

YOUTH & HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

IMPACT REPORT
2025

Dear Vikings Family and Community Members,

As we reflect on 2025 and our enduring commitment to positively impact Minnesota communities, we are proud to continually grow youth football across the State.

This year, we were grateful to see an incredible 51 high school girls flag teams take part in the inaugural girls flag football season, following a successful four-team pilot in 2024. The Vikings also recognized Mahtomedi's Nick Sullivan as the first Girls Flag Coach of the Year, as well as honoring the first All-State Girls Flag Team.

We sponsored seven NCAA institutions across the upper Midwest that participated in the inaugural Midwest Women's Flag Football League. We hosted the championship tournament this past spring at Twin Cities Orthopedics Performance Center, where the University of Wisconsin-Stout took home the title.

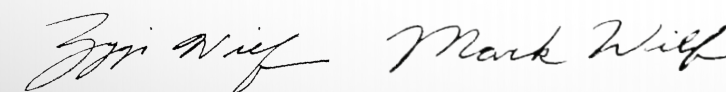

The Vikings efforts to expand youth football expanded beyond Minnesota, across the United States, and once again reached across the pond. The Minnesota Vikings held youth football camps ahead of both of its International Series Games this fall, in Dublin and then in London. The Newcastle Vikings Flag League is now 10 teams strong.

Our organization continues to support high school tackle football through the All-Star Game, Prep Spotlight games at TCO Performance Center, and Gatorade Prep Elite. And, this year, we hosted a high school football officials clinic, as well.

Looking with excitement toward 2026, we are honored to support the grassroots growth of football in the State and across the region, and we look forward to continuing to ensure that football is accessible to everyone.

Please enjoy this youth football report, which further emphasizes the work the Vikings are doing and the impact we are having in Minnesota and the North. We appreciate your continued support of these efforts.

Sincerely,

Zygi Wilf

PRESENTED BY HyVee

Boys and girls ages 6-14 were eligible to participate in football camps presented by Hy-Vee and hosted by the Vikings around the region during the summer of 2025.

A total of 10 one-day sessions were held in Zimmerman, Virginia, Willmar, St. Paul, Frazee, La Crescent and Eagan, in addition to two out-of-state sessions held in Fargo, North Dakota and Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The 10 total sessions impacted 2,806 kids who were taught techniques and skills by Vikings youth development coaches. 90% of attendees reported their knowledge of football fundamentals increased after participating in a summer youth camp. One of the goals of hosting camps throughout the Vikings four-state region is to reach kids that have not yet played football.

18% of attendees reported having no prior experience, and 70% of attendees reported being more likely to seek a flag or tackle league after attending camp.

In addition to the 10 Hy-Vee youth football camps, eight specialty youth football camps were administered. These included an All-Abilities Clinic, two Girls Flag Football Academies, three clinics in Winnipeg, Canada, and one clinic per international game in Dublin and London.

TESTIMONIALS

“WHAT AN AMAZING OPPORTUNITY FOR THE YOUTH IN MINNESOTA. SO PROUD OF THE VIKINGS AND THE IMPACT THEY MAKE ON COMMUNITIES OUTSIDE THE METRO, AS WELL.”

“MY SON HAD SO MUCH FUN TODAY. HE WAS WORRIED GOING ALONE WITHOUT FRIENDS, BUT THE COACHES AND THE KIDS IN HIS GROUP WERE VERY NICE AND WELCOMING. HOPE TO MAKE FUTURE EVENTS! HE LOVED THE CAMP SO MUCH HE HAS BEGGED US TO TAKE HIM TO TRAINING CAMP AND A GAME, WHICH OF COURSE WE WILL TO SUPPORT THIS GREAT ORGANIZATION.”

GIRLS FLAG ACADEMIES

The team hosted two Girls Flag Academies, open to girls 6-17 years of age interested in playing or expanding their skills. One was held in Fargo, North Dakota, while the other was held during a girls flag celebration day at training camp at TCO Performance Center in Eagan. The latter clinic featured USA Football National Team Athlete Maci Joncich, who spoke with the participants about the opportunities flag football has opened for her and answered questions from the crowd.

VIKINGS ROOKIES HELP HOST ALL-ABILITIES FOOTBALL CLINIC

BY LINDSEY YOUNG

Max Brosmer didn't stop grinning the entire evening. The rookie QB and former Golden Gopher spent over an hour on the field of TCO Stadium, a majority of that time dedicated to helping young people toss a football toward an inflatable target.

"We're making quarterbacks over here!" Brosmer exclaimed. "It's been a lot of fun for me, and I think they're having a blast, as well."

Brosmer and his fellow Vikings rookies – along with second-year tackle Walter Rouse – came together in September to host an annual All-Abilities Football Clinic with young people from Shriners Children's and other area hospitals. Most of the youth participating are facing physical challenges, such as limb differences, prosthetic limbs or the need for crutches or a wheelchair. A few participants also experience cognitive challenges.

Zachariah Kuper, 23, and his family every year drive from Nebraska to take part in the unique camp that strives to create an even playing field for those with disabilities. Zachariah's mother, Mindy West, explained he has been a Shriner Kid since the age of 2.

"We would come up to the hospital every four to six months, and when he'd have surgeries, we'd come up every month," West said. "Then four years ago we came to the first event they had, and we fell in love with the football players and the whole experience."

"Being here, it makes these kids feel like anything's possible," West added. "It's incredibly important that we get Zachariah here every year."

Ten-year-old Teddy shares a similar love for the All-Abilities Clinic and is also a repeat attendee.

"It's just really fun," he said, "and I love getting to meet the players and even get their autographs."

Teddy doesn't let the fact he was born with achondroplasia, the most common type of dwarfism, hold him back. Just ask Rouse or Vikings outside linebacker Chaz

Chambliss, who rooted Teddy on as he ran ladder drills or ran full-speed into the blocking dummy Chambliss held.

Teddy's father, Chris, looked on proudly.

"This is just great. He gets to come out here and be a part of the Vikings, a part of the team, and gets to do drills and hang out with other kids," Chris said. "It's just the highlight of his year." "I think it's great for the kids to see that, you know, these players might be on TV, they might be big NFL stars, but at the end of the day, they're people, too," Chris added.

Vikings defensive lineman Elijah Williams, who made the team's 53-man roster after being invited to rookie minicamp on a tryout basis, shared a drill station with Rouse and encouraged the campers as they executed each exercise.

"Shoot, when you see them smiling and enjoying themselves like this, you definitely can't help but enjoy yourself, too," Williams said. "It's really inspiring. These kids are coming out here and just having fun. No matter what was thrown at them, the cards they were dealt in life, they still find a way to be out here and enjoy this moment for what it is."

Though Williams of course was excited to make an impact on the field, he also sought more ways to give back in the community.

"I want to be an inspiration for others. I enjoy being an example for others," he said. "When I get the chance to [do something like this] and meet new people, I'm gonna take advantage of it."

Shriners Children's Twin Cities physical therapist Becky Rouse emphasized the importance of creating events like the All-Abilities Clinic to remind young people facing challenges they are not alone.

"It's a place where kids can play with other kids who have similar struggles – and to be on the Vikings field at such an amazing facility is really special for them," Rouse said. "I think it's a fantastic thing the Vikings offer, and I think it's great for the players to see, too. The impact they can have on these kids is huge. So for them to be willing to be out here and participating is incredible."

