RICH BISACCIA

Now in his 38th year of coaching, Rich Bisaccia enters his fourth season with the Silver and Black. He was named interim head coach by Raiders owner Mark Davis on Oct. 11, 2021.

Bisaccia's resume includes 19 seasons of experience as a special teams coordinator in the NFL with the Raiders (2018-20), Dallas Cowboys (2013-17), San Diego Chargers (2011-12) and Tampa Bay Buccaneers (2002-10). Bisaccia, now entering his 20th season as an NFL coach, spent the previous five seasons with the Dallas Cowboys as the special teams coordinator before joining the Raiders in 2018, including the last three with the added role of assistant head coach.

In Bisaccia's five seasons with the Cowboys, he helped the team win two NFC East titles (2014 and 2016) and guided a unit that ranked fifth in kickoff return average (24.2) and ranked in the top five in two separate seasons, finishing third in 2017 and fourth in 2013 after inheriting a unit that ranked 29th in 2012.

Before joining the Cowboys, Bisaccia spent two seasons in San Diego with the Chargers as the special teams coordinator in 2011 before adding assistant head coach duties in 2012. Bisaccia guided his unit to an immediate improvement in punting during his first season, as the Chargers went from last in the league in net average (28.7 net yards per punt) in 2010 to 10th in 2011 with a net average of 39.7. During Bisaccia's two years in San Diego, the Chargers ranked sixth in punting average (46.9) over that span.

Bisaccia entered the NFL coaching ranks as a special teams coordinator with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 2002. From 2002-10, Bisaccia served in various roles on the Buccaneers coaching staff. Bisaccia was the special teams coordinator from 2002-07 and he added the responsibility of associate head coach and running backs in 2008 before spending 2009-10 as the associate head coach/special teams coordinator.

During his time with the Buccaneers, Bisaccia oversaw one of the best special teams units in the NFL. He helped Tampa Bay win Super Bowl XXXVII in his first season as an NFL coach and guided three players to Pro Bowl honors (P Josh Bidwell, LS Dave Moore and KR Clifton Smith) in addition to 13 NFC Player of the Week awards and four NFC Player of the Month awards.

Prior to joining the Buccaneers, Bisaccia spent 19 seasons coaching at the collegiate level. From 1999-2001, he coached at Mississippi, serving as the running backs coach and special teams coordinator, adding the role of assistant head coach for his last two seasons.

Bisaccia spent five seasons (1994-1998) as the running backs coach, special teams coordinator and recruiting coordinator at Clemson. Over the three-year period from 1995-1997, Clemson had 15 blocked kicks, the most-ever for a three-year span in school history.

Bisaccia spent six seasons at South Carolina from 1988-93, beginning as a graduate assistant for tight ends and wide receivers in 1988. After one season in the graduate assistant role, he was a volunteer assistant for the school for three seasons, first working with defensive ends and special teams (1989-90) followed by tight ends and special teams (1991), while finishing his final two seasons (1992-93) with the school in the role of running backs/special teams coordinator.

Bisaccia began his coaching career in 1983 at Wayne State College (Nebraska), coaching defensive backs and special teams. He switched to the offensive side of the ball in 1984, tutoring quarterbacks and wide receivers for the next four seasons (1984-87).

A native of Yonkers, N.Y., Bisaccia attended Yankton College in South Dakota from 1979-1982 and was a four-year starter at defensive back. He and his wife, Jeanne, have three daughters, Michele, Elizabeth and Maddie, a son, Richie, and five grandchildren, Joel, AnnaJean, Cash, Everett and Ace.

RON RIVERA

Ron Rivera enters his 25th season coaching in the NFL and his second as Washington's head coach in 2021. He was named the 30th head coach in franchise history on Jan. 1, 2020 and led Washington to their first division title since 2015.

He most recently served as the head coach of the Carolina Panthers for nine seasons, where he led the team to three straight divisional titles and an appearance in Super Bowl 50. Rivera was also recognized twice as the NFL Coach of the Year by the Associated Press in 2013 and in 2015.

In 2018, Rivera coached two players to All-Pro selections. Panthers running back Christian McCaffrey earned AP All-Pro second-team honors as he became the third player in NFL history with over 100 receptions and 1,000 rushing yards in the same season. Linebacker Luke Kuechly earned his sixth-straight Pro Bowlselection and fifth AP All-Pro first-team honor.

In 2015, Rivera was named NFL Coach of the Year for the second time in three seasons as his team earned its third consecutive NFC South title and claimed the top seed in the NFC for the first time in Panthers franchise history. The Panthers became just the seventh team in the Super Bowl era to post a 15-1 or better record in the regular season.

Rivera's Panthers went 12-4 and won the NFC South in 2013, Carolina's first division title since 2008. The Panthers then recovered from a 3-8-1 start in 2014 to win four in a row and capture a second consecutive NFC South crown.

Rivera has shined as a coach and player during his 30-plus years in the NFL, serving as defensive coordinator for the San Diego Chargers' top-ranked defense in 2010 and playing linebacker for the Chicago Bears' top-ranked defense and Super Bowl XX championship team in 1985. In 23 seasons as a coach and nine as a player, he has been with teams that have reached the playoffs 19 times, including nine conference championships and three Super Bowls.

Rivera worked with the Chargers from 2007-10. He coached inside linebackers before taking over as the team's defensive coordinator midway through the 2008 season.

From 2004-06, Rivera oversaw the Chicago Bears defense, guiding the unit to two top-five finishes in the league. In his first season as a defensive coordinator in 2004, Rivera presided over a defense that produced nine more takeaways and 17 more sacks than the previous year and scored a franchise-record and NFC-high six defensive touchdowns. The following year, Chicago continued to build on the foundation Rivera laid in 2004. The Bears won their first of two consecutive NFC North titles and stood second in the NFL in total defense. During Rivera's last season with the Bears in 2006, the defense paced the NFL with 44 takeaways and finished fifth in the league in total defense and third in scoring defense, helping propel Chicago to the NFC Championship and an appearance in Super Bowl XLI.

Prior to becoming a defensive coordinator, Rivera spent five seasons from 1999-2003 as the linebackers coach for the Philadelphia Eagles, who advanced to the NFC Championship game in each of his final three seasons. Twice during Rivera's tenure with the Eagles, the team finished second in the NFL in scoring defense. Rivera gained his first coaching experience with the Bears as a defensive quality control coach from 1997-98.

Selected in the second round of the 1984 NFL Draft by Chicago, Rivera played all nine of his pro seasons with the Bears. Primarily an outside linebacker, he appeared in 149 games with 62 starts (including 12 postseason contests with six starts) and posted 392 tackles, 7.5 sacks, five forced fumbles, four fumble recoveries, nine interceptions and 15 passes defended. Rivera was a member of six NFC Central division title teams and a Super Bowl XX championship team in 1985.

An All-American at the University of California, Rivera finished his career as the school's all-time leader in sacks with 22 and tackles with 336. As a senior in 1983, he set the Bears' single-season record for sacks with 13 and tackles for loss with 26.5.

Born Jan. 7, 1962, in Fort Ord, Calif., Rivera lived in Germany, Panama, Washington and Maryland before his family settled in Marina, Calif. He attended Seaside High School in Seaside, Calif., and was a three-sport star in football, basketball and baseball. Rivera and his wife, Stephanie, have two children, Christopher and Courtney. Stephanie is a former assistant coach for the WNBA's Washington Mystics.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders — who began play in the American Football League in 1960 — finished their 62nd year of professional football competition, including the last 50 as a member of the National Football League.

In six memorable decades — the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s and 2010s — the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three world championships of professional football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 22 playoff seasons, finished 36 seasons at .500 or better and played in 44 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s.

The Silver and Black are the only AFC team — and one of just two NFL teams (Minnesota) — to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three world championships of professional football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980.

In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

With four postseason victories, the Raiders were the first of the AFC West teams to win multiple postseason contests in the new millennium by six years.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During the memorable 61 years in Oakland, Los Angeles and now Las Vegas, the Raiders won 481 league games, tied 11 and lost 440.

"Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization during the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium as shown by their domination of pro football.

More than 24 of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis, legendary Head Coach John Madden and trailblazer Head Coach Tom Flores have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced six Coaches of the Year.

In addition, 74 Pro Bowl players have earned 206 Pro Bowl selections representing the Silver and Black. In 1970, as the Raiders began their second decade of play, the merger between the AFL and NFL became a reality on the field. In the 1970 through 2012 period of interconference play, the Raiders compiled a remarkable 92-77-1 record against present National Football Conference rivals.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 — "Monday Night Football." The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build a 41-29-1 record in Monday night play. In the 50 years of this series, the Raiders are 18-9-0 in "Monday Night Football" games at home.

Through the decades — the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s and now the 2010s — the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports.

Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

GENERAL MANAGER MIKE MAYOCK

Mike Mayock was named General Manager of the Raiders on Dec. 31, 2018, becoming just the third general manager in Raiders franchise history. Mayock previously served as an Emmy-nominated analyst and draft expert for the NFL Network and handled color commentary duties in the broadcast booth for both college and NFL games before joining the Silver and Black.

Mayock applied his expertise in player evaluation once again in the 2021 early free agency period, addressing needs on defense by signing defensive end Yannick Ngakoue and defensive tackle Solomon Thomas, while adding dynamic playmakers in wide receiver John Brown and running back Kenyan Drake on offense. Mayock and the Raiders were also able to retain important contributors on the Raiders roster, extending the contracts of tackle Kolton Miller and center Andre James, while re-signing defensive tackle Johnathan Hankins and linebacker Nicholas Morrow.

The 2021 NFL Draft saw the Raiders take a methodical approach that added talent and overall depth to the roster. Headlining the draft haul was Alabama All-American Alex Leatherwood in the first round, a key addition to the offensive line who is expected to start immediately at right tackle for the Silver and Black. The Raiders were then able to execute the first of two draft-day trades, moving up five spots to secure TCU safety Tre'von Moehrig with the 43rd-overall pick, adding a dynamic playmaker to the secondary. Las Vegas continued to stock the defense with back-to-back picks in the third round, selecting pass rusher Malcolm Koonce from Buffalo and linebacker Divine Deablo from Virginia Tech with the No. 79 and No. 80 picks, respectively. Continuing to add athleticism and versatility to the defense, Mayock traded up into the fourth round on the draft's third day to select Missouri safety Tyree Gillespie before nabbing Illinois cornerback Nate Hobbs in the fifth round. Pittsburgh offensive lineman Jimmy Morrissey rounded out the team's selections in the seventh round, concluding a draft in which the Raiders did not pick an offensive skill position player for the first time in franchise history.

Mayock provided his own stamp on the Raiders' roster through free agency in both 2019 and 2020, adding significant talent to increase depth and competition throughout the roster. In 2020, the Raiders signed 12 new unrestricted free agents to address needs on both sides of the ball. The linebacker corps was bolstered with the signings of Nick Kwiatkoski and Cory Littleton, while the additions of future Hall of Fame tight end Jason Witten and quarterback Marcus Mariota provided depth and leadership.

Mayock's second NFL Draft with the Silver and Black in 2020 saw the Raiders add speed, toughness and a desire for competition, identified as key "Raider traits," with seven picks through just four rounds. Without a second-round pick, Mayock used a third-round selection to nab South Carolina wide receiver Bryan Edwards. On the draft's third day, Mayock used a second draft-day trade to move up and select Clemson guard John Simpson, the fifth player plucked from "Death Valley" by the Raiders in two years, before rounding out the class by drafting Louisiana Tech cornerback Amik Robertson later in the fourth round.

In his first NFL Draft at the helm, Mayock used four picks among the top-40 players selected to assemble a group of "foundational" standouts. The Raiders selected defensive lineman Clelin Ferrell from Clemson with the fourth-overall pick before adding Alabama running back Josh Jacobs and Mississippi State safety Johnathan Abram with late first-round selections. Mayock executed two trades on the draft's second day to move back to the 40th-overall spot, selecting Clemson defensive back Trayvon Mullen and netting additional fourth and fifth-round picks. The Raiders were involved in five draft-day trades in total, trading up in the fifth round to pick Clemson wide receiver Hunter Renfrow, helping complete a draft haul that earned plaudits from around the NFL.

In addition, five rookie free agents who signed with the Silver and Black immediately after the draft spent significant time on the active roster during the 2019 season, including fullback Alec Ingold, who was selected as Pro Bowl alternate, and punter A.J. Cole, who placed 33 punts inside the 20-yard line, tied for the third-most in Raiders history.

The Raiders' 2019 rookie class registered as one of the most immediately impactful in team history, producing the PFWA Offensive Rookie of the Year Award winner in Jacobs, while rookie defensive end Maxx Crosby, a fourth-round selection, finished the year as an AP Defensive Rookie of the Year finalist. As a whole, the 2019 draft class led the NFL in sacks (14.5), touchdowns from scrimmage (17), rushing yards (1,167), rushing touchdowns (seven), rushing first downs (60) and yards after catch (676), while finishing second in receptions (107), receiving yards (1,112) and first-down receptions (62).

Prior to assembling talent for the Raiders, Mayock's NFL Draft analysis had been one of the most respected voices among media, NFL front office personnel and team scouting departments. His expertise featured within the NFL Network's extensive coverage of the NFL Draft, including the show "Path To The Draft," as well as the network's exclusive coverage of the NFL Scouting Combine and the Reese's Senior Bowl.

Outside of the studio, Mayock served as the television analyst for the Philadelphia Eagles' preseason games since 2015. He also served as a game analyst for NFL Network's broadcasts of the Senior Bowl and East-West all-star game, as well as preseason analyst for the Minnesota Vikings for several seasons.

In 2010, Mayock became the color commentator for NBC's coverage of Notre Dame football, teaming with play-by-play announcer Tom Hammond. In January 2011, he teamed with Hammond to call NBC's broadcast of the NFC Wild Card playoff game between the New Orleans Saints and the Seattle Seahawks. The following year, he called an AFC Wild Card contest featuring the Cincinnati Bengals and the Houston Texans.

Mayock teamed with Brad Nessler to call the NFL Network's Thursday Night Football package from 2011-2013.

Prior to joining NFL Network, Mayock served as a college football analyst for ABC Sports (2001-03), Fox Sports Net (2000), and CBS Sports (1996-99). He also covered the NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament as a reporter for CBS (1997-99). From 1993-95, Mayock worked on ESPN's coverage of the Canadian Football League.

A 10th-round pick in the 1981 NFL Draft by the Pittsburgh Steelers, Mayock then played for the New York Giants from 1982-83. He is a member of the Boston College Hall of Fame, where he captained both the football and baseball teams. Mayock graduated from Boston College in 1980.

Mayock and his wife Amanda have four children (Leigh, Michael, Mackenzie and Jack).

CARR'S COMPLETION %

In Week 7, QB Derek Carr completed 31 of 34 pass attempts (91.2 percent) for 323 yards and two TDs with one INT for a 113.6 passer rating. At 91.2 percent, his completion mark ranks as the second-highest single-game mark all-time in NFL history in which a quarterback attempted at least 30 passes. He broke his own record for highest single-game completion percentage in franchise history when he completed 29-of-32 pass attempts (90.63 percent) against the Denver Broncos on Sept. 6, 2018.

Carr now has two games in his career with at least 30 attempts and a 90% completion percentage. Every other player in NFL history has combined for one.

Shown below is the complete list of quarterbacks to complete at least 90 percent of their attempts in a single game (min. 30 pass attempts):

---- TOP SINGLE-GAME COMPLETION % (NFL HISTORY) ----

Rank	Player	DATE	CMP/ATT	CMP %

2.	Derek Carr	10/24/21	31/34	91.2
3.	Derek Carr	09/16/18	29/32	90.6

THROWING FOR SIX

Carr has enjoyed one of the most prolific starts to a career in NFL history, especially when it comes to finding the end zone. His 53 TDs rank second most by any NFL player through his first two seasons, trailing only Dan Marino (68). And although his 2016 season was cut short due to injury, he continued his stellar start to his career by throwing 28 more TDs in his third season. His 187 TDs are 10th-most in the NFL since 2014.

Carr crossed the 100-touchdown barrier just 60 games into his NFL career, the quickest to reach 100 passing scores in Raiders history. By doing so in his first four seasons, Carr joined Dan Marino, Peyton Manning, Andrew Luck, Russell Wilson, Deshaun Watson and Patrick Mahomes as the only quarterbacks in NFL history to toss 100 touchdowns through their first four seasons in the league.

100 PASSER RATING

Carr has posted passer ratings of at least 100 points in 44 career games (30-14 record) after his performance. With his 33rd such game in Week 1 of 2020, Carr surpassed Raiders legend Ken Stabler for most in franchise history.

JOSH JACOBS

With the 24th overall selection in the 2019 NFL Draft, the Raiders selected RB Josh Jacobs to be their bell-cow back out of the University of Alabama. Jacobs made his rookie debut on Monday Night Football at home against the Denver Broncos. With 23 carries for 85 yards and two rushing scores, while adding one reception for 28 yards, Jacobs became the first player since RB LaDainian Tomlinson (2001) to tally two rushing TDs and 100 yards from scrimmage in his rookie debut. Jacobs also became the first player in franchise history to score two rushing TDs in his NFL debut. Since then, Jacobs took the NFL by storm, becoming the first rookie in franchise history to earn two NFL Offensive Rookie of the Month honors (October and November), while racking up five 100-yard performances and also breaking RB Marcus Allen's franchise rookie rushing record set in 1982 for total rushing yards and 100-yard contests. Jacobs also became the 21st player in NFL history with 1,000 rushing yards through his first 12 career contests. In Week 1 of 2020, he picked up right where he left off as a rookie, becoming the first player in Raiders history to score three times on the ground in a season opener. Jacobs finished 2020 appearing in 15 games and setting career highs in rush attempts (273) and touchdowns (12). His 12 scores on the ground tied for third-most in Raiders single-season history.

DARREN WALLER

In 2018, TE Darren Waller was signed by the Raiders off of the Baltimore Ravens' practice squad. In 2019, Waller led the team in receptions and receiving yards. Waller's receptions (90), receiving yards (1,145), receiving touchdowns (three) and first-down receptions (53) all led the team. Waller broke the club record and led the NFL among his position group with five 100-yard contests. In one of the most historic receiving campaigns in franchise history, Waller earned his first Pro Bowl selection after leading the team in all major receiving categories and setting a new club record with 107 receptions, topping Tim Brown's previous mark of 104 catches in 1997. Waller also posted career highs in receiving yards (1,196) and touchdown receptions (nine). He also tied his own record set in 2019 with five games of at least 100 receiving yards. Waller finished the campaign rattling off three straight games with over 100 receiving yards, becoming only the third Raider to accomplish the feat since the merger: Hall of Famer Tim Brown in 1999, Cliff Branch in 1974 and 1976.

K DANIEL CARLSON

In his third year with the Silver and Black, K Daniel Carlson set the franchise record for most points scored in a single season (144), surpassing Sebastian Janikowski's previous mark of 142 points in 2010. Carlson played in all 16 games and converted on 33-of-35 field goals for a 94.3 field goal percentage to mark a new franchise record, improving upon his own record set during his rookie season and first year with the Raiders in 2018. He also compiled a Player of the Week and Player of the Month Award ranking first in the NFL in points scored (144), fourth in field goals made (33) and sixth in field goal percentage (94.3 percent).

Carlson was a perfect 4-of-4 from 50 yards and beyond in 2020, while leading the NFL in field goals made between 20-29 yards, as he finished a perfect 18-for-18 on the season. His four field goals made from 50-plus yards ranked tied for seventh-most in the NFL last season, while he was only one of four players who were perfect on field goal attempts from 50 yards in beyond (min. 3 attempts).

LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

Graney: Derek Carr heeds Jon Gruden's advice in OT victory

By Ed Graney

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas — Jon Gruden used to remind quarterback Derek Carr all the time: Don't take your arm out of the game. When the opportunity arises, let it rip.

Carr followed such advice Thursday. In the process, he led the Raiders to their most important win of the season. Just in time is right.

The game that would never end eventually did nearly four hours after the opening kickoff, the Raiders incredibly thankful for Daniel Carlson's 29-yard field goal with 4:28 left in overtime.

It allowed them to beat Dallas 36-33 at AT&T Stadium and stop a three-game losing streak that seemed destined to continue another midseason slide out of any playoff picture.

"It's easy to win games and go to the next week," Carr said. "But it's hard when you lose and nobody likes you or cares about you or texts you before the game. So you battle through it.

"We were up against a wall, no doubt."

When has 6-5 ever felt so good? When you're the Raiders right now.

Turkey day victory

They won on Thanksgiving Day for the first time since 1968 and — considering how poorly things have been on the field and controversial off it of late — this one must have felt like helpings of ham, turkey and prime rib all in the same sitting.

Question: When you consider how much the offense struggled throughout the losing streak, how out of sorts Carr appeared at times, had the resignation of Gruden as head coach led to such a regression?

Answer: It had to.

Carr in consecutive losses to Kansas City and then Cincinnati threw for just an average 238 yards with three scores and two interceptions. He also had two interceptions in a loss to the Giants.

He and offensive coordinator Greg Olson hardly seemed on the same page at all times as a 5-2 record became 5-5.

The rhythm was lacking, the execution nonexistent for stretches. The Raiders were abysmal on third down (they were a not-so-great 3-of-13 Thursday) and nearly as forgettable in the red zone.

So when you consider the vast number of words written and talked about regarding Gruden and Carr the past several years, believing the partnership ending had no negative consequence is foolish. They're human beings. Of course it did to some degree.

“Certainly, (Carr and Gruden) had a wonderful relationship,” interim head coach Rich Bisaccia said, “But I think (Olson) has always been the buffer between Jon calling plays and then what’s going on now. We’ve hit some bumps in the road, but I think they’ve really done a good job over the past few years of overcoming the bumps in the road and then playing well again.”

Which brings us to Thursday.

Carr would complete 24-of-39 for 373 yards and a score, good for a quarterback rating of 101.8. But perhaps just as important was running back Josh Jacobs rushing 22 times for 87 yards and a score.

Run games are overrated until they actually make a difference. This one did in allowing a player like wide receiver Hunter Renfrow to secure career highs in receptions (8) and yards (134).

‘The point guard’

Carr let it rip more than once, including on a crossing pattern to newly acquired receiver DeSean Jackson that went for a 56-yard score.

There was Carr over nearly four hours — not taking his arm out of the game. Just as Gruden always told him.

“Derek is his biggest critic,” Bisaccia said. “He wants do well all the time — in practice, in the meetings, in games. Again, he has been out of sync some. We have all been out of sync. When it’s bad, it’s easy to point the finger at one guy.”

“He’s the trigger guy. Plays probably the hardest position in all of sports. Today, he was Derek Carr. The point guard. Really fun to watch.”

Just in time, too.

Raiders special teams come up huge in OT win over Cowboys

By Vincent Bonsignore

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas — For three weeks now, the Raiders have been talking about playing complementary football, the lack of which had cost them three straight winnable games and sent them reeling in the standings.

They did that Thursday in a 36-33 win over the Dallas Cowboys, including an overtime sequence in which their kick coverage team pinned the Cowboys at their 6-yard-line, their defense forced a three and out, the offense marched into field goal range, and Daniel Carlson booted a game-winning, 29-yard field goal.

“You’d like to have it happen all the time,” said Raiders interim head coach Rich Bisaccia. “Especially (late) we did a good job.”

None of which happens without the special teams showing up in a major way.

Carlson was perfect on a career-high five field goals, including a 56-yard kick that helped keep the Raiders ahead late in the fourth quarter and the overtime winner. Not bad for a guy who started the week dealing with food poisoning. The thought of not playing was never a consideration.

"I told them I'll find a way to play if I need to," Carlson said. "Find some adult diapers, whatever. That or a trash can on the sidelines. But I was good to go."

A.J. Cole had a 68-yard punt while also pinning the Cowboys inside their 20-yard line four times.

"A lot of people don't realize how big that field position battle is," Carlson said. "He's been doing a great job for us all season, especially today. Flipping the field, pinning inside the 20 time after time after time."

Said Bisaccia: "He's just having one of those years. He's really worked hard in the offseason. He's gotten a lot stronger individually. But I can't say enough about the protection unit in front of him."

Also, cornerback Nate Hobbs made a crucial tackle on the opening kickoff of overtime at the Cowboys' 13-yard-line. When an illegal block got tacked on, the Cowboys started the drive at their 7-yard line.

The original intent was for Carlson to kick it out of the end zone for a touchback, but he misfired on a kick that ended up being caught at the 2-yard line.

"But our coverage team did a great job. They've been busting their butt all week, all year for that," Carlson said. "They made a great play."

The Raiders' defense, energized by the Cowboys' starting point, forced a three-and-out to put the ball in the hands of Derek Carr and the offense. Carr marched the Raiders 67 yards to put Carlson in position to kick the game-winner.

On the final kick, Carlson withstood penalties on three successive plays, two by the Cowboys and one by the Raiders, that continually altered his starting point. But he never wavered while calmly staying focused to boot the Raiders to a must-have win.

"For me it's just blocking it out, taking it one rep at a time," Carlson said. "It felt like an eternity out there ... just trying to take them one at a time and seal the deal. Great game. Great day for the Raiders."

Including special teams, which overcame a 100-yard kickoff return for a touchdown they surrendered in the third quarter to continually make big plays.

Raiders report: 'Carriota' shows off the wheels in win

By Adam Hill

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas — Derek Carr wants to make it clear his backup isn't the only mobile quarterback on the Raiders' roster.

The veteran turned on the jets to pick up 22 yards on a scramble down the right sideline and converted a key third down in the third quarter of Thursday's 36-33 overtime victory over the Cowboys.

While Marcus Mariota is known as the more mobile of the Raiders' two quarterbacks — and even entered the game on Thursday to score a rushing touchdown — Carr wants Mariota to know he's right there with him.

"After I ran it, I looked over at Marcus and I gave him one of these," Carr said, making the hang-loose hand signal. "I always call myself Carr-iota, and he gets a kick out of that one."

"Any time I scramble in practice or in a game, I come up to him and I go, 'Carr-iota, bro.' And he'll laugh at me, probably just to appease me, but it felt good to be able to pick that up in the running game."

The only other rushing attempt credited to Carr on Thursday went for a loss of 1 yard. Still, his 21 yards was a season high on the ground.

