NFL clubs and players have been supporting social justice efforts in many ways. Hundreds of social justice events and initiatives have been organized and implemented by each of the 32 NFL clubs in the last year. These events include:

- Training sessions, community gatherings and ridealongs with players and local police departments, as well as team-facilitated volunteer programs that involve police officers and underserved youth.
- Events with local job-placement programs for the formerly incarcerated, as well as inmates nearing release from prison.
- Involvement with local police explorers programs.
- Financial commitments to underserved schools, ranging from support for busing to assistance in purchasing uniforms for students in need.
- Facilitation of mentorships or daylong learning sessions for at-risk youth and players and team staff and executives.
- Team participation in Listen & Learns and criminal justice reform legislation efforts organized by the Players Coalition.
- Numerous events with local Boys & Girls clubs, Big Brothers & Sisters chapters, and similar organizations, focused specifically on underserved youth and mentoring programs.
- Community gatherings and discussions organized by RISE.
- Organization of community unity summits, many held at team facilities or hosted by NFL players.

CLUB-MATCHING FUNDS

- Players and clubs are working collaboratively to identify local grant recipients.
- Teams are issuing public announcements about their chosen grant recipients in several ways—either when they reach the $500,000 mark, or as funds are raised, or programs are identified.
- More than half the clubs are opting to commit $250,000 or more in year one regardless of player donations.
The Players Coalition, an organization co-founded by NFL Legend Anquan Boldin and Eagles Safety Malcolm Jenkins, has advocated for the following ballot initiatives, all of which passed in the midterm election:

- Michigan Amendment 2: Requires unanimous juries to decrease wrongful convictions.
- Louisiana Amendment 4: Restores the right to vote to formerly incarcerated Floridians.

The NFL Washington Office continues to engage the White House and key bipartisan policymakers in Congress around criminal justice reform and the possibility that comprehensive legislation can be passed and signed into law before the end of this year.