Brosmer appreciated the opportunity not only to connect with some of the youth but also to step back and admire their confidence and adaptability.

He pointed out that a few times he'd reach to rebound a football bouncing off the target and be playfully scolded by a child, "I can do it myself."

"They've been doing an amazing job, and it's incredible experience," Brosmer said. "Sometimes there's a stigma surrounding physical limitations, people assume it's too hard for kids to participate in a sport, but [these kids] are showing the complete opposite. I'm so proud our organization is doing this for our community, and I'm proud I can represent the Vikings doing this."

VIKINGS HOST 3 VIKINGS FLAG CLINICS IN PARTNERSHIP WITH RCX IN WINNIPEG

The 2025 summer youth camp series concluded with Vikings Flag clinics in Winnipeg, presented by Oakley, King's Hawaiian and Kenmore and hosted by the Vikings and RCX. Nearly 300 kids convened at Ralph Cantafio Soccer Complex, where they participated in a variety of skills and drills.

88% of attendees noted their knowledge of football had increased as a result of attending the clinic.

YOUTH FLAG FOOTBALL CLINICS EXPAND SPORT IN IRELAND & UK

BY CRAIG PETERS

The love of football is continuing to surge internationally.

The Vikings historic double dip of back-to-back International Series games in Dublin and London offered the opportunity for youth in Ireland and the United Kingdom to participate in football clinics.

Minnesota's bleary-eyed travel party arrived in Ireland on the morning of Sept. 26 and immediately bused to the beautiful, sprawling campus of Sport Ireland. As the group wheeled up to the Vikings practice facility for the day, the exuberant welcome by 125 youth clad in purple Vikings T-shirts provided a jolt.

The young people from St. Columba's National School, O'Connell Primary School, Grace Park Educate Together National School and Scoil an tSeachtar Laoch formed a high-five line as players walked out to the field for a wake-up shakeout.

They also participated in an hour-and-a-half clinic in which they were introduced to flag football through multiple skills and drills stations. Viktor the Viking, Minnesota Vikings Cheerleaders and Vikings Legend Ifeadi Odenigbo participated in the clinic.

The following Friday, a few days after the Vikings arrived at Hanbury Manor, nearly 100 students from Brookmans Park Primary School, Cunningham Hill Schools and Oak View Primary and Nursery School formed a high-five line as Vikings took the field for the team's final session in the English countryside of 2025. Persistent rain didn't prevent the young people from participating in a youth clinic or playing other games with Viktor and Minnesota Vikings Cheerleaders. Instead, the students, again clad in Vikings T-shirts, showered enthusiasm for the sport.

James Nicholson, P.E. teacher and flag football club leader at Brookmans Park, is helping spread the understanding of and enthusiasm for American football in the UK.

Nicholson's father-in-law is from Pittsburgh, and he admitted his initial interest was motivated in part by ingratiating himself with his wife's family. He's now a "big NFL fan."

"I wanted to get kids in my school interested in the NFL, and flag is the gateway for that, particularly with it being in the [2028] Olympics and so many NFL games being hosted in London," Nicholson said. "The children got to play some of the games and are seeing the players with their pads and helmets on."

PLANTING AND GROWING A FLAG LEAGUE

Additionally in the UK, the Vikings continued to support the growth of flag football in Newcastle, a community that has enthusiastically embraced the outreach by the Vikings and proudly serves as the home of the Newcastle Vikings, a member of the BAFA (British American Football Association) National Leagues since 2015.

Ten area schools formed flag football teams to participate in a six-week season.

A celebratory launch day occurred on Oct. 1 and included photo stations, a combine experience with prizing, a skills clinic and league games.

“The Vikings are dedicated to breaking down barriers so more kids can experience the game of football around the world,” Vikings Director of Youth and High School Football Joe Rush said. “The enthusiasm from the Newcastle Flag League demonstrates the powerful effect that access to resources and structured programs can have on both young athletes and their communities. Supporting initiatives like this reflects the Vikings ongoing commitment to inspiring the next generation and making the game accessible for all.”

PLAYER-LED YOUTH CAMPS

The Vikings are proud to support player and Legend efforts to reach youth in their communities by providing Vikings branded items, coaching assistance and content coverage at their youth camps. More than 4,000 swag bags were distributed in support of player and Legend led initiatives.

VIKINGS FLAG LEAGUE NETWORK

More than 5,000 kids participated in a Vikings Flag League in 2025. In addition to the social, emotional and physical benefits of participating in a team sport, Vikings Flag athletes get exclusive access to Vikings events, player meet-and-greets and more. Benefits included the following:

- Flag football day at training camp, where more than 500 Vikings Flag players from the YMCA of the North and coaches were provided with free access to camp.
- A meet-and-greet with Aaron Jones, Sr. at the Oakley store at Mall of America, where participants got to ask him questions, take a photo with him, receive an autograph and receive free Oakley swag.
- A Vikings Flag only clinic hosted at the Vikings practice facility.

VIKINGS FLAG REGIONAL

The Vikings hosted a mini regional at the National Sports Center in Blaine on May 10. Four 14U teams participated, with the NWC Blue Rangers winning and representing the Vikings at NFL Flag Championships in Canton.

VIKINGS PARTNER WITH INDIGEFIT KIDS TO INSPIRE NATIVE YOUTH THROUGH FLAG FOOTBALL

The Shakopee Mdewankanton Sioux Community (SMSC) launched IndigeFit Kids, a three-year philanthropic campaign to improve the physical fitness and mental wellness of Native youth in Minnesota. As a partner of this campaign, the Minnesota Vikings hosted representatives from the 11 Tribal nations as VIPs at training camp, presenting them with opportunities to introduce flag football curriculum in schools and aid physical education programming for Native youth.

MIDDLE SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG FOOTBALL

Middle school girls flag football continues to thrive and serve as an important part of the pipeline in the Twin Cities and Des Moines, Iowa. There were 10 teams in each metropolitan area, catalyzing even more interest at the high school level throughout the upper Midwest.

PLAY FOOTBALL GAME

To celebrate youth football at the Play Football game on Aug. 16, the Vikings hosted the St. Louis Park Youth Football Association on the sidelines to stand near the players and coaches during the national anthem. The youth football athletes were excited to take photos when Vikings superstar Justin Jefferson walked past them. Additionally, 150 Vikings Flag athletes were invited to enjoy post-game field access where they were able to throw touchdowns and do “The Griddy” in the endzone.

MASCOT GAME

Spring Lake Park’s youth football team had the opportunity to go up against a team of mascots from around the country in front of U.S. Bank Stadium’s crowd during the Vikings matchup against the Bears on Nov. 16. Athletes were treated like the Vikings, receiving a pregame photo and video shoot upon arrival. The mascots came out on top, winning 14-7.

The Vikings are proud of the long-term impact game day experiences such as the annual Mascot Game have on the growth of youth football. A high school football student-athlete’s mom reached out with the following message: “You might not recall, but my son played in the mascot game back in fifth grade. It was such a fun and memorable season for them (and their parents!). Since those early days, I’ve somehow found myself serving as the “team mom” and now the booster club president – it has been an incredible blessing to have a front-row seat with these young men as they’ve grown up.”

USA FOOTBALL JUNIOR NATIONAL TRAINING CAMP

USA Football held a training camp for its 15U and 17U U.S. Boys and Girls' National Teams at Twin Cities Orthopedics Performance Center April 3-6.