Carr's previous best was 18 yards on three carries against Kansas City.

"I'd say, over the last couple years, I've run for a few first downs here and there," Carr said. "But that's probably one of the longer ones I've had in a while."

Target practice

The Raiders' receiving corps had a huge game Thursday after they were held in check against the Bengals.

In addition to DeSean Jackson's breakout performance, Hunter Renfrow had eight catches for 134 yards and Zay Jones added five catches for 59 yards.

Bryan Edwards hauled in his only target for 12 yards a week after the entire group combined for just eight targets.

"I'm so proud of them," Carr said. "I rudely joked last week that I just decided to throw it to (Darren) Waller just because I didn't want to answer questions, if I'm being honest. I just wanted to watch the film and move on."

"But for all of those guys to step up, one they have two outstanding coaches in there, but the way they keep their head down and just keep working extra with me is why they have days like today."

Injury report

Tight end Darren Waller left the game with what was reported as a back injury in the first half only to return and injure his knee.

Interim coach Rich Bisaccia he hadn't been briefed on the status of Waller or several other players who left the game with injuries.

Defensive end Carl Nassib exited in the first half with a knee injury and did not return. Linebacker Patrick Onwuasor left with a hamstring injury and cornerback Brandon Facyson was ruled out with a concussion.

Bisaccia typically addresses injuries more fully in his news conferences the day after a game, but the Raiders are off until Monday, when more details are expected to be shared.

In the win column

Thursday's win was the first for the Raiders on Thanksgiving since the AFL-NFL merger.

The franchise had been 0-3 on Thanksgiving since 1970 and were one of five organizations to play on the holiday without a victory.

Dallas defeated the Raiders 31-24 in 2013 and 24-7 in 2009. Detroit handed the Raiders a 28-14 loss in 1970, though the Raiders did have wins over Buffalo (1968) and Kansas City (1967).

The Cardinals (0-6) have the most Thanksgiving appearances since the merger without a victory.

Milestones

— Carr surpassed the 30,000-yard mark for his career during the Raiders' opening drive of the game. He is just the fifth quarterback in NFL history to do so in his first eight seasons, joining a list that already included Peyton Manning, Matt Ryan, Dan Marino and Matthew Stafford.

— Carr finished with 373 yards in the game. He has thrown for 300 yards in six different games this season, the third time he has done so in his career. Rich Gannon did it 10 times in 2002, the only Raiders quarterback ever to have more than six such games in a season.

— Yannick Ngakoue recorded the lone sack of the game for the Raiders, becoming one of just four players to record at least eight sacks in their first six NFL seasons. Aaron Donald, Derrick Thomas and DeMarcus Ware are the others.

Perryman in early lead

The league released the first batch of leaders in voting for the Pro Bowl, which opened last week online and on social media.

Middle linebacker Denzel Perryman is the only Raiders player currently leading at any position.

Perryman, who entered Thursday's game second to just Seattle's Bobby Wagner in tackles, had a season-low seven against the Cowboys to take over the lead for now.

The game will be played at Allegiant Stadium Feb. 6.

DeSean Jackson again makes himself at home at AT&T Stadium

By Adam Hill

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas — It didn't take DeSean Jackson long to get comfortable at AT&T Stadium on Thursday afternoon, which should have come as no surprise given his previous success there.

Jackson toasted man-coverage from Jourdan Lewis and broke through an attempted tackle by former San Diego State star Damontae Kazee before racing down the left sideline for a 56-yard touchdown on the Raiders' opening drive Thursday.

He drew a pass interference in the end zone later in the first quarter to set up the Raiders' second touchdown and made several key grabs in the second half to help them snap a three-game losing streak with a 36-33 overtime victory.

Jackson finished with three catches for 102 yards and a touchdown. His impact was far more significant.

"One thing he can still do is run," interim coach Rich Bisaccia cracked after the game. "It was fun watching him. You can see him getting more and more comfortable with what we're asking him to do."

Success against the Cowboys, especially in their building, is nothing new for Jackson.

He entered the game with 58 catches for 1,228 yards and five touchdowns against the Cowboys, the most receptions and yardage he has accumulated against any team in the NFL.

It was also Jackson's fourth touchdown of 50 or more yards at AT&T Stadium, tied with Dez Bryant and Amari Cooper for most receiving scores of longer than 50 yards in the building that opened in 2009.

Bryant and Cooper both played their home games there with the Cowboys.

"It's fun to get creative with ways to get him down the field and use his speed," quarterback Derek Carr said of the 34-year-old receiver. "That threat is always there. I don't even know how old he is, but he can still fly. It sure is fun to throw him the ball. I'm glad he had a big day. I felt it was coming."

Jackson now has 34 touchdowns of 50 or more yards in his career, just two behind all-time leader Jerry Rice.

He also has 46 total receptions of 50 yards or longer, three ahead of Randy Moss for the most in the NFL since 1991.

Jackson wasn't involved often, but the impact was massive on the occasions the Raiders did get him involved.

He was targeted on a screen play late in the third, but it was blown up immediately when Micah Parsons got in the backfield and forced Carr to throw the ball at Jackson's feet to avoid an intentional grounding call or sack.

On the next play, Jackson drew a pass interference call on Anthony Brown that kept alive a drive that would end with a field goal to extend the Raiders' lead.

"We hit that big play. It's exciting for us and for him. But he came up big for us on some very crucial down and distances," Carr said.

Jackson kickstarted the Raiders' opening drive of the fourth quarter with a 16-yard reception that led to yet another field goal.

Then Jackson came up with a 30-yard catch-and-run on the first play of a drive with 2:34 remaining in the fourth quarter of a tied game to get the ball to the Dallas 40-yard line.

The Raiders would not get another first down on the drive, but Daniel Carlson connected on a 56-yard field goal to put them back in front, only to have the Cowboys answer and force overtime.

Jackson had just one pass thrown in his direction in his first two games with the Raiders. His one catch resulted in a crippling fumble against the Chiefs.

Carr officially targeted him four times on Thursday, not including the penalties.

Jackson was the kind of difference-maker the Raiders hoped to acquire when they signed him three weeks ago.

Welcome home.

Grading Raiders' victory against Cowboys

By Ed Graney

November 25, 2021

How the Raiders performed in a 36-33 overtime win against the Cowboys.

Offense: A-minus

Derek Carr had a 22-yard run. And looked pretty fast doing so. He also threw for 373 yards and a score. Josh Jacobs had a drop that might have gone for a long touchdown, but he managed 87 yards and a score with a long of 21 off 22 carries. There was even a Marcus Mariota sighting. One of those goal-line packages coaches constantly talk about paid off with a 3-yard scoring run from the backup quarterback with 7:13 left in the third quarter, leading to a 24-13 advantage. Tight end Darren Waller (two catches, 33 yards) was lost to injury in the second quarter.

Defense: B

It wasn't a perfect effort by far — the Cowboys amassed 437 total yards while playing without their top two receivers — but Dallas still represents one of the league's best offenses. Johnathan Abram led the Raiders with 10 tackles. Cory Littleton had nine. Yannick Ngakoue was active up front, totaling a sack and two quarterback hits. The Raiders were stout against the run — Tony Pollard had just 36 yards on 10 carries. Ezekiel Elliott was held to 25 on nine with a score.

Special teams: B-plus

Daniel Carlson was clutch all day — his final and fifth field goal won the game from 29 yards with 4:28 left in overtime. He also made good from 22, 46, 30 and 56 yards. AJ Cole was again terrific, punting five times for an average of 48.6 yards, dropping four inside the 20-yard line. Things were all good until the kick coverage unit allowed a 100-yard return by Pollard for a touchdown, which immediately followed the Mariota score.

Coaching: A

I'm not sure what other grade is warranted, given how well the staff did to prepare the Raiders in just four days and coming off their third straight loss. Greg Olson called a solid game offensively. Remember — interim head coach Rich Bisaccia also coaches special teams, whose side allowed things to leak on the Pollard return. But when you consider where this team was following a loss to the Bengals on Sunday, coming into Dallas and leaving with a Thanksgiving victory is more than memorable.

3 quick takeaways from Raiders-Cowboys game

By Mark Anderson

November 25, 2021

Three quick takeaways from the Raiders' 36-33 overtime victory over the Dallas Cowboys on Thursday at Arlington, Texas:

1. Carlson comes through

Daniel Carlson is a great comfort for Raiders coaches, who know he's nearly an automatic three points when they send him on the field.

That was especially true in this game.

Carlson not only made the 29-yard field goal in overtime to win, he also connected from 22, 46, 30 and 56 yards.

The Raiders simply don't win without him.

Of course, the argument can — and should — be made the Raiders rely too heavily on field goals. If they had been more aggressive in certain spots, Carlson's heroics probably would not have been needed.

2. Jackson makes an impact

DeSean Jackson was signed to stretch the field for the Raiders, and his contribution the first two games with his new club was minimal.

On Thursday, Jackson's play led directly to the Raiders' two touchdowns in the first quarter. He caught a 56-yard pass and tiptoed down the left sideline to put the Raiders on top 7-0 lead. Jackson drew a 30-yard pass-interference penalty at the Cowboys' 1-yard line to set up Josh Jacobs' TD run on the next play and 14-6 lead.

In the third quarter, Jackson drew a 17-yard pass interference to help set up a field goal and 27-19 lead.

Jackson wound up catching three passes for 102 yards.

3. Carr returns to form

There is little accident that the Raiders' three-game skid coincided with Derek Carr suddenly not throwing the ball downfield.

He made the point to go deep against the Cowboys, not only targeting Jackson but Zay Jones and Hunter Renfrow as well.

The result was Carr's best game in more than a month. He completed 24 of 39 passes for 373 yards and was not intercepted.

If the Raiders are to truly contend for a playoff berth, Carr will need to continue to deliver that kind of production.

Raiders decide to have fun, outlast Cowboys in overtime

By Vincent Bonsignore

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas — Reeling from a three-game losing streak that put them on the brink of another second-half swoon, the Raiders arrived in Texas on Thursday to play the Dallas Cowboys.

But first, they made a pledge to themselves. "Let's just go have fun today" is how wide receiver Hunter Renfrow put it.

Just like that, the weight of the world the Raiders had been playing under the past few weeks had been lifted. By the time Daniel Carlson's 29-yard field goal split the uprights in overtime to beat the Cowboys 36-33, the Raiders had exorcised some major demons and propped themselves back up in the AFC playoff race.

"We're right there, with a chance and an opportunity," quarterback Derek Carr said.

Which is a lot more than they could have said four days earlier after losing to the Cincinnati Bengals, which dropped them to third place in the AFC West and on the outside looking in at the wild-card chase.

"You don't want to say it's a must win, but I think we felt it a little bit," Renfrow said. "You know, 5-6 is a whole lot worse than 6-5. To beat a good Cowboys team on Thanksgiving in prime time, it gives us a lot of confidence. Being at 6-5, we have a long road ahead of us, but we took a step in the right direction today."

On more levels than just the standings.

After three listless offensive performances, the Raiders came alive with 509 yards of offense, including 143 yards rushing, 137 yards on eight catches from Renfrow, three catches for 102 yards from DeSean Jackson and five field goals from Carlson.

At the helm of it all was Carr, who broke out of a mini-slump with 373 yards and a touchdown while avoiding the turnover bug he had been plagued by recently.

"He's been off sync a little bit. We've all been off sync a little bit," Raiders interim coach Rich Bisaccia said.

They snapped out of that Thursday, going up 7-0 on Carr's 56-yard touchdown throw to Jackson and then withstanding every Cowboys punch while always remaining ahead or tied on the scoreboard.

In the process, they overcame the 14 penalties they committed for 110 yards, a second-quarter knee injury to tight end Darren Waller that left him sidelined the remainder of the game, a rambunctious partisan crowd at AT&T Stadium and 375 yards passing from Cowboys quarterback Dak Prescott.

It was everything they had not been doing during their three-game losing streak.

“Real excited for the men in there and the way in which they played the entire game,” Bisaccia said.

The emergence of Jackson, in particular, was significant. It represented his first big performance since the Raiders signed him three weeks ago to replace Henry Ruggs. With his three catches, he also forced three pass interference calls.

“It’s fun to get creative with plays down the field and use his speed,” Carr said. “But that threat is always there.”

So too was a run game that averaged 4.1 yards on 24 attempts, including 87 yards and a touchdown from Josh Jacobs on 22 carries. That helped open things up downfield for Carr to attack.

“It makes everything easier, I promise you,” Carr said. “Whenever you can run the ball like that with the play-action, the shots, the big plays, the run after catch are there. For us to have that kind of run game, we’re gonna need it, especially as the weather gets worse ... we’re gonna have to be tough and run the football and have that threat.”

It was one of a handful of positive steps the Raiders took on Thursday. And for now, it breathed new life into their season.

LAS VEGAS SUN

Raider Repair: Las Vegas wins the 'must-win' on Thanksgiving against Dallas

By Case Keefer

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, TEXAS — The only audible noise in the visitor's news conference room at AT&T Stadium were the celebratory shouts, claps and chatter coming from the nearby locker room for several minutes after the Raiders' 36-33 victory over the Cowboys.

A longer-than-usual amount of time elapsed before the Raiders appeared for their postgame obligations, and the slight delay was no coincidence.

"I was trying to get around to every player in the locker room," interim coach Rich Bisaccia said.

Las Vegas' overtime upset of Dallas on Thanksgiving was that type of victory — essential, reaffirming and, just maybe, season-saving. The Raiders snapped a three-game losing streak on Thanksgiving, shooting back up to 6-5 on the season and in the conversation for an AFC playoff spot.

"You don't want to say must-win but we felt it a little bit," receiver Hunter Renfrow said. "5-6 is a whole lot worse than 6-5, and to beat a good Cowboys' team on Thanksgiving in primetime, it gives us a lot of confidence going forward."

Raiders' fans carried a lot of frustration from the recent losses and shared some specific gripes more often than others. Among the top things they most vocally wanted to see fixed against the Cowboys were fixing the run game, cutting down on turnovers and featuring under-utilized players like DeSean Jackson and Marcus Mariota.

Las Vegas did all of those.

Running back Josh Jacobs ran a season-high 22 times for 87 yards. Quarterback Derek Carr halted a three-game turnover streak, and the rest of the team followed. Jackson and Mariota each found the end zone, with the former scoring on a 56-yard play in the opening five minutes that the Raiders schemed specifically for the Cowboys during their short week of preparation.

"I (told DeSean), 'If we get a certain look, I want you to run around that safety and want you to go across the field and I'm going to throw it to you,'" Carr recalled. "He did it exactly how I asked him, and I tried to throw it as hard as I could, and he made an outstanding catch and broke a tackle for a touchdown."

Carr finished with 373 passing yards while completing 24 of 39 attempts to break the Las Vegas offense out of its malaise, but that wasn't the best part of the victory to Bisaccia. Instead, it was the way the Raiders displayed the "complementary football" he preaches.

The defense didn't have its best day but made Dallas one-dimensional by holding explosive running back duo Ezekiel Elliott and Tony Pollard to 61 yards on 19 carries. It also came up with timely stops including a pair by surging edge-rusher Yannick Ngakoue.

The defensive captain got the team's lone sack on a third-down play in the fourth quarter to force the Cowboys to punt. He then pressured Dallas quarterback Dak Prescott — who matched Carr overall in totaling 375 yards on 32-for-47 passing — in the final seconds to help keep the Cowboys out of the end zone and force them into a game-tying field goal.

Dallas kicker Greg Zuerlein easily chipped in that 45-yarder, but he had missed both an extra point and a 59-yarder earlier in the game. Las Vegas kicker Daniel Carlson proved more dependable, making all five of his field goal attempts including a 56-yarder inside of two minutes remaining and then a 29-yard game-winner.

Not bad for someone who missed a day of practice this week with food poisoning.

"I told them I'll find a way to play if I need to — find some adult diapers or whatever, trash bag on the sideline," Carlson joked.

That wasn't ultimately necessary but spoke to the type of buy-in the Raiders needed to knock off what had been one of the NFL's best teams this year while they were mired in their own skid. Carlson's bug didn't turn out to be their biggest bout of adversity — an injury to star tight end Darren Waller did.

Waller was the lone bright spot of the Raiders' offense in a loss to the Bengals last week, but he caught only two passes for 33 yards before leaving the game with a knee injury in the second quarter. Without him, a somewhat embattled receiver's group had to step up.

Renfrow went for a career-high 134 yards on eight carries, including a 54-yarder in the fourth quarter that Carr joked proved the short-yarder receiver was "a deep threat."

"I told him, 'A real deep threat probably would have scored,'" Renfrow said.

Jackson was right behind Renfrow in the box score, accounting for 102 yards and three receptions. Zay Jones also finally looked settled into the No. 1 receiver role he was thrust into out of the bye week, catching five passes for 59 yards.

"Even when Waller is getting all the credit — and rightfully so, he's one of the best players — but the way they keep their head down and just stay at it, that's why they have days like today," Carr said of his receivers.

Some of their biggest plays, however, had nothing to do with catches as the Raiders regularly marched down the field via pass-interference calls. While most of the key penalty flags had gone against Las Vegas during its downturn, the pattern flipped against the Cowboys.

The game-winning field goal was set up only after a pass interference against Jones on Anthony Brown wiped out what appeared to be a Cowboys' third-down stop. Brown was also flagged for contact on Jackson in the end zone in the second quarter, leading to a one-yard touchdown run by Jacobs.

Even Mariota's three-yard score on an option play came after Cowboys rookie linebacker Micah Parsons picked up a controversial roughing the passer flag on Carr. In total, the Cowboys committed 14 penalties for 166 yards.

The Raiders also had 14 penalties, but for only 110 yards and not in as pivotal of situations. The discrepancy left Cowboys owner Jerry Jones miffed after the game.

“Oakland (sic) took advantage of the situation,” Jones told Dallas-based reporters. “I call it, ‘Throw up ball.’”

The Raiders weren’t about to apologize. They were desperate for a victory and would have taken it any way possible, but that’s not to say they didn’t think the flags were justified.

“The penalties obviously help, and they are legitimate things that happened,” Carr said. “We kept saying, ‘They’re holding us, and we believe if they aren’t holding us, we’re going to hit those plays.’ So, I thought that for our whole team, everything that’s gone on, for us to be able to bounce back, it says a lot about the football character, the character of the men.”

It had been more than a month since the Raiders last won, and they arguably hadn’t played as complete of a game with so many different contributors all season. Complementary football exemplified.

They earned the celebration at AT&T Stadium.

“For us to be able to battle through that, our backs were against the wall,” he said. “There’s no doubt about that. That’s just a fact, everyone can see that and the way that we fought today and for as long as it took to win...I’m very proud of our team.”

THE ATHLETIC

Tafur: DeSean Jackson helps Derek Carr get his mojo back as the Raiders shock the Cowboys

By Vic Tafur

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas — Just like kids all over the country Thursday, Derek Carr, DeSean Jackson and the Raiders threw the football around a little bit. Granted, this ballyard had a 200-foot-wide TV screen hanging overhead and 93,000 fans circled around watching and yelling ...

But still, it’s a football game and it’s fun. The Raiders had lost three games in a row and were 5-5 and Carr hadn’t been letting it rip like he had earlier in the season.

That changed Thursday afternoon.

On the Raiders’ third play of the game, Carr threw a 56-yard touchdown to Jackson to rip the top off of the Cowboys’ defense the rest of the day. Jackson, in his third game with the Raiders, had five huge plays and Carr passed for 373 yards in the 36-33 overtime win.

The Raiders are 6-0 when Carr throws for over 300 yards. And Thursday, he did it without tight end, Darren Waller, as his No. 1 target injured his back and then left the game in the second quarter with a knee injury.

Didn’t matter.

“One thing I’ve tried to do this year, especially when 11 was here, I was going to be so aggressive,” Carr said. “It leads sometimes to not completing as many balls on a percentage chart, but to me, (Jon) Gruden used to tell me, don’t ever take your arm out of a game. So when we call these things, let’s rip ’em.”

"Eleven" is obviously Henry Ruggs III, the deep-ball playmaker who was released by the team after he allegedly drove drunk and killed 23-year-old Tina Tintor. There is a football side to it, which is why you are reading this, and the Raiders were 0-3 without Ruggs while Jackson — signed after the Rams waived him — got comfortable with the plays.

Jackson was comfortable Thursday and showed that, even at his age (he'll turn 35 on Wednesday), he can still fly.

"He is so fast, it looks like he is gliding," running back Josh Jacobs said.

Carr said the Raiders "saw some things on film where hopefully we get some looks, hopefully we can get some long runs down the field. We were able to find some of those and have an explosive day. This defense, when you watch the film, they don't give many of those up. That's why I am so excited that we executed at such a high level. Because when you watch the film, (the Cowboys) are unbelievable."

Jackson finished with three catches for 102 yards and the touchdown as well as two pass-interference calls drawn against Cowboys cornerback Anthony Brown. Those five plays led to 23 Raiders points.

And then, in overtime, Carr went to Zay Jones deep against Brown. Brown didn't turn around and made contact with Jones, and the 33-yard pass-interference penalty set up Daniel Carlson's game-winning 29-yard field goal.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones wasn't a fan of how the "Oakland" Raiders won the game.

"I call it 'throw up ball.' ... This will arguably be the most-watched game other than the Super Bowl," Jones said. "I hate that it got down to just throwing the ball up and getting the penalties to get you big plays."

Brown said he almost had a helpless feeling.

"Almost every third down, after I got the first two, (Carr) just kept throwing it up on third down," he said. "If he feels like it's going to be easy to get a call, he's going to keep doing it."

Besides Jackson and Jones (five catches for 59 yards), Hunter Renfrow had eight catches for a career-high 134 yards.

"We played with a lot of freedom," Renfrow said.

And it started with that first touchdown to Jackson against his old friends, the Cowboys. The former Philadelphia and Washington receiver has 46 career receptions of 50 yards or more, and seven have come against the Cowboys. That's the most such receptions in the NFL since 1991.

(As far as touchdowns of 50 yards or more, it was the 34th of Jackson's career. The only player with more all time is Jerry Rice, who has 36.)

The Raiders didn't make Jackson available for a postgame interview, but Carr said they smelled that a big day was coming against the Cowboys' man-to-man defense.

"I don't think he had a catch last week, but when he's on the field, defenses are like ...," Carr said. "I'm noting the calls they are making and how deep the safeties are. If they are playing a certain coverage where normally you can get a shot there, they play it a little bit different when he is out there. Same thing teams were doing with Henry. ..."

"It's hard to play man-to-man against him. He can still fly."

Interim coach Rich Bisaccia said he doesn't judge his team on wins and losses, and that he has been proud of his team the last month. Carr took the brunt of the blame for the three-game losing streak, and Bisaccia said that wasn't fair.

"Derek is his biggest critic," Bisaccia said. "He wants to do well all the time. He wants to do well all the time in practice. He wants to do well in walkthroughs. Again, he's been off sync a little bit. We've all been off sync."

"When it's good, it's complementary. When it's bad, it's easy to just point at the one guy. He's the trigger guy. It's probably the most difficult position in all of sports to go out there and do that week in and week out, and today, he just looked like Derek Carr. It was fun to watch him play."

Because Carr and Jackson had fun playing catch.

Raiders start fast and get big stop when they need it: 5 takeaways from OT win against Cowboys

By Tashan Reed

November 25, 2021

DALLAS — The Raiders were sick of losing. They'd dropped three straight and looked to be headed to another disappointing finish to a season. They're tired of the feeling that comes with that, but knew they wouldn't avoid it through tensing up. They were playing hard but looked tight in losses to the Giants, Chiefs and Bengals — they desperately needed to let loose. Going into Week 12, their mindset was a simple one: Have fun, play hard and live with the results. The Raiders did just that Thursday in their 36-33 overtime win over the Cowboys, but it wouldn't have happened without that shift in mentality while maintaining their level of effort.

"I tell them all the time and I told them in there at the end: I'm just not gonna live by judging men by wins and losses all the time," interim coach Rich Bisaccia said Thursday. "We want the scoreboard to go a certain way at the end of the game and today that's what it was but being a winner's not all about points. I understand the ramifications of performance of game day and I understand the ramifications of what column the end of your game goes on, but I'm just gonna stick true to the effort they've been putting forth and the things that they've gone through."

"This week, due to our effort to some degree, it turned out to be us."

The Raiders never trailed, but the outcome never felt certain until it was official. They took 11-point leads in the first and second halves, but Dallas was a pest. After the Raiders went up 17-6 on a field goal, the Cowboys put together an eight-play, 86-yard touchdown drive. After the Raiders went up 24-13 on a touchdown, the Cowboys scored immediately on a 100-yard kickoff return. It was a wild back-and-forth affair that ended in the favor of Las Vegas (6-5) after Daniel Carlson made a 29-yard chip shot in extra time.

Sure, the Cowboys (7-4) were without starting wideouts CeeDee Lamb and Amari Cooper, but that still wasn't a result that many people saw coming. The Raiders knew that coming into AT&T Stadium. And, despite the fact that they were coming off three consecutive losses and have been through a rollercoaster season on and off the field, that didn't weaken their resolve. They played confident, hung in through the momentum swings and came away with their best win of the year.

"I felt like we showed the heart of our team today," Hunter Renfrow said. "To fight like we did, for them to go down and score and us respond, I really feel good about the character of our team, especially with what we've been through these last couple weeks. It was huge to get that win. And, hopefully, we can build on that as we go forward."

The Raiders return to Las Vegas next week to host the Washington Football Team in Week 13. Here are five takeaways from the Raiders' upset victory.

1. The offense finally got off to a good start and finished strong

The Raiders have had extremely slow starts to games this season from an offensive perspective. Coming into Thursday, they were averaging just 2.8 points per game in first quarters. Against the Cowboys, however, they popped off for a season-high 14 points in the opening quarter. In what's been a rare occurrence this year, the Raiders were playing ahead early with a 14-6 lead after the first quarter instead of trying to come from behind. That momentum carried forward as the Raiders led 17-13 after the second quarter and 27-19 after the third quarter, but they allowed the game to get tied up at 30 and then again at 33 in the fourth quarter, which sent them to their third overtime of the season.

After the defense got a stop to start the extra period, the offense put together a clutch eight-play, 67-yard drive to set up the game-winning field goal by Carlson. Ironically, the biggest play of the drive technically didn't count. Facing a daunting third-and-18 at their own 43-yard line, the Raiders dialed up a deep shot targeting Zay Jones.

