yardage total ranked ninth among all AFC wide receivers.

As a rookie, Davis totaled 34 receptions for 375 yards in 11 games (nine starts). He started both postseason contests and contributed nine receptions for 98 yards and a team-high two touchdowns.

In four seasons at Western Michigan (2013–2016), Davis played and started 50 games. He registered 332 career receptions for 5,285 yards and 52 touchdowns, setting the Mid-American Conference record in each category and becoming the only player in FBS history with 300 catches, 5,000 yards and 50 touchdowns. His 5,285 career receiving yards were the most in FBS history, and he ended his career ranked second all-time in FBS history with 52 career receiving touchdowns (60 by Jarett Dillard). Davis' 332 career receptions ranked fourth all-time in FBS annals.

As a senior, he set career highs with 97 receptions, 1,500 receiving yards and 19 touchdowns, ranking eighth, seventh and first (tied) in the FBS, respectively. He helped the Broncos win the MAC and go undefeated until suffering their first loss in the Cotton Bowl. Davis' record-setting, All-American campaign included five games of 100-plus yards and six games of two or more receiving touchdowns.

➤ At Denver (9/14), led the team on Monday Night Football with seven receptions and 101 receiving yards, including a long reception of 23 yards in the second quarter. His reception total tied for the second-highest number of his career, and his yardage total ranked third in his career. He contributed a nine-yard catch for a first down during the game-winning scoring drive late in the fourth quarter. It was the eighth 100-yard receiving game in franchise history by a player in a Week 1 road game, most recently by A.J. Brown at Cleveland in 2019.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), totaled three receptions for 36 yards, including a touchdown on a nine-yard pass from Ryan Tannehill in the first quarter. It was his first touchdown of 2020 and the seventh touchdown of his four-year career. He reached 150 career receptions on his nine-yard touchdown catch and reached the 2,000-yard career receiving mark on his 17-yard catch in the third quarter.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with five receptions for 69 receiving yards. On his first reception, he extended his streak to 25 consecutive receptions resulting in a first down. The streak ended on his next catch. It was the longest active streak in the NFL at the time. He turned a pass from Ryan Tannehill into a 38-yard gain in the third quarter, leading to a Titans touchdown three plays later.

➤ Against Pittsburgh (10/25), tied for the team lead with six receptions for 35 yards and a touchdown. He registered a five-yard touchdown reception in the second quarter. It was his second touchdown reception of 2020 and his eighth career touchdown catch.

➤ At Cincinnati (11/1), led the team with eight receptions for 128 yards, including a touchdown catch. His reception and yardage totals were each the second-best numbers of his career behind his nine-catch, 161-yard effort against Philadelphia on Sept. 30, 2018. That was also the last time before his performance at Cincinnati that the Titans had a player with at least eight receptions and at least 120 receiving yards in a single game. He became the franchise's fourth player in the "Titans era" (since 1999) to have multiple career games with at least eight receptions, at least 120 receiving yards and at least one touchdown catch. The only others to accomplish the feat were Delanie Walker (two games), Derrick Mason (three games) and Drew Bennett (two games). He posted three receptions of 20-plus yards: 27- and 24-yard catches in the first quarter and a 23-yard reception in the third quarter. It was his second consecutive game with a touchdown catch.

➤ Against Indianapolis (11/8), led the team with five receptions and 67 receiving yards, including a 20-yard catch. It was his fifth game of 2020 with at least five receptions.

CONVERTING THIRD DOWNS

Corey Davis led the team in overall receiving in 2018, and he also became a favorite target on third down.

Twenty-three of his 65 catches came on third down, and of those plays, 20 resulted in first downs. His 20 receptions to convert third downs tied for the eighth-highest total in the NFL and were the most by a Titans player since tight end Delanie Walker's 21 such catches in 2015.

Most third-down conversions on receptions in 2018:

Player	3rd Down Receptions	Converted for 1st Down
1. Julio Jones	32	24
2. Tyler Boyd	24	22
Michael Thomas	30	22
DeAndre Hopkins	30	22

Dede Westbrook	22	19

100 RECEPTIONS IN 29 GAMES

Against Indianapolis on Sept. 15, 2019, Corey Davis reached 100 career receptions. In doing so, he became one of the franchise's fastest players to 100 receptions.

Since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger, only wide receivers Kendall Wright (22 games) and Ernest Givins (24) hit 100 receptions with the Titans/Oilers within their first 30 games prior to Davis.

Fewest career NFL games needed to reach 100 receptions with the franchise, 1970–2019:

Player	Pos	Games to Reach 100 Receptions
1. Kendall Wright	WR	22
2. Ernest Givins	WR	24
3. Corey Davis	WR	29
4. Kenny Britt	WR	31
5. Chris Johnson	RB	33

AMONG FASTEST TO 1,000 REC YARDS

On Nov. 26, 2018 at Houston, Titans wide receiver Corey Davis hit the 1,000-yard career receiving mark in his 22nd NFL game.

Davis reached the 1,000-yard mark in fewer career games than all but two players for the franchise since 1970. In that time period, only Ernest Givins and Chris Sanders hit the mark in fewer games. Givins reached 1,000 receiving yards in his 14th career game in 1985, and Sanders took 21 games from 1995–1996 to reach the plateau. Davis tied Kendall Wright, who also hit 1,000 receiving yards in his 22nd game (2012–2013).

Titans/Oilers to reach 1,000 receiving yards in the fewest games at the beginning of a career from 1970 to 2018:

Player	Season(s)	Games to 1,000 Rec Yards
1. Ernest Givins	1985	14
2. Chris Sanders	1995–1996	21
3. Corey Davis	2017–2018	22

5. Kenny Britt	2009–2010	23

#10 - WR ADAM HUMPHRIES

5-11, 195, 6th Year, Clemson

Wide receiver Adam Humphries is in his sixth NFL season and his second campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed as an unrestricted free agent on March 15, 2019 after spending the first four years of his career (2015-18) with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Humphries appeared in the first 12 games of the regular season before suffering an ankle injury, which caused him to be inactive for the final four games in December. His regular season totals included 37 receptions for 374 yards and a pair of touchdowns. He returned for the AFC Championship Game and registered four catches for 25 yards.

In 60 career games with the Buccaneers (17 starts), Humphries totaled 219 receptions for 2,329 yards and nine touchdowns, increasing his reception and yardage totals every season. He also returned 51 punts for 425 yards.

In 2018, Humphries set career highs with 76 receptions, 816 receiving yards and five touchdowns. Aligned in the slot (per Sportradar and Next Gen Stats), he ranked first in the NFL in receiving first downs (42), tied for second in receptions (59), and finished second in total yards after catch (319).

A native of Spartanburg, S.C., Humphries played four seasons at Clemson, where he accumulated 127 catches for 1,097 yards and three touchdowns in 53 career games.

He entered the NFL by signing with the Buccaneers as an undrafted free agent on May 11, 2015.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), finished second on the team with six receptions and 47 receiving yards. He had two receptions for 14 yards during the game-winning drive in the fourth quarter. His six catches tied his high mark for number of receptions in a Titans uniform.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), posted a team-high five receptions for 48 yards and one touchdown. He scored on an 18-yard pass from Ryan Tannehill in the third quarter to register his first touchdown of 2020 and the 12th touchdown catch of his career.
- At Minnesota (9/27), recorded four receptions for 41 yards, including a 23-yard catch.
- Placed on reserve/COVID-19 on Oct. 2 and removed from the list on Oct. 14, 2020
- Against Houston (10/18), finished second on the club with six receptions and 64 receiving yards. It was his third game of the season with at least five receptions. His 22-yard touchdown reception in the second quarter was his second touchdown catch of 2020 and his 13th career touchdown reception. He had three receptions for 24 yards during the game-tying drive late in the fourth quarter.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), recorded a 19-yard reception during a second-quarter scoring drive.

#60 ■ C BEN JONES

6-3, 303, 9th Year, Georgia
Click for complete bio

Center Ben Jones is in his ninth NFL season and his fifth campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed as an unrestricted free agent on March 10, 2016.

From 2012 through 2019, Jones appeared in 127 of 128 possible regular season games, including starts in all but one game during his first four seasons in Tennessee.

In 2019, Jones captained an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games en route to an AFC Championship Game appearance.

On Dec. 12, 2019, Jones was named the Titans nominee for the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award. Considered one of the league's most prestigious honors, the award recognizes an NFL player for outstanding community service activities off the field, as well as excellence on the field.

On Nov. 3, 2019, Jones' streak of 120 consecutive games played and 88 consecutive starts came to an end when he was deactivated with a concussion. At the time, Jones' consecutive games streak tied Kansas City's Mitchell Schwartz for the longest active streak in the NFL among offensive linemen, and his starting streak ranked first in the NFL among all centers.

Jones started all 16 games at center in 2018, registering a start in every contest for the fifth consecutive season, dating back to his third year in Houston (2014).

In his first year in Tennessee, Jones played a key role in an offensive turnaround. The veteran was a key cog in a line that helped the Titans finish 11th overall in offense, third in rushing and tied for seventh in fewest sacks allowed.

Jones was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft. Over the following four seasons, he started contests at center and both guard spots. He was a starter on two playoff teams in Houston (2012 and 2015).

In 2015, Jones started every game at center, extending his streak of consecutive regular season games played to 64, which was the second-longest active streak among NFL centers at the conclusion of the season.

A native of Centreville, Ala., Jones attended the University of Georgia, where his 49 total starts ranked third in school annals. He was a two-time All-SEC selection by the league's coaches and was named to Georgia's Team of the Decade. As a senior (2011), the team captain earned All-SEC first-team honors.

#71 ■ T DENNIS KELLY

6-8, 321, 9th Year, Purdue
Click for complete bio

Dennis Kelly is in his ninth NFL season and his fifth campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was acquired in a trade with the Philadelphia Eagles on Aug. 16, 2016. In exchange for Kelly, the Titans dealt wide receiver Dorial Green-Beckham to the Eagles.

Kelly appeared in 15 games during the 2019 regular season, including starts at left tackle in each of the team's first four games. He caught a touchdown pass against Jacksonville on Nov. 24 and added another touchdown catch in the AFC Championship Game at Kansas City on Jan. 19.

Kelly played in 11 games in 2018 with five starts at right tackle. It was the third-highest start total of his career.

Kelly played in all 16 games in both 2016 and 2017. During that time he had a regular role in the team's "heavy" personnel package and earned six total starts—six in 2016 and one in 2017. He helped the Titans rush for an average of 136.7 yards per game in 2016, which ranked third in the NFL.

Kelly entered the NFL as a fifth-round selection by the Eagles in the 2012 NFL Draft. In four seasons with the Eagles, he recorded 15 starts and 30 games played. He recorded nine starts with the Eagles at right tackle, four starts at right guard and two starts at left guard.

A native of Chicago Heights, Ill., Kelly was a team captain and a two-time offensive MVP at Purdue. He started his final three seasons at left tackle for the Boilermakers.

#77 ■ T TAYLOR LEWAN

6-7, 309, 7th Year, Michigan
Click for complete bio

Tackle Taylor Lewan is in his seventh NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 11th overall pick of the 2014 NFL Draft and received a multi-year contract extension in 2018.

Lewan was placed on injured reserve on Oct. 19, 2020, one day after suffering a knee injury against the Houston Texans. He started each of the team's first five games of the season.

In 2019, Lewan registered 12 starts during the regular season, anchoring an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games, including the AFC Championship Game.

Lewan was named to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive season in 2018. He played and started in 15 of the team's 16 games at left tackle, marking his fourth consecutive season with at least 15 starts.

In 2017, Lewan became the team's first offensive lineman to make multiple Pro Bowls since center Kevin Mawae from 2008–2009. Lewan started all 16 games for the second consecutive season in 2017 and added starts in both postseason contests.

In 2016, Lewan started all 16 games for the first time. The left tackle was the anchor a line that helped the Titans finish 11th overall in offense, third in rushing and tied for seventh in fewest sacks allowed.

In 2015, Lewan started the first 15 games of the season at left tackle before missing the finale with a concussion.

As a rookie in 2014, Lewan played in 11 games with six starts before suffering an ankle injury. He played as a reserve for the first five games and then started in six consecutive contests before the injury caused him to be inactive the final five weeks. For his efforts, Lewan was named to the Pro Football Writers of America All-Rookie Team.

In four seasons at Michigan, Lewan appeared in 50 games with 48 starts at left tackle. He started the final 41 games of his career and was named the Big Ten Conference Offensive Lineman of the Year in 2012 and 2013. As a senior in 2013, he started all 13 games at left tackle for the third consecutive season and was named second-team Associated Press All-American.

At the 2014 NFL Scouting Combine, he ran the 40-yard dash in 4.87 seconds, beating all other offensive linemen in his class and clocking the fourth-fastest time among offensive linemen in the last five years (2010-14). He also ranked among the top offensive linemen at the 2014 combine in the broad jump (first at nine feet, nine inches), vertical jump (tied for third at 30.5 inches) and three-cone drill (fourth at 7.39 seconds).

A native of Cave Creek, Ariz., Lewan became the first offensive tackle selected by the Titans/Oilers in the first round since tackle Brad Hopkins (13th overall) in 1993.

#76 - G RODGER SAFFOLD III

6-5, 325, 11th Year, Indiana

Guard Rodger Saffold III is in his 11th NFL season and his second campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent from the Los Angeles Rams on March 15, 2019.

In 2019, Saffold started all 16 games for the second consecutive season and for the fourth time in his career. He was a key member of an offensive line that helped running back Derrick Henry win the NFL's rushing title (1,540 yards). He started all three playoff games, including the AFC Championship Game.

During the first nine seasons of his career (2010-18), Saffold appeared in 114 regular season games with 111 starts. He also gained experience in the postseason, starting four career playoff games, including all three postseason contests on the Rams' run to Super Bowl LIII at the conclusion of 2018.

From 2017-18, Saffold played an integral role in one of the NFL's top-ranked offenses. According to STATS Inc., he allowed only two sacks during that time.

A native of Bedford, Ohio, he spent four seasons at Indiana University (2006-09), where he started 41 career games and earned All-Big Ten honors as a senior.

Saffold was originally selected by the Rams in the second round (33rd overall) of the 2010 NFL Draft.

#90 - DL DAQUAN JONES

6-4, 322, 7th Year, Penn State

Defensive lineman DaQuan Jones is in his seventh NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the fourth round (112th overall) of the 2014 NFL Draft.

In 2019, Jones started all 16 games for the fourth time in his career and for the second consecutive season. He achieved career highs with 21 quarterback pressures and three passes defended, and his totals also included 50 tackles, one sack and one tackle for loss.

In 2018, Jones started all 16 games and tallied 39 tackles on the season. He added 14 quarterback pressures, a career-high four tackles for loss and one pass defended.

Jones was placed on injured reserve on Dec. 4, 2017 due to a bicep injury he suffered the previous day against the Houston Texans. It concluded a season in which he totaled a career-high 3.5 sacks. The injury put an end to his streak of 45 consecutive starts.

Jones was one of two Titans who started every game from 2015–2016, holding down a spot at defensive end for consecutive seasons. Outside linebacker Brian Orakpo was the other member of the team to start every game in that time period.

As a rookie, Jones appeared in seven games with one start. He registered 13 tackles, a sack, three quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and a forced fumble.

A leader at Penn State during a time of turmoil, Jones started 23 of 46 college games, with all of his starting assignments coming during the last two seasons. Jones finished his career with 92 tackles, adding 4.5 sacks for minus 28 yards, 15.5 stops for losses totaling 55 yards, two fumble recoveries and a pass deflection.

As a senior in 2013, he started all 12 games at defensive tackle, finishing fifth on the team with a career-high 56 tackles (33 solos). His tackle total was the most for any interior defensive lineman in the Big Ten during the 2013 campaign. Jones was named first-team All-Big Ten by the league's coaches and second-team All-Conference by the media. He was named Penn State's Outstanding Senior Player and the recipient of the team's Reid-Robinson Award.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), registered two tackles on Monday Night Football.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), tallied four tackles.
- At Minnesota (9/27), collected a pair of tackles and two quarterback pressures.
- Placed on reserve/COVID-19 on Sept. 29 and removed from the list on Oct. 11.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), posted a pair of tackles.
- Against Houston (10/18), recorded his first half sack of the season (7.5 career sacks) in the first quarter, teaming with Harold Landry III to drop Deshaun Watson for a three-yard loss. He totaled two tackles for loss in the contest.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), posted three tackles.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), contributed one tackle.
- Against Chicago (11/8), tied his career high with seven tackles and added a half sack and two tackles for loss. He split a one-yard sack of Nick Foles with linebacker Rashaan Evans in the fourth quarter.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), totaled five tackles and registered an 11-yard sack of Philip Rivers in the second quarter to give him 1.5 sacks in two games. It was his ninth career sack.

#98 ■ DT JEFFERY SIMMONS

6-4, 305, 2nd Year, Mississippi State

Click for complete bio

Defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons is in his second NFL season. He was selected by the Titans in the first round (19th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

Simmons began his rookie season on the non-football injury list due to a knee injury he suffered during training in February 2019. He missed the first six games of the season before joining the 53-man roster in Week 7.

His rookie totals included 40 tackles, two sacks, two tackles for loss, 14 quarterback pressures and one pass defended in nine games (seven starts). He added four tackles, three quarterback pressures and a fumble recovery in three playoff contests.

During a three-year career as a defensive tackle at Mississippi State, Simmons appeared in 38 contests with 28 starts. He finished his career ranked sixth in school history with 32.5 in tackles for loss. He also tied for sixth in MSU annals with five forced fumbles and tied for fourth with three blocked kicks. His totals also included 163 tackles, seven sacks, seven passes defended and two defensive touchdowns.

He was a first-team All-SEC selection as a sophomore and junior and was one of two players in the nation to be named a Bednarik Award Semifinalist in both 2017 and 2018.

As a junior in 2018, Simmons was named second-team All-American after totaling 63 tackles, 17 tackles for loss and two sacks. His 17 tackles for loss led the team, ranked fourth in the SEC and were the third-most in single-season school history.

During his sophomore season (2017), he set a career high with five sacks and added 12 tackles for loss. With three total blocked kicks and punts, he became the first SEC player since 2004 to lead the nation in the category.

Simmons is a native of Macon, Miss.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), tallied four tackles and a fumble recovery on Monday Night Football. He notched his first career fumble recovery in the second quarter on a reception by Melvin Gordon III (fumble forced by Kevin Byard). He recovered the ball at Denver's 23-yard line, and the offense scored a touchdown on the ensuing drive.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), helped clinch the victory by batting a pass at the line of scrimmage that was then picked off by outside linebacker Harold Landry III on the Jaguars' final possession. It was the second consecutive game in which Simmons was involved in a takeaway after recovering a fumble in the season opener at Denver. He added three tackles against the Jaguars.
- At Minnesota (9/27), produced five total tackles, one sack, one tackle for loss and a career-high five quarterback pressures. He forced the Vikings to punt with a six-yard sack of Kirk Cousins on third down in the first quarter. It was his first sack of 2020 and the third sack of his career.
- Placed on reserve/COVID-19 on Oct. 3 and removed from the list on Oct. 15.
- Against Houston (10/18), registered his second sack of the season and the fourth sack of his career in the fourth quarter, taking down Deshaun Watson for a 12-yard loss on third down. He tied his career high with six tackles and also batted down a pass by Watson on a two-point conversion attempt with less than two minutes remaining in the fourth quarter. The play kept the Titans' deficit to seven points (36-29), and the Titans offense subsequently drove to tie the score and force overtime.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), registered three tackles and a pass defended. He deflected a Ben Roethlisberger pass in the third quarter that was subsequently intercepted by linebacker Jayon Brown. It was the second time in 2020 that Simmons tipped a pass that was then intercepted (Sept. 20 vs. Jacksonville).
- At Cincinnati (11/1), contributed four tackles.
- Against Chicago (11/8), totaled three tackles, one pass defended, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery to earn AFC Defensive Player of the Week honors. He was credited with his first career forced fumble in the third quarter, leading to a Titans touchdown. After he knocked the ball out of the hands of running back David Montgomery, cornerback Desmond King II scooped it up and raced 63 yards for a touchdown. In the fourth quarter, after Jayon Brown stripped the ball from Anthony Miller, he recovered the ball for the takeaway. It was his first career game with a fumble recovery and a forced fumble. He became the team's first defensive lineman to record a fumble recovery and a forced fumble in the same game since Jurrell Casey at Atlanta on Sept. 29, 2019.

Jadeveon Clowney (first name pronounced juh-DEV-ee-on) is in his seventh NFL season and his first campaign with the Titans. He joined the Titans as an unrestricted free agent in September 2020.

Clowney played his first five NFL seasons with the Houston Texans after he was the first overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft. He was traded to the Seattle Seahawks in 2019.

In his first six NFL seasons, Clowney played in 75 games and tallied 236 tackles, 32 sacks, 71 tackles for loss, 14 passes defended, nine forced fumbles and seven fumble recoveries. He also scored four total touchdowns—three on fumble recoveries and one on an interception return. Clowney was named to the Pro Bowl each season from 2016 through 2018, and he added second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors in 2016.

Over a four-season span from 2016 through 2019, Clowney was one of only three NFL players with at least 60 tackles for loss, eight forced fumbles and 150 quarterback pressures, per Sportradar. The others on the list were Aaron Donald and Chandler Jones. Clowney ranked fourth in the NFL over those four seasons with 60 tackles for loss.

In 2019, Clowney played for the Seattle Seahawks and tallied 31 tackles, three sacks, seven tackles for loss, a career-best four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries in 13 games.

Before being traded to the Seahawks just prior to the 2019 season kicking off, Clowney played five seasons (2014-18) for the Texans. His best statistical output came in 2017, when he started 16 games and recorded 9.5 sacks, 21 quarterback hits, 21 tackles for loss, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. He joined Jones as the only NFL players to register 20 or more tackles for loss and 20 or more quarterback hits.

A native of Rock Hill, S.C., Clowney had a three-year (2011-13) career at the University of South Carolina and became the third Gamecock to earn All-American honors twice during their career. His college career stats included 130 tackles, 24 sacks, 47 tackles for loss, a school-record nine forced fumbles and one fumble recovery in 36 games played.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), started in his Titans debut on Monday Night Football. He totaled three tackles, including a tackle for loss, and one quarterback pressure.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), tallied a pair of tackles and three quarterback pressures.
- At Minnesota (9/27), collected two tackles, one tackle for loss and one pass defended.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), posted a tackle and two passes defended.
- Against Houston (10/18), credited with two tackles and a tackle for loss against his former team.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), totaled four tackles, one pass defended and one forced fumble. In the second quarter, his forced fumble (recovered by the Steelers) gave him his first forced fumble of 2020 and the 10th forced fumble of his career.

- At Cincinnati (11/1), contributed one tackle.
- Against Chicago (11/8), he was inactive with a knee injury.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), totaled four tackles, including a tackle for loss.

#58 - OLB HAROLD LANDRY III

6-2, 252, 3rd Year, Boston College

Outside linebacker Harold Landry III is in his third NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans in the second round (41st overall) of the 2018 NFL Draft. The Titans traded up 16 spots in the second round (57 to 41) in order to take the former Boston College standout.

Landry started all 16 games in 2019 and led the Titans with nine sacks. His 28 quarterback pressures ranked second, and he added 81 tackles, four tackles for loss, one pass defensed, one forced fumble and two fumble recoveries. He also started all three postseason games and registered a sack and a team-high eight quarterback pressures.

As a rookie in 2018, he played in 15 games with three starts. His 4.5 sacks tied for third place on the team, and he also tied for second on the defense with 18 quarterback pressures.

In 46 career games playing defensive end for Boston College, Landry totaled 160 tackles, 26 sacks, 47.5 tackles for loss, seven passes defended, 10 forced fumbles, one fumble recovery and one interception. His 26 career sacks were exceeded in school history by only Mathias Kiwanuka (37.5 from 2002-05).

As a senior in 2017, Landry played and started eight games before a season-ending ankle injury ended his year. He finished second on the team with five sacks and totaled 38 tackles, 8.5 tackles for loss and two passes defended.

In 2016, Landry set the school's single-season record with 16.5 sacks, which led the nation. He added seven forced fumbles, which also led the country, while his 22 tackles for loss ranked fifth nationally and ranked second all-time for the Eagles. His numerous honors included Walter Camp second-team All-America, AP second-team All-America and second-team All-ACC by the Atlantic Coast Sports Media Association and the league's head coaches.

He is a native of Spring Lake, N.C.

MORE TITANS OUTSIDE LINEBACKERS

50 - DERICK ROBERSON

6-3, 250, 2nd Year, Sam Houston State

➤ In 2019, Roberson played in three regular season games and totaled four tackles and three sacks. He also played in all three playoff games, adding two tackles, three quarterback pressures and one tackle for loss.

➤ He spent the first six games of his rookie season on the practice squad before being elevated to the 53-man roster on Oct. 19. He then spent the next four weeks on the practice squad before being re-signed to the 53-man roster on Nov. 26.

➤ Roberson appeared in 32 games with 20 starts over three seasons at Sam Houston State (2016-18) and totaled 123 tackles, 23 sacks, eight passes defended, one interception and seven forced fumbles.

➤ Transferred to Sam Houston State from Texas where he played one season as a redshirt freshman. He saw action in 10 contests at Texas and registered six tackles, two sacks and one forced fumble.

2020 Notes:

➤ Against Chicago (11/8), registered three tackles, one pass defended and one stop on special teams.

at the goal line in New England's Super Bowl XLIX victory over the Seattle Seahawks to conclude the 2014 campaign.

In 2017, he played in all 16 games during the regular season with 15 starts and amassed 60 tackles, two interceptions, a sack, 12 passes defended and three forced fumbles. He saw action in all three postseason games (two starts) and posted four tackles.

In 2016, Butler earned his second consecutive Pro Bowl invitation and was named Associated Press second-team All-Pro after starting all 16 regular season games and recording 63 tackles, one sack, a career-high four interceptions and 17 passes defended.

As a rookie free agent in 2014, Butler was involved in one of the most memorable plays in Super Bowl history. With 26 seconds remaining against the Seattle Seahawks in Super Bowl XLIX, he intercepted a pass intended for Ricardo Lockette at the goal line, preventing a go-ahead touchdown by the Seahawks and sealing New England's championship victory.

The Vicksburg, Miss., native was originally signed by the New England Patriots on May 19, 2014, following two seasons at the University of West Alabama, where he was a two-time first team All-Gulf South Conference selection at cornerback. He transferred to West Alabama from Hinds (Miss.) Community College.

2020 Notes:

➤ At Denver (9/14), notched three tackles on Monday Night Football in his first action since being injured in Week 9 of the 2019 season.

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), tied for the team lead with a career-high 11 total tackles and added two passes defended.

➤ Against Buffalo (10/13), registered his second career game with two interceptions and his first since he played the New York Jets as a member of the New England Patriots on Dec. 24, 2016. Butler ended the Bills' first possession with an interception of a Josh Allen pass. He returned the ball 29 yards to help set up a Titans touchdown on the ensuing drive. It was Butler's first interception of the season. In the third quarter, he intercepted Allen and raced 68 yards on the return to set up a touchdown. It was his longest career interception return, topping his 56-yard touchdown return against Washington on Dec. 22, 2018. It was the longest interception return by a Titans player since Zach Brown's 79-yarder against Jacksonville on Dec. 30, 2012. His 97 total interception return yards were the most by an NFL player in 2020 through five weeks and the most by a Titans player since Brown's 109 yards against Jacksonville (Dec. 30, 2012). Butler registered his sixth consecutive season with at least two interceptions. He added seven tackles against the Bills, including a tackle for loss.

#21 - CB MALCOLM BUTLER

5-11, 190, 7th Year, West Alabama

Cornerback Malcolm Butler is in his seventh NFL season and his third campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 16, 2018.

Butler's 2019 season was cut short due to a wrist injury he suffered in the ninth game (Nov. 3 at Carolina). Until that point, he had 30 tackles, two interceptions, including one for a touchdown, and 10 passes defended.

In 2018, Butler led the Titans with 13 passes defended in his first season as a Titan and was second on the team with three interceptions, which included an interception return for a touchdown. He added 56 tackles, one sack, one quarterback pressure, three tackles for loss and one forced fumble in 16 games (11 starts).

Prior to his arrival in Tennessee, Butler spent the first four seasons of his career with the New England Patriots. During his time in New England, he appeared in 59 career regular season games with 48 starts and amassed 204 tackles, eight interceptions, 47 passes defended, four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries.

Butler appeared in 11 career playoff games with seven starts with the Patriots. He started all three postseason contests on the Patriots' run to the Super Bowl LI title in 2016 and made the crucial, game-winning interception

#25 - CB ADOREE' JACKSON

5-11, 185, 4th Year, Southern California
Click for complete bio

Cornerback Adoree' Jackson is in his fourth NFL season in 2020. He was selected by the Titans with the 18th overall pick in the first round of the 2017 NFL Draft.

Jackson played in 11 games with 10 starts in 2019 and totaled 40 tackles, two tackles for loss and seven passes defensed. He missed five total contests due to injury, including the final four weeks of the regular season, and then returned to start all three postseason contests. His six passes defensed during the playoffs led the squad.

In 2018, Jackson appeared in all 16 games for the second consecutive season with 13 starts. He set single-season career highs with 69 tackles and two interceptions. His 11 passes defensed ranked second on the squad, and he added one quarterback pressure and three tackles for loss. He also handled the team's punt return duties, averaging 9.3 yards on 16 returns.

In 2017, Jackson was the first rookie cornerback for the team in the "Titans era" (1999–present) to record 16 starts. His 1,260 total plays (1,017 defensive snaps, 231 special teams snaps and 12 offensive snaps) ranked second in the NFL among all players behind only Arizona Cardinals safety Tyrann Mathieu (1,261).

Jackson's rookie defensive totals included a team-high 23 passes defensed, 67 tackles, four tackles for loss, one quarterback pressures and three forced fumbles (tied for team lead). He ranked fifth in the NFL with 290 punt return yards (34 returns), ranked sixth in the NFL with a 23.1-yard kickoff return average (25 returns), and finished sixth with 868 combined kickoff return and punt return yards. He added 55 yards on five rushing attempts.

In three seasons at Southern California, Jackson appeared in 39 games with 36 starts. Although he was a starter at cornerback, he was a three-way threat, contributing as a returner and on offense. He scored 15 total touchdowns during his career in four different ways: via reception (6), interception (1), punt return (4) and kickoff return (4).

Jackson's career defensive totals with the Trojans included 139 tackles, 29 passes defensed, six interceptions, six stops for loss, three fumble recoveries and two forced fumbles.

As a return specialist, Jackson notched 79 kickoff returns for 2,141 yards with four touchdowns and 46 punt returns for 578 yards with four touchdowns. He tied two NCAA records with his eight career touchdowns on kick/punt returns and nine touchdowns on all runbacks. He also set Southern California career records for kickoff returns and kickoff return yards.

As a junior in 2016, Jackson was awarded the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top defensive back. Additionally, he was a consensus All-American, the 2016 Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year, a team captain and the team MVP (the first Trojan to repeat as team MVP since 2004-05), and he earned first-team All-Pac-12 honors at two different positions (defensive back and return specialist). He started all 13 games at cornerback and led the team with five interceptions, 11 passes defensed and two fumble recoveries. He scored twice on kickoff returns, twice on punt returns and once on offense.

A native of East St. Louis, Ill., Jackson also made his name as a world-class track athlete. He was a long jumper and sprinter on USC's track team in 2015 and 2016, winning the Pac-12 outdoor long jump title both years (and placing second in the Pac-12 100 meters in 2016) and earning All-American status both years after twice placing fifth in the NCAA long jump. He also placed 10th in the long jump in the U.S. Olympic Trials.

2020 Notes:

- Placed on injured reserve on Sept. 14 due to a knee injury.
- Activated from injured reserve on Nov. 11.

#33 - CB DESMOND KING II

5-10, 201, 4th Year, Iowa
Click for complete bio

Cornerback Desmond King II is in his fourth NFL season and his first campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was acquired in a trade with the Los Angeles Chargers on Nov. 2, 2020 in exchange for a sixth-round draft choice in 2021.

In his time with the Chargers, he tallied 213 tackles, four interceptions, two forced fumbles, four fumble recoveries and 7.5 sacks in 53 games played (23 starts).

He earned AP All-Pro honors at cornerback and second-team All-Pro as a punt returner in 2018 for the Chargers. His 2018 totals included 60 tackles, three interceptions, one forced fumble, two fumble recoveries and an 13.8-yard average as a punt returner.

During a four-year career at Iowa (2013-16), he was a four-year starter and earned the Jim Thorpe Award, which is given to the nation's best defensive back. He also earned Iowa's MVP award on defense and on special teams. His collegiate totals included 14 interceptions, including eight in his junior season, and three interceptions returned for touchdowns. He also posted a career punt return average of 11.2 yards.

He is a native of Detroit, Mich.

2020 Notes:

- Against Chicago (11/8), recorded his first start with the Titans after being acquired during the week leading up to the game in a trade with the Los Angeles Chargers. He totaled two tackles and returned a David Montgomery fumble 63 yards in the third quarter to score his first career fumble return touchdown. It gave him five career touchdowns, which also includes two touchdowns on interceptions and two scores on punt returns.

He recorded the Titans' first fumble return for a touchdown since Jayon Brown at Oakland on Dec. 8, 2019. It was the Titans' longest fumble return since Oct. 13, 2013, when Jason McCourty scored on a 77-yard fumble return at Seattle.

- Against Indianapolis (11/12), posted five tackles.

- The Houston, Texas, native was signed by the Titans as an undrafted free agent on May 11, 2018 and has spent time on the practice squad and active roster.
 - In Week 10 of 2019 against Kansas City, Kalu secured the victory by coming off the edge and blocking Harrison Butker's potential game-tying 52-yard field goal as time expired.
 - In 2018, made his NFL debut and appeared in five games during his rookie season.
 - Played in 48 games with 37 starts at cornerback and safety over four seasons at Nebraska. Totaled 215 tackles, two sacks, 27 passes defended, seven interceptions for 78 yards and a score, three forced fumbles and one fumble recovery. His 27 passes defended rank tied for seventh in Cornhusker history and his 215 career tackles rank fifth all-time among Nebraska defensive backs and among the top 30 overall tacklers in Cornhusker history.
- 2020 Notes:
- At Denver (9/14), credited with a forced fumble on the final play of the first half. He also registered a tackle in the contest.
 - Against Jacksonville (9/20), credited with a two-yard kickoff return on one of the key plays of the game. With the Jaguars kicking off with 12 seconds remaining in the second quarter, he got in front of Josh Lambo's attempted squib kick at Tennessee's 49-yard line and moved the ball to the opposite 49. Two plays later, the Titans made a 51-yard field goal as the clock expired.
 - Against Chicago (11/8), credited with a team-high three special teams tackles.

yard field goal tied for the fourth-longest field goal in franchise history and the second-longest game-winning field goal in team annals behind Rob Bironas' 60-yarder to beat Indianapolis on Dec. 3, 2006. His 54-yarder at Minnesota ranked as the eighth-longest field goal in team annals. He became the second player in franchise history to make at least six field goals in a game. The other is Rob Bironas, who set the team and NFL record with eight field goals at Houston on Oct. 21, 2007. Gostkowski became the first player in franchise history to record game-winning field goals in three consecutive games, as well as the first NFL player since the 1970 merger to kick a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of the season. He hit three field goals of at least 50 yards in distance for the first time in his career and was the first NFL player since Baltimore's Justin Tucker on Nov. 27, 2016 (vs. Cincinnati) to accomplish the feat. He extended his streak to a career-best 28 consecutive games with at least one field goal, which tied for the fifth-longest streak in NFL history (Jim Turner, 1970-72; Chip Lohmiller, 1988-90). He tied his career high with 19 total points in the contest. He was named AFC Offensive Player of the Week.

- Named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for September. It was his fifth career AFC Special Teams Player of the Month award.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), made all six extra point attempts.
- Against Houston (10/18), made all four extra point attempts, had a 27-yard field goal blocked, and missed from 37 yards.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), made one of two field goal attempts, including a successful field goal from 51 yards. He also made all three extra point attempts.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), made both extra point attempts and missed a field goal from 53 yards.
- Against Chicago (11/8), made his only field goal attempt from 40 yards and hit all three of his extra point attempts.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), made a 50-yard field goal and missed from 44 yards. His 50-yarder in the second quarter gave him six field goals on seven attempts of 50-plus yards in 2020. His previous career high for 50-yard field goals in season was five in 2013 with the New England Patriots.

#3 - K STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

Kicker Stephen Gostkowski (pronounced gost-COW-ski) is in his 15th NFL season and his first campaign with the Titans in 2020. He was signed by the Titans as a free agent on Sept. 3, 2020.

After entering the NFL as a fourth-round pick by the New England Patriots in 2006, he spent the next 14 years with the club, earning four Pro Bowl selections (2008, 2013-15) and three Super Bowl championships (2014, 2016, 2018). He became the franchise's leading scorer with 1,775 career points over 204 games.

In his first 14 seasons, he made 374 of his 428 field goal attempts. At the end of the 2019 season, his 87.4 percent success rate on field goals made him the fifth-most accurate kicker in NFL history.

Gostkowski also scored 205 points in the postseason for the Patriots to rank second in NFL history in playoff scoring.

One of his finest statistical seasons came in 2017, when he scored 156 points, made 37 of 40 field goal attempts and made a career-long 62-yard field goal.

In 2019, he was limited to four games before being placed on injured reserve. He made seven of his eight field goal attempts in his final season in New England.

Gostkowski finished his collegiate career at the University of Memphis ranked 13th in NCAA Division 1-A history with 369 points and ranked 14th with 70 career field goals. He also played baseball at Memphis.

2020 Notes:

- At Denver (9/14), made his debut in a Titans uniform on Monday Night Football and connected on the game-winning 25-yard field goal with 17 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. It was his 10th career game-winning field goal (ninth in the regular season).
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), made a 51-yard field goal as time expired in the second quarter and the game-winning 49-yard field goal with 1 minute and 36 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. He added three extra points on four attempts. He hit a game-winning field goal for the second consecutive week, marking the second time in his career he made a game-winner in back-to-back games (Nov. 24-Dec. 1, 2013). His kick to beat the Jaguars was his 11th career game-winning field goal (10th in the regular season). He became the first kicker since Adam Vinatieri with New England in 1999 to make a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first two games of a season.
- At Minnesota (9/27), set a career high with six total field goals, including the game-winning field goal from 55 yards with 1 minute and 44 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. In his 15-year career, he previously made five total field goals on two occasions, most recently against Kansas City on Oct. 14, 2018. In addition to his game-winner, he also connected on field goals of 39 and 31 yards in the first quarter, 30 yards in the second quarter, 51 yards in the third quarter and 54 yards in the fourth quarter. His 55-

#6 ■ P BRETT KERN

6-2, 214, 13th Year, Toledo

Punter Brett Kern is in his 13th NFL season and his 11th full campaign with the Titans in 2019. He was claimed off waivers by the Titans during the 2009 season.

During his time in Tennessee, Kern has placed his name at the top of most of the franchise's leaderboards at his position. At the end of the 2019 campaign, he ranked as the team's all-time career leader in gross punting average (45.9 yards), net punting average (40.8) and punts placed inside the 20 (333). He punted 839 times in a Titans uniform from 2009–2019, second all-time for the franchise behind Craig Hentrich's 861 punts. Kern owns the top eight net punting seasons in franchise history and six of the team's top eight gross punting seasons.

In 2019, Kern was named to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive season, and he earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors for the first time in his career. His 37 punts inside the 20 led the NFL, and his 43.1-yard net average ranked second in team history.

At the end of the 2019 campaign, Kern's 170 consecutive games played (regular season) ranked second in team history behind only Bruce Matthews (232). Kern's 170 career games ranked sixth in franchise annals and were the most in the organization's "Titans era" (1999–2019).

In 2018, his 47.1-yard gross average ranked fifth in team history, and his 41.7-yard net average ranked second in team annals. He set a franchise record and recorded a career high with 39 of his 74 punts inside the 20-yard line. He finished the season with a career-long streak of 16 consecutive punts placed inside the 20, including every punt in the final three games of the season.

In 2017, Kern had arguably one of the best seasons by a punter in NFL history and was named to his first career Pro Bowl in addition to earning second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors. He punted 75 times for 3,728 yards with 28 punts placed inside the 20-yard line. His 44.6-yard net average broke his own team record and finished second in NFL history behind only Johnny Hekker's 46.0-yard net average in 2016. Kern's 49.7-yard gross average also broke his team mark and finished eighth in NFL history.

In 2015, Kern continued his annual assault on the team's all-time punting records and accomplished a first-of-its-kind NFL feat, becoming the first punter in league history to record 80 or more punts, a net average of 40 yards, and one or zero touchbacks in a single season. His season totals included 88 punts (tied for fifth place in franchise history), a 47.4-yard gross average (second in franchise history), a 40.3 net average (third in franchise history), a career-high 34 punts inside the 20 (third in franchise history) and only one touchback (career low).

In 2014, Kern launched a career-high 88 total punts for a gross average of 46.8 yards and a net average of 40.8 yards, which broke his own single-season team record (40.4-yard net average in 2012).

Kern produced one of the best punting seasons in team history in 2012. He set then-franchise records with a gross punting average of 47.6 yards and a net punting average of 40.4 yards (he later broke both marks).

Kern was claimed by the Titans off waivers from the Denver Broncos on Oct. 27, 2009. He spent the entire 2008 season and the first six games of 2009 campaign in Denver, totaling 73 punts and a 46.5-yard average in 22 games with the Broncos.

In 2008, Kern ranked fifth in the league with a 46.7-yard punting average that marked the third-best season total by a Bronco in club history. At the time, his punting average was the best in NFL history by a rookie. He was named to the All-Rookie team by Pro Football Weekly/PFWA and The Sporting News.

The Grand Island, N.Y., native was originally signed by the Broncos as a rookie free agent on April 28, 2008, following four seasons at the University of Toledo.

2020 Notes:

➤ At Denver (9/14), punted four times for a 51.0-yard gross average and a 47.0-yard net average with two punts inside the 20, including a long punt of 66 yards to help pin the Broncos inside their 10-yard line in the second quarter. He became the seventh player in franchise history to play in 12 seasons with the organization, joining Bruce Matthews (1983–2001), Elvin Bethea (1968–1983), Brad Hopkins (1993–2005), Gregg Bingham (1973–1983), Mike Munchak (1982–1993) and Craig Hentrich (1998–2009). Kern became the first to accomplish the feat exclusively in the "Titans era"

➤ Against Jacksonville (9/20), averaged 40.7 yards on three punts with all three punts placed inside the 20. He pinned the Jaguars on their own six-yard line with a 34-yard punt in the second quarter.

➤ At Minnesota (9/27), averaged 47.7 yards on three punts (41.0 net) with one punt inside the 20. He tied Gregg Bingham (1973-84) for fifth place on the franchise games played list with his 173rd game.

➤ Against Buffalo (10/13), passed Gregg Bingham (173 games) for fifth place on the franchise's career games played list by playing in his 174th game with the Titans. He averaged 42.7 yards (43.0 net) on three punts with all three punts placed inside the 20. He helped pin the Bills on their own nine-yard line with a 55-yard punt in the first quarter, and he pinned the Bills on their own three-yard line with a 41-yard punt in the third quarter.

➤ Against Houston (10/18), recorded only one punt (54 yards) in a game for only the sixth time in his career and for the first time since Nov. 5, 2018 at Dallas.

➤ Against Pittsburgh (10/25), established a new franchise record and a career high with a gross punting average of 60.5 yards (minimum requirement of four punts). His four punts went, in order, for 63 yards, 59 yards, 61 yards and 59 yards. He eclipsed the old franchise record of 59.2 yards set by Greg Montgomery against Buffalo on Dec. 27, 1992. Kern's net average against Pittsburgh was 39.8 yards with one punt inside the 20. His 60.5-yard gross average ranked third in the NFL since 1970, trailing only Andy Lee's 63.0-yard average for Carolina at Denver on Sept. 8, 2016 and Kansas City's Tommy Townsend against New England on Oct. 5, 2020.

➤ At Cincinnati (11/1), averaged 36.0 yards (26.0 net) on two punts with one punt inside the 20. He tied Craig Hentrich for fourth place on the franchise's all-time games played list with his 177th game, trailing only Bruce Matthews (296), Elvin Bethea (210) and Brad Hopkins (194).

➤ Against Chicago (11/8), did not appear in a game for the first time in his career after he was placed on injured reserve the day before the contest. His consecutive games played streak ended at 199 games, including his career with the Titans and Denver Broncos. Prior to the game, he owned the fourth-longest active consecutive games played streak in the NFL behind only Philip Rivers (232), Sam Koch (231) and Mason Crosby (216). His streak with the Titans ended at 177 consecutive games played. It finished as the second-longest streak in franchise history behind Bruce Matthews' 232 consecutive games from 1987 to 2001.

- A native of Milan, Italy, he attended Campolindo High School in Moraga, Calif.

TITANS TIDBITS: THE BEST OF TITANS OFF-THE-FIELD NOTES

P RYAN ALLEN

- Allen won the Super Bowl in 2014, 2016 and 2018, all with New England.
- His cousin, Emily Westerberg, played basketball for Arizona State.
- His uncles, Nick and Tony Westerberg, played football and basketball, respectively, at Oregon State.

WR CAMERON BATSON

- Batson was the valedictorian of his class at Millwood (Okla.) High School, and at Texas Tech, he graduated cum laude with his accounting degree in just over three years. His valedictorian speech – he had 52 in his graduating class – focused on his class, along with his past, and his journey.
- Batson wasn't necessarily expecting to make the team's 53-man roster as a rookie free agent in 2018. So when he walked into general manager Jon Robinson's office during cutdown day, he was expecting the worst. But things took a nice turn, and then something happened even the GM had never experienced before. Robinson told Batson he'd made the team's 53-man roster, and an impromptu prayer broke out. "I sat there and prayed," Batson said, "and Jon bowed his head with me. He said, 'That's the first time anyone had ever done that.' ... I just wanted to give God the glory, with everything that is going on good or bad, because without Him nothing is possible."
- He has a dog named Kookie, and runs an Instagram account for her @ms.kookiemonster.
- Batson was roommates with Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes at Texas Tech.

FB/RB KHARI BLASINGAME

- Blasingame enjoys playing the saxophone.
- He originally started his Vanderbilt career at linebacker before transitioning to running back as a sophomore in 2016.
- After his football career, Blasingame's goal is to become the CEO of a hospital or health care system. Once there, he wants to focus on improving health care outcomes for disadvantaged populations.
- He earned his undergraduate degree in medicine, health and society from Vanderbilt in 2017 and is working towards a master's degree in education, after playing his final collegiate season in 2018 as a graduate student.

CB BREON BORDERS

- Borders lettered in basketball and track and field at Statesville High School (N.C.), earning the 2013 county basketball player of the year and 2013 county track and field athlete of year by the Statesville Record & Landmark.
- Borders was also the state champion in the 300-meter hurdles and three-time all-conference and all-county selection in track and field.

C AARON BREWER

- The Dallas, Texas, native competed in throws for the track and field team in high school.

WR A.J. BROWN

- Brown was selected in the 19th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball Draft by the San Diego Padres as a centerfielder and he participated in the team's extended spring training program each summer from 2016-18.
- He has a dog, Bentley Juan Brown, and runs an Instagram account for him @bentleyjuan1.
- During a pre-draft visit to San Francisco, Brown was able to link up and work out with Hall of Fame NFL receiver and fellow Mississippian Jerry Rice. Rice took Brown on the horse trail at Edgewood Park in Redwood City, known as one of Rice's training sites, where the pair ran hills as part of their work out. Brown's hometown Starkville, Miss., and Rice's hometown Crawford, Miss., are a 30-minute drive apart.

LB JAYON BROWN

- Former Long Beach Poly and New England Patriots star Willie McGinest is a close friend of the Brown family.
- Brown's younger brother, Joshua, is a defensive end at the University of Arizona, and his two older brothers also played college football. Jason played linebacker at Idaho, while Juwuan was a defensive lineman at Southern Oregon.
- He likes spending as much time as possible with his dogs, "a mutt named Lou" and a Rottweiler named Kali. He also enjoys puzzles and watching movies.

CB MALCOLM BUTLER

- In February 2017, the production company Narrative Capital acquired the rights to the story of Butler for a film tentatively titled "The Secondary."
- Following Butler's crucial goal line interception to seal Super Bowl XLIX, Patriots quarterback Tom Brady, who received a 2015 Chevrolet Colorado as part of his Super Bowl XLIX MVP Award, requested Chevrolet award the truck directly to Butler.
- Prior to securing a rookie free agent tryout with the Patriots in 2014, Butler was operating the fryolator at a Popeye's restaurant.
- Every offseason since 2015, Butler has hosted free skills and multi-sport experience camps in his hometown of Vicksburg, Miss., for 500 boys and girls in first through 12th grades.

S KEVIN BYARD

- In July 2020, Byard was named the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville. His first order of business was to participate in the organization's virtual Stuff the Bus school supply drive.
- In May 2020, Byard was able to accomplish a goal of helping to purchase his mother, Artina Stanley, her "forever home."
- During the 2019 offseason, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. He plans to hold the camp - which was free - every year.
- The Titans had an inside track in their scouting of Byard. Titans general manager Jon Robinson received glowing reports on Byard from his friend and MTSU recruiting coordinator Steve Ellis. When Robinson was a linebackers coach at Nicholls State, Ellis was one of his pupils, and the two remained close through the years. Additionally, Patrick Callaway, college scout for the Titans, was Byard's high school teammate.
- Byard says his football role models are Ed Reed, Brian Dawkins and Troy Polamalu.

OLB JADEVEON CLOWNEY (first name pronounced juh-DEV-ee-on)

- Attended South Pointe High School in Rock Hill, S.C., where he was named South Carolina's 2010 Mr. Football and lettered for the school's basketball team.
- Majored in African-American studies at South Carolina.

LB WILL COMPTON

- Prior to his first training camp as a rookie free agent, Compton typed out five personal goals in his iPad that he wanted to accomplish over the next five years. Although he truly never imagined being able to achieve each of the goals, he checked off all the boxes. They included playing a vital role for Washington, earning a starting spot, being named a captain, reaching a specific financial goal by age 27 and doing at least three speaking engagements a year despite no prior experience.
- Compton is the co-founder of the popular podcast Bussin' With The Boys with teammate Taylor Lewan. The two friends host guests on an old Monte Carlo Budweiser bus and discuss any and everything.

DL JACK CRAWFORD

- Crawford was born in London, England and moved to the United States in 2005. He initially moved to the United States to pursue a career playing basketball.
- It wasn't until 2006 that Crawford joined the football team at St. Augustine Prep (N.J.), where he found immediate success. During his senior season, he emerged as a standout, being rated the No. 15 defensive end in the nation by Scout.com.

DB DANE CRUIKSHANK (pronounced CROOK-shank)

- Growing up a Southern California fan, his most memorable college football moment was playing the Trojans in the Coliseum. Cruikshank posted 10 tackles and one interception in the contest.
- Cruikshank's nickname is 'Smooove.' He wore jersey No. 2 in high school, earning the nickname '2 Smooove,' which was then shortened to Smooove.
- He lists owning his own business as a goal on his bucket list. He would one day like to open his own training facility.

WR COREY DAVIS

- Davis' late brother, Titus, played football at Central Michigan and was signed by the Chargers as a rookie free agent in 2015. Titus also spent time with the Jets, Bills and Bears.

- One of Davis' favorite quotes is "Never die easy" by Walter Payton, who used the saying as the title to his autobiography.
- Davis studied special education at Western Michigan.

OL NATE DAVIS

- Growing up, Davis was 'always a pretty big kid.' He played on the offensive or defensive line during Pop Warner and estimates that in the fourth grade he weighed around 200 pounds.
- Davis was invited to the 2019 Senior Bowl, which he credits for helping him during the draft process. He went head-to-head with defensive linemen from larger conferences, and as an athlete from a smaller conference, he credits his performance at the Senior Bowl for helping put his name into the conversation ahead of the draft.
- Davis' father purchased him a fishing rod as a child and would take him to the pond near their home in Ashburn, Va., to fish and relax.
- Davis is a car enthusiast who has a knack for identifying the year, make and model of a car. He lists his dream car as a Rolls-Royce.

DE MATT DICKERSON

- Dickerson's father, Clarence, played college football at Henderson State (Ark.).
- Dickerson has a twin sister named Megan.
- Dickerson played football for the first time as a high school freshman.
- Dickerson majored in political science at UCLA.

G JAMIL DOUGLAS (first name pronounced juh-MILL)

- Douglas was on the New England Patriots practice squad when the team won Super Bowl LI.
- He graduated with a degree in in Criminal Justice and Criminology from Arizona State in 2013.
- Played tight end/H-back as a senior in high school after primarily being featured at left tackle during the early part of his high school career. He caught three passes for 79 yards and one touchdown and carried four times for 19 yards.

LB NICK DZUBNAR (pronounced duh-ZOOB-nar)

- Dzubnar feels he was better at hockey than football in high school. He participated as a Junior Anaheim Duck in his youth.
- His brother-in-law is former Chargers tackle Cory Lekkerkerker.
- Earned a degree in construction management from Cal Poly — San Luis Obispo.
- In high school, he was the senior class president and a four-year ASB member.

RB DARRYNTON EVANS

- At the NFL Scouting Combine in February, Evans raised money and brought awareness to ECANA (Endometrial Cancer Action Network for African-Americans) by getting pledges for every inch of his vertical leap. He raised more than $3,200 with a vertical of 37 inches.
- Evans grew up with and went to high school with San Francisco 49ers running back Raheem Mostert, Tampa Bay Buccaneers safety D'Cota Dixon and Washington linebacker Cole Holcolmb. Mostert, who led the NFC champion 49ers in rushing in 2019 and was among the first to reach out to Evans on social media during the draft, tweeting three simple words: "We built different!"
- Evans got a head start on the Titans' playbook during his final season at Appalachian State. Every year, the Mountaineer coaches' study one NFL offense and incorporate some of its principles into their own playbook. It just so happened that App State chose the Titans prior to the 2019 season.
- Evans earned a grade point average of 3.34 and was tabbed the Sun Belt's Top Scholar by Street & Smith magazine.
- Evans enjoys playing video games, particularly NBA2K, Call of Duty and Madden, solving Rubik's Cubes and producing music in his spare time.

LB RASHAAN EVANS

- Upon being drafted by Tennessee, Evans was reunited with former Crimson Tide teammate Derrick Henry. Henry phoned Evans immediately after he was selected with the 22nd pick to congratulate him.
- At Alabama, Evans shared the field with his brother, Alex, a member of the Crimson Tide spirit squad.

- Growing up in rural Alabama, Evans would chase wild horses to work on improving his speed and athleticism.

➤ Evans' father, Alan, was a star running back at Auburn. Evans' mother, Chenavis, received four degrees from Auburn, including her doctorate. Evans' older sister was a cheerleader at Auburn, and despite the family ties including his cousins attending Auburn, Evans stuck with his gut and instead chose Alabama.

- He has two pregame rituals. Evans prays before each game and pulls grass from the field early in pregame to get a feel for the turf.

➤ His nickname is 'Razor, because I cut up.'

TE ANTHONY FIRSKER (pronounced FERK-sir)

- Firkser grew up playing basketball and both roller and ice hockey at elite levels and didn't begin playing football until his sophomore year of high school.
- In the offseason, Firkser volunteers with his former high school football coach to help train and give advice to aspiring young football players in his hometown community of Manalapan, N.J.
- His brother, Josh, played football at Wagner College.

RB D'ONTA FOREMAN

- In 2016, Foreman was a Heisman Trophy candidate, a consensus first-team All-American, and won the Doak Walker Award and Earl Campbell Tyler Rose Award at the University of Texas.
- Foreman's twin brother, Armanti, was a wide receiver at Texas.

CB KRISTIAN FULTON

- Fulton's older brother, Keith Fulton, played wide receiver at LSU. Kristian and Keith were teammates in 2018.
- Fulton wears jersey No. 26 to fuel his competitive fire. "It just reminds me every day that I had eight corners selected before me," Fulton told the Official Titans Podcast. Two plus six equals eight, "So, if you add it up, it's a reminder for me every day."
- Graduated in December of 2019 with a degree in sports administration from LSU.

K STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI (pronounced gost-COW-ski)

- The Madison, Miss., native received an athletic scholarship to pitch for the University of Memphis baseball team coming out of high school. He also made the football team as a walk-on and finished his college career as the team's all-time leading scorer with 369 points.

RB DERRICK HENRY

- In high school, Henry broke the 51-year-old national high school rushing record with 12,124 yards after compiling 4,261 rushing yards as a senior.
- Henry sealed an Iron Bowl victory with an epic, career-best 271 rushing yards against the Tigers. He put the Crimson Tide on his back by carrying the ball a school-record 46 times. His 271 rushing yards were 11 more yards than Auburn had in total offense (260). He ended the game with 14 consecutive rushes to run out the clock.
- His late grandmother, Gladys Henry, helped raise him and played a key inspirational role in his development. In 2018, he fulfilled a promise to her and graduated from Alabama with his bachelor's degree. He has a portrait tattoo of her on his chest.
- Gladys Henry nicknamed him "Shocka" as a baby because he "shocked the whole family" when he was born.
- Henry has been growing out his hair since he was in elementary school.

DB AMANI HOOKER

- Hooker was named a finalist for Minnesota's Mr. Football in 2015, yet he had just two FBS scholarship offers. When the in-state university showed hesitancy after multiple workouts, Hooker knew he belonged at Iowa saying, "love who loves me."
- Amani's brother, Quinton, played basketball for North Dakota and helped take the team to the NCAA tournament his senior year. Quinton was Minnesota's Mr. Basketball in high school and currently plays basketball professionally in France.
- In February 2019, Hooker helped crowdfund about $1,200 for the Park Center high school football program through a Pledge-It campaign raising a dollar amount for every inch of his vertical jump at the NFL Scouting Combine. His 37-inch jump ranked fifth among safeties and equaled money for better equipment at his alma mater.

WR ADAM HUMPHRIES

- Humphries was originally a rookie tryout invitee with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers following the 2015 NFL Draft. Titans general manager Jon Robinson was a member of the Bucs player personnel department at the time and saw the 5-foot-11-inch wideout grind it out in practice and eventually earn a spot on the team's 53-man roster. "Humph came in as a tryout and won a spot on the 90-man roster," said Robinson. "He was a tough guy to cover all through training camp and he kept working and working. I've always had an affinity for him and liked his style. He's earned everything he's got."
- Clemson head football coach Dabo Swinney took a visit to Humphries' high school, Dorman, before the 2011 season to scout eventual signee Charone Peake during a basketball game. But once the game began, Swinney couldn't help but notice Dorman's 5-foot-11 point guard running the show. "I go watch a basketball game at Dorman High School to see Charone Peake, and I'm going, 'Dang, who's this point guard?'" Swinney said. "And I've got Coach (Dave) Gutshall going, 'Well that's the best football player I've got on the team.' And I'm like, 'Really? We need to watch this guy a little bit.' He played corner, he played receiver, he played running back, he played quarterback. He was the best football player on the team. Adam Humphries was his name. I don't think he had any offers. So we offer the guy, 'Well, we're only offering the guy to get Charone Peake. No, no, no. We want Humphries.'"
- Humphries maintains a friendship with former Clemson teammate DeAndre Hopkins.
- After going down with an injury in the 2019 season, Humphries adopted a shiba inu puppy, Gigi, to keep him company.
- An avid golfer, Humphries is around a 7 handicap.
- During the unique 2020 offseason, Humphries helped pass the time by playing video games. His main purpose was to connect with old friends from high school and college, and former teammates from the Buccaneers. He enjoys Fortnite and Rory McIlroy PGA Tour.

CB ADOREE' JACKSON

- Jackson was a long jumper and sprinter on USC's track team in the springs of 2015 and 2016, winning the Pac-12 outdoor long jump title both years (and placing second in the Pac-12 100 meters in 2016) and earning All-American status both years after twice placing fifth in the NCAA long jump. He also placed 10th in the long jump during the U.S. Olympic Trials.
- Vianca Jackson, a survivor of breast cancer, served as the team's Honorary 12th Titan prior to the team's 2017 Breast Cancer Awareness Game (Oct. 16).
- Jackson's father, Chris Jackson, is the ultimate grill master and can be found at Titans home games smoking turkey legs, Cornish hams, chicken, rabbits, alligator and frog legs for a pre-game tailgate among family and friends, as well as a post-game meal with players and coaches. He makes all of his own rubs and sauces and has been cooking since 1984.
- Jackson, business partner James Moore, and Jay Levine co-founded Kor Media Entertainment (KME), a Los Angeles-based entertainment agency under the Warner Brothers Digital umbrella. Their tagline is "Where Creatives Come to Play" and their goal is to create culture relevance for both creators and brands through interactive and labs which a focus on gaming and esports.
- Jackson is a Reese's Peanut Butter Cups enthusiast. He names creator Harry Burnett Reese as a historical person he would have loved to meet. "He's a genius. That's by far and away my favorite candy. I eat that like it ain't nothing."
- Jackson watched the movie "Space Jam" continuously as a child to the point he memorized most of the movie.
- In May 2018, Jackson and his business partner James Moore paid for the burial costs of Jaylon McKenzie, an eighth-grade football player who was killed by a stray bullet. McKenzie, a St. Louis, Ill., native, grew up idolizing Jackson.

DB CHRIS JACKSON

- A two-time state track champion in high school, Jackson runs a 4.47 second 40-yard dash. "I still work out like a track athlete when I can," Jackson said. "I watch it a lot and keep up with it."
- He has a love of cars that he attributes to his father and uncle, the latter of which does competitive drag racing. Jackson lists his top three cars as a 1969 Camaro, a 1984 Buick Grand National and a Ferrari F40.

- Jackson was a two-time Florida state high school track champion in the 110-meter hurdles, and a runner-up in the 300 hurdles.

C BEN JONES

- Jones switched from jersey #61 to #60 prior to his senior season at Georgia, to honor his father, Steve, a former collegiate star, who was killed in a helicopter crash when he was 10 years old.
- Jones' pregame ritual consists of walking barefoot on the field "to get a feel for the turf." The routine began before one game with his brother in high school and after enjoying success that night, it has continued ever since.
- When he was 10 years old, Jones suffered a blow to the head with a baseball bat. The impact caused a blood clot to develop on his brain and fractured his skull. The injury kept him out of all athletic activity for a year.
- In 2017, Jones established The Jones Mission Fund at The Community Foundation to provide at-risk youth with opportunities they might otherwise not have.
- For the past three offseasons, Jones and his wife has hosted the annual Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot. The three events combined have raised more than $400,000 benefitting The Jones Mission Fund.
- Jones hosts a free Friday Night Lights youth football camp in his native Alabama every June.
- Jones sponsors a trip to a Titans game each fall for the seniors of his high school's football team in Alabama. The experience includes round trip transportation from his hometown, tickets, a private tailgate, swag bags, and a meet-and-greet with a tour of the Titans practice facility after the game with Jones.
- Jones' brother, Clay, played baseball for the University of Alabama and then was drafted by the Detroit Tigers

DL DAQUAN JONES

- Jones has a reputation as an upbeat, positive influence. "I've always had that positive mindset, even when things weren't as good," he says. "The guys laugh at me sometimes because I'm always smiling ... It's not that I'm happy all the time, but I just feel like in today's world, if you let anything get you down, it will. The smallest thing will turn into the biggest problem if you let it, so I just try my best to keep a positive mindset."
- Jones majored in criminal justice at Penn State and spent a portion of his 2013 summer as an intern observing the Spring Township Police Department near State College.
- Jones entered the Penn State program after being rated the second-best offensive lineman in the nation during his playing days at Johnson City High School. He switched to the other side of the ball and made an immediate impact as a true freshman.
- Jones lists his father, Steve, as the most inspirational person in his life. Steve raised DaQuan as a single father and one of his father's greatest traits is that he works extremely hard in everything he does. Steve works as an executive chef at Cornell University.
- Jones is in the process of launching his own non-profit organization called "Create Your Legacy." In June 2019, he hosted the DaQuan Jones Create Your Legacy Football Camp for more than 100 kids ages 11-18 at Johnson City (N.Y.) High School.
- Jones has four dogs, one of which he named Titan.

DB JOSHUA KALU (pronounced kuh-LOO)

- In the 2020 offseason during the COVID-19 pandemic, Kalu spent time giving back to his hometown of Houston, Texas. He partnered with local restaurants and hand-delivered free meals to healthcare workers fighting the pandemic.
- Kalu was heavily involved in the Lincoln community while at Nebraska. He was named to the Brook Berringer Citizenship Team and the Tom Osborne Citizenship Team as a sophomore, junior and senior for his work with Make-A-Wish, NFL Fuel Up to Play 60, the Souper Bowl of Caring, Husker Heroes and Husker Hotline, as well as local hospital and school outreach events.
- He earned his degree in child, youth and family studies in December of 2017, finishing his undergraduate work in 3 1/2 years.

T DENNIS KELLY

- Kelly went back to school during the 2014 offseason to earn his degree in organizational leadership from Purdue, and in May 2019, Kelly received his MBA from the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University.
- Kelly is an avid professional wrestling fan that does not let the opportunity pass him by whenever a live WWE show is in town. He lists the Undertaker as the one person in the world he would like to have dinner with.

TITANS TIDBITS: THE BEST OF TITANS OFF-THE-FIELD NOTES

- Kelly's brother, Tim, played football at Eastern Illinois and is currently the offensive coordinator for the Houston Texans.
- Kelly's favorite football player growing up was former Titans great Jevon Kearse.
- Kelly claims that the biggest influence on his life and career has been his entire family. "We're a Southside [Chicago] Irish family, so we share a really tight bond and they've inspired me to get to where I am today."

P BRETT KERN

- Kern's father, Cal, is a former professional soccer goalie.
- Kern is an avid golfer that sports a +1 handicap. He picked the game up late in his high school years and caddied for three summers at Inverness Golf Club while in college.
- Kern played basketball and was a long jumper and high hurdler in high school.

DB DESMOND KING II

- King established a Michigan high school record with 29 career interceptions.
- King was a four-year letterman in track, competing in sprint events and relays in high school.

OLB HAROLD LANDRY III

- Landry could have entered the NFL Draft following his 16.5-sack junior season at Boston College. However, he chose to stay in school and received his degree in communications in December 2017.
- Landry enjoys traveling. One of his favorite getaways is Destin, Fla.
- He and his son, Greyson, share the same June 5 birthday.
- Landry's 26 career sacks at Boston College were exceeded in school history by only Mathias Kiwanuka (37.5 from 2002-05).
- In 2016, he set a Boston College record and led the nation with 16.5 sacks. His seven forced fumbles also ranked first nationally.

T TAYLOR LEWAN (pronounced leh-WAHN)

- Lewan is the co-founder of the popular podcast Bussin' With The Boys with teammate Will Compton. The two friends host guests on an old Monte Carlo Budweiser bus and discuss any and everything.
- Lewan owns a taxidermied beaver named Steve. The fedora-donning stuffed rodent, who was a gift from Lewan's wife, Taylin, makes appearances around the Titans locker room, often appearing at the locker of an unsuspecting rookie.
- Lewan chose to wear jersey number 77 at Michigan and then at the pro level because of the legacy of Wolverine tackles who have donned the number, including Jake Long and Jon Jansen.
- Lewan has a mustache tattooed on his right index finger and a stick figure tattooed on the outside edge of his right hand that he calls his "right-hand man."
- One of Lewan's close friends is former Carolina Panthers defensive end Craig Roh. The two played together as high school seniors and then went to Michigan at the same time.
- At the 2014 NFL Scouting Combine, Lewan ran the 40-yard dash in 4.87 seconds, beating all other offensive linemen in his class and clocking the fourth-fastest time among offensive linemen from 2010-14. He also ranked among the top offensive linemen at the 2014 combine in the broad jump (first at nine feet, nine inches), vertical jump (tied for third at 30.5 inches) and three-cone drill (fourth at 7.39 seconds).

LB DAVID LONG JR.

- David's father, David Sr., is a former professional boxer who went 12-5-2 as a heavyweight. He once fought future world champ Deontay Wilder.
- During the offseason, Long still uses on-the-bell, three-minute-round boxing training to focus on his mental awareness. In 2018, Long Jr. went into the ring with headgear against his old man for the first time. They went for three 90-second rounds. "He busted up my lip, but it was fun," Long Jr. says. "He was really iffy that I knew how to throw my hands for real. It was just jabs, but it's grown-man strength."
- Long was a high school teammate of safety Mike Edwards, who was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the third round of the 2019 NFL Draft.

RB JEREMY MCNICHOLS

- McNichols was coached by hip-hop artist Snoop Dogg while playing youth football in the Snoop Youth Football League in Los Angeles, Calif. McNichols played both alongside and against numerous NFL players. The SYFL serves children between the ages of five and 13 years old, teaching them the values of teamwork, good sportsmanship, discipline, and self-respect, while also stressing the importance of academics.

CB CHRIS MILTON

- Milton is related to former NFL running back Tashard Choice, who played six seasons (2008-2013) in the NFL with the Dallas Cowboys, Washington, Buffalo Bills and Indianapolis Colts.
- Milton had the opportunity to learn from Pro Football Hall of Famer Champ Bailey. Their families were close, and when Milton was getting ready for the NFL, he reached out to Bailey for tips. They trained together during the weeks leading up to the draft. Now if he ever has questions, he still reaches out to the legendary cornerback.
- Milton enjoys fishing in his free time and when he is not playing or training for football he feels like a full-time fisherman on the water.

DL LARRELL MURCHISON

- Murchison grew up working with his mother at her restaurant in Elizabethtown called Glenda's Just Desserts and Lunch Counter, which she has owned for 10 years. He would work doing whatever needed to be done – mopping floors, sweeping, waiting tables and taking orders. "Everything is good, but if you go, I'd say start with the fried pork chops, mac and cheese and cabbage."
- Murchison loves everything music and enjoys playing the drums. His dad played drums in the church when he was younger, and he just followed in his footsteps.

CB KAREEM ORR

- Orr transferred to Chattanooga from Arizona State after his sophomore season because of the birth of his daughter, Scottie Jade.
- Orr is a big Liverpool fan and loves playing FIFA.

LS MATTHEW ORZECH

- In high school Orzech lettered for two years in baseball as a pitcher and first baseman, batting for a .354 with five doubles as a senior.
- His father, Matt, played football at Iowa State.

LS MATT OVERTON

- Overton's grandfather, Paul Wallrof, played football at University of Washington and was a long-time head football coach and Athletic Hall of Fame inductee at University of Puget Sound.

RB SENORISE PERRY (first name pronounce suh-NAH-riss)

- Perry wasn't among the rookie free agents signed in the days following the 2014 NFL Draft. He hit the tryout circuit and hoped to make an impression. Perry was one of two players signed by the Chicago Bears after a May tryout. He excelled on special teams in the preseason games and sealed his 53-man roster spot as an undrafted free agent.
- Perry excelled in track and field as a high school senior, winning the Georgia state titles in the 100 meters and long jump.
- Perry's hobbies include photography, and he has a desire to learn how to deep sea fish.

TE MYCOLE PRUITT

- The name MyCole has a unique origin. Pruitt's mother's name is Colette. Cole means "people's victory" in Greek baby names. She named him MyCole for My-Victory. MyCole is his mother's victory.
- Named best tight end in Missouri Valley Football Conference history as part of the MVFC's 30-year anniversary celebration.
- Pruitt graduated in December 2014 with a bachelor's degree in industrial technology from Southern Illinois.
- Pruitt attended the same high school as former NFL wide receiver Jeremy Maclin.

OLB WYATT RAY

- Ray is the grandson of the late, legendary singer Nat King Cole and is the nephew of the late Natalie Cole.

TITANS TIDBITS: THE BEST OF TITANS OFF-THE-FIELD NOTES

WR KALIF RAYMOND

- Raymond was a dual-sport collegiate athlete, competing in football as well as track and field during his senior season at Holy Cross. He placed second in the 100-meter dash at the 2015 New England Outdoor Championship with a time of 10.71 seconds.
- Raymond received little interest from college football programs when he was a student at Greater Atlanta Christian (Ga.) High School, partly due to a serious injury he suffered as a senior. Undeterred, he began sending emails to colleges with football programs with high academic standards. The only schools to respond were Lehigh, Georgetown and Holy Cross, and he chose the latter.
- In preparation for the 2016 NFL Draft, Raymond, who was not invited to the NFL Scouting Combine, was allowed to participate in Harvard's pro day since Holy Cross did not host a pro day.

OLB DERICK ROBERSON (pronounced ROW-ber-son)

- Roberson enjoys painting on and designing sneakers and cleats.
- Roberson is unsure how many tattoos he has at this point, but he has drawn and designed some of the ones he has inked on his body.

G RODGER SAFFOLD III

- Saffold is the owner of competitive "Call of Duty" and "Fortnite" teams called Rise Nation. He invested in the video game industry in April 2014.
- His father, Rodger II, played football at the University of Iowa in the mid-1970s.
- Rodger and his wife Asia grew up on the same street as eight-year olds in Ohio. The childhood friend's romance didn't begin until quite awhile later when the two re-connected on Facebook during Saffold's second-year with the Rams.

T TY SAMBRAILO

- Sambrailo is an avid skier who as a youth earned USSA titles in the slalom, giant slalom and super-G events for his age group.
- Sambrailo's dad, Mark, graduated from the University of Colorado, where he was a pole vaulter, his brother, Erik, also is a CU graduate and competed as a skier in the Junior Olympics, his sister, Kiersten, played volleyball at Oregon State, and his grandfather, Bill Sambrailo, played football at Santa Clara, helping the team to a berth in the Orange Bowl.

DT JEFFERY SIMMONS

- During college Simmons was a two-time member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll.
- Simmons' brother, Dylan Bradley, played football at Southern Miss and then spent time with the Minnesota Vikings. His uncle, Jason Hatcher, played 10 total seasons with the Dallas Cowboys and Washington.
- Away from football, Simmons enjoys fishing and spending time outdoors.

TE JONNU SMITH (first name pronounced JAH-new)

- Smith competed in weightlifting, finishing second in the county in the 219-pound weight class in high school at West Port.
- Smith credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself. "My mother is my rock. It was tough, but we always got what we needed—not necessarily what we wanted all the time—but what we needed. She was so strong all the time."
- Smith endured a lot of challenges as a youngster in Philadelphia and after his brother was arrested and one of his friends was killed on the streets, a decision needed to be made. His family didn't have the financial means to just uproot, so for his own safety Jonnu moved in with his mother's sister and brother-in-law, Darla and Mike Kirkland, in Ocala, Fla. He started playing high school football and even though he was far from a touted recruit, he earned a scholarship to Florida International where his play took off.
- Smith's best friend Willie "Quasim" Jefferson tragically died from a gun shot in October 2016. Jonnu gave his son the middle name Quasim in honor of him.

CB TYE SMITH

- In 2018, Smith began hosting the annual "Simple Greatness" youth football clinic at St. Augustine University in his hometown of Raleigh, N.C. Smith says Simple Greatness to him means, "It can't be measured. It means heart, dedication. It's all the intangibles that we as a society overlook because we look so much at things we can measure."
- Smith enjoys volunteering his free time in the community and he helped

- raise money for Habitat for Humanity in 2018 with a bowling event and kids field day activity in his hometown of Raleigh, N.C.
- He has his own website, www.simplegns.com.

TE GEOFF SWAIM

- Two-time member of the Big 12 Commissioner's Honor Roll.
- Brother, Mycal, also attended Butte College and then played safety at Eastern Michigan (2012-13) before signing as a free agent with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers following the 2014 NFL Draft.

QB RYAN TANNEHILL

- Ryan founded the Tannehill's A.C.E.S. (Achieving Community Educations Success) program with wife, Lauren, which consisted of 17 sophomores from American Senior High School and is focused on awarding scholarships to the participating students who strive for good grades and took on an active role in their community by hosting monthly events to reward the students and help them give back to the community.
- Ryan's father, Tim, played wide receiver at Texas Tech from 1985-87.

DL TEAIR TART

- Tart graduated from Florida International in December 2019 with a degree in liberal studies.
- Played offensive and defensive line in high school to help guide his team to its first PIAA 3A title.

S KENNY VACCARO

- Vaccaro traveled to Kenya during the 2016 offseason with former Texas and Saints teammate Alex Okafor and is involved in community and fundraising efforts to construct a school in the region.
- Vaccaro's uncle, A.J. Johnson, played for Washington (1989-94), helping them to Super Bowl XXVI win before spending a season with the San Diego Chargers (1995).
- Vaccaro founded the Kenny Vaccaro Foundation to provide economically challenged students with literacy and education resources so that they can achieve academic excellence, develop confident personal skills, and make positive decisions to avoid high risk behavior.

WR NICK WESTBROOK-IKHINE (pronounced uh-KEEN-UH)

- Westbrook-Ikhine attended Lake Mary (Fla.) High School where he set the program's career, single-season and single-game receiving yardage and touchdowns records.
- He also lettered in lacrosse and track and field in high school, participating in the 300-meter hurdles, long jump and triple jump.
- Graduated with a business marketing degree in December 2019 from Indiana's No. 10 ranked Kelley School of Business.

T ISAIAH WILSON

- Wilson enjoys watching cartoons, and he has a particular fondness for "SpongeBob SquarePants." "I can really dissect it deeply and learn a lot from it," he says.
- Wilson is comfortable working in the kitchen, dishing out everything from French toast to mac and cheese and collard greens to his family. He was employed at a summer camp for three summers in high school, spending much of that time in the camp kitchen.
- One of his rituals is eating an ice cream sundae the night before every game.
- Wilson welcomed the opportunity to begin his career in Music City. He listens to a diverse range of music, listing Travis Scott, Brantley Gilbert, Aretha Franklin and Mötley Crüe as a sampling of his many favorites.
- Prior to being drafted by the Titans, Wilson, a video game enthusiast, would choose the Titans when he played Madden NFL because of Derrick Henry. "You can't stop him," Wilson says.

QB LOGAN WOODSIDE

- In his free time, Woodside enjoys playing golf and fishing in his home state of Kentucky.
- His hometown of Frankfort, Ky., is a three-hour drive from Nashville.
- During the 2019 offseason, Woodside played for the Alliance of American Football League's San Antonio Commanders. In seven AAF games, he completed 116 of 201 passes for 1,385 yards and seven touchdowns.

HEAD COACH MIKE VRABEL PRESS CONFERENCE TRANSCRIPT

Monday, November 16, 2020

(on being out of the playoffs by one game and working back into the playoff picture)

Really, we're just trying to win a game. I think that the message is this is what it looks like every year. A lot of teams are bunched up just like they were last year. We're trying to win a game. We're trying to put our head down. We're trying to focus on continuing to improve at this point in the season, knowing that teams go in different directions. We need to improve. We need to focus on us today, and then continue to improve and get on to Baltimore.

(on splitting time between self-scouting and watching the Ravens game tape)

Taken a look at what we've done and the things that we have been consistent at, and the things that we need to improve on, and there's a lot of those things. I think we've taken a good look at ourselves, and hopefully as we finish up with the players today then we'll be able to look at Baltimore, I would say, extensively.

(on if kicker Stephen Gostkowski will remain the team's kicker)

As of today, right now, we have one on the practice squad. We've got (Giorgio) Tavecchio on the practice squad who's kicking, but as of Monday at 10:36, Stephen (Gostkowski) would be our kicker as of right now.

(on if wide receiver Adam Humphries has cleared concussion protocol)

Not as of yet.

(on the dominant message for the team moving forward)

I think we have to be excited about coming to work. We have to understand that these games, they're tight. You guys see all these games in the National Football League, 17-10 and at the end of the half, and let them clock in and kick a field goal after a sack, get a goal line stop, can't convert second-and-one, third-and-one, poor protection, poor punt, can't hold them to a field goal. Then three-and-out and a blocked punt, come back down, penalty takes us out of first-and-goal. It's just so tight. It's similar to the game, it looked like the game with the Colts last year. It's a tight, we block a field goal, we score, able to take advantage of that football game last year. There's a lot of things that are positive, but unfortunately there's just too many things that didn't go – we didn't we didn't execute well enough. But we've got to be excited about coming back to work, being in the middle of the season, where we are. Giving ourselves a chance and being ready to get back to work.

(on playing the next two of three games on the road and using the rushing attack as an advantage in these contests)

It's been a strength of ours. It's going to have to continue to be a strength. I can't concentrate or focus on two out of three or whatever you were alluding to, but I know we're going to go on the road this week to Baltimore. Excellent football team, physical football team, and we're going to have to be at our best in all areas.

(on the root of the issue behind the increased number of third-and-longs and three-and-outs on offense)

The longer you need, probably the percentages are going to go down. I think continuing to limit the negative yard plays, penalties always play a large factor in that, just being sound and efficient on first and second down, where everybody, regardless of what we call, being able to execute. If its pass and there's nothing there down the field, then the protection has got to be able to hold up for the quarterback to progress and check it down and get it out of his hand. If we run the football, we expect when it's a little dirty or muddy to be able to put our head down and put our foot in the ground and get a couple yards, so it's not second-and-11.

(on how the team fixed third-and-long last season so effectively)

We probably played better. I would say we probably cleaned some of those things up and emphasized it.

(on the performance of outside linebacker Jadeveon Clowney against Indianapolis and the outside linebacking corps as a whole)

JD (Jadeveon Clowney) had some plays there were good, disruptive. I'm sure there's some plays he'd like to have back. He didn't play well enough for us to win, like everybody else. We didn't coach well enough for us to win. That group going forward, we've got three guys on the active roster and two guys on the practice squad. We'll evaluate those guys each week and try to figure out where those pieces can help us.

(on if recent mishaps on special teams will require help from starters to correct)

I think that's something that we certainly want to talk about. That was mentioned this morning. I think we have to have all hands on deck. Having played, I try to not ask them to do things that I wasn't asked to do. I know we have some guys that have some snap counts that are getting up there, but if we need that, that's always something that we should be able to do.

(on if it's disappointing that some special teams roles may require the aid of starters)

Not disappointing, no. Just trying to do whatever we can do to help us win.

(on the Ravens offense playing differently with the lead than when they're behind)

They can pound the ball. You get a bunch of guys that can run with it. The quarterback's an extra option. When we start talking about that, there's a lot of things that you have to defend. Then their play-action game comes up and they get guys running free because everybody's up there playing the run. Not only that, but then defensively, they can blitz you and rush the passer and disrupt the passer. That's always a good method is to play with a lead, and their strengths become pretty dominant.

(on being 29th in the league in time of possession and needing to improve in that area to rest the defense and get the offense into a rhythm)

We have to continue to finish drives. We've got to get off the field on third down. I think that's a lot of it. I think that stat, sometimes it can be a little misleading. I think when you're talking about staying fresh, obviously we want to play complementary and possess the football. But we have to be able to keep them out of the end zone, get off the field on third down, and finish drives. If we're scoring quickly that's one thing, but we can't take the ball three plays and punt it. So, hopefully if we have to give it back to the defense, we'll give it back to them after some points.

(on what he's done when given extra days to prepare that's led to success)

I don't know. A lot of it right now in this time of the season is about rest. There are some guys that are banged up, that are competing, that are fighting, and a lot of it is about rest probably at this point in time, which we were able to give them. Going to focus on very hard on fundamentals and technique today from an individual standpoint of things that they're watching and we're looking at them with right now. That's going to happen over the first half of the season and go out and rep those in an individual setting and group setting and special teams.

(on if the personnel changes on special teams has led to the mistakes over the last few weeks)

We're all professionals. We all have a job to do. We're all expected to do the job and sometimes there's moving parts for a lot of different reasons. I'm hopeful that's why we practice, and we can continue to all work together and everybody can do our job and they can protect those guys when they have to kick. They've got to cover them, tackle, and then give us a chance in the return game.

(on if the additional time could allow for hurt players or injured reserve players to return)

I think they're all getting closer, but again time will tell. I think they're all working hard to get back. We'll have to evaluate them if they're able to practice. That's where it starts. If they can do some stuff today, we'll see how they look. We'll see how they respond to that work and then keep moving towards a decision later in the week.

TITANS-BRONCOS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 1: Titans 16, Broncos 14

Monday, Sept. 14, 2020 • 8:20 p.m. MT • Empower Field at Mile High

GAME RECAP

In Week 1 of the 2020 NFL season, the Titans traveled to Denver to take on the Broncos on Monday Night Football. Tennessee won by a score of 16-14.

Denver got on the board first with a 10-play, 63-yard scoring drive. Broncos RB Melvin Gordon III and QB Drew Lock each rushed for a first down, and Lock tossed a 12-yard pass to Broncos WR Jerry Jeudy to help move the chains. Ultimately, Lock connected with Broncos TE Noah Fant for a nine-yard score and an early 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter at the Denver 21-yard line, Lock tossed a two-yard pass to Gordon III, but S Kevin Byard forced a fumble and the ball was recovered by DL Jeffery Simmons. Tennessee took possession and capitalized on the turnover. RB Derrick Henry contributed 13 yard on the ground as QB Ryan Tannehill hit TE MyCole Pruitt for a one-yard touchdown to tie the game, 7-7.

On the ensuing Denver drive, the Broncos drove into Titans territory but were denied a score. On first-and-goal at the Tennessee two-yard line, Broncos RB Phillip Lindsay gained one yard on the ground, but Denver was stopped on the following three downs. On fourth down, Lock tossed a shovel pass to Broncos TE Jake Butt, who was taken down by Simmons and DL DaQuan Jones for no gain to preserve the score.

In the second half, the Titans took the lead with a 15-play, 82-yard scoring drive. Tannehill completed two first-down passes to WR Corey Davis, one to WR Adam Humphries, and Henry added one rushing first down before Tannehill threw a one-yard touchdown pass to TE Jonnu Smith. The extra point attempt was no good as the Titans pulled ahead, 13-7. The Broncos responded on the ensuing possession with a scoring drive of their own. Gordon III rushed for a gain of 25, and Jeudy contributed a 21-yard reception before Gordon ran in a one-yard score as the Broncos retook the lead, 14-13.

Late in the fourth quarter, the Titans offense moved efficiently down the field for an 83-yard scoring drive that took 2:48 to complete. With 17 seconds remaining in regulation, K Stephen Gostkowski tacked on a 25-yard field goal to put the Titans ahead, 16-14. Tennessee's defense preserved the score and the Titans opened up the season with a primetime victory.

TITANS-JAGUARS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 2: Titans 33, Jaguars 30
Sunday, Sept. 20, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 2 of the 2020 season, the Titans hosted the Jacksonville Jaguars for their home opener and won by a score of 33-30. Tennessee advanced to 2-0 on the season for the first time since 2008.

The Titans opened up the game with a three-play scoring drive that elapsed 98 seconds. QB Ryan Tannehill's first pass of the game went 63 yards to TE Jonnu Smith, and two plays later Smith caught a 13-yard score for an early 7-0 Titans lead. On the following Jacksonville possession, rookie CB Kristian Fulton picked off Jaguars QB Gardner Minshew II and returned the ball 44 yards. Tennessee capitalized on the turnover as Tannehill threw a nine-yard touchdown to WR Corey Davis, 14-7 Titans. Jacksonville then responded with a touchdown drive of their own. Minshew II hit Jaguars WR DJ Chark Jr. for a 45-yard gain before ultimately tossing a 19-yard touchdown to Jaguars TE Tyler Eifert to cut the score in half, 14-7.

In the second quarter Tennessee extended its lead on another touchdown by Smith. Tannehill threw a four-yard score to Smith for a 21-7 advantage. Both teams successfully added a field goal each to make it 24-10 with the Titans ahead heading into halftime.

Jacksonville had the ball to begin the second half and quickly inched closer to the Titans with a 14-play scoring drive. Jaguars RB James Robinson scurried into the end zone on a 17-yard rush to make it a 24-17 game. On the ensuing Tennessee possession, RB Derrick Henry contributed a 14-yard gain and Davis caught a 17-yard pass to move the chains. Facing pressure and absorbing a hit as he threw the ball, Tannehill launched an 18-yard touchdown pass to WR Adam Humphries. The extra point was no good as Tennessee pulled out ahead, 30-17.

On the ensuing Jacksonville drive, Minshew II led his offense on a 75-yard scoring drive that resulted in a two-yard touchdown reception by Jaguars WR Keelan Cole Sr. Jacksonville's extra point attempt failed, 30-23 Titans.

In the fourth quarter, Jacksonville tied the game 30-30. After two catches for 32 yards contributed by Jaguars WR Chris Conley, Minshew was able to hit Jaguars RB Chris Thompson for a 14-yard touchdown to knot the score.

For the second consecutive week, Tannehill engineered a game-winning drive for Tennessee. Beginning at their own 40-yard line, the Titans moved down to the Jacksonville 31-yard line to allow K Stephen Gostkowski the opportunity to convert the go-ahead 49-yard field goal with 1:36 remaining in the game, 33-30. The Jaguars offense took the field with a minute and a half to go and DT Jeffery Simmons tipped a Minshew II seonc-down pass that was intercepted by outside linebacker Harold Landry III to preserve a Titans victory.

TITANS-VIKINGS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 3: Titans 31, Vikings 30
Sunday, Sept. 27, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • U.S. Bank Stadium

In Week 3 of the 2020 season, the Titans traveled to Minnesota to face the Vikings and won by a score of 31-30. K Stephen Gostkowski was a career-best six-for-six on field goals and RB Derrick Henry added two rushing scores to propel the Titans to a 3-0 start.

Tennessee put up a 54-yard scoring drive on their opening possession. WR Kalif Raymond made a 44-yard catch to move the chains as Gostkowski converted a 39-yard field goal for an early 3-0 lead. Later in the first quarter, CB Johnathan Joseph forced Vikings RB Dalvin Cook to fumble the ball and LB Rashaan Evans recovered the fumble. Evans scooped the ball up and ran 25 yards to the Minnesota 20-yard line to set the Titans up in position for a 31-yard field goal. Tennessee moved ahead, 6-0. On the ensuing Minnesota possession, the Vikings put together a seven-play, 76-yard scoring drive. Vikings QB Kirk Cousins connected with Vikings WR Justin Jefferson for an 11-yard gain before Cook took off for a 39-yard rushing score. Minnesota took the lead, 7-6.

In the second quarter, QB Ryan Tannehill threw an interception in the end zone to Vikings S Harrison Smith. Minnesota capitalized on the turnover and produced an 88-yard scoring drive, which was capped with a 16-yard touchdown reception by Vikings WR Adam Thielen for a 14-6 Minnesota advantage. Each team tacked on a field goal in the second quarter to make it a 17-9 game heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, Tennessee inched closer to Minnesota with a 51-yard field goal to make it a 17-12 game. However, on the ensuing Vikings possession Cousins threw a 71-yard touchdown pass to Jefferson as Minnesota extended the lead, 24-12.

On the following Tennessee drive, WR Corey Davis contributed a 38-yard reception to give Tennessee a first down at the Minnesota eight-yard line. Ultimately, Henry ran into the end zone on a one-yard score to make it a 24-19 game. After forcing the Vikings to punt on their next possession, Tennessee put together another scoring drive. With a 61-yard catch contributed by Raymond, Henry again rushed for a one-yard score to give Tennessee the lead. The Titans were unsuccessful on a two-point conversion attempt and took the lead, 25-24.

The Vikings retook the lead with a 10-play, 75-yard scoring drive. Cousins connected with Vikings TE Kyle Rudolph for a three-yard touchdown, but Minnesota's two-point conversion attempt failed as the Vikings took a 30-25 advantage.

Trailing by five points, the Titans engineered a 10-play scoring drive on that saw Gostkowski nail a 54-yard field goal to make it a 30-28 game. After forcing the Vikings to punt, Tennessee added another field goal on its next possession as Gostkowski's 55-yard kick gave the Titans a 31-30 lead with just under two minutes left to play.

With Minnesota facing a fourth-and-24 from their own 26-yard line, and Tennessee looking to preserve a lead, Cousins threw a pass deep right and it was intercepted by DB Amani Hooker to seal a Titans victory.

TITANS-BILLS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 5: Titans 42, Bills 16
Tuesday, Oct. 13, 2020 • 6:05 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 5 of the 2020 season, the Titans hosted the Buffalo Bills for a Tuesday night matchup that was rescheduled due to Tennessee's COVID-19 outbreak. With just two days of practice before the game after Saint Thomas Sports Park was closed, and 16 days since their Week 3 contest, the Titans used three takeaways and six total touchdowns to beat the Bills by a score of 42-16.

Buffalo had possession of the ball to begin the game, but on the third play, Bills QB Josh Allen threw an interception to CB Malcolm Butler who returned the ball 29 yards to the Buffalo 16-yard line. Tennessee quickly took a 7-0 lead as QB Ryan Tannehill tossed a 16-yard touchdown strike to WR A.J. Brown. On their ensuing possession, Buffalo put together a 76-yard scoring drive that culminated in Allen throwing a three-yard touchdown to Bills WR Isaiah McKenzie to tie the game, 7-7. Later in the first quarter, WR Kalif Raymond recorded a 40-yard punt return to put the Titans in good field position at the Buffalo 30-yard line, and he also contributed a 20-yard catch on the drive. Ultimately, RB Derrick Henry ran in a one-yard score for a 14-7 lead.

In the second quarter, Buffalo added a 10-play scoring drive with Bills TE Dawson Knox, Bills WR Stefon Diggs and Bills WR Gabriel Davis contributing first down receptions. However, the Titans defense kept Buffalo at bay and forced them to settle for a 43-yard field goal to make it 14-10. Later in the second quarter, the Titans put together a 90-yard scoring drive to close out the first half of the game on top. Henry and Tannehill rushed for first downs and Brown added a 12-yard gain before Tannehill took the ball into the end zone himself for a 10-yard touchdown and a 21-10 halftime lead.

On Buffalo's opening drive of the second half, the Bills drove from their own three-yard line to the Tennessee 33-yard line. However, Allen threw his second pick of the day to Butler, who intercepted the ball at the Tennessee 20-yard line and returned it a career-long 68 yards. Tennessee took possession in the red zone and capitalized as Tannehill threw a four-yard touchdown to TE Jonnu Smith for a 28-10 advantage.

In the fourth quarter, Buffalo tacked on a 90-yard scoring drive with assistance by two first-down receptions by Bills WR Cole Beasley. Allen connected with Bills RB T.J. Yeldon for a 22-yard score, but Buffalo's two-point conversion attempt failed as Allen threw an incompletion. Buffalo cut Tennessee's lead to 28-16. However, Tennessee then constructed back-to-back scoring drives. First came an 11-play, 75-yard scoring drive that saw Tannehill contribute a 23-yard rushing gain before Henry capped the drive with a nine-yard touchdown for a 35-16 lead. On the ensuing kickoff, LB David Long Jr. caused Bills WR Andre Roberts to fumble the return and it was recovered by CB Kareem Orr. Tennessee took possession at the Buffalo 18-yard line and capitalized on the third turnover of the night as Smith caught a seven-yard touchdown. The Titans took a 42-16 lead to seal a victory and hand Buffalo its first loss of the season.

TITANS-TEXANS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 6: Titans 42, Texans 36
Sunday, Oct. 18, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 6 of the 2020 season, the Titans hosted the division opponent Houston Texans and won in overtime by a score of 42-36. Tennessee set a franchise record with 601 net yards of offense, and posted just the fourth all-time NFL performance with a 200-yard rusher (RB Derrick Henry), 300-yard passer (QB Ryan Tannehill) and 100-yard receiver (TE Anthony Firkser) while advancing to 5-0 on the season.

The Titans took an early 14-0 lead in the first quarter. First, Tannehill guided the team on an 80-yard scoring drive that saw an 18-yard gain on the ground by Henry and first down receptions by WR A.J. Brown, WR Cameron Batson and Firkser. Tannehill threw a seven-yard touchdown to Firkser to put the Titans up, 7-0. On the following Tennessee possession, Henry contributed a 34-yard rush before Tannehill connected with Brown for a six-yard touchdown. The Titans moved ahead, 14-0.

In the second quarter, Houston responded with a touchdown of their own. Facing a third-and-one at the Tennessee one-yard line, Texans RB David Johnson ran up the middle but was denied for no gain by LB Rashaan Evans and DT Jeffery Simmons. However, Houston was successful on the fourth-down attempt, as Texans QB Deshaun Watson threw a one-yard touchdown to Texans TE Darren Fells. Houston cut Tennessee's lead in half, 14-7.

On the ensuing Tennessee possession, the Titans constructed an 11-play scoring drive. WR Kalif Raymond caught a 20-yard ball to move the chains before WR Adam Humphries extended the lead to 21-7 with a 22-yard touchdown catch. As Houston got the ball back, the Texans were able to tack on a 38-yard field goal to make it a 21-10 game heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, Houston scored 13 points to take a 23-21 lead. First, Fells contributed catches of 11 and 35 yards to move the chains before David Johnson ran into the end zone for a one-yard score. On the ensuing drive, Tannehill was strip-sacked by Texans DE J.J. Watt and the ball was recovered by Texans OLB Jacob Martin at the Tennessee four-yard line. Houston capitalized on the turnover as Watson connected with Texans WR Randall Cobb for a four-yard touchdown. The extra point was no good as Houston took the lead, 23-21.

In the fourth quarter with the Titans trailing by two, the Tennessee offense took over at their own six-yard line. On the first play of the drive, Henry promptly took the handoff and raced 94 yards for a go-ahead touchdown. Tannehill connected with WR Nick Westbrook-Ikhine for a successful two-point conversion to make it a 29-23 game.

Houston immediately responded and took the lead back on a two-play scoring drive. Watson threw a 22-yard pass to Texans TE Pharaoh Brown before nailing Texans WR Will Fuller V for a 53-yard score and a 30-29 lead. As the Tennessee offense took the field needing to score, Tannehill was intercepted on a deep pass by Texans CB Bradley Roby. Houston took possession at their own 31-yard line and engineered a 15-play scoring drive that culminated in a one-yard touchdown pass from Watson to Texans WR Brandin Cooks. Houston elected to attempt a two-point conversion, but Watson's pass was incomplete after Simmons batted the ball, and the score remained 36-29.

Down seven points with under two minutes remaining in regulation, Tannehill took command of the offense and completed eight consecutive passes, including a game-tying seven-yard touchdown to Brown with four seconds left in regulation. After the successful extra point, the game was tied at 36-36 and heading for overtime.

After winning the coin toss, Tennessee had possession of the ball first. Henry took a short pass 53 yards to flip field position, and then at the Houston 27-yard line, RB Jeremy McNichols added a 17-yard rush. Ultimately, in Wildcat formation, Henry took the direct snap and ran into the end zone for a walk-off five-yard touchdown. Tennessee beat Houston by a score of 42-36 and advanced to a 5-0 record on the season.

TITANS-STEELERS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 7: Titans 24, Steelers 27
Sunday, Oct. 25, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 7 of the 2020 season the Titans hosted the Pittsburgh Steelers in a showdown between two undefeated teams, marking just the sixth contest in the Super Bowl era that featured two unbeaten squads in Week 7 or later. The game was initially scheduled for Week 4 but postponed after Tennessee's COVID-19 outbreak. Pittsburgh came out with a victory by a score of 27-24, handing the Titans their first loss of the season.

Pittsburgh got on the board on the team's opening possession with a 16-play drive. Steelers QB Ben Roethlisberger threw first down passes to Steelers WR Diontae Johnson and WR Ray-Ray McCloud, and Steelers RB James Conner added a first down on the ground before Roethlisberger connected with Johnson for an 11-yard touchdown as Pittsburgh took an early 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Pittsburgh doubled the lead with a 61-yard touchdown drive. Steelers TE Eric Ebron contributed a 22-yard reception, and Steelers WR JuJu Smith-Schuster added a 21-yard catch before Steelers RB Benny Snell Jr. scored on a one-yard touchdown rush to make it 14-0 Pittsburgh. On the ensuing Tennessee possession, the Titans replied with a touchdown drive of their own. QB Ryan Tannehill threw a 13-yard pass to WR A.J. Brown and a 19-yard gain to WR Adam Humphries before connecting with WR Corey Davis for a four-yard touchdown strike. Tennessee cut the lead, 14-7.

Pittsburgh added two more scores in the second quarter. First, Steelers RB James Conner accounted for 50 of the 55 yards on a possession that resulted in a 38-yard field goal. Next, McCloud returned a punt 57 yards to give Pittsburgh the ball at the Tennessee 17-yard line. Roethlisberger was able to toss a nine-yard touchdown to Johnson to make it a 24-7 game heading into halftime.

On the Steelers opening drive of the second half, Pittsburgh tacked on a 30-yard field goal for a 27-7 advantage, which ultimately became the only points scored by the Steelers in the second half. However, on the ensuing possession, Tannehill quickly found Brown for a 73-yard touchdown as Tennessee inched closer, 27-14.

Later in the third quarter, Roethlisberger's pass was tipped by DT Jeffery Simmons and caught by LB Jayon Brown at the Steelers 30-yard line. Tennessee capitalized on the turnover with a 51-yard field goal to make it a 27-17 game.

In the fourth quarter, Tennessee constructed a 70-yard scoring drive that featured RB Derick Henry accounting for 43 yards. Ultimately, Henry dove into the end zone for a one-yard touchdown to make it a one possession game, 27-24. On the following Pittsburgh possession, the Steelers drove from their own nine-yard line to the Tennessee 19-yard line. However, Roethlisberger threw an interception in the end zone to DB Amani Hooker for a touch-back. With two and a half minutes remaining in regulation and the Titans trailing by three, Tennessee moved the ball efficiently from their own 25-yard line to the Pittsburgh 28-yard line. With 19 seconds remaining, K Stephen Gostkowski attempted a game-tying 45-yard field goal, but the kick went wide right as Pittsburgh handed Tennessee their first loss of the season, 27-24.

Week 8: Titans 20, Bengals 31
Sunday, Nov. 1, 2020 • 1:00 p.m. ET • Paul Brown Stadium

In Week 8 of the 2020 season the Titans traveled to Cincinnati to face the Bengals and fell by a score of 31-20.

Cincinnati got on the board on their opening possession and never relinquished the lead. Bengals QB Joe Burrow constructed a 12-play, 57-yard drive that saw two first down receptions by Bengals WR Tee Higgins and culminated in a 33-yard field goal by Bengals K Randy Bullock. Cincinnati took a 3-0 lead. Later in the first quarter, Tennessee drove down the field into Bengals territory with aid by a 24-yard reception by WR Corey Davis. However, K Stephen Gostkowski's 53-yard attempt hit the upright as the score remained 3-0.

In the second quarter, Cincinnati extended the lead with a nine-play, 57-yard scoring drive. Bengals WR Tyler Boyd contributed a 13-yard catch before Bengals RB Samaje Perine scored on a one-yard touchdown run for a 10-0 lead. However, Tennessee responded on the ensuing possession with a scoring drive of their own that featured eight consecutive run plays. RB Derrick Henry carried the ball six times for 43 yards, and RB D'Onta Foreman added two carries for 14 yards, before Henry found the end zone on a three-yard touchdown run. The Titans cut the lead, 10-7.

The Bengals put together a 73-yard scoring drive on their ensuing possession. Higgins contributed two first-down receptions which allowed Bengals HB Giovani Bernard to score on a 12-yard touchdown as Cincinnati took a 17-7 lead into halftime.

In the fourth quarter, Burrow found Boyd in the end zone for a seven-yard touchdown to extend Cincinnati's lead to 24-7. On the ensuing Titans possession, Tennessee put together a 75-yard scoring drive. With two first-down rushes contributed by Henry, a first-down catch by Davis, and another first-down carry added by RB Jeremy McNichols, Tannehill was then able to connect with WR A.J. Brown for a nine-yard touchdown, 24-14 Bengals.

Cincinnati responded with another touchdown on their following drive. Perine contributed a 16-yard run and Boyd caught an 18-yard reception before Burrow threw a six-yard touchdown strike to Bernard. The Bengals widened the lead, 31-14.

Trailing by 17, Tennessee replied on their ensuing possession with a touchdown score to inch closer to Cincinnati. TE Anthony Firkser caught two passes for 36 yards, and Davis added two receptions for 22 yards, before Tannehill connected with Davis for a 12-yard touchdown. The point after conversion attempt was unsuccessful, 31-20. Ultimately Tennessee could not construct a comeback and fell on the road to Cincinnati.

TITANS-BEARS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 9: Titans 24, Bears 17
Sunday, Nov. 8, 2020 • 12:00 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 9 of the 2020 season the Titans hosted the Chicago Bears and won by a score of 24-17. Tennessee's defense limited Chicago to two third-down conversions on 15 attempts and allowed the Bears to rush for just 56 yards. Tennessee's defense limited Chicago to two third-down conversions on 15 attempts and allowed the Bears to rush for just 56 yards.

Tennessee got on the board first with an eight-play, 56-yard scoring drive and never relinquished the lead. WR A.J. Brown caught a 38-yard pass to help move the chains before K Stephen Gostkowski ultimately made a 40-yard field goal for an early 3-0 lead.

In the second quarter, the Titans extended the lead with a 91-yard scoring drive. RB Derrick Henry carried the ball for five consecutive plays, and Brown added a 17-yard reception before he then bulldozed his way into the end zone on a 40-yard touchdown catch to make it 10-0 Tennessee.

In the third quarter with Chicago driving toward the red zone, Bears QB Nick Foles threw a short pass to Bears RB David Montgomery, but DL Jeffery Simmons forced him to fumble. CB Desmond King II scooped up the fumble and returned it for a 63-yard touchdown to extend the Titans lead, 17-0.

Chicago got on the board in the fourth quarter on a 15-play scoring drive. Bears WR Allen Robinson II contributed a 23-yard catch to help move the sticks but Chicago was halted at the Tennessee four-yard line. Bears K Cairo Santos converted a 23-yard field goal to make it a 17-3 game. On the ensuing Titans possession, Tennessee quickly added another touchdown. Henry broke free for a 26-yard gain, and QB Ryan Tannehill threw a 30-yard pass to TE Jonnu Smith to give the Titans a first down at the Chicago two-yard line. On the next play, Tannehill tossed a two-yard touchdown pass to Smith to put Tennessee up, 24-3.

Chicago responded on the next possession with a touchdown of their own. Robinson contributed a 27-yard catch to bring the Bears into Titans territory before Foles ultimately connected with Bears RB Ryan Nall for a six-yard touchdown. Chicago moved closer, 24-10.

Later in the fourth quarter, the Bears tacked on another score on an 80-yard possession. Nall added two first-down receptions, and Robinson contributed an 11-yard first down, before Foles threw an eight-yard touchdown to Bears TE Jimmy Graham. Chicago made it a one possession game at 24-17 but could not recover an onside kick as the Titans advanced to 6-2 on the season.

TITANS-COLTS: GAME SUMMARY

Week 10: Titans 17, Colts 34
Thursday, Nov. 12, 2020 • 7:20 p.m. CT • Nissan Stadium

In Week 10 of the 2020 season the Titans hosted Indianapolis for a Thursday Night Football matchup, the first of two meetings within a three-week span against the Colts. Tennessee lost the contest by a score of 34-17 and fell to 6-3 on the season.

The Titans opened with a touchdown on their first possession. WR Cameron Batson gave the offense good field position with a 35-yard kick return, and QB Ryan Tannehill threw first-down passes to FB/RB Khari Blasingame, WR A.J. Brown and WR Corey Davis. The drive culminated in a five-yard touchdown pass to RB D'Onta Foreman and an early 7-0 lead. As Indianapolis took over for their first series, Colts QB Philip Rivers guided his offense down into Tennessee territory. Facing a fourth-and-one at the Titans 29-yard line, Colts RB Jordan Wilkins took the handoff but was swiftly stuffed by CB Malcolm Butler and caused a turnover on downs.

Later in the first quarter, Indianapolis put together an 11-play scoring drive and was able to tack on a field goal to make it a 7-3 game.

Tennessee extended the lead in the second quarter with an eight-play scoring drive. RB Derrick Henry broke free for a 20-yard gain to move the sticks before K Stephen Gostkowski converted a 50-yard field goal, 10-3 Titans. However, Indianapolis knotted the score on the ensuing possession. Rivers threw first-down passes to Colts RB Nyheim Hines, Colts WR Michael Pittman Jr., and to Colts RB Jonathan Taylor, before Hines caught a 13-yard touchdown pass to make it a 10-10 contest.

The Titans replied immediately and scored a touchdown to regain the lead. Henry rushed for two first downs and Davis added an 18-yard grab before TE Jonnu Smith ran in for a one-yard rushing score. Tennessee went ahead of Indianapolis, 17-10. The Colts regained possession and quickly constructed a scoring drive before the end of the first half. Facing a second-and-eight at the Tennessee nine-yard line with 16 seconds remaining, Rivers was sacked by DL DaQuan Jones for a loss of 11. Indianapolis was forced to settle for a field goal, making it a 17-13 game heading into halftime.

In the third quarter, the Titans defense registered a goal line stand but they suffered a three-and-out at their own 10-yard line. P Trevor Daniel shanked the punt and pushed the Colts back just 17 yards. Indianapolis took over at the Tennessee 27-yard line and quickly found the end zone as Hines ran for a two-yard touchdown. The Colts took the lead, 20-17. On the following Tennessee possession, the Titans again had a three-and-out at their own

26-yard line. Daniel's punt was blocked by Colts LB E.J. Speed and returned for a six-yard touchdown by Colts CB T.J. Carrie. Indianapolis took a 27-17 lead.

In the fourth quarter, Indianapolis recorded a four-play scoring drive. Pittman caught a 40-yard pass to flip field position as Colts QB Jacoby Brissett entered the game and rushed for a two-yard score. Indianapolis took a 34-17 lead. The Titans were unable to mount a comeback and fell to the Colts at home.

COLTS GRAB TIEBREAKER IN AFC SOUTH BY BEATING TITANS 34-17

BY TERESA M. WALKER
ASSOCIATED PRESS
NOVEMBER 12, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Philip Rivers threw for 308 yards and a touchdown, and Nyheim Hines scored twice as the Indianapolis Colts beat the Tennessee Titans 34-17 Thursday night to grab the head-to-head edge atop the AFC South.

The Colts (6-3) will host the rematch in Indianapolis on Nov. 29 after helping coach Frank Reich improve to 4-1 against Titans coach Mike Vrabel. Indianapolis is 14-5 at Nissan Stadium.

“We get a huge special teams touchdown and then offensively, shoot, we were rolling pretty good all day,” Rivers said. “We were very balanced, kind of got in a rhythm with the no-huddle. This was a huge road division win.”

Indianapolis came in with the NFL’s best defense in terms of fewest yards allowed. The Colts smothered a Tennessee offense that had been averaging 384.6 yards a game, 10th-best in the NFL, and ranked seventh averaging 29 points a game. E.J. Speed also blocked a punt that T.J. Carrie returned 6 yards for a TD late in the third quarter.

The Colts outgained Tennessee 430-294, though Derrick Henry ran for 103 yards.

The Titans (6-3) lost for the third time in four games as they head into the toughest stretch of their season with Indianapolis the first of four straight opponents currently with winning records.

Tennessee led 17-13 at halftime. Indianapolis took advantage of the Titans’ special teams woes to score twice in the third quarter for a 27-17 lead.

The Titans went with a third different punter in three games, promoting Trevor Daniel after signing him to the practice squad last weekend. Daniel’s first punt went 17 yards, and Hines, celebrating his 24th birthday, scored four plays later on a 2-yard TD run. The Titans gave Daniel no help on his second, with Speed easily breaking through for the block.

Stephen Gostkowski then missed a 44-yard field goal wide right early in the fourth.

“We’re going to have to evaluate everything that we do,” Vrabel said.

The Colts padded their lead to 34-17 with backup quarterback Jacoby Brissett capping the next drive with a 2-yard TD run with 9:21 left.

Indianapolis’ final margin would’ve been larger, but the Colts settled for a 43-yard field goal at the end of the first half and the Titans forced a turnover on downs on Indianapolis’ opening drive of the third.

RIVERS PASSES MARINO

Rivers came in needing only 4 yards passing to move by Hall of Famer Dan Marino for the fifth-most in NFL history. He passed Marino on the Colts’ first play from scrimmage with an 11-yard pass to rookie Jonathan Taylor. Rivers now has 61,666 yards for his career. He also made his 233rd consecutive start and is one away from tying Eli Manning for the 10th-longest streak in league history.

The Colts used a lot of no-huddle to put Rivers in control of the offense and take advantage of a struggling Titans defense.

“He’s just really good in that mode,” Reich said. “Very accurate, good checks in the run game, he was really in it tonight.”

HEAVY HEART

Titans wide receiver Corey Davis played a day after his older brother, Titus, died at age 27 from a rare form of kidney cancer. Davis did not practice Wednesday hours after his brother died. He was crying before kickoff, then finished with a team-high five catches for 67 yards.

“I’m proud of Corey and proud of his ability to come out here,” Vrabel said. “Again, our thoughts and prayers are with him and his family, and I’m proud of his teammates for supporting him the way that they did.”

INJURIES

Colts cornerback Xavier Rhodes went down on the second play from scrimmage. He walked off on his own and was back before the first quarter ended. Reich said cornerback Kenny Moore II will have an MRI on his ribs Friday.

Titans center Ben Jones hurt a knee but returned. Titans left guard Rodger Saffold limped to the sideline late in the second quarter with an injured ankle, but he returned. Defensive lineman Larrell Murchison hurt his back.

TITANS TUMBLE FROM TOP OF AFC SOUTH
THANKS TO SPECIAL TEAMS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN

NOVEMBER 12, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The Tennessee Titans were let down by their special teams once again in a 34-17 loss to the Indianapolis Colts on Thursday night.

The Colts and Titans are now both 6-3, but Indianapolis owns the edge in the AFC South standings by virtue of the head-to-head win. The two teams meet again in Week 12.

Punter Trevor Daniel struggled in his first game with the Titans, starting with a 17-yard punt from Tennessee's 10-yard line. The Colts drove 27 yards in four plays and took a 20-17 lead on a 2-yard touchdown run by Nyheim Hines.

The Titans went three-and-out on their next drive only to have Daniel get his next punt blocked by E.J. Speed and returned 6 yards for a touchdown by T.J. Carrie to make the score 27-17. Daniel was elevated from the practice squad before the game to take over for Ryan Allen, who averaged 50.5 yards per punt in last week's 24-17 win over the Chicago Bears. The Titans' decision to go with Daniel was a puzzling move.

The special-teams struggles went beyond the punting. Tennessee attempted to answer the blocked punt for a touchdown with a drive that covered 52 yards in 12 plays to set up a 44-yard field goal attempt by Stephen Gostkowski, but it was wide right.

Gostkowski now has eight missed field goals, the most in the NFL this season. He has also missed two extra points. The last Titans/Houston Oilers kicker to miss at least 10 kicks in a single season was Tony Zendejas, who missed 12 in 1989 for the Oilers.

Describe the game in two words: Total meltdown. As mentioned earlier, the special teams failed miserably. The defense gave up 430 total yards of offense and the Titans' offense struggled outside of Derrick Henry, who gained 103 yards.

Promising trend: The Titans improved on their third-down defense, allowing the Colts to convert on only four of their 12 opportunities. That's much better than their NFL-worst 55.3% third-down conversion allowed. But the problem is that Indianapolis went for it five times on fourth down and picked up first downs on three of their attempts.

Eye-popping NextGen Stat: QB Philip Rivers averaged 2.31 seconds from the snap before throwing the ball. That is his lowest of the season and fourth-lowest over the past five seasons. Rivers completed 22 of his 25 attempts for 199 yards when passing within 2.5 seconds of the snap.

COLTS 34, TITANS 17: FIVE OBSERVATIONS AS SPECIAL TEAMS, DEFENSIVE FAILINGS COST TENNESSEE

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
NOVEMBER 12, 2020

The Titans will play the Colts again in two weeks. Maybe then they'll be able to do something to stop – or even slow down – the Indianapolis offense. Maybe then they'll succeed in not embarrassing themselves on special teams.

On “Thursday Night Football,” they failed in both of those regards.

Here are five observations as the Titans fell 34-17 to the Colts at Nissan Stadium and surrendered their hold on the AFC South lead:

Special teams disaster

Recently signed Trevor Daniel on Thursday became the Titans' third punter in as many games. A wrist injury to Pro Bowler Brett Kern prompted the Titans to turn first to Ryan Allen last week and then Daniel for the Colts game.