"We are proud to host USA Football's U.S. Junior National Teams as they prepare to represent our country in international competition," said Vikings Vice President of Social Impact Brett Taber. "This is an exciting time for flag football as the sport sees exponential growth in advance of its Olympic debut in 2028. The Vikings are dedicated to growing the game and providing pathways to play in Minnesota and the surrounding states, and this is an excellent opportunity to further support that growth and increase visibility for the opportunities that exist for both boys and girls."

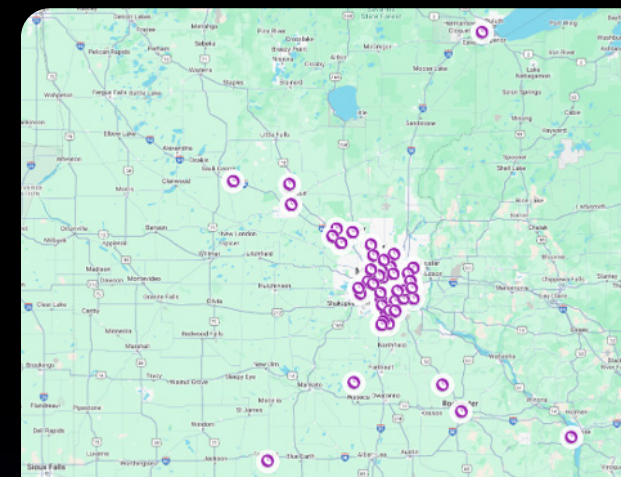

The 17U U.S. Boys National Team held joint practices and international friendlies against Israel's 17U Boys National Team. The international collaboration provides the 17U teams with a chance to experience new cultures while developing their elite skills for future global competitions.

"The Vikings and the Wilf family have gone above and beyond to grow the game at all levels in Minnesota. Providing this premier opportunity for our U.S. Junior National Teams at their world-class facility is just the latest example," said USA Football CEO Scott Hallenbeck. "We greatly appreciate the Vikings for making such a generous contribution toward the training camp's success as we continue developing players who may represent our country when flag football debuts in the 2028 Summer Olympics."

"Additionally, our staff is eager to welcome Israel's 17U Boys' National Team to the U.S. for an international friendly," Hallenbeck added. "As we continue preparing for LA28, USA Football is working with football governing bodies around the world to lead the sport's growth and support the creation of more developmental and competitive events."

High school girls flag football exploded in popularity in Minnesota; 47 more teams joined the Minnesota High School Girls Flag League in 2025 for a total of 51 participating schools. The launch of the girls flag league comes less than a year after the Vikings piloted a high school program in 2024, successfully completing a 12-game regular season with four teams before hosting the state championship game at TCO Stadium last summer. Schools that participated ranged from 1A to 6A schools and were located in nearly every corner of the state.

PARTICIPATING SCHOOLS

- Athletes ranked their overall experience playing flag football an 8.76 out of 10.
- 92% of participants indicated they were likely to continue playing flag football.
- 73% of athletes found it easy to learn and understand flag football rules.

MEDIA DAY

Prior to the season kicking off, the team hosted five representatives from the participating schools at TCO Performance Center, where they participated in photo and video shoots, completed interviews with the Vikings editorial team, and toured the practice facility. They also heard from Harrison Phillips and C.J. Ham about the important role they were playing in paving the way for girls flag in Minnesota and the upper Midwest. Through content generated at Media Day and throughout the season, there were 1,289,992 total overall impressions on social media.

VIKINGS HOST GIRLS FLAG FOOTBALL TOURNEY; MAHTOMEDI WINS INAUGURAL STATE TITLE

BY LINDSEY YOUNG

CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT

Following a four-week regular season and a day of playoffs, 12 teams earned a trip to the Minnesota High School Girls Flag Football Championship Tournament in June. Teams that participated were (in seed order): Mahtomedi, La Crescent-Hokah, Anoka, Minnetonka, Park Cottage Grove, Centennial, Simley, Bloomington, Burnsville, Two Rivers, Eagan, and Sartell.

And then there were two.

The Vikings last summer hosted the high school girls flag football championship tournament, during which 12 schools battled it out until La Crescent-Hokah and Mahtomedi faced each other in the title game.

TCO Stadium lights illuminated the field on a blustery evening, and Mahtomedi gradually took control of the contest and defeated a feisty Lancers squad 36-20 on June 9.

Young women on the sideline sprinted to meet their teammates on the field in a celebratory mob, lifting the black-and-silver trophy above their heads in triumph.

"This means everything for them," Mahtomedi Head Coach Nick Sullivan said. "Everything that we do, and all the success, it's for them. We have a lot of seniors on our team that graduated this weekend, so this kind of a last hurrah for them.

"One last game, the inaugural season? I mean, this is as big as it gets," Sullivan added. Trailblazers.

It's true of the Zephyrs, who became the first team in state history to officially win the girls high school flag football championship.

It's true also, though, of 50 – 50! – other teams that competed during the 2025 season. After helping launch a pilot program in 2024 with four teams (La Crescent-Hokah, Rosemount, Houston and Pine Island), the Vikings looked to expand to a full league ... and expand they did.

"It's just been so cool to see the growth," La Crescent-Hokah senior Savannah Klinski said prior to the final game. "The number of people who have been out here today, it's just been amazing. Last year we were just a small little group, and now the bleachers are filled. It's incredible."

Klinski caught two touchdown passes and a 2-point conversion in the championship game; she earlier helped lead the Lancers to wins over Two Rivers (33-12) and Centennial (24-6). The Zephyrs, quarterbacked by Rylee Bogren, defeated Bloomington and Park (in Cottage Grove) with identical scores of 32-0 en route to facing La Crescent-Hokah.

Mahtomedi senior Presley Albers scored the Zephyrs final touchdown of the evening. "We wanted to leave everything on the field for our last game. Have fun with my teammates one last time," she said.

"We all grew up watching football with our family, and just to see women [playing football and] little girls can look up to them and know they can do whatever they want, it's special," Albers added.

ALL-STATE TEAM

The inaugural Minnesota High School All-State Flag Team features the top high school girls flag football players in the state. The team is selected by a panel of Vikings staff, local media and high school girls flag representatives. The All-State Team was honored with an in-game live shot during the Vikings home preseason game against the New England Patriots on Aug. 16.

Competition on the field was fierce. Young women put their athleticism on full display as they threw darts, leapt to make impressive catches and executed Aaron Jones-worthy cuts with the pigskin to protect the yellow flags dangling from belts.

Knees bled, sweat poured and trash talk flew. But off the field, the athletes shared an unmistakable mutual respect.

"Seeing the level of sportsmanship across all the teams throughout this six-week season has been incredible – and something I haven't really seen in any other sport," Vikings Coordinator of Youth & High School Football Emily Weinberg said. "Everyone was really starting with a clean slate. Seeing them build each other up throughout the season and start this sport from the ground up has been incredible.

"I've always known that I loved football, and seeing this girls flag football season come to fruition has made me love it even more. The more people that we're able to get in the game, the merrier. And this is great proof of that," Weinberg added. "One of our goals is to be sure everyone feels welcome here, emphasize that everyone is able to play football. By hosting this culminating championship here at our facility, it really shows just how committed to this game the Vikings are."

Lancers Head Coach Terry Donovan, who also serves as the La Crescent-Hokah Activities Director, and Sullivan, who also is a Mahtomedi student resource officer, shared similar sentiments about the value of growing girls flag football in Minnesota.