Jones didn't make the catch, but he drew a 33-yard pass interference penalty by Cowboys cornerback Anthony Brown that put the Raiders in field goal range. After a few short rushes and a very weird string of penalties, Carlson won the game.

2. The defense broke down too often late but got a timely stop

Things started off pretty well for the defense. In the first half, it allowed 5.9 yards per play but only gave up two scoring drives while forcing four stops. In the second half, though, the defense took a significant step back: It gave up 6.9 yards per play and four scoring drives. The Cowboys scored on three of their final four possessions in regulation as a part of a 14-6 fourth-quarter run to send the game to overtime.

Once there, the defense bounced back in a big way. The Cowboys won the toss and elected to receive the ball first, but they were backed up at their own 7-yard line after a strange decision to return the kickoff made worse by a penalty. That's an advantageous position, for sure, but the Raiders still needed to make plays to get Dallas off the field.

On the first play of the drive, Johnathan Abram corralled Ezekiel Elliott for a 2-yard gain on a dump-off pass. On second down, Johnathan Hankins stopped Elliott on another short pass for a 4-yard gain. Then, on third down, the combination of coverage and pass rush forced Dak Prescott to escape out of the pocket and attempt to make a throw on the run. He had space to hit Noah Brown, but threw it behind the receiver, who failed to make the catch. That gave the Raiders the ball back and the Cowboys wouldn't see it again.

3. The receiving corps stepped up in the absence of Darren Waller

Darren Waller briefly left the game in the first quarter after suffering a back injury and then went down with a knee injury early in the second quarter that kept him out for the remainder of the contest. Quarterback Derek Carr was without his favorite receiver, but still completed 61.5 percent of his passes for 373 yards and a touchdown. He averaged 9.6 yards per attempt and avoided turning the ball over.

Carr deserves credit for his play, of course, but so do the receivers for filling the massive hole left behind by Waller. After the wideouts combined for just three catches last week against the Bengals, they dominated the Cowboys. Renfrow had eight catches for 134 yards, DeSean Jackson caught three passes for 102 yards and a touchdown and Zay Jones caught five passes for 59 yards. Additionally, Renfrow drew a penalty for a first down, Jackson drew two penalties for first downs and Jones drew a penalty for a first down.

There was no firm update on Waller after the game. The Raiders obviously want him back as soon as possible, but it's an encouraging sign that their other receiving options were able to be so productive without him on the field.

"I'm so proud of them," Carr said Thursday. "For all of those guys to step up, No. 1, they have two outstanding coaches in their room: Edgar Bennett and Nick Holz. We're lucky to have both of them. They're both unbelievable in the way that they prepare these guys mentally to handle all the checks that I do at the line of scrimmage. It's not easy to play in our offense. ... The way that they keep their head down and just stay at it, that's why they have days like that today. They keep working, they keep working extra with me and asking, 'What do you want this route?' even if I haven't thrown in like three weeks. ... We've had those throughout the year but it's exciting for all those guys to have a big day as a room together."

4. It was a sloppy game on both sides

Neither team turned the ball over, but penalties were plentiful. The Cowboys committed 14 penalties for 166 yards while the Raiders committed 14 penalties for 110 yards. Overall, the Cowboys were called for 18 penalties and the Raiders were called for 15. These are two of the most penalized teams in the league, so it's not necessarily surprising. A handful of the penalties were questionable, but that doesn't change the fact that this was a particularly undisciplined contest.

The Raiders committed just as many penalties as the Cowboys, but they finished on the favorable end of the yellow flag fest because of how impactful Dallas' penalties were. The Raiders converted six third and fourth downs as a result of penalties on the Cowboys. Even defensively, the Raiders gave up a first down and a touchdown that were negated by Cowboys' penalties. Las Vegas badly needs to clean up its own penalty issues, but it caught quite a few beneficial breaks in this one that contributed to the win.

5. It's hard to overstate how big this win is

The Raiders still aren't in the playoff picture — they're only the 10th seed in the AFC — but this is undoubtedly their biggest win this season. Beyond the standings, beating one of the premier teams in the league on the road coming off a short week of preparation comes with a huge morale boost that'll reverberate throughout the locker room.

"We were up against a wall," Carr said. "There was no doubt about that. That's just a fact, everyone can see that. The way we fought today and for as long as it took to win — we always say the fourth quarter or as long as it takes to win — we had to do that today and I am very proud of our team."

Offensively, Carr and the passing game rediscovered their groove and Josh Jacobs turned a season-high 24 touches into 112 yards and a touchdown. Defensively, the Raiders held one of the league's top rushing attacks to just 64 yards and got stops when it mattered most. On special teams, A.J. Cole and the punt coverage teams pinned the Cowboys within their own 20-yard line four times and Carlson was 5-for-5 on field goals.

The Raiders needed a win to save their season and pulled it off with a complete team effort against a formidable opponent in less-than-ideal circumstances. There's still work to be done and improvements to be made, but that's an enormous feat that's worth celebrating.

"Just winning the way we did in overtime with 'The Sniper' Daniel Carlson hitting that field goal, it gives us life, man," Jacobs said Thursday. "We're trying to keep going."

Derek Carr channels Jon Gruden advice in Las Vegas Raiders' OT win over Dallas Cowboys

By Paul Gutierrez

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas -- Derek Carr had not been himself since the Las Vegas Raiders emerged from their bye.

A three-game losing streak, with calls from fans for him to be replaced with Marcus Mariota at quarterback growing louder by the loss, had him feeling off. So on a short week, and with a primetime game at the Dallas Cowboys on the horizon, Carr remembered a piece of advice his former coach Jon Gruden gave him.

Don't ever take your arm out of a game.

So Carr channeled Gruden, who resigned Oct. 11 after the publication of offensive emails, in the course of the Raiders' 36-33 overtime win and passed for 373 yards, his most since Week 3, when the Raiders were 3-0.

Carr also acknowledged starting faster on offense was key. So finding DeSean Jackson on the Raiders' third play from scrimmage for a 56-yard touchdown was the chef's kiss. Even if it was early.

"We get that touchdown, I look at the scoreboard, OK, 7-0," Carr said. "I'm excited. I'm an emotional, passionate person, but my mindset literally goes, OK, 7-0. We've got to keep going."

"But I can't exhale during the game, especially with this one, how close it was. We hit that play, it's exciting ... but I can't exhale. Win or lose, whether it's going good or bad, I have to stay in the moment."

Carr also got his run game going, rushing for a 22-yard pickup. He celebrated by flashing a "shaka" hand sign at Mariota, a Hawaiian native.

"I always call myself 'Carriota' and he gets a kick out of that one," Carr said of Mariota. "Anytime I scramble in practice or in a game, I'll come up to him and be like, 'Carriota, bro,' and he'll laugh at me. Probably just to appease me. It felt good to be able to pick up that. They actually got tripped up, and I felt it. Honestly it was just experience at that point. I knew they were in the man coverage look on the backend, and when that gain happened and they didn't have contain, I just took off."

Said interim coach Rich Bisaccia: "Derek is his biggest critic. ... He's been off sync a little bit; we've all been off sync.

"Today he looked like Derek Carr. It's fun to watch him play."

The Raiders, who play host to Washington in 10 days, have endured the Gruden resignation as well as the trauma and tragedy of former receiver Henry Ruggs III's high-speed car crash that killed a 23-year-old woman and her dog.

With Ruggs released, the Raiders' vertical threat was gone. So they signed Jackson, who turns 35 on Wednesday but is rounding into form for Las Vegas.

"One thing I've tried to do this year, especially when [Ruggs] was here, I was going to be so aggressive," Carr said. "It leads sometimes to not completing as many balls on a percentage chart, but to me, Gruden used to tell me, 'Don't ever take your arm out of a game.' So when we call these things, let's rip 'em."

Las Vegas Raiders answer the call vs. Dallas to keep their playoff hopes alive

By Paul Gutierrez

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas -- No, the Las Vegas Raiders are not done. Not after upsetting the Dallas Cowboys 36-33 in overtime Thursday and ending their three-game, post-bye losing streak.

At 6-5, thanks to Daniel Carlson's 29-yard field goal with 4:28 left in OT, the Raiders now have 10 days to prep for their next outing -- a more-than-winnable home game against the Washington Football Team. And depending upon what the Kansas City Chiefs and Los Angeles Chargers do this weekend, the Raiders could be looking pretty in less than two weeks.

Funny how a win is the ultimate deodorant for a team that had been stinking it up of late.

Receiver Hunter Renfrow said it may have been too earlier to call it a "must-win" situation, "But I think we felt it a little bit [because] 5-6 is a whole lot worse than 6-5. And to beat a good Cowboys team, on Thanksgiving, on prime time, it gives us a lot of confidence going forward ... we have a long road ahead of us, but we took a step in the right direction today."

Said quarterback Derek Carr: "No one thought we were going to win this game. Don't really blame you, for how we've played the last week...I gave it my all, just like I always do. We just executed better today. "Our back was against the wall."

Describe the game in two words. Heart-stopper. Blowing a nine-point second-half lead, only to see three flags on the final game-winning kick, how else would you describe it?

Promising trend: DeSean Jackson being used as more than a deep decoy to clear out the underneath. Jackson, who turns 35 on Dec. 1, showed his preternatural speed on his 56-yard run-and-catch touchdown on Las Vegas' third play from scrimmage, going right to left and racing up the sideline. Later, he picked up a huge pass interference penalty in the end zone on a deep ball to get the Raiders at the 1-yard line.

QB breakdown: Carr has been in a three-game, post-bye funk, with six turnovers to four touchdown passes, but did not commit a turnover against the Cowboys. He may not have been as sharp as he was earlier in the season -- he was 24-of-39 -- but he passed for 373 yards. And that was more than enough. The Raiders are now 28-3 under Carr when scoring at least 30 points and 6-1 in overtime.

Pivotal play: A special teams breakdown by the Raiders. After Marcus Mariota scored on a 3-yard zone-read touchdown run to give Las Vegas a 24-13 lead midway through the third quarter, Tony Pollard returned the ensuing kickoff 100 yards down the left sideline for a TD to deflate the Raiders, whose interim coach Rich Bisaccia is also the special teams coordinator, and give the Cowboys hope.

Silver lining: The emergence of Zay Jones as a threat. No, you never want to lose a Pro Bowl tight end, but after Darren Waller injured his left knee in the second quarter, things opened up for Jones. Indeed, Jones, who tweaked his back earlier in the game, had a season-high five catches for 59 yards and if Waller is out for an extended amount of time, Jones has shown he can be trusted ... so to speak. His drawing a pass interference penalty on a deep ball at the Cowboys' 24-yard line against Anthony Brown on third-and-long in overtime set up the game winner.

Eye-popping NextGen stat: The Raiders had seven first downs via penalty, tied for the most in a game over the past 20 seasons (2016 vs. the Denver Broncos).

Raiders Beat Cowboys 36-33 In OT On Field Goal After Penalty

By Schuyler Dixon

November 25, 2021

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Derek Carr and the Las Vegas Raiders got the third-down help they needed from Dallas cornerback Anthony Brown.

Daniel Carlson kicked a 29-yard field goal in overtime after Brown's fourth pass-interference penalty kept the drive alive, and the Raiders ended a three-game losing streak by beating the Cowboys 36-33 on Thursday.

Carlson's career-best fifth field goal came after Brown was called for interference on Zay Jones on third-and-18. All four of Brown's interference penalties came on third-down incompletions.

"The penalties obviously helped," said Carr, whose 373 yards passing included a 56-yard touchdown to DeSean Jackson for the first points. "If they weren't holding, we probably would have hit those plays."

The Raiders had just two third-down conversions total the previous two games and were 3 of 13 in this one. But Brown topped that total all by himself.

"Just one of them days," Brown said. "I feel like I was in position for all of them, tried to turn my head. On some of them I did have my head turned. Just try to get better."

Both teams had season highs in penalties and yards. Dallas, the NFL leader in penalty yards coming in, had 14 for a franchise-record 166 yards and Las Vegas 14 for 110.

A holding call on perennial Pro Bowl left tackle Tyron Smith in his first game back after missing three with an ankle injury negated a Dallas touchdown early in the fourth quarter. The Cowboys settled for a field goal.

"Twenty-eight penalties, I don't know what the hell you want me to say," Dallas coach Mike McCarthy said. "Write what you want. I'm all for it."

The Raiders (6-5) won on Thanksgiving for the first time since 1968. It was their fourth appearance on the holiday since then, with the previous two losses coming at the Cowboys.

"It kind of gave me goose bumps, I'm not going to lie," Carr said. "When that kick went through, I had a lot of memories as a kid."

Dak Prescott had 209 of his 375 yards passing in the fourth quarter. His 32-yard touchdown pass to Dalton Schultz and 2-point conversion toss to the tight end pulled the Cowboys (7-4) even at 30 with 2:54 remaining after they trailed almost from the start.

Carlson put Las Vegas ahead 33-30 with a career-long 56-yarder with 1:52 remaining. Greg Zuerlein, who missed an extra point after the first Dallas TD, answered with a 45-yarder with 19 seconds to go.

Tony Pollard had a 100-yard kickoff return for Dallas in the third quarter, but was stopped inside the 15 to start overtime. The Cowboys went three-and-out after a penalty pushed them back to the 7, and the Raiders finished off the third victory for the AFC West against the NFC East-leading Cowboys in the past four games.

Brown had his back to Jones when Carr threw the pass with Las Vegas at its 43. The penalty put the Raiders at the Dallas 24, and the winning kick came after the Cowboys were penalized twice for rushing past the line of scrimmage before the snap.

Carr was 24 of 39 without an interception, and Hunter Renfrow had career highs in catches (eight) and yards (134). Marcus Mariota scored from the 3 on a shotgun keeper.

The Dallas offense struggled early without top receivers Amari Cooper (COVID-19 protocols) and CeeDee Lamb (concussion) and running back Ezekiel Elliott nursing a right knee injury. The NFL's No. 1 offense bounced back to finish with 437 yards, but the Raiders had a season-high 509.

"We had some explosive plays and we gave up some explosive plays," said interim coach Rich Bisaccia, who left after five seasons with the Cowboys to join the Raiders in 2018.

Jackson tip-toed successfully on the sideline to open the scoring and drew one of the interference penalties against Brown in the end zone to set up Josh Jacobs' 1-yard TD.

Sean McKeon had his first career touchdown, a 10-yard catch for the Cowboys' first points. Elliott, who was limited to nine carries for 25 yards, had a 1-yard TD.

PAIR OF EJECTIONS

Kelvin Joseph of Dallas and Roderic Teamer of the Raiders were ejected after getting personal foul penalties at the end of a Las Vegas punt on the first possession of the second half. Field judge Tom Hill ended up with a small cut on his chin during the fracas on the Raiders' sideline.

It was the second consecutive week the Cowboys had a run-in with the opponent during a punt. And the rookie Joseph ended up with the rest of the game off a week after staying home for personal reasons.

GO LONG

Jackson, who spent the first six of his 14 years with Philadelphia, has six career TD catches against his former NFC East rival. Five of those have covered at least 56 yards, including a 91-yarder with the Eagles in 2010 and an 81-yarder in his second stint with Philadelphia last season.

INJURIES

Raiders TE Darren Waller was ruled out after leaving the game twice, first with a back injury and then a knee issue. ... DE Carl Nassib also injured a knee and didn't return, while CB Brandon Facyson was ruled out with a concussion.

Derek Carr, Raiders offense feasts on the Cowboys defense in Thanksgiving win

By Levi Edwards

November 25, 2021

The Las Vegas Raiders were put in a situation with plenty to lose — but even more to gain.

The Silver and Black came into a hostile environment against a 7-3 Dallas Cowboys team in their traditional nationally televised Thanksgiving game. Not to mention they were coming off their third consecutive loss, with the last one having just come four days prior. To add insult to injury, Darren Waller (knee), Carl Nassib (knee) and Roderic Teamer (disqualification) were all sidelined for a large stretch of the game.

And yet... fighting against the odds, the Raiders once again found a way to deliver.

"Our back was against the wall. There's no doubt about that. That's just a fact; everyone could see that," said Derek Carr after the three-point victory. "And in the way that we fought today and for as long as it took to win ... we had to do that today, and I'm very proud of our team."

The Cowboys were also at a disadvantage going into the game without star receivers Amari Cooper and CeeDee Lamb. The Raiders defense capitalized on that, making plays to get off the field quickly and giving Carr and his offense ample time to make plays. Las Vegas had nearly 13 more minutes of time of possession with the ball Thursday.

Carr threw for 373 yards and a touchdown with a 101.5 quarterback rating, his first game over 300 passing yards since the Raiders' Week 7 win over the Philadelphia Eagles and his sixth 300+ passing yard game on the season. It's worth noting the Raiders are also undefeated in games with Carr throwing more than 300 yards.

With Waller's early exit, Carr's main targets were DeSean Jackson and Hunter Renfrow. He connected with each on a pass of 50+ yards with Jackson's 56-yard touchdown grab moving him into a tie with Jerry Rice for the most 50+ yard catches in NFL history.

"It's his third weekend playing with us, and I think the packages you saw come to fruition a little bit today," Interim Head Coach Rich Bisaccia said of Jackson. "The big thing was Derek had a lot of time. I thought he stepped up in there today and made really incredible plays. ... But you can see DeSean hopefully getting more and more comfortable with what we're asking him to do. ... One thing he can still do is run.

"It was fun to watch him. Even he made the comment he was excited to contribute today, and it was good for him, and it was good for us."

To make his performance even more impressive, he's less than a week away from turning 35 years old.

"S**t, I didn't know he was 35," exclaimed Josh Jacobs after the game. "He looks so effortless too! He just be gliding, that's crazy."

"That dude is electric," Jacobs continued. "It's crazy, I had talked to him after the game last week and I had told him, 'Man, we have to find a way to get you the ball,' and just to see him come in and make big play after big play is definitely major."

Meanwhile, Renfrow had career highs in receiving yards (134) and catches (eight) in his first Thanksgiving game.

"It feels like we showed the heart of our team today," said Renfrow. "To fight like we did, for them to go down and score and for us to respond. I really feel good about the character of our team, especially with what we've been through these last couple of weeks. It was huge to get that win and hopefully we can build on that as we go forward."

Thursday was the first time the Raiders had two receivers go for more than 100 yards in a game since December 29, 2019.

"He's a great player for a reason, and it's a lot of fun playing with him," Renfrow said about Jackson. "And he's someone who can change the game, and it's a lot of fun playing with someone like that."

The Raiders now have a long weekend to rest up, eat Thanksgiving leftovers and prepare for another NFC East opponent – the Washington Football Team.

Daniel Carlson takes a bite out of Cowboys, postgame turkey leg thanks to MVP performance

By Rachel Gossen

November 25, 2021

Daniel Carlson's name is becoming synonymous with the word clutch.

Thursday's 29-yard field goal that sealed a 36-33 win over the Dallas Cowboys was the fourth-year kicker's second OT game-winner this season, and there was never a doubt he would nail it.

"I knew they were going to try to ice him, but when I saw him talk to AJ [Cole] – he looked at AJ, and they both sit there like this [nodding], I said, 'Oh yeah, it's going in,'" Josh Jacobs said postgame.

Before that game-winner though, Carlson was stalled by two neutral zone infraction penalties, but didn't let it phase him.

"For me, it's just blocking it out and taking one rep at a time. ... It felt like an eternity out there, having to kick it – I think I kicked three of them," he said. "Really, I kicked two of them, one I was like, 'I might as well try to hit it and maybe even with a flag, it'll count,' so I kind of half kicked it. You know, trying to take them one at a time and seal the deal."

Carlson also set a new career high in the game when he drilled a 56-yard field goal in the fourth quarter, putting the Raiders up 33-30. On the day, he totaled another career-high with 18 points on five field goals and three PATs.

This overtime clincher will hold a special place for all the Raiders, not only because it was a much-needed win after three straight losses but they got to celebrate a Thanksgiving W at the iconic AT&T Stadium.

"It does feel good. It kind of gave me goosebumps, not going to lie, when that kick went through," Derek Carr told CBS reporter Tracy Wolfson postgame. "I had a lot of memories of as a kid – seeing little kids wearing my jersey, I was doing the same thing with Deion Sanders and all that kind of stuff. To see that, I'm blessed."

Carlson attributed the win to the grit the team has dug into as they have faced adversity through 12 weeks of the season.

"Every win's important. We've been working really hard," the kicker said. "It's tough when things don't go your way for a few weeks. On a short week to be able to get a win like that, that helps us going forward. Like I said, I think that just speaks to the character of this team and our will to win."

And Carlson celebrated his MVP day in true holiday fashion – taking a big bite of a turkey leg at the end of the game.

Cash Money Carlson shows off once again

The game came down to the line — and to Daniel Carlson's foot — once again.

In total Carlson booted in 18 total points, with the most important three coming on a 29-yard FG to win the game 36-33 over the Cowboys in overtime. Carlson also knocked in a career-long 56-yard field goal near the end of the fourth quarter.

Playing tag in Dallas

After Darren Waller was ruled out for the second half, the Raiders offense leaned on No. 13.

Hunter Renfrow strung together a solid performance at AT&T Stadium, ending the game with 134 yards and eight catches, good for the most receiving yards No. 13 has ever had in his professional career.

Lots of laundry on the field

The yellow flag found its way onto the field regularly Thursday.

Between Dallas and Las Vegas, there was a combination of more than 200 penalty yards accounted for this game. The Raiders had 14 penalties for 110 yards while the Cowboys also had 14 penalties for 166 yards.

Cali kid in the Lone Star State

DeSean Jackson has been a nightmare for the Cowboys, dating back to his days of dominating in the NFC East with the Philadelphia Eagles.

This was Jackson's breakout game in the Silver and Black, seemingly picking up the full playbook in his third game with the team. DJax finished with 102 yards on three catches with a touchdown.

'Electric' DeSean Jackson helps open up Raiders' offense in win over Cowboys

By Kevin Patra

November 26, 2021

DeSean Jackson turns 35 years old next week. But the receiver can still fly and torture the Dallas Cowboys.

The new Las Vegas wideout scorched his old foe for a 56-yard catch-and-run on the Raiders' third play to kick off the 36-33 overtime win on Thanksgiving. Jackson used his speed to catch three passes for 102 yards and a touchdown, and earned a couple of big defensive pass interference penalties as well.

"S---, I didn't know he was 35," running back Josh Jacobs exclaimed after the win, via the team's official website. "He looks so effortless too! He just be gliding, that's crazy.

"That dude is electric. It's crazy, I had talked to him after the game last week and I had told him, 'Man, we have to find a way to get you the ball,' and just to see him come in and make big play after big play is definitely major."

Jackson's touchdown was his 34th career TD of 50-plus yards, the second-most in NFL history -- two behind Jerry Rice for most all-time. It was also his fourth career receiving TD of 50-plus yards at AT&T Stadium, tied with Dez Bryant and Amari Cooper for the most such touchdowns in stadium history.

Jackson played just 25 total snaps in his first two games with the Raiders catching one pass for 38 yards that resulted in a fumble and rushing once for four yards. Thursday, the speedster got 39 of 77 offensive plays. The added speed element to the Raiders passing attack had been missing since the club released Henry Ruggs III following his arrest on a DUI resulting in a death charge.

Interim coach Rich Bisaccia said the Thanksgiving performance is a sign that Jackson is becoming comfortable in the Raiders offense.

"It's his third weekend playing with us, and I think the packages you saw come to fruition a little bit today," Bisaccia said. "The big thing was Derek (Carr) had a lot of time. I thought he stepped up in there today and made really incredible plays. ... But you can see DeSean hopefully getting more and more comfortable with what we're asking him to do. ... One thing he can still do is run.

"It was fun to watch him. Even he made the comment he was excited to contribute today, and it was good for him, and it was good for us."

Owner Mark Davis

LAS VEGAS REVIEW JOURNAL

Raiders owner Mark Davis is emerging from his father's shadow

By Ed Graney

May 27, 2020

Raiders owner Mark Davis is used to life in the shadow of his father Al, whose massive legacy is matched by few in the history of professional football.

Slowly but surely, however, Mark is creating one of his own. Even if he doesn't allow himself to see it that way.

"I've always said the least important thing in life is the score at halftime, so I can't be thinking about legacies right now," Davis said. "We're talking about building something."

That process began with his relocation of the Raiders from Oakland to Las Vegas and their spectacular new home that is Allegiant Stadium. It continued when Davis purchased in January the WNBA's Las Vegas Aces.

Al Davis remains, now and forever, the most indelible figure of all things Raiders. He died in 2011, but his presence defines the organization. It happens when you are principal owner and general manager for 39 years.

That 85-foot memorial torch inside Allegiant Stadium might be ceremoniously lit to honor Davis before each home game, but understand that the successful and controversial flame ignited by him when running the Raiders will never really expire.

"Al was a genius and a progressive, but he also had paranoid tendencies," said longtime Bay Area sports columnist Ray Ratto. "His story is told through one of those prisms depending on who is telling it."

Ratto said father and son are alike in one significant regard. "Take me the way I am" is an approach to life they share.

"Maybe that is (Mark's) legacy — don't go out and seek a positive one but that he doesn't want a negative one," Ratto said. "Who does? That makes him closer to the every-man owner than maybe anybody in sports."

One whose arrival to Las Vegas has proven to be a financial bonanza.

A tidy return on investment: The Raiders today are ranked as the world's 29th most valuable sports franchise at an estimated $3.1 billion. In the last five years, that value has jumped some 117 percent. Which brings us to what Las Vegas has done for the Raiders, the most prominent example being that $750 million public contribution toward the building of Allegiant Stadium.

It was never going to happen in Oakland. There was never going to be enough money to raise a new stadium in place of the dilapidated Coliseum. It's why, ultimately, Davis found a new home in Las Vegas.

Time will pass, those from both sides of the stadium dispute between the Raiders and the city of Oakland promise, and the entire narrative as to all that transpired will be told.

Some believe it rather simple: That the reason Davis was initially involved in a potential move to Los Angeles (one the Rams and Chargers now share) and the reason he flirted with San Antonio in trying to create a market was that he long since accepted the realities of Oakland.

The city wasn't going to invest hundreds of millions in public money toward a new venue, so Davis discovered in Las Vegas the largest public subsidy ever earmarked for an NFL stadium.