The move blew up in their faces in the third quarter. After linebacker Rashaan Evans had a huge tackle on fourth-and-goal from the 1 to force a turnover on downs, the Titans offense couldn't get anything going, which forced the punt unit onto the field.

Daniel came through with an absolute dud of a punt – it went only 17 yards – to set the Colts up at the Titans 27-yard line. Four plays later, Indy found the end zone.

Then, after the Titans' next possession went nowhere, Daniel came back on the field and had his punt blocked and returned for a Colts touchdown that put Indy up 27-17.

An utter special teams disaster ...

Stephen Gostkowski misses another

... that was not confined to the punt unit.

Enter Stephen Gostkowski, who already was leading the league in missed field goals heading into Thursday. Then he missed another – a 44-yarder that would have brought the Titans to within 27-20 early in the fourth quarter but instead only added to the special teams nightmare.

Gostkowski is now 12-for-20 on field goals this season. His eight misses are an NFL high.

Colts offense has its way

For the duration of the night, the Titans defense showed little to no resistance against quarterback Philip Rivers, running back Nyheim Hines and the rest of the Colts offense.

Four of their seven drives spanned more than 10 plays. The other three all resulted in touchdowns. Indy piled up 430 total yards to the Titans' 294.

Indianapolis' first punt came with 3:01 left in the game.

Rivers was 29-for-39 passing for 308 yards and a touchdown. Hines had 115 total yards and two touchdowns.

A.J. Brown with a big drop

The normally sure-handed A.J. Brown had a drop that probably cost the Titans a touchdown in the first quarter.

Ryan Tannehill threw a perfect ball down the left sideline, and Brown had a step of separation on his defender. But the second-year wide receiver, who has six touchdown grabs this season, couldn't corral the ball. He had only daylight in front of him.

Afterward, Fox cameras caught Brown slamming the bench on the sideline in frustration.

Brown had only one catch for 21 yards. Tannehill finished 15-of-27 passing for 147 yards and a touchdown pass to D'Onta Foreman on the opening drive. Derrick Henry ran 19 times for 103 yards.

Corey Davis plays with heavy heart

The Fox cameras also caught Corey Davis during an emotional moment, but for a much different reason.

Davis' older brother, Titus, died Wednesday from renal medullary carcinoma, a rare form of kidney cancer. He was 27 years old. It left the younger Davis in an impossibly difficult situation as he mourned the loss of his brother while looking to continue what's been a solid season for the fourth-year wide receiver.

He did just that. While the Titans offense was only OK against the Colts' top-ranked defense, Davis was solid with five catches for 63 yards.

Davis was shown on the Fox broadcast with tears streaming down his face before the start of the game.

For all these Titans lack, they don't give in easily. Say that much for them. If they did, there's no way they'd have carried a 6-2 record and expectations into Thursday night's visit from the rival Colts.

As this short-week AFC South street-fight progressed with a lot on the line, it started sounding like the Titans' favorite tune. Intangibles like toughness and resiliency have allowed this team to pull out who-wants-it-more kind of close games all season, even when they shouldn't have.

So when the Colts – like most other opposing offenses this season – kept marching up and down the field at ease, hey, no worries. Just make one play. Just get a stop on fourth down. Surely, that clutch gene would show up to the rescue once again, right?

There's much to admire about these Titans, even as we keep having to gradually accept, deep down, who they really are – and what they are not.

They're a good team. They're a gritty team.

But they're just not a realistic contender to win the AFC right now.

The façade vanished with a 34-17 loss to the Colts at Nissan Stadium that could have been much worse. The Titans might not have gone quietly. It was deceptively close for a while, but they were outplayed and thoroughly beaten in all phases.

That's a problem. Because the Colts happen to be the one team that can keep the Titans from the divisional title that seemed theirs for the taking this season. Yet no one who watched these teams Thursday night could come away thinking that the Titans are the favorite in their division.

You got the feeling that if these teams played four more quarters – as they will in Indianapolis in a couple of weeks – the result wouldn't have been much different.

That's how much better the Colts were. They didn't punt until the final minutes, with the game long since decided. Each of their first five possessions went for at least eight plays and at least 46 yards. They closed the first half with a 13-play drive and then opened the second half with a 15-play march.

The Colts ended up with a 430-294 edge in yards. They blocked a Titans punt for a touchdown. They largely shut down the Titans offense after halftime.

They whipped and exposed the Titans like no other opponent has this season. It'd be one thing if it was just a bad night, but if we're honest, most of this wasn't new. It just has been shielded by a remarkable stretch of heroics that weren't sustainable.

"We're going to have to evaluate everything that we do," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "How we're coaching, what we do in practice, the performance. We have to be better in all areas."

No choice now but to embrace changes and finally begin to confront some harsh realities about what this team appears capable of ultimately accomplishing.

The Titans' record flatters them. They have a lot of fight, a good quarterback, a great running back, a formidable offense – and not much else.

The defense is poor, the special teams too often shaky. Such a combination, at least as it looks right now, is not good enough to challenge for big prizes against the NFL's best.

The Titans have shown us who they are by now.

It's time to believe them.

TITANS REPORT CARD: F-MINUS FOR SPECIAL TEAMS PERFORMANCE VS. COLTS

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
NOVEMBER 12, 2020

Grading the Titans' 34-17 loss to the Colts on "Thursday Night Football":

Passing offense: D

Ryan Tannehill didn't throw any interceptions and he was sacked only once, but his and the passing offense's performance was altogether blah. Tannehill was 15-for-27 passing for 147 yards and a touchdown, with anything that could be considered successful coming on their opening drive, which yielded a touchdown. Corey Davis was the only receiver with more than two catches. The drops added up Thursday, including a big one by A.J. Brown in the first quarter that probably cost the Titans a touchdown.

Rushing offense: A

The Titans at least did well here. Derrick Henry ran for 103 yards and needed only 19 carries to do it. All told, the Titans ran for 157 yards on 4.9 yards per carry. The Colts entered third in the league with only 83.6 rushing yards allowed per game.

Passing defense: F

Philip Rivers, with his quick release, picked apart the Titans defense, completing 74.4% of his passes for 308 yards and a touchdown. The Titans had only one sack, which came with time winding down in the first half. Four Colts receivers had at least four catches.

Rushing defense: D

The Titans couldn't stop running back Nyheim Hines – not through the air, and not on the ground, where he rushed for 70 yards on 5.8 yards per carry. The Colts wound up piling up 133 rushing yards on 4.6 yards per carry and two rushing touchdowns. They entered Thursday second-worst in the NFL with 3.7 yards per carry.

Special teams: F-minus

Trevor Daniel, in his Titans debut, botched a punt that went only 17 yards. He had another punt blocked and returned for a touchdown – the punt protection was mostly to blame for that one. And then there was Stephen Gostkowski, who missed yet another kick. He's now 12-for-20 on field goals this season, with his eight misses a league high.

Coaching: F

The Titans continue to strike out with their personnel choices on special teams – and the buck stops with those in charge of evaluation, coach Mike Vrabel and general manager Jon Robinson. It's also apparent last week's solid defensive performance against the lowly Bears offense was more an aberration than any sort of turning point for this struggling unit.

TITANS COLLAPSE AGAINST COLTS FALL 34- 17

BY TERRY MCCORMICK

Special teams showed the way, but make no mistake, the defense and the offense all had a big hand in the Tennessee Titans second-half collapse that led to a 34-17 whipping by the Indianapolis Colts in prime time on Thursday Night Football.

The Titans were leading 17-13, when newly signed punter Trevor Daniel, just up from the practice squad and subbing for Ryan Allen, shanked a 17-yard punt that the Colts converted the go-ahead touchdown on a 2-yard plunge by Nyheim Hines with 2:51 to go in the third quarter.

It started an avalanche of points, as the Colts outscored the Titans 21-0 in the second half to turn a halftime deficit into a rout and a share of first place in the AFC South.

Daniel and the Titans special teams had another breakdown following the next series – a three-and-out – when E.J. Speed broke through the Titans line and blocked the punt, allowing teammate T.J. Carrie to scoop it up and score from 6 yards out to give the Colts a suddenly commanding 27-17 lead in a span of 59 seconds.

As if that wasn't bad enough, the Titans did manage to move back in position to score on the ensuing drive, but inconsistent Stephen Gostkowski, operating again with his third holder in three games, missed a 44-yard field goal that could have made it a one score game.

To make matters worse, the Titans then allowed the Colts to march back downfield and put the game away with another touchdown drive to push the lead to its final 17-point margin.

After that the Titans continued to unravel, turning the football over on fourth-and-3 with Ryan Tannehill far overshooting Jonnu Smith with a pass in the corner of the end zone.

The loss drops the Titans to 6-3 and into a first-place tie with the Colts with a return match in Indianapolis on Nov. 29.

Tannehill, who did have a first-half touchdown pass to D'Onta Foreman, was just 15 of 27 for 147 yards passing in the game. Derrick Henry did have 103 yards rushing, which was a bright spot, but the Titans lost for the second time in three games with him going over the century mark after having been 16-0 with that stat previously.

Colts quarterback Philip Rivers, long a Titans nemesis from his days with the Chargers, looked as smooth as ever against Tennessee. Rivers completed 29 of 39 passes for 308 yards and a touchdown pass.

TITANS START FAST, BUT LIMP TO FINISH IN 34-17 LOSS TO COLTS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
NOVEMBER 12, 2020

NASHVILLE – A promising start turned into a miserable finish on Thursday night for the Tennessee Titans.

Now, the Titans need to find a way to clean some things up in the race for the AFC South title.

The Colts came to town and handed the Titans a 34-17 loss before 13,949 fans at Nissan Stadium.

The Titans couldn't get stops on defense, and the team made things worse with several costly blunders on special teams as the game took an ugly turn in the second half. Running back Derrick Henry ran for 103 yards for the Titans, but on this night it wasn't enough as the Colts scored 24 straight points to take control of the game.

As a result, the Titans dropped to 6-3, and they're now tied with the Colts in the AFC South with seven games to play. The Titans and Colts meet again on November 29 in Indianapolis.

The Titans started fast, scoring on their opening drive on a five-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ryan Tannehill to running back D'Onta Foreman, which capped a six-play, 67-yard drive on the team's opening possession.

After Colts kicker Rodrigo Blankenship cut the lead to 7-3 on a 24-yard field goal, the Titans responded with a 50-yard field goal from kicker Stephen Gostkowski to extend the lead to 10-3 with 11:12 left in the second quarter.

When the Colts tied the game at 10-10 on a 13-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Philip Rivers to running back Nyheim Hines, the Titans bounced back near the end of the first half, capping off a long drive with a one-yard touchdown run by tight end Jonnu Smith, which made it 17-10 with 2:54 left before halftime.

Then the Colts got another field goal from Blankenship on the final play of the first half, and it was 17-13 Titans at the break.

In the second half, the Titans got a goal-line stand midway through the third quarter, as they stopped the Colts on 4th-and-goal from the one-yard line. Linebacker Rashaan Evans corralled Colts running back Jordan Wilkins at the one, and the Colts were unable to get point after having a 1st and goal at the Tennessee five.

Everything went downhill from there.

A 17-yard punt by Titans punter Trevor Daniel gave Indianapolis the ball at the Tennessee 27-yard line, and the Colts cashed it for a two-yard touchdown by Hines to take a 20-17 lead.

Things then got worse, as Daniel's next punt was blocked and returned for a touchdown to give the Colts a 27-17 lead with 1:52 remaining in the third quarter. Gostkowski missed a 44-yard field goal at the start of the fourth quarter as the special teams problems continued.

When the Colts got the ball back, Jacoby Brissett finished off another long drive with a one-yard touchdown run to make it 34-17 with 9:21 left in the contest.

It was just too much for the Titans to overcome.

The Titans return to action against the Ravens on November 22 in Baltimore.

QUOTES OF NOTE: COLTS ON BEATING THE TITANS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
NOVEMBER 13, 2020

NASHVILLE – It was no secret going in that the winner of Thursday’s game between the Tennessee Titans and Indianapolis Colts would have a lot to say about the AFC South race over the second half of the season.

It was the Colts that came out on top, 34-17, and put themselves in the top spot. Both teams are 6-3 but Indianapolis gets the edge based on the head-to-head tiebreaker.

Here is some of what Indianapolis’ players and coach Frank Reich had to say about their victory:

- Reich, on outscoring the Titans 21-0 after halftime: “We finished the way we needed to finish for sure. ... The mood [at halftime] was great. We knew – we just kind of came in and said, ‘This is what we expected, a tight game.’ Just going back and forth. Felt like we were able to do some things, but we needed to lock in and finish it off, which we did.”

- Quarterback Philip Rivers, on the Colts’ offense, which outgained the Titans’ 430-294: “We were very efficient and didn’t punt it until the end. We threw it well and ran it well. Everybody contributed. The guys up front played great.”

- Running back Nyheim Hines, on a big performance (12-70, TD rushing, 5-45, TD receiving) on his birthday: “This is the best birthday ever. I’ve had surprise birthdays and a lot of things, but I’ve never played on my birthday. I’ve never had a game like this on my birthday. I was actually scared because it was either going to be a good game or a bad game. The Lord blessed me to have a great game. My 24th birthday is a birthday I will never forget for sure.”

- Reich, on going for it five times on fourth down (the Colts converted three): “Just trusting the players.

Look, we’re three-for-five. I mean, we got to be better than that honestly in a game like this. ... But just felt like we needed to be aggressive. I know Coach Vrabel. This is just one of those games. There is a lot on the line in this game had to be aggressive in all three phases.”

- Linebacker E.J. Speed, on the blocked punt in the third quarter: ““We had a blitz-screen lined up to where I could knife inside the seam and it came open. Once it came open, it was time to make a play, I made the play, we scored, and it changed the game.”

- Rivers, on the Colts’ use of the no-huddle offense: “I think it just kept the pressure on, it kept the pace moving. ... We were in a good flow, and it’s interesting off a short week. I felt so in sync and well-prepared this week and the amount of focus we had in the walk throughs, the amount of time we spent in the meetings, the dialog was just dialed in.”

- Reich, on Rivers, who was 29-39 for 309 yards with one touchdown: “He was close to perfect. I mean, had that feeling all week. We got in the no-huddle mode and he and I have done a lot of that together over the years ... and then in the last 24, 48 – 24 hours – just really decided to have conviction about going with it almost the whole game. And (Rivers) is just in this control that puts him in the driver’s seat. It allows him to see everything and get us in the right play when he needs to, which he did with regularity (Thursday).

- Linebacker Darius Leonard, on the importance of beating the Titans: ““It means a lot, especially a divisional game and coming off a loss. We wanted to come out and put everything on tape that we are a good team.”

- Rivers, on beating the Titans: “Yes, this one was huge. This one was a huge game. We knew it. It was going to be huge either way.”

TITANS STILL HAVE NO ANSWERS FOR SPECIAL TEAMS WOES

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITAN INSIDER
NOVEMBER 13, 2020

Much has been made of how the Tennessee Titans defense has struggled this season since the retirement of Dean Pees and other moves that have been made.

But special teams, which had been a calling card for the franchise for a time early in Mike Vrabel's coaching tenure, has come apart at the seams.

Nowhere was that on display more than in Thursday night's debacle against the Indianapolis Colts.

It took two punting disasters in less than a minute for the Titans to turn a 17-13 lead into a 27-27 deficit.

Trevor Daniel, a former Dickson County and University of Tennessee punter, was unfortunately the protagonist in the kicking woes Thursday night. Daniel, promoted from the practice squad for the game, shanked a 17-yard punt that the Colts converted into a 27-yard touchdown drive to take the lead. And then had a punt blocked following a Titans three-and-out that was returned for a touchdown.

After the game, Coach Mike Vrabel was asked why he chose Daniel over Ryan Allen, who punted eight times vs. Chicago on Sunday for a 50.5 yard average, as the fill-in for injured Brett Kern.

"The process is always what it looks like in practice and what we felt like was best for the team and those are all the things that we look at during practice, during the week of practice, and the evaluation of those guys kicking. That's the decision that we made," Vrabel said.

That one can probably be filed under the old saying, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

But speaking of "fixing it," the Titans have another special teams issue that has permeated not only throughout this season, but over a full two years now.

That is the place-kicking situation, where Stephen Gostkowski added to the Titans special teams misery yet again Thursday night missing a 44-yard field goal, his eight miss of the season. He is now 12 of 20 on the season, including an embarrassing 2 of 7 between 40 and 49 yards.

Gostkowski, one of the most accurate kickers in NFL history coming into this season, was supposed to solve what had turned into an ugly situation last year with Ryan Succop's injury, his subsequent too quick return, and the bouncing from Cairo Santos to Cody Parkey to Greg Joseph as well in 2019.

Perhaps it is irony, or maybe a hint of a bigger problem with the Titans, that Succop, Santos and Parkey, who are a combined 8-for-18 in Tennessee last year, are all thriving in 2020 with new clubs. The three of them are a combined 41-of-46 on field goal tries this season.

For his part, Vrabel has continued to give the same canned answers about the Gostkowski situation all season long, which would seem to indicate that his job is not in immediate danger, the way the Titans ditched linebacker Vic Beasley and cornerback Johnathan Joseph for poor performances.

"I think we're going to have to evaluate everything that we do, how we're coaching, what we do in practice, the performance," Vrabel said. "So, we have to be better and I'll say that in all areas. So, we'll look at what we're doing and try to do what's best for the team like we always do, but we all have jobs to do and we have to try to do them better."

The Titans did add kicker Georgia Tavecchio to the practice squad last week. But given how the Daniel move backfired, do they dare go down that path again, even with Gostkowski struggling.

After Thursday night, there have even a question of whether special teams coach Craig Aukerman's job should be in jeopardy for the poor special teams performances. Vrabel quickly shot that down.

REXRODE: TITANS SHOULD KICK THEMSELVES FOR RIDICULOUS MELTDOWN AGAINST THE COLTS

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
NOVEMBER 12, 2020

Kicking. Punting. Take those pesky elements out of football and the Tennessee Titans might not have looked like they're terrible at playing it in the biggest game of the season Thursday.

But that's exactly how they looked in a listless, embarrassing 34-17 loss to the "rival" Indianapolis Colts at Nissan Stadium. "Rival" gets the quote marks because the Colts have won eight of their past nine trips to this stadium and 28 of the past 35 meetings between these teams overall — dating back to 2003, with a whole bunch of Peyton Manning and Andrew Luck involved. That this Philip Rivers-led version of the Colts did what they did to the former sole leader of the AFC South, pulling these teams even at 6-3 apiece, does not speak well of the trajectory of Mike Vrabel's bunch.

But this was less a comment on the overall quality of the Titans than another reason to question their decision-makers because the trajectory of this game went sideways with the football as it glanced off the right foot of fill-in punter Trevor Daniel in the third quarter. He was filling in for Ryan Allen, who filled in for injured star punter Brett Kern in Sunday's win over the Bears. Allen was more than adequate, averaging 50.5 yards on eight punts. He also held successfully for Stephen Gostkowski, Kern's normal role, which Allen has done before when both were with the New England Patriots.

Still, four days after that performance, Allen was invited to sit down in favor of Daniel, the former University of Tennessee punter who was recently working as a driver for FedEx. Daniel had punted once for 47 yards as he stood on the sideline Thursday, watching the Colts drive from his left to his right. The Colts trailed 17-13, punched right away by a quick Titans touchdown on the first drive of the game, but were dominating possession with Rivers' quick passing behind a bedrock offensive line at the expense of the soft-covering Titans. The Colts appeared to score on a pop pass to take the lead, but Zach Pascal was called down at the 1 upon replay review.

On third-and-goal from there, Jeffery Simmons uprooted the interior of that offensive line and safeties Kenny Vaccaro and Kevin Byard stopped Jonathan Taylor short. On fourth-and-goal from there, Simmons again got push and Rashaan Evans filled fast, met Nyheim Hines in the hole and gave this raggedy defense another goal-line stop. A crowd of 13,949 made more noise than a crowd of 13,949 should be able to make. The Titans' sideline was up for grabs. It felt like an important moment. It read as the sequence that would help the Titans get to 7-2 and seize firm control of the divisional race.

Instead, let's review the 11 consecutive plays from scrimmage that stand to get the credit if the Titans again fall short of winning the AFC South for the first time since 2008.

D'Onta Foreman comes in for Derrick Henry (19 carries, 103 yards), who has just ripped off three runs for 19 yards, and is stuffed for no gain on second-and-1 from the Titans 20. Ryan Tannehill is sacked for a loss of 10 on a play-action pass on third-and-1. Daniel shanks a punt, barely connecting with the ball, and it goes out of bounds at the 27. Hines runs for 4. An end around to Michael Pittman gets 21 to the 2. Rivers throws incomplete. Hines scores from the 2. Tannehill misses Jonnu Smith deep. Henry gets a yard. Tannehill's pass to Anthony Firkser is broken up.

And Daniel comes on for the third punt of his fledgling NFL career and has it blocked so emphatically, more than one guy could have blocked it. This is not Daniel's fault. This is a blocking breakdown on the left side of the line with Josh Kalu, David Long Jr. and Amani Hooker having some kind of mixup. But it's the latest example of the Titans' kicking game being a complete mess. And this game has gone from 17-13 Titans to 27-17 Colts in 63 seconds of game time.

"I think it pretty much spoke for itself there," Vrabel said of the effect of that sequence, and he's right, but there was no good explanation given for the switch to Daniel.

Vrabel said the FedEx driver won the job in the brief week of practice. Certainly, Allen's hang time was not always ideal Sunday. But that's a big move, especially considering it meant switching holders and giving Stephen Gostkowski — we'll get to his portion of the special teams mess soon enough — a third one of those in three games. And remember, Allen is the guy on the roster he's most comfortable with as a holder.

Gostkowski hit his first try, from 50. But the Titans' chances officially died with his second try, a 44-yarder early in the fourth. The Titans were still fighting at that point. Henry was rolling, but a holding call on Nate Davis on a Henry run killed the drive and forced Gostkowski to try to make it a one-possession game. He pushed it, wide right. The defense finally caved in from there and it was quickly 34-17.

Gostkowski is 12-for-20 on the season. That's better than last season's collective 8-for-18 from a quartet of place kickers, three of whom are starting now for other teams. But it's simply not good enough, and three early game winners are now being canceled out by key misses late in games. This is a problem that GM Jon Robinson needs to address. Problem is, where does he go from here?

Those three other kickers from last season who are starting in the NFL — Ryan Succop in Tampa Bay, Cody Parkey in Cleveland and Cairo

Santos in Chicago — are a combined 41-for-46 on field goals this season. The fourth from last season, the guy who was in line to kick for the Titans this season before they switched late to Gostkowski, Greg Joseph, is protected on the Bucs' practice squad. Both place kickers who are being paid by the Bucs right now can't be blamed if they lack sympathy for the Titans' situation.

The situation is a 5-0 start that has dissolved into three losses in four games; an offense sputtering without left tackle Taylor Lewan and with a sped-up, less accurate Tannehill; a defense that hasn't been very good all year and is just trying to get to average; and a front office and coaching staff who have sabotaged a lot of other good work by being atrocious at evaluating specialists.

"The evaluation process is, when they make them or they kick well in practice, you hope that leads to kicking well in the game," Vrabel said. "And the operation needs to improve to help those guys, that's something we harp on, to protect our punter and our kicker. There's a lot of things we have to improve. I imagine the evaluation process ... is something we can certainly look at as well."

Vrabel said he's "very confident" in special teams coach Craig Aukerman and assistant special teams coach Ryan Crow, but the kicking game has been a minus much too often this season, and it may have just flipped the season. It wasn't alone. A.J. Brown had a perfect pass from Tannehill in his hands for what would have been a 72-yard touchdown to go up 14-0, and he dropped it. There were other drops, and mistakes, and Tannehill misses, and calls offensive coordinator Arthur Smith would like back, leading to a scoreless second half.

Credit a very good Colts defense, and credit Rivers for picking apart the Titans without having to push the ball downfield, and Hines for his 115 yards from scrimmage. Credit

Titans receiver Corey Davis for playing and playing well, five catches for 67 yards, just a day after losing his 27-year-old brother, Titus, to cancer.

"I love him, support him, I'm here for him," Tannehill said of Davis. "Just a really tough situation, a sick situation that you wouldn't wish upon anybody. He was so close to his brother, and his brother meant so much to him, so I can't even imagine what he's going through right now emotionally. But appreciate his effort and the way he battled through that and played for us tonight. He played a heck of a game, made some big plays for us. He showed a lot of toughness. But it's tough, you know?"

It was perspective for anyone inclined to feel too down about a loss. A much less important kind of perspective says the Titans aren't done in the AFC South race and that they can go repay the Colts at Indianapolis just as they did last season on the way to the playoffs. This team is not as bad as it played after that football glanced off the right foot of its temp punter. Problem is, the people who run this team keep shanking, and there's only so much of that you can overcome.

LATEST LOSS PROMPTS TITANS TO DO SOME SOUL SEARCHING

AFTER 5-0 START, TENNESSEE HAS NOW DROPPED THREE OF LAST FOUR GAMES

BY MICHAEL GALLAGHER
NASHVILLE POST
NOVEMBER 13, 2020

Over a month ago, the Tennessee Titans looked like world beaters after destroying the Buffalo Bills 42-16 in Week 5 despite not having practiced for nearly two weeks.

But since that night, the Titans have lost three of five games and squandered their lead in the AFC South.

Tennessee was out-dueled by Indianapolis 34-17 Thursday night at Nissan Stadium, and the Titans' once multi-game division lead has since evaporated as the Colts are now in the driver's seat.

Whether it be a missed Stephen Gostkowski game-tying field goal against the Steelers, a Ryan Tannehill interception in the end zone against the Bengals, or Trevor Daniel's shanked punt against the Colts on Thursday night, the Titans have continuously found new ways to shoot themselves in the foot.

But in true Titan form, if you pinpoint specific instances that cost the team a win, neither the players or head coach Mike Vrabel will deflect blame from a specific individual and cast it on the team as a whole.

"Yeah, it's been all types of different things, whether it's a drop, whether it's a throw, a missed block," Tannehill said. "It's never one thing or one person. But when you add the things up, you're killing drives, you're stalling out, you're not scoring points.

"We have to start making the plays and take advantage of the opportunities that are there, whether it's a throw, a catch, a block so we can hit a crease. A lot of times we're one guy away and there's too many almost. Almost doesn't get it done. We have to be able to make it happen on the whole, 11 guys working together, and when we do that, we move the football and we make plays."

In Thursday's loss, there was not one isolated incident that did the Titans in. Tennessee went into halftime leading 17-13, and over the course of the first 13 minutes of the third quarter, the Titans had all but handed the Colts a two-possession lead.

It started with Daniel's poor punt that went just 13 yards and set the Colts up at the Tennessee 27. Indianapolis scored four plays later, and on the next Titans drive, the Colts blocked a punt that turned into a touchdown. Suddenly, they went from trailing by four to up by 10.

Gostkowski also missed his eighth field goal of the year that killed a 12-play, 52-yard drive in the fourth quarter. He has now missed the same number of field goals this year as the Titans made all of last year.

It's clear the defense still needs some work. Tennessee has yielded 30 or more points in five of nine games, and it allowed Colts quarterback Philip Rivers to throw for 308 yards and a touchdown. The Titans also allowed rookie Michael Pittman to post season highs in receptions (seven) and yards (101).

So, where do the Titans start? Is it time to begin looking for a new kicker? Is it time to rethink the whole not needing an official defensive coordinator thing? Does the offensive line need a shake up?

"I mean, there's a lot of things that need to be changed," Vrabel said. "When you don't play well [and] you don't coach well enough, you lose. They had some fourth-and-ones, so third down we were pretty decent and got some stops and long drives that we got the stop early, which, proud of the guys for that.

But everything's going to have to change when you don't play well.

"...We'll have to take a couple days off here, get healthy, take a good hard look at what we did and what we're doing and continue to try to improve. We got to play complementary football in all three phases and that doesn't happen for 60 minutes right now."

PUNT IT INTO THE TRASH: TITANS' AFC SOUTH EDGE IS GONE AFTER LOSS TO COLTS

BY PAUL KUHARSKY
PAULKUHARSKY.COM
NOVEMBER 13, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Take all that work they did to finally find a big start to a season, to get atop the AFC South standings and be chased instead of chasing and crumple it up, snap it to Trevor Daniel and drop it on his foot.

Let's see if he can punt it into a nearby trash can.

A disastrous third quarter keyed by what qualifies as a massive special teams' failure even for this team means a 34-17 nationally televised embarrassment for the Titans at the hands of the Colts.

It puts the teams together at 6-3 at the head of the division, where the Titans are no longer being pursued but are actually in the weaker position.

The last month has included games against some of the NFL's better defenses, and Tennessee's edge has been slipping away. A mini-bye now arrives, allowing for fine-tuning and soul-searching.

"We have to clean up and start playing better, plain and simple," Ryan Tannehill said. "...We have done some good things. Defense has done some good things. We're just not consistent enough as a team playing complementary football, playing off of each other, and just not making enough plays. So we're going to have to clean that up, really get healthy this little extended week we have here and be able to clear our minds and our heads and come back ready to go on Monday.

"Because we can't wait around any longer. We have to take it up a notch and be ready to play our best football every Sunday from here going forward. The onus is on us to take a critical look at ourselves and do whatever it takes to clean it up and make the plays on Sundays."

The Titans go to Baltimore on Nov. 22 while the Colts host the Packers.

And after meetings with those two tough opponents, Tennessee will go to Indianapolis for a too-quick rematch.

On Oct. 25, Stephen Gostkowski lined up for a 45-yard field goal with 18 seconds left that would have forced a game against the also-undefeated Steelers into overtime.

He missed it wide right and the Titans are 1-3 from there.

How different, now, are these Titans than the first two versions of Mike Vrabel's team?

As disappointing as things may be considering where the Titans were just a month ago, they are still a game ahead of the pace that landed them at 9-7 and out of the playoffs in 2018 and two games ahead of the pace that got them to 9-7 and on their way to the AFC Championship Game in 2019.

The playoff field is one team bigger now, but the Titans aspire to be a host and that's a reward for winning the division. They don't do that if they get manhandled again by the Colts in Indianapolis.

Beyond special teams, the Titans had plenty of woes.

They gave up 430 net yards with a shiny 29-for-39, 308-yard passing day for Philip Rivers, who threw one TD and one suffered just one sack. Tennessee's defense, better for the second week in a row on third down, allowed three conversions on five fourth-down attempts that served to help exhaust their hosts. The Colts only punted once, and not until late.

"I think that some of the same things that kind of crept up in our game all year kind of came back to haunt us," Kenny Vaccaro said. "Whether it's really just the details, fundamentals, cutting guys loose."

Meanwhile on offense, Ryan Tannehill threw for less as half as much yardage as Rivers and while he also took one sack, a very talented Indy front knocked him around some, with Justin Houston really taking the air out of him at the end of the third quarter.

The Titans had an excellent touchdown drive to open the game and a second-quarter march aided by four Colts' penalties.

After halftime the Titans were outscored 21-0.

Tennessee made significant changes to its defense after the Week 7 loss in Cincinnati, parting ways with Vic Beasley, Johnathan Joseph and Beau Brinkley.

But Stephen Gostkowski has been immune to the same threat so far. Ryan Allen was not very good in his week as Brett Kern's injury replacement and was replaced in four days by Trevor Daniel, who, fairly or not, will be viewed as the central figure in this loss.

Gostkowski missed wide right from 44 yards in the fourth quarter, his eighth miss in 20 attempts this season.

And Daniel shanked a 17-yard punt under some pressure in the third quarter that set up the Colts for their go-ahead touchdown drive, then was helpless under attack from three Colts as E.J. Speed blocked a punt 2:17 later and T.J. Carrie scooped it and took it 6 yards for a TD to make it 27-17.

Mike Vrabel said after the game that everything needs to be reviewed and allowed that the team's evaluation of kickers and punters is included in that.

Mediocre play from special teams has too long been the weekly standard and big failures like the ones in this game have been root causes of losses.

Jon Robinson's actions at kicker over the team's last 24 regular season games feel nonchalant, but it was so bad in 2019 at 44.4 percent that I can see him feeling a lot better about Gostkowski's 60.0 knowing that yes, it can actually be worse.

And while I am sure the team did due diligence in looking over four alternatives to Brett Kern when he suffered his wrist injury at Cincinnati, the punt team's work since sure makes it seem like Kern, and not Craig Aukerman, makes it a functional unit.

There is time, and Mike Vrabel and his staff have done good work with extra days like they have in front of them before taking the Titans to Baltimore.

As charged up as the Colts were for this takedown, it will be difficult for the Ravens not to think back to January, when the Titans showed up and separated them from the No. 1 seed, crushing their season.

The Titans need to be highly motivated and sharp. They need to be able to hit field goals and punt, too.

IF THESE TITANS WERE A STOCK, YOU SHOULD START SELLING. HERE'S WHY | ESTES

BY GENTRY ESTES
THE TENNESSEAN
NOVEMBER 13, 2020

The ninth game last season wasn't any good either.

A defeat to a mediocre Carolina Panthers team that was about to get their coach fired, after which I sat in Charlotte and all but wrote off the 4-5 Titans:

"Barring some dramatic change, this is probably not going to be a playoff team."

And then, dramatic change.

The Titans won their next four games by an average of 15 points, an ultra-impressive surge that started with beating the eventual Super Bowl champion Chiefs. The Titans, of course, did make the playoffs and meet those Chiefs again in the AFC title game.

Lesson learned: Things can turn quickly in the NFL.

It was only a few weeks ago, after all, that people were arguing about whether Ryan Tannehill or Derrick Henry was the better MVP candidate.

Now the Titans' season is suddenly on the brink, and it's getting harder to be encouraged about what's ahead. They've dropped three of four games after a 5-0 start. The next two games are at the Ravens – who are still angry, you'd think, about that playoff loss – and the Colts, who handled the Titans 34-17 on Thursday night.

The Titans are 6-3, but you've got to think a 6-5 record seems likely entering December, when the Browns (5-3) and Packers (6-2) will be waiting to put this franchise right back on the 9-7 train. Hey, that's if they are lucky, since it might be enough to be able to grab one of three AFC wildcard spots. Could be worse, too.

That's getting ahead of ourselves, though, isn't it? Can't say the Titans aren't capable of correcting course quickly, because they did it a year ago.

"I know right now we're in a better spot this year," said safety Kenny Vaccaro.

In the win-loss record, yes.

But I will say – and I warn you, this is about to get bleak – that this season's Titans are not positioned as well to make a run as they were in 2019.

Looking back, there was upside being overlooked. The defense was solid, and the offense was improving. The Tannehill factor was massive as he grew into the offense. Henry's role had room to expand, and it finally did late in the season. Receiver A.J. Brown and defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons, as highly drafted rookies, were budding stars just beginning to break out.

This year looks different. Special teams were bad a year ago, too, but they haven't gotten better. The defense is much worse. The offense is good, but it's not improving, and neither – it must be said – is the entire team.

If the Titans were a stock, you'd be selling. It's difficult to find reasons to think the Titans haven't already maxed out on their 2020 potential.

This year's roster looked solid on the front lines, but the knock going back to the summer was that these Titans sorely lacked depth. That remains true.

During the 2019 regular season, the Titans outscored opponents 146-71 in the fourth quarter. The final 15 minutes of games were actually those Titans' best.

This season, it's their worst. The fourth quarter is the only one in which this season's Titans have been outscored by opponents, and it's by a count of 83-74. That means through nine games they've already allowed more total fourth-quarter points than they did in 16 games last season.

Not good. And there's not much help on the horizon.

A weak 2020 draft class isn't turning this ship. Rookies haven't given the Titans much of anything, and their free-agent additions, for the most part, haven't either. Vic Beasley and Johnathan Joseph were so useless that neither made it halfway through the season before being cut.

So you've had Breon Borders starting at cornerback opposite Malcolm Butler until Adoree Jackson finally is healthy.

Nothing against Borders, who is trying his best. But what does it say about other defensive backs on the roster – guys like Chris Jackson, Kareem Orr, Chris Milton, Joshua Kalu – that the Titans felt they had to throw so much on Borders, a Week 3 practice-squad signing and 2017 undrafted free agent who had spent time with seven other NFL teams? Seven other teams took a look and passed on this same player the Titans are starting.

Scary thing is that it wouldn't take much to see an equally alarming amount of inexperience forced into duty elsewhere, too, most glaringly with Logan Woodside behind Tannehill at quarterback.

This could easily get much worse before it gets better.

Grim assessments flow much easier after defeats like the Titans suffered to the Colts. You never know what the next week holds, but it's becoming clear that another dramatic change is needed soon.

SIX THINGS THAT STOOD OUT FOR THE TITANS IN THURSDAY'S LOSS TO THE COLTS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
NOVEMBER 13, 2020

NASHVILLE – The Titans lost to the Indianapolis Colts 34-17 on Thursday night at Nissan Stadium.

Here's a look at six things that stood out from the game as the team begins to turn its attention to next Sunday's game at the Baltimore Ravens.

A Heavy Heart

Titans receiver Corey Davis played with a heavy heart on Thursday night, and it was evident from the moment he stepped on the field. Davis had tears streaming down his face during the National Anthem. Titus Davis, Corey's older brother, died of cancer on Wednesday at the age of 27. "As he was laying there all he kept telling my sister was to tell me to play, regardless of what happens," Davis said after the game. "He just kept telling me to play, telling me to play throughout the whole process. That's my biggest fan. Since I was a little kid I was always chasing after him and trying to be like him. I wore his number every year to copy him. He thought it was annoying, but I looked up to him tremendously. That was my idol, my hero. I tried to honor him tonight." Davis had five catches for 67 yards against the Colts. After the game, his teammates praised him for commitment. "It was heavy on my mind, every play," Davis said. "But I just kept thinking this is what he wanted me to do. He wouldn't want me to be sad and sulk and feel sorry for myself. I obviously miss him and wish he was here, but I know he's in a better place and that he was with me today."

Frustration on Defense

The Titans couldn't get off the field on Thursday night. Colts quarterback Philip Rivers threw for 308 yards, and he orchestrated one long scoring drive after the next. The Colts controlled the football during the game's most critical stages, and frustrated Tennessee defenders. While the Colts were just 4-of-12 on third down, they were 3-of-5 on fourth down. "A lot of times we were shooting ourselves in the foot," Titans safety Kenny Vaccaro said. "Instead of actually making offenses beat us, we're beating ourselves. So I mean obviously we get these three days off to kind of reflect." The Titans have allowed 30 or more points in five of the team's nine games.

Special Teams Issues

The Titans hurt themselves once against with mishaps on special teams, and it proved costly against the Colts. Punter Trevor Daniel had a punt blocked, and it was returned for a touchdown. Daniels also shanked a punt – it traveled just 17 yards – at a critical time. And Titans kicker Stephen Gostkowski missed a 44-yard field goal after nailing a 50-yarder earlier in the game. While Cam Batson's return on the opening kickoff – after a fake reverse – was nice, it was long forgotten on a night when special teams weren't so special. "I've got a lot of confidence in (special teams coach) Craig (Aukerman) and Ryan (Crow) and what they do," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "We have got to continue to hold people accountable and continue to improve. But no, I think that those guys, I'm very confident that they know what they're doing. I know what they coach. I'm in those meetings. I'm there at practice. So, we just, we'll keep working and making sure that we start playing better in that area and performing better because we have."

Running Game

The Colts entered the game as the NFL's No. 3 ranked run defense, allowing just 83.6 yards per game. The Titans nearly doubled that number on Thursday, rushing for 157 yards. It was the third time in 2020 and the third time in a five-game span totaling at least 150 rushing yards. Sure, there were some ugly, negative runs. But running back Derrick Henry registered his fifth 100-yard rushing game of 2020 with 103 yards on 19 rushing attempts. In the process he reclaimed the NFL rushing lead in 2020 (through Thursday, Nov. 12) with 946 yards on 201 carries (4.7 avg.). "They just played better than us in all three phases and hats off to them," Henry said of the Colts. "We've just got to take a couple days off and then get back to work. No excuses. Just we have to be better as a team. We know that. We need to fix the mistakes and do better this week coming up."

Costly Offensive Mistakes

The Titans didn't turn the football over, and if you look at the stat sheet the numbers don't look that shabby – 25 first downs, 294 yards of offense, and the 157 rushing yards as previously mentioned. But the Titans hurt themselves with mistakes and missed opportunities. With the Titans holding a 7-0 lead, receiver A.J. Brown let what looked like a sure touchdown go off his hands. Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill missed tight end Jonnu Smith on what could have been a big play, and the Titans were 3-of-10 on third down. It all added up a frustrating night that saw the Titans get shut out in the second half. "On the whole, we just have to be able to execute better and make the plays that come up," Tannehill said. "There's opportunities there and we're just not making enough plays when we get those opportunities."

The Aftermath

Not long ago the Titans were 5-0 and sitting pretty atop the AFC South. Now the team is 6-3, tied with the Colts in the division. And the road gets tougher from here. Next up is a trip to Baltimore to face a 6-2 Ravens team that will be looking to avenge last year's playoff loss. Then the Titans will travel to Indianapolis to face these same Colts, and the much-improved Browns (5-3) are on the horizon. And let's not forget the Titans have a December 27 game in Green Bay

(6-2). The Titans have a tough road ahead, and they'd better get things cleaned up. "(We have to) get healthy and try to get in your best mindset because you know you have to make a run now," Titans center Ben Jones said. "That's what this season is about, you have to play your best ball in November and December."

UPDATED BIOS

8 RYAN ALLEN

PUNTER • 6'2" • 220 LBS • COLLEGE: LOUISIANA TECH
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 8/1
HOMETOWN: SALEM, ORE.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 105/0 (PLAYOFFS: 16/0)

Super Bowl: 2014, 2016, 2018

PRO: Signed by the Titans during Week 9 of the 2020 season to bring veteran experience to the punting position and special teams units. The 6-foot-2-inch, 220-pounder has appeared in 104 games and 16 playoff contests over an eight-year career, serving as the primary punter for the New England Patriots from 2013-18 and then spending a portion of the 2019 season with the Atlanta Falcons. The Salem, Ore., native's career totals include 465 punts for 20,870 yards with a 44.9-yard average, and 18,617 net punting yards for a 39.9-yard net average. The Louisiana Tech product has placed 181 career punts inside the 20-yard line.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Allen finished the season as the New England Patriots all-time leader in punt average (minimum 50 punts) with a then-45.3-yard gross career average.
- In 2017, Allen limited his opponents to just 23 punt returns for a 4.6-yard average, the lowest in New England history while with the club.
- Allen has been named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week twice (Week 3, 2016; Week 14, 2014).
- In 2013, Allen set a Patriots rookie record with a 39.9 net average yards per punt.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- While at Louisiana Tech, Allen won the Ray Guy Award in 2011 and 2012, becoming the first player to claim the award given to the nation's top collegiate punter in back-to-back seasons.
- Allen initially enrolled at Oregon State as a walk-on and competed for a spot as the team's punter with current Los Angeles Rams punter Johnny Hekker, a competition that Hekker won. Initially discouraged, Allen said that bump in the road helped him become a better punter and eventually win a job in the NFL. "They (Oregon State) ended up choosing him (Hekker) at the end of the day. I took it rough and kind of hung my head. So he got the scholarship, but as I got better, I thought I could definitely go play somewhere else. That's how I made the decision to transfer once that time came." Allen transferred to Louisiana Tech in 2010.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Salem, Ore., native was originally signed by the New England Patriots as a rookie free agent on April 27, 2013.
- Waived by the Patriots on Aug. 19, 2019.
- Signed by the Atlanta Falcons as a free agent on Nov. 4, 2019.
- Waived by the Falcons on Nov. 29, 2019.
- Signed by the Falcons on Dec. 7, 2019.
- Waived by the Falcons on Aug. 2, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Nov. 7 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (1/0 - Tennessee):

- Against Chicago (11/8), made his Titans debut and punted eight times for 404 yards (50.5 avg.). Flipped field position with a 55-yard punt, his first in a Titans uniform, in the first quarter. Boomed a 60-yard punt that went out of bounds at the Bears' 20-yard line late in the first stanza.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), was inactive.

- 2019 (8/0 - Atlanta): Spent a portion of the season with the Atlanta Falcons. LINEBACKER • 5'11" • 225 LBS • COLLEGE: AUBURN
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 8/4
HOMETOWN: OLIVE BRANCH, MISS.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 111/0 (PLAYOFFS: 6/0)

 Captain: 2018

PRO: Daren Bates is an athletic linebacker that has excelled on special teams coverage units during his NFL career. He joined the Titans in 2017 after spending time with the St. Louis Rams and Oakland Raiders. In 2018, he was named a Titans special teams captain for the first time. Bates, a former rookie free agent, will once again look to make his biggest impact as a core member of the Titans' special teams units and provide veteran depth in the linebacking corps.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Bates was a team captain (special teams) for the first time and tallied 10 special teams tackles.
- In 2017, Bates set a career high and ranked second on the team with 16 special teams tackles.
- Bates registered back-to-back seasons (2014-2015) of double-digit special teams tackles as a member of the St. Louis Rams.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In 2018, Bates and NFL defensive end Armonty Bryant opened AstroKids Gym in Austin, Texas. The facility offers children's classes and camps based upon proprioceptive learning.
- Bates is a Memphis native and a huge Memphis Grizzlies fan.
- For the My Cause, My Cleats campaign, Bates has worn specially designed cleats featuring the words "American Heart Association" to raise awareness for the organization's life-saving mission. His mother, Weslynn Bates, was a heart transplant recipient and lived some wonderful years following her surgery. She sadly passed away in 2015 at the age of 56.
- Bates is a tattoo enthusiast and has 107 tattoos.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Memphis, Tenn., native was originally signed by St. Louis Rams as an undrafted free agent on May 9, 2013.
- Signed by Oakland Raiders as a free agent on March 14, 2016.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 11, 2017.
- Signed by the Houston Texans as a free agent on Aug. 23, 2020.
- Released by the Texans on Aug. 31, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans to their practice squad on Sept. 13, 2020.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster COVID-19 replacement on Oct. 13, 2020.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster COVID-19 replacement on Oct. 17, 2020.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster standard elevation on Oct. 24, 2020.

13 CAMERON BATSON

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'8" • 175 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS TECH
 ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/3
 HOMETOWN: OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.
 GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 16/3 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans signed Cameron Batson as a rookie free agent following the 2018 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-8-inch, 180-pounder is a shifty route-runner with good burst and run-after-catch ability. The Texas Tech product also has experience in the return game having brought back both kickoffs and punts during his collegiate career. In four seasons with the Red Raiders, Batson collected 157 receptions for 1,499 yards and 14 touchdowns, while returning 22 kickoffs for 417 yards and 65 punts for 394 yards.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Batson made the Titans' active roster out of training camp as a rookie free agent. He appeared in 11 games with two starts at wide receiver and posted eight catches for 82 yards.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Batson was the valedictorian of his class at Millwood (Okla.) High School, and at Texas Tech, he graduated cum laude with his accounting degree in just over three years. His valedictorian speech – he had 52 in his graduating class – focused on his class, along with his past, and his journey.
- Batson wasn't necessarily expecting to make the team's 53-man roster as a rookie free agent in 2018. So when he walked into general manager Jon Robinson's office during cutdown day, he was expecting the worst. But things took a nice turn, and then something happened even the GM had never experienced before. Robinson told Batson he'd made the team's 53-man roster, and an impromptu prayer broke out. "I sat there and prayed," Batson said, "and Jon bowed his head with me. He said, "That's the first time anyone had ever done that.' ... I just wanted to give God the glory, with everything that is going on good or bad, because without Him nothing is possible."
- He has a dog named Kookie, and runs an Instagram account for her @ms.kookiemonster.
- Batson was roommates with Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes at Texas Tech.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Oklahoma City, Okla., native was signed by the Titans as an undrafted free agent on May 11, 2018.
- Waived by the Titans on Sept. 17, 2018 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Oct. 10, 2018.
- Waived by the Titans on Sept. 7, 2020 and signed to the team's practice squad two days later.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster standard elevation on Sept. 19, 2020.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster COVID-19 replacement on Oct. 17, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Nov. 7, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (5/1):

- Against Jacksonville (9/20), returned to the lineup for the first time since 2018 and snared two passes for 26 yards. Rushed once for 11 yards on a jet sweep.

FULLBACK/RUNNING BACK • 6'0" • 233 LBS • COLLEGE: VANDERBILT
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: NEW MARKET, ALA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 14/7 (PLAYOFFS: 3/1)

PRO: The Titans signed fullback/running back Khari Blasingame off the Minnesota Vikings' practice squad during the 2019 season to provide depth in the backfield and on special teams. Blasingame originally signed with the Vikings as a rookie free agent following the 2019 NFL Draft and spent the first 10 weeks of his rookie campaign on the team's practice squad. The 6-foot, 233-pounder amassed 997 rushing yards and 15 rushing scores as well as 35 catches for 380 yards and two receiving touchdowns during his collegiate career at Vanderbilt.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Blasingame enjoys playing the saxophone.
- Blasingame originally started his Vanderbilt career at linebacker before transitioning to running back as a sophomore in 2016.
- After his football career, Blasingame's goal is to become the CEO of a hospital or health care system. Once there, he wants to focus on improving health care outcomes for disadvantaged populations. He earned his undergraduate degree in medicine, health and society from Vanderbilt in 2017 and is working towards master's degree in education, after playing his final collegiate season in 2018 as a graduate student.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The New Market, Ala., native was originally signed by the Minnesota Vikings as a rookie free agent on May 3, 2019.
- Waived by the Vikings on Aug. 31, 2019 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.

11 A.J. BROWN

WIDE RECEIVER • 6'1" • 226 LBS • COLLEGE: MISSISSIPPI
ACQUIRED: 2ND ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: STARKVILLE, MISS.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 23/16 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans selected A.J. Brown in the second round (51st overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-1-inch, 226-pounder owns a complete skill set as a wide receiver, excelling in route-running, blocking, and the ability to get open and catch the ball. As a rookie in 2019, he led all NFL rookies in receiving yards (1,051) and total touchdowns (nine), while his 20.2-yard receiving average ranked second among all players behind only Los Angeles Chargers veteran Mike Williams (20.4).

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Brown led the Titans in every major receiving category, totaling 52 catches for 1,051 yards and eight touchdowns. Among all rookies in franchise history, he ranked third in receiving yards and fifth in receptions, and he tied for the third-highest receiving touchdown total.
- Brown led the 2019 NFL rookie class in receiving yards and total touchdowns, and he tied for the rookie lead in touchdown receptions. He also placed fifth among rookies in receptions. Among all NFL players in 2019—rookies and veterans—Brown finished second in receiving average (20.2), behind only the Los Angeles Chargers' Mike Williams (20.4).
- In his first NFL game at Cleveland on Sept. 8, 2019, he recorded three catches for 100 yards, becoming the franchise's first player with 100 receiving yards in his first career game since Sid Blanks on Sept. 12, 1964.
- In 2018, Brown started all 12 games in his final season at Ole Miss and set school single-season records in receiving yards (1,320) and catches (85). He led the SEC in both categories.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Brown was selected in the 19th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball Draft by the San Diego Padres as a centerfielder, and he participated in the team's extended spring training program each summer from 2016-18.
- He has a dog, Bentley Juan Brown, and runs an Instagram account for him @bentleyjuan1.
- During a pre-draft visit to San Francisco, Brown was able to link up and work out with Hall of Fame NFL receiver and fellow Mississippian Jerry Rice. Rice took Brown on the horse trail at Edgewood Park in Redwood City, known as one of Rice's training sites, where the pair ran hills as part of their work out. Brown's hometown Starkville, Miss., and Rice's hometown Crawford, Miss., are a 30-minute drive apart.
- In every sport Brown played growing up, he wore jersey No. 1.
- Brown names the 2017 Egg Bowl as his most memorable college football moment. "Playing against Mississippi State in my hometown," he says, "Everything was great. We won, and I had six catches for 167 yards and one touchdown." After reaching the end zone, Brown yelled to the crowd, "This is my city."
- Brown briefly stopped playing football during junior high and his freshman year of high school. He returned to the field his sophomore year after his high school coach suggested he play again.
- He enjoys shooting pool in his free time.
- His transition from college to the pros was made easier due to his older sister, Reva, already living in Nashville before he was drafted by the Titans.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Starkville, Miss., native was selected by the Titans in the second round (51st overall) the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (7/5): Leads the team with 478 receiving yards. Ranks second on the squad with 32 receptions. Tied for first on the squad with six receiving touchdowns. Has led or tied for the team lead in receptions three times in 2020 (vs. BUF, vs. PIT, vs. CHI). Has led the team in receiving yards three times in 2020 (vs. BUF, vs. PIT, vs. CHI). Has seven career 100-yard receiving performances, including two in 2020 (vs. PIT, vs. CHI). Became the franchise's third player to eclipse 1,500 career receiving yards before his 24th birthday at 23 years and 131 days old against Chicago (11/8/20).

- At Denver (9/14), started at wide receiver and hauled in five passes for 39 yards.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), was inactive.
- At Minnesota (9/27), was inactive.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), returned to the lineup as a reserve at wide receiver and led the team with seven receptions and 82 receiving yards with a touchdown. Got the Titans on the board early in the first quarter by getting open down the left sideline for a 16-yard touchdown grab in the end zone. Extended the Titans' third touchdown drive by drawing a defensive pass interference penalty on third-and-four late in the second quarter.
- Against Houston (10/18), started at wide receiver and snared five passes for 58 yards with two touchdowns. Registered the 10th and 11th touchdown receptions of his career. In doing so, he became the franchise's first player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to reach 10 career touchdown receptions in less than 20 career games. Increased the Titans lead to 14-0 with a six-yard touchdown reception late in the opening quarter. Sent the game to overtime with a seven-yard touchdown grab in the end zone with four seconds left to play in regulation.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), started at wide receiver and led the team with career-high tying 153 yards on six catches with a touchdown. Got open over the middle and hauled in a 73-yard catch-and-run touchdown in the third quarter.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), started at wide receiver and collected four receptions for 24 yards with a touchdown. Cut the Bengals' lead to 24-14 by breaking tackles on the way to a nine-yard touchdown reception in the fourth quarter.
- Against Chicago (11/8), started at wide receiver and led the team with four catches and 101 receiving yards with a score. Set up the Titans' opening field goal with a 38-yard catch-and-run reception down to the Bears' 28-yard line in the first quarter. Extended the Titans' first touchdown drive with a 17-yard catch on third-and-six in the second quarter. Got open down the left sideline and hauled in a 40-yard touchdown strike for a 10-0 advantage in the second stanza.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), saw action as a reserve at wide receiver and caught one pass for 21 yards.

2019 (16/11, 3/3): Received all-rookie first team honors from the Pro Football Writers Association. Appeared in all 16 games with 11 starts at wide receiver. Led the team with 52 receptions, 1,051 receiving yards and eight receiving touchdowns. Led all NFL rookies with 1,051 receiving yards, ranked fifth among all rookies with 52 receptions and tied for first among all NFL rookies with eight touchdown receptions. Led all NFL rookies with five 100-yard receiving games in 2019. His 20.2-yard receiving average in 2019 ranked second among all qualifying NFL players. Also rushed three times for 60 yards with a rushing score. Started all three postseason contests and notched five catches for 64 yards to go along with one rush for nine yards. Led the team in receiving yards eight times (at CLE, at ATL, at CAR, vs. JAX, at IND, at OAK, vs. HOU, at HOU). Led or tied for the team lead in receptions six times (vs. LAC, vs. JAX, at IND, at OAK, vs. HOU, at HOU). Made his first career start in his NFL debut at Cleveland (9/8/19). Collected his first two receiving touchdowns at Atlanta (9/29/19). Became the first rookie in the "Titans era" (1999–present) to have five 100-yard receiving games. Became the first rookie in the "Titans era" (1999–present) with at least five touchdown receptions—he finished with eight. Ranked third in team history for receiving yards by a rookie, fifth in franchise history for receptions by a rookie and tied for third in franchise history for touchdown receptions by a rookie. Posted his fourth touchdown reception of the season of at least 50 yards at Houston (12/29/19), the first rookie to do so since Randy Moss (five in 1998). Named the AFC Offensive Rookie of the Month for December, after hauling in 21 receptions for 470 yards with four touchdowns.

- At Cleveland (9/8), started at wide receiver in his NFL debut and snared three catches for a team-best 100 yards. With his 100 receiving yards, he became the franchise's first player with 100 receiving yards in his first career game since Sid Blanks on Sept. 12, 1964. Got the Titans' opening scoring drive rolling with his first career reception, a 47-yard catch-and-run play, in the first quarter. Kickstarted the Titans' scoring drive early in the third quarter with a 51-yard reception over the middle.

- At Atlanta (9/29), led the team with 94 receiving yards on three catches, including a team-high two touchdowns. Became the first Titans rookie with two or more touchdown receptions in a game since Chris Sanders against the Denver Broncos on Nov. 26, 1995. Gave the Titans an early 7-0 lead with a 55-yard catch-and-run touchdown on the first play of the second possession. Made an acrobatic, toe-drag 11-yard touchdown reception in the corner of the end zone late in the first quarter.

- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), tied for the team lead with six catches for 64 yards. Totaled three receptions for 42 yards during the Titans' touchdown drive late in the second quarter.

- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), gave the Titans a 27-23 lead with an eight-yard touchdown grab on third-and-eight midway through the fourth quarter.

- At Carolina (11/3), led the team with 81 receiving yards on four catches. Extended the Titans' second touchdown drive with a beautiful over the shoulder catch on a 35-yard bomb.

- Against Jacksonville (11/24), led the team with four catches and a then career-high 135 receiving yards with a touchdown. Kickstarted the Titans' touchdown drive to open the second half with a 35-yard catch early in the third quarter. Increased the Titans lead to 35-3 with a career-long 65-yard catch-and-run touchdown in the third stanza.

- At Oakland (12/8), started at wide receiver and led the team with five catches, a career-high 153 receiving yards and two receiving scores. Gave the Titans a 14-7 advantage with a career-long 91-yard touchdown grab early in the second quarter. His 91-yard touchdown reception was the fourth-longest touchdown catch in franchise history and the longest since 1965. Increased the Titans lead to 21-14 with a physical 16-yard touchdown catch on third-and-13 in the second quarter.

- Against Houston (12/15), started at wide receiver and led the team with a career-high eight catches and 114 receiving yards with a touchdown. Got open deep and hauled in a 60-yard reception down the right sideline in the opening quarter. Extended the Titans' initial touchdown drive with a pair of third-down conversions: a nine-yard catch on third-and-five and an 11-yard reception on third-and-three in the third quarter. Evened the score at 14-14 with a five-yard touchdown grab early in the fourth quarter.

- Against New Orleans (12/22), started at wide receiver and hauled in a 34-yard catch to go along with a 49-yard rushing touchdown. Extended the Titans lead to 14-0 with a 49-yard touchdown jaunt on a reverse in the first quarter.

- At Houston (12/29), started at wide receiver and led the team with 124 receiving yards while tying for the team lead with four receptions and a receiving touchdown. Evened the score at 7-7 with a 51-yard catch-and-run touchdown down the right sideline on third-and-five in the opening quarter. Eclipsed 1,000 yards receiving for the season with a 24-yard grab from Marcus Mariota during the Titans' second touchdown drive. Set up the Titans' fourth touchdown with a 47-yard catch over double coverage down to the Houston one-yard line early in the fourth quarter.

- At New England (1/4), started at wide receiver in his first career postseason game and caught one pass for four yards.

- At Baltimore (1/11), started at wide receiver and hauled in one reception for nine yards.

- At Kansas City (1/19), started at wide receiver and grabbed three receptions for 51 yards. Kickstarted the Titans' first scoring drive with a 37-yard reception over the middle on the second play from scrimmage.

COLLEGE:

- In three seasons at Ole Miss (2016-18), appeared in 36 games and made 25 starts. He became the program's all-time leading receiver with 2,984 yards, ranked third in school history with 189 receptions, and placed fifth all-time with 19 touchdowns. Brown averaged 15.8 yards per catch and 82.9 yards per game, and he tallied the most 100-yard receiving games in Ole Miss history with 12. He became the third player in school history to top 1,000 yards in a single season and the only receiver in Ole Miss history to tally 60 or more receptions in back-to-back seasons.

- As a junior (2018), played and started all 12 games and set career highs and Ole Miss single-season receiving records with 85 receptions and 1,320 yards. His 1,320 receiving yards led the SEC, were seventh in the nation, and broke the Ole Miss record for single-season receiving yards that he had set in 2017. He added six touchdowns on the year. 55 JAYON BROWN

LINEBACKER • 6'0" • 226 LBS • COLLEGE: UCLA

ACQUIRED: 5TH ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4

HOMETOWN: LONG BEACH, CALIF.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 55/32 (PLAYOFFS: 4/2)

PRO: The Titans selected Jayon Brown in the fifth round of the 2017 NFL Draft. He possesses tremendous speed for the position and excels at covering tight ends and running backs. The 6-foot, 226-pound defender has emerged as one of the Titans' top defensive playmakers, ranking third on the team with a career-high 117 tackles in 2019 and finishing second on the squad with 107 total tackles and six sacks in 2018.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Brown started a career-best 14 games and ranked third on the team with a career-high 117 tackles and fourth on squad with nine passes defended.
- In 2018, Brown finished second on the defense with 107 tackles and six sacks, and his 18 quarterback pressures tied for the second-highest total on the team. He was one of only six NFL linebackers with at least six sacks, one interception, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery during the season.
- Against Indianapolis on Dec. 30, 2018, Brown recorded his first career interception and returned the ball 22 yards for his first career touchdown. He later recorded a forced fumble and fumble recovery, and in doing so, he became the third NFL player in 2018 to record an interception for a touchdown, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery in the same game (Bobby Wagner, Khalil Mack). Brown became the first Titans player to accomplish the feat since at least 1993.
- As a rookie in 2017, Brown appeared in every game as the team's nickel linebacker. He registered 67 tackles, which tied for the 10th-highest total by a "Titans era" rookie (1999–present) and ranked fifth among the team's rookie linebackers in that span.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Brown went to the same California high school, Long Beach Poly, as former Titans great Jurrell Casey. Brown's older brother, Juwuan, was Jurrell's teammate there.
- He likes spending as much time as possible with his dogs, "a mutt named Lou" and a Rottweiler named Kali. He also enjoys puzzles and watching movies.
- Former Long Beach Poly and New England Patriots star Willie McGinest is a close friend of the Brown family.
- Brown's younger brother, Joshua, is a defensive end at the University of Arizona, and his two older brothers also played college football. Jason played linebacker at Idaho, while Juwuan was a defensive lineman at Southern Oregon.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Long Beach, Calif., native was selected by the Titans in the fifth round (155th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

- 2020 (9/9): Leads the team with 73 tackles. Ranks second on the squad with eight passes defended. 21 MALCOLM BUTLER

CORNERBACK • 5'11" • 190 LBS • COLLEGE: WEST ALABAMA
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (NEW ENGLAND) - 2018
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/3 • HOMETOWN: VICKSBURG, MISS.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 93/77 (PLAYOFFS: 11/7)

Super Bowl: 2014, 2016

Pro Bowl: 2015, 2016

PRO: The Titans entered the 2018 offseason looking to add more experience to their secondary. The club found just that when it signed two-time Super Bowl Champion and two-time Pro Bowler Malcolm Butler as an unrestricted free agent on March 16, 2018. The 5-foot-11-inch, 190-pounder arrived in Tennessee having collected nine total interceptions and 56 passes defended in four seasons (2014-17) with the New England Patriots. Butler originally entered the league as a rookie free agent out of West Alabama.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Butler is a two-time Super Bowl champion, having captured the title with the New England Patriots in 2014 and 2016.
- In 2019, he posted his fifth consecutive season with at least two interceptions, and his second consecutive season with an interception returned for a touchdown.
- In 2018, Butler led the Titans with 13 passes defended and was second on the team with three interceptions in his first season with the Titans.
- In 2016, Butler was named to his second career Pro Bowl and received Associated Press second-team All-Pro honors after notching a career-high four interceptions and 17 passes defended.
- In 2015, Butler made his first career Pro Bowl after posting 72 tackles, two interceptions and 15 passes defended.
- As a rookie free agent in 2014, Butler was involved in one of the most clutch plays in Super Bowl history. With 26 seconds left in Super Bowl XLIX, he intercepted a pass intended for Ricardo Lockette at the goal line, preventing a go-ahead touchdown by the Seattle Seahawks, and sealing the Patriots' championship victory.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Every offseason since 2015, Butler has hosted free skills and multi-sport experience camps in his hometown of Vicksburg, Miss., for 500 boys and girls in first through 12th grades.
- In February 2017, the production company Narrative Capital acquired the rights to the story of Butler for a film tentatively titled "The Secondary."
- Following Butler's crucial goal line interception to seal Super Bowl XLIX, Patriots quarterback Tom Brady, who received a 2015 Chevrolet Colorado as part of his Super Bowl XLIX MVP Award, requested Chevrolet award the truck directly to Butler.
- Prior to securing a rookie free agent tryout with the Patriots in 2014, Butler was operating the fryolator at a Popeye's restaurant.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Vicksburg, Miss., native was signed by the New England Patriots as a rookie free agent on May 19, 2014.
- Signed by the Titans as a unrestricted free agent on March 16, 2018.

- Against Indianapolis (9/15), started at cornerback and tallied seven tackles and a pass defended. Broke up a third-and-seven pass intended for Deon Cain early in the third quarter.
- At Atlanta (9/29), started at cornerback and registered six tackles and a pass defended. Stopped Devonta Freeman for a one-yard loss on a short pass in the fourth quarter.
- At Denver (10/13), started at cornerback and recorded two tackles and a team-best two passes defended. Broke up a third-and-seven pass intended for Courtland Sutton in the opening stanza. Knocked down a pass intended for Emmanuel Sanders in the first quarter.
- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), started at cornerback and posted five tackles and a pass defended. Combined with Wesley Woodyard to stuff Austin Ekeler for no gain on a rush off left end late in the opening quarter.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), started at cornerback and tallied a tackle and an interception. Intercepted a Jameis Winston pass intended for Chris Godwin and returned it 23 yards to the Tampa Bay six-yard line late in the first quarter.
- At Carolina (11/3), started at cornerback and produced two passes defended before leaving the game late in the second quarter with an injury.

2018 (16/11 - Tennessee): Played in all 16 games with 11 starts at cornerback in his first season with the Titans and led the team with 13 passes defended. Ranked second on the team with three interceptions. Collected 56 tackles, a sack, three stops for loss, a quarterback pressure and a forced fumble. Led or tied for the team lead in passes defended seven times (at MIA, vs. HOU, vs. BAL, at IND, vs. NYJ, vs. JAX, vs. IND). Tied for the team lead in sacks once (vs. PHI).

- At Miami (9/9), started at cornerback in his first game with the Titans and collected five tackles, an interception, a stop for loss and two passes defended. Stuffed Kenyan Drake for a one-yard loss on a short pass to the flat in the second quarter. Intercepted a Ryan Tannehill pass intended for Mike Gesicki in the end zone and returned it 34 yards in the third quarter. Batted down a pass intended for Albert Wilson late in the third stanza.
- Against Houston (9/16), started at cornerback and tallied six tackles and two passes defended. Broke up a pass intended for DeAndre Hopkins early in the first quarter. Batted down a pass intended for Hopkins during the Texans' final drive late in the fourth quarter.
- Against Philadelphia (9/30), started at cornerback and notched seven tackles, including a sack. Came off the edge on a blitz and dropped Carson Wentz for a nine-yard sack in the first quarter. Forced an Alshon Jeffery fumble that went out of bounds in the second quarter.
- Against Baltimore (10/14), played as a reserve at cornerback and amassed three tackles and two passes defended. Broke up a deep pass intended for Michael Crabtree late in the second quarter.
- At Indianapolis (11/18), started at cornerback and collected two tackles and a pass defended. Halted the Colts' opening drive by breaking up a third-and-nine pass intended for Ryan Grant in the first quarter.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/2), started at cornerback and tallied six tackles, an interception and a stop for loss. Halted a Jets' drive by stonewalling Elijah McGuire for a four-yard loss on a short third-and-two swing pass in the fourth quarter. Sealed the victory by intercepting a Josh McCown pass intended for Chris Herndon late in the fourth quarter.
- Against Washington (12/22), started at cornerback and totaled three tackles, an interception returned for a score, a stop for loss and a quarterback pressure. Broke up a pass intended for Josh Doctson in the third quarter. Sealed the victory by intercepting a Josh Johnson pass and racing 56 yards as time expired in the game.
- Against Indianapolis (12/30), started at cornerback and registered six tackles and two passes defended. Batted down a pass intended for Dontrelle Inman in the second quarter. Broke up a pass intended for Eric Ebron in the third stanza.

2017 (16/15, 3/2 - New England): Played in all 16 games with 15 starts at cornerback and amassed 60 tackles, two interceptions, a sack, 12 passes defended and three forced fumbles. Saw action in all three postseason games with two starts and posted four tackles.

- Against Carolina (10/1), started at cornerback and led the team with eight tackles, while adding a pass defended and a first quarter interception of Cam Newton that led to the Patriots first touchdown drive.
- At N.Y. Jets (10/15), started at cornerback and was a key contributor with four tackles, three passes defended and an interception late in the second quarter that led to a Patriots touchdown to tie the game going into halftime. Also forced a fumble of Austin Seferian-Jenkins as he was going into the end zone for a fourth-quarter score which caused the fumble out of bounds to be ruled a touchback and returned possession to the Patriots.
- Against Atlanta (10/22), contributed with six tackles and a pass defended in a starting role at cornerback. The pass defended came on a third-and-one pass breakup of a Julio Jones fourth quarter target in the end zone which led to a fourth-down stop on the ensuing play for the Patriots.
- At Buffalo (12/3), made the start at cornerback and finished with a team-high eight tackles.
- At Pittsburgh (12/17), started at cornerback and finished with three tackles, including a key stop on the penultimate play of the game when he tackled Darrius Heyward-Bey inbounds to keep the clock running prior to Duron Harmon's game-sealing interception on the next play in the win.
- Against Buffalo (12/24), made the start at cornerback and finished with three tackles, a pass defended and a 13-yard sack of Tyrod Taylor in the fourth quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (1/21), started at cornerback and finished with six tackles total and added a pass defended in the AFC Championship victory.

2016 (16/16, 3/3 - New England): Earned his second career Pro Bowl invitation and named to the Associated Press All-Pro second team after starting all 16 regular season games and recording 63 tackles, one sack, and notched career-high four interceptions and 17 passes defended. Also forced one fumble and recovered two others. Started all three postseason contests and posted 11 tackles and one pass defended.

- Against Miami (9/18), led the team with eight tackles and one pass defended.
- At Pittsburgh (10/23), picked off Landry Jones in the end zone during the first quarter to end a Steelers scoring threat. Finished the game with six tackles and three passes defended.
- Against Seattle (11/13), led the defense with nine total tackles.
- At San Francisco (11/20), recorded his first ever NFL sack when he took down Colin Kaepernick. Added two tackles.
- At N.Y. Jets (11/27), forced and recovered a fumble to mark the first forced fumble and fumble recovery of his NFL career that led to a Patriots touchdown. Also added five total tackles.
- Against the Los Angeles Rams (12/4), picked off Jared Goff for seven yards. Added one total tackle and three passes defended.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/24), had his first career two-interception game in the win when he picked off Bryce Petty on third-and-11 in the first quarter and Ryan Fitzpatrick for a 21-yard gain at the end of the third stanza. Had three total takeaways in the game after adding a fumble recovery in the second quarter to mark the first time that a Patriots player has had three takeaways in the same game since Steve Gregory had three (one interception and two fumble recoveries at N.Y. Jets Nov. 22, 2012).
- Against Pittsburgh (1/22), recorded four tackles and a pass defended in the AFC Championship.

2015 (16/16, 2/2 - New England): Earned his first career Pro Bowl invitation after starting all 16 regular season contests and recording 72 tackles, two interceptions and 15 passes defended. Started both playoff games and posted 12 tackles and three passes defended.

- At Buffalo (9/20), recorded his first career regular season interception off a Tyrod Taylor pass. Also added six tackles and one pass defended.
- At Indianapolis (10/18), recorded a single-game career-high nine tackles and two passes defended.
- At N.Y. Giants (11/15), recorded two solo tackles and three passes defended. Butler's three passes defended came against Odell Beckham Jr., who Butler held to four receptions on 12 targets.
- Against Tennessee (12/20), recorded seven tackles, an interception and one pass defended.
- Against Kansas City (1/16), made his first postseason start and recorded five tackles and one pass defended in the playoff victory.
- At Denver (1/24), recorded a career playoff-high seven tackles and two passes defended in the AFC Championship Game.

2014 (11/1, 3/0 - New England): Made the team as a rookie free agent and appeared in 11 regular season games with one start and totaled 14 tackles, four passes defended and one special teams tackle. Was inactive for four games and did not play in another contest. Played as a reserve in all three playoff contests and made four tackles, one interception and three passes defended.

- At Miami (9/7), made his NFL debut on special teams and at cornerback and recorded two tackles.
- Against Denver (11/2), saw significant playing time as a fourth cornerback and finished with four tackles and one pass defended.
- Against Miami (12/14), made his first NFL start at defensive back and notched two tackles.
- Against Buffalo (12/28), posted four tackles and one special teams stop.
- Against Seattle (2/1), sealed the Patriots' 28-24 Super Bowl XLIX win by intercepting Russell Wilson's pass intended for Ricardo Lockette in the end zone with 26 seconds left to play. He undercut a slant route, picked off the pass and returned it to the two-yard line. It was his first career NFL interception. Two plays before the interception, Butler swatted a deep pass intended for Jermaine Kearse, but Kearse was able to gather the tipped ball before Butler pushed him out of bounds at the five-yard line. Butler led the team with a game-high three passes defended in just 18 defensive snaps and posted three tackles.

COLLEGE:

- Played two seasons at West Alabama after transferring from Hinds (Miss.) Community College. Was a two-time first team All-Gulf South Conference selection at cornerback as a junior and senior.
- Played in 25 games at West Alabama and compiled 94 tackles, seven interceptions, 27 passes defended and blocked a field goal. Also returned kickoffs and punts.
- As a senior (2013), named first-team All-Gulf South Conference selection

31 KEVIN BYARD

SAFETY • 5'11" • 212 LBS • COLLEGE: MIDDLE TENNESSEE STATE
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2016 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 5/5
HOMETOWN: LITHONIA, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 73/64 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

Captain: 2019, 2020

Pro Bowl: 2017

PRO: The Titans selected Kevin Byard with the first pick of the third round in the 2016 NFL Draft, and he is now considered one of the top safeties in the NFL. Following his second season, during which he tied for the NFL lead in interceptions (eight) and led the NFL in total takeaways (10), he was named first-team Associated Press All-Pro and earned his first Pro Bowl berth. From 2017 through 2019, no player had more interceptions than Byard, who totaled 17. The 5-foot-11-inch, 212-pound defender was named a team captain for the defense for the first time in 2019. A product of Middle Tennessee State University, Byard has a reputation as a sideline-to-sideline, ball-hawking safety who plays with tremendous intelligence and effort.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- From 2017 through 2019, Byard led the NFL with 17 interceptions.
- In 2019, Byard led the team in interceptions (five) for the third consecutive season, while starting every contest for the third consecutive season.
- In 2018, Byard led the team with four interceptions and ranked third on the team with 96 tackles and 10 passes defended.
- In 2017, Byard was named to the Pro Bowl and earned first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors after tying Detroit's Darius Slay for the NFL lead with eight interceptions. He added a pair of fumble recoveries to pace the league with 10 total takeaways.
- His eight interceptions in 2017 tied for seventh in franchise history and made up the highest total by any franchise player since Oilers cornerback Richard Johnson picked off eight passes in 1990.
- In 2016, Byard saw action in all 16 games with seven starts and compiled 63 tackles, a sack, five tackles for loss, three quarterback pressures, four passes defended and 10 special teams tackles. His seven starts were the most by a Titans rookie safety since Michael Griffin (10) in 2007.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In July 2020, Byard was named the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville. His first order of business was to participate in the organization's virtual Stuff the Bus school supply drive.
- Byard credits his mother, Artina Stanley, for much of his success. Following a divorce when Byard was in ninth grade, his mother moved with the children from Philadelphia to Atlanta. Although it was a financial struggle, Stanley worked long hours to make sure her children received what they needed. Byard claims he and his older brother "had to grow up really fast" as they helped their mother with taking care of the younger kids in the family. In May 2020, Byard was able to accomplish a goal of helping to purchase his mother her "forever home."
- During the 2019 offseason, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. He plans to hold the camp—which is free—every year.
- The Titans had an inside track in their scouting of Byard. Titans general manager Jon Robinson received glowing reports on Byard from his friend and MTSU recruiting coordinator Steve Ellis. When Robinson was a linebackers coach at Nicholls State, Ellis was one of his pupils, and the two remained close through the years. Additionally, Patrick Callaway, college scout for the Titans, was Byard's high school teammate.
- Byard says his football role models are Ed Reed, Brian Dawkins and Troy Polamalu.
- Byard has aspirations to travel the world, and his bucket list includes setting foot on every continent.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Lithonia, Ga., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (64th overall) of the 2016 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

- 2020 (9/9): Leads the NFL with 17 regular season interceptions since the beginning of the 2017 season. Tied for third on the team with 56 tackles.  - Against Buffalo (10/13), started at safety and tallied two tackles and a pass defended. Halted a Bills' drive by breaking up a third-and-six pass intended for Stefon Diggs late in the first quarter.
 - Against Houston (10/18), started at safety and produced eight tackles. Stopped Brandin Cooks for no gain on a short pass near the goal line in the third quarter. Teamed with Jayon Brown to stonewall David Johnson for a two-yard loss on a rush off right tackle in the third stanza.
 - Against Pittsburgh (10/25), started at safety and registered six tackles.
 - At Cincinnati (11/1), started at safety and posted seven tackles, a quarterback pressure and a pass defended. Broke up a pass intended for Tee Higgins in the third quarter.
 - Against Chicago (11/8), started at safety and tallied seven tackles with a quarterback pressure.
 - Against Indianapolis (11/12), started at safety and led the team with 10 tackles. Teamed with Kenny Vaccaro to stuff Jonathan Taylor for no gain on a rush off left guard in the third quarter.

- 2019 (16/16, 3/3): Started all 16 games for the third consecutive season and led the team and tied for fourth in the NFL with five interceptions. Tied for second on the squad with 10 passes defended. Also posted 91 tackles, including two stops for loss, a quarterback pressure and five special teams tackles. Also caught one pass for 11 yards in 2019. Started all three postseason contests and registered 20 tackles, an interception and a special teams tackle. Led or tied for the team lead in passes defended four times (at ATL, vs. BUF, at IND, at HOU).
- At Cleveland (9/8), collected seven tackles and an interception. Intercepted a Baker Mayfield pass intended for Odell Beckham Jr. and returned it 28 yards early in the fourth quarter.
 - At Atlanta (9/29), registered eight tackles and a team-best two passes defended. Broke up a pass intended for Austin Hooper late in the third quarter.
 - Against Buffalo (10/6), notched seven tackles and two passes defended, including an interception. Set up the Titans' touchdown by intercepting a Josh Allen third-and-five pass in the third quarter. Halted a Bills' drive by knocking down a third-and-six pass intended for Dawson Knox late in the third quarter.

- At Denver (10/13), recorded three tackles and an interception. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units. Halted a Broncos' drive by intercepting Joe Flacco's deep pass intended for Noah Fant and returning it 25 yards in the third quarter.
- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), posted eight tackles and a pass defended. Posted his first career reception on a fake punt. Halted the Chargers' opening drive by breaking up a fourth-and-two pass intended for Hunter Henry. Extended the Titans' opening scoring drive with an 11-yard reception from Brett Kern on the fake punt on fourth-and-eight in the opening stanza.
- Against Jacksonville (11/24), notched a season-high 11 tackles and a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- At Indianapolis (12/1), posted four tackles, an interception and a quarterback pressure. Intercepted a Jacoby Brissett pass and returned it 21 yards to the Colts' 14-yard line setting up a Titans' field goal in the third quarter.
- At Houston (12/29), recorded six tackles and an interception. Intercepted an A.J. McCarron pass intended for Jordan Akins late in the fourth quarter.
- At New England (1/4), posted five tackles. Tied for the team lead with a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- At Baltimore (1/11), recorded 11 tackles and an interception. Intercepted a Lamar Jackson pass intended for Mark Andrews and returned it 31 yards setting up the Titans' opening touchdown in the first quarter. 99 JADEVEON CLOWNEY

OUTSIDE LINEBACKER • 6'5" • 255 LBS • COLLEGE: SOUTH CAROLINA
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/1
HOMETOWN: ROCK HILL, S.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 83/74 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

Pro Bowl: 2016, 2017, 2018

PRO: The Titans improved the versatility and explosiveness of their front seven with the addition of free agent Jadeveon Clowney prior to the start of the 2020 regular season. In his first six NFL seasons, Clowney played in 75 games and tallied 236 tackles, 32 sacks, 71 tackles for loss, 14 passes defended, nine forced fumbles and seven fumble recoveries. The 6-foot-5-inch, 255-pounder was named to the Pro Bowl each season from 2016 through 2018, and he added second-team Associated Press All-Pro honors in 2016. The South Carolina product played his first five NFL seasons with the Houston Texans after he was the first overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft. He was traded to the Seattle Seahawks in 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Over a four-season span from 2016 through 2019, Clowney was one of only three NFL players with at least 60 tackles for loss, eight forced fumbles and 150 quarterback pressures, per Sportradar. The others on the list were Aaron Donald and Chandler Jones. Clowney ranked fourth in the NFL over those four seasons with 60 tackles for loss.
- In 2019, Clowney's lone season with the Seattle Seahawks, he registered 31 tackles, three sacks, seven tackles for loss, a career-best four forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries in 13 games.
- In 2017, the last time current Titans head coach Mike Vrabel was Clowney's defensive coordinator in Houston, he started all 16 games for the Texans and recorded 9.5 sacks, 21 quarterback hits, 21 tackles for loss, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. He joined Jones as the only NFL players to register 20 or more tackles for loss and 20 or more quarterback hits.
- Clowney has scored four total touchdowns in his NFL career—three on fumble recoveries and one on an interception return.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Clowney and Titans teammate Johnathan Joseph both grew up in Rock Hill, S.C., and played collegiately at South Carolina. Joseph has provided a big brother presence and been a strong mentor for Clowney during his NFL career.
- Clowney attended South Pointe High School in Rock Hill, S.C., where he was named South Carolina's 2010 Mr. Football and lettered for the school's basketball team.
- Clowney was on his high school's track & field team, where he competed as a sprinter, shot putter and discus thrower. He took ninth in the 100 meters at the 2011 York County Championships, with a career-best time of 11.43 seconds. He also ran the fourth leg on the 4x100 meter relay squad, helping them earn a third-place finish at 42.86 seconds.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Rock Hill, S.C., native was originally selected by the Houston Texans with the first overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft.
- Designated by the Houston Texans as the franchise player on March 4, 2019 and signed the franchise tender on Aug. 31, 2019.
- Traded by the Texans to the Seattle Seahawks on Sept. 1, 2019 in exchange for Barkevious Mingo, Jacob Martin and a 2020 third-round pick.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Sept. 8, 2020.

94 JACK CRAWFORD

DEFENSIVE LINE • 6'5" • 274 LBS • COLLEGE: PENN STATE
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (ATLANTA) - 2020
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/1 • HOMETOWN: LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 102/30 (PLAYOFFS: 1/0)

PRO: The Titans signed unrestricted free agent Jack Crawford in the 2020 offseason to strengthen the team's depth and experience on the defensive front. The 6-foot-5-inch, 274-pounder saw action in 93 games with 26 starts while totaling 132 tackles, 16 sacks and 30 quarterback hits during his first eight seasons with the Oakland Raiders (2012-13), Dallas Cowboys (2014-16) and the Atlanta Falcons (2017-19). A physically imposing player, Crawford was born in London, England and did not play football until his junior year of high school when he moved to the United States. His versatility will allow him to be a key component on the defensive line with the Titans, as he has experience playing both inside and at the end positions.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, Crawford played in all 16 games with a career-best 11 starts for the Falcons and recorded career-bests with 35 tackles and six sacks.
- In 2016, Crawford saw action in all 16 games for the Cowboys and posted 27 tackles, 3.5 sacks, and 12 quarterback pressures.
- In 2015, Crawford played in all 16 games for the first time in his career and registered 18 tackles, four sacks which ranked fourth on the team, 10 quarterback pressures and three tackles for loss.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Crawford was born in London, England and moved to the United States in 2005. That year as a junior in high school marked his first year playing football. He initially moved to the United States to pursue a career playing basketball.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The London, United Kingdom, native was selected by the Oakland Raiders in the fifth round (158th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Released by the Raiders on Aug. 30, 2014.
- Signed by the Dallas Cowboys as a free agent on Sept. 2, 2014.
- Signed by the Atlanta Falcons as an unrestricted free agent on March 9, 2017.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on April 8, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/4 - Tennessee): Has tied for the team lead in sacks once in 2020 (vs. JAX). Has tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures once in 2020 (vs. IND).

- At Denver (9/14), made his Titans debut as a reserve on the defensive front.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at defensive end and posted a sack and a quarterback pressure. Chased down and dropped Gardner Minshew II for a 20-yard sack in the second quarter.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at defensive end and registered a tackle.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), started on the defensive front and tallied a tackle and a quarterback pressure.
- Against Houston (10/18), saw action as a reserve on the defensive front and produced a tackle and a quarterback pressure.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), played as a reserve at defensive end and registered two tackles.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), saw action as a reserve on the defensive line in his 100th regular season contest.
- Against Chicago (11/8), started at defensive end and tallied a tackle and two quarterback pressures. Halted the Bears' opening drive by combining with Jayon Brown to stuff David Montgomery on a fourth-and-one rush in the first quarter.

- Against Indianapolis (11/12), played as a reserve at defensive end and collected five tackles and a quarterback pressure.

2019 (16/4 - Atlanta): Played all 16 games with four starts and recorded 27 tackles, one tackle for loss and a half sack.

2016 (16/10, 1/0 - Dallas): Saw action in all 16 games with a then career-high 10 starts, mostly at left defensive end, posting 27 tackles, 3.5 sacks, and 12 quarterback pressures. Finished fifth on the team with 3.5 sacks and 12 pressures.

- At Washington (9/18), posted four tackles, a six-yard sack and a quarterback hit.
- Against Cincinnati (10/9), recorded two tackles and a half sack.
- Against Baltimore (11/20), notched a two-yard sack.
- At Philadelphia (1/1), collected three tackles, including a five-yard sack, a stop for loss and two quarterback hits in the regular season finale.
- Against Green Bay (1/15), made his postseason debut as a reserve and notched a tackle.

2015 (16/1 - Dallas): Played in all 16 games for the first time in his career and registered then career-highs with 18 tackles, four sacks which ranked fourth on the team, 10 quarterback pressures and three tackles for loss.

- Against Atlanta (9/27), made his first career NFL start and assisted on a tackle.
- At New Orleans (10/4), had his first sack of the season to go along with two tackles and a hurry as a reserve lineman.
- Against New England (10/11), notched a sack and a pressure.
- At N.Y. Giants (10/25), collected a sack in his third straight game and added a pressure and a tackle.
- At Miami (11/22), posted a sack with a tackle.
- At Washington (1/3), tied his career-high with four tackles in the season finale.

2014 (6/0 - Dallas): Played in six games in his first season with the Cowboys and posted seven tackles, two sacks, a tackle for a loss, two pressures and a forced fumble. Was placed on injured reserve on Nov. 26, 2014. Was inactive for one contest.

- Against New Orleans (9/28), collected his first career sack when he took down the punter on a fake in the win.
- At Jacksonville (11/9), saw action in front of his countrymen for the win in London. Registered two tackles, a sack, his first career tackle for a loss, one pressure and his first career forced fumble.

2013 (15/0 - Oakland): Played both inside and outside in his second year on the Raiders defensive line, appearing in 15 games and contributing 12 tackles, two quarterback pressures and a tackle for loss. Was inactive for one contest.

- Against Washington (9/29), saw significant action along the defensive line, establishing a career-high with four solo tackles.
- Against Philadelphia (11/3), dropped Nick Foles for a four-yard loss in the fourth quarter. The play was originally ruled a sack, then reclassified as a tackle on a designed run.

84 COREY DAVIS

WIDE RECEIVER • 6'3" • 209 LBS • COLLEGE: WESTERN MICHIGAN
ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4
HOMETOWN: WHEATON, ILL.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 49/42 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

PRO: The Titans selected Corey Davis with the fifth-overall pick in the 2017 NFL Draft, which was obtained in a 2016 trade with the Los Angeles Rams. During his first three seasons (2017-19), Davis led the Titans in total receptions (142), receiving yards (1,867) and receiving first downs (97), and his six touchdown catches tied for third place on the club. The 6-foot-3-inch, 209-pound wide receiver brings a complete skill set to his position, excelling in route running, making plays after the catch, and blocking. His 5,285 receiving yards at Western Michigan set an all-time FBS record, and he became the second player in FBS history to record 52 career receiving touchdowns. Davis became the highest drafted player from Western Michigan and the first rounder from the school since Jason Babin in 2004. The fifth pick was the highest selection ever used by the Titans/Oilers on a wide receiver by 11 slots, topping the 1998 choice of Kevin Dyson with the 16th pick.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Davis' 2019 statistics included 43 receptions for 601 yards and a pair of touchdowns in 15 games. He added 68 yards and a touchdown on six receptions during the playoffs.
- In 2018, Davis led the Titans with 65 receptions, 891 receiving yards and four touchdowns. His yardage total ranked ninth among all AFC wide receivers.
- In a playoff game at New England on Jan. 13, 2018, Davis caught two touchdown passes to tie the franchise single-game postseason record (five previous times). He became the first player to accomplish the feat in the postseason since wide receiver Haywood Jeffires did so at Buffalo on Jan. 3, 1993. Davis was the first NFL rookie with two touchdown receptions in a playoff game since Panthers receiver Kelvin Benjamin on Jan. 10, 2015.
- In Week 1 of the 2017 season, Davis caught six passes for 69 yards. This reception total ranks second among all rookies in Week 1 games in the "Titans era" (1999–present).
- During his time at Western Michigan, Davis set an FBS all-time record with 5,285 career receiving yards.
- Davis set Western Michigan records for single-season touchdown receptions (19), single-game receiving yards (272), touchdown receptions in a bowl game (three), career receptions (332), career touchdown receptions (52) and career receiving yards (5,285).

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Davis and his six siblings survived a tough economic upbringing in Wheaton, Ill. While he has always maintained a loving relationship with his parents, Olasheni Timson and Michelle Davis, he made the decision as a high school junior to move into the home of Robin and Dan Graham, who became his legal guardians. Dan, Corey Davis' youth football coach, was an offensive lineman for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. His son, Ryan Graham, played youth and high school football with Davis and currently plays quarterback at Northern Illinois.
- Davis' late brother, Titus, played football at Central Michigan and was signed by the Chargers as a rookie free agent in 2015. Titus also spent time with the Jets, Bills and Bears.
- One of Davis' favorite quotes is "Never die easy" by Walter Payton, who used the saying as the title to his autobiography.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Wheaton, Ill., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (fifth overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

64 NATE DAVIS

OFFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'3" • 316 LBS • COLLEGE: CHARLOTTE
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: ASHBURN, VA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 22/21 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans selected Nate Davis in the third round (82nd overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-3-inch, 316-pounder brings quick feet and physicality to the trenches of the offensive line. The Ashburn, Va., native appeared in 13 games with 12 starts at right guard as a rookie, and also started all three postseason contests in 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a rookie in 2019, Davis appeared in 13 games with 12 starts at right guard, assuming starting duties in Week 5. Davis also started all three playoff games.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Growing up, Davis was 'always a pretty big kid.' He played on the offensive or defensive line during Pop Warner, and estimates that in the fourth grade he weighed around 200 pounds.
- Davis was invited to the 2019 Senior Bowl, which he credits for helping him during the draft process. He went head-to-head with defensive linemen from larger conferences, and as an athlete from a smaller conference, he credits his performance at the Senior Bowl for helping put his name into the conversation ahead of the draft.
- Davis' father purchased him a fishing rod as a child and would take him to the pond near their home in Ashburn, Va., to fish and relax.
- Davis is a car enthusiast who has a knack for identifying the year, make and model of a car. He lists his dream car as a Rolls-Royce.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Ashburn, Va., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (82nd overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/9 - Tennessee):

- At Denver (9/14), started at right guard and was a part of an offensive front that allowed the Titans to amass 377 total yards. Member of a line that allowed just one sack on 43 pass attempts.

54 RASHAAN EVANS

LINEBACKER • 6'2" • 232 LBS • COLLEGE: ALABAMA

ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/3

HOMETOWN: AUBURN, ALA.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 40/32 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans traded up to select Rashaan Evans with the 22nd overall pick in the first round of the 2018 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-2 inch, 232-pound defender was identified as a playmaker that could quickly bolster the linebacking corps and develop into a leader on defense. He appeared in all but one game in his first two campaigns, including starts at inside linebacker in every game of 2019. He led the Titans defense with 139 tackles and 11 tackles for loss in his second season. At Alabama, Evans tied for a team-leading 74 tackles as a senior while helping the Crimson Tide capture a 2018 College Football Playoff National Championship title.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Evans started every game during the regular season and playoffs. He led the team with 139 tackles and 11 tackles for loss.
- As a rookie in 2018, Evans played in 15 games with seven starts at inside linebacker and totaled 63 tackles, six quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and three passes defended.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Upon being drafted by Tennessee, Evans was reunited with former Crimson Tide teammate Derrick Henry. Henry phoned Evans immediately after he was selected with the 22nd pick to congratulate him.
- He has two pregame rituals. Evans prays before each game and pulls grass from the field early in pregame to get a feel for the turf.
- His nickname is 'Razor, because I cut up.'
- At Alabama, Evans shared the field with his brother, Alex, a member of the Crimson Tide spirit squad.
- Two of his football role models are DeMarcus Ware and Lawrence Taylor. He met Ware, who also is from Auburn, Ala., at the 2018 NFL Draft. He later had a chance to meet Taylor during a trip to Miami and calls each experience an "amazing moment."
- Growing up in rural Alabama, Evans would chase wild horses to work on improving his speed and athleticism.
- Evans' father, Alan, was a star running back at Auburn. Evans' mother, Chenavis, received four degrees from Auburn, including her doctorate. Evans' older sister was a cheerleader at Auburn, and despite the family ties including his cousins attending Auburn, Evans stuck with his gut and instead chose Alabama.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Auburn, Ala., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (22nd overall) of the 2018 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

45 D'ONTA FOREMAN

RUNNING BACK • 6'1" • 236 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/1
HOMETOWN: TEXAS CITY, TEXAS
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 14/1 (PLAYOFFS: 1/0)

PRO: The Titans signed D'Onta Foreman to the practice squad during Week 4 of the 2020 season to bring depth and experience to the running back corps. The 6-foot-1-inch, 236-pounder was originally drafted by the Houston Texans in the third round (89th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft. The University of Texas product has appeared in 11 NFL contests with one start over two seasons (2017-18) for the Texans and posted 326 rushing yards on 85 carries with two rushing touchdowns, as well as eight catches for 111 yards with a receiving score. The Texas City, Texas native has also spent time with the Indianapolis Colts prior to arriving in Tennessee.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Foreman was a consensus All-American in 2016, making him the first Texas running back to earn those honors since Ricky Williams in 1998. Foreman also won the 2016 Doak Walker Award, the 2016 Earl Campbell Tyler Rose Award, and was a 2016 Heisman Trophy candidate.
- His twin brother, Armanti, was a wide receiver for the Longhorns.
- Foreman's son, D'Onta Jr., was born prematurely in September 2016 and passed away on Nov. 5, 2016 due to an intestinal infection. On the day of his passing, Foreman carried Texas to a road win at Texas Tech and rushed 33 times for 341 yards and three touchdowns, all career-high marks. "It was just something about that game, it was like, 'I'm doing it for my son. I'm leaving it all out here,'" Foreman said.
- Foreman founded the D'Onta Foreman Family Foundation, which advocates for fathers to become more involved in their children's lives.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Texas City, Texas native was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the third round (89th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.
- Waived by the Texans on Aug. 4, 2019.
- Claimed off of waivers by the Indianapolis Colts on Aug. 5, 2019.
- Waived by the Colts on Aug. 24, 2019.
- Signed by the Titans to the team's practice squad on Sept. 29, 2020.
- Activated from the practice squad to the active roster standard elevation on Oct. 31, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Nov. 7, 2020.

3 STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

KICKER • 6'1" • 215 LBS • COLLEGE: MEMPHIS

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 15/1

HOMETOWN: MADISON, MISS.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 213/0 (PLAYOFFS: 28/0)

Super Bowl: 2014, 2016, 2018

Pro Bowl: 2008, 2013, 2014, 2015

PRO: The Titans signed veteran kicker Stephen Gostkowski following training camp in early September 2020. After entering the NFL as a fourth-round pick of the New England Patriots in 2006, the 6-foot-1-inch, 215-pounder spent the next 14 years with the club, earning four Pro Bowl selections and three Super Bowl championships. He became the franchise's all-time leading scorer with 1,775 points over 204 regular season games and also added 205 points in the postseason to rank second in NFL history in playoff scoring. At the end of the 2019 campaign, his 87.4 percent success rate on field goals made him the fifth-most accurate kicker in NFL history.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Finished his Patriots' career as the franchise's all-time leader with 1,775 career points and 374 field goals. Enters 2020 in 12th place on the NFL's all-time scoring list and 15th in field goals.
- During his time in New England (2006-19), Gostkowski hit 374 of 428 career field goal attempts, and his 87.4 percent accuracy rate is the highest in Patriots history and is fifth-best in NFL history.
- Gostkowski has been selected to the Pro Bowl four times (2008, 13-15), named Associated Press All-Pro first team in 2008 and 2015 and AP All-Pro second team in 2014.
- With 151 points in 2015, Gostkowski became one of three players to lead the league in scoring for at least five seasons, and with 156 points in 2017, became the first player in NFL history with five separate 150-point seasons.
- In 2013, Gostkowski finished with a career-high and NFL-leading 158 points, surpassing Gino Cappelletti's Patriots record of 155 set in 1964. The 158 points tied for fifth-most in NFL history among kickers. Also broke his own Patriots single-season record and led the NFL with 38 successful field goals, tied for sixth-most in NFL history.
- Gostkowski became the first player in NFL history to reach the 1,000-point plateau in under 120 games (119).
- Gostkowski converted 478 consecutive extra points in the regular season from 2006-16, an NFL record.
- Gostkowski is tied for second all-time with 39 postseason field goals and second on the NFL postseason points list with 205.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Coming out of high school, Gostkowski received an athletic scholarship to pitch for the University of Memphis baseball team. He made the football team as a walk-on and finished his college career as the team's all-time leading scorer with 369 points.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Madison, Miss., native was originally selected by the New England Patriots in the fourth round (118th overall) of the 2006 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Patriots as an unrestricted free agent on April 10, 2019.
- Released by the Patriots on March 23, 2020.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Sept. 3, 2020.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/0 - Tennessee): Has connected on 12 career game-winning field goals (including playoffs), including three in 2020 (at DEN, vs. JAX, at MIN). Became the first player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger to kick a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first three games of the season. Named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week after connecting on a career-best six-of-six field goals (39, 31, 30, 51, 54, 55) and his lone extra point chance tying his career-high with 19 points for Week 3 at Minnesota (9/27/20). Named AFC Special Teams

Player of the Month for September after making good on nine of 12 field goals, including game-winning field goals in each of the Titans' victories.

- At Denver (9/14), made his Titans debut and connected on one of four field goals (25) and one of two extra point chances. Posted four touchbacks on four kickoffs. Gave the Titans a 16-14 victory by nailing a 25-yard field goal with 17 seconds remaining in the game.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), nailed both field goals (51, 49) and three of four extra points. Posted five touchbacks on six kickoffs. Increased the Titans lead to 24-10 with a 51-yard field goal as time expired in the first half. Made good on a 49-yard game-winning field goal with 1:36 remaining in the game. Became the first kicker since Adam Vinatieri with New England in 1999 to make a game-winning field goal in the final two minutes of regulation in each of his team's first two games of a season.
- At Minnesota (9/27), named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week after connecting on a career-best six-of-six field goals (39, 31, 30, 51, 54, 55) and his lone extra point chance tying his career-high with 19 points. In his 15-year career, he previously made five total field goals on two occasions, most recently against Kansas City on Oct. 14, 2018. Hit three field goals of at least 50 yards in distance for the first time in his career. Gave the Titans an early 3-0 lead with a 39-yard field goal in the first quarter. Extended the Titans' lead to 6-0 with a 31-yard field goal in the opening stanza. Nailed a 30-yard field goal which cut the Vikings advantage to 14-9 in the second quarter. Made a 51-yard field goal midway through the third quarter to cut the Vikings' lead to 17-12. Trimmed the Minnesota lead to 30-28 with a 54-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. Made his third game-winning field goal in as many games with a 55-yard connection with 1:44 left to play in the final stanza.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), connected on all six extra point chances in the victory.
- Against Houston (10/18), made good on all four extra point chances. Missed a field goal (37) and had another attempt blocked (27). Collected four touchbacks on six kickoffs.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), converted one of two field goals (51) and all three extra point tries. Cut the Steelers lead to 27-17 with a 51-yard field goal late in the third quarter.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), connected on both extra point chances and had a 53-yard field goal hit off the upright.
- Against Chicago (11/8), made good on his lone field goal (40) and all three extra point chances. Gave the Titans a 3-0 lead with a 40-yard field goal in the opening quarter.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), connected on one of two field goals (50) and both extra point chances. Gave the Titans a 10-3 advantage with a 50-yard field goal early in the second quarter.

2019 (4/0, 0/0 - New England): Played in four regular season contests and converted seven of eight field goal attempts and 11 of 15 extra points before being placed on injured reserve on Oct. 2.

- Against Pittsburgh (9/8), contributed to the season-opening victory by making all four of his field goal attempts and all three extra points.
- At Miami (9/15), made a 28-yard field goal and four extra points in the win.
- Against N.Y. Jets (9/22), converted three of four extra point attempts and a 37-yard field goal in the win. Registered seven touchbacks on nine kickoffs.

2018 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 regular season games and converted 27 of 32 field goal attempts and 49 of 50 extra points, good for fifth in the NFL with 130 points. Appeared in all three playoff contests and successfully converted five of six field goals and all 10 extra point attempts. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Month for October after converting 11 of 12 field goal attempts, 15 of 15 extra points and booting 17 touchbacks over a four-game span during the month.

- Against Kansas City (10/14), connected on all five of his field goal attempts to tie a career-high, including a game-winning 28-yard attempt as time expired to give the Patriots the win. Also converted a 50-yard field goal with three minutes remaining to push the Patriots lead to seven before Kansas City tied the game on the next possession, leading to the game-winning kick by Gostkowski on the ensuing possession. Also made all four of his extra point attempts. His 19 points tied a single-game career high.
- At N.Y. Jets (11/25), converted field goal attempts of 34 and 32 yards and all three extra point attempts in the victory.
- At Kansas City (1/20), made his lone field goal attempt of 47 yards and made all four extra point attempts in the AFC Championship victory.
- Against the L.A. Rams (2/3), nailed field goals of 42 and 41 yards, with the latter effectively icing the game with under two minutes left to play by extending the New England lead to two scores in the Super Bowl LIII victory. Also converted his lone extra point attempt.

2017 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 regular season games and converted 37 of 40 field goal attempts and 45 of 47 extra points, finishing second in the NFL in scoring with 156 points. Appeared in all three postseason contests and converted three-of-five field goals and 11-of-12 extra points.

- Against Carolina (10/1), converted all four field goal attempts including a then-franchise record 58-yard field goal at the end of the first half that was the longest field goal ever made at Gillette Stadium. Also made both extra point attempts.
- Against L.A. Chargers (10/29), made four of six field goal attempts, including a 26-yarder with 1:08 left in the fourth quarter that gave the Patriots an eight-point lead in their victory. Also converted his lone extra point attempt.
- At Oakland (11/19), named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week following his performance in the Week 11 win in Mexico City, in which he set a new franchise record by converting a 62-yard field goal. Converted all three extra point attempts and all four field goal attempts. Also converted a 51-yard attempt, marking the third time in his career he successfully converted two 50-yard attempts in a single game. His 15 total points moved him into the top-20 all-time in total points.

2016 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 regular season games and converted 27 of 32 field goals and 46 of 49 extra points. Appeared in all three postseason contests, converting all seven field goal attempts and seven of nine extra point attempts. His 28 points helped move him into third place on the all-time postseason scoring list with 160 points. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors following his performances in a Week 1 victory at Arizona and Week 13 win vs. Los Angeles.

- At Arizona (9/11), converted all three field goal attempts, including a 47-yarder, a 53-yarder and the game-winning 32-yarder, and connected on both extra point attempts in the season-opener. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors for his Week 1 performance.
- At Buffalo (10/30), finished the game with two successful field goal attempts, including a 51-yard field goal in the win. Was perfect on extra point attempts, converting all five tries.
- At N.Y. Jets (11/27), made good on three of four field goal attempts in the win, including a 41-yarder in the fourth quarter to pull within one point of the Jets in a 22-17 comeback victory. Also was successful on his lone extra point try.
- Against Los Angeles (12/4), converted all four field goal attempts and both extra points. Earned his second AFC Special Teams Player of the Week award of the season for his performance.
- At Denver (12/18), accounted for 10 of the Patriots 16 points in the win after making good on three of three field goal attempts and succeeding on the game's lone extra point attempt.
- Against N.Y. Jets (12/24), became the 30th NFL player to reach 300 career field goals with a 29-yard field goal in the first quarter of the win. Finished the day two of two on field goal attempts and made good on all five extra point attempts.
- Against Houston (1/14), moved past Jerry Rice into sole possession of fourth place in most postseason points in NFL history after making good on two field goal attempts and four extra points to put up 10 total points in the Divisional Round victory. Also tied Adam Vinatieri with 26 field goals made in Patriots postseason history.
- Against Pittsburgh (1/22), became the Patriots' all-time leader in postseason field goals after his 31-yard field goal in the first quarter of the AFC Championship Game. Finished the day three of three on field goal attempts and three of four on extra point attempts.

- Against Atlanta (2/5), successfully converted field goals of 41 and 33 yards in Super Bowl LI and kickoff duty limited Atlanta's field position throughout the game, especially in the fourth quarter. Moved into fourth all-time in postseason field goals with 31, becoming one of only four players in NFL history with 30 postseason field goals.

2015 (16/0, 2/0 - New England): Selected to his fourth career Pro Bowl. Earned Associated Press All Pro first-team honors, named to the Sporting News All-Pro team and to the Pro Football Writers Association All-NFL team. Played in all 16 regular season games and led the NFL in scoring (151 points) for the fourth consecutive season and fifth time in his career. Became the first player in NFL history with four seasons of 150 or more points and entered 2016 with an NFL record 463 consecutive extra points made. Moved past Adam Vinatieri (263) to become the Patriots all-time leader with 276 field goals and set a new team record by converting 31 consecutive field goals. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Month honors for September and AFC Special Teams Player of the Week following his performances in Week 7 and Week 10. Appeared in both playoff games, converting three of four extra point attempts and all four field goal attempts.

- Against Jacksonville (9/27), converted all six extra points and all three field goals in the win.
- At Dallas (10/11), converted three of three field goals and all three extra point attempts in the win, including a career-long 57-yarder that tied Adam Vinatieri's record for the longest field goal in team history.
- At N.Y. Giants (11/15), connected on two of two field goals and three of three extra points in the win. Gostkowski's second field goal was from 54 yards with one second remaining in the game. The kick marked the seventh game-winning field goal of his career.
- At Denver (11/29), converted three of three extra points and a 47-yard field goal in the snow during the final seconds of the fourth quarter to send the game into overtime.
- Against Philadelphia (12/6), made all four extra point attempts and executed a successful onside kick in the fourth quarter, marking the third successful onside kick of his career.

2014 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Named to his third career Pro Bowl and earned Associated Press All-Pro second-team honors after leading the league in points (156) and field goals made (35). Also set a team record with his 94.6 field goal percentage (35-of-37).

- Against Cincinnati (10/5), connected on a career high five of five field goals and tacked on four of four extra points for a career-high 19 points in the win.
- At Buffalo (10/12), converted three of four field goals, including a season-long 53-yarder, and tacked on four extra points in the win.
- Against Detroit (11/23), passed Gino Cappelletti for second on the Patriots all-time scoring list after converting two-of-two field goals and tacking on four-of-four extra points in the win.
- Against Miami (12/14), became the Patriots all-time leading scorer (1,165 points) after converting two-of-two field goals and five-of-five extra points in the win.
- Against Baltimore (1/10), converted five of five extra points in the AFC Divisional win, becoming just the seventh player in NFL history with at least 100 kicking points in the postseason.
- Against Indianapolis (1/18), made a 21-yard field goal and tacked on six of six extra points in the AFC Championship Game win, becoming just the 11th player to make at least 20 career postseason field goals.
- Against Seattle (2/1), converted four-of-four extra points in the Super Bowl XLIX win to tie Adam Vinatieri (117) for most postseason kicking points in Patriots history and move into fourth place on the NFL's all-time postseason kicking points list. Kicked touchbacks on all five kickoff attempts in the Super Bowl, becoming the first kicker in NFL history to prevent a kickoff return in a Super Bowl in NFL history.

2013 (16/0, 2/0 - New England): Earned Pro Bowl honors for the second time in his career. Played in all 16 regular season games and finished first in the NFL with 158 total points, a single-season career high and a Patriots team record, surpassing the 155 total points scored by Gino Cappelletti in 1964. Became one of six players in NFL history to lead the league in scoring in three separate seasons. Converted 38 of 41 field goals, setting the franchise record for most field goals in a season. His 92.7 conversion rate was second-highest in team history. The 38 field goals tied for fifth-most in a single season in NFL history. Reached the 1,000 point mark in his 119th career game, the only player in NFL history to reach that mark in fewer than 120 games. Set a then career-high with 21 consecutive field goals made in 2013, falling just two games shy of Adam Vinatieri's franchise record. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Month honors for October. Played in both playoff games and converted all six extra points and the lone field goal he attempted.

- At Buffalo (9/8), nailed a game-winning 35-yard field goal with five seconds left to give the Patriots a 23-21 season-opening win.
- Against New Orleans (10/13), connected on all three field goal attempts, including a then career-long 54-yarder in the third quarter.
- At N.Y. Jets (10/20), successfully converted three extra points and two field goal attempts, including a 44-yard try with 16 seconds left to tie the score and send the game into overtime.
- Against Denver (11/24), hit his third career regular season game-winning field goal in overtime to cap a Patriots 34-31 comeback win. Also set a new team record by scoring in his 102nd straight game.
- At Houston (12/1), connected on a game-winning field goal for the second straight game and fourth time in his regular-season career. Ended his then career-long streak of 21 straight conversions when he missed a 55-yard attempt in the second quarter. It was the second-longest streak in a single season in team history.
- Against Cleveland (12/8), made his 200th career field goal and reached 30 field goals in a season for the second time after setting the franchise record with 36 in 2008. Squibbed the first inside kick recovered by the Patriots since 1995, and first that led to a win since 1964, with 1:01 left that led to the game-winning touchdown. Gostkowski's 50-yard field goal in the fourth quarter was his 13th in 2013 of 40 or more yards to set a new team mark.
- At Baltimore (12/22), became the third player in team history to reach 1,000 points after two extra points in the first quarter, joining Adam Vinatieri (1,158) and Gino Cappelletti (1,130).
- Against Indianapolis (1/11), converted all six extra point attempts in the Divisional Playoff and was forced into punting duties for the first time in his career after Ryan Allen left in the second quarter with a shoulder injury and did not return. Finished with five punts for 209 yards (41.8 avg), including two 50-plus yard kicks.

2012 (16/0, 2/0 - New England): Finished the regular season with an NFL-best and then-career-high 153 points, connecting on all 66 extra point attempts and 29 of 35 field goals.

- Against Arizona (9/16), hit four-of-five field goal attempts. Became the first player in Patriots history to connect on two 50-yard field goals in the same game when he drilled a 51-yarder in the third quarter and tied his career long with a 53-yarder in the fourth quarter.
- Against N.Y. Jets (10/21), converted two key field goals in the overtime win. The first was a 43-yard field goal to tie the game as time expired in regulation; the second was a 48-yarder in overtime to give the Patriots a 29-26 lead and the eventual victory.

2011 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Played in all 16 games and finished the regular season 59 for 59 on extra points and 28 for 33 on field goal attempts, scoring 143 points, fourth most in team history. Added six special teams tackles. Appeared in all three playoff games, kicking 10 extra points and successfully converting five field goal attempts.

- At N.Y. Jets (11/13), connected on field goals from 36, 37 and a season-long 50 yards, accounting for a season-high 13 points in the 37-16 win. Made two special teams tackles.
- Against Miami (12/24), made a touchdown-saving special teams tackle during the third quarter of the Patriots 17-point come-from-behind win.
- Against Baltimore (1/22), made all three field goal attempts from 29, 35 and 24 yards and both extra points in a three-point AFC Championship win.

2010 (8/0, 0/0 - New England): Played in the first eight games of the season, converting 10 of 13 field goal attempts and all 26 of his attempted extra points. Placed on injured reserve with a thigh injury on Nov. 10, 2010.

- Against Baltimore (10/17), nailed a game-winning 35-yard field goal with 1:56 remaining in overtime, marking his first career game-winning overtime field goal in his first career opportunity. Also made a 24-yard field goal to tie the game at 20 with 1:51 remaining in regulation and a 26-yard field goal in the first quarter.

2009 (16/0, 1/0 - New England): Kicked in all 16 games and connected on 26 of 31 field goals and 47 of 47 extra points for 125 total points. Finished the season with 513 career points to move into fourth place on the franchise scoring list.

- Against Buffalo (9/14), recovered a key fumble in the fourth quarter of the season-opener, diving on a Leodis McKelvin fumble on a kickoff return that was forced by Pierre Woods, giving the Patriots possession at the 31-yard line to help set up the go-ahead touchdown in a come-from-behind 25-24 Patriots win.

- Against Atlanta (9/27), passed Stanley Morgan (408 points) to move into fifth place on the Patriots all-time scoring list during the victory. Tied his career-high with four field goals in the win over the Falcons.
- At Denver (10/11), set a then-career-long with a 53-yard field goal, besting a 52-yard field goal he had vs. Chicago (11/26/06).
- Against Tennessee (10/18), tied a team record with eight extra points.
- Against Miami (11/8), named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week after tying his then-career-high with four field goals (30, 38, 34 and 40) in the Patriots 27-17 victory.
- Against Carolina (12/13), went over 100 points on the season with two field goals and two extra points. His 47-yard field goal was the 100th field goal of his career.

2008 (16/0 - New England): Selected to the Pro Bowl for the first time in his career and named to the Associated Press All-Pro first team. Set a Patriots single-season record and led the NFL with 36 field goals. Led the NFL with 148 points, the most by a Patriots player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger and the second highest total in team history (Gino Cappelletti, 155 in 1964). Connected on 90 percent of his field goal tries (36 of 40), tying the third highest single-season field goal percentage in team history. Also selected as an All-Pro by ESPN.com, SI.com, The Sporting News and Pro Football Weekly. Named AFC Special Teams Player of the Month for the month of October, when he made nine of 10 field goal attempts.

- At N.Y. Jets (9/14), tied a then single-game career high with four field goals attempted.
- Against Arizona (12/21), set a then-single-game career high with 17 points (five extra point attempts and four field goals) in a snowstorm.

2007 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Finished with a then-career-high 137 points for the season while successfully making 21 of 24 field goal attempts. Set a then-NFL record for extra point attempts while going a perfect 74 for 74.

- At Dallas (10/14), tallied a season-high 12 points while going six of six on extra point attempts and two of two on field goal attempts.
- At Buffalo (11/18), set career-highs in extra points made and extra points attempted with eight in the Patriots' dominating 56-10 win.
- At N.Y. Giants (12/29), tied a season-high with 12 points in the season finale, kicking a season-high three field goals and knocking in three extra points to finish the season a perfect 74 for 74 in extra point attempts.
- Against Jacksonville (1/12), connected on all four extra point attempts while making one-of-two field goal tries in the Patriots win in the AFC Divisional Playoff.