"I've seen incredible growth in these girls. I mean, they just keep getting better and better," Donovan said. "Everything we've done, they respond and succeed. And [being here at TCO Performance Center] makes this extra special. Being able to have the Vikings help, supporting financially and in every other way, makes it super special – and I know that's what will help the sport succeed in the long run.

"Football is for everyone," added Donovan, a USA Football master trainer. "We know football is for everyone. These girls are showing this is high-level football out here."

Sullivan shared a personal anecdote to reiterate the importance of making football inclusive.

"When I was in middle school, there was a girl who played on our tackle football team, Mary, and she was phenomenal. She belonged then," Sullivan said. "There's always been this hesitancy to football with a lot of our girls ... where a lot of them don't want to get out there because they're nervous [or they've previously felt excluded], but they belong. This league, and all its success, it shows that this sport is meant for them."

Sullivan smiled, then added:

"It's only going to grow even more. Next year we're hoping to double, and I think it will, because there are a lot of girls even at the middle school level who want to play. It's churning up interest across the state, and it's pretty amazing."

VIKINGS UNVEIL MURAL CELEBRATING INAUGURAL HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG FOOTBALL SEASON

BY LINDSEY YOUNG

Their reactions said it all.

Members of the Minnesota State Champion Mahtomedi girls flag football team expressed surprise and excitement upon the reveal of a brand-new display at the Vikings Museum.

Designed as a mural in the museum lobby, the exhibition featured an ode to Minnesota's inaugural girls high school flag football league and highlighted the 2025 Mahtomedi team, which in June defeated La Crescent-Hokah for the title.

"This is the cherry on top," Mahtomedi Athletic Director Aaron Forsythe said with a smile.

"The opportunity for flag football created a lot of buzz and energy and excitement for our community, and we had more than 50 girls come out," Forsythe explained. "We connected with some kids who weren't previously athletes in our building, and we had a lot of multisport athletes, as well. It was a great opportunity, and we're looking forward to it continuing to grow."

The Vikings welcomed the Zephyrs and their family members to training camp on July 28 for the presentation, before which they had the opportunity to meet and hear from USA Football DB/WR Maci Joncich.

Joncich, who began playing flag football at age 6 on all-boys teams, starred at Coronado High School (Las Vegas) and was a three-time All-Star honoree. She became the youngest member of the 2024 U.S. National Team at 18 years old.

Joncich congratulated the Zephyrs on their season success and shared with them her experiences, which recently included a trip to Los Angeles to scrimmage against women's flag teams from Japan, Israel, Germany and Australia. In September, Team USA traveled to Panama for the 2025 Americas Flag Continental Championship.

"It's huge to have NFL teams backing girls flag football," Joncich said. "It gives these girls something to work for. They can look and say, 'That's so cool, the Vikings are sponsoring this event. The Raiders are sponsoring this tournament.' It makes a huge difference in our sport."

Vikings Vice President of Social Impact Brett Taber and Coordinator of Youth & High School Football Emily Weinberg addressed the young women and emphasized the impact they've made on a league that continues to expand.

"You are all true trailblazers, with the sport making an impact not only statewide but across the region and nation," Weinberg said. "You all should be very proud of the way you carry yourselves, both on the field and off the field, so we're really excited to be able to enshrine this past season here."

Taber thanked the players, families and school administrators for their efforts in executing a historical season.

"This is a truly special moment and a great occasion that marks the legacy of girls flag football in Minnesota. It's here to stay, and it's here to grow," Taber said. "We're thankful to have Maci from the United States women's national team, representing what flag football can become, especially with the Olympics coming up in 2028, and I hope all of you players and athletes take that as inspiration and opportunity."

"We at the Minnesota Vikings are honored to be able to provide this opportunity for flag football and to be able to create these opportunities for young women to grow in sports," Taber later added.

TRAINING CAMP SCRIMMAGE

To increase visibility of high school girls flag football, the Vikings hosted the Melrose and Eagan high school girls flag teams during training camp night practice at TCO Stadium. The teams scrimmaged prior to practice, then welcomed the Vikings onto the field with a high five line.

PLAY FOOTBALL GAME

High school girls flag football was at the forefront of the Play Football game programming on Aug. 16 as the Vikings took on the New England Patriots in a preseason contest at U.S. Bank Stadium. In addition to honoring the All-State Team, the 2025 high school girls flag football champions – the Mahtomedi Zephyrs – and their head coach Nick Sullivan (Minnesota's Coach of the Year) were recognized on the field.

Halftime featured a girls flag scrimmage between Waterville-Elysian-Morrissett and Apple Valley. Apple Valley ultimately won the 6-minute scrimmage after scoring late in the game.

The team hosted girls and women's flag stakeholders from across the upper Midwest in a suite, where attendees were able to connect and learn from one another. Those who had not yet started a girls flag program walked away feeling inspired to initiate the process of providing that opportunity for the communities they serve.

DES MOINES HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG LEAGUE

The Vikings are proud to support the growth of high school girls flag football throughout the upper Midwest. The movement in Minnesota catalyzed involvement from surrounding states, especially in Iowa. In addition to the 10 middle school girls flag teams competing in Des Moines, five high school teams formed a pilot league.

NFL FLAG CHAMPIONSHIPS

Seven high school girls flag teams participated in the inaugural Vikings Regional at the National Sports Center on May 10. Rosemount High School, one of the first schools to have a high school girls flag team in Minnesota, won its division and represented the Vikings at NFL Flag Championships in Canton. The Rosemount Irish made it to the Elite 8 – the farthest any team from Minnesota has advanced in the tournament.

GATORADE PREP ELITE

PRESENTED BY

Gatorade Prep Elite is a one-day, invite only football camp for the top high school football players in Minnesota. The experience is led by Vikings Legends, coaches and staff and provides in-depth instruction to prep football players to help prepare them for the next level of play.

70 of the top high school junior and senior prospects participated in this event in 2025.

Vikings Legends Mike Harris, Rufus Bess and Dave Dixon welcomed the group and led a panel to kick off the day. The group took a tour of TCO Performance Center before hitting the field for practice. Assistant Director of Player Performance Marquis Johnson led the group's warmup before turning it over to Vikings assistant coaches to run a pro-style practice. Vikings position coaches included Chris O'Hara, Tony Sorrentino, Ryan Cordell, Imarjaye Albury, Thad Bogardus, Pat Hill, Chenzo Funari, Charlie Frye and Dalmin Gibson. Assistant to the Head Coach Henry Schneider IV also assisted in the clinic.

TRAINING CAMP TEAM OF THE DAY

The Training Camp Team of the Day program, presented by Gatorade, brings high school football players to TCO Performance Center for an unforgettable experience. Each team is provided with transportation; free access to Vikings Training Camp and the Vikings Museum; lunch; and sideline passes to watch practice. In previous years, this experience was extended only to high school tackle teams. With the growth girls flag football has seen statewide, the girls flag teams at each invited school were encouraged to participate as well.

MINNESOTA HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG QB TO REPRESENT VIKINGS & NFC NORTH AS FINALIST FOR NFL AWARD

BY LINDSEY YOUNG

Alayna Adamez thought she was attending a team meeting for girls flag football.

The unsuspecting high school athlete sat in a classroom in late October, chatting casually with teammates while waiting for her head coach to start the session.