"For anyone to question his desire to get something done in the Bay Area is both ignorant and uninformed," Raiders president Marc Badain said. "Even up until the time we were negotiating here, he always said (Oakland) had a chance."

Community driven

This might not define a legacy, but it is stuff of legend: During the long and dreary days of a pandemic shut-in, Davis hunkered down at his temporary home — Westgate Las Vegas.

"I was the only person living there," Davis said. "There were like 25 security people there on a daily basis. Other than that, I was the only one. It was like 'The Shining.' Everyone in (Las Vegas) was looking for toilet paper and I had 3,000 rooms' worth."

Believe it. He would have invited the entire city inside if allowed.

Davis will tell you how significant those two years leading up to the official move were in connecting his franchise to Las Vegas. NFL owners approved relocation in March of 2017, but the Raiders remained in Oakland until they could officially kick off at Allegiant.

While there is no debating the intimate connection felt between the Golden Knights and Las Vegas — one forged from the October 1 mass shooting during the NHL team's expansion season — the Raiders too have spent their short time here integrating themselves into the community.

Rare is it that a few weeks pass without a press release announcing another outreach program. Recognizing local teachers. Hosting local prep football teams for games at Allegiant Stadium. Feeding the hungry. Working with veterans. Visiting hospitals and middle schools and high schools. Promoting the COVID-19 vaccines.

"Their involvement in the community is really impressive," Gov. Steve Sisolak said. "They don't say, 'No,' when you ask them for something. They just say, 'Yes,' to any community service item." Davis has often said he wanted the organization to earn such attachment, which he doesn't think would have occurred if the Raiders had arrived earlier and, say, played a few years at Sam Boyd Stadium.

He believed all infrastructure needed to be in place.

“Mark has made a commitment to Las Vegas and delivered every step of the way,” Raiders head coach Jon Gruden said. “The community is really important to him and he’s proud to be part of it. It shows the way Las Vegas has embraced the team. You can feel the excitement everywhere around here.”

Need to win more

All of his dreams for the Raiders had come true. The beautiful practice facility. The magnificent stadium. The community interest.

“And then the pandemic hit and the world stopped,” Davis said. “That’s how life goes sometimes.” What those who committed to paying traditional sky-high NFL season ticket prices missed watching in person last season was an 8-8 team whose franchise missed the playoffs for a 17th time in 18 years. Gruden will now enter a fourth year since returning to the sidelines. He is 19-29 on this second go-round after signing a reported 10-year deal in 2018 to get things turned.

They haven’t been yet.

“My role in taking over for my father when he passed away was to continue the legacy that he built and the mystique of the Raiders,” Davis said. “The one thing that I have failed in so far is we haven’t won. That’s what this team is about. It drives me, absolutely. It does.

“I felt bringing Jon Gruden into the organization was very stabilizing and he has a long time to do the things he needs to in order to get it done. I wasn’t looking for a quick fix. I was looking for something that we built for the future. We’re doing a wonderful job off the field, but we have a lot of work to do on it.”

The latter isn’t an issue with his other team.

Passion for hoops

Over nearly 30 years working for the Raiders, during which time she became the NFL’s first female front office executive, Amy Trask would frequently need to discuss a matter with Al Davis or have him sign a document.

Often, she was made to wait.

“He would be involved watching a women’s basketball game,” Trask said. “His interest and love for women’s basketball was as strong as it could be. When I heard Mark purchased the Aces, it made me smile.”

If the Raiders are the impetus by which Davis’ heart beats, it appears he has saved a portion for the Aces.

He bought the team from MGM Resorts International and is building an 80,000 square-foot training facility next to the Raiders’ headquarters in Henderson.

Davis has been a courtside staple since 2017. Two years later, the Raiders purchased 1,600 tickets for local youth to attend home games. Davis recently announced that Aces season-ticket holders — around 2,000 — will attend games this season for free. He is eating the entire cost.

Numbers are sometimes just that. His football team has a 53-player roster and $180 million salary cap. His basketball team has 12 players and a $1.3 million cap.

Davis, though, recognizes the disparity in compensation between his male and female athletes and has already proven to be overly passionate about ensuring women receive a larger piece of the financial pie. He is pushing fellow WNBA owners to negotiate a more lucrative media rights deal.

“It will be a different style of ownership from the big conglomerate to an individual, but the commitment from (Davis) is as much or even more than the MGM,” said Aces coach Bill Laimbeer, whose team is among the favorites to win this year’s title. “His commitment to making us as good as we can be is phenomenal.

“My goal is to educate him. He wants to learn everything about the women’s game. In the long run, I’d like to see him have whatever say he chooses — hey, it’s his money — but he knows he has a long ways to go. He wants to be taught and that’s wonderful, from both a basketball and business side as well.” Already, the first-year owner is dreaming about how legacies can be born for all involved. What’s he looking forward to most?

“Designing that (championship) ring,” Davis said.

It’s still halftime

Even on one of the most important days of his life — March 27, 2017 — Davis spoke about another. Minutes after league owners voted 31-1 in favor of the Raiders relocating to Las Vegas, Davis stood behind a podium in Phoenix and talked about how his father often stated that the greatness of the Raiders was in its future.

The prospects for a rewarding one born and nurtured in Las Vegas seem more likely than ever. “Al Davis was Oakland and Mark Davis will be Las Vegas,” Sisolak said. “The thing that has surprised me most is how approachable he is. He’s very recognizable — I don’t want to say it’s the haircut, but that certainly helps — and he takes an inordinate amount of time to visit with anybody and sign autographs and talk to people. He shows and feels his best relating to everyday people.”

In the end, legacies are built. It’s just that many prefer to focus on the process and not the outcome. So maybe that’s it, then, for Davis.

Maybe it’s still halftime and he’s not near ready to keep score.

“His (legacy) never has seemed to be the motivation behind any of his decisions,” Badain said. “When people ask me about him, I say he’s the anti-sports owner. He doesn’t want any credit. He doesn’t really want his name in the paper, but he will put his face out there when things go badly.”

As an example, Davis last month took responsibility for a tweet that appeared on the team’s official account about the verdict in the George Floyd murder case that was roundly criticized as insensitive. It read, “I CAN BREATHE 4-20-21,” which Davis meant as a way to applaud the guilty verdict. But an hour after the tweet went public, it already had received nearly 20,000 comments and more than 15,000 retweets. Most were of a highly critical nature.

“But when things are going well, you don’t hear from him,” Badain said. “I really can’t see the motivation for himself to create a legacy.”

With or without one, Mark Davis has changed the trajectory of Las Vegas sports forever. Somewhere in there, perhaps not yet detectable, is a pretty amazing legacy.

THE ATHLETIC

New city, new man: How Las Vegas has changed Raiders owner Mark Davis

By Vic Tafur

July 22, 2020

LAS VEGAS — Back before the pandemic, Raiders coach Jon Gruden hit the Las Vegas Strip pretty hard for a few days, sampling some of the prized steak houses, enjoying an Aerosmith concert and appearing on social media posts with comedian Carrot Top.

“I was getting pissed at him,” team owner Mark Davis said, laughing. “He stole my 15 minutes of fame. I told him to go home.”

While Gruden, a celebrity coach who used to be a TV star, is the face of the franchise, Davis holds the keys to the city. After years of struggling to get a new stadium in Oakland and then falling short in an attempt to move to Los Angeles, Davis sits in Las Vegas with a state-of-the-art, $1.85 billion stadium that is 98 percent completed and on track to be ready for the 2020 season.

Davis has immersed himself in the community since moving to Las Vegas last summer.

“The buzz has been unbelievable,” Davis said in an hour-long sitdown interview on Saturday. “The fans here have just been so welcoming. They are stopping me and thanking us for coming, while I’m trying to thank them for bringing us.”

Nevada Gov. Steve Sisolak first met Davis four years ago and is amazed by just how many people Davis talks to.

“Mark is an unusual character,” Sisolak said in a phone interview Tuesday. “I have gotten to know a lot of wealthy and very powerful individuals, and Mark is the most unique of all of them. He is at his best, his comfort zone is with regular people. When he is on-site, he is always in the back talking to kitchen workers. And he will sign autographs until there is no one left. And you can tell he enjoys taking the selfies and chatting with these guys. He really gets close with people.”

Allegiant Stadium may not have people cheering at games this season due to the pandemic, but it looks great and a visit last week saw workers looking back and admiring it at the end of their shifts.

“It’s a phenomenal feeling,” Davis said. “To get through the trials and tribulations and actually get it done on time. The pride that the workers showed in this building, man, they really did ... they loved working on it. Every three months before the pandemic hit, we would serve them a big-ass lunch and go through and thank every one of them. They just had so much pride in building this thing.

“You see them building hotels around here and you don’t see the same enthusiasm about a project. They are the MVPs. I just can’t thank them enough.”

A new owner in a new city, Davis is also a new man.

After years of thinking that players should not protest or take a stand on issues while on the football field, he started changing his mind three years ago — before a weird game in Washington that Davis felt set the team back years. He has now reached a point where he is one of only a handful of NFL owners to say “Black Lives Matter” after the killing of George Floyd by a police officer in Minnesota and the subsequent protests around the country.

In a statement the team posted on social media, Davis said, “To watch a man be murdered by a uniformed police officer kneeling on the man’s throat for nine minutes while three uniformed police officers either assisted or stood by watching is disturbing in too many ways. To be honest I’m surprised that the resulting violence hasn’t been much worse.”

Davis has since met with Nevada Attorney General Aaron Ford, Clark County Sheriff Joseph Lombardo and Gruden about how they can make a positive social impact coming into the Las Vegas community.

“The initial thing is trust,” Davis said. “The officers need to trust the players and their families, and the players need to trust the officers so we can all say that we are on the same team.

“We discussed a lot of different programs and things that we can do. As soon as this virus is over, we’re going to get together and have an eye-to-eye and let everyone talk and speak from the heart, so we’re all starting on the same page. Starting in the local community is the quickest and most effective way for us to make a difference.”

Davis has also sat in on Zoom meetings that his players had to discuss social injustice.

“They are really stressing voting, and getting the word out how important it is to vote,” he said. “Making sure people know how to register to vote. If you want change, that’s really the only way to go about doing it, voting. The players would also have mentorships with kids in the community and make appearances with officers in schools, together, showing that they are on the same team and it’s not us versus them.”

Players are planning to make a stand against police violence before games — possibly taking a knee during the national anthem — and Davis is fine with that. He wasn’t for a long time, but that changed just before that Washington game in 2017.

Actually, it goes back to 1968.

“I was 13 years old then and there was a lot of social change going on in the Bay Area — we had Berkeley, Hells Angels, the Black Panthers, People’s Park, the war in Vietnam,” Davis said. “We had all that going on and it’s so remarkable to me the violence that was going on then and the protests and kids getting the shit kicked out of them. And then what was going on in Los Angeles and across the country in Black communities.

“And now, today, people think we are in a tough situation with Black Lives Matter and George Floyd,” he said. “When you look back at ’68, I think people have been actually pretty calm about what’s going on now. You think about it, has anything really changed in 50 years? There’s been progress, but certainly not enough.”

Davis admitted that he didn’t know what to make of Colin Kaepernick’s 2016 protests during the national anthem at first.

“My hero was Tommie Smith,” Davis said. “Fist in the air. Strength. That was quite a statement. I didn’t see strength in Colin kneeling, and there was some confusion at first over what he was kneeling for. A little bit before that Washington game, I had told the players that while I was the first person for social justice and the Raiders are the first team in the world for social justice, I would prefer that if you had something to say, you don’t do it in a Raiders uniform. Because then you’re speaking for all 53 players and everyone that works in this organization. And they may not all agree with you.”

Davis asked them to speak out after games and said he would stand with them then if they wanted. He thought the message was well received but wasn’t sure what the players would do. Then, two days before the game at Washington, President Donald Trump called NFL players who kneeled “sons of bitches.”

“Certain things happened and the national climate changed. Things got hot and that clicked me back to 1968,” Davis said. “I called in Derek (Carr) and Khalil (Mack) and told them that I can no longer ask them not to say something while you’re in uniform. And that if they were going to say something, say it with class and pride and try and say it as a team. There won’t be a fine.”

While Davis gave his blessing, there was still a lot of debate and uneasiness in the locker room going into the game. Coach Jack Del Rio clearly sided with Trump that players should not protest during the anthem. Carr and Mack, meanwhile, were not polished leaders and did not pull off the unified front, as some players kneeled during the anthem, others stood and many sat on the benches with their arms interlocked.

“Everybody took a different path,” Davis said.

Carr took a beating that game, as the listless Raiders were dominated, 27-10, and would go on to lose four straight games to erase a 2-0 start to the season. The rumors spread that the offensive linemen let Carr get hit over the differences of opinion over the pregame protest.

The players on the team all deny this, and most point to the offense falling apart under new coordinator Todd Downing, with former linebacker Del Rio and offensive line coach Mike Tice getting too involved in the play calling.

But there was definitely something hanging in the air in the locker room.

“People respected that Derek stood,” former Raiders defensive lineman Mario Edwards Jr. told The Athletic’s David Lombardi in 2018. “It’s a free country. But people definitely had their feelings about it. We had a group of people that sat and a group of people that stood, and that’s where it really started separating.

“And then some people started getting upset like, ‘OK, if you’re going to sit now, how about you start doing stuff to actually make a difference? Don’t sit down just to sit down because it’s cool, let’s sit down to make a difference.’ So then we started pointing fingers and it started going downhill from there.”

Davis can’t imagine that teammates let Carr get hit.

“I wasn’t inside enough to know what was really going on, and I take the blame for that,” Davis said. “And it killed our team for the rest of that year. It tore at the heart of our team. It was a total defeat — socially, on the field, everything. It was a disaster. Just a terrible night. And it was my fault, because I was at the top of the food chain.”

(Del Rio was fired at the end of the season, after Davis finally succeeded in his long-time courtship to get Gruden to return for a second stint as Raiders coach.)

Davis has been more demonstrative this time around, trying to steer the organization’s response to police violence.

“I have taken a lot of criticism over saying Black Lives Matter,” Davis said. “I am not backing some Marxist organization, it’s just a clean statement. Obviously, all lives matter, but where we’re at right now, we have to make clear that Black lives matter because a part of our society needs to hear that after what’s been going on. We have to stop police brutality.

“We have two pandemics this year, social justice and COVID virus.”

When Davis visits his new baby, his favorite two things about the stadium are the grass field and the 85-foot Al Davis torch, honoring his late father.

“Those were the two must-haves,” Davis said. “Non-negotiable. I give all the credit in the world to (Arizona Cardinals owner) Michael Bidwill for taking the risk to actually do a grass field in Arizona that grows outside and actually rolls into the stadium, and then all of the help that they gave us. They helped effectuate that for our stadium. ... Football should be played on grass.”

Davis stresses that while Allegiant Stadium is multipurpose, it was made for football.

“The sidelines are very tight and everybody is going to be right on top of the field,” Davis said. “It’s going to be exciting.”

Fans have begun referring to Allegiant Stadium as “The Death Star” because some think it resembles the “Star Wars” space station, and Davis is over the moon about it.

“That’s just spectacular,” he said. “Disney is kind of excited that that name was attached to the stadium, as well. But that came from the fans. I love that.”

While the Raiders won’t announce the formation of a “Black Hole” fan section like there was in Oakland, it’s already incubating. It will be in the end zone section that doesn’t have a club area.

“If the fans want to consider that the Black Hole, they can absolutely do it,” Davis said. “I don’t try and tell fans what to do, I like organic. But it’s very clear that that one end zone will be the Black Hole. A good amount of fans who were in that section in Oakland have bought seats in that section.

“That’s part of our legacy.”

There are roughly 9,000 fans from Oakland that have bought season tickets, Davis said.

“When I run into them when I am in the Bay Area, they tell me that it hurts that we left, but they understand why,” Davis said. “Ninety percent are on a positive note. It’s very heartening. The other 10 percent are very, very angry at me. But I am willing to talk to them and explain to them what the reasoning was. And for some, they were still mad after I tell them.

“I totally understand the passion and that they aren’t forgiving.”

Davis has always spent a lot of time talking to fans, often holding court in the lobby of the Napa Valley Marriott after training camp practices.

“Seeing what the A’s are going through right now, knowing what a tough situation we were in,” Davis said. “I wouldn’t say getting a new stadium in Oakland was impossible, but it was pretty damn impossible. I think most of the fans understand that, and that’s important to me.”

Davis said the Raiders also have 8,000 fans coming from their other former home, Los Angeles, and he wonders what people are talking about when they say that the Raiders have lost the fever pitch that their fans had in Oakland.

“You hear people say that the crowd is going to be 50/50 with our fans and the opposing team’s fans, but the only way the other team’s fans get in is if our fans sell their tickets,” Davis said. “Because they are all sold out. We have to win so that they don’t sell their tickets, but I understand that if they can get $2,000 a ticket for the Chiefs game or Tom Brady game.

“I think a lot of people try to kiss it off and say we sold all the tickets to the hotels or the brokers, and that’s the farthest thing from the truth.”

It sounds as if there will be no fans at Allegiant Stadium this season, but Davis thinks fans will be pleased with what they see on TV. He thinks his team is set up to win and is particularly excited about the first-round draft pick who reminds him of his late friend, Cliff Branch. And of his father, late owner Al Davis.

“Henry Ruggs was the player I wanted for the last six months,” Davis said. “My dad was always trying to replace Cliff with so many different types of guys. ... Speed, speed, speed and we really got away from that the last five, six, seven years. We really didn’t have anybody that could run. Nobody could run.

“I watched Henry Ruggs and his speed and quickness and his strength were pretty impressive. And then if you see his baseball highlights, my God. He made some nice tackles on interceptions and he’ll block too. He is a complete player. I was just so thrilled that we drafted him. Maybe that’s the piece that we haven’t had that’s Raiders football. You throw it deep the first play and the safety is worried the whole game.”

Ruggs is potentially the one new starter on an offense that has its quarterback, offensive line, running backs, receivers and tight ends back from last season. That familiarity should bode well as teams had to shelve their offseason workouts and now the preseason games have been canceled.

“There was so much talk this offseason about other quarterbacks and things of that nature, and having Derek (Carr) come back and the continuity he brings with how little time that players have to work together is probably a positive thing,” Davis said.

Davis thinks the life came back into the organization when Gruden came aboard, but more so when the Raiders beat Mack and the Bears in London last season. They had traded away Mack, the former defensive player of the year, before the 2018 season for no immediate return as they awaited the future draft picks in 2019 and 2020. The two first-rounders turned out to be running back Josh Jacobs and cornerback Damon Arnette.

“After that Bears game, people realized that we hadn’t given away the ship with Khalil,” Davis said. “We have such good young guys today. They are really working hard this offseason. And it’s not the coolest weather.”

The new practice facility has outdoor and indoor fields, and Davis said the only person more excited than the players is Gruden.

“He is really excited,” Davis said. “The facility gives him an opportunity to do something he’s never had the opportunity to do — having everything at his disposal as far as the film-editing and the technology, the rooms, just everything.”

The Raiders will be having training camp at the facility starting next Tuesday, but Davis hopes to return to Napa next summer.

“I would like to continue to do it there,” Davis said. “It is one of the most beautiful places in the world and gives us ties back to our Northern California roots. Southern California is another possibility, but I just think there is nothing better than Napa.”

The Raiders have another year in their deal at Napa and Davis thinks extending it should go smoothly, though he senses other teams are “biting.”

The ribbon-cutting and the official opening of Allegiant Stadium may get pushed back due to the pandemic, but Davis says he knows he will be holding back tears whenever it does happen.

“This would have been my dad’s dream,” Davis said. “He would have loved the stadium. It has that imposing Raiders touch to it. It looks like a Raiders stadium. I think he would be happy too about the facility in Henderson and the ability that it gives us to be a 21st-, 22nd-century team.”

While his dad was always full speed ahead, Davis does look back and he said it’s important to him that people know he did everything he could to make it work in Oakland.

“If I didn’t try, I would have felt guilty,” Davis said. “I gave it my best and I don’t feel guilty one iota. I take a lot of blame for a lot of things where maybe I wasn’t prepared or made a bad decision — everything is from the heart — but on the trying to get us a stadium in Oakland, I did everything I could. Then, at our last home game, they took an edited video and made it look like I didn’t give a damn about the fans.

“I wanted to say that the city ran us out of town and was suing us, and the guy that runs the Coliseum was facing federal charges for inside dealing on the naming rights, but I didn’t ... and it came out looking like I didn’t care about the fans. When I think they are the best in the world.”

Former Coliseum Authority executive director Scott McKibben was charged in January for alleged violations of state conflict-of-interest laws for seeking a $50,000 fee in helping negotiate a stadium’s naming rights.

“He backtracked on the deal he made us on the price of the lease, and he gets caught for taking a kickback, and I haven’t heard a word about it since,” Davis said. “The Bay Area is one of the most beautiful places in the world, and the politics are the most dysfunctional I have ever seen anywhere.”

Davis was also hurt when the NFL chose the Rams and Chargers over the Raiders to move to Los Angeles, but processed it quickly.

“I have lost games before,” Davis said. “That’s how I have learned to live my life – you lose on Sunday, you’re pissed about it, I go to P.F. Chang’s on Monday, I have lunch and then I am on to the next week. We got our ass kicked in LA, and we went back to Oakland with our tails between our legs. And then McKibben backtracked and tripled our lease, and it was total disrespect. It was like, how are we going to work with these people?”

“Vegas had been after us for years, but I told them I will only talk to you if Oakland and Los Angeles don’t happen. Losing the LA vote was probably the best thing that ever happened for us.”

And for Nevada football fans and workers.

“This stadium has been a great thing for the community,” Sisolak said. “It created an awful lot of jobs, which I am really, really proud of. Mark has been a great partner. There are only 32 cities that get to call themselves NFL cities and it’s an honor to be one of them for the people in Nevada.

“Mark has won a fan base already. He is extremely supportive of the community, he’s at every sporting event and charity event. He has donated to our schools. He has jumped in with both feet and he has certainly changed the landscape of Las Vegas and Nevada forever.”

General Manager Mike Mayock

LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

Man with the Plan: Raiders' GM Mike Mayock seeing vision through

By Adam Hill

September 9, 2020

Mike Mayock fondly remembers wandering the various playgrounds of West Philadelphia as a teenager in search of the best competition to test his mettle.

“You’d kind of hear where guys might be running that day and go find them,” Mayock recalled during a phone call late in training camp. “I didn’t care if it was Wiffle ball. Let’s just go find a game.”

It was that same search for competition that led him to leave behind a nearly two-decade run as a television analyst to serve as the general manager of the Raiders in December 2018.

Mayock employed the same passion and work ethic to his media job as he does to his front office gig with the Raiders, particularly his time spent as an NFL draft analyst.

It was a grueling process to prepare for the biggest three days of the year, but as soon as the draft broadcast wrapped, it was time to move on from all of the players he had spent so much time studying.

The son of a football coach wanted more skin in the game, as he describes it.

“When I was at NFL Network, I could prepare 10 months for the draft and feel really good about it afterwards, go out and have a beer and feel like you worked your tail off and did the best you could,” he said. “But there’s no connection to the individual players and the game, it’s just a job well done.”

That’s not the case anymore. Now his meticulous research on every player coming out of college is put to the ultimate test. “You get to see these guys as more than just a commodity,” he said. “You get to see them become fathers, husbands, brothers and men.”

He also has to worry about trades, free agency, managing egos and the salary cap and making sure all those pieces work together when they take the field on game days.

“On Sunday afternoon for three-and-a-half hours, I’m ready to puke,” the 62-year-old Boston College alum said. “That’s what I missed. The butterflies, the nerves when every snap matters. That’s what’s been the cool thing for me is trying to build something different and special and on Sunday, you live and die by every snap.”

A successful transition

It’s a proving ground that sounds nightmarish, but Mayock insists he’s a man living a dream.

“Everybody has a different definition of fun,” he said. “My wife looks at me and just laughs. She’s like, ‘You’ve never had more fun in your life.’ And she’s right. At my age, to have the opportunity to do this, you kind of live and die a little bit every day because it means so much.”

Not that he was unhappy with his prior professional life. After his brief playing career ended, Mayock went into commercial real estate and eventually broke into broadcasting.

He did a little bit of everything in television from sideline reporter in college football and the NCAA basketball tournament to calling games in the Canadian Football League to lead analyst on Notre Dame broadcasts.

It was the kind of versatility that once had him dreaming of being the first person to play in Major League Baseball, the NBA and the NFL when he was growing up.

Mayock was best known for his NFL draft analysis and had settled into that role, though there was always a sense he wanted to experience what was on the other side of the business. He knew it would have to be the right situation for it to work, however.

Mayock had been inside the facilities of just about every team in his time covering the NFL and the draft and had determined one of the biggest factors in the success or failure of a franchise was whether the coach and general manager were on the same page. He knew it was going to have to be the right fit if he were to move into the front office.

Finding right fit

Mayock found it with the Raiders and head coach Jon Gruden and it didn't take long to figure it out.

While they had crossed paths many times in their roles as broadcasters, their first meeting about taking the general manager job for the Raiders took place in late 2018 when Gruden was wrapping up the first season of his coaching comeback.

The group of five or six people at Gruden's house included owner Mark Davis, but soon only Mayock and Gruden were talking.

"It was the easiest conversation I ever had," Mayock recalls. "It happened organically. It was just topic to topic to topic about football and on most of them we were aligned. I think the most important thing was just kind of the vision for how to build this franchise."

In addition to the chemistry, Mayock liked that Gruden had a 10-year contract. It afforded the duo the opportunity to remake the roster according to their vision of how it should be done with the security of enough time to see the process through.

They wanted to focus on building through the draft and augmenting through free agency in areas where they believed they could invest in impact players.

It helped that Gruden had turned assets like Khalil Mack and Amari Cooper into draft capital and salary cap space.

So they were aligned on how to build a team, but Mayock has long said a key part of their shared vision was what type of players they wanted to bring in.

Mayock stressed to his scouting department the importance of evaluating a player and not just his measurables.

"I like smelling the grass," he said. "I want to be out there. I don't want to just know the results of the 40 and the vertical jump. I want to see them work out. I want to go to dinner with them. I want to get to know them. I tell my scouts all the time that we can all watch the tape, put the reports in and evaluate, but what makes that kid tick? What's important to him? The better we do at that, the better overall scouts we will be.