2006 (16/0, 3/0 - New England): Saw action in all 16 regular season contests and three postseason games and made good on 20 of 26 field goals and 43 of 44 extra point opportunities in his rookie season. Made 18 of his last 21 field goal attempts in the regular season. Finished fifth in the AFC with 12 touchbacks. Connected on all eight of his field goal attempts in the 2006 postseason.

- Against Buffalo (9/10), connected on his first career NFL field goal from 32 yards out in the Patriots 19-17 victory.
- Against Houston (12/17), made on all four field goal attempts and all of his extra point opportunities.
- Against N.Y. Jets (1/7), made good on all three field goal attempts and all four extra point opportunities in the Wild Card game.
- At San Diego (1/14), gave the Patriots a 3-0 lead with a 50-yard field goal in the first quarter of the Divisional Playoff game. Then connected on his first career game-winning field goal from 31 yards out to give the Patriots a 24-21 lead with 1:10 remaining in the fourth quarter.
- At Indianapolis (1/21) in the AFC Championship Game, gave the Patriots a 31-28 lead with a 28-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. Nailed a 43-yard field goal with 3:49 left to play in the game, giving the Patriots a 34-31 lead.

- In 2019, Henry was the NFL's leading rusher with a career-best 1,540 rushing yards on a career-high 303 carries for a career-high 16 rushing touchdowns.
- In 2019, Henry received numerous awards and recognition, including the NFL's FedEx Ground Player of the Year, second-team All-Pro by the Associated Press and his first career Pro Bowl selection.
- In 2019, led the AFC, ranked third in the NFL, and led the team with a career-high 18 total touchdowns.
- Ranked second in the AFC and fourth in the NFL with a career-high 1,746 yards from scrimmage in 2019.
- In 2019, Henry recorded eight 100-yard rushing performances including the postseason.
- In 2019, moved into fifth place on the franchise's all-time rushing touchdowns list after passing Lorenzo White (29) against Kansas City (11/10/19). In the same game, Henry also became the ninth player in franchise history to reach 3,000 career rushing yards.
- In Week 17 of the 2019 season, he was named AFC Offensive Player of the Week after his performance at Houston (12/29/19), where he rushed a season-high 32 times for a season-best 211 yards with three touchdowns to secure the NFL's rushing title.
- In 2019, became the sixth player in franchise history with at least 12 touchdowns in two or more consecutive seasons.
- In 2019, joined Napoleon Kaufman (1997-99) and Robert Smith (1997-2000) as the only players in NFL history to record a rushing touchdown of at least 70 yards in three consecutive seasons.
- Passed Steve McNair (3,439 career rushing yards) for sixth place on the team's all-time rushing list, and later passed Hoyle Granger (3,514) for fifth place on the team's all-time rushing list in 2019.
- In 2019, Henry started all three of the team's playoff games and finished the postseason with 83 carries for a league-best 446 yards and two touchdowns, all of which set career-highs. His 446 rushing yards in the postseason ranked second in franchise playoff history behind Eddie George's 449 rushing yards during the 1999 playoffs.
- In 2019, during Wild Card Weekend at New England (1/4/20), Henry set a then-franchise playoff record with 182 rushing yards on 34 carries and a touchdown, which marked the second-most yards on the road in an NFL playoff game since 1950. The following week during the Divisional Round at Baltimore (1/11/20), set a franchise playoff record with 195 rushing yards on 30 carries.
- In 2018, Henry was named to the PFWA All-AFC team after setting then single-season career highs in carries (215), rushing yards (1,059), rushing long (99t), and touchdowns (12).
- 2018 marked Henry's first career 1,000-yard season. He finished sixth in the NFL in rushing yards.
- In 2018, named AFC Offensive Player of the Week for Week 13 after collecting a franchise-best 238 rushing yards with a franchise-tying four rushing touchdowns against Jacksonville on Thursday Night Football (12/6). In the same game, he scored four rushing touchdowns to tie the franchise's single-game record (Earl Campbell, Lorenzo White).

- In Week 13 of the 2018 season, recorded the second 99-yard touchdown run in NFL history (Tony Dorsett). The run also set the mark for the longest touchdown run in franchise history and tied for the longest scrimmage play in NFL history. He also became the second player in NFL history with a rushing touchdown of at least 90 yards and a rushing touchdown of at least 50 yards in the same game (Chris Johnson).
- In 2018, named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December after registering 97 carries for 625 yards and eight touchdowns.
- In 2018, became the seventh NFL player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger with at least four rushing touchdowns and at least 200 rushing yards in a game (Clinton Portis, Barry Sanders, Doug Martin, Jonas Gray, Mike Anderson and Corey Dillon). Henry became the first to accomplish the feat in fewer than 20 carries (17).
- In 2017, Henry led the Titans with 744 rushing yards on 176 carries, and he rushed for five touchdowns for the second consecutive season.
- In the team's Wild Card playoff victory at Kansas City on Jan. 6, 2018, Henry recorded a franchise postseason record of 191 scrimmage yards (156 rushing, 35 receiving), breaking a 57-year-old postseason record set on Jan. 1, 1961, when Billy Cannon had 178 scrimmage yards against the Los Angeles Chargers. Henry's 156 rushing yards ranked second in franchise postseason history (162 by Eddie George on Jan. 16, 2000).
- In 2016, Henry rushed for 490 yards and five touchdowns to become the third rookie for the franchise in the "Titans era" to score at least five touchdowns in a season, joining Vince Young (seven rushing touchdowns in 2006) and Chris Johnson (nine rushing and one receiving in 2008).
- Despite playing just three seasons and not seeing extensive action in his first campaign at Alabama, Henry finished his career as the school's all-time rushing leader with 3,591 yards.
- As a senior in 2015, Henry claimed the Heisman Trophy and led his team to the College Football Playoff National Championship. He also won the Doak Walker and Maxwell Award and was selected as the Walter Camp Player of the Year after rushing for an Alabama and Southeastern Conference record 2,219 yards.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- In high school, Henry broke the 51-year-old national high school rushing record with 12,124 yards after compiling 4,261 rushing yards as a senior.
- Henry sealed an Iron Bowl victory with an epic, career-best 271 rushing yards against the Tigers in 2015. He put the Crimson Tide on his back by carrying the ball a school-record 46 times. His 271 rushing yards were 11 more yards than Auburn had in total offense (260). He ended the game with 14 consecutive rushes to run out the clock.
- His late grandmother, Gladys Henry, helped raise him and played a key inspirational role in his development. In 2018, he fulfilled a promise to her and graduated from Alabama with his bachelor's degree. He has a portrait tattoo of her on his chest.
- Gladys Henry nicknamed him "Shocka" as a baby because he "shocked the whole family" when he was born.
- Henry has been growing out his hair since he was in elementary school.

- At Miami (10/9), started at running back as the team opened the game in a two-running back set. Rushed seven times for 54 yards with a long rush of 22 yards. Set up the Titans' second touchdown with a 22-yard dash up the middle in the second quarter.
- Against Jacksonville (10/27), played significant snaps as a reserve at running back and rushed 16 times for 60 yards with his first career touchdown. Tied for the team lead with four receptions for 37 yards. Increased the Titans lead to 17-0 with his first career rushing touchdown on a six-yard run off right end in the second quarter. Kept the Titans' final scoring drive alive with a two-yard rumble on third-and-one on the first play of the fourth quarter.
- At San Diego (11/6), did not play after being injured in pregame warmups.
- At Chicago (11/27), played as a reserve at running back and led the team with 60 rushing yards on eight carries with a touchdown. Evened the score at 7-7 with an 11-yard touchdown run off left tackle with four seconds left to play in the first quarter.
- At Kansas City (12/18), played as a reserve at running back and carried the ball nine times for 58 yards with two touchdowns. Carried the ball five times for 41 yards during the Titans' initial touchdown drive that was punctuated by his four-yard touchdown run with 11:58 left to play in the second quarter. Cut the Chiefs' lead to 17-16 with his second touchdown of the afternoon, a one-yard jaunt, with 3:12 left to play in the fourth quarter.
- Against Houston (1/1), played as a reserve at running back and led the team with a career-best 65 rushing yards on 15 carries with a touchdown. Caught one pass for three yards. Kept the Titans' final touchdown drive alive with a 14-yard run on third-and-one in the third quarter. Gave the Titans a 21-7 advantage with a two-yard touchdown jaunt with 4:44 left to play in the third stanza.

COLLEGE:

- In three seasons at Alabama (2013-15), Henry played in 39 games and totaled 602 carries for a school-record 3,591 yards and 42 rushing touchdowns and added 285 yards on 17 career receptions with three receiving scores. Henry won numerous awards including the Heisman Trophy, the Doak Walker Award, Walter Camp Award, and Maxwell Award. During Alabama's victory over Clemson in the 2016 College Football Playoff National Championship, he broke Shaun Alexander's record for most career rushing yards in Alabama history.

- As a junior (2015), claimed the Crimson Tide's second Heisman Trophy and led his team to the College Football Playoff National Championship. Also won the Doak Walker and Maxwell Award and was selected as the Walter Camp Player of the Year. Named a unanimous first team All-American and first team All-SEC by the league's coaches and the Associated Press. Selected as the SEC Offensive Player of the Year by both outlets. Rushed for a school- and Southeastern Conference record 2,219 yards, which led the nation and was the fifth most in a single-season by an FBS player in college football history. Averaged 147.9 yards per game, which was second in the country. His 28 rushing touchdowns were a national best and an SEC record, snapping Tim Tebow and Tre Mason's old mark of 23. Led the SEC in rushing in conference games with a 179.2 yards per game average, including 13 touchdowns. Had multiple rushing touchdowns in nine games and set the Alabama single-season record with 10 100-yard rushing games and four 200-yard games, which broke Bobby Humphrey's school record (3) set in 1986. Only the third running back in SEC history (Herschel Walker and Bo Jackson) to have four 200-yard games in a single season. Set the school record with 11 consecutive games with a rushing touchdown and finished his career 20 straight, which was the most in the SEC history. Caught 11 passes for 91 yards. Accounted for a team-high 109 first down rushes on a school-record 395 carries. Was a five-time SEC Offensive Player of the Week (Wisconsin, Georgia, Texas A&M, Mississippi State and Auburn).
- At Auburn (11/28/15), produced a Heisman-worthy performance as he rushed his way past the Tigers on the Plains to the tune of a career-high 271 yards on the ground on a school-record 46 carries. Scored a touchdown on his 46th and final carry on a 25-yard jaunt that capped 14 straight rushes to end the game. Earned Walter Camp National Player of the Week honors and SEC Player of the Week accolades.
- Against Clemson (1/11/16), rushed for 158 yards and three touchdowns as the Crimson Tide claimed a 45-40 victory to win the national championship. Carried 36 times, including a 50-yard touchdown scamper in the first quarter and then sealed the win with a one-yard plunge with 1:07 remaining in the game.
- As a sophomore (2014), finished the year with 990 rushing yards on 172 carries with 11 rushing touchdowns. Had five receptions for 133 yards and two receiving touchdowns. Played in all 14 games with two starts and had 21 explosive rushes of 12 yards or more while converting 47 first downs, including four on third down. Three of his five receptions were explosive, taking screen passes 29, 41 and 52 yards.
- As a freshman (2013), as a true freshman saw action in 12 games and totaled 382 rushing yards on 35 carries for a 10.9 yards per carry average. Rushed 10 times (28.6 percent) for 12 yards or more while converting 17 first downs. Took his one pass reception to the end zone for a 61-yard catch and run in the Sugar Bowl. Contributed three tackles on special teams. Registered two 100-yard game (111 vs. Arkansas and 100 vs. Oklahoma).
- Graduated from Alabama in May 2018 with a degree in communications.

37 AMANI HOOKER

DEFENSIVE BACK • 5'11" • 210 LBS • COLLEGE: IOWA
ACQUIRED: 4TH ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 25/0 (PLAYOFFS: 3/0)

PRO: The Titans traded up to select Amani Hooker with the 116th overall pick in the fourth round of the 2019 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-11-inch, 210-pound defender was coveted for his versatility, having played safety, and a hybrid linebacker/cornerback position at Iowa. As a rookie with the Titans, he played in all 16 games and collected 13 tackles, while ranking third on the team with eight special teams tackles.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Hooker played as a reserve safety in all 16 games as a rookie and collected 13 tackles while ranking third on the team with eight special teams tackles.
- As a junior in 2018, Hooker received the Tatum-Woodson award given to the best defensive back in the Big Ten.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Hooker was named a finalist for Minnesota's Mr. Football in 2015. Yet he had just two FBS scholarship offers. When the in-state university showed hesitancy after multiple workouts, Hooker knew he belonged at Iowa saying, "love who loves me."
- In February 2019, Hooker helped crowdfund about $1,200 for the Park Center high school football program through a Pledge-It campaign raising a dollar amount for every inch of his vertical jump at the NFL Scouting Combine. His 37-inch jump ranked fifth among safeties and equaled money for better equipment at his alma mater.
- Amani's brother, Quinton, played basketball for North Dakota and helped take the team to the NCAA tournament his senior year. Quinton was Minnesota's Mr. Basketball in high school and currently plays basketball professionally in France.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Minneapolis, Minn., native was selected by the Titans in the fourth round (116th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/0): Tied for the team lead with two interceptions. Tied for second on the team with six special teams tackles. Collected his first career interception at Minnesota (9/27/20).

- At Denver (9/14), tied for the team lead with a stop on special teams.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), played as a reserve at safety and posted two tackles and a pass defended. Broke up a deep pass intended for Collin Johnson in the end zone late in the second quarter.
- At Minnesota (9/27), saw action as a reserve at safety and registered a tackle and his first career interception. Sealed the victory by intercepting a deep pass intended for Adam Thielen that was originally deflected by Kevin Byard late in the fourth quarter.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), played as a reserve at safety and tallied two tackles. Posted a special teams stop on coverage units.
- Against Houston (10/18), saw action as a reserve at safety and produced a tackle.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), played as a reserve at safety and registered three tackles and two passes defended, including an interception. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units. Broke up a pass intended for James Conner in the second quarter. Intercepted a Ben Roethlisberger pass in the end zone that was initially deflected by Jayon Brown late in the final quarter.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), saw action as a reserve at safety and posted a tackle. Recorded a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- Against Chicago (11/8), played as a reserve at safety and tallied a career-high seven tackles. Registered two special teams tackles on coverage units. Sealed the victory by recovering an onside kick late in the fourth quarter.

- Against Indianapolis (11/12), played as a reserve at safety and collected a tackle.

2019 (16/0, 3/0): Played as a reserve safety in all 16 games as a rookie and collected 13 tackles. Ranked third on the team with eight special teams tackles. Saw action as a reserve in all three postseason contests and notched three tackles on defense and a special teams stop on coverage units. Caught one pass for 28 yards on a fake punt. Tied for the team lead in special teams tackles five times in 2019 (at JAX, vs. BUF, vs. TB, at IND, at HOU). Appeared in his first career NFL contest at Cleveland (9/8/19).

- At Cleveland (9/8), made his NFL debut as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Notched a stop on special teams coverage units.
- At Jacksonville (9/19), saw action as a reserve at safety and on special teams. Tied for the team lead with a special teams stop.
- At Atlanta (9/29), played as a reserve at safety and registered four tackles.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), saw action as a reserve at safety and tallied a tackle. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units.

10 ADAM HUMPHRIES

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'11" • 195 LBS • COLLEGE: CLEMSON
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (TB) - 2019
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 6/2 • HOMETOWN: SPARTANBURG, S.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 78/21 (PLAYOFFS: 1/0)

PRO: The Titans signed wide receiver Adam Humphries early in the 2019 free agency period. The 5-foot-11-inch, 195-pounder has the ability to line up both inside and outside at wide receiver as well as contribute in the return game. In his first season with the Titans in 2019, he finished third on the squad with 37 receptions for 374 yards with two touchdowns. After completing his four-year career at Clemson, Humphries signed a rookie free agent deal with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and spent his first four NFL campaigns with the club (2015-18), registering 219 receptions for 2,329 yards and nine touchdowns.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Humphries ranked third on the team with 37 receptions in his first season as a Titan.
- In 2018, Humphries set career highs in his final season in Tampa Bay with 76 receptions for 816 yards and five touchdowns.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Humphries was originally a rookie tryout invitee with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers following the 2015 NFL Draft. Titans general manager Jon Robinson was a member of the Bucs player personnel department at the time and saw the 5-foot-11-inch wideout grind it out in practice and eventually earn a spot on the team's 53-man roster. "Humph came in as a tryout and won a spot on the 90-man roster," said Robinson. "He was a tough guy to cover all through training camp and he kept working and working. I've always had an affinity for him and liked his style. He's earned everything he's got."
- Clemson head football coach Dabo Swinney took a visit to Humphries' high school, Dorman, before the 2011 season to scout eventual signee Charone Peake during a basketball game. But once the game began, Swinney couldn't help but notice Dorman's 5-foot-11 point guard running the show. "I go watch a basketball game at Dorman High School to see Charone Peake, and I'm going, 'Dang, who's this point guard?'" Swinney said. "And I've got Coach (Dave) Gutshall going, 'Well that's the best football player I've got on the team.' And I'm like, 'Really? We need to watch this guy a little bit.' He played corner, he played receiver, he played running back, he played quarterback. He was the best football player on the team. Adam Humphries was his name. I don't think he had any offers. So we offer the guy, 'Well, we're only offering the guy to get Charone Peake. No, no, no. We want Humphries.'"
- Humphries maintains a friendship with former Clemson teammate DeAndre Hopkins.
- After going down with an injury in the 2019 season, Humphries adopted a shiba inu puppy, Gigi, to keep him company. "Freaking love my dog."
- An avid golfer, Humphries is around a 7 handicap and has been working on his driving and short wedges to improve his game. He enjoys playing at Golf Club of Tennessee, Carolina Country Club, The Walker Course (Clemson University).
- During the unique 2020 offseason caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, Humphries helped pass the time by playing video games. His main purpose was to connect with old friends from high school and college, and former teammates from the Buccaneers. He enjoys Fortnite and Rory McIlroy PGA Tour.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- Signed by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers as a rookie free agent on May 11, 2015.
- Waived by the Buccaneers on Oct. 5, 2015 and signed to the team's practice squad two days later.

- Signed by the Buccaneers to their active roster from the practice squad on Oct. 28, 2015.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 15, 2019.

25 ADOREE' JACKSON

CORNERBACK • 5'11" • 185 LBS • COLLEGE: SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4
HOMETOWN: EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 43/39 (PLAYOFFS: 5/5)

PRO: The Titans added the versatile and electric Adoree' Jackson with the 18th overall pick in the first round of the 2017 NFL Draft, and Jackson proceeded to start every game during his rookie season at cornerback while also serving as the team's primary returner. He has played in 43 games during his first three NFL campaigns and has collected 176 tackles and 41 passes defended, including two interceptions. The 5-foot-11-inch, 185-pound playmaker possesses game-breaking speed but is also a proven and willing tackler.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Jackson saw action in 11 games with 10 starts at cornerback and posted 40 tackles, seven passes defended and two stops for loss.
- In 2018, Jackson set single-season career highs in tackles (69) and interceptions (2). His two interceptions ranked third on the team.
- In 2018, he appeared in all 16 games for the second consecutive season.
- In 2017, Jackson was the first rookie cornerback for the team in the "Titans era" (1999–present) to record 16 starts. His 1,260 total plays (1,017 defensive snaps, 231 special teams snaps and 12 offensive snaps) ranked second in the NFL among all players behind only Arizona Cardinals safety Tyrann Mathieu (1,261).
- Jackson led the Titans with 23 passes defended as a rookie.
- Jackson was awarded the 2016 Jim Thorpe Award as college football's top defensive back.
- During his three-year stint at Southern California, he scored 15 total touchdowns in four different ways: via reception (six), interception (one), punt return (four) and kickoff return (four).
- At Southern California, Jackson tied two NCAA records with eight career touchdowns on kick returns and nine touchdowns on all runbacks. He also set USC career records with 2,141 kickoff return yards and 79 kickoff returns.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Jackson was a long jumper and sprinter on USC's track team in the springs of 2015 and 2016, winning the Pac-12 outdoor long jump title both years (and placing second in the Pac-12 100 meters in 2016) and earning All-American status both years after twice placing fifth in the NCAA long jump. He also placed 10th in the long jump during the U.S. Olympic Trials.
- Jackson lists his parents, Chris and Vianca Jackson, as the people that inspire him the most. "They've always steered me in the right direction. All of their experiences and guidance helped get me where I'm at."
- Vianca Jackson, a survivor of breast cancer, served as the team's Honorary 12th Titan prior to the team's 2017 Breast Cancer Awareness Game (Oct. 16).
- Jackson's father, Chris Jackson, is the ultimate grill master and can be found at Titans home games smoking turkey legs, Cornish hams, chicken, rabbits, alligator and frog legs for a pre-game tailgate among family and friends, as well as a post-game meal with players and coaches. He makes all of his own rubs and sauces and has been cooking since 1984.
- Jackson, business partner James Moore, and Jay Levine co-founded Kor Media Entertainment (KME), a Los Angeles-based entertainment agency under the Warner Brothers Digital umbrella. Their tagline is "Where Creatives Come to Play" and their goal is to create culture relevance for both creators and brands through interactive and labs with a focus on gaming and esports.
- Jackson is a Reese's Peanut Butter Cups enthusiast. He names creator Harry Burnett Reese as a historical person he would have loved to meet.

"He's a genius. That's by far and away my favorite candy. I eat that like it ain't nothing."

- Jackson watched the movie "Space Jam" continuously as a child to the point he memorized most of the movie.
- During the 2018 offseason, Jackson worked with Microsoft to host children from the Boys & Girls Club in Nashville and Los Angeles at parties where they could compete with him in video games Fortnite and Forza Motorsport.
- In May 2018, Jackson and his business partner James Moore paid for the burial costs of Jaylon McKenzie, an eighth-grade football player who was killed by a stray bullet. McKenzie, a St. Louis, Ill., native, grew up idolizing Jackson.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The East St. Louis, Ill., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (18th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

DEFENSIVE BACK • 5'10" • 193 LBS • COLLEGE: MARSHALL
ACQUIRED: 7TH ROUND - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE: ROOKIE
HOMETOWN: TALLAHASSEE, FLA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 7/3 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Chris Jackson with the 243rd overall pick in the seventh round of the 2020 NFL Draft. The 5-foot-10 inch, 193-pounder was coveted for his versatility with experience at both corner and safety, as well as for his speed and ball disruption skills. The Tallahassee, Fla., native was a four-year starter at Marshall where his 45 passes defended rank first in program history. He started 48 games from 2016-19 and tallied 189 tackles, 6.5 tackles for loss, two sacks, seven interceptions with one returned for a touchdown, 45 passes defended, and two fumble recoveries with one returned for a score for the Thundering Herd.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Jackson's 45 passes defended rank first in Marshall history and his 48 career starts rank 14th in program history.
- Jackson earned all-conference recognition each year of his collegiate career: named to the Conference USA first team all-conference team after recording a team-high 11 passes defended as a senior in 2019, earned second team all-conference honors at defensive back as a junior in 2018, garnered all-conference team honorable mention recognition as a sophomore in 2017, and he was named to the Conference USA All-Freshman team in 2016.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- A two-time state track champion in high school, Jackson runs a 4.47 second 40-yard dash. 'I still work out like a track athlete when I can,' Jackson said. 'I watch it a lot and keep up with it.'
- Jackson lived with and was primarily raised by his paternal grandmother, Delores Madison, after his mother was killed by a home invader when Jackson was 10 years old.
- He has a love of cars that he attributes to his father and uncle, the latter of which does competitive drag racing. Jackson lists his top three cars as a 1969 Camaro, a 1984 Buick Grand National and a Ferrari F40.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Tallahassee, Fla., native was selected by the Titans in the seventh round (243rd overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (7/3): Made his NFL debut and his first career NFL start at Denver (9/14/20). Has led the team in special teams tackles once in 2020 (at CIN).
• At Denver (9/14), started at cornerback in his first career NFL contest and collected a tackle. Became the franchise's first rookie drafted in the seventh round or later to start a Week 1 game since Sept. 10, 1989, when Oilers ninth-round rookie tight end Bob Mrosko started at Minnesota.
• Against Jacksonville (9/20), played as a reserve at cornerback and posted six tackles.
• At Minnesota (9/27), was inactive.
• Against Buffalo (10/13), started at cornerback and tallied four tackles and a pass defended. Combined with Larrell Murchison to stuff Devin Singletary for a three-yard loss on a rush up the middle in the first quarter. Ended a Bills' drive by deflecting a third-and-nine pass intended for Stefan Diggs in the second stanza.
• Against Houston (10/18), was inactive.
• Against Pittsburgh (10/25), played as a reserve at cornerback and registered three tackles.
• At Cincinnati (11/1), started at cornerback and posted four tackles, including a stop for loss. Led the team with two special teams tackles on coverage units. Stuffed Giovanni Bernard for a three-yard loss on a rush off left tackle in the second stanza.

- Against Chicago (11/8), played as a reserve at cornerback.

60 BEN JONES

CENTER • 6'3" • 308 LBS • COLLEGE: GEORGIA
ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (HOU) - 2016
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/5 • HOMETOWN: BRENT, ALA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 136/115 (PLAYOFFS: 8/8)

Captain: 2019

Community Man of the Year: 2019

PRO: The Titans signed Ben Jones early in the 2016 free agency period to bring veteran leadership and experience to the center position and he has provided just that during his tenure with the club. The 6-foot-3-inch, 308-pounder was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft. The University of Georgia product is a versatile player, having started contests at center and both guard spots in his first four seasons with the Texans.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Jones has started games at center, left guard and right guard during his NFL career and has opened holes for an 1,000-yard rusher in five different seasons.
- In 2019, Jones started 15 games at center and helped Derrick Henry lead the NFL with 1,540 rushing yards.
- In Week 9 of the 2019 season, Jones missed the first game of his eight-year NFL career when he was inactive due to injury. It ended his streak of 120 consecutive games played and 88 consecutive starts. At the time, Jones' consecutive games streak tied Kansas City's Mitchell Schwartz for the longest active streak in the NFL among offensive linemen, and his starting streak ranked first in the NFL among all centers.
- In Week 11 of the 2019 season, Jones returned to the lineup and started his 100th career game.
- Jones made a career-high three postseason starts in 2019.
- In 2018, Jones started all 16 games at center, registering five consecutive seasons with a start in every contest (2014-15 with Houston).
- Jones appeared in his 100th career game in Week 4 of the 2018 season.
- As of the completion of the 2018 season, among NFL offensive linemen listed as centers, Jones ranked first in the NFL with 80 consecutive games started. He had played in 112 consecutive games, which at this point tied for the longest active consecutive games streak among NFL offensive linemen.
- In 2016, Jones centered all 16 games in his first campaign with the Titans and was a part of an offensive front that blocked for the NFL's third-ranked rushing attack which averaged 136.7 rush yards per game.
- In 2015, Jones transitioned to his natural position of center and started all 16 games and the playoff contest for the Texans.
- In 2014, Jones started all 16 contests at left guard.
- As a rookie in 2012, Jones started the final 10 games of the season at right guard and was named the Texans Rookie of the Year.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Jones switched from jersey #61 to #60 prior to his senior season at Georgia, to honor his father, Steve, a former collegiate star, who was killed in a helicopter crash when he was 10 years old.
- Jones' pregame ritual consists of walking barefoot on the field "to get a feel for the turf." The routine began before one game with his brother in high school and after enjoying success that night, it has continued ever since.
- When he was 10 years old, Jones suffered a blow to the head with a baseball bat. The impact caused a blood clot to develop on his brain and fractured his skull. The injury kept him out of all athletic activity for a year, proving to be a challenging time for an active and athletic boy. Although it was a tough period in his life, Ben says this time turned him into the man he is today. As soon as he was cleared for activities, Jones threw himself into being the best athlete he could be.
- In 2017, Jones established The Jones Mission Fund at The Community Foundation to provide at-risk youth with opportunities they might otherwise not have through grants, additional resources and educational opportunities.

- For the past three offseasons, Jones and his wife has hosted the annual Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot. The three events combined have raised more than $400,000 benefitting The Jones Mission Fund.
- Jones hosts a free Friday Night Lights youth football camp in his native Alabama every June.
- Jones sponsors a trip to a Titans game each fall for the seniors of his high school's football team in Alabama. The experience includes round trip transportation from his hometown, tickets, a private tailgate, swag bags, and a meet-and-greet with a tour of the Titans practice facility after the game with Jones.
- Jones' brother, Clay, played baseball for the University of Alabama and then was drafted by the Detroit Tigers.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- A native of Brent, Ala., Jones was originally selected by the Houston Texans in the fourth round (99th overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 10, 2016.

90 DAQUAN JONES

DEFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'4" • 322 LBS • COLLEGE: PENN STATE
ACQUIRED: 4TH ROUND - 2014 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 7/7
HOMETOWN: JOHNSON CITY, N.Y.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 92/86 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

Captain: 2020

PRO: Seeking a big, physical and versatile defensive lineman, the Titans selected Penn State's DaQuan Jones in the fourth round of the 2014 NFL Draft. Since then, he has become one of the mainstays of the Titans defensive lineup, appearing in all 16 games in four of his first six seasons, including every game in 2018 and 2019. Jones offers an impressive combination of size, athleticism, intelligence and power. The 6-foot-4-inch, 322-pounder earned a full-time role as a 3-4 defensive end by his second season but has the ability to play multiple spots on the line. He was signed to a new multi-year contract extension in 2018.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Jones started all 16 games for the fourth time in his career and for the second consecutive season. He achieved career highs with 21 quarterback pressures and three passes defended.
- In 2018, Jones started all 16 games for the third time in his career. His 39 tackles made up the second-highest total of his career and included a career-high four tackles for loss.
- In 2016, Jones joined Brian Orakpo as the only two Titans to start every game from 2015–2016.
- Against Houston in the 2016 season finale (1/1/17), recovered a Tom Savage fumble in the end zone for his first career touchdown.
- In 2015, Jones was one of four members of the team to start all 16 games, holding down a spot at defensive end for the duration of the campaign. He totaled 67 tackles, 15 quarterback pressures, two tackles for loss and a fumble recovery.
- As a rookie in 2014, Jones played in seven games with one start. He posted his first career sack against Indianapolis on Dec. 28.
- As a senior at Penn State, Jones earned first-team All-Big Ten Conference honors and was named Penn State's Outstanding Senior Player and the recipient of the team's Reid-Robinson Award. He was one of the team's leaders who opted to stay with the program during a time of turmoil.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Jones has a reputation as an upbeat, positive influence. "I've always had that positive mindset, even when things weren't as good," he says. "The guys laugh at me sometimes because I'm always smiling ... It's not that I'm happy all the time, but I just feel like in today's world, if you let anything get you down, it will. The smallest thing will turn into the biggest problem if you let it, so I just try my best to keep a positive mindset."
- Jones majored in criminal justice at Penn State and spent a portion of his 2013 summer as an intern observing the Spring Township Police Department near State College.
- Jones entered the Penn State program after being rated the second-best offensive lineman in the nation during his playing days at Johnson City High School. He switched to the other side of the ball and made an immediate impact as a true freshman.
- Jones lists his father, Steve, as the most inspirational person in his life. Steve raised DaQuan as a single father and one of his father's greatest traits is that he works extremely hard in everything he does. Steve works as an executive chef at Cornell University.
- Jones is in the process of launching his own non-profit organization called "Create Your Legacy." In June 2019, he hosted the DaQuan Jones Create Your Legacy Football Camp for more than 100 kids ages 11-18 at Johnson City (N.Y.) High School.
- Jones has four dogs, one of which he named Titan.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Johnson City, N.Y., native was selected by the Titans in the fourth round (112th overall) of the 2014 NFL Draft.

71 DENNIS KELLY

TACKLE/GUARD • 6'8" • 321 LBS • COLLEGE: PURDUE
ACQUIRED: TRADE (PHI) - 2016 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/5
HOMETOWN: CHICAGO HEIGHTS, ILL.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 97/40 (PLAYOFFS: 5/0)

PRO: The Titans acquired Dennis Kelly in a trade with the Philadelphia Eagles in 2016. The 6-foot-8-inch, 321-pounder provides quality experience and depth along the offensive front, having logged starts at right tackle, left tackle, right guard, left guard and tight end during his NFL career. In his first four seasons in Nashville, he appeared in 58 games with 16 starts. The 2012 fifth-round pick spent his first four NFL campaigns as a member of the Eagles and appeared in 30 games with 15 starts from 2012-15.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, he made his first career start at left tackle and finished the season with four starts at left tackle.
- In Week 12 of the 2019 season against Jacksonville, Kelly caught his first career touchdown on a one-yard reception as an extra tight end.
- In the 2019 AFC Championship at Kansas City, Kelly caught his first postseason touchdown and became the first offensive lineman to catch a touchdown pass in the NFL postseason since the 2014 playoffs.
- In 2018, Kelly saw action in 11 games and logged five starts at right tackle.
- In 2016, Kelly appeared in all 16 games for the first time in his career and recorded six starts in his first campaign in Tennessee.
- In 2012, he started 10 games as a rookie—three starts at right guard and seven starts at right tackle.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Kelly went back to school during the 2014 offseason to earn his degree in organizational leadership from Purdue, and in May 2019, Kelly received his MBA from the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University.
- Kelly is an avid professional wrestling fan that does not let the opportunity pass him by whenever a live WWE show is in town. He lists the Undertaker as the one person in the world he would like to have dinner with.
- Kelly's brother, Tim, played football at Eastern Illinois and is currently the offensive coordinator for the Houston Texans.
- Kelly's favorite football player growing up was former Titans great Jevon Kearse.
- Kelly claims that the biggest influence on his life and career has been his entire family. "We're a Southside [Chicago] Irish family, so we share a really tight bond and they've inspired me to get to where I am today."

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- A native of Chicago Heights, Ill., Kelly was originally selected by the Philadelphia Eagles in the fifth round (153rd overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Traded by the Eagles to the Titans in exchange for wide receiver Dorial Green-Beckham on Aug. 16, 2016.

SEASON RECAPS:

33 DESMOND KING II

CORNERBACK • 5'10" • 201 LBS • COLLEGE: IOWA

ACQUIRED: TRADE (LAC) - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/1

HOMETOWN: DETROIT, MICH.

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 55/25 (PLAYOFFS: 2/2)

PRO: The Titans acquired Desmond King II from the Los Angeles Chargers prior to the 2020 trade deadline. The 5-foot-10-inch, 201-pound playmaker appeared in 53 games with Los Angeles and earned Associated Press All-Pro honors as both a cornerback and punt returner. The University of Iowa product is a skilled cover corner that has excelled in the slot and is also a willing tackler and blitz. King II is also an accomplished return specialist having returned two punts for touchdowns during his NFL career.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2018, King II was named first-team All-Pro at defensive back and a second-team All-Pro at punt returner by the Associated Press.
- With four sacks as a rookie in 2017, King II became the second defensive back to post at least four sacks as a rookie (Bill Bates, 1983).
- King became just the sixth player in NFL history and second defensive back ever to post multiple pick-sixes and at least four sacks over the first two seasons of his career (S Roy Williams, 2002-03).

TITANS TIDBITS:

- King founded the King Kares Foundation in 2017, which provides financial support to underprivileged families in the Detroit area. After establishing itself, King Kares Foundation will expand its financial assistance to Eastern Iowa and Southern California.

- Against Indianapolis (11/12), started as the nickel back and collected five tackles.

2019 (15/7 - Los Angeles Chargers): Played in 15 games, starting seven as the third cornerback and one at safety. Was inactive for another contest. Totaled 54 tackles, 2.5 sacks and four tackles for loss. Broke up a pass, forced a fumble and recovered a fumble. Returned 16 kickoffs for 331 yards (20.7 avg.), including a 43-yarder, to reach 1,000 career kickoff return yards. Added 21 punt returns for 118 yards (5.6 avg.), including one that he took 68 yards for a touchdown. Posted a special teams tackle.

- Against Indianapolis (9/8), recorded three tackles and a tackle for loss. Shed the block of Anthony Castonzo in the first quarter to run Marlon Mack out of bounds for a three-yard loss. Returned a kickoff 43 yards and returned a punt.
- At Miami (9/29), posted four tackles. Recorded a single-game career-high 2.5 sacks for 14 yards. Beat Kenyan Drake late in the first half to split a sack with Joey Bosa. On one of the solo sacks, sprinted up in the face of Josh Rosen to bring him down for a five-yard sack as the quarterback rolled to his right. Added a forced fumble.
- Against Denver (10/6), returned a punt for a 68-yard touchdown to become the eighth Charger with multiple touchdowns on punt returns while with the team.

2018 (16/8, 2/2 - Los Angeles Chargers): Recognized by The Associated Press as a first-team All-Pro as a defensive back and second-team All-Pro as a punt returner. Appeared in 16 games with eight starts as the third corner and recorded 60 tackles, four tackles for loss, 13 passes defended and a fumble recovery. Registered three interceptions, returning them for a total of 75 yards, including one for a 42-yard touchdown. Became just the sixth player in NFL history and second defensive back ever to post multiple pick-sixes and at least four sacks over the first two seasons of his career (S Roy Williams, 2002-03). Added 23 punt returns for 318 yards, including a 73-yarder that went for a score. Forced a fumble and posted a tackle on kickoff coverage. Returned 22 kickoffs for 522 yards. Started both postseason games as the team's nickel back and recorded 10 tackles, a one-yard sack and a tackle for loss. Posted six kickoff returns for 179 yards (29.8 avg.), including a 72-yarder. Returned five punts for 46 yards (9.2 avg.), including a 33-yarder to set a record for the longest in Chargers postseason history.

- At Los Angeles Rams (9/23), started as the nickel and posted five tackles and a tackle for loss. Recovered a first quarter fumble by Todd Gurley II after he was stripped by Brandon Mebane, marking the first recovery of his career.
- At Cleveland (10/14), started as the third cornerback and set a single-game career high with two interceptions. On the first pick, undercut Jarvis Landry and returned the interception 33 yards to the Cleveland 10-yard line. Picked off his second pass of the day in the fourth quarter after jumping a hitch-route by David Njoku.
- At Seattle (11/4), named AFC Defensive Player of the Week for his performance in a Week 9 win over the Seahawks. Totaled three pass breakups and an interception in the fourth quarter that he returned for a touchdown. On the play, jumped the route of David Moore along the left sideline to pick off Russell Wilson and return it for the 42-yard score.
- At Pittsburgh (12/2), posted 10 tackles and a pair of passes defended. Dove to break up a pass on a crossing-route by JuJu Smith-Schuster in the second quarter. In the fourth quarter, dove to undercut a route by Jesse James. Earned AFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors in a Week 13 victory after registering a 73-yard punt return for a score. Added two tackles on special teams.
- At Denver (12/30), posted five tackles and a tackle for loss. Forced a fumble on kickoff coverage and recorded a special teams tackle. Punched the ball away from River Cracraft on kickoff coverage in the fourth quarter, forcing a turnover after it was recovered by Brandon Facyson along the sideline with a diving effort.

- At Baltimore (1/6), registered three tackles, a sack and a tackle for loss in the Wild Card matchup. Contained Lamar Jackson on a passing play before beating the block of Maxx Williams to record the one-yard sack as Jackson began to scramble. Returned four punts for 46 yards (11.5 avg.), including a 33-yarder that set a record as the longest in Chargers postseason history. Recorded a 72-yard kickoff return, the second-longest in team postseason history.
- At New England (1/13), posted seven tackles after starting as the third cornerback in the divisional playoffs. Added a special teams tackle.

2017 (16/4 - Los Angeles Chargers): Appeared in all 16 games, starting four contests as the third cornerback. Registered 71 tackles, including four sacks and six tackles for loss. Posted a 90-yard pick-six on his first interception of his career. With four sacks, tied Rodney Harrison (1997, '98) for the second-most sacks by a defensive back in a single season in Chargers history. Became the first defensive back since 1997 to post at least 3.5 sacks as a rookie and the second-ever to have four (Bill Bates, 1983). Posted seven special teams tackles on kickoff coverage, pinning opponents inside the 20-yard line once. Registered 17 kickoff returns for 353 yards (20.8 avg.) and a two-yard punt return.

- At Denver (9/11), made his NFL debut, appearing on three defensive snaps and nine special teams plays. Broke up a pass from Trevor Siemian intended for Bennie Fowler III that ended up being intercepted by Adrian Phillips.

58 HAROLD LANDRY III

OUTSIDE LINEBACKER • 6'2" • 252 LBS • COLLEGE: BOSTON COLLEGE
ACQUIRED: 2ND ROUND - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/3
HOMETOWN: SPRING LAKE, N.C.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 40/28 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans traded up to select outside linebacker Harold Landry III with the 41st overall pick in the second round of the 2018 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-2-inch, 252-pound defender possesses a unique ability to bend the edge as a pass rusher and use his speed, athleticism and long arms to get to the quarterback. He finished his career at Boston College ranked second in school history with 26 career sacks.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Landry started all 16 games and led the team with a career-high nine sacks. He started all three postseason games in 2019 and tallied a team-best eight quarterback pressures.
- In 2018, made his NFL debut and appeared in 15 games on the season. His 4.5 sacks tied for third on the team and his 18 quarterback pressures tied for second.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Landry could have entered the NFL Draft following his 16.5-sack junior season at Boston College. However, he chose to stay in school and received his degree in communications in December 2017.
- Landry enjoys traveling. One of his favorite getaways is Destin, Fla.
- He and his son, Greyson, share the same June 5 birthday.
- Landry's 26 career sacks at Boston College were exceeded in school history by only Mathias Kiwanuka (37.5 from 2002-05).
- In 2016, he set a Boston College record and led the nation with 16.5 sacks. His seven forced fumbles also ranked first nationally.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Spring Lake, N.C., native was selected by the Titans in the second round (41st overall) of the 2018 NFL Draft.

51 DAVID LONG JR.

LINEBACKER • 5'11" • 227 LBS • COLLEGE: WEST VIRGINIA
 ACQUIRED: 6TH ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
 HOMETOWN: CINCINNATI, OHIO
 GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 22/0 (PLAYOFFS: 3/1)

PRO: The Titans selected David Long Jr. in the sixth round of the 2019 NFL Draft. As a rookie, he contributed on special teams and as a reserve at inside linebacker, recording his first career start during the playoffs. The 5-foot-11-inch, 227-pound defender possesses tremendous speed for the position, displays grit and toughness, and has a knack for finding the ball carrier. At West Virginia, he was a three-year starter and amassed 252 career tackles, 14 sacks and 40 tackles for loss. The 2018 Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year led the Mountaineers in tackles during his final collegiate campaign.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a rookie in 2019, Long appeared in 14 games during the regular season. He also played in all three playoff contests with one start.
- As a junior at West Virginia in 2018, he was selected Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year by the coaches and the Associated Press. He also received second-team All-America honors by the Associated Press and first-team All-Big 12 accolades by the Associated Press.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- David's father, David Sr., is a former professional boxer who went 12-5-2 as a heavyweight. He once fought future world champ Deontay Wilder.
- During the offseason, Long still uses on-the-bell, three-minute-round boxing training to focus on his mental awareness. In 2018, Long Jr. went into the ring with headgear against his old man for the first time. They went for three 90-second rounds. "He busted up my lip, but it was fun," Long Jr. says. "He was really iffy that I knew how to throw my hands for real. It was just jabs, but it's grown-man strength."
- Long was a high school teammate of safety Mike Edwards, who was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the third round of the 2019 NFL Draft.
- When Long was seven years old, he was on the back of a bike being pedaled by his older brother when he was hit by a car driven by someone who was not paying attention. He was treated at the hospital with head and arm injuries.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Cincinnati, Ohio, native was selected by the Titans in the sixth round (188th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

30 CHRIS MILTON

CORNERBACK • 5'11" • 190 LBS • COLLEGE: GEORGIA TECH
ACQUIRED: WAIVERS (IND) – 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/1
HOMETOWN: FOLKSTON, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 50/1 (PLAYOFFS: 2/0)

PRO: The Titans claimed Chris Milton off waivers from the Indianapolis Colts just prior to the start of the 2019 regular season. The 5-foot-11-inch, 190-pounder has excelled on special teams during his first four NFL campaigns. He was limited to six games during his first season in Tennessee due to injuries. The Georgia Tech product appeared in 35 games for the Colts from 2016-18 and notched 15 special teams tackles and two forced fumbles on coverage units.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Milton appeared in six contests as a reserve in his first season with the Titans and collected five special teams tackles before landing on injured reserve.
- In 2018, Milton played in 15 games for the Colts and posted three tackles, seven special teams stops and one fumble recovery. He saw action in both postseason games and contributed on special teams with two tackles and one forced fumble.
- In 2017, Milton appeared in 14 games and recorded four tackles and one fumble recovery while adding five special teams tackles.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Milton is related to former NFL running back Tashard Choice, who played six seasons (2008-2013) in the NFL with the Dallas Cowboys, Washington, Buffalo Bills and Indianapolis Colts.
- Milton had the opportunity to learn from one of the best cornerbacks to play this century. Milton and Pro Football Hall of Famer Champ Bailey's family were close and when Milton was getting ready for the NFL, he reached out to Bailey for tips. They trained together during the weeks leading up to the draft. Now if he ever has questions, he still reaches out to the legendary cornerback.
- Milton enjoys fishing in his free time and when he is not playing or training for football he feels like a full-time fisherman on the water.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Folkston, Ga., native was originally signed by the Indianapolis Colts as a rookie free agent on May 3, 2016.
- Waived by the Colts on Sept. 3, 2016 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Colts to their active roster from the practice squad on Nov. 19, 2016.
- Waived by the Colts on Sept. 1, 2019.
- Claimed by the Titans off waivers from the Colts on Sept. 2, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/0 - Tennessee): Has tied for the team lead in special teams tackles once in 2020 (at MIN).

- At Denver (9/14), played as a reserve on special teams.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), saw action as a reserve on special teams. Pinned the Jaguars deep in their own territory by downing a Brett Kern 34-yard punt at the Jacksonville six-yard line early in the second quarter.
- At Minnesota (9/27), tied for the team lead with a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), registered a special teams tackle on coverage units. Raced down the field and stuffed Andre Roberts for a one-yard loss at the Bills' nine-yard line on a punt return in the opening quarter. Pinned the Bills deep in their own territory by downing a Brett Kern 41-yard punt at the Buffalo three-yard line in the third quarter.
- Against Houston (10/18), played as a reserve on special teams.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), saw action as a reserve on special teams.

- At Cincinnati (11/1), saw action as a reserve on special teams.
- Against Chicago (11/8), collected a special teams tackle on coverage units.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), played as a reserve on special teams in his 50th career regular season contest.

2019 (6/0 - Tennessee): Played in six games as a reserve and collected five special teams tackles in his first season with the Titans. Was inactive for five games. Placed on injured reserve on Nov. 26, 2019. Led or tied for the team lead in special teams tackles three times (vs. IND, at ATL, vs. KC).

- At Cleveland (9/8), made his Titans debut as a reserve on special teams.
- Against Indianapolis (9/15), tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles on coverage units.
- At Atlanta (9/29), saw action as a reserve on special teams and led the team with two special teams tackles. Stonewalled Kendall Sheffield at the Falcons' 15-yard line for just a 13-yard kickoff return in the first quarter.
- Against Buffalo (10/6), played as a reserve on special teams before leaving the game in the second quarter with an injury.
- Against Kansas City (11/10), returned to the lineup as a reserve on special teams and registered a tackle on coverage units.

2018 (15/0, 2/0 - Indianapolis): Played in 15 games and posted three tackles, seven special teams stops and one fumble recovery. Was inactive for one regular season contest. Played in two postseason games and contributed on special teams with two tackles and one forced fumble.

- At New England (10/4), registered two tackles.
- At Tennessee (12/30), recovered a fumble on special teams coverage units.
- At Kansas City (1/12), forced a fumble on special teams.

2017 (14/0 - Indianapolis): Appeared in 14 games as a reserve and recorded four tackles and one fumble recovery while adding five special teams tackles. Was inactive for one contest and did not play in another.

- Against Arizona (9/17), recovered a fumble on special teams.
- Against Tennessee (11/26), notched two tackles on special teams coverage units.
- Against Houston (12/31), posted two solo tackles.

2016 (6/1 - Indianapolis): Participated in six contests with one start as a rookie and notched six tackles, two passes defended and three special teams stops. Spent the first 10 games of the season on the Colts' practice squad.

- At Minnesota (12/18), collected three tackles, a pass defended and a special teams stop.
- Against Jacksonville (1/1), made his first career start at cornerback and tallied three tackles, a pass defended and a special teams tackle.

COLLEGE:

- Played in 53 games with 33 starts at Georgia Tech and collected 96 tackles, three tackles for loss, a forced fumble, 14 passes defended and five interceptions with two returned for touchdowns. Finished his career with seven blocked kicks. Also recorded four kickoff returns for 44 yards and two punt returns for 39 yards.
- As a senior (2015), started all 12 games and tallied 28 tackles, one interception, six passes defended and two blocked kicks. Was the FBS active career leader in blocked kicks during the 2015 season.
- As a junior (2014), started all 14 games and totaled 32 tackles, a tackle for loss, four passes defended and two interceptions. Returned one interception for a touchdown, blocked one field goal and one PAT.

91 LARRELL MURCHISON

DEFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'2" • 297 LBS • COLLEGE: NORTH CAROLINA STATE
 ACQUIRED: 5TH ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE: ROOKIE
 HOMETOWN: ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C.
 GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 8/0 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Larrell Murchison in the fifth round of the 2020 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-2, 297-pound defensive lineman displays great power and quickness and has the ability to play multiple positions along the defensive front. He was an All-ACC performer as a senior at N.C. State and amassed 11 sacks and 20 tackles for loss in his two seasons with the Wolfpack.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Murchison was named second-team All-ACC after leading the Wolfpack with a 12 tackles for loss and seven sacks as a senior in 2019.
- After his debut season on the field in 2018, Murchison received N.C. State's Cary Brewbaker Award for Defensive Lineman of the Year, as well as the Alpha Wolf Rising Award, which is given to the Most Improved Player.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Larrell's fraternal brother, Farrell, who played running back at Winston Salem State, was diagnosed with testicular cancer in 2018. Larrell supported him through the treatment and recovery. "My role was to stay strong for him. We're extremely close, and it was hard. But we got through it, and he's now cancer free and about to graduate."
- Murchison grew up working with his mother at her restaurant in Elizabethtown called Glenda's Just Desserts and Lunch Counter, which she has owned for 10 years. He would work doing whatever needed to be done – mopping floors, sweeping, waiting tables and taking orders. "Everything is good, but if you go I'd say start with the fried pork chops, mac and cheese and cabbage."
- Murchison loves everything music and enjoys playing the drums. His dad played drums in the church when he was younger, and he just followed in his footsteps.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Elizabethtown, N.C., native was selected by the Titans in the fifth round (174th overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

- 2020 (8/0): Made his NFL debut against Jacksonville (9/20/20).

 - At Minnesota (9/27), saw action as a reserve at defensive end.
 - Against Buffalo (10/13), played as a reserve on the defensive front and tallied two tackles, including a stop for loss. Combined with Chris Jackson to stuff Devin Singletary for a three-yard loss on a rush up the middle in the first quarter.
 - Against Houston (10/18), saw action as a reserve at defensive end.
 - Against Pittsburgh (10/25), played as a reserve on the defensive line.
 - At Cincinnati (11/1), saw action as a reserve at defensive end.
 - Against Chicago (11/8), played as a reserve on the defensive front.
 - Against Indianapolis (11/12), saw limited action as a reserve on the defensive front before leaving the game late in the first quarter with an injury.

COLLEGE:

- During a two-year stint as a defensive tackle at North Carolina State, Murchison started in all 25 contests. He finished his Wolfpack career with 85 tackles, 11 sacks, 20 tackles for loss, five quarterback hits, an interception, three passes defensed and three fumble recoveries. He started his collegiate career at Louisburg College and was named a NJCAA junior-college honorable mention All-American.

AS A SENIOR (2019), started all 12 games at defensive tackle and registered 51 tackles. Led the Wolfpack with 12 tackles for loss and seven sacks.

- Named second-team All-ACC choice by the league and honorable mention All-ACC by Pro Football Focus.
- Ranked sixth in the ACC in sacks with 0.58 per game - the No. 52 mark in the FBS.
- At Florida State (9/28), named the ACC defensive lineman of the week for the second time in his career after posting 3.5 sacks against the Seminoles.
- Invited to play at the Reese's Senior Bowl and recorded a tackle and a pass breakup in the game, but was a head-turner during bowl-week practices.

AS A REDSHIRT JUNIOR (2018), started all 13 games at defensive tackle and posted 34 tackles, four sacks, eight tackles for loss, an interception, two passes defensed and a fumble recovery. Ranked second on the team with four sacks.

- Earned the team's Cary Brewbaker Award for Defensive Lineman of the Year, as well as the Alpha Wolf Rising Award, which is given to the Most Improved Player.
- Against Virginia (9/29), tallied four tackles for loss and three sacks in the victory.
- Against Florida State (11/3), posted his first career interception in the win over the Seminoles.

AS A JUNIOR (2017), redshirted the season after transferring from Louisburg College.

AS A SOPHOMORE (2016), posted 41 tackles, 17.5 tackles for loss and 5.5 sacks for a Louisburg team that finished with 9-0 record.

- Named a NJCAA junior-college honorable mention All-American and was ranked the No. 42 JUCO nationally according to Scout.com.

AS A FRESHMAN (2015), attended Louisburg College in North Carolina and tallied 18 tackles, 1.5 sacks and six tackles for loss.

- Graduated in the summer of 2019 with a degree in sport management from North Carolina State.

14 KALIF RAYMOND

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'8" • 182 LBS • COLLEGE: HOLY CROSS
ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2018 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 3/2
HOMETOWN: LAWRENCEVILLE, GA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 29/4 (PLAYOFFS: 2/0)

PRO: The Titans signed Kalif Raymond to the practice squad during Week 17 of the 2018 season to add speed to the receiving corps as well as return ability. In 2019, he was on the practice squad for six games before being elevated to the 53-man roster. He appeared in a total of eight games during the regular season as a reserve receiver and returner. In the postseason, he played in two games with one start. The 5-foot-8-inch, 182-pounder was originally signed by the Denver Broncos as an undrafted free agent following the 2016 NFL Draft and appeared in four games as a rookie. The Lawrenceville, Ga., native also spent Weeks 4-5 of the 2018 season on the Titans practice squad, and has spent time with the New York Jets and New York Giants.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Raymond saw action in eight games during the regular season and produced nine receptions for 170 yards and one touchdown, four punt returns for 45 yards (11.3 avg.) and 18 kickoff returns for 403 yards (22.4 avg.). Additionally, he appeared in two playoff games and recorded a 45-yard touchdown catch.
- In 2017, appeared in eight games for both the New York Jets (2), and New York Giants (6). He returned 18 punts for 99 yards, and returned 14 kickoffs for 271 yards on the season.
- In 2016, made his NFL debut with the Denver Broncos and appeared in four contests as a rookie. Returned 11 punts for 111 yards, as well as six kickoffs for 137 yards.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Raymond was a dual-sport collegiate athlete, competing in football as well as track and field during his senior season at Holy Cross. He placed second in the 100-meter dash at the 2015 New England Outdoor Championship with a time of 10.71 seconds.
- Raymond received little interest from college football programs when he was a student at Greater Atlanta Christian (Ga.) High School, partly due to a serious injury he suffered as a senior. Undeterred, he began sending emails to colleges with football programs and high academic standards. The only schools to respond were Lehigh, Georgetown and Holy Cross, and he chose the latter.
- In preparation for the 2016 NFL Draft, Raymond, who was not invited to the NFL Scouting Combine, was allowed to participate in Harvard's pro day since Holy Cross did not host a pro day.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

ACQUIRED: FREE AGENT - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 6/0 (PLAYOFFS: 3/0)

PRO: The Titans signed Derick Roberson as a rookie free agent following the 2019 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-3-inch, 250-pounder appeared in six games, including all three postseason contests as a rookie in 2019 and posted three sacks. He appeared in 32 games over three seasons at Sam Houston State after transferring from Texas following his redshirt freshman campaign. Roberson led the FCS and tied a single-season school record with 15 sacks as a senior. During his college career, Roberson posted 129 tackles, 25 sacks, eight passes defended and eight forced fumbles.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Roberson played as a reserve outside linebacker in three regular season games as a rookie and collected three sacks, including two of Drew Brees.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Roberson enjoys painting on and designing sneakers and cleats.
- Roberson is unsure how many tattoos he has at this point, but he has drawn and designed some of the ones he has inked on his body.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The San Antonio, Texas, native was signed by the Titans as a rookie free agent on May 10, 2019.
- Waived by the Titans on Aug. 31, 2019 and signed to the team's practice squad a day later.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Oct. 19, 2019.
- Waived by the Titans on Oct. 22, 2019 and signed to the team's practice squad two days later.
- Signed by the Titans to their active roster from the practice squad on Nov. 26, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (3/0):

- At Denver (9/14), was inactive.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), was inactive.
- At Minnesota (9/27), was inactive.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), was inactive.
- Against Houston (10/18), made his season debut as a reserve at outside linebacker.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), was inactive.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), was inactive.
- Against Chicago (11/8), returned to the lineup as a reserve at outside linebacker and tallied three tackles, a quarterback pressure and a pass defended. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units. Batted down a pass intended at the line of scrimmage that was intended for Darnell Mooney late in the third quarter.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), played as a reserve at outside linebacker.

2019 (3/0, 3/0): Saw action as a reserve in three games during his rookie campaign and collected four tackles, including three sacks. Notched a special teams tackle on coverage units. Was inactive for three games. Spent the first six weeks on the Titans' practice squad before being elevated to the active roster in Week 7. Spent Weeks 8-12 on the practice squad before being signed to the active roster prior to Week 13. Played in all three postseason contests and posted two tackles, three quarterback pressures, a stop for loss and two special teams tackles. Led or tied for the team lead in sacks twice in 2019 (vs. NO, at HOU). Tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures once in 2019 (at KC). Tied for the team lead in special teams tackles twice in 2019 (vs. HOU, at KC). Played in his first career NFL contest against Houston (12/15/19).

- Against Houston (12/15), made his NFL debut as a reserve on special teams and collected a tackle on coverage units.
- Against New Orleans (12/22), played as a reserve at outside linebacker and produced two sacks. Collected his first career sack by dropping Drew Brees for a seven-yard loss on third-and-18 in the first quarter. Shot up the middle and sacked Brees for an eight-yard loss on third-and-10 in the final quarter. Became the first Titans rookie with two or more sacks in a game since linebacker Avery Williamson accomplished the feat as a rookie against the Pittsburgh Steelers on Nov. 17, 2014.
- At Houston (12/29), saw action as a reserve at outside linebacker and recorded two tackles, including a sack. Halted a Texans' first quarter drive by sacking A.J. McCarron for an eight-yard loss on third-and-four.

76 RODGER SAFFOLD III

GUARD • 6'5" • 325 LBS • COLLEGE: INDIANA

ACQUIRED: UNRESTRICTED FREE AGENT (LOS ANGELES RAMS) - 2019

NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 11/2 • HOMETOWN: BEDFORD, OHIO

GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 139/136 (PLAYOFFS: 7/7)

PRO: The Titans signed Rodger Saffold III early in the 2019 free agency period to bring veteran leadership and experience to the interior of the offensive front. The 6-foot-5-inch, 325-pounder was originally selected by the St. Louis Rams in the second round (33rd overall) of the 2010 NFL Draft. The Indiana University product is a versatile player, having started contests at both guard and both tackle spots in his NFL career.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Saffold started all 16 games and all three postseason contests at left guard for the second consecutive season and in his first season with the Titans. Helped open holes for Derrick Henry to lead the NFL with 1,540 rushing yards in 2019.
- In 2018, Saffold started all 16 games for the Rams and all three postseason contests on L.A.'s march to Super Bowl LIII. He helped open holes for Todd Gurley II to gain 1,251 rushing yards and 17 touchdowns on the ground.
- In 2017, Saffold started 15 games at left guard and blocked for Todd Gurley's 1,305-yard rushing campaign that included 13 rushing scores.
- In 2010, Saffold was named All-Rookie by Pro Football Weekly and the Pro Football Writers of America after finishing the season as the only NFL rookie to start all of his team's games at left tackle.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Saffold is the owner of competitive "Call of Duty" and "Fortnite" teams called Rise Nation. He invested in the video game industry in April 2014.
- His father, Rodger II, played football at the University of Iowa in the mid-1970s.
- Rodger and his wife Asia grew up on the same street as eight-year olds in Ohio. The childhood friend's romance didn't begin until quite awhile later when the two re-connected on Facebook during Saffold's second-year with the Rams.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- A native of Bedford, Ohio, Saffold was selected by the St. Louis Rams in the second round (33rd overall) of the 2010 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as an unrestricted free agent on March 15, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/9 - Tennessee):

- At Denver (9/14), started at left guard and was a part of an offensive front that allowed the Titans to amass 377 total yards. Member of a line that allowed just one sack on 43 pass attempts.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at left guard and helped the offense post 354 total yards.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at left guard and was a member of an offensive front that allowed the Titans to collect 134 yards on the ground.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), started at left guard and was a part of an offensive line that blocked for Titans' rushers to gain 139 yards on the ground while not allowing a sack on 28 pass attempts.
- Against Houston (10/18), started at left guard and helped the offense become the first unit in NFL history to have a passer reach 350 yards (364 by Ryan Tannehill) and a rusher reach 200 yards (212 by Derrick Henry) in a game.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), started at left guard.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), started at left guard and blocked for Titans' rushers to gain 218 yards on 29 carries.
- Against Chicago (11/8), started at left guard but left the game in the second quarter with an injury.

98 JEFFERY SIMMONS

DEFENSIVE TACKLE • 6'4" • 305 LBS • COLLEGE: MISSISSIPPI STATE
ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2019 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 2/2
HOMETOWN: MACON, MISS.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 17/15 (PLAYOFFS: 3/0)

PRO: The Titans selected Jeffery Simmons with the 19th overall pick in the 2019 NFL Draft. Simmons began his rookie season on the non-football injury list due to a serious knee injury he suffered during training in February 2019. He missed the first six games of the season but was added to the 53-man roster in Week 7. He played a total of nine games (three starts) during the regular season and all three games in the playoffs. The 6-foot-4, 305-pound defensive lineman provides a rare blend of size, power and quickness. He was a first-team All-SEC selection as a sophomore and junior, adding second-team All-American as a junior. Following his junior season, he declared for the NFL Draft.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- As a rookie in 2019, Simmons totaled 40 tackles, two sacks, two tackles for loss, 14 quarterback pressures and one pass defended in nine games (seven starts). He added four tackles, three quarterback pressures and a fumble recovery in three playoff contests.
- As a junior in 2018, Simmons was named first-team All-SEC and second-team All-American after totaling 63 tackles, 17 tackles for loss and two sacks. His 17 tackles for loss led the team, ranked fourth in the SEC and were the third-most in single-season school history.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- During college Simmons was a two-time member of the SEC Academic Honor Roll.
- Simmons' brother, Dylan Bradley, played football at Southern Miss and then spent time with the Minnesota Vikings. His uncle, Jason Hatcher, played 10 total seasons with the Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins.
- Away from football, Simmons enjoys fishing and spending time outdoors.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Macon, Miss., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (19th overall) of the 2019 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (8/8): Ranks second on the club with two sacks and 10 quarterback pressures. Has led or tied for the team lead in sacks twice in 2020 (at MIN, vs. HOU). Has led or tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures four times in 2020 (at MIN, vs. HOU, vs. PIT, at CIN). Has tied for the team lead in passes defended once in 2020 (vs. IND).

- At Denver (9/14), started at defensive tackle and collected four tackles and a fumble recovery. Gave the Titans offense great field position by recovering a Melvin Gordon III fumble that was forced by Kevin Byard at the Broncos' 23-yard line early in the second quarter. Finished off the Titans' goal-line stand in the second quarter by stuffing Jake Butt for no gain on a short pass on fourth down.
- Against Jacksonville (9/20), started at defensive tackle and posted three tackles and a pass defended. Sealed the victory by deflecting a Gardner Minshew II pass that was intercepted by Harold Landry III with 47 seconds remaining in the game.
- At Minnesota (9/27), started at defensive tackle and registered five tackles, including a sack and a team-best five quarterback pressures. Ended a Vikings' drive by dropping Kirk Cousins for a six-yard sack on third-and-eight in the first quarter.
- Against Buffalo (10/13), missed the game while on reserve/COVID-19.
- Against Houston (10/18), started at defensive tackle and produced six tackles, including a sack and two quarterback pressures. Teamed with DaQuan Jones to stuff David Johnson for a one-yard loss on a rush off left tackle in the first quarter. Combined with Rashaan Evans to stuff David Johnson for no gain on a goalline rush in the second quarter. Halted a Texans' drive by dropping Deshaun Watson for a 12-yard sack on third-and-eight in the fourth quarter. Made a critical play by batting down a two-point conversion attempt intended to Randall Cobb that would have made it a two-score game late in the fourth quarter.

- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), started at defensive tackle and registered three tackles, a team-high two quarterback pressures and a pass defended. Pounced on James Conner for a 10-yard loss after Ben Roethlisberger pitched him the ball in the first quarter. Stuffed Conner for no gain on a rush up the middle in the third stanza. Batted a Roethlisberger pass that was then intercepted by Jayon Brown late in the third quarter.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), started at defensive tackle and posted four tackles and a quarterback pressure.
- Against Chicago (11/8), named AFC Defensive Player of the Week after starting at defensive tackle and tallying three tackles, a forced fumble, a fumble recovery and a pass defended. Forced a David Montgomery fumble that was scooped up by Desmond King II and returned 63 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter. Deflected a pass intended for Anthony Miller in the final stanza. Recovered a Miller fumble that was forced by Jayon Brown in the fourth quarter.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), started at defensive tackle and collected two tackles and a pass defended. Batted down a pass intended for Mo Alie-Cox in the second quarter.

Led or tied for the team lead in sacks twice (vs. LAC, at OAK). Tied for the team lead in quarterback pressures once (at HOU). Saw action in his first career game and registered his first career sack against the L.A. Chargers (10/20/19). Made his first career start against Tampa Bay (10/27/19).

- Against L.A. Chargers (10/20), made his NFL debut as a reserve at defensive end and posted six tackles, including a sack, a stop for loss and two quarterback pressures. Teamed with Harold Landry to stonewall Melvin Gordon for a one-yard loss on a rush off right tackle in the opening quarter. Collected his first career sack by dropping Philip Rivers for a three-yard loss in the third quarter. Combined with Rashaan Evans to stop Gordon for no gain on first-and-goal during the final goal-line stand.
- Against Tampa Bay (10/27), notched his first career NFL start at defensive end and tallied four tackles and two quarterback pressures. Stonewalled Peyton Barber for no gain on a first-and-goal rush off right guard in the first quarter.
- At Indianapolis (12/1), started at defensive end and posted five tackles and three quarterback pressures. Teamed with Kamalei Correa to stuff Jonathan Williams for a two-yard loss on a rush off left end in the opening quarter.
- At Oakland (12/8), started at defensive end and amassed five tackles, including a sack and a stop for loss. Stuffed DeAndre Washington for a two-yard loss on a rush off left end late in the first quarter. Halted a Raiders' drive by sacking Derek Carr for a four-yard loss on third-and-two in the third quarter.
- Against Houston (12/15), started at defensive end and totaled four tackles, two quarterback pressures and a pass defended. Halted a potential Texans' scoring drive by deflecting a Deshaun Watson pass at the line of scrimmage that was then intercepted by Jayon Brown in the end zone.

- At Houston (12/29), played as a reserve on the defensive front and recorded three tackles and three quarterback pressures.
- At New England (1/4), saw action as a reserve on the defensive front in his first career postseason contest and posted two tackles and a quarterback pressure.
- At Baltimore (1/11), played as a reserve at defensive end and recorded two tackles, a fumble recovery and two quarterback pressures. Set up the Titans' final touchdown by recovering a Lamar Jackson fumble after a Jurrell Casey strip-sack midway through the third quarter.

81 JONNU SMITH

TIGHT END • 6'3" • 248 LBS • COLLEGE: FLORIDA INTERNATIONAL
ACQUIRED: 3RD ROUND - 2017 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 4/4
HOMETOWN: OCALA, FLA.
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 54/48 (PLAYOFFS: 5/4)

PRO: The Titans selected Jonnu Smith in the third round (100th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft. The 6-foot-3-inch, 248-pound tight end participated in every game as a rookie and ranked fifth among rookie tight ends in receptions (18). In 2018, he set then single-season career highs in every receiving category before having his second season cut short due to a knee injury. Smith played a pivotal role in the Titans' playoff berth in 2019, amassing career-highs with 35 receptions and 439 receiving yards. The Florida International product possesses the ability to flash after the catch and has the speed to attack all three levels of the field. He is also known for his strength and willingness to block in the run game.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, Smith ranked fourth on the team with a career-best 35 receptions, third on the squad with a career-high 439 receiving yards and tied a career-best with three receiving touchdowns.
- In 2018, Smith set then single-season career highs in receptions (20), receiving yards (258), receiving long (61t), and receiving touchdowns (3) despite missing the final three contests due to injury. His three receiving touchdowns ranked second on the squad.
- During the 2017 regular season, Smith was one of three rookie tight ends to appear in all 16 games (Gerald Everett and David Njoku) and one of two rookie tight ends with at least 13 starts (O.J. Howard). His 18 receptions, which resulted in 157 yards and two touchdowns, ranked fifth among all rookie tight ends.
- Smith finished his career as Florida International's all-time leader for tight ends in receptions and receiving yards. Smith ended his career ranking fourth on the school's career receptions list and fifth on the program's receiving yardage list. His 18 career receiving touchdowns rank third in school annals.
- As a sophomore (2014), led all college tight ends with 61 receptions, 710 receiving yards and eight touchdown catches.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Smith credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself. "My mother is my rock. It was tough, but we always got what we needed—not necessarily what we wanted all the time—but what we needed. She was so strong all the time."
- Smith endured a lot of challenges as a youngster in Philadelphia and after his brother was arrested and one of his friends was killed on the streets, a decision needed to be made. His family didn't have the financial means to just uproot, so for his own safety Jonnu moved in with his mother's sister and brother-in-law, Darla and Mike Kirkland, in Ocala, Fla. He started playing high school football and even though he was far from a touted recruit, he earned a scholarship to Florida International where his play took off.
- Smith's best friend Willie "Quasim" Jefferson tragically died from a gun shot in October 2016. Jonnu gave his son the middle name Quasim in honor of him.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Philadelphia, Pa., native was selected by the Titans in the third round (100th overall) of the 2017 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

COLLEGE:

- In four seasons at Florida International (2013-16), Smith appeared in 43 career games and tallied 178 receptions for 2,001 yards with 18 touchdowns.
- As a senior (2016), started in 11 games for the Panthers and was a second team, All-Conference USA honoree. Caught 42 passes for 506 yards and four touchdowns. Became the fifth player in Florida International history to register over 2,000 yards receiving during a career (2,001 yards). Finished his career registering at least one reception in every game he played (43-straight – second-most in school history).
- As a junior (2015), started eight games for the Panthers and recorded 36 catches for 397 yards and four touchdowns. Finished fourth on the team in receptions, third in receiving yards and second in receiving touchdowns. Missed the final four games of the season due to injury.
- As a sophomore (2014), appeared and started in all 12 games for the Panthers and earned first team All-Conference USA honors. Led Florida International with 710 yards on 61 catches and eight touchdowns. Also led all tight ends nationally in touchdowns, receiving yards and receptions. Set the school record for tight ends in receiving yards, touchdowns and receptions and his eight receiving touchdowns broke the previous school season-best of seven set by T.Y. Hilton (2008, 2011) and Cory McKinney (2002). The 710 receiving yards ranked seventh all-time at FIU for a season and his 61 catches were tied for fourth in a single year.
- As a freshman (2013), started all 12 games as a true freshman and earned All-Conference USA honorable mention honors as well as a spot on the league's All-Freshmen team. Led all Florida International players with 39 receptions for 388 yards and was the only FIU receiver to have a catch in all 12 games. Either led or tied for the team-lead in receptions or receiving yards in eight of 12 games. Was the first true freshman to lead the team in receptions and receiving yards since T.Y. Hilton in 2008.
- Majored in liberal studies at Florida International.

17 RYAN TANNEHILL

QUARTERBACK • 6'4" • 217 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS A&M
ACQUIRED: TRADE (MIA) - 2019
NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): 9/2 • HOMETOWN: BIG SPRING, TEXAS
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 109/107 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

Pro Bowl: 2019

Captain: 2020

PRO: The Titans traded for Ryan Tannehill in the 2019 offseason, bringing an experienced, veteran leader to the team. He took control as the team's starting quarterback by midseason and subsequently led the Titans to the playoffs and an AFC championship game appearance. In the process, he set single-season franchise records and led the NFL with a 117.5 passer rating and a passing average of 9.6 yards per attempt. His play led to his first career Pro Bowl appearance. He was rewarded with a multi-year contract extension in March 2020. Tannehill spent his first seven seasons as a member of the Miami Dolphins after being selected in the first round of the 2012 NFL Draft. He started 88 games over six seasons in South Florida and accumulated 20,434 passing yards and 123 touchdown passes. The Texas A&M product has also shown mobility as a signal caller, having rushed for 1,395 career yards and 10 touchdowns through 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In his first season in Tennessee, Tannehill led the Titans to a 9-4 combined record as a starter in the regular season and playoffs and won the NFL Comeback Player of the Year Award. He earned his first Pro Bowl invitation after leading the NFL in passer rating (117.5) and passing average (9.6 yards per attempt) and ranking third in completion percentage (70.3). He set club records in all three categories.
- He was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for December 2019 after completing 90 of 132 passes for 1,322 yards with 12 touchdowns and two interceptions. His passer rating for the calendar month was 124.6, which led the AFC.
- Tannehill made his first career playoff appearance at the conclusion of the 2019 campaign and helped lead the Titans to a wild card win at New England and a divisional round victory at Baltimore.
- During his seven seasons (2012-18) in Miami, Tannehill passed for at least 3,000 yards four times and more than 4,000 yards twice. He totaled 16 career 300-yard passing games, which is the second-most in Dolphins history.
- Tannehill engineered 17 career fourth-quarter comebacks during the first eight seasons of his career.
- In 2015, Tannehill posted 4,208 passing yards with 24 touchdowns and set a then-NFL record with 25 consecutive completions. His 4,208 passing yards was the fifth-highest single-season total in Dolphins history and most by a Dolphins quarterback other than Dan Marino.
- In 2014, Tannehill passed for 4,045 yards with 27 touchdowns for a 92.8 passer rating. He registered a career-best 311 rushing yards with a touchdown. His 392 completions were the most in Dolphins history.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Ryan founded the Tannehill's A.C.E.S. (Achieving Community Educations Success) program with wife, Lauren, which consisted of 17 sophomores from American Senior High School and is focused on awarding scholarships to the participating students who strive for good grades and took on an active role in their community by hosting monthly events to reward the students and help them give back to the community.
- Ryan's father, Tim, played wide receiver at Texas Tech from 1985-87.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Big Spring, Texas, native was originally selected by the Miami Dolphins in the first round (eighth overall) of the 2012 NFL Draft.
- Traded by the Dolphins to the Titans along with a 2019 sixth-round pick for a 2019 seventh-round draft pick and a 2020 fourth-round draft choice on March 15, 2019.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (9/9 - Tennessee): Ranks seventh in the NFL with a 106.9 passer rating and 20 touchdown passes. Has engineered 20 career game-winning drives (including the playoffs), defined as when the team trailed or was tied in the fourth quarter or overtime, including four in 2020 (at DEN, vs. JAX, at MIN, vs. HOU). Has posted 34 career games with a 100.0 or better passer rating, including four in 2020 (vs. JAX, vs. HOU, vs. PIT, vs. CHI). Has registered 21 career games with at least 300 passing yards, including two in 2020 (at MIN, vs. HOU). SAFETY • 6'0" • 214 LBS • COLLEGE: TEXAS
HOMETOWN: BROWNWOOD, TEXAS
GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 106/105 (PLAYOFFS: 3/3)

PRO: The Titans signed free agent Kenny Vaccaro during the 2018 training camp after then-starter Johnathan Cyprien suffered a season-ending injury during practice, and re-signed him to a multi-year contract during the 2019 offseason. The former 2013 first-round pick arrived in Nashville after five years as a starter with the New Orleans Saints. In 97 career games with 96 starts during his first seven seasons, the University of Texas product totaled 656 tackles, 10 interceptions, 10.5 sacks, five forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries. The Brownwood, Texas, native has recorded three seasons with at least 100 tackles including 2019.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- In 2019, he recorded his third season with at least 100 tackles. His 104 tackles in 2019 marked the third-best total of his career, and ranked fourth on the team. Vaccaro made his postseason debut in 2019 and started all three games where he totaled 19 tackles and one interception.
- Vaccaro posted an interception in his first game as a Titan in 2018.
- In 2017, he registered a career-best three interceptions while with New Orleans.
- In 2015, Vaccaro started all 16 games for the first time and set career-highs with 136 tackles, three sacks, two forced fumbles and his first career fumble recovery.
- In 2014, he posted his first season with at least 100 tackles (113).
- In 2013, Vaccaro was named to the PFWA All-Rookie team after collecting 93 tackles, a sack, an interception, six passes defended and a forced fumble.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Vaccaro traveled to Kenya during the 2016 offseason with former Texas and Saints teammate Alex Okafor and is involved in community and fundraising efforts to construct a school in the region.
- Vaccaro's uncle, A.J. Johnson, played for the Washington Redskins (1989-94), helping them to Super Bowl XXVI win before spending a season with the San Diego Chargers (1995).
- Vaccaro founded the Kenny Vaccaro Foundation to provide economically-challenged students with literacy and education resources so that they can achieve academic excellence, develop confident personal skills, and make positive decisions to avoid high risk behavior.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Brownwood, Texas, native was originally selected by the New Orleans Saints in the first round (15th overall) of the 2013 NFL Draft.
- Signed by the Titans as a free agent on Aug. 4, 2018.

79 ISAAH WILSON

OFFENSIVE LINEMAN • 6'6" • 350 LBS • COLLEGE: GEORGIA
 ACQUIRED: 1ST ROUND - 2020 • NFL EXPERIENCE (NFL/TITANS): ROOKIE HOMETOWN: BROOKLYN, N.Y.
 GAMES PLAYED/GAMES STARTED: 0/0 (PLAYOFFS: 0/0)

PRO: The Titans used their first pick (29th overall) in the 2020 NFL Draft on massive Georgia offensive lineman Isaiah Wilson with the expectation that he would compete for playing time at right tackle as a rookie. The 6-foot-6-inch, 350-pounder brings athleticism to the position in addition to his imposing size. A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., he declared for the NFL Draft despite having two years of eligibility remaining at Georgia. Following a redshirt season, he started 24 total games for the Bulldogs from 2018 to 2019.

TITANS TIDBITS:

- Wilson enjoys watching cartoons, and he has a particular fondness for "SpongeBob SquarePants." "I can really dissect it deeply and learn a lot from it," he says.
- Wilson is comfortable working in the kitchen, dishing out everything from French toast to mac and cheese and collared greens to his family. He was employed at a summer camp for three summers in high school, spending much of that time in the camp kitchen.
- One of his rituals is eating an ice cream sundae the night before every game.
- Wilson welcomed the opportunity to begin his career in Music City. He listens to a diverse range of music, listing Travis Scott, Brantley Gilbert, Aretha Franklin and Mötley Crüe as a sampling of his many favorites.
- Prior to being drafted by the Titans, Wilson, a video game enthusiast, would choose the Titans when he played Madden NFL because of Derrick Henry. "You can't stop him," Wilson says.

CAREER TRANSACTIONS:

- The Brooklyn, N.Y., native was selected by the Titans in the first round (29th overall) of the 2020 NFL Draft.

SEASON RECAPS:

2020 (0/0):

- Against Houston (10/18), was inactive.
- Against Pittsburgh (10/25), was inactive.
- At Cincinnati (11/1), was inactive.
- Against Chicago (11/8), was inactive.
- Against Indianapolis (11/12), was inactive.

COLLEGE:

- After redshirting in 2017, Wilson played two seasons at Georgia (2018-19), appearing in 25 total games with 24 starts. All of his starts came at right tackle. The Bulldogs finished 11-3 in 2018 and 12-2 in 2019 in his two playing seasons in Athens.

AS A SOPHOMORE (2019), appeared in 11 games with 10 starts at right tackle. He was named second-team Associated Press All-SEC and was the co-winner of Offensive "Up Front" Award.

- Played every offensive snap against Kentucky, Florida, Auburn and Texas A&M, and played over 95 percent of offensive snaps in three others (Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Missouri). Missed Murray State and Arkansas games due to injury.

AS A REDSHIRT FRESHMAN (2018), named to the Football Writers Association of America Freshman All-America Team and the 2018 Coaches Freshman All-SEC Team. He started at right tackle in all 14 games.

- Played on 95 percent of Georgia's offensive snaps during the Bulldogs' eight SEC games, including every snap in the last four conference games.

- Co-winner of the team's Offensive Most Improved Player Award.

AS A TRUE FRESHMAN (2017), redshirted.

- Majored in psychology with a minor in religion at Georgia.

PERSONAL:

- Splits time between Nashville and Brooklyn, N.Y.
- Attended Poly Prep Country Day School (Brooklyn, N.Y.), where he earned Parade All-America honorable mention. His honors also included American Family Insurance 2016 USA Today All-USA Second-Team Offense, New York City's Mr. Football Award by the National Football Foundation, New York State Sports Writers Association 2016 Class AA Player of the Year Award and Class AA All-State First-Team Offense.
- He was named a five-star prospect by PrepStar Magazine, ESPN.com, Rivals and 247Sports. Nationally, he was PrepStar's second-ranked prospect, ESPN's second-ranked tackle, Rivals' 17th-ranked prospect (No. 1 in New York), 247Sports' 16th-ranked prospect (No. 1 in New York).
- In 2016, played a limited number of plays at quarterback in a wildcat offense and scored three touchdowns on 20 yards in one game.
- Received NYSSWA 2015 Class AA All-State First Team Offense honors in his junior year.
- Also wrestled and played lacrosse in high school.
- Son of Merrell and Sharese Wilson.
- Has one dog, a Yorkie named Jax.
- Follow Wilson on Twitter at @_LayZay_.
- Follow Wilson on Instagram at @7ninee.
- List of favorites includes (TV show) "Criminal Minds" and (movie) "2 Fast 2 Furious."
- Born Isaiah Terrell Wilson on Feb. 12, 1999 in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Note: Average team drive start DOES NOT include onside kicks or kickoffs at the end of a half unless either kickoff is returned for a touchdown. All other kickoffs (returned kickoffs, fair catches, touchback and kickoffs out of bounds) are included. Kickoffs resulting in the kicking team retaining possession are not included.

ADJ KO: Adjusted kickoffs are used to compute the Avg. Team Drive Start.

I20: The number of drives that start inside (not including) the 20 yd line.

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

AMY ADAMS STRUNK BROUGHT HER FATHER'S TEAM BACK TO LIFE

BY BRUCE SCHOENFELD
ESPN W
NOVEMBER 5, 2018

SHE'S STUCK IN traffic, a side effect of the explosive growth that makes Nashville, Tennessee, an enticing place to own an NFL team. By the time Amy Adams Strunk arrives at Nissan Stadium, it's only an hour before kickoff, so she heads straight to the field.

Right away, it starts. "Miss Amy!"

A ruddy-complexioned man in his 30s, wearing a deep blue Tennessee Titans jersey and a lanyard around his neck, is waving like a traffic cop. One of several dozen season-ticket holders randomly chosen to spend the pregame on the Titans' sideline, he has spotted his team's owner and can't help shouting. It's like he already knew her, he'll say.

That's later, after the selfie with her arm around him and the embrace she gives his wife, two devoted Titans fans she'd never met. From there, she's on to another couple, and a 6-year-old boy she bends down to talk with eye to eye. "We love you," the wife says.

There's a man in the front row of the stands holding a sign claiming he has come all the way from France. She strides over to find out more. "Bonjour," she says. He looks at her with a quizzical expression, like, "Why is this woman talking to me?"

"That's the owner," someone tells him.

His eyes get wide. "Of the team?"

She's at the Titans' bench, visiting with Mike Vrabel, her head coach, when someone on the field shouts her name. It's kicker Ryan Succop, standing at the 50. When Succop pulls her close for a bear hug, she disappears for a moment.

From there, Adams Strunk walks toward the sideline to greet the Glazer brothers, Joel and Bryan. They own the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Tennessee's opponent on this August evening. And it seems that, like most NFL owners, they don't know quite what to make of her.

Really, who can blame them? Owners typically make a fortune, then buy a team. Or else they put in years working in football as the family business, which it has been across generations for Rooneys and Bidwills, Maras and McCaskeys, Browns and DeBartolos, and lately Irsays and Krafts and, indeed, Glazers.

Adams Strunk, instead, spent her early professional years as the owner of a few car dealerships and some oil interests that her father, former owner Bud Adams, had given her. She has a passion for horses and she's quite a tennis player. She has raised two girls and a boy, who seem like admirable people. But she hadn't worked a day in the sport when she gained control of the Titans in 2015.

"They look at me," says Adams Strunk, now 63, "and they're probably thinking, 'What does she know? She doesn't know anything. She doesn't have a business degree. She hasn't been in football. How is she going to make a go of this? We want our partners to have a certain background, and she definitely doesn't have it.'" She pauses. "I mean, I get that."

Unlike the Glazers, who apprenticed under their father, Malcolm, and inherited the Bucs when he died, Adams Strunk wrested control of this $2 billion franchise from her sister and brother-in-law because she was determined that it be run well. She did it because she felt obliged to protect the memory of Bud Adams -- even though he hadn't wanted her anywhere near his football team. Since then, the Titans have improved dramatically. From 2-14, they came within a game of the AFC Championship Game last season. Their ties to Nashville today run deeper than they ever have.

In just three years, Amy Adams Strunk rescued her father's legacy. And she did it by taking almost everything she watched him do as an owner and turning it upside down.

BUD ADAMS ISN'T in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, but he ought to be. When Lamar Hunt couldn't entice anyone to sell him an NFL team and instead started a competing league, Adams was his first call. "I'm in," said Adams, who was in the process of getting rich in oil. That was the AFL, which opened for business in 1960.

Before his Houston Oilers played a game, Adams wooed Billy Cannon, the reigning Heisman Trophy winner and best-known football player in America. After dinner at the family home, Adams sent his wife and three children to bed and got down to bidness. Pouring a drink, he asked Cannon what could convince him to spurn the NFL. "That sure is a nice car out there in the driveway," the halfback drawled. He meant the white Cadillac convertible Bud had given wife Nancy for her birthday just a few days before.

Sure enough, when Nancy came down in the morning to drive the kids to school, the car had vanished. "Billy wanted it," Adams shrugged, displaying in three words both his determination to succeed and his valuation of a woman's worth in the world.

Cannon was named MVP in each of the first two AFL title games. The Oilers, not incidentally, won both.

Those were the only championships they ever won. But the franchise grew exponentially, from a shoestring startup to a valuation of hundreds of millions of dollars. "Amy's daddy was a role model and a wannabe of mine, not just a great owner but a great businessman," says Jerry Jones of the Dallas Cowboys, who used to linger in the hallways outside AFL meetings, hoping to get a word with Adams.

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

Adams ran his franchise like a quarterback runs a huddle. He demanded to make every decision, not just whom to draft but whether to repair the fax machine. That level of control applied even to his son and heir apparent, Kenneth III. As for his two daughters, he wouldn't let them work for the team. "He thought that women were unable to reach a serious understanding of the game," says Steve Underwood, who worked under Adams as a lawyer and team executive for more than three decades. There was a reason, Adams believed, that every general manager in the NFL was a man. "Women could never be capable of understanding things like sizing up men to be head coaches," is how Underwood characterizes Adams' thinking. "How could a woman possibly be capable of that?"

That was fine with Amy. "I never saw myself in football," she says, sitting in her office under an oil painting of former Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini. "It wasn't the life I wanted. My dad could be very charming, and there were times he was a great father. But he was very hard. He wouldn't have brought me along, 'Someday I want you to run the team.' Nooooo. It would have been about control."

As the years passed, Adams found ways to thwart his son's progress. Ken yearned for his approval, but Adams mistrusted most those he knew best. Amy and her sister, Susie, would get on the phone and commiserate. "We'd say, 'Poor Ken.' We were just glad it wasn't us."

Still, Amy wasn't prepared for the call one June morning in 1987. Ken's wife had come through their garage door with the couple's 3-year-old and 7-month-old children and the dog. She found her husband, then 29, in a puddle of blood, a gun beside him. "He was crushed by the pressure," Amy says.

Ken's suicide hit her hard. She plunged into depression, talking about her brother every day for years, obsessing over whether she should have seen the signs. In 1990, she and her husband divorced.

Bud reacted differently. "He shut down," Amy says. "And after Ken died, his obsession with control ramped up."

Amy stepped away. Years passed. She met and married a cattle breeder named Tim Strunk, and gave her daughter and son a half-sister. Life seemed idyllic with Tim and the little ones until the morning in 1997 when he left to take a load of cattle to auction. He was struck by an 18-wheeler three miles from home and died at the scene.

This time, family sustained her. Her sister closed ranks. Her parents did what they could. And she found solace in football, losing herself in the passion of her team. "I was Superfan," she says.

But that was changing, too.

BY 1997, BUD ADAMS had abandoned Houston's decrepit Astrodome and moved the Oilers to Nashville. In his mind, though, the Titans remained the Oilers, with different uniforms and a new stadium just a quick flight away. He made no effort to meet fans or connect with the city. "He didn't want to spend his time doing that," Underwood says. "In his mind, he had people to do that."

That was fine while the Titans were winning. But as their fortunes faded following the Super Bowl season of 1999, what had never been a torrid love affair became a marriage of convenience. As Adams grew older, and then old, he became detached. By the time he died in 2013, the Titans were in disarray. "The team was a mess," Amy says. "My dad's later years, things kind of fell off the wagon."

The Titans hadn't won a playoff game in a decade. The facilities, once state-of-the-art, were showing wear. "Nobody knew what was going on," recalls Phil Bredesen, who helped bring the team to Nashville as the city's mayor and later served as Tennessee's governor. "There was just a sense of lots of stuff not getting done. The details of that don't leak out, but the effects of it do."

Worse, perhaps, the franchise had lost relevance. Folksy Nashville, with its spicy fried chicken and throwback Grand Ole Opry, had grown into one of America's most enticing destinations. The Predators were the hot ticket, along with the country acts that played Broadway each night. Conventioneers congregated. Tourism numbers soared. The Titans seemed shabby, dated, a vestige of the previous generation. "You'd see more Vols shirts than Titans shirts at Titans games," insists Nathan Followill, drummer for the Nashville-based band Kings of Leon and a season-ticket holder, referencing the state university's Tennessee Volunteers.

"When you have so many years of going downhill, it becomes less and less important to people," Underwood explains. "Amy saw that. She wanted to change direction."

But Amy wasn't in charge. Tommy Smith, Susie's husband, had worked for the team for years. Long before he died in October 2013, Adams had created a trust that allocated a third of his assets to Susie, a third to Amy, a third to his late son's family. Tommy would run the team with the others as silent partners. "We were all on board with it," says Kenneth Adams IV, Ken's son, who also had started working for the Titans.

Following in his father-in-law's footsteps, Tommy was Bud Lite. Ownership meant absolute control. As the losses accumulated during that 2014 season, Amy made suggestions. When they were rebuffed without consideration, she started to wonder if there might be a better way. "We weren't working it out as a family," she says. "It was just another dictatorship."

The team finished 2-14, the worst record in Titans history. "This was our chance to start fixing everything that had gone wrong during my father's last years," Amy says.

AMY ADAMS STRUNK

"Tommy wasn't doing that." The NFL is a league of constant adaptation, she believes. The Titans hadn't adapted. "The offenses, the defenses, the business part of it," she says. "If it ain't broke, sure, don't fix it. But if it is broke, you better get in there and figure out what to do."

That winter, Amy spent New Year's Eve at the family ranch in central Texas. Late at night, over a glass of wine that wasn't her first, she asked Barclay Adams, Kenneth IV's brother, if their family was satisfied with the way the team was being run. Barclay hesitated, and Amy wondered what she'd gotten herself into. Then Barclay said, "No, we aren't."

"Then we need to talk," Amy told him.

It turned out Kenneth had been having similar conversations with Tommy, with similar results. "We didn't see an end in sight," Kenneth says now. "You going to move off from that coach?" "No, I'm good with him." "You going to move off from that GM?" "No, we're good."

"I don't want this to be a mark on our names," Amy told him. Kenneth agreed. Together, they expressed their concern to Tommy and Susie. They asked if someone from one of the other two families could have a seat at the table. "We were talking for a month or six weeks," Amy says. "I was still hopeful that Susie, as controlling owner, would come around. If it's truly a family operation, why did the other two-thirds have no say? All the power had coalesced right there in Tommy and Susie. And that was proving not to be a good thing."

Together, Amy and Kenneth knew, their shares constituted a majority. "But I don't think it ever dawned on them," Amy says of Tommy and Susie. "It never occurred to them that we were unhappy enough to do anything. Or that I had a willingness to try to make it happen if they wouldn't."

By March, Amy and Kenneth had had enough. They decided to oust

Tommy as president. "I felt bad," Amy says. "But we'd given him 18 months. He'd had his opportunity." In a statement on the Titans' website, Tommy announced that he was leaving as president and CEO because juggling his family and professional duties had proved too difficult. Then he and Susie disappeared from sight.

Underwood was summoned out of retirement to run the team as president and CEO. And Amy went to work.

"YOU HAVE TO bring them along slowly," Adams Strunk explains. She's crouched in the dirt, dragging a metal bar just far enough from a jump so a horse can gauge where he needs to land. Moments later, here comes Rowan, who weighs as much as three linemen combined. He approaches the barricade and canters over. "That's g-o-o-o-d," she enthuses.

She'd returned home to Houston after college (a year at Pine Manor near Boston, the rest at the University of Texas in Austin) and worked as a travel agent. Soon enough, she abandoned city living for a 4,000-acre family ranch off a two-lane road on the edge of Harris County. She started training riders and grooming horses. Bud and Nancy told everyone she'd be back in a month. She's still there, except when she isn't. Lately that means extended time in Nashville, where she now owns a home with her husband, a retired airline pilot.

Horses and football have been the threads running through her life. She has ridden since childhood, competing until she fell off once too often. "At my age," Adams Strunk says, "you don't want to be doing that." She made businesses out of breeding and raising horses, stabling, even staging fox hunts in the wild. It wasn't running a major corporation or a hedge fund, but there were lessons to be learned there in the dirt. "When you do horses, at whatever level, you have an ownership view," says Debbie Phillips, the widow of the former Oilers coach Bum Phillips, who met

Adams Strunk while training cutting horses in the 1980s. "Bum was always surprised at how well I could assess the talent on the field. Amy does exactly the same thing. She has that ownership eye."

"I can't go back on my business experience like some owners -- you know, 'I've done it this way in the past,'" Adams Strunk says, sitting with a glass of water at a wood-block island the size of a flatbed truck in her kitchen. "But I can go back on my personal experience. Maybe it's a wild, crazy horse, and you just learn that if you work it enough, he'll come around. Whatever. What happened was, over all those years, I became confident that if something needed to be done, I could do it. I'm not afraid to make hard decisions."

It didn't take long before she needed to. When the Titans started poorly in 2015, she fired head coach Ken Whisenhunt and replaced him with assistant Mike Mularkey. "The offense was a great offense for Philip Rivers, but we just didn't have the players to make it work," she says. It wasn't the losing as much as the need to keep franchise QB Marcus Mariota ambulatory. "I approach things practically," she says. "And the practical part of this was, in that offense, Marcus was likely to get hurt."

She knew the firing might define her as an owner into the future. "If it doesn't work out," she said to herself, "this will be on you forever." Underwood cautioned against it. "You make a change like that in the middle of the season," he'd said, "most of the time it doesn't work out well." But she had spent her life watching football, and she understood what she was watching. "I just knew somehow," she says, "that it was the right thing to do."

After that 2015 season, Adams Strunk fired GM Ruston Webster. Around the league, it was assumed that she'd use a recruiting firm or consultant to find a replacement, a practice that has become common. Instead, Underwood and Kenneth Adams helped her compile a list of possibilities. Then she researched them online.

Jon Robinson had run college scouting for the New England Patriots. He seemed unconventional, especially when he sat down to a vegan lunch during his interview. He wasn't yet 40. And he was the most candid of the candidates, insisting that minor tweaks would not reverse the decline. "The system's broken," he said. "That's the reason you're not winning. It's broke and you need to fix it."

It was what Adams Strunk longed to hear. "Everything he was saying, Kenneth and I already knew," she says. "Now here was someone who wasn't afraid to say it. By the time he left the interview, I just knew that he was our guy."

Less than a year into her first job in football, she'd fired and hired both a coach and a GM. She wasn't sure why, but the path forward seemed clear. "I'm a big believer in osmosis," Jerry Jones explains. "If you're around an activity for as long as Amy has been, you're soaking it up. You develop instincts. That's what I see in Amy. I can tell from her logic, the way she approaches problems. She knows what she's doing."

IN TWO YEARS, Robinson ran off two-thirds of the team. The Titans improved to 9-7 in 2016, then repeated that last season. They won their playoff game at Kansas City in miraculous fashion 22-21.

That showed how far they'd come. Getting steamrolled by the Patriots the next week showed how far they had to go. It made another hard decision that much easier. "I just thought we'd reached the ceiling," says Adams Strunk, who fired Mularkey a week after the Titans' season ended. "In Nashville, people understood. Outside, it was probably like, 'She's nuts.'"

Change is the theme whenever a new coach is hired, but players often remain dubious. "If they walk into the same building," Robinson says, "if they sit down at the same locker and everything looks the same, they look around at each other and they're like, 'What's changed?'"

The Titans arrived at their training facility this summer and found new blue uniforms in their lockers. After years of wear, the turf beneath the practice bubble had been replaced. So had the bubble itself. The locker room had been reconfigured so the entire team can see each other. "When you walk in the building now, it resonates," Robinson says. "These ain't the same old Titans. It was very cool of her to write that check."

They ain't the same old Titans because Adams Strunk isn't the same owner. "I worked with her dad for many, many years in the league," says Amy Trask, the former Oakland Raiders CEO. "Amy's style is clearly different." Bud Adams had no problem signing players to huge contracts, but considered upgrading facilities a needless expense. If a building was two decades old, well, he figured it ought to last another eight. "That's not me," Adams Strunk says. "We needed to come out of the dark ages and adapt to how things work now."

The players noticed. "Actions speak louder than words," says Taylor Lewan, the left tackle. "She put vents in here so our pads cool down and don't get all gross and moldy. It shows that she really cares." Lewan was sure that once he reached the pros, he'd be little more than a number. "I'd already felt that in college," he says. "For her to come in and be excited to see me, to give me a hug when I'm all sweaty in my pads, it does something," he says.

But who'd guess that such warmth might pay off in tangible terms? A week into training camp, Lewan signed an $80 million contract, the largest ever for an offensive lineman. He could have cashed in most anywhere, but he decided to stay because he felt wanted. "It was the way Amy talks with my wife when she sees her," he says one afternoon after a weight-room session. "The way she takes time to show that she cares about me as a person. Every time she sees me, she'll ask, 'How's Taylin? How's Wynne?' our daughter."

He pauses and looks around the locker room. "The new facilities are great and all," he says. "But I'm a physical guy. I love to show affection. So she's the perfect owner for me."

And also, it appears, for Nashville, which appreciates connecting with an owner more than a larger market might. With the help of Adams Strunk's outreach, the Titans are hot again. A crowd of more than 30,000 attended the downtown party unveiling the new uniforms, a remarkable turnout that led the NFL to award the city its 2019 draft. For the first time, fans say, their hometown team is truly theirs.

None of it will mean much, Adams Strunk knows, if the team can't contend. "I'm warm, I like to show people how I feel, that's who I am," she says. "But I also have no problem doing whatever it takes to win. That is definitely my priority." For guidance, she consults with her inner circle: Kenneth Adams, Underwood and, increasingly, Robinson. Then she'll go outside it and hear as many relevant perspectives as she can get.

The options will be weighed by a committee of one. In that sense, at least, she is her father's daughter.

"The final decision," she says, "is mine."

HALL OF FAME QB WARREN MOON: TITANS OWNER AMY ADAMS STRUNK HAS MADE THE OILERS “FEEL LIKE THEY ARE PART OF SOMETHING”

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
FEBRUARY 20, 2019

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Amy Adams Strunk was an enthusiastic fan of the Houston Oilers when quarterback Warren Moon arrived with the franchise back in 1984.

The daughter of late Titans owner and founder Bud Adams, Strunk was fond of the team’s players, her heroes, and the success of the Oilers made her father happy. Led by Moon, the Oilers set a franchise record of reaching the playoffs seven consecutive seasons (1987-93) during the “Run and Shoot” era.

Thirty-five years later, the Oilers are a thing of the past, having left the city after the 1996 season. Strunk, however, is doing her part as the team’s controlling owner to keep their memory alive, and it’s something Moon appreciates.

“I really like the way she’s reached out to the former Oiler players, and tried to make them more welcome to the Tennessee Titans organization,” said Moon, who played from 1984-93 with the team. “The weird thing about the Oilers, more than other teams, is all those great players who played for the Oilers, it’s almost like they don’t have an identity any more. Every other former player has their team to look to, a team to identify with. I’ve played on other teams like the Seahawks, the Chiefs and the Vikings, and I can always go back to those alumni weekends and feel like I am a part of those teams.

“For a long time, the Oilers didn’t have that. Bud Adams wasn’t necessarily reaching out to the former players, and they had nowhere to go. Some might have been reached out to by the Houston Texans, but they weren’t Houston Texans – they were Houston Oilers. But that’s changed. I think it is great she has reached out and done that, and made guys feel like they a part of something again.”

Strunk organized an Oilers reunion last year in Houston, an event Moon attended. Over 60 players and many former coaches attended the reunion.

In addition to Moon, quarterback Dan Pastorini attended the event, along with former Oilers Bruce Matthews, Robert Brazile, Billy “White Shoes” Johnson, Kenny Burrough, Mike Renfro, Mike Barber, Gregg Bingham, David Carter, Ray Childress, Wade Phillips, Kevin Gilbride, Mike Rozier, Al Smith, Spencer Tillman, Lamar Lathon, Sean Jones, Vernon Perry, Zeke Moore, Cris Dishman, Bubba McDowell, Bo Eason, Keith Bostic, Jeff Donaldson, Lorenzo White and receivers Ernest Givins, Haywood Jeffires, Curtis Duncan. Smith has been a regular at Titans Homecoming events in Nashville.

“The guys felt like they were welcome again,” Moon said. “They felt like they were a part of something they didn’t feel like they were a part of for a long time.”

Last season, Brazile served as the Honorary 12th Titan for a game. He also received his Hall of Fame Ring of Excellence in a special ceremony at Nissan Stadium, and went into the team’s Ring of Honor, where his name is on display atop the stadium.

Strunk sent her private plane to pick up Brazile’s family in Mobile, Alabama, and brought them to Nashville. Strunk also threw a party for Brazile and his family in Canton, Ohio.

Strunk has said she wants the Oilers to feel like they have a home with the team.

“The guys in Houston, no fault of their own, kind of got left out – they kind of became NFL orphans, and it always bothered me,” Strunk said in October when Brazile was in town. “And it became important for me to include them, and have a reunion and start bridging whatever happened in the past to get them feeling like they are part of our family.”

Moon, who is on the Pro Football Hall of Fame Board of Trustees with Strunk, said he’s gotten to know her over the last few years.

A Hall of Famer who threw for 49,325 yards in 17 NFL seasons with the Oilers, Vikings, Seahawks and Chiefs, Moon said he feels like the organization is in good hands with Strunk. Moon made his comments leading up to Super Bowl LIII in Atlanta.

“I really like her,” Moon said of Strunk. “I really like how she seems to be really interested and focused on the football team, with the Titans, and she wants them to be a really good football team, you can tell. She is putting out the necessary money as far as upgrading the training facility and providing the team with what it needs to improve.

“As long as you are doing that and giving the football people the resources they need to be successful, the team is going to have a chance to be good. And she is doing that.”

CONTROLLING OWNER AMY ADAMS STRUNK CREDITED WITH CHANGING DIRECTION OF TITANS FRANCHISE

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
JUNE 19, 2019

NASHVILLE – When Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams first made plans to move his NFL franchise to Nashville, there was plenty of uncertainty surrounding how things might work out.

Among the curious was his daughter, Amy, who had never been to Tennessee.

“I knew it was a pretty city, and I knew that my dad would be drawn to a southern city, that’s just how he thought,” she said. “When we did come to visit – before the team ever moved here -- we came on the 4th of July and we saw the fireworks and did a few other things around town. I knew then this would be a great place.”

Fast-forward a few decades plus and now it’s Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk who has taken her late father’s vision and done her part to make it even grander. Today, the Titans are a team on the rise, with three straight winning seasons for the first time since the move.

And the city is in the NFL spotlight after hosting the most successful NFL Draft in league history.

Over the weekend, Strunk was recognized as the 2019 Tennessean of the Year by the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame, and she has plenty of folks singing her praises for her work in jump-starting a franchise that just five years ago had the worst record in the NFL.

“A lot of times, when you own a franchise, you often get taken for granted,” NFL Network analyst Charles Davis said of Strunk. “People think: ‘You’ve got money, and you can do this and you can do that.’ But what she has done in her time at the head of the Titans organization, pulling everything together, has been impressive, and that is because of her leadership and it is because of her guidance and because of her demanding accountability.

“I think this state is very fortunate to have her leading the Tennessee Titans.”

In April, NFL commissioner Roger Goodell credited Strunk for her role in bringing the 2019 NFL Draft to the city. It came on the same day Strunk donated $100,000 to a pair of Nashville non-profits charged with fighting hunger in the community.

This year’s draft easily shattered records for attendance, as over 600,000 fans fill the streets of Nashville for the three-day event. This year’s NFL Draft generated a record $133 million in direct spending -- a 79 percent increase over the $74 million at the 2018 Dallas event. The economic impact was another record-breaker at $224 million, also a 79 percent increase over the $125 million in 2018.

“I’ve gotten to know Amy,” former University of Tennessee and long-time NFL quarterback Peyton Manning said of Strunk. “She has carried on her father’s legacy and done some things unique with her leadership style and has the Titans in a great place.

“Bringing the draft here tells you everything you need to know about how serious the NFL is about the Titans and their fan support here. ... Amy deserves a lot of credit.”

Last week, when Strunk announced plans to retire the jersey numbers of Titans greats Eddie George and Steve McNair, George also praised the Titans owner, who took over as the team’s controlling owner in 2015. Back then, Ken Whisenhunt was the team’s head coach, and Ruston Webster was the general manager.

George said Strunk has taken the team’s ownership to another level on the field, and off.

“She’s an amazing woman, and she’s doing it the right way,” George said. “Bud had his ways, and he did it the way he wanted to do it and he was very successful. But what she is doing and how she is investing into the players and creating a culture here, and giving back to the community of Nashville, becoming a strong pillar in Nashville.

“Bringing in former players with open arms -- you don’t get that nowadays. Most owners and most organizations and most programs around the country, including college, are really standoffish. But to constantly pull us back in and ask our opinions on certain issues or to soak up knowledge. ... She is a gracious woman, a very successful businesswoman.”

Before thanking Tennesseans – from organizers to volunteers to fans – for doing their part to make the 2019 NFL Draft a success while accepting the TSHOF Tennessean of the Year award, Strunk smiled when asked about how much has changed over the years.

Strunk has not only made some big decisions on the football side – HC Mike Vrabel and GM Jon Robinson replaced former coaches and GMs – but she’s also changed the look inside the building at Saint Thomas Sports Park and at Nissan Stadium, with upgrades and additions. She even changed the team’s uniforms.

Along the way, she’s also restored the passion and the confidence in the team’s fan base.

“It just feels great,” she said. “I know when I took over four years ago, some people were probably like: Who is she? What is she going to bring to our team? Is she capable? I just decided I was going to put my head down and go to work and hopefully get things straightened out and all that would take care of itself.”

Needless to say, those questions have since been answered.

And the appreciation is on full display as Strunk is regularly swarmed by fans when she makes her way onto the field prior to games, or at team functions.

Strunk admits, however, she still navigates through the aisles at supermarkets in town, where she owns multiple homes, undetected on most days.

“Very few people recognize me,” she said with a smile. “I bet I’ve had two people ever in the grocery store recognize me, so I am still kind of incognito.

“I think if there’s anything to do with the football, I’m recognized right away. But when I’m just grabbing oranges, limes and lemons, I’m just there as a shopper, too.”

In the future, Strunk would like to bring something else to the city.

She’d love to see the Titans on center stage.

In February.

“Who would have ever thought 20 years ago this is what (Nashville) would look like?,” Strunk, thinking back to the success of the NFL Draft, said. “But I am so proud of it, and so happy to see the city of Nashville in the spotlight.

“This success will lead to bigger moments in the future,” she said while behind a podium over the weekend, “moments that hopefully include a Lombardi Trophy, and a championship parade sometime real soon.”

TITANS OWNER AMY ADAMS STRUNK DISTRIBUTES $450,000 IN GRANT FUNDING TO 10 LOCAL NON-PROFITS AS "WE STAND FOR" CAMPAIGN TAKES CENTER STAGE

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
JULY 31, 2019

NASHVILLE – A year ago, the Titans launched the “We Stand For” campaign, designed to bring the public’s attention to the causes that are important to the team’s players, coaches and executives.

On Tuesday, it was on full display - along with some big checks handed out by controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk.

Several of the team’s leaders, including general manager Jon Robinson, head coach Mike Vrabel and three players – tight end Delanie Walker, linebacker Wesley Woodyard, and defensive lineman Jurrell Casey – were on hand for a community engagement panel at Nissan Stadium, where they discussed the causes that are dear to them.

Then, Amy Adams Strunk handed out $450,000 in grant funding to 10 local non-profit organizations at the end of a luncheon.

“Mike said, ‘We’re all family,’ and what they stand for, we stand for,” Strunk said. “We want to be a part of the community and be a part of the change, and just be good Samaritans. (Our players) take their feelings about this community (seriously) – they’re so strong. And they just want to do what they can to make it a better place. Nashville is great, but we can always be better.”

“Today was fun. It was a surprise (to the check recipients) and that made it even more fun. ... It just means so much that we have taken on different causes now that maybe we wouldn’t have thought about if our players hadn’t brought them to us. I think it’s a great thing.”

The grants handed out on Tuesday ranged from $25,000 to $100,000 and support non-profit organizations in the spaces of education, African American history and culture, social justice, diversionary and re-entry programs, immigrant outreach and domestic violence and sexual assault.

The $100,000 grant recipients:

- * National Museum of African American Music
- * NAACP Freedom Fund

The $50,000 grant recipients:

- * Community Achieves by Metro Nashville Public Schools
- * Nashville GRAD

The $25,000 grant recipients:

- * Project Return
- * Davidson County Drug Court Program (DC4)
- * Thistle Farms
- * Sexual Assault Center
- * Nashville International Center for Empowerment
- * Conexion Americas

“We Stand For” campaign takes center stage on Tuesday as HC, GM, players discuss causes dear to them on a day @Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk hands out $450,000 in grant funding to 10 non-profit organizations.

Grant recipients were selected not only on merit but also based on their affiliation with a cause identified as important to a player, coach or executive through the team’s “We Stand For” campaign.

The organization’s hope for the “We Stand For” campaign is to foster positive dialogue around the community work of its players and executives and raise awareness for the associated causes. The campaign was launched to give Titans players, coaches and front office a platform to better showcase causes and charities that are important to them, and to foster positive dialogue around their community and the work of their associated charities.

Along with his wife Ryann, the Caseys established the Casey Fund, a nonprofit dedicated to addressing the needs of at-risk youth as well as formerly incarcerated individuals by raising money for re-entry programs, inner-city youth programs, mentoring, and halfway houses.

Casey said the organization’s work in the community – and Strunk’s generosity – has inspired everyone to do more.

“It’s unbelievable,” said Casey, the 2018 Titans recipient of the Walter Payton Man of the Year award. “For you to have an owner and an organization to do something this incredible in the community, something we fight for all the time. ... For Amy to do something like this, I am baffled, I am speechless. She has done something so amazing it touches my heart down deep.”

TENNESSEE TITANS HELPING WITH TORNADO CLEANUP, TITANS FOUNDATION TO DONATE $1M TO DISASTER RECOVERY

BY MARIAH TIMMS AND JESSICA BLISS
THE TENNESSEAN
MARCH 5, 2020

Disaster recovery is a community effort. The Tennessee Titans are taking that to heart.

In support of those impacted by the tornado that swept through Nashville, Mt. Juliet, Cookeville and surrounding communities, the Titans Foundation announced a $1 million donation to The Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee to aid in recovery efforts.

The Community Foundation is handling most of the donations to cleanup and relief in the wake of the storm. With the gift, the total for the Middle Tennessee Emergency Response Fund at The Community Foundation has now exceeded $2,127,674.

The Foundation will disperse the donation from the Titans to nonprofits across the state, working to provide immediate and long-term relief response to victims and their families.

Those include volunteer support efforts by Hands On Nashville, as well as Westminster Home Connection, Family and Children's Service, the Community Resource Center, Crossroads Campus and many more.

In addition, The NFL Foundation will make a $250,000 contribution to the Community Foundation and work with local schools to assess needs for football field repair and equipment replacement.

"We are so encouraged about the amount of charity people have shown in the aftermath of Monday night's tragedy," Titans owner Amy Adams Strunk said in a statement.

"As leaders in the community, we want to lend our help to this cause of healing and rebuilding. Together we will help our neighbors through this long and difficult process. We are hopeful that others will join us in supporting this effort any way they can."

Titans players and their families plan to go out with Hands On Nashville on Friday to help with recovery needs in person.

"Everyone in these communities and throughout Tennessee should be eternally grateful to the Tennessee Titans for their tremendous efforts in helping the victims of the tornadoes," said Ellen Lehman, President of the Community Fund. "This is an extraordinary gift toward our ability to respond and restore the damage caused by these disastrous storms."

How to sign up to volunteer

If you want to volunteer to help with the tornado cleanup, there will be several chances to volunteer this weekend.

The mayor's office and Hands On Nashville are organizing all-day volunteer days Saturday and Sunday in the areas impacted by the tornado that devastated multiple neighborhoods in Middle Tennessee.

"We know that lots of you just want to do something," the Hands on Nashville wrote on its blog Tuesday. "We hear you. We love you. And what we're hearing from the mayor's office and our emergency responders is that it's not quite time to deploy citizen volunteers."

The post explained that the areas hardest hit are "very dangerous" with gas leaks, downed power lines and tree damage/debris in the streets, the post continued. "What emergency crews need is for us to stay clear so they can do their work."

Interested volunteers can sign up for the weekend cleanup effort at www.hon.org. Hands On Nashville said it will be in touch with more details on how to get involved.

Although sites and other specifics for these efforts have not been announced, organizers say there will be two workday shifts Saturday and Sunday for cleanup volunteers. The weekend shifts are from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and there will likely be other opportunities as the cleanup continues.

Meanwhile, the mayor's office and HON officials say that emergency response personnel are continuing to assess the situation and identify high-priority areas. Anyone interested in volunteering can sign up at HON.org.

How to donate

To donate money to tornado recovery efforts, contact the Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee at www.cfmt.org.

To donate items — in particular baby food, baby and toddler clothes, batteries, flashlights, formula, underwear, bras, gloves, trash bags, box cutters, bleach and personal hygiene items — drop off or mail to the Community Resource Center at 218 Omohundro Place, Nashville, Tennessee, 37210. Find more information about the Community Resource Center at www.crcnashville.org.

To donate food, see www.secondharvestmidtn.org. Second Harvest is coordinating with the Red Cross and the Office of Emergency Management to identify additional food resource needs at area shelters and at partner agencies, and to provide food and other services to those displaced by the storm.