Then Vikings defensive lineman Levi Drake Rodriguez walked in and asked for Adamez, who raised one hand to identify herself while covering her mouth in shock with the other.

The room's excitement level took an immediate jump as Rodriguez presented Adamez with a custom Vikings jersey – and then a pair of tickets to Super Bowl LX.

In September, Adamez had been selected as one of the Vikings two nominees for the NFL Latino Youth Honors, which recognizes high school seniors of every background from across NFL club markets who excel on the field and in the classroom, as well as contribute or engage meaningfully with Latino culture and community.

The pool of nominees was narrowed from 64 to eight finalists, with Adamez selected to proudly represent the entire NFC North. In addition to attending Super Bowl LX, she will receive at least a $5,000 grant award for college; should Adamez be selected as the female national winner (announced during Super Bowl week), that grant will increase to $25,000.

"I just want to congratulate you on everything you've done thus far," Rodriguez told Adamez. "Keep pushin', and don't let anyone tell you that you can't do anything. Follow your dreams and do the things that other people don't."

An emotional Adamez accepted an embrace from Rodriguez and then joined in a celebration with her teammates, coaches and Park High School Athletic Director Phil Kuemmel.

Adamez explained how when she'd initially been selected as the Vikings nominee, she viewed it as "a great opportunity" to not only celebrate her Latino heritage but also to lean into being a leader – "not just in flag football but all around."

"When Levi walked in, I was like, 'Oh my gosh. ... This is insane,'" Adamez reacted. "I'm so blessed. I'm, like, shaking. I'm so excited, I don't even know what to say. Just thank you. Honestly, so many thank yous to everybody."

Adamez, who is committed to play Division I softball at Southern Illinois University, expressed deep gratitude to her parents, Jill and Daniel Adamez, and her grandparents, Jesus and Maria Adamez.

"Me and my grandpa, we [have been close for so long], and I learned more [about my heritage] not just from him and my grandma but also his whole family, his sisters," she said. "Grandpa has eight sisters, and they're all gonna be so excited."

"My [family] poured their heart and soul into my passions," Adamez later added. "They knew that I fell in love with softball, and they knew I fell in love with hockey. They poured in any money they could give me so I could go to a scout camp and get looked at and fulfill my dreams."

She and Rodriguez instantly connected over

Latino family culture and the sacrifices their families have made over the years for them to continue pursuing their athletic goals.

"They work their butts off," Rodriguez said. "My parents, we've always said we're 'sports poor' because we poured so much money into sports – baseball, football, travel, that we didn't have the biggest house, we didn't have the best cleats, the best gloves or anything, but they knew we had something in our hearts and minds to go chase."

"That's what my parents wanted for me, to give me an opportunity ... and they did that," he told her. "They're the proudest parents. And I bet yours are, too."

Adamez beamed, echoing Rodriguez whole-heartedly.

Though softball is her primary sport, Adamez is an all-around athlete, also playing hockey and, of course, flag football.

"And because she didn't have anything to do in the fall, she picked up tennis," Kuemmel quipped.

Adamez jumped at the chance to be part of Park's inaugural girls flag football season, the softball catcher stepping in to play quarterback.

"I had seen Alayna play in the powderpuff game, and I knew right away," Park Head Coach Scott Leonard said. "When teams have never seen us play, they don't realize how strong her arm is. Most teams, they'll drop their defensive backs about 15 yards, stop and sit down. Well, Alayna can throw the ball 40 to 45 yards in the air."

"A dad from another team at one of our games got on his phone and said, 'You've gotta get over here and see this girl throw,'" Leonard added, laughing.

Adamez helped lead her team to the Minnesota State Tournament's final four this past spring, throwing for 1,432 yards over eight regular-season games. She threw 32 touchdown passes with just five interceptions and was named the District 6 Gold Quarterback of the Year.

Beyond her athletic abilities, Adamez shines in the classroom with a 3.9 GPA and is looked to as a role model by peers and younger students alike. She is a WEB leader, helping younger children transition smoothly into middle school, and has been a Buddy for the local Miracle League.

"Her personality, she's just so bubbly. She's fun to be around," Leonard said. "The girls love playing with her on the football field."

Watching Adamez's teammates wrap her in hugs, offer emotional congratulations and excitedly pose for group photos, it's clear how close the team is and how much respect the QB has earned.

"We're all best friends," Adamez said, smiling.

"All the girls did a great job from Week 1 to the end of the season ... and our community really came out and supported the team," Kuemmel said. "This is all so exciting, and I'm proud of Alayna. I just keep going back to one of eight in the country, and how neat is that? She contributes in so many ways to Park High School, and this is really cool. It's phenomenal."

PREP SPOTLIGHT

The Minnesota Vikings and Twin Cities Orthopedics are dedicated to supporting high school football in our community. Since 2018, the Vikings have hosted the Vikings Prep Spotlight series, an opportunity for high school teams to play a regular season game at TCO Stadium. The ability to host high school and youth football events at the facility was a primary focus in the design of the campus. Since 2018, the Vikings have hosted two to three prep games per year, providing a once-in-a-lifetime experience to more than 40 high school football programs from around the state. In addition to this free experience for players and coaches, the Vikings produce a livestream broadcast for select games each year to bring more visibility to the game and make it more accessible to fans at home.

HIGH SCHOOL TACKLE PARTICIPATION IN MINNESOTA

The Vikings are proud to support the growth of tackle football throughout the state. Minnesota continues to see a steady increase in high school tackle participation, with nearly 25,000 athletes competing on the gridiron in 2024.

FIELD GRANTS

In partnership with the NFL Foundation's Matching Field Grant Program, the Vikings provided a combined $400,000 grant to support new field turf and stadium renovation projects at Bloomington Jefferson and Bloomington Kennedy High Schools. These improvements deliver safer, more durable playing surfaces and expand opportunities for thousands of student-athletes and community members.

To celebrate the completion of the projects, the Vikings participated in each school's field dedication event, bringing Vikings Legends, Cheer & Mascot, and a Vikings representative to address the crowd and help commemorate the moment. Together with the NFL Foundation, the Vikings are strengthening community pride and investing in spaces where young athletes can learn, compete and grow.

HONOR THE GAME DISPLAY

The Honor the Game Display, located on the back of the east video board in U.S. Bank Stadium, was constructed in 2016 to promote high school football throughout the state of Minnesota. Four touch-screen kiosks located on the concourse near the wall allow fans visiting U.S. Bank Stadium to identify their community or school's helmet and look up historical data such as past state championships. Once per year, the Vikings Youth and High School Football Department works with 350+ high school football coaches to update the wall to reflect any helmet and logo changes schools have made in the previous year.

MINNESOTA FOOTBALL HONORS

In partnership with the Minnesota chapter of the National Football Foundation, the Vikings helped produce the Minnesota Football Honors Award Show at TCO Studios, which aired on Fan Duel Sports Network in October 2025. This award show recognizes players, coaches and support staff across all levels of football for the work they do on and off the field.

ALL-STAR GAME

In partnership with the Minnesota Football Coaches Association, the Vikings hosted the 52nd annual Minnesota High School Football All-Star game on Saturday, Dec. 13 at U.S. Bank Stadium. The game featured 88 of the best high school football seniors from throughout the state in a North vs South matchup.

Players and coaches checked in on Wednesday and hosted several days of practice leading up to the game. Additionally, the group had a chance to hear from Vikings Legend Anthony Harris during meetings at the team hotel.