"We want guys with a passion for the game of football," he said.

Football first

Anyone who has been at the team's brand new facility in Henderson before sunrise knows how important football is to the faces of the front office. Mayock typically arrives around 5:30 a.m. He insists he's never beaten Gruden to work.

The two usually share a coffee around that time to discuss the agenda for the day and whatever big picture issues may be pertinent at the time.

Together, they have turned over almost the entire roster. They believe they are far more talented, stronger, faster and better than when they started. They are certainly younger.

Mayock has confidence in what they are building, but he knows it doesn't matter until it's put to the test on the field. As much credit as he got for the success of the rookie class he put together in his first draft, he's quick to point out his team went 7-9 in his first season as general manager.

So, has the vision he and Gruden had for building the roster started to take shape?

"The answer to the question is we're getting more and more of our guys in the building, we're competing at a higher level, but it remains to be seen whether that translates on the field or not, which is most important," he said.

"I think we're slowly seeing what we wanted, which was guys to come in and compete their tails off," he continued. "We want guys that love to compete, that don't shrink from competition. That's probably why you've seen some of the guys that we've drafted from big schools, used to playing in big games, an opportunity to watch them compete in that type of atmosphere. As Jon and I are sitting here contemplating cutting to a 53-man roster, we kind of take a step back and say it's a lot harder this year. We've got more guys competing. There's more talent."

It's time to put it to the test. But Mayock doesn't have to seek out that competition like he did when he was a kid.

His work will be graded every week, starting with a road game in Charlotte against the Panthers on Sept. 13.

Interim Head Coach Rich Bisaccia

ESPN.COM

Football lifer Rich Bisaccia tasked with leading Las Vegas Raiders through choppy waters

By Paul Gutierrez

November 24, 2021

LAS VEGAS -- The stark darkness gave way to a bright Bronx winter as 9-year-old Rich Bisaccia emerged from the stadium tunnel in search of his seat. In front of him, what he had only seen on TV, or heard about on the radio or through second-hand conversations, that famed Yankee Stadium frieze and surrounding buildings. Below, more than 100 yards of a brownish green expanse lined as a football field.

Bisaccia was attending his first NFL game with his favorite team, the New York Giants, playing host to the St. Louis Cardinals on Dec. 7, 1969, and the future football lifer was excited to get a real-life glimpse of his hero, Giants quarterback Fran Tarkenton.

"I swore I was Fran Tarkenton growing up," Bisaccia said.

Born in nearby Yonkers, New York, Bisaccia had recently moved with his family to New Fairfield, Connecticut, after the passing of a grandmother and family matriarch. But his Giants fandom, passed down by his father, Nick, had only grown.

"My dad was the head football coach of the New York Giants," Bisaccia said at his initial news conference on Oct. 13 as the Las Vegas Raiders' interim coach. "He just never told anybody." Reporters and fans alike scurried to Google, Wikipedia, anything to confirm Bisaccia's Giants bloodline. It was a joke. Nick was such a fan, the younger Bisaccia said, he thought he knew more than the likes of Allie Sherman, Alex Webster or Bill Arnsparger.

Thing was, upon Bisaccia's elevation with the Raiders in the wake of Jon Gruden's resignation amid his email scandal on Oct. 11, the hunt was also on to find out more about Bisaccia himself.

So, yeah, there was intrigue, especially after the Raiders won a pair of blowout games against the Denver Broncos and Philadelphia Eagles in his first two contests running the Raiders to make the team 5-2 going into their bye. Then receiver Henry Ruggs III was involved in a fiery car crash early in the morning on Nov. 3 that killed a woman and her dog and fellow first-rounder Damon Arnette, an oft-injured cornerback, was released Nov. 8 after a video of him brandishing guns and making death threats surfaced online.

Las Vegas has not won a game since and the whispers are now not only about the future of Bisaccia with the Raiders, but also those of general manager Mike Mayock and quarterback Derek Carr.

Three consecutive losses -- to those Giants, Kansas City Chiefs and Cincinnati Bengals to drop Las Vegas' record to 5-5 -- have added difficulty to Bisaccia's task, one that's already unprecedented due to Gruden's abrupt midseason resignation and the releases of Ruggs and Arnette since taking the job. But as the Raiders get set to play at the Dallas Cowboys on Thursday (4:30 p.m. ET, CBS), Bisaccia remains perhaps the organization's most interesting man ... especially since so little is known about him.

"I've got five sisters," he allowed. "I've got four kids. Five grandkids.

"I owe my life to football."

Dedicated to the craft

At 61 years old, Bisaccia is a head coach for the first time at any level in a career that began in 1983. Not a particularly good student -- by his own admission -- he earned a scholarship to tiny Yankton College (yes, former Raider Lyle Alzado's school) in South Dakota and played well enough for his coach there, Pete Chapman, to earn a tryout with the USFL's Philadelphia Stars as a defensive back. He did not make the team. But Chapman, who was moving from Yankton -- now a minimum-security federal prison -- to Wayne State College in Nebraska, brought Bisaccia with him to join his staff.

And he was off.

Bisaccia finished his Bachelor of Arts degree while coaching for Chapman and at Joe Namath's summer camps and, after four years at Wayne State, a friend he had made coaching at different camps came calling.

Charlie Weis, the former Notre Dame head coach who won a Super Bowl as offensive coordinator of the New England Patriots, was at South Carolina and in charge of hiring graduate assistants and Bisaccia was at the top of his list in 1988.

"He was newly married, had his first kid but coach [Joe] Morrison didn't want his [graduate assistants] to be married or have kids," Weis said. "He wanted his G.A.s to be grunts. So, as a couple of Northeast kids, we got it done."

Bisaccia had to act like he was separated from his wife, Jeanne, and live in the dorms to get and keep the gig.

"For him to go to that length, that showed his dedication," Weis said.

Eventually, Morrison caught wind of their plan.

"Coach Morrison got a kick out of it," Weis said.

Morrison died of a heart attack on Feb. 5, 1989, and Sparky Woods was hired as Gamecocks coach. Woods retained Bisaccia as a volunteer assistant who coached defensive ends, tight ends, running backs and special teams through 1993.

"A warm personality," Woods, who is now a senior advisor at North Carolina, said of Bisaccia. "It didn't take long to realize he had a passion for the players. Neat family. His wife is awesome. It didn't take long to hire him.

"He was an excellent recruiter. A good listener. No problem being accountable. He never tried to bring attention to himself. He had a family and he needed a job but he never complained. He needed to make a living and I didn't want to lose him."

But he did.

A former fellow staffer at South Carolina, Tommy West, was named the head coach at Clemson in 1994. Guess who was at the top of his list?

"Rich is driven, self-motivated," said West, now the defensive line coach at Middle Tennessee State. "He can go as high as he wants to go. In coach-speak, Rich is brutally honest. He was the guy you were going to run something by. Just don't ask him if you don't want to know."

West recalled running a play by Bisaccia.

"Coach, that's the craziest thing I've ever heard of," Bisaccia told him.

"I didn't think it was that crazy," West replied.

"That's terrible," was Bisaccia's response.

Bisaccia's journey through the Deep South then took him to Ole Miss in 1999, when David Cutcliffe saw what he called a "rare passion for coaching" and developing relationships with players.

"There's no bigger fool in coaching than one who thinks they can fool a player," said Cutcliffe, who is now the coach at Duke. "He's going to light it up every now and then but not without them knowing that he respects them and the work they've put in."

Case in point: It was Ole Miss' homecoming game in 2000 against UNLV, which had forced overtime on the final play of regulation. Running back Deuce McAllister sat out regulation with a left high ankle sprain but when OT began, he told Bisaccia, his position coach as well as special teams coordinator, he would play. Bisaccia recognized the moment and trusted his player.

"I pulled rank," McAllister, now a radio analyst for the Saints, laughed as he recalled converting a pair of third downs in OT before going over the top of the pile for the game-winning 1-yard touchdown. McAllister said Bisaccia used to leave motivational notes in his locker before games.

"He'd say he couldn't wait to see me play, that everybody in the stadium was there to see me," McAllister said. "Even though everybody is not there to see me play, it made me feel that they were all coming to watch me."

Said Cutcliffe: "That story speaks volumes for who Rich is. It's time to think about players, not plays, and Rich was great for Deuce McAllister. I find myself saying it all the time -- you get on a grease board, or a chalkboard before, and you want to draw up a winner. But you don't just draw up a punt-block scheme; you have to have a punt blocker. You have to find him."

'Is he a great coach? Hell yeah'

With former NFL head coaches on the Raiders staff in defensive coordinator Gus Bradley, offensive line coach Tom Cable and defensive line coach Rod Marinelli, Bisaccia seemed a quizzical pick to replace Gruden.

Until you looked at the résumé.

Bisaccia, who carried the title of associate head coach and as the special teams coordinator, is well known by players on both sides of the ball.

"The irony is, I've endorsed him for a lot of head coaching jobs over the years, both in college and the NFL, back when I had a different job," Mayock said. "He's got as much respect in the locker room, in our locker room, as any coach I've ever seen in my life and the reason he does -- is he a great coach? Hell yeah. But he's an even better man and what I've always told people when I endorse him is that he's the most natural leader of men that I have ever been around.

"Rich Bisaccia is the best leader I have ever been around. ... I'm going to back this son of a gun unequivocally."

Bradley remains in control of the defense while offensive coordinator Greg Olson took over playcalling duties from Gruden. Bisaccia? He's still running special teams but he also refers to himself as an "in-game manager" inspired by John Robinson, the former Los Angeles Rams, USC and UNLV coach. "I'm a Raider, too, just like him," Robinson, who was on John Madden's staff in 1975 as an offensive backfield coach, said of Bisaccia.

"As an in-game manager, I did not call plays. I advised and yelled at the coordinators when things didn't go right; I tried to stay involved in the game. So, I was the manager of the game, how many timeouts we had. The playcaller can't do that -- maybe some guys can do everything -- the playcaller has to have somebody else remind them, 'Hey, there's 12 seconds on the clock.' Whatever that process is. I always tried to focus on that and look at our teams in terms of who's tired. The intangibles that go into a game. That's an important part of the game."

Robinson said Bisaccia's history as a special teams coach should help in his current role.

"They are prepared for the total game probably more than any other coach because they see the game more in that regard," said Robinson, now an offensive consultant at LSU. "I've always believed the special teams coach has got a sense of what the total game is."

And during that initial two-game winning streak, it was palpable in the Raiders locker room.

"Oh, yeah, we love him," Carr said. "If you find someone that doesn't like him, they probably didn't do right. They probably didn't work hard. They probably weren't a good teammate, and things like that. If you just do right, you'll love that man. And I think a lot of it has to do with just who he is as a person, how he believes. He's the same every day so you know exactly what you are going to get. As a player that's all you can ask for, especially in this league."

Running back Josh Jacobs laughed when recalling how different things were in Denver with Bisaccia at the helm when compared to Gruden.

"Man, the sideline was just so, it was like, it wasn't no anxiety," Jacobs said. "It was weird. It was like everybody was calm, you didn't have somebody cussing at you, or going crazy at the refs, you know what I'm saying? None of that. It was just like, 'OK, something bad happened?' [Bisaccia] was like, 'OK, I'm not harping on you. All right, next play. Next play.'

"I was like, 'That's the right type of energy we needed.' I love it."

Defensive end Yannick Ngakoue overlapped the pointer and middle fingers on his right hand. "Me and coach are like this," Ngakoue said. "We have similar views on a lot of things, about how we go about our work. It starts in practice. The way he has practice set up and structured, I just feel like it's super effective in getting guys ready for Sundays.

"Do your job, be on time and you'll be on his good side. I love coach, man."

'He deserves this opportunity'

Bisaccia was beckoned by the NFL in 2002.

Or, more specifically, by Gruden, who had been traded from the Raiders to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and needed a special teams coordinator.

Gruden's first coaching job was as a G.A. at Tennessee in 1986. Cutcliffe coached the Volunteers' tight ends at the time, so Gruden had an in.

"I had to tell [Gruden] the truth," Cutcliffe said. "It was very difficult for me because part of the things people don't understand about the industry is how hard it is to trade even or trade up with coaches. I knew we couldn't trade even with Rich Bisaccia. Our relationship went beyond just the coaching. I was close to his family, the father. There's more to this than X's and O's. Nobody was more aligned with what we were trying to do at Ole Miss than Rich.

"I knew I'd lose him to professional football. He deserves this opportunity. He's ready. And he has been. It's been far too long that he hasn't been given a chance at a Power 5 school or in the National Football League."

Bisaccia was a part of the Buccaneers staff that took apart the Raiders in Super Bowl XXXVII and Bisaccia takes a special pride in his father being in San Diego that day to "watch his son win a Super Bowl."

He remained in Tampa Bay with Gruden and his successor, Raheem Morris, through 2010. Even as an old friend called.

"When I got the job at Notre Dame [in 2005], I tried to get him to be the associate head coach and special teams," said Weis, now a SiriusXM NFL radio analyst. "I got close, but at the time he was in pretty good shape. And college doesn't pay as well as the NFL."

Bisaccia later joined Norv Turner with the Chargers in 2011 and 2012 and Jason Garrett with the Cowboys from 2013 to 2017 before reuniting with Gruden in 2018, all the while burnishing a reputation as one of the best special teams coaches in the NFL.

'I just think we are all trying to learn'

Both of Bisaccia's parents are gone now, as are the first two coaches for whom he worked in Morrison and Chapman, who died of cancer in 2003.

"I'm 61 years old and so I'd like to think along the lines you gain some wisdom, and you gain some experience," Bisaccia said. "You go through things, whether it's with family that I grew up with or I have my own [family] now, and then being around a lot of players.

"It's a combination of maybe all those things -- age, wisdom and with age comes experience that's both positive and negative and you'd like to think you learn from them. And you'd like to think you can improve and keep moving forward, and I think that's probably the message we try to give our players.

"I try to do it with my own kids. I got a kid that is one of those wildland firefighters and so he goes through a bunch of different experiences than I do and so I learn from him and the things he's had to go through and some of that. So, I just think we are all trying to learn."

Kind of like stepping out of the darkness and into the light like that winter day in the Bronx back in 1969.

DE Maxx Crosby

THE ATHLETIC

Now 18 months sober, the Raiders' Maxx Crosby opens up about his journey to the brink and back

By Vic Tafur

September 6, 2021

March 11, 2020, was the day that Maxx Crosby got sober. And it's a day the Raiders defensive end always knew had to come.

"I knew from the day that I started drinking that I wasn't like everybody else," Crosby said in a recent phone interview. "I couldn't just have one drink, and it was always a crutch for me. Through high school, through college ... and even when I got to the pros at first.

"I always knew I had a problem, but it got to a point where it started becoming unmanageable and things just got overwhelming for me. It was over the top, and I knew if I wanted to be the player that I wanted to be and the person that I wanted to be, it was something that I had to cut out of my life."

Crosby's teammates voted him a team captain last week, making him one of the two defensive players of the seven selected. If you have been around training camp, it's no surprise that Crosby and Yannick Ngakoue were picked because ever since Ngakoue showed up this spring, the two pass rushers have been pushing each other and teammates at practice.

Crosby, entering his third season, is in the best shape he's ever been in and is totally recovered from last season's broken hand and torn shoulder. Most importantly, he's the happiest he's ever been.

He took some time to talk about his journey to get here, as he closes in on 18 months sober from alcohol and drugs.

"It's been an awesome ride so far," Crosby said. "The first year of sobriety, for everybody, they say, is the hardest, and I know for me, mentally and physically, it was really tough. Getting through that and learning how to live a meaningful life taking care of myself and the people around me that I care about and love ... it was an uphill battle, and it's an everyday process, but life is getting better and better."

It started in March 2020 when Crosby went to Hollywood and checked into a rehabilitation center for a month. That same day, the Utah Jazz's Rudy Gobert tested positive for COVID-19 and the NBA suspended its season. Soon after, the rest of the sports world followed and much of society went into pandemic-related lockdowns.

"It's crazy, when I got there on March 11 ... that's when everything started shutting down because of COVID," Crosby said. "The NBA stopped their season and everything was put on lockdown, so it was kind of a blessing in disguise in a way.

"The whole world was put on lockdown, and it really gave me time to go take care of myself."

Walking into Grace Recovery Center was jarring and depressing at first, but Crosby knew he had to be there.

"I absolutely love those people," Crosby said.

He then transitioned to a sober living facility in Venice Beach, where he also trained to get ready for the 2020 season.

"I was there the entire offseason, really working on myself," Crosby said. "There were a lot of ups and downs, but I stayed the course. It was the best decision I ever made. It saved my life and it's a miracle what the (Alcoholics Anonymous) program has done for me and my family."

Crosby had wanted to put a year of sobriety under his belt before he told everybody, and some teammates were surprised to hear the news when Crosby told former teammate Will Compton about his sobriety on the "Bussin with the Boys" podcast in March.

"Will has a big platform and I thought it was a good idea to share my story so that it can help other people," Crosby said.

Crosby said he has a family history of alcohol addiction.

"I've had a lot of people close to me deal with it, and it's part of who I am," Crosby said.

Crosby also has a teammate in Darren Waller who has been very public about his addiction to opiates and alcohol and his recovery since he joined the Raiders in 2018. Crosby watched from afar on the other side of the locker room at first, and now he and Waller are close friends who attend rehab meetings together every Tuesday night.

"We were always cool, but we weren't really close before I got sober," Crosby said. "But just seeing him, I knew I could get sober. And I never thought that would happen, to be honest. ... I was just in a bad, bad space. But seeing him gave me hope.

"When I first got sober, I was like, 'Shit, if Darren can overcome what he did, I can do it. I can dedicate myself like he did.' I am about to be a year and a half sober, but it's still an everyday process. I am focused on the now, and having guys like Darren around me is so special to have that in the locker room."

It's not lost on Crosby that the Raiders have long been seen as the renegades of the NFL and the team has now moved to Las Vegas — Sin City — and ... two of its best players are drinking club soda and going to meetings every Tuesday night.

"Well, Darren and I have crazy-ass stories, at least," Crosby said, laughing. "But we can shed light on real-life situations and what we went through, and that can really help other people."

Special-teams coordinator and assistant head coach Rich Bisaccia also played a big part early on.

"He was FaceTiming me when I first got sober, and that was big," Crosby said. "He helped me a ton ... that was special. He says to find the three things that are most important to you, and obviously sobriety is at the top right next to football and my girlfriend, family and loved ones. Keep that circle small, and keep my priorities in the front, instead of the back."

For a guy like Crosby, who came out of Colleyville, Texas, with only one college scholarship offer and has always pushed himself, admitting that he wasn't strong enough to handle his over-drinking by himself — that he couldn't control the situation — was a big hurdle to get over.

“Any guy in AA will tell you, ‘You can’t do it alone.’ That’s a fact,” Crosby said. “I tried to get sober multiple times in the past. I tried to do it by myself and white knuckle it, ‘do it my way’ and whatever, but eventually, it didn’t work.”

Crosby was, in fact, sober his entire last season at Eastern Michigan .. after getting in a drunk-driving accident leaving a party that spring.

“I wrecked my car and got arrested,” Crosby said. “I knew I was going to face some kind of suspension. Coach (Chris) Creighton told me it was going to be a two-game suspension, but that second game was against Purdue ... that’s a huge game. At Eastern Michigan, if you’re playing a Big Ten team, that’s a monstrous game. I was like, I cannot miss that game. And I was waiting for a couple of weeks to see what he was going to do. It was a scary time.”

Creighton made Crosby a deal.

Crosby had to stay sober the entire season, get drug-tested and breathalyzed frequently, do a lot of community service and the suspension would only last the first game. If Crosby drank after any game or failed a test, he would be suspended again immediately.

Crosby was planning to enter the NFL Draft early after that junior season, so it was a no-brainer. And a white knuckler.

“He challenged me,” Crosby said. “And I stayed sober and was able to get to the draft. Without that challenge, I don’t know if I would be here today. Looking back on it, obviously, I went to the pros and had my struggles again, but a year and a half later, our relationship is so strong. (Creighton) always reaches out to me.”

Crosby stayed sober for nine months without working a program, until he exhaled after getting picked by the Raiders and getting that first big paycheck.

“I was a pro,” Crosby said. “Didn’t have to go to class anymore, less responsibility and more money and you want to fit in with the guys. I started again and things got worse and worse.”

During the draft process, the drunk-driving accident was the first thing Crosby was asked about by every prospective NFL team. And as he answered, Crosby thought to himself that he needed to address the problem with a full-fledged plan and program someday.

That day came a year later.

“The AA program, with the 12 steps and everything you have to do to truly heal yourself, is a different experience,” Crosby said. “I could go on all day about it. The quote that stuck with me the most is, ‘The one thing you have to change is everything.’ The people around you, your daily routine, everything in my life had to change.” Besides the support of his current and former coaches and teammates, Crosby also now has a team of counselors, AA members, mentors, sponsors and housemates from Grace and the transition center pulling for him and staying in touch.

“It’s been an amazing journey,” Crosby said.

Las Vegas Raiders DE Maxx Crosby says he's 18 months sober after stay in rehab last offseason

By Paul Gutierrez

August 27, 2021

HENDERSON, Nev. -- A week before the world shut down due to the COVID-19 pandemic in the spring of 2020, Maxx Crosby's world opened up.

That's when the Las Vegas Raiders defensive end began a month-long stay in rehab for alcoholism and is now nearing an 18-month milestone of being sober, on the cusp of the 2021 NFL season. In a wide-ranging interview with ESPN on Friday, Crosby detailed his fight for sobriety as he enters his third NFL season.

"It got to a point after my rookie year my life became unmanageable," Crosby said. "Alcohol, partying and all that s--- became too much of a distraction in my life. It became just overwhelming. I've always had issues with drinking and partying throughout high school and college. I've been able to slip by and get by, but it became too much for me and it's always been that one crutch.

"Alcoholism runs in my family and I'm an alcoholic. So, for me, I knew it was something that was always a crutch. I always knew I had a problem. I knew I couldn't just drink like everybody else. I got ahead of it. My first year of sobriety is always the hardest and that was last year. I had a lot of ups and downs. Mentally it was really tough for me. But going in, I'm almost a year-and-a-half sober now and life is great. I'm really enjoying every single day. I'm enjoying the work."

Crosby, who turned 24 on Aug. 22, was a Day 3 draft pick of the Raiders in 2019 out of Eastern Michigan, the No. 106 overall selection in the fourth round. He racked up 10 sacks as a rookie.

But it was in that offseason when Crosby decided he needed help.

"It was March 11 [2020], the day I got sober," he said. "I was living in Hollywood. Strolled out there and checked into rehab. ... And the whole world was put on shut down. I was there for a month and then I was able to just get myself right. And then after rehab, for that month I went to a sober living [facility] and I was staying out in Venice Beach all the way until training camp. I was literally in treatment like for the whole offseason.

"It was a big struggle but looking back on my journey, I know five years, 10 years down the road, I'll look back and be like, that was the biggest offseason of my life even though I was just trying to get my s--- together and just trying to stay above water. I know if I can make it through that s--- and get sober, I can do anything. It was special and I met some awesome people along the way."

Raiders owner Mark Davis said he was happy for Crosby.

"I think it's fantastic," Davis said. "Everybody has their demons. Obviously, he recognized he had a problem and he went out and fixed it. Recognizing it and wanting to fix it is the No. 1 way to get the help you need. And he did it."

Raiders coach Jon Gruden agreed.

"Maxx is an amazing man," Gruden told ESPN. "He realized he had a problem and he isolated himself and conquered it. He has incredible mental toughness and a desire to be great. He's a great inspiration for people to see what you can do if you're committed to following through."

Crosby said teammate Darren Waller, a Pro Bowl tight end, has also been open about his battle with addiction and they have become close friends.

"Here's a guy that was deep," Crosby said of Waller, "deep as hell and almost lost his life and he was able to come back and is now one of the best players in the league. For me, seeing a guy like that, that gave me hope. When I went off to rehab, I was terrified. I didn't know if I was able to do it. I couldn't imagine my life being sober. But today, the blessings that have come my way from being sober and doing the work and trusting in the people around me have been incredible.

"I'm living my real purpose and helping people out. ... The whole basis of AA is literally you can't do it alone. AA is a big family."

Crosby followed up his rookie breakout season with seven sacks last year and says after a year-plus of being sober, and re-dedicating himself to his health and fitness, he is primed for a good season.

"This offseason has been incredible," he said. "I've never been in this good a shape in my life. I've never been this dedicated. I've always been a hard worker as far as work ethic. ... I've taken it to a whole different level.

"I love being able to talk about it and share my story with other people and try to help other people out there going through what I've gone through."

CB Nate Hobbs

THE ATHLETIC

The ascent of Raiders rookie Nate Hobbs: 'My work is not done yet'

By Tashan Reed

September 30, 2021

Nate Hobbs had no expectations of playing in the NFL. Growing up in the West End of Louisville, Ky., he had never seen anyone make it to the league firsthand. For someone raised in a family of five supported by a household income of $25,000, earning a full-ride scholarship to play football at Illinois was enough.

"Making it to college where I'm from, that's like making it to the NFL," Hobbs said while driving home from a Raiders practice earlier this month. "I really wasn't thinking about the NFL until my junior year when scouts started hitting me up. ... So, when that became real to me, that just put me in a whole other drive because I was like, 'Damn, this is attainable. Shit, it's something I can do.'"

Hobbs had his best college season as a junior in 2019. He started all 13 games and posted a stat line of 67 tackles, 5 1/2 tackles for loss and seven pass deflections on his way to being named All-Big Ten honorable mention. He only started five games in the COVID-19-shortened 2020 campaign, but he'd shown enough to get drafted by the Raiders in the fifth round of the 2021 NFL Draft. By the time he arrived at the team facility in Henderson, Nev., for rookie minicamp and offseason team activities earlier this year, the drive that he'd shifted into as a collegiate junior had altered his mentality: He no longer doubted his potential to be a pro.

"My mindset going in was, 'I don't care where I'm at on the depth chart or where they put me or what position I gotta play.' I didn't even look at the depth chart, honestly," Hobbs said. "That was my mindset: Put my best foot forward every day and I got a good feeling I can play with these guys. And then it turned from a 'I think I can' to a 'I know I can' play with these guys."