To donate blood, find a Red Cross drive at www.redcrossblood.org. The Red Cross says there is an urgent need for blood.

CONTROLLING OWNER VOWS TO SUPPORT PLAYER PROTESTS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
JUNE 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – Controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk vowed to support Tennessee Titans players in peaceful protests aimed to raise awareness of racial inequality in the United States and noted that “hearts, minds and institutions need to change throughout our country.”

Adams Strunk, a daughter of franchise founder K.S. “Bud” Adams, issued a statement Thursday after the team completed its virtual offseason program. In it, she revealed that the NFL franchise has created a fans resource guide to provide information on how to advance the conversation on race relations, provide facts and connect people to anti-racism resources.

Her comments followed those of coach Mike Vrabel and general manager Jon Robinson, each of whom delivered their thoughts on current events during video conferences with local media.

Amy Adams Strunk’s complete statement:

I want to add my voice and the voice of our organization to the calls for equality and reiterate our firm stance against all forms of racism.

Hearts, minds and institutions need to change throughout our country. Those who face racism need to be heard, and more importantly, understood by those who haven’t listened before.

Our organization and our players have dedicated time and resources to these issues through the ‘We Stand For’ campaign and we are making a difference in our own community, tackling issues like educational equity, judicial reform, policing policies and assistance for underserved areas. We are proud to support those efforts and we will continue to find ways to impact our region. As part of this, we are providing information to our fans through a resource guide (<https://www.tennesseetitans.com/community/we-stand-for/resource-center>) so others can join us in these steps to progress.

Hearing our players and coaches speak over the last two weeks has been constructive to this vital discussion. I support our players using peaceful protests and their platforms to advance us as a nation. I would encourage those who haven’t thought about these issues before to understand the pain, anger and frustration of the black community. Black lives matter. We should all agree on that.

JON ROBINSON

TITANS GM JON ROBINSON FIGHTS HIS BIGGEST BATTLE AT HIS HOUSE

BY BRAD SCHMITT
THE TENNESSEAN
APRIL 19, 2018

After the Easter egg hunt a few years back, Taylor Robinson dove into a package of Peeps marshmallow candies and ate two before the 6-year-old girl bent over and announced she had a bellyache.

Her father, Titans GM Jon Robinson, was dubious.

“We thought she just wanted to skip church and eat candy all day,” he said.

Then again, Robinson thought, some other things had been bothering him and his wife, Jaimie, about their older daughter.

Taylor had been drinking a lot of water lately and using the bathroom a lot. And she’d lost six pounds in a month.

Robinson went online and put “excessive thirst,” “excessive urination” and “weight loss” into Web MD. And Google. And Yahoo.

All three websites came back with the same answer.

In 2012, then 6-year-old Taylor Robinson, looking pale

A few hours later, emergency room physicians confirmed the Robinsons’ fears: Taylor has type 1 diabetes. She likely would be taking insulin for the rest of her life.

The two parents stepped out into the hallway and cried.

Scared, questions swirled around his mind – Will Taylor be able to live a normal life like any other kid? Will she be able to go to the ice cream shop? Will she be able to go to sleepovers? Will Taylor be accepted?

Since then, the Robinsons have learned how to manage the disease and – just as important – they’ve plugged into communities of families of children with diabetes.

They’re active with the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, and the Robinsons on Saturday (April 21) are hosting the first black-tie fundraiser on the field of Nissan Stadium.

While manageable, life with diabetes can be challenging and, sometimes, scary.

Robinson, 42, loves overseeing the Titans battle on the field, but his biggest fight is to find a cure for his daughter’s disease.

“But we all know what she deals with, and we’re not accepting of it. We’re trying to help her beat it.”

A bouquet of positive pregnancy test sticks

The family was built on football: Jon and Jaimie met in the late 1990s at sports bar Bubba’s II, in Thibodaux, La., where Jon was a football coach at Nicholls State University.

Several years after the couple got married in 2002, Jon found out his wife was pregnant. That happened when he came home from a scouting trip for the New England Patriots, and there were a dozen positive pregnancy test sticks in a basket.

“She knows me,” Jon said, smiling. “I’d have asked, ‘Did you take more than one?’”

This 2009 picture was taken at New England Patriots

A tough player and coach all his life, Jon expected to be the disciplinarian with his kids. Soon after Taylor was born, both parents realized Jon was the softie.

About five months before the diabetes diagnosis, the Robinsons started noticing Taylor asked to have water by her bed. They’d hear the toilet flush several times overnight, but didn’t think much of it.

After doctors confirmed diabetes in 2012, Taylor cried during the first few insulin injections. Within weeks, though, she insisted on giving herself the shots.

The girl learned about food, sugars, portion size, controlling carbohydrates and taking care of herself. She learned how to use an app on her phone that lets her and her parents know at all times what her sugar level is.

Going back to school was, well, kinda cool for the first-grader.

“Our nurse came and talked to our class about what diabetes is and how it affects me,” Taylor said. “It felt good. I almost felt kind of proud of it because I was different.”

A year later, the tears flow

There were many sleepless nights at first, as Taylor and her parents obsessed about the numbers and the beeping alarms.

Jon was emotional at first, and he worked a lot. So Jaimie saw herself as the tough-minded caregiver who had to execute plans to keep their daughter healthy: “There was not time for tears.”

Until there was.

JON ROBINSON

About a year in, all the emotions of the ordeal caught up with Jaimie, and she found herself crying often, for nearly a month.

“It’s just hitting me now,” she told her husband then, “that Taylor has to deal with this her entire life.”

The most frightening moment happened in a parking lot of an outlet mall.

Taylor said she wasn’t feeling good, and she doubled up on the floor of the family SUV, in and out of consciousness.

Her parents shouted, “Taylor! Taylor!” and fed her Gatorade when she was awake enough to drink.

Eventually, the girl threw up and felt much better.

Taylor said her life is pretty normal, and yes, she has been able to go to sleepovers at friends’ houses.

She said she just keeps her blood sugar alarm under her pillow so it won’t wake her friends up if it goes off.

Jaimie agrees that things are pretty routine now with diabetes care.

“A lot of people feel sorry for us, but I’ll be honest, once you get the swing of it, it’s not hard,” she said.

“It’s difficult to tell her, ‘No, you can’t have that second cupcake,’ because her sugar would be through the roof. But she’s amazing. That’s what makes it easy for Jon and me.”

In fact, sometimes the Robinsons consider the disease a blessing.

It has given them purpose, to raise awareness and to raise money for research.

“Fate, call it whatever you want to call it,” Jon said. “God picked us because we now by his grace are financially in the position to where we have a bigger shovel to find a cure.”

WANT TO BE A SCOUT? TITANS GM JON ROBINSON ON WHAT HE WATCHES FOR AT THE COMBINE

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
FEBRUARY 19, 2020

In less than a week, more than 300 talented prospects will descend on Indianapolis for the NFL Scouting Combine, where they will try to sprint, backpedal, cut, leap, throw and catch their way into the hearts of league personnel.

America will get more of a chance than ever to watch the so-called Underwear Olympics this year, as the combine will make its way into prime time for the first time Feb. 27-29.

But what exactly are we watching? After all, not every drill or test fits every player. A 40-yard dash is much more important to a skill-position player than a big man, while a drop-and-flip drill might be an important indicator of a lineman's flexibility.

So The Athletic went to an expert.

Titans general manager Jon Robinson broke down what he looks for — generally speaking — in every position at the combine.

A few things to keep in mind:

- Robinson said good ol' game film is most important in scouting prospects, but the ability to collect measurables and watch players up close at the combine is important as well.
- The combine features six measurable tests that are open to all invited prospects: the 40-yard dash, the bench press, the vertical jump, the broad jump, the three-cone drill and the shuttle run. There are also numerous position-specific drills that are tailored toward revealing more particular strengths — or weaknesses.

Quarterback

Players drafted by Robinson: Luke Falk (sixth round, 2018)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: Footwork in position-specific drills, especially ones such as the pocket-movement drill and the seven-step rollouts to each side. Also, touch and accuracy on go routes, deep routes and corner routes.

Straight from the GM: "You're looking at their functional athleticism. They don't necessarily have to be the fastest, but do they have enough functional athleticism that, when put under pressure, are they going to be able to escape and keep the play alive? They do a lot of movement stuff with those guys, like bootlegs, moving in the pocket. So, you look at that.

"They're also throwing to a totally different cast of characters (at the combine). They've never thrown with these guys, most likely. So they don't really know how these guys are going to run the routes. They don't know how fast they are in and out of their breaks. So, (you watch) their ability to anticipate to players they've never thrown to. Can they anticipate the pace of the route and know when to let the ball go? And can they put it in a position where he can catch it and run with it?"

"Some of the deep-field target stuff also — their touch and accuracy. Do they throw it out of bounds or do they hold it on that red line and let (the receiver) fade into it, kind of along the boundary? And how do they handle themselves with their group? Do they have any leadership at all or are they just kind of a number out there, and they're waiting on their number to go get called to throw? Are they trying to develop some type of chemistry with the players they're throwing the ball to?"

Running back

Players drafted by Robinson: Khalfani Muhammad (seventh round, 2017), Derrick Henry (second round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: One test Robinson referenced is the three-cone drill, which challenges a prospect's ability to change directions at a high speed while weaving through three cones set up in an L-formation. There are also a couple of position-specific drills in which the running back is forced to make quick decisions following a handoff, based on which way the drill director tells him to move. It's important that the back can react very quickly.

Straight from the GM: "I think their ability to catch the football is important. How do they do in those drills? Certainly (among the measured-data tests), the three-cone is a pretty good drill. They're turning and changing direction. How quickly are they getting in and out of different situations and showing their ability to bend?"

"I like the cut drills where they kind of press the hole and they run, and then the coach moves the bag one way or the other. How reactive are they to the movement of a supposed linebacker, making the right cut and accelerating?"

"So, you're looking somewhat at movement, but you're relying more on the game film because you don't have anybody hitting you (at the combine). And those guys get hit every single play (in the NFL) unless they're untouched for a touchdown. You can't see at the combine their ability to take on contact on the field. Can they run through contact?"

Wide receiver

Players drafted by Robinson: A.J. Brown (second round, 2019), Corey Davis (first round, 2017), Taywan Taylor (third round, 2017), Tajae Sharpe (fifth round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: The 40-yard dash is obviously key, but not make-or-break. Performance in the shuttle runs shows body control, while the vertical jump is a good indicator of explosiveness off the snap. In the position-specific drills, look at how quickly wide receivers react in the over-the-shoulder drill, when the quarterback is yelling commands like “ball” during the route. That’s when wide receivers start looking back in order to track the ball before catching it.

Straight from the GM: “They all get open different. Every receiver comes in a different package. You’ve got the smaller, quicker guys who get open with their quickness, their shake. You’ve got the speed guys who may not be the strongest, but they can run and you’ve got to account for that. Then you’ve got the size guys who may be a little speed deficient, but they’re really strong at the top of the route. So, when you watch the film, they get open that way.

“I think you look at certainly their 40 time. How fast do they run? And you try to equate that to their game speed. Does it look similar? Do you need to go back and watch it again? (You watch) the shuttles, their body control in the shuttles, especially the slot receivers on the short shuttles. Their vertical jump — how explosive are they? Are they going to be able to go up and high-point a ball on a red zone throw or something?

“And then in the position drills, you’re looking for their ability to follow the directions that the receivers coach or whoever is showing them. Are they watching the guy in front of them run the route? Do they mess it up when they run it? All of the little things that, when they may not think we’re watching, we look at.

“And their ability to get in and out of their breaks. Do they catch the ball cleanly? Some of the routes are what they are. They’ve been doing the same routes forever. I’d like to see some different routes, but I don’t make the rules.”

Tight end

Players drafted by Robinson: Jonnu Smith (third round, 2017)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: If the prospect is an “F” tight end — whose strength is typically as a pass-catcher — then the short shuttles and three-cone tests are important to show how quickly he can get in and out of his route. If the prospect is a “Y” tight end — whose strength is more as a blocker — the multiple catch/gauntlet drill will help show whether he still has the ability to contribute in the passing game from time to time.

Straight from the GM: “First off, you have to look at: Is he really a pass-catcher? Is he more of a third-down or passing-target type of tight end or is he a ‘Y’ type, more of a blocker? Is the functionality of movement as a blocking tight end good enough to run a short underneath pass? Does he have the quickness to snap around and catch the football? You’re not going to ask that guy, if his strength is as a blocker, to really run a bunch of choice routes or stretch the field or anything like that.

“Do they have enough athleticism and/or size to create space between them and the defender if they’re covered in man? Then that’s what you’re looking for. And are they instinctive enough — this is really more watching the film — to find voids in the zone and know where their landmarks should be, knowing that they may have to adjust the route to give the quarterback an open target?

“Now the pass-catching types, the ‘F’ types, you’re going to look more at the athleticism. Can he drop his weight in and out of his breaks? How quick does he snap around at the top of the cone and work back down? The shuttle times are important for those guys, especially if they’re running those choice routes underneath. How quickly can they get through the shuttles, more so the short shuttles than the three-cone?

“And probably most importantly, how do they catch the football? Are they body catchers? Are they hands catchers, that kind of thing?”

Offensive line

Players drafted by Robinson: Nate Davis (third round, 2019), Corey Levin (sixth round, 2017), Brad Seaton (seventh round, 2017), Jack Conklin (first round, 2016), Sebastian Tretola (sixth round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: The 10-yard dash is not an official test, but times at 10 and 20 yards are recorded while players run the 40-yard dash. Those short distances are more valuable indicators of how big men move. Vertical jumps are a good indication of the ability to explode from a stance. And positioning is key for linemen, too, so the “drop-and-flip drill” — when a player starts in the middle of the field and backpedals per the coach’s direction, flipping his hips four times before sprinting upfield — is important.

Straight from the GM: “The (40-yard dash) is a number, but I think you’re looking more at the 10 time, how quickly can he get out of his stance and accelerate for 10 yards. The likelihood that an offensive lineman is really going to sprint 40 yards ... usually it’s out of celebration. So, you look at the 10 time, the explosiveness. You do look at the vertical jump. Can they move that amount of weight and mass upward? It’s a good measure and correlation of how explosive they are out of their hips.

“When you get to the actual on-field drills, (you watch) their ability to change direction in the (pulling) drills. How quickly can they get out of their stance, and can they get around the cone? Can they adjust to someone holding the bag? You’re not necessarily looking at how much they pop the bag or how much they move that person because I’d say that’s not really realistic to what they’re going to see in a game-type setting.

JON ROBINSON

“The drill where they have to flip their hips in a pass set ... I think it’s where they work straight back and flip their hips back and forth, you can see how loose their hips are, their lower-body fluidity.

“The (pass-protection) rush drill where the guy rushes around the edge, I don’t know how much merit there is in it. Because some of the (participating) defensive ends are really (down) linemen, but they’re acting as defensive ends. Some of them go fast. Some of them don’t run the (prescribed route). It’s just not really consistent.

“But when you’re watching movement, those drills that I’ve kind of alluded to at least can kind of clarify what you see on film or make you go back and look at it like, ‘These guys have a little looser hips than I thought. Let me go back and watch that tape.’

“The stuff where they’re trying to drive block somebody off ... most of these guys play against pretty good competition, so you’re going to rely more on the film rather than how well they hit a bag.”

Defensive line

Players drafted by Robinson: Jeffery Simmons (first round, 2019), Austin Johnson (second round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: Unusual as it might seem, vertical jump is an important test because it reveals how much explosion a big man can generate from a flat-footed stance. Often times, that translates to the player’s ability to uncoil from a stance and knock an offensive lineman backward.

Straight from the GM: “With those guys, it’s really change of direction. You can’t measure the power. I mean, they do a couple drills where they hit bags, but that’s basically useless. Can they play laterally? Do they have good footwork? Their 10 time is important, too, as is their vertical jump. I think the short shuttle is a good indication of their ability to change direction. Are they stiff in the hips? Can they bend? And can they accelerate out of a squatted position and get back going full speed?

“(You also watch) their kind of intensity about how they attack the drills. Are they going through the motions or are they really out there competing? I think you can get a measured amount of competitiveness from that group, and how they attack each drill.

“You can see the movement stuff, their ability to flip their hips if they’re pass-rushers. But if the guy is really a nose tackle, you’re going to watch the film on that guy, to see how much he posts up guys trying to double team him. And there’s not a drill that really measures that at the combine. So, with those guys, it’s really their functional movement, their ability to bend, their explosiveness, their quickness out of their stance.”

Linebacker

Important combine tests, drills to watch: The 40-yard dash is important because linebackers often have to track back on plays after a long run or completed pass. Another key test is the short shuttle because it can illustrate reaction time. In the short shuttle, the prospect starts in the three-point stance, explodes out 5 yards to his right and touches the line. He then goes back 10 yards to his left, touches the line with his left hand, pivots and finally turns to run 5 more yards before finishing.

Straight from the GM: “You’re looking for (10-yard dash) times here, also for 40s, their long speed, their ability to chase back side, the three-cone, their ability to change direction, bend the corner, accelerate, the pass-rush drill they do where they time that off the edge. That’s about getting off on the snap of the football and accelerating around the edge.

“Again, you can’t measure the hand use, the power and all that kind of stuff. But just their ability to change direction. For our defense, can (edge-rushers) transition and do some linebacker stuff? How are they in space? Are their hips fluid enough to be a curl dropper and maybe break to an in cut? Can they wall and carry a potential tight end up the seam if asked to do that? What about their ability to play a couple different spots, maybe on the line and off the ball as a linebacker?”

Defensive back

Players drafted by Robinson: Amani Hooker (fourth round, 2019), Dane Cruikshank (fifth round, 2018), Adoree’ Jackson (first round, 2017), Kevin Byard (third round, 2016), LeShaun Sims (fifth round, 2016), Kalan Reed (seventh round, 2016)

Important combine tests, drills to watch: Much like at wide receiver, the 40-yard dash is clearly important, but not make-or-break. The same can be said for the vertical jump. As far as position-specific drills, reaction time for defensive backs is key, so drills like the “W” are effective indicators. In that drill, a player starts 5 yards away from the drill director and backpedals for 5 yards. The drill director will then indicate when it’s time for the player to execute a 45-degree break toward a cone. It is repeated twice more before the defensive back catches the football.

Straight from the GM: “It’s funny. When I talk to corners, I always ask them what they think is important for good corner play. They talk about speed. They talk about footwork, and all that stuff is important. I was like, ‘Let me simplify it for you: Don’t let your guy catch the ball, and tackle. Let’s start there.’

“But all those other little factors play into that. Certainly, their foot quickness. I mean, the 40 time is important. You don’t want slow guys. But is their play speed on tape competitive? Because a guy runs a 4.55, I wouldn’t say that kills him. You go back and look at the tape and you say, ‘Is speed really a detriment to him or is he a physical player who is competitive consistently at the catch-point?’

“Their change of direction (is important), their ability to put their foot in the ground and come out of a break. Or do they pump the pedals to try to get out of it? Vertical jump again (is important), short shuttle, stuff that shows their quickness, their explosion. All that, and then ball skills. Can they track the football? Can they catch the football? When you’re the only guy with all the eyes on you and the ball is up there, does it look like a marble or a beach ball? Some guys it looks like a marble and that shows pretty quickly.”

TITANS GM SAYS FORGET THE ANTHEM, FOCUS ON PLEDGE

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
JUNE 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – To those who ponder exactly how they might feel about if NFL players conduct silent protests during the national anthem again this fall, Tennessee Titans general manager Jon Robinson says consider the Pledge of Allegiance.

“A pledge is a solemn oath,” Robinson said Thursday. “It says, ‘One nation.’ Not a black nation or a white nation, it says, ‘one nation.’ It says, ‘indivisible,’ which means united, not able to be pulled apart, ‘with liberty,’ which means a state of being free from oppressive restrictions, and ‘justice,’ which is defined by equality of being fair and reasonable, ‘for all,’ which is for everyone, regardless of the color of your skin.

“So, I just think this pledge, this oath that we’ve all recited, if we can truly put that into action, we can work to change. We can work to change the hearts and minds of those that need to be changed. That liberty, that justice, that feeling of one nation, a nation of human beings, a nation of God’s children – I think that’s our charge.”

Robinson met with media who cover the Titans on Thursday in a video conference that followed the conclusion of the franchise’s virtual offseason program.

Before he took questions, he issued a statement related to current affairs, particularly the nationwide protests to raise awareness and accountability about racial equality in the United States. Now in his fifth year on the job and with nearly two decades of experience as an NFL staffer or executive, he classified this offseason has been as educational as any for him. He also provided assurances that franchise officials would support players who chose to protest, including during the season.

“I’ve been on web conference calls with others around the league,” Robinson said. “I’ve had several personal discussions with our players, with members of our staff, all of which have been extremely educational for me. Those conversations have been real. They have been empowering.

“Our players, especially, have been outstanding. They were open and they wanted assurance from the organization that when they do use their platforms, their voices, to speak for those whose voice may not be as loud or who don’t have a voice, when they use their voices to speak out against these injustices, that they have our support. And they do.”

Consider it his pledge.

“There shouldn’t be a standard for how to live as a black person in our country,” Robinson said. “... It’s been an extremely moving couple of weeks, and I want to be a part.”

ONE-ON-ONE WITH TITANS GM JON
ROBINSON ON TITANS'
GENDER DIVERSITY EFFORTS

BY LINDSAY JONES
THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 25, 2020

Titans general manager Jon Robinson and head coach Mike Vrabel were first-time participants at the NFL's Women's Careers in Football Forum during the NFL scouting combine in February, and both left Indianapolis wondering: How do we find spots for women on our staff in Tennessee?

It wasn't just a rhetorical question. Within weeks, Robinson and Vrabel had a plan to create an offseason internship program, with a role on Vrabel's coaching staff and a spot on Robinson's personnel staff that would be dedicated to women. They asked their boss, Titans owner Amy Adams Strunk, if they could name the program after her. Because of pandemic-related changes to the offseason, the inaugural year of the program turned out differently than originally planned, but maybe to the benefit of the 2020 interns, strength and conditioning assistant coach Christie Bartlett and scouting and team operations assistant Mical Johnson. Both women had their internships extended through the regular season.

The Athletic spoke with Robinson about this program, how the Titans might expand this internship program in the future, as well as how pandemic-related rules changes will impact scouting and roster management into the future.

We'll just get right into the Amy Adams Strunk Women in Sports Program. How did this all come about?

Back at the combine, Coach Vrabel and I were asked to participate in a symposium with women who work in football, across the country, mostly in college. And he was on a panel, I was part of a discussion group with some ladies who had cool backgrounds, who worked in various portions in college football, and I just explained to them the process of pro football and some of the roles. Not so much on the business side, but on the football side, whether it's in scouting, whether it's in operations, whether it's security, whether it's in the training room, or coaching, the departments that kind of fall under the football umbrella of an organization. I had some good discussions with some of the ladies, several were interested in an internship program if we ever started one. So I came back, I talked about it with (Vrabel) and he and I posed it to Amy, our owner, who's outstanding to work for. And with her being a woman in the football world, a world that is predominantly dominated by men, we wanted to make sure she was open to the program to try to create some diversity on the football side of things.

I've got two daughters, one is 14, and one is 11. My 11-year-old is in sports. My 14-year-old is more into dance, but she follows our football team religiously, she knows all the players and asked me about injuries all the time. So Amy, you know, she was like, "that sounds great. Let's do it." I think that's really, really cool. We said, would you be OK, if we name it after you because of what you've done for this organization and for the NFL? She goes above and beyond. So that's kind of how it came about.

So what came next in terms of getting applications? Did you work with Sam Rapoport (who runs the women's forum and leads gender diversity efforts) from the league?

So we get back from the combine, we've got the plan in place, and I've got several resumes and business cards from the ladies who I met with at the combine. And we were ready to move forward with that pool of candidates and then COVID hits. And so no travel, you know, and the one thing that these ladies at the discussion panel talked to me about was, they have their own jobs at their colleges and the timing has to be right, so training camp was really going to be hard for them to break away. So we were going to kind of do it during OTAs. Well, then OTAs got canceled.

So I started brainstorming, I was like, well, we're in Nashville. We've got several universities here locally. I'm sure there are qualified ladies who are interested in the sports world sports administration, whatever it may be. So I reached out to all the local campuses here, Vanderbilt, Belmont, Lipscomb, Tennessee State, Middle Tennessee State and just told them what we were trying to do. I got probably close to 100 resumes from ladies who were interested in the program. It was only going to be a two-week internship program. It was going to be a weekend scouting and then a week of football operations for the football admin position. And then Coach Vrabel did the same thing in the coaching and put out feelers for female coaches. He found Christie Bartlett who had just worked in the XFL. She's working in our strength program still.

And then I narrowed the list of 100 for the football admin internship down to 10. I did Zoom interviews with all 10. And we found Mical. And she worked for two weeks during training camp, to start, and that kind of went on to three weeks, because she did a great job. And now she comes in on Mondays, and helps put our advanced reports together for the coaches for our weekly opponent.

Is this the first time you've had a woman working in your personnel department? What have you learned about having maybe some women in your football ops?

Yes it is, you know, what's been really cool is to see their passion for football. They're sports driven. Christie has got a passion for coaching. And I don't think Mical really knew what scouting was, but one thing that impressed me about her, in our interviews on Zoom, was her desire to evaluate athletic skills of players and how they fit different roles on a team regardless of sport. She worked for the Vanderbilt football program for a little bit. So she had some exposure to that. And once she got in here, she really took it upon herself to evaluate players on her own, when we would discuss players who were on the street, who were looking for a shot to come into camp, she would try to dig up film and watch those guys, as we talked about them, so that she would have some understanding of their skill set and how they might fit our football team. So that was one thing that I thought was really, really cool to watch her kind of take the bull by the horns. And to learn now what we're trying to do here in the personnel department.

This is the first year of this internship program in Tennessee, where do you think it goes from here? How do you envision it growing?

This is something that we definitely want to continue based upon the way that the two candidates attacked the opportunity this year. Obviously, their performance led to extended internships. And I told Mical, we'll see how things go here, that this may lead to a permanent spot for you here. Moving forward, we'll see how that goes. But I would say that, if a spot opens up in the scouting world, you'd be the leader in the clubhouse based on the way that you conducted yourself. Now, all internships are kind of like an extended interview if you will, and she's aced it so far. So, I think that we'll continue to do this program to bring more ladies in and expose them to what we do to see if there is a passion that they have there for this side of the game.

How have Mical and Christie impacted your team in the time they've been with you?

Mical and Christie weren't intimidated at all by stepping into a pro football environment. They were extremely coachable. They're willing to learn. They attack whatever tests we gave them and still do. They didn't shy away from wanting to attack the opportunity. I think that says a lot about them. And I'm extremely appreciative for (Strunk) and the rest of the organization supporting our endeavor to create diversity in our workplace.

You mentioned that you conducted the interviews for this internship role on Zoom. How has everything you do scouting-wise and running a personnel department changed this year, and how will college scouting be different this fall?

If you go back a couple years, that technology with video and scouting has changed the way you do school calls or you go to visit college campuses to scout players in the fall anyway, because you have all the access to the film on your iPad pretty quickly. So, in the old days when I first got into the personnel business in scouting, you had to physically go to the school and get the film tapes and go down to a thing to watch them and then take them back to the coach, you know? You don't really have to do that now because everything is pushed to you through a cloud, a server, and you have it on your iPad. And I think that maybe some of the interviews and the meetings that you typically have on campus, those will be virtual now. I do think there's some authenticity to being able to go on campus and watch players practice and talk to different people within that college department and that football program about the players. I think that's an important part that we're obviously going to miss out on because of all the restrictions with COVID. But were able to pull off a draft, virtually. I had my doubts in early April, but it ended up going off, I would say, without a hitch. I think that's one thing that we'll look at is a way to take things that we've learned from this pandemic and incorporate it so that we can continue to work smarter, and not necessarily do everything the hard way.

Could that apply to some in-season things too that have changed in 2020, like having more flexibility with the injured reserve list and expanded practice squads?

From a club standpoint, you know, we want to try to have as many of our players that we're going to count on game day as possible to be available. Certainly, the flexibility with the rosters and the way they've adjusted the IR roles we've been able to pull everybody back has been that's been helpful for us. And we'll see how that adjusts moving forward.

You guys are 2-0, what have you learned about your guys through two weeks? How do you feel about the way that you guys won those first two games — the crazy game in Denver in Week 1 and then against Jacksonville last week?

I think it's just hard to win in the National Football League. Regardless of who you're playing, everybody's got good players. And it boils down to execution and making plays when they count and having the mindset that when the game's on the line that you're going to rise to the occasion, you're going to have some mental toughness to push through tough times and find a way to win it. And I think that's what we've done the last couple weeks, we've weathered the storm and at the end of the day, we found a way to execute at the crucial moments in those situations where those handfuls of four or five plays come down to you winning or losing.

MIKE VRABEL

HOW MIKE VRABEL WENT FROM TRASH- TALKING LINEBACKER TO TOUCHDOWN- CATCHING TIGHT END

BY TRAVIS HANEY
THE ATHLETIC
NOVEMBER 7, 2018

It's been more than a decade since Christian Fauria played for the Patriots, but there's no statute of limitations for ball-busting in the world of Boston sports radio. So the former tight end is more than fair game for his daily show on juggernaut WEEI.

A regular gag from callers: How did you let a linebacker steal all those touchdowns from you?

"It became this running joke back then," Fauria said. "And it's still going now, only with people who call our show."

The calls are about Mike Vrabel. We'll call him the Original Touchdown Vulture. He leached away scores from Fauria and other New England offensive players from 2002-08.

Vrabel caught 10 passes for 10 touchdowns in his time as a Patriot. He added two more scores with Kansas City from 2009-10, as his playing career wound down.

Now in his initial season as Tennessee's head coach, this week marks the first time that a Vrabel-led team will meet mentor Bill Belichick and the franchise with which he's most associated. Belichick on Monday even stumped for Vrabel to be in the Patriots Hall of Fame.

"He's one of the best we've ever had," Belichick said.

Touchdowns certainly help the legacy. Touchdowns on the biggest stage help even more. Scores in New England's wins in Super Bowl XXXVIII (vs. Panthers) and XXXIX (vs. Eagles) cemented the status of the creative formation, throwing a 250-pound linebacker in there for goal-line situations.

And then throwing to him.

"Had it not been in the Super Bowl," Vrabel said. "I don't know if it would have been what it became."

That includes people in Boston still talking about it, news that clearly delights Vrabel when he hears about it. Immediately, in a single Cheshire grin, it becomes obvious who Vrabel was as a player: He was equal parts dedicated student of the game — and notorious trash-talker.

He loved to needle anyone and everyone who came into his atmosphere, even that hooded curmudgeon in charge of the whole operation. No one was safe.

"He used to drive us crazy in practice," said former New England offensive coordinator Charlie Weis, adding that Vrabel and safety Rodney Harrison often practiced with the scout team. Weis said it allowed them to get full-speed reps against the first-team offense, keeping them sharper.

It also made the banter more lively, especially when it came to quarterback Tom Brady.

"They would talk trash to Brady the entire practice," Weis said. "They were always fired up."

Switching sides: Vrabel the 'traitor'

Ah, but that back and forth then made Fridays interesting. That's when Vrabel, at some point during practice, would migrate from the defensive side to the offensive huddle for the team's goal-line work. That made him something of a traitor to outspoken defenders such as Harrison, Willie McGinest and Tedy Bruschi.

He very suddenly became the target of the chatter. Instead of being in pursuit, he was being pursued.

"The worst part was when I'd have to go on the other side," Vrabel told The Athletic last week. "The defense would be like, 'We're going to freaking kill you.' It's Rodney and it's McGinest. It's Bruschi. They're just talking. They were trying to knock the shit out of me."

In those Friday practices, Vrabel essentially wound up on an island. Defenders were trying to hammer him; offensive players were rolling their eyes as this defector appeared in their midst.

"What's up, fellas?" he'd say as he arrived in the huddle, ear-to-ear smile on his face.

"He came to take away our touchdowns," Fauria said. "Look, it's not like they're handing those things out."

"He already had this big ego and he was already established. It was like, 'Great, now we have to hear about him scoring touchdowns? Now we've got to deal with this, too?'"

Belichick was establishing his wizardry. He'd later do the same thing on the goal line with a 6-6, 305-pound offensive lineman (Tom Ashworth) and a 6-6, 317-pound defensive lineman (Richard Seymour).

"I just thought, 'Bill's just fucking with us. This is part of his master plan to show he's a genius and we're getting screwed because of it,'" Fauria said. "He said, 'I can put a linebacker at tight end, or a receiver (Troy Brown) at defensive back.'"

Fauria then imitated a Belichick-ian evil-genius laugh.

Genesis of the formation

The beginnings of the move came not with Belichick or Brady, but the quarterback who preceded Brady. As a rookie, Vrabel and his family received invites to hang out at Drew Bledsoe's home. Bledsoe, like Vrabel, had young children. After the two became friends, Bledsoe then invited Vrabel to come out with him for pregame warmups.

MIKE VRABEL

Vrabel would run tight end routes in those pregames, just messing around.

But it caught Bledsoe's eye. Vrabel was actually quite good at it. Bledsoe passed along the recommendation to Weis.

Weis didn't recall Bledsoe's rec, but he did remember being shorthanded for a 2002 game in San Diego. He said there was a mini-tryout among defensive players for the role as the team's third tight end. Vrabel easily stood out, perhaps in part because of that pregame route-running.

Against the Chargers that day, Vrabel caught the first of his 12 career touchdowns.

"It was as if he'd been playing tight end all along," Weis said. "He was physical. He was athletic. He could really catch the ball. He wasn't a stiff out there. He wasn't some glorified lineman playing tight end. He was just the way he is with everything else, too: He was conscientious. Knowing what to do was important to him.

"We had confidence in him from when we first put him in there."

Still, there was some adjustment required, particularly when it came to the sanctity of Brady's offensive huddle.

The third day Vrabel practiced at tight end, he got open in the middle of the field. He turned into a Pop Warner player, waving his arms emphatically to get the quarterback's attention.

"Tommy! Tommy! Tommy!" Vrabel yelled.

The ball didn't go his way. Vrabel trekked back to the huddle, where Brady was there to meet him.

"Don't ever do that again if you want me to throw you the freaking ball," Brady told Vrabel.

"I thought I was open and that's what you did. I didn't know," Vrabel said sheepishly. "I saw Randy Moss do it. ... I learned the Brady etiquette, I guess."

Brady Lesson No. 2: Celebrate with the offense when you score.

As Vrabel began to score with regularity, beginning in 2004, he would sprint from the end zone to the sideline to celebrate with his defensive teammates.

"Tom would be like, 'If you ever run off the damn field again ...'" Vrabel said. "I was excited, you know? I would just start sprinting and go to the defense.

"Tom would say, 'Don't you ever run off.' I said, 'OK, I got you.'"

A natural receiver

Looking back, Vrabel thinks the best catch he had came in a 2006 game in Green Bay.

Officially, though, it didn't count; it was one of just four times in his career that he was targeted but he didn't make the catch. Brady was trying to throw the ball away in the back of the end zone, but Vrabel read his quarterback's eyes and broke toward the base of the goal post. He got one foot in, and then the other — but his elbow hit before he could get the second foot down.

It was an objectively outstanding play, regardless whether it counted.

"He really had to show some athletic ability," Fauria said. "I remember walking off the field and thinking, 'Damn, that was a good catch.' That was a pro catch. That wasn't a gimmick of some tackle being eligible."

The best official catch for Vrabel was a 2004 score in a win in St. Louis.

Current Titans tight end Luke Stocker watched a YouTube clip of that touchdown, nodding as Vrabel made a nimble grab in the back left corner of the end zone with a defender trailing him.

"The thing that impresses me is that he lines up his eyes and his hands; that's next-level for what you're taught as a receiver," Stocker said.

Stocker added that he hadn't seen much of Vrabel's pass-catching highlights, but the Titans roster has a certain awareness of who Vrabel was — a three-time Super Bowl champ — both defensively and offensively.

Vrabel was a first-team All-Pro selection in 2007. He finished his career as a linebacker with 740 tackles, 57 sacks, 19 forced fumbles and 11 interceptions.

"Guys know his pedigree and what he's been through, who he was in the league and where he's been," Stocker said. "He definitely has clout."

But he's remained playful as a coach, teasing players the same way he did his former teammates and coaches. He almost had a little-brother persona as a player.

Vrabel took particular delight in jabbing at Moss when the Hall of Fame receiver arrived in 2007. As Vrabel would trot in for goal-line situations, it often meant Moss was out of the game.

Vrabel would find Moss, mockingly pointing to the sideline.

"See ya, Moss," Vrabel would say, waving at Moss. "'You've got to go.'"

The cantankerous Moss responded about how you'd imagine.

The Patriots had first-round tight ends in Ben Watson (No. 32 overall pick in 2004) and Daniel Graham (No. 21 pick in 2002), and yet Vrabel would find a way to squeeze them.

"He was just snatching away our freaking reps," Fauria said. "It was such a Bill thing. One of those tight ends was coming off the field because Vrabel was going on the field."

MIKE VRABEL

The other linebackers were left somewhat jealous that Vrabel was the one who made the move. In the end, they'd live vicariously through him.

"All of us thought we could play tight end," said Matt Chatham, a Pats linebacker from 2000-05 and a current contributor for The Athletic. "Vrabel was really good at it, really good at framing it up."

"We were all going crazy on the sideline. We loved it. It's just funny that our guy was making plays from the linebacker group."

Transition from huddle to sideline

Weis and Vrabel's former teammates are not at all surprised to see him now as an NFL head coach. They're betting on the 43-year-old fast riser, too.

"He'll stick to a plan. He'll produce. He's smart, tough," Weis said. "He won't deviate from the plan. That's exactly what you're going to get. That's why you know he'll be successful."

Intelligence was a recurring theme from those discussing Vrabel's makeup. Vrabel often makes fun of himself about over-preparing.

"You knew Mike Vrabel was going to be a head coach somewhere in some form or fashion," said Kevin Faulk, a New England running back from 1999-2011. "He just had that coach's mentality as a player, and he used that to help himself out. He was just so smart and so intelligent. It's awesome to see."

Fauria compared Vrabel's ascent to that of Red Sox manager Alex Cora, the 43-year-old whose team just won the World Series.

"Mike has a really good personality that young guys tend to follow," Fauria said. "He's honest. He's direct. He has a lot of credibility. I think people respond to that. It was no surprise to me that he, one, became a coach and, two, rose as fast as he has."

Fauria can probably expect a few calls this week about Vrabel. He'll be ready.

"He was this snarky, condescending smartass, but he could back it up," Fauria said. "He was always backing it up."

HOW MIKE VRABEL BALANCES LIFE WITH A HEAD COACH'S RELENTLESS SCHEDULE

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
JULY 22, 2019

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Chinese takeout. That was what Tennessee Titans head coach Mike Vrabel said he was planning to eat for Thanksgiving dinner last year.

Of course, Vrabel would have liked to have joined his family for the holiday, but he had to stay at the office to prepare for a Week 12 game against the Houston Texans on Monday Night Football. That's NFL life.

Like most NFL coaches, Mike Vrabel keeps long hours even in the offseason.

Even the offseason is demanding. Here's a sample of what Vrabel's schedule looked like during minicamp:

4:30 a.m.: Leave for the office

Coaches fitness club. They pick different things to do -- sometimes they push the blocking sled. It's another bonding opportunity for them. Vrabel makes it a point to commit to finding 30 minutes for his own health. "This is a stressful environment. I have to remind myself to take care of myself mentally and physically."

Breakfast

Plan team meeting

Meet with coordinators

Meet with director of sports medicine Todd Toriscelli to talk about the health of the team

Sit in on different position meetings

Stop by the training room to talk to players

Practice

News conference

More meetings, review practice film

6 p.m.: Leave the office

In addition to his responsibilities at the facility, the Titans' community events in the evening can keep Vrabel out later.

"If there's something going on at night, I have to get some more work done during the day so that I can get out for that appearance or event," Vrabel said.

The second-year head coach always has football on his mind, continuously evaluating ways to improve his team. But he's also a family man who strives to stay involved with his wife, Jen, and two sons, Carter and Tyler. How does he balance the two?

In short, it's maintaining priorities despite numerous demands of the job.

Staying connected

Vrabel's oldest son, Tyler, is a 19-year-old redshirt freshman offensive lineman for Boston College. Sometimes Vrabel flies up to Massachusetts to check out Tyler's games if the Titans have a bye week or a Thursday night game.

BC Football 🏈

His younger son, Carter, 17, is a pitcher on Father Ryan High School's baseball team in Nashville. Vrabel has no problem wrapping up his day at St. Thomas Sports Park to take in Carter's games, even if one of them starts at 4:30 p.m.

"You love what your family loves. There's a lot of baseball games. Carter loves baseball. When there is a baseball game, I am leaving," Vrabel said.

Since Carter is at games or practice a lot, Jen doesn't cook as much as she used to. But Vrabel said his favorite dish she makes is lemon chicken with pasta. Jen said she got the recipe from Heidi Bruschi, the wife of former New England Patriots teammate Tedy Bruschi.

"She made it the first time we went over to their house for dinner. I was like, 'I need this recipe!'" Jen said.

Staying connected with family is something Vrabel stresses to members of his staff, too, especially during the offseason.

"I tell our staff that we work too much during the season for any of our guys to miss something that their family has in the offseason. That's not healthy for their families," Vrabel said while sitting at his desk after a minicamp practice in June. "It's not healthy for them. They're not going to be productive here at work if they're thinking, 'Man, I wish I was at that game.' If their kid has a game or a dance recital, I need them to be involved in that."

Vrabel's assistants appreciate his work-life philosophy. Defensive coordinator Dean Pees was especially thankful to Vrabel for allowing him to go to Canton, Ohio, last year during training camp for former Baltimore Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis' Hall of Fame induction ceremony. Pees will be taking the trip once again this August when Ravens safety Ed Reed is inducted. Both players played for Pees in Baltimore.

"Coach Vrabel does a great job of giving coaches long weekends off during the offseason, along with several full weeks off during that same period," Pees said. "We have almost five weeks off in the summer. During the season, he is a head coach that doesn't watch the clock. It's get your work done and go home -- myself along with all the coaches truly appreciate that."

Navigating the season grind

MIKE VRABEL

Strangely, coaching in the NFL has afforded the Vrabels more time together than when he was a linebackers coach at Ohio State.

"Fridays are always our nights because we have a teenage son that doesn't want to hang out with Mom and Dad, so he goes to high school football games," Jen said. "It's fun. He's usually home earlier, and we grab dinner. When he coached in college, he really didn't have a night like that, so we cherish that night. It was the same when he played. Fridays were always the best. It became like a date night or family night."

But on other weekday nights during the season, Vrabel can get home from the facility as late as 11 p.m. He needs time to wind down before he can sleep -- that's when he has to fight poor eating habits. Vrabel shook his head at the thought of all the late-night snacks and leftover pizza he has put away.

Eating healthy in season can be tricky. Like most team employees, Vrabel mostly eats what is provided at the team facility. He loves the Buffalo chicken wraps.

"I've been hammering too many of those. They put them there, and every time you walk by, you're tempted to grab one," Vrabel said with a smile.

Despite the workaholic NFL culture, Mike Vrabel still manages to get away with his family, including his wife, Jen, and his sons Tyler, center, and Carter, right. Courtesy of Mike Vrabel

On weeks when the Titans have road games, Vrabel doesn't see his family much on Saturdays or Sundays. Vrabel and his wife primarily text each other to keep in contact. Back-to-back road games are the worst because there are times when the team returns to Nashville late at night so Vrabel might not see his family on consecutive weekends. Jen bought Mike an inflatable queen-sized mattress for the occasional nights when he has to crash at the office.

Sleeping at the facility is something Vrabel tries to avoid. But sometimes it's necessary to save time and get a jump on the next day.

Home games afford him a chance for more family time. Vrabel goes to the facility around 12:30 p.m. on Saturday but returns in time to chill with the family. "We like to sit around and watch college football," Jen said.

After a casual college football scouting session, Vrabel heads to the team hotel around 7 or 7:30 p.m. before a home game. The Sunday afternoon games allow him to get home earlier and see his family before going back to work Monday.

So what do the Vrabels do to get away from the grind? They planned an RV trip to Atlanta this summer. Vrabel laughed as he told the media that he did a good enough job on a similar trip last year to talk Jen into taking the journey again. Sitting behind the wheel on the four-hour trip gave him plenty of time to think. Although it's the offseason, the relentless pursuit of finding an edge over the opponent won't allow Vrabel to detach from football entirely, especially with training camp rapidly approaching.

"I think it all the time. You're always thinking about a play or a player throughout the course of your day or night or time off," Vrabel said.

TITANS HC MIKE VRABEL CALLS FOR "INCLUSION, DIVERSITY, EQUALITY, OPPORTUNITY"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 2, 2020

NASHVILLE – Mike Vrabel wasn't scheduled to be on a Zoom conference call with reporters on Tuesday.

But the Titans head coach jumped in ahead of his defensive assistants scheduled to speak so he could tackle a topic that's important to him and the players he coaches: social justice issues, and the need for unity in our society.

Vrabel admitted that he did not see the issue as clearly as he needed, and he challenged leaders everywhere to do better.

Vrabel said he's had a number of conversations with Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk and General Manager Jon Robinson in recent days in the wake of George Floyd's death in Minneapolis, and the protests that have followed across the country, including in Nashville.

And he's also had numerous talks with his players.

Mike Vrabel: Important to Respect Each Other to Make Positive Change

"There's just some things I would like to say: First, I'd like to first acknowledge my own personal privilege, one that is real," Vrabel said. "And I'd like to acknowledge a social blind spot that either I was unaware of or chose not to see. I've had the unbelievable opportunity to listen to our players the last two days in our team meetings. I listen to them with an open mind and hear and learn what they believe in and how they feel. Amy, Jon and myself have tried to put great people and great fathers and great husbands and great student-athletes onto our football team, and the majority of those men are African-American with a much different experience and background than I'll ever know. And by listening and understanding those thoughts and feelings, and how they feel, has helped me recognize what is important, and what is important is we find ways to respect each others' feelings, that we respect each others' beliefs, that we respect each others' efforts to make positive change in our community where we work, the communities where we live and the communities where we grew up."

Vrabel also talked about his upbringing, and about the definition of leadership, while also addressing the role race relations play in a sports locker room.

"Being an only child of a basketball coach, playing for the Ohio State Buckeyes, Pittsburgh Steelers, and New England Patriots and Kansas City Chiefs afforded me a great luxury of seeing how successful locker rooms are built and managed," Vrabel said. "They're built and managed on fair competition, love, loyalty, accountability, teamwork. What they're not built on is race, creed, color or money.

"I would say that in closing, leaders are prepared, leaders take decisive action and inspire a group of people towards a common goal. That common goal is inclusion, diversity, equality, opportunity. So, on behalf of the Tennessee Titans – our owner, our general manager, the head football coach, our staff – we want to support and will continue to help lead our players as we work towards that common goal."

TITANS BEING MOLDED IN MIKE VRABEL'S IMAGE

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITAN INSIDER
AUGUST 31, 2020

One of the underplayed reasons the Tennessee Titans might have an edge in this football season being played through a pandemic and being clouded by social unrest is the man leading the charge for them.

In Mike Vrabel's very first game as the Titans head coach, he was forced to navigate the team through two lightning delays that caused the game to last about eight hours. The Titans didn't win that day in Miami, but it showed signs that a rookie head coach in his first game could handle stressful situations.

Through two-plus years now, Vrabel has weathered a quarterback change and his fair share of play calls and decisions – some that worked and some that didn't and were called into question.

Adapting to change

Now as he prepares the Titans for a season that had no off-season and now is being further complicated by sports becoming intertwined with politics and social issues, it appears that Vrabel might just be the right man to navigate those choppy waters.

His coaches and players certainly seem to think so. Consider how he had their back and regrouped last Thursday when players decided not to practice and he turned the day into one of discussing issues that face both the players and the nation.

"Each day that we come in here we try not to be on a script. We have a schedule, and sometimes we reserve the right to change it just like we did today, and you go in a different direction," Vrabel said Thursday of the cancelled workout.

That decision did not seem to surprise anyone associated with the Titans that knows Vrabel as a man.

"He's extremely smart. I've been around a lot of coaches over my career and Mike is very thoughtful. He doesn't do anything or make any decisions without thinking about it," defensive line coach Terrell Williams said. "That's the thing I appreciate about him, compared to some of the other guys I've worked with in the past. He's extremely thoughtful. He cares about our players. He cares about all of us and our families. I don't think there's anybody more equipped to handle this unique situation that we're in right now."

Williams recounted a personal matter he went through this summer where Vrabel had his back.

"He's thoughtful. I went through a situation this summer, a personal situation, and he cares about me like he's part of my family, and I think that's what everybody needs right now in these different times," Williams said.

Tough love

That said, don't get the impression that Vrabel is a touchy-feely guy in any way. He cares about his players and coaches, but also fits that neatly within the framework of what helps the team win - always.

"As far as handling our football team, I think he's perfect for this football team. His coaching style is he's direct," Williams said. "If he has something to say to you as a coach or to you as a player, he isn't going to dance around. He's going to tell you what he needs to say and keep rolling on."

Quarterbacks coach Pat O'Hara said Vrabel's passion for both people and football permeates throughout the Titans' locker room.

"I think he's passionate about people, and he's passionate about this football team. There's nothing more important to him than this team other than his family. He's a tremendous leader, one of the best I've been around," O'Hara said. "Players respect him because he's done it. He holds everyone accountable. He encourages players to hold their teammates accountable. He's all about the team. He kind of reflects the outcomes that he wants to get. He wants guys to play hard - that love football. He played hard and he loves football. Guys that play here kind of share that same philosophy."

For the boys

For Vrabel, he said it is about sacrificing yourself for the team and making the team part of your family.

"I think one great theme of being a great teammate is that you care more about the people next to you than you do yourself, because you always are going to have to, somehow, put someone else's well-being before your own," Vrabel said.

Part of the Vrabel way is centered on what is best for the team, and knowing that the team comes first.

"I love Coach Vrabel. Me and him are very close. Some of the things he preaches, some of his core values, things he talks about at practice – just the values we have in football. He treats his players like brothers, he treats his staff – it's just a family feel," safety Kenny Vaccaro said. "He preaches to us all the time, 'There's no white, black, purple, green.' We're all in this together. I just wish everybody could experience the locker room. (Mike) Vrabel, he's a reflection of our leadership and our team. When you think of the Tennessee Titans, you think of Mike Vrabel and everything he believes in."

Veteran coach Jim Haslett, who once coached Vrabel as a player and now works for him, has been impressed since coming aboard this year.

"He's a guy that loves football. He's very knowledgeable in all aspects of the game. He loves coaching. He loves being around the players,"

MIKE VRABEL

Haslett said. “He’ll coach everybody and anybody. You can tell he loves football, and that’s the kind of players he wants – guys that love football and want to be around and work hard.”

Whether it is counseling players through difficult times or grabbing the blocking pad to help an outside linebacker with his pass rush technique, Vrabel’s approach is to be involved.

“From my perspective, Mike Vrabel is a hands-on head coach who is very detail oriented and is involved in all three aspects of the game. He wants to impress the same competitiveness on every single play, every single drive, every single game that he had when he played and put that into our team and make it the blueprint,” safety coach Scott Booker said.

And that blueprint starts with the pipeline between Vrabel and his players.

“For Mike, it’s about the players,” O’Hara said. “He believes that the players come first.”

TITANS' VRABEL DETERMINED TO KEEP SUICIDE-PREVENTION MESSAGE GOING: 'PEOPLE ARE THERE FOR YOU'

BY MIKE JONES
USA TODAY
SEPTEMBER 30, 2020

Mike Vrabel couldn't let the call for help go unanswered. Not this one.

Like countless others, the request for assistance reached the inbox of the Tennessee Titans head coach. But this message from the Jason Foundation -- a Tennessee-based mission dedicated to preventing youth suicide -- grabbed Vrabel, and the coach concluded that he had to act.

Since 2000, the Titans had donated proceeds from their specialized license plate program to the Jason Foundation and nine other Nashville-area charities. But when broached about lending his voice to the cause, Vrabel eagerly obliged, determined to help fight the "Silent Epidemic."

Throughout September (which is Suicide Prevention and Awareness Month), he lent time and resources to the Jason Foundation. He also has done a series of public service announcements as part of the organization's educational programs geared toward equipping young people, educators and parents with tools and resources to help identify and assist at-risk youth.

Tennessee Titans head coach Mike Vrabel wants to keep the message of suicide prevention going all year round.

But as September draws to a close, Vrabel doesn't want the message to fade into obscurity. Although the Suicide Prevention and Awareness Month campaigns may end, the coach intends to remain vocal about preventing suicide.

"It's something that's critically important, not only to the suicide prevention, but the mental health and well-being of our adolescents," Vrabel told USA TODAY Sports in an interview last Friday. "I've got a 20-year-old son and an 18-year-old son, and obviously, the environment they are growing up in is different than the environment that I grew up in with the social media and the make-believe that's portrayed on those avenues.

"So, I really want to spread awareness and try to help prevent what is the second-leading cause of death in people 10 to 24 years old."

The mission is important to Vrabel, not only because he's the father to young men but also because of two painful experiences within his football family.

In 2012, Hall of Fame linebacker and New England Patriots teammate Junior Seau took his own life.

Vrabel still remembers the day he learned of Seau's death. Then an assistant coach at Ohio State, Vrabel was on a recruiting trip in Indianapolis.

Vrabel recalled, "It was a pretty traumatic experience for all of us. ... He was a great teammate and I was lucky to have spent time with him."

Then, in the June 2019, one of the Titans' equipment assistants, George Cheng, died by suicide, shaking members of the organization.

When the Titans players returned to the area for training camp roughly a month later, Vrabel, who attended the 28-year-old Cheng's funeral, began talking with his players about the importance of communication and accountability as tools to help prevent suicide. A year later, the partnership with the Jason Foundation has strengthened Vrabel's resolve and message to his players, the team's fans and his sons.

"The one thing that the Jason Foundation has tried to educate parents and teachers about: what the warning signs could be. If you're not sure, you have to make sure. Or, you're telling someone else,

'I'm not sure about so-and-so.' It's not unlike a player that may have had on the field with a head injury. You tell someone, 'Hey, I'm not sure, but he's not seeming like himself.'"

As Vrabel points out, simple check-ins with loved ones can wind up making a difference. So, whether with his children, former teammates or Titans players, he makes a point of keeping those lines of communication open, while also maintaining transparency.

"It's about providing a safe space for them to talk," Vrabel said, discussing talks with his sons. "I think it's important to share my own personal feelings and fears. Again, I've learned through my own communication and therapy that when you're in the river, one side is anxiety and one side is depression and you're trying to steer clear of those. You're trying to steer clear of worrying about the past and trying not to worry about what could happen wrong in the future. You're trying to focus on the present."

The coach understands the mental anguish that isolation and loneliness can create. And that's part of the reason why immediately after his playing days, he got into coaching, believing that maintaining an active life would help guard against depression. He encourages healthy habits, but more than anything, he hopes to convey the message that it's always okay and important to reach out to others for help.

"Suicide is not the answer to a bad day or a bad week, and if you feel hopeless or sad, there's someone willing to help you, to listen, to talk to you," Vrabel urges. "Whether it's a coach, a teacher, your parents or an aunt, uncle or a friend, you have to understand that there are always people that will be there for you no matter how bad you feel."

ARTHUR SMITH

FROM QUALITY CONTROL TO OC IN THE NFL, ARTHUR SMITH WORKS HIS WAY UP

BY DON WADE
DAILY MEMPHIAN
FEBRUARY 10, 2019

Almost two decades earlier, Arthur Smith had been a football-crazy teenager hanging around the one-year wonder that was the Memphis Mad Dogs, a Canadian Football League team owned by his father, Frederick W. Smith, and coached by Pepper Rodgers.

Now it was Oct. 19, 2014, and the Tennessee Titans were playing in Washington at FedEx Field. Arthur Smith was on the Titans' sideline as assistant tight ends coach. His father, the founder, chairman and chief executive of FedEx, had come to the game with Rodgers, a former Redskins executive, and still a great friend who back in their Mad Dogs days used to play tennis with Fred at his East Memphis home.

"I went down on the field with Fred and I was as proud of Arthur as I would be one of my own," said Rodgers, now 87. "His dad wields a lot of power, but none of it has had anything to do with Arthur's football career. Arthur has worked and earned his way."

Most recently, Arthur Smith has worked his way into the title of Titans offensive coordinator. He succeeds Matt LaFleur, who left to become head coach of the Green Bay Packers. Smith, 36, will be the fifth play-caller in as many seasons for quarterback Marcus Mariota.

Smith's climb with the Titans started in 2011 when he was a defensive quality control coach. It was a rung-by-rung ascent. The next season he worked in offensive quality control and then in 2013 he coached the offensive line and was also a tight ends assistant coach. He focused just on coaching tight ends in 2014-15 and was officially promoted to the lead post for that position group for the 2016-18 seasons.

Smith, in an interview with The Daily Memphian, called the quality control positions "entry level jobs in the NFL," adding, "when you're a grad assistant in college, it's almost like you're a gopher. My number one job was to break down film and run scout team. And then as time goes on, you get more responsibilities."

He comes to the OC position having never been a play-caller. Which might be cause for some nervousness among the Titans fan base. But if Smith has any fear, doubt, uncertainty – whatever you want to say – it doesn't show.

"You've got to start somewhere," he said.

Loving the game, learning from the game

After graduating Yale University in 1966, Fred Smith served as an officer in the U.S. Marine Corps until 1970. The mindset never entirely left him.

Arthur says his dad was always a huge football fan, adding, "He didn't make us play, but he believed the discipline and life lessons in football made you tougher."

Just 36 years old, Arthur Smith will be one of the youngest OCs in the NFL. Titans head coach Mike Vrabel believes promoting Smith will help the Titans maintain an offensive cohesiveness. (Courtesy of Tennessee Titans)

In 1995, the lone year of the Memphis Mad Dogs' existence, Arthur was around the team a lot, around Rodgers enough that today he still calls him a "big influence."

Steve Ehrhart, who was general manager of the Mad Dogs and now serves as executive director of the AutoZone Liberty Bowl, remembers seeing Arthur working with younger brother Cannon, who would go on to play quarterback and safety at the University of Memphis.

"Arthur just has this wonderful way of guiding and leading," Ehrhart said. "I can remember thinking, 'He's going to be a coach.'"

Rodgers called young Arthur a "football aficionado" and older brother Richard Smith, who is an executive with FedEx, said the signs of Arthur's future success were evident early.

"He's got a tremendous work ethic. He has since he was a little kid," Richard said. "He's going to be another really bright, talented young coach moving up into those NFL play-calling ranks, which we saw most recently with Sean McVay of the Rams (who is 33). My brother's 36, so he enters that group of young play-callers.

"He's innovative, he's smart, he's strategic, he's hard-working, he's a player's coach. I'm thrilled, and not just because he's my brother."

Titans believe he's right fit at right time

Arthur Smith jumped into coaching after playing offensive line at North Carolina. One year as a grad assistant for the Tar Heels, then two years working defensive quality control for the Redskins, a stint at Ole Miss as defensive intern and administrative assistant, and on to the Titans in 2011.

Hired by head coach Mike Munchak, Smith stayed on under Ken Whisenhunt, and again when Whisenhunt was fired and then tight-ends coach Mike Mularkey was promoted to head coach. Mike Vrabel just finished his first season as head coach and it was his call to entrust the offense to Smith.

The modern NFL is first and foremost a quarterback's league, so the new OC had to be someone Vrabel believed would click with Mariota. Smith and the Titans' young QB, a player some believe still has real star potential, already have a good relationship.

ARTHUR SMITH

“It’s what’s best for Marcus and for a lot of guys,” Vrabel told reporters covering last month’s Senior Bowl. “The foundation (of the offense) is going to be the same. There’s going to be some things that we want to do differently.”

Vrabel envisions a smooth transition in part because terminology won’t change. But there is work to do. The Titans went 9-7 last season, just missing the playoffs, and ranked 25th in total offense – 7th in rushing and 29th in passing.

Running back Derrick Henry ran for 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns and he recently gave his personal thumbs-up to the Smith promotion.

“He has that physical mindset, which I love,” Henry said.

Smith, likewise, sees Henry as a 6-foot-3, 247-pound asset.

“He’s a home run hitter,” Smith said. “Derrick Henry’s going to be a big part of the offense.”

Opportunity earned, not guaranteed

So, Arthur Smith is getting his big chance. Call plays in the NFL at a time when nothing is off the table. If you can imagine it, you can try it, and maybe score with it.

For most of the season, the Rams and Kansas City Chiefs, fueled by league MVP quarterback Patrick Mahomes, made the numbers on stadium scoreboards dance. But as the season wore on, balance was somewhat restored.

“Kansas City and Los Angeles played wide open,” Smith said. “Early in the season, it felt like you were watching the Big 12. But as season gets later, you get a couple of injuries, and people dive so deep into film, they get an idea what you’re doing.”

The New England Patriots dived deep enough to beat the Rams 13-3 in the Super Bowl.

“You’ve got two weeks and arguably the greatest coach in Bill Belichick,” said Smith.

He may be a rookie play-caller, but Smith is under no illusions. A flashy offense that does not contribute to the bottom line might create some buzz, but won’t do anything for the greater mission or the longevity of the offensive coordinator.

“If you can look aesthetically pleasing, people like that in the short-term,” he said. “But at the end of the day, we have to win games, and it will always come down to that.”

To be sure, the NFL is not in the habit of handing out favors.

It’s something that Pepper Rodgers, who coached at Kansas, UCLA and Georgia Tech, and in the USFL with the Memphis Showboats before his time with the Mad Dogs and as a Redskins executive, knows well.

“They don’t give you stuff in coaching because your dad is a special man,” Rodgers said. “It doesn’t work that way.”

“Arthur’s gotten everything on his own and he wouldn’t want it any other way. Neither would Fred.”

ARTHUR SMITH

'I JUST WANT TO BE JUDGED BY THE JOB I DO': TITANS OC ARTHUR SMITH OPENS UP ABOUT HIS FEDEX FAMILY, ROAD TO THE NEW ROLE

BY TRAVIS HANEY
THE ATHLETIC
JUNE 10, 2019

After just a few minutes of chatting, Arthur Smith wants to make something clear: The new Tennessee Titans offensive coordinator does not want a story written about him.

He wants to be helpful to reporters in doing their jobs — and he understands the coordinator role comes with added responsibilities — but, no, this is not something he'd choose to do of his own volition.

"I hope you guys (media) never take offense to it," Smith said last month, sitting at a conference table inside his office at Saint Thomas Sports Park. "Some of these coaches, there's a story about them every day or a rumor about them going here or doing this. I cringe when I see some of that. I don't think it comes off well for some people.

"Like, I just want to do a really good job and be judged by the job that I do."

Smith started with the Titans in 2011 as a defensive quality control assistant — an intern position, essentially. He survived three coaching changes to eventually find himself a year ago on Mike Vrabel's staff. Vrabel retained him as the team's tight ends coach.

When Matt LaFleur left the offensive coordinator position in early January to become Green Bay's head coach, Vrabel felt confident in promoting Smith to the play-calling role.

Smith, 37, has expressed interest in one day becoming an NFL head coach. But that doesn't mean he's comfortable with the corresponding spotlight that even a coordinator receives.

"Some of these guys, it's comical," Smith said. "They're so worried about their brand or whatever. They're so worried about trying to be a head coach that they're bad at the job they're hired to do. I could give a crap about that."

And that, in essence, defines the center of Smith's ethos. It's one he says he's adopted from his father, FedEx founder and CEO Fred Smith.

On a recent podcast with Titans left tackle Taylor Lewan, Arthur Smith said his dad — whose net worth was estimated in 2017 at $5.4 billion — has worn the same style of plain, gray suit for decades. He said Fred Smith drives a Ford Explorer.

That's the same relatively modest vehicle that tight end Delanie Walker believes Arthur Smith drives. Smith has worked with Walker and Tennessee's tight ends in some capacity since 2013 — which was also the year Walker arrived.

"I was thrown off a little bit," Walker said of the first time he heard about the link between his coach and FedEx. "I was shocked that he was working as an assistant coach. I was like, 'Yo, you're lying. Have you seen that dude?' He drives a Ford Explorer — an old one, too.

"He doesn't talk about that. He doesn't seem concerned about that. He says, 'Oh, that ain't my money. That's my pop's money.' To see what he's done and the hard work he's put in, you can't even tell. You wouldn't have any idea."

Added Titans GM Jon Robinson: "That's Arthur. He could probably very easily be sipping a mai tai in Maui right now. But he loves ball. He coaches his tail off. I'm proud he's on this staff, really proud he's on this staff."

Fairly regularly, Walker will retweet an account called "Billionaire Mindset" that shares a somewhat canned, straight-talk version of entrepreneurial wisdom.

Billionaire Mindset

@IntThings

Truth is debit card

Pay first enjoy later.

Lie is a credit card

Enjoy first and pay later #Deep

Well, his longtime position coach and now coordinator, in fact, has a "billionaire mindset." Or at least he's been privy to it. It's an irony that makes Walker laugh when he's asked about it.

"That's real talk right there," Walker said, continuing to laugh.

But you learn, at least in Smith's case, that deflecting from the family's fame and money is how he has gotten where he is. That's the true "billionaire mindset" for the Smith family.

He'd rather be an anonymous Smith. He'd rather work.

Hal Hunter was Smith's offensive line coach the majority of his time at the University of North Carolina.

"Of all the guys I've coached, he is in the top five in terms of competitiveness and toughness," said Hunter, now the offensive line coach for the New York Giants. "And that includes guys I've coached in the NFL, All-Pro-level players. He practiced and played at such a high tempo. He played nasty. When he got on the field, it was a totally different level from him."

After a year as a grad assistant at UNC and then a couple of seasons with the Redskins, Smith came with Washington assistant Jerry Gray to Nashville. Dave McGinnis was Tennessee's defensive line coach when Smith joined the staff in 2011.

"He's the most egoless dude I've ever been around. In this business? That doesn't happen," said

ARTHUR SMITH

McGinnis, now the Titans Radio Network analyst. “There was no job that was too menial or time-consuming that he wouldn’t take on. Everything that he was ever asked to do, when I was here with him — he was to the nuts-and-bolts good. To the nth degree, he would do it.”

Smith’s father and family probably would have offered similar sentiments and anecdotes, but they proved reluctant to talk for the story because they didn’t want the focus to be taken away from Arthur’s accomplishments.

Months of requests through FedEx to speak with Fred Smith, or even just have questions answered via email, went unfulfilled. Each time, the FedEx PR team was polite and prompt with its replies. There were continued promises to help. It became clear, however, that the head man didn’t want to distract from his son’s story, even though Arthur is this way because of Fred and the rest of the Smiths.

Humility runs in the family, it seems.

“I’ve never been impressed with myself. That’s just the way I was raised,” Arthur Smith told me just after his introductory news conference in January. “There’s a lot of preconceived notions about a lot of people. I guess I’m thankful to my parents that they instilled some good lessons in me.”

In a 45-minute conversation in May, Smith provided a great deal of insight into his path to football and this new role with the Titans.

(Some of the responses have been edited for brevity and clarity.)

I’m sure that this has happened quite a bit in your life, especially as an adult and working around an NFL team, but is it a compliment to you when people say, ‘Oh, I would have never known ...’ when it comes to your family and the FedEx business?

Yeah, I take it as a compliment. It’s just how we were raised. We didn’t know any differently. I remember one time I agreed to do one of these stories. Maybe it was the Durham paper or Raleigh paper. The guy wrote the story “just one of the guys.” I mean, what did he think? That I was going to get dropped off wearing an ascot?

That’s just how we were raised. My mom’s from a big Catholic family. My dad’s essentially an only child and he was an old Marine. He didn’t want us growing up to be any of that. Whatever visions people have, they stereotype you. That’s why I’ve always been affected by that. I don’t put labels on people, either. For me, it’s never “you’re from here or you did this, so you must be this kind of guy.” I’ve always been very anti that.

I think that’s always helped me here (with the Titans) because I don’t judge guys who come in from different walks of life. You prove who you are first instead of saying, “Oh, I know exactly who that guy is.” Some people look at a résumé and think, “Oh, I know exactly what that guy is like.” You could be so far from it.

But, yeah, I take it as a compliment now. I didn’t know any different, you know? It’s more of a credit to my parents than it is me.

What was it like to be part of such a big family? (Smith is one of 10 children; he’s the fourth-youngest of the 10). Does that apply at all to a life in coaching?

Awesome. I feel like I know tons of people in Memphis because we were always the house where, for better or worse, everybody would come over. My mom would always get everybody food or entertain everyone. It was like a clubhouse. I was always around a ton of people. It was like living in chaos. It was awesome. Maybe that’s why this job, it doesn’t bother me when there’s a lot of things going on.

You’ve landed in coaching. I know your sister works in Hollywood. Were you all encouraged to take whatever path you wanted and not necessarily enter into business — or the family business?

He always encouraged us to go after your goals and find something you love to do. Maybe then you wouldn’t have to feel like it’s work.

Is it fair to say you’ve been driven by the idea of carving your own path, independent of your dad or your family’s success?

That’s why I like this profession. Hopefully, you ultimately get judged on what you do. You’re keeping score. That’s probably why I’ve always been attracted to athletics. It doesn’t matter where you’re from because you’re going to keep score.

Some people have it harder than others; don’t get me wrong. Maybe you’re from a small town or you played eight-man or seven-man football, and it was hard to get recruited. At the end of the day, when that game starts, it doesn’t matter where you’re from. They’re going to keep score and you’re going to be judged. I want that.

It definitely has motivated me quite a bit. I don’t want to say it’s proving people wrong, but you’re proving yourself through the competition of it. “Here I am. Let’s go. You give me your best shot, and I’ll give you mine.”

How did you start on a path toward sports and coaching?

Well, I fell into sports because it was probably something that gave me an identity. I started playing (football) when I was 9. We didn’t have it at the school; I was at a small Catholic school in Memphis. I wound up playing out in the county league. The county league in Memphis — it’s still going on, the Shelby Youth Sports.

You want to talk about an eclectic group. It was every walk of life in Memphis, playing in this county league. Looking back on it, there were some real beauties of coaches there. Out in the country, you’ve got everything. I made some awesome friends playing football. I became obsessed with it. When you're little, you try to find something you're good at. That's what I found. I just kind of stuck with it from there.

I believe you had a couple of brothers who played football? And your dad played, too, right? So it had kind of been thematic for the family?

Absolutely. He didn't have a dad growing up. His dad passed when he was 4, so he didn't have a dad. My grandmother remarried, but his high school coach had a huge impact on him. He thought it was a great game. He didn't push us toward it, but he definitely encouraged us if we wanted to play. It had such an impact on him.

When I spoke to Hal Hunter, your college offensive line coach, he talked about you dealing with a serious foot injury at UNC. He said you were almost forced to quit football. What happened?

I was determined I wasn't going to let it stop me. Going into my redshirt freshman year, I'd had a good camp. I was all fired up. Because of injuries, I wound up starting Week 1, and we got our butts kicked by Miami of Ohio. It was Ben Roethlisberger. We took a lot of heat for that (loss), because no one knew who he was at the time.

We came back the next week and played Syracuse. I get to make the start. I'm so geeked up that I jump offside on the first play of the game. It was a national TV game, an ESPN game, in the Carrier Dome. I mean, I was so geeked up. I remember some of the older guys in warmups telling me to calm down.

I may have given up a quarterback hit early, too. I finally settled down. We were rotating in, and I just didn't play very well. Come back, and I got pneumonia the next day. I don't know how. I missed a couple of practices. I came back too early and then something happened with my foot in practice. They tape me up, do an X-ray and say it's a mid-foot sprain. They tape it up.

During warmups — and I can't remember who we were playing, maybe Georgia Tech — Hal looks at me. I couldn't stop on my foot. I'd been practicing and was trying to play. He said, "You don't look right. I can't put you in the game." I had no power in my foot.

That doesn't sound like a sprained foot.

I went and got an MRI, finally, and realized I had a stress fracture in my foot. In hindsight, I should have had the surgery done right there. I didn't. I was a young guy and thought it'd just be 6-8 weeks and a boot. But it didn't heal. I came back from winter workouts. It didn't feel right. Did another MRI. The stress fracture had grown. They do the surgery there at (UNC). ... It was a pretty big surgery, but it just didn't feel right when I came back.

I'm sure that was frustrating. Were you close to quitting football at that point?

I mean, I'm sure they kicked around whether I was going to have to take a medical hardship.

The doctors felt like I was done at Carolina, but I finally went down to Robert Anderson in Charlotte. I'd gone to all these other doctors. Then Anderson comes in there, all calm, and says, "Oh, we'll fix you. You'll be fine." I thought, "OK, well, this is the first guy who's said that."

He just told me the screws were pressing down and causing inflammation. He fixes it. Six weeks later, I'm good to go. Never had a problem with it since.

Are there still screws in your foot?

Oh, yeah. I got it checked out two years ago. It's never bothered me since.

Sounds like battling through that ate up a lot of your time at UNC?

It was my sophomore year, and then I missed all of 2003. It was a long process to come back. By the time I did come back, they'd recruited a class and this and that. You go back to the bottom of the depth chart. They were probably skeptical, that I wouldn't be back.

That probably changed my perspective more than anything; it changed my perspective on the entire game. It had all been taken away from me, and I felt like I had a new chance at this thing. All that stuck in my mind was that Syracuse game. It kept eating at me and eating at me. I played like shit. I thought, 'Man, if I never play again, that would be an awful way to go out.' That motivated me for all those years, to come back.

Thankfully, Hal and those coaches didn't give up on me; a lot of coaches would have. They would have been like, "Hey, see you later" and take your scholarship and send you on down the road. You see that a ton in college football.

Was it gratifying to come back and go out the way that you did?

Very. Absolutely. I give Hal Hunter and John Bunting — I'm glad they stuck with me. I came back in that '04 season. I broke my hand and was just like, "No, you've got to tape this up." If it wasn't a wheel, I was going to play. I just kept going and kept going and worked my way back in there.

(Smith started a few games his final season with the Tar Heels. Hunter on Smith's return: "He was so respected by the locker room. They knew what he'd done, the effort he'd made to get healthy and play. I honestly think they were more excited to see him play than anything about themselves. They were so happy he got to play.")

Hunter told me that he remembered the Monday after your last game, he walked in his office and your dad was sitting there. He said he wanted to thank him for how he coached you, not treating you any differently.

He told me that story, too. I'm not sure. My dad always tried to stay away from any of the athletics, just because he didn't want to be the overbearing sports dad or whatever. He didn't want to do that.

Did you immediately want to get into coaching after graduation?

I was finishing up at the University of North Carolina. I wasn't really sure what I wanted to do. I almost took an internship in Hong Kong. I called a place there, trying to figure it out.

I knew I wasn't going to play in the pros. I'd talked to my head coach, John Bunting, about coaching. We'd had those conversations. He called me in February (2006) and said, "What are you doing?" I told him I had this job lined up, these interviews lined up, blah, blah, blah. He told me they had a spot in one of the GA roles. They'd had someone leave.

I took that job and I was so fired up. I was like, "Holy hell, here I am." I was getting a chance to do it. And then it was a miserable year. I think we got fired with like four games to go.

(Smith said he was working with the offensive line for coordinator Frank Cignetti, who now, coincidentally, is LaFleur's quarterbacks coach in Green Bay.)

I think UNC had won a bidding war with Ole Miss for Frank Cignetti, who was at Fresno. So, Frank comes across the country and he implements a new offense. This was his West Coast version. He was good buddies with Mike McCarthy. We ended up going through spring ball. They'd run a bunch of two-back stuff at Fresno, lead and power or bob or whatever they were calling it at the time.

He decided we were going to go full Alex Gibbs, because that's what they were doing in Green Bay. We changed after spring ball, to all this outside zone stuff. It was an ugly transition. We weren't very good. We lost the opener and it just didn't go well. We got blown out on Thursday night against Virginia and fired with like four games to go. It was just miserable, behind the scenes.

So that was your introduction to coaching, huh?

Yeah, I was like, "If this is coaching, this sucks." (Cignetti) was an early-morning guy and the head coach was a late-night guy. You're just trying to find your way. After that, I was like, "If this is coaching, I don't wanna do this." It was just bad.

Did you think that about just college coaching? Or any coaching?

Oh, any coaching. I thought, "If this is what the profession is, this is terrible."

It definitely can be. What did you do next?

So, I was able to go to Washington as a scouting intern, doing all the scouting stuff. I loved it. I thought it was the best job in the world. You go pick up guys from the airport. You go to the combine. You're a runner, doing the (draft) board and all that stuff. I thought it was awesome.

I went in there on Memorial Day (2007), and (Washington coach) Joe Gibbs says he wants to go talk to me. I'm thinking, "All right, he's going to give me the 'nice job with the draft,' blah, blah. I was leaving to go to Charlotte for the weekend and he tells me that he had to make a change on the defensive staff.

He said, "You know how to break games down?" I told him I did. "All right, we'll teach you the defensive stuff. Our linebackers coach, Kirk Olivadotti, he's done the job a long time. He'll help you out breaking the games down and running the scout team."

(Olivadotti is also on LaFleur's Green Bay staff now.)

I swear to you, I wanted to say no so bad. But I was looking at Joe Gibbs and just said, "Yes, sir." I walked out of there and thought, "What did I just commit myself to?"

Hard guy to say no to.

The whole summer, I was sweating bullets. I was breaking games down and trying to learn all that stuff. That staff was awesome. (Defensive coordinator) Gregg Williams was awesome to work for. Jerry Gray was on that staff ... Greg Blache, Steve Jackson, Kirk Olivadotti.

It was just such a different experience, a 180 from that experience in North Carolina. I thought then, "If this is what coaching is, then this is what I want to do."

What were the other kinds of jobs you considered before the UNC GA job?

I had kicked around ideas, just like anyone when you're done with college. I thought it'd be cool to go to Hong Kong. It was going to be an internship in the financial sector. I said, "All right, do I want to get into investment banking?" I thought that'd be pretty cool. I used a connection there.

The more I thought about it, it wasn't really what I wanted to do. I had that conversation with John Bunting, it was about February; it'd been about two months (since the season). I came back kind of quick.

But I'd kicked around a thousand ideas. I can't sit here and tell you I wanted to be this or that. I obviously ended up being a coach.

You mentioned to me after your introductory presser that you'd wanted to be a coach since you were a kid, since you were like 9 or 10. So that was always there for you, in your mind?

It was always there. I just thought since I'd just finished playing that maybe I'd do something different for a different life experience. I knew at some point I wanted to get back into coaching; it just happened quicker than I expected.

So you then almost gave up on coaching after the UNC experience?

ARTHUR SMITH

Oh, yeah. I just thought scouting might have been better. I thought it may have a little bit more stability than coaching.

Yeah, right. On that subject, you started on Mike Munchak's Titans staff, then Ken Whisenhunt's, then Mike Mularkey's and now Vrabel's. What's the secret to hanging on through coaching changes?

I mean, a lot of it's luck. It's the jobs you're in. If you're a quarterback coach or a coordinator, usually those guys don't get held over. If you're (quality control guy) or an assistant (position coach), you've got a much better shot.

Last year, when Vrabel took over, I'd been in the tight end role. I felt like I had a shot. Certain spots, you almost know those guys don't have a shot. Before that, I'd been in the QC role. Sometimes, (a new head coach) might have a guy. But sometimes if you're under contract, honestly, in the big picture, it's as simple as, "This guy's pretty competent, does a good job, keeps his head down. Do we really want to fire this guy and pay him his money and bring someone else in for 'this' amount of dollars?" I'm not sure that's what happened, but that helps guys a lot, too.

Still, it's unique to be able to climb to the OC role in the same organization and despite those changes.

I've been really fortunate. It's wild how it's worked out, when you step back and take a look at it. When I took this job in 2011, you always kind of look at it, like, "OK, awesome. Get a shot to be back in the NFL. Nashville's great," all that stuff. In your mind, though, you don't think you're going to be here that long. You hope you do a good job and someone gets a job somewhere and can move up, or whatever your goals are.

Stuff kept happening. Some of it was out of my control, when you have a transition. The difference from college, you can't leave if you're under contract unless they fire you or give you permission. That's worked in my favor, too.

That worked in my favor during the Whiz transition. I wasn't sure what was going to happen. He kind of put us in limbo. We had a conversation, me and a guy named John Gannon, who's now the secondary coach in Indy. Both of us were in those spots. We'd shared an office and he told us, 'Hey, we may keep you. You've got a chance.'

He didn't fire us that first day. We come back from Senior Bowl. John's contract was up and he had a chance to go to Minnesota. So he weighed both. He kind of wanted to stay, but it was a better deal and so he was able to go to Minnesota. I was under contract. Whiz was like, 'Hey, we're going to hold on to you.' But I couldn't have gone if I wanted to. So it's just worked out in my favor.

The word we've heard often with this staff, and particularly with the decision to promote you, is continuity. What do you think the value of that is, especially this time of the year in the spring and summer months? An outside hire would be installing a new offense right now.

It wasn't just blowing smoke. When we come in here and go through the installs, they're very familiar with how we call formations. What mattered to me was what the players knew. Most of these guys knew this, so (this spring) when we came in here we could focus on how to get better running these individual things.

We didn't go through all this stuff where you decide what you're calling a route, like a hook or a curl. For us, it was, "Here's what we're calling it; it's what we called it last year." It's sped up their improvement cycle. The whole four weeks isn't guys breaking the huddle and wondering the language.

Is there continuity value, too, in knowing this specific franchise? (Smith estimates he's one of 10 to 12 football employees who have been with the Titans since 2011.)

Since I've been here, I've seen a lot of change in the franchise. But there's a lot of familiarity. In talking to Matt (LaFleur), that was a tough job for Matt to take. I only say that because, when you're putting in a brand-new offense and you don't know the building; you're trying to move your family; you're trying to learn everybody's name in the building.

And every building is run differently between the personnel and the coaches. That's 32 different ways, the power dynamics from one building to the next. Then you're trying to get a feel for what these guys can do. At least I've been here. I've been with Delanie going on seven years ... Marcus (Mariota), since he's gotten here. It just makes the transition a lot easier. This job would be a lot harder if I had to move to a new city and I didn't know the team. There's no doubt about that.

I imagine a lot of this time (in early spring, before OTAs and mini-camp) is spent envisioning what you want this offense to look like and be. Do you feel like there's a higher ceiling than what we saw a year ago, when the offense was ranked in the 20s in most categories?

We have high standards, but if you start worrying too much about stats and the rankings — it's like listening to criticism. Some criticism you need. You need constructive criticism. But if you start playing to always appease everybody or you're playing for (statistical) rankings, that may not be the best way to play team football.

Last year was unusual. We had a lot of random things happen, going back to the Miami game. To Matt's credit, we go and win those next two games — we knew we were going to sacrifice some numbers. We went into those games knowing there was only one way we could win those. Obviously, we called the fake punt against Houston. We made a couple of plays on that fourth-quarter drive and made it as ugly as possible. We called 43 runs.

Are you a numbers guy, generally?

There's some good analytics out there. Don't get me wrong. The way the NFL's covered and loud, minority voices grow on Twitter, and you see, "Well, he went run-run." Well, that was the plan. That's what we had to do those two weeks.

We couldn't throw the football, for different reasons. Blaine (Gabbert) gets knocked out of the Jacksonville game, Marcus comes in there and he can't throw the ball down the field. So you're going to have to call the run. It wasn't because we disregarded some obvious tendencies. Yeah, pretty much everybody in the stadium knew we were going to run most of the time in Jacksonville.

(The Titans won 9-6 in Week 3 to get to 2-1 despite a rash of injuries.)

That game was ugly as hell. It wasn't aesthetically pleasing to the fans, but we did what we had to do, which ultimately set us up at the end of the year. The ones you want to have back are like the Buffalo game, where we turned it over a couple of times on the road. Missed some huge opportunities in that game. That game, to me, is, for sure, we deserve all the criticism in the world for that one.

To defend Matt a little bit, those two games (Houston and Jacksonville) can skew some of the end-of-year statistics. As the year went on, we had a run on injuries — we had tight end after tight end having to play. I don't think we — rarely did we ever go into the game with the same starting lineup at O-line. Blaine came in a decent number of times to finish games, started a couple. So, it was a very interesting year.

I say that in defense to Matt. You're right. I've seen some of the stuff; we were ranked in the high 20s. Now we've got this personnel and we should be a lot better.

The whole focus, what it boils down to, is whether we can get better as an offense. We'll see where those numbers are by the end of the year, but ultimately what matters is whether we can win enough games to win the division and get in the playoffs.

I remember Vrabel saying that you all had a conversation when he got here and you expressed your career goals to him. What do you remember about that meeting?

I remember it very well. I was down in Mobile at the Senior Bowl. (Special teams coach) Craig Aukerman and I drove down there to go interview with him. He asked me that question. I just answered him as honestly as possible.

He said, "What are your goals?" I told him I hoped to one day be a head coach. But I told him, "To get there, I've got to be a really good tight end coach and a really good offensive coach and play-caller." But long-term, being a head coach, that would be the goal.

Having said that, and I still feel the same way, I've got to do a damn good job at this job. I could give a crap about all the other stuff that comes along with it.

TODD DOWNING

TITANS TIGHT ENDS COACH TODD DOWNING HELPING FIGHT FOR EQUALITY AS HIS TIGHT ENDS FIGHT FOR TOUCHDOWNS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 22, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans tight ends coach Todd Downing spends his time making his players better to help the team.

With their success, he wants to help make the world a better place in the process.

Downing, who joined the Titans in 2019 after 18 years of previous NFL coaching experience, started an initiative to raise money for 'The 100 Black Men of Middle Tennessee, Inc.', a non-profit organization providing resources to further the academic and social development of black male students in Nashville and surrounding Middle Tennessee.

With each touchdown by a Titans tight end this season, his family is donating $1,000 to help with the pursuit of equality.

The campaign is off to a good start.

"That really came out of some of the great conversations that I've been fortunate enough to have with my players in the tight end room, which have been steered by coach (Mike) Vrabel and (OC Arthur) Smith, just creating an environment where we can have an open dialogue and talk with one another," Downing said on Tuesday. "It was important to us to do something together, to show unity, to be able celebrate our on-the-field performance by incorporating a cause that we knew would help with some of the issues that our society has going on today."

Downing credits his wife, Julie, for doing a lot of research to find a non-profit organization that met the criteria on a checklist important to his players.

"The 100" strives to help black males in areas such as literacy, academic achievement, self-esteem and positive lifestyle choices.

Downing's mission is to "nurture and enhance the growth, development and opportunities" for young black males by pledging a donation for every touchdown by a Titans tight end this season.

"Our family wanted to kick it off by saying: 'We stand with you, and we support you,'" Downing said. "If those issue are important to you, they are important to us. A bunch of people have jumped behind it and it is off and running at a pretty good clip."

It's running at a pretty good clip, alright.

In two games, Titans tight ends have already score four touchdowns, led by three from tight end Jonnu Smith, with two coming in the team's win over the Jaguars. Tight end MyCole Pruitt also scored a touchdown in the opener at Denver. Tight end Anthony Firkser hasn't scored yet, but he has six catches for 50 yards in two games.

"I think I may have to revisit my son's college fund at this point," Downing said with a smile. "But we are appreciative to have everybody join in... I hope (the tight ends) score 100 touchdowns.

"We are excited to be a part of it, and I think it is a great initiative and we are fortunate to be in a place where we can support what is important to my players."

RYAN ALLEN

THREE THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT PUNTER RYAN ALLEN

BY MIKE HOGAN
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
NOVEMBER 9, 2020

Ryan Allen had big shoes to fill.

Signed by the Tennessee Titans on Saturday, Allen replaced the injured Brett Kern at punter in Sunday's 24-17 victory over the Chicago Bears. While much has changed in and around the organization over the years, Kern had been the Titans punter in 180 straight contests including regular season and playoff games dating back to Week 8 of the 2009 season. Along the way, he became one of the best at his position with three Pro Bowls appearances and a first-team All-Pro honor last season.

Thrust into the lineup on short notice, Allen relatively picked up where Kern left off. He punted eight times in the game for a total of 404 yards. He averaged 50.4 yards per kick. Of his eight punts, three of them were 55 yards or longer, including a 60-yard kick and a 65-yard kick late in the second quarter from the Titans end zone.

While it's a small sample size for Allen, Kern, by comparison, has averaged 48.3 yards per kick (fourth in the league) in eight games. His net average of 41.4 yards is tied for 12th in the league.

"A punt unit is 11 guys working together, it doesn't matter how far or high you hit it. If your gunners don't do a good job or protection doesn't do a good job, it's a play you'll end up getting nullified," Allen said. "There is definitely some stuff I want to clean up. I definitely know I can do that. It was good to be able to execute some of those when we needed them."

It's unclear how much time Kern will miss. Allen will be the Titans' punter for at least the next two games.

So, here is what you need to know about the Titans' current punter:

- He has NFL Experience: Undrafted out of Louisiana Tech in 2013, Allen began his NFL career with the New England Patriots. In six seasons with the Patriots, Allen was a part of three Super Bowl victories (2014, 2016 and 2018). In 96 games, Allen punted 409 yards and averaged 45.3 yards per kick. He was cut by New England before the 2019 season. However, his efforts with the franchise earned him a spot on New England's All-Dynasty Team, which the organization announced in October. A combination of fan voting and a panel of Patriots experts was used to determine the honorees.

Allen signed with the Falcons in November of last season. He replaced injured Matt Bosher two different times that season. In eight games, he punted 29 times and averaged 41.9 yards per punt.

With the Titans, Allen is reconnected with kicker Stephen Gostkowski, who he was teammates with from 2013-2018 in New England.

"Steve (Gostkowski) and I have logged several years together," Allen said Sunday. "I was pretty fortunate when I got the call last week, and I was pretty excited about maybe potentially being able to suit back up for a few weeks and play with (Gostkowski). Him and I are pretty close. I was pretty fortunate when I got the call. It's been fun."

- He has the second longest punt in Super Bowl history: Allen's 64-yard punt in New England's 2014 Super Bowl victory over the Seattle Seahawks was the longest in Super Bowl history – for a time. It happened with 3:24 to play in the third quarter and resulted in a touchback. Seattle was unable to score on the ensuing drive.

Los Angeles Rams punter Johnny Hekker broke the record with a 65-yard punt in Super Bowl LIII, which the Rams lost to the Patriots. It was also Allen's final game with New England.

- He was good in college too: Allen transferred from Oregon State to Louisiana Tech, and he immediately had success. He is the only punter to have won the Ray Guy Award -- the highest honor for a collegiate punter -- in back-to-back seasons (2011 and 2012). He was the second Louisiana Tech punter to win the award.

Additionally, Allen was Louisiana Tech's first unanimous First-Team All-American (2012). Allen played three seasons for Louisiana Tech (2010-2012). He played in 37 games, punting 188 times for 8,437 yards. He averaged 44.9 yards per punt and had 54 punts of 50 yards or more, including an 85-yard punt as a senior in 2012.

KHARI BLASINGAME

BLASINGAME EAGER FOR OPPORTUNITY TO 'PLAY ON SUNDAY'

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
NOVEMBER 21, 2019

NASHVILLE – Khari Blasingame knows the difference.

The newest member of the Tennessee Titans, claimed off Minnesota's practice squad last week, has been in an NFL training camp. He has played in preseason games. He even has been in an NFL locker room and involved in daily meetings and practices during the regular season.

The undrafted rookie running back out of Vanderbilt has not, however, played in a regular season game. That could change Sunday when the Titans host the Jacksonville Jaguars in the first game following their bye.

"That's big," Blasingame said. "Preseason is different than regular season. There's a lot more on the regular season. And that's everybody's dream to play on Sunday. So. I'm really excited."

When the 6-foot, 233-pounder spent time with position coach Tony Dews last week, he did more than just familiarize himself with the playbook. He said they looked ahead to the game against the Jaguars and what Blasingame might be able to do to help.

"We got some stuff in – some gameplan stuff," Blasingame said. "I'm really just trying to learn as fast as I can to see where I can get in."

As the Titans' third running back, he is an option at tailback or at fullback and offers the potential to contribute on special teams. David Fluellen, Rod Smith and Dalyn Dawkins all have filled that role at times this season. Dawkins is the only one who has touched the ball (he has two carries for two yards) and Smith is the only one of the three who has recorded a special teams tackle (he has one).

Fluellen is now on injured reserve and Smith was waived last week, a day before Tennessee signed Blasingame. Dawkins is on the practice squad.

"It's a guy that we scouted and looked at coming out of Vanderbilt," coach Mike Vrabel said. Things didn't work out the first time around (after) the draft, so we continued to monitor him, look, and try to see where he could help us. So, excited to get him some work.

"He'll play fullback. He'll play tailback. He'll play on special teams. We'll kind of see what role he carves out for himself."

The Vikings had one of the NFL's best rushing offenses led by Dalvin Cook, one of three NFL running backs who already have topped 1,000 yards rushing. He signed with them following the draft and spent the entire offseason and preseason with them. They added him to their practice squad at the start of the regular season and there he had stayed until the Titans called and offered the opportunity to be on the active roster.

With Tennessee, he joins a team that is 15 in the league in rushing offense and has two established veterans in Derrick Henry, the primary ball carrier, and Dion Lewis, a change-of-pace back who figures prominently in the passing game.

"Of course, I want to contribute on special teams. That'll be huge," Blasingame said. "And then on the offense, just finding a role, finding a lane where they need me. Fullback, tailback – whatever I can do – pass protection. I'd love to get in and do some things to help the team."

"... Minnesota, they invested a lot and helped develop me. I really had a good relationship with those coaches up there. At the end of the day, it's a great opportunity back down in Nashville with a good team fighting for a playoff spot. So, I had to come and try to get active."

ASPIRATIONS

SECOND-ROUND OF THE NFL DRAFT, IS ADJUSTING
WELL IN HIS FIRST SEASON

NASHVILLE – My new home in Tennessee really does feel like home.

Even before I was drafted by the Titans, I came to town on a pre-draft visit. I talked to coaches and other people with the team, and I got a good feel from them right out of the gate. From the start, I felt like this could be the place for me, even though I didn't know a whole lot about the Titans. I knew about Steve McNair since he's from Mississippi, but for the most part I didn't know a whole bunch about the team before then. Still, it just felt right.

So when the Titans ended up picking me, I was really happy because my new home was not far from where I grew up in Starkville, Mississippi, and where I played college ball at Ole Miss. And I knew from the start it was a blessing because my family would get to come watch me play.

Making things even better? My older sister, Reva, lives in Nashville, so that was huge for me. She's 28, several years older than me, so it was nice to have her here to help me get settled in. Really, that was huge for me. When you go to a new place, you want to be around your family and she would cook me home-cooked meals, and she just made me feel like I wasn't alone.

I was 21-years-old when I got drafted and going off to live on your own is an adjustment, different from college. Having my sister here helped, but I think me just being the way I am helped too. I am a homebody. Most 21-year-olds when they get drafted are probably in the streets, running around. But that's not who I am, and it will never be who I am. My dad, Arthur, he doesn't have to worry about me getting in trouble.

A.J. Brown with his father, Arthur, and sister, Reva (center photo) who lived in Nashville prior to the Titans selecting Brown in the 2nd Round of the 2019 NFL Draft.

I am all about football. I love the game, and I want to be great. I'm always working at it. When I take a break from the game, I like to watch movies, play video games. I am really good at shooting pool, so that's what I do when I have free time. It takes me away from the world and helps me get away. Sometimes I play some music and I shoot pool for hours.

But really, football is my life. I get really bored in the offseason. I mean really bored. Because you can work out all day, and work out a million times, but there is nothing like being in season and playing ball and doing what you love.

I was so excited to get started with the Titans. When I got drafted, I wanted to show what I was made of. I had a lot of expectations coming in, and I wanted to establish myself in training camp. Unfortunately, I couldn't because I suffered an injury, so I had to sit down and wait, and be patient. I knew when I came back I'd have to put myself in a position to be ready, so I got the mental part of the game down, and I leaned on my teammates.

My veteran teammates, they helped me out a lot. I wouldn't be where I am today without those guys. They helped me out with the plays and everything, kind of like big brothers.

When I finally got healthy and more comfortable, I started to feel like myself and I started playing ball and it was good to make some plays and good to start helping the team.

Ten games into my first NFL season, I think it's gone OK as far as my expectations go. Of course, there are some plays I would like to have back, but I feel like I've gotten better and the second half of the season I want to take it to another level.

A.J. Brown celebrates one of two TDs with teammates during the Titans-Falcons Week 4 game in Atlanta.

Along the way I feel like I've also grown up a lot, too, and I've seen the NFL is a serious business. All of us as players, we support one another and are in this together and we want to win. I've already seen players come and go, and I've seen changes.

Take quarterback Marcus Mariota, for instance. I've only been around him six months and I've grown to respect that guy so much. When we played the Broncos in Denver back in October and he was replaced in the lineup, I admit that was very hard for me. I got really emotional during the game, in fact. I think that's why I got a pass interference penalty called on me, because I was so frustrated. I ended up throwing the guy from the Broncos to the ground and I got a penalty. I admit, I was crying during the play. And after the game, I was still emotional because me spending time with Marcus and really getting to know him, he became a brother to me. To see something like that happen to a great person, it was tough to deal with. I always tell him he's such a pro in the way he handles himself, and I want to be like that myself.

But I understand why decisions have to be made, and as a team and as a player you have to do your job and focus on yourself and how you can do better. I have so much respect for Ryan Tannehill, too, and how he plays the game and he's done great. And I am going to do everything I can to be the best player I can be to help him, and to help the team.

I know I'm still just a rookie, and I know right now I am laying the groundwork for my career and I want to keep getting better and better. This is just the beginning.

I want my teammates to see me work, and I want them to know how important football is to me. I feel like I can be the best receiver in this league, I really do, and that's what I am striving for – to be the very best. And I really believe I can get there.

I mentioned my home earlier, and I know being where I am today, I have a great opportunity in the NFL. I mentioned my dad earlier, too, and he's the one who instilled in me to work hard at a young age. He's retired now, but he worked for the electric company and I remember his work ethic. He was a good athlete growing up. His sport was baseball, and he was really good at it. And he always pushed me to be the best I can be. I still remember him telling me at a very young age: If you are not trying to be the best, then you need to find something else to do. So I have to give my dad credit for giving me that competitive edge and pushing me, and now it is up to me.

I want to be successful in Tennessee. I want to prove the Titans made a smart move by picking me. I am trying to retire here. I know it is going to take a lot of work to reach my goals and to have the success I want to have, but without a doubt I am willing to work to make it happen. I am just getting started.

TITANS ROOKIE A.J. BROWN HAS ADMIRER IN FELLOW MISSISSIPPIAN JERRY RICE

BY TURRON DAVENPORT

(Editor's note: This story originally published on May 13, 2019.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- When Mississippi native A.J. Brown flew to the Bay Area before the draft, he didn't just meet with San Francisco 49ers brass -- he got to meet a Hall of Famer who grew up not far from Brown's hometown of Starkville.

Jerry Rice, the wide receiver who redefined the position as a perennial MVP candidate in the 1980s and '90s, is from Crawford, Mississippi. That's just a 30-minute drive from Starkville, where Brown -- the wide receiver the Tennessee Titans selected at No. 51 in the second round -- was a high school star.

Rookie WR A.J. Brown took advantage of a predraft trip to the Bay Area to meet Hall of Famer Jerry Rice. Courtesy of A.J. Brown

Brown often mentions current pro receivers such as Julio Jones as players he modeled his game after, but he has no hesitation pointing out that Rice is the greatest of all time.

"I watched Jerry Rice. I go on YouTube and watch his routes. Even though he played back then, he still offers things that I can put in my toolbox," Brown said after the Titans' second rookie minicamp practice. "We're from the same area, Oktibbeha County. We connected. That's the GOAT. My people got in touch with him, and he was down from there."

Rice took Brown on the infamous horse trail at Edgewood Park and Natural Preserve in Redwood City. The trail is known as one of Rice's primary training grounds.

"When I got drafted by San Francisco, I thought about Mississippi," Rice said during the run via a video on NFL.com. "I said if I have success in the NFL, that will open the door for so many other guys. Look at your opportunity right now. You're getting ready to live your dream."

In the video, Rice emphasized the endurance benefits he reaped from running the hill, crediting it for his ability to excel in the fourth quarter and function at his best despite being tired during his career.

If getting to work out with the greatest wide receiver ever wasn't enough, Brown even got the opportunity to wear Rice's Hall of Fame ring and his three Super Bowl rings.

Rice is proud to see another wideout make it to the NFL from the 662 area code.

"He's from my hometown and represents it the way I did," Rice said of Brown. "This kid has an amazing work ethic. I am so glad I got to spend time with him and can't wait to watch him do work," Rice said on Instagram after running the hill with Brown.

BROWN REDEFINES WHAT'S POSSIBLE FOR TITANS ROOKIE RECEIVERS

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
DECEMBER 9, 2019

With one catch, A.J. Brown raised two standards for Tennessee Titans rookie wide receivers.

The second-round pick out of Ole Miss became the most productive first-year receiver of the Titans era (1999-present) in terms of yards and touchdowns when he went 91 yards for a score in the second quarter Sunday against the Oakland Raiders.

With that one play, he blew past Kenny Britt, who had 701 receiving yards in his rookie season, and broke a tie with Kendall Wright, Dorial Green-Beckham, Justin Hunter and Tyrone Calico, all of who had four touchdown catches in their first NFL campaigns. It was a play-action pass on first down, and Brown caught the ball right at midfield, broke one tackle, outran another defender to the end zone and gave the Titans their first lead en route to a 42-21 victory.

"It was a play we talked about this week and then made an adjustment late in the week," quarterback Ryan Tannehill said of what also was the longest completion of his career. "To go out and execute it and have A.J. not only catch it but to finish it off was huge."

With three games still to play this season, Brown has 39 catches for 779 yards and six touchdowns after he caught five passes for 153 yards and two touchdowns against the Raiders. It was his third 100-yard receiving effort of the season and his second in the last three weeks.

"A.J. has shown time and time again that he's dangerous with the ball in his hands," Tannehill said. "He's big, strong and physical. ... He's come up big for us several times this season and that doesn't need to stop anytime soon. I love seeing it."

A rundown of the top Tennessee Titans rookie wide receivers, based on receiving yards in their rookie seasons:

Player | Drafted

Year | Yards | Receptions | TDs

A.J. Brown | Second round

2019 | 779 | 39 | 6

Kenny Britt | First round

2009 | 701 | 42 | 3

Kendall Wright | First round

2012 | 626 | 64 | 4

Dorial Green-Beckham | Second round

2015 | 549 | 32 | 4

Tajaé Sharpe | Fifth round

2016 | 522 | 41 | 2

Corey Davis | First round

2017 | 375 | 34 | 0

Brandon Jones | Third round

2005 | 299 | 23 | 2

Roydell Williams | Fourth round

2005 | 299 | 21 | 2

Courtney Roby | Third round

2005 | 289 | 21 | 1

By halftime, which ended in a 21-21 tie, Brown had four receptions for 141 yards and two touchdowns. He added one in the second half.

The long touchdown catch, though, was all he need to separate him from his current teammates on this day. It was all he needed to lead the team in receiving yards for the third straight game and the sixth time this season. Nine other Titans players caught at least one pass at Oakland but none finished with more than 47 receiving yards.

"He's got great play strength," coach Mike Vrabel said. "He plays strong through the catch. Ryan gave him a great ball he went up and got on the long one. ... There's going to be contested catches in this league. There's tight coverage. So, we'll just keep working."

“WHY NOT ME?”: TITANS WR A.J. BROWN HAS FOUND WAYS TO MAKE HIMSELF EVEN BETTER IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 10, 2020

NASHVILLE – A.J. Brown isn't about making preseason predictions.

The Titans receiver isn't about to sell himself short either.

When someone asks Brown if he can lead the NFL in receiving yards and touchdowns this fall, his answer is simple: "Why not me?"

"That's my approach with anything," Brown said. "Other guys do it, so, "Why not?"

Brown was a playmaker for the Titans in 2019, when he led all rookies with 1,051 receiving yards while also scoring eight touchdowns among his 52 catches.

Brown became the first rookie since Hall of Famer Randy Moss (1998) to have a minimum of 50 catches, 1,000 receiving yards and five touchdowns while averaging 17-plus yards per catch, plus four touchdown catches of 50-plus yards. He was the only NFL rookie since 1970 with 1,000-plus receiving yards and an average of 20-plus yards per reception, and he led the NFL with 605 receiving yards over his final six games of the regular season.

Brown said he's watched a lot of film on himself this offseason, and he's found ways to improve. He knows one challenge he'll face this year is everyone will be gunning for him.

"Julio Jones, Michael Thomas – everybody knows they're coming, but you still have to go out and play," Brown said of some of the NFL's best receivers. "That's my approach. Regardless of the film, whatever I did last year, nobody cares about that. You still have to come out and play every week, and that is what I learned last year, week in and week out."

Brown has also worked this offseason to get into the best shape of his playing career.

While watching film this offseason, he noticed he looked fatigued in the fourth quarter of games during his rookie season, and thinks he perhaps gave some things away as a result because of poor technique and giving hints to DBs about his routes.

"(I have to) make sure my pad level is the same all the way through the whole route," Brown said. "Just not putting on your turn signal before you turn."

"I have to be able to go through the entire game and make my routes look the same," Brown added. "I have to be well-conditioned, and that's what we preach with the Titans. It's a key thing with Coach (Mike) Vrabel. ... Looking back at some film, I left some plays out there because I was a little tired. I want to be all-around complete."

Brown, who finished third in the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year category a year ago, said he feels like a different player heading into training camp compared to last year, when he spent a good part of the offseason getting ready for the NFL Draft.

Earlier this offseason, Brown said part of his plan includes catching 1,000 footballs a day.

"I am definitely in a better place (physically), and I'm in a better shape mentally as well," Brown said. "Last year I was flying and going places, and I never could really sit still and put in the work."

"So I had time (this offseason) to get my feet up under me, and I really put in the work to get myself in the best shape possible coming into camp. It is only going to get tougher – we are going to Denver (in Week One), and the air is really thin up there."

During a video conference call on Monday, Brown said he's also following the best advice anyone has ever given him as a pro.

It came from future Hall of Fame quarterback Tom Brady during Titans-Patriots joint practices a year ago in Nashville.

"He told me: Work on the things you know you need improvement on, so you won't have no weakness," Brown recalled. "Everybody works hard, but everybody knows what their weakness is. Work on your weakness so you have no weakness."

A.J. BROWN

TEAMS ALREADY KNEW ABOUT A.J. BROWN'S AFTER-THE-CATCH ABILITY. NOW THEY'RE LEARNING ABOUT HIS VERTICAL THREAT

ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
NOVEMBER 9, 2020

By now, A.J. Brown is known to his opponents as a menace after the catch. The Bears saw it in the first quarter of Sunday's game, when the Titans wide receiver caught a pass that went for a 38-yard gain and included 26 yards after Brown broke a tackle.

But teams also are actively learning about Brown's ability as a vertical threat. In the Titans' 24-17 win over Chicago on Sunday, the Bears learned the hard way.

In the second quarter, Brown raced down the left sideline on a go route with Chicago's Buster Skrine draped all over him. Still, Brown beat the over-the-top safety and did just enough to fend off Skrine at the end of the route to secure a contested deep ball.

Ten yards later, Brown was extending the ball over the end zone's plane for a touchdown that gave Tennessee a 10-0 lead. The catch went for a 40-yard gain.

"It's at least got to be on film that you can take a guy over the top, then they got to worry about something else," Brown said when asked how important it is to show that he has downhill running ability. "They got to worry about the catch and run ability, so a couple of things added to the arsenal is not a bad thing."

Giving defenders more to think about can only help, said Brown, whom the Titans selected out of Ole Miss in the second round of the 2019 draft.

The second-year wide receiver explained that Chicago defensive backs had jumped the route on each of the first two short passes intended for him, both of which fell incomplete.

"We had to let them know we will take them deep," Brown said. "We had to let them know so (Chicago defensive backs) could sort of back up a little bit and be a little more conservative."

So quarterback Ryan Tannehill dialed up on a deep ball for Brown on a third-and-9 on their second possession. Some miscommunication led to the ball sailing over Brown.

"We were just a little off for whatever reason," Tannehill said.

But with Bears defenders continuing to stick closely on Brown's case, he wouldn't be denied the second time Tannehill looked deep for him.

"He continues to take steps in the right direction," Tannehill said of his top target, "and we're just going to keep pushing him along that way."

Brown has earned an 86.6 grade from Pro Football Focus through the first nine weeks of the season, which is the top grade among second-year receivers. Philadelphia's Travis Fulgham and Seattle's D.K. Metcalf are right behind Brown.

And there's also this: Brown leads the NFL in 40-yard touchdowns over the past two seasons with seven. Kansas City's Mecole Hardman and Tyreek Hill are next on the list, each with six.

Brown had been doing most of his big-play damage with his after-the-catch ability. But with the tape of Sunday's deep ball, Brown is now giving teams more to think about as he emerges into one of the league's top receivers.

"My confidence is still growing," Brown said. "I like to tell myself I haven't done anything yet, never too high, never too low. I'm still working every day, always trying to improve something to my game. I'm not where I want to be, but I feel like I'm getting there."

JAYON BROWN

PROUD “UNCLE”: FORMER NFL GREAT WILLIE MCGINEST PROUD OF JAYON BROWN'S SUCCESS WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
FEBRUARY 21, 2019

NASHVILLE – Willie McGinest is able to say he knew Titans linebacker Jayon Brown way back when.

And because of it, he smiles when talking about Brown’s success.

“He has always had the mentality, and the work ethic, from youth football to high school, all the way up,” McGinest said of Brown. “He’s a guy who never gave up on himself. He always worked. He always walks around with a smile, but he will work his butt off. I’m really proud of Jayon.”

McGinest, an analyst with NFL Network, played from 1994-2005 with the Patriots before playing three more seasons with the Browns (2006-08). McGinest played in two Pro Bowls while in New England, and won three Super Bowls with the Patriots, where he was teammates with Titans coach Mike Vrabel. He’s in the New England Patriots Hall of Fame.

McGinest is also close with Brown, who just finished his second season with the Titans.

Brown said he wears No.55 because it’s the number McGinest wore during his playing days.

Like McGinest, Brown is from Long Beach, California, and he went to Long Beach Poly High School. McGinest has been close friends with Brown’s father, Jason, since they were youngsters.

“Willie has always been around my family growing up, so he’s pretty much my uncle,” Brown said. “He’s helped me out throughout my career, and even today we’ll go over film.

“He gives me tips when I need them, when I ask for them. Even when I don’t ask for them, he’ll give them to me,” Brown continued, smiling. “He’s a guy who has tried to help me throughout my career, and he’s helped me a lot.”

Brown, a fifth round draft pick from UCLA in the 2017 NFL Draft, made a big leap for the Titans in 2018.

He was second on the team with 107 tackles, and he also racked up six sacks and 18 quarterback pressures. He was one of the team’s most consistent players.”

In the team’s finale against the Colts, Brown was a one-man wrecking crew, returning an interception for a touchdown before forcing another fumble – and recovering it – a little later.

“He can be really good,” McGinest said of Brown. “He is still learning the game. They ask him to do a lot – he’s a cover guy, he can play the run, he can cover a tight end and a back if you need him to. He never has to come off the field, so he is still growing, and he is still learning. I think the sky is the limit.”

Seeing Brown excel has been fun for McGinest to watch.

Watching how he’s done it makes him even prouder.

McGinest and Brown both made their comments from Super Bowl LIII earlier this month.

“A lot of people always identify players just because of the football side of it,” McGinest said. “But this kid has a great personality. He has a great outlook on life, he’s happy, and he loves doing what he is doing. And he’ll grind - he’ll work. I think when you have special guys like that you know they are going to have a bright future, and I kind of knew that with him.

“He’s just a great kid, on and off the field.”

JAYON BROWN

LB JAYON BROWN MIGHT BE SMALL, BUT HE MORE THAN MEASURES UP FOR THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
MAY 3, 2019

NASHVILLE – Jayon Brown has made a name for himself in his first two seasons with the Titans, earning snaps and recognition along the way.

It's safe to say Brown is exceeding expectations for his work at linebacker, even if the first reaction he gets from most fans is about his size.

“When they do recognize me, the first thing I get is: ‘I thought you were bigger,’” Brown said with a smile while on the Titans Caravan this week. “They’ll say: ‘You’re kind of a slim guy.’ I’ll be like, ‘Yeah, I’m not the biggest. But I get the job done, though.’ Hey, I just laugh. I’ve been hearing that my whole life. It’s all good.”

Brown, who’s 6-foot, 226 pounds, has proven to be more than big enough in a league where small and speedy linebackers are becoming more and more common. In the NFL Draft, the Titans selected former West Virginia linebacker David Long, who’s 5-11, 227 pounds.

When Titans coach Mike Vrabel was asked about Long’s size, he brought up Brown, which is a good thing.

“The size of linebackers has really diminished over the past 10 years,” Vrabel said. “Most recently it is what is playing in college football. The more that offenses become spread out, the more that college defenses recruit athletic, quick, smaller (linebackers). We are very comfortable with where we are with Jayon Brown and his development as a linebacker. I would say that David would probably fit similar to Jayon’s size. As long as you give the guy, the player, enough tools in his tool box to play with his skillset and then try to develop some other things around it, I think that is always something that we are trying to do.”

Jim Wyatt

@jwyattsports

.@JayonBrown12 makes a new friend on the @Titans Caravan.

Brown has more than held his own with the Titans. In 2018, he was second on the team with 107 tackles, and he also racked up six sacks and 18 quarterback pressures.

He was one of the team’s most consistent players.

In the team’s finale against the Colts, Brown was a one-man wrecking crew, returning an interception for a touchdown before forcing another fumble – and recovering it – a little later.

Brown played 979 snaps in 2018, including 850 on defense (81.3 %), while also playing 129 more on special teams. He earned nearly a half-million additional dollars in addition to his regular salary as part of the NFL’s performance-based pay program, which rewards players based on playing time and salary levels.

Brown didn't hate getting the bump in pay. He was also happy about his jump in play, although he’s not too interested in talk about exceeding expectations already.

Heck, he's just two years into his career.

“I am just getting started,” Brown said. “It has only been two years of film, so to be back in Nashville again and be able to go into my third year, some guys haven’t made it this far. It is a blessing and I just want to keep improving my game and keep on contributing and help us win. But to be able to be on the field and contribute as much as I do as a late-round guy, it’s nice I guess.”

A fifth-round pick in the 2017 NFL Draft out of UCLA, Brown spent the early part of the offseason in California training with NFL players like Kenny Clark, Caleb Benenoch, Malik Jackson, Malcolm Smith, David Bakhtiari, and Lance Kendricks, in addition to Titans teammate Matt Dickerson, his former teammate at UCLA.

One of his missions is to improve his stamina, so he’ll be able to do even more.

“Just being able to just go hard and full speed every play when I am on the field,” Brown said. “It just gives me the ability to make more plays and keep longer focus.”

More than anything, Brown just wants to keep getting better.

He’s already looking forward to Year 3.

“I just want to keep getting better and improving on my skills and each and every weekend I want to help the defense,” he said. “I just want to keep doing me. Keep on doing what I do in this defense, and keep making plays and being a great teammate to my guys in the locker room.

“And hopefully we can keep winning games and this year get back in the playoffs.”

JAYON BROWN

NEW HAIRDO, BUT SAME MINDSET FOR TITANS LB JAYON BROWN: "I WANT TO BE THE BEST AT WHAT I DO"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 12, 2020

NASHVILLE – Jayon Brown has a new hairdo, courtesy of a European vacation earlier this offseason.

But his mindset with the Titans is the same.

"I hold myself to high standards," said Brown, who dyed his hair blue during a stop in Amsterdam. "I want to be the best at what I do."

A fifth-round pick in the 2017 NFL Draft, Brown is coming off another productive season as inside linebacker with the Titans.

In 2019, Brown finished with 117 tackles, seven quarterback pressures, a sack, and an interception, along with four tackles for a loss. He also picked up a fumble and returned it 47 yards for a touchdown in a win at Oakland.

In 2018, Brown racked up 107 tackles with six sacks and an interception, which he returned for a touchdown against the Colts.

In three NFL seasons, Brown has 291 tackles with 8.5 sacks, 31 QB pressures, two interceptions, two forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries, along with 12 tackles for a loss.