The North All-Stars beat the South All-Stars, 17-6. MVP awards were distributed to an outstanding offensive and defensive player from each team.

- North Offensive MVP: Kaden Harney, QB, Maple Grove
- North Defensive MVP: Easton Ridlehoover, DB, Rogers
- South Offensive MVP: Nathan Ramler, QB, Chanhassen
- South Defensive MVP: Chris Rehak, LB, Farmington

NATIVE ALL-AMERICAN GAME

In partnership with the NFL Foundation and the Native American Athletic Foundation, the Minnesota Vikings hosted the Native All-American Game at US Bank Stadium on Sunday, Dec. 14.

Players and coaches traveled from all over the country for a week filled with personal and professional development activities, meet-and-greets with Vikings Legends and coaches, facility tours, team practices, cultural celebration and more. This high school football all-star game featured indigenous athletes from around the country, with 22 states and 48 different tribal communities represented.

USA FOOTBALL COACHING CERTIFICATIONS

The Minnesota Vikings provided more than 700 youth football coaches in Minnesota and South Dakota with USA Football's Coach Certification in 2025, benefiting thousands of youth football athletes, their families and communities across the two states. With this latest commitment, the Vikings have now paved the way for more than 4,000 free coach certifications since the start of 2022. The Vikings and U.S. Football continue to work together to support grassroots football by preparing dedicated coaches with the knowledge and tools to provide athletes and their families with memorable experiences.

COACHING CLINICS

The Vikings are proud to provide free opportunities for coaches new to the game to learn and develop their skills. In partnership with USA Football, three free clinics were offered: two for girls flag football coaches in the United States, and one for flag football coaches in the newly formed Newcastle league.

OFFICIALS ENGAGEMENT AND RECOGNITION

PRO BOWL

The 2024 Crew of the Year, selected in collaboration with the NFHS, was honored as the National Crew of the Year. The selected officials traveled to the Pro Bowl in Orlando.

OFFICIALS CLINIC

In partnership with the MSHSL, the Youth and High School Football department hosted the third annual Officials Clinic at TCO performance Center in an effort to recruit and train new officials. Vikings Legend and local high school athletic director Willie Howard spoke to attendees, in addition to current and former Big Ten Conference officials. Participants had the opportunity to learn through watching film and live demonstrations.

The team also hosted an officials clinic specifically for those new to officiating high school girls flag football. Over 100 people officiated the high school girls flag league, with 20% being women.

TRAINING CAMP EXPERIENCE

The 2024 National Crew of the Year was invited to enjoy VIP access at training camp. Attendees had sideline practice access and met with the crew that worked the joint practice with the Patriots. They also had a chance to talk with Minnesota native and Vikings linebacker Blake Cashman.

YEARS OF SERVICE RECOGNITION

The Vikings created a certificate for the MSHSL to send to officials in appreciation for 10, 20, 30, 40 or 50 years of service. Officials with 60 or more years of service have the chance to be selected for a Vikings game-day experience, including pregame field access, two tickets to a preselected game and concession coupons.

CREW OF THE MONTH/YEAR

A Crew of the Year was selected in collaboration with the MSHSL and was honored on multiple platforms during the 2025 season. The crew consisted of:

- Referee Donald Adderley from Coon Rapids, MN – 37 years of service
- Umpire Jason Weber from Minneapolis, MN – 17 years of service
- Down Judge Scott Haefner from Mankato, MN – 23 years of service
- Line Judge Tim Grove from Morris, MN – 15 years of service
- Back Judge Brad Zumbaum from Bovey, MN – 21 years of service

The Crew of the Year members were gifted 2 (two) tickets to watch the Vikings beat the Commanders on December 7, 2025. They also received a certificate endorsed by Coach O'Connell, and a personalized flip coin for future use or display.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG FOOTBALL COACH OF THE WEEK

After each week of high school girls flag football games, two coaches of the week were selected based on performance on the field, sportsmanship, and the impact made on their student-athletes. Coaches received two tickets to a Vikings preseason game, recognition on social media and Vikings website, and a $1,000 donation to the school's flag football program.

2025 HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG COACH OF THE WEEK WINNERS

- Matt Solberg – Proctor High School
- Ryan Galindo – Minneapolis Washburn High School
- Brandon Carl – Eagan High School
- Jon Bakken – Waterville-Elysian-Morristown High School
- Nick Shriver – Big Lake High School
- Nathen Jackson – Roseville Area High School
- Bo Wasurick – Anoka High School
- Scott Leonard – Park Cottage Grove High School
- Nick Sullivan – Mahtomedi High School
- Kimber Scott – Two Rivers High School

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FLAG FOOTBALL COACH OF THE YEAR

COACH NICK SULLIVAN led the Mahtomedi Zephyrs to an undefeated inaugural season, including winning the state championship tournament. He was honored on the field at the Vikings preseason game vs the New England Patriots on August 16.

HIGH SCHOOL TACKLE FOOTBALL COACH OF THE WEEK

After each week of games during the high school football season, the Vikings honor a high school coach of the week. Coaches are chosen based on their contribution on the football field, but more importantly, on the impact they make within their community and for their student-athletes. In addition to being recognized in local media and on Vikings community social media platform, the coach receives two tickets to a Vikings home game, as well as a $1,000 donation to the school's football program.

2025 HIGH SCHOOL TACKLE COACH OF THE WEEK WINNERS

- Joe McPherson – Orono High School
- Ray Betton – Shakopee High School
- Austin Hackett – Onamia High School
- Luke Mitchell – Holdingford High School
- Paul Dunn – Albert Lea High School
- John Stewart – Spring Lake Park High School
- Carson Yaggie – Breckenridge High School
- Adam Spurrell – Maple Grove High School
- Bill Infanger – Osakis High School
- Joel Swanson – Kason – Mantorville High School
- Ben Burk – Lakeville South High School

COACH OF THE YEAR: JOHN STEWART - SPRING LAKE PARK

COACH "STEW" views his role as head football coach at Spring Lake Park as a catalyst for something greater. For as long as John has held this position, he has sought to make a meaningful impact. Many might assume that winning football games would be his primary measure of success. Not true. Winning is simply a byproduct of all the other elements John has worked so diligently to cultivate through his leadership.

Coach John Stewart led the 13-0 Spring Lake Park team to a 5A state championship. Coach Stewart was honored on the field during the Vikings home game against the Washington Commanders on December 7th.

VIKINGS HELP KICKOFF WOMEN'S FLAG FOOTBALL LEAGUE WITH HISTORIC JAMBOREE

BY LINDSEY YOUNG

Seven teams gathered on the campus of University of Northwestern-St. Paul on April 5 to kick off the newly established Women's Flag Football League with the first of three scheduled jamborees.

The Vikings, along with the NFL, partnered with the initiative and contributed $140,000 to support the league and participating schools: Northwestern, Augsburg University, Augustana University (Sioux Falls, South Dakota), Concordia College Moorhead, Gustavus Adolphus College, Bethel University and the University of Wisconsin-Stout.

Despite crisp, Minnesota pseudo-spring air, most of the women paired shorts – and enthusiastic smiles – with their jerseys.

Vikings Vice President of Social Impact Brett Taber joined representatives from six of the colleges for a pregame press conference. He noted the women's flag league is one of the first of its kind, and the largest, in the United States.