Halfway through June, Hobbs had already jumped out and impressed defensive coordinator Gus Bradley with his athleticism, instincts and football knowledge. He remained consistent through the beginning of training camp in July and was the starting nickelback by the preseason opener against the Seahawks in August. It's a job he hasn't relinquished. The Raiders released fellow nickelback Nevin Lawson after he served his two-game suspension to start the season, unofficially signaling Hobbs would keep the job.

Hobbs isn't surprised, but he's appreciative. And while he's appreciative, he's not satisfied.

"I just knew, my work is not done yet," Hobbs said. "I earned the starting job for a reason; now I gotta show why I earned it and show what I can do."

Initially, life at home was good for Hobbs. Yes, his family was poor, but he had both his parents, an older brother, a younger brother and a younger sister. They didn't have much money, but they had family and that got them all through. When Hobbs was 12 years old, however, his father, Nate Hobbs Sr., died in his sleep from cardiac arrest. That left his mother, Denise, with three kids still in the house to raise on her own and forced her late husband's namesake to mature.

“I had to grow up quicker,” Hobbs said. “But I just tried to keep playing sports as a way to just keep my head on straight. Because if you don’t play sports there and you live in a certain area, then it’s probably not going to be good for you.”

Hobbs also thoroughly enjoyed athletics, but he partly played T-ball, basketball and football to keep himself occupied both mentally and physically. Denise always made sure her children were doing something outside of school to help protect them from the dangers of their environment. Sports and his immediate family were everything to Hobbs.

“Shit, all we had was each other,” Hobbs said. “It was a lot of times where we just had to rely on each other.”

On the football field, Hobbs was a talented but undersized player who spent his freshman and sophomore seasons at Louisville Male High on junior varsity. That wasn’t uncommon for a roster loaded with talent and coach Chris Wolfe still saw enough to make Hobbs a starter at outside cornerback as a junior. He was one of just two juniors who started on a team that went 15-0.

Hobbs played well, but he wasn’t dominant. He grew taller, filled out physically and took another step athletically the following offseason and was an entirely different player his senior year.

“From a football standpoint, I’ve been coaching 22 years and by the time he was a senior, I don’t know that we’ve ever had a kid as athletic as him,” Wolfe said earlier this month. “He had all the typical things of the guys that are going to be successful. Obviously, he was incredibly gifted, but he had a great work ethic and great toughness about him.”

Off the field, Hobbs had to work in order to help support his family. After going to school, practice and work, he often didn’t make it home until 10 p.m. or later. He didn’t have time to worry about recruiting, and neither he nor his mother had the money for him to attend recruiting camps or go on unofficial visits, anyway. He had an uncle, Lanier Hobbs, who took notice of both his talent and predicament, though, and reached out to help.

“He stepped up as a father figure because I ain’t really have a father figure,” Hobbs said. “He was telling me I need to go to these camps and do this, that and the third and I was like, ‘Bruh, I can’t do that. I got work.’ He was like, ‘Whatever you don’t have, just let me know.’ ... He played a big role in where I’m at right now.”

Hobbs got more involved in the recruiting cycle with the help from his uncle. Regardless, coaches at bigger schools still weren’t believers.

“He was underrecruited because he was such a late bloomer and all the Power 5s offer kids as sophomores,” Wolfe said. “I really couldn’t get (Power 5 coaches) to even come look at him.”

So, in the final month of his senior season, Hobbs committed to Western Kentucky. The next month, however, its head coach Jeff Brohm left for the same job at Purdue. Hobbs re-opened his recruitment and, after seeing how he closed out his senior season, Illinois extended an offer. Hobbs was initially hesitant to accept because of the timing, but he ultimately signed in February 2017 and enrolled that summer. It’d prove to be a wise choice.

Hobbs didn't need much of an adjustment period to make an impact at the next level. He started 10 games as a freshman, led the defense in snaps played and made the Big Ten Network All-Freshman team. Despite the seamless transition and immediate results, however, Hobbs was overly reliant on his talent.

He understood coverages and defensive concepts from his time at Louisville Male, but then-Illinois coach Lovie Smith taught him to better understand what the offense was doing. He not only picked up on the intricacies of the Cover 2 zone scheme that Illinois ran but began to key in on offensive tendencies and strategies. He was suspended for three games to start his sophomore year for a violation of team rules, but Smith gave him a chance to redeem himself partly due to his overall improvement, and he went on to start seven games.

"Without him giving me that chance at Illinois, I wouldn't be here," Hobbs said in May. "He's taught me a lot about the game of football and him being an NFL coach, I feel like I'm already on that NFL level mindset-wise and I know how to carry myself like an NFL guy on and off the field."

But entering his junior year, Hobbs was considering leaving. He'd had two different position coaches in two years and was being asked to learn under his third in Keynodo Hudson. The two met that offseason, and Hobbs entered the meeting with an open mind rather than anger.

"I was extremely impressed with him just because he was so engaging," Hudson said earlier this month. "And all he cared about was getting better and becoming a master of his craft. And he wanted somebody that could develop and let him home in on his skill set and see what it could be if he maxes it out. He gave me what he had, man, and some."

Hobbs decided to stay. Not long after that his uncle, who remained an instrumental figure in his life and attended all of his college games to that point, died. The loss rocked him, but it didn't break him.

"I feel like God has put me in this position for a reason," Hobbs said. "And as long as I'm not dead, as long as I'm still here, I'm going to keep going."

Hobbs gravitated to Hudson more after losing his uncle and found yet another father figure in the process. Smith had given an edict to his coaching staff to develop the players on the roster as men before developing them as athletes, and Hudson took that to heart. He spoke to Denise, learned more about Hobbs' story and made a genuine effort to form a bond with the young player.

The then-20-year-old had good character, was caring, had a big heart and had experience handling responsibility, but he still had room to grow. His sophomore suspension taught him a lesson, and that coupled with Hudson's guidance helped him improve when it came to the way he carried himself and how he engaged with others.

"I saw him grow light years in one year," Hudson said. "He totally changed everything about him: The way he dressed, the way he carried himself, all that. He turned himself into a great ambassador of the university. ... And I wasn't the only one: Coach Smith was right there preaching the exact same thing. We had a strong group of men that were around him."

Hobbs left his mark at Illinois both on and off the field. Hudson described him as a "catalyst" and praised him for not only being able to back up his talk with action but also making an effort to teach those around him. He emerged as a team leader in his last couple of years and helped instill a sense of accountability among those in his position group. And, on the field, he was an X-factor.

“He can play anywhere on the field,” Hudson said. “Also, Nate is freaking physical. He’s a boy dog. He’s extremely tough. Once again, that comes from his house and just where he was raised at. Louisville is a tough city, and that kid represents that through and through. He’s an absolute tough, physical, ferocious player. It’s rare to have a corner that’s tough and has phenomenal ball skills with a big-time athletic skill set. Nate can jump out of the gym. He can 360 windmill. He can do the Vince Carter, baby, I’m serious. This guy got bunnies.”

The coach was giddy while hyping up his former player. And those same traits would draw a similar reaction from a long-time NFL talent evaluator.

Illinois held its 2021 pro day in March, and the Raiders had a scout in attendance. After it was over, the scout called general manager Mike Mayock.

“Mike, do me a favor and put your eyes on Nate Hobbs,” the unnamed scout said. “He just ran a 4.45, he jumped 41 inches. He tested better than we thought he was going to test and I’m not sure if we got the right grade on him.”

The Raiders had a solid grade on him, but it wasn’t that, so Mayock got off the phone and dived into his tape for two hours at Raiders headquarters. Once he finished, he ran downstairs to the second floor of the building to get the attention of defensive backs coach Ron Milus.

“Milo, get your eye on this guy, please,” Mayock said. “And tell me what you think. Today.”

An hour and a half later, Milus came up to Mayock’s office with a verdict: “We got something.” Although Hobbs spent his college career playing outside corner, Milus thought he’d be a fit at nickel because of his toughness, aggressiveness, quickness and ability to process information in a timely manner. The Raiders moved Hobbs up their draft board and the coaches and scouts alike had a consensus in their view of him, but they still wanted to get him in a video call as a final confirmation.

The coaches challenged him mentally. They told him verbiage from the defensive scheme and asked him to repeat it. They had him to describe concepts. They showed him still images of plays and told him to explain what was happening.

“He knocked it out of the park,” Mayock said. “And then it was the whole group getting together to say, ‘We gotta get this guy.’”

The Raiders did just that in the fifth round with the 167th pick, which they acquired from the Seahawks in a trade for guard Gabe Jackson earlier in the offseason. Hobbs, who was at home in Louisville when he got drafted, quickly flashed his confidence that he could live up to expectations.

“I’m just so thankful to the Raiders organization for taking a chance on me,” Hobbs said. “I won’t forget that. I won’t forget the guys who were taken before me, the guys who I feel like didn’t do as much as me but were still picked up. I’m just so thankful for the Raiders for taking a chance. They won’t regret it. They’re getting the best underdog they’ve ever drafted.”

He also showed emotion. In addition to the losses of his father and uncle, he lost his grandmother last year to cancer. It hurt not to have them around for his big moment, but the accomplishment also brought him solace.

"I know they're proud of me right now," Hobbs said. "I know they're in heaven, looking down on me and I know their hands are on me. They're guiding me, really. I'm just so happy I could make this happen. It's like fate. My uncle, he used to always tell me I was going to be here when I was in high school, and I didn't know what he was talking about because I've always been an underdog.

"I've always been a guy who wasn't supposed to be here, but I'm here now."

Hobbs was everything the Raiders anticipated in practice. He showed the prerequisite physicality needed to be an effective run stopper and blitzer. He had the size to match up with outside receivers and tight ends but was still fast enough to keep up with running backs and slot receivers. He could play either inside or outside cornerback and either man or zone coverage. There was still a question of whether it would translate to games, but he soon dismissed that after an impressive three-game run in the preseason.

"I'm really proud of him," Jon Gruden said last month. "I'm really excited to see what he does in his future. I tried to summarize him a couple days ago: He has the it factor. He rarely makes the same mistake twice. He loves football. He eats it up. And he's one of the energizers of our defense. He's walked in here and given us a lot of skills that we can utilize."

That was a strong vote of confidence, but Hobbs still had something to prove. Performing in the preseason against backups is one thing; could he do the same in the regular season when games started to count? It's still early, but the answer has been yes so far.

Through three starts, Hobbs is eighth on the team in defensive snaps and has looked comfortable both in pass coverage and against the run. He's fifth on the team with 11 tackles. He's given up 11 catches on 12 targets according to Sportradar, but those completions have only gone for 44 total yards, which is an average of just 4.4 yards per catch, and he's yet to give up a touchdown. His play has resulted in more confidence from the coaching staff: He played just 50 percent of the defensive snaps in Week 1 but jumped to 82 percent in Week 2 and 86 percent in Week 3. He's already become a fixture of the defense and one of the best rookie cornerbacks in the league.

"I think we saw in preseason, it wasn't too big for him and then getting into the season, it hasn't been too big for him," Bradley said earlier this month. "He's kind of a work in progress on some of the things that we're doing but it's pretty consistent. He's playing like a veteran at that position for us and he's got that kind of mentality. He's a fierce competitor."

That competitiveness has led to some trash-talking on the field. Just like in college, though, he's been able to back it up. It's not something that he does for show, either; it's just a part of who he is.

"I just think it comes from where I come from (and) where I've been," Hobbs said. "I went through a lot of adversity in my life, and I think that shows the way I play. I play with passion. I play with want-to. And when I'm on the field, I'm going to enforce my will."

Deeper Than Football: Nate Hobbs' faith and fearlessness has led him here

By Levi Edwards

September 11, 2021

Shortly after Nate Hobbs was drafted by the Las Vegas Raiders, he got a call from Gill Byrd. Byrd, a Pro Bowl defensive back who played for the San Diego Chargers for 10 seasons, was one of Hobbs' defensive back coaches at the University of Illinois.

While congratulating Hobbs on his selection in the fifth round of the 2021 NFL Draft, Byrd heard a bit of disappointment in his mentee's voice.

As if something was bothering him despite his NFL dreams coming true just hours prior.

"I'll never forget, I said, 'You're mad, huh?'" Byrd recalls now of his draft-day call with Hobbs.

"He said, 'Yeah.' And I said, 'I know. You're going to carry it with a chip on your shoulder because you're better than a lot of the guys that were drafted before you. It's now up to you to show the NFL.'"

That proverbial chip on Hobbs' shoulder was evident from the jump. Minutes after getting the call from General Manager Mike Mayock and Head Coach Jon Gruden, he let it be known to the world what was on his mind.

"I won't forget the guys who were taken before me," Hobbs said in his introductory conference call. "The guys who I feel like didn't do as much as me but were still picked up. I'm just so thankful for the Raiders for taking a chance. They won't regret it.

"They're getting the best underdog they've ever drafted."

Months later, I sat down with Nate Hobbs the day before the preseason game against the Los Angeles Rams in SoFi Stadium. I asked Hobbs about those comments he made referring to himself as "the best underdog." He lightly chuckled while reminiscing about the statement he proclaimed.

"That's funny because I was filled with so much emotion when I was saying that," said Hobbs. "I said that, but I noticed – I didn't say that just talking, but I was filled with emotion. But I noticed people didn't forget that, and if I said that, I got to stand on it.

"That's how I live. I don't like to say things just talking. I said it, and I got to stand on it. So I try to bring my A-game every day, I try to come to get better every day."

The journey Hobbs has taken to the Raiders hasn't always been a pretty one. It's been gritty, like his hometown of Louisville, Kentucky, – the same city that produced one of the greatest heavyweight boxers of all time, Muhammad Ali. Hobbs grew up in the West End of Louisville, one of the higher crime populated areas of the city. The problems have unfortunately gotten worse in Louisville over time. The city's violent crime rate is reportedly 81 percent higher than the national average, with a record 100 homicides within a six-month span this year, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal. Hobbs took to sports from an early age as an outlet from what was going on around him.

"Growing up there, a lot of times a lot of kids play sports. Louisville can be a nice place, a nice area. It's not a huge city. It's not a Chicago or New York, but it does have almost a million people so it's a big city. You can get into whatever you want to. So a lot of kids, they would play sports, and that was something that kept you out of whatever.

"Not to say it was a horrible place, but it is a top place for crime," Hobbs said. "That comes with if you live in the bad part in West End or wherever things tend to happen."

Hobbs' solid foundation comes from his family. His single mother, Denise, raised him and his two brothers since she was 16 years old. His father passed away when he was 12. Hobbs said she "dedicated her life to us" for them to make it to this point. He was also guided by his grandparents and uncle, whom he lived with for a duration of time in West Louisville. They were some of his biggest supporters, taking the village approach to raising him and his siblings.

Hobbs told me having a mother with wisdom "way ahead of her years" helped him immensely through the journey of getting to the NFL. He said that the selfless woman barely ever asks him for anything, even after signing with the team. He said he's "almost got to press her" to see if she needs something, as one of his biggest concerns is making sure the woman who raised him is taken care of.

"My mom means everything to me. She sacrificed her whole life, honestly, for her children, for her kids. She made a real commitment to raise us the right way. Everywhere I'm at, what I'm doing right now, the man I've become – I attribute that to her. Whatever I can help her with now, that's what I try to do. I just try to be there for her. We're there for each other. Be there for her like she was for me."

Nate Hobbs was not heavily recruited coming out of Louisville Male High School. The cornerback had a few MAC and NAIA scholarship offers and was originally committed to Western Kentucky until Lovie Smith at the University of Illinois started heavily recruiting him late in his senior year. Illinois was the only Power Five conference offer he received.

"I think I was really a two-star [prospect] but I didn't get those stars until I committed," Hobbs said. "If you looked up my name it didn't say any stars beside my name until I committed to Illinois – then I had two stars.

"I just say that the stars don't matter."

Smith, the Houston Texans current associate head coach and defensive coordinator, also cared less about the stars and hype. When the former Illinois head coach put on Hobbs' film, what he saw a pure athlete.

"High jump – seven feet. Six-foot corner who tackles. He was a punt returner, he was a skilled guy, he could run," said Smith. "We trusted our evaluation, and our evaluation said this guy could really turn into a pretty good football player.

"Then if you get a chance to meet him too, you see exactly who raised him. His mom, Denise, is just a special lady. He was taught the right way, and I just knew he would have a positive impact on the culture of the program and that's exactly what happened."

Hobbs' impact on his team wasn't immediate, however. Hobbs dealt with a few maturity issues as an underclassman at Illinois and claimed that some off-the-field issues caused him to be suspended for three games in his sophomore season and almost got him kicked out of school.

"He knew I wasn't a man, but he was treating me like I was a man, because I felt like he knew where I could go," Hobbs said about Coach Smith. "I was 18, 19 doing things 18, 19 year olds do. Making those mistakes, getting in trouble — probably more than the average person. He said that was unacceptable and I just figured out, 'Maybe this is how I should carry myself,' and certain things aren't acceptable.

"He never stopped believing in me."

Gill Byrd became the safeties coach at Illinois in the midst of Hobbs almost being dismissed from the team. Byrd described it as a touch-and-go situation.

"It was serious enough where we had to talk to him," said Byrd. "A lot of these guys had gone through a lot of things with Coach Smith already, so I was just trying to understand the landscape and what was going on.

"Nate, he took the coaching, he took the teaching, he took the off-the-field advice to the heart. He was close, as far as not being there. The consequences were getting more severe, but he learned. It's part of growing up."

Under Byrd's guidance, Hobbs blossomed into a premier cornerback in the Big 10. In his junior and senior season, he compiled 100 total tackles, nine pass deflections and two interceptions. The biggest impact Byrd made on Hobbs can't be measured with statistics though.

"The biggest way he tried to connect with me was off the field," Hobbs said. "Seeing if I was cool off the field, personally. And just try to teach me about life and developing as a man, and I appreciate him for that. Always just trying to be deeper than football. Football is the sport we play and that's the main focus, but it's deeper than football. It's deeper than just the game, it's life, and I felt like he taught me some things about life."

Coming out of Illinois, Hobbs was back at essentially the same place he was coming out of high school as an under the radar player. Fortunately for Hobbs and the Las Vegas Raiders, his skill and athleticism didn't go unnoticed by General Manager Mike Mayock — the same way it didn't go unnoticed by Lovie Smith nearly five years prior.

"I got a call from one of our cross-check scouts after the Illinois Pro Day, and he said, 'Mike, do me a favor and put your eyes on Nate Hobbs,' said the Raiders GM. "'He just ran a 4.45, he jumped 41 inches. He tested better than we thought he was going to test, and I'm not sure if we got the right grade on him. Don't get me wrong, we had a pretty solid grade on him, but I want to make sure he's not getting lost in the cornerback shuffle.'"

"So, I got off the phone and literally put his tape on right there, and I was like, 'Man, he competes.' He tackles. He's tough. He's a three-year starter in the Big 10. He was an outside corner almost predominantly, and he played special teams. This was a hard-nosed, tough guy. And he just ran 4.45 and jumped 41 inches. I spent about two hours watching him, get out of my chair, sprinted downstairs to the second floor, [and] grabbed Ron Milus, the defensive back coach.

"We got him on a Zoom call, and he knocked it out the park. What our coaches do is they challenge him pretty hard mentally. They give him some of our Raider verbiage, and they push it out and challenge it back. He got all the concepts immediately. I was on the Zoom call, I saw. It wasn't like I heard about it; I was on the call. He got all the concepts. The coaches drilled him. He got an A+ on that drill, and we're sitting back there going; OK, what's wrong with this picture? A three-year starter in the Big Ten. Tough, competitive. Every one of our scouting grades on him with competes and toughness was at a high end.

"So, I think the cool part for me is seeing it come together. It started with a trigger from the cross-checker to tell me to get my eye on him. It went from there down to Milo, then it went to the Zoom call, and then it was the whole group getting together to say, 'We got to get this guy. Where is he probably going to go league value? And at what point do we have to pull the trigger?'"

The Raiders pulled that trigger with the 167th overall pick in the draft, a pick they acquired from a trade with the Seattle Seahawks for longtime guard Gabe Jackson. He has thoroughly impressed his teammates and coaches through Training Camp and in the preseason. He's also caught many people by surprise with the tenacity and instinct he's shown he can play with. Additionally, he's shown he can adequately play both outside and nickel cornerback.

Hobbs introduced himself to Raider Nation in Allegiant Stadium in the first quarter of the first preseason game against the Seattle Seahawks with a sack heard around Las Vegas on Geno Smith.

"I was locked in listening for the call. They said the call, they said the blitz, and I said, 'OK, that's me, I'm going.' ... I was looking inside, I'm timing it up. I didn't want to go early because they would've known I was coming," Hobbs said. "I'm not going to move until I know, I'm going to time this up for when he's about to snap it. I was waiting on his cadence, he started going through his cadence and none of the linemen saw me. None of the linemen pointed me out and I was like, 'Oh, s--t.'"

"The ball snapped. As soon as it snapped, I just took off. I just saw my target, he was a target. He was just a thing, and I had to go get that thing. I was trying to get the ball out though."

The play from Hobbs took the fans at Allegiant Stadium, and even some of his new teammates, by surprise. One person that wasn't surprised was his former head coach. He saw Hobbs make plays like that on a regular basis.

"He's going to have a lot of plays like that," said Lovie Smith. "When you're a corner who can cover and you like to tackle and you get a chance to blitz ... that's what we expect him to do. I know it's easy in hindsight, but I'm going to say that's not a surprise and mean it. I have a whole lot of confidence in Nate's ability. He's going to be a good football player in this league."

Hobbs finished the preseason with six tackles, two pass deflections, a sack and an interception in the two games he played. He also earned a spot on PFF's All-Rookie preseason team with an overall grade of 90.7 — the highest graded rookie corner in the preseason.

"I'm really proud of him. I'm really excited to see what he does in his future," Gruden said after the Rams victory. "He rarely makes the same mistake twice. He loves football, eats it up and he's one of the energizers of our defense. He's walked in here and given us a lot of skills that we can utilize certainly."

Those skills will hopefully come into effect Monday night in his first-ever NFL regular season game against the Baltimore Ravens. Hobbs is in place to see a lot of action in the showdown, especially with cornerback Nevin Lawson ruled out the first two games of the season.

Coach Gruden stated a few days before the season opener that he feels "the stage isn't too big" for the rookie. Hobbs echoed his head coach's belief.

"I'm ready for the job," said Hobbs. "I just want my teammates to know — and my coaches who have trust in me with that spot — if they trust me to go out there, they ain't got nothing to worry about. I'm going to be well prepared and I'm going to bring it.

"Here's my opportunity. Things that I've prayed for. It's my opportunity, and I got to make the most out of it."

It's an opportunity he's prayed for since he was in West Louisville, and so far, Nate Hobbs has been the type to say a prayer — and then go get just what he prayed for.

Raiders Walter Payton Man of the Year nominee Alec Ingold always striving to help 'one more kid' find a home

By Grant Gordon

December 30, 2020

Outlaws of the autumns, swashbuckling marauders of the gridiron, the Raiders are the league's bad guys by choice and design.

For Silver and Black fullback Alec Ingold, however, being the white hat among the wild bunch is a celebration of each of the endeavors in his life he's most passionate about: playing Raiders football and positively affecting his community.

"It's kinda cool. You get to put on a helmet and shoulder pads, you get to be the outlaw, you get to be a bully. You get to be with a bunch of guys that love playing football," Ingold says. "[You get to be part of] that whole aura on Sundays. And then Tuesday you can go out and help a community and see a spark in a kid's eyes. It is cool doing both of those things."

As the Las Vegas Raiders' nominee for the 2020 Walter Payton Man of the Year, Ingold has devoted his time and energy to fundraising for and serving nutritious meals to those who need them most, supporting the Special Olympics and spreading awareness about the need and importance for foster and adoptive families. He's done it all while blocking for Raiders quarterback Derek Carr and paving the way for running back Josh Jacobs' 1,000-yard season.

Among the 32 nominees, Ingold, in just his second NFL season, is the least experienced among the field. No player has ever won the award in their first three seasons, according to NFL Research, and Ingold has an opportunity to do it in Year 2.

"It means the world to me," Ingold says of the nomination. "It wasn't really on my radar. As a young guy, my second year and I was undrafted last year. So, to kinda receive that respect among the guys in your facility, in your organization, was pretty surreal."

It's all the more surreal as Ingold is the only fullback in the field of nominees and having a trying year on the field, though it's been one in which he's carried on no matter the obstacles.

Slowed by busted ribs sustained in early November, Ingold was relegated to sleeping on the couch for a few weeks. That was, for a time, where his daily routine began. Early to wake to get additional treatment, to get his body warmed up for the grind of practices, the 24-year-old hasn't missed a game. Perhaps more inspiring, though, is that it hasn't slowed Ingold off the field.

"Learning how to deal with adversity and still being able to impact a community is amazing," Ingold says.

Though the honor was unexpected for Ingold, it was an aspiration all the same.

Given annually, the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award is recognized as the league's most prestigious honor and recognizes NFL players "for outstanding community service activities off the field, as well as excellence on the field."

Striving to become part of the prestigious class of honorees was something that came into view roughly a year ago when Ingold accompanied Jacobs to Miami ahead of the Super Bowl.

"I remember going to the Super Bowl with Josh, the NFL Honors show," Ingold says. "He was up for Rookie of the Year and he brought me, so [I had a chance] to kinda experience everything. It was our rookie year together. To see [2019 Walter Payton Man of the Year] Calais Campbell speak last year. You know you get a little taste of everything at the Super Bowl, right? You get the advertisement, endorsement stuff. You get the radio-side of things. And then, you get the NFL Honors show.

"When Calais talked, that was like, 'That's what I want to do. That's the impact I want to have – moving forward for the rest of my life.' After seeing all that, trying everything, to have that speech, that moment kind of be like that's what I want to do down the road, I was expecting to kinda have this long-term goal. And for that nomination to be happening this year is kind of surreal for me."

Giving of his time and efforts off the field didn't emanate from Miami, though. It's something that's been with Ingold for quite some time – all the way back to growing up in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Always quick to point out and appreciate the efforts of a support staff that includes his marketing and community relations teams, it's always begun with his parents – mother Chris and father Pat.