Aside from his European vacation in the pre-COVID-19 days, Brown said he spent most of his offseason training in Nashville, "getting faster, stronger, and working on my conditioning."

"Every year when I enter a new year, I want to improve on everything I did good on, and things I didn't do so good on, every year I want to become a more complete player for myself," Brown said. "I want to improve on everything across the board that I can improve on."

Brown, who began training camp on the team's Physically Unable to Perform list, is back on the active roster and working with his teammates.

And he's excited to be back on the field, preparing for the 2020 season.

"Any time when you step on the field with these guys, and the coaches, it just brings a normal feeling in here, and I just forget about everything that is going on in the outside world," Brown said. "It is a blessing to be able to play this game with my teammates and with these coaches, and to have football back."

As for the new hairstyle, Brown described the color as "turquoise at this point."

"It (started) off darker blue, and fades into this after a few washes," Brown said with a smile during a video conference call on Wednesday. "We'll see how long this lasts, but this is what it is right now."

TITANS CB MALCOLM BUTLER WENT FROM LONG SHOT TO BIG SHOT

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
MARCH 19, 2018

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Back in 2014, Titans cornerback Malcolm Butler didn't watch the first half of the NFL Draft.

He turned on the television the last day, but he didn't have high expectations. Not after flying under the radar at Division II West Alabama, and a less-than-stellar pro day performance.

"I was not expecting to get drafted," Butler said. "I thought there was a chance I could go last round, but I didn't really expect it."

After seeing a big wave of undrafted free agents signed by NFL clubs, Butler was still without a job. Then came a phone call from the New England Patriots, inviting him to town for a workout.

It was his shot. Most considered it a long shot.

"It was like 2-3 days after the draft and they brought in 40 guys," Butler recalled. "And I was one of the two out of 40 to make it.

"I went up there ran my 40 hard, and had a good time. I competed out there in 1-on-1s hard. I did a lot of great things the first day I was there, and that's what really put me ahead of a lot of guys and got the most attention."

Butler proved he was worth taking a chance on. The Patriots signed him as an undrafted free agent after he earned the respect of coach Bill Belichick and those around him.

"I kept excelling as the weeks went by, and as camp was going on. I was never going to give up, and I wanted to prove myself," Butler said. "I was making plays on the ball, picking off Tom Brady and picking off (Jimmy) Garoppolo, talking trash and competing on and off the field, in the classroom.

"I just needed an opportunity, and if I got that I wasn't coming back home."

The rest, as they say, is history. Butler made the team, and he played in 11 games as a rookie.

In his rookie season, he sealed New England's 28-24 Super Bowl XLIX win over Seattle in the closing seconds when he intercepted quarterback Russell Wilson's pass intended for Ricardo Lockette in the end zone. Butler undercut a slant route, picked off the pass and then managed to get to the two-yard line. It was his first career interception.

Butler started 47 of 48 for the Patriots over the past three seasons. He's recorded eight interceptions in his NFL career. He played 98 percent of the defensive snaps in the regular season in 2017, when he recorded 60 tackles and two interceptions.

Now, he's ready to help the Titans, who signed him in the first week of free agency.

"It just seems like it all went so fast," Butler said. "It seems like I was just in New England on a tryout yesterday, and it all goes so fast. I've worked so hard for this. It's been a long journey, but anything that is worth having doesn't come easy. You are going to have ups and downs."

In Tennessee, the 5-foot-11, 190-pounder will join veteran cornerback Logan Ryan, his former teammate in New England, and promising second-year cornerback Adoree' Jackson in a secondary that also includes Pro Bowl safety Kevin Byard and veteran safety Johnathan Cyprien.

Butler said he's ready to do his part.

"As long as I am here I am expecting to show what I am getting paid," Butler said. "I am going to being everything I've got. I have that undrafted mentality. I'm real aggressive, and I can't wait to get out there. I'm just ready to play ball."

MALCOLM BUTLER

LOOK WHO'S BACK: TIME AWAY MADE TITANS CB MALCOLM BUTLER APPRECIATE THE GAME EVEN MORE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 14, 2020

NASHVILLE – Forgive Malcolm Butler if he's a little extra psyched for the start of Titans camp.

Just understand he waited a little longer for this.

"I'm pretty sure all my teammates can tell just by when we went to walkthrough," Butler said with a smile on Friday. "I'm probably going a little fast, but I missed out on a whole half a season (last year) and I had to sit there and watch my team win. I'm all about winning, but I want to help win, too. I'm just excited to be back."

Butler broke his wrist in the team's November 3 game at Carolina in Week 9 and didn't play the rest of the year. He was placed on Injured Reserve on November 5 and spent the rest of the season rehabbing the injury -- and watching his teammates.

Butler traveled with the team for playoff contests, and the team's eventual trip to the AFC Championship Game in Kansas City, after wins at New England and Baltimore, inspired him even more.

And his time away made him appreciate the game even more.

"I used to be at practice like, 'Man, I'm ready for practice to be over with. It's hot out here. I'm sweating,' just the little things," Butler said. "But when I got hurt, I missed those little things. I miss not being perfect. I miss being out there making plays. So, you don't want to take anything for granted. You want to cherish each and everything. Go hard each and every play because you never know when it's your last play. It taught me a lot of things, be grateful for the good and bad. Embrace the good in the bad."

Malcolm Butler: I'm Excited to be Back

Butler ended up playing in nine games in 2019, and he finished the season with 30 tackles, two interceptions and 10 passes defended. It followed a year when he posted 56 stops and three interceptions in 2018, along with 13 passes defended.

During an offseason when players were banned from Saint Thomas Sports Park because of the coronavirus, Butler went old school with workouts.

He spent most of his offseason in Nashville, working out in his garage and getting treatments so his body would be ready for the season.

"Yes, sir," Butler said. "Bread and butter, hard work, small gym, something like Rocky. I go to the field or the sand, work on my footwork, but as long as I stay in shape and just focus on my technique. I was ready. I knew that once we got back, the coaches are going to work us hard so their work plus my work will lead to good quality."

Butler, who spent his first four NFL seasons with the Patriots, is ready to do his part in 2020.

Now in his 7th season, that includes showing some of the team's younger players the way.

"First of all, I have to come in and do my job and be a leader," Butler said. "You got to do hard work before you can be a leader and try to lead someone else. I just tell Kris (Kristian Fulton) come in, be hungry. He's got to want it. It doesn't matter if you got drafted or not. I was on a football team with a guy drafted and I came in undrafted. They let him go and they kept me. I just tell him it all starts over when we get to the NFL. We're just working together as a group and try and get better each and every day.

"Whatever they ask me to do, I'm here to do it. Outside, inside, safety, whatever it takes to help the team win, I'm here to do it. Wherever they plug me in, I'm ready to work."

BUTLER'S TWO PICKS MAKES THINGS EASY ON OFFENSE

BY MIKE HOGAN

Good defense usually leads to success on offense.

That was more than the case in the Tennessee Titans' 42-16 thrashing of the Buffalo Bills, tabbed by many as one of the NFL's best teams entering the matchup.

Veteran cornerback Malcolm Butler recorded his second career multi-interception game, and both of them led to touchdowns. In other words, complementary football pushed the Titans to 4-0 for the first time since 2008.

"It's all about complementary football," Butler said in his postgame press conference. "Get turnovers, try to take the ball to the red zone. (Ryan) Tannehill, A.J. Brown, Derrick Henry, they're going to score for us."

Both of Butler's interceptions put the Titans in prime position for points.

His first came on the game's inaugural possession. On a third-down-and-four, Bills quarterback Josh Allen fired a strike to a wide-open Andre Roberts down the middle of the field. The ball deflected off Roberts's hands and into Butler's, who returned it 29 yards to the Buffalo 16-yard line.

From there, the Titans had it easy. Two plays later, Tannehill dropped a dime to Brown for a 16-yard touchdown that put the Titans up 7-0.

"You've got to put everything behind you once you go out there on that field," Butler said of his first interception and the Titans' fast start. "We always talk about complementary football and that's the only way we're going to be able to win. We've just got to go out there and win and do your job the best way you can, be there for your teammates and just play ball, man."

The Bills drove 76 yards on 15 plays over six minutes to tie the game on the ensuing possession, but did not find the endzone again until the third quarter. While the Titans gave up their share of yards -- 370 of them -- they managed to hold Allen, who has more than proved his worth as a quarterback this season, to a season-low 263 yards passing (26 completions on 41 attempts).

Butler's second interception effectively sealed the deal. With the Titans up 21-10 early in the third quarter, Allen and the Bills seemed to be putting a much-needed scoring drive together.

Allen delivered another rocket, but nobody besides Butler was there to catch it.

"I just looked back at my post safety and we were just disguising," Butler said. "I was on the same page with him and we made him think it was something that it wasn't. I just came off my man and got back in the seam.

"... I just knew we were in one coverage and I saw my safety disguise it. So, I said I'm going to make it look like I'm going to do the same thing he's doing. Make it look like whatever we're planning. That's what I did and that probably confused him, so yes, that's what happened."

Butler, who has 15 career interceptions over seven full seasons (four with the New England Patriots, three with the Titans), returned the ball 68 yards while evading multiple tacklers and nearly going down to his knees.

The longest return of his NFL career had Butler thinking about his high school days. While Butler could hear coach Mike Vrabel telling him to "get down and take care of the ball," he explained that once he has the ball in his hands, he wants to make a play.

"I always wanted to play offense so once I get the ball, I'm trying to show my skills -- my running skills and my vision whenever I get the chance," Butler said. "You know you don't have many opportunities to get the ball when you're playing defensive back. I was always told, 'Don't go down until you're tackled.'"

Three plays and a roughing the passer penalty later, Tannehill connected with tight end Jonnu Smith for a four-yard touchdown to put the Titans ahead 28-10.

"Like I said, last week -- I guess two weeks ago now -- we got in those positions a couple times and weren't able to finish in the end zone," Tannehill said. "I'm proud of our guys the way we were able to capitalize on those great opportunities given to us by the defense.

"Malcolm made a couple huge plays. I don't know how he kept his feet on the one. I'm screaming at him, 'Get down, get down!,' and he's getting spun around. Somehow, he keeps his feet and flips the whole field for us. Pretty incredible to watch and just a lot of fun."

The Titans had to gut out three final-minute victories before their dominant performance against the Bills.

The last time the Titans played a football game before Tuesday -- 16 days ago -- Butler said the defense had a bitter taste in its mouth after giving up 484 yards of total offense in a 31-30 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

A big thanks to Butler, the Titans got a better taste this time around.

"We've just got to play complementary football and play as a unit and we'll be tough to beat, but we haven't done anything," he said. "Four games are not enough in this league. We've just got to continue working, grind hard and play together."

KEVIN BYARD IS STILL THE NFL'S BEST-KEPT SECRET

BY ANDY BENOIT
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
MAY 28, 2019

NASHVILLE — Kevin Byard plays an often-overlooked position in a relatively small market and hails from a college program most casual football fans have never seen live. So it's fitting that the most famous moment of his career was when a prominent TV personality didn't know who he was.

A few months after Byard received his 2017 first-team All-Pro honor, he tweeted at NFL-legend-turned-TV-star Deion Sanders, questioning how Sanders could name Tyrann Mathieu the game's best safety and "not include the two first-team AP All Pro safeties" (the other 2017 All-Pro safety was Minnesota's Harrison Smith). Upon firing back, Sanders referred to Byard as "a fan," a past great failing to recognize one of football's current greats.

"[Byard is] probably the most complete safety I've played with," says fellow Titans safety Kenny Vaccaro, who quickly follows with an homage to a college teammate, "[future] Hall of Famer" Earl Thomas. "But Kevin Byard, as far as in the box, man coverage, ball skills back deep, he's probably the best I've played with."

Last season, Byard's numbers dipped from eight interceptions to four, 16 passes defensed to eight, and two fumble recoveries to none. He missed out on the 2018 All-Pro team. But the decline in numbers is further evidence that stats—especially for a safety—are finicky. Most football people, especially within the Titans building, believe Byard was better in 2018, and by a significant margin.

"He was," says Titans cornerback Logan Ryan. "You're not going to get eight interceptions every year ... Plus, when you go All-Pro, offenses then know who you are and they're going to try to find ways to factor you out. I talked to guys who played us this year, they said, 'We saw Byard back there [in centerfield], we were not throwing anything deep. We're going to go [to an empty formation] and throw quick game, you have too good a free safety.'"

Indianapolis Colts v Tennessee Titans

Taking Byard out of games is difficult because he's so much more than just a free safety. "Kevin, to me, is like a younger Eric Berry," Ryan says. "He's the best openfield tackler of our safeties, he covers man-to-man if we're facing the best tight ends. He has the most interceptions out of centerfield. And he's smart on a level that lets us communicate and change blitzes. And he is becoming a better blitzer. He was doing all that by Year 2 in his career."

Byard took it to another level in Year 3 when the Titans overhauled their defensive approach, replacing previous coordinator Dick LeBeau's system with a mix of new head coach Mike Vrabel's scheme from Houston and defensive coordinator Dean Pees's scheme from Baltimore—two of football's most complex schemes to begin with. Titans defensive backs are quick to point out that their secondary, in terms of coverages, disguises and especially blitzes, does more schematically than any in the league. There are two keys: 1) corners like Ryan, Malcom Butler (expensive free agents), and Adoree' Jackson (first-round pick) who can each play man or zone and, 2) versatile safeties like Vaccaro and especially Byard.

"I pride myself on being able to play deep, being able to come in the box and play good run defense, being able to blitz," Byard says. "And having the versatility to play the slot and cover tight ends—that's one thing you don't see a lot of safeties do consistently."

Byard laughs when asked if he sent his agent, David Mulugheta, a gift basket back in March. Mulugheta also represents former Giant Landon Collins, who signed a six-year, $84 million deal ($44.5M guaranteed) in Washington, raising the high-water mark for guaranteed money in a safety's contract by a staggering 11.25 percent.

"Going into this offseason, I didn't know the safety market was going to jump up that high," Byard says. "So it's like, 'Ah man, that's super good'—especially for Landon, [new Raven] Earl Thomas, those boys deserve it. I was definitely excited."

His teammates leave no doubt as to whether they think Byard deserves it. "As far as being able to do everything, Kevin is the best safety in the league," Vaccaro reiterates, adding that Byard should be the highest-paid at his position. "And when you're paying Kevin, you're paying a leader, you're paying a good father, you're paying a great teammate."

Adds Ryan: "He's always thanking his teammates. He wants a new contract and that's going to probably have to wait, and I think he's handling that very well. He's here [in the offseason program], he's being a leader, he's even helping out potential replacements. His attitude is, 'Whatever man, at the end of the day I'm going to be a good teammate.' That's where we have a special group [in this secondary]. It's not built to last forever, obviously. Contract-wise, you can't keep paying everyone forever. But we're excited for this year, it's maybe our last run."

Indeed. Ryan himself is in the final year of his deal. And Malcolm Butler, one figures, could be on the outs in 2020 if he has another up and down season. (According to OverTheCap.com, the Titans can tear up his pricey contract for a $7.6M cap savings in 2020.) As for Byard? "I'm taking it day by day," he says. "I understand it's a business. It can go either way. They can pay this offseason, they can play this year out and try to franchise me—I try to just keep my mind off that stuff because I feel like it can almost drive you crazy.”

Watching film with Byard, it’s easy to understand how he has become such a versatile ball hawk. Besides strong playing speed and fluid change-of-direction prowess, he understands the game from a quarterback’s perspective.

In Week 1 against the Dolphins, he made one of last season’s most impressive pass breakups from centerfield, swatting away a deep shot to speed-receiver Jakeem Grant. “I wish I could have one-hand picked it,” he says with authentic ruefulness as the film rolls. “One thing I learned about playing [centerfield] is if the quarterback’s shoulders open, say to the right, then that quarterback is not getting back to the left. If the quarterback is going to throw to the left, at the top of his drop, his shoulders would be more squared. So I could immediately feel this throw, and as soon as I saw the QB take that hitch step, I just turned and went. It helped that I was already anticipating it, knowing that at that time of the game the Dolphins needed a big play, and that [Jakeem] Grant runs nothing except stop routes and Go balls.”

Watching his interception against Eli Manning in Week 15, he talked about the importance of a free defender in two-deep man coverage getting 22 yards from the line of scrimmage after the snap, which he says is the perfect landmark for defending any route. “Every third down in this game they kept throwing this ‘sail’ route concept, so I was already anticipating this one. As soon as I saw the receiver break out, I just took off because Eli Manning just kept throwing that ball. I don’t know why he threw this one, he definitely didn’t read it right.”

On another snap, Byard perfectly disguised a blitz, creating a sack opportunity for someone else—something, teammates note, he does regularly. “One thing that I learned more from Dean Pees is understanding how offensive lines block and make their calls,” Byard says. “That’s how we’d like to manipulate guys with our disguises.” Ryan raved about this with Byard, citing it as the biggest reason Titans had more sacks by defensive backs (9) than any team last year. “Stats and Pro Football Focus equate to what you do individually, but they don’t show what you sacrifice for your teammates,” he says.

Byard’s football IQ, you could say, launched his NFL career. Incredibly, he was not invited to the 2016 combine. A four-year starter at Middle Tennessee State (located just 30 minutes from Titans headquarters), he performed well at the Senior Bowl, the highlight being an interception against Jacoby Brissett in practice. But while fellow Senior Bowlers would talk about their combine invites, Byard was left out and baffled as to why. “I didn’t understand why I wasn’t getting an invite,” he says. “Nobody really gave me an answer. My college numbers were off the charts. I broke pretty much every school record: 19 interceptions, four pick-sixes, 300-plus tackles, a bunch of different stats. Maybe because I was a small-school guy, but I was still accomplished at a D-I program.”

Of course, Byard wasn’t going completely unnoticed. In the early 2000s, Titans general manager Jon Robinson coached at Nicholls State where one of his players was Steve Ellis, Middle Tennessee’s defensive coordinator while Byard was at MTSU. “Steve raved about Kevin,” Robinson says. Steve would text Robinson updates on Byard every few weeks, and eventually Robinson put on Byard’s film. “He was a willing tackler and extremely productive on the ball. I think he had 19 interceptions in college. You don’t just stumble into 19 picks, whether it’s college, pro, high school, whatever.”

Byard discovered a silver lining to his combine snub: More personal visits with teams. “I ended up taking, like, 12 visits. I was able to have some real personal time with those teams’ GMs. I was able to sit down with DB coaches and watch film, talk ball.”

Byard’s agent, Mulugheta, told him he was being talked about as, at best, a fourth-round pick and, at worst, a seventh-rounder. “That’s not that good,” Byard remembers thinking. “But after my first week of visits, my agent was like, ‘I don’t know what you’re doing on these visits man, but you’re starting to climb up draft boards.’”

That included the Titans’. And so days before the draft, their entire brass caravanned over to Middle Tennessee State. “It was three or four to a vehicle,” Robinson recalls. “I drove and, I think, Dick LeBeau drove. We got there and Kevin was sitting in the film room waiting for us. He had everything lined up and was ready to roll.”

They had no idea that Byard had to be coaxed into taking the meeting.

“I was taking my last visit, it was in Miami. On these visits they’re wining and dining you,” he says. “You’re eating steak almost every night. So I’m not really in good shape. I get a call down there in Miami from my agent. He said, ‘Listen, the Titans want to work you out.’ This was like a week before the draft, I’d been on the road for two straight weeks. I said, ‘I’m not doing any more workouts, I’m done.’”

Other than sending a defensive assistant coach to Middle Tennessee State’s pro day, the Titans had had no contact with Byard. But shortly after the call, Mulugheta phoned again telling his client he needed to do the workout because the Titans were sending all of their big wigs and pertinent defensive coaches.

The on-field portion lasted about 10 minutes; the rest of the session was spent in the film room and at the whiteboard. The Titans had Byard take them through MTSU’s game against Alabama, Byard narrating all the calls and assignments. The Titans also installed portions of their own defense and tested Byard’s comprehension. “He nailed every call, you could see that he was a very cerebral player,” Robinson says.

“I’ll never forget,” Byard says with a grin, “Dick LeBeau was like, ‘This is the best meeting I’ve had with any DB [in that year’s draft process].’” Byard had wowed coaches in other meetings. They’d ask him to draw his favorite coverages and defensive plays and when he did, he’d include all 11 defenders, clear down to what specific alignments the defensive linemen were in. He didn’t realize how unusual that was.

And so the Titans took Byard with the first pick in the third round after rejecting offers to trade down. After the pick, “I got a couple of calls from teams that were trying to trade up with us,” Robinson remembers. “And they said, ‘You just took the guy that we were going to take.’”

Robinson’s next decision on Byard will be even bigger. The franchise tag for a safety is projected to cost over $13 million. A long-term deal could cost in the realm of $50 million guaranteed. Fortunately for the Titans, Byard is content to play out the final year of his rookie deal, which pays just over $2 million—greener pastures await. In the meantime, did he ever hear again from Deion Sanders?

“No, of course not,” Byard says. “I wasn’t really expecting to, though. He’s a legend, he doesn’t really have to respond. If anything, he probably feels like, ‘Hey, I’m giving this kid clout by responding.’ I just left it alone. He probably just made an honest mistake, he probably really didn’t know [who I was]. We’re a small-market team, we don’t get a lot of prime-time TV games, so he might not know. But if you work at NFL Network you should probably know who the All-Pros are. But it’s TV, man, people pick their favorites.”

Byard continues: “If you look up Deion’s stats, he was the Truth. That’s why I kind of just looked at [his tweet] like, ‘Man, he’s OG, a legend, I’ll leave it up to him.’ I felt like it would have been manning-up if he had just reached out to me, but he doesn’t have to. I’m trying to get that gold jacket like he has—if I get that gold jacket, then I’ll be able to say something to him.”

KEVIN BYARD

KEVIN BYARD: SPORTS CAN HELP TEACH UNITY AND HARMONY

BY TERRY MCCORMICK
TITANINSIDER.COM
JUNE 10, 2020

Tennessee Titans safety Kevin Byard said that sports in general and the NFL in particular can be a great teacher for all people during the tumultuous times since the death of George Floyd in Minneapolis at the hands of a police officer.

Byard said that a football locker room is about coming together for a common goal, and that that can be something people in all walks of line and learn from and emulate as the nation works to improve race relations and heal from the divisiveness of the past.

“I think that’s the beauty of sports right there. I’ve never met a guy from my locker room that I felt like hated me because of the color of my skin or anything like that. That’s the beauty of the NFL. Right now, we have 90 guys on the team, or close to 90. We all come from different walks of life,” Byard said in Zoom conference call on Wednesday. “Everybody comes from a different part of the country, some people come from different parts of the world. I just feel like the beauty of it is the simple fact that we can all come together no matter our differences, things like that, to try to accomplish a common goal and work together within that. Honestly, I feel like the country can take a great lesson from sports and the unity of guys, and people coming from all different shades and colors and different things like that, and not really caring about it.

“When one guy scores a touchdown, the whole team is celebrating, it doesn’t matter what he looks like. I think that’s the beauty of sports and that’s kind of why I feel like especially the game of football is such a game of life and it teaches you so much, and I’ve appreciated all the lessons that I’ve learned just by playing ball, and all the people

I’ve met and all the times I’ve experienced.”

Byard said he attended an all-black high school and realized when he got to college at Middle Tennessee that people come from all different backgrounds and experiences. He said he appreciates those who will never know what it is like growing up as a black person in America working to empathize with things he and African Americans have faced.

“Honestly, since I’ve been in the NFL, and not even just the NFL, I went to an all-black high school, so by me coming to Middle Tennessee and me coming to the NFL, working in these different work environments with all types of different people, different races, I began to realize that everybody doesn’t necessarily know or have the experience growing up as a black person in America,” Byard said. “A lot of times you can’t expect everybody to understand that. For me personally, for (Mike) Vrabel and a lot of guys around the world that would sit there and say, ‘I haven’t experienced the black experience,’ or ‘I don’t know what it feels like for the kinds of struggles you’ve been through, but I’m trying to understand, I’m listening and I’m trying to show empathy.’ Honestly, that’s all I can really ask for from anybody. Everybody’s experience is different. I’ve met people from all different races that were some of the best people I’ve ever met. Honestly, all the conversation that we’ve had as a team, that I’ve had with a bunch of different people, it’s all about education. I would just say that for anybody that’s trying to understand what black people are going through or trying to figure out what they can do in this situation is just have empathy. Have empathy as human beings to understand that everybody goes through struggles, not just black people, everybody goes through struggles. Just understand to be more empathetic and be more humane.”

Quarterback Ryan Tannehill, who was also on a conference call, is one of those players that Byard said has stepped up in the wake of the Floyd tragedy.”

“It’s kind of like enough is enough, right? It’s something that my eyes have been opened to, the privilege I’ve lived with my whole life just because of the color of my skin. The situations my friends, my teammates, guys that I love, that they’ve been put in throughout their life purely because of the color of their skin, things they have to deal with which no man, no people should have to deal with, hearing stories,” Tannehill said. “I think when this first came around in 2016, I was on a team with Kenny Stills who was able to educate me about a lot of it. I’m really thankful for a lot of the conversations that we’ve had along the way. Just such an issue that affects millions of people that if you don’t – I think the unfortunate thing about it is, if you’re a white person you don’t have to deal with it on a daily basis and you’re not put in those situations.

“It’s easy to just go about your life and not recognize it and not realize how big of a deal it is, how many people it affects on a daily basis. I think with this push, I think more and more people are having an awakening to the reality of the situation and how deep it really is, how many layers of injustice there are to it with the court system, and policing, and just on a day-to-day basis. Like I said, there’s so many layers to it. I think that just this push was kind of like the straw that broke the camel’s back, right? It’s been happening for far too long and finally got to the point where enough is enough.”

For Byard, he sees Tannehill beyond just that, saying he had respect for the type of person the quarterback is from their first meeting.

“I respect Ryan to the fullest. I’ve always respected him since I first met him. That’s one thing about me, I don’t look at guys as race and all this stuff. Ryan and his family, his wife, has treated my family with nothing but love and I respect him just for the man he is,” Byard said.

KEVIN BYARD

“The fact that he’s speaking and using his voice to uplift others, black, white, or different, whatever, it speaks volumes for his character. I will always treat him based upon that. I always try to treat everybody with love and try not to hate anybody. Ryan Tannehill, he’s a great guy. I always feel comfortable around him and I feel like the entire team respects him in that way as well.”

In terms of what he might do to raise awareness like others have done by kneeling for the anthem, Byard said he has not thought about it, but said that whatever gesture is done will likely be through the team and will show team unification.

“Honestly, I really haven’t given any thought to it. I know a few years back when it was a question of teams kneeling, different things like that, I know us as a team, the Titans, we came together and we made a decision. I think we played Seattle that game and both teams decided not to come out. But it’s something I haven’t thought about at all,” he said. “I honestly feel like the fact that the conversation is being shifted a little bit toward how we’re going to protest and different things like that, it just shifts the conversation from what the issue (is) and the things we really need to focus on, which is the racial injustice and different things like that. No, honestly, I haven’t given any thought to it. I’m sure that when the time comes, us as a team, we’ll make a decision as a team.”

FROM A PIPE DREAM TO REALITY: TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD CALLS BUYING HIS MOM A HOUSE "ONE OF THE BIGGEST MILESTONES I'VE ACCOMPLISHED"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 18, 2020

NASHVILLE – Kevin Byard has played in a Pro Bowl, and he's been voted a team captain by his teammates.

The Titans safety, who has 17 interceptions over the past three seasons, is regarded one of the best in the game at his position.

But there's something else Byard is even more proud of – he bought his mother a house recently.

"That's probably one of the biggest milestones that I've accomplished in my playing career, for sure," Byard said. "To get drafted, and second to be able to buy my mom her forever home is something that means dearly to me, has meant something to me since I was younger.

"It's kind of been a pipe dream. Something that I never really – something I thought about doing, but I never really thought it was going to be possible. Just been a lot of hard work and dedication to be able to accomplish that goal."

Byard has credited his mother, Artina Stanley, for much of his success.

Following a divorce when Byard was in ninth grade, his mother moved with the children from Philadelphia to Atlanta. While the family dealt with financial struggles, Stanley worked long hours to make sure her children received what they needed. Byard has said he and his older brother "had to grow up really fast" as they helped their mother with taking care of the younger kids in the family.

In a social media post by Byard, he showed his mother in front of the house he purchased.

"When you come from where I come from, stuff like this is a pipe dream that only a few are able to accomplish," Byard wrote. "I hate that we couldn't be there but I'm more happy that everything worked itself out. I love you mom and enjoy your new forever home! ☐"

Byard, who played collegiately at MTSU, has made an effort to give back to the community.

Last May, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. At the time, he said he planned to hold the camp - which was free - every year.

In September, Byard partnered with UnitedHealthcare to distribute new shoes and socks to over 300 students at Robert Churchwell Elementary School in Nashville. Byard tossed the football with kids, and spoke to them about the importance of making good grades.

Byard joined Titans teammates, coaches, and other members of the organization for tornado clean-up efforts in Nashville in March.

Kevin Byard Taking One Day at a Time as Season Approaches

Byard has taken part in the Titans Caravan, and other off-field events in the Nashville area.

On the field, Byard said he wants to keep improving while being even more of a leader.

"We're all in this together," Byard said. "We're all in this to win a Super Bowl. I know for a fact every single day that I come into that building I come into that building to put in the work, and I come into the building to work hard and try to accomplish that goal. I feel like we all should be trying to accomplish the same.

"I'm going to try to hold my guys accountable if I feel like somebody is slacking off, or if I'm slacking off somebody should hold me accountable. I think that's just the relationship that we all need to have in the building, and not be too concerned with emotions and different things like that. It's all about the goal of trying to win a Super Bowl."

JULY 1, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans safety Kevin Byard has been selected as the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville.

Byard plans to use the platform to influence others while making an impact in the community, starting with the virtual 2020 Stuff the Bus school supply drive.

"I'm honored and excited to team up with United Way of Greater Nashville," Byard said in a statement. "We both share a passion for impacting those in need in our community and striving to give everyone the resources needed to be successful. I'm looking forward to building our community and launching our work together with Stuff the Bus."

Byard, who played collegiately at MTSU, has made a great effort over the years to give back to the community.

Last May, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. At the time, he said he planned to hold the camp - which was free - every year.

In September, Byard partnered with UnitedHealthcare to distribute new shoes and socks to over 300 students at Robert Churchwell Elementary School in Nashville. Byard tossed the football with kids, and spoke to them about the importance of making good grades.

In 2019, Byard also teamed up with Academy Sports to provide new shoes and coats for the children of The Boys and Girls club in Smyrna, Tenn.

Byard joined Titans teammates, coaches, and other members of the organization for tornado clean-up efforts in Nashville in March.

Byard began The Byard Family Legacy Fund in 2019 because he wanted to make a difference in the lives of his neighbors. Byard has said the purpose of his foundation is to provide the community with hope.

"We're incredibly lucky to have Kevin on our side," said Brian Hassett, United Way of Greater Nashville's president and CEO. "United Way has partnered with the Tennessee Titans for more than 20 years. Our partnership is so strong because of our shared interest in increasing public awareness about the issues facing our community, and how we can work together to better serve our neighbors."

Here's how individuals, groups and workplaces can contribute now through July 10:

-- Run a drive. Visit roonga.com/uwgnstuffthebus2020 to set up a team for a workplace or group. Create a team profile, set a goal for your supply drive and share a personalized team link with colleagues and friends to start collecting.

-- Support students by purchasing supply kits or individual items directly from an online store. The items will be delivered to local elementary school students in need.

--Individuals can make a credit card donation in any amount which will be used to buy more supplies.

TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD NAMED NFLPA COMMUNITY MVP

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans safety Kevin Byard has been named the NFLPA Community MVP for the week leading up to NFL Kickoff Weekend.

The NFLPA recognized Byard after he hosted two back-to-school events that benefited more than 100 disadvantaged families in the metropolitan Nashville area.

In partnership with United Healthcare, Stuff the Bus, United Way and Academy Sports, Byard packed and distributed more than 300 distance learning kits to those in need. The kits included school supplies, essential hygiene items, backpacks, gift cards and sporting goods.

"It's an honor and a blessing to be highlighted as NFLPA Community MVP," Byard said. "I'm grateful to give back to my city and ensure I'm truly making a difference to those in need."

Earlier this offseason, Byard was also selected as the official spokesperson for the United Way of Greater Nashville.

Byard said he wanted to lend a helping hand to families who have lost jobs and may not have the resources available to transition to a new style of living and learning. According to the NFLPA release, Byard divided his efforts into two portions earlier this summer – one in person, where he went from door-to-door delivering the back-to-school kits while wearing a mask; and the other virtually, where he reminded the youth to stay strong, focus on their education and that hope is on the horizon.

Byard, who played collegiately at MTSU, has made a great effort over the years to give back to the community.

Last May, Byard hosted 200-plus youngsters at the inaugural Kevin Byard Football Camp at Ensworth School. At the time, he said he planned to hold the camp - which was free - every year.

Byard joined Titans teammates, coaches, and other members of the organization for tornado clean-up efforts in Nashville in March.

Byard began The Byard Family Legacy Fund in 2019 because he wanted to make a difference in the lives of his neighbors. Byard has said the purpose of his foundation is to provide the community with hope.

Byard also volunteered on Giving Tuesday with local high school football teams to create care packages for the homeless and taking the lead as an instrument for change during the recent social justice protests.

Through his Byard Family Legacy Fund, which he launched in 2019, the fifth-year NFL veteran has held free annual football camps for 200-plus students, hosted Thanksgiving food distributions and provided new shoes, socks and coats for local youth. In just the past year, Byard has impacted more than 5,000 individuals in need in the greater Nashville community.

In honor of Byard being named this week's Community MVP, the NFLPA will make a $10,000 contribution to his foundation or charity of choice. The NFLPA will also work with Byard to set up a virtual visit to a school or hospital in his community as a way of honoring and inspiring those who are impacted by the ongoing pandemic. Finally, our supporting partner Pledge It has set up a crowdfunding campaign to support the Byard Family Legacy Fund. Supporters can make a flat donation at the following website: pledgeit.org/kevin-byard.

Byard is eligible for this year's Alan Page Community Award, which is the highest honor that the NFLPA can bestow upon a player.

The NFLPA Community MVP program recognizes NFL players who are making a positive impact in their team cities and hometowns. Each week during the regular season, the NFLPA will celebrate one NFL player who has demonstrated a commitment to giving back to his community. SUPER DAD: TITANS SAFETY KEVIN BYARD EXPLAINS HOW HE DELIVERED HIS OWN SON AT FAMILY'S HOME

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – Kevin Byard has made some clutch plays during the course of his playing career.

In the season opener at Denver, in fact, his forced fumble led to an early Titans touchdown.

But the 27-year-old made the play of his life last month when he delivered his own son, Kevin Leon Byard IV.

Yes, it's true. And on Wednesday, Byard went into great detail about how it happened while on a video conference call with reporters.

"It's one of those deals where we just couldn't make it to the hospital," Byard started off. "Obviously we weren't planning on having the baby at the house."

Byard said his wife, Clarke, started having mild contractions on the evening of August 23. Around 10:30 p.m., Byard's wife woke up and things escalated quickly. Then, she started having more severe contractions while on the bathroom floor. The child was due on August 24th.

"I kind of got up, I wasn't really panicking, but I scrambling to get some clothes on, helping her try to get dressed," Byard recalled. "Her mom was downstairs, so I called her up."

Byard then got the car ready, as Clarke Byard started moving around. Byard called the doula and said, "meet us at the hospital." But with things changing, it became, "meet us at the house."

With the doula on the speakerphone, the Byards provided updates. With the doula being 30 minutes away from the Byard's home, she provided instructions. The first: "Let's try and get her in the bathtub."

But by this time, Byard said his son's "head was already poking out." At this point, Byard said his wife was on her hands and knees.

"The (doula) said, "Tell her to start pushing, the baby is coming," Byard recalled. "His face was pointing upward, so I could see his face was real purple. I was nervous about that, so the doula told me to support his head."

About 10 or 15 minutes later, there was serious action.

"Once he got his head out, his shoulders and everything just kind of slipped out," Byard said. "And I kind of caught him in my arms. He waited about five seconds, he coughed about two or three times, and started crying."

Byard's wife remained on the floor, and an ambulance was called.

"We ended up getting the placenta out, cut the umbilical cord, and we headed to the hospital," Byard said. "All of this happened from 10:30 to 11:05. It was like a 30-minute period. Things kind of went fast."

Byard and his wife also have a one-year-old daughter, Eliana.

A former MTSU star and team captain who has recorded 17 interceptions in his NFL career, Byard knows he has a moment he'll never forget.

"That was probably the most memorable thing me and my wife have ever been through in our relationship other than getting married," Byard said. "That's a story I am going to tell my son for the rest of our days."

KEVIN BYARD

BYARD NAMED TITANS' WALTER PAYTON MAN OF THE YEAR

FORMER BLUE RAIDER RECOGNIZED FOR SOCIAL ACTIVISM, COMMUNITY WORK

BY MICHAEL GALLAGHER
NASHVILLE POST
OCTOBER 30, 2020

Middle Tennessee sports fans have long known what kind of player and person Tennessee Titans safety Kevin Byard is.

On Thursday, Titans head coach Mike Vrabel was as close to giddy as local reporters have probably ever seen him when the third-year coach announced Byard as the Titans 2020 Walter Payton Man of the Year.

"I wanted to tell everybody how happy I was to tell the team about Kevin Byard being the Walter Payton recipient for the Titans," he said. "That is a special honor. That's something that I know that our guys hold in high regard just to the service that they do and the care for others, so just excited to be able to tell the team that and then honor Kevin (Byard) in front of the team. So, I wanted to share that with you guys as well."

Byard is one of 32 finalists for the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year award, which is given annually to recognize an NFL player for "commitment to philanthropy and community impact."

Byard was recognized by the NFL Players Association back in September as the first Community MVP of the season after he hosted a pair of events where he helped pack and distribute over 300 kits to distribute that included backpacks of school supplies and other various items for distance learning kids.

Additionally, the 27-year-old All Pro has been one of the Titans' biggest catalysts for speaking out on racism, social justice and police brutality this year. Byard was also one of many Titans players out on the streets in March helping the city of Nashville with its tornado relief efforts.

"This honor is no shock to anyone around Middle Tennessee," said Rick Stockstill, Byard's former MTSU head coach. "Kevin is a great man, a great husband, and a great player who always works hard in the community helping others. There's not a better leader or teammate than Kevin Byard. We love him dearly and wish him nothing but success."

Byard helped deliver his son back in August at his home in Nashville and also recently bought his mother a house back in May, stating it was "a pipe dream that only few are able to accomplish."

As the Titans nomination, Byard will receive up to $50,000 donated to a charity of his choice by the NFL Foundation and Nationwide. Should he win the NFL award, he will receive $250,000 donated to a charity of his choice. The winner will be announced during the Super Bowl in February 2021.

No member of the Titans has ever won the award and quarterback Warren Moon is the only player in franchise history to ever win, doing so in 1989. Baltimore Ravens defensive end Calais Campbell won the award last year when he was with the Jacksonville Jaguars.

"I think that's the total package that we're striving for, that all of us are striving for, to have some balance in our families, in our personal life, in our professional life, and then also what we're able to do to impact other people around the community and I know that's something that Kevin has done a lot of," Vrabel added.

VRABEL KNOWS BETTER THAN ANYONE WHAT CLOWNEY CAN DO

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
APRIL 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – If there is anyone in the NFL with reason to believe he can get the best out of Jadeveon Clowney, it is Tennessee Titans coach Mike Vrabel.

After all, he has done it.

Vrabel's one season as Houston Texans defensive coordinator (2017) was also Clowney's best, statistically speaking. Or at least his best to date. And it happened at a time when a number of things could not have gone worse.

Two of Houston's most prominent players on defense at the time – J.J. Watt and Whitney Mercilus – played just five games apiece because of injury. Vrabel's unit finished last in the NFL in points allowed, 29 in yards per play allowed and were in the bottom sixth for red zone and goal-to-go defense.

As it turned out, that also was the one time in his six-year career that Clowney played all 16 games. Never, though, has he played so many positions.

“We did a lot with him,” Vrabel said this week. “We had a lot of injuries (and) we put him in a lot of different places to try to help us affect the game. ... We asked him to do a lot, and he did do a lot for us.”

That season Clowney set career-highs for sacks (9.5), tackles for loss (21), quarterback hits (21), forced fumbles (two), fumble recoveries (two) and tackles (59). He was the only AFC player with at least 20 tackles-for-loss (21) and 20 quarterback hits (20).

It is as close as he has come to meeting the expectations that were set when the Texans drafted him first overall in 2014.

Vrabel and general manager Jon Robinson confirmed the Titans' interest in Clowney, arguably the top free agent still available this season, but there is no indication that a deal to bring him to Tennessee is at hand. Cleveland, which has the most available salary cap space, reportedly has made a push to get him. And Seattle, the team for which he played last season, would very much welcome his return, as evidenced by quarterback Russell Wilson's recent social media plea.

Clowney has been to three Pro Bowls, including in 2017, and for three straight years – beginning in 2017 – he has made the list of the NFL's top 100 players (he has been as high as No. 32).

There have been those, however, who have questioned his work ethic and desire, even as far back as the days and weeks before he was drafted. Then again, Clowney is just 27 years old (his birthday was in February) so there is reason to think that maybe his best is yet to come.

If nothing else, Vrabel has a clear idea of just how good he can be.

“I know that when I coached JD [Clowney], JD was prepared,” he said. “He played extremely hard. ... I never had an issue with any of JD's effort on the field.”

REXRODE: TITANS WERE IN FOR JADEVEON CLOWNEY ALL ALONG, NOW THEY'RE UP FOR A RUN

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 6, 2020

Now that Jadeveon Clowney is going to be part of the Tennessee Titans' 2020 defense, imagine it without him.

The scheming wizard, Dean Pees, is gone. So is Jurrell Casey, who seeks retribution when the Titans visit him in Denver for the Monday Night Football opener. So is Pees' best blitzer, cornerback Logan Ryan, who had 4 ½ sacks, more than 10 percent of the team's total of 43. Of course, that's also 50 percent more than Clowney's 2019 total of three in Seattle, which is the primary argument against signing Clowney and ignores everything else he does and how close the Titans are to being a complete team. And how one area in particular was setting up to hold them back.

This offense, also known as TanneHenry, is going to score a lot of points. The defense was going to be solid. What Jon Robinson has done, finally, is eliminate the idea that he didn't do everything possible to make it better than that.

Clowney represents completion. Of a pursuit that was rather obvious when the Titans dealt Casey to the Broncos for a seventh-round pick and more so when they didn't draft to address the position. Of a saga that has been odd and stayed odd until the end, conflicting reports on Clowney agreeing to sign until ESPN finally confirmed it. Of a statement acquisition for a franchise that is accumulating NFL respect under controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk, Robinson and coach Mike Vrabel.

Clowney doesn't guarantee anything. But imagine this defense without him. It has excellent inside linebackers and safeties, good corners, high hopes for Jeffery Simmons, who made Casey and his $11.8 million cap hit (and $26 million due in the next two seasons) redundant. Between Vrabel and outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen, it has a collective plan to replace Pees. It has everything but a good feeling about affecting quarterbacks with four pass rushers at a time, which you have to do in this league.

Imagine the playoffs, which this team could have reached without Clowney. Another shot at Kansas City, which this team could have earned without Clowney. It's still only getting there with an offense that lives up to its billing, and the Titans aren't beating the Chiefs without a whole bunch of points. But maybe there's one Clowney sack in there, or forced fumble, or commanded double team that allows someone else to make a play, that gives the Titans one stop they wouldn't have gotten otherwise.

Whatever they did in 2020 without Clowney, anything but winning the Super Bowl would have been greeted with this question more than any other: "What if they would have signed Clowney?"

That's just how this thing has gone, and it's how this team is built. It was going to be Harold Landry, who had nine sacks in his second season, looking at a lot of attention. It was going to be Kamalei Correa on the other side, a nice story, but not a Clowney when Clowney is right. Not a guy who was going to take eyes off Landry. It was going to be Vic Beasley, Robinson's top free-agent signing (one year, $9.5 million) before this reported one-year, $12 million deal with incentives up to $15 million for Clowney. Beasley just passed a physical Saturday after not initially reporting to camp, and before all that there were questions about his love for football and downward trajectory since leading the league with 15 ½ sacks in 2016. It was going to be reserve Derick Roberson, a former undrafted free agent who has demonstrated some ability. That was it.

It was going to be a team with 25 returning sacks from 2019 among front-seven players. Only Landry and Correa (five) had more than three. This is how average opposing quarterbacks can be made to look better than they are. This is how a really good Titans secondary can be made to look average. You can't rely on exotic scheming all the time, especially with Pees gone. You can count on Clowney making it more likely, consistently, that the Titans will bother quarterbacks without having to blitz.

He had just three sacks last season, yes, and he had a core injury that required offseason surgery. He's also had significant knee, wrist and elbow injuries in his past. That's the biggest concern. The "doesn't play hard" tag is a twisting of the very real "doesn't like camp" tag, and if effort issues are real, do you think Vra-Rob goes to all this trouble to get him to Nashville?

The three-sack criticism ignores the fact that Clowney had two touchdowns last season, one returning a fumble and one an interception. It doesn't account for the way he blew up San Francisco's offense in a big Seattle win there, with one of those touchdowns, a forced fumble, a sack and five quarterback hits. An every-down inability to block him, and ripple effects in favor of Seattle, were on display. It totally blows off Clowney as a run defender, and the fact that the Titans' rush defense has been good but not great the past couple seasons. He'll help it.

No, Clowney has never been a pure pass rusher. His career high was the 9 ½ sacks he had in 2017, with Vrabel as his defensive coordinator in Houston. But he also had 21 tackles for loss and 21 quarterback hits that season. And when he's healthy, when he's right, offenses have to account for him.

Consider what that could mean for Landry. Landry should be ecstatic today. Consider what that could mean for Simmons. Imagine Clowney coming up the middle, as

JADEVEON CLOWNEY

Vrabel liked to do with him in some passing situations in Houston, flanked by Landry and by a Beasley who is healthy and right. And with Simmons providing interior push. This is where it's easier to imagine the extra stop or two against a Kansas City, or a Baltimore, or a Houston, to win the Titans a very important game.

There's no argument against doing this for a one-year deal, especially at that price (Clowney reportedly wanted $20 million or more initially, which is outrageous). The Titans have a chance to make a run this year. They have the money to pay him this year. Yes, the cap is going down in 2021, so more money to roll over would be useful as the Titans try to retain Jonnu Smith and Jayon Brown. Robinson has operated with a long-term approach.

But when you're this close, and the Titans are, you go for it. Robinson has recognized this all along, has been pursuing Clowney all along, though that meant weeks at a time of waiting for Clowney to get serious and more reasonable in his demands. Now there will be no more questions about why Robinson dealt Casey and then didn't come with a corresponding addition. There will be no questions about why he didn't do all he could do to take advantage of this one-year window.

If Clowney isn't healthy, isn't right, doesn't fortify the defense as hoped, it was still worth a shot. If he is and does those things? TanneHenry better make way for LandaClowney.

JACK CRAWFORD

JACK CRAWFORD IS ACCLIMATING TO THE TITANS. THE TITANS ARE ACCLIMATING TO HIS BRITISH ACCENT.

BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
AUGUST 24, 2020

Jack Crawford's accent is caught in a weird middleground. When he goes back to his native London, "everyone says I sound American," Crawford said. But when he's meeting new Titans teammates in Nashville, they quickly determine through his accent that he's not from around here.

"Sometimes people will catch on to some words I say, and they'll be like, 'What? 'What'd you say?' and they won't understand what I'm saying, and I'll have to kind of almost adjust my accent so they understand what I'm saying better," said Crawford, whom the Titans signed in April. "It's always been an issue for me."

But it's more of a minor issue as Crawford acclimates to a new team during an unprecedented offseason that already has thrown a significant challenge at the 6-foot-5, 274-pound defensive lineman.

On Aug. 7, the Titans placed Crawford on the COVID-19/Reserve list, which is for players who test positive or who have been around someone who has tested positive. Almost two weeks later, on Aug. 20, the team removed him from the list.

But that was a long time to be away from his new team.

"I don't think I'm caught up yet," the 31-year-old Crawford said Sunday. "I think that it's tough because I came into a new system with a new playbook, new culture, everything. To have to go into a quarantine after just arriving here, I felt like I was falling further behind than I already was.

"I felt like the past couple of days have been good for me in terms of just trying to catch up, and trying to go into putting in extra time whether it (is) studying the playbook or walking through certain plays."

More:5 observations from Titans training camp: Khari Blasingame getting carries

Crawford, who played the past three seasons for the Falcons, provides a veteran presence for a relatively young defensive line group that is led by second-year tackle Jeffery Simmons. Crawford has 16 career sacks over his eight seasons in the NFL, including six in 2018. He's made 26 starts in the NFL.

"He's a veteran player," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Crawford, "and what has stood out to me has been the effort that he's been able to show since he's gotten back off that COVID/Reserve list."

He certainly has a strong argument for being the most interesting Titans defensive lineman.

For example, Crawford used to be classmates with Daniel Radcliffe, the actor who played Harry Potter.

"He was always absent," Crawford said of Radcliffe, "so he wasn't really there that much."

Crawford moved to the United States when he was 16 to play basketball. His junior year of high school marked his first time playing football.

"I grew up playing rugby a little bit," Crawford said, "so I felt like the contact wasn't a problem for me. I just had to learn the rules, to be honest."

He's really big into mixed martial arts, though his training on that front has been halted amid the pandemic.

"That's my favorite sport," Crawford said of MMA. "A lot of my close friends are in the sport. I love training in that area. I think it relates to defensive line and offensive line so closely. I think that everybody who plays in the trenches can benefit from it."

And, of course, he's got an accent that is wholly unique at Saint Thomas Sports Park, although Crawford insists it's not as thick as it once was.

"When I came to the (United States) my accent was a lot stronger, and then over time it kind of faded a little bit," Crawford said. "My accent got caught in (the) middle. I go to London, I'm American. I come over here, people say I sound funny. It's stuck in a weird place. I'm just trying to hold onto what little bit of accent I got left."

COREY DAVIS

HEADING INTO A CONTRACT YEAR, TITANS' COREY DAVIS AIMS TO 'DO NUMBERS'

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
SEPTEMBER 5, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The Tennessee Titans were down by three points with 5 seconds left on the clock in overtime when Corey Davis stepped up.

In that 2018 Week 4 game against the Philadelphia Eagles, quarterback Marcus Mariota lined up in shotgun, looked to his left and saw the matchup that he wanted, then lofted the ball into the end zone. Davis jumped and outmuscled Eagles rookie Avonte Maddox for the game-winning touchdown.

The fans at Nissan Stadium went wild. This was what they were expecting from Davis, the No. 5 pick in the 2017 draft. It capped a career day for Davis, who finished with nine receptions for 161 yards.

Three seasons ago, Davis was viewed as an integral part of the Titans becoming an explosive passing offense. Now, he's entering a critical year that could potentially be his last in Tennessee after the team declined to pick up his fifth-year option. Davis made it clear that he is looking for a big season in 2020.

"I'm trying to do numbers this year," Davis said. "Definitely a lot more hungry."

Statistically, Davis hasn't posted the numbers that match his draft status. But the Titans staff know the talent is there.

"You look at his size, his play strength, his toughness. He's willing to play in high-traffic areas," Titans wide receivers coach Rob Moore said. "You can do a lot of different things with Corey because of his size and ability to run. He brings a lot of attributes to the table."

Davis' best season was 2018 -- the only year when he played all 16 games -- when he had 65 catches for 891 yards and four touchdowns. The top example of Davis' playmaking ability came during Week 9 of that season against the New England Patriots, when Davis posted seven receptions for 125 yards and a touchdown despite being guarded primarily by one of the NFL's best cover corners, Stephon Gilmore.

Corey Davis could be playing his last season with the Titans after they declined to pick up his fifth-year option.

So, what gives -- why hasn't Davis produced more? The biggest area where Davis needs to improve is consistency, which manifests itself in a variety of ways. There's a lot that goes into it, and coaches are always preaching about it.

Coach Mike Vrabel takes time to work on specific things with each player. Here's how he described what he worked on with Davis recently during what he called a "ball disruption period" in practice:

We try to coach and teach the fundamentals of the game, going out and attacking the football. When you do that, you bring it in. Those DBs are practicing trying to disrupt it and punch it out. The focal point was making sure that when we catch the ball out in front of our body, but also being strong to the tuck, so it's not over until we've secured it, just continuing to understand the details.

When the question is how Davis can become a more consistent player, the answer is frequently "details."

"The route running, specifically at the end of the game. That's something that we've tried to work on," Davis said. "Just being great when you're tired and try to fight through that fatigue. There were certain plays where I let fatigue get the best of me."

Added Vrabel: "I think for Corey [Davis] and a lot of players and even coaches, it's understanding the detail of the play that's going to change each snap based on what the other team does and their coverage. Is it man? Is it zone? How do we want to convert routes and continue to understand how the quarterback is thinking in those situations?"

The Titans scored 16.3 points per game (ranked 28th) in the six games Mariota started last season. In the other 10, under Ryan Tannehill, the Titans scored 30.4 PPG (ranked third). However, Davis scored only one touchdown on a pass from Tannehill in that 10-game stretch.

Tannehill admittedly didn't connect with Davis enough last season. He plans to do so more in 2020.

"I definitely think my chemistry will grow with Corey this year. I think that he's such a talented guy and has so much to bring to the table," Tannehill said.

The mental part of the game is equally important. Davis is adopting a different outlook in training camp this year.

He doesn't want to "beat himself up over the last play." Davis acknowledged that he was too hard on himself at times, struggling to let a bad play stay in the past. Carrying a bad rep over to the next play is never good, but for a player who averaged only 5.7 targets per regular-season game over a three-year career, it's particularly bad.

The emergence of 2019 rookie A.J. Brown (52 receptions, 1,051 yards, 8 TDs) likely cut into Davis' targets. But Davis' approach is to make the most of whatever targets come his way.

"A.J. is going to get a lot of attention with the year he had last year, so whenever my number is called, I've got to go make it happen," Davis said.

After having offseason surgery to repair a turf-toe injury that limited him last year, Davis is looking forward to staying healthy and being more productive than ever. Being vocal about wanting to "do numbers" is a change from the typical "take it as it goes" approach that Davis used to point to when asked about his production. There is plenty on the line for him.

"I'm not really focusing on the contracts, nothing," Davis said. "I'm just going to go out there and play football and handle my business, and everything will take care of itself."

TITANS GUARD NATE
DAVIS STRONGER, MORE CONFIDENT, HEADING INTO YEAR TWO

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 20, 2020

NASHVILLE – Nate Davis won't lie.

In his first NFL training camp a year ago, the Titans offensive guard had his share of struggles while adjusting to the next level. He missed time with an injury, and when the regular season started, he then found himself among the team's inactives for the first three games as he worked his way back.

On Thursday, Davis admitted there were times when he felt like he was just "hanging on." It wasn't until the back half of the season until he settled down and started feeling comfortable, he said.

"Last year, it was more like, just hanging on," Davis said with a smile on Thursday. "There were a lot of things going on, head spinning, and just trying to get the plays down and all that stuff."

Davis found himself, and the Titans realized they'd found themselves a good one in the third-round pick from the 2019 NFL Draft.

Davis played in his first NFL game in Week 4 in Atlanta before taking over as the team's starter at right guard in Week 5 against the Bills. Davis ended up starting the final 12 games of the regular season, and all three of the team's playoff contests.

He was part of an offensive line that paved the way for running back Derrick Henry's 1,540-yard season, while also protecting quarterback Ryan Tannehill during a year when he led the NFL in passer rating, and the team to victories.

Looking back, Davis feels like a different person in this year's camp. He's confident, and comfortable, as he heads into Year 2.

"My confidence has definitely shot up, that's for sure," Davis said. "That was probably the biggest thing from last year, just understanding that I belong. Really, the sky is the limit for me."

"This year, it is just focusing on the little things. I have the plays down for the most part, it is just playing faster and understanding what our offense is and doing everything I can to help this team."

Davis, who played collegiately at Charlotte, said he's also a lot sturdier. Getting stronger was one of his top priorities in his second year and he spent the offseason in Nashville and back in Charlotte working to improve his game.

While he's still in the 310-pound range, the 6-foot-3 guard said his core strength has improved where he can anchor down and keep the pocket clean in practices, and game days.

"I feel like I got bounced around a little bit last year, so I just wanted to bulk up a little bit and hone in on the little details with our technique and stuff like that," Davis said. "I feel stronger on the field, and everything is starting to slow down."

"So far, I feel good. Just learning some of the details and getting comfortable with the guys. I feel a lot quicker on the field, that's for sure."

NICK DZUBNAR

JOINING TITANS WORTH THE WAIT FOR SPECIAL TEAMS ACE NICK DZUBNAR

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – When linebacker Nick Dzubnar signed with the Titans back in March, he could hardly wait to join his new team, and continue his NFL career.

He ended up waiting a long time, because the coronavirus pandemic wrecked Dzubnar's plans – and everyone else's, for that matter.

"Everything this year has been so interesting," said Dzubnar, a special teams ace with the Chargers who was signed by the Titans in free agency. "I had five good years with the Chargers, but I was so excited to sign with the Titans. Then it's like, all the excitement, and then you're stuck hanging out, meeting guys on Zoom for the offseason.

"The first two weeks being here, finally actually seeing guys' faces, getting to know these guys on a more personal level and just starting to vibe with the team. ... You can already tell it's obviously a great organization and a good group of guys. It's been pretty easy for me to fit in and it's pretty good."

The 6-foot-1, 240-pound Dzubnar, who has played in 65 career games since entering the NFL in 2015, reported to training camp at the end of July and he's been working with his new teammates during the last few weeks.

Dzubnar played in all 16 games during the 2015, 2016 and 2019 seasons. In 2019, Dzubnar recorded 12 special teams tackles for the Chargers. He ranked first or second in special teams tackles in four of his five years with the Chargers. He had a team-best 21 special teams stops in 2017.

In Tennessee, Dzubnar plans to keep playing like a wild man on special teams.

"I feel like that's why the Tennessee Titans brought me here," he said. "I can't tell you if there's a certain trick, all I know is to go 100 miles an hour with my hair on fire -- 100% effort, nonstop, nonstop, nonstop until I get to the ball carrier or whatever it is, whoever is returning. I think it's more of a mindset and attitude that I had, growing up, playing sports.

"That's helped me excel especially in special teams, because special teams to me is a dogfight every single one. Whether it's punt, punt return, kickoff, kickoff return, it's just a straight fight. If it's a one-on-one battle, it's you against the other guy. I don't like to lose. I look forward to good competition with other good special teams guys, and like I said, it's a battle. It's a fight. I like to think that I can come out on top."

Dzubnar played collegiately at Cal Poly – San Luis Obispo, where he earned All-America honors as a linebacker and was the second-leading tackler in school history with 414 stops, four sacks, seven forced fumbles and five interceptions.

With the Titans, he'll add depth at linebacker while playing under veteran inside linebackers coach Jim Haslett.

Dzubnar is also excited about being reunited with Titans special teams coach Craig Aukerman, his special teams coach for two seasons with the Chargers.

"Just from being here you can tell everyone is always excited -- it's a great organization," Dzubnar said. "The tempo is very fast, but there's a lot of excitement. Auk brings a lot of really good energy. It's go, go, go, go go, which obviously fuels everyone else and that's the way we should play. So, energy is really high, but it's great. It's exciting. Everyone's excited to be out here playing football because we've been off for so long. There's really good energy. A lot of guys are working hard. We're trying to make everyone better. So far we're doing really well.

"... Auk is great. I have so much respect for him, and what he does, and the way he does it. I'm really happy to be reunited with Auk and I think it's going to be good pairing for us."

Chances are, on Sundays this fall, you'll see Dzubnar sprinting down the field like a heat-seeking missile on special teams.

He'll be decked out in No.49.

If you say his name, well ...

"I've heard it said every single way," he said with a smile. "Announcers used to just call my name like, 'Oh, number 41 or number 48, Nick,' and then they'd stop at the last name. The correct way is (duh-ZOOB-nar). A lot of people think there's a silent 'D' or a silent 'Z.' Anyone that says something with a 'Z' I look back at that, because I don't hold anyone accountable for trying to get it right the first time."

OAK HILL TO THE NFL: ROOKIE DARRYNTON EVANS IS A BIG TALENT FROM A SMALL TOWN

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 13, 2020

Editor's note: This is the third in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. John Glennon's story on Isaiah Wilson and Joe Rexrode's story on Kristian Fulton were published earlier this week.

Situated between Daytona and Cocoa Beach on Florida's Atlantic Coast, Darrynton Evans' hometown of Oak Hill doesn't carry quite the marquee name of the Sunshine State's hot spots.

It's so under-the-radar, in fact, that the town is one of very few on Florida's east coast without its own exit on Interstate 95.

You really want to get to Oak Hill? Take the exit to one of its big neighbors — Edgewater or Titusville — and start working your way through the back roads. But don't blink. Oak Hill's population stood at 1,792 as of the last census, and if you're not careful, you'll blow through town before you know it.

"It's, umm, really small," Evans said. "We have one blinking light, one Dollar General store, one gas station and then a flea market."

Those who know football, however, are becoming increasingly familiar with the little town, which — just in case you were wondering — also marks the end of Florida's 156-mile "River of Lakes Heritage Corridor." Evans will be one of two NFL players from Oak Hill in 2020, joining safety D'Cota Dixon, who spent last season, his first in the league, on injured reserve with the Buccaneers.

Evans and Dixon attended New Smyrna High School, which has also recently produced Raheem

Mostert, who led the NFC champion 49ers in rushing last season, and linebacker Cole Holcomb, who piled up 105 tackles as a Washington Redskins rookie.

Mostert, who played for five teams in his first two seasons in the league, has found a home in San Francisco. He was among the first to reach out to Evans on social media during the draft, tweeting three simple words: "We built different!" It was a message that celebrated the New Smyrna talent pipeline, and — perhaps — served to acknowledge that Evans may turn out to be the best of the bunch.

"You guys in Tennessee got a great pick in Darrynton, and you're in for a real treat," said Mostert, who ran for 220 yards and four touchdowns in last season's NFC Championship Game victory.

"He's got that same underdog mentality as I do, always having that chip on his shoulder and wanting to go out and prove himself when people doubt him. He's really something special, and I can't wait to see him take off."

"We had our fingers crossed"

Justin Watts knows the way to Oak Hill.

As the recruiting coordinator at Appalachian State, Watts is tasked with discovering those hidden gems who have managed to elude the Power 5 conferences for one reason or another.

Watts first met Evans at New Smyrna High in 2015. He expected to find a back who was a little too small to excite the bigger programs. He was pleasantly surprised when he first spotted Evans in the weight room.

"At our level, you kind of expect to see a slighter-built athlete, but Darrynton was built a lot better and was a lot more powerful looking than I expected," Watts said. "Then you start watching a little film of him, and you see what speed he had and how explosive he was."

What Watts also saw were intangibles such as effort and determination, a possible byproduct of a little-brother syndrome. Evans and Eugene Mostert, Raheem's younger brother, competed for years with their big brothers despite an age difference of about half a decade.

"(Darrynton) was definitely one of those kids that wanted to play with the big boys," Mostert recalled. "He felt like he was too advanced to play with the smaller kids, and he wanted to get better by playing with us. I was the same way growing up. I wanted to prove myself against the big dogs. That's the mindset you had to have down there."

Watts was confident he'd found a talent in Evans. But he had to sweat out the next several months, hoping Evans wouldn't attract too much attention and earn an offer from a Power 5 school. The palms of the Appalachian State coaching staff grew especially sweaty when Evans turned in a strong performance at the University of North Carolina's camp. But the Tar Heels were looking for backs with more size than Evans, who weighed about only 170 pounds at the time.

"The way he competed at that (North Carolina) camp with the so-called bigger names and bigger stars, we thought he outshined all of them," Appalachian State head coach Shawn Clark said. "We thought he was the best one in camp that day. So we had our fingers crossed hoping North Carolina wouldn't offer. When they didn't, we went full speed ahead."

Conquering the Cube

Appalachian State's coaches were at first uncertain where to use Evans, who had experience as a running back and wide receiver. At the time, the Mountaineers were loaded in the backfield with Marcus Cox, the school's all-time leading rusher, and future NFL player Jalin Moore.

But Clark, who was then the team's offensive coordinator, knew he had to find some way to get Evans involved. That much was clear when Evans was running conditioning sprints after practice — and finishing 5 to 10 yards ahead of nearly everyone else.

“I still remember on day one of fall camp when (Evans) was a freshman. I saw him take a little bubble screen and go about 80 yards for a touchdown,” Clark said. “I mentioned to (former Appalachian State head coach) Scott Satterfield, ‘I don’t care where he plays, just get the ball to him, especially at running back. Because he can make an offensive line look very good.’”

It wasn’t just Evans’ skills as an athlete, however, that impressed the coaching staff in the early going. An honor roll student in high school, Evans threw himself into the mental side of the game as well. He didn’t just play the game — he studied it.

“He wasn’t the usual kind of freshman, coming in and trying to find his way through,” Clark said. “He was picking the brains of coaches. I was coaching the offensive line, and we’d sit down and talk about protection schemes, the run game, where you want the ball to hit.”

That sounds like the inquisitive nature of a youngster who made quick work of the Rubik’s Cube in high school. True story: Inspired by a member of the swim team who solved it, Evans and five of his New Smyrna teammates bought their own cubes and set up a competition — with a tasty reward for the victor.

“We decided whoever could solve it the fastest gets a meal from every other person,” Evans said. “So I ended up getting it done about two or 2 1/2 days later. I had free meals for a week, basically. It was nice.”

‘Lit up like a Christmas tree’

Most of Evans’ contributions as a freshman came on special teams — he returned 25 kicks, one for a touchdown — and he redshirted the following season because of an injury. By 2018, Evans was shredding Sun Belt defenses, averaging 6.6 yards per carry on the way to a conference-best 1,187 rushing yards.

It was just before the 2019 season, Evans’ final year at Appalachian State, that he found himself floored by a family concern. His mother, Evelyn, was diagnosed in July with stage 1 endometrial cancer, a form of the disease that begins in the uterus. The same jovial and enthusiastic mom, who’d been in the stands for nearly every game of his career, would be forced to undergo surgery to remove the cancer.

“It hit me hard,” Evans said. “But at the same time, my mom and the rest of the family were so positive about it. She just gave it to God and that helped me. Really, she wasn’t too concerned about herself. She was more concerned about not being there for my games.”

On Oct. 31, Evelyn, only months removed from successful surgery, was back cheering for her youngest son. The retired Florida Department of Corrections probation officer, along with her husband, Darry, made the 600-mile trek up from Oak Hill, supporting Darrynton on a snowy Halloween night in Boone, N.C.

“He just lit up like a Christmas tree,” Clark said of Evans, “and it was a beautiful thing to watch.”

By season’s end, Evans had piled up 1,480 rushing yards and 18 touchdowns on the ground, adding five touchdown catches on just 21 receptions. One of the more impressive stats the 5-foot-10, 203-pound Evans compiled: Over the course of his final two seasons, he totaled 11 runs of 50 yards or more.

Where did Evans develop the kind of speed that enabled him to run a 4.4 40-yard dash at the NFL Scouting Combine? In little Oak Hill, of course, playing with the big boys.

“I was always playing with those older guys from Pop Warner through high school, and I had to find some kind of advantage to help me keep pace and play with everyone,” Evans said. “I had to find my niche and what I could do, where I could get on the field and produce. So speed has been there. I would say I just did it in college on a bigger stage.”

‘Those guys couldn’t cover him’

So now Evans must prepare himself for the NFL, the biggest stage of all.

And, thanks to the Appalachian State staff, he got a head start last fall. Every year, the Mountaineer coaches study one NFL offense and incorporate some of its principles into their own playbook. It just so happened that App State chose the Titans prior to the 2019 season.

“I don’t think there will be much teaching because he understands it,” Clark said. “I think that should make it an easy transition for him.”

While hulking Derrick Henry is still expected to get the bulk of the Titans’ carries this season, the team’s hope is that Evans can provide a change-up — a blazer who can fly past defenses that get accustomed to Henry’s power. In addition, Evans is likely to have plenty of opportunities as a third-down receiver. Sure, he only caught 21 passes in the Mountaineers’ ground-based attack last year, but Evans does show promise as a pass catcher.

“We could have him in the backfield, shift to empty and put him on a linebacker,” Clark said. “It didn’t matter whether it was Penn State, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina or Coastal Carolina. It was the same result. Those guys couldn’t cover him in space.

“He’s just a guy that does a great job understanding what you’re trying to get done on offense, whether it’s the run or pass protections. He saved us many times on protections because he just knew where the hot guy was coming from. He took a hit off the quarterback. It was just very impressive to watch him do that.”

DARRYNTON EVANS

We'll let Mostert, Evans' fellow New Smyrna alum, offer up a final juicy NFL scouting report.

"He brings a lot of unique ability in the passing game," Mostert said. "He's more like Alvin Kamara coming out of the backfield, able to catch and also take jet sweeps and do all that type of stuff. He's not just one-dimensional. He can definitely do multiple things."

High praise and high expectations?
Correct on both counts.

But who knows? If Evans can live up to those kinds of standards, he might just earn Oak Hill an exit all its own one day.

TITANS LB RASHAAN EVANS READY TO DO EVEN MORE IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 17, 2020

NASHVILLE – Rashaan Evans played like a man possessed in 2019.

The Titans linebacker led the team in tackles with 139, posting double-digit tackles in half of the team's contest. He recorded sacks, made tackles in the backfield, scored a touchdown, and in the team's playoff win at New England, was a force at the goal-line in a critical series of plays.

So, what did he do when the season ended?

Well, he acted like a man obsessed.

"I haven't stopped training since the (AFC Championship Game)," Evans said. "I took maybe a week off to kind of heal up, but ever since then I've been rolling. To be honest with you, I'm ready to play. I'm ready to go.

"Just the simple fact of just as a team we got so close to the Super Bowl game. By me having that first experience being in the NFL and having that opportunity to get to that last game, I think it definitely gave me even a bigger motivation because I know how to get there now."

Rashaan Evans: I am Ready to Play, Ready to Go

Evans, the team's first-round pick in the 2018 NFL Draft out of Alabama, in 2019 doubled his tackle numbers from his rookie season, when he tallied 63.

Playing alongside fellow inside linebacker Jayon Brown, Evans was a difference maker all season. His fumble recovery and return for touchdown in the team's regular season win over the Chiefs was his most memorable play of the year, but his two stops in the goal-line stand at Foxborough also provided more signs about what's ahead. Evans had 12 tackles in the win at New England.

Evans said he learned a lot about himself in his second year in the NFL, and it has him even more excited about his third NFL season.

"Being able to fight through anything, whether it's injuries, whether it's anything that may be trying to cause me to not be at the best of my game," Evans said. "Just my perseverance and being able to just adapt. Any situation that you get put in in the NFL is something that you can't train for, it's something that just happens out of the blue, but being able to adapt, being able to do it on the run, I think that's the main thing that I've been really proud of myself for. Then, just really as far as me, just continue to keep doing what I've been doing. Being a leader, doing all of the things as far as being in the locker room and encouraging younger guys to be the best players they can possibly be, continue to level up in that aspect, continue to do more and more and more while I'm there just to impact and help out as many people as I can and that I come across."

New Titans inside linebackers coach Jim Haslett can hardly wait to coach Evans on the field, and help him grow. Up until this point, they've only been allowed to work in the virtual offseason program.

"Rashaan was an outside linebacker at Alabama who's moved inside, so obviously he's got pass rush ability," Haslett said. "He can cover a lot of ground, he's strong, he's got power in his play and he plays hard. He plays like his hair is on fire."

Evans said he wants to be even more of a leader in 2020.

And he wants to go to the Super Bowl after coming so close last season.

He knows taking his game to another level would help the cause.

"I just feel like for any player including myself, just having your own personal goals I feel like it just helps the team collectively because if every person is striving for their own individual goals, it just makes everybody else good," Evans said. "For me personally ... (striving to be) All-Pro, Pro Bowl, being the leading tackler, all those other things are definitely something I definitely strive for, to just be the best at the things that I do.

"I feel like with the leadership thing, I think that's something that's natural. It has to be earned. It's something that you don't obtain overnight. For me, right now I'm still pursuing the journey of trying to be a guy that guys can count on. Be a guy that when a play needs to be made, they're looking for me or if they're looking for some type of person, at least be vocal in a situation like that. Not only just on the field, but off the field as well. I know I keep myself to a high standard as far as those things because I know just from the things that I do off the field, I feel like it should definitely match on the field as well. Just with the leadership thing, I think as I'm getting older, maturing, learning more and more about this organization and about this city. I think when you get those types of understanding it comes with greater responsibility for yourself to pass some of the same things you experienced and the knowledge you obtained to guys that are coming in. I think that's where that leadership role comes in and plays a big part."

FORMER ALABAMA LINEBACKER DONATES GEAR TO LOACHAPOKA HIGH SCHOOL

BY HAILEY SUTTON
WSFA 12 NEWS
AUGUST 16, 2020

LOACHAPOKA, Ala. (WSFA) - "When you go to sleep at night, if your dreams are not big enough to where you just want to jump out of your bed in the middle of the night, they're not big enough."

That was the message shared with the Loachapoka football team Friday morning as they gathered outside for a "special surprise. Thanks to Tennessee Titans linebacker Rashaan Evans, the program feels like they are a little bit closer to achieving those dreams.

"Today was a great day," said Loachapoka head coach Frederick Newton. "To see my kids smile the way they did, especially during this pandemic and what's going on, it just brings my heart up."

The Indians were gifted two different pairs of cleats to wear during games this season, along with gloves and other important equipment.

Evans and his foundation, the Razor Foundation, donated more than $40,000 worth of equipment to the players, a gift that some of them have never received.

"Nobody has ever given us nothing like this before, so it feels good to get something for the community," said senior linebacker and running back Brandon Bedgood. "Me and my teammates - some of us have never had stuff like this, so it feels good to get this stuff."

For them to come out and do that for us when they didn't have to, it was just great to see that," added Newton. "If you saw those kids over there looking at the shoes and everything, like I told someone earlier, it's like Christmas in August."

Rashaan was unable to be at the high school because of coronavirus restrictions, but even 280 miles away, he was still overwhelmed at the impact his donation made.

"It means everything. That's the biggest thing about doing what I do and the things that I live by, is trying to inspire as many people as I come across, and change as many lives as I can," said Rashaan. "I can only being in that situation where some of these guys have nothing. They have no shirt on their own backs, so to be able to have the opportunity to give shoes and some of the other gear, it definitely was a good thing for me to do."

His father, Alan, who helps out with the Razor Foundation echoed those sentiments; and is proud that his son is finding ways to make an impact in local communities.

"Him having the opportunity to play in the NFL, and make the kind of money he makes, and then to be able to give back some of what he has earned, it makes me feel good as a father because he could be doing a lot of other things with his money," said Alan. "He could be buying a Ferrari, or he could be doing something else with it, but he decided he wanted to give a portion of the proceeds of his earnings back to the community."

"I think it was a beautiful thing from some of the pictures I've seen, which really made me feel good because at the end of the day, you play football, you get all these accolades and achievements, but the number one thing is what have you done at the end of the day for other people, and I feel like this opportunity is one that was given to me, especially to do it for some kids and a community who needed it," added Rashaan.

No matter how uncertain the 2020 football season is, the Evans family hopes their donation will inspire more players to have their dreams keep them up at night.

"It motivates me a lot because we play the same position, so I feel like if he can do it, I can do it, too if I put in the same work," said Bedgood.

"To see [The Evans family], hopefully when I go in and speak to [the team] about what this meant to us, and get their opinion on what this meant to them, this hopefully will open up dreaming to them also," said Newton. "So they can be the next Rashaan Evans."

The Razor Foundation also donated gear to the Loachapoka boys and girls basketball teams last November.

A TRUSTWORTHY TARGET: TITANS TE ANTHONY
FIRKSER HEADS INTO 2020
WITH ADDED CONFIDENCE
AFTER BIG POSTSEASON

BY JIM WYATT TENNESSEE
TITANS AUGUST 25, 2020

NASHVILLE – Holding a tenuous 14-13 lead over the defending Super Bowl champions in last year's AFC Wild Card playoff game against the Patriots, the Titans faced a critical 3rd and 8 from their own 15-yard line.

Just over two minutes remained, and the Titans desperately needed a play. Punting the ball back to future Hall of Fame quarterback Tom Brady was the last thing anyone on the Tennessee sideline wanted to do.

Someone needed to step up big for the Titans, and that someone ended up being ... tight end Anthony Firkser.

Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill found Firkser open on the sideline for an 11-yard completion and a first down. The play enabled the Titans to run the clock down to just 25 seconds before punting it away. Then, the Titans sealed the win with a pick-six, and their playoff run was just beginning.

For Firkser, who caught a 12-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter of that contest, it was a moment to treasure.

Because family and friends from Boston and New Jersey gathered in the stands at Gillette Stadium in Foxborough that night – a group of roughly 30 people – it was even more special.

"It was a cool experience," Firkser said.

It was also a big step in Firkser building even more confidence with Tannehill, his coaches and teammates. Firkser caught two touchdowns in the postseason a year ago, including a 22-yard touchdown in the team's AFC Championship Game loss to the Chiefs. In three postseason games, Firkser had three catches for 45 yards and the two scores.

"That play (vs the Patriots), and all the postseason stuff helped build my confidence heading into (this) year," Firkser said. "But there are still things I need to keep improving on, and we need to keep building that trust in the passing game. And I need to keep building as an all-around tight end and being involved in first and second down more. I am excited to get started and see where this offense goes. I plan to keep working so I can do whatever is needed to help the team win."

Tannehill, who also connected with Firkser for a nine-yard touchdown catch against the Chiefs in the regular season, said he believes in the tight end.

"I have a ton of confidence in Firk, just seeing what he did last year," Tannehill said. "I saw some tape from the year before. The progress he was able to make last year with big plays in big games, I know I have a ton of confidence any time he's on the field. He's definitely a weapon for us and I'm excited that we can incorporate him this year."

Firkser, a Harvard graduate who initially entered the NFL as an undrafted free agent with the Jets in 2017, has paid his dues in the NFL. His stint with the Jets was a short one, and he then joined the Chiefs. But that experience didn't last long either.

Firkser spent time in meetings as a fullback, and he spent time on practice squads.

He joined the Titans in May of 2018 following a rookie minicamp tryout, and after being waived, he spent time on the team's practice squad. Firkser ended up joining Tennessee's roster in 2018, and it was his first real chance.

Firkser played in 12 games with the Titans in 2018, and he caught 19 passes for 225 yards and a score. In 2019, Firkser played in 15 games during the regular season, making one start. He caught 14 passes for 204 yards, with a touchdown.

Heading into 2020, Firkser is ready for what's ahead.

"Being in the system for two years already and going on a third, I feel pretty comfortable with understanding the offense," he said. "I am just trying to keep learning even more details and watching old film that we have just to keep learning and improving. There's adjustments that we've been making that (offensive coordinator) Arthur (Smith) is putting in, and different schemes we're running and concepts, so just making sure we're on point with all those. And just trying to help younger guys that are around and get them up to speed as quickly as possible."

Firkser spent most of his offseason in Nashville, working with quarterback Logan Woodside and other teammates in town.

He watched a lot of film, and he tried to identify ways he needed to improve.

Looking back at his path to the NFL, and to the Titans, Firkser is glad to be in the position he's in.

A high school basketball star who had offers from Monmouth College and New Hampshire, with interest from Dartmouth and Yale for his ability as a hoopster, Firkser is looking to make more of an impact moving forward.

He's in a tight ends group with veterans Jonnu Smith and MyCole Pruitt, and others.

"I am excited that we have guys like Jonnu and MyCole back," Firkser said. "It was tough to see Delanie (Walker) go – he was a great role model and a great person to have in the locker room and on the team. We are going to miss him a lot. But with Jonnu and MyCole back, we have a good group."

ANTHONY FIRSKER

"As for myself, I am just focused on being the best player I can be to help the team. Every rep, there is something that you can do better. Always having a growth mindset is something Arthur stresses, so we are never satisfied as an offense. Every rep there is something I can improve on for sure. I have been trying to improve and get better every year, and that's my focus heading into this year, too."

REXRODE: KRISTIAN FULTON REPRESENTS THE TITANS' BIGGEST GAMBLE OF 2020

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 12, 2020

Editor's note: This is the second in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. Click here for John Glennon's story on first-round pick Isaiah Wilson. John's story on third-round pick Darrynton Evans will run on Wednesday.

The Fulton family was gathered in a meeting room in a plush high-rise on 26th Street in New York City, listening to a pitch from representatives of Roc Nation Sports, when the door to the room opened and a familiar face appeared.

"Oh shit," Keith Fulton recalls now of his reaction at the time. "Excuse my language, but that's exactly what it was at the time. 'Oh shit.' My mom gave me a look."

Soon enough, all eyes and ears were attuned to Jay-Z — hip-hop legend, billionaire and founder of Roc Nation — who happened to be in the building on that January day and popped in to chat with Keith, potential client Kristian and their parents. Does Jay-Z happening to be in the building and popping in to chat sound like something that might be a regular thing around the Roc Nation offices when a potential client is visiting? Yes. Yes it does. Still, the conversation went beyond surface pleasantries and sales pitch.

"We chopped it up. He gave us some knowledge, some great knowledge," said Keith, Kristian's older brother by two years and his former teammate at LSU. "He was talking about Kristian's brand and how we have to be able to push his brand, get his name out there in the world. And he was stressing ownership, how big it is for African-Americans in this country to have ownership of their situation, to have that power and understand you have that power. He was preaching. I started typing some of it up on my phone as he was talking."

The idea of taking advantage of the opportunity at hand was especially appealing to the brothers because they have talked about the same thing often. Keith, a former LSU walk-on running back who graduated in 2019, has started a talent management company. Kristian is his partner and first client. They have sought the advice of several prior draftees of an NFL full of LSU Tigers. And if they needed to be reminded anymore that football is fleeting, they can just look at the jersey number Kristian will wear with the Titans.

No. 26 used to belong to the guy who was arguably the team's best defensive player in 2019. All Logan Ryan did was collect a team-leading 113 tackles, 18 passes defended and four forced fumbles, to go with 4 ½ sacks and the game-cementing pick six in the playoffs at New England, to go with one of the most mature, intelligent and commanding voices in the locker room. But he was all of 28 years old. He got exposed a few times when he had to move outside and match up with serious speed. And he made $10 million.

So he's out, still looking for a team. Ryan declined comment but said recently on the podcast of Jason and Devin McCourty that the Titans never tried to retain him, even when he said he'd be willing to sign for one season at the same salary.

Fulton is in, the No. 61 overall pick in the second round, representative of both the circle of pro football life — go younger and cheaper where you can, especially if you are paying a quarterback, says NFL roster law — and of the Titans' biggest gamble. Ryan and Jurrell Casey were pillars of this defense, and the Titans traded Casey as a salary dump and let Ryan walk in the same offseason that saw defensive coordinator Dean Pees retire and defensive backs coach Kerry Coombs take over as DC at Ohio State. The Titans are cheaper, and weaker, on defense after coming up one good half of football short of a Super Bowl because they ran out of stops against Patrick Mahomes and the Chiefs.

They are cheaper no more, and potentially stronger, if they can sign free agent Jadeveon Clowney. That would be a gamble paying off. Until his situation is resolved, assessing this team is difficult. But whether Clowney is in a Titans uniform or not, there will be pressure on Fulton to be ready right away to start and compensate in his own way for the loss of the previous No. 26.

"Those guys have already let me know about the high standard in the DB room that they have, and I've let them know that whatever they need from me, they're gonna get it," Fulton said of a group that will be led by Pro Bowl safety Kevin Byard and still includes Malcolm Butler, Adoree' Jackson and Kenny Vaccaro.

"I've spoken to the coaches about how they feel about him. They definitely feel highly about what he can do and what he can bring to the defense," Byard said of Fulton. "So I feel good about that. As far as him replacing Logan and different things like that, listen, Logan was a great player for us for three years. Last year, he had one of the best years a DB has probably had in a long time. So, to say to replace him, I wouldn't necessarily say we're replacing him because I don't think you can necessarily replace that production. If you look at his stats from last year, I think it's a stretch for anybody to replace that production. But, with what I think (Fulton) can bring as a player, be able to cover inside and outside, having him, Adoree' and Malcolm, it's pretty much pick your matchup. I think that will be good for all of us as a team. I think any time you can have versatile guys that can do both — which I feel like Logan was as well, but I feel like I don't think it's going to be a major drop-off."

The upgrade is in speed, and there's no question the Titans need more of that to contend with the Chiefs, not to mention the Ravens, Colts, Texans and whoever else may emerge in an imagined postseason push. The 5-foot-11, 197-pound Fulton ran a 4.46 in the 40 at the NFL Scouting Combine, but for a better gauge of what he brings, check out video of LSU's 2019 win at Alabama and the coverage he provided on Jerry Jeudy and Henry Ruggs III. Or check out Pro Football Focus, which ranked him the No. 2 cornerback in the draft and put him down for 11 targets, three catches, 39 yards and no touchdowns allowed with three pass break-ups in his matchups with Jeudy, Ruggs and Clemson star Tee Higgins. It probably helps that Fulton saw Justin Jefferson and Ja'Marr Chase — a teammate at Archbishop Rummel High just outside New Orleans — in practice with No. 1 overall pick Joe Burrow throwing to them.

"The best of the best, every day," said Fulton, one of a record-tying 14 LSU players to go in the draft last month.

That sounds like a value at No. 61. GM Jon Robinson said the Titans were "fortunate" they were able to stick at 61 and get a guy some projected as a first-round pick. The Titans also added a less-expensive veteran presence, 36-year-old Johnathan Joseph, whose long-term friendship with Clowney is notable. Drafting a corner was going to be a priority either way, and the addition of Fulton is only a risk if you believe a costly mistake he made in college speaks to a character issue.

The Titans did their homework, as all teams do, and don't buy that. Fulton's high school coach, Nick Monica, said: "There's nothing bad you can really say about the kid. Great kid, great student, very humble about himself. He never carried himself like a big-time recruit. You never would have known he was a five-star recruit. I can't say enough good things about him."

To hear Keith and Kristian Fulton tell it, the attempt to pass a drug test with someone else's urine ended up being a catalyst for growth. Kristian said he was worried about testing positive for marijuana, though it was a test for performance-enhancing drugs. It happened in February 2017, after a freshman season at LSU that was limited to three games because of a finger fracture. The NCAA suspended Kristian for two years.

"I don't think I'd be the person I am today if that didn't happen," Kristian said.

"Just think about it, you're the No. 1 recruit in Louisiana, you have a great career at your dream school just starting and boom, you're suspended two years," Keith said. "I feel like a lot of 18-year-old kids don't get through that. That took something away from him that he didn't realize was so important to him until then. You could just see his maturity level shooting through the roof. It taught him a lot about accountability. I think that's the best thing that ever happened to him. That and being picked in the second round — it all puts a chip on his shoulder."

The suspension was eventually reduced by a year, allowing Kristian to return to the field in 2018, or he may have ended up at a junior college or even in the Canadian Football League.

"Some teams might have dropped me for this, but I know this didn't hurt me personally," Kristian said. "It made me grow a lot. Accountability, being a leader, being a smarter player. I had a lot of time on my hands to study the game when I wasn't playing it."

It helped that Keith was with him at the time, serving as a sounding board and giver of frank advice, a relationship that goes back to Kristian following Keith around their New Orleans neighborhood. It will continue in the future. They have grieved together after losing grandfather Louis Fulton Jr., who passed away last month from COVID-19 complications. They got to visit with him shortly before that, a blessing amid the craziness of going through the draft process together.

One of the memorable moments was that conversation with Jay-Z, who addressed the one question Kristian knew he would get from every team that interviewed him.

"The most helpful thing he told me was to just tell the truth," Kristian said of Jay-Z. "Don't try too hard to impress anyone. These teams are gonna research everything about you and know everything. So just be truthful, be yourself, and the right fit will come to you."

The Titans ended up being the team, perhaps later in the draft than if Fulton had never had an issue. And Chafie Fields of Wasserman Media Group ended up being the agent. That's no negative reflection on Jay-Z and his agency, Keith said. It was just a matter of finding a place "with a family-oriented feel, with people who have a vision for after football and will be there for it."

Kristian Fulton knows how fleeting it can be, and how important it is to take ownership of your situation.

"At the end of the day," he said, "we made a business decision."

STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

5 THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT NEW TENNESSEE TITANS KICKER STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI

BY PRINCE ROBINSON
THE TENNESSEAN
SEPTEMBER 3, 2020

The Tennessee Titans agreed to terms with 14-year veteran kicker Stephen Gostkowski, the team announced Thursday.

The 36-year-old will reunite with former New England Patriots teammate, and Titans coach, Mike Vrabel.

Gostkowski worked out for the Titans earlier this week. He recently bought a home in the Nashville area.

Here are five things about Gostkowski:

He's a Madison Central grad

In 2002, Gostkowski graduated from Madison Central High School in Madison, Mississippi.

He won four varsity letters each in football and soccer, and three in baseball. He was an all-state honoree in all three sports.

Gostkowski holds the school record for longest field goal, a 55-yard kick.

Former University of Memphis great Stephen Gostkowski attends the Tigers' game against University of Connecticut in East Hartford, Conn., Friday, October 6, 2017.

Memphis roots

Gostkowski received a scholarship to play baseball for Memphis and was a walk-on for the football team. He majored in exercise and sports science.

He finished his college career with a total of 369 points, a school record, and 13th overall in FBS history by converting 70 of 92 field goals and 159 of 165 extra points.

Gostkowski was selected by the Patriots as a fourth-round pick (118th overall) in the 2006 NFL Draft.

Stellar pro career

Gostkowski holds the NFL record for consecutive extra points made with 479. For his career, he's 374-428 (87.4%) on field goal attempts, and he's scored 1,775 points.

His longest field goal was 62 yards, and he's accounted for 523 touchbacks for his career. He is only the second player in NFL history to score 500 points in his first four seasons in the league, and the first to score 1,000 points in his first eight seasons.

He has three Super Bowl rings, all with the Patriots. He is a four-time Pro Bowl selection, two-time first-team All-Pro and one time second-team All-Pro selection.

Gostkowski is a member of the NFL 2010s All-Decade team.

Consistent pedigree

There are only three players who have played in more playoff games than Gostkowski: Tom Brady, Adam Vinatieri and Jerry Rice.

Gostkowski has played in 204 career games in the NFL and has played in all 16 regular-season games 10 times. He's played in 28 playoff games, as well.

A couple hiccups

Gostkowski missed a couple game-altering kicks in the postseason. He most notably missed an extra-point attempt in the AFC title game loss against the Denver Broncos in January 2016.

He also missed a field goal and an extra point in the Patriots' Super Bowl loss to Philadelphia in February 2018. The Eagles won 41-33.

WHERE WOULD THE TITANS BE IF THEY CUT
STEPHEN GOSTKOWSKI?
NOT 3-0, FOR SURE

BY KYLE TUCKER
THE ATHLETIC
SEPTEMBER 28, 2020

It seems absurd now to suggest it was even possible, and maybe the franchise never actually considered a move that many fans would've surely supported at the time, but can you imagine if the Tennessee Titans had cut kicker Stephen Gostkowski after his Week 1 debacle in Denver?

Well, yes, of course you can imagine. Just rewind the tape to last season, when the Titans trotted out four kickers who combined to make only 8 of 18 field goals. But none of those guys was a three-time Super Bowl champion or a four-time Pro Bowl pick or the fifth-most accurate field-goal kicker in NFL history, like Gostkowski. Had he been almost anyone else, instead of the typically clutch 15-year veteran who played with Tennessee coach Mike Vrabel in New England, Gostkowski probably would've been toast after missing three field goals and an extra point in his Titans debut.

"Didn't give it much thought," Vrabel said of cutting his old friend.

In an alternate reality where they had, the Titans might be 1-2 right now. Instead, incredibly, Gostkowski has kicked this team across the finish line for the third consecutive week and Tennessee is 3-0 for the first time in a dozen years. His winner from 25 yards in Denver was technically redemption, but no one was especially relieved by that chip shot. His winner from 49 yards last week against Jacksonville was more encouraging, but he also doinked another extra-point attempt. On Sunday in Minnesota, when Gostkowski drilled the last of his six field goals in as many tries, a no-doubter from 55 yards for the lead with 1:48 to go, he was finally, fully redeemed.

The Titans, improbable 31-30 winners over the Vikings, made eight total field goals in 2019, it bears repeating. Gostkowski has now made nine straight since his early meltdown in the mountains, including some boomers: 49, 51, 51, 54 and 55 yards the last two weeks. He's gone from the worst game of his life to looking like the best and most clutch kicker in the NFL again, all in the span of 13 days. This is exactly why Tennessee signed him late in camp, just not exactly how anyone figured it would unfold.

So, what the heck happened?

"Having one week of practice might not be enough to get comfortable" as it turns out, Gostkowski conceded Sunday. What, the last-minute addition of a 36-year-old kicker coming off hip surgery makes for precarious preparation? "Obviously, I was rusty that first game, didn't feel great. Obviously played one of the worst games I've ever played. But the worst thing you can do is try to just change everything. You need to stick with what gets you there."

That includes socks. Or no socks, in his case. When Gostkowski ripped off the shoe and sock on his kicking foot and laced back up sockless in the middle of his nightmare game at Denver, it looked like a potential mental breakdown in progress. It was quite the opposite. He has not worn socks on game day since.

"I practiced all summer without them, and I don't know why I decided to put them on," Gostkowski said. "It's a little bit like baseball: If you do something and you're in a slump, you try something else and get on a roll."

He's rolling all right, and because of it, so is Tennessee. On a day when the Titans had 444 yards but managed only two touchdowns in nine possessions that reached Minnesota's 41-yard line or closer, they needed a guy who missed four kicks on opening night to be powerful and perfect.

"Steve had a day today. Appreciative of that," the always verbose Vrabel said. "Just doing his job. That's all we ask him to do."

Ho-hum, just another day at the office nailing 6 of 6 field-goal attempts in a white-knuckle comeback attempt on the road. But that's actually the secret — other than the socks — to Gostkowski's success. It's all about reducing those high-pressure situations to the intersection of mundane procedure and muscle memory. With no fans so far, that includes Gostkowski picking a spot high up in the stands that looks dead-center between the pipes and trying to kick it there.

"I just try to follow through my leg and my whole body down that path," he said. "You start seeing a few go in and they're going right where you're aiming, it's easy to walk out there with your head held high and go stroke another one. Don't let the situation get too big for you. You're still just going out there and making a kick."

Gostkowski has a love-hate relationship with his chosen trade, he said, and he definitely hated it after Denver. He said he was embarrassed, disappointed in himself. He was a reluctant hero, even after making the kick that delivered victory. It was relief that night, not pride. But then it was back to practice and the comfort of routine.

Most kickers get cut when they miss four tries in a single game, but Gostkowski isn't most kickers. He has a wisdom and a wealth of experience that Vrabel and the Titans trusted to — pun intended — kick in.

"It's just trying to find the fine line between not getting too high or too low," Gostkowski said. "I'll beat myself up for a few days, and then I'll move on. I just say, 'Screw it, I don't care anymore.' It's not going to do me or the team any good to just cower and just wilt away to nothing. So you just prove to yourself and prove to your teammates that you deserve to be there."

Mission accomplished on that front.

“He’s mentally strong. Kickers have to be in this league,” quarterback Ryan Tannehill said. “We never lost confidence in him. I know every time he steps on the field, I have a lot of confidence he’s going to make the kick.”

Gostkowski doesn’t know if he was close to getting canned after Week 1. He doesn’t seem to care. He’s enjoyed a long and successful career, and if today were his last in the NFL, he claims he’d be at peace with it. Not that he’s in a hurry to leave.

“It’s a lot more fun to be an asset than a liability,” he said after Sunday’s victory. “It’s nice not to be up here in an embarrassed state. I had my back up against the wall. It’s emotions and feelings I’ve never had before. To just keep my head down and grind and have some good results the last two weeks definitely means a lot.”

Where would the Titans be without him? They surely shudder at the thought. These have not been three aesthetically pleasing wins to open the season, but they are wins nevertheless — and 3-0 teams have gone on to make the playoffs about 75 percent of the time since 1980. In the AFC South, Tennessee leads Houston by three games, Jacksonville by two and Indianapolis by one. This is a team, and a kicker, who’ve stared down a slew of mistakes and risen above them.

“If you can find a way to win, the feeling is so much better the next day than finding a way to lose,” Gostkowski said. “And then if you’re in that situation again, whether it’s a tight game or you have to make a comeback or make a big play at the end of the game, now you’re like, ‘I’ve been here before. I know this feeling. I have confidence in this situation.’ It’s a snowball effect.”

And that, folks, is why you don’t cut this kicker, even after a four-miss day. He’s been there a bunch, and he delivered again Sunday.

DERRICK HENRY

DERRICK HENRY ON TITANS LEGEND EDDIE GEORGE: “HE IS LIKE A BROTHER TO ME”

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
SEPTEMBER 13, 2019

NASHVILLE – Time flies when you’re with Titans legend Eddie George.

Current Titans running back Derrick Henry found that out over the summer on a cross-country flight from Los Angeles to Nashville after the Heisman Trophy winners shot a commercial together.

“Eddie, he is a friend, really more like a big brother to me,” Henry said of George. “That flight from L.A. to Nashville, it was like a 3 ½ hour plane ride. I am not a long plane ride type of guy, but it was great. I enjoyed it. It was great because me and Eddie were in first class and we talked the whole flight, for 3 ½ or 4 hours.

“We talked about everything, and I was able to find out so much more about him. I can talk to Eddie about anything. He really is like a brother to me.”

George, who ran for 10,009 yards while playing from 1996-2003 with the Titans, will have his No.27 retired at halftime of Sunday’s game against the Indianapolis Colts at Nissan Stadium.

Henry, of course, will be busy. The fourth-year running back from Alabama has turned into a real workhorse for the Titans, like George was during his playing days with the team.

Henry said George has never been too busy for him.

In fact, George texted Henry after his big game on Sunday against the Browns, when he scored two touchdowns, including one on a 75-yard touchdown catch.

Henry said George has always been supportive. Last season, if you remember, Henry credited George for lighting a fire under him with a midseason pep talk, which jumpstarted his season. Henry finished last season with 1,059 yards and 12 touchdowns.

“When we talk, he is always positive,” Henry said of George. “He is always giving me knowledge. He takes time to do those things. I definitely appreciate it, because he has a lot of things going on. It is always cool for me.”

Henry said he grew up an Eddie George fan in Yulee, Florida.

Not long after he got to Tennessee, he asked the team’s video staff for some of George’s game film.

“I try to watch him,” Henry said. “But I’ve been watching Eddie since I was a kid. He was big and physical, and he used that to his advantage. He could catch the ball, and he was fast. He was just a nasty player in all aspects of his game. Not many come around like that. The Hall of Fame is just waiting for him to get there.”

On Thursday, George was listed among the 122 modern-era nominees for the Pro Football Hall of Fame’s 2020 class.

In addition to George’s No.27, the Titans will also retire Steve McNair’s No. 9 jersey on Sunday.

“9 and 27,” Henry said. “Those are two legends right there. It’s well-deserved.”

LESSONS TAUGHT BY HIS GRANDMOTHER STILL PUSH DERRICK HENRY TODAY

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
JANUARY 3, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- In his fourth season, Derrick Henry put it all together. The NFL's leading rusher is physically gifted -- at 6-foot-3, 247 pounds, he's bigger than most running backs, yet he has the speed to break a long run -- but that isn't what sets the Tennessee Titans' star apart.

Conditioning, stamina, work ethic - that's why Henry continues to run strong late in games and deep into the season. His 997 second-half rushing yards are the fourth-most in the past 30 seasons, according to the Elias Sports Bureau. Slowing him down will certainly be a priority for the New England Patriots on Saturday (8:15 p.m. ET, CBS).

"It's never going to be perfect, but you're shooting for it," said Henry, who finished the regular season with 1,540 rushing yards. "You're just trying to be the best at what you do. That's just how I always think. Man, you can have all of the talent in the world, but the hard work overrules that. When you work hard, it's definitely going to show. That's why with any athlete, we have struggles, and we have adversity, but as long as you work hard and keep your head down, you will always prevail."

That drive isn't necessarily something Henry was born with. He was taught by his family at a young age.

Derrick Henry's second-half surge

Derrick Henry's 997 second-half rush yards are the fourth-most in the past 30 seasons.

YEAR	PLAYER	YARDS
1998	Jamal Anderson	1,133

1997	Barry Sanders	1,097
2009	Chris Johnson	1,004
2019	Derrick Henry	997
2012	Adrian Peterson	984

Source: Elias

"There's always going to be adversity in life," Henry said. "I saw it growing up."

Henry looks back on his life and sees that his family never gave up when times were hard. That's where his intense work ethic comes from. He flashed a smile when he mentioned his relationship with his grandmother, Gladys Henry, who helped raise him along with his grandfather. She gave him his nickname, "Shocka," because his parents had him when they were young. Henry's dad was the youngest of 14 children.

Growing up, Henry did everything with his grandmother.

"We had a special relationship," Henry said. "I couldn't do anything without her, and she couldn't do anything without me."

His grandfather died in 2000, and then it was up to his grandmother to make ends meet. Her drive to provide was an example for Henry as he worked his way through the football ranks.

"She had to continue to work and provide for us as a family," Henry said. "Watching her get up when she didn't want to, she worked at the Holiday Inn cleaning the hotels, so we had food on our table, clothes on our back and a roof over our head. That's what I will always remember. It's what she instilled in me. Always work hard. Always keep God first. Prayer is powerful. That's what I believe in, and it's what I will one day teach my kids."

Titans running backs coach Tony Dews said Henry is his own worst critic. Dews said the fourth-year back came to him in the offseason with areas in which he wanted to improve. Dews studied tape of running backs to find ways Henry could improve.

"Derrick is really conscientious about everything," Dews said. "He wants to be the absolute best at everything. He and Dion [Lewis] are very competitive with each other. Dion has done a really solid job over the past couple of years in pass protection, so they share things, and obviously, Derrick doesn't want to be outdone by Dion, so it becomes a competitive thing.

"The biggest thing about Derrick is when he watches himself and sees something he doesn't like, he wants to correct it. I would say that is what motivates him -- watching himself as much as anybody else."

Henry has gotten better as a receiving option out of the backfield. His 18 receptions for 206 yards and two touchdowns during the regular season were close to his receiving numbers from the previous two seasons combined (25 receptions, 235 yards, one TD).

✓ @TDavenport_NFL

Derrick Henry reflected the everyone must improve their game mantra. Feels he has to improve on each and everything. #Titans Tennessee's passing game, fueled by quarterback Ryan Tannehill and rookie wideout A.J. Brown, has been a big part of the Titans' success. But Henry's 549 yards and six touchdowns in December have been arguably as important. His coaches and teammates have the utmost respect for the work Henry puts in during the week.

"The one thing that I tried to figure out a few years ago was that I don't think I have to motivate him," coach Mike Vrabel said.

Added center Ben Jones: "Seeing him in person and how hard he works, he's grinding every day. He wants to be the best guy on the field, and you want to block for a guy like him. He's just a physical specimen out there. He's a monster."

DERRICK HENRY

Opposing coaches have noticed, too. Despite the sore hamstring, Henry gained 103 yards on 18 carries and scored two touchdowns last month in a pivotal victory over the Oakland Raiders.

"This man will not get tired," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said via conference call. "He won't do it. I'd like to see the GPS numbers on this guy. I mean, he can run fast for a long time. He can run hard for a long time. There's no tag-team wrestling. He doesn't have to reach over and get another back to get him out of there. He can go and go hard. He's a great back with incredible stamina. The more you give it to him, the longer the game goes, the better he plays. He reminds me of Eddie George that way."

It's not just self-reflection and hard work that get Henry hyped before he takes the field. Music plays a role, too. He listens to a song by Meek Mill called "King" before every game, something that has become a tradition for him. The title of the song fits Henry, who goes by the name "KingHenry_2" on Twitter and "last_king_2" on Instagram.

The name of the song also fits the king's ransom Henry is likely to receive after his contract expires after this season.

"I ain't worried about that," Henry said to a reporter in May about money. "Next question. No concern for me. This is football. I fell in love with it before the money. I love this game."

AS DERRICK HENRY RUNS PAST AND THROUGH OPPONENTS, IT BEGS THE QUESTION: ARE WE SEEING THE MAKINGS OF AN ALL-TIME GREAT?

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
JANUARY 15, 2020

When the Titans lined up on third-and-1 at their own 28 midway through the third quarter last Saturday, Baltimore's M&T Bank Stadium rocked in anticipation.

The Ravens, trailing just 14-6 at the time, stood one big stop away from seizing momentum in the divisional playoff games.

That's when Titans running back Derrick Henry took a hand-off, flattened 260-pound linebacker Matthew Judon two yards behind the line of scrimmage, swerved past cornerback Brandon Carr and roared 66 yards down the field, finally getting hauled down at the 6-yard line. The crowd fell silent. The Titans scored a touchdown three plays later. The Ravens never threatened again.

Henry's run, his biggest on a night when he carried 30 times for 195 yards, was the latest example of dominance for a back whose exploits are fast becoming the stuff of legend.

Seriously.

When Henry finished off the 2018 season with a four-game run of 87 carries for 585 yards and seven touchdowns, it was impressive. Very impressive. But what he has done during the 2019 season, especially over the last couple of months, is sheer madness.

According to the NFL Network, Henry's total of 1,273 rushing yards in the past eight games is the best for any back in an eight-game span in the history of the league.

Which gives rise to at least one question: Are we watching something truly unique unfold before us in the 6-3, 247-pound Henry, who is both powerful enough to lead the NFL in yards after contact this season and fast enough to have scored the most touchdowns of 65-plus yards (seven) over the past three years?

Sure, Henry's career is just four seasons old, and — incredible as it seems now — he started just three games in his first two years. But he just became the first player in the Super Bowl era to top 180 yards in three straight games, and — even more impressive — his career yards-per-carry average of 4.8 now leads all active NFL running backs. Is it possible we could be witnessing the early to middle stages of one of the league's all-time greats?

"I definitely believe that," says NFL on CBS analyst Trent Green, a quarterback for 15 years in the league. "Those numbers you're talking about, those are historic-type numbers. When you think about the history of the league, you're talking about guys like Jim Brown or Walter Payton or Barry Sanders or Thurman Thomas, Emmitt Smith, guys like that. That's some pretty impressive stuff."

This is Earl Campbell-esque

It's Henry's combination of power, size and speed that makes him such a rarity, so fascinating to watch.

His speed is perhaps the most surprising element, since he looks more like an outside linebacker than he does a running back. But when Ravens cornerback Marcus Peters tackled Henry just short of the goal line on his 66-yard jaunt last Saturday, it marked one of the few times we've seen Henry get caught from behind on a longer run. Henry leads the league in 60-plus yard runs (6) over the past four seasons, ranks second in 50-plus yard runs (8) and is tied for second in 40-plus yard runs (8).

* BREAKAWAY BIG BACK

Player	Team	Size	+	60
runs			+ 60 TDs

Derrick Henry	Titans	6-3, 247
6	5
Saquon Barkley	Giants	6-0, 233
5	4
Leonard Fournette	Jaguars
6-0, 228	5	2
Isaiah Crowell	Raiders	5-11, 225
4	3

* Since 2016 including regular season and postseason

Those aren't traditional "big-back" numbers.

"I played with Eric Dickerson, and he had world-class speed, but that's what (Henry) has, too," says the NFL Network's Brian Baldinger, who spent 11 years in the league as an offensive lineman. "It's not like the explosive speed of some backs. It's a slow build. But by the time he gets 10 yards down the field, and he starts opening up that stride ... that's when he basically separates himself. That's basically how he won the rushing title, based off a lot of long runs that chewed up a lot of long yardage."

As for the power, one can measure it in a couple of ways: Numerically, Henry led the league in yards after contact, posting 1,268 of his 1,540 yards (more than 80 percent) after first contact, per Pro Football Focus. Visually, just rewatch his 66-yard run against the Ravens, when Henry hammers Judon to the ground with a shoulder before taking off toward the end zone. That was his 14th attempt of the game, on a night he'd wind up carrying the ball 30 times for 195 yards.

"Derrick's durability — his ability to eat carries, then come back the next week and eat carries, then come back the next week and eat carries, I mean, this is Earl Campbell-esque," says Charles Davis, football analyst for FOX NFL and the NFL Network. "This is what Earl did his entire career until his body just couldn't take it anymore."

Then there's the Henry wild card: the stiff arm. It was on full display against the Ravens when he spun Baltimore safety Earl Thomas — the same Earl Thomas who questioned the Patriots’ desire to tackle Henry the previous week — around with a pair of lefthanders on a key 27-yard pick-up. But it was even more memorable last season, when Henry delivered a handful of righthanders en route to a legendary 99-yard touchdown run against Jacksonville.

DERRICK HENRY

“Physically, he’s just literally different than everybody else,” Baldinger says. “You can’t get to his body. With that stiff-arm and the way he runs ... guys are trying to get to his body, but when he puts his arm out, you physically can’t get to his legs or mid-section.”

Added Green: “With his size, he’s so much bigger than the average defensive back. It’s like the big kid and little kid on the playground. He puts his hands out and you can’t get to him.”

Who’s Henry like?

So who are the best NFL stars — of today or yesteryear — when it comes to evaluating Henry’s talent?

A couple of names came to mind for Davis. In terms of power, Davis recalled Kansas City’s former hulk of a running back, 6-1 and 253-pound Christian Okoye (1987-92), known as “the Nigerian nightmare” in reference to his native country. But Henry’s all-round talent also pointed to Campbell, the 5-11, 232-pound battering ram and former Houston Oilers’ star. He’s in the Pro Football Hall of Fame after piling up more than 9,400 rushing yards in just eight seasons.

“This run (Henry’s) on right now, he’s Earl Campbell with a little less speed,” Davis says. “Earl Campbell could flat-out go, but everything else, you’re seeing very similar things, like people deciding whether they really want to tackle this guy or not. That was Earl. I think Earl could get to the perimeter and turn upfield and lead you a little better than Derrick Henry. But we’re kind of quibbling a little on that one.”

Baldinger again referenced his former Indianapolis teammate, the 6-3, 220-pound Dickerson, as a comparison in at least one category. On his way to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Dickerson racked up nearly 3,000 carries — posting more than 300 attempts in five seasons. Henry carried 303 times during the regular season this year, and has since added 64 carries in two playoff contests.

“(Dickerson) could give you 30 carries a game and not look tired, just the way Derrick does,” Baldinger says. “From that standpoint, there are very few backs that have the physical make-up that can take the pounding, deliver the pounding, have all those carries and never get worn down.

“Emmitt Smith was another one of those backs. But we just don’t see backs that can deliver that punishment and handle the punishment for a long time now.”

* POWER AND PRODUCTION

Player	Team	Attempts	Yards	YPC
Derrick Henry	Titans	804	3,833	4.8
Adrian Peterson	Redskins		3,036	14,216 4.7
Ezekiel Elliott	Cowboys		1,169	5,405 4.6
Mark Ingram	Ravens	1,523	7,025	4.6
LeSean McCoy	Chiefs	2,447	11,071	4.5

* Leader in yards per carry among active RBs with at least 750 carries

But both Baldinger and Green tossed out one name for comparison — Eddie George — that’s very familiar to Titans fans. The 6-3, 235-pound George hammered and thumped his way to 10,441 yards in nine seasons (1996-2004), eight with the Oilers/Titans.

“I remember watching Eddie at Ohio State and seeing the power and speed, and thinking there’s no way (George) could continue that style of running in the NFL,” Green says. “But he did. You remember those classic battles between he and the Ravens’ defense. Those were some of the most physical football games I can remember watching. But he also had the ability to take it the distance.”

The numbers show Henry is more of a breakaway threat, though, as George only posted four career runs of 40-or-more yards, just one after his rookie season.

“Eddie had a great career and he was a great runner,” Baldinger says. “That’s a good comp, but Eddie didn’t have the speed, the breakaway speed, that Derrick does. Derrick’s ahead of Eddie there.”

So who comes to mind for you when it comes to Henry’s mix of power, speed and production? Some other names that should perhaps be in consideration — players who combined power and speed in their game — include Adrian Peterson, Marshawn Lynch, Bo Jackson, Jerome Bettis, Jamal Lewis and Corey Dillon.

Then again, perhaps Henry is well on his way to carving out his own name and identity. On Saturday, he’ll be shooting for his fourth career playoff game with 150 or more rushing yards, which would tie Terrell Davis for the most in the NFL’s Super Bowl era.

Not bad for a second-round pick who had a total of four 100-yard games in his first three seasons in the NFL.

“I’ll be interested in seeing how it all comes down for him as we go down the road,” Davis says. “But boy, it’s fun to watch since I don’t have to tackle him.”

DERRICK HENRY

DERRICK HENRY'S MASSIVE SUCCESS HAS COME THANKS TO GROWTH AND HUMILITY

BY LUKE WORSHAM
ATOZSPORTS.COM
JANUARY 17, 2020

Derrick Henry is an invaluable asset to the Tennessee Titans. He's been the primary driving force behind the team's impressive run to the AFC Championship.

His success is all the more impressive when you take a second to remember that Henry's NFL career hasn't always been blue skies and rainbows.

It was just last September when Henry evaluated his performance to start the 2018 season by saying, "It's been trash play, and it's unacceptable as far as me and my position." January of 2018 saw Henry criticize himself for being "soft" in his first career start.

The Titans' behemoth running back has come a long way over the last few seasons—trekking a journey of growth that required selflessness and plenty of looks in the mirror.

BEGINNING AS A BACKUP

It was on the heels of a trade for Pro Bowl RB DeMarco Murray that the Titans drafted Henry in the second round of the 2016 NFL Draft. The Alabama product took a backseat to Murray, who led the AFC in rushing during Henry's rookie season.

Henry did get plenty of opportunities, despite Murray being firmly entrenched ahead of him on the depth chart. The Titans ran the ball a lot that year, so Henry saw 110 carries, and he racked up over 500 yards from scrimmage.

The future looked bright for Henry, especially since Murray was nearing the age of 30—often a death sentence for a running back's career.

YEAR-TWO WOES

However, in 2017, it was Henry who declined.

Murray struggled with injuries throughout the season, which gave Henry a good amount of opportunities. He was not able to take advantage.

In nine games out of the eighteen the Titans played in the 2017 season, Henry's yards-per-carry average was fewer than 3.25. In six of those games, his average was fewer than 2.5.

Henry made his first-career start in Week 17 and posted a major dud, carrying the ball 28 times in the game and posting a mere 51 rushing yards. That gave him a pitiful average of 1.82 yards per carry.

It was after that game that Henry made the aforementioned comment about being "soft."

"I didn't run like myself," he added. "I wasn't really happy."

Henry rebounded the next week in the Titans' playoff win over the Chiefs, showing glimpses of his abilities in an impressive performance.

Just one week later, though, against the Patriots, "soft" Henry was back. In that game, he carried the ball 12 times for just 28 yards, a 2.33 YPC average.

BLOWING HIS OPPORTUNITY

The following offseason, Murray retired, paving the way for Henry to be the Titans starter.

When the team signed veteran RB Dion Lewis to a pricey contract in free agency, it was clear that his role would be as a compliment, not as competition, to Henry.

In his new role as the Titans' undisputed bell-cow, Henry continued to struggle.

Instead of plowing forward with the football, he often was too patient. If there wasn't a clearly visible hole between the tackles, he would resort to bouncing the play outside, often leading to him being pushed out of bounds by a cornerback.

He looked almost as if he is trying to defend himself against being tackled, rather than trying to be the aggressor that he now has the reputation of being.

Henry surpassed 3.2 yards per carry just once in the Titans' first seven games of the 2018 season. As he continued to struggle, he saw fewer opportunities.

Lewis' role increased, and the Titans even resorted to getting career-reserve player David Fluellen involved.

Simply put: Henry's third season was going about as poorly as could have been imagined.

"It's been trash play, and it's unacceptable as far as me and my position," Henry told the Titans' official website at the end of September.

"The position I play, I have to be more physical, and I have to make more explosive runs. I have to help this offense in a big way that I've always talked about that I want to do."