"This is really about creating opportunities for women and young girls to see themselves in the sport of football ... and to give them opportunities at the post-secondary level," Taber said, adding that the Vikings have now committed more than $1 million to supporting girls and women's flag football in the Twin Cities and across the region. "I'm honored to be joined here by all these institutions and these seven schools that have chosen to make this a priority in creating opportunities for female athletes on their campuses and to help [women's flag football] grow as it becomes a sport in the Olympics in 2028.

"We're excited to see that growth in here in the Upper Midwest and to lead that charge at the NCAA level," he added. "We as the Vikings organization are just honored to be a part of that."

University of Northwestern Athletic Director Matt Hill expressed gratitude to the Vikings and NFL and said he and the school have been "super excited" about the new league and that the energy has shown up in the Eagles practices.

"We're thankful that these other six institutions have decided to also start flag and get the ball rolling," Hill said. "It's only going to get bigger and better."

While some of the women participating in the inaugural season play other sports (including soccer, basketball and hockey) at their respective schools, others registered with less athletic experience but just as much fervor.

Augsburg Head Coach Melissa Lee, an '04 graduate and one of the top infielders in Auggies softball history, reflected on the impact of leading the women's flag team from a grassroots level.

"I have women on my team that have never been a part of any team. This is the first uniform they've ever worn in their life," Lee said. "I think several of our programs this year have a lot of dual-sport athletes currently competing in another sport on our campuses. But my proudest moment was the why – 'Why am I doing this? Why am I offering this opportunity for the ladies at Augsburg?' It's for those women that have never worn a uniform. They've never had the school spirit [that comes with] being a part of a team.

So that was a really important moment for me." The interest is there, the excitement is there, and it means a lot," Lee continued. "I asked the ladies if anyone had any experience, and what's the [common] answer? 'We played powderpuff at homecoming our junior and senior year [of high school].'

"And that was all it took for me. I said, 'You're in. You're on team,' " she added with a laugh. "It's really exciting to grow the sport ... and to give them this opportunity. For me, being a female and a champion of [women's] sports, I'm just really excited."

Augustana Head Coach Kiley Coyne

echoed Lee's sentiments.

Coyne, who also plays semipro football for the Sioux Falls Snow Leopards of the Women's Football Alliance, expressed pride in continuing to champion women's sports.

"The good thing about flag football is it's so inclusive. You don't have to be a freak athlete to play flag football," Coyne emphasized. "So these women that came in that maybe played softball or basketball in high school but didn't get recruited to any university to play that sport, they can [play flag football] here. And the NFL and the Vikings have really set up a great league for us to get that started."

Coyne is also thankful for the support of Vikings fullback and Augustana alum C.J. Ham, who has been a long-time proponent of girls flag football from the youth league level, and she pointed to him as a significant reason Augustana (also nicknamed the Vikings) felt strongly about joining the women's league.

"It's just a such cool connection with C.J. ... and we wanted to do this in South Dakota," she said.

Just down the road from the University of Northwestern, Tavian Swanson works as an assistant coach for the Bethel University men's tackle football team and also served as the women's flag head coach.

Swanson explained that while the contact element of tackle football obviously is removed, there are many parallels in coaching approach.

"Now I got to break it down to the basics to get these girls ready to go," he said. "That could be just stances, to running ... to watching the ball, to not watching the ball, all these different types of things. I've got to really break it down to the bare bones and build them up from that.

"For me, it's also a learning experience of teaching the women, 'Hey, you're not form-fitting going in for a tackle; you're form-fitting going in for a flag,'" Swanson noted.

UW-Stout Athletic Director Duey Naatz, who coached the school's team, also acknowledged and embraced a learning curve along with his players.

"But as [Swanson] mentioned, it's really getting back to the fundamentals," Naatz said. "There are a lot of similar things. You're not wrapping up and taking them to the ground, but you still have to break down to grab that flag."

"The great thing about flag football is the opportunity to open it up to a new demographic of football fans. They talked about some of the dual-sport athletes, but we see nationally, 50% of girls that play flag football don't participate in any other sport because they identify as football athletes," Taber said. "So now we can open this up, and that's going to be a whole new generation of players who are playing flag football at the high school level, at the collegiate level, at one of these seven institutions who are hopefully [also going to be] interested in watching some of their favorite stars on Sundays – Justin Jefferson, J.J. McCarthy – and what they're doing."

Taber added with a smile: "Hopefully we can get some more Vikings fans in the Upper Midwest, but I'd like to think that we already have them there. Duey will work on Wisconsin and see what we can do."

COLLEGE WOMEN'S FLAG CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT

The seven participating institutions convened at TCO Performance Center on Saturday, April 25th to compete for the championship trophy in the inaugural College Women's Flag Championship Tournament. It was an intense and exciting day of competition, with the University of Wisconsin-Stout Blue Devils being crowned the champion after the first final game match-up against Augustana resulted in a tie. While the Vikings fought hard, the Blue Devils were able to outlast them.

Food, fellowship and football – just as Thanksgiving weekend should be – accented by some thrown (and caught) fish.

The 2025 Vikings Unified Flag Football Team enjoyed all the above and so much more when it visited Seattle Nov. 28-Dec. 1 for this year's Unified Bowl.

The Vikings and Twin Cities Orthopedics sponsored Special Olympics athletes from the Omega Storm who signed contracts and met with Vikings Head Coach Kevin O'Connell and General Manager Kwesi Adofo-Mensah earlier in the fall.

"It adds a new level of excitement to be with the pros, and just to promote flag football sports amongst all different kinds of people is amazing," said Omega Storm Coach Deb Nohr, whose husband Dan and son Drew play unified flag football.

The Vikings Unified team received swag, from zip-up hoodies to custom-painted kicks, ahead of the trip and participated in a press conference and practices at TCO Performance Center in advance of the Unified Bowl. Brothers Patrick and Sean Healy, who were members of the inaugural Vikings Unified Team that played in L.A. in 2019, attended the press conference to encourage this year's squad.

"It really started with these two right here," said Special Olympics Vice President of Development Relations Mark Anderson. "Teammates from Rochester helped get this to where it is today. It's turned into a partnership between three organizations, but it's turned into a friendship."

"Let's keep this going so that everybody that looks at Minnesota says, 'We need to be more like the Vikings and include more people of all race and adversity,'" Anderson added.

The team also attended a Saturday walk-through practice by the Vikings in November where the group broke down the huddle and Jillian Sitarz showed off her selfie-taking skills alongside Justin Jefferson.

AN INCREDIBLE JOURNEY

Members of Seattle's Blue Thunder drumline, Seahawks Dancers and mascot Blitz helped welcome both squads with festivities before the game and at halftime.

Ultimately, the hosting Seahawks-sponsored team prevailed 36-30, thanks to some big touchdown plays and effective blitzes down the stretch. The Vikings, however, were valiant in their comeback effort from deficits of 22-8, 28-14 and 36-24.

With Ray Roberts, a former Seahawks and Lions tackle (1992-2000) who now works for Special Olympics, and Sidney Rice, a receiver with the Vikings (2007-10) and Seahawks (2011-13), cheering for both teams, the squads lived out the Special Olympics athlete oath, "Let me win. But if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

Minnesota's Justin Evilsizer scored a rushing touchdown just before halftime, and teammate and Unified Partner Isaac Nelson intercepted Seattle on the opening drive of the second half.

Seattle, however, was able to score on a 36-yard pass before Minnesota's Emily Schlegel found Andrea Racioppi for a 12-yard touchdown.