"I think it really starts with my parents. Being adopted, understanding how important that support system was for me, how I was raised," Ingold says. "My parents mean the world to me and the way they raised me growing up, I always knew it was about helping the person next to you. Whether that's on the football field being accountable, being a good teammate or in the community, having a platform to give back. It really starts with them. That whole adoption thing is huge for me. I feel like that gives me a sense of, 'I'm on this planet to do something.' There's that divine intervention of 'I'm here for a reason.' I'm gonna do everything I can to impact the people around me because that's what my parents did for me. They gave me the best opportunity possible to live out my dreams. That's kind of where I got that from and that's where the support toward Raise the Future AdoptUSKids, the national spokesperson-type thing kind of parlays into that."

Ahead of Election Day, Ingold was active in a "Get Out and Vote" campaign and he offered his support to Special Olympics competitors from Nevada and California by way of a "Virtual Fall Sports & Fitness" workout. In Las Vegas, Ingold aided the Three-Square Food Bank's Coronavirus Emergency Food Fund in providing 31,000 healthy meals for kids, veterans and furloughed workers and he also served meals to first- and second-graders at Jack Dailey Elementary. But it's adoption and AdoptUSKids that beckons him above all and what he's chosen as the charity that will receive an NFL donation in his name as a result of Ingold's MOTY nomination.

"I just hope people talk about how important adoption is," Ingold says. "It changed my life. I'm a living testimony of someone who was adopted and was given a great opportunity to live my best life because I had a great adopted family. I just hope that having those conversations helps one more family, helps one more kid find that home."

Able to find a home long ago, Ingold's now aiming to do the same for others.

Ingold is now a Las Vegas fullback, but was once a Green Bay kid who was able to listen to Packers such as Ahman Green, William Henderson, Randall Cobb, Brett Favre and Aaron Rodgers speak and give back to their community.

"I was that wide-eyed kid," Ingold says. "That meant the world to me, just seeing them.

"Those people kind of shaped my life growing up. And I know that's kind of the impact people can have in the NFL, just by smiling, by shaking someone's hand, by having conversation."

Among the Silver and Black's storied brutes and bandits, a once-wide-eyed kid has emerged as one of the NFL's 32 best men.

THE ATHLETIC

Adopted as a child, Raiders' Alec Ingold wants to help unite other families

By Tashan Reed

July 20, 2020

For Raiders fullback Alec Ingold, there was no mystery as a child to the fact that he was adopted. He's biracial, Black and White, while his mom, Chris, dad, Pat, and sister, Sydnie, are White.

"Growing up that way, it was never a big secret or anything," Ingold said. "I was pretty comfortable with it by a very young age. I love my parents. It's mom and dad and it's nothing different, but at the same time, I always knew I looked different than the rest of my family. I never really had identity issues with that, but it was always there."

Regardless, there were some tough moments. It would hit him late at night while he was alone in bed that he didn't have a relationship with anyone whom he was related to by blood. He didn't have the same biological connection that all his friends and most others enjoyed.

Ingold eventually adjusted, which was made easier because of how he was raised in Green Bay, Wis. He never had an issue in the community related to his race and his parents emphasized the importance of knowing who he is as a human being before he even considered his skin color. He also forged a strong relationship with Sydnie and had an expansive network of friends that welcomed him.

Green Bay also sparked his love for football. His Sundays were built around two things: church and the Packers. The players were his superheroes and drove him to pursue the career he has today.

"It was about as picture perfect as you could imagine," Ingold said. "I just realized how fortunate I was to be placed in that family that was going to love me so much unconditionally and support me through everything I've been through."

Ingold, 24, has spoken to his parents and sister through text messages, phone calls and FaceTime calls multiple times a week since relocating to Las Vegas in mid-March. While he doesn't know his biological father, he's had contact with his biological mother. The Ingolds are tight-knit and genuinely love and care about one another. That sustained bond was the driving force behind his decision to partner with AdoptUSKids on July 14.

"I know for a fact that there's kids out there going through the same things I'm going through," Ingold said. "Whether they were adopted early or have recently been adopted, you have that self-realization that can be a little bit of a struggle sometimes."

AdoptUSKids is a nonprofit national project that works to help children and teenagers in foster care get adopted by "safe, loving, permanent" families. It simultaneously educates families about foster care and adoption while providing child welfare professionals with information and support.

Additionally, it maintains the lone federally funded photo listing service used to connect waiting children with families in the country.

Through his partnership with the project, Ingold has become a part of its mission to raise public awareness about the need for foster and adoptive families and assists states, territories and tribes in recruiting, engaging, developing and supporting foster and adoptive families.

In the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic and the ongoing social justice movement surrounding the recent deaths of Black people at the hands of law enforcement, Ingold felt moved to use his platform. That's when he came upon AdoptUSKids, which he hopes others will use to do the same.

"I'm just hoping to speak to both sides: The kids that are in foster care right now and the kids that have been adopted, but also the prospective families," Ingold said. "That support system and that communication, everyone's life can improve from that. I just hope I can be an example for some kids going through tough times and help them understand that you can reach out and trust family members that aren't blood related. They can be your best friends. They can be more than you can even imagine."

"My family means the world to me. There's a lot of kids out there right now searching for that. Hopefully, being an NFL football player and opening up in that light will be able to show them that there's really so many opportunities and blessings that come with being a part of a family like that."

Ingold, who graduated from Wisconsin in 2019 with a personal finance degree, doubled down on his good deed by speaking to a group of Las Vegas high school students through the UNLV Young Executive Scholars Hospitality & Tourism Program, a four-week summer program targeting under-resourced youth in the Clark County School District. Ingold talked about his life and journey and stressed the importance of financial literacy.

"I'm trying to speak to as many kids that'll listen to try and give them some insight on what I've learned throughout my life," Ingold said. "Las Vegas is a community that's definitely going to be one and the same with the Raiders. Me and a lot of other teammates are trying to speak to the community about topics that are near and dear to our hearts so that we can create this relationship."

Ingold has also remained active physically, whether it's running in random parks or participating in the Raiders' unofficial 30-player workouts in Las Vegas. It's not convenient, but it's nothing compared to the adversity that he experienced early in life. He wants to be consistently accountable and reliable in his second season, so he's got to keep putting the work in. Dozens of other Raiders players have followed suit.

"I'm proud of working hard when things are tough," Ingold said. "A lot of guys that have moved out here, we've kind of found our rhythm and what it takes to work together. It's definitely bringing us together on the team, no doubt, with the move and the pandemic and an unknown season."

Ingold's involvement in the community in the meantime isn't a front. His desire to help others stems from how Chris and Pat helped him as a child.

"I've been blessed with the decisions people made to step out of their comfort zone and make that adoption decision from my biological parents to my (adoptive) parents," Ingold said. "There's so much in this world that we can offer one another. Any difficulties or adversity that I've been through, I'm going to try and share it with others so that they can get through their own adversities. If it's relatable, great. If they can take one thing away from whenever I'm speaking, awesome. But at the end of the day, it's just opening my heart up and letting people do what they need with it.

"Hopefully, we can all be better because of it."

Josh Jacobs is the Las Vegas Raiders' 'angry runner,' on his way to NFL superstardom

By David Fleming

September 21, 2020

THE CENTERPIECE OF the Las Vegas Raiders' Allegiant Stadium is the 95-foot Al Davis Memorial Torch. Built out of carbon fiber and aluminum and billed as the largest 3D-printed object in the world, the urinal-shaped cauldron doesn't feature an actual flame. Encircled by a bar, like all serious monuments, it instead blows a mixture of hot air and lasers to simulate flames in front of the $1.9 billion stadium's lanai-style peep show doors that open to expose the Strip. The rest of the building is adorned with a similar kind of classic Vegas casino-style art meant to assimilate the Raiders into the culture of their new hometown. The works include an Area 51 alien sporting Raiders merch and one particularly riveting piece featuring Baby Carlos of "The Hangover" sporting a Raiders beanie. There's a mural of Raiders greats and a series of ayahuasca-fever-dream-inspired murals by local artist Michael Godard that reimagine Marilyn Monroe as a Raiderette, Wayne Newton as a Silver and Black quarterback and Elvis Presley as a Raiders running back.

And just in case there's any question as to just how impossibly high the expectations are for the Raiders' inaugural season in Vegas, one of the few other locals deemed worthy of a King-sized portrait inside Allegiant is Raiders running back Josh Jacobs, whose picture towers above what seems like a mile of white marble near the corner suites on the 200 level of the stadium. "Very surreal and humbling," Jacobs says about his portrait. Taken 24th overall out of Alabama in last year's draft, Jacobs set the franchise record for rookie rushing yards (1,150) and led the NFL in missed tackles (70), all while playing most of the season with a broken shoulder. Now the writing is quite literally on the wall for him and the 2020 Raiders.

In a Week 1 win against Carolina, Jacobs responded to the expectations by scoring three touchdowns and breaking 10 more tackles on his way to 139 all-purpose yards. It was a performance so explosive and dominant, yet somehow so effortless and smooth, that it drew comparisons to yet another GOAT. "That was a little bit like Walter Payton used to play," says coach Jon Gruden. "Josh is special. He deserves some national attention, and I hope you give it to him."

Jacobs is one of the most compelling success stories in the NFL and, pound for pound, one of the game's most physical young runners, and Gruden and the Raiders are now counting on him to develop into the kind of dynamic all-around talent worthy of becoming the national face of the franchise, or, in Vegas vernacular, the town's first Chairman of the Scoreboard. "Josh is going to be a superstar," says Raiders fullback Alec Ingold. "There's a really, really unique opportunity that none of us will probably ever get in our lifetimes again of setting the foundation and the identity for what the first Las Vegas Raiders teams will be. And in a lot of ways, that's the responsibility Josh has taken on. He really makes this offense run, and he sets the tone for what this franchise is going to be in our new home." Even with the questionable decor choices, the Raiders' new home base, which makes its debut on Monday Night Football against the New Orleans Saints (8:15 p.m. ET on ESPN), is nothing short of spectacular.

The expansive locker room, featuring long club-style ceiling lights crisscrossing above the center of the room, feels like something befitting of Marshmello, not Maxx Crosby -- although there are already nine other clubs inside the stadium, including one so close to the north end zone that Gruden could easily signal its bouncers to break up any potential Hail Marys. "This is our field of dreams," says owner Mark Davis. "This is our house."

For Jacobs, though, it was only the second-best dream house reveal of the offseason. In January, he bought his father, Marty, a house in Oklahoma, creating a fairy-tale ending to a well-documented journey that began 10 years ago on the streets of north Tulsa inside the family's red Chevy Suburban. When Josh was in middle school, he and his four siblings and Marty were homeless for several weeks. After their parents' divorce, Josh and his siblings initially stayed with their mother, Lachelle. Josh says they argued frequently, however, especially over what he says was Lachelle's misuse of child support money. Eventually Marty was granted custody of his kids, just as he found himself between apartments and jobs. It's an all-too-common scenario experienced by many of the nearly 60,000 families in the U.S. that are homeless on any given night, especially during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Jacobses crashed with friends and in motels as long as they could until they were forced to sleep in the Suburban in a section of town where Josh had been shot at as a teenager. "I wouldn't change how I grew up for nothing because it made me who I am today," Jacobs says. "Nobody can tell me that something isn't possible, and I've got so many other dreams I want to achieve, starting with a championship, so I'm still grinding in every aspect of life."

To this day, Jacobs vividly recalls -- in a way that suggests the experience is never far from his thoughts -- that his father would often go without food, waving it away and pretending not to be hungry, so his children would have fuller bellies. Marty would often go without sleep as well, standing guard in the front seat with a gun resting in his lap, his eyes bloodshot from exhaustion and stress. Ten years later, after the surprise gift from Josh, when Marty's eyes were watering again, this time he was leaning against the black-and-gray granite countertops inside his immaculate new kitchen as giggles from grandchildren echoed throughout his spacious new home.

Standing next to him, and close to tears as well, was a former homeless teenager turned NFL running back who has now christened new homes for both his father and his franchise. "The kids that warm your heart as a coach are the ones who were not given anything and had to earn everything," says former Alabama offensive coordinator Mike Locksley, now the head coach at Maryland. "I saw Josh, going from homeless to buying his dad a house, and it's especially heartwarming when the reason you got into this business is to change people's lives with this brown football."

To help his kids process their emotions throughout their childhood, Marty encouraged them to express their feelings through poetry and art. Josh responded by drawing a picture of his dad valiantly fighting off a series of monsters. To this day, Josh attacks most carries on the football field in the same fashion: as an opportunity to slay some monsters, or at least run them over. Throughout his career, despite his relatively small stature (5-foot-10, 212 pounds), Jacobs has left in his wake a breathtakingly violent, "Jackass"-esque compilation of cartoonishly destroyed would-be tacklers. Just ask the Panthers.

Against Carolina, an astonishing 87% of Jacobs' 93 yards rushing came after contact. "There's no doubt he is an angry runner," says Locksley, who now coaches Josh's younger brother, Isaiah. "It's a chip on his shoulder, angry at the world, here I am a kid that spent time being homeless, not heavily recruited out of high school, then, at Bama, not being the focal point of the offense. Every time he touches the ball, he runs as if he may not get the ball again."

In 2015, as an unknown Wildcat quarterback at McLain High School in Tulsa, Jacobs was putting up truly unbelievable numbers. His stats were so off-the-charts ridiculous, in fact, that a skeptical reporter called McLain's athletic director and accused football coach Jarvis Payne of padding Jacobs' stats. It's a frequently recurring accusation in Jacobs' life. "The more you get to know him," Ingold says, "the more he does seem too good to be true almost." Jacobs' high school stats had to be doctored. How could a no-star, injury-prone kid suddenly average 300 rushing yards a game?

"Well, come to our next game and see for yourself," Payne growled into the phone. Just before kickoff against Cascia Hall Prep, Payne went to Jacobs' locker and dropped the details of the phone call. "After that I felt kind of sorry for that team," Payne says. "Josh took everything out on them."

The stats in question were, in fact, way off. Instead of a measly 300 yards, Jacobs ended up with 455 on 22 carries. And it would have been north of 600 if several big runs hadn't been called back. After a breathtaking display of speed, power, elusiveness and, well, controlled rage, on Jacobs' sixth and final TD, a clear path to the end zone emerged. Instead, and in what would become his signature move as a running back, Jacobs lowered his shoulder and bulldozed a defensive back who was left straddling the goal line like a Dali timepiece. "Poor kid," Payne says. "Josh could have easily sidestepped him and walked into the end zone, but he chose to run him directly over. I've seen a lot of talented kids, but that level of anger and tenacity? Very few are built like that. Josh needed to prove a point to the world. And that kid was in his way."

Several weeks later, when former Alabama and current New York Giants assistant coach Burton Burns sat down to watch McLain's highly ranked basketball team's practice, Jacobs took the ball end to end, effortlessly gliding around defenders before finishing with so much power to the basket that his forearm ended up above the rim. Burns got up and sprinted to his car like he was about to get towed, and after a frantic call to Nick Saban, Jacobs was bound for Tuscaloosa. "I see it in him, that extra hunger, that inner spark and inner sense of drive that is not typical unless you've been in those shoes," says Arash Ghafoori, the executive director at the Nevada Partnership for Homeless Youth, which runs a drop-in center just a few miles from Allegiant Stadium. "I see it over and over: The experience of being homeless doesn't beat these kids; they beat the experience, and then that resiliency becomes part of their DNA."

After splitting time in Saban's talent-rich backfield, Jacobs burst onto the scene during Bama's 2018 run to the title game. When an Auburn cornerback attempted to tackle Jacobs in the open field, the defender eventually came to rest on his head, with the rest of his body facing the wrong way, a full 7 yards downfield. A few weeks later in the national semifinal, Jacobs road-graded an Oklahoma safety on his way to pay dirt. Jacobs' personal favorite came next, in the title game, when he pancaked a 280-pound Clemson defensive end, then flexed over his massive, prostrate body. "He was a lot bigger than me, so I was supposed to lose that battle," Jacobs says. "So I put him in the ground and then, yeah, I flexed on him. Honestly, yeah, it feels good."

Jacobs' signature as a runner (and blocker) is the way he is somehow able to crystallize his physical gifts and the residual anger, fear and intense drive (along with even the tiniest perceived slight from an opponent, à la Michael Jordan) into a force that, when transferred into the body of would-be tacklers, often leaves them several yards downfield looking as if they've just been ejected from a mechanical bull.

Last season, in a Week 7 matchup at Lambeau Field, Packers safety Adrian Amos stepped in front of Jacobs at the 22. Amos, who made the unforgivable mistake of getting too much attention for being one of the highest-paid safeties in the game, returned to earth somewhere around the 26. For starters, Jacobs believes in the age-old runner's argument that operating at anything less than full speed is far more dangerous. "That's when injuries happen," he says, "when you're going through the motions." And he insists he could have easily made Amos miss -- if he'd wanted to. But Jacobs' uber-violence is more about inspiring his teammates and dictating the chess game in the trenches. After he runs over a tackler or two, the entire Raiders offense operates on a different plane, while the defenders, obsessed with delivering a huge payback blow, are overextended and off balance. "Then I'm gonna juke 'em and make them look stupid," Jacobs says. "So it's all a mind game."

Two plays later, in fact, Jacobs reeled off a 42-yard run to set up the Raiders' first score. But the damage had been done. This wasn't Cascia Hall Prep. The showdown with Amos had left Jacobs with a fractured right shoulder. "It hurt," Jacobs confesses. "But that's football." In a feat that seems nearly superhuman given the pain involved and the relentless pounding delivered to a running back's shoulder, Jacobs valiantly continued to play -- and play well -- for the next five weeks. Although pain-killing injections deserve some of the credit, playing through the injury earned Jacobs the kind of universal locker room respect and stature that usually takes younger players years to acquire. "That's another weight that Josh has to carry is that he's the focal point of this offense and also this team's identity," Ingold says. "So when you say he runs with all that anger and he runs people over even when he doesn't have to, it's not just Josh, it's the Raiders. He has to set the standard for the rest of us."

Over time, though, Jacobs' shoulder deteriorated to the point that he missed three of Oakland's final four games, and the Raiders faded from playoff contention, finishing 7-9. It was the franchise's 15th non-winning season in the past 16 years. When the doctors finally forced him to sit out, Jacobs was sobbing so hard his entire body was shaking inside his locker. He felt lost again, unmoored. His calling card as a runner had become his kryptonite. And with his life off the field near perfect, moving forward he would have to learn to run with purpose instead of anger.

As crazy as it sounds for someone who dealt with homelessness as a child, the toughest challenge of Jacobs' life was still ahead of him: adapting and surviving in a league in which most running backs are battered and broken and discarded before they hit 30. (Case in point: Leonard Fournette, the No. 4 pick in the 2017 draft, was cut in camp by the hapless Jaguars before signing with Tampa Bay.)

Sometimes, Jacobs learned, the actual work begins after all your dreams come true. "I'm gonna be one of those guys who walks away with my body intact," Jacobs insists. "I'm not gonna be one of those guys who plays until he's 35 and all of that. I plan on leaving on my terms. And my running style? Not only does that come from my life, it comes from people trying to confine me and put me in some kind of box, like 'You're this kind of runner, you're that type of runner.'"

Jacobs' shoulder injury opened the door for Cardinals quarterback Kyler Murray to win 2019 Rookie of the Year honors. Jacobs, who finished third in the NFL with 88.5 yards per game, would award himself only a B for his rookie season. Rather than bask in his success and the realization of a lifelong dream of buying his dad a house, after the season Jacobs went to Gruden and, instead of a pat on the back, asked for a shove.

Chucky was, of course, more than happy to oblige.

"He's got to stay healthy," Gruden says. "We need our feature back down the stretch. We were in a playoff stretch last year and didn't have him. He's got to stay wire-to-wire healthy, and we have to get more out of him in the passing game, more on the field on third downs. He had a great year last year, and we expect more from him this year."

Gruden's message seems to have gotten through -- a little. On the fourth day of camp, Jacobs caught a pass in the flat and began to lower his shoulder preparing to steamroll then-teammate Damarious Randall, only to pull up at the last second to smartly avoid a collision. It was a sign, however small, that Jacobs has begun to manage those cravings for contact and run with focus instead of fury. Of course, after the play, Jacobs barked, "Boom! I just retired you" just to remind everyone that the détente was a temporary courtesy, and only for teammates.

To further reduce Jacobs' wear and tear and increase his production -- as well as his Q-rating -- Gruden plans to get him much more involved in the passing game. The goal is to increase his 20 catches in 2019 to 60 this season. His four catches in the opener put him on pace for 64. If he stays on that pace and gains another 1,000 yards on the ground, that combo would put Jacobs in rare company, alongside versatile All-Pro-level backs such as Christian McCaffrey and Ezekiel Elliott.

It's a skill set Jacobs has been developing for years. Back in Tulsa, before his senior season at McLain, when Payne realized Jacobs had a better arm than any of his quarterbacks, the coach (and robotics teacher) recircuited his entire offense and moved Jacobs to Wildcat quarterback. The improvement was instant. "And ridiculous," Payne says. "Like watching a human highlight film." For good measure, Jacobs also started at safety and even found time to contribute on special teams and pitch in with some game strategy consulting.

In 2015, in a late-season game with playoff implications, McLain had the ball at the 30 with the score tied and time about to run out. McLain hadn't kicked a field goal all season, so Payne had already begun making plans for overtime when, instead of taking a knee, his quarterback called timeout and trotted to the sideline. "Hey, Coach, let's kick it," Jacobs said. "I've been watching our kicker and working with him -- he can make it." Payne huddled the team together and drew up a makeshift field goal formation using Jacobs as a decoy. Thinking it had to be a trick play, the defense didn't bother to rush the kicker. "He lines up, takes his time and kicks the most perfect 30-yard field goal you will ever see in your life," Payne says. "Josh brings out the best in everyone, even the kickers, even the coaches."

At Bama, to get Jacobs more opportunities while sharing time on a roster loaded with future NFL playmakers, Locksley used him as a back, as a slot receiver, on pass protection, on special teams and even at quarterback. "And he was good at everything," the coach says. "As an offensive coordinator, he's just one of those rare chess pieces. I call him Swiss Army Knife because he's just so multifaceted."

It's a trait that applies to Jacobs' entire life. Wanting to expand his interests off the field, this summer Jacobs met with several businessmen and entrepreneurs who, he says, always had the same response: "Are you sure you're only 22?" Teammates swear he can hit 15 3-pointers in a row on a basketball court. On his first carry in camp, after nearly falling on his face, Jacobs put one hand on the ground, caught his balance and blew through the Raiders' defense. "We all just looked at each other like, 'Oh my god,'" Ingold says. "The first time you see his kind of power and acceleration, it's like watching a new Ferrari leave the shop."

A few days later, when Raiders back Jalen Richard visited Jacobs' home outside of Vegas, Jacobs was playing piano and preparing chicken and shrimp fried rice from scratch. "So what can't you do?" Richard said with a laugh.

Before the Raiders had even completed their move to Vegas, Jacobs had already worked with the Nevada governor and attorney general to produce child ID kits to prevent human trafficking in a region with the country's highest rates of youth homelessness. Just before the 2019 draft, when it looked as if Jacobs was headed to Las Vegas, a die-hard Raiders fan and volunteer at the Nevada Partnership for Homeless Youth emailed Ghafoori, the NPHY director. The Raiders are going to have someone on their team who could have literally been one of your kids at NPHY, the email said. "I looked Josh up and read his story and I got goose bumps," Ghafoori says. "The Raiders have their own unique history in terms of having multiple homes. ... The Raiders could make a huge impact in Nevada, and Josh could be our biggest game-changer."

Ultimately it will be up to Gruden whether Jacobs has a similar impact on the Raiders franchise. When it comes to incorporating running backs into the passing game, many NFL schemes still operate like nickel slots at the Flamingo: low risk, low reward. Even in today's pass-happy NFL, contributing in the passing game for running backs mostly means serving as a safety valve checkdown for quarterbacks. (The Giants are constantly neutralizing Saquon Barkley this way.)

Dumping the ball off on simple flare-outs, rub routes and shallow crosses to a dynamic talent like Jacobs is essentially a gift to defenses, reducing his power and impact by forcing him to move horizontally and allowing the sideline to become a 12th defender instead of attacking defenses vertically and capitalizing on the constant mismatches Jacobs' skill set creates.

Instead, the model for the Raiders should be McCaffery, who, like Jacobs, played multiple positions in high school and lined up 100 times as a slot receiver during his rookie season. That dual threat, in turn, prevents defenses from loading up the box to stop the run. In the opener, Jacobs and McCaffery led their teams with 139 and 135 yards from scrimmage, respectively. (Don't be surprised, by the way, if Gruden also uses Jacobs under center. "I'm not gonna sit here and tell you he's Jim Plunkett," Locksley says, "but Josh is definitely skilled enough to throw the ball.")

So it's a hopeful sign that when asked about his offseason training focus, Jacobs sounds more like a receiver geek than a running back. Former NFL running back and current Raiders wide receivers coach Edgar Bennett constantly fed Jacobs film cut-ups on the art of receiving. One day Jacobs would watch film on disciplined route stems to prevent telegraphing his routes, the next he'd study release techniques for press coverage or how to read body language and create leverage to attack defensive backs downfield. Jacobs even dove into "stacking" -- an advanced technique to manipulate defensive backs in the deep passing game.

If there was any doubt Jacobs had truly upgraded his route-running and receiving game, it ended in Carolina when he vaporized linebacker Shaq Thompson with a surgical cut up the seam for a 29-yard catch. It was one of a dozen highlights in an all-around performance that Jacobs says is just a glimpse of what he plans to unveil in 2020. "In college and high school, I played everything, so it's just about getting back to that," Jacobs says. "I don't want to be known as just a good runner. I'm more than that. I didn't do enough last year, and I left a lot of yards on the table. This year is going to be different for me. I'm going to become a complete player and take my game to the next level."

Tonight, with the national spotlight focused on Allegiant Stadium, the 2020 Raiders and their franchise back, as the previous King of Vegas once said: It's now or never.

C Andre James

THE ATHLETIC

'I feel like I've grown a lot': Andre James is settling in to his role as the Raiders' starting center

By Tashan Reed

November 30, 2021

When he got the news, Andre James was disappointed. The Raiders had just agreed to trade Rodney Hudson to the Cardinals for draft compensation, and James' response was sadness. The transaction meant James would have the opportunity to take over as the starting center, but that's not where his mind went.