GETTING IT FIXED

That's when Henry had his famed-telephone conversation with legendary Titans running back and Heisman-winner Eddie George, who gave Henry some hard truths.

"He shot me straight," Henry said, via ESPN. "It was what I needed to hear. He told me I needed to be more physical and finish runs, make the defense pay. He told me I could play better, and I wasn't playing to my potential. It gave me a different outlook."

Just a few weeks later, Henry posted one of the greatest single-game performances by a running back in NFL history. That's far from hyperbole.

The once replacement-level back carried the ball 17 times for 238 yards and four touchdowns, including his now-iconic 99-yarder.

“I had a front-row seat to it, it was pretty awesome,” QB Marcus Mariota said after the game. “It’s hard to put it into words. I think he is more than deserving of it, he was kind of due for one of those. Some of those runs were pretty incredible.”

Since then, Henry has been one of the NFL’s premier backs. He’s become a living, breathing tour de force for the Titans offense.

“He’s able to, I would say, run multiple schemes, whether it be gap schemes, zone schemes, wide zone,” Vrabel said. “That’s something I feel like he’s improved at.”

“He’s learned to run behind his pads,” George said. “The game has slowed down for him.”

WHERE HENRY IS NOW

Henry once struggled to be more efficient than his backups. Now, he’s putting up ridiculous stat totals and, along with help from QB Ryan Tannehill, he has carried the Titans to the AFC Championship.

He’s run for over 180 yards in back-to-back playoff games, he ran for more yards against a Bill Belichick-coached Patriots team than anyone ever has in the postseason and his 1,273 rushing yards over his last eight games are the most in a stretch of that length in NFL history.

To get from where Henry was to where he is now, it took more than just a phone call on with George. It took character.

Luckily for the Titans, Henry has plenty of that. He is extraordinarily selfless, self-critical, and he always puts his teammates first.

If he shows excitement because of his individual success, it’s only because of the fact that it helps the team as a whole.

Those same attitudes applied during Henry’s struggles.

“I look at it as adversity. Everybody has adversity in their life, and I’ve had plenty of adversity within this sport. I just had to look at myself in the mirror and, you know, be a man about it and just overcome it.”

By any estimation, Henry did indeed handle his adversity like a man. As a result, he’s the man that no NFL defense wants to see as the postseason concludes.

TRAINING DERRICK HENRY: AN INSIDE LOOK AT THE RUSHING CHAMPION'S INTENSE WORK-OUT REGIMEN

BY JOHN GLENNON
BROADWAY SPORTS
MEDIA
AUGUST 19, 2020

Only a few moments after the Titans trudged off the field following their season-ending playoff loss to Kansas City, Melvin Sanders' cellphone began buzzing.

The Dallas-based professional trainer looked at it first in disbelief, then realized he probably shouldn't be so shocked after all.

On the other end of the line was Titans running back Derrick Henry, who was FaceTiming Sanders from the locker room in Arrowhead Stadium. Henry's message to Sanders, delivered with the sights and sounds of frustrated Titans teammates in the background, was succinct and simple:

"He just said, 'It's time to get back to work,'" Sanders said. "I said, 'Dude, you just finished the season. Let your body recover first.' But he didn't want to hear any of that. I'm just like, 'You know what? This kid's different.'"

Said Henry by way of explanation: "After that game, I was definitely motivated, so I was just ready to get back at it. That's what I like about Melvin. Anytime I hit him, he's ready to work. That's the type of mindset he has – me and him both."

"He's just a freak, really ... To be that good and still work that hard, it goes without saying, is unreal."

Melvin Sanders on Derrick Henry

The post-playoff loss phone call was but another example of a strong player-trainer bond that started to form more than three years ago, a relationship that's since proven very beneficial to both Henry – and by extension – the Titans.

But Sanders' offseason training skills – combined with Henry's insatiable appetite for work – have helped to craft a truly spectacular physical specimen. Want some visual evidence? Check out some of the eye-opening Internet clips featuring Henry's work with Sanders, a former NBA player who's now the Founder/Director of SandersFit Performance Center in Dallas.

In one, Henry, the NFL's leading rusher last season, alternates between lifting almost 500 pounds on a trap bar and making dynamic box leaps to the top of a 42-inch platform. In another, a shirtless Henry is charging up a Dallas hill repeatedly, beginning the ascent with quick-footwork drills and then turning to catch a medicine ball a few steps later. Did we mention Henry can bench-press close to 400 pounds? And that he squats more than 500 pounds?

"He's just a freak, really," Sanders said. "But honestly, I think it's a mental-first thing with him. He's got such a strong mental capacity to be pushed. Physically, his legs are super strong, obviously. His upper body is strong. I can't pick one thing where I'd say, 'Hey, he needs to work on this.' I give him a hard time and tell him he's slow, but he's fast as hell. I just have to give him a hard time about something because he does everything so well in the weight room."

Henry is every bit as complimentary toward Sanders, who trains a number of professional athletes including Dallas Cowboys quarterback Dak Prescott and running back Ezekiel Elliott. The Titans running back met Sanders prior to his second season in Tennessee, during an offseason trip to Dallas. Henry's girlfriend had friends who recommended Sanders' facility, and after just one workout there, Henry said "the rest was history," as he's been going there ever since during the offseason.

Henry appreciates the fact that Sanders, a fellow pro, understands what he's looking for in terms of a long, durable and productive career. The 26 year-old Henry also likes the way the 39 year-old Sanders motivates him, refusing to let complacency set in despite the Pro Bowlers's physical feats on the football field.

"Melvin is like a big brother," Henry said. "I love him because he always pushes me. There's never a limit with him. It's always above and beyond, always working. Even on days where I might be like, 'Man, I don't want to go today,' he pushes me.

"And he works out hard as well. So you've got to try to outwork him and what he's doing. I just love the intensity he brings every day, him pushing me and everybody in that gym."

In truth, of course, Henry doesn't need much in the way of pushing. Sanders calls Henry a one-percenter, which he defines as "a person that brings it every day, challenges himself to get better without anyone having to push him." The relentless pursuit of perfection and the desire to be the greatest, Sanders said, is the best way to describe Henry's offseason mindset.

"I've got to do these for my stiff-arms, when I push people off me."

-Derrick Henry

If anything, Sanders has to be careful not to let Henry overwork himself during the offseason, especially after seasons like 2019, when the fourth-year running back led the NFL with 303 regular-season rushing attempts. Henry took his share of lumps and bumps, gaining 1,268 of his 1,539 yards after contact, per Pro Football Focus.

So for the first few weeks, Sanders concentrates on flexibility and mobility work, which involves all types of stretching – dynamic, active and static. Light strength training – higher reps and lower weight – comes in the next phase, followed at last by heavier weights, when Henry starts doing things like sled pushes and dead lifts. He eventually tapers his workout back down as training camp nears.

DERRICK HENRY

Running the hills? That's just an added bit of fun.

"You don't see many guys out there running those hills, but Derrick loves it," Sanders said. "To be that good and still work that hard, it goes without saying, is unreal. But the uphill work is just something that builds more speed and more power.

"A lot of times you hear guys talk about guys talk about running downhill, right? Derrick seems like he's constantly uphill because he's constantly pushing people off. So we work a lot of that kind of thing in there, keeping it fun and letting him know, 'Hey, we do pay attention to what you do on the field.'"

Henry visits his workout facility five or six times per week, said Sanders, compared to three or four times per week for many of the other elite athletes. Vacations? Henry doesn't take many, preferring to stick with Sanders and the strict workout schedule.

"I think me just working with (Sanders) and him wanting me to get better (is why I'm such a regular)," Henry said. "It's me seeing him want me to get better and be the best that I can be. It really motivates me and I just love being motivated, love staying in shape, love working out. When I'm not, it bothers me, and I think he's the same way.

"That's just a mindset me and him have. Don't take too many off days if you don't have to. Just keep working and getting better."

Sanders said he gets a chuckle out of the way Henry finishes up a lot of the offseason workouts.

No how matter how intense the exercises, no matter how much weight has been lifted, Henry often manages to find enough strength to power through a few sets of shoulder shrugs at the end. Why add more to the plate, Sanders asked Henry?

"He told me, 'I've got to do these for my stiff-arms, when I push people off me,'" Sanders said. "I was like, 'Well, I can't argue that. You go do as many shoulder shrugs as you want.'"

'THEY DON'T HAVE A CHANCE': WHY DERRICK HENRY'S STIFF-ARM IS SO EFFECTIVE FOR TITANS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN

SEPTEMBER 18, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Derrick Henry takes a bully approach to running the ball. When he's on the field, he's like Deebo from the movie "Friday" -- terrorizing anyone who crosses his path.

"My aiming point is the head because I want to be disrespectful," the Tennessee Titans running back said. "I want to throw them to the ground. If you get them good on the head and push them down, they don't have a chance."

Most of Henry's explosive runs include one common denominator: the stiff-arm. Henry's rare blend of size (6-foot-3, 247 pounds), speed and strength make life difficult for opposing defenses.

"He's like a defensive end playing running back," former Titans running back Chris Johnson said. "He's so big and his arms are so long, it's hard to get into his body and get a good tackle on him. I don't think a lot of people understand how hard it is to tackle a guy that has a good stiff-arm."

Derrick Henry stiff-armed A.J. Bouye and other Jaguars on his historic 99-yard run.

Using the stiff-arm came naturally to Henry because of his long arms. It was one of the ways Henry first started breaking tackles when he played Pop Warner football.

The stiff-arm remained in Henry's toolbox as he worked his way up the ranks through Yulee High School, then to the University of Alabama, where he won the Heisman Trophy -- which fittingly includes a statue of former pro running back Ed Smith using a stiff-arm.

Henry had decent numbers during his first two NFL seasons, but he became a bona fide punisher during the 2018 season after a meeting with former Titans great Eddie George, who implored him to "impose his will" on defenders.

"When I talked to Eddie, it was mind over matter. It's either going to be you or me and it ain't going to be me," Henry said of his conversation with George.

Henry responded by rushing for 625 yards in December 2018, two months after talking to George. His record-tying 99-yard run in Week 14 against the Jacksonville Jaguars featured at least four stiff-arms and a close call with teammate Corey Davis, who was trying to get a downfield block on the play.

"He was about to stiff-arm me! Derrick was in attack mode," Davis said.

The franchise-record 238 rushing yards Henry gained against the Jaguars put him on the map as one of the hardest players to bring down. Now Henry's stiff-arm is known across the NFL, with defensive players strategizing how to overcome it.

"Definitely one of the best, if not the best, in the league," Denver Broncos safety Justin Simmons said of Henry. "He's such a big guy so when you get out into open space, he's athletic enough to just kind of leap over you or use his long arms. He's able to extend his arm before you can even make contact with his body. It's tough.

The Titans use a helmet on a stick during individual periods in practice to help Henry practice his stiff-arm while Vrabel tries to punch the ball out.

"The best way to defend it is to get multiple guys to the football, trying to eliminate as many one-on-ones as you can, try and meet him in the hole before he kind of gets a head of steam and can break out to the second level."

Indianapolis Colts linebacker Darius Leonard has to face Henry twice a year, so he's no stranger to the 2019 NFL rushing king's stiff-arm.

"You gotta prep yourself mentally and physically to say how you're going to attack him and get him down," Leonard said. "You have to be smart. You know he has a nasty stiff-arm. If he has an angle to the sideline, I know he's gonna hit me with a stiff-arm so I get ready to try to break the stiff-arm down then squeeze, wrap and roll."

Of all the stiff-arms Henry has dished out, his favorite came in Tennessee's 28-12 divisional playoff win over the Baltimore Ravens last season, when Henry stonewalled safety Earl Thomas twice on a 27-yard run. The Titans like to utilize stretch plays to get Henry into the alley where he can use his long arms to ward off linebackers and defensive backs as he squares his numbers up and gets downhill.

It's a sound strategy, but it doesn't work every time. When asked who's the toughest player to stiff-arm, Henry mentioned a former division rival-turned-teammate.

"I tried to do it on [Jadeveon] Clowney once. He's long and he's lengthy, so that didn't really work on him," Henry said.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel was watching clips of a Titans game against the Dallas Cowboys and noticed defensive players started to go low on Henry to avoid his stiff-arm. Vrabel decided it was time to add a new wrinkle to practice, a helmet on a stick.

"It was something that I had seen on TV," Vrabel said of the helmet on a stick used in drills. "I said, 'Hey we should probably get a couple of these.' It's similar to maybe a defensive player being cut blocked by an offensive player, that if you don't take your eyes and your hands down to the target, they're going to get into your legs, so you really have to focus on that helmet area. That's where we saw people attacking Derrick [Henry] and try to tackle him that way."

This year, they are working on another addition in which Henry fakes a stiff-arm to get the defender off balance, then he recoils and strikes him to the ground.

Added Henry, "I love using a stiff-arm, so they brought that [helmet on a stick] in to help me practice throughout the week. This is what it's all about, getting better at the things that I'm good at."

DERRICK HENRY'S THROWBACK NATURE MAKES HIM UNIQUELY GREAT | ESTES

BY GENTRY ESTES
THE TENNESSEAN
OCTOBER 18, 2020

Derrick Henry is a generational talent who happened to be born into the wrong generation.

He could have given Jim Brown a run. He'd have been perfectly suited for the 1980s and those big, impossibly fast running backs like Eric Dickerson, Herschel Walker and Bo Jackson.

Such comparisons are lofty, yet they're looking more appropriate each week.

What we're witnessing from Henry is so rare as to suggest greatness, the kind that gets immortalized on NFL highlights and turns pretty good teams into great ones. Sunday's thrilling 42-36 overtime win over the Texans at Nissan Stadium – after which Titans coach Mike Vrabel appropriately said Henry took over the game and put the team on his back – was just another example of what was already on minds:

“To be honest,” receiver A.J. Brown said, “Derrick is very special.”

Whether Henry is the NFL's best running back or not is debatable. What is not is that there's no one like him.

Henry isn't the future of football, though. He is its past. It's like he just stepped out of a time machine, determined to prove those great NFL backs of yesteryear would be just as impactful now.

He's a throwback in every sense of the word, hard-working, physically dominant on the field and refreshingly humble off it.

After 212 rushing yards and so much on-field heroism Sunday – especially the 94-yard touchdown just as the game was slipping away

– Henry walked into a press conference and explained that play as follows: “We scored,” going on to stress that it was great blocking that made it happen.

“I'm praising my teammates,” Henry said. “Those guys are incredible. Other guys make plays. Wasn't me. I just had to go out there and do my job.”

Henry repeatedly praised backup Jeremy McNichols: “He don't show up in the stats that much, but he does a great job for us.” Henry was asked about quarterback Ryan Tannehill as an MVP candidate and lit up: “M-V-P! Let's start the campaign right now.”

Not every superstar in the NFL is a prima donna, but there are enough of them to make you admire the way King Henry always tries to sound and how hard he has worked to get to this point in his career.

Teammates have to love that about him. They marvel at Henry's ability, yes, but “when you get over here and meet the guy, get to know him, I think I became one of his biggest fans,” said recently signed linebacker Jadeveon Clowney.

Only in an era like this one, which undervalues running backs and overthinks itself into third-down specialists, could someone like Henry – Heisman Trophy in hand – ever have fallen into the second round of the 2016 draft. Just think: Linebacker Kamalei Correa, whom the Titans barely used and just traded to the Jaguars to swap a seventh-round pick for a sixth-round pick, was drafted three picks ahead of Henry.

Only in the current football climate could the Titans, after drafting Henry, need years to figure out what they had. They spent millions of dollars and many snaps on Dion Lewis before finally realizing good things usually happen when you keep giving the football to No. 22 and stay committed to it. Once that sunk in for good, a middling team nearly reached the Super Bowl – and has started this season 5-0.

Only in present times, though, could conventional football wisdom still disagree with Henry receiving a pricey, long-term contract this past offseason. The Titans were reluctant. They'd used the franchise tag. Henry probably would have played under it, too, had he not agreed to a hometown discount, so to speak, and a team-friendly deal.

Henry's willingness to do that, I believe, can be tied to something he said Sunday when asked about his humility and reluctance to brag about himself.

“Because it can be here today and gone tomorrow,” Henry said. “I'm tremendously blessed. God has blessed me tremendously, me and my family, so I'm appreciative every day I get to wake up and live my dream. A lot of guys don't get an opportunity like this.”

This season, Tannehill cost the Titans about $22.5 million against the salary cap. The price tag for Clowney and Vic Beasley collectively was about the same as Tannehill, and those two pass-rushers don't yet have a Titans sack between them.

So that $6 million for Henry – it'll increase the next three years – looks like quite a bargain, huh?

It might end up being the best money the team has ever spent.

AMANI HOOKER

TITANS SAFETY AMANI HOOKER AIMS TO PLAY FASTER IN HIS SECOND NFL SEASON

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 26, 2020

NASHVILLE – Life comes at you fast in the NFL, and that's something Titans safety Amani Hooker found out as a rookie last year.

Heading into his second season, Hooker wants to be faster.

In fact, he made it one of his goals this offseason after watching film from his rookie season.

"For me, I just felt like I could be faster, so I lost some weight," Hooker said on a video conference call on Tuesday. "I'm feeling good right now, being able to make some plays. Not just doing my job, now it's try to make some plays while I'm out there. So, definitely getting faster and just being able to, like I said, just make plays."

A fourth-round pick out of Iowa in the 2019 NFL Draft, Hooker played in all 19 of the team's games last season – 16 during the regular season, and three in the postseason.

Hooker totaled 16 tackles in the games combined (13 during the regular season and three in the postseason), and he also contributed on special teams.

With a season under his belt, Hooker said he feels more prepared to take on what's asked of him this fall.

"It's a big difference for me," Hooker said. "I feel more comfortable (this year in camp). I feel closer with the guys having been here a year. Then just from my experience last year, we went to the AFC Championship game and that's just an experience in itself. Being around these guys, being around veterans, hearing how they act, hearing how they communicate on the field, and how I can just bring that same mentality this year coming into the second season."

Hooker, who said he lost roughly seven to 10 pounds, said he feels better from a movement standpoint in practices.

Learning from veteran safeties Kevin Byard and Kenny Vaccaro has helped Hooker, who was a playmaker at Iowa, where he totaled 125 tackles, six interceptions, a sack and 3.5 tackles for a loss in his three-year career.

With the Titans, he said he's prepared to play wherever the team needs him. In 2020, Hooker could have a bigger role in situational packages on defense, in addition to his work on special teams.

"For me, I don't like to put myself in a box so I like to be able to do multiple things," Hooker said. "I don't just want to be able to be one-dimensional. I always pride myself on being able to do multiple things, whether that was rushing, or whether that was just covering, or just playing different positions. So, for myself, hopefully I could be able to do multiple things that help out the team."

SLOT MACHINE: HOW NEW TITAN ADAM HUMPHRIES WENT FROM OVERLOOKED RECRUIT TO ONE OF THE NFL'S MOST COVETED WRs

BY TRAVIS HANEY
THE ATHLETIC
JUNE 3, 2019

As Adam Humphries plunged this past winter into the deep end of the NFL free agency pool, his agents threw him a life preserver.

The value of a slot receiver had risen significantly, his reps at MGC Sports told him. Humphries, who had proven himself in four seasons with Tampa Bay, could be looking at upward of $10 million a year on the open market.

The Clemson product went undrafted in 2015 and improbably made the Buccaneers' roster after a rookie mini-camp tryout. His odds of sticking were so minuscule that Tampa had included his return flight as part of the initial invite.

A few years later, and he was looking at the possibility of an eight-figure check? For one season?

"I thought, 'Dude, that's ridiculous,'" Humphries told The Athletic in May. "I never thought there was a chance I could make that much. It was kind of mind-blowing, to go from making minimum wage in the NFL to this."

It wasn't just about the money; it was the statement behind it. The South Carolina native had spent his entire football career laboring for visibility and opportunity. In a reversal, being an NFL team's priority in free agency would show just how badly he was wanted.

There would be a fight for a player who'd spent his life in the sport undersized and overlooked.

Fending off the Patriots, Saints and others, the Titans on March 14 signed the 25-year-old Humphries to a four-year, $36 million deal.

"It's a testament to him and how he's worked," Tennessee GM Jon Robinson said.

It's not a future that he could have ever imagined when he was at Dorman High, just outside Spartanburg, S.C.

Well, no one could have.

"He just wasn't a guy you'd look at and say, 'OK, this guy will be a millionaire in the NFL,'" longtime Dorman coach David Gutshall said. "Nobody would have bought that."

For one thing, Humphries only occasionally played receiver; he was the team's best defensive back. And he was perhaps best known at Dorman for his role as the star point guard on the basketball team.

The way he had it figured, he'd most likely follow his father's path. Bill Humphries was a standout basketball player at USC Upstate (then USC Spartanburg).

"I was planning on trying to get a scholarship for basketball. Get a scholarship. Go to school. Get a degree. Maybe coach. Get a normal job," Adam Humphries said. "I never really had aspirations to play football at the highest level, because I didn't really think that was even possible."

In fact, he nearly quit football after his sophomore season in high school to focus on hoops. Coaches and friends talked him into continuing to play both.

"I realized, 'Why not try to make the most of football right now? I'm not going to get to play it the rest of my life,'" Humphries said. "I could go play pickup basketball the rest of my life and get competitive juices from that."

Now entering his fifth NFL season, and his first in Nashville, Humphries' rec league basketball career is still on hold.

Dave Gutshall was reduced to begging.

Colleges from all over the country were coming to see uber receiver prospect Charone Peake at Dorman. When they'd stop by, Gutshall, the school's head coach since 1993, would tell them about Humphries.

Humphries appeared strong and athletic. He was versatile, too, capable of playing four or five different positions.

But he was 5 foot 10. He failed recruiters' eye test.

"When you tell somebody you've got a skill kid, that's not what they're looking for," Gutshall said inside his office, across from Dorman's palatial weight room. "I guess they've got this person in their mind, like it's got to be Dez Bryant or Calvin Johnson or something like that. All of a sudden, there's Adam Humphries."

"I used to tell Adam that his biggest problem was that he was a little white boy."

The seeming lack of interest didn't stop Gutshall's efforts to shine a light on Humphries.

"It was killing me, because I knew he belonged and could play at that level," Gutshall said. "I've never worked any harder with one of my players to get a scholarship than I did Adam. I mean every time someone would talk to me, I was pushing him, telling people about him."

"I felt like he was going to get left behind."

One time, a Penn State assistant coach was watching Humphries during a basketball practice. Humphries was knocking down 3 after 3.

"The Penn State coach turned to me and said, 'Oh, well, we've got all kinds of kids like this in Pennsylvania,'" Gutshall said.

As the Penn State coach left, Humphries threw down a couple of thunderous dunks. Despite his height, or lack thereof, he can dunk flat-flooded.

“I called him over and said, ‘Adam, when there’s a college scout here looking at you, don’t be shooting 3’s. They need to see what kind of athlete you are,’” Gutshall said.

Asked about that, Humphries laughed and said he didn’t really want to go to Penn State. Too far away, he said.

One school far closer, Clemson, had always been aware of Humphries — because Gutshall never missed a chance to sell him on Dabo Swinney and his staff.

Clemson receivers coach Jeff Scott said he’d recruited Humphries’ teammate, Peake, since the ninth grade, often traveling the hour-plus to see a Dorman basketball or football game. Each time Scott was there, he heard about the “other kid” he should be recruiting.

“Their coaches were adamant that Adam could play at our level,” Scott said. “I mean, we get that a lot on the recruiting trail. Every coach has a kid that they like and maybe they don’t translate to the college level based on their size and speed. We definitely take those comments, but we have to see it for ourselves.”

What schools mostly saw was Humphries excelling on defense.

There was the time Dorman took a 7-on-7 team to Nashville. Playing against a talented team from Arkansas, Gutshall was standing near a Vanderbilt coach as the scrimmage wound down.

“We’re up by four with three seconds left to go in the game,” Gutshall remembered. “(The Vandy coach) walks over to me and points and says, ‘They’re going to go to that receiver over there. They’re going to just throw the jump ball to him.’ I looked out there at corner to see who was covering him. It was Adam.

“I kind of looked at him and said, ‘Well, they picked the wrong corner.’ And Adam intercepted it. I’m sure they looked out there and their guy was 6-4 and they said, ‘Well, that’s the one to go after.’ Nobody understood what an athlete he was.”

Humphries had a similar, acrobatic interception to seal the 2009 state title against Byrnes High, a team that included future South Carolina star Marcus Lattimore at running back.

“We were playing against a team that, if they beat us, might have not only won the state championship but the national championship,” Gutshall said. “They threw at the wrong guy. Humphries, he looked like he was at least 11 feet in the air — at least.”

There was also the time Humphries was selected for the Shrine Bowl, the annual postseason exhibition between high school stars from North Carolina and South Carolina. The South Carolina staff told Gutshall they planned to play Humphries at safety.

Gutshall asked why they wouldn’t play him at corner.

“Well, he’s not as athletic as we want our corners to be in this game,” the coach told Gutshall. “We need our corners to be a little more athletic.”

Gutshall attended a practice the following week. Humphries was lined up at corner.

“They looked at me and said, ‘He’s the best damn corner we’ve got,’” Gutshall said with a laugh.

Eventually, Gutshall had to figure out a way to show colleges what Humphries could do offensively.

He estimates that 40 schools came to Dorman’s spring game prior to Humphries’ senior year. Most of them were there to see Peake.

“I told Charone, ‘Every one of these colleges in this stadium has offered you. Adam has no offers. Understand that tonight’s going to be the Adam Humphries Show,’” Gutshall remembered.

Scott, the Clemson assistant, thinks Humphries touched the ball on the first 11 plays of the spring game. He was sensational, electric as he broke tackles and made moves in the open field. Humphries was essentially putting together a live highlight tape for all of those college recruiters.

After one of those early, game-breaking plays, Gutshall turned around from the sideline and made eye contact with Scott.

“You seen enough or do I need to keep giving it to him?” Gutshall asked Scott.

Scott laughed.

“No, Coach,” he said. “I’m good.”

Scott fished the phone from his pocket and called Swinney. The scholarship offer — the only one Humphries would ever receive from an FBS-level school — came later that day.

Humphries committed to Clemson a few weeks later. Peake, the reason Clemson ever saw Humphries, also committed to be a Tiger.

The decision still didn’t create a sense of certainty about Humphries’ future, however.

Later that year, Scott and Swinney were visiting Dorman for a basketball game. Bill Humphries, Adam’s dad, pulled Scott aside.

“Coach Scott, I need to ask you a question,” Scott remembered. “Do you truly believe that Adam can play football at Clemson?”

“Absolutely, I do,” Scott told Humphries’ dad. “We wouldn’t have offered him if we didn’t think he could.”

Humphries first turned Swinney’s head at a basketball game, months before the scholarship offer was extended.

“When I saw him play basketball, I thought, ‘This guy’s got something to him,’” Swinney said. “He’s just a winner. He’s just one of those guys. He’s going to be the best. He’s the guy who, on the playground, somebody’s picking him first — because they know they’ll win with him on their team.”

Clemson saw Humphries as a possible replacement for slot receiver Tyler Grisham, who went on to play a couple of seasons in the NFL. He’s now back at Clemson as an offensive assistant coach.

Between Grisham, Humphries and the most recent slot standout, new Oakland Raider Hunter Renfrow, the Tigers have started a New England-esque trend on the college level of unearthing unheralded talent at the position.

Perhaps by no coincidence, Swinney was a walk-on receiver at Alabama.

“I think Dabo feels for those guys,” Gutshall said. “He knows that they can play. He’s willing to take a chance on them.”

Furthering the point, Scott said Clemson is one of the only schools he knows that doesn’t do any testing at its summer camps for high school prospects.

“It’s not all about how fast you run, how big you are,” Scott said. “Within our program, the best players are going to play. We’re not going to get caught up in all the measurables.”

Humphries arrived as the lowest-rated recruit in the 2011 class. Some assistant coaches in the room even wondered why the Tigers were taking this smallish 2-star instead of a stud from elsewhere. Scott and Swinney asked for some faith.

The presumption was that Humphries would redshirt, especially considering the receiver room included future NFL players

Grisham, Sammy Watkins and Martavis Bryant.

But Scott saw enough from Humphries in that initial preseason camp to call him into his office before the season began. He told him that he would play as a true freshman.

Humphries was shocked.

“Do you really think I’m ready to play?” Humphries asked Scott.

“Absolutely,” Scott said. “Not only are you going to play but you’re going to help us this year.”

Humphries caught just 15 passes his first year, but he played in all 14 of the team’s games. The coaches saw his potential — not just for his time at Clemson, but beyond the college game.

After the season, he was riding in a golf cart with Chad Morris, Clemson’s offensive coordinator at the time.

Morris told Humphries that he’d play 10 years in the NFL.

Humphries laughed.

“I thought, ‘There’s no way. I had like 12 catches last year. I’m just happy to be on the field at Clemson,’” Humphries said.

Morris repeated it. He said he’d have every bit the pro career that the team’s star receiver, Watkins, would.

“I would just tell him, ‘Man, you’re going to play longer than all of them. Just trust me,’” said Morris, now the head coach at Arkansas.

Playing with that talented receiver group, one that eventually also included DeAndre Hopkins, served as a confidence-builder for Humphries.

“I think just being around them, that’s what helped me the most,” he said. “I was learning from the best dudes to do it. We were close and we helped each other grow and worked together. It gave me the confidence and the swagger to know that I could perform at that level and contribute.”

Clemson’s wide receivers from 2012. Six of them have gone on to play in the NFL. In the top row, No. 19 is Charone Peake (Jets), No. 18 is Jaron Brown (Seahawks), No. 2 is Sammy Watkins (Chiefs), No. 1 is Martavis Bryant (Raiders) and No. 6 is DeAndre Hopkins (Texans). Humphries is No. 16 in the bottom row. (Mark Cramer)

At the time, Humphries set the record for number of games played by a Clemson receiver (52). He caught 112 passes his final three seasons, also returning punts.

“He was dependable,” Hopkins said last fall. “You had Sammy and myself, but he was one of those guys who got slept on in the slot, and he made a lot of plays for us. He was consistent. He’d go back to catch a punt and might return it for a touchdown.

“It was about hard work, and he was a good route runner, studied hard. He knew every position, so if somebody went down, he could play that spot. It was hard to keep him off the field.”

During Humphries’ sophomore year, the Clemson staff even tried him at cornerback, just in case the team needed an emergency defensive back.

He had two tackles in 11 snaps at corner in a game at Wake Forest.

“You think about all the receivers we had there,” Morris said, “but there was no job too big or too small for Adam Humphries.”

Despite proving himself capable and versatile in helping Clemson ascend to the power it is now, Humphries’ phone didn’t ring during the 2015 draft. He did not get an undrafted rookie deal, either.

If his football career was to continue, it would come down to a rookie tryout. He had two invites:

ADAM HUMPHRIES

One was in Detroit, the other in Tampa. They coincided, so had to be forced to choose one.

His agents felt as if the situation with the Bucs might be a bit more suited for Humphries, so he flew to Tampa. And, yes, the invite did come with the return flight home already booked.

“They were expecting to send me home,” Humphries said. “I was like, ‘Well, OK, that’s cool.’ That just kind of added to a little chip on the shoulder. It’s fun proving people wrong.”

During the two-day tryout, a Bucs staffer came over and encouraged Humphries. It was Jon Robinson, then an assistant GM in Tampa.

“In my mind, I didn’t think I was doing very good at all,” Humphries said. “I didn’t know the plays. I guess I ran a couple of good routes, had some good one-on-ones.”

Following the rookie mini-camp, Tampa’s front office huddled. GM Jason Licht told the scouting staff to pick two of the tryout players for an extended look.

Humphries was one of them.

He went on to catch nine passes for 139 yards and a touchdown in the team’s preseason games, hauling in a touchdown in the final one, to earn a roster spot. He played in Tampa’s opener against the Titans, his debut coinciding with the first games for both Jameis Winston and Marcus Mariota.

He had two receptions against Tennessee, but was then held without the catch the following three weeks. The Bucs actually cut him at that point. He cleared waivers and was assigned to the practice squad.

Three weeks later, though, Humphries was promoted back to the active roster. After 25 catches in the final 10 games for Tampa, he never looked back.

With an evolving rapport with Winston, Humphries saw his production increase each of his four seasons with the Bucs.

ADAM HUMPHRIES IN THE NFL

YEAR	Targets YPC	Rec YPG	Yards TD
2015	40 9.6	27 20.0	260 1
2016	83 11.3	55 41.5	622 2
2017	83 10.3	61 39.4	631 1
2018	105 10.7	76 51.0	816 5

“He’s where he is because he became a master of the details,” Scott said. “It’s his commitment to doing the little things.”

He showed toughness, too. Last season, Humphries had 423 yards after the catch — 11th-most among NFL receivers.

“As his position coach, I could turn my back when he was in the game,” Scott said. “I could focus on coaching someone else and not watch the play because I knew he was going to do it exactly right. There’s been very few of those guys in that category. He graded out at like 97 percent on a consistent basis. That’s really who Adam was, and still is.”

Flourishing last season also allowed Humphries leverage in free agency. Teams were lining up to add his services.

He’d always liked Nashville and he recognized the Titans’ need for a proven slot receiver. That made Tennessee an instant contender for him.

Robinson was perhaps what separated the Titans most. After all, he was part of a front office that believed in Humphries when no one else did.

“The thing about free agency is the uncertainty of where you’re going,” Humphries said. “That can add to the pressure of your decisions. ‘They’re going to do this with you. They’re going to use you like this. You’re going to lead the NFL in third-down receptions.’”

“You hear all that from teams, but you don’t know the guys. You’ve never met them. You don’t know anything about them. So, knowing Jon and knowing that he knew exactly what I was capable of doing, being with me for a full season in Tampa, knowing how I approached every day of practice and game days, there was some comfort there.

“I knew I wasn’t going to a place where someone had watched my highlight tape and they think I can do whatever. (Robinson) knows everything about how I prepare and what I do and all that. That was definitely an extra, added level of comfort in making the decision.”

The Titans had one final test, though.

Humphries had agreed to come to Nashville when New England called. The Patriots — coming off their sixth Super Bowl win since 2001 — were making a push to add another slot receiver, a valued position in their storied run.

Gutshall had long joked around Dorman High that Humphries would be the NFL’s leading receiver if Tom Brady were throwing to him. But it wasn’t a joke any longer; it was a real possibility.

“Obviously, he’s the G.O.A.T. That’s that simple,” Humphries said of Brady. “But there’s so much that factors into a decision. It was a four-year deal. Who knows how many (years) he’s got left? There’s a lot that goes into it.

“Obviously the chance to play with him would have been awesome, but a lot of things factor into that decision. Ultimately, I thought this was coming here to a team that was on the rise and with young talent on the offense and a really good defense. They'd had a taste of the playoffs. I felt like my need at the slot position was great. I felt like I could really contribute and start something new here."

Still, Humphries admits it was a tricky day or two. He wanted to remain true to his commitment to Robinson. But, well, the Patriots are the Patriots. They'd made stars of once-overlooked slot guys such as Wes Welker (undrafted) and Julian Edelman (seventh-round pick).

"There were a ton of pros and not a lot of cons," Humphries said. "You have to look at both situations and a quality of life and where you're living, state taxes. A lot of things go into it when you're talking with your agents and families and stuff about it. At the end of the day, my heart wanted to be in Tennessee. I was happy to finally have that all over with and have a team I could commit to and try my best for them.

"I felt like my talents would be used best here. And New England was the same way. That would have worked, too, but at the end of the day, it was a good decision to come here."

His family being able to drive to home games in Tennessee was also a factor. It's a little more than five hours from Spartanburg to Nashville. The Humphries crew wasn't exactly going to be able to make weekend road trips to Massachusetts.

In the end, the decision was sort of like making — and sticking to — a commitment to a college.

"A little bit. You make a verbal commitment," Humphries said. "Everyone's excited for you. Parents are buying shirts online and all that. I already had my mind made up to come here. I felt like I had to honor my word.

"I didn't feel like I had to, I guess, but as a man, you want to honor what you believed in originally and stick to it. I'm glad I did."

It would only be natural if Humphries experienced self-doubt — or self-pity, at least — as he encountered roadblocks in trying to continue his football career in college and then the NFL.

Instead, he maintained an air of positivity amid what even he describes as "shitty situations."

"I always thought if I just had one more play, that meant I had a chance to make something happen," he said. "I thought maybe another school would come in and offer. Even as a tryout guy, I thought 'I've got two days to make the most of it.' I wasn't really worried at all. I had an opportunity, so I thought I might as well not hold back and make the most of it."

When no one expects anything from you, he said it has a way of actually minimizing pressure.

"The way I calculate it in my mind is there's nothing to lose," Humphries said. "I'm blessed to have a family that loves me and cares about me and friends who are the same way.

"I mean, if nothing worked out for me, I'd be fine. I'd go back home and be surrounded by people who support me. I could definitely make the most of it doing something else. ... I was going to do my best and that was all I could ask for."

For now, his football career continues to trend upward. The salary just made a huge jump, sure. But so did expectations.

"It's not a big deal," Humphries said. "I know where I came from, how I got here. Not going to change anything now."

Swinney said Humphries will always be one of his favorite recruiting stories — and the story's just getting better.

"So he goes from the little guy at Dorman High School that no one wanted to making, what, $9 or $10 million a year? Yeah, I'd say that's a pretty good story," Swinney said.

"It's kind of cool to see him earn his way to this place. That's what he's done. So many guys get somewhere based on potential. He's where he is based on performance."

ADAM HUMPHRIES

WR ADAM HUMPHRIES SEES PLENTY OF REASONS FOR OPTIMISM AS HE BEGINS SECOND SEASON WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 6, 2020

NASHVILLE – Plenty has changed since receiver Adam Humphries signed with the Titans last March.

Humphries, if you remember, picked the Titans over the Patriots in free agency. When he joined the Titans, Marcus Mariota was the team's quarterback, and Tom Brady was in New England.

Today, Ryan Tannehill is the quarterback of the future for the Titans. After stepping in for Mariota in Week 6, he guided the Titans into the AFC Championship, and earned himself a lucrative new contract in March. Mariota, meanwhile, is now in Las Vegas, and in a wild game of musical chairs, Brady is in Tampa Bay – Humphries' old team.

"Crazy, huh?," Humphries said.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Humphries is glad to be in Tennessee.

He's coming off a season that left him encouraged because of the chemistry he began building with Tannehill and the offense in 2019, in his first year with the team. An ankle injury halted his progress last fall, but it didn't sour his memory.

"Obviously coming into a new team, you're not sure what your role is going to be and how you are going to play a part in the team's success," Humphries said. "But slowly I started to feel comfortable in the offense, with the way (OC) Arthur (Smith) was calling plays, and what they expected of me day in and day out. And the consistency at quarterback with Tannehill, too – the communication with him was great.

"I am excited to continue to build on that communication and that relationship with him over the next few seasons. I am optimistic coming out of the season. Obviously, we had great team success, and personally I felt more comfortable in the offense as the season progressed."

After playing his first four NFL seasons with the Buccaneers, Humphries caught 37 passes for 374 yards and two touchdowns with the Titans in 2019.

Humphries had his best game of the season in Week 3, when he caught six passes for 93 yards against the Jaguars.

He made one of the biggest catches of the season – a 23-yard touchdown reception – in the closing moments of a come-from behind win over the Chiefs in Week 10.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Humphries put a string of games together in the middle of the season when he caught at least four passes in five games, but the ankle injury caused him to miss a six-game stretch, including two playoff games. Humphries returned for the AFC title game in Kansas City.

"It was unfortunate to have that (injury), but everything happens for a reason," Humphries said. "And now I am excited to build that relationship with Tannehill, and we have a great group of receivers, too."

Humphries, who reported to training camp at the end of last month, spent part of his offseason in Nashville, where he worked some with quarterback Logan Woodside and others. He also spent a good chunk of his time back in South Carolina, where he worked with his trainer on his speed, agility and strength training.

In his off time, he found golf courses. Humphries, who touts an 8.3 handicap, has a pretty nice game. He still agonizes over a near hole-in-one during a charity golf tournament in Charleston, S.C., a few years back.

"I was five inches away from the cup," Humphries said, "and the prize was $50,000. Now that would have been a fun story."

A fun story this fall for Humphries would be to build on last season -- and make an even bigger impact this fall.

Humphries, who played collegiately at Clemson, bought his own place in Nashville after sharing an apartment with two teammates all four years in Tampa. He's comfortable in the city, and on the team.

"It was a cool season to grow personally, and as a player," Humphries said. "I am excited to be a Nashville resident."

He's fired up about Tannehill being in town with him.

"I was super excited when we signed Ryan back, because I know the value of working with the same quarterback year after year," Humphries said. "Just building that camaraderie, that relationship, that trust with your quarterback and knowing if he needs an outlet he has a guy in me who can be that guy, or just a tight coverage throw, he'll trust me to make the play or A.J. (Brown) to make the play. You build that over time.

"So, bringing Ryan back, I was excited. He's been impressive in meetings and how quickly he has picked up on our offense. He has a really good grasp of it, so we can just continue to add things as we continue to go. I am excited to have him as our QB."

Overall, Humphries said he has high expectations for the Titans and the offense, especially at the receiver position, where he shares a room with Brown, Corey Davis, Kalif Raymond and others.

The group will be on the field for training camp practices next week.

Humphries is fired up about it.

ADAM HUMPHRIES

"I love our guys," Humphries said. "It's a competitive group from top to bottom, which is what you want. We all push each other, and we all expect greatness out of each other. A.J., obviously he had a great rookie season and we expect him to build on that and he has that hunger and he knows what it takes to be successful. And Corey is a guy who can do everything and has all the talent in the world."

"Those two guys, and all the guys in the room are just incredible competitors and fun guys to be around in the locker room. Overall, I am so excited about this season and what's ahead."

MUST-SEE TV: TITANS CB ADOREE' JACKSON HAS DESIGNS THAT GO BEYOND THE NFL

BY MIKE JONES
USA TODAY
SEPTEMBER 20, 2019

NASHVILLE — Perched atop the back of his white leather couch, Adoree' Jackson trains his gaze on his iPad. The Tennessee Titans' cornerback appears oblivious to all that swirls about him.

A small crew has transformed the living room of his condominium into a studio. Cameras, spotlights, lighting balance screens and audio recording equipment litter the area.

They're preparing to shoot a scene for the sizzle reel that Jackson and his business partner James Moore will pitch to HGTV for a television show that features the home redecoration projects of young professional athletes.

"OK, I think we're ready now," Moore says upon receiving the thumbs up from the crew.

But Jackson's focus remains on his iPad for another minute or two. Eventually, he hits pause on the game film of the Indianapolis Colts, who the Titans will face just two days later.

He then makes an effortless transition to the present.

Multitasking is nothing new for Jackson. He's always managed to juggle — whether it was football, basketball and track in high school while maintaining A's and B's, or playing on defense, offense and special teams and running track at Southern California while pursuing a major in mass communications and a minor in real estate.

Now the former first-round pick continues his balancing act in the NFL.

With two seasons of playing experience and steady improvements as a cornerback and a return man under his belt, and two offseasons' worth of internships at Warner Bros. to deepen his understanding of the TV industry, Jackson eyes a significant leap in both realms.

He wants to join the ranks of the NFL's elite defensive backs while helping the Titans reach the playoffs in Year 2 under Mike Vrabel. Jackson also aims to begin making his mark in the entertainment industry.

"Success isn't owned. It's rented, and the rent is due every day," Jackson told USA TODAY Sports, using a mantra passed along by Titans defensive backs coach Kerry Coombs. "That's true. No matter how successful you are, nobody is going to give it to you. They're not going to lay down. You've got to go take it."

Quiet determination

Nothing about Jackson is overstated — not his personality or style, his on-field persona or even his social media presence.

Those close to him describe him as quiet and laid back, smooth and humble.

From a young age, he has carried himself with a quiet determination.

When he was 3 and his mother, Vianca, brought home a VHS copy of "Space Jam," Jackson fell in love with basketball. He played it exclusively until he was 12. Then, realizing his son wasn't going to be very tall, Chris Jackson signed him up for football. The first time he ever touched the ball, Jackson scored on a long touchdown run.

"He scored and heard the way that crowd reacted, and he ain't put the ball down since," his father chuckled.

Jackson showed some potential at Belleville East High in Illinois, but following his freshman year, his family moved to Gardena, California, where over the next three years, Jackson continued to surprise both fans and foes, including former rival-turned-teammate JuJu Smith-Schuster.

"In high school, we were running track, and obviously, I was the anchor for my team, and Adoree' was the anchor for his team," the Steelers' wide receiver recounted in a telephone interview. "I had the lead and was winning by, like, 50 yards, and next thing you know, this guy comes up, catches me, smokes me, beats me really bad, and I'm like, 'Yo, who is this guy?'" Found out it was Adoree' Jackson, who was going to USC. We both went there, and every day, it was like, 'Wow, he is really the guy.'"

After helping USC win the Rose Bowl in the 2016 season, Smith-Schuster and Jackson entered the NFL draft together. Jackson was selected 18th overall by the Titans while Smith-Schuster went 62nd to Pittsburgh. In the offseasons, they return to California and team up for charity and youth outreaches.

Man with a plan

The Jacksons never wanted their son to be just an athlete.

Vianca was a phlebotomist for the health departments in Illinois and California, and Chris, as a senior mason, built bridges and highways across the Mississippi River.

One of 14 children, Chris knew all about sacrifice and hard work. He preached the same to his son daily, as did Vianca.

"I've been talking to him about college and what he was going to do with his life since he was in the third grade," Vianca said. "He would say 'Play sports, Ma.' Middle school, 'Play sports, Ma.' Then high school, I said, 'Now, you can play sports. But you need A, B, C, D, E, F, G — the whole alphabet to fall back on — because what if, God forbid, you get hurt? You need something that's going to take you to another level.' He said, 'Yes, Ma.'"

ADOREE' JACKSON

Jackson settled on a major in mass communications due to his love of sports. The real estate minor stemmed from an idea conceived as a child.

“Growing up, I stayed in a duplex, so I had a landlord,” Jackson said. “I never knew what they did for work, but I knew we paid them money, so I wanted to be in a position where I could have some land. And so that’s when I talked about getting my mom a house with some land next to it, so if they wanted to do something with it, and sell it or rent it out, they could do whatever they wanted because they had that land on the other side of it and have two spots. So, as a kid, thinking, ‘Man, how can I make money like that?’ and learning the development of stuff, what’s going to bang, what’s not, and that’s why I went to USC, because I knew it would connect me. ... I knew I could meet a lot of good people and that would open doors.”

Connections at USC led to Jackson’s relationship with Moore, who co-founded Kor Media Entertainment, a Los Angeles-based entertainment agency. The Warner Bros. internship also stemmed from Trojans ties.

“I think he had the plan the minute he knew he was coming out to Cali,” Moore said of Jackson. “He knew he was going to make that jump to the league, but as far as USC, he went there because of the relationships, and that move has paid off today. He’s very methodical and everything is thought out.”

Explaining his mind-set, Jackson said, “It’s about hustle, going and getting it. My dad taught me about the world. He didn’t sugarcoat it. It was explaining the real world and what’s out there and helped me understand that nothing’s going to be handed to me. I’ve got to go get it. Being athletic was cool, but being a people person took me a long way, so it’s just having those two different mentalities and going about my business.”

Pulling back the curtain

For his first home as a pro athlete, Jackson didn’t want a big house. For himself and his high school sweetheart, Veronica Parada, he settled on a two-bedroom, 2,000-square-foot luxury condo, which is housed on the fourth story of a renovated factory in the heart of Germantown, not far from Titans headquarters. The place has both a modern and rustic feel with exposed brick and marble, wood floors, floor-to-ceiling windows and a 1,000-square-foot wrap-around balcony.

The decor remains incomplete, but already there are signs of his creative and artistic mind. He’s proud of the white leather couch, inspired by the one that Tony Montana owned in "Scarface." He’s also fond of the white, shag carpet, which he had to have because he loved Frank Lucas’ in "American Gangster."

But otherwise, the place needs some more special touches. Why not pull back the curtain and take his fans along for the journey, he and Moore figured.

It’s not quite "MTV Cribs," as most of the athletes Jackson’s series will feature are on their first contracts and have to practice a degree of frugality. But the show’s design team will still help them find ways to outfit the homes in luxury while adhering to a budget, Moore says.

Jackson said the goal is “for athletes being able to express themselves. People just see us as athletes with our helmets on, but to see them more as a person and what they like, getting their first home and decorating and designing it, getting something for their parents ... just having that aspect for people to dive in deeper to them as a person.”

After longing for close interactions with his sports idols growing up, Jackson is always looking for ways to connect with fans. That’s why he communicates with them on social media platforms and obliges autograph requests. He paid for and spoke at the funeral of Jaylon McKenzie, an eighth-grade football player from St. Louis who was killed by a stray bullet, in May.

“Watching him, and working with him, seeing how he carries himself,” Moore said, “it gives me hope that there are some guys still out there that are going to carry on and do some things that are great for the next generation. That’s what drives him. Anything that he does, he’s thinking about who it impacts and who it can help.”

Making them proud

It’s 9:30 a.m. on game day when Jackson’s white, 2018 Mercedes-Benz S-Class pulls into the players lot at Nissan Stadium. He starts scanning for his father’s truck and soon spots it. The black GMC Sierra Denali 2500 is backed up to the far right corner of the lot, a giant black smoker on wheels hitched to the back of it. Smoke curls out of the double stacks that extend from the top of the converted oil tank.

Chris has been grilling, smoking meat and making his own barbecue sauces and rubs since 1984. He has smoked feasts for his son following every home game dating back to Adoree's Pop Warner days.

Now, Chris makes the four-hour drive from his home in Belleville to Nashville, smoker in tow, to tailgate with fans and feed his son and other Titans players after games.

Upon seeing his mother in the passenger seat, Jackson goes over for a hug and a kiss. She hands him a container full of homemade brownies and a birthday card because Sept. 18 is just days away. Chris takes a break from the smoker to hand his son a jar of sauce and canned pickles.

The pork chops, ribs, chicken wings, jerk chicken legs, turkey wings and turkey ribs already smell amazing, but they won’t be done until after the game.

Jackson brags on his dad’s cooking, then heads into the stadium where he will turn his attention to his most important business venture while fueled by his greatest source of motivation.

“When I moved from East Illinois to California, my whole mind-set was I didn’t want to let my family down. I had that fear. I wanted to always do well and excel,” Jackson said. “I think that’s how I was able to balance everything. I think I knew if my mom saw something bad about me in the news, it’s only going to make her sad and hurt her. But if she sees something good about me, then it’ll make them proud. So wanting to see my parents proud of me always motivated me and that fear of making them sad about something I wasn’t going to be always drove me.”

ADOREE' JACKSON EMBRACES POSSIBILITY OF NEW ROLE FOR TITANS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
JUNE 4, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Entering his fourth season, Tennessee Titans defensive back Adoree' Jackson could assume a different role in the secondary, which will likely involve extensive snaps as the nickel. New defensive backs coach Anthony Midget said the coaching staff expects great things from Jackson, who was drafted No. 18 overall in 2017.

Jackson used to return punts, but his special-teams snaps fell to just 12 in 2019 while logging 537 snaps in 11 regular-season games on defense -- primarily at left cornerback. He doesn't know if he will be asked to be the primary nickelback when the Titans eventually report for training camp, but he embraces the chance to expand his game. He is preparing for the additional set of responsibilities that would come with that role by asking questions during virtual meetings.

CB wide right	45	9%
CB slot right	16	3%

"Being able to go in these virtual meetings and listen in and see the picture, and the virtual classroom and things that we do is good to help get a better understanding and knowledge of the role and position just in case I'm needed," Jackson said via a virtual news conference last week.

"If I'm going to be playing more inside at nickel, and the difference is it's more about being more aware of your surroundings for what the safeties may have, or the linebackers and everything, because you all play on one accord. When you're playing corner you pretty much have to worry about yourself in those aspects, and playing the nickel is a lot of different assignments and alignments and techniques that come into play."

Jackson's speed and versatility make him a prime candidate to match up against the NFL's top receivers. Teams move their top pass-catchers around within the formation, including in the slot, to create favorable situations.

"I think a lot of times teams are looking at matchups and they're putting their No. 1 guy in the slot for a big percentage of the game," safety Kenny Vaccaro said. "Somebody like Michael Thomas will go to the slot sometimes. Davante Adams, you'll see him in the slot. You see guys try to take advantage of that matchup."

Throughout the 2020 season, Jackson might be asked to travel with a variety of receivers, including Adams, T.Y. Hilton from the Indianapolis Colts, Buffalo Bills WR Stefon Diggs, and Odell Beckham Jr. of the Cleveland Browns. At 5-foot-11, 185 pounds, Jackson has a low base, allowing him to change direction with ease to stay with crafty route runners. His leaping ability and ball skills make him able to defend against bigger wide receivers.

Titans GM Jon Robinson complimented Jackson's ability to "match quickness and ability to mirror," which is critical when working in the slot against quicker receivers who can employ their shiftiness to get open.

Gone are the days where only shorter, quicker receivers played in the slot. While players such as Julian Edelman are still impactful, offensive coordinators have started to put bigger, more physical receivers inside to create a size advantage over smaller cornerbacks who traditionally play there.

"There's always going to be changes in the game. You might see a smaller, faster guy outside, and a bigger guy inside with what they might like matchup-wise," Jackson said. "It depends on what team you're playing. You go against Atlanta, you might see Julio [Jones] in the slot. You go against Kansas City, you see Tyreek [Hill], he may be outside or he may be inside. So, it just all has to do with what the coaches are looking for and what they use their guys for."

There's more to playing nickel than just coverage. Logan Ryan, the Titans' primary nickel corner last season, was asked to help out in run support, blitz the quarterback and more.

"That nickel guy has to be able to cover, he has to be able to blitz, he has to be able to fit in the run game, he has to be smart and he has to be able to do multiple things," Midget said. "So, it's not just a guy that you put in the slot just to cover a guy. He has to be a guy that can go in there and mix it up versus the run and the pass, and handle everything we'll give to that position mentally."

The Titans showed their confidence in Jackson by picking up his fifth-year option for the 2021 season, which included a $10.2 million price tag. Jackson didn't make an interception last season, but he played well down the stretch, including five passes defended in Tennessee's two playoff wins.

Despite not having OTAs due to the COVID-19 epidemic, Jackson vowed to find a way to get better every day. The expectations and potential for a player with Jackson's talent are extremely high, but his teammates believe he's up for the challenge.

"I know Adoree'. I know he's motivated," Vaccaro said. "He loves football, he cares. I love playing with him, I love playing next to him. He's a really smart player. I know he's smart enough to do it. I know the nickel position takes a lot of football IQ, a lot of intelligence, and I know he has that. It's on the coaches, whether they want to do that with him."

REXRODE: TITANS
ROOKIE CHRIS JACKSON
HAD TO BE TOUGHER THAN ANY KID SHOULD

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 16, 2020

Editor's note: This is the sixth in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. Stories on Isaiah Wilson, Kristian Fulton, Darrynton Evans, Larrell Murchison and Cole McDonald were published earlier this week.

Time stretches and contracts, a trait clearer to all in a global pandemic, and it can blur memories — altering, eliminating and even exaggerating details of a moment.

Some remain vivid. Ira Reynolds says he can still see the play that made him realize he had something special in the Tennessee Titans' most recent draft pick. Chris Jackson was a freshman at FAMU Developmental Research School in Tallahassee, Fla., and a small one at that, maybe 100 pounds. But he was fast and hungry and persistent — “it was yap yap yap like a little dog at your ankles until you finally say, ‘OK fine,’” Reynolds said — and the coach got him on the field in a varsity game to serve as a decoy on a play that was supposed to go to the running back on a wheel route.

Reynolds can see Jackson carrying out his downfield route. He can see his quarterback, for some reason, lofting a pass to Jackson. He can see the linebacker and safety converging on Jackson and combining on the type of hit that might convince a 100-pound ninth-grader to try debate team.

“Out cold,” Reynolds said of Jackson, lying on the field after the hit. “But he didn't drop the ball. And then when he came to, he was begging to go back out there.”

This set the stage for Jackson to become a standout receiver and safety at FAMU-DRS, a leader with enough confidence to tell the waitstaff at a restaurant during a team dinner that it was Reynolds' birthday so they would sing to him (they did, but it wasn't). He would go on to graduate early and choose Marshall over suitors such as Kent State and Troy, though Ivy League schools also inquired because of his near-perfect academic record. He had no interest from hometown Florida State and that ilk. Jackson started four years at cornerback for the Thundering Herd, setting the school record for pass break-ups (45) and getting his 5-foot-10, 193-pound self drafted in the seventh round by the Titans. Plenty of guys from Florida State and that ilk did not go in any round. And now Jackson is a 22-year-old pro with a criminal justice degree and corner/safety versatility that Titans coach Mike Vrabel said made drafting him an “easy” choice.

Jackson has a chance to make an NFL team, just eight years after that first, stinging taste of varsity football. Which came just two years after the completion — the legal completion anyway — of a tragic journey no one should have to experience and no one would want to remember.

That's what Jackson was asked to do in a Tallahassee courtroom at 12 years old. He was asked to recount the details of the murder of his mother, as her killer sat a few feet away from him.

“I got probably three minutes in,” Jackson said. “And then I just broke down and couldn't do it anymore.”

He can do it now. He has done it many times since. It became a motivational staple inside the Marshall program. The story of Chris Jackson is also the story of figuring out what to take and what to leave behind from the life and death of Tanesha Overstreet.

Reynolds coached Dwayne Jackson at FAMU-DRS, too. He was a similar kind of player. Aggressive, smart, fast and undersized. Dwayne was set to play for Florida A&M in college. A blown knee, which meant a lot more in the early 1990s than it does today, ended that. Dwayne moved to Minneapolis for a job and met Tanesha, who grew up in Chicago but moved with her family as a teenager and graduated early from Minneapolis North Community High. They welcomed Chris to the world on April 13, 1998, moved to Chicago to be near her family, then to Tallahassee to be near his. Soon, much of her family joined them.

“Everybody thinks their family is the loudest but no — my family was the loudest,” said Jessica Overstreet, Tanesha's younger sister. “And Tanesha was the leader of the family. She was so giving. She had three younger siblings living with her in their house, and my mom, and she loved it. I was like, ‘Don't you want some privacy?’ Nope. She was happiest around her family.”

Tanesha never got to college as she had planned, but she pushed Jessica to keep going after high school graduation.

“She said, ‘The sky's the limit, now you've got to go to college,’” said Jessica, who graduated from Florida A&M and is now a school social worker in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. “I'll never forget that. It was like she was living through our accomplishments. She called me her pumpkin.”

Chris remembers his mother as a combination of tough and fun. She was the one who first put him in football. Sitting around at home wasn't an option. Doing the dishes and other chores was expected, as was eating healthy. Chris hated eggs, so Tanesha bargained with him: Eat your eggs every day and you get a dollar. Pretty soon he had enough for a dirt bike.

“Work for everything you get, that was a big thing with my mom,” Chris said. “And tell the truth. I always told her the truth.”

Dwayne took Chris fishing often on the Ochlockonee River, and that remains a passion for Chris, who wants to be a game warden when football ends. But Dwayne's presence was spotty. Chris said he was “in and out of jail” during his childhood for “drug-related offenses.” After the Titans drafted Chris, Dwayne called him from jail. They talk almost every day, Chris said, and Dwayne is supposed to be out in June. As a kid, Chris had another father figure in Terrell Thomas, Tanesha’s long-term boyfriend after she and Dwayne broke up. Tanesha and Terrell had a daughter on the way in the summer of 2008.

Tanesha, Chris and Jessica went to a routine baby check-up on Aug. 14, 2008, but doctors told Tanesha she would need an emergency cesarean section because there wasn’t enough fluid around the baby. She was not due for a couple of more months. She ended up delivering vaginally, and 2-pound Taylor Thomas ended up fully healthy and crying with a strong voice upon arrival. She still needed time in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

Two days later, Tanesha came home against doctor’s orders. Taylor remained in the hospital. Early in the morning of Aug. 17, 2008, Chris was asleep in the back bedroom of their house along with Terrell’s 16-year-old son, Breon, and his 12-year-old cousin Richard Footman. Terrell was not in the house. The children were awakened by yelling. They heard Tanesha sobbing and begging for her life, telling a male intruder that she had just given birth to a child. They heard him demanding her to give him whatever she had. They backed away from the cracked bedroom door and pretended to be sleeping as the intruder came down the hall and closed the door.

They heard the explosion of a 12-gauge shotgun. They heard the water in the kitchen sink turn on as the 35-year-old intruder, William Yawn, washed his hands. They heard a door open and close. They ran out to Tanesha, bleeding on the ground and fighting for breath. Breon called 911. Chris grabbed Tanesha’s hand.

“I think she was trying to tell him that she loved him,” Footman testified two years later in Yawn’s trial, according to WCTV-TV. “But she kind of like couldn’t get it all out.”

Jessica Overstreet didn’t really grieve her sister until a couple of years ago, she said. She has a family of her own, a job she loves working with at-risk kids at Fort Lauderdale’s Rock Island Elementary School. And for years the focus was on getting Chris through the trauma.

“Can you imagine a 10-year-old boy at a funeral walking up to a casket and trying to wake his mother up?” Jessica said. “Like she was sleeping. It was a lot. You talk about strength and resilience, he had to have so much of it.”

Chris’ maternal grandmother, Renee Jones-Johnson, was originally supposed to take him in, but her anguish was too intense in the wake of her daughter’s death. He moved in with his paternal grandmother, Delores Madison, and that’s where he continues to live until he gets the all-clear to move to Nashville.

“When you find a kid who supersedes challenges like that, who goes through that and comes out a tremendous student, a tremendous kid, you’ve got the right dude,” said Chuck Heater, who recruited Chris at the time as the defensive coordinator at Marshall. “And the bottom line is, his grandmother is just a sensational person.”

She did not do it alone.

“I spent months and months doing nothing, just crying every day,” Chris said. “I went a whole year without going to school. But my grandmothers, Auntie Jessica, Auntie Caprice, it was like they all jelled together to become my mom.”

Jessica would take Chris and Taylor each weekend, so the siblings could have time with each other as well. Running water was a trigger for Chris then, causing him to “have an emotional breakdown or get really angry,” he said. He could not get the sound of the water Yawn left running in his house out of his head. When he needed to shower at Jessica’s house, she would sit on the toilet and talk him through it.

She would tell stories of Tanesha, too. By the time Taylor was old enough to understand, Chris was stronger, back in school, playing football and basketball, singing in the church choir.

“My sister’s kind of like my favorite person in the world,” Chris said of Taylor, who is coming up on her 12th birthday. “She didn’t get to experience my mother, but we tell her stories, show her pictures. And then growing up not living together, I couldn’t see her all the time like a normal family would. So I’ve spoiled her whenever I could to make up for it.”

And he has reached the point where he can remember what he loved about his mother and talk about her death without reliving the trauma. He told the story at Marshall more than once during team-building exercises, and he became the example coaches would use when trying to motivate others. Not that this is as simple as another “athlete overcomes adversity” story. Not that this has been easy or free of setbacks.

Chris had a significant one when he had to testify more than two years after the murder at the trial of Yawn, an admitted drug addict who said he broke into the house that night looking for cocaine. Jessica spoke on behalf of the family on the day of Yawn’s sentencing. Chris was not in the courtroom that day to hear him receive three life sentences in prison.

“I honestly don’t even remember what I thought about that at the time,” Chris said. “I kind of just don’t think about him.”

BEN JONES

TITANS, FORMER BIBB COUNTY PLAYER HOLDING FREE FOOTBALL CAMP

BY EDWIN STANTON TUSCALOOSA NEWS
MAY 30, 2019

Ben Jones knows what it's like to have support.

The Tennessee Titans center had an entire community come to his aid when he was a kid growing up in Centreville.

When Jones was 10 years old, his dad died in a helicopter crash. His mom was always a big part of his life, but losing his dad at such a young age was tough. Fortunately, Jones had a support system of extended family and friends in the community to help him.

"Where I am today, I wouldn't be here if it wasn't for my hometown and my whole community," Jones said.

It's a big reason that Jones is heavily involved in charity work. On June 7 at Bibb County High School, Jones and a few of his NFL and college football friends will conduct a free football camp for kids 8-14. The camp is supported through a grant from the NFL Foundation.

"I'm trying to give back to my hometown an opportunity for kids who don't usually get a chance to attend football camp and be around guys who played in college," Jones said. "I'm also bringing some guys from the Titans with me."

Jones has been a part of several other charitable deeds during his time in Nashville., including the Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot, which benefitted programs that deal with at-risk kids.

"We have a fund in Nashville and we've given around 400 thousand over past three years combined," Jones said. "It helps with after-school programs, mentor programs, sending kids to camps, grief counseling. We want to give them the next step in life that not everyone is able to help them with. So if we can help them in any way that's been our mission."

Jones plans on bringing Titans teammates Ryan Succop (kicker), David Quessenberry (OL), Beau Brinkley (LS) and a few more. Also, Jones' former Bibb County teammate and former NFL player Zac Stacy will attend, as will former Alabama football player Brad Smelley.

Jones grew up just a short drive from Tuscaloosa, but chose the University of Georgia over Alabama. He was a four-year starter with the Bulldogs and was drafted in the fourth round by the Houston Texans in 2012, where he played left guard before moving to center in 2015. He was traded to the Titans in 2016 and has started every game.

The Titans missed the playoffs last season but Jones has reason to be confident for the 2019 season.

"Last year we had a new head coach (Mike Vrabel) and we were trying to learn a new offense and a new defense and we actually had a pretty good year," Jones said. "Now we are trying to take the next step and go from good to great.

"Every game comes down to a couple of plays and we are trying to find those details so that we know the ins and outs of the offense and defense. So when it comes down to those couple of plays we are able to execute and make the playoffs. That's the mission – just get in. Anything can happen after that."

A big piece of the Titans' offense is running back Derrick Henry, the 2015 Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Alabama. The former Crimson Tide back had a career night during a game last season against the Jacksonville Jaguars, rushing for 238 yards with four touchdowns, including an NFL record-tying 99-yard run.

"Derrick is one of my closest friends. We talk just about every day, even during the offseason," Jones said. "He's the first guy to come in and say 'Roll Dawgs' every day because he was committed to Georgia for a while. But he bleeds crimson through and through. We have that relationship that we want each other to do well. When it comes down to that last game of the year we just say anything that week.

"He's a heck of a guy, tough player, good team guy. If you have a guy like that you can really lay it on. It wears a defense out and as an offensive line we really love blocking for a guy like that."

It was the Crimson Tide that handed Jones' alma mater two of the most devastating losses in the program's history – last year's SEC title game and the 2017 national championship game. Fortunately for Jones, he didn't have to witness the defeat in Atlanta.

"Last year, I missed the game because of meetings," Jones said. "I went into meetings and we were up like 20-7, and I got out and we had lost the game, so I was like, 'Oh my goodness.'

"I'm happy they turned it around and hopefully they can take the next step."

BEN JONES

BEN JONES NAMED TITANS WALTER PAYTON MAN OF THE YEAR NOMINEE

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
DECEMBER 12, 2019

NASHVILLE – When Titans center Ben Jones entered the NFL with the Texans back in 2012, he worked to establish himself on the football field with veteran players around him.

Jones was also paying attention to his teammates off the field. And he saw how involved many of them were in the Houston community, from Matt Schaub to Owen Daniels to Chris Myers.

“I wanted to be able to raise a family like them,” Jones said, “and I wanted to do something to help others with the platform that we have – those guys really opened my eyes.”

After spending his first four NFL seasons with the Texans, Jones arrived in Tennessee in 2016, and he got to work. And in 2017, Jones and his wife, Alex, established The Jones Mission to provide at-risk youth with opportunities they might otherwise not have through grants, additional resources and educational opportunities.

In the past three years, Jones has made a big difference – and his work hasn’t gone unnoticed.

Jones is the 2019 Titans recipient of the Walter Payton Man of the Year award.

Jones is now a finalist for the league-wide 2019 Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award that will be awarded during the upcoming Super Bowl week. This prestigious NFL award has been in existence since 1970 and it honors players who demonstrate outstanding balance in their lives between civic and professional responsibilities. In 1999, the NFL renamed the award after the late Walter Payton as a tribute to his greatness, both on and off the field.

“It is something that is definitely appreciated,” Jones said of the award. “But the reason you give back is to help people out and to see the impact you can make on kids, and to see the joy you bring them when you take them to games, bring them to practices, and you are able to help their facilities. It means a lot. I get so much joy by seeing how happy they are and how much they benefit from all the guys on our team that are caring and supporting our foundation.”

During each of the past three offseasons, Jones and his wife have hosted the annual Ben Jones Celebrity Clay Shoot, a skeet shooting tournament, to raise money for local youth-serving non-profit organizations. The three events combined have raised more than $400,000 benefitting The Jones Mission Fund.

Through The Jones Mission Fund, Jones said they’ve been able to serve more kids each year in after-school programs. As a result of the 2019 clay shoot, The Jones Mission was able to donate $40,000 to Endure Athletics and $45,000 to Preston Taylor Ministries. With their grant, Preston Taylor Ministries was able to open a new location for after school programs.

“We’ve done counselors for homeless kids who are in after-school programs,” Jones said. “We’ve done things with the church to bring kids and their mentor to a Titans game. If it’s from an after-school program, if it’s sending them to camps, if it’s bringing them to football games, if it’s getting them the skill they need outside, a tutor.

“The more time they are able to be around positive role models and getting to have an experience and knowing they can get out of where they are. I want to give kids something to look forward to. I just want to give kids a chance. We’re just trying to give a kid that needs a little extra help a shot.”

Here’s a deeper look at Jones, and his work in the community:

- Ben’s childhood adversity – his father was killed in a helicopter crash just a few months after his 10th birthday – planted the seeds of a strong and still-growing passion for helping kids in need, and he strives daily to be a role model and show children experiencing hardship that anything is possible through hard work, determination, and prayer.

- Renovations to the Nashville Ronald McDonald House kitchen and dining room were completed this summer, courtesy of a $88,000 grant from the 2017 clay shoot. The 2017 event also allowed Ben and Alex to expand and remodel the computer lab at Youth Encouragement Services. The computer lab was also unveiled over the summer.

- In 2018, the event raised $33,000 for Endure Athletics, $22,000 for Backfield in Motion and $33,000 for Alive Hospice.

- Every year, Ben sponsors a trip to a Titans game for the seniors on the football team at his high school (Bibb County HS) in Centreville, Alabama. The experience includes round-trip transportation from his hometown, tickets, a private tailgate, swag bags plus a meet-and-greet with Ben and tour of the Titans practice facility after the game.

- Ben also hosts a “Friday Night Lights” free youth football camp in Centreville every June for kids ages 8 through 14.

- The Jones Mission is also very active during the holidays as Ben sponsors Christmas shopping events for families in his hometown in Alabama and locally in Nashville.

- In addition to his work with his own Foundation, Ben is also actively involved in team-organized community events and programs, appearing on behalf of the team at local schools, hospitals, fundraising events, 5K races and more.

Jones credited all the sponsors, and everyone who has supported his events over the years.

And he gave thanks to his wife, Alex.

“She backs it all up,” Jones said. “She is the busy bee behind everything, checking every box and making sure it flows right. It wouldn’t get done if it wasn’t for her.”

All 32 nominees will receive a donation of up to $50,000 in their name to their charity of choice. The winner of the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year award will receive a $250,000 donation to the charity of their choice. All donations are courtesy of the NFL Foundation and Nationwide.

As a nominee, Jones will wear a Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year helmet decal through the end of the season in recognition of his accomplishments on and off the field.

Jones said because the Titans organization, and locker room, has such a giving culture, it makes the award special for everyone. Titans defensive lineman Jurrell Casey’s was the team’s Walter Payton Man of the Year recipient in 2016 and 2018. Titans linebacker Wesley Woodyard was the team’s recipient in 2017.

“We have multiple guys that are coming to my event, going to other events. It is a family, and you want to support each other,” Jones said. “Logan (Ryan) is always there, Jurrell is always there, Delanie (Walker) is always there. So many guys are always there to support me, and we support each other.

“All those guys are just as worthy as me, and they have foundations and are doing everything they can, putting in the extra hours to help the community as well. So many guys are just as worthy. Really, all of us just want to do our part to help and make a difference in the lives of others.”

DaQUAN JONES

Q FACTOR: TITANS D-LINEMAN DAQUAN JONES BUILT FOR MORE SUCCESS IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 10, 2020

NASHVILLE – DaQuan Jones has seen plenty of change during his NFL career.

A fourth-round pick in the 2014 NFL Draft, the big defensive lineman has played under three head coaches and three defensive coordinators in Tennessee, and he's seen a lot of Titans teammates come and go inside the locker room. Jones has played on teams that finished 2-14 and 3-13, and he's played on four straight 9-7 teams, in five playoff games, and in an AFC Championship Game.

He's the longest tenured Titan on defense.

Through it all, Jones has put his head down, and worked. He's been one of the team's most under-the-radar players, while also being among the most dependable.

So, it's no surprise Jones thrived during an NFL offseason rocked by the coronavirus. With facilities across the NFL closed to players, Jones took it upon himself to get ready for the 2020 season.

The result:

"I think I had one of my better offseasons this year," Jones said on Friday. "I feel very ready, just did a lot of different type of training, cross-fit training. I feel ready to go."

When the 2019 season ended, Jones couldn't have predicted how this offseason would play out.

Instead of working with the team's strength and conditioning coach and staff, he began using his wife's trainer, Kevin Andres of K Squared Fitness, when he'd come by the house to work with his wife. Katie Andres, a certified nutrition coach and health/ fitness guru, also came by to work with Jones and his wife, Alexis.

The 6-foot-4, 322-pounder changed his training approach as a result, adding a lot of high-intensity cardio with his work lifting weights.

"I decided to one day take part and I kind of fell in love with it," Jones said. "(Kevin) does a lot of HIIT training and cross-fit type stuff and ... it really helped transform my body going into the season. Big shout out to Kevin for doing that for me."

In 2020, Jones wants to keep doing his part to help the Titans on defense.

In 2019, Jones started all 16 games for the fourth time in his career, and for the second consecutive season. He achieved career highs with 21 quarterback pressures and three passes defensed while also posting 50 tackles, and one tackle for a loss. According to Pro Football Focus, Jones also played in 799 snaps without being called for a penalty.

"(I want to be) dependable and making sure I can be accounted for by my teammates," he said.

In 2018, Jones started 16 games and racked up 39 tackles with 14 quarterback pressures and a career-high four tackles for a loss. His 2017 season was cut short because of a bicep injury, which ended his streak of 45 consecutive starts. Jones had a career-high 3.5 sacks before the Dec. 4 injury.

On a defensive line that featured five-time Pro Bowler Jurrell Casey, oftentimes Jones was shorted praise for his efforts, even though coaches and teammates sure appreciated his contributions. In 2018, Jones was rewarded with a contract extension that's now set to expire after the 2020 season.

With the addition of first-round pick Jeffery Simmons in last year's draft, Jones has already found himself among those answering questions about the potential of the 19th overall pick. It's all good with Jones, because the two are good friends. In fact, Simmons joined Jones for some of those in-house workouts this offseason.

Jones said he wants to help Simmons achieve greatness.

"I mean, I thought we all got a glimpse of that last year when he came in and wrecked shop," Jones said of Simmons. "I'm just excited for him to come out there fully healthy and do what he does best, be a big, dominant player."

"With Big Jeff, (I) like just helping him in any way I can. ... So just taking on more of a leadership role and helping the young guys learn."

Jones, of course, plans to wreak some havoc himself, alongside his teammates.

He said he's also happy to be on a contender, knowing he was a part of the culture change in Tennessee. He made it clear he'd like to stick around for years to come.

"I just come to work every day, put my head down and plow away," he said. "Really, that's all I do. It's crazy to think that I'm the only guy here from even when we went 2-14. It's a blessing at the end of the day, but I'm a guy that comes in with my head down to work. I'm just thankful."

"It's way different (than my early year here). I mean, the vibe in here is crazy. I know how it feels to go through a 2-14 season. It's not fun, at all. I mean, the joy is not in it. ... So for me to ... be on a team like this is a blessing."

VETERAN CB
JOHNATHAN JOSEPH
READY TO MAKE HIS MARK WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 11, 2020

NASHVILLE – Veteran cornerback Johnathan Joseph was a first-round pick in the 2006 NFL Draft – the same year the Titans picked quarterback Vince Young.

It's also the same year Isaiah Wilson, the team's first-round pick this year, turned seven years old.

So yeah, it's been a while.

Yet Joseph is still playing – after signing with the Titans earlier this month, he's set to begin his 15th NFL season.

And he's motivated to prove he can still perform at a high level, while showing the younger guys the way.

"I think (it's) just a love of the game," Joseph said. "Obviously, we drafted some guys, and I think it's my job to show those guys the ropes. Fifteen years ago I was a first-round pick, sitting in a lot of those guys' shoes, a rookie, not understanding the playbook, just catching up with the day-to-day life of the NFL, and just the rigors of the schedule compared to being in college. Just having that part, I'm able to help those guys along the way. Anything that can help those guys play better I'm here for."

But make no mistake, Joseph was added to the roster to make an impact on the field, something he's done during the course of his career.

The 36-year-old Joseph, most recently with the Texans, was drafted in 2006 by the Bengals. He played from 2006-2010 with the Bengals before joining the Texans, where he's played the past nine seasons.

Joseph ranks fourth among active NFL players for career interceptions

(31) and leads all active NFL cornerbacks in career tackles (750). Joseph also leads all NFL players over the last 20 seasons for passes defended (194) and can become the first NFL player to reach 200 passes defended since the statistic became tracked (2000).

In Tennessee, he joins a secondary that includes veteran cornerbacks Malcolm Butler and Adorree' Jackson, along with second-round pick Kristian Fulton from LSU. The Titans also have cornerbacks Tye Smith, Chris Milton, Kenneth Durden, and Kareem Orr in the fold. Veteran Logan Ryan won't return.

"(My role) is to kind of fit in where need be," Joseph said. "But at the same time, just be myself. I'm not coming in here to look to replace anybody, or do anything, or be the savior, or none of that. I'm just coming in here to do whatever my job is, whatever my role is, do that to the utmost. I think, obviously, Logan (Ryan) was a great player for those guys. I don't want to get into comparisons. When I see somewhere that I need to speak up, or give some input, or help guys here or there, that will always be me at any point of my life. So, I think that's just natural for me. Any time I'm there to give information back and be helpful it's only right."

Joseph has familiarity with the city of Nashville, and the coaching staff with the Titans.

His wife, Delaina, attended Hillsboro High School and then Tennessee State University. The couple ended up meeting in Cincinnati, during his rookie season.

While in Houston, Joseph played under Titans head coach Mike Vrabel and secondary coach Anthony Midget, who joined the Titans earlier this offseason after coaching with the Texans.

"I think both of those guys have the same mentality and want to play winning football and bring that mentality each and every day to the classroom and the football field, obviously," Joseph said of Midget and Vrabel.

"I think just having a history with him, knowing his mentality, knowing his expectations," Joseph continued when speaking of Vrabel. "Obviously, been playing against the Titans in the division. I know what they bring as a football team, they made a great push last year and have a lot of great players on this team. I think he's doing a great job of managing that. That's his biggest skillset, I think, that I remember about him. Being around him, the way that he manages guys. But at the same time, he has a high expectation level for you to do your job at the highest level, and be a professional at all times, and I think that's what's great about him and I think that's what makes him a great coach."

With the Titans, Joseph is ready to make his mark.

The 5-foot-11, 186-pounder has been named to two Pro Bowls in his career – in 2011 and 2012. He's been a consistent starter and performer during his 14-year NFL career, and has 31 career interceptions, 754 tackles, 195 passes defended, seven forced fumbles, and five fumble recoveries to show for it. He has scored eight touchdowns in his career.

Joseph played in 14 games for the Texans in 2019, when he racked up 51 tackles while also recording an interception.

His work preparing for 2020 has already started.

"This league is always about getting young. I think you have to do more the older you get, some people think it's the opposite way, but I think it's the more you do, you have to stay ahead of the curve," he said. "I think just being able to go out and just compete with the younger guys, whether it's in your training session, your preparation, whatever it may be. Just always having that mentality. Any time you have a chance to be out there and wear the

JOHNATHAN JOSEPH

NFL shield it's a privilege, don't take it for granted.

"I take a lot of pride in (still being able to play at a high level) just because it's a blessing. At the same time, anything at this point in this stage in my career is not a given. You have to work for it and still go out and put in the work, and I enjoy it. That's the best part about football is the grind. When you get out there and play in the games on Sunday and all that, that's fun."

MANIC MONDAY: FUN- LOVING DEFENSIVE BACK JOSHUA KALU A POPULAR GUY AFTER FIELD GOAL BLOCK SAVES TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
NOVEMBER 11, 2019

NASHVILLE – Joshua Kalu has done some pretty special things in his life, but what happened on Sunday was a game-changer in more ways than one.

Kalu's blocked field goal on the final play of the game preserved the Titans' 35-32 victory over the Chiefs, and it caused his phone to blow up, too.

"Everybody is still texting me, calling me," a smiling Kalu said on Monday. "This is probably the biggest reaction that I have gotten for anything in life – birthdays, graduation, you name it. I guess the game went nationwide so people and friends from New York to California to Miami have reached out. I have some people I know from London who have hit me up, congratulating me. It is an amazing feeling.

"My Instagram followers went up, the Twitter followers and messages are booming," Kalu said. "I am just glad we got the win and I'm glad I was able to do my part."

Just another Manic Monday, right?

Kalu, in his second season with the Titans after signing as an undrafted free agent last May, sprinted off the edge from the left side to get his left hand on a 52-yard field goal try by Chiefs kicker Harrison Butker, a play that ended the game, and sparked a wild celebration.

Kalu ran around after blocking the kick, before eventually being swarmed by teammates, and head coach Mike Vrabel.

From the hundreds of people who've contacted him since

Sunday's game, Kalu said the one that might've meant the most came from his Pop Warner coach back home in Texas. Kalu's relationship with his first football coaches dates back to when he was in fifth grade.

Titans teammates said they're genuinely happy for Kalu, a defensive back who is popular in the locker room.

"He is happy every day," teammate Logan Ryan said of Kalu, a colorful dresser with a colorful personality. "He has a good spirit about him. Kalu, he's the class clown of the group. He keeps it light. I think me and (Kevin Byard) can be pretty serious a lot of times and demanding as leaders in the DB room, but I think you need a Josh Kalu, a class clown to keep it light. That's who he is every day --he is always smiling, making jokes. He knows when to work, but he keeps it light all the time."

Kalu, who played collegiately at Nebraska, played five games for the Titans in 2018, and he'd suited up just once this season before Sunday's game. Kalu spent the first half of the season on Injured Reserve. He's played primarily on special teams in the NFL, but he played in the defense on at least one play on Sunday.

Byard agreed Kalu is a jokester, but he also pointed to his work ethic. Kalu is also known for being heavily involved in the community back home in Texas, and also in Lincoln, Nebraska. Kalu was named to the Brook Berringer Citizenship Team and the Tom Osborne Citizenship Team as a sophomore, junior and senior while at Nebraska, where he played in 48 games and tallied 215 tackles, two sacks and seven interceptions in his collegiate career.

When Kalu joined the Titans last May, Byard said it didn't take him long to make his presence felt with his jokes and light-hearted disposition. In fact, they had to check the young buck.

"It's funny, when Kalu got here last year he was always making jokes and we kind of had to remind him, 'Hey, you're a rookie! You're a rookie!'," Byard said with a smile. "He actually tried to break down the group one day in training camp last year and I kind of shot him down, 'Hey, you're a rookie. You don't get that.' But he walks around with that confidence, and that attitude that he wants to be great, and wants to do great things."

Joshua Kalu's (@BluesKalus) blocked field goal today for @Titans made No.8 on @SportsCenter's top 10 list. 🏈

Kalu chuckles when he hears the comments from his teammates. It's not unexpected.

After making the biggest play of his NFL career, Kalu said he'll continue working while also keeping it light.

When he got home after the game Sunday night he didn't spend the evening Googling himself or checking his mentions on social media. He still hasn't seen himself on SportsCenter's Top 10 list.

"I hopped on Call of Duty for a little bit," Kalu said. "I did watch that play over and over again, though. The biggest thing for me was watching everybody else's reaction around me, from coaches to players to fans to everybody. I was happy to make the play and happy it caused so many people to get excited."

JOSHUA KALU

TITANS DB JOSHUA KALU WORKING TO PROVIDE MEALS TO NURSES DURING CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 9, 2020

NASHVILLE – As a player in the National Football League, Titans defensive back Joshua Kalu knows his job comes with risks.

But Kalu signed up for it, and he loves it.

The same can be said for his two sisters – nurses who are currently working on the front lines of the COVID-19 pandemic.

And today, Kalu is doing his part to show them how much he appreciates them, along with all the nurses who are working long hours during the global health crisis.

"When you're a nurse, you know what risks come with it, too – whether that's getting infected with any type of disease, or just seeing and dealing with people you know might pass away," Kalu said. "They signed up for it, and I am proud of them because when the going got tough, they stepped up to the plate and are not backing down. They are dealing with chaos and stress on a daily basis."

JOSHUA KALU

@BluesKalus

COVID-19 has impacted all of us directly or indirectly. My sisters (both nurses on the frontline) have shared their firsthand experiences with working extended hours and managing chaos on a daily basis. As a leader, I wanted to do my part to keep our healthcare workers going.

Kalu, who initially joined the Titans as an undrafted free agent in 2018, has played in 16 games over the past two seasons. He made one of the biggest plays of the 2019 regular season with a blocked field goal against the Chiefs on the final play of the game, which secured the win.

Earlier this offseason, Kalu traveled with a contingent of former and current NFL players with the group American Football Without Barriers to Budapest, Hungary, where he helped spread the word about American football, and his love for the game.

In recent weeks, in his hometown of Houston, Kalu has stepped up during the coronavirus pandemic for nurses. One of Kalu's sisters is a nurse at a hospital in Houston, the other at a hospital in the Bronx in New York. Kalu's mother is also a nurse.

Kalu has worked to provide meals to nurses at hospitals in Houston, using local restaurants. It started with roughly 30 meals delivered to the COVID-19 unit at from Mezza Grille, and then grew to 40 meals from Lotus Seafood. He's part of a group that is also helping nurses at other hospitals in the area.

On Mother's Day weekend, Kalu will join with others, including long-time friend Ogbonnia Okoronkwo, a linebacker with the Rams, to deliver 250 meals from the Turkey Leg Hut in Houston.

Kalu and others, including his trainer Justin Allen, are all working for the cause. And he's encouraging others to help the group. (Here's a link where donations are being accepted to contribute to the cause, through Allen's Foundation: CLICK HERE.)

"It's Mother's Day, and it's also Nurses Appreciation Week, so it's perfect," Kalu said. "This isn't about me -- I just hope people see my video or hear about this they'll want to contribute to it or donate any way to help. It's all about giving back because these nurses are doing amazing work to help people. I want to let them know they are appreciated.

"Our nurses are fighting long hours, and they're fighting for us. That's my inspiration. I want to help the real heroes who are fighting for us. I'm just trying to do my part."

DENNIS KELLY

KELLY CATCHES A PIECE OF PLAYOFF HISTORY

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM

JANUARY 20, 2020

Dennis Kelly set an NFL record Sunday when he caught his second pass of the season.

The reserve tackle gave the Tennessee Titans a 17-7 lead over the Kansas City Chiefs when he caught a 1-yard touchdown pass from Ryan Tannehill with 6:39 to play in the first half.

That made him – at 321 pounds – the heaviest man to score a touchdown in a playoff game.

That moment was as good as it got for the Titans. Kansas City scored the next 28 points, and Tennessee's improbable run through the postseason ended one game short of the Super Bowl with a 35-24 defeat.

Kelly, who is 6-foot-7, was one of two Tennessee offensive linemen to catch a touchdown pass during the regular season. He scored on a 1-yard reception at Jacksonville on Nov. 24. David Quessenberry did the same Sept. 15 against Indianapolis.

The touchdown pass was Tannehill's fourth of the postseason. Only one was to a wide receiver (Kalif Raymond). The other two went to tight ends, Jonnu Smith and Anthony Firkser, who added a fourth-quarter score against the Chiefs and became the only Tennessee player with multiple touchdown catches in the postseason.

Acquired in a trade with Philadelphia in 2016, Kelly routinely has lined up as an extra tight end over the past four seasons and even has been credited with seven starts in that role. He has done so under three different head coaches (Ken Whisenhunt, Mike Mularkey and Mike Vrabel) but never had a pass thrown in his direction before this season.

His brother, Tim Kelly, is the offensive coordinator for the Houston Texans. So, he presumably has a little more offensive insight than most offensive linemen.

Kelly was one of 10 different Titans to catch a pass in the AFC Championship and one of 12 with at least one reception in the playoffs.

DENNIS THE MENACE: GIANT TACKLE DENNIS KELLY ENFORCING HEALTH AND SAFETY PROTOCOLS WITH TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – The Titans are taking every precaution necessary to stay safe while playing football during a pandemic.

Players and team personnel have been tested daily for COVID-19. Meetings are being held in the team's spacious indoor practice facility so players and coaches can spread out more, there's a limit to the number of players in the weight room and other areas at the same time, and the cafeteria is now grab-and-go style.

If somebody slacks off with social distancing or mask wearing, well, the Titans have a 6-foot-8, 321-pounder ready to enforce the rules.

Dennis Kelly, aka "The Undertaker" gave teammate Taylor Lewan the "What in the name of Dr. Fauci?" look the other day for not wearing his mask properly.

"I think Dennis would be an unbelievable dictator in any country, as the way he's been handling the mask thing," Lewan said with a smile on Monday. "And so, although it's been very annoying, he's doing a good job, and I hate even saying that out loud. Dennis is a really good friend of mine, so I hate doing the boy compliments, but Dennis and I actually got into it today about me and my mask was below my nose so he made sure and told me the protocols of what to do. And so, he's been doing a good job. He's definitely not worried about being annoying in that sense, which is good."

No one is upset with Kelly, the team's NFLPA player rep, for his enforcement.

As an organization, the Titans have proven to be on the same page with COVID-19 safety protocols at the start of training camp.

"Dennis is definitely doing his thing, making sure that we stay safe, keeping the health of the team first, keeping the health of everyone in this organization first," tight end Jonnu Smith said. "He's definitely been patrolling on his thing. We just got to kind of follow Dennis' lead when it comes to safety protocols."

"He's really been anal about it," safety Kevin Byard said of Kelly. "We're all getting used to these new rules, and protocols, and wearing a mask, and stuff like that. I think it's good. I think it's good for Jon (Robinson) the coaches, everybody's trying to make sure that everybody's wearing masks. At the end of the day, the safest teams and the healthiest team this year is going to be the one that's going to be playing in January and February. We can only control what we can control. Different sports whether it's basketball, NHL, baseball, they all have different ways of going about things, but as far as us as a team, we're trying to do our best."

BRETT KERN

WHEN YOU HAVE BRETT KERN — A PRO BOWL PUNTER AND A PRETTY GOOD ATHLETE — YOU TAKE SOME CHANCES

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
DECEMBER 17, 2019

The play call itself? Debatable.

When the Titans — in punt formation near the end of the first half Sunday — sent Amani Hooker in motion toward the right sideline, it appeared to all but wave a flag in the face of the Texans, alerting them that a fake might be in the works.

What special-teams unit, after all, would simply ignore the fact that two players were flanked wide to the right instead of the usual single gunner?

“(The Texans) definitely thought something was up,” Titans gunner Dane Cruikshank said. “That’s why they backed off their coverage.”

So go ahead and critique the design if you choose, but let’s show a little appreciation here for punter Brett Kern, whose 47-yard spiral downfield still nearly turned the fake into a success, his pass tipped away from Cruikshank at the last second by Texans defensive back Lonnie Johnson.

“I mean, it’s really a perfect throw,” exclaimed CBS Sports analyst Tony Romo, who knows a thing or two about slinging the football.

It’s been an out-of-the-ordinary season for the 33-year-old Kern, a 12-year veteran who may be headed to his third consecutive Pro Bowl after finishing first among punters in fan voting. He’s punting to his usual strong standards, fifth in the NFL in average (47.5 yards per attempt) and tied for third in net average (43.6 yards per attempt).

Kern’s arms and legs, however, have been even more entertaining than his foot.

Heading into Monday night’s game, Kern was the only punter in the NFL this season who had both run once and thrown at least two passes, plays that have resulted — at various times — in Kern’s near decapitation as well as in game-changing moments.

Who says punters live a life of leisure?

“Hey, whatever works,” Kern said Monday. “If there are certain looks or certain ways we can help the field position, help with trying to get first downs here or there, and take advantage of something the punt-return team does, then I’m all for it.”

Just why is it that Kern, who’d never thrown a single regular-season pass before this year, has been assigned a few more opportunities this season?

Maybe it’s as simple as a former NFL player — Titans coach Mike Vrabel — wanting to see his specialists sweat a little harder during practices that aren’t exactly exhausting.

“They’ve got a lot of time on their hands,” a half-serious Vrabel said. “They kick for about 10 minutes, then they snap and hold, then they probably throw passes and do some stuff.”

Kern won’t argue with that. When he punted collegiately at Toledo, Kern had enough spare time on his hands during practice that he took up holding for the team’s kicker. It turned out to be a pretty smart decision on Kern’s part, as he’s doubled as the Titans’ holder since arriving in Nashville.

So these days, Kern uses some of his extra moments to craft fakes, working alongside special-teams coach Craig Aukerman and assistant Matt Edwards.

“We just try to find out what’s realistic and what’s not, what’s a throw I could make and feel comfortable making it,” Kern said. “You just toss around the ideas of what would work and what wouldn’t, and then you go from there.”

Still, Vrabel wouldn’t be handing out extra responsibility — running and passing the football — in key situations to Kern unless he trusted his decision-making and athleticism. Considering Kern’s background includes long-jumping, high-hurdling, playing basketball (he has some nasty dunks on tape) and owning a one-handicap in golf, it’s a pretty safe bet he’s not going to trip over his own two feet while attempting a fake.

“I guess you never really know about the term ‘athletic,’ what it means to be an athlete,” Kern said. “That’s always a debate in our locker room, as far as what it is to really be an athlete.

“Shooting hoops out here definitely helps me. Playing golf helps. Being able to throw the football a little bit helps, too.”

When it works as planned, everyone looks like a genius.

That was the case earlier this season against the Los Angeles Chargers, when Kern connected on a perfect 11-yard strike to Kevin Byard, producing a first down on fourth-and-8. That completion led to the Titans’ first score of the game and a 3-0 lead.

But all the extra practice hours and all the surprising athleticism in the world don’t always result in success. No one knows that more than Kern, who’s been part of two special-teams failures this season.

The first oops was especially memorable to everyone, with the possible exception of Kern, who still may be fuzzy about the fake field-goal attempt against Tampa Bay. Kern took the deep snap from center on that play, then stood up and headed around left end in search of a first down. But Buccaneers linebacker Devin White read the play perfectly and delivered a frightening, flattening hit on Kern.

BRETT KERN

“I heard (the hit) and I thought, ‘Oh my God,’” Taylor Lewan said following that contest. “I thought he was dead.”

Kern managed to survive quite well, thank you, to the point he was back at it last Sunday, throwing long to Cruikshank with the Titans facing fourth-and-10 at Houston’s 37-yard line.

Should Vrabel have simply stuck with the offense in that situation, especially considering Ryan Tannehill’s success at converting third-and-long plays since becoming the starter? One could certainly make an argument that going a more traditional route would have offered a better chance at success than having a punter throw a Hail Mary.

Still, hats off to Kern for making an on-the-money toss halfway down the field.

It was simply the latest lively moment in a season that’s offered Kern more than his usual share.

Who knows when the Titans will once again call on his arm — or legs — to complement that rocket of a right foot?

BRETT KERN

TITANS PUNTER BRETT KERN'S STOCK KEEPS GOING UP AS HE HEADS INTO 13TH NFL SEASON

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 2, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans punter Brett Kern is a numbers guy, and a family guy.

When a season ends, Kern looks back at every punt he charted. If there's a certain direction from a certain hashmark he needs to improve on, he works on it leading up to the next season.

With net averages and gross averages listed next to his name, and yard lines to aim for, it's understandable.

It also explains why he's a three-time Pro Bowler.

This offseason, when he had to punt his normal offseason routine because of the coronavirus pandemic, Kern crunched some other numbers while spending a lot of extra time with his family.

Kern and his wife, Tiffany, became full-time teachers to their three children at home.

Kern taught his 10-year-old son Bryce about the stock market, of course.

"He is getting there," Kern said. "I am not sure if he understands what drives the stock market, but as far as the numbers are concerned, and how you can gain and lose in the market, and what that does to your portfolio, he understands that. I also taught him how to balance a checkbook, some of the stuff he'll need when he gets older. I would say (during the extra time at home) I definitely learned a lot more about my kids, as far as how they learn and what they respond to and what they don't."

But it's back to football now.

Kern, named first-team All-Pro by the Associated Press in 2019 in addition to being named to his third straight Pro Bowl, is set to begin his 13th NFL season – his 12th with the Titans.

In 2019, Kern led the NFL with 37 kicks placed inside the 20-yard line, and he led the AFC with a 47.1 gross average. Kern registered 39 punts of 50 or more yards in 2019, and he tied an NFL record with eight punts placed inside the 20 in a game at Denver.

Kern, of course, aims to keep getting better.

"I'm a perfectionist," he said. "I'm probably my toughest critic. I'm really hard on myself, so when I go back and look at film it's not very hard for me to find stuff that I know I need to get better at. I obviously watch the film, I'll look at last year, even the year before, maybe go three years back and just look at different games in the same stadium, really just try to dissect. I don't want to create a pattern where if I'm in a certain situation, I know I'm going to hit a certain punt. So, try to mix it up a little bit and then like I said, obviously working on punts that I felt like I maybe wasn't as consistent as I should be, and work on those. Going into year 13, I have past offseasons that I've learned from -- what's worked, what hasn't worked. There's always something I can get better at.

"And, of course, Coach (Mike) Vrabel and (special teams) coach (Craig) Aukerman hold me to a higher standard to try and get inside the 10s, so just working on placement, hitting target points on those kinds of punts. Consistency is always my main goal, any time I go out there and kick I set different goals for myself, just to be as consistent as possible."

Kern has been a dependable pro since joining the Titans during the 2009 season, after being waived by the Broncos, where he spent the 2008 season and the early portion of 2009.

Kern is the franchise's all-time career leader in both gross punting average (45.9) and net punting average (40.8), and he ranks second in team annals in career punts (839), behind only Craig Hentrich (861).

Kern owns the top eight net punting seasons in franchise history, and nine of the team's top 11 net punting seasons.

As Kern prepares for the start of the 2020 season – and another trip to Denver, where his career started – he's excited about what's ahead.

And he's thankful for what he's accomplished so far.

"Early on in your career it is almost like you're trying to survive at times, and now my thought process is just to have fun and do everything I can to help our team win," Kern said.

"Obviously I am on the back half of my career, so I'm also just trying to enjoy the relationships that I make, the guys that I am around in the locker room, the camaraderie, because I know that won't always be there. So, building relationships, making new friends, and experiencing everything the NFL has to offer and understanding how it has blessed my family immensely. I just want to keep plugging along, take it game by game, and try to do my job the best that I can each game."

DESMOND KING II

TITANS ACQUIRE CHARGERS CB DESMOND KING VIA TRADE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
NOVEMBER 2, 2020

NASHVILLE -- The Titans have traded for Chargers defensive back Desmond King.

King (5-10, 201) earned AP All-Pro honors at cornerback and second-team All-Pro as a punt returner in 2018 for the Chargers. In his four season as a pro, King has tallied 213 tackles, four interceptions, two forced fumbles, four fumble recoveries and 7.5 sacks in 53 games played (23 starts) for the Chargers. During his All-Pro season (2018), he totaled 60 tackles, three interceptions, one forced fumble, two fumble recoveries and an 13.8-yard average as a punt returner.

King was a fifth-round pick out of Iowa in 2017.

The Titans sent the Chargers a sixth-round pick in the 2021 NFL Draft.

Also on Monday, the Titans waived defensive lineman Isaiah Mack.

"(GM) Jon (Robinson) and I talked, and he's a player he and I felt like could help us, has played DB, has been disruptive, has been an effective blitzter, and has done some things," Vrabel said of King. "We'll see where he's at when he gets here. He's going to be away from the building for a while, going through protocols. We won't know much until much later in the week. Everything that we've heard is he's a player that loves football, is competitive, and he's played a number of different spots."

In a video conference call on Monday, Vrabel acknowledged King has played the majority of his career in the slot, "and by all accounts, that's where he would start out."

Vrabel said there's a chance King could be available for Sunday's game vs the Bears, but he indicated some testing and travel protocols are on the horizon. Vrabel said he believes Saturday is the earliest King could be with the Titans.

"I would assume he will be involved in Zoom meetings for most of the week," Vrabel said.

As a college player at Iowa (2013-16), he was a four-year starter and earned the Jim Thorpe Award, which is given to the nation's best defensive back. He also earned Iowa's award for MVP on defense and the special teams award. For his college career, King recorded 14 interceptions, including eight in his junior season, and three interceptions returned for touchdown. He also posted a career punt return average of 11.2 yards.

HAROLD LANDRY III

HAROLD LANDRY'S SECRET WEAPON IN BREAKOUT SEASON FOR TITANS? CONFIDENCE

*BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN.COM
DECEMBER 6, 2019*

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Entering his second NFL season, Harold Landry had a goal: Be disruptive, making as many plays and turnovers as he could.

Through 12 games, the Tennessee Titans outside linebacker has done just that, leading the team with nine sacks to go with an interception and a forced fumble.

Landry is delivering for a team desperately in need of an impact player off the edge. The secret sauce for Landry's success might simply be a heightened level of confidence.

"This year, I am just cutting it loose and going out there playing as fast as I can," Landry said. "I am much more relaxed, flying off the ball, and it's much more reactionary."

Defensive coordinator Dean Pees sees the confidence growing in Landry, too.

"Half the battle in any football player is once the guy is playing with confidence, they start playing faster. ... They feel much more comfortable, and they're not thinking as much," Pees said. "They are just playing. That's exactly where [Landry] is. The more he gets sacks and things like that, the more confident he becomes."

With one more sack, Landry will be the first Titans player to reach double digits since Brian Orakpo had 10.5 in 2016. Landry has had at least one sack in eight games this season and has registered a sack in five consecutive games, the second-longest streak this season, according to ESPN Stats & Information.

Landry's pass-rushing production isn't showing up just in sacks. His 18 quarterback pressures on third down are the second-most in the NFL. Only the Los Angeles Chargers' Joey Bosa (21) has more. One of Landry's pressures against the Colts forced Jacoby Brissett to make a careless throw that was intercepted by safety Kevin Byard. That set up Ryan Succop's game-tying 31-yard field goal.

How did Landry get so confident? The 6-foot-2, 252-pounder worked on adding pass-rushing moves during the offseason. He spent time watching film of pass-rushers such as Dee Ford, Khalil Mack and Von Miller and put hours in at the weight room with teammate DaQuan Jones so he could add more muscle. The greater strength, combined with the new pass-rush moves, have led to Landry's growing belief that he can whip the man across from him.

Outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen credited Landry for learning to tweak his attack during the game as he experiences how offensive linemen are trying to block him. Bowen is up in the booth during game day, but they discuss adjustments throughout the game. The different moves and techniques that Bowen, defensive assistant Ryan Crow and head coach Mike Vrabel are teaching Landry in practice are starting to surface on game day.

"The biggest thing with him is his confidence going into the game right now," Bowen said. "I think any time you're dealing with a young guy, it takes time for that stuff to carry over. When the lights come on, you start looking around, and your focus might go away from some of that stuff. He's locking in ... everything is slowing down for him now, so he can focus on doing those little things that we talk about when we're on the practice field."

Landry is taking it to a new level this year by studying what is working against opposing offensive linemen and replicating it throughout the game. He stopped short of calling it a pass-rushing plan, but he said he caters his attack to different linemen.

"When I am preparing for a game and see a guy that's a low-puncher, that's good for a chop," Landry said during training camp. "When I see a high puncher, that's good for a dip so I can get under him. I want to go into a game and be able to use more than one move that I know will work. It might not be the best time to go to a dip and corner on him. I might have to stab him or do something else. Building my overall repertoire of moves helps me go against the tackles or tight ends."

Another area of emphasis was playing better in space. Landry had been more of a "see ball, get ball" player at Boston College, but now he's asked to do more. He said he's getting more comfortable dropping back into coverage, reading plays and doing more of the things that Dean Pees requires players to do in his defense.

Oakland Raiders coach Jon Gruden says Landry is a player who stands out as his team prepares to face the Titans. Although Gruden called Landry a great edge rusher, the concern is not just because of the sacks.

"You have to be careful with him. He can hurt you off the edge. He does a lot. He drops into coverage, has great range. We will know where 58 is," Gruden said of Landry via conference call.

Landry has enjoyed success this season, but he's ready to keep ascending.

"I love making plays and getting hype with the other guys," he said. "That's when it's the most fun: when we are all out there making plays and feeding off each other's energy. It's awesome."

"I feel like there's another level that I can take. I am just trying to finish these last games strong and get into the playoffs, then take it from there."

HAROLD LANDRY III

TITANS OLB HAROLD LANDRY PLANS TO BE A CONSISTENT FORCE IN 2020

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 3, 2020

NASHVILLE – Harold Landry isn't making excuses for his quieter ending to the 2019 season.

The Titans outside linebacker, who led the team in sacks last fall, said he would like to be a consistent force sacking quarterbacks from beginning to the end in 2020, however.

And he has a plan to make it happen.

"I feel tremendous, and I'm ready to go," Landry said. "I feel great, and I am ready to take that next step.

"My goal when I came into the league was to be a better player every single year. I feel like I took a step from year one to year two and now it is time to take a step from year two to year three. I think I'm ready to do that. I have put in a lot of work, and I am excited for this season."

During a video conference call with reporters on Monday, Landry also said he's working to master several pass-rush moves instead of focusing on adding a bunch of new ones.

"I am not necessarily looking to have, like 1,000 moves in my repertoire," Landry said. "I am just looking to have two or three and being able to make those the best rush (moves) possible.

"And another thing is being versatile – being able to rush not just on the edge, but wherever they want me to rush from, depending on the call. That's what I feel like I need to do to take the next step."

Harold Landry Sacks Jameis Winston, Recovers Fumble

Earlier this offseason, Titans outside linebacker coach Shane Bowen took the blame for Landry's sack totals slowing down at the end of 2019 – he thinks he played too many snaps.

According to Pro Football Reference, Landry played in 85.84 percent of the team's defensive snaps in 2019 – a total of 952 snaps. He played another 25 snaps on special teams.

"He played a lot of plays for us and he did, probably, too much -- that's on me," Bowen said of Landry. "I've got to do a better job of not putting so much on him in terms of play count."

It's all good, said Landry, a second-round pick in the 2018 NFL Draft out of Boston College who led the Titans with nine sacks in 2019, and he added another in the postseason. He finished second on the team with 28 quarterback pressures.

Landry recorded all nine of his regular sacks in the first 12 games, and he went the final four games of December without one. Despite not tallying a sack in the final four games of the regular season, Landry was still around the quarterback – he was credited with eight quarterback pressures in the final four games combined.

Titans OLB Harold Landry Bursts Outside to Sack Bills QB Josh Allen

In the postseason, Landry added a sack of Ravens quarterback Lamar Jackson, and he was credited with eight quarterback pressures in the three postseason games combined despite playing in 98 percent of the team's snaps. Landry played in a whopping 95 of the team's 97 defensive snaps in the team's playoff win at Baltimore.

Landry said he felt like his preparation was the same throughout the season, "but I just had like a cold spurt. You hate to see it, but it happens."

"I hold myself to a high standard, so I feel like whenever he wants me out there, I should be able to perform at a high level," Landry said. "So that's on me. I just need to be able to perform at my best, full-go, every single play and I think it has more to do with me than (Bowen), but I appreciate him having my back."

Landry said he built a home gym during a house renovation this offseason and spent most of his offseason working in Tennessee.

Landry played in all 19 games, including three postseason contests, in 2019. He finished the year with 89 tackles, and 36 pressures in addition to his sacks, while also tallying five tackles for a loss, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery.

In 2019, Landry became the team's first player with a four-game sack streak since 2016, when outside linebackers Brian Orakpo (five games) and Derrick Morgan (four) each accomplished the feat. Landry ended up with a five-game sack streak.

"I want to be a player, that when I go out on the field, all of my boys I am out there with, they can count on me," Landry said. "I want to make impactful plays, and just cut it loose and be relentless every single snap."

RACING IN HIS BOXERS AND SITTING IN SANTA'S LAP: TITANS WELCOME BACK THE ENTIRE TAYLOR LEWAN PERSONA THIS WEEK

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
OCTOBER 2, 2019

Halfway through his senior season at Chaparral High in Arizona, Taylor Lewan produced a series of events memorable enough that his head coach still recalls it more than a decade later.

The liveliness began when Lewan, in his first year as an offensive lineman, drove an opponent about 60 yards down the field, the scene reminiscent of what Michael Oher did to a defender in “The Blind Side.”

“He basically put the poor kid on roller skates,” said Charlie Ragle, now special teams coordinator at the University of California.

So why was an official throwing a flag at the end of the play? That’s what Ragle wanted to know, arguing his team was trying to build a culture of finishing through the echo of the whistle. What was so wrong with that?

“I’m not throwing the flag on him for blocking like that,” the official explained to Ragle. “I’m throwing it because he was talking shit to the kid all the way down the field.”

It didn’t help that Lewan injected himself into the conversation right about the same time, offering his own question to the official — “Who’s paying you?” — and earning another penalty flag in the process.

“I’m like, ‘Oh, my gosh, get your ass on the bench and shut the bleep up,’” Ragle said with a laugh.

It needs to be noted that Ragle loves Lewan as a player and person, still stays in touch with him regularly and even has plans to out-beer-chug the Titans’ big left tackle on a future edition of Lewan’s podcast, “Bussin’ with the Boys.”

“He’s very dear to me, and not just because of his abilities,” Ragle said. “He understands the relationships and the loyalty of what we do, and it’s for guys like (Lewan) that we do this job.”

Nonetheless, that unforgettable high school moment of 2008 has proved a pretty good precursor of what the football world could expect of Lewan on every level.

The 11th overall pick of the 2014 NFL Draft, who returns this week following a four-game NFL suspension for taking a performance-enhancing substance, is a complicated character.

He’s without question one of the game’s best tackles, a three-time Pro Bowler listed as the 77th-best player in the league at any position in the NFL Network’s most recent “Top 100 Players” ranking. Lewan should provide a significant boost to a Titans offensive line that, outside of last Sunday, has struggled to protect quarterback Marcus Mariota.

But there’s more to the package, just as there was back in Lewan’s days in Arizona.

Part of it is Lewan’s huge personality, which features an off-the-charts extrovert level, a razor-sharp wit, a sense of humor worthy of stand-up comedy and an ability to inspire those around him.

Part of it, too, however, is a tendency to make errors in judgment on and off the field, as well as a penchant for running his mouth.

The Titans will welcome the entire Lewan persona back to the locker room this week, hoping the spotlight for the rest of the season stays focused on Lewan’s accomplishments that help the team, as opposed to missteps that hurt it.

“As a player, he’s everything you’re looking for,” said Charles Davis, an analyst for Fox NFL and The NFL Network. “And I do think that as he’s gotten older, he’s started to mature — less of the penalties, less of the extracurriculars, that kind of stuff.

“In some ways, though, Taylor’s really indescribable, and I mean that in the most positive way. Because to try to box Taylor in, I think, is folly. If you’re trying to put a definition on him, forget it. It’s just — what’s the old expression? — you just have to let Taylor be Taylor.”

When he first met Lewan, Titans right tackle Jack Conklin, the team’s first-round draft pick in 2016, recalls the Michigan alum talking a little friendly trash to him, since Conklin played for an archrival Michigan State team that got the better of the Wolverines during the players’ respective tenures.

It wasn’t long, though, before the 6-foot-6, 308-pound Conklin and the 6-7, 309-pound Lewan became good friends, leading to a memorable Christmas shopping excursion with each other at Nashville’s Mall at Green Hills.

Lewan, as Conklin recalls it, was insistent — no, adamant — that the two hulking linemen get their picture taken with Santa Claus.

“Taylor actually sat on his lap,” Conklin said. “Santa was not at all prepared for all the energy that was coming at him at that moment. Taylor was giving him his whole rundown of what he wanted for Christmas. But the funniest thing was just that he was sitting on Santa’s lap — it was just goofy.”

It’s Ragle, who, in his second year as head coach at Chaparral High, gets credit for flipping Lewan from the defensive to the offensive line.

He recognized that with Lewan’s combination of athleticism, footwork, length and aggressive mindset — the ability to “flip the switch” while on the football field — Lewan would likely make an ideal left tackle. It didn’t hurt that the high school’s new offensive line coach, Rod Humenuik, had recently retired after a couple of decades as an offensive line coach in the NFL.

TAYLOR LEWAN

“You talk about timing and being at the right place at the right time,” Ragle said. “To get in there and get coached by a guy like Rod, it was unique, and obviously it paid dividends.”

Sure enough, in no time at all, Lewan was attracting a string of offers as a four-star recruit, ultimately committing to Michigan.

But Lewan had one more highly entertaining moment left in him before heading to Big Ten country.

It happened in the summer of 2008 when Lewan’s old teammates at Chaparral began training for their upcoming season. Word was getting around that the left tackle who’d backed up Lewan the previous year — he stood 6-6 and was pretty talented — might be even more athletic than Lewan.

That didn’t sit well with Lewan, so, naturally, he pulled up to the high school practice at about 6 in the morning and walked straight onto the field.

“I hear ya’ll been talking shit!” Lewan shouted. “I hear ya’ll said Jacob (the former backup) could even beat me in a race. Well, get him on the line right now.”

Lewan then proceeded to strip down to his boxers, lined up next to his former teammate and — without the benefit of stretching — beat him in a 40-yard dash.

“That’s what I effin’ thought,” Ragle recalled Lewan saying after the race. “So then he puts his stuff back on, walks off into his car and yells, ‘See you guys in December.’ That’s why you love him.”

Titans left guard Rodger Saffold and Lewan were communicating via social media even before Saffold signed last March, but Saffold didn’t actually meet Lewan until attending his first offensive lineman’s dinner.

A flashy dresser, Saffold was decked out in what he calls his “swaggy clothes” for the meal at Jeff Ruby’s Steakhouse, an upscale restaurant on Nashville’s 4th Avenue North.

So he was a little surprised to see Lewan roll in wearing a T-shirt, shorts and flip-flops.

But the real kicker came after dinner when Lewan turned to his linemate and said, “Bro, have you ever gone turbo?”

Sure enough, a slightly nervous Saffold was soon stepping into the front seat of Lewan’s Tesla, with the words of former Titans lineman Corey Levin — “Rog, you better watch out” — still echoing through his mind.

“I was like, ‘Oh, man, this is a nice little ride,’” Saffold recalled thinking as the vehicle took off. “Then I happened to notice that his (baby’s) car seat was still in the car. For some reason, I just thought that was pretty hilarious.”

Veteran Titans linebacker Wesley Woodyard remembers watching Lewan as a rookie in some of his earliest practices in 2014. Lewan wasn’t even starting at the time — Oher and Michael Roos were the two starting tackles — but Woodyard knew talent when he saw it.

“I walked up to him, and I was like, ‘Man, I don’t know what you’ve been told, but I think you can be one of the best left tackles to ever play this game,’” Woodyard said. “I just kept mentioning that to him. I don’t know if it meant anything to him, but ... he’s been dominant ever since.”

Lewan stepped into the starting lineup seven games into that rookie year, following an injury to Roos, and has been a cornerstone of the team for the past half-decade.

He was named to his first Pro Bowl after the 2016 season and has returned in each of the past two seasons. His high-quality play prompted the Titans to drop a monster contract extension on Lewan last summer, as his five-year, $80 million deal made him the highest-paid lineman in NFL history at the time. Lewan backed up the contract by allowing just two sacks in 2018, per Pro Football Reference, tied for the second-fewest among all tackles who played at least 15 games.

