

RAIDERETTE OF THE GAME

PRESENTED BY EōSFITNESS[®]

Maddie

Thanks to her mother's influence, Raiderette Maddie wanted to be a dancer from childhood. She grew up watching her mother own and operate her own dance studio and dreamed of one day following in her footsteps and onto the stage. Maddie studied many styles of dance through the pom and dance teams in high school, which eventually brought her to UCLA to continue her studies at the collegiate level. She was a member of the UCLA dance team while she earned her degree in Dance with a minor in Food Studies.

When she's not cheering on the sidelines for the Silver and Black at Allegiant Stadium, Maddie works as a dance teacher and choreographer at Raiderettes The Studio. She has quickly become one of the most beloved teachers by her students, who refer to her as a "real-life Disney princess." Outside of dance, Maddie is a certified nutrition coach and teaches fitness classes.

She auditioned for the Raiderettes because she wanted to continue doing what she loves and be surrounded by a sisterhood of women who inspire each other to be better than themselves daily.

"Going into my third season as a Raiderette, I wanted to continue representing the Raiders as both a professional and ambassador for the Las Vegas community," Maddie said. "I hope to inspire other people that with hard work and passion, they can follow their dreams."

Her favorite part about being a Raiderette are the relationships that last forever. "This season is so special as we celebrate the Raiderettes 60th Anniversary," she continued. "It truly is an honor to represent the Las Vegas Raiders. I hope to make our former Raiderettes sisters and all of Raider Nation proud every time we take the field."

Maddie's most rewarding experience in the community was participating in the "Raiders Community Blitz" this season, which included visiting the Three-Square Food Bank, and being able to meet volunteers and learn more about how to support our community.

In the future, Maddie hopes to further her education and get her master's degree in a health-related field. She wants to continue teaching and inspiring future generations to live out their dreams, just as she has. "As a Raiderette, I feel so blessed to have a sisterhood of such supportive women," Maddie said. "I hope to live up to the legacies that so many amazing former Raiderettes have left for us to continue and that I dreamed about being one day as a little girl."

Maddie is an inspiration to the community, her teammates, and coaches. She is a bright light on and off the field with her constant positivity and strives daily to be the best version of herself. We are so lucky to have role models like Maddie on the Raiderettes who help carry out the tradition and legacy of what it truly means to be a "sister." Thank you, Maddie, for all you do, we are so lucky to have you on our team.