After a four-year career as an offensive tackle at UCLA, the Raiders signed James as an undrafted free agent in 2019 to play center. James had never snapped a ball in his life, but offensive line coach Tom Cable made the decision after he arrived for rookie minicamp. "You're a center. That's all you know; don't even think about anything else," Cable told James. That meant many hours of working with Cable and then-assistant offensive line coach Lemuel Jeanpierre, but it also meant many hours of refining his craft with Hudson.

"He really took me under his wing when I first got there," James said in a recent phone interview. "He was like, 'I'll show you the ropes.'"

Hudson was — and still is — one of the best players at his position, but he took the time to help groom James throughout his first two NFL seasons. James only played center in a couple of regular-season contests during that time, but the lessons and advice Hudson instilled played a major role in his development. In a way, Hudson contributed to the Raiders deciding to make James his successor. James had mixed emotions about it.

"I really love that dude," James said. "Man, I don't think I'd be where I am now if it wasn't for him."

Soon after, though, excitement would set in. James wasn't just finally getting his chance, but the Raiders were also committing to him. Five days after trading Hudson in March, the Raiders signed James to a three-year, $12.5 million contract extension. James had made about $1.2 million up to that point, but this was life-changing money for him and his family.

"Man, it was super emotional, bro," James said with a sigh. "I can't even really explain it, bro. Just after all the doubt and all the outside noise from people. ... They wanted to say, 'Oh, you're not good enough. You're not going to be able to make it.' I'm just trying to keep proving them wrong, bro. That's all it is. When people say you can't do nothing, I just try to use it as motivation, you know what I mean? From going undrafted and then having to switch to a whole different position, it's just one thing after another and just trying to stay focused and stay the course. That's pretty much been my whole motto: Just stay the course, put your head down and just keep working."

That mentality is why James didn't get shook when he had a rough start to his first season as a starter. And, while the Raiders season has been up and down, he's trended up as the season has gone on and hit a groove after the bye week. James' persistence, determination and perseverance have been developed over time, and they don't just stem from his football career.

“Football and life have a lot of similarities. Shit’s not always gonna go right,” James said. “And I think it’s all about how you respond to it. That’s what truly makes you who you are as a person and as a man.”

Andre was always doing something. He played football, baseball, rugby and threw shot put and discus in track and field. He was an avid snowboarder and enjoyed exploring the outdoors. He picked up an affinity for grilling after constantly watching his father, Marcus James, make their regular meal of BBQ chicken, rice and broccoli. His hometown of Herriman, Utah, is a small city in southern Utah that was incorporated just two years after he was born, but the eldest child of three had no complaints. “I loved it,” James said, “It was all I knew.”

Marcus and Angela James met and started dating as 15-year-old high schoolers and got a place together one month after graduating in Utah. They moved to California when Marcus started playing lower-level college football and then they got pregnant with Andre, which brought them back to Utah. They briefly returned to California before settling back in Herriman, having Andre’s younger sister, Jacey, and younger brother, Elijah, and getting married.

Marcus was responsible for Andre taking to football. Once he finished playing, he introduced his son to the game. They watched games every Saturday and Sunday, went over the fundamentals of the game and trained together. As Andre got older, Marcus stressed the importance of eating right. Pastries became protein shakes and days off turned into lifting sessions at the gym. Andre’s routine boiled down to school, practice, games and workouts.

“I think the whole reason I was able to make it as far as I am today is because of him,” Andre said. “And I fucking hated it at the time, but the work that he made me do when I was younger definitely helped pay off for where I’m at now.”

Andre enrolled at Herriman High in 2011, which was just one year after the public school had been established. Naturally, the football program hadn’t had the time to produce any recruits, let alone blue-chip prospects. During his four years there, however, Andre evolved into a four-star recruit who was considered a top-250 player in the 2015 recruiting class according to the 247Sports Composite. He received dozens of offers, including scholarships from Power 5 institutions such as Ohio State, UCLA, USC, Oregon, Oklahoma and Miami.

While Andre’s profile grew, Marcus and Angela helped him craft emails to send to college coaches, took him on road trips for visits and camps and communicated with a laundry list of coaches and recruiting staffers, but they were hands-off when it came to his decision. As parents, they preferred for him to stay nearby, but they wanted him to go wherever would be best for his growth and development both as an athlete and a young man.

“His dad and I really didn’t get a lot of the college experience just being young parents,” Angela said in a phone interview. “That’s what we really wanted for him: Get your education, have fun, enjoy life, don’t settle down too early, go and fulfill your dreams.”

They supported Andre’s choice to sign with UCLA and enroll in 2015, but it was a difficult adjustment for him, nonetheless. He was out of his comfort zone. He had to learn to juggle the rigors of being a college athlete, going to school and trying to carve out a social life on the fly. He was also humbled from a football perspective as he was redshirted his freshman year.

"I kind of fell into the trap of the three-star, four-star, five-star; I thought that was so cool when I was in high school," James said. "But when I got there, I learned really quick it didn't really mean shit."

James was able to lean on his coaches and teammates, but he didn't have his family or childhood friends around. There were days he wanted to leave. Ultimately, he navigated the struggles by coming back to what had always gotten him by: Stay the course, put your head down and keep working.

Marcus and Angela didn't care that Andre didn't play as a freshman and was coming off the bench to start his second year. Money was tight, so flights were out of the question, but they drove to every UCLA home game. They'd leave after work on Friday nights, stop in Barstow, Calif., for the night and finish the drive before the games on Saturdays. After the games, they'd take Andre to dinner before returning home.

"It was amazing," Angela said. "We were so proud of him."

Ironically, James' first starting action came six games into his redshirt freshman season when he replaced current Raiders teammate Kolton Miller due to an injury. He wouldn't see the bench again during his college career. Everything seemed to be going well: James had acclimated to being away from home, was doing well in school, maintained a relationship with longtime girlfriend Mikaela Thomas, had friends, saw his family regularly and was performing well as a starter.

But during training camp entering Andre's redshirt sophomore season, Angela had to tell her son something difficult to hear. She called then-UCLA coach Jim Mora ahead of time.

"Please, while I tell Andre this, he cannot be by himself," Angela told Mora. "He can't be by himself."

Marcus had been diagnosed with testicular cancer. It had already spread throughout most of his body by the time doctors discovered it. They projected that he had just a couple of months left to live.

"We had to tell him while he was there that his dad had cancer," an emotional Angela said. "And it was a really hard thing to do."

It was a lot for Andre to process all at once. What kind of cancer was it? How far had it spread? How serious is it? Will his dad be OK? Angela fielded her son's questions, and while she didn't answer them all at once, she and Marcus eventually told him the full scope of the situation. Andre was rocked, but he didn't leave UCLA. He relied on his coaches and teammates and did the only thing he knew how to: keep working.

"He stayed strong for the family," Angela said. "And his dad wanted him to be there and keep fighting."

Andre finished camp and started games once the season began. He talked to Marcus daily and saw him whenever his family made trips up for games or during breaks from school. Although his dad was now combating cancer, he was still the same man.

"He was a tough dude," Andre said. "One of things he emphasized was just positivity and how you respond to things. You can look at it glass half empty or half full, and that's how he was his whole time he had cancer. He was just always positive and always had a smile on his face."

When the season ended that December, Marcus was still fighting. He'd outlasted the doctors' timeline.

In fact, when Andre was preparing for his redshirt junior season over a year later, he still had his father. UCLA played Cal in its sixth game of the season on Oct. 13, 2018, and Andre planned to go home to Utah to surprise Marcus as he celebrated his 41st birthday on Oct. 15. Marcus' parents planned to visit, too, so most of his immediate family was in town. Almost as soon as they arrived, his condition rapidly deteriorated. Marcus died on his birthday surrounded by his wife, three children and parents.

"It was super hard on the family; I was lucky enough to be back home at the time," Andre said. "So, even with how shitty of a situation it was, it was just kind of like a, 'What are the odds?' kind of moment that we have our whole family here and his passing came at a time where we were all together in one place. ... We were actually very fortunate. And that's how I still look at it."

Andre stayed home the next couple of days to spend time with his family and grieve. UCLA was set to play Arizona at home on Oct. 20, though, and he wasn't going to miss it. At the time, it wasn't for himself, UCLA or its supporters; it was for his father.

"I was like, 'I gotta go do this for him,'" Andre said. "I went and played that game for him. I dedicated that whole game and the rest of that year to him. I think that's what he would've wanted: for me to keep pushing and keep working hard."

Andre didn't miss a game that season.

"I know Marcus is so proud of him for pushing and keeping his goals in front of him and being the man of the family and being such a strong support system for his brother and sister," Angela said. "He's been amazing through it all."

Once the season was over, Andre declared for the 2019 NFL Draft. He still had a year of eligibility left, but he felt it was time for him to take over as the provider for his family in the absence of Marcus.

"My whole mindset was like, 'Man, I just want to take care of my family,' you know what I mean?" Andre said. "I decided to forego it and just never looked back."

James had played tackle all throughout his high school and college careers, but he figured he'd likely get moved to guard at the next level. In an effort to improve his draft stock, he spent his offseason working on refining his technique and skill set at the position. But when the draft came in April, his name went uncalled.

"I wasn't exactly expecting that," James said. "I was like, 'Man, where am I going to go?'"

James' agent, Jeremy Newberry, was a former player who spent a year with the Raiders in 2007. He was coached by Cable, who was in his first stint as the Raiders offensive line coach. The two remained close, so Newberry reached out to his former coach about James. Cable was high on him and it was an added bonus that he'd be reunited with Miller, his former college teammate, so James was onboard. His decision to declare hadn't come with any guarantees. He was viewed as a late-round pick at best by many, which ended up being accurate, but there was concern whether he'd be able to land with a team at all. It took a stressful week after the draft, but he was officially in the NFL.

"Everybody was telling him, 'What if you don't get picked up?'" Angela said. "His dad was definitely watching down and blessing him, for sure. And Andre has been so strong throughout the whole thing for his brother and sister and I. He's pushed us and has taken that family-man role of supporting everything."

James signed the day before rookie minicamp began that May. From there, he jumped into learning his new position at center. There were some similarities between center and tackle from a footwork standpoint, but everything else was new. Mentally, he had to learn to act as the quarterback of the offensive line. He had to know how to identify the middle linebacker, pick up blitzes, make calls for the rest of the line and understand how the entire defense works. Physically, he had to both get stronger to deal with massive interior defensive linemen and quicker to react to the faster pace. And, of course, he had to learn how to snap.

Obviously, that's a lot, but he handled it well and made the team as a backup center behind Hudson. Hudson's role in his development was huge, but he wasn't the only one who helped. Cable, Jeanpierre, current assistant offensive line coach Cameron Clemmons, Richie Incognito, Derek Carr and others all chipped in.

"You want to play for dudes like that: Dudes who you want to go out and ball for," James said. "Dudes who you just want to go and give everything out just for them because you know they got your back and the work that they put in. I strive to be a guy like that one day where it's like, 'I don't want to let this guy down.' ... Everything I work on is because I don't want to let my teammates down."

James studied his peers intently and worked to prepare himself as if he was playing every week. He wasn't playing, but that didn't stop him from grinding in an effort to mold himself into a legitimate starting offensive lineman. Those outside of the franchise couldn't see that developmental process, but Cable did. Cable was the most prominent voice in the building when it came to signing James for a reason, and that was also the case when it came to naming him the starter. In only a couple of years, James proved the gamble he took for his family was the right call.

"It seemed unreal," Angela said. "I feel so blessed to be his mom. Because he is honestly the most humble, grounded, fearless, hard-working person I know. And nobody deserves it more than Andre. He has fought for this. He has worked his ass off for it. I couldn't be more proud."

"It's like a dream come true for our whole family."

Nothing about James' process really changed. His mental reps became physical reps in practice, but everything else remained the same.

"Andre, he has a great set of fundamentals from the footwork to hands and how he moves," Kolton Miller said during minicamp this spring. "I think a challenge could be of course for many centers is just the mentality on offense, being in sync and of course developing that relationship with DC, which is what he's doing right now. They're putting extra time off the field during this offseason. He's really doing all he can to make those big strides and I'm excited for him."

Externally, there was skepticism about whether he was ready for this because, well, nobody had seen him take an NFL snap since late in the 2019 season when he relieved Hudson in a game due to injury and started the next week. The NFL canceled the 2020 preseason due to COVID-19 and the Raiders sat him for the 2021 preseason to avoid injury, so James had gone almost two years without making a snap when he took the field in Week 1 earlier this season.

The rust showed. James had a handful of botched snaps, appeared to have timing issues snapping the ball to Carr and got pushed back consistently while blocking. After losing Incognito and Denzelle Good to injury, the offensive line as a whole was in a rough place to start the season. That led to a Week 5 shakeup where the coaching staff moved first-round pick Alex Leatherwood to right guard and promoted Brandon Parker to the starting lineup at right tackle. The overall play of the unit has leveled out since then.

“There’s been a lot of changes going on on the O-line,” James said. “We’re all younger dudes. We’re all kind of going through these new phases together. We’re all kind of learning about this shit together. It’s actually a little cool in a way. I love the dudes that we got on the O-line right now. It’s been good, man. It’s just getting the communication and how we flow together down really well. Because every player’s different and then the combination fits and the communication you have with one another, it’s all just about the reps you get with them. And the more reps you get, the more you jell together. That’s what it’s all about. I feel like we’re finally starting to get this going and understand it more.”

The unit has been up and down this season, but that’s to be expected when you trade away three veteran starters and lose two more due to injury. Plus, it’s about the long term for this unit, and the team believes it’ll only continue to move in the right direction.

“I think that they keep getting better,” Carr said earlier this month. “They’re a good group of guys that work extremely hard with good coaches. That’s not always a recipe for perfect success but it’s a recipe for getting better.”

That’s the approach James takes. He trusts in his ability, preparation and those around him. Regardless of the results the rest of the way, that won’t change.

“I feel like I’ve grown a lot, man,” James said. “All this game is about is experience. It’s not about the first game. It’s not about the second game. It’s always about what’s next. It’s a what-have-you-done-for-me-lately type of game. I’m just attacking each day and looking to get one thing better. That’s all I’ve been trying to do is just gain experience, identify what I need to fix and figure out how I fix it. I’m excited about the future; I’m just trying to keep working hard.”

TE Darren Waller

LAS VEGAS SUN

RAIDERS TIGHT END DARREN WALLER HAS EMERGED FROM A DARK PLACE TO BECOME LAS VEGAS' FIRST NFL SUPERSTAR

By Case Keefer
September 9, 2020

Darren Waller peeks through the rolling glass garage doors at the back end of the Raiders' Henderson headquarters between weightlifting sets to watch his teammates' training camp practice session.

Maintaining his usual straight face, the Pro Bowl tight end exudes a calm that stands in stark contrast to the panic regarding his status that's been spreading among the Raiders' fanbase. Waller isn't injured, just experiencing some minor, undisclosed "discomfort," so Las Vegas' coaching staff has given him a 10-day break from practice during a grueling stretch in August.

Waller initially didn't like the idea but came around to understanding.

"It was frustrating, because I always want to be out there working. [In] 2019, I don't think I missed a practice, and [in] 2020, I only missed a couple, so I want to be out there," Waller says after returning to practice. "But at the same time, maybe I do need to sit still a little bit, because it's a long season."

The ultra-cautious, rest-over-reps approach the Raiders have employed with the 28-year-old going into the 2021 season is hardly unprecedented in the NFL. It's usually reserved for the league's best players, a category in which Waller now undoubtedly belongs after monster years in each of his first two full seasons with the Raiders.

Waller broke out in 2019 with 90 receptions for 1,145 yards and three touchdowns, then proved he was no one-year wonder by topping those figures in the team's first year in Las Vegas. The speedy, 6-foot-6, 255-pound force became the undisputed focal point of the Raiders' offense in 2020, pulling in a franchise record 107 receptions for 1,196 yards and nine touchdowns.

The organization seems even more committed to him going into the 2021 season after allowing the team's second-leading receiver, Nelson Agholor, to walk in free agency without making any significant upgrades in that area. That's largely because the Raiders' brain trust trusts so completely in Waller.

"I've never been around a guy that is that unselfish, that talented, that versatile and that complete," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said in a news conference during training camp. "We've got to continue to build around him. We've got to get some of our young receivers to take pressure off of him. We've put some more things in our playbook. We are going to be a lot more demanding of Waller going forward." Waller ranked No. 35 in the NFL's annual player-voted Top 100 list going into this season. His coaches and teammates would surely argue that wasn't high enough, and they might have a point.

Alongside fellow standouts Travis Kelce (Kansas City) and George Kittle (San Francisco), Waller is helping to redefine the tight end position in the modern NFL. Among that trio of consensus top tight ends, Waller also stands out as the unlikeliest success story, considering where he was as recently as three years ago.

The Raiders signed Waller off of Baltimore's practice squad in late 2018 to end a rocky four-year tenure with the Ravens, who selected him in the sixth round of the 2015 NFL Draft out of Georgia Tech.

Las Vegas quarterback Derek Carr recalled thinking, "How did we get this guy?" as soon as Waller showed up.

"I remember throwing him his first route at practice. I threw it 10 feet behind him and was like, 'Oh, wow, this guy can run!'" Carr recalled at the end of last season. "From then on, it was a beautiful thing with not only on-the-field chemistry but off the field. He told me his story and what he had been through."

Waller was an addict, developing a drug habit that included opioid pills and cocaine, dating back to his days as a prep football star in suburban Atlanta. It nearly cost him his career, if not his life.

After being suspended for the entire 2017 NFL season for repeated violations of the NFL's substance abuse policy, Waller overdosed on opioids in his car. Unlike three friends he grew up playing football alongside—all of whom suffered fatal overdoses—Waller survived, checking himself into rehab shortly after the incident.

He has now been sober for more than four years and has turned his attention toward advocacy for those in similar situations. He founded the Darren Waller Foundation to help drug-addicted youths and has appeared in national opioid-crisis campaigns.

"I feel like that giving-back component really keeps me sharp, because that's the greatest feeling that I can feel—to help somebody else or to be impactful in someone else's community or sphere of influence," Waller says. "So I really want to do that and stay on top of my routine—meditating, praying, writing in my journal, still going to meetings and just doing what I've been doing to keep me built up.

"Without those things, my career doesn't sustain. I have to continue to dance with what brought me here, and that's taking care of myself internally, mentally, spiritually, emotionally. You get the best version of me on the football field when I'm doing those things."

Waller's absence from training camp was partially a result of how sharp he's looked again heading into 2021, according to Gruden. The coach says he found it almost necessary to hold Waller out in order to fully evaluate other players vying for receptions.

With his ability to create separation in passing routes and his rhythm with Carr, Waller received the lion's share of targets during the first several practices. Given his mindset, it was easier to sit him for practices than ask him to go at half-speed.

That's because, after what he's been through, Waller refuses to give less than full effort. He has risen from the lowest of depths to the highest of peaks, and he plans to extend his stay at the top.

"When I was coming out of the dark places in my life, it's like, 'Man, you've come that close to not being here anymore, you have to have a new sense of urgency,'" Waller says. "Every single day you're not promised much, so I want to take that urgency and put it into everything I do."

THE ATHLETIC

Raiders' Darren Waller copes with the shutdown by exploring his musical side

By Vic Tafur

May 15, 2020

The violins start in first, before the bass drops and the angry voice starts poking you in the chest. D Wall, or Darren Waller as Raiders fans and fantasy football players call him, wants to know how your paper is stacking up in his new single, "Profits."

The music video drops Friday, the second to be released off his "Wall Street" album. "SHSW" was a much more relaxing song, with a smiling Waller rapping about how he separated from the crowd, as the acronym indicates, Some How Some Way.

Most people know Waller's story of overcoming addiction, signing with the Raiders and quickly becoming one of the best tight ends in the NFL. Many don't know how serious he is about his music — he recently received his first royalty check. The $500 was the first money he has ever earned for his passion project.

"It's going great," Waller said in a phone interview last week. "Quarantine has provided a lot of time to lock in on improving my production and making new songs."

He is working on building a studio in his new house. Waller is back in Las Vegas, having returned from Georgia week ago. He is all moved in — after spending the past season and a half at the extended-stay hotel two blocks from the Raiders' old facility in Alameda.

"I grew to appreciate the proximity to the facility," Waller said, "because I would get there early for treatment and stay late for treatment."

The Raiders' new facility in Henderson, Nev., is on schedule to be finished next month, with the team's new stadium in Vegas set to be complete in July.

"It's quiet, but I really like Vegas so far and can really see myself enjoying life here," Waller said.

Waller gets up early and logs into the team's online meetings before hitting the field at a local park and working out with teammates Derek Carrier and Foster Moreau. (The team's newest tight end, Jason Witten, is in the process of moving from Dallas.)

"It's been pretty well organized, as far as the position meetings and getting a whole team meeting online," Waller said. "It's gone a lot smoother than I thought it would — I thought there would be a lot of connections dropping and a lot more difficulties."

"There is really good communication from the coaches to the players, so we know what we should be doing to be ready when the time comes."

Waller was very excited by the addition of Witten, an 11-time Pro Bowler with the Cowboys.

"I thought it was awesome," he said. "He is a great example of longevity and doing it the right way. His technique and his mental approach to the game kept him at the top and is going to put him in the Hall of Fame, so to have him in your room and be able to learn from him is priceless."

Waller said Moreau used to mention watching film of Witten, and that prompted him to do the same last year.

"There are things that caught me off guard watching him," Waller said. "He looks fast because he is great getting off the ball right at the snap, like no one I have ever seen — he will be ahead of wide receivers. So I am watching and thinking, 'I didn't know Jason Witten was that fast,' but it's that get-off and there are a lot of small details to his game that are just incredible."

Waller can't wait to get together with Witten and the rest of his teammates.

"I think we had another great draft class and we're putting together something special on both sides of the ball," he said. "We have a lot to offer Las Vegas, a lot of energy and we also want to do big things in the community."

Waller was also excited about the schedule, much fairer than last season's, when the Raiders were away from home for seven straight weeks.

"I feel that if we can get through last year's schedule, there is nothing we can't get through," he said.

The bar is high for Waller, in particular. A receiver in college, Waller is still learning the nuances of the tight end position and last season had 90 catches for 1,145 yards at 27 years old. And that's with defenses bracketing their coverage toward him after receiver Antonio Brown was cut and Tyrell Williams was injured.

"I see a lot of room for growth," Waller said.

He can block as well and is already among the handful of most valuable tight ends in the NFL. But Waller leaves the swagger to his rap persona.

"I try not to compare and say I am better than that guy," Waller said. "Saying I am the top dog doesn't do too much for me, because things change week to week. I just need to be the best me I can possibly be. That makes my life a lot simpler.

"I save that kind of energy for the music."

After football meetings and workouts every weekday, Waller works just as hard in the evenings, coming up with new beats. In many ways it's harder than being a professional football player.

"I pull the laptop open and ... I don't know," Waller said. "Sometimes I will go off a sample and try to flip that. Or I will play with some software that I found called Arcade and I try to create a melody. I just go through random sounds and click and play things on my keyboard until I catch something and I can hear something in my mind. And then I find another sound to layer it up.

“There is no one process. I could also be inspired by something I see or hear or some feeling I have. Something someone said to me can translate into a note that can spark a beat. It’s random. ... I try not to press for it and let it just happen. I have taken a week off at times and when I come back to it, I really missed it. I just really enjoy it.”

Teammates have remarked how on team flights Waller disappears into his laptop from wheels up to wheels down. And he has said he has missed the first bus from the hotel to the stadium on game days because he has gotten lost in his music.

Waller filmed all five music videos in a span of 39 days, each Saturday beginning in February, in the Atlanta area. He is also recording new stuff, with the same plan that he had last year – having enough songs to put out another project/album at some point during the season.

“I can mess around with a beat for fun during the season,” Waller said, “but I don’t get to spend an extended amount of time. So I like to get most of my music work done before the season gets going.”

Waller recently started his own YouTube channel, and reaction to the music has been positive.

“I have put a lot of work into it and I think it sounds good. So it’s definitely good to see other people like it because music is meant to be shared,” Waller said. “It was dope to get that check, just because I never thought that was ever possible.”

And yes, Raiders fans, that collaboration with teammate Maxx Crosby is still in the works.

“I sent Maxx a whole bunch of beats, so hopefully when he puts something out he will be using one of mine,” Waller said. “He is a busy guy, and whenever he is ready to lock in, I am here for him.”

Waller will put that song on his YouTube channel or on Instagram when the time comes. While the Instagram account is also popular, Waller winds up checking it almost every day for more important stuff than reactions to his music.

“People message me and tell me how they relate to my story and what they are going through, so I use that to have short conversions with them,” Waller said.

Waller struggled with opiate and cocaine addiction when he first came into the league. He was suspended twice for failing drug tests, including for the entire 2017 season.

“I try and connect with fans on Instagram whenever I can and let them know that I see them and I am there, and that I am just a normal human being who had to overcome some stuff,” Waller said. “Ever since ‘Hard Knocks’ (last summer), people have been able to relate to what I went through and I want to let them know that I appreciate them and what they are going through as well. And those talks give me a recharge because I am not perfect and I have doubts and I need to be picked up sometimes, too.

“People saying they look to me for inspiration gives me extra life sometimes.”

Waller also started the Darren Waller Foundation a few months ago. There was a kickoff dinner scheduled for it on the Las Vegas Strip during NFL Draft weekend, but the pandemic wiped that out.

“Corona has us on hold, but we’ll start having events as soon as Vegas is up and running again,” Waller said. “We just want to educate people and put my story and the stories of others in front of the youth.

“Kids always envision who they want to be when they grow up, without really taking stock of their mental health and how happy they are going to be when they get there. Maybe kids ages 10 on up to 25, getting in front of them as well as having an online community, which can serve as a safe space. They can say whatever is on their minds.

“I am trying to put together things that I wish I would have taken advantage of when I was a teenager.”

Music was one of the things that Waller turned to before he was sober, and it’s been even sweeter for him since he cleaned up.

“On my first project, there are songs where I am talking about drinking or using drugs, and I was able to learn how to make music without doing that,” Waller said. “I was afraid that once I got sober, my music was going to be trash — because you know, that’s a big part of rap — but my stuff did get better and I was able to be creative without rapping about material things, drug, alcohol or talking about women in a crazy way. I was able to find my sound, find my pocket and still be confident and still feel like I could still put music out that people would want to listen to.”