“Player-wise, he’s one of the best left tackles in the game,” Davis said. “People around the league get that. And he plays with that edge, too. He has a defensive lineman’s mentality, and he plays to the echo of the whistle.”

But Lewan has had his share of negatives since arriving in Music City, mostly due to the number of penalties he’s totaled and to some questionable decision-making.

Lewan has led the Titans in penalties in each of his past four seasons as a starter, flagged 10 times in 2015, 14 times in 2016, 10 times in 2017 and nine times in 2018. He was responsible for 10.98 percent of the Titans’ penalty yardage last season, the eighth-highest figure of any player in the league.

Granted, Lewan plays a challenging position, often matched up against the best pass-rushers in the league as they roar toward the quarterback’s blind side. But one of his challenges is to trim a penalty total that’s included too many holds, face-masks and even an ejection (in 2016 when he made contact with an official following a scuffle).

Then there have been episodes that played well with some of the Titans’ fan base on Twitter but didn’t necessarily reflect well on the organization. For instance, in one month’s time last December, Lewan ...

TAYLOR LEWAN

delivered an obscenity-filled rant at officials following the Titans' narrow win over the New York Jets, telling them they'd tried to ruin the team's chances.

played an "air violin" over Jacksonville cornerback Jalen Ramsey, who had just flopped after a head-butt from Lewan in hopes of drawing a penalty.

gave the middle finger to an NBC Skycam camera during that same Jacksonville game as he lay injured on the field.

walked across the field following the Titans' win over Washington and shot an imaginary bow-and-arrow at Redskins cornerback Josh Norman, simulating Norman's signature move. An angry Norman threw his helmet at Lewan and began shoving him before the players were separated.

Taylor Lewan and Jalen Ramsey. (Christopher Hanewinkel / USA Today)

Former Titans offensive lineman Brad Hopkins, 49, notes that today's players exist in a different era and are motivated differently than players of yesteryear. But he still doesn't agree with the tactics Lewan has taken at times.

"You can call me old-school, you can call me curmudgeon, whatever, but I come from the Bruce Matthews-Mike Munchak cut of cloth," said Hopkins, who is now a Sirius XM radio host as well as a Northwestern Mutual financial agent. "We didn't bring a lot of attention to ourselves. I'm from that old-school group of 'Put your hand in the dirt, knock somebody in the mouth and let that speak for itself.'

"But to each his own. If that's what inspires you to be the best on the field you can be, then I'm not going to tell you otherwise. ... If he can back it up on the field, more power to him."

Lewan has left his mark on the Titans' locker room in many unusual ways.

In 2016, he introduced a large stuffed beaver — one that wore a hat and stood on its hind feet — to his corner of the room, letting all those who asked know the creature's name was "Steve the Beav."

A year or two later, Lewan gifted Conklin with a stuffed owl named Officer Cornwall, which is still perched at Conklin's locker, wearing a British police hat when he is "on duty."

"Taylor should probably be medicated," Conklin said with a smile. "But it's always fun to have Taylor in the room. He brings a lot of energy and keeps everybody's spirits high."

Lewan is also not shy when it comes to parading around the locker room sans clothing upon returning from the shower. Sometimes he'll wear a towel and then — going for full shock value — pulls the front side open in front of teammates.

"We miss his pranks, playing, joking, just the ability to move a room with his attitude," Woodyard said. "We do miss that. We even miss him trotting around, going to the showers and the cold tub with the towel wrapped around just his derriere."

So you can call Lewan many things: talented, intelligent, comedic, loud, impulsive and irritating. But also make sure to call him missed by the Titans, whether it's on the field or in the locker room.

In fact, a number of Titans made sure to point out they want the exact same Lewan this Sunday following his suspension, not a more mild-mannered version of Lewan intent on toeing the line with his behavior.

Tight end Delanie Walker, for instance, refers to Lewan as a wolf, the kind that will lead the team's pack of offensive linemen.

"I need him to be the bad Taylor," Walker said. "That's why he's a wolf — know what I mean? I need him to be that creep. That's what he is, and that's how he plays the game. I like that. I like that grit."

Walker also compared Lewan to a bouncer because of the security he brings to teammates, knowing that the big man — who sometimes goes by the nickname "Dad" — is there to handle any nasty business that pops up in the trenches.

Woodyard agrees, recalling the many times he's watched Lewan pulling defenders off ball carriers downfield after plays.

"Taylor gets a bad rep throughout the league," Woodyard said. "But he's definitely a guy that loves his teammates. That's why he's usually so passionate and fired up. He doesn't want anybody to touch his offensive line, his running back, his quarterback or his receivers."

And if that aggressive attitude sometimes results in costly penalties?

"If he gets a penalty, I just look at it as (the defense) has to do more," Woodyard said. "Obviously, we don't want to get personal fouls.

"But we need Lewan to come back and be Lewan. He's a riled-up, physical guy who loves to get in your face. That's who he is. We definitely want him to come back and just be the guy he was before he left."

In all the forms and fashions that takes.

TITANS LT TAYLOR LEWAN: "I OWE IT TO THIS TEAM TO BE A BETTER LEADER"

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 28, 2020

NASHVILLE – Titans left tackle Taylor Lewan spent the first part of a Zoom call on Thursday being critical of himself, talking about how his early season absence because of a four-game suspension in 2019 caused a disruption in chemistry.

It bothered Lewan, who said he learned from letting those around him down.

He vowed to be better from the start in 2020, when he plans to be a better leader.

"If I was the coaches right now, I think I'd be pretty pissed off that I haven't taken on the leadership role yet," Lewan said. "I've done a poor job of stepping up as a leader and that's been by choice and a little more by fear than anything else because of how I have been bit in the past thinking, 'I don't want to be something I'm not'.

"And now, realizing who I am and realizing what I can bring to the team is really important. I owe it to this team to be a better leader."

During his career, he's played in 85 regular season games, with 80 starts. He's played in three Pro Bowls.

Lewan was named a captain at the start of the 2015 season, but when Mike Mularkey replaced Ken Whisenhunt as the team's head coach during the middle of that season, he was replaced.

A trip to the AFC Championship Game last season made Lewan realize how precious success is "and how short this career can really be and how much you need to make the most of it."

"If I can be a better leader for this team, it's going to help," Lewan said. "This is my seventh year – I have made Pro Bowls, I have had a certain amount of success in this league that can help out a lot of other guys. For a while I think I shied away (from being a leader) a little bit. When I was at Michigan I was a captain and there was a piece of me that I lost, trying to be that All-American guy. Then I come in here and Ken makes me a captain here and I was trying to be what I think people needed me to be and Mularkey came and stripped the "C" (patch) away. Whether that was right or wrong it doesn't really matter. I think I was just trying to be something that I wasn't.

"Now that I am more grounded and know who I am as a person and know what I can give to this team and in this whole career of mine, it is important for me to take on a bigger leadership role – that is important. It is going to help the team and that is the most important thing. ... I look forward to being a good leader for this team."

LEWAN HAPPY TO BE A VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

BY MIKE HOGAN
SPORTS ILLUSTRATED
AUGUST 23, 2020

Whether it happened at the beginning of training camp or earlier this offseason, Tennessee Titans left tackle Taylor Lewan approached first-round draft pick Isaiah Wilson and let him know that the door was open.

Any advice or mentorship the rookie right tackle needs, Lewan said he will be there for Wilson as much as he needs him to be.

For a rookie -- especially a first-round draft pick -- figuring out when, how and who to take advice from can be a challenge. Lewan explained that in many ways, it can feel overwhelming.

"... There's a lot of people trying to help you," Lewan said on Friday. "There's a lot of people trying to tell you what to do, and vets from all over the place are going to be like, 'Hey, try this or that.' It kind of goes all over the place.

"So for me, I went up to Isaiah, and I said, 'Hey man, I'm here for you as much as you want me to be. If you need any help with anything, I'm there for you,' and he and I have talked a lot. There's been some growth there for sure and I think he's working towards getting to where he needs to be."

Lewan also was a highly touted first-round draft pick. Drafted 11th overall by the Titans in 2014, he said he didn't know which way was up that season.

The reasons for that seem obvious now.

In 2014, the Titans were going through a coaching change. Ken Whisenhunt, who was the team's head coach for a season and a half (2014, part of 2015), took over for Mike Munchak and implemented his own offensive scheme. For rookies and veterans alike, much was brand new.

"It was all over the place," Lewan said. "It was a different building back then. It was very difficult. Guys were learning a new offense. I was coming into a team that was learning a new offense."

On top of it all, Lewan was thrust into a leadership role as he continued to acclimate himself in the NFL. After the Titans went 2-14 in Lewan's rookie season, Whisenhunt named the left tackle a captain for 2015. After one win in the first seven contests, Whisenhunt was fired and Mike Mularkey was named interim head coach. In turn, Mularkey stripped Lewan of the captain's 'C.'

While his time in a leadership position was a short-lived experience, Lewan in the spring that he was trying to be someone that he wasn't.

"I think I have done a poor job of stepping up as a leader," he said in May. "That's been by choice, and a little more by fear. Realizing who I am and what I can bring to the table is really important. I owe it to this team to be a better leader."

As the senior member of the offense on a contending team and more comfortable with his abilities now, the 29-year-old expressed his desire to assume a leadership position once again in the near future as he enters his seventh season with the Titans.

In 2020 or some time down the road, Lewan's approach to mentoring rookies at this stage of his career, which now includes 80 starts at left tackle, could be a step toward just that.

"It's fun to be in a position to help people," he said. "...This is my third year in the same offense, essentially. It's good. "It's fun. You start to know things. You start to learn little details here and there which makes it much easier to help guys out. Long answer of it all is it's been half and half. I'll go to them a lot and they'll also come to me, so it's been really awesome."

PACKING A PUNCH: TITANS LB DAVID LONG
JR. HEADS INTO SECOND SEASON WITH ADDED CONFIDENCE

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 16, 2020

NASHVILLE – David Long Jr. paid his dues during his rookie season with the Titans, doing the dirty work on special teams while waiting for his turn to take on a bigger role on defense.

When the opportunity came, Long, the son of a former professional heavyweight boxer, came out swinging.

Long started at inside linebacker in the team's playoff win at Baltimore, and he played well. It helped cap off a year Long finished in fine fashion.

Looking back, Long said the experience gave him added confidence heading into Year 2 in Tennessee. Long played 54 total snaps against Baltimore.

"It helped it a lot," Long said after Sunday's practice. "I just know as much time I got to be out there, to see how the game goes and as far as how I play with my teammates and communication, as long as I was in there and feeling it, I felt like as the season went on, it got better. At the end, I feel like with opportunities presented, I made the best of those. Coming into year two, I just know what to work on and with a new (inside linebackers) coach, Jim (Haslett), that's my guy. I've been learning a lot from him to take my game to the next level."

A sixth-round pick of the Titans in the 2019 NFL Draft out of West Virginia, Long tallied eight tackles, including two tackles for a loss, in 14 games during the regular season in 2019.

While filling in for an injured Jayon Brown against the Ravens, Long racked up eight stops, including five solos. In the team's three playoff games, Long had 16 stops and two tackles for a loss, which came in the AFC Championship Game at Kansas City.

Long will provide depth and competition behind starting inside linebackers Rashaan Evans and Brown in 2020, and he'll also have a chance to work in certain packages on the defense, along a role on special teams.

Evans, for one, has been impressed by Long, a 5-foot-11, 227-pounder who amassed 252 tackles, 14 sacks and 40 tackles for a loss at West Virginia. Long's father, David Long Sr., by the way, went 12-5-2 as a heavyweight boxer and he once fought future world champ Deontay Wilder.

"I think David Long is one of those guys, you tell him to do something and he's going to do exactly that," Evans said. "I just remember him taking that even bigger step in his game in those playoff games. I saw him really grow in a matter of a game. How he came from the regular season to the playoffs when Jayon got hurt, I saw him take a totally different step in his game. Just for me, seeing that, I know that he can be as good as he wants to be.

"What I've learned, too, in the NFL you don't have to be the biggest and strongest guy in the NFL to be able to be successful. If you understand the game, if you know where things are going, if you know when things are going to happen, you can be up there with those elites. He's a guy that's very intellectual to be able to understand some of the things that we're throwing at him during the season, because it was a lot of stuff, definitely a lot of stuff. For him to be able to do that on a big stage the way he did it, for me, I'm proud. I never had that situation where I was a rookie where you go into the playoffs and it's a totally different type of atmosphere. It's a totally different level of intensity. He held his own for a fact."

Haslett, a veteran coach who is in his first year with the Titans, has already been impressed by his pupil

"I think David is a good football player," Haslett said. "He did a good job when he played, he's very instinctive, he's got short-area quickness. There's some things that he can get better at. I think we can improve everybody in certain areas."

Long spent most the offseason in Nashville, working on his game, his conditioning, and his diet.

He's eating fewer carbs, and after working with some of his teammates, he believes he's much better prepared mentally and physically at the start of his second NFL camp.

When he watched tape, he found areas he wanted to improve, from being better in coverage to just developing a better understanding of the defense.

"I feel like a lot of the stuff I was doing out there (last year) was just kind of second nature, see ball, get ball," he said. "But as far as now, I just want to put a lot of stuff together and just be way better than I was last year."

Long plans to keep watching teammates Evans and Brown.

And when he gets opportunities again in 2020, he wants to take advantage of them once again.

Along the way, Long said the inside backers are also looking out for one another.

"Of course, Rashaan and JB (Jayon Brown) are a lot more vocal," Long said. "I try to get (help others) in there, but I'm still learning myself. I feel like (Rashaan and Jayon) have done a nice job of getting rookies adjusted. Nick (Dzubnar) comes here, he's been in the game a long time, so he can get his one, two here and there, so I feel like everybody's doing a great job just coaching up each other. Not only worried about ourselves, but also making sure the guy next to us is getting better every day, too."

TITANS ROOKIE ‘BIG MURCH’ FOUND HIS NFL RECIPE IN THE FAMILY RESTAURANT

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 14, 2020

Editor’s note: This is the fourth in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans’ 2020 NFL Draft picks. Stories on Isaiah Wilson, Kristian Fulton and Darrynton Evans were published earlier this week.

Farrell and Larrell could have been Milton and Hilton. Milton and Glenda Murchison were having twin boys, bringing them to a final tally of five children, and the one thing Glenda knew was that she wanted their names to rhyme.

The firstborn would be Milton Jr. That was a lock.

“I would have been tickled to death if Farrell was named Milton Jr.,” Milton said of the child born 15 minutes earlier than his brother on April 24, 1997, in Elizabethtown, N.C. “I just wasn’t too fond of the Hilton part.”

Really, imagine the Tennessee Titans drafting a guy named Hilton. “Hilton Murchison” sounds more like an insurance adjuster than a defensive lineman. Luckily, a neighbor came through with a suggestion. Farrell and Larrell it would be. They arrived. Twenty-three years and one day later, tension turned to elation in the Murchison household when a call came to Larrell’s phone.

“Big Murch!” Titans GM Jon Robinson said to Larrell, a 6-foot-3, 297-pound defensive tackle whose tremendous senior season at NC State helped convince Robinson to draft him in the fifth round.

That was part of it, anyway. The Titans have been consistently solid on the field in four years with Robinson at the helm, with consistently solid people. There’s a connection. Talent rules in the NFL.

Everyone talks about character. Some manage to find it and supply their locker rooms with it. The locker room in Nashville needs replenishing with Logan Ryan, Jurrell Casey, Delanie Walker, Wesley Woodyard and Jack Conklin moving on.

As Robinson and coach Mike Vrabel talked about Larrell’s football attributes — length, power, hips and so on — little things that break ties between prospects snuck out. Robinson mentioned a “great conversation” on FaceTime with Larrell and that “Big T,” also known as defensive line coach Terrell Williams, had “spent a lot of time with him.”

There’s only so much two people can talk about when it comes to gaps, stunts and twists.

“The longer the process went out,” Vrabel said, “the more we all started to like Larrell and his willingness to learn our defense and build a relationship.”

Here is Larrell’s football profile: Seven sacks and 12 tackles for loss as a senior, 29 reps on the bench, a 5.05 in the 40, a 79 and 3/8-inch wingspan and a week full of impressive drilling before the Senior Bowl.

Here is Larrell’s character profile: Lumber, macaroni, cancer, junior college, recruiting promises broken and team captain status as an NC State senior — a rarity for juco transfers.

“He’s a country boy, one of those guys who doesn’t need a whole lot and appreciates everything he gets,” NC State director of strength and conditioning Dantonio “Thunder” Barnette said of Larrell. “His parents just did a phenomenal job of raising him the right way, and he’s a guy who gives you an opportunity to say to your team, ‘Hey, guys, if you put the work in, look what can happen for you.’”

It goes back to the room Larrell was sitting in at his parents’ house in Elizabethtown (population: 3,800)

when he got the call from Robinson. The entire Murchison family is close, but the four who have reunited as housemates during the COVID-19 pandemic share the achievement of Glenda’s Just Desserts and Lunch Counter as well. Glenda’s dream of a soul food restaurant, with a rotating menu featuring porked chops and chicken, seafood on Fridays and desserts made fresh and selling out every day, came true when the twins were in eighth grade.

She was a hospital administrator before jumping into the restaurant full time. Milton has been a saw filer at a lumber mill for 31 years, and he has supplemented that with a lawn-care business for the past 15 years. Helping Glenda get the restaurant going became job No. 3, and Farrell and Larrell were put to work. That included Saturday mornings after starring the night before for East Bladen High. They’d sweep, clean and cook — the things they had clearance to cook, at least.

“My go-to favorite thing on the menu is her mac and cheese — that’s No. 1,” Farrell said. “The cheese, there’s some secret formula she’s got, some Krabby Patty formula. She won’t even teach it to me.”

Said Glenda: “I’d tell him and then I’d have to kill him.”

The twins have their secrets, too. As twins tend to do, they developed a language only they can understand. They claim to have used it to set up a surprise party for Glenda once, though she insists she was on to them. They made up their own words, like “thrax” for “extreme swagger.” As in, per Farrell: “Odell Beckham Jr., he’s got that thrax.”

They are fraternal twins, not identical, and a difference in personality was apparent early as well.

“Larrell has always been quiet,” Glenda said. “Farrell, the opposite. I used to call him ‘Mouth Almighty’ and ‘Tongue Everlasting.’ There’s no such thing as a stranger to him. I told him, ‘With that mouth, you need to go to college and become a lawyer.’ Larrell, he’d come into a room and say hello and wouldn’t say another word if you didn’t talk to him. But he’s become more of a conversationalist.”

(Interviews with the Murchisons confirm this verbosity profile — Farrell came in at 1,168 words, Milton at 928, Glenda at 907 and Larrell at 698).

Football became and continues to be an expression outlet for Larrell.

“I love it because, shoot, it’s opened so many doors for me to meet people,” Larrell said. “I can be aggressive; everything in the outside world can be put aside because I’m playing football and I can be locked in. And football allows me to bring people together. Even in my hometown, people who wouldn’t normally talk to each other talk all the time because of football.”

In the early days, true to their personalities, Farrell was much better than Larrell. He was bigger, too. Farrell was “Big Murch” and Larrell was “Little Murch” back then.

Here’s a re-creation of a conversation that took place more than once in the early 21st century around the Murchison home:

Larrell: “Mama, everybody keeps picking Farrell before they pick me.”

Glenda: “Just wait until you get to high school; you’ll pass him.”

Farrell: “Don’t say that.”

Glenda (quietly to Farrell): “I’m just saying that to make him feel better.”

But it was true. Larrell came back from a Junior ROTC camp before the twins were juniors and had spurted past Farrell. He played at about 6-foot-2, 250 pounds that season, a defensive end and crushing fullback who cleared the way for a 6-foot-0, 215-pound

Farrell to roll up big yardage on the ground. They were resolved to play college ball together at nearby Winston-Salem State, but Larrell’s standardized test score didn’t make the cut. So Farrell decided to go with him to Louisburg College, two hours north, to play junior college ball and grow together into major-college prospects.

Farrell was the team’s offensive player of the year as a freshman, rushing for 691 yards in eight games. Larrell made big gains in two years, to the point that Texas, Ole Miss and Georgia flew in him and his family for visits after a junior college All-America season in 2016. He thought he was signing with Georgia. But then the scholarship disappeared. He had quietly loved what NC State was offering him all along. And NC State was interested in both of the twins. But the scholarship for Farrell didn’t materialize. He had a chance for a full ride at his original choice, WSSU, and he took it. In the fall of 2017, for the first time in the twins’ lives, they were separated.

The Rams put Farrell right to work, and he rushed for 542 yards. The Wolfpack put Larrell in the lab. He needed a redshirt season to excel at the Power 5 level. And this program, which would see four defensive linemen selected in the 2018 NFL Draft — including No. 5 overall pick Bradley Chubb — knows something about developing them. Murchison packed on about 30 pounds to get into the 290s and focused on working inside.

“I’ll stand on a table and tell you this is one of the hardest-working kids we’ve had in our program,” Barnette said of Larrell. “As a player, he reminds me of (L.A. Chargers defensive tackle) Justin Jones a lot. He got so good at using his hands, it almost looks like he’s doing karate out there. That’s the player he reminds me of, but he has that Bradley Chubb work ethic.”

Larrell was ready to make a difference on the field as the 2018 season approached. And then football’s importance receded.

Farrell had gone to the doctor twice for a lump in his testicles and was first told it was a pulled muscle and then epididymitis. Glenda was with him after a third visit in July 2018 that included an ultrasound, and she broke down when they were told Farrell had Stage 2 testicular cancer.

The good news was it was discovered relatively early and has a high recovery rate. The scary news was this type of cancer can spread quickly. After surgery, Farrell would need extensive chemotherapy at Duke Cancer Center, five days a week until the end of October. Farrell’s fight for survival would coincide with Larrell’s major-college football arrival.

“I kind of underestimated how hard it would be,” Farrell said of the loss of appetite and sense of smell, the exhaustion, the spinning room when he tried to sleep and the nausea that resulted in an extended vomiting episode when he finally came home for good from treatment.

“Farrell doesn’t have bad moments, you know?” Milton said. “But he wouldn’t eat. He and his mother fought about it every day, and one day she got the belt out and said, ‘I’m gonna whip you if you don’t eat.’”

“It was draining,” Larrell said. “I called him every day, but a lot of times he just didn’t have the energy to talk. And then he’d get his energy back by the end of a weekend and have to go back in for another treatment.”

Larrell’s performance on the field helped. He was a breakout performer for NC State, named defensive lineman of the year and most improved player. Glenda remembers the real-time improvement in Farrell’s spirits as he sat up in his bed and watched Larrell wreck Virginia with three sacks in a Wolfpack win. It was similar to Larrell’s reaction in the stands the following fall as Farrell — cancer gone, scans clean, weight back on and football pads too — rushed for 109 yards against UNC Pembroke.

LARRELL MURCHISON

“It was a great year,” Farrell said of the final college season for both. “We’d basically try to outdo each other. I’d tell him how many sacks I need in this game, and he’d tell me how many yards he needs. And just to see how he played and the opportunity he has now — honestly, Larrell is living proof of trusting the process. He did everything by the book, and look at him. Honest to God, he’s my hero.”

Funny, Larrell said the same thing about Farrell. They shared top billing as grand marshals of the Elizabethtown Christmas parade. And now they’re getting one more extended, unexpected dose of living under the same roof during the COVID-19 pandemic. Glenda is home, too, having closed the restaurant until it is safe to open it again. She decided not to keep it open for takeout purposes, though she’s had many requests to make cakes and sell them out of her home.

“I’m busy enough cooking for these two — eating me out of house and home,” she said.

Farrell is still holding out hope for some kind of NFL tryout after rushing for 635 yards as a senior. If not, he’s thinking about breaking into coaching and might have an opportunity at Louisburg. He’s also thought about extending the family restaurant empire someday and opening a barbecue place. “Little Murch” has the edge on “Big Murch” there. Farrell recently tried again to get Glenda to give up the mac and cheese recipe.

“I’ll just make you some,” she said. “How about that?”

MyCOLE PRUITT

TE MYCOLE PRUITT PROVIDES VALUABLE VERSATILITY FOR THE TITANS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – When former Titans tight end Delanie Walker went down with a gruesome ankle injury in the season opener at Miami in 2018, the impact was felt all the way in Houston.

Walker's injury resulted in an address change for another tight end, MyCole Pruitt. Because the day after Walker's season-ending injury, the Titans signed Pruitt off of Houston's practice squad.

And ever since, Pruitt has made the most of the opportunity in Tennessee.

Pruitt, who is headed into his fifth NFL season, has carved out a nice role for himself with the Titans. After signing a contract extension with the Titans this offseason, Pruitt is expected to provide versatility for the team again during the 2020 season alongside fellow tight ends Jonnu Smith and Anthony Firkser.

"I feel like this is a great fit for me, ever since the first day I came in it was a family atmosphere. I felt welcome, I felt like I could carve out a role and I have done that," Pruitt said. "I want to just get better at that as we go into this year.

"In the NFL it is all about finding the right situation, and I feel like I found that here. There's a lot of things that were able to line up for me, and when I came here, I had to find that niche and carve that niche and get better at that. I pride myself in being versatile and being able to do many different things, and whatever I am called upon to do I am going to execute that to the best of my ability."

A 6-foot-2, 245-pounder, Pruitt played in all 19 games, with 11 starts, for the Titans in 2019, including the team's three playoff contests. During the regular season, Pruitt caught just six passes for 90 yards and a touchdown, but he was a big contributor in the running game as a blocker.

Proof of that can be found in a photo taken the day running back Derrick Henry clinched the NFL's single-season rushing mark for the 2019 season in Houston, Pruitt's old stomping grounds.

"MyCole has a level of versatility, he's one of those players that we talk about that plays more than one position," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said of Pruitt. "He plays on the line as a tight end, he plays off, we've had him in the backfield, he helps us on special teams, and so, to be able to do that, that fills a lot of jobs and he's got a good understanding of what we're asking him to do on offense and on first and second-down offense."

Drafted in the fifth-round of the 2015 NFL Draft by the Vikings, Pruitt played in 16 games in Minnesota during his rookie season. In 2016, after being waived by Minnesota late in the season and signed back to the team's practice squad, the Bears came calling, and signed him to their 53-man roster.

Pruitt was waived by the Bears at the start of the 2017 season, and he then joined the Bills for a short stint. Then it was on to Houston, and eventually Tennessee.

Pruitt, who has 27 catches for 294 yards and two touchdowns during his career, said it meant a lot to him to be re-signed by the Titans this offseason.

"It just shows that hard work doesn't go unnoticed around here," he said. "Coach Vrabel always says: 'We're going to treat you how you treat your team', and I felt like that extension shows that is a fact, and that's something we do around here, and that's something we believe in around here."

Now Pruitt is ready to go out and do what's asked of him in 2020.

He's excited about the team, and the group of tight ends around him, led by tight ends coach Todd Downing.

"We try to teach our mentality out there (on the practice field every day): We believe that we should be the best run-blocking group out there, as well as the best pass-catching tight end group out there. We pride ourselves in our versatility and being able to do it all on the field," Pruitt said.

"(As a group), we are very versatile, and we can get things done."

MATT ORZECH

TITANS SIGN LONG SNAPPER MATT ORZECH FROM MIAMI'S PRACTICE SQUAD

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
NOVEMBER 5, 2020

NASHVILLE – The Titans have signed long snapper Matt Orzech from Miami's practice squad.

The team has been granted a roster exemption for Orzech until he completes the COVID-testing protocol on Monday.

Last month, the Titans signed long snapper Matt Overton to the team's practice squad, and he's been practicing this week following the release of long-time long snapper Beau Brinkley on Tuesday.

The Titans face the Chicago Bears on Sunday at Nissan Stadium.

Orzech, who played collegiately at Azusa Pacific, handled the long snapping duties for the Jaguars in 2019, appearing in all 16 games. He was originally signed by Baltimore as an undrafted rookie in 2019, but after being waived he was claimed by the Jaguars.

Orzech was signed to Miami's practice squad in September.

In 16 games with the Jaguars in 2019, Orzech handled the team's long snapping duties, and he aided in kicker Josh

Lambo's franchise record for the most field goals in a single season (33). He also snapped to punter Logan Cooke, and he helped Cooke and Lambo become the first teammates to lead the league in net punting avg. (44.5, min. 10 punts) and field goal percentage (97.1, min. 10 attempts) since net punting average first began being tracked in 2000.

At Azusa Pacific, Orzech appeared in 45 games (eight starts) as a tight end and special teams player for the Cougars.

Overton, meanwhile, joined the Titans with 100 games of NFL experience with the Colts (2012-16) and Jaguars (2017-19). Following the 2013 season he was selected as the long snapper for the AFC's Pro Bowl team.

TENNESSEE TITANS: KALIF RAYMOND'S JOURNEY TO THE NFL CENTERED ON UNCERTAINTY, THRIFTINESS AND OVERCOMING THE ODDS

BY LUKE WORSHAM
ATOZSPORTS.COM
DECEMBER 5, 2019

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — To call Tennessee Titans receiver Kalif Raymond's journey to the NFL "off-schedule" would be somewhat inaccurate. A truer claim would be that, in his journey, there wasn't much of a schedule at all.

"It was hard," Raymond recalled of his long, winding path to the NFL. "You were kind of going in there thinking, 'I'm just going to do whatever I can to get a shot.' There were no steps, there was no process."

Over the last month, Raymond has become a key contributor for the Titans. He is now their primary kickoff returner, and his 40-yard receiving touchdown in the fourth quarter on Sunday iced a crucial win for the Titans against the Colts.

The path to Raymond getting where he is now was filled with plenty of uncertainty, a bit of thriftiness, loads of diligence and constantly overcoming the odds.

PREP DAYS IN ATLANTA

For high school, Raymond attended the academically rigorous Greater Atlanta Christian School where he caught just 30 passes for 511 yards over his career.

Following a serious injury toward the end of his senior year, it seemed to Raymond and his family—he and his seven siblings remain very close to this day—that collegiate athletics would not be a legitimate possibility.

But Raymond did something that, probably, very few players currently in the NFL did to get a college scholarship offer. Raymond began sending cold emails to various schools that had football programs but were mostly known for academics.

"It was a long process," he said. "I broke my ankle my senior year of high school right before the end of the season. I had to send out emails to a bunch of schools for me to get an opportunity."

Only three schools responded to Raymond's emails with interest in the tiny speedster: Georgetown University, Lehigh University and College of the Holy Cross. Raymond settled on the latter.

TO HOLY CROSS

At Holy Cross, Kalif Raymond was a dual-sport athlete, playing football and running track. In football, he established a reputation as a do-it-all player, returning punts and kickoffs in addition to playing receiver.

When Raymond's college career came to an end, his future was unclear. He was not invited to the NFL Scouting Combine, and Holy Cross had never put on a Pro Day to showcase its graduating players to pro scouts.

Still, Raymond knew he wanted to play in the NFL.

"I think I just told myself, 'look, I know I want to play in the NFL,'" Raymond said. "'I don't know how it's going to happen, I don't know how to make it happen, but if I get a shot, be as prepared as possible.'"

To make himself "as prepared as possible," Raymond started by securing a spot at another school's Pro Day. He was allowed to participate in drills at Harvard University, which is roughly an hour's drive east from Holy Cross.

"THERE WASN'T ANYONE TO CALL."

But when that opportunity was lined up for Raymond, another obstacle arose.

He got confused about the time at which the drills were set to begin, leading to him nearly being late. The biggest factor behind that gaffe was Raymond's, and Holy Cross's, general lack of knowledge on the pre-draft process.

There was no real roadmap for Raymond to follow.

"There wasn't anyone to call at Holy Cross and ask, 'hey, what's this going to be like?'" Raymond said. "I got the times wrong so I ended up getting there just before it started, and I was third in all the lineups. Everything was just so new at the time."

Raymond was relatively successful at Harvard's Pro Day, running an impressive 4.34-second 40-yard dash. He failed, however, to catch the eyes of any of the NFL scouts who were in attendance.

BUMPY START IN THE PROS

As a result, Raymond was not selected in the 2016 NFL Draft. When the draft ended, only two teams were interested in Raymond, at all, as an undrafted free agent: Arizona and Denver.

Thanks to an impressive phone call with then-special teams coordinator Joe DeCamillis, Raymond chose the Broncos.

"We had a lengthy conversation," Raymond said. "He was very truthful, very honest with me. Hearing his voice, hearing him talk to me, I knew that was where I wanted to go."

Raymond's career in the NFL began exactly how one would expect the career of an undrafted and mostly unsought after Holy Cross-alumnus to start: being cut several times.

The Broncos waived Raymond as a part of their final cuts during the last week of the 2016 preseason. He then spent most of the season on Denver's practice squad before being called up to the team's active roster for a few games in December.

KALIF RAYMOND

After being waived again by the Broncos during final cuts in 2017, Raymond found a temporary home with the Jets, who waived him from their active roster and, subsequently, their practice squad by the end of September.

Since that 2016 phone call with DeCamillis, Raymond has been waived a total of nine times by four different teams.

The Titans are one of them. After Raymond initially made their 53-man roster after 2019 Training Camp, the Titans waived him after just one game and added him to the practice squad.

CARVING OUT A ROLE WITH THE TITANS

It was on the Titans' practice squad, as a member of the scout team, that Raymond began to carve out a role for himself, a first for him in the NFL.

Often in early-season practices, Raymond switched out his number 14 for the jersey number of a receiver the Titans' secondary was getting set to face. In Week One, he played the role of the Browns' Odell Beckham, Jr. Week Two saw Raymond portraying T.Y. Hilton of the Colts.

It was a job that Raymond enjoyed and one that he took seriously.

"It's a good feeling if you go out there and give the defense a good look as that player, and then they go and shut him down during the week," Raymond said. "It means I did my job."

Members of the Titans' secondary, one of the NFL's most productive units in 2019, knew they were seeing something special in their early-season practice matchups against Raymond.

"When I went out there, I would tell him to go 100%, even if it was a walkthrough," corner Adoree' Jackson said.

"Give me some releases, give me something.' I appreciated that level of competition from him. He was out there going hard as he battled us."

"From a veteran guy, he has my utmost respect because I see how he works day in and day out," corner Logan Ryan said.

"I want him to do well. He's tough to cover, let me tell you that. I think people are starting to see that."

BACK TO THE ACTIVE ROSTER

Raymond's role with the Titans switched, again, just one day ahead of the team's Week Eight matchup with Tampa Bay when the Titans elevated him from the practice squad to the active roster.

Darius Jennings, the Titans' kickoff returner for the first seven games of 2019, was struggling to make things happen in the return game. So, the team waived him and gave Raymond a shot.

To no one's surprise, he took full advantage of the opportunity.

Since returning to the active roster, Raymond has produced numerous chunk gains on kickoff returns, becoming an integral part of an extremely effective Titans special-teams unit.

"He's taken full responsibility for that kick returning job, and he's done a great job gaining yards and making the right calls," said safety Dane Cruikshank, another key special teams player for the Titans.

Raymond's biggest contribution to the Titans since coming back to the active roster, however, came in the fourth quarter of the team's Week 13 win over the Colts.

The Titans offense faced a third-and-6 with a 24-17 lead and 3:11 left in the game. Instead of opting to run the ball with star tailback Derrick Henry to keep the clock moving, the team put its trust into Raymond's hands.

QB Ryan Tannehill faked a give outside to Henry, stepped up into the pocket and fired a shot downfield for Raymond, who tracked the ball over his shoulder and dove into the end zone for a game-clinching, 40-yard touchdown.

It was the first receiving touchdown of Raymond's four-year NFL career.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR KALIF RAYMOND?

Raymond's football career continues to defy odds and convention. The 5-8 receiver from a Catholic college with just over 3,000 students has managed to solidify a key role on an NFL team with more-than-realistic hopes of winning its division.

The only rhyme or reason behind Raymond getting to the point he's currently at has been a refusal to give up or quit.

"It doesn't matter where you went to college, it doesn't matter how you got here, it matters what you do when you're here," said head coach Mike Vrabel, who called Raymond's game-winner against the Colts offensive coordinator Arthur Smith's "best call" of the season.

"Kalif has taken advantage of every opportunity. When he comes in, he's prepared. He studies. He has a great attitude, he's tough. I'm happy for him."

In the midst of his recent success, Kalif Raymond's focus, as it always has, remains on the present.

"One of the mental things I've learned is, 'if you look too far into the future, you lose today.' I try to take advantage of every day, every minute, every hour. That way, if I do well during the day, I won't have to worry about my future."

FORMER HOLY CROSS WR KALIF RAYMOND'S MINDFULNESS HELPING HIM EXCEL WITH TITANS

BY JENNIFER TOLAND
THE TELEGRAM
SEPTEMBER 3, 2020

Tennessee Titans wide receiver Kalif Raymond begins every day the same way he ends it — with 10-20 minutes of meditation.

“Discipline and consistency are all part of being a professional,” Raymond, the former Holy Cross star, said during a phone interview earlier this week. “The goal is for me to (meditate) every day. If there’s something I want to work on or being able to let go or staying present, or maybe there’s something deep down in my mind that I want to work through, I kind of have a particular intent every time I meditate.”

As the 26-year-old Raymond prepares for the upcoming season, he feels he has progressed greatly, both physically and mentally, since entering the NFL as an undrafted free agent with the Denver Broncos in 2016.

“There are different parts of the game you can always improve on,” Raymond said. “As you go from year to year, if there isn’t something you’re learning from the year before, I don’t think you’re doing a great job looking at yourself and seeing where you can get better. That’s the name of the game — being able to continuously improve your game. There is always something to work on.”

After being promoted from the Titans’ practice squad to the active roster last Oct. 26, Raymond made nine catches for 170 yards in eight games, and scored his first career touchdown in a win over the Indianapolis Colts. He also averaged 22.4 yards on 18 kickoff returns. Raymond, who graduated from Holy Cross in 2016, ranks fifth all time at HC in all-purpose yards and second in kick return yards.

The 5-foot-8, 182-pound speedster emerged as a dependable deep threat for Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill last season. That first career TD was a 40-yard grab.

In the Titans’ upset win over the Baltimore Ravens in the AFC divisional round, Raymond hauled in a 45-yard TD reception and became the first HC graduate to score a touchdown in an NFL playoff game since Bill Osmanski of the Chicago Bears in the 1940 NFL Championship Game.

In this year’s training camp, Raymond has worked on becoming a more well-rounded receiver, running more short and intermediate routes, while also continuing to field kickoffs and punts.

“He had some big plays for us last year down the field,” Titans coach Mike Vrabel said earlier in camp. “Ryan has confidence in him. I think he’s improved his route running. He’s not the biggest guy, so he’s going to have to run really good routes against press coverage or bigger-type players that may want to get their hands on him or create some contact. I think he understands that, and he’s worked really hard.”

Raymond is projected as the Titans’ No. 4 receiver, but the humble and hardworking Georgia native, who shuttled on and off the practice squads and active rosters of four teams the last four years, is taking nothing for granted.

“I don’t feel at liberty to think that way and I don’t want to,” Raymond said, “because I think at that point you kind of become content, you become stagnant. I’m always pushing. We have guys in the receiver room that you get to see grind and every day we’re constantly pushing each other.”

Raymond made his NFL debut for the Broncos late in the 2016 season and appeared in four games as a kickoff and punt returner.

Denver waived Raymond the next September, and he had stints with the Jets and Giants. He spent a short time on the Titans’ practice squad in 2018 before being released and joining the Giants’ practice squad for just two days.

On Dec. 24, 2018, Raymond returned to the Titans’ practice squad and later signed a reserve/future contract with the team. He began the 2019 season on Tennessee’s practice squad and was elevated to the active roster in October.

“Just learning to be a professional,” Raymond said, “that’s what the whole journey has been about. Learning ways to constantly improve from one practice to the next, from one game to the next. Also, finding the best way to be prepared. That’s one of the things that helped me a lot, just being prepared for those moments, for those catches, for those opportunities. That’s what gave me my best shot to go and succeed.”

Raymond said the mental side of the game is the biggest difference between his rookie year and now. “By far,” he said.

“I didn’t know how much of an effect it had on you,” he added. “You go home, you lift, you train, you run, but being able to work on my composure, my stress level, reading, meditating, staying off my phone, it helps me create a lot of mental and emotional stability. I think that makes a huge difference going into games, not adding extra stress and weight and stuff like that.”

Raymond said his former Broncos teammate, wide receiver Bennie Fowler, introduced him to meditation.

“He was the first person I talked to about it,” Raymond said. “He was very instrumental. He gave me insight and also a lot of understanding and tools and resources to be able to go forward with that. I’m definitely very appreciative of Bennie for that.”

Raymond spent the offseason at home in Atlanta with his family, and took some time to let his mind and body heal before beginning at-home workouts. NFL OTAs and minicamps were canceled this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

With many protocols in place, Raymond said camp is a little different, “but once you finally get to practice you just go out there and play football.”

Raymond played for former coach Tom Gilmore at Holy Cross, but he remains in close contact with the program through current coach Bob Chesney.

“Coach Chesney texts me a lot,” Raymond said, “sends me a lot of uplifting messages. He does a very good job of contacting former players.”

Gaining comfort in the offense, making some big plays and helping the Titans come within one game of last year’s Super Bowl gave Raymond some confidence heading into this season.

“Definitely it has,” he said. “When it comes down to constantly improving, you always shift to what you’re working toward, but it gives me a lot of confidence knowing the team trusts me and that’s what makes me feel the strongest. When I’m at my best, it’s knowing that I’m with the team and those guys trust me because I’m going to do everything I can for them. So it’s definitely a confidence booster.”

The Titans, who signed former Patriots kicker Stephen Gostkowski on Thursday, open the season Sept. 14 at Denver and with high expectations for 2020.

“We have a great group of guys inside the locker room,” Raymond said, “high-character guys who all want to fight for each other and I think that’s what pushes teams far.”

TITANS HOPING FOR EVEN MORE FLASH FROM OLB DERICK ROBERSON IN YEAR TWO

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 10, 2020

NASHVILLE – Derick Roberson got a taste of the NFL during his rookie season in 2019, and the Titans got a further peek into his potential.

Despite playing in just three regular season games – and 29 defensive snaps – the undrafted rookie edge rusher got himself noticed.

In the team's Week 16 contest against the Saints, Roberson twice sacked quarterback Drew Brees. In doing so, he became the first Titans rookie with two or more sacks in a game since linebacker Avery Williamson accomplished the feat as a rookie against the Pittsburgh Steelers in 2014.

Roberson, who spent 10 weeks on the practice squad earlier in the year and three more weeks as an inactive on Sundays, followed that up with a sack the following week at Houston.

His final stat line: three sacks in three regular season games. Not bad, huh?

Now the Titans hope they can get even more out of Sam Houston State product moving forward.

"Roby from the gate flashed some ability to rush the passer," Titans outside linebackers coach Shane Bowen said. "I think the main thing with him right now ... (is) consistency, and ultimately just development. Being a first-, second-down player, the run game, some of that type of stuff, taking the next step there has been what's held him back a little bit in terms of that playtime, but he definitely has value on third down in passing situations."

Derick Roberson Sneaks Up on Drew Brees for Huge Third-Down Sack

The Titans added veteran Vic Beasley at the position this offseason, while re-signing Kamalei Correa. The team returns its top pass rusher from a year ago in Harold Landry, who led the team with nine sacks. Outside backers D'Andre Walker, Reggie Gilbert will be joined in the competition by Josh Smith and Jordan Williams in training camp.

Roberson, who played in all three of the team's postseason contests, hopes to earn more playing time and opportunities in 2020.

Plenty hinges on his development this offseason, but so far, Bowen has liked what he's seen from afar. Bowen regrets not having the opportunity to work with Roberson more. The Titans continue to work in Zoom meetings instead of on the field in OTAs and minicamps.

Roberson appeared in 32 games with 20 starts over three seasons at Sam Houston State, where he totaled 123 tackles, 23 sacks, eight passes defensed, one interception and seven forced fumbles.

"I think the first, second down stuff in terms of scheme, understanding, and the technique – which he's come a long way," Bowen said. "He really has, and he's bought in, and he's dialed in this offseason."

"That's kind of one of the more disappointing things about not having this offseason, like Year 1 to Year 2, like you saw with Harold and some of these guys, that offseason is huge for development," Bowen said. "That's where we're going to have to strive to hopefully get caught back up. Hopefully these guys are doing what they say they're doing in terms of working out and all the drills, and all that type of stuff. That's going to be a challenge for us and that's something that we're going to have to continue to stress, probably more so even going into the season than what we normally do in terms of time allotment just because of this, not being able to do it this offseason."

RODGER SAFFOLD III

TITANS VETERAN LINEMAN RODGER SAFFOLD HUNGRY FOR SUPER BOWL RING AFTER TWO CLOSE CALLS

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
MAY 29, 2020

NASHVILLE – Rodger Saffold had options when he became a free agent after the 2018 season.

The veteran offensive lineman had just played in a Super Bowl with the Los Angeles Rams, and part of his mission was to find a good match with a contender.

He ended up signing with the Titans, and he still remembers the reaction from some.

"People thought I was crazy for coming to the Titans," he said, before adding: "But look at us now."

Heading into his 11th NFL season, Saffold is as hungry as ever.

After his Rams lost in Super Bowl LIII to the Patriots, during his first season in Tennessee Saffold was part of playoff wins at New England and Baltimore before experiencing an AFC Championship loss at Kansas City. As a result, the Titans finished one win short of making it to the Super Bowl in Miami.

Saffold started all 19 games at left guard in 2019, including the three playoff contests.

He has a Super Bowl-or-bust mindset heading into 2020.

"My passion for that is through the roof," Saffold said during a Zoom call on Thursday. "After going to the Super Bowl and then realizing that we were one game from getting into the (Super Bowl) with the Titans, I was really driven. My entire focus was driven to getting back to the Super Bowl. Total complete confidence in myself and my teammates, and basically what can I do to get us there again. This time we know having a slow start won't help us at all.

"We really had to gut-wrench through the season to get everything back the right way. For us now, I think that now that we know our capabilities, having that fast start is always in the back of our minds. But we're not putting any pressure on us. We know that hard work is what got us there. For me, I constantly – even the day after our loss in the Super Bowl, all I thought about was getting back. People thought I was crazy for coming to the Titans, but look at us now. I have nothing but confidence in my team and I can't wait to get back in that position again."

Rodger Saffold Looking Forward to Getting Back to Work with Teammates

Saffold struggled at the start in 2019.

In fact, following a Week 5 loss to the Bills, he stood at his locker and beat himself up after allowing multiple sacks in multiple games early last season. He blamed poor technique, and a new scheme, for his issues in Tennessee after playing his first nine NFL seasons with the Rams.

"I feel like I am letting my team down at this point," Saffold said at the time. "I am not used to having this type of frustration. ... I am not going to blame anybody on my team – my players, my coaches. I am just going to have to find a way to get connected with this team and be able to get in rhythm with the team.

"At the end of the day, even though we all make mistakes, we always talk about how you have to be critical of yourself and that is one thing that I definitely take to heart. The only thing that I can do is come in here and try to be the same guy without being too down."

Saffold ending up settling down, and settling in.

He was part of an offensive line that paved the way for running back

Derrick Henry to lead the NFL in rushing with 1,509 yards, and while the group allowed too many sacks of quarterbacks Marcus Mariota and Ryan Tannehill, it showed improvement in the second half of the season, and during the playoffs.

Tannehill made it to the Pro Bowl as he led the NFL in passer rating.

And Saffold found his footing.

"There was definitely an adjustment last season just with everything being new," Saffold said. "I think that just having that perseverance to just keep working through it and then start meshing with the offensive line, it allowed us a lot of success toward the end of the year. I really like the mentality, the direction that we're kind of going into next year. I think that we should expect to be on the same plane. Just continue from last season, but always challenging ourselves to be better than before.

"As far as for myself, (I now have a better understanding of the) kind of the concepts that the coaches are looking for. Kind of the way that they want us to handle certain types of protections, the techniques. We started to figure that out better and better as the season went on and now it's kind of second nature. The fact that they can tell me something and I can regurgitate that back to them the way that they see it is really helpful. Kind of understanding plays and understanding technique. Now I have a better grasp of that, so it's going to help me in the future, especially in the future."

HOW TITANS' RODGER SAFFOLD BECAME AN ESPORTS OWNER AND WHAT'S NEXT

*BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
AUGUST 17, 2020*

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- It all started with trips to Blockbuster to rent video games.

That's how Tennessee Titans offensive lineman Rodger Saffold III and his business partner, Kahreem Horsley, were first exposed to the world of online gaming.

Saffold and Horsley have known each other for around 15 years. Gears of War was one game they played together early on.

Horsley became a pro in 2008 playing Call of Duty 4: Modern Warfare. He joined a series of small online leagues and played in weekly Major League Gaming 2K tournaments. He was building a following, so he and Saffold started streaming games on Twitch, an online platform for gamers. As their audience grew, Horsley and Saffold started thinking of founding a team of their own. Fast-forward to 2014 and Saffold, who was the No. 33 overall pick of the 2010 draft by the Rams, became one of the first active professional athletes to own an esports team.

Rodger Saffold, left, founded his own esports team with business partner Kahreem Horsley in 2014. Courtesy of Kahreem Horsley

"You start to get into conversations with people [about esports ownership] and they look at you like, 'What the hell are you talking about?'" Saffold said. "At the end of the day, they still look at video games as a child's game. You have to tell them, 'No, this is a very profitable business.' This is a business that you want to get in as early as you can because the price keeps going up. You see all of these people and realize it's really a huge deal. These franchises keep getting more and more expensive over time."

Now Saffold and Horsley have even bigger plans for their esports future after announcing last week they're expanding to include a team for VALORANT, a first-person shooter game released in June.

Building a team

Competing in tournaments opened Horsley's eyes to how more money was being earned on the competitive scene. Global esports revenue exceeded $1 billion in 2019, according to a report from Forbes.

Saffold and Horsley looked into starting a gaming organization that housed competitive esports gamers, with a goal of eventually selling merchandise. It wasn't expensive -- all they had to pay for initially was setting up a limited liability company (LLC) and traveling to tournaments. They came up with the name Rise Nation, which was recently shortened to Rise.

Rise's ascension started during its rookie year. Horsley lost a tournament but turned his attention to the players who beat him -- Jonathan "Pac Man" Tucker, Jamal "Whea7s" Lee, Daniel "Loony" Loza and Damod "F3ars" Abney.

Back then it wasn't common for players to be under contract as they are now. Horsley reached out to them via Twitter and had contracts drawn up. Six months later, that team competed for the 2014 Call of Duty Championship.

It placed seventh and won $35,000.

Making a name for themselves

Rise began competing in the Call of Duty World League. In 2018, its last year in the league, it finished first in three open events in Atlanta, Seattle and Anaheim, California. It won six major championships in Call of Duty.

And it has been able to expand into other games such as Gears of War and Street Fighter, where in its first year Rise won a $250,000 prize for winning the Capcom Cup. The key was adding a player from the Dominican Republic -- Saul "MenaRD" Mena -- whom, Horsley said, no one had ever heard of.

Tennessee Titans lineman Rodger Saffold, center, saw his Rise team soar to success during the Call of Duty World League season in 2018. MLG

Rise has 32 total employees, including 15 pro gamers. Before bringing a player aboard, it does a background check and scours a prospective player's social media for signs of trouble.

"It's a regular process like you would do at any other place," Horsley said.

Being on the scene as a respected gamer helps Horsley find new talent.

"You have to play yourself up through the ranks and get that respect level," Horsley said. "Once you get to a certain point of competition, guys will contact you to get scrimmages because you only practice with those that you respect. They respect me so it's very easy to navigate these scenes."

Added Saffold, "We are very beloved in this space. A lot of people have respect for us and enjoy playing with us."

Expanding to new games

That respect helped Rise form its new VALORANT team.

"Rise was a huge name in Call of Duty, winning major titles. And winning Capcom Cup for Street Fighter 5 was a giant milestone, cementing their name as an organization," VALORANT team leader Todd "Anger" Williams said.

"Adam 'Spirit' Wills, who is on the current VALORANT roster, competed in Overwatch for them and instantly gave us the blessing when we were scouting who to play for."

Although Rise doesn't compete on the Madden platform, Saffold has become somewhat of an esports ambassador to his NFL teammates. A lot of them play Call of Duty, FIFA, Madden and more, but until speaking with Saffold, they don't realize how much money can be made from the games.

"Every time I talk to them they are like, 'Really?' Now guys are like, 'Hey, can I invest?' I have talked to several people on the Rams and Titans about it and they're surprised now," Saffold said.

Running back Marshawn Lynch and former defensive end Michael Strahan are some of the high-profile investors in NRG Esports. Rams owner Stan Kroenke and Patriots owner Robert Kraft both own teams in the Overwatch League.

Having been in the NFL for 10 years, Saffold is familiar with the results-driven aspects of the game. He strives to keep his esports players motivated to play the games the way they need to play to win.

"I'm all about the process and I'm all about the work," Saffold said. "As long as I've got players that grind continually on the game, making sure they have some experience, making sure that they're practicing, playing the game instead of playing a bunch of other games, I'm usually in a good mood."

Unlike many other industries, online gaming has seen an upswing during the COVID-19 pandemic, with more people staying at home and looking for things to do.

"It's definitely helped my business," Saffold said in May. "One of the biggest expenses that you have as an esports owner is having your players travel to different cities. With there not being any travel and most things being online, it's really cut down the cost of a lot of expenses going to and from events. Expenses are going down, viewership is going up. You get more eyes on marketing, those types of situations. You'll definitely see yourself in the green after this."

Rise recently underwent a rebranding process for the first time since it hit the scene in 2014. It redesigned its jerseys and hosted a $50,000 charity Call of Duty: Warzone event in June, with proceeds going to the Equal Justice Initiative. They also have aspirations toward potential participation in the Call of Duty League.

Ideally, Saffold would like to merge his Rise fans and Titans fans.

"I want this to go hand in hand. I want the gamers to support the Titans and the Titans fans to support my off-the-field hobbies."

TITANS GUARD RODGER SAFFOLD TREASURES LESSONS, SUPPORT AND LOVE FROM HIS LATE FATHER

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
SEPTEMBER 9, 2020

NASHVILLE – As a youngster growing up in Ohio, Titans guard Rodger Saffold III knew from an early age he wanted to play football.

His father, Rodger Saffold II, showed him the way with love and support.

"My dad played football, so we had a football home," Saffold said of his father, who played at the University of Iowa in the mid-1970s. "I used to watch high school, college, and professional football games at a very young age. I decided I wanted to play football when I was nine, and my dad helped me figure out what I was going to do."

Rodger Saffold II helped his son pick his position, and he steered him toward his dreams.

Saffold said his father drove him to workouts, and supported him every step of the way, through his playing days at Bedford High (Ohio), and into his collegiate days at Indiana University, where he became a dominant performer, and a team captain. Saffold said his father used to send him tapes of players to watch when he was in college, and it helped him turn into an NFL-caliber talent. Saffold was drafted in the second round of the 2010 NFL Draft by the Rams.

"He was always there, very supportive," Saffold said of his father. "During games in high school he would give (me) a thumbs up and thumbs down after drives (when I came off the field) to see how well I did. Thankfully, it was always a thumbs up."

Along the way, Rodger Saffold II also learned how to be a man, thanks to his father's steady guidance.

"He basically taught me about having the values of good character, and a leadership role and all those things and to match that with being in love with the hard work and the grind and that has carried me through this whole time," Saffold said. "I have been playing over 20 years now and he was a big part of that."

Rodger Saffold III, an 11-year NFL veteran who is set to begin his second season with the Titans, lost his father at the end of August. Funeral services for Rodger Saffold II were on Wednesday, September 2.

Saffold left the Titans briefly to support his family, but he returned to be with his teammates, who have done their best to keep his mind off the loss of his dear father. Practices, and a game plan for the opener, have allowed him the opportunity to turn his attention away from his sorrow.

When Rodger Saffold II discussed his father during a video conference call last week, he bragged about the man who was "a huge support system for me all my life." The two talked before every single game, and after every game.

On Monday, before the Titans face the Broncos in the season opener, Rodger Saffold won't be able to pick up the phone in the hours leading up to kickoff to talk to his father, something he's done since he first started playing football 20 years ago.

But he knows his father will be with him in spirit.

"I am still going to talk to him," Saffold said. "One of my rituals is going to be praying (before games), so I am still going to be talking to my father through that form. And I am just going to continue to play how I know how to play."

"This has raised a lot of motivation for me, just wanting to get out and do what I can for myself and my family. So, motivation is not going to be a problem for me this year. So I just think taking all of (the heartbreak) and putting it in the right direction and being productive for this team is what's going to be best for me and for my family."

AS JEFFERY SIMMONS' IMPACT ON THE FIELD GROWS, DOCTORS ASSESS AND MARVEL AT HIS ACL RECOVERY

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
OCTOBER 31, 2019

It's been seven years since Adrian Peterson returned from a torn anterior cruciate ligament, but the running back's comeback is still considered something of a medical marvel.

Peterson was playing NFL games less than nine months after suffering his severe knee injury, a timetable many consider miraculous when it comes to recovering from ACL surgery. He not only stepped back into Minnesota's opening lineup in 2012, but went on to win the league's MVP after rushing for more than 2,000 yards.

It's with Peterson's return as a backdrop that the comeback of Titans rookie defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons is looking more and more impressive.

The 6-4, 305-pound Simmons played his first NFL game two weekends ago, a mere eight months after undergoing ACL surgery in February. He's been wreaking havoc on opponents' offensive lines since, totaling a combined 10 tackles, four quarterback pressures, one sack and one tackle for loss.

So just how does Simmons' ACL recovery compare with that of Peterson?

In the opinion of one former NFL team physician, Dr. David Chao, Simmons' speedy return is more mind-boggling than that of the future Pro Football Hall of Fame running back.

"Everyone makes the Adrian Peterson, nine-month return the gold standard," said Chao, a practicing orthopedic surgeon who also serves as a medical analyst for Sirius XM and ProFootballDoc.com.

"But I would say (Simmons) is more impressive for several reasons. No. 1, it's less time, only eight months. No. 2, Peterson was returning to the same level of competition he'd played in, but Simmons is jumping a level of competition.

"Third, as a defensive player, it's harder because you're reacting on the playing field, rather than dictating. And fourth, as a guy playing on the line, he's not just running in free space but engaging other players."

An extraordinary athlete

Timetables vary from person to person when it comes to returning from surgery to the ACL, which is one of the key ligaments that help stabilize the knee, connecting the thighbone (femur) to the shinbone (tibia).

Chao said the most impressive ACL recovery he's witnessed was by one of his own patients, former U.S. women's soccer player Shannon MacMillan. Just four months and a week after undergoing ACL surgery, MacMillan played in the 2003 women's World Cup.

Doctor Michael Pagnani, a physician at Nashville Knee & Shoulder, said that in his practice, an average patient heals in about six months. But he notes there's a significant difference between healing and returning to play a professional sport at top strength.

The Mayo Clinic estimates eight to 12 months or more before athletes can return to their sports following ACL surgery.

"If your goal is to be back as close to your pre-performance level as possible, it probably takes a year," said Pagnani, a previous team physician for the Dolphins and Nashville Predators. "And in a sport where one percent might be the difference between an All-Pro and a practice squad player, that can be a big difference in terms of when they return."

Pagnani says Simmons' ability to return to the playing field at eight months is "a good recovery. I don't know if it's unheard of."

But perhaps what's more impressive to Pagnani is Simmons' level of play, as the big man has made a significant impact in his first two games. Simmons was in the trenches, for example, against the Chargers in the closing seconds, when the Titans stopped running back Melvin Gordon twice from the one-yard line.

"Playing at that level so soon after your ACL, and playing that well against that competition, is definitely remarkable," Pagnani said. "He might just be an extraordinarily great rehabber and an extraordinary athlete to be able to come back and play at that level. I'd say you've got give it a few more weeks, to see if fatigue and more reps affect him. But it sure looks promising so far."

Let's attack this rehab

Simmons suffered the torn ACL in the midst of a lateral-drill exercise, while working out in Boca Raton, Fla., two months before the 2019 NFL Draft.

Having never suffered a knee injury, Simmons had no idea how severe the problem was. But after getting diagnosed, Simmons' first fear, naturally, was how far his draft stock would fall. Predicted by many to be a top-10 overall selection, the former Mississippi State star wondered whether teams would now shy away from him.

Simmons underwent surgery about a week later, with Mississippi State's team orthopedist, Dr. Rusty Linton, repairing the knee. That led straight to one of the more challenging stretches in ACL recovery, the first few weeks following the procedure.

"The operation hurts, so the first couple of weeks are just hard to get going,” Pagnani said. “Most people are taking pain medicine for a couple of weeks, and they’re wondering, ‘Am I ever going to get through this?’”

The goal for most patients is to get their range of motion back in the knee in six weeks. If there’s stiffness — or if the patient can’t completely straighten the knee — the rehab can become that much more difficult.

“But if they can get their range of motion back by six weeks,” Pagnani said, “then it’s really just a grind after that.”

Grinding through rehabilitation wasn’t a problem for Simmons, chosen 19th overall by the Titans in April. He attacked his recovery the same way Simmons dominated opposing offensive lines in college, racking up 163 tackles — 32.5 for loss — in three seasons at Mississippi State.

“Every day I woke up, and every day I walked into the building to do my rehab, it was just like, ‘You’ve got to be better than what you did yesterday. Do more than what you did yesterday. Try to go a little harder,’” Simmons said. “I just wanted to keep getting better. That was my mindset. Every day I woke up thinking: ‘Let’s attack this rehab.’”

Jeffery Simmons (Christopher Hanewinkel / USA Today)

God sprinkled extra dust on Jeff

When Simmons talked to Nashville media in June, four months after the surgery, he still didn’t even know when he’d be ready to jog again. But his work in the weight room, where Simmons was doing all he could to re-build muscle strength around the injured knee, was catching the eye of teammates.

“Every day, he was in here for multiple hours just rehabbing,” Titans defensive lineman DaQuan Jones said. “And then I remember him after rehab, going in there for hours with (Titans strength coach Frank Piraino) one-on-one, and doing even more.”

By July, as the Titans readied for training camp, Simmons took another big step in the right direction, as he was able to run in a straight line for the first time since suffering the injury. In time, Simmons’ rapid progress allowed him to start simulating football moves, even those that required him to move from side to side — testing the strength of the knee.

“When you’re coming off an ACL injury, the biggest thing is you’ve got to work on your lateral movement,” Simmons said. “That’s why I think they did a great job making sure they hit on every angle, every football drill they knew I was going to be put in (while) playing defensive line.”

Many NFL analysts had figured Simmons wouldn’t play at all in his rookie year, or that if he did, it wouldn’t be until November or December. But only a few weeks into the season, Simmons began working out with Titans coach Mike Vrabel in one-on-one sessions, the two men looking like grown bears wrestling as they pushed one another around the practice field.

How could Simmons already have come so far so fast?

“God sprinkled a little extra dust on Jeff — that’s just how it goes,” Vrabel said. “Genetics plays a large part into your makeup, your size, how you recover from injury, your durability. So, we kind of figured that going (into the draft), it was probably going to be a little shorter than a little longer. If you were betting, you’d probably bet the under (on his recovery time).”

In early October, less than eight months after the ACL surgery, Simmons received full medical clearance to play once more. Vrabel and the team’s training staff put the decision to return in the hands of Simmons, who thought long and hard about it prior to the Titans’ Week 7 game against the Chargers.

Simmons said he prayed on the matter first, then sought the advice of an uncle who’s always been close and reliable.

“I told him I felt healthy and ready to roll,” Simmons said. “He was like, ‘Are you sure?’ And I’m like, ‘Yeah, I’m ready to go.’ So we just went from there.”

Going to get even better

In watching Simmons play his first two games, Chao marveled at what he was able to do, but also noticed — not surprisingly — that the injury was still impacting him.

“He’s a strong guy, so I didn’t see him getting pushed off the line,” Chao said. “But it was more in the open field and in his quicker movements, the change of directions and the ability to really stick that leg in the ground. Then there was one time I noticed he didn’t have the same deceleration, in terms of change of direction. It’s relatively subtle.”

Chao, like Pagnani, said Simmons won’t be at 100 percent until next season, noting that recovery from an ACL tear — like most injuries — is “like a slow sunrise rather a light switch ... It creeps along, especially in the later stages.”

But in its own way, that’s great news for Simmons and Titans fans.

If Simmons was good enough to be Pro Football Focus’ top-ranked Titans defender in his first game back, and fit enough to play 34 snaps in just his second game, think ahead to what Simmons’ second season might be like.

“He’s exceeded expectations in (returning this early),” Chao said. “He seemed effective. What this means is that an 85 percent Jeffery Simmons is pretty darn good. They have a bargain on their hands.

“It doesn’t mean he’s Superman yet. There were plays I saw in his first game back when I said, ‘Oh, he’s still favoring that a little bit.’ But

JEFFERY SIMMONS

I'm not saying the Titans are doing the wrong thing by playing him.

"I'm just saying, 'Good news, Titans fans. He's going to get even better than this.'"

A NEAR-CONSTANT ON THE FIELD, TITANS' JEFFERY SIMMONS HAS TURNED INTO A MENACE IN THE TRENCHES

BY JOHN GLENNON
BROADWAY SPORTS
MEDIA
OCTOBER 23, 2020

Opponents probably feel like they're seeing entirely too much of Jeffery Simmons these days.

The Titans? They can't get enough.

Through the first five games of his second season, the 6-4, 305-pound Simmons is putting on a clinic in the trenches, even if it hasn't been enough to single-handedly solve all the problems of the Titans' shaky defense.

Just how dominant has Simmons been in the hand-to-hand combat zone? A couple of numbers offer a pretty good illustration:

ESPN uses a figure called run-stop win rate to track how well defensive linemen are faring against their beefy offensive counterparts. Simmons is not only the top-ranked defensive tackle in that category, but his 58 percent win rate ranks a full 10 percent ahead of the runner-up, Miami's Christian Wilkins (48 percent).

Pro Football Focus lists Simmons with eight run stops – tackles that constitute a "failure" for the offense – which is tops in the NFL among defensive tackles who've played four games or fewer. Simmons has also piled up 14 quarterback pressures, according to the analytics website, which is once again the most among defensive tackles who've played four games or less.

"I mean, it's evident when you turn on the tape, '98' stands out right now," said Shane Bowen, the Titans' defensive play-caller. "You definitely notice him on film, and hopefully that can continue for us, because we need him to do that."

If it feels like Simmons is everywhere all the time, one reason is simply because he's playing so much more than he did during his rookie season in 2019.

When Simmons made his NFL debut last season, the Titans' 6-4, 305-pound defensive tackle did so with a big splash, racking up a sack, quarterback hit and two tackles for loss in Tennessee's season-changing victory over the Los Angeles Chargers in Week 7. Only two weeks later, Simmons played 49 snaps against Carolina, taking part in nearly 70 percent of the Titans' defensive snaps that contest. It represented a remarkable turnaround for Simmons, who'd undergone surgery to repair a torn ACL just nine months earlier.

But that Carolina game also proved the high-water mark for Simmons' defensive participation in 2019, as the Titans started to ratchet his time downward. He averaged about 30 snaps per game over his last six contests – regular season and playoffs – in 2019, more in line with what might be expected of a rookie returning so quickly from a significant injury.

But this season? Good luck getting the big guy to stand on the sideline. Simmons has played more than 75 percent of the team's defensive snaps in each of his four contests, registering a season-high 63 snaps last Sunday against Houston – just days after coming off the team's COVID-19 reserve list. His 228 snaps are tops in the NFL for defensive tackles who've played four or fewer games.

"He never wants to come out. He's going so hard, he can't even realize he's tired," Titans defensive line coach Terrell Williams said. "So my job is to give him a breather and he's not going to fight me back on it. He understands that we're trying to do what's best for the team."

Added Simmons: "I felt good (against Houston) – everyone knows about COVID, it takes away your conditioning that you've been working on all season. It was kind of hard as the game went along for me, but I'm not making any excuses. Just keep fighting. We are built on mental toughness and I just had to fight through a lot of tiredness."

Simply being on the field, however, doesn't begin to explain why Simmons has been so effective this season.

Another reason? His mental preparation for games. A case in point came last Sunday, with the Texans trying to succeed on a late two-point conversion, one that would have given Houston a nine-point lead with less than two minutes left in the contest.

Elusive Texans quarterback Deshaun Watson appeared to be on the verge of completing a short pass to wide-open receiver Randall Cobb in the end zone. But Simmons managed to lift his 300 pounds into the air, deflecting Watson's pass and giving the Titans a chance to make a game-tying touchdown drive.

Simmons had thought back to a similar situation last season, when he jumped in the air to deflect a Watson pass that wound up in the arms of teammate Jayon Brown for an interception.

"I know it's a quick pass, and from last year, I know he's going to throw the ball low," Simmons said. "(Watson's) release is low and he tries to get the ball out quick. I know that if we get our hands up we can bat a ball and that's what I did. I saw him take his non-throwing hand off the ball and I knew it would be low. I got my hand up and batted the ball."

Williams said when players like Simmons make it a point to study opponents' technique on film, it allows them to play even faster in the games.

"The good players in this league and the young players in this league understand you just can't go out and do it physically," Williams said. "Mentally, studying tape and looking at your opponents, looking at tendencies, looking at body language, all these different things matter when you're trying to win a football game. Jeff understands that concept."

Added Titans coach Mike Vrabel: "(It) was probably a game-saving play for us. I think it would've been over had that ball gotten through."

The 23 year-old Simmons also uses tape to study some of the league's other quality interior defensive linemen, like Philadelphia's Fletcher Cox and Tampa Bay's Ndamukong Suh, in order to better his repertoire. A student of the game, Simmons even takes a peek back at the best defensive linemen over the years. He spoke just the other day about former University of Tennessee great – and Pro Football Hall of Famer – Reggie White, who earned notoriety with his "hump move," which involved White lowering his right shoulder, driving his arm into a blocker's chest and then throwing him aside.

"Everybody knows Reggie White for the hump," Simmons said. "Playing defensive line, you don't just sit and watch yourself all day. You want to see how can you better your game by adding something like that that can help."

Expect Simmons to produce another ironman performance on Sunday, when the undefeated Steelers roll into Nissan Stadium. Sure, the big man has played at least 60 snaps in each of his last three games. But it sounds as if there's still a more than ample supply of energy, passion and motivation remaining.

"When I step on the field, I'm going to give it my all no matter what," Simmons said. "If it's tiredness, limping, cramping, no matter what, I'm not making any excuses."

"You never know when that play is going to come that you can make and change the game. My mindset is to attack every game and play with passion. That's gotten me this far and I'm not going to change anything. Just head down, full steam ahead."

When the Tennessee Titans drafted defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons 19th overall in the 2019 draft, the 6-foot-4 behemoth had lofty expectations of becoming a staple in the middle of the defense for the next decade.

Now, in his second year and first as a full-time starter, the Titans and head coach Mike Vrabel are already talking about the tremendous impact Simmons has made just six games in as well as his potential to become a team captain.

“We’re all excited that he is going to become one of those guys that will be with us for a long time and eventually be a captain,” Vrabel said. “The impact that he makes on people around him, he’s a special person and so we just love having him in the building and we love coaching him. His maturity level in his second year is great.”

“Even at Mississippi State, I was never a captain, but I was always a leader on the team,” Simmons said. “The thing about me, I don’t have to be known or be in the spotlight to lead. I take pride in pushing my guys, especially the ones playing my position, and holding myself to the highest standard. I’ve got pretty high standards for myself and feel like if I can meet them...I can transfer that to everyone else.”

Although he missed a game while on the reserve/COVID-19 list, Simmons is seventh on the Titans in tackles (21), leads the team in sacks (2) and is third in tackles for loss (2.5). He also has eight quarterback hits and has emerged as a disruptive force along the Titans' defensive line — producing better numbers than Jurrell Casey through the same number of games last season.

“He’s got really good awareness; he’s taken the coaching,” Vrabel said. “We all want to impact the quarterback and get sacks and quarterback hits, Jeff has realized when he’s not going to get there or maybe they stop him our double team him, he gets in the throwing lane.”

Simmons also has two passes defended and a fumble recovery this season, showing that he is a highly coachable player who impacts the game by doing the small things.

Perhaps his biggest play of the season came in a 42-36 overtime win over the Houston Texans in Week 6. After Houston scored to go up 36-29, the Texans attempted a 2-point conversion to try and close out a win.

Knowing he wasn’t going to break through the Texans' offensive line, Simmons backed off just a tad and got his hands up to bat away a DeShaun Watson pass. That play proved to be game-changing as Tennessee eventually tied it up and won in overtime.

“I just take the coaching and put it into my game. It’s been coming up great for us,” Simmons stated. “That’s just my mindset — get penetration and if you can’t then get your hands up and eventually, you’re going to tip one and it’s going to be a big play.”

According to Pro Football Focus, Simmons in the second-highest graded second-year defender in the NFL with a grade of 86.1. Through just five games in 2020, he’s already playing at the level of a top-five defensive tackle and quickly emerging as the best player on Tennessee’s defense. It won’t be a surprise to anyone if he is indeed named a team captain in 2021.

MY STORY: TITANS TE JONNU SMITH ON FAITH, PERSEVERANCE, AND LIVING HIS DREAM

THE THIRD-YEAR PRO HAS DEALT WITH PLENTY OF ADVERSITY IN HIS LIFE,
BUT IT'S ALL MADE HIM
THE MAN HE IS TODAY AS TOLD TO

BY JIM WYATT
TITANS ONLINE
NOVEMBER 15, 2019

As the Titans Bye Week begins, many of the team's digital and social channels will be taken over all week with content influenced and made by the players.

NASHVILLE – Life in the NFL isn't easy. As a player, you have to fight through adversity, and you have to work hard to be successful. And you have to keep grinding through all the ups and downs.

But life itself isn't easy.

The way I get through it all is by relying on my faith. It's the foundation of everything I do, and I am so thankful for the way I was raised because I lean on the things I learned as a kid today as a grown man. I've dealt with some tough times in my life, but it's all made me stronger.

I give credit to the household I grew up in. My entire family was raised on faith, and it's the way I am going to raise my children. As I get older, I learn even more things on my own, and try to become as close to Christ as I can because I've learned that's how you get through the tough times.

It started with my mother, Karen Smith.

My father was a Jehovah's Witness, and he was a man of faith. But he passed when I was just four years old in a tow truck accident. It was hard on my family, but my mom was strong, and she became my rock at an early age. My mom was a Christian, and when my father passed our faith had to take over and keep us going. That's just how I grew up, and from the time I was young I had to lean on my faith. I'm one of six kids. I still remember us praying as a family at night. I look back now and I know as a kid, going to church isn't always No.1 on your list because when you're young, you'd rather be doing other things, like hanging out with your friends, or just do things kids do. But my mom made us going to church, and she made us pray together as a family. When you are younger you don't appreciate that probably as much, but as you get older you can understand why that's important and I'm so thankful for the path those days put me on. I realize now just how much love that spread in my family and how much peace and joy it gave me during tough times. And it is faith that gets you through things that sometimes aren't easy.

Jonnu Smith (wearing an Eddie George Titans jersey as a child in a photo above) credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself.

Jonnu Smith (wearing an Eddie George Titans jersey as a child in a photo above) credits his mother, Karen, for his successes. Jonnu's father passed away as a result of a tow truck accident when he was four years old and his mother raised all six children by herself.

One of those times came when I was in high school. I love my mom, and she loves me. But after my freshman year in high school, my mom sent me away to live with her sister. It couldn't have been easy, but she knew that's what was best for me.

I grew up in Philadelphia, but things were tough. The neighborhood I grew up in wasn't the best. It was inner-city Philadelphia, and there were some bad influences. I was surrounded by a lot of violence, and negativity. It was a harsh environment to grow up in. We weren't financially fortunate, and she was afraid I would get lured into some things that could mess up my life and send me down the wrong path.

"My mother is my rock. It was tough, but we always got what we needed—not necessarily what we wanted all the time—but what we needed. She was so strong all the time."

- Jonnu Smith

So, my mom wanted a better future for me, and she wanted me to have a chance to follow my dreams. I was the youngest of six, and I was the last boy. She sent me to Ocala, Florida, and it was one of the best decisions she ever made as a mother. I was 14, and it was a big change. But I got through it because of my faith, and because I knew it was a great opportunity for me to not only have a better life, but to play the game of football, a game that I knew I loved even back then. You see, I couldn't play football when I was in Philly. My mom wanted me to focus on education, so the school I went to there didn't even have a football team. When she talked about sending me away, I knew I'd get a chance to play football in Ocala, and that got me excited. I knew I'd have a chance there. Playing football in Florida? Are you kidding me? I knew even then that was the hotbed for high school football. Florida, Texas and California, those are the schools that produce the most pros in the world and even then, I knew what I wanted to do, and this was my chance to pursue my dream. So even though I would be uprooted, I was able to find the positives from it and I think that's because of the way my mom raised me.

I still think a lot about my childhood. Growing up, you don't really realize how harsh it is, because you think as a young kid, 'This is life, and this is how it is supposed to be.' But when you go to a different place, a place like Ocala, Florida, a small suburban town after being in Philadelphia, it is a culture shock.

JONNU SMITH

I think about what would have happened to me if I'd stayed back home and not moved. I still think one way or the other I would have made it, I really do. Like I said, I am a man of faith, and I am a man of God and I truly believe that everything is ordained for a purpose. I still think I would have made it, it just would have been a different path.

But I can't help but think about what my life would have been like had I stayed in Philly. I know what is back there, and I know what my friends deal with every day that I grew up with. My best friend, Willie 'Quasim' Jefferson, was killed on the streets of Philadelphia in October 2016, maybe a block away from the house he grew up in. We were friends from the time we were five years old, and we stayed in touch. He would come and see me when I was in college at Florida International, and he'd stay for months at a time with me because Philadelphia was so bad. The last time he went back, he was killed. I still remember getting a call after we'd played a game and I was told my best friend, my lifelong friend, was just killed. That hurt me, and it was tough to get through. I think about Willie all the time. And when I think about my life and my path and my opportunities, it makes me realize even more I was more fortunate. And it also makes me keep my buddies back home in my prayers. I try to encourage them and lead them in the right direction because I understand what they are going through. You just have to lean on your faith to get you through everything.

I lean on my faith all the time. As a football player, it helped get me started in the NFL when I first got to Tennessee. And I leaned on it on December 6, 2018, and the months that followed. Everyone remembers that day – it's the day when running back Derrick Henry ran for 238 yards and four touchdowns against the Jaguars. He had that 99-yard touchdown run that will go down in team and NFL history. It was a great day, and a great moment, but it was a different day for me. When I think about the 99-yard run, it was bittersweet. I heard the crowd going wild, but I was on the ground, holding my knee as I was on the ground. Some people might not remember, but I suffered a serious knee injury on that play and had to be helped off the field. As everyone was celebrating, coach Mike Vrabel came over to me when I was on the ground and told me: 'Jonnu, we just took that thing 99 yards for you.' I was happy, but I also knew what was ahead because my knee was messed up. I had suffered an ACL injury before, so I knew the recovery is a long process. I just started praying, and I started getting mentally prepared for what I knew I'd be faced with. I ended up having surgery a few weeks later, and the road to recovery was a long one. I just had to keep the faith and be positive to get through it. And the way I see it is if I had to pick a play to go down, I would pick a play like that. You just have to keep the faith, and I knew whatever circumstances I would be faced with, I would have to deal with them. It wasn't easy, but I had to stay positive through it all, and I am back now and it's great to be back.

And now more than ever, I don't take anything for granted.

I'm not sure people have noticed, but before every game I take a knee, say a prayer and I point up to the sky. I actually pray before every play, for many reasons. I realize each play could be your last play, so I always want to thank God for the opportunity to give me another snap and thank him for letting me play at this level and for blessing me in so many ways. I don't take any play for granted, and I give God thanks.

When I look back at my path, and where I came from, I know I am fortunate to be here, playing in the NFL, playing a game I love. Everyone grew up in different circumstances and I always like to say my story could be a fairy tale to some people because I understand people have gone through far more treacherous things than I have. But my story could also be a horror story to some people, because that is just the world that we live in. I just appreciate the journey that I took because I believe it made me the man I am today. I am grateful to be where I am today.

In my mind, I am living my dream, and I thank God every day for it. I truly don't take anything for granted and I am trying to get everything I can out of it. I know I can't play this game forever – I know I can't live forever – but I am going to cherish every second of it all.

A completely virtual NFL offseason to this point has meant no organized team activities, no in-person chemistry building, no opportunity to connect on the field.

Well, at least for most.

But for a few, like Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill and tight end Jonnu Smith, the coronavirus-related tweaks to the NFL schedule have created a different kind of opportunity. While players are spread out across the country, Tannehill and Smith are both in South Florida.

"I'm down here, Jonnu is down here, so I go throw with Jonnu a couple days a week," Tannehill said last month.

The two are working out together at a local park. Since beginning their sessions together about two months ago, Smith said last week the duo had not missed a week.

So while others are relying on virtual team meetings and individual workouts, Tannehill and Smith are getting in some valuable one-on-one time.

"I'm sure it will give us a great advantage," Smith said. "Just learning my speed, learning his speed. Feeling the football come out of his hands and just catching the football, knowing the spin on that thing. I'm only learning him more and he's only learning me more, so I'm sure it will be a great advantage."

Titans coach Mike Vrabel said he's "sure guys are getting together, but I'm not monitoring and I'm not tracking it" during a voluntary phase of the offseason. Still, he's encouraged that Tannehill and Smith are building their rapport.

"I'm sure Ryan is enjoying building a relationship with Jonnu outside of the meetings," Vrabel said. "Again, at the end of the day, quarterbacks, they want to know guys are going to be in the right spots. ... Hopefully they're able to work on some of those things, and Ryan and Jonnu can stay in shape and motivated like the rest of our football team."

The Titans cut Delanie Walker earlier this offseason, shifting Smith to the top of the depth chart. He'll lead a group that also includes Anthony Firkser and MyCole Pruitt.

"I'm tight end 1 now," he said.

With that comes some added responsibility.

"Yeah, but it's no extra pressure on me or anything," Smith said. "We've got a lot of great guys in that room and I'm sure the thing about it is we can all look to each other. ... I'm not going to put any extra pressure on myself just because I am the No. 1 guy, but that does require a leadership role and I'm definitely ready to take on that role."

Smith, drafted in the third round in 2017, had 35 catches for 439 yards and three touchdowns last season while playing in all 16 games, including 14 starts.

The goal, Smith said, is to build on that in 2020, and it begins at a park in South Florida.

"Ryan is making me better, I'm making him better, and we're just building that chemistry," Smith said. "We're getting all the work in that we can, just pretty much everything that I do on Sundays. I'm just trying to perfect that. ... We've been able to maximize the most of our opportunity. I love doing it and I love working with him."

TE JONNU SMITH
SELECTED AS TITANS'
2019 ED BLOCK COURAGE AWARD RECIPIENT

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
JUNE 4, 2020

NASHVILLE – As Titans fans everywhere celebrated running back Derrick Henry's 99-yard touchdown run against the Jaguars back on December 6, 2018, tight end Jonnu Smith had a different perspective on the play.

Smith went to the ground after making a pair of key blocks on the historic run. He had to be helped off the field after suffering a torn ACL.

"It was a great day, and a great moment," Smith said of the play, "but it was a different day for me. I was happy (Derrick scored), but I also knew what was ahead because my knee was messed up."

Smith kept the faith. And after a lengthy rehabilitation process following surgery, he was able to return in time for the start of the 2019 season.

Smith had the best season of his three-year NFL career in 2019, when he caught 35 passes for 439 yards and three touchdowns. Smith made an acrobatic touchdown catch in the team's playoff win at Baltimore.

Smith's road back, and his performance that ensued, led his teammates to vote him as the Titans' Ed Block Courage Award recipient.

The Ed Block Courage Award is given to a player on each of the NFL's 32 teams who represents a commitment to sportsmanship, courage, professionalism, and are considered to be role models in their community.

Named in memory of Ed Block, a humanitarian and athletic trainer for the Baltimore Colts, the award is administered by the Ed Block Courage Award Foundation.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel has raved about Smith many times in the past.

"Jonnu is one of my favorite players on this team," Vrabel said during the 2019 season. "I don't have 'favorites', but he is one of my favorite players on this team. I just love him to death. I love the way he works, I love his attitude."

In an interview last month, Smith said he's excited about what's next.

Smith has been working out in a one-on-one setting with quarterback Ryan Tannehill, and he'll head into the season as the team's No.1 tight end.

"As a professional, you just want to continue to improve, and continue to build off any momentum that you had (from the previous season) just to get better," Smith said. "I am focused on getting better and better and improving and improving. Because if you are not in it to maximize your abilities, then I feel like you are in the wrong business."

"So, I am just trying to improve and get better and work on my craft, and I am having fun doing it. ... I am trying to be the best player I can be to help this team win as many games and win championships. For me, I'm tight end 1 now, and I'm just going to take advantage of the opportunity I have in front of me and continue to be a workhorse and do what is expected of me."

REXRODE: RYAN TANNEHILL SHOWS HIMSELF TO BE AN NFL LEADER IN MORE THAN QB RATING

BY JOE REXRODE
THE ATHLETIC
JUNE 11, 2020

Ryan Tannehill talks and two notions cross the mind, first that there can't be many quarterbacks in the NFL talking about racism in America like this, and second that Tannehill must be elevating himself as a leader in the Tennessee Titans locker room.

Oh, and a third: Where's this guy when we ask about football?

They're all artificial and miss the point, of course. We don't need to rank NFL quarterback social commentary, though it is nice to hear declarations stronger than "I stand with my teammates" in this time. Leadership is a day-to-day thing that Tannehill demonstrated deftly last season — even with Marcus Mariota still in the room — and yes, reactions from some of his teammates indicate his voice is appreciated. But this dwarfs that. And Tannehill has earned the right to an eyeroll-free press corps every time he utters "control what we can control" or "it's about improving every day in practice" during the 2020 season because of the way he has stepped up to the 2020 story.

This is the white, professional quarterback in Nashville, Tennessee, and he has the ability to reach a lot of people and the conviction to try even though he knows he'll lose some.

"I think the unfortunate thing about it is, if you're a white person you don't have to deal with (racism) on a daily basis and you're not put in those situations," Tannehill said in a Zoom call Wednesday with reporters, the first scheduled interviews with Titans players since the May 25 death of George Floyd at the hands of a Minneapolis Police officer inspired worldwide protests.

"It's easy to just go about your life and not recognize it and not realize how big of a deal it is, how many people it affects on a daily basis. I think with this push, I think more and more people are having an awakening to the reality of the situation and how deep it really is, how many layers of injustice there are to it with the court system, and policing, and just on a day-to-day basis. Like I said, there's so many layers to it. I think that just this push was kind of like the straw that broke the camel's back, right? It's been happening for far too long and finally got to the point where enough is enough."

And as for those who don't like what he has to say: "If there's people that want to push back and go the other direction, that's on them. I'm going to fight for what I believe is right and whatever else happens, happens."

And as for Roger Goodell's improved response to the powerful "Black Lives Matter" video involving several NFL stars and some NFL employees: "I don't know. We'll see where it really goes once this fall starts and things are a little bit different. I hope to think that things are different this time, that guys are going to be heard, that the movement is going to be continued and supported and helped out, but only time will tell."

And as for the league's history on this matter: "Just going back to (2016), the league tried to shut it down because it's trying to protect itself. I think it's to the point where, this time there's so much support that they couldn't do anything from it. The fact that they weren't proactive is disappointing, that they didn't jump on board initially is disappointing, just because, like I said, it's a universal thing that so many guys are affected by. Seems to be there's so much momentum going that millions of people want change and want it now. A little disappointing that it took that, but I guess better late than never, and hopefully that it can continue when games kick off."

OK, so Tannehill's still polite in ripping the league. But how many guys with his job are doing that at all? These aren't "let's stick together while I dodge discomfort as much as possible" responses. These are things Tannehill would not have said a few years ago. He admitted that Wednesday, too.

"I feel like if I would have known now what I knew back then, I probably would have been more vocal and supportive back then," he said. "Do I feel great about that, that I didn't jump fully on board and support initially? No. Do I wish I would have known more and been more supportive back in 2016? Yes, 100 percent, but we all make mistakes. We all have to live and learn and experience to grow, and I feel like I've done a lot of growing over the past four or five years."

So let's go back there, to 2016. Colin Kaepernick is in San Francisco, creating a movement and the backlash that will push him out of the NFL by kneeling during the national anthem to protest social injustice and police brutality. Tannehill is in Miami, throwing to Kenny Stills. Talking to him, too. These are conversations that someone like, say ... let's pick a random NFL quarterback ... Drew Brees may have benefited from having.

Stills, now with the Texans, has been living this, outspoken about it, though he's the son of a retired Marine who asked him not to protest. He told The Undeclared of kneeling in 2016 and through the Donald Trump-inflamed 2017 responses and beyond: "I decided if the league has an issue with us speaking up for our people, it's not a brand I want to be a part of. I had conversations with my agents that said I should wait (to protest). I said if I can't express myself, then I'm OK with not playing."

Here's what should happen before games in 2020: Players who feel compelled to protest should do so, and people should respect it, and the NFL should back off and live with angry fans and consider the possibility of new ones, and the discussion around all of it from media and others should not overshadow the issues that inspired the protests. The only thing we can count on is that Stills will kneel. He's also likely to continue serving extensively in the community, going on police ride-alongs and educating white teammates who seek him. Tannehill said Stills told him of an incident in which Stills and his father were pulled over by police and had "everything stripped out of the car for no reason" and strewn along the road.

"I can't imagine being put in that situation and having to deal with that," Tannehill said. "You hear stories like that and then (Stills) gave me a bunch of resources, books that were written, "(The) New Jim Crow," systematic oppression, systematic injustices. Then I just started digging more and more into it as time went on. You go from kind of being naïve to the situation because of the privilege, and my eyes kind of got opened to it. It was really kind of a shock for me. ... A protest has to be able to get attention, spark conversation and inspire change. I had to get past the fact that it wasn't about the flag, it wasn't about the anthem, it wasn't about our country. It was about the injustice and raising awareness and getting people's attention."

He got there. Maybe he can help get others there. It's good to see more white athletes stepping out on this. It's also worth pointing out, not that it should be necessary, that black athletes don't all relish participation at the same level.

The Titans made Kevin Byard and Rashaan Evans available Wednesday as well, and Byard said he supports the protests; doesn't want the message hijacked by more obsession with kneeling; looks forward to a conversation some day with his daughter and hopes "whether it's police brutality or just growing up being black in America, that conversation is a lot better than what it is right now."

Byard also said he's "not trying to run for office, just playing football" when asked about Goodell's response and future decisions, and when he was asked about Tannehill's willingness to speak out, he said: "I've always respected him since I first met him. That's one thing about me, I don't look at guys as race and all that stuff. ... The fact that he's speaking and using his voice to uplift others, black, white or different, whatever, it speaks volumes for his character."

Byard talked about empathy and education, too, and the melting pot "beauty of sports." At the core of this conversation, there's right and there's wrong, but everyone doesn't have to have the same tone or say the exact same things. Tannehill and Byard shared realness Wednesday, and that's as important as anything when you're trying to lead 50 people or maybe a whole bunch more than that.

RYAN TANNEHILL

AT LAST, RYAN TANNEHILL CAN APPRECIATE HOW MUCH THE TIDES HAVE TURNED

BY DAN POMPEI
THE ATHLETIC
JULY 28, 2020

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: somewhere near the Gulf Stream in the Atlantic on his boat, Going Deep.

He escapes here, where it's easy to forget what should be forgotten. When he walks into his home, he will be carrying a cooler full of mahi-mahis on ice, and not a worry or care.

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: throwing a football in the back of his South Florida house with his daughter, Stella, who will be 2 in September. She wants her father all the time, and yells "daddy" anytime she sees a football. And now he's with his son, Steel, 4, explaining why he couldn't take him spearfishing because it's too dangerous. Steel is upset because he wants to be with his dad whenever he can.

"Our kids adore him," says his wife, Lauren, whose girl-next-door sweetness made her one of the bright lights of HBO's "Hard Knocks" during her husband's rookie season.

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: back at his Nashville home unpacking and preparing for an NFL season. After Tannehill was traded to the Titans in 2019, he and his wife bought a house here after being taken by the city's trendy food, Music City culture, southern hospitality and gentle seasonal changes.

Years ago, before Lauren ever set foot in Tennessee, she told her husband she knew one day they would live in Nashville. But even she didn't envision what would happen in 2019.

Tannehill came off the bench to lead his team to a storybook season. He played in his first Pro Bowl and walked away from NFL Honors with the Comeback Player of the Year award.

Then the Titans chose to re-sign Tannehill instead of pursuing Tom Brady, even though Brady once was a teammate of Titans head coach Mike Vrabel.

Tannehill's contract calls for him to be paid $37.5 million in 2020, which would make him the fourth highest-paid player in the NFL.

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: king of his world.

But it wasn't always like this.

On April 26, 2012, the Dolphins chose Tannehill with the eighth pick of the draft. That's when it started to get difficult for Tannehill in Miami.

Expectations for the eighth pick in the draft are high. Expectations are higher for a quarterback than any other player. And they are higher still when it's Miami.

"When you're in Miami, every first-round draft pick gets compared to one guy," said Adam Gase, Tannehill's head coach from 2016-18. "And guess what? Dan Marino ain't walking out there."

Tannehill was the first quarterback the Dolphins selected in the first round since the great Marino 29 years earlier. Through his time there, Tannehill did some impressive things in Miami, like throwing for 4,208 yards in 2015. Only one quarterback in Dolphins history threw for more. The great Marino, however, did it four times, and that was before passing records started falling like autumn leaves.

As the passage of time would have it, the great Marino became a symbol of a better time, a boulevard and a bronze statue.

The great Marino's shadow followed Tannehill everywhere except on his boat. "On the outside, they could have had high expectations that would have been hard to meet," Tannehill says. "You're aware. People say things to you. But I didn't think about it much."

In his first three seasons, the Dolphins didn't make the playoffs. Tannehill was signed to a contract extension going into his fourth year, which ended with a 6-10 record and the firing of head coach Joe Philbin.

For Tannehill, the change to Gase was invigorating. But the Dolphins lost three of their first four in 2016, and in their next game, a loss to the Titans, Dolphins fans turned on him, furiously booing in the hopes of a change to Matt Moore.

Gase kept believing in his quarterback, and Tannehill subsequently picked it up. The Dolphins won six straight and nine of their last 12 to make the playoffs for the first time in eight years.

The booing, however, left a mark. "It broke my heart," says Lauren, who was sitting in the stands at Hard Rock Stadium that day.

"It toughened me to a point to realize that you can't get confidence from other people," Tannehill says. "Whether they think it's good or bad, don't put too much into what people are saying about you. It definitely hardened me."

In the third quarter of a December game in 2016, Cardinals defensive end Calais Campbell hit Tannehill's plant leg as he threw to DeVante Parker. Tannehill's left knee bent inward, a way in which a knee is not intended to bend.

The ACL was partially torn and Tannehill missed the rest of the season, but no doctor he saw thought surgery was necessary. Through the offseason, Tannehill tested the knee by playing basketball and tennis, and with change-of-direction drills. He never felt instability.

In training camp, he had full confidence in the knee. Ten days in,

RYAN TANNEHILL

Tannehill scrambled to his right. When he cut to avoid a defender, he felt a click, and his knee gave out. “As soon as it happened, I knew exactly what it was,” he says.

There would be no avoiding surgery for the ACL tear.

He would miss the season, which was unfathomable to him because he had not missed so much as a game since he had an ankle sprain as a college freshman.

“I had some dark times,” Tannehill says of that season. “The hardest thing was not being one of the guys, so to speak. ... I was around the building, in meetings, but I didn’t feel I was fully in. I wasn’t sweating with those guys on the practice field. I wasn’t in the huddle. There is a unity, a relationship that’s built when you are sacrificing together, going through the adversity together. That’s one of the things I love about the game, the relationships you get to build. Being removed from that was the hardest thing about 2017.”

Tannehill came back strong the following season. In the fifth game of the year, he was pressured to his left while trying to set up a deep throw to Jakeem Grant on an outside move. He flipped his hips and threw as hard as he could. After he released the ball, a defender grabbed his arm. He kept playing. The next week, he wasn’t even listed on the injury report.

But five days later, something changed. “He practiced at the beginning of the week and was throwing fine,” Gase says. “All of a sudden, he couldn’t throw the ball on Friday. That was the first we knew anything about it. He had no velocity. It was strange.”

It eventually was diagnosed as a torn capsule in his shoulder — not a common football injury. Doctors couldn’t say how much time he would have to miss.

When he tried to practice after missing three games, he couldn’t throw more than 10 yards. “It was scary for me,” he says. “I didn’t know how much longer it would be. I finally got to a point where I was training my throwing motion again. I started playing (after missing one more game). I definitely wasn’t 100 percent. But it was enough to play.”

The injuries didn’t change the way Tannehill played. But they changed the way he thought.

“I was able to see things from a removed perspective for the first time,” he says. “It was an outside viewpoint, seeing the ins and outs of what was going on, how certain guys handle things that happen throughout the year. I felt I grew in that aspect, being able to know and relate to guys, from watching as a third party on the wall.”

After the 2018 season, it became apparent Tannehill would not return for a seventh year with the Dolphins. A trade was coming.

All he needed was a team that needed a starting quarterback. There were a few of them. Then the Broncos traded for Joe Flacco, the Redskins dealt for Case Keenum and the Jaguars agreed with free agent Nick Foles.

Tannehill watched and wondered, trying not to worry. “I didn’t have any control,” he says. “I could have driven myself crazy trying to figure it out. But I had to believe God’s plan was the right one.”

On March 15, Tannehill’s phone rang. His caller ID showed it was Dolphins general manager Chris Grier. Tannehill had been traded to the Titans to be the backup for Marcus Mariota — not what he was hoping for.

“Going there as the backup was hard,” he says. “It was something I don’t think you’re ever really prepared for. It sucked honestly. It sucked losing the position you worked really hard to get.”

In the spring practices on the fields at Saint Thomas Sports Park, Mariota went first, was given the most reps, and threw to the best receivers.

Then Tannehill fed on the scraps.

In meetings, Tannehill wasn’t quite sure how much to say or when to speak. It wasn’t his meeting room, as it had been all those years in Miami.

“He and I talked a couple times in the spring,” Titans offensive coordinator Arthur Smith says. “There were a couple of things he wanted to say (in front of teammates), but he felt it wasn’t his place. He admitted to me it was different for him, but he wasn’t combative about it.”

He never experienced anything like it. When he was beaten out by Jerrod Johnson as a freshman at Texas A&M, he volunteered to move to wide receiver. He excelled at the position before getting his first start at quarterback in the seventh game of his junior year. One way or another, he had always been a starter.

He was conflicted, understandably. It takes balls to be a good starting quarterback. It takes grace to be an understudy.

Tannehill couldn’t even be sure if it was the bridge to becoming a starter again or the beginning of how it was going to be from here on out.

In training camp, Tannehill had the typical struggles learning an offense that most of his teammates already were comfortable with. By the end of camp, though, he was performing with a degree of confidence and decisiveness.

Then the season started, and he was relegated mostly to running the scout team for the Titans’ defense. Practicing like that was difficult, but not as difficult as game day, standing on the sideline with neither adrenaline nor purpose.

“I had to bite my tongue and adjust to a different role,” Tannehill says. “I tried to stay true to who I am and what I believe in, working extremely hard, caring about the people around me, building relationships with the guys around me and preparing to take advantage of an opportunity if I was going to get one.”

Tannehill couldn't control his opportunity. But he could control his attitude and his interactions with teammates.

When Tannehill was a younger player, some teammates didn't always want to follow where he was trying to lead. Wide receiver Jarvis Landry admitted he didn't click with Tannehill when they played together on the Dolphins. Others weren't convinced he had what it took.

He bonded easily with wide receiver Kenny Stills, and in 2016, Tannehill asked Stills why he felt so strongly about kneeling during the national anthem. That led to many conversations between them about social justice. Tannehill read some of Stills' book recommendations. He also started talking to other teammates about it.

“I probably was naive to it before, or didn't think about it, didn't understand it,” Tannehill says. “My eyes were opened up to things that were going on for a long, long time. Once your eyes are opened up to it, you see things playing out, and it changes your viewpoint.”

In spring 2019, Tannehill accompanied Stills on a social justice road tour. They traveled around Tennessee in an RV, meeting with organizations and learning about their work, the history of repression and the criminal reform system.

After the killing of George Floyd, Tannehill spoke out on social media. He also appeared in a team video that called for action against racism, quoting Martin Luther King Jr., Barak Obama and Eldridge Cleaver.

Tannehill didn't do any of that because he wanted better relationships with teammates, but better relationships were a byproduct. “Do some relationships probably deepen, and are you having more in-depth conversations with teammates?” he says. “Yeah. But it's about doing the right thing.”

Nothing speaks louder in an NFL locker room than toughness. Tannehill hangs in the pocket like he's wearing a blindfold. He never used a knee brace after his ACL injury. And when he's carrying the football, he goes at defenders like a bighorn ram.

On a third-and-10 against the Chiefs in November, Tannehill took the snap in the shotgun. His receivers were covered, and he took off. When he got near the first down marker, cornerback Rashad Fenton was waiting for him. Tannehill put his shoulder into Fenton and dragged him 6 yards for a 12-yard gain.

“He's got great leadership skills because he walks it,” Smith says. “He's a tough dude. He'll put it on the line. The guys respect that.”

There is a time to try to bowl somebody over and there is a time to stand down. Smith praises Tannehill for being supportive of Mariota when Mariota was the starter. “That thing could have gone south,” Smith says. “I've been around rooms where that can become toxic, one guy thinks he's playing better than the other one. He handled it well.”

Tannehill hit the town with running back Derrick Henry, carpooled with center Ben Jones and partnered with tight end Jonnu Smith for offseason workouts.

Over time, he learned to treat teammates differently based on who they are. “Is he a tough love kind of guy?” Tannehill says. “Is he a guy you have to pull to the side and have a quiet conversation with? Is he a guy you want to get on in front of the whole team? I feel my ability to read those situations and learn about people has grown. I've been through a lot now, a lot of ups and downs. I have a lot of experience good and bad that allows me to see things from several perspectives and understand what guys could possibly be going through.”

Through his own struggles, Tannehill became more sensitive to the struggles of others.

After Mariota performed ineffectively in the first six games of the season, Tannehill was given a chance.

Before the first play of his first start in Tennessee, he pulled Jonnu Smith to the side and told him that if the defensive coverage aligned like he expected, Smith would get the ball on his back shoulder. The Chargers played as he suspected, and Tannehill hit Smith on a crossing route for a 24-yard gain.

But according to Arthur Smith, Tannehill started driving the team without “jerking the wheel.” He methodically integrated himself into a system that had already been established. Arthur Smith, meanwhile, molded the offense to use more concepts Tannehill was comfortable with.

Every Friday afternoon after the Titans finished practicing for the week, Tannehill met with Arthur Smith in his office for two to three hours, going over every play and every possibility in the game plan. They looked at contingencies and considered last-minute adjustments.

The point was to make sure Tannehill was thinking like his coach, and it wasn't long before there was an invisible string between them.

RYAN TANNEHILL

Tannehill impelled the Titans to seven victories in their last 10 regular-season games and led wins over the Patriots and Ravens in the playoffs. His 117.5 passer rating and 9.6 average yards per attempt were the best in the NFL. His 70.3 completion percentage was the highest of his career.

It wasn't that he was doing anything different from previous seasons. His footwork, his release, his method of reading — all the same. And the reality is he had stretches earlier in his career when he played as efficiently as he did in 2019. But he never played so well for so long.

The quarterback-friendly system helped. The play-action game was a killer because Henry was the best running back, because Tannehill could throw long and because his receivers were reliable and dangerous with the ball in their hands. Rookie wide receiver A.J. Brown led the NFL with an average after-the-catch gain of 8.8 yards.

Everything came together the way he kept hoping it would in each of the previous six seasons. "I watched him work super hard and not get much back from his labor (in past years)," says Lauren, who married Tannehill in January 2012. "It wasn't like he did anything different. But it was like a dream. I kept telling him, 'Pinch me.' We'd win a playoff game, and I'd pick him up at the airport at 2 in the morning or whenever, and we'd be on the way home, and I'd start crying I was so happy for him."

Tears had to be a part of this — tears of discouragement, tears of redemption.

Tannehill couldn't have gotten to where he is without feeling those deep boos vibrating in his sternum, without failing to become the next great Marino.

He couldn't have had the perspective to become a better leader without feeling like an outsider on his own team.

He couldn't have grown the way he has without being given up on by the team that drafted him, and then being embraced by a different group of teammates.

"Am I thankful for the lessons learned and growth that happened because of the hard times?" Tannehill says. "Yes. It's not an all-bad thing. ... Every experience, good or bad, is a learning experience. You aren't able to control a lot of situations you end up in. But how you handle it, how you push through adversity, how you grow, learn, improve, those things are under your control."

Spoken like the 32-year old he is.

Of course, everything is different now. Whereas little was expected in 2019, much is expected in 2020.

The doubters remain, but believers are signing his paychecks. And what else could matter?

"There is always pressure to perform," he says. "I don't feel like it's specific to the contract. The NFL is based on what have you done for me lately, so you need to perform every year, get better every game."

Those hours on Going Deep, with nothing but blue around him, helped put it all in perspective.

"I don't want to say he has more love for the game now, because he's always loved it," Lauren says. "But maybe more appreciation. I think he has more appreciation for things."

This is where Ryan Tannehill is now: appreciative of where he is, and appreciative of where he's been.

RYAN TANNEHILL KICKS OFF YEAR 2 AS UNQUESTIONED LEADER OF THE TITANS

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN

SEPTEMBER 14, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- When quarterback Ryan Tannehill faces the Denver Broncos on Monday night (10:10 ET, ESPN), he'll return to the scene where his career got a second chance.

A six-year starter for the Miami Dolphins, Tannehill came to the Tennessee Titans in 2019 as a backup. But after starting quarterback Marcus Mariota threw his second interception early in the third quarter of a Week 6 game in Denver, coach Mike Vrabel turned to Tannehill to give him a chance.

Although the Titans didn't win that game, Tannehill never let go of the starting job.

"Ryan was an elite QB in this league not longer than a year ago," former Titans tight end Delanie Walker said last October. "He can take over a team. He can make plays."

With Tannehill at quarterback in 2019, the Titans scored 20 or more points in every game for the rest of the regular season. Their red zone percentage catapulted from 53.3% (19th) to tops in the NFL at 77.3% over that stretch. The Titans rode Tannehill's hot hand -- and some punishing running from Derrick Henry -- all the way to the AFC Championship Game.

After leading the Titans on a deep playoff run, teammates' belief in Ryan Tannehill grew.

Becoming the starting quarterback didn't mean Tannehill was just handed the leadership role. That had to be earned over time. Going into his second season in Tennessee, Tannehill has grown into the role of unquestioned leader of the offense.

"Ryan worked his way in there and played well," Vrabel said. "And then as that comfort level began to grow, he really expanded his leadership and then took off in the offseason. I'd say it's better now than what it was last year. They respond to him."

Learn first, lead later

Tannehill entered the NFL as the No. 8 overall selection by the Dolphins in the 2012 draft. He won the starting job as a rookie and started 88 games for Miami over six seasons. But after signing a six-year, $96 million contract extension in 2015, Tannehill missed 24 games over the next three seasons with knee and shoulder injuries.

The Dolphins ran out of patience and traded Tannehill along with a 2019 sixth-round pick in exchange for Tennessee's 2019 seventh-round pick and a 2020 fourth-round pick. They even picked up $5 million of Tannehill's guaranteed $7 million -- in essence, paying a king's ransom for Tannehill to leave.

The unfamiliar territory of being the backup was an adjustment.

"When you're the starter, there's certain things you're able to do as far as leading," Tannehill said during minicamp last year. "Taking a step back in a leadership role has been probably the toughest role for me."

Tannehill laid low and bit his tongue at times in an effort to "know his role." He observed his teammates so he could uncover the best way to lead them if he got the chance.

"I kind of got to take a backseat, and watch interactions, watch how the guys work, and now have a better idea how to lead them," Tannehill said before starting his first game for the Titans.

Making Tannehill the starter in Week 7 last year was Vrabel's attempt to "get a little spark" for an offense that scored a total of seven points in the two previous games.

Ryan Tannehill celebrated the Titans' come-from-behind win over the Chiefs during the 2019 regular season.

The galvanizing moment for Tannehill came in Week 10 when he approached the huddle with the Titans down by five points at their 39-yard line with 1:21 left to play.

"Let's go win it!" Tannehill said before scrambling for 18 yards to start the drive.

"When we stepped into the huddle, Ryan gave us a call," tight end Anthony Firkser said. "... Ryan was being a great leader keeping everyone poised."

A pinpoint pass to Adam Humphries resulted in a 23-yard touchdown that put the Titans ahead for good. Tannehill ran over a Kansas City Chiefs defensive back to complete the 2-point conversion in the win.

Tannehill showed his leadership through toughness in Week 14 when one of his passes got tipped at the line of scrimmage and intercepted by Raiders defensive lineman Maurice Hurst. Some quarterbacks take cover after an interception to avoid a big hit. Tannehill fought off a block by Raiders defender Dion Jordan and delivered a hard hit on Hurst, a 6-foot-2, 295-pounder, to prevent him from scoring a touchdown.

"He's physically tough. The way he played, he was able to solidify himself as more of a voice," quarterbacks coach Pat O'Hara said of how Tannehill became a leader on the Titans. "The leadership has been excellent. His approach every day is the same guy every day. When you're the same guy every day with how you approach things, not just on the field, you build trust that way."

Leaning on experience to help teammates

The coronavirus pandemic made the usual offseason workouts a challenge, but Tannehill arranged to conduct throwing sessions with tight end Jonnu Smith while they were in South Florida. Tannehill also put together throwing sessions with wide receivers when he got to Nashville before camp started. The workouts offered an opportunity to get on the same page.

Tannehill played receiver for two seasons at Texas A&M before switching to quarterback his junior year. He finished with 55 receptions for 844 yards and five touchdowns as a redshirt freshman.

It's safe to say he knows a thing or two about route running.

"You learn throughout your career - some routes, they're going to have more freedom to put their own flavor on it and find a way to get open, and then some routes are more timing routes," Tannehill said. "We've got to be precise. It's just a matter of communicating with those guys and knowing when they have some freedom to put their own flavor on it, get open."

Often after a play, Tannehill will go to the receiver and discuss being more decisive or getting depth on a route.

"He's always talking to receivers, whether it's in meetings or right after the play," Firkser said.

A.J. Brown jokingly said if the receivers aren't where Tannehill wants them to be, he's not throwing them the ball. Tannehill has been a steadying presence for Brown entering his second NFL season.

"He's definitely a leader on the field. He demands what he wants," Brown said during training camp. "You got to be in his right spot and he's going to deliver a good ball. I would also definitely say it's the influence off the field. How he talks to me off the field, in the locker room. Telling me to be a pro because there's a lot of guys looking at me. He's a great leader."

Humphries recalled a time after practice during camp when Tannehill actually demonstrated how a route needed to be run against a particular coverage. The trust that receivers have in Tannehill allows them to welcome his input.

"He does a great job communicating what he wants in the details of our routes," Humphries said. "As soon as the play is over, he wants to talk about it. Knowing how to approach us and talk is awesome."

"He played the receiver position so he knows the techniques at the top of the route that can create separation. He can relate to us. Having him with that knowledge, being a former receiver, it makes it a lot easier to communicate with him and be on the same page."

New season, new respect

The Titans signed Tannehill to a new four-year, $118 million deal in March. It capped a remarkable turnaround for a player who was essentially paid to go away by the Dolphins just a year before.

In a powerful example of how strongly the players felt about him, Tannehill was one of the players chosen to talk to the media when the Titans decided not to practice on Aug. 27 because they wanted to draw attention to systemic racism and social injustice.

He was also named one of the team captains by his teammates earlier this week. Now the ninth-year veteran gets the chance to reward his teammates' faith in the same place where his ascent began on Monday night.

"We're going to push each other and try to get our best out of each other," Tannehill said. "I try to hold guys accountable, try to push our guys, push the offense. ... It all works together, and it's my job as a quarterback, as a leader, to push these guys and try to get our best."

RYAN TANNEHILL FOR MVP? ANOTHER COMEBACK, ANOTHER WIN AND A BIGTIME ENDORSEMENT

BY KYLE TUCKER
THE ATHLETIC
OCTOBER 19, 2020

NASHVILLE — Somebody's got to say it, right? The M-word? Isn't it time, even if it feels odd to do this on the day Derrick Henry had 264 yards from scrimmage and ran for the winning touchdown in overtime? Because Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill was masterful Sunday, totally poised under pressure again, completed eight passes in 106 seconds to force OT against the Houston Texans. He threw for 364 yards and four scores, and if he ever blinked during a 42-36 shootout with Deshaun Watson, nobody noticed.

OK, so who's going to say it? Might sound crazy coming from anybody else, so we'll let King Henry himself crown Tannehill.

"MVP! MVP!" Henry yelled about his QB. "Let's start the campaign right now. We ain't going to get too high, but MVP, I think he should be in that conversation, definitely."

Nobody is saying Tannehill should be the favorite, because Patrick Mahomes, Russell Wilson, Lamar Jackson and Aaron Rodgers will have something to say about that. But after those four? If you're making a list, a top five? Who else, unless it's Henry, even belongs in the early conversation?

Start with the raw data: Tannehill has completed 69.9 percent of his passes, totaled 14 touchdowns and thrown just two interceptions for the 5-0 Titans. In 15 regular-season starts since he seized the job last fall, he's thrown for 3,966 yards, totaled 40 touchdowns and thrown just seven interceptions. Tennessee is 12-3 in the regular season with him under center. That sure is flirting with MVP-level production, no?

"I don't think you're crazy," said wide receiver A.J. Brown, who caught the score-tying touchdown from Tannehill with four seconds left Sunday. But, "the only thing he cares about is wins. He doesn't care about stats and all that. All he wants to do is win."

Lucky for Tannehill, then, he's really good at influencing such outcomes. Here's where we really dig into that MVP worthiness.

The 32-year-old quarterback whose career was reborn last season after he left the Miami Dolphins — he won NFL Comeback Player of the Year and earned his first Pro Bowl invitation — has directed score-tying or game-winning (or both) drives in four of Tennessee's five wins. Down 14-13 with 3:05 to go at Denver on opening night, he marched the Titans from their own 10-yard line into position for a 25-yard winning field goal. In Week 2, he threw four touchdowns with no picks in a shootout with Jacksonville's Gardner Minshew, then in a tie game with 3:29 left, guided the offense into range for a 49-yard winning field goal.

Week 3 at Minnesota, down 30-28 and starting at his own 19 with 3:42 remaining, Tannehill calmly moved Tennessee to the edge of Stephen Gostkowski's range for a 55-yard winning kick. Oddly enough, Tuesday night's stunning rout of Buffalo was the only "breather," but it came with a depleted roster and very little preparation after a COVID-19 outbreak. So all Tannehill did, throwing to Brown and three undrafted replacement receivers, was produce another four touchdowns without an interception.

"He's the general," Brown said. "He tells us what he wants and he demands what he wants and he delivers a good ball."

That last part, about the good ball, is what so many coaches and teammates mention with Tannehill. He just gives it to guys right where they want it and right when they need it. Be that a bullet while he stands in the pocket, surrounded by a swarm of pass rushers, knowing he's about to be walloped, or a nice-and-easy soft toss to let a bunch of super-talented teammates do their thing. That's what he did with Brown on the tying TD, and it's what he did with Henry on a gentle lob to the 247-pound freight train in the flat during overtime. Henry rumbled and then raced, 53 yards by the time the ground stopped shaking, to set up the winning score.

"He just keeps delivering," outside linebacker Jadeveon Clowney said of Tannehill. "I think he'll make every pass on the field if you give him time in the pocket. He's a leader. He's always in the building early and staying late. You can see that. That comes from wanting to be one of the best quarterbacks in the league, I think (and) he's surprising me. I was just telling the boys, 'Man, he keeps getting better and better every week.' It's fun to watch."

On outcome-deciding drives at the end of regulation and overtime this season, Tannehill is 21-of-28 for 213 yards passing, guiding the Titans into position for one tying and four winning scores. Mike Vrabel sees "just a control and a calmness" in his QB, the coach said. "You have to have done it with some consistency to be able to build that kind of confidence." The fact Tennessee keeps getting itself into those pinches, largely because its defense can't seem to stop anybody, is a worry for another day. At least this team knows there is always hope if it's close at the end. Rather, something better than hope: belief.