The Seahawks squad struck quickly again, breaking free on a 35-yard TD run for a 36-24 edge.

Minnesota answered with a 7-yard pass from Lauren McCullough to Dan Nohr.

Nelson, a veteran of the Marines and fan of Harrison Smith because of the safety's loyalty and consistency, recorded his second interception of the game with 1:15 remaining. The Seattle squad, however, was effective with blitzes to halt Minnesota's final opportunity.

The sportsmanship displayed by both sides continued through a jersey swap and massive cheers when Evilsizer and a player named Sam from Seattle were surprised with tickets to Super Bowl LX.

It was an incredible journey for the Vikings team, who flew out early the Friday after Thanksgiving and arrived in the Emerald City in time to attend the Professional Women's Hockey League game between the Minnesota Frost and the Seattle Torrent, the first home game ever for the franchise, which was played in front of a sell-out crowd. The Frost topped the Torrent 3-0.

Players and their families enjoyed having time to explore Seattle, making their way to the famed Pike Place Market, where the fresh fish are thrown and caught as part of the sights, along with Seattle's Gum Wall.

Some athletes ventured to the Space Needle on Saturday morning.

While most of the team rode a charter bus to the Seahawks headquarters for the game, Aaron Clark and his father Kim, an assistant coach, were driven by Vikings equipment truck driver Terry Pernsteiner in the 18-wheeler cab that had transported Minnesota's gear to the Pacific Northwest. Upon learning of Aaron's enthusiasm for big trucks, Pernsteiner arranged for the special delivery, complete with Aaron getting to sit in the driver's seat and honk the horn upon arrival.

The camaraderie of the group was on full display during a team lunch. After fueling up, the athletes practiced touchdown celebrations, including a bowling strike that knocked down human pins.

The unified teams attended the NFL game between the Vikings and Seahawks the following day, and Minnesota's group returned Monday.

Special Olympics Minnesota Corporate Relations Manager Kaitlin Mack and Senior Sports and Training Manager Derek

Schiebel were with the travel party.

"We're so thankful the Vikings have brought to the forefront our mission of inclusion and truly building on that," Mack said. "We're focused on the athlete, so you've got TCO, the Vikings and Special Olympics, and we're working together toward inclusion and healthy athletes. We want to see our athletes be healthy and strong and be included in a space, and sports does just that."

When Schiebel was a high school math teacher, he began coaching adaptive sports and "fell in love with the community." He now manages competitions, planning events year-round with 50 to 1,200 athletes, and trains coaches across the state.

"The Unified programming is a really cool way to see how change can happen, using sports as a vessel. You often hear that Special Olympics Minnesota is a sports organization. We do sports, and we also do a lot more, and it really comes from using sports as a vessel, or health as a vessel," Schiebel said. "It's really all about improving, all about change, and whether that's changing mindsets, changing actions, having inclusion at the forefront is really the big thing."

VIKINGS GRATEFUL FOR CONTINUED PARTNERSHIP WITH MINNESOTA FOOTBALL COACHES ASSOCIATION

BY LINDSEY YOUNG

The Vikings are all about football.

At the NFL level, of course, with players and coaches working tirelessly to field their best product on game days.

But the Vikings organization also is committed to growing the sport of football at the grassroots level – something they couldn't do as effectively without a longstanding partnership with the Minnesota Football Coaches Association.

Vikings Director of Youth & High School Football Joe Rush and Coordinator of Youth & High School Football Emily Weinberg emphasized a deep, shared commitment to growing and strengthening the game across Minnesota.

Weinberg expressed appreciation for MFCA and its support of football for all.

"The MFCA has played a pivotal role not only in the tackle football space, but in the rapid expansion of high school girls flag football statewide, resulting in more opportunities for girls and women to contribute to the growth of the game at all levels," Weinberg said.

The Minnesota Football Coaches Association is well known throughout the state and nation for its action and impact, including hosting an annual all-star game, youth football and coach clinics, multiple award recognitions and "Tackle Cancer," a campaign that each year raises money for the Randy Shaver Cancer Research and Community Fund. MFCA Assistant Executive Director Dave Nelson chairs Tackle Cancer, which has raised $4.1 million over the past 13 years thanks to the buy-in of communities around Minnesota. Take, for instance, the humble town of Randolph, population 458, which raised a record $70,000 in 2024.

MFCA Executive Director Ron Stolski, who coached high school football in Brainerd for 46 years and whose overall coaching career spanned 58, has watched the association grow into what it is today and credits the Vikings for helping it continue its impact.

"We have acquired a number of sponsorships, but none is more valuable or appreciated than the Minnesota Vikings. They have been wonderful to us in every way," said Stolski, who has served in his current role for two decades. "What the Vikings have done for us is immeasurable in terms of financial contribution and support in all the things that we do."

Stolski pointed out the Vikings sponsor the annual Mr. Football banquet, which honors elite high school athletes across the state, and are consistently willing to support various fundraisers and initiatives.

"All that the Vikings do, we appreciate all of their entrances into Minnesota football at the youth level and all others," Stolski said. "To say they are a valuable partner would be understating it. We couldn't be who we are and what we are without the Minnesota Vikings."

Added Nelson: "Just to have that Vikings logo associated with our work goes a long, long way."

As the Vikings and the MFCA wrapped up 2025, they look forward to many, many years of continued success supporting one another.

"Our mantra is, we call ourselves the 'keepers of the game,'" Stolski said. "And I think the Vikings are the keepers of the game, as well. I don't want to denigrate any other college or program, but nobody, nobody pays attention to the community, to the kids in the community, to the parents in the community, like the Minnesota Vikings."

Rush reiterated the Vikings are proud to stand alongside the MFCA in its mission.

"Together, we've been able to honor the extensive legacy of Minnesota high school football while also creating new opportunities for future generations," Rush said. "Our shared commitment continues to strengthen the game and its impact across Minnesota."

MSHSL

The Minnesota Vikings maintain a strong and impactful partnership with the Minnesota State High School League, working collaboratively to support and elevate high school football across the state. Together, we lead several key initiatives, including Prep Bowl sponsorship and hosting at U.S. Bank Stadium, officials' years of service recognition, the annual officiating clinic at TCO Performance Center, and the NFHS Officiating Crew of the Month and Year programs. Our partnership has also extended to include girls flag football, where we have built a strong working relationship to help establish a clear and sustainable path toward sanctioning.

LET'S PLAY FOOTBALL

The Minnesota Vikings value a strong partnership with Let's Play Football that helps amplify and celebrate youth and high school football across the state. Together, we collaborate on key initiatives such as Coach of the Week and Coach of the Year recognition, as well as impactful content series highlighting both tackle and flag programs. This partnership also plays an important role in identifying timely stories and human-interest moments that deserve greater visibility, further strengthening the voice and reach of the football community in Minnesota.

POSITIVE COACHING ALLIANCE

In addition to filling a regional board seat, the Vikings partnered with PCA and YMCA of the North to provide training sessions for youth sport coaches. These training sessions were critical to elevating coaching quality and participant experiences in our Vikings Flag Network, as well as other sport offerings through the YMCA.

GLAZIER CLINICS

The Minnesota Vikings are proud to support Glazier Clinics by sponsoring the annual Minneapolis clinic and providing access to educational sessions and Glazier Drive resources to youth and high school football coaches around the region. In addition to sponsoring the clinic, Vikings Legend Todd Bouman made an appearance to take photos and sign autographs for attendees.