"It's not a situation you want to be in every week," Tannehill said, "but we found ourselves in that situation multiple times throughout the season and there is a ton of confidence and belief in each other that we're going to march the thing down and play our game and finish with a win. Today, for the fourth time, we were able to do that."

Tannehill and the Titans were unflappable even after they blew a near-perfect 14-0 start and 21-10 halftime lead. Even after starting left tackle Taylor Lewan left with an injury and J.J. Watt blew by his replacement for a blindside strip-sack on Tannehill to set up a Texans touchdown. Even after Tannehill made his one bad throw of the day, a deep shot that was just a tad too deep and got picked off, setting up Houston's go-ahead touchdown drive in the fourth quarter. When the Titans got it back at their own 24-yard line with 1:50 to go, Tannehill told his teammates, "This situation is not new for us; let's just go do what we do."

He completed eight consecutive passes to six different guys for 76 yards, hurried up to the line as the final seconds of regulation ticked down and — with Tennessee out of timeouts — when almost everyone expected a spike to kill the clock, lofted a perfect spiral to the leaping, twisting, toe-tapping Brown. Two of the biggest throws on that drive were to tight end Anthony Firkser, who caught eight balls for 113 yards on a day Jonnu Smith hobbled off early and never returned. Tannehill just works with whatever you give him.

"He's been running our offense with precision," safety Kevin Byard said. "Glad to have him as our franchise quarterback."

It's little wonder why the Titans had faith when, after winning the overtime coin toss, Tannehill called game.

"Let's go win it," he said in the huddle. "And that's what we did."

Ho-hum. Shrug. No big deal, because it just always goes that way with this guy at quarterback. Does that not sound a lot like an MVP? Of course, it helps to have another MVP candidate in the backfield with him — and to have a brilliant young offensive coordinator, 38-year-old wizard Arthur Smith, calling perfectly timed plays. The system certainly helps, and Tannehill does so much damage off play-action because of the respect Henry commands. He never did anything like this in Miami, after all.

But if this keeps up, especially next week against Ben Roethlisberger and the also-undefeated Pittsburgh Steelers, Tannehill is going to find himself seriously in the discussion. Because how many players have truly been more valuable to a franchise than Tannehill since he took over and the Titans took off last season?

"I'm just trying to win games," he said Sunday when asked about the MVP race, just as Brown predicted he would. "Those things will take care of themselves. For me, it's just about going out, performing with my team, leading my team to wins, and playing good football. Like I said, those other things will take care of themselves."

RYAN TANNEHILL

NO SECRET, NO FLUKE

BY RYAN TANNEHILL
THE PLAYERS' TRIBUNE
OCTOBER 23, 2020

"Let's go win it."

That's all I said to the guys before we took the field in overtime against the Texans last Sunday. I didn't need to say anything else. The whole second half had been an emotional roller coaster, and honestly, it was draining. But looking around at the guys in the huddle, I could see that everyone knew what we had to do. We had an opportunity to end it, and we had a common belief and confidence in each other that we could march down the field and finish with a win.

And that's what we did.

I've always said that there's nothing that this team can't handle. That game — and this whole season, really — has been a perfect example of that. It's been a year full of adversity. COVID. Quarantine. Limited practice. Zoom meetings. Games rescheduled. If you would have told me after last season that these would be the kinds of challenges we'd face in 2020, I would have said you were crazy.

But here we are.

And through it all, we're 5–0.

None of the wins have come easy. But if this team has proved anything, it's that we thrive in those types of situations. That's one of the things I love about this group. Adversity doesn't faze us. It excites us. We don't make excuses, and we welcome every challenge.

That's especially true for me. I mean, I wouldn't be where I am now if I hadn't faced so much adversity throughout my career. It brought me here. It made me.

Since coming to Tennessee, I've had a lot of people asking me what I've been doing differently. They assume that I made some big adjustment to my game, like there's no way that the guy who used to play for the Dolphins could possibly be the same quarterback they're seeing now. I must be a different player. So what had I changed?

The truth is: I didn't do anything different. I didn't change anything.

But that doesn't mean that nothing's changed.

Look, I don't care what your job is. Nobody likes to get demoted. And that's what happened when the Dolphins traded me to Tennessee. I had been the starter in Miami my entire career, and after the 2018 season, when they fired the head coach, I knew I was done there. Nobody explicitly told me that, but it didn't take much for me to read between the lines. I didn't know if I would be cut or traded. I just knew I wouldn't be back.

The toughest part was probably that everything was out of my control. I remember looking around the league and thinking that there were a few teams in the market for a starting quarterback, which I still believed I could be.

Then free agency started, and one by one those spots got filled. And I was just kind of sitting there, helplessly, waiting for something to happen.

When I got word that I had been traded to Tennessee, I knew it was to be a backup. And that was a tough pill to swallow. I remember having some difficult and very real conversations with my wife, Lauren. We never talked like I was done with football, but we did consider the possibility that maybe, moving forward, this was my future — being a backup. That would likely mean moving from team to team, changing cities, moving our family every couple of years ... who knows?

That was a real fear. I mean, how many times do you see a starter go to another team as a backup and then work his way back into a starting role?

I don't know the answer.

All I know is, it's rare.

Lauren likes to make fun of me for being eternally optimistic. She says that I live in an alternate reality where life is always good and everything's going to turn out great. And she's right. I'm the kind of person who likes to look on the bright side of things.

That's the mindset I brought with me to Tennessee.

It was a one-year deal. So even though I knew I was going to be the backup, I was still optimistic that an opportunity would come for me to be a starter again the following year — maybe in Tennessee, maybe somewhere else. I didn't know.

I just had faith.

But it didn't take long for me to realize that I was going to like it in Tennessee.

From the first time I walked into the building, I loved the vibe of the place, the tone that had been set. And that starts with Coach Vrabel. He's a straightforward guy. He's going to say what's on his mind. No sugarcoating. He lets his players know exactly what's expected of them. And if you can't get the job done, he'll find someone else who will.

I love that mentality.

And as I got to know my teammates, it became pretty clear that they had bought into Coach's philosophy. I saw that this was a group of men who love the game, love each other and want to win.

I also saw that they loved their quarterback, Marcus Mariota. I grew to love him, too.

And that leads me to probably one of the biggest adjustments I had to make in Tennessee.

Not being the starter.

I remember my first game in a Titans uniform. It was Week 1 last season, on the road in Cleveland. I was in the locker room before the game, and while I was getting dressed, I saw that the guys around me all had their headphones on, getting into whatever zone they needed to get into to perform on the field.

But not me.

I was just ... getting dressed. I wasn't preparing to start. I wasn't preparing to lead.

I was preparing to stand on the sideline.

And be ready.

Just in case.

That was kind of a low moment for me. As football players, we live to compete on Sundays. When I wasn't being asked to do that anymore, it was humbling. And all I could really do was swallow my pride and do whatever I could to get better so I would be ready when an opportunity presented itself. I didn't have any other choice.

In Week 6, I got that chance. I took over for Marcus against Denver, and a few days later, I was named the starter for Week 7. And I'll be honest ... it was a little awkward at first. I had seen how much these guys loved Marcus, and now he was sliding into that support role that I had played for him the first few weeks. It was the kind of situation that — if you don't have the right guys, the right leadership and the right culture — can tear a team apart.

But I think it actually brought us closer together.

Because I knew how much the guys loved Marcus, I didn't come off the bench guns blazing like I was taking over the team. I just took it game by game. I listened to my receivers and we talked about what we were seeing on the field and what we expected from each other. We grew together as an offense and, over time, I earned their respect.

And through it all, we were able to string together a few wins and earn a playoff berth.

When the playoffs came around, a lot of people asked me about the fact that I had never played in a playoff game before. Was I feeling the pressure? Was I worried about my lack of playoff experience? Was I nervous?

What those people didn't realize was that I had basically been playing the equivalent of playoff games all season.

For my job.

When I took over as the starter in Week 7, nobody told me I would remain the starter. Nobody said it was my job to lose. We just took it week by week. So I went into every game knowing that if I didn't play well, Marcus was right there, ready to go. One bad game and it could all be over for me. One loss and I could be out.

And when you've gotten accustomed to basically playing for your football life every week, the pressure of a playoff game doesn't faze you.

Also, I had Derrick Henry to hand the ball off to, and he was heating up down the stretch in a way that I had never seen before.

Derrick is a special player. He has the size and physicality to get the tough yards between the tackles, but if you get him in the open field he also has the speed to take it to the house. And he's the kind of player who wears defenses down. I mean, if he gets to his fourth or fifth step clean, that's 250 pounds coming downhill at you. You might feel good about tackling that in the first quarter. But in the fourth quarter, when you're tired and beaten down ... he's just getting going. So it's like he gets stronger as the game goes on.

He showed that in the playoffs last season.

He made my job easy.

Obviously, we came up short against Kansas City in the AFC championship game, which was tough because we knew we had put everything we had into it. And while we were proud of what we had accomplished, we also knew we had a lot of work to do, and we couldn't wait to get back to it this season.

We know that some people look at what this team did last year as a fluke. And that's fine. The only thing that matters is what the people inside our building think. Last season was a year of growth. But looking back on it now, I think I prepared us perfectly to handle the adversity and uncertainty we've faced this season.

Especially in these last two games.

I mean, the first three games were tight. We had to grit out some tough wins. But when I think about that Bills game ... we had a crazy couple of weeks going into that one.

First, there was finding out that people within our organization had tested positive for COVID. So obviously, the first thing on our minds was those people and their families, wishing them fast and full recoveries. Then there was the uncertainty around our schedule. One minute we're practicing, the next, we're not. It's Zoom meetings and virtual walk-throughs. One game gets rescheduled, another postponed. Next thing you know we're playing on a Tuesday night.

And I'm not criticizing anyone or anything. We were under a lot of heat, too. This is literally a situation that nobody has ever had to deal with before, and we were the first team to really experience it and have it adversely affect us. And I think we'll all get better at handling these types of situations as we move forward, learning as we go.

But the fact that we were able to go out as a team and shake all that off and get a big win against a really tough Bills team — I think that's a testament to this team and our entire organization. I think we took that adversity, used it to motivate ourselves, and more than anything, after not knowing if or when we'd be able to play again ... I think we went out there against the Bills and just had fun.

A perfect example is the touchdown run I had at the end of the first half.

Look, we don't have many plays that are designed runs for me. And Art Smith, our OC, doesn't take too kindly to me lobbying for them. But sometimes, when the opportunity to scramble comes up, you just gotta take it. So that's what I did.

It wasn't a very smooth landing on that celebration leap into the end zone, I know. I wish I could have that one back for a do-over.

But that play — and having my teammates embracing me after, and having fans back in the stands and having my wife and kids there — it all kind of came together to exemplify the kind of confidence we're playing with and the fun we're having.

That, and Derrick Henry's stiff-arm.

That was probably one of the meanest stiff-arms I've ever seen. I think when it happened I may have screamed, "Holy crap!"

But that's kind of how this team is. I think we always play with a little chip on our shoulder. But when you take that attitude and that mindset, and you turn us loose to just go out, execute and have fun....

I don't think there's anything this team can't do.

This team, this organization — it's a family. There's no other group of guys I'd rather go to battle with. And I know that whatever adversity comes next, no matter the circumstances, we'll be up for the challenge.

I know we've got a big one this week against Pittsburgh. That's a well-rounded team that rightfully commands a lot of respect. To beat them, we've got to be at our absolute best.

But that's what we're always striving for. Every day we're just looking to take the next step and reach a level we weren't able to last season. That's what I'm most excited about now: pushing myself and the rest of these guys to do more than what we thought we were capable of.

I guess that's really what changed when I came to Tennessee. I just took the next step in a never-ending growth process. I'm more driven because I've been humbled by my adversity in Miami. I'm a better leader today because of everything I've been through in my career. I'm a better quarterback because of the coaches and players around me. I'm a better husband because Lauren and I grew closer during these crazy couple of years that saw us not only change cities, but also welcome our second child. I'm a better father because now, when I come home from work, I just try to enjoy the madness of life with little kids. My days are filled with football and family, and I absolutely love it.

So there's no one thing that's different. There was no one moment when it all clicked. There's no secret. There's just me, my family, this team and this city, all overcoming adversity and growing together to hopefully accomplish something great.

I think that with this 5-0 start, we're on our way toward that. And whatever adversity comes our way next, I know we'll be ready.

AFTER 16 STARTS WITH TITANS, HOW DOES RYAN TANNEHILL COMPARE WITH NFL'S BEST?

BY TURRON DAVENPORT
ESPN
OCTOBER 29, 2020

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- If you were to make a list of elite NFL quarterbacks, Tennessee Titans signal-caller Ryan Tannehill might not be included.

Tannehill, 32, started his first game for the Titans in Week 7 last season, taking over for Marcus Mariota. Tannehill's magical 2019 season featured a 70.3 completion percentage and a 9.6-yard average per attempt -- both career highs. He joined San Francisco 49ers quarterback Joe Montana (1989) and Sammy Baugh (1945) of the New York Giants as the only passers in NFL history to complete at least 70% of their passes and average at least nine yards per attempt in a single season, according to ESPN Stats & Information.

Tennessee started last season with a 2-4 record but experienced a resurgence after Tannehill took over, leading the Titans all the way to the AFC Championship Game, where they lost to the eventual Super Bowl champion Chiefs. Despite some speculation the Titans would try to woo Tom Brady, Titans GM Jon Robinson was convinced Tannehill should remain their starting quarterback and signed him to a four-year, $118 million contract in March.

But entering this season, there were still doubts on whether Tannehill could sustain that level of play beyond a 10-game stretch.

The Titans are 5-1, and Tannehill has now started a full season's worth of games with the Titans. The numbers show Tannehill has arguably earned a place among the top quarterbacks in the league.

Coordinator Arthur Smith's offense has allowed Tannehill to showcase his playmaking ability a lot more than when he was with the Miami Dolphins.

Where Ryan Tannehill ranks

Where does Tannehill stand versus other quarterbacks over the past 16 regular-season games? (Minimum of 10 games played)

"The things that he's being asked to do in this offense are different than what he was being asked to do in Miami," Pittsburgh Steelers coach Mike Tomlin said before facing Tannehill and the Titans in Week 7.

"The way we run our offense helps everybody. It all works together," Tannehill said. "I am thankful to be a part of this scheme. I love working with Arthur [Smith]. He does a great job preparing us and changing things up, keeping defenses trying to adjust."

Tannehill averaged 12.5 interceptions per season when he was with the Dolphins. He has thrown eight interceptions in 16 starts for Tennessee. In 16 starts for the Titans dating to Week 7 last season, Tannehill ranks among the top five quarterbacks in QBR, completion percentage and touchdowns-to-interceptions ratio. Tannehill's 8.85 yards-per-attempt average over that time span is more than any other quarterback.

ESPN analyst and former NFL quarterback Dan Orlovsky believes Tannehill should be considered among the top five quarterbacks in the league.

"His performance and production are," Orlovsky said. "The four main areas you ask are third downs, red zone, the fourth quarter and either execute the scheme flawlessly or go above. He executes at such a flawless level."

It's safe to say Tannehill is effectively executing the Titans' scheme. Tennessee had averaged 16.3 points per game over the first six games in 2019 before Tannehill became the starter. Since he took over in Week 7 last season, The Titans have averaged 29.5 points per game.

Some of the credit for that will rightfully be directed to running back Derrick Henry. If we include playoff games when looking at the last 16 games Henry and Tannehill played together, Tannehill has 36 touchdown passes and Henry has 2,005 rushing yards. According to the Elias Sports Bureau, Tannehill and Henry are the only teammates in NFL history with at least 30 touchdown passes and 2,000 rushing yards in a 16-game span.

"MVP, MVP," Henry said of Tannehill. "Let's start the campaign right now. We ain't going to get too high, but MVP, I think he should be that conversation, definitely."

Tannehill has become one of the most efficient quarterbacks, especially in the red zone, where he has thrown 27 touchdown passes in 16 games ranks second only to Russell Wilson's 29. In the last 16 games, Tannehill's red zone completion percentage of 77 is tops among all quarterbacks.

But it goes beyond just the personal numbers. As a team, Tennessee has scored touchdowns on 46 of their 55 trips to the red zone in the last 16 games with Tannehill. Their 83.6 red zone touchdown scoring percentage is easily the best in the NFL over that stretch.

The Titans believe they are never out of a game with Tannehill under center. Since taking over last season, Tannehill has led Tennessee to seven game-winning drives in the fourth quarter, which is the most in the league.

"We always had confidence in him," receiver A.J. Brown said of Tannehill. "He tells us what he wants and he demands what he wants so he can deliver a good ball. MVP stuff. I think he's playing really well right now. Like I said with him, the only thing he cares about is wins. He doesn't care about stats and all that. All he wants to do is win."

KENNY VACCARO

TITANS SAFETY KENNY VACCARO BECAME A FAN FAVORITE IN NASHVILLE

*BY ERIK BACHARACH
THE TENNESSEAN
MARCH 22, 2019*

In the sewers of the Twitterverse, haters and criticizers and doubters run rampant. Anonymity has a way of bringing out the ugliest in people, and Kenny Vaccaro is well aware of it.

But that's precisely why Vaccaro was a bit taken aback these past few months, after the Titans' 2018 season ended and the issue of re-signing the Titans safety was a popular discussion topic among Titans fans. On Twitter, Vaccaro's own supporters-versus-haters ratio was off the charts... in a good way.

"Usually you're going to get at least a couple trolls in there like, 'You suck.' But there wasn't," Vaccaro said on March 14, three days after the team re-signed him to a four-year deal worth $26 million (with $11.5 million guaranteed). "Titans fans were great. I couldn't find too many trolls."

So Vaccaro's Twitter feed became a running testament to the phenomenon. He'd retweet all the positive sentiments thrown at him by fans. He also said he was prepared to do the same for any negative jabs taken at him – he just couldn't find any.

"It really wasn't a campaign," Vaccaro said, "like, 'Sign me, sign me, sign me.' I was really like, this is me just retweeting everything I'm getting. There was just no negativity in the tweets."

It was a marvel on a social medium that serves as a home for trolls. But really, it was no wonder Vaccaro emerged as a fan favorite, and no wonder he had throngs of fans clamoring for his re-signing.

There was the crushing hit Vaccaro laid on James White for a loss of three yards on the New England Patriots' opening play from scrimmage on Nov. 11, a tone-setter of sorts in the Titans' 34-10 pummeling of the Super Bowl champs.

There was the time when Giants tight end Rhett Ellison laid an impact block on Vaccaro on Dec. 16, causing the safety to lose his helmet but failing to stop him from helping gang tackle running back Saquon Barkley in the Titans' first shutout in 18 years.

There were a ton of those types of instances scattered throughout the 2018 season, when Vaccaro's physicality played a key part in a big defensive play. They added up, and by the time 2019 hit, fans wanted No. 24 back.

The feeling was mutual.

"I wanted to be back, I'll say that," Vaccaro said with a smile during his press conference last week. "It was always an easy decision for me."

Vaccaro first was brought to Nashville on a one-year deal in August. After Johnathan Cyprien went down with an ACL tear in training camp, Titans general manager Jon Robinson brought in Vaccaro as a replacement.

A season later, it's easy to call the move a success.

"I appreciate it. I'm thankful for the opportunity," Vaccaro said. "I want to give a shout out to Cyp, too. He text me yesterday. I'm going to get emotional. Him getting hurt ... He's just a good dude."

Vaccaro stumbled through that unprompted shout out to Cyprien. He clearly wanted to say more, but emotions prevented him from doing so until he was asked again about the player he replaced.

"Him kind of welcoming me with opening arms, being the stand-up class act he is, it's tough," Vaccaro said. "Because he kind of knew. The writing was on the wall after the season, but (at) the same time he's just a great dude. I appreciate the way he handled the situation. (With) a lot of people there's going to be jealousy. There's going to be praying for somebody's downfall almost. But I never felt that (from him). I just appreciate him."

Yet another instance of Vaccaro giving Titans fans a reason to have his back.

"I saw the clip where he kind of got a little choked up yesterday and thought that was really cool," Robinson said. "Kind of speaks to his passion for football and the camaraderie in that room. Kenny's a real passionate football player. We were fortunate that he was available last August when Cyp went down. He did a great job coming in and acclimating himself to our football program and earned it."

KENNY VACCARO

TITANS SAFETY KENNY VACCARO WANTS TO MAKE IMPACT ON AND OFF THE FIELD

BY JIM WYATT
TENNESSEE TITANS
AUGUST 28, 2020

NASHVILLE – On the football field, Titans safety Kenny Vaccaro lets his pads – and helmet – do the talking.

Off the field, he wants to spend his time talking about something more important than a game.

Vaccaro, in his eight NFL season, started off his video conference call with reporters on Friday by saying he doesn't want to talk about football with media this season.

Instead, Vaccaro wants to use his voice to discuss social injustice, systemic oppression, racism and police brutality following the recent events in our country, from the recent shooting of Jacob Blake by police in Kenosha, Wisconsin to George Floyd's murder by a Minneapolis policeman back in May.

"With all due respect, I'm really not going to talk football when I come into these meetings in light of recent events that have been happening around the country. I just think for me and my platform, my duty is to speak on the things that are happening and that's just my stance. I'm just not going to talk football this year," Vaccaro said.

"I just think football is not the most important thing right now – it is family, it is your brothers in the locker room, it is the systematic oppression, the racial injustices going on. It is bigger than ball."

Kenny Vaccaro: The Next Step is Taking Action

On Thursday, the Titans canceled practice and the team spent the day discussing matters as a team. Vaccaro said he wants to join others on the team in making a positive change in the Nashville community, and across the country.

In emotional pleas on Thursday, Titans safety Kevin Byard and quarterback Ryan Tannehill stood with their teammates to address the subjects of social injustice, racism and police brutality, while vowing to stand together as a team.

"For me, the next step is taking action, getting in the communities and being a shining light, an example," Vaccaro said. "The leaders of the team got together, and we talked about different things we can do, maybe on our off days to show action, to show that we really want change and we are not just talking about it.

"Canceling a practice, we didn't do that because we didn't want to ball out. We did that because we felt it was right to talk about all the different emotions everybody was going through as a team, make sure that we respected everybody and let everybody know that we are a family, and our football team needs to be a shining light to the outside world, and how it needs to be done, how people need to be treated.

Titans Players Stand in Unity on Social Injustice Issues

"I don't think sitting out a practice is going to stop police from killing Black men," Vaccaro continued. "I think sitting out of practice allowed us to get together and talk about a plan with our team and put that plan to action and not just skip practice and go home and just miss a day because of things that happened. We spent hours upon hours talking about different ideas and things we can do."

Titans head coach Mike Vrabel on Thursday mentioned the team's plan to "Zoom With a Titan," a way the organization can teach children. Vrabel said he wants to recreate the atmosphere in schools so it's like it is in the building at Saint Thomas Sports Park, one that consists of love, hard work, compassion, equality and accountability.

Vaccaro said he's looking forward to that endeavor, and he's also looking forward to finding other ways the team can make a difference outside of football.

Vaccaro, the father of two young sons, said it's important to influence the youth to make it a better place. Vaccaro said he teared up in a team meeting on Thursday when discussing difficult topics as it relates to social injustices, and his kids.

ISAIAH WILSON

ISAIAH WILSON: A BIG MAN WITH A BIG FUTURE ON THE TITANS OFFENSIVE LINE

BY JOHN GLENNON
THE ATHLETIC
MAY 11, 2020

Editor's note: This is the first in a six-part series on the Tennessee Titans' 2020 NFL Draft picks. Joe Rexrode's story on second-round pick Kristian Fulton, a cornerback from LSU, will be published tomorrow.

The car was already packed and ready to roll when Isaiah Wilson, clad in his Poly Prep Country Day School cap and gown, squeezed his diploma and took the first few steps toward his future.

Why wait?

Sure, it had been important to Wilson that he graduate from the prestigious Brooklyn, N.Y., high school. But there would be no time for all-night parties with classmates, no hours spent in joyful reminiscence. Not with offseason football workouts at the University of Georgia, Wilson's college destination, already underway.

So with the temperature sitting at about 60 degrees that early June night in 2017, Wilson and his parents headed south — way south — finishing a journey of more than 800 miles when they rolled into Athens, Ga., at 4 in the morning. The phone calls began three or four hours later. It started with one from an assistant coach, then from a player or two, and finally it was head coach Kirby Smart on the line.

"Hey, we're having a team run," Wilson recalls Smart saying. "We don't expect you to come in and kill it, but we'd like to have you here."

Eager to make a good first impression, the 6-foot-6 Wilson — who weighed more than 380 pounds at the time — pulled on his compression leggings, shorts and T-shirt and stepped into the heat of a 90-degree day in the Deep South.

His first order of business? Joining new Bulldog teammates in running "110s," the dreaded length-of-the-field sprints used to condition players or, perhaps more accurately, determine what condition players are in. Needless to say, plenty of eyes were focused on the massive Wilson, ranked the No. 5 tackle prospect in the country that year by the 247Sports Composite.

"I remember watching him walk out to join us, and he was huge at that time, just huge," Andrew Thomas, the No. 4 pick in the 2020 draft by the Giants and Wilson's former Georgia teammate, said. "But he comes out there wearing sweatpants or something like that. That was like his 'Welcome to the Georgia heat!' moment. He wasn't used to it, coming from up north."

To his credit, Wilson made the first trip down the field, sweat already pouring off the big man's body. He tried to run a second sprint, too, but it did not go well. In a matter of moments, Wilson walked to the sideline, huffing, puffing and panting in the humid air.

So this is what college football was going to be like?

"To be honest, I was a little nervous he was going to go back home with his parents," recalls Sam Pittman, Georgia's former offensive line coach and now the head coach at Arkansas.

'Sacrifice is an understatement'

This wasn't the first time football had turned Wilson's life upside down.

A few years earlier, Wilson had paid a visit to Poly Prep, where he was charmed by the academics, the athletics and some personal time with Ray Marten, an older Poly Prep student who would go on to play tight end for Boston College.

It was everything Wilson, then in eighth grade, could hope for in a high school, but he knew he'd have to make changes to attend. One was the hour-long commute he would make from his Canarsie neighborhood in southeastern Brooklyn, which would mean a wake-up call before 6 a.m. He'd also be wearing a mandated uniform every day, a first for Wilson.

But Wilson wasn't the only one sacrificing. There was the matter of school tuition — about $40,000 per year at the time — that had to be covered. A good chunk would be picked up by Wilson's need-based scholarship. But the remainder meant extra hours of work for Wilson's mother, Sharese, who manages care for at-risk students in New York, and his father, Merrell, who works in construction.

"Sacrifice is an understatement for what they did — just different things all over the place," Wilson said. "Things like that you get to see as a kid, and you understand what they're doing for you. You appreciate it."

It took just one look at Wilson for the Poly Prep football coaches to realize they had a special prospect on their hands. Current head coach Kevin Fountaine, then an assistant, had never seen any high schooler as big as Wilson, which is saying something considering the school had produced its share of big-time football prospects. Fountaine used Wilson on both sides of the line and sometimes — just for fun — he let the big guy carry the football into the end zone on short-yardage situations.

"Even though it's hard at 300-something pounds to have a high motor on every single play, you can see when you watch some of the offensive cutups that he was just wrecking defenses," Fountaine said. "He wrestled his freshman year, too, before he got too big and didn't have a weight class. If you're going to wrestle, it shows you're a tough guy to get on the mat. He didn't have to do that. He chose to."

SpongeBob and the elves

ISAIAH WILSON

College coaches began flocking to Brooklyn to see Wilson during his junior year. Pittman recalled his first visit to Poly Prep, which occurred at a time when recruiters could only talk to high school coaches, not the prospects themselves. Pittman, however, did not need a formal introduction to identify Wilson.

“I don’t know if I’d ever seen anybody look like that,” Pittman said. “So I was thinking to myself, ‘Well, we’re on the right guy.’”

Wilson never let all the attention overwhelm him, however, as the fun-loving side of his personality remained intact. Through much of high school, the physically imposing Wilson hauled around a SpongeBob SquarePants bookbag, which eventually earned so much notoriety that The New Yorker magazine included it as No. 37 in its annual feature, “Reasons to Love New York.”

“‘SpongeBob’ is definitely still my favorite show,” Wilson said. “It’s just really funny. And there’s a lot of life lessons in it, so it could never get old. I love cartoons in general. They keep you young, keep you playful, keep you joyous.”

And when it came time to make his college selection — choosing from among a final three of Alabama, Georgia and Michigan — Wilson did so in typically unconventional fashion. Instead of holding his own news conference, he announced his decision as part of his high school’s Christmas performance assembly. More than 10,000 people were viewing the live Facebook feed, waiting on Wilson, who ended the suspense when a pair of students — dressed as elves — brought him a Georgia baseball cap to wear.

“That is his personality — he’s been that way as long as I can remember,” Sharese Wilson said. “He’s pretty much been the one (of my sons) that’s the friendliest, most fun-loving. He just keeps everyone smiling.”

‘I think he’s very tough’

It was months later that Wilson found himself on the sideline of a Georgia practice field, gasping for air after a single 110-yard sprint with his new teammates.

“I was overheating, tired, out of breath, whatever you want to call it,” Wilson recalled with a chuckle. “I think I almost died out there. Really, though, it was a funny experience, a fun memory.”

The fact Wilson struggled wasn’t much of a surprise given the circumstances: a few hours of sleep after an all-night drive from New York, the intense Georgia heat and too many pounds of baby fat still on his massive frame.

Still, it proved to be one indication that Wilson, despite his lofty recruiting rankings, might not be ready for SEC football. So with Georgia loaded with talent on the offensive line, the decision was made that he would redshirt. It was a gut-punch at the time for Wilson, who’d been so dominant during his high school days in New York. But he rebounded quickly, realizing the move was probably best for his long-term development.

“When Coach told him, it took him about a week just to get his mind right,” Thomas said. “But then he came back, put his head down and understood he had a learning curve and you work hard to get over it. He didn’t pout. He was on the sideline pumping up the team, excited to see his brothers doing well.”

The redshirt year paid clear dividends. He transformed his body, dropping 43 pounds to a more suitable 340. He improved his technique and his pad level, the kind of things he didn’t have to worry about while overpowering much smaller opponents in high school. He adjusted through practice to the speed of SEC football, the closest competition to NFL.

By Wilson’s redshirt freshman season in 2018, he was the starting right tackle. By year’s end, he’d earned the offense’s co-most improved player award. By the end of the 2019 season, Wilson had taken another step forward, earning second-team All-SEC honors by the Associated Press. Not too shabby considering the conference’s two first-teamers — Thomas and Alabama’s Jerrick Wills Jr. — were top-10 overall picks last month.

“You knew he was going to get better because he was so talented and so big,” Pittman said. “His technique got better, and so did his body positioning and his hands. All those things will still continue to improve.”

“But there are two things I really like about him. I think he’s very tough. He’ll play beat up a little bit. The other thing is that he works extremely hard. Those two things will benefit him as his career continues.”

Viral draft moment

Which brings us to draft night, when the Titans chose Wilson with the 29th overall selection, intent on adding a rough, tough mauler at right tackle to eventually replace former All-Pro Jack Conklin.

But the reason many will long remember the pick? The reaction in the Wilson household — and the reaction to the reaction.

When his name was announced on ESPN, an emotional Wilson pulled a Titans cap down over his face and started to cry. His fiancée, Grace, already sitting in his lap, leaned over top of Wilson, put her arms around his neck and hugged him, effectively blocking the ESPN cameras that were trained on him.

That didn’t go over well with Sharese Wilson, who at first tapped Grace on the shoulder, then physically lifted her off of Wilson’s lap. Sharese Wilson’s hand can be seen moving up and down afterward, as if she might have been lecturing Grace. Needless to say, the moment turned into a viral video.

“I did get quite a few calls from friends on that,” Sharese Wilson said with a laugh. “It’s funny because that little clip, we couldn't see it at all (while it was happening) because we were kind of following along with ESPN.

ISAIAH WILSON

"But in our minds, we were just like, 'The cameras are rolling, so let's get everybody out of the way' so that Isaiah — we knew they would pan to Isaiah — would talk about his reaction or they're going to catch him crying or whatever it is. What ended up happening is they were rolling when we were trying to clear out."

Wilson says he finds the video funny in retrospect but believes it received extra attention because nothing else was going on in the sports world at the time.

"At the end of the day, the draft was the biggest spectacle of the quarantine," Wilson said. "Everyone was tuned in, waiting to get something to harp on to put on social media because people are bored."

"It is what it is. Everyone is in the house; nobody can do anything. People were bored and jumped at some funny content. I mean, my family is doing great. We're all smiles over here."

Added Sharese Wilson: "Yeah, I think that's quarantine. There's not enough to talk about, so maybe some folks had to create a little something because they don't have anything else to talk about right now."

'A really high ceiling'

Now, a few weeks later, Wilson is preparing for his transition to the NFL.

Just when he'll be able to take the field for his first practice is anyone's guess due to the COVID-19 restrictions. But the prospect of the 6-foot-6, 350-pound Wilson mowing down defenders in front of Derrick Henry has to be tantalizing for Titans fans and teammates. And keep in mind: Wilson played only two seasons of college football, turning pro after his redshirt sophomore year, and has yet to reach his full potential. Most scouting reports noted that Wilson's game is still a bit raw, something that should change in time.

"I think that's fair to say, and I think he'll tell you that," Pittman said. "But he's got a great willingness to work. He has the talent to do that, and he'll be coached up and all those things. So I think his future is very, very bright."

Added Thomas, his former linemate: "I know Tennessee runs the ball really well there, and that's kind of what our offense was built on at Georgia. So it's a really good spot for him. He's definitely built for running the ball and that zone scheme. I think he has a really high ceiling. The more he plays, the better he's going to get."

Wilson is looking forward to joining his new Titans teammates and is eager to learn from veterans such as Rodger Saffold, Taylor Lewan, Dennis Kelly and, of course, fellow Georgia alum Ben Jones. He wants to soak in their experience, the nuances of the game, such as where the vets place their hands in pass protection and how they gain leverage on defenders during running plays.

"A few of them have already reached out to me, just kind of extending the hand," Wilson said, "just telling me this is a brotherhood and if you need anything once you get here or if you need a place to work out, do it with me. I definitely appreciated it, and when I get to Nashville, they're probably going to regret those texts because I'm going to be blowing up their phones all the time."

But that's not to say anyone should be worried about Wilson as he prepares for the pros.

That overwhelmed youngster who not all that long ago couldn't even make a second sprint down the field at his first workout? He's a far different person these days, in body and spirit.

"I think mentally I'm kind of locked into what I am now, what I like to do, how I like to play, what I'm good at, things like that," Wilson said. "That's kind of how I hold myself, and on being tough, being comfortable while being uncomfortable."

"I figured a lot of things out about myself and what drives me. So you learn how to be OK after two hours of running when you're thinking, 'I don't know if I can run another sprint.' But you have to run another sprint. So you do it."

TITANS TOP PICK: 'I AM GEORGE FLOYD'

BY DAVID BOCLAIR
SI.COM
JUNE 2, 2020

At 6-foot-7, 340 pounds, Isaiah Wilson is someone who stands out in a crowd.

In a thoughtful and poignant social media post Sunday, however, the 21-year-old Tennessee Titans first-round draft pick, expressed the feeling that he is as anonymous as another African American when viewed through the lens of racism.

Wilson joined many other professional athletes in the U.S. and across the world with a public reaction to the death of George Floyd last week in Minneapolis and the protests – peaceful and violent – that have taken place across the country in recent days. Floyd died while in police custody, and videos recorded by bystanders showed one of the arresting officers knelt on the back of his neck for nine minutes while Floyd complained of difficulty breathing.

“My heart hurts because I am George Floyd,” Wilson wrote. “When I take off the uniform and I’m no longer on the field I am George Floyd. My family is George Floyd. My friends are George Floyd. If you don’t understand the sentiment practice empathy and think about if your family/friends didn’t survive a police encounter for drinking a beer too young. (I’m) not political. (I’m) for humans. A balanced equilibrium where we are all the same. Please be safe during this trying time.”

Wilson was raised in Brooklyn, N.Y. and spent the past three years at the University of Georgia. The Titans selected him with the 29th pick in the 2020 NFL Draft with the idea that he will be their starting right tackle for years, possibly as soon as this fall.

“I want to become most polished player that I possibly can,” he said on draft day. “I think I have a lot of physical gifts and I’ve put a lot of things on tape, and if I refine those things and polish those things, I can be a great player for this organization. That’s my goal.”

Based on his latest comments, he has a chance to be a team spokesman as well.

BATTLING IS IN LOGAN WOODSIDE'S BLOOD; THE TITANS BACKUP QB WON'T GO AWAY

BY KYLE TUCKER
THE ATHLETIC
AUGUST 27, 2020

NASHVILLE — Pat O'Hara laughed like a guy who has had both a nagging dermatological irritation and worked with Logan Woodside for parts of the last three seasons. The Tennessee Titans' quarterbacks coach let out a cackle that suggested the analogy was spot-on when he heard how Woodside's high school coach described the 25-year-old QB.

"He's like a bad rash," said Chris Tracy, who coached Woodside at Franklin County (Ky.) High. "He just won't go away."

Both Tracy and O'Hara mean that as a genuine compliment about a guy without a single regular-season NFL snap to his credit who is still somehow heading into his third consecutive September with the Titans. It's always kind of been this way with Woodside and football. At every level, he's been the second (or third) choice initially, the guy who was supposed to just give it up, but refused to accept that.

"It's made him really mentally tough, which is a trait you have to have when you play quarterback in the NFL," O'Hara said. "There's a lot of different things that come at you and it's a critical position that is criticized. He's really battled and earned everything he's gotten over the years, and all of those things make him who he is now, which is a tough, competitive guy who works extremely hard and now he's put himself in position to compete to be our backup."

Woodside's bio doesn't really read like that of an underdog. He threw for 5,511 yards, ran for 845 yards and totaled 86 touchdowns in two seasons at Franklin County. He was Mid-American Conference Offensive Player of the Year in 2017, became Toledo's career record-holder for passing yards (10,514), touchdowns (93) and quarterback efficiency rating. He was an NFL Draft pick in 2018, starting AAF quarterback in 2019 and the Titans' clear No. 2 QB entering camp this summer.

But look closer. His first high school coach moved him to running back, so he transferred into Tracy's program — and still had to fight off a returning senior starter to win his first quarterback competition. After struggling to get Power 5 schools to notice the 6-foot-1 QB, he was finally in line to be the man at Toledo before Phillip Ely transferred in from mighty Alabama and beat him out in preseason — twice. The euphoria of being selected in the seventh round by the Cincinnati Bengals, a franchise 80 miles from where he grew up in Frankfort, Ky., vanished when he was arrested for DUI, struggled on the field and was cut in the preseason.

He wasn't even the first quarterback the San Antonio Commanders selected in the AAF draft. Or the second. He was the third choice at his position for a start-up minor league franchise. But it could've been worse. For about a month between the Bengals and Commanders gigs, he worked at an L.A. Fitness in Cincinnati, allegedly selling memberships but mostly trying not to be recognized by anyone and "figuring out how to get myself back playing football somewhere, anywhere," Woodside said. "I realized that working a regular job was not something I wanted to do for the rest of my life. I was about as miserable as you could be. I had such an unbelievable opportunity, and I didn't take full advantage of it. That's something I look back on now as a big mistake, but one that I've really learned and grown from."

For once in his football-playing life, Woodside had allowed himself to believe he'd arrived once he got drafted. Tracy said his former pupil was back home that summer bragging about which flashy car and other extravagant things he planned to buy with his NFL riches. For just a moment, he let go of the scratch-and-claw mentality that had gotten him there, and it almost cost him a shot at professional football.

"I prayed for him quite a bit during that time — and I told him that," Tracy said. "You're a 21-year-old kid and people are telling you how good you are and you just got drafted and you're dreaming about all the ways you're going to spend all that money. And I can't tell him, 'No, you're not. That's not how it's going to work.' Because I'm just another dumb old guy if I say that. But he wasn't focused. He was worried about the other stuff too much. It makes you realize, because Logan has a great family and great network of support, how hard it must be for kids who don't have that behind them when people start throwing money at them and telling them how great they are. I saw Logan after the Bengals cut him and told him my prayer for him: That he get his mind right so his ability can take over and he can show everybody what he can do."

The AAF afforded a refocused Woodside exactly that opportunity. He beat out the other two QBs, including former North Carolina star Marquise Williams, and completed 58 percent of his passes for 1,385 yards, with 10 touchdowns/2-point conversions and eight interceptions in eight games before the league folded. He approached that season like an extended NFL preseason, a chance to put something on film and prove he can run an offense against other pros if asked. He got a chance to back that up in actual NFL games last fall, when the Titans, who'd signed him to their practice squad briefly in 2018, brought him to camp.

Woodside rose to the occasion again, completing 60.5 percent of his passes for 539 yards, four touchdowns and no picks in four exhibitions. With both Ryan Tannehill and Marcus Mariota on the roster, though, he was relegated to the practice squad. There, after suffering a season-ending injury, is actually where Woodside impressed his coaches and teammates most. He stuck around the facility, stayed in meetings, refused to disconnect from the offense and tried to learn all he could while rehabilitating his throwing arm. Offensive coordinator Arthur Smith noted that Woodside is “consumed by” preparation.

“He’s very inquisitive. Last year, he asked a lot of great questions and I feel like he grew a lot, even though he wasn’t out there practicing with us,” said Tannehill, a freshly minted $100 million man, fresh off an AFC title game appearance and secure in his starting job. “I felt like he really got a lot out of last year and so far he’s carrying that into 2020. He loves the game, he loves preparing, he loves everything about it. I love playing with guys like that, who enjoy the grind, the daily grind, the preparation, the hard work.”

That’s all the stuff that saw Woodside enter camp this year as the obvious favorite to be Tannehill’s backup. He and rookie seventh-round pick Cole McDonald were the only other quarterbacks on the roster after Mariota moved on to the Raiders. And while Woodside didn’t necessarily look sharp in early practices, he looked easily sharper than the new guy. But then Tennessee sent the new guy packing last week and brought in veteran Trevor Siemian, who owns 25 career starts and ran a similar offense to the Titans’ while in Denver. Just like that, making his first 53-man roster became a much taller order for Woodside.

He did not blink, of course, because this is exactly how it’s always been.

“We’ve challenged him in a lot of ways and he’s always responded well,” O’Hara said. “It doesn’t faze Logan. That’s not his makeup. I’m not concerned about when you bring another guy in how he’s going to react. I don’t think it affected him at all.”

In fact, Woodside has been the sharper of the two in their first week of competition. Siemian is still acclimating to his new team, to be fair, but Woodside’s throws have been more accurate and more on time — especially on Monday when most of the veterans got a day off from practice and coaches took a long look at their second and third strings. Siemian threw one ugly interception and should’ve had another, while Woodside slung several strikes and had no catastrophic errors. He looks like a guy who has complete grasp of the offense now and can command the huddle.

“Doesn’t surprise me one bit,” Toledo coach Jason Candle said. “The competitive spirit of that young man has always been at the forefront, very obvious to anyone who has ever interacted with him. We had to tell that guy twice here that he wouldn’t be the starting quarterback. A lot of people would bail on you in that situation, transfer and leave. We told him there were still a couple things he needed to work on to achieve the career he wanted, and he could’ve pouted about that, but instead he took the coaching and made use of his time to steadily improve. By the time he left, he might’ve been the best ever to play here.”

Woodside first lost his job to Ely, the former Crimson Tide QB, before the 2014 season. When Ely tore his ACL in Week 2, Woodside stepped right in and led the Rockets to eight wins as a sophomore. The next summer, though, he lost the job again to Ely and decided to take a redshirt season. During that year “off,” he did something that stuck with his coach.

“If the starter gets hurt, you have to play because you give us the best chance to play. But if he doesn’t, you’re redshirting. So it’s a tough spot. You really need to know the offense, so you really need to be working with the first- and second-team offense in practice,” Candle said. “But he wanted to go compete and work with the scout team so that he could get our defense better for games. He thought that was how he could help us the most. We agreed to let him do that if he agreed to come in on his own time and prepare for the game plan to run our offense if we needed him. So really, he might’ve done more work than anyone on our team that year. He found a way to lead us even when he wasn’t in the main spotlight.”

And now here he is again, the guy who just won’t go away. Another new challenger to this dream that absolutely has an expiration date.

He figures he was down to his last chance before shining in the 2019 preseason. Titans coach Mike Vrabel said “these guys all know you’re only going to get so many shots in this league and you’ve got to take advantage of it before it passes you up.” Woodside realizes that even a bad rash eventually disappears. Until then, he hopes to just keep scratching where Tennessee itches.

“I never wanted anything to be easy for me, and it definitely hasn’t been,” Woodside said. “I think I’ve gained their trust, that I’m somebody who can come in the building every day on time and ready to work, just buying into what they’ve set (as the culture) for this franchise, and when called upon, go out and execute. One thing I’ve learned in this league is if you’re not coming in each and every day ready, then you’re going to be gone.”

It says everything you need to know about Woodside, then, that he’s still here.

FRANCHISE PRO FOOTBALL HALL OF FAMERS

GEORGE BLANDA

QUARTERBACK/KICKER • 6'2" • 215 lbs • COLLEGE: KENTUCKY
NFL SEASONS: 26 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 7 (1960-66)
HOMETOWN: YOUNGWOOD, PA. • BORN: SEPT. 27, 1927
GAMES PLAYED: 340 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1981

George Blanda, who came out of retirement with the emergence of the American Football League in 1960, was the offensive catalyst for the explosive Oiler squads of the early 1960s. He played quarterback and handled the placekicking chores in Columbia blue for seven of his NFL-record 26 seasons in the league. Blanda was the team's leading passer and scorer in each of those seven seasons and still owns franchise records for most extra points (299), most touchdown passes in a season (36) and most touchdown passes in a game (7). He is also third in points scored with 596. The 36 scoring tosses stood as an NFL record for an astounding 23 years. Blanda's NFL career records included most games (340), most points (2,002) and most extra points (943). He also passed for 236 touchdowns. Blanda captained the Oilers to two consecutive AFL titles in 1960 and 1961, earning AFL Player of the Year honors in 1961. Blanda's career was divided into three distinct parts, 10 years with the Chicago Bears, seven seasons with the Houston Oilers and nine years with the Oakland Raiders. In 1970, he became the oldest quarterback to play in a title game. He was just a month shy of his 49th birthday when he retired before the 1976 season. Blanda passed away at age 83 on Sept. 27, 2010.

KEN HOUSTON

SAFETY • 6'3" • 197 lbs • COLLEGE: PRAIRIE VIEW A&M
NFL SEASONS: 14 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 6 (1967-72)
HOMETOWN: LUFKIN, TEXAS • BORN: NOV. 12, 1944
GAMES PLAYED: 196 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1986

Considered one of the best safeties in football history, Ken Houston picked off 49 passes (898 yards), recovered 21 fumbles and scored 12 touchdowns over his 14-season NFL career, earning Pro Bowl honors 12 consecutive times (1968-69 AFL, 1970-79 NFL). Houston returned an NFL-record nine interceptions for a touchdown in his six seasons as an Oiler. Four of those scores came in 1971, tying an NFL record. He returned two in one game against San Diego in the 1971 season finale, which also ties an NFL mark. His other three touchdowns came on a punt return, a fumble return and a blocked field goal return. Houston also holds the Oilers record for most career interception return yards with 650. With a long, fluid stride, Houston had excellent speed and quickness. His 6-3, 197-pound frame made him an ideal pass defender. Yet his lean, muscular body helped him to become a punishing tackler. Originally a ninth-round draft choice out of Prairie View A&M, Houston earned a starter's role by the third game of his rookie season. Two weeks later in a game against the New York Jets, he scored two touchdowns, one on a 71-yard blocked field goal attempt, and the other on a 43-yard interception return. After excelling for six years with the Oilers, Ken was traded to the Redskins for five veteran players in 1973. The Redskins once referred to Houston as "pro football's most underrated superstar," but his capabilities were widely recognized. He won all-league acclaim with the Oilers in 1969 and 1971, and then was either All-Pro or All-NFC with the Redskins every year from 1973 to 1979. He was selected for either the AFL All-Star game or the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl 12 straight seasons from 1968 through 1979. He played in 183 consecutive games before suffering a broken arm against the New York Giants Nov. 25, 1979.

EARL CAMPBELL

RUNNING BACK • 5'11" • 232 lbs • COLLEGE: TEXAS
NFL SEASONS: 8 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 7 (1978-84)
HOMETOWN: TYLER, TEXAS • BORN: MARCH 29, 1955
GAMES PLAYED: 115 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1991

Earl Campbell, a 5-11, 232-pound ball-carrying dynamo from the University of Texas, joined the Houston Oilers as the first player taken in the 1978 National Football League Draft. The first player to earn All-Southwest Conference honors four years, Campbell was a consensus All-America and the Heisman Trophy winner in 1977. Campbell took the NFL by storm from the outset. In 1978, he was named the NFL's Most Valuable Player, All-Pro, and Rookie of the Year. He won the league rushing championship with a club-record 1,450 yards and was named to the AFC Pro Bowl squad. It was more of the same the next two years with NFL rushing titles, MVP honors, and consensus All-Pro acclaim each season. He followed his rookie campaign with 1,697 yards in 1979, but his finest year came in 1980 when he rushed for 1,934 yards, which at the time was second only to O. J. Simpson's 2,003 yards gained in 1973. That year, Campbell gained over 200 yards in four games. In 1981, he won his fourth straight AFC rushing title with 1,376 yards. A sensational runner, Campbell was picked for the Pro Bowl five of his first six NFL seasons (1978-81, 1983). In his eight-year career, which finished in New Orleans, Campbell rushed 2,187 times for 9,407 yards, and 74 touchdowns, retiring as the NFL's seventh all-time leading rusher. He also gained 806 yards on 121 receptions to bring his career combined net yards total to 10,213. He set Oilers records for most career yards (8,574), most career attempts (1,979), most touchdown runs (73) and most consecutive games with a rushing touchdown (5). His most famous performance came in a Monday night game against Miami in his rookie season. That night, he rushed for 199 yards and four touchdowns to lead the Oilers to a spectacular 35-30 victory. In spite of the constant pounding he took from opposing defenders, Earl missed only six games out of 115 because of injuries. Midway into his seventh season, he was traded by the Oilers to the New Orleans Saints for a first-round draft pick. He played a season and a half with the Saints before retiring after the 1985 campaign. Campbell is one of just four people officially designated a Texas Legend by the Texas State Legislature. The others are Davy Crockett, Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin. Campbell was the only designee of the 20th century.

CHARLIE JOINER

WIDE RECEIVER • 5'11" • 188 lbs • COLLEGE: GRAMBLING
NFL SEASONS: 18 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 4 (1969-72)
HOMETOWN: MANY, LA. • BORN: OCT. 14, 1947
GAMES PLAYED: 239 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 1996

Charlie Joiner played 18 seasons in the NFL, including his first four with the Houston Oilers. One of the league's most prolific receivers, he amassed 750 career receptions for 12,146 yards and 65 touchdowns, ranking as the league's leading receiver of all-time when he retired at the age of 39 in 1986. His 18 seasons played were longer than any other wide receiver in history at the time of his retirement. The Oilers originally targeted Joiner for the defensive backfield when they picked the 5-11, 180-pounder from Grambling in the fourth round of the 1969 AFL-NFL Draft. Joiner played briefly on defense and the kickoff return team but soon became established as a premier pass catcher. Joiner caught 82 of his 750 career passes as an Oiler, totaling 1,480 yards and 12 touchdowns. He paced the squad with 681 yards and seven touchdown grabs in 1971. In his fourth season in 1972, Houston sent him to the Cincinnati Bengals in a four-player swap. Four years later in 1976, he was traded to San Diego. With the Chargers, Joiner blossomed into super-stardom. He and quarterback Dan Fouts formed a lethal pass-catch team that accounted for the preponderance of his 586 receptions as a Charger. During his 11 years in San Diego, Joiner caught 50 or more passes seven times and had 70 or more receptions three seasons. Injuries cut into his playing time at the beginning, but in a 193-game span over his final 13 seasons, Joiner missed only one game. He was an All-NFL pick in 1980 and a Pro Bowl choice three times. In the 1980 AFC title game, he led the Chargers with six receptions for 130 yards and two touchdowns. Blessed with excellent speed and tantalizing moves, Joiner averaged 16.2 yards per catch and accounted for 12,146 yards and 65 touchdowns. When he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1996, Joiner ranked fifth in receptions and sixth in receiving yardage on the NFL's all-time list. Joiner was once described by San Francisco 49ers coaching great Bill Walsh as "the most intelligent, the smartest, the most calculating receiver the game has ever known."

Mike Munchak was the eighth player overall and the first offensive lineman chosen in the 1982 National Football League draft. Selected by the Oilers, the former Penn State standout was an immediate success with the Houston club, earning the starting left guard spot in his first training camp. The 6-3, 281-pound lineman wasted little time establishing himself as one of the premier guards in the NFL. In 1984, in just his third year in the league, he was named to the first of seven All-AFC teams. That same year he received the first of nine Pro Bowl invitations. Not coincidentally, the Oilers' on-the-field successes increased as Munchak's development and experience increased. From their dismal 1-8 record in the strike-shortened 1982 season, the Oilers improved nearly every year that Munchak played. Along the way, the team advanced to the playoffs seven consecutive years (1987-1993) and captured the 1991 and 1993 AFC Central Divisional crowns. Munchak was a devastating blocker and considered the key to an offensive line that kept the Oilers at or near the top of the NFL's offensive statistical categories. In 1988 he led the Oilers' offensive line that gave up just 24 quarterback sacks which was third in the NFL. It was also the fewest sacks allowed by the team in 10 seasons. The following season the offensive line held opponents to no sacks in six games. In 1991, the Oilers offensive line finished second in the AFC and fourth in the NFL in the fewest quarterback sacks allowed. Behind the Munchak-led line, Houston led the NFL in total offense in 1990 and passing offense in 1990 and 1991. The Oilers finished second in points scored in 1990 and second in total offense in 1991. Equally effective as a run blocker, Munchak led the Oilers offensive charge in 1993 as the team finished fourth in the NFL in both average gain per rushing play (4.4) and average gain per offensive play (5.3). Although he suffered from chronic knee problems, Munchak played in 159 regular season games. His 12 seasons with the Oilers tied him for second longest in the franchise's history at the time of his retirement. He became the first player inducted into the Hall of Fame who played his entire career with the Oilers. Long-time teammate Bruce Matthews presented Munchak for induction.

Defensive end Elvin Bethea, an eight-time Pro Bowl selection during his outstanding career with the Houston Oilers, was named to the five-man class of the 2003 Pro Football Hall of Fame that included running back Marcus Allen, guard Joe DeLamielleure, wide receiver James Lofton, and coach Hank Stram. A third-round draft pick in 1968 (77th player overall) Bethea played in 210 games over 16 seasons, never missing a game until breaking his arm on Nov. 13, 1977. He was considered a "steal" in a draft class that produced three future Hall of Fame players in Larry Csonka, Art Shell, and Ron Yary. When he retired, he held three team records relating to career service: most seasons (16), most career regular season games played (210), and most consecutive regular season games played (135). Having led the team in sacks in six seasons, Bethea's unofficial 105-career sack total still ranks first in franchise history, including his team-best 17 sacks in 1973. He recorded four sacks and a fumble recovery in his best single game performance against San Diego in 1976. He played in eight playoff games and posted 691 career tackles. Bethea also played in eight Pro Bowls (1970, 1972-1976, 1979, 1980) and earned All-Pro second-team honors in 1973, 1975, 1978, and 1979. More than just a pass rusher, Bethea was also effective against the run. Eventhough 1974 was the first year such statistics were compiled by the Oilers, his 691 career tackles, are still among the best in franchise history, even excluding the first six years of his career. "When people ask me who the best guy I ever played against was I always tell them Elvin Bethea and Lyle Alzado because both of them were complete ballplayers," said Art Shell, Hall of Fame member of the Oakland Raiders. "Elvin was one of the quickest guys I've ever been around. We always had to double-team him. There were times when I was supposed to block him when he would get by me so quick. And then Gene Upshaw was supposed to pick him up and he also got by him so quick that we would get back to the huddle and Upshaw would say, 'Did you see that?' and I'd say, 'Yeah, I saw that. He just beat the heck out of me too!' Elvin was just a great player."

WARREN MOON

QUARTERBACK • 6'3" • 212 lbs • COLLEGE: WASHINGTON
NFL SEASONS: 17 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 10 (1984-93)
HOMETOWN: LOS ANGELES, CALIF. • BORN: NOVEMBER 18, 1956
GAMES PLAYED: 208 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2006

Warren Moon, the fourth leading passer in NFL history, was inducted into the 2006 class of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Moon played 10 years (1984-93) with the Oilers/Titans organization and holds the franchise records for passing yards (33,685) and touchdowns (196), while leading the Oilers to seven consecutive playoff appearances from 1987-93. During a 17-year NFL career, Moon played for the Houston Oilers, Minnesota Vikings, Seattle Seahawks and Kansas City Chiefs and amassed 49,325 passing yards, 291 touchdowns and 102 wins. He earned nine Pro Bowl invitations (tied for the most by a quarterback with John Elway and Dan Marino), posted nine 3,000 yard seasons, 49 300-yard games and led his team to nine playoff appearances. His eight consecutive playoff berths matched a feat accomplished by Terry Bradshaw and Joe Montana. At the time of his retirement, he held the single-season passing yardage record for three different franchises: Oilers (4,367 in 1991), Vikings (4,364 in 1994) and Seahawks (3,678 in 1997). Moon tallied many accomplishments during his Oiler career. His finest season came in 1990, throwing for 4,689 yards (363 for 584) and 33 touchdowns in only 15 games. He earned AP NFL Offensive Player of the Year for his efforts and his third of nine Pro Bowl invitations. Against Kansas City in 1990, Moon threw for 527 yards, which ranks as the second highest single-game total in NFL history (Norm Van Brocklin, 554 yards in 1951). In 1991, he surpassed the previous season's yardage total with 4,690 yards and became just the third player (Marino, Fouts) in NFL history to produce consecutive 4,000 yard passing seasons. Moon joined the Oilers and the NFL in 1984, after six seasons in the Canadian Football League, where he led his team to five Grey Cups (League Champions). In the CFL, Moon threw for 21,228 yards and 144 touchdowns. Moon was driven to play in the CFL after drawing little interest from the NFL as a starting quarterback following his senior season at the University of Washington. Moon became the first African-American quarterback to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame and his legacy as a minority quarterback cannot be underestimated. At the time of his arrival in the NFL only two black quarterbacks had been significant starters for their NFL teams (Shack Harris, Rams; Doug Williams, Tampa Bay).

BRUCE MATTHEWS

Arguably one of the best offensive linemen to ever play the game, Bruce Matthews became the first Tennessee Titan to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. At the time of his retirement, Matthews played in more NFL games (296) than any non-kicker in the league's history. Longevity and durability were his hallmarks, but that coupled with his unparalleled play, earning a league record 14 consecutive Pro Bowl (9 at guard and 6 at center) selections (tied with Merlin Olsen) and seven times named AP All-Pro, made him one of the all-time greats. He rose to the challenges presented to him in starting at every position on the offensive line during his NFL career (87 C, 99 LG, 67 RG, 22 RT, 17 LT). He becomes the first Hall of Fame offensive lineman to play significant time at all five offensive line positions. A constant for the Oilers/Titans franchise, Matthews started in a team record 229 consecutive games (streak started at Indianapolis, Nov. 29, 1987) and never missed a game because of injury. His 19 seasons also are a team record and he ranks second in NFL history for years with one team behind Jackie Slater, who spent 20 seasons with the Rams. Matthews and G Randall McDaniel (Vikings) were the only two NFL players to play in every game during the decade of the 90's. Matthews was a part of nearly one-half of the franchise's first 42-years of history and helped the team win 146 games, make the playoffs nine times, earn the only three AFC Central titles in team history, earn an AFC Championship and the franchise's only Super Bowl appearance. He blocked for 15 quarterbacks and 27 running backs, including five different 1,000-yard rushers (Earl Campbell, Mike Rozier, Lorenzo White, Gary Brown and Eddie George). During his career, he played in offenses that produced nine 1,000-yard rushing seasons and eight 3,000-yard passers. Additionally, he played in 42 different stadiums during his NFL career. During his career, Matthews blocked on a line that helped produce 65 100-yard rushing performances and 48 300-yard passing performances. Originally drafted by the Houston Oilers in the first round (ninth overall) of the 1983 NFL Draft, Matthews earned All-America honors at the University of Southern California. Matthews and his brother, Clay, each played 19 NFL seasons and the duo set an NFL record for games played by a pair of brothers with 574 games. Clay Matthews played in 278 games during his NFL career. Matthews had his number 74 jersey retired by the team and was inducted into the organization's Hall of Fame during a December, 2002 ceremony. Matthews joined a 2007 Hall of Fame class that included Dallas Cowboys WR Michael Irvin, Buffalo Bills RB Thurman Thomas, Detroit Lions TE Charlie Sanders, Cleveland Browns G Gene Hickerson, and St. Louis CB Roger Wehrli.

CURLY CULP

DEFENSIVE TACKLE • 6'2" • 265 lbs • COLLEGE: ARIZONA STATE
NFL SEASONS: 14 • YEARS WITH OILERS: 7 (1974-1980)

Curley Culp was voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2013. A six-time Pro Bowl selection, Culp played in 179 games during his NFL career with the Kansas City Chiefs (1968-1974), Houston Oilers (1974-1980) and Detroit Lions (1980-81). He was considered the prototypical nose tackle and helped pioneer the 3-4 defense. Hailing from Arizona State, where he was an All-American in both football and wrestling, Culp was selected in the second round of the 1968 NFL Draft by the Denver Broncos, who intended to use him as an offensive guard. However, his brief stint in Denver ended when he was traded to the Chiefs, who inserted him permanently on the defensive side. In 1969, the Chiefs won Super Bowl IV, and Culp was an instrumental member of one of the league's top defenses. He helped the Chiefs defeat the Oakland Raiders in the AFL Championship Game and the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl. In 1974, during his seventh campaign in Kansas City, Culp was traded to the Oilers along with a first-round draft pick (used to select Robert Brazile) in exchange for John Matuszak. The move paid almost immediate dividends for the Oilers, who previously suffered through 1-13 records in both 1972 and 1973. In 1975, Culp's first full season in Houston, he helped the Oilers to a record of 10-4, the first winning mark for the club in eight years. With Culp anchoring the defense, the Oilers finished with the AFC's top-ranked run defense (third in the NFL). Individually, Culp produced arguably the finest season of his career, recording 11.5 sacks and earning NFL Defensive Player honors by the Newspaper Enterprise Association. Culp continued as a leader of the Oilers defense that culminated in back-to-back appearances in the AFC championship games in 1978 and 1979. He was named to one AFL All-Star Game and five Pro Bowls during his career. Culp also was picked as a first-team All-Pro in 1975 and a second-team selection in 1971, 1977, 1978, and 1979. He was selected first- or second-team All-AFC five times. "Curley Culp was perhaps the strongest man I ever lined up against," said Raiders Hall of Fame center Jim Otto. Culp used his strong wrestling background to create havoc for opposing guards and centers. He was the 1968 NCAA heavyweight wrestling champion and was named to the U.S.

Olympic wrestling team that year. Culp joined a 2013 Hall of Fame class that included offensive linemen Larry Allen and Jonathan Ogden, wide receiver Cris Carter, coach Bill Parcells, linebacker Dave Robinson and defensive lineman Warren Sapp.

ROBERT BRAZILE

Robert Brazile was voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2018. As a rookie in 1975, he made an instant impact as he helped Houston notch the franchise's first winning season in eight years with a 10-4 record. He went on to win Defensive Rookie of the Year in 1975. With his speed, strength, tackling and coverage ability, Brazile helped revolutionize the outside linebacker position in a 3-4 defense. Nicknamed 'Dr. Doom,' Brazile started all 147 regular season games during his career and made seven postseason starts, including back-to-back AFC Championship Games (1978-79). He recorded nine tackles and one fumble recovery in the 1978 AFC Championship game. He was elected to seven career Pro Bowls and named All-Pro for five consecutive seasons (1976-80). Brazile registered a career-best 185 tackles in 1978 on his way to helping the Oilers secure three consecutive 10-win seasons and three consecutive playoff berths (1987-80). His career statistics include 13 interceptions, 14 fumble recoveries and 6.5 sacks in both 1976 and 1980. Brazile was named to the NFL's All-Decade Team of the 1970s.

KEVIN MAWAE

CENTER • 6'4" • 289 lbs • COLLEGE: LOUISIANA STATE
NFL SEASONS: 16 • YEARS WITH TITANS: 4 (2005-09)
HOMETOWN: LEEVILLE, LA. • BORN: JAN. 23, 1971
GAMES PLAYED: 241 • HALL OF FAME INDUCTION: 2019

Kevin Mawae was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame Class of 2019 and became the first established Titan without connections to the Houston Oilers to receive the honor. He played four seasons (2006-09) in Tennessee. Mawae entered the NFL as a second-round pick of the Seattle Seahawks in the 1994 NFL Draft. He began his career at right guard before being moved to center at the start of the 1996 season and remained at that position for the rest of his NFL career. After four seasons (1994-97) in the Northwest, the Louisiana State product signed a free agent deal with the New York Jets in 1998. In his first season in New York, Mawae helped running back Curtis Martin rush for a Jets franchise record eight 100-yard rushing games en route to 1,287-yard season. In 1999, he was named to his first of eight Pro Bowls and paved the way for Martin's then franchise-record 1,464 rushing yards. The 6-foot-4-inch, 289-pounder played in an astounding 177 consecutive games before a serious triceps injury ended his 2005 campaign after six games. Mawae signed a free agent deal with the Titans in 2006. In his first season with Tennessee, he made an immediate impact and was a part of an offense that ranked third in the AFC and fifth in the NFL in rushing with 2,214 yards. Three seasons later, he helped Chris Johnson amass a franchise-best 2,006 rushing yards, becoming just the sixth player all-time to accomplish the feat. In 241 career games over 16 seasons, Mawae was extremely durable and known for his toughness in the trenches. He was a first-team, all-decade center for the 2000s and blocked for a 1,000-yard rusher in 13 of his 16 seasons. Running backs Chris Warren (1,545 yards in 1994), Martin (1,697 in 2004), LenDale White (1,110 in 2007) and Johnson (2,006 in 2009) had the highest season rushing totals of their careers with Mawae on the line. He played 90 games in which there was a 100-yard rusher, the most by any offensive lineman in NFL history.

RETIRED JERSEY NUMBERS

In the history of the Oilers/Titans franchise, only eight players have had the distinction of having their jersey number retired — Jim Norton (No. 43), Elvin Bethea (No. 65), Earl Campbell (No. 34), Mike Munchak (No. 63), Bruce Matthews (No. 74), Warren Moon (No. 1), Eddie George (No. 27) and Steve McNair (No. 9).

Jim Norton played nine seasons for the Oilers (1960-68) as a safety and as a punter, establishing team records at both positions. As a rookie from the University of Idaho, Norton was a member of the Oilers' 1960 AFL Championship team. A four-time league all-star, he holds the club record for most interceptions in a career with 45. Also an accomplished punter, Norton was tops in club history with 519 career punts for a 42.3-yard career average and a long kick of 79 yards (11/22/64 vs. Kansas City).

Elvin Bethea joined the Oilers in 1968 after an outstanding career at North Carolina A&T. He started at defensive end in the 1968 season opener and didn't miss a game until breaking his arm in November 1977. That streak of 135 consecutive games played stands third in team history. An eight-time Pro Bowler (1970, 1972-76, 1978-80), Bethea ranks second for most seasons played (16, 1968-83), while his 210 games played (1968-83) also stands second behind Bruce Matthews. Bethea led the team in sacks six times, including a career-best mark of 17 in 1973. The Oilers honored him with an "Elvin Bethea Appreciation Night" on Aug. 4, 1983. He became the sixth player in franchise history to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame on Aug. 3, 2003.

Earl Campbell, the franchise's second leading rusher and a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, was honored by having his number retired at ceremonies on Aug. 13, 1987. He set a single-season club record with a league-leading 1,450 yards his rookie season. Campbell followed that performance with 1,697 yards in 1979 and an astounding 1,934 yards in 1980. Both those totals led the NFL and the latter was second only to O.J. Simpson's 2,003 yards in 1973. Campbell was selected to five Pro Bowls (1978-81, 1983) and retired as the NFL's seventh all-time leading rusher (9,407). He ranks second in franchise history in career rushing yards (8,574) and attempts (1,979), first in touchdown runs (73) and first in most consecutive games with a rushing touchdown (5).

Mike Munchak joined the Oilers as a first-round draft pick in 1982 out of Penn State. He was the first offensive lineman selected in the draft and the eighth overall selection. Munchak won the starting left guard position as a rookie and went on to play in 12 campaigns (1982-93) and 159 games (156 starts) for the Oilers. He is tied for third on the team's all-time list for seasons played and ranks fifth in games played. Munchak became a fixture on an offensive line that helped the Oilers to seven consecutive playoff appearances (1987-93). One of the premier guards in the National Football League, Munchak was selected to NFL's "Team of the Decade" for the 1980s and was chosen in 1989 to Oilers' 30th Anniversary "Dream Team." He ranks second in club annals with nine Pro Bowl selections, seven as a starter. Munchak announced his retirement on July 21, 1994, and on the same day, K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., announced that jersey No. 63 would be retired on "Mike Munchak Appreciation Day" on Nov. 6, 1994.

Bruce Matthews played in more games (296) than any non-kicker in NFL history. Longevity and durability were his hallmark. And that, coupled with his unparalleled play, in which he tied a league record with 14 Pro Bowl selections (tied with Merlin Olsen) and earned All-Pro honors six times, made him one of the all-time greats. He rose to the challenges presented to him in playing every position on the offensive line during his NFL career (87 at center, 99 at left guard, 67 at right guard, 22 at right tackle, and 17 at left tackle). His number was retired during a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Dec. 8, 2002.

Warren Moon, the fourth leading passer in NFL history at the time his number was retired, played 10 years (1984-93) with the organization and holds the franchise records for passing yards (33,685) and touchdowns (196), while leading the Oilers to seven consecutive playoff appearances from 1987-93. Moon's finest season came in 1990, throwing for 4,689 yards (363-for-584) and 33 touchdowns in only 15 games and becoming the third player in NFL history to produce consecutive 4,000-yard passing seasons. He earned AP NFL Offensive Player of the Year for his efforts and his third Pro Bowl berth. His jersey was retired in a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Oct. 1, 2006.

Eddie George became the organization's all-time leading rusher as well as its all-time scrimmage yards leader in eight seasons with the team. His 10,009 rushing yards from 1996–2003 ranked second in the NFL (Curtis Martin), while his 12,153 scrimmage yards in the same time frame were third (Marshall Faulk, Martin). His accolades included four Pro Bowl selections (1997–2000), AP All-Pro honors (2000) and the AP Rookie of the Year Award (1996). George also set franchise standards for career rushing attempts (2,733), career touchdowns (74), 1,000-yard rushing seasons (seven), seasons as the team's leading rusher (eight) and career playoff rushing yards (776). During his time with the Titans he amassed 36 100-yard rushing performances (second to Earl Campbell's 39), resulting in a 30-6 record in those contests. He established an NFL mark with 130 consecutive starts by a running back to begin a career—a total which ranked second in NFL history for consecutive starts by a running back at any point. His jersey was retired in a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Sept. 15, 2019.

Steve McNair played 11 seasons with the organization (1995–2005), becoming its second all-time leading passer (27,141 yards) and recording the most wins as a starting quarterback (76). At the time his jersey was retired, he trailed only Warren Moon on the franchise's all-time passing yards list and also ranked second for the organization in completions (2,305), completion percentage (59.5) and passer rating (83.3). He ranked third in touchdown passes (156). His 3,439 rushing yards and 36 touchdown runs were the most in team history by a quarterback. McNair earned three of his four career Pro Bowl berths with the Titans (2000, 2003 and 2005), and in 2003, he shared Associated Press NFL Most Valuable Player honors with Peyton Manning after leading the league with a 100.4 rating. He became the first African-American quarterback to win MVP honors. McNair was the third player in the history of the NFL to pass for 30,000 yards and rushed for 3,500 yards, along with Fran Tarkenton and Steve Young. Only Brett Favre and Manning started more combined NFL regular season and postseason games than McNair (134) from the time he became a full-time starter in 1997 through 2005. He was selected with the third overall draft pick in 1995. His jersey was retired in a halftime ceremony in Nashville on Sept. 15, 2019.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

THE "FOOLISH CLUB"

In 1959, after numerous failed attempts to enter the NFL as owners through expansion or purchase (Chicago Cardinals), Lamar Hunt and K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. agree that forming a new league is a viable option to NFL ownership. They would recruit a number of other future owners, who like themselves were looking to enter the world of football ownership, but had been rebuffed. The eight original teams, which would later be dubbed the "Foolish Club" for taking on the NFL were: Dallas (Hunt), Houston (Adams), Denver (Bob Howsam), New York (Harry Wismer), Los Angeles (Barron Hilton), Buffalo (Ralph Wilson), Boston (William Sullivan) and Oakland (Wayne Valley). Minneapolis was set to become one of the original AFL teams, but they were replaced by Oakland when the NFL awarded an expansion franchise to the Minneapolis market in 1960.

All eight teams agreed to contribute $25,000 to create a league office, which was headed by the first AFL commissioner, Joe Foss. The AFL held their first draft on Nov. 22, 1959 and began play in the fall of 1960 with games televised on ABC.

1959

August 3 – K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., announces Houston's entry into the American Football League.

August 15 – AFL formally organized with six cities: Los Angeles, New York, Denver, Dallas, Houston and Minneapolis-St Paul.

October 31 – Adams names the team "Oilers" — "for sentimental and social reasons."

November 22 – AFL conducts first player draft. Oilers select Heisman Trophy winner Billy Cannon of LSU.

September 16 – Oilers lose to Boston 34-21 in first pro game in historic Harvard Stadium.

October 14 – Oilers set AFL scoring record with 56-17 win over New York

EARLY DOMINANCE & AFL SUPREMACY

With a mix of cast-off players from other professional leagues (QB George Blanda, C Bob Schmidt, T Al Jamison), pro football rookies (RB Billy Cannon, G Bob Talamini) and local college players who never entered the NFL (WR Charles Hennigan, DT Orville Trask), the Oilers quickly became the dominant team in the newly formed American Football League. In each of the league's first three years, the Oilers advanced to the AFL title game, winning the first two league championships (1960 and 1961). Amazingly, the Oilers reached each of those title games under three different coaches: Lou Rymkus (1960), Wally Lemm (1961) and Frank "Pop" Ivy (1962).

The fiery Rymkus led the inaugural Oilers to the Eastern Division title with a 10-4 mark. They met the Western Division winner Los Angeles Chargers at Jeppesen Stadium in Houston to crown the first AFL champion. The two teams split their two matchups during the regular season. The Oilers took a one-point lead into the fourth quarter and then Blanda hit Cannon for an 88-yard score early in the fourth quarter to end the scoring, 24-16. Blanda tallied 301 passing yards and three touchdowns in the game.

After the Oilers opened the 1961 season 1-3-1, head coach Lou Rymkus was replaced by Wally Lemm, who had been on the 1960 staff but left for private business prior to the 1961 season. The Oilers would win nine consecutive games under Lemm to end the regular season with a 10-3-1 mark and first place in the Eastern Division. The 1961 AFL Championship game was a defensive struggle as the Oilers defeated the San Diego Chargers 10-3 in San Diego.

After leading the Oilers to a second title, the St. Louis Cardinals hired Wally Lemm as their head coach for the 1962 season. The Oilers tabbed Frank "Pop" Ivy to lead the team in 1962. The team again won the Eastern Division with an 11-3 record and faced the Dallas Texans at Jeppesen Stadium for the 1962 AFL title. Dallas raced out to a 17-0 halftime lead, but the Oilers mounted a second half rally to knot the score at 17 with five minutes remaining in the game. The game would go to overtime and was eventually decided in double overtime (6th quarter) with a Dallas 25-yard field goal.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

OILERS' AFL SUMMARY

In the 10-year history of the AFL from 1960-69, the Oilers amassed a 70-66-5 record, reached the AFL title game four times (1960, '61, '62, '67) and won two AFL titles (1960 and 1961). They had some of the greats of the game, including QB George Blanda, WR Charlie Hennigan, G Bob Talamini, CB Ken Houston and DE Elvin Bethea. Four decades removed from their playing days, these names still sit atop several categories throughout the franchise record book: Blanda threw a franchise-best 36 touchdowns in 1961, Hennigan caught a franchise-best 101 balls in 1964, Houston returned nine interceptions for touchdowns during his Oilers career, and Bethea (unofficially) totaled 105 sacks during his career. The Oilers also saw profound popularity growth as they averaged 20,000 fans in their inaugural 1960 season at Jeppesen Stadium all the way to moving into the Astrodome in 1968, and averaging 44,000 fans in their final AFL campaign.

BUM PHILLIPS

If ever there was a coach made for a team and a team that embodied their coach, it was the marriage between O.A. “Bum” Phillips and the Houston Oilers. A native of Orange, Texas, Phillips spent the majority of his first 15 years in coaching in the Texas high school ranks before moving up the ladder as a defensive coordinator in the college and pro level. He would join the Oilers as a defensive coordinator in 1974 and was named head coach in 1975, where he would remain through the 1980 season. Known for strolling the sidelines in his cowboy hat and boots, he was the face of the Oilers for six seasons (59-38 record) and saw the birth of the “Luv Ya Blue” era. In 1978, he led the Oilers back to the playoffs for the first time in 11 years with their march to the AFC Championship. The Oilers would again reach the AFC Championship game in 1979 and wild card round in 1980. Phillips was let go by the Oilers following the 1980 season.

LUV YA BLUE!

With Oiler fever in full bloom following the march to the AFC Championship game in the 1978 season, the team looked to tap into the frenzy with a marketing campaign that captured that team spirit. The result was the “Luv Ya Blue!” phrase that would sweep the area and be forever remembered with the 1979 and 1980 seasons. The phrase was trademarked by the team and became as popular as regular Oilers merchandise. The campaign included a song which was written and sung by Mack Hayes, a local musician and was performed before each game at the Astrodome during those seasons.

1975

January 25 – O.A. “Bum” Phillips named Oiler head coach by Sid Gillman, who says he will remain in single role as general manager.

February 14 – Sid Gillman leaves Oilers as general manager by mutual consent with owner “Bud” Adams. Bum Phillips adds title of general manager to head coaching duties.

November 26 – Earl Campbell gains 100 yards rushing vs. Cincinnati before home crowd to tie NFL record for most 100-yard games by a rookie – 7 (ties Franco Harris and Don Woods). Also breaks Oiler single season records for most yards rushing (Hoyle Granger, 1,194 yards in 1967) and most rushing attempts (Charlie Tolar, 224 yards in 1962).

December 10 – Houston captures 17-12 decision over New Orleans Saints

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

EARL CAMPBELL

Tabbed the "Tyler Rose", Earl Campbell was a Texas high school legend who would go on to the University of Texas and earn the 1977 Heisman Trophy. The Oilers pulled off a draft blockbuster to acquire Campbell, trading four picks and TE Jimmie Giles to acquire the first pick in the 1978 draft from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Campbell made an immediate impact as a rookie, gaining 1,450 yards and scoring 13 touchdowns in his initial campaign and earning NFL Rookie of the Year and NFL Offensive Player of the Year honors. In one of the most famous performances in Monday Night Football history, Campbell gained 199 yards and scored four touchdowns on 28 carries against the Miami Dolphins in November of 1978. From 1978 to 1984 Campbell led the Oilers to three playoff appearances, gained 8,547 yards and earned five Pro Bowl invitations. During the 1984 season, Campbell was traded to New Orleans to be reunited with Bum Phillips for a first round draft choice. He was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1991.

October 19 – Earl Campbell becomes only the second RB in the history of the Oiler franchise to rush for over 200 yards in a single game when he leads the Oilers to a 21-14 triumph over Tampa Bay with 206 yards. Club rushing record for single game is 216 yards by Billy Cannon (Dec. 10, 1961 vs. New York Titans).

October 26 – Earl Campbell ties NFL record for most consecutive 200-yard games rushing (two) with 202 yards vs. Cincinnati in the Astrodome. Campbell now shares record with O.J. Simpson (Buffalo, 1973, 1976). Oilers defeat Bengals 23-3.

December 4 – Houston's defense shuts out the Pittsburgh Steelers 6-0. Toni Fritsch provides all the points the Oilers need with two field goals. This marked the third evening prime-time win of the season for the Oilers as the game was played in the Astrodome before a sellout crowd and a national television audience. It marked the first shutout registered by the Oilers since a 47-0 win over the Chicago Bears. (November 6, 1977).

December 21 – Oilers clinch third playoff spot in as many years with 20-16 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in the Astrodome. Earl Campbell sets NFL record by rushing for over 200 yards in single game four times in one season. He finishes season with 1,934 yards, second highest total in NFL history behind O.J. Simpson's 2,003 yards in 1973. The Oilers must wait until the final game of the season to see who their playoff opponent will be, as their 11-5 record equals that of division foe Cleveland, but Oilers become Wild Card participant due to tie-breaker procedures.

December 28 – Oilers season comes to an end with disappointing AFC Wild Card loss at the hands of the eventual Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders. The loss marks the third consecutive year that the Oilers have been eliminated from the playoff picture by the eventual Super Bowl champions (Pittsburgh Steelers in both 1978 and 1979).

defeat the Bengals 21-17 before an SRO crowd at the Astrodome. Rookie FB Alonzo Highsmith scores two TDs and QB Warren Moon throws his 21st scoring pass of the season. That marks the most TD passes by an Oiler since George Blanda tossed 24 in 1963.

1988

January 3 – In an AFC Wild Card Playoff, the Oilers defeat the Seahawks 23-20 in overtime on Tony Zendejas' 42-yard field goal.

January 10 – The Oilers' season ends as the Broncos defeat them 34-10 in an AFC Divisional Playoff before 75,968 fans in Mile High Stadium.

April 21 – The Oilers acquire DE Sean Jones from Raiders along with L.A.'s second-round draft choice. Houston gives up one of its first-round draft picks, a fourth-round selection and changes places with Raiders in the third round.

May 6 – The Oilers announce that they will hold training camp at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. SWTSU thus becomes the Oilers' eighth training camp site since the team's inception in 1960.

May 17 – Oilers re-assign Mike Holovak as Assistant to the General Manager.

November 7 – The Oilers appear on Monday Night Football for the first time since 1982 and defeat the Cleveland Browns 24-17.

December 14 – The rosters for the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl are released and feature eight Oilers: DE Ray Childress, WR Drew Hill, G Bruce Matthews, QB Warren Moon, G Mike Munchak and RB Mike Rozier.

December 24 – The Oilers beat the Cleveland Browns 24-23 in an AFC Wild Card Playoff Game as RB Allen Pinkett scores two touchdowns.

1989

January 1 – In an AFC Divisional Playoff Game, the Oilers drop a 17-10 decision to the Bills before 79,532 fans at Rich Stadium in Buffalo.

February 1 – Executive Vice-President/General Manager Ladd K. Herzeg announces his resignation.

February 2 – The Oilers announce the promotion of Mike Holovak to General Manager, replacing Ladd Herzeg. Also, under NFL's new "Plan B" free agency, 21 Oilers are left unprotected while 37 are protected.

February 22 – The Oilers name Kevin Gilbride to the post of Quarterbacks Coach. He joins the club after serving as Offensive Coordinator at East Carolina.

April 1 – The Oilers end up losing 15 players and signing seven under the NFL's first "Plan B" free agency system.

April 7 – The Oilers sign QB Warren Moon to a new long-term contract.

September 24 – Despite a sellout crowd in the first game in the newly-expanded Astrodome, the Oilers lose to the Buffalo Bills, 47-41 in OT.

October 1 – The Oilers defeat the Miami Dolphins 39-7 as QB Warren Moon completes a career-best 82.6% of his passes (19/23). In addition, Houston's defense holds Dolphin QB Dan Marino to his worst game as a starter (11/29, 103 yds.).

October 22 – The Oilers record the ninth shutout in club history and their first in nine years (spanning 132 games) with a 27-0 whitewash of the Pittsburgh Steelers. Pittsburgh manages just 132 total yards, the fewest yards allowed by Houston in 12 seasons.

December 3 – The Oilers win at Pittsburgh 23-16 despite a blizzard and windchill temperatures of -20 degrees. RB Lorenzo White's one-yard run with 21 seconds remaining wins it as the Oilers claim sole possession of first place after the season's 13th game, the latest the team has been in first place in a season since 1967.

December 10 – The Oilers honor their 30th Anniversary "Dream Team" while defeating the T.B. Buccaneers 20-17.

December 20 – G Bruce Matthews, QB Warren Moon and G Mike Munchak are named starters for the February 4 Pro Bowl.

December 23 – In a regular season finale battle for the AFC Central Division title, the Oilers lose to the Cleveland Browns 24-20 on RB Kevin Mack's TD with 39 seconds left. The Oilers fall short after battling back from a 17-0 deficit as QB Warren Moon establishes personal bests for attempts (51), completions (32) and yards (414, most since George Blanda's 418 in 1961). Oilers set all-time single season attendance record with 451,027 fans, eclipsing 411,652 in 1978.

December 31 – In an AFC Wild Card playoff game, the Oilers lose a 26-23 OT decision to the Pittsburgh Steelers as PK Gary Anderson kicks a 50-yard field goal. Houston WR Ernest Givins catches 11 passes for 136 yards and two TDs.

MOON ERA

In February of 1984, the Oilers won a recruiting battle for a five-time Canadian Football League champion quarterback named Warren Moon and by doing so, changed the future of the franchise. Houston had a leg up on the competition with the hiring of Hugh Campbell, who coached Moon for five seasons in Canada, just a month earlier. Moon would play 10 seasons for the Oilers and lead them to the playoffs in each of his final seven seasons (1987-93) with the team and earn six Pro Bowl invitations. Moon established many of the franchise's passing records, including career passing yards (33,685), career touchdowns (196), single season passing yards (4,690 in 1991), passing yards in a game (527 at KC in 1990) and career 300-yard passing games (38). His quick release, decision-making and mobility made him a perfect fit for the Oilers high-octane passing offense. Moon's reign at quarterback for the Oilers came to end with the advent of the salary cap prior to the 1994 season. Most of the Oilers' high-priced talent was released or traded away to comply with the new NFL structure, including Moon, who was traded to Minnesota in April 1994. In 2006, Moon became the first African-American quarterback to be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

1990

January 6 – Jerry Glanville leaves his position as Oilers' head coach by "mutual agreement."

January 9 – Jack Pardee signs a five-year contract to become the 14th head coach in Houston Oiler history. Pardee joins the Oilers after enjoying a successful three seasons as the head coach at the University of Houston.

January 30 – The Oilers extend the contract of Executive Vice President/General Manager Mike Holovak. In addition, the team names former LBs Coach Floyd Reese to the newly-created position of Assistant General Manager and promotes Quarterbacks Coach Kevin Gilbride to Offensive Coordinator. Also, the team announces the signing of a multi-year contract that allows KTRH-AM/KLOL-FM to broadcast all Oiler football games beginning in 1990.

September 23 – The Oilers win their 1990 home opener 24-10 over the Indianapolis Colts as QB Warren Moon becomes the all-time leading passer in club history. Moon throws for 308 yards (plus three TDs) to surpass George Blanda's team record of 19,149 yards. The record fell on a third quarter seven-yard pass to WR Haywood Jeffires. WR Drew Hill catches ten passes for 123 yards to help key the victory.

October 14 – QB Warren Moon passes for 369 yards and a career-best five TDs as the Oilers hammer the Cincinnati Bengals 48-17. Moon thus becomes the first player in pro football history to throw for over 20,000 yards in two different leagues (21,228 in Canadian Football League).

December 9 – The Oilers shatter several team records while drubbing Cleveland 58-14. Included among the records set are most points in a game, in a quarter (31) and in a half (45). RB Lorenzo White ties a club mark with four rushing touchdowns, the first time that has been accomplished in the NFL in two years.

December 16 – The Oilers win a key road game, beating Kansas City 27-10 at Arrowhead Stadium. QB Warren Moon again supplies the big news, completing 27-of-45 passes for 527 yards. That represents the second-best single-game passing performance in NFL history. The record belongs to the Rams' Norm Van Brocklin, who threw for 554 yards against the New York Yanks on September 28, 1951. Moon had an opportunity to break the record but declined to do so based on the Oilers' comfortable lead. Almost overshadowed by Moon's effort was WR Haywood Jeffires catching nine balls for 245 yards (including an 87-yard TD), which marked the second best receiving day in Oiler history. Charles Hennigan had 272 receiving yards versus the Patriots on October 13, 1961.

December 19 – Six Oilers are named to the AFC squad for the Feb. 3 Pro Bowl. The six include starters G Bruce Matthews, QB Warren Moon and G Mike Munchak, plus reserves DT Ray Childress, WR Ernest Givins and WR Drew Hill.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

RUN 'N SHOOT

Born in the 1970's under the offensive master "Mouse" Davis, the "Run 'N Shoot" offense and its concepts started to enter the NFL in the late 1980's. The Houston Oilers were one of the first teams to run the pass oriented offense that featured one running back and four wide receivers. The Oilers hired June Jones, a Mouse Davis disciple, in 1987 as quarterback coach and he integrated some of the "Run 'N Shoot" concepts into offense. Jones left following the 1988 season to join Wayne Fontes in Detroit. Kevin Gilbride, who also had worked with Davis, took over in 1989 and continued to mold the offense. With Jack Pardee's arrival as head coach in 1990, the Oilers offense became a full-time "Run 'N Shoot" offense, where in previous years it was only used in passing situations. During a three-year stretch (1990-92), the Oilers ranked first in the NFL in passing yards (avg. 4,485 passing yards per season) and second in total yards (avg. 5,954 yards per season). They set a then-franchise record for points scored in 1990 with 405. Warren Moon drove the offense and under his leadership the offense took flight and his receiving corps of Drew Hill, Haywood Jeffires, Ernest Givens and Curtis Duncan totaled unbelievable numbers as they tortured NFL defenses. Head coach Jack Pardee was relieved of his duties 10 games into the 1994 season and with that came the death of the "Run 'N Shoot" offense. New head coach Jeff Fisher moved the offense back to a conventional approach in 1995.

December 30 – Led by backup QB Cody Carlson, who played for the injured Warren Moon (dislocated thumb), the Oilers earn a Wild Card playoff berth by defeating the Pittsburgh Steelers 34-14 in the Astrodome. Carlson completes 22 of 29 passes for 247 yards and three TDs. With the victory, the Oilers end up in a three-way tie for first place with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh in the AFC Central.

1991

January 6 – The Oilers' 1990 season comes to a close as they are eliminated from the playoffs by the Cincinnati Bengals. Houston loses at Riverfront Stadium 41-14 in an AFC Wild Card game.

January 26 – It is announced that Earl Campbell has been voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The announcement is made in Tampa, Florida. Campbell is to be enshrined on July 27.

May 17 – The Oilers and the City of San Antonio formally sign six-year contract which will allow the Oilers to hold training camp there. Trinity University is chosen as the host school.

September 16 – In a pre-game ceremony, Earl Campbell receives his Hall of Fame ring from Hall Executive Director Pete Elliott. In the game that follows, the Oilers defeat Kansas City 17-7 to signal the first 3-0 start in franchise history.

October 13 – In a 23-20 victory over the Jets at Giants Stadium, WR Haywood Jeffires ties Charlie Hennigan's 30-year-old team record for receptions in a game with 13 (186 yards). QB Warren Moon completes 35-of-50 passes for 423 yards, which is the fifth-best total in team annals. Also, WR Drew Hill surpasses Hennigan's 410 catches to become the all-time leading receiver in Oiler history.

November 3 – Despite a 16-13 OT loss at Washington, WR Drew Hill moves past WR Ken Burrough's 6,907 receiving yards to become the Oilers' all-time leader in that category.

November 10 – QB Warren Moon establishes career highs for completions (41) and attempts (56) as he throws for 432 yards, which is fourth best in team history, in Oilers' 26-23 OT victory over Dallas. Moon also passes Fran Tarkenton's 47,003 yards and moves into second place behind Ron Lancaster on all-time professional passing yards chart.

December 8 – The Oilers defeat the Steelers 31-6 in the Astrodome as Houston captures its first-ever undisputed AFC Central Division championship. QB Warren Moon throws for 254 yards and becomes just the third QB in NFL history (Miami's Dan Marino, San Diego's Dan Fouts) to have back-to-back 4,000-yard seasons.

December 15 – QB Warren Moon surpasses Dan Marino's NFL record

(378 in 1986) for completions in a season as the Oilers beat the Browns 17-14.

December 18 – Eight Oilers (tied NFL-best), including a league-high six starters are named to the AFC team for the February 2 Pro Bowl. The six starters include CB Cris Dishman, DE William Fuller, WR Haywood Jeffires, C Bruce Matthews, G Mike Munchak and LB Al Smith. DT Ray Childress and QB Warren Moon are also named to the squad although Childress was eventually unable to play because of a back/rib injury.

December 21 – WR Haywood Jeffires becomes just the fifth player in NFL history to record 100 receptions in a single season despite the Oilers' 24-20 road loss to the Giants. Coupled with Drew Hill's 90 catches, that pair's 190 represents the most receptions by two teammates in one season in league annals. In addition, QB Warren Moon eclipses Dan Marino's NFL record (623 in 1986) for attempts in a season. DE William Fuller registers his 15th sack of the season and thus becomes the first Oiler ever to lead the conference in that category.

December 29 – The Oilers defeat the New York Jets 17-10 in an AFC Wild Card playoff game before 61,485 fans in the Astrodome. S Bubba McDowell intercepts two key passes inside the Oiler five-yard line to preserve the win.

1992

January 4 – After leading for most of the game, the Oilers end up losing a 26-24 decision to the Denver Broncos in an AFC Divisional Playoff game in front of 75,301 fans at Mile High Stadium. PK David Treadwell's 28-yard field goal with 16 seconds left in the game proves to be the deciding points. The loss mars a great performance by Oiler QB Warren Moon, who completes 75% of his passes (27 of 36) for 325 yards and three touchdowns.

March 6 – The Oilers name Steve Underwood as General Counsel. Underwood joins the Oilers from the Houston firm of Caldwell and Hurst where he has handled most of the team's legal work since 1977.

August 1 – The Oilers defeat the Dallas Cowboys 34-23 in the American Bowl in Tokyo, Japan, which marks Houston's first game outside of the United States.

August 31 – The Oilers and QB Warren Moon reach agreement on a new multi-year contract that includes a settlement of a controversial escalator clause.

September 29 – The Oilers sign free agent WR Webster Slaughter to a two-year contract. Slaughter had been one of four players who were declared free agents by a Minneapolis judge on September 24.

October 11 – In a 38-24 win at Cincinnati, QB Warren Moon ties a personal best with five TD passes to eclipse George Blanda's team record for career touchdown passes (165, Moon now has 169). Also, WR Haywood Jeffires catches three TD passes to tie the franchise record, and RB Lorenzo White rushes for a career-best 149 yards.

October 18 – QB Warren Moon becomes the leading passer in professional football history by surpassing Ron Lancaster's 50,535 yards (in 19 years). After the Oilers' heartbreaking 27-21 loss at Denver, Moon now has 50,589 yards. Moon's total, accumulated in less than 15 seasons, includes 21,228 yards in the CFL and 29,361 yards in the NFL.

November 15 – In Houston's 17-13 win at Minnesota, QB Warren Moon suffers a fractured upper left arm on a fourth quarter hit by Viking S Vencie Glenn and misses the next five games. Despite the injury, Moon becomes just the 14th NFL QB to surpass 30,000 passing yards as he accomplishes that faster (125 games) than any player in league history except for Miami's Dan Marino (114 games).

November 26 – Subbing for the injured Warren Moon, QB Cody Carlson throws for a career-high 338 yards as the Oilers defeat the Lions 24-21 on Thanksgiving Day in Detroit.

December 11 – After being diagnosed with kidney cancer, Offensive Coordinator Kevin Gilbride undergoes surgery for the removal of his cancerous kidney. He misses two games as Receivers Coach Chris Palmer and injured QB Warren Moon help to handle Gilbride's game day responsibilities.

December 23 – An NFL-best nine Oilers earn Pro Bowl honors with four players designated as starters for the February 7 game. The starters include WR Haywood Jeffires, C Bruce Matthews, G Mike Munchak and LB Al Smith. The Houston reserves feature DT Ray Childress, WR Curtis Duncan, WR Ernest Givins, QB Warren Moon and RB Lorenzo White. The inclusion of Jeffires, Givins and Duncan represents the first time ever that three receivers from the same team have been designated as Pro Bowlers.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

December 20 – Shortly after their exciting, come-from-behind 17-14 win at Cleveland, the Oilers learn that they have clinched a playoff berth for the sixth straight season. That represents the longest current post-season streak in the NFL.

December 27 – As Houston routs Buffalo 27-3 in the regular season finale, WR Haywood Jeffires catches six passes to finish with 90 receptions. He thus leads the AFC in that category for the third straight season, becoming only the second player since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to accomplish that feat.

1993

January 3 – The Oilers lose a 41-38 OT decision at Buffalo in an AFC Wild Card playoff game. QB Warren Moon completes 36 of 50 passes for 371 yards and four first-half touchdowns.

January 29 – The Oilers name Buddy Ryan as the team's defensive coordinator.

July 2 – NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue rules in a dispute between the Oilers and Washington. Tagliabue completes a trade which sends Washington LB Wilber Marshall to Houston in exchange for the Oilers' third-round draft choice in 1994 and their fifth-round selection in 1995.

November 21 – RB Gary Brown explodes for 194 rushing yards to lead Houston to its fifth consecutive win, a 27-20 victory at Cleveland. Brown's rushing total is the highest by any AFC back in three years and the most by an Oiler in 13 years. His back-to-back running sum of 360 yards is also the team's best in 13 seasons. Brown becomes the first NFL back in ten years to gain over 100 yards in his first two career starts.

November 28 – In the Oilers' 23-3 Astrodome victory over the Steelers, WR Ernest Givins passes Drew Hill's 480 catches to become Houston's all-time leading receiver.

December 5 – As Houston captures its seventh straight win with a 33-17 home decision over Atlanta, the Oilers' defense forces seven turnovers (including a team record-tying six interceptions) for its highest such total in 16 years.

December 14 – Oilers DT Jeff Alm commits suicide following the death of his best friend in a traffic accident. The Oilers hold a memorial service for their teammate the following day.

December 19 – The Oilers clinch their second outright AFC Central Division championship with a 26-17 win over the Steelers at Three Rivers Stadium. Houston thus cements a playoff berth for the seventh consecutive season, the longest current streak in the NFL. The Oilers also become just the second team since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to go undefeated within the AFC's Central Division (also 1975 Steelers). Against Pittsburgh, PK Al Del Greco surpasses the team record of 115 points in a single season.

December 28 – G Mike Munchak establishes an Oiler record by being named to the Pro Bowl for the ninth time (Elvin Bethea had eight appearances).

January 2 – The Oilers close the regular season with their club record 11th consecutive win, a 24-0 shutout of the Jets in the Astrodome. The winning streak is the longest in the NFL in nine years as the Oilers become just the fifth team in league history to close a season with 11 straight victories. The Oilers also set a franchise record with 12 wins for the season and go undefeated in both November and December for just the third time ever. Amazingly, RB Gary Brown finished with 1,002 yards in just eight starts.

January 27 – The Oilers promote Assistant General Manager Floyd Reese to the position of Executive Vice-President/General Manager. Reese succeeds Mike Holovak, who assumes the title of Vice-President/Player Personnel and Scouting.

February 9 – Houston names Jeff Fisher as its new Defensive Coordinator, replacing Buddy Ryan, who left the Oilers to become General Manager/Head Coach of the Arizona Cardinals.

April 13 – The Minnesota Vikings announce that they have reached an agreement to acquire QB Warren Moon from the Oilers in exchange for draft choices.

August 15 – The Oilers defeat the Dallas Cowboys 6-0 before 112,376 fans at Azteca Stadium in Mexico City. The in-house attendance is the largest ever for an NFL game.

September 4 – WR Ernest Givins becomes Oilers' all-time receiving yardage leader, surpassing Drew Hill's mark of 7,477. Givins would end the season with 7,935 yards on 542 career receptions.

November 6 – G Mike Munchak, who announced his retirement on July 21, 1994 to join the Oilers under the title of Assistant to Football Operations, is honored by Oiler Owner/President K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr., by having his No. 63 jersey retired at halftime ceremonies of Oilers-Steelers game.

November 14 – After a 1-9 start, Head Coach Jack Pardee and Assistant Head Coach/Offense Kevin Gilbride are relieved of their duties. Jeff Fisher is elevated to title of Head Coach/Defensive Coordinator.

December 24 – Houston closes out season with 24-10 victory over the N.Y. Jets for Fisher's first win as a head coach.

1995

January 5 – Oilers announce that Jeff Fisher will remain as head coach, officially becoming the 15th head coach in franchise history.

January 17 – As his first hire, Fisher brings in Jerry Rhome under the title of Offensive Coordinator.

March 3 – The Oilers jump into the free-agent pool and sign the NFL's all-time leading kickoff returner, Mel Gray. Gray joins the Oilers after successful stints with the Detroit Lions and New Orleans Saints.

March 7 – The team announces five-year contract with KHTV/Channel 39 to broadcast Oilers' preseason games. The pact reunites the team and KHTV, which carried Oilers' preseason action in '89.

March 23 – Houston lures in one of the most coveted unrestricted free agents by signing C Mark Stepnoski from the Dallas Cowboys.

March 28 – The Oilers sign veteran QB Chris Chandler from the Rams.

April 22 – With the third overall choice in the draft, Houston selects Alcorn State QB Steve McNair.

July 25 – QB Steve McNair signs contract at press conference held at Oilers' training camp.

August 11 – Tennessee newspaper reports that Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen is meeting with Oiler officials. Nashville is willing to build new stadium if it will attract a professional team. K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and Bredesen execute an agreement that gives the City of Nashville a 70-day exclusive negotiating period with the Houston Oilers to build a stadium and relocate the team.

August 19 – Oilers-Chargers preseason game is canceled by NFL after field is deemed unplayable for safety reasons.

September 3 – The Oilers travel to Jacksonville and defeat the Jaguars 10-3 in the expansion team's inaugural game.

September 24 – QB Chris Chandler connects on 23 of 26 passes for 352 yards and four touchdowns, leading Oilers to a 38-28 win over the Bengals at Riverfront Stadium. Chandler's 88.46 completion percentage misses the NFL record by one completion. Chandler, who hooked up with rookie WR Chris Sanders on touchdown passes of 58 and 46 yards, is named AFC Offensive Player of the Week.

November 2 – Oilers' long-time equipment assistant Bill "Mojo" Lackey passes away after a massive stroke.

November 5 – Oilers win 37-10 over Browns and dedicate game to "Mojo" and his family. The win marks the Oilers' largest margin of victory at Cleveland since a 40-10 decision on Oct. 12, 1975.

November 12 – K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and the Oilers announce the establishment of the Bill "Mojo" Lackey Memorial Award, which would be given to the player, coach or front office staff member that best exemplifies the qualities of the former equipment assistant. A $10,000 check is given to the winner to be awarded to charity in his or her name.

November 16 – K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen sign a relocation agreement to move the Oilers to Tennessee.

December 14 – G Bruce Matthews, S Blaine Bishop, CB Darryll Lewis and C Mark Stepnoski are selected to the Pro Bowl. Matthews sets the Oiler mark for consecutive selections with his eighth consecutive Pro Bowl honor.

December 17 – Paul "Hoss" Noska, equipment assistant, is honored with the first Bill "Mojo" Lackey Memorial Award.

1996

March 26 – Oilers sign veteran WR Willie Davis from the Kansas City Chiefs.

April 20 – After trading down in the first round (from 9th to 17th) to acquire extra picks from Oakland, General Manager Floyd Reese and Head Coach Jeff Fisher execute a trade with the Seattle Seahawks to move back up

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

McNAIR AND GEORGE

First round draft picks in consecutive years, QB Steve McNair (drafted in 1995) and RB Eddie George (drafted in 1996) became the centerpieces of a team that advanced to the playoffs in four of five years (1999, 2000, 2002, 2003). From 1997, McNair's first season as a starter, until Eddie George's final season as a Titan in 2003, the two combined to pull the franchise to new heights, including the team's first Super Bowl appearance (XXXIV).

The duo started in the same backfield 107 times during their seven seasons together and posted a 67-40 record (.626 winning percentage) in those games, and 5-4 in postseason. The 2003 season would be memorable for both as McNair was named Co-MVP of the NFL, becoming only the franchise's second player to garner the honor (Campbell in 1979) and George became the franchise's all-time leading rusher, passing Earl Campbell and becoming only the 17th running back to reach 10,000 career rushing yards.

Each player personified toughness with legendary stories told of McNair returning from injuries to lead his team to victory and George never missing a start in his eight year franchise career - 128 games - which represented the most consecutive starts in NFL history for a running back to start a career.

On June 12, 2019, Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk announced that McNair's No. 9 jersey and George's No. 27 jersey would be retired by the club.

to the 14th spot in the 1996 draft to select Heisman Trophy winner Eddie George from Ohio State. Sent to the Seahawks in the trade was DT Glenn Montgomery.

April 30 – The National Football League approves the team's relocation to Nashville in a special owners' meeting held in Atlanta, Ga.

May 3 – Adding more weapons to the offense, the Oilers agree to terms with RB Ronnie Harmon from the San Diego Chargers.

May 7 – Voters of Davidson County in Nashville, Tenn., overwhelmingly approve a referendum held to decide on the use of public funding for a new downtown stadium.

October 20 – With a 22-yard field goal, K Al Del Greco sets the club record for most career field goals, surpassing K Tony Zendejas (117).

October 27 – Del Greco kicks the longest field goal in team history with a 56-yarder at the end of the first half versus the 49ers.

November 17 – In a clash with the Miami Dolphins, G Bruce Matthews becomes the Oilers' all-time leader in games played with his 211th contest, breaking Elvin Bethea's mark of 210. Matthews would go on to also set the team marks for most consecutive games played and started.

December 12 – G Bruce Matthews, S Blaine Bishop, C Mark Stepnoski and ST player John Henry Mills are selected to the Pro Bowl. Matthews extends the Oiler mark for consecutive selections (9) and ties G Mike Munchak for most overall selections (9).

December 15 – Oilers play their final game in Houston with a 21-13 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals in the Astrodome.

December 22 – RB Eddie George finishes the 1996 season with 1,368 yards rushing en route to Rookie of the Year accolades. In addition, George's ground totals were only 82 yards shy of RB Earl Campbell's rookie record of 1,450. On this day, George would also help the Oilers to a 24-21 win over the Baltimore Ravens for a franchise-best 6-2 road record.

1997

January 1 – The team promotes linebackers coach Gregg Williams to defensive coordinator.

January 3 – After relieving Jerry Rhome of his duties, the Oilers make wide receivers coach Les Steckel the team's offensive coordinator/quarterbacks coach.

February 24 – Oilers trade QB Chris Chandler to the Atlanta Falcons for two 1997 draft choices (4th and 6th).

May 3 – City of Nashville holds ground-breaking ceremonies for the team's downtown stadium.

May 8 – After formulating an agreement earlier with Harris County (Houston), K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and Astrodome USA owner Drayton McLane, Jr. reach a settlement for the final year of Oilers' lease at the Astrodome. Under appointed mediator Alice Oliver Parrott, the two sides clear the biggest step in the team's ability to play games in Tennessee for the 1997 season.

June 5 – Oilers reach agreement with Memphis Sports Authority, clearing the way for the team to play its games in the Liberty Bowl.

June 12 – Oilers hold press conference in Nashville to formally announce the club's intention to play the 1997 season in Tennessee, and introduce an inaugural patch and logo which merges the Oilers traditional "Oil derrick" with the Tennessee state flag.

July 18 – Oilers players report to Tennessee State University for their first training camp in the state of Tennessee. Also, Oilers sign DE Kenny Holmes, 1997 first-round selection, to a four-year contract.

July 19 – Oilers sign GM Floyd Reese to a four-year extension running through 2001 season.

HOUSTON OILERS TO TENNESSEE TITANS

After trying unsuccessfully for many years to construct a deal with the city of Houston for a new football or multi-use stadium, Oilers owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. decided that moving his franchise to another city might be the only solution left to keep the team financially competitive. In the spring of 1995, research was completed and several cities were identified as desirable for relocation and at the top of the list was Nashville, Tenn.

In the summer of 1995, Adams contacted Nashville's mayor, Phil Bredesen, to see if the city would be interested in having the team relocate to the region. A 70-day exclusive negotiating period was agreed to and in November the two had signed a relocation agreement that would bring the Oilers to Nashville. In April of 1996, the NFL approved the team's relocation and on May 7th, the voters of Davidson County approved a referendum on using public funding for the new downtown stadium.

Dec. 15, 1996 would mark the Oilers final home game at the Astrodome in Houston – a 21-13 loss to Cincinnati in front of 15,131 fans. In May of 1997, the team reached a settlement with the Astrodome that let them escape the final year of the contract and allowing the team to play the 1997 season in Tennessee.

With the new stadium in Nashville still two years from completion, the team decided to play at Memphis' Liberty Bowl until the stadium was complete. The Tennessee Oilers opened their inaugural season in the state of Tennessee with a 24-21 overtime win over the Oakland Raiders at the Liberty Bowl in front only 30,000 fans.

The Oilers struggled with low attendance throughout the 1997 season and by March of 1998, the Oilers reached an agreement to play the 1998 season at Vanderbilt Stadium in Nashville. Crowds at Vanderbilt Stadium were an improvement from the previous year, but the team could only muster a 3-5 home mark. During the 1998 season, Adams announced the Oilers name would be retired and the team would be renamed the Titans as they entered their new stadium for the 1999 season.

In April of 1999, the team unveiled their new Titans uniforms and in August the team played its first game at Nissan Stadium (named Adelphia Coliseum at the time). The 1999 season ended with the franchise's first Super Bowl berth in the team's 40-year history. A total of 20 players endured the entire odyssey of playing in Houston in 1996, Memphis in 1997, Vanderbilt in 1998 and LP Field in 1999.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

HOME SWEET HOME

The newly-named Tennessee Titans opened their new stadium, Adelphia Coliseum (eventually to be named Nissan Stadium) with the regular season opener on Sept. 12, 1999 against the Cincinnati Bengals. The back and forth game would end with the Titans hanging on for a 36-35 win. The win would start a historic streak of 12 consecutive wins to open the new stadium. The 12 consecutive wins were the most in the modern era for a new stadium (Texas Stadium, 9 wins in 1971) and one short of the all-time record by the Buffalo Americans in 1920. The Titans first loss in their new home would come against the Baltimore Ravens on Nov. 12, 2000. The winning streak actually began in the spring of 1998, when a devastating tornado ripped through Nashville, but only gave a glancing blow to the under construction stadium and sparing it from destruction.

May 18 – Stadium sod is laid down.

July 8 – Adelphia Coliseum name and logo are unveiled at a downtown ceremony.

July 23 – Titans name former Minnesota Senior Vice President Jeff Diamond President and Chief Operating Officer, and agree to terms with former Pittsburgh Pro Bowl quarterback Neil O'Donnell.

July 27 – The Titans sign their first-round draft selection, Florida DE Jevon Kearse, to a multi-year contract.

August 15 – The Tennessee franchise plays its first preseason game under the name Titans, a 22-20 loss at Kansas City. The game is the first in franchise history played in a uniform other than the Oilers.

August 27 – Titans defeat Atlanta, 17-3, in the first preseason game at Adelphia Coliseum.

September 2 – Owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, Jr. and his wife, Nancy, announce the creation of the Tennessee Titans Foundation, an organization established to serve the charitable interests of the state of Tennessee by providing financial support and other resources to non-profit organizations, enriching and strengthening communities throughout the state. Adams donates $500,000 to start the foundation.

September 5 – Cornerback Darryll Lewis, the team leader in interceptions in each of the past five seasons, is released.

September 12 – Al Del Greco kicks a 33-yard field goal to lift the Titans to a 36-35 win over Cincinnati in the first regular season game and victory at Adelphia Coliseum. The win, in front of 65,272 fans, is the team's first as the Titans, and quarterback Steve McNair passes for a career-high 341 yards in the victory.

September 26 – The team wins its first road contest as the Titans, a 20-19 victory at Jacksonville sealed by a Samari Rolle interception in the end zone with under a minute remaining.

October 31 – Steve McNair returns after missing five games because of a back injury to lead the Titans to defeat the previously-unbeaten St. Louis Rams, 24-21 at Adelphia Coliseum. McNair is named Miller Lite NFL Player of the Week for his performance in the victory.

December 19 – Tennessee clinches the franchise's first playoff berth since 1993 with a 30-17 win over Atlanta at Adelphia Coliseum.

December 22 – G Bruce Matthews, RB Eddie George, DE Jevon Kearse and TE Frank Wycheck are named to the AFC team for the Pro Bowl. Matthews extends his franchise records for consecutive and overall selections (12), and Kearse becomes the first rookie defensive end selected to the Pro Bowl in AFC history and the first in the NFL since 1978.

Faith Hill sings at inaugural game of the new stadium.

December 26 – Tennessee defeats Jacksonville for the fourth consecutive time, a 41-14 victory in which Steve McNair throws five touchdown passes. McNair earns his first AFC Offensive Player of the Week and his second Miller Lite NFL Player of the Week honor this season for his efforts. The win completes the first unbeaten home regular season in club history.

2000

January 8 – In a play known as the "Music City Miracle," Kevin Dyson returns a Frank Wycheck lateral on a kickoff return 75 yards for a touchdown, lifting the Titans to a 22-16 victory in the AFC Wild Card playoff game over the Buffalo Bills. The improbable play, which occurred with just 16 seconds remaining in the game, gives the franchise its first playoff win in Tennessee in addition to its first since 1993.

January 16 – Eddie George rushes for 162 yards, including a 68-yard touchdown run, as the Titans defeat the Indianapolis Colts, 19-16, in an AFC Divisional Playoff game at the RCA Dome.

January 23 – The Titans beat Jacksonville for the third time of the season and fifth consecutive time, using 23 second-half points en route to a 33-14 win at Alltel Stadium in Jacksonville. Steve McNair runs for two touchdowns and Derrick Mason returns a kickoff 80 yards in the win. The win sends Tennessee to its first Super Bowl in franchise history and its first AFC/AFL Championship since 1961.

January 30 – The Titans fall short in their quest to win Super Bowl XXXIV, as Kevin Dyson is stopped one yard short of the end zone on the final play of the game in a 23-16 St. Louis Rams victory.

February 16 – The Titans sign unrestricted free agents LB Randall Godfrey

March 16 – The Titans place the franchise tag on running back Derrick Henry.

April 23 – The Titans select Georgia tackle Isaiah Wilson with the 29th overall pick in the 2020 NFL Draft. The draft is held in a virtual setting with all team personnel and draftees at their own homes due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

May 8 – The Titans elevate Burke Nihill to team president/CEO after Steve Underwood announces his retirement from a full-time role.

June 11 – Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk adds her voice and the voice of the organization to support the peaceful protests calling for equality and denouncing racism in the wake of the death of George Floyd. "Hearts, minds and institutions need to change throughout our country," she says. "Those who face racism need to be heard, and more importantly, understood by those who haven't listened before ... Hearing our players and coaches speak over the last two weeks has been constructive to this vital discussion. I support our players using peaceful protests and their platforms to advance us as a nation. I would encourage those who haven't thought about these issues before to understand the pain, anger and frustration of the black community. Black lives matter. We should all agree on that."

GAME-WINNING FIELD GOALS

The franchise has totaled 49 game-winning field goals since 1960, including three playoff game winners. Rob Bironas leads the franchise with 11 game-winning field goals, followed by the 10 by former Oiler/Titan Al Del Greco (1991-00). Bironas' 60-yard field goal vs. Indianapolis (12/3/06) ranks as the longest game-winning field goal in franchise history. A game-winning field goal is defined as one that was the final score of the game and gave the kicker's team the lead at any time in the fourth quarter or overtime.
